Goal Is $63,900

United Fund Kickoff Near

The United Fund Drive will start tomorrow morning at 7 with a breakfast at the Robert E. Lee Junior High School cafeteria.

Floyd Watson, campaign chairman has sent out a call for all section chairmen, team captains and volunteers to attend.

The 1959 goal is $63,900, to be allocated to the seven member agencies in the Pampa-Lefors area.

"Go All the Way — Give One Day's Pay" will be the theme of the breakfast. Hugh Burdette, United Fund president, will preside at the breakfast. The principal address will be delivered by Melvin T. Munn, publicity chairman.

Dr. Douglas Carver, First Baptist Church pastor, will offer the invocation. Burdette will introduce the division chairmen and officers and directors of the United Fund.

Chairman Watson pointed out that Pampa-Lefors has failed in its goal attempts several times. Agencies have to adjust their programs "downward" in direct ration to the percentage below goal developed by the volunteer solicitors.

E. Roy Smith, chairman of the advance gifts division, reported with only some 50 per cent of the cards worked in his section, volunteers have reported $19,255 in gifts and pledges. The goal for the advance gifts division is $32,000 or 50 per cent of the total.

Advance gift workers are striving for $25,000 in pledges before the kickoff breakfast.

Burdette, president, points out that United Fund Agencies serve every level of the community's economy. Through family services, disaster relief, and character building agencies, many of the more substantial donors are, themselves, beneficiaries of the total program.

Chairman Watson has projected the campaign for just two weeks. Workers will receive supplies, final instructions and a challenge to

Racial Issue Tops Southern Leaders Talks

By AL KUETTNER
United Press International

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (UPI) — Democratic Party politics and the South's role in the 1960 convention dominated the 25th annual Southern Governors Conference today and for the present took the sting out of the burning racial issue.

Governors, willing at the drop of a hat to talk about next year's elections, were reluctant to be drawn out on segregation.

Today's session was a mixture of problems and relaxation. The morning was devoted to opening addresses by Gov. J. P. Coleman, of Mississippi, conference chairman; Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina, host governor, and Gov. J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware, chairman of the National Governors Conference.

Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus, the main news source of the 1957 and 1958 sessions because of the Little Rock school integration situation, came here convinced that even in the Arkansas capital time would heal the wounds of bitterness.

Faubus told United Press International he feels racial strife is only a symptom of deep trouble in the United States for which "we must find an answer."

"Our country is just about on the rocks morally," Faubus said. "We must recapture the real spirit of Christianity that is the foundation of America.

"Somehow the leadership seems to have been taken away from moderates guided by the principles of Christianity and placed in the hands of radical elements."

The South's position one year ahead of the Los Angeles democratic convention was reflected at marathon news conferences and in off the cuff talks with reporters. Summed up, the Asheville thinking was this:

—The South probably will not entertain thoughts of a walkout in 1960.

—Sens. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Stuart Symington of Missouri and John Kennedy of Massachusetts probably would be acceptable to most Southern states.

Boggs, one of the two Republican governors in this predominantly Democratic show, predicted the Republicans would extend their strength in the South in 1960 and felt that a linkup between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller might make the most potent team the GOP could offer.

Door Ajar For Johnson Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson says he is not running for his party's presidential nomination but he has left the door open for the 1960 convention to draft him.

Johnson, one of the Senate's four Democratic presidential possibilities, said Sunday "I am not a candidate for President. I do not intend to become a candidate for President."

The Senate leader, who appeared on a nation-wide TV program, was asked if he would discourage convention delegates who had stated they intended to back him for the nomination.

"I think it's very unlikely that the convention would nominate any person that was not a candidate," Johnson replied. "If the convention should do that and should ask me to serve, then I would have to take a look at it, but I do not anticipate any such eventuality."

Ambassador's Son Gets Irish Up, But Saved From Clink

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The son of the Irish ambassador beat up a policeman here during the weekend but got away scot-free because he's protected by diplomatic immunity, police said today.

Two American companions of David Hearne, 21, who allegedly cheered him on in the fight outside a local night spot Saturday night, were charged with disorderly conduct.

John Joseph Hearne, Irish ambassador to the United States, had to come down to a precinct police station to get his son released in his custody.

Officer Joseph T. Roberts said young Hearne has been "quite a frequent visitor" to the station over the past three or four years because of various scrapes with the law.

"He is really insulted if we call him a foreigner . . . claims he's as American as anybody until he's threatened with a lock-up," Roberts said. "Then he's no longer American but an Irishman entitled to diplomatic immunity."

Police records show that young Hearne and his two friends were being escorted out of the Chevy Chase Inn because of "loud and boisterous" behavior when the fight began.

The officer, Pvt. James M. Hicks, summoned to the tavern by its manager, suffered cuts and bruises on his face and forehead. A "policeman in trouble" call brought three squad cars and eight more patrolmen to the scene to escort the trio to the station.

Hicks said he was writing a report to his superiors. Then it will be decided whether a complaint will be made to the State Department.

If it comes from a hardware store we have it. Lewis Hdwe.

PAMPA AREA PATROLMEN — Standley Schneider, center, became the area's newest highway patrol officer the past week, joining Travis Underwood, left, and Sgt. E. G. Albers. Schneider, a 22-year-old former Lubbock resident, had been stationed the past six months at Dalhart. He was transferred to the Pampa detachment to take the place of Royce Logan, who resigned three weeks ago to attend W. Texas Teachers college at Canyon. (Daily News Photo)

'This I Saw'

Editor's Note: Throughout the United Fund Drive, which begins tomorrow, the Pampa Daily News will carry the following daily feature, relating to experiences of contributors to and recipients of United Fund.

A Pampa citizen walked into our office during the 1958 United Fund Campaign. He identified himself, mentioned his income is modest, and apologized for being unable to "give his share" to the United Fund Agencies.

He asked for, and completed, a pledge card. He had given $32, to be paid, in cash, $1 each week. Every week, without fail, the man has walked into our office and paid his pledge. When I tell him his gift is far greater than most employees give, he just smiles, and insists, "I ought to do much more, but just can't."

This I saw. And I still see it . . . every week.

Arguments Begin On Offshore Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court starts hearing lengthy arguments on the Gulf tidelands oil dispute today.

At the root of the tidelands controversy are millions of dollars in fees from oil companies which drill offshore. The issue is: do the state or the federal government get this income?

The Justice Department contends that state ownership is confined to a three-mile belt around the coast line. The five Gulf states claim 10.5 miles, or three leagues, from shore.

Drilling in the disputed area is now going on under an agreement that the fees be placed in a special escrow account. As of June 30, some 140 million dollars was in the fund.

The question has been before the high court since December 1955. At that time, former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell filed suit against Louisiana for a ruling on the issue. The state had claimed as far as 180 miles out to sea.

After a round of arguments in April 1957, the court ordered Texas, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi brought into the case.

More arguments were scheduled for last October but without explanation, the court postponed them. Last February, it announced they would be held this week.

Colder Air Over State By Tuesday

United Press International

Cooler temperatures will return to most of Texas Tuesday as a cool air mass moves into the state from the northwest.

East Central Texas and the Rio Grande Valley had temperatures in the 90s Sunday, with Presidio getting the state high of 99.

At Dallas, fairgoers enjoyed shirtsleeve weather and clear skies. The weather bureau at Dallas Love Field predicted another good day for the fair today. Cloudy skies and temperatures in the mid-70s were expected in Dallas this afternoon.

The Beaumont-Port Arthur area had the only rainfall recorded in the state Sunday, .01 inch. Bright sunshine flooded the rest of the state.

Heavy clouds blanketed East and Central Texas and the South Plains today, and fog was reported north of the cold front that moved into the state Saturday night. The front now lies along a line from Lufkin to Junction.

Forecasters expected the cloudiness to increase by mid-morning and then begin breaking up.

Showers were expected in North

$24,060 Suit Filed Here

Two compensation suits, one for $24,060, were filed this morning with District Court Clerk Helen Sprinkle. Both were filed by laborers injured in the Pampa area during July.

The larger suit was filed by Mack Stanley, Pampa, against Highlands Insurance Co. for back injuries suffered July 16 in a fall. Stanley, an employee of Brown and Root Construction Co., is seeking $60 a week for 401 consecutive weeks.

Filing a $14,035 compensation suit was J. W. Helbert, Gray county, against the Texas Employers Insurance Assoc.

Helbert stated he suffered leg, back and neck injuries July 6 when struck across his right leg by a 40-foot pipe. Helbert, employed by the Clayton Husted Co., is asking $35 a week for 401 consecutive weeks.

Rigged Quiz Show Hearings Wind Up Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators were ready to end their hearings on TV quiz show rigging today, still without the much-sought testimony of $129,000 winner Charles Van Doren.

Members of the House subcommittee said no word had been received from Van Doren, star of the now-defunct "21" program, who was invited last week to testify. He has been suspended from his $50,000-a-year job with NBC pending the outcome of the inquiry.

For the final session of the current phase, Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) scheduled witnesses from the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) which regulates advertising practices.

Another regulatory agency, the Federal Communications Commission, came under heavy fire Sunday night. One subcommittee member accused the FCC of "failing to protect" the public from abuses of the airwaves.

Rep. Walter E. Rogers (D-Tex.) said testimony showed the FCC had failed in its responsibility to police the TV industry. He suggested that there also should be an investigation of the FCC for what he called "brushing the whole thing under the rug."

Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.), another investigator, charged that evidence brought out at the hearings showed the "contempt" TV producers "have shown, time and again, for the public" even in program content.

A third member, Rep. William L. Springer (R-Ill.), predicted that Congress would be asked in January to consider some "new, strong legislation" to correct abuses such as those aired by the group.

Thieves Get Checks

A burglar broke into the Groninger and King office on Price Rd. Sunday night and walked off with "three or four dollars in checks," Sheriff Rufe Jordan reported today.

Jordan said entrance was gained through a "jimmied" rear door. The checks were taken from a filing cabinet.

Hope To Avoid Use Of Strike Injunction

Fact-Finders Huddled With Participants

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A presidential board of inquiry opens hearings today in a dramatic attempt to settle the nation's worst steel strike without use of a court injunction.

The three-man panel has agreed to limit testimony on the need for a back-to-work injunction so it can focus on economic issues in the 90-day-old walkout, informed sources said.

Fact-finding board chairman George W. Taylor was expected to announce the decision at the opening of the public session. Both industry and union officials were called to testify.

Steelworkers attorneys had planned to lay the groundwork for a legal fight against a Taft-Hartley decree by arguing that the strike does not now threaten the nation's welfare.

Industry officials have indicated they also oppose use of emergency provisions in the law to send 500,000 steel workers back to their jobs for a court-ordered, 80-day "cooling off" period.

Arguments on this point, however, may be ruled out by the decision of the blue-ribbon board to concentrate on narrowing the differences between the union and the industry.

Sources said the board also decided against advising President Eisenhower on whether the work stoppage would imperil the nation's health or safety if allowed to continue. Such a finding was made by the President Friday when he set Taft-Hartley machinery in motion by creating the board of inquiry.

Board members felt that this issue should be left up to the courts if the government seeks an injunction.

Taylor, an arbitrator with 30 years' experience, announced Sunday that the panel would do all it could to get a voluntary agreement to end the strike.

He predicted negotiators for the union and industry, who were deadlocked when they broke off talks last Tuesday, would be closer together when the hearings end.

An avowed critic of the Taft-Hartley injunction procedures, the 58-year-old chairman raised the possibility of calling special mediation sessions with both sides.

Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said he favored this approach. He declared that a no-strike court order would turn steel mills into "slave labor camps."

The industry withheld immediate comment on Taylor's plan.

McDonald and Arthur J. Goldberg, Steelworkers' general counsel, were expected to appear today for the union. R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for 12 of the largest steel firms, may represent the industry.

The board faced a Friday deadline for filing its report with the President. Once the report is in his hands, he may direct the attorney general to obtain an injunction to halt the strike for 80 days.

There were signs that the White House, the union and the industry were in for some surprises from the unconventional, out-spoken Taylor.

Liked More Than Disliked

Nikita Gained From U.S. Visit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A survery contended today that Nikita Khrushchev made more friends than he lost on his tour of the United States.

The study, made by Sindlinger & Co., business analysts, was said to indicate that 13 per cent of the American people changed their opinions of the Russian leader. Khrushchev's biggest gains were among management.

Khrushchev did not fare so well with workers, laborers and housewives. He suffered a net loss of favor with the American farmer.

The before - and - after assessment, based on a survey of 2,608 men and women in all parts of the country, indicated that most people clung to their original opinion, which was overwhelmingly negative.

The study indicated an apparent deep - seated distrust of Khrushchev even among those who seemed partial to the Russian leader.

Women appeared especially sensitive to Khrushchev's personality, the study showed, and for the most part found him notably lacking in emotional stability.

Jealous Suitor Slays Actress

BRACKETTVILLE, Tex. (UPI) County prosecutor John J. Tobin ordered an immediate trial today for an actor accused of murdering his blond girl friend, allegedly because motion picture star-producer John Wayne decided to give her a break.

The actor is Chester Harvey Smith, 32, whom Tobin charged with murdering LaJean Ethridge, 27, when she tried to move out of a house in which she was living with him and four other men.

Smith and Miss Ethridge were living with members of the "Names-Townsend Players," a troupe hired by Wayne's Batjac Productions to play in a 10 million-dollar movie about the siege of the Alamo.

Meg's Former Suitor Still Has Troubles

BRASSCHAT, Belgium (UPI) — Another religious storm was blowing up today in the latest chapter of the lives and loves of handsome Peter Townsend who lost Britain's Princess Margaret four years ago this month.

The former Royal Air Force hero was anxious to avoid any religious difficulties but the announcement of his engagement and forthcoming marriage to Belgian beauty Marie-Luce Jamagne, heiress to a cigarette fortune, saw possible trouble ahead.

Miss Jamagne is a Roman Catholic, and church sources said Townsend's divorce from his first wife, who is still living, would make a church ceremony impossible. It was the fact that he is a divorced man that ended his romance with Princess Margaret.

Townsend, 44, told a news con-

Mateos Urges U.S, Increase Latin Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Adolf Lopez Mateos of Mexico called today for redoubled efforts to solve Latin America's economic crisis.

"To fortify the Latin American countries is to fortify democracy," the Mexican chief executive said.

In an address before the council of the Organization of American states, Lopez Mateos said:

"In my opinion...the results of our cooperation in economic matters have not satisfied the legitimate aspirations of our peoples nor the confidence they have placed in our organization."

He urged that realistic and achieveable measures be taken to solve the problem of economic imbalance between wealthy countries on the one hand and the extremely poor on the other.

"Otherwise," he warned, "the alternative that we face is clear—either a prosperous and democratic America, united in political liberty and with abundance of goods for all and especially for those who need them most, or an America divided by the misery of some and the wealth of others, undermined by ignorance and an easy prey for any demagogical agitation. To fortify the Latin American countries is to fortify democracy."

Mexican sources viewed Lopez Mateos' speech to be the most important of his 11-day visit here. He emphasized Latin America's desire for stable prices for the raw materials produced in the area.

Predict End To Inflation, Excessive Taxes

GOP 'Crystal Gazers' See Rosy Hue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An announcement of long-range Republican Party goals drew praise today from GOP members of Congress but a Democrat called them "crystal gazing."

Republican advisers painted a picture of an abundant America in 1976 with full employment and the atom put to peaceful use making the nation's prosperity grow even g. Alsn wasthe end ofe terose flatrea 0!)0 dat ndthehtin grow even greater. Also seen was the end of inflation and "excessive taxation."

Rep. William L. Springer (R-Ill) said the goals were not extravagant. "Dynamic conservatism is always progressive", he said.

"In all of the expectations of these reports," he said, "the Republican Party in power expects to pay for their programs as they go."

But Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) pooh-poohed the GOP party goals as set forth over the weekend by a Republican advisory committee headed by Chicago industrialist Charles H. Percy.

"This crystal gazing into the future is no substitute for action now," Moss declared. "There are too many unemployed, too many strains on the financial system, and rising medical costs."

The Republicans said that by the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the American people should attain new heights in the field of human rights and in satisfying human needs.

The policy group said Americans should "accept no less" than these national goals by that time:

"A world at peace with the atom serving humanity.

"Opportunity for productive jobs at good wages for every man and woman of working age.

"Individual security, undiluted by inflation and excessive taxation.

"The most modern medical, hospital and health facilities."

Summing Up New TV Offerings: 'No Progress, Imitative Fare'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Time for shooters.

Where filmed series are concerned, two words sum it up: No progress.

progress report No. 1 on the new TV season.

A rash of imitative programming, which ignores fresh ideas, has led to some dreary debuts by about 20 of the newcomers. While I haven't seen all of The Alaskans, Wichita Town or Philip Marlowe yet, I'd say they'd have to go some to be as bad as, say, the Dennis O'Keefe Show, Betty Hutton's Show, Adventures In Paradise, Johnny Ringo, Tightrope, Man and the Challenge and perhaps a dozen new-but-old shows of almost similar shabbiness.

The only promising newcomers in the bunch are Twilight Zone, The Deputy, Dennis The Menace, Fibber McGee and Molly and the revised lineup. Just below this elite group, in terms of succeeding in what they set out to do, I'd set The Rebel, Men Into Space, Hennesey, Dobie Gillis, John Gunther's High Road, June Allyson, Riverboat and Trouble-

Two new "live" shows that are sad disappointments are Charley Weaver's Hobby Lobby and Dick Clark's World of Talent. In a special category we find Sunday Showcase, which has been disappointing so far but is making a valiant effort to provide fresh, high quality TV shows.

As for those perennial TV season pepper-uppers, the specials, we've had fine ones by Art Carney, Goodman Ace, Bing Crosby, Rosalind Russell and Arthur Godfrey — in that order — to help us get over the dreary aspects of the non-specials.

Here's hoping the next month gets better.

Dialing and Filing: The Red Skelton special on CBS-TV Friday night, suffered from too many guest stars who had nothing special to do. This goes for James Arness, Rhonda Fleming, Tommy Sands and Lionel Hampton, but not for that rotund utility man, Burl Ives, who fitted the proceedings just fine. When will TV stars learn that, before they rush out to sign up "names," they first should determine whether they are necessary? The highlights of the show, which marked Red's 30th anniversary in show business, were Skelton's magnificently rubberized facial expressions. The final segment, in which a parade of Skelton characterizations joined him for a party—thanks to excellent taping techniques — was inventive and enjoyable.

The Channel Swim: Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael Musmanno, a leading figure in the Sacco-Vanzetti case of the 1920s, will reenact his role in NBC-TV's two-part Sunday Showcase dramatization of the controversial case next May. Musmanno also will serve as the production's technical adviser.

Claire Bloom and Siobhan McKenna join Robert Morley and Kenneth Haigh in the CBS-T Playhouse 90 adaptation George Bernard Shaw's "Misa ance," to be seen on Oct. 29. the World Turns, a daytime so opera on CBS-TV, will devo three shows, on Oct. 22, 23 a 26, to the wedding of Pen Hughes (Rosemary Prinz) a Jeff Baker (Mark Rydell.) A n work official says the marriage the result of letters from viewe since writer Erna Phillips inte ed Penny for another suitor the show.

Comeuppance For 'Teddy Boy'

LONDON (UPI) — You can laugh at an English schoolboy if you like, but it isn't cricket to keep it up forever.

Sunday a pack of "teddy boys" (British slang for juvenile delinquents), taunted a group of students marching from their school, Fortescue House, to church in their neat blue jackets, neckties and grey trousers.

The "teddy boys" jeered with such taunts as "sissies" and "milksops," and the schoolboys ignored it for awhile. Fortescue headmaster George Ollerenshaw disclosed.

Then it got tiresome.

One of the student monitors stepped smartly out of line, knocked out three teddy boys and resumed his place in the procession.

None Injured In Sunday Wrecks

Two accidents Sunday on area highways resulted in damages to three cars but no injuries, state highway patrolmen reported this morning.

One car, a 1954 Oldsmobile driven by Leland Gibson, 52, of Lefors, rolled once off the Lefors-McLean Rd. Sunday about 9 a.m. Gibson, who resides at the Coltexo Plant, was not injured. Investigating Patrolman Standley Schneider said drunken driving charges will be filed today.

Two cars sideswiped early Sunday evening on the Perryton highway, 25 miles north of Pampa. Neither driver, Elmer Hemphill, 60, rural Pampa, or Mrs. Sheryl Abernathy, 34, of Perryton, were injured.

The cars hit near the Chicken Creek bridge on a newly-surfaced portion of road with no centerstripes. Mrs. Abernathy, headed north, had no headlight burning on her car's left side, according to Patrolman Travis Underwood. Damages were slight.

Southern Governors A Far Cry From Stereotypes of Old

By JOSEPH C. KOENENN
United Press International

ASHEVILLE, N.C., (UPI)—The days of the string tie, mint julep-sipping southern governor are about over.

For proof of this you need look no further than 25th annual Southern Governors Conference now in progress here. Most of the chief executives are young, energetic men, well aware of the problems that confront their fast-growing area.

They are, in the words of Florida's Gov. LeRoy Collins, a new type...men who have become "aware of the importance of an extrovert quality."

Helen Hayes To Be Grandmother Soon

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Helen Hayes expects to become a grandmother for the first time in May. Her son and his wife expect their first child then.

Word of the expected new arrival came from Tobago, B.W.I., where James MacArthur, 21, Miss Hayes' only surviving child, is on location for "Swiss Family Robinson."

MacArthur married former actress Joyce Bulifant, Nov. 2, 1958, in Solebury, Pa.

From boyish - looking Ernest Hollings of South Carolina to gray-haired Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina, the prediction was the same:

"The next generations belong to the South. We've got the leadership and the brains."

Hollings said, "The southern governor today is a far cry from the colonel sitting on the veranda sipping a mint julep." Taking the place of the stereotype is a new chief executive, a man in a hurry. He wants to keep his state in the race to develop its economy.

"Some people began talking a few years ago about what we could do in the next few years," said Hodges, tracing the development of the new southern idea. "The thinking caught on. People everywhere accepted the challenge. And they're going to demand more of their governors."

Hodges conceded there may still be a few of the old - type politicians on the scene but they are fading.

"Natural factors have helped the South," explained Collins. "In Florida, we've had an enormous immigration of people. We realized that unless we developed our economy to employ them, these people would become welfare problems.

"When Florida, North Carolina and Texas move out the way they have, the rest of the states realize they've got to catch up," Collins said.

"People have become more awakened to our needs and potential. That impetous is reflectd in the campaigns and in the politicians. "A governor cannot afford to drift along while the rest of the South's leaders are paddling as hard as they can."

Airliner In Belly Landing

CHICAGO (UPI) — Passengers of a stricken Trans-Canada Air Lines Viscount today praised the crew for bringing the giant turboprop aircraft in for a safe belly landing after the plane's wheels failed to lower.

The Vickers-made airliner with 35 passengers and a crew of four skidded several thousand feet down a foam-coated runway at the Glenview Naval Air Station Sunday. No one was injured in the dramatic landing.

The plane was approaching Midway Airport on a flight from Toronto to Chicago when the pilot, Capt. Cy Thompson, 39, Toronto, radioed he was unable to lower the plane's wheels.

The airport control tower suggested he circle until he had used up fuel and then land at Glenview which was not as crowed as Midway and where foam could be laid down to lessen the chances of fire.

All available ambulances were rushed to the air station and were standing by when the plane landed.

Castro Foes Are Active

HAVANA (UPI) — An unidentified light plane parachuted machine guns, rifles and ammunition Saturday night into Pinar Del Rio Province, a center of opposition to Premier Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime.

Maj. Dermidio Escalona, military chief of the province, said rural police captured all or most of the air-dropped supplies — including a recent copy of the Miami Daily News.

Authorities here suspect the plane may have been the same that bombed a sugar mill in Pinar del Rio Friday night, blowing up a boiler but injuring no one.

Jealous Russians Come Up With 'Truth' About Columbus' Trip

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet historian said Sunday that Christopher Columbus did not "discover" America because he had learned of its existence from a dying sailor who already had sailed to the Antilles and back.

A Moscow radio home service broadcast identified the historian as a professor Tsypernik, candidate of history and lecturer at Kazakh Pedagogic Institute. He said Columbus and Queen Isabella teamed up to hoodwink historians.

The professor said Columbus really was an exponent of colonization who made up the story of fabulous oriental riches to make people believe he had discovered a short cut to Asia and to make Spanish colonization popular. He said Columbus altered his dairies to fool the world.

"I recently found a secret letter addressed to Columbus by the Spanish royal couple Ferdinand and Isabella," Tsypernik said. "The letter makes it clear that Columbus knew not only of the position of the Antilles, but also of what could be found there and how the land could be used by the Spaniards."

Ex-Child Star Suspected Addict

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former child star Bobby Driscoll, who won a special Academy Award in 1949 for his juvenile performances, was booked Sunday as a suspected narcotics addict by sheriff's deputies.

Driscoll, 22, was arrested with two other men — who deputies said had "narcotics outfits" on them — when officers noticed needle marks on his arms.

Driscoll won a special Oscar for his portrayls in "The Window" and "So Dear To My Heart," in 1949. He also appeared in the film "Treasure Island."

Jewish Holy Day Observed

By ELIAV SIMON
United Press International

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — The normal hustle and bustle of daily life was at a standstill today in Israel on this Day of Atonement, most holy day of the Jewish calendar.

The entire nation plunged into 24-hours of fasting and soul-searching at sundown Sunday with the chanting of the Kol Nidre. At sundown this afternoon normal activities resume.

All communications with the outside world — radio, telegraph and aircraft — were severed and even should a revolution strike there would be no news of it.

On Yom Kippur almost the entire population spends the day in the synagogue. Traditionally, criminals also behave and police blotters stay clean all day.

Most secularist (non-religious) Jews also observe the holiday day, if only out of respect for parental tradition and from a feeling of national unity. A few were moving into the Arab areas, the only parts of Jerusalem where restaurants stay open.

The nation this year was giving special attention in prayer to Jews also observe the holiday, Iron Curtain, and particularly to seven Jews awaiting sentence in Damascus.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — with Major Hoople

OUT OUR WAY — J. R. Williams

Housewives, perhaps more than other women, have to battle the temptation to slide into careless ways of grooming. It's so easy to feel that it doesn't really matter how you look to your family. Actually, it couldn't be more important. This young housewife gives herself a lift with aprons that are fun to wear and easy to make. For dishwashing, she wears (left) an apron which provides drying space for wet hands. Front part is dishtowel gathered at the waist and back half is circle with ties that wrap around the front. Her helper wears apron cut into teddy bear shape from a terry towel. Just for fun, this homemaker wears (center) a stole-apron made from two gay linen dishtowels and belted in at the waistline. Versatile cleaning apron (right) is made from a shoe bag. Pockets are handy for toting cleaning supplies. Later, it can be hung at the back of a closet and filled with cleaning gear, thus saving precious space.

Housewife Should Battle Temptation To Slide Into Careless Grooming

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

You'll be in a much happier frame of mind while you're on the other end of a mop if you scrubline good looks with cleaning. Knowing you look trim while you work somehow makes the task seem lighter.

If you find the average aprons dull, make your own. With a little ingenuity, you can own a smart, imaginative collection.

For instance, you can turn a stole into an apron. Make a long-ish stole from dishtowelling. Then wrap it around your neck and belt it smartly in the middle. Make two large pockets from terry cloth in a complimenting color and suspend them from the belt. You'll look pert and pretty while you prepare the family dinner.

In fact, attractive aprons may even get you added kitchen help. With a few pieces of tape and some buttons for trimming, you can make aprons that look like costumes — clowns, teddybears or comic strip characters. And the children will probably ask to help with the dishes just so they can wear them.

To make your household chores easier, you should, of course, keep your equipment clean and in good working order. And choose at least one all-purpose cleaner that will enable you to do floors, walls and cabnets without running back and forth to the kitchen for several different types.

If you wear chinos while cleaning, why not make an apron from some strong material that contains several pockets? Wrapped around your pants, it will save you many a step. Into each pocket you can place the various cleaning tools you'll need, and just slip them back into their proper pockets when you've finished using them. No need to replace them in the cabnet until you're through with your job.

If you have washed and set your hair in the morning, cover those pincurls with an attractive scarf. You can use kerchiefs that either match or contrast with your aprons.

Never neglect to use lipstick. And freshen it when it fades out.

Your children will enjoy their pretty mom, and you won't have a sinking heart if the doorbell should ring in the midst of a busy morning.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please state your opinion of an "office party" given at the home of a divorced woman employee on the occasion of her leaving the firm.

Four married men were invited. Their wives were excluded. Their "dinner partners" were single office girls. (It's a large office, but this was the entire "guest list") When I expressed surprise that wives were not invited, I was told that it would be "too much work" to include the wives. We wives would have been happy to fix the dinner and clean up afterwards.

Do you think a married man has to attend this kind of affair unless he wants to? All the men were fat and forty three were fifty! When is business business, and when is fun fun?

UNINVITED WIFE

Dear Uninvited: Don't call this an "office party." This was simply a party including some of the office help. No married man has to attend a social function without his wife unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the woman whose problem was a husband who cussed all the time. You suggested she fine him 25 cents every time he used a swear word. That might work with some husbands, but it wouldn't work with mine. If I told my husband that I was fining him 25 cents every time he swore, he'd tell me where to go, and he'd owe me 25 cents immediately.

HULDA

DEAR ABBY: I saw your "sure cure" for a swearing husband and I tried it on my own. I kept track of every violation and charged him a quarter for each one. Since September first he ran up a bill of $56.75. Now, how do I get him to pay me? Please don't tell me to see a lawyer because my husband is one. Thank you.

MRS. E.

DEAR ABBY: My nephew came home from college with a very smart-alecky attitude. When I introduced him to an attractive young lady at our Club, he said: "Boy, you're the kind of girl I'd like to take home to mother — if I could trust my father." Everyone laughed.

I told my husband later that I felt this was a reflection on my BROTHER, who is the boy's father, because the boy implied that his own father couldn't be trusted with a young girl.

My husband said he felt it was a reflection on the GIRL because she appeared to be the type who might encourage an older man's attentions. Please settle this argument for us.

AUNT AND UNCLE

Dear A and U: This is a reflection on (a) the boy himself for assuming that everyone within hearing distance had a sense of humor, (b) On you, for having none. Forget it.

Confidential To Maxine: Get that wonderful book "First Love, True Love" by Anne Emery at your public (or school) library. It will introduce you to "Pat" another High School junior who feels left out of things because her "steady" is away at college.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ten-Pin Tales

By MARVIN OLSEN
Daily News Staff Writer

Bowling averages this season will probably show that the city's finest bowler is Harvester Bowl's Jessie Smartt.

Smartt, one of the kingpins in the city's top ranked Classic League, waited until Friday night to post the year's highest scratch series, a brilliant 693. His games, as most of you may have heard, were 248, 263 and 182.

Harvester Bowl carded most of Pampa's highest scores the past week, including A. L. Jenkins' 612, Smartt's 693 and a 607, and Leon Harris' 598.

Gil Burgund, owner of Garden Lanes, reported that his top scorer last week was Happy Martin. Hap, bowling in the Hiland League posted his first 600 series, a fine 612. Melvin Gray, rolling in the Friday night Skyliner League, rolled a 590. Rennie Havens showed the way in Tuesday night's Merchants League with a 587.

Pampa's fem bowlers continued to show improvement over the week with several fine efforts. Betty Rogers of Groninger and King rolled a 209-532, while Pete (that's her name) Elem scrached a fine 529. Dorothy Davis again passed the 500 mark with a 503 Tuesday night.

Lil Hawkins, always one of the city's better bowlers, rolled an all-spare game for the C. R. Hoover team to card a 179 on her way to a 478.

Euna Lee Moores — who at one time or another has served as scorer for every team in the city —scattered a good 170 game last week. Not bad, Euna said, for a 113 average.

High game in Tuesday night's life-and-death Classic League struggle was Delmer Jones' 234. Dunlap's still holds the lead in the Classic with a 17-7 record.

The city's teenagers are starting to get into the bowling act, Burgund reports from Garden Lanes.

The newly - formed "A-Teen Stars" league at Garden moved into action Saturday with six three-man teams.

The league comprises the top 18 teenage bowlers at Garden Lanes. Steve Cox showed the way Saturday with a 461. High single game was Myron Aftergut's 197.

Oddities over the past week include Ray Armstrong's 107 triplicate. And talk about improvement, how about a certain Hollis Electric team bowler who rolled a 18, 56 and 114 his first night of bowling.

June Hendricks of the Garden Lanes team would just as soon forget last Thursday's game when she opened with six straight splits.

Ted McDonald, newest member of the Garden Lanes men's team, had some happy memories Tuesday when he picked up a 5-10 split, then followed up two frames later by snaring a 6-7-10 split. Another split-breaker was E. W. Totty of the Cabot-Franks team who managed the 4-10.

In the Harvester Men's League Wednesday night A. L. Jenkins had things going his way when he turned in a respectable 189 his first game, then came back with two 215 games back to back for a 619 total which is high for the league this season.

John Moore did himself proud with a 222, high single game in the No. 2 league. Dale Followell, (145 average) turned in a good performance with a 216.

Members of the Production Service team put together a 154, 135, 147, 222 and a 212 for a team game of 906. Not bad when you consider the 135 was a blind.

A. W. Gill took high honors in the No. 1 Harvewter Men's League with a 161, 201 and a 226 for a total of 558. His 226 also took high game honors. He was closely followed by George Robbins with a 200, 198 and 130 for a total of 528.

Green Bay Stays Unbeaten in NFL

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press International

The Green Bay Packers emerged Monday as the only perfect-record team in a National Football League stunned by the death of Bert Bell, its iron-fisted commissioner.

Bell died Sunday in Pennsylvania University Hospital at Philadelphia while the 12 clubs he had guided to unprecedented prosperity clashed in the third week end of what promises to be another banner campaign.

He died shortly after collapsing while watching the Philadelphia Eagles, a team he once owned and coached, edge the Pittsburgh Steelers at Franklin Field, 28-24.

The Packers, surprise team of the new season, boosted their record to 3-0 by edging the San Francisco Forty-Niners, 21-20. It was a squeaker typical of the well-balanced NFL competition produced by the draft procedure devised by Bell.

Join Defeated Ranks

San Francisco started the game as the league's only other undefeated club after the first two weeks of play and bowed when Lamar McHan threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Gary Knafelc midway in the last period.

It's the first time the Packers have won their first three games since 1944, their last championship season.

The New York Giants took a big step toward retaining their Eastern Division title when they upset their top rival, the Cleveland Browns, 10-6. The Baltimore Colts, defending league champions rallied to defeat the Detroit Lions, 31-24, on John Unitas' 54-yard touchdown pass to Ray Berry in the final period.

The Los Angeles Rams, upset victims in their first two starts, scored their first victory at Chicago in seven years when they downed the Bears, 28-21. In Sunday's other game, the Washington Redskins defeated the Chicago Cardinals, who committed four costly fumbles, 23-14.

Packers Get Scare

Green Bay sent a sellout crowd of 32,150 Packer fans home happy after blowing a 14-6 halftime lead. San Francisco scored twice in the third period on Y. A. Tittle's 14-yard pass to Billy Wilson and Tittle's 75-yard pass-run heave to R. C. Owens.

The Forty-Niners, leading 20-14, were driving for another touchdown in the final period when Dave Hanner forced Tittle to fumble and recovered on the Green Bay 40. Seven plays later McHan passed to Knafelc for the winning touchdown. Tommy Davis booted two field goals for the losers but missed from the 37 in the final seconds.

The Browns, who drew a record home opener crowd of 65,534, blew their best chance after Dave Lloyd recovered George Scott's fumble of a punt on the New York nine in the second period. Linden Crow ended the Cleveland threat by intercepting Milt Plum's pass in the end zone and New York then marched 80 yards for its touchdown.

Charley Conerly plunged a yard for it after gaining 63 during the push with his passes. Pat Summerall added the extra point and kicked a 31-yard field goal with six minutes remaining. Plum passed 33 yards to Bob Mitchell for Cleveland's touchdown in the final minutes.

Catches Winning Pass

The Lions held a 24-21 lead in the final period when Berry ruined the day for 54,197 Detroit rooters by taking a short pass from Unitas and running 40 yards for Baltimore's winning touchdown. Unitas also threw scoring passes to Lenny Moore and Jim Mutscheller while Tobin Rote of the Lions threw three to Hopalong Cassady.

Billy Wade threw two scoring passes to Jim Phillips and one to Del Shofner for the Rams but they got the decisive touchdown against the Bears on Joe Marconi's one-yard plunge. Ollie Matson slashed through the favored Bears for 199 rushing yards. Scoring lunges by Don Bosseler and Ed Sutton and Ralph Guglielmi's 58-yard pass to Bill Anderson produced Washington's touchdowns against the Cardinals.

Norm Van Brocklin's scoring plunge and his 21-yard touchdown toss to Tommy McDonald in the final minutes helped the Eagles hold off a one-man show by Bobby Layne of the Steelers. Layne ran 10 yards for a touchdown threw scoring passes to Tom Tracy and Jim Orr and booted a field goal and three extra points.

Grid Commissioner Bert Bell is Dead

By RUSS GREEN
United Press International

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The stunned National Football League owners prepared today for a bitter behind-the-scenes struggle to find a successor to Bert Bell, the dynamic commissioner who helped build pro football from a sandlot operation into a multi-million dollar business.

A "chaotic battle" between the old guard and the league's new blood was forecast by one NFL official a few hours after the 65-year-old Bell suffered a fatal heart attack at Franklin Field Sunday while watching the sport to which he devoted his life.

Under the league constitution, N.F.L. treasurer Austin H. Gunsel took over as acting commissioner upon Bell's death. However, the bylaws also provide for an emergency meeting of the executive committee "not more than 30 days after the emergency, the sole purpose of which shall be the election of a new commissioner or to install a presidentary in the office of the commissioner until the annual league meeting."

Three major candidates — each representing a different point of view—immediately emerged as Bell's potential successors:

—George S. Halas, 64-year old iron-fisted founder, president and coach of the Chicago Bears. He is the favorite candidate of those who think the league needs another "tough man of the old school" as its boss.

—Edwin J. Anderson, 56-year old president of the Detroit Lions and one of Detroit's top business leaders for the last 20 years. He is regarded as the "compromise candidate" between the old and new schools in the league.

—Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, ex-baseball commissioner whose candidacy is backed by George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins. Chandler is favored by those who think the league's first order of business is to receive a clean bill of health from Congress.

"One thing is sure," a league official told United Press International, "there's going to be a terrific battle because it was Bell's indomitable personality that held all the warring factions in the league together."

Interim President Probable

It appeared likely that an "interim president" would be named until the executive committee, composed of the owners or representatives of the 12 league clubs, would meet for a second time in December or January. Bell held the positions of both president and commissioner. Anderson is the president of the Western Conference and John Mara of the New York Giants is president of the Eastern Conference.

Bell, often compared as a sports leader to baseball's famed Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, closed out a life devoted to football when he collapsed during the final minute of Sunday's Philadelphia Eagles-Pittsburgh Steelers game at Franklin Field. He was taken to nearby University of Pennsylvania Hospital where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Paul Schrode.

The end thus came in the heart of his beloved college campus where he was an undergraduate football star, where he captained and later coached the Penn football team.

Bell received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to which he was converted about a year ago.

Wrestling Set Here Tonight

Cowboy Carlson and Ripper Leone tangle in tonight's main wrestling event at the Top o' Texas Sportsmen's Club, but a pair of grudge matches may steal the thunder from the main eventers.

In the opener, set for 8:30 p.m., Tommy Phelps meets Fred Hunt in a one-fall-to-a-finish match. This event was set up when Phelps claimed that Hunt helped Carlson win the third and deciding fall, over Phelps last week. Hunt was referee in the bout.

In the semifinal, Bob Geigel tangles with Danny Savich in a return match. Both men were disqualified 1st week for refusing to return to the ring, when they were fighting outside the ropes. They'll settle matters this week.

Eric Monti Wins Hesperia Open

HESPERIA, Calif. (UPI)—Eric Monti, a steady club pro, outlasted several more glamorous golfers Sunday to win the $20,000 Hesperia Open with a 72-hole total of 271—17 under par.

The 40-year-old Monti, who usually tends to his knitting at the Hillcrest Club in Los Angeles, had rounds of 70-68-64—69 to win top prize money of $2,000.

At the finish, he had a four stroke lead over a trio tied for second—Jack Fleck, the 1955 U.S. Open champ from Tarzana, Calif.; Bob Duden, veteran from Oswego, Ore., and Jay Hebert, the handsome bachelor from Sanford, Fla. They each won $1,233.34.

Paul Hargney, the slender slugger from Worcester, Mass., finished fifth with 277 and won $900; Billy Casper, Apple Valley, Calif., the current U. S. Open champ, got $800 for his sixth place 278; and Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla., won $750 for his seventh place 280.

5-AA, 1-B Loops Open This Week

White Deer opened the defense of its District 3-4A title Friday by romping over Lefors, 34-0. This Friday, the Bucks face one of the biggest stumbling-blocks on the way to their third straight crown, when they play host to the current league-leader, Clarendon.

Clarendon is the district's most improved team. The Bronchos have won their last three games, including two district contests over Panhandle and Memphis, after losing their first three games of the season.

Canadian, also expected to be a contender for 2-A honors, evened its district record Friday by downing Panhandle, 20-8. The Wildcats travel to Memphis for a loop game this Friday, McLean, the fourth title threat, was idle last week, but will be at Panhandle Saturday.

Lefors, which has been shut out in its last two games, faces more rough going this Friday, in a non-district contest with Stinnett, in Lefors. The Pirates, already short on manpower at the start of the season, have been hampered by injuries to key players.

District 5-AA opens loop play this week, with two games. Wellington, with a 4-2 record, will be at Childress, which has lost its last three games after winning its first three. Quanah, the district favorite (4-2), hosts winless Perryton, a team which, like Lefors, has been badly hurt by injuries. Shamrock has an open date.

5-AA teams won three out of five last week. The Shamrock Irish took their first victory of the year, upsetting class B power Wheeler, 30-0. Quanah edged Spur, 12-6, and Wellington turned in the loop's second upset, by blanking McLean 20-0. In other contests, Childress lost to Hamlin, 25-6, and Dumas downed Perryton, 31-0.

District play also begins this week in 1-B with Texline at Wheeler, Groom at Follett, and Darrouzett at Claude — all Friday. It was "black Friday" for 1-B squads last week, as all five which were in action went down to defeat. Only Groom, which was idle, escaped.

Wheeler was upset by Shamrock; Stratford rolled over Texline, 28-0; Gruver routed Darrouzett, 46-6; Boise City rolled over Follett, 46-8; and Vega trounced Claude, 46-16.

Wheeler, the only district team with two wins, is rated as a dark-horse contender for the loop crown. Groom, with a 1-4 record, is the favorite. All of Groom's four losses have been to highly regarded class A teams.

Hogs, Texas Meet Saturday

United Press International

The Cinderella-like story of the undefeated-untied Arkansas Razorbacks reaches the witching hour this Saturday night.

That's when Coach Frank Broyles' hungry Hogs must make their big move or probably start the return trip to semi-obscurity at the Southwest Conference annual football party.

The Razorbacks have astounded their most ardent followers by winning their first four games and go into this week's big test at neutral Little Rock boasting a fat 2-0 lead atop the league standings.

But, the opposition this week will be nothing like anything the Hogs have encountered up to this point.

Texas Christian, beaten 3-0, was big and rugged and Baylor, whipped 23-7, was quick and eager. But, the Texas team coming up on the schedule Saturday night combines all those qualities and has a striking power by land or air that appears to be superior to anything Arkansas has shown.

Texas stamped itself as the prime pretender to the conference throne with its solid 19-12 conquest of Oklahoma last week although it has yet to meet a league rival.

An Arkansas upset of the Longhorns would vault the Razorbacks to untold heights and give them a virtual downhill run toward the title.

While this game at Little Rock monopolizes the spotlight, there'll be plenty of other action going on as the league sees its first full week of title play.

SMU, gaining confidence and sharpness with consecutive victories over Navy and Missouri, invades Houston to face a slowly-developing Rice team whose closest acquaintance with victory came in a 13-13 tie with favored Florida last Saturday. SMU pierced the Missouri defenses for a 23-2 triumph.

And, Texas Christian faces the necessity of playing a poor host to the Texas Aggies at Fort Worth in the only daytime encounter or all but bowing out of contention as a repeat champion. The big and bumblesome Frogs can ill afford to lose another one. Nor, can they take the agile Aggies too lightly.

TCU hopes rose a bit last week when the Frogs broke a two-game scoreless streak to run up a 14-0 lead on Texas Tech, but Tech managed to gain as much yardage as TCU and threaten several times before finally bowing 14-8. The Aggies, meanwhile, unobtrusively went about the job of beating Houston 28-6 for their third victory in four starts.

Big Three in 3-4A Find Going Tough

Three teams remain undefeated in District 3-4A, but all of them had close calls last Friday.

Tascosa leads the district with a 2-0 loop mark and a 5-0 season record. Amarillo and Monterey are both 4-0 for the season and 1-0 in district play. Lubbock is 1-0 in district play, but only 1-3 for the season.

Monterey had the tightest squeeze Friday. The Plainsmen, after being bottled up in their own end of the field most of the night, scored a touchdown and extra point to edge the Pampa Harvesters, 7-6.

BUD HEARN DIES

WILSON, N.C. (UPI)—Bud (Big Steam) Hearn, who showed King George V of England how to throw a curve ball, died Sunday at the age of 68. A major league pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and Boston Braves, he met George V while on a barnstorming tour in 1913-14. When introduced to the king he said "glad to meet you, Mister King."

This was the second straight 7-6 victory for Monterey, which had gone into the Pampa game as a two-touchdown favorite. Week before last, the Plainsmen defeated Midland by the same 7-6 margin.

Amarillo had a much tougher time than expected against Plainview, picked for the district cellar. The Sandies had to hustle all the way to gain a 16-7 triumph over the Bulldogs.

The Sandies face another rugged test this week, when they meet the Harvesters Friday in Pampa. Pampa is considered much stronger than Plainview, and the Harvesters always put out a little extra effort against the Sandies, a traditional rival.

League-leading Tascosa scored early, then staved off several Borger threats to win, 6-0, last Friday, and keep their district lead. This was the first loss of the year for the Bulldogs, rated as a contender for the district title, which they won last year.

In the other loop contest, Lubbock captured its first victory of the year over Palo Duro, 21-16, after coming from behind in the second half. Palo Duro is still winless, in five games.

Only Amarillo, among the four major contenders, appears to be in danger this week. Saturday, the Borger Bulldogs will take on usually placid Plainview in Borger, and Tascosa will host the disappointing Lubbock Westerners in Amarillo. Monterey will play the cellar-dwelling Palo Duro Dons Friday in Amarillo.

Four of Top Ten Grid Teams Face Rough Sledding Saturday

United Press International

There's no rest for the weary —or for those college football teams with title hopes and bowl ambitions.

Texas, Georgia Tech, Southern California and Purdue — all members of the top 10 — run into dangerous opponents next week end.

Fourth-ranked Texas, after battling to a 19-12 comeback victory over once-mighty Oklahoma last Saturday, now must face Arkansas in a possible showdown for the Southwest Conference title and the host berth in the Cotton Bowl. The Razorbacks have won their first four games, including a 23-7 triumph over Baylor Saturday night.

Fifth-ranked Georgia Tech next runs into Auburn after turning back sixth-ranked Tennessee, 14-7. Auburn had its 24-game unbeaten streak snapped by the Vols at the opening of the season but looked as powerful as ever in whipping Kentucky, 33-0, in its weekend outing.

Southern California took over the No. 3 spot in the UPI ratings after blanking Pittsburgh and Ohio State on successive weekends but now must tangle with surprising Washington. The Trojans rested during the weekend while Washington whipped Stanford, 10-0, for its fourth straight triumph.

Eighth-ranked Purdue also won't have much time to catch its breath. The Boilermakers, who rolled to a 21-0 victory over ninth-ranked Wisconsin, have a Saturday date with Ohio State, which should be in a fighting mood after dropping a 9-0 verdict to Illinois.

Tennessee and Wisconsin were the only members of the top 10 who failed to survive the weekend action as the form held up remarkably well for the first time this season.

Top-ranked Louisiana State rolled to a 27-3 victory over Miami (Fla.), second-ranked Northwestern turned back Minnesota, 6-0, seventh-ranked Mississippi remained unbeaten, untied and unscored upon by blanking Vanderbilt, 33-0, and 10th-ranked Iowa clobbered Michigan State, 37-8.

Walk, Don't Fly Short Distances

THE LIGHTER SIDE
By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Airplanes are wonderful.

Big jets this winter will hurtle sun-lovers from Miami to New York in 2 hours and 25 minutes, before they can fade. This trip takes a hard three days if you drive.

Other jetliners meantime flash from Atlantic to Pacific so fast you can eat lunch at both ends of the line as well as en route. By car, that kind of travel requires every bit of a week.

And take the New York to Washington run. This is a train ride of 3 hours and 35 minutes. It's a five-hour excursion by car. But by plane, I learned the other night, it is possible to cover the course in 6 hours and 13 minutes.

That's for those who didn't happen to have any luggage. Waiting for the bags to come up of course always takes a few minutes extra.

The airline folks in New York were ever so nice on the phone. If I could get to the East Side Air Terminal by 4:50, they would pop me on a bus to the airport and squeeze me onto a nice evening flight to the capital, with dinner aboard.

The plane, a two-engine propeller type, would leave La Guardia Field at 5:..., and arrive at Washington National Airport at a convenient 7:05.

I made it to the terminal in time, to find out there wasn't really much hurry. The flight, and the connecting bus run, had been set back 40 minutes. Just long enough to relax, read the paper, and dispatch a picture postcard to the office.

By the time we got to the airport an additional 50 minutes delay had been posted. Attendants said the plane was late leaving Albany. The weather, they noted, was foggy.

This allowed time for a coke and a call to a fellow I roomed with for awhile at Columbia. On my investment of a succession of three dimes in the pay phone we hit high spots of the intervening couple of decades and decided to cover the details some other time.

Had I known, we could have covered them then. However, his supper was waiting. It turned out mine was too, and would be for quite a while.

Airline attendants were helpful. They announced periodically that my flight hadn't yet reached New York. A little later they were able to announce periodically that it had, but that on account of the inclement weather and the other planes that had got there first, it was waiting its turn to come down.

As soon as it landed, the man said, it would load for Washington. Well, almost as soon as it landed. First it had to refuel, after so much circling over New York. Finally they opened the gates, and at first it was great just sitting down, after all that standing around.

By 9:02, when we started easing out to the runway, I had experienced sufficient relief for my feet, and was ready to fly. So was the plane. And, after growling at the end of the strip for 25 minutes while other planes landed, it did.

By 20 minutes to 10 the stewardess, a charming girl named Martha, gave me a warm smile and a meat pie. I was glad for the smile, and for the fact my stomach apparently hadn't quite closed up shop for the night.

It took 1 hour and 15 minutes to fly to Washington, like Martha announced it would. But again those other planes were there first. We settled onto the runway at 11:03, and pulled up to the ramp late by an even four hours.

Like I intimated at the start, the airplane is here to stay. It would be better though if it didn't sometimes have to stay quite so long in one place.

From The Foreign Editor's Notebook:

SURPRISE:

Russia's sensational moon rocket Lunik III definitely took Soviet officials abroad by surprise—indicating the Kremlin considered it a risky enterprise. The Soviets had no such doubts about the previous shot to the moon which was timed to introduce Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United States. It was learned in Tokyo that Russians in Japan had been tipped off in advance to the rocket that hit the moon and were ready to whoop up propaganda when it landed.

NO SPECTACULAR HERE:

Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the leaders of the Algerian rebellion will continue indirect, long-distance contacts on the possibility of a cease fire, but they do not look for any immediate spectacular developments. Neither side intends to slam the door on the other and both want to end the war. But they do not want to raise false hopes while their positions remain as far apart as they are at present.

TURMOIL IN TURKEY:

The fid may blow off any day now on that American servicemen's trial in Izmir, Turkey. Two of three ranking American officers at the NATO base who were "relieved" of their commands for protesting alleged Turkish police brutality against enlisted men arrested on currency charges, are coming out to new posts in the United States. There appear to have been mighty efforts to hush the whole thing up but it definitely has affected the morale of Americans in Turkey and strained U. S.-Turkish relations. Someone in Washington may have to do a lot of explaining.

PROPS FOR FORMOSA:

Diplomatic quarters in Taipei report that Nationalist China quietly has asked the United States to help prop up Latin American support for Chiang Kai-Shek's government. Cuba broke the once solid Latin endorsement of the Taipei government last month on the China membership question in the United Nations. It abstained on the vote. Venezuela has threatened to support Red China next year. Nationalist officials are showing increasing alarm over trade and cultural exchanges between mainland China and South America.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — A major ingredient of our capitalistic system is the willingness of the American people to supply the capital necessary to keep the economy on an expanding basis, says Vance, Sanders & Co.

It has been estimated, the firm points out, that by 1965 we will be adding some 1,500,000 people to our work force, and no matter what these people do for a living they will need some kind of equipment to work with.

Vance-Sanders notes that this equipment will require an annual outlay of upwards of 25 billion dollars. "It should be kept in mind that this is just the capital outlay for the new workers each year," it adds.

Van Alstyle, Noel & Co. says that if Olin Mathieson can hold up its present higher earnings and keeps strengthening its finances, partial restoration of the former dividend rate appears a possibility in the foreseeable future.

Tax selling is expected to continue to affect the oil, aircraft, electronic, copper and possibly the rubber groups, says E. F. Hutton & Co. "Inasmuch as the oils make up 10 per cent of the entire Dow-Jones industrial average, it is not expected that the averages will get much help from that section in the months to come," Hutton asserts.

American Metal Market cites Inland Steel executive who predicts record output next year for the steel industry, approaching 125 million tons.

Standard & Poor's advises that while we would expect a rally to greet the ending of the steel strike, don't seize upon this as a signal to depart from a cautious investment policy. "Retention of sound stocks is fully justified, but we would go slowly in making purchases," it points out.

First Lady Has Slight Illness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower had a slight sore throat Sunday night and was unable to attend a Mexican Embassy dinner in honor of her and the President.

Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, the First Lady's personal secretary, said Mrs. Eisenhower's condition was not serious but that her physician had advised her to skip the dinner. It was given by visiting Mexican President and Mrs. Adolfo Lopez Mateos.

Protesting 'Model Housewife' On Trial For Gunpoint Heists

By PAUL PHILLIPS
United Press International

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Mrs. Kathryn Anderson, 30-year-old statuesque blonde "model housewife," goes on trial today for robbing two savings and loan associations here while she was pregnant with her third child.

Mrs. Anderson, free under $10,000 bond, was accused of taking $2,974 from the firms at gunpoint early last year. She has maintained her innocence since her arrest by the FBI May 29, 1958.

If convicted, Mrs. Anderson could be sentenced to either 25 years in prison or fined $10,000 or both.

The City Federal Savings and Loan Assn. was robbed on Feb. 28, 1958, and the Jefferson Federal Savings and Loan Assn. on May 22, 1958. The branch offices are located two doors apart in suburban Homewood, directly across the street from the Homewood police station and about 3 miles from the Anderson's ranch type home in Cahaba Heights.

Mrs. Anderson, considered a "model housewife" by former neighbors, was an active PTA worker before her arrest. Since then, they have taken their son, Damon, 9, out of school.

Charles H. Anderson Jr., Mrs. Anderson's husband, said "He was very upset about it and you know how children can be unintentionally cruel to each other."

Anderson, an insurance man, said the charges against his wife were a "horrible mistake."

The FBI said three women employes of the savings and loan firms have identified the woman as the one who held up the companies.

"I simply cannot understand the charge against me," Mrs. Anderson said earlier. "I'm glad I live in a country where I know the truth will win out."

... Both Great Skelly Gasolines Have Anti-Frost (at no extra cost)

To Keep Your Engine From Dying... Just By Breathing Ice-Free Air!

Not just another alcohol de-icer! Not just another gas-line anti-freeze! Skelly Anti-Frost protects you against winter's most chronic stalling hazard—carburetor icing.

Users of Keotane are already getting Anti-Frost protection. And users of Skelly Regular Gasoline get it too, thanks to a new formulation called KT-3 that gives you 3 of the 5 major benefits of Keotane:

1. Protects against carburetor icing.
2. Removes dirty, choking deposits in your carburetor by detergent action.
3. Prevents rust and corrosion all the way from fuel tank to carburetor.

Every time you stop in winter, ice that forms in your carburetor's air intake system threatens to kill your engine by cutting off its vital air supply. Even an engine that's idling needs air to keep from dying. Skelly Anti-Frost prevents icing, lets your engine breathe!

Greed And Profit

There are two words in rather constant usage which are frequently confused and used interchangeably. These two words are greed and profit. Greed is, of course, an unpleasant and a harsh emotion.

But a desire to make a profit is far removed from it in fact, and should remain far removed from it in usage.

Greed doesn't really mean a desire for more than what one has, although it is frequently so employed. Greed relates to the concept of coveting about which we have a Biblical injunction. When a person is greedy, we learn that his person wants something that he has no right to want. Or he wants something in a manner which is improper in itself. The greedy person is frequently he who expects to get something for nothing. Persons seeking charity, handouts, subsidies, are invariably greedy. They want to gain at the expense of others. They do not imagine a something-for - something relationship. Rather, they imagine that they are deserving of rewards, not because they have earned these rewards but because they have little whereas others may appear to have much.

To desire to make a profit conveys an entirely different connotation. In order to make a profit, one must be willing to provide something, a good or a service, for which some other person will gladly pay. Profit entails a something-for-something relationship. And if a person desires to profit hugely, he must discipline his desire to the place where others will voluntarily do business with him. it follows, therefore, that he who makes the most profit, is he who serves best. Let the profit seeker fail to serve and he will immediately fail to profit.

This is the basic difference between the two words in fact. The confusion arises because so many imagine that if a person wants to profit above any specified sum, he must be greedy. This is positively not true. If the profit making occurs in an open market where private exchanges take place in a voluntary manner, the ability of anyone to make a profit is simply an indication of superior service. Those making the most profit are those serving best.

What is at fault here is the tendency in so many to equate something harmful with the idea of profit. Yet, there is no precise point at which profits can be called "harmful." Most persons tend to imagine that anyone making more profit than they make is committing an evil act. We are reminded of the definition recently given by someone who attempted to define the nature of a rich man. "A rich man," he explained, "is someone who has more than you have."

This is the problem. Richness, like profit, is not subject to either measurement or comparison.

We hear it said many times that a man has "excess" profits. The implication is that he has more profit than he should have. But, by whose standards? By what kind of measurement? Since it is invariably true that no one in the free market can obtain more profit that he can earn by his own efforts, how can any degree of profit be considered "excess?" And since his own efforts are contained and disciplined by the voluntary actions of his customers, who either patronize him or refuse to patronize him as they see fit, it follows that any amount of profit is merely an indication of excellence and that what we call "excess" profit is merely an indication of an excess of excellence.

If Americans can and will learn to distinguish between these words we may move forward into an era of greater accuracy of expression. Greed is evil not because it is based on amounts but because it is based upon a desire to obtain that which one should not have, or obtain something for nothing.

A desire to make a profit is a most healthful and worthy desire. By means of this desire we advance our standards of living and live richer and more productive lives.

Matter of Translation

Leon Volkov, a contributing editor for Newsweek Magazine has reminded us of a pretty important fact that has been too often overlooked.

Writing in the September 28th issue of this publication, Volkov reveals that the impression created by the fat man from Moscow thru his interpreter and the impression created in the minds of some who know the Russian language and don't need an interpreter, are two rather widely separated impressions.

Oleg Troyanovsky is the name of the fellow who flanked Mr. K. on virtually all of his public appearances. And it is from Mr. Troyanovsky that most Americans got a somewhat diluted impression of the tough and intractable Russian boss.

To illustrate just what he means, Volkov reminds us of a pointed question asked of Khrushchev by William H. Lawrence of the New York Times and president of the National Press Club. The question referred to the famous story that while Khrushchev was in the midst of attacking the Stalin record at the Communist Party meeting a few years ago, some member of the party sent him a written question: "What were you doing while Stalin was committing these crimes?"

Lawrence reminded Mr. K. of this incident and asked for an answer. The reply, as translated for the non-Russian speaking contingent, went like this:

"Probably the authors of fables, including the authors of this question, wanted to place me in a difficult position, and to place me in difficulties. And there are laughs; there have been laughs even before I replied to the question. But I would say to you that they laugh best who laugh last. I shall not reply to this question, which I look upon as being provocative, and I would like to take this occasion to deny any such malicious rumors and lies which do not correspond to the truth."

But if we take the tape recording of Khrushchev's reply and rely upon a literal translation rather than the retouched version of Troyanovsky, the retort sounds like this:

"I would like to answer the concocters who fabricated this question. When they were concocting this question and when they were dreaming it up, what was their aim? What did they want? What is it you want? To put me in a position. . .that. . .and already you laugh beforehand. Russians say that he laughs best who laughs last. And what if, gentlemen, concoctors and fabricators of nonsensical stories . . . You're laughing in advance because you cleverly made up your fable. Later on you may regret your stories. I won't respond to provocation and shall not answer with the same kind of unfriendly attacks against the distinguished representatives of the U.S. press present here. Because a lie, you know, whatever legs it walks with, can never catch up with the truth."

In addition to being a skillful translator and one who can think on his feet, it is clear, according to Volkov, that the translator is, by nature, a somewhat gentle figure. Khrushchev is not gentle. He is brusk and direct. And, therefore, it is possible that the more restrained picture many Americans received of Mr. Khrushchev is not the true picture. Altho the meaning conveyed by the two translation is similar, the unbridled rage of the dictator at being asked this question is carefully cloaked in the official translation.

Undoubtedly many Americans were taken in completely by the Soviet political boss. And be it noted that in several verbal bouts, those who should have had answers right at their finger tips found themselves placed in an uncomfortable position simply because American policies have not been as clear and as forthright as they should have been.

Without any doubt at all, the Master of the Muscovites is going to make propaganda hay out of his visit. He will claim that the people loved him; that the political bosses of this country ringed him about with excessive protection in an effort to prevent him from talking to ordinary people; that the political leadership of this nation is heading more and more toward socialism and communism and that in every way, he has obtained a notable victory for the Soviet.

From our point ov view the entertainment afforded to this butcher was ridiculous and served no truly useful purpose.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

The Praxiology Of Education

Praxiology means the science of means. If you want to accomplish a certain result, what means should be used to bring about that result? That is known as praxiology.

It seems to me that praxiology, or the science of means, is one of the most important things in human relations. If we want to bring about a better society, what means should be used? If we want to bring about a better understanding of religion, what means should we use? If we want to bring about an education that will promote goodwill, peace and prosperity, what means should we use? If we want to promote an education that will reduce crime, plunder, oppression and tyranny of government, what means should we use?

The other day I reported in my column what the advocates believed could be accomplished by involuntary schools, when the schools were started. According to Richard LaPiere, professor of sociology at Stanford, in his book "The Freudian Ethic, an Analysis of the Subversion of American Character," the advocates of government schools believed government schools would cost the individual citizens nothing "since the educated boys would grow up to be reasonable and honest men and the need for public support of jails, prisons, poor farms, and homes for the aged indigent would thus be eliminated."

Well, certainly that belief has not come to pass. Instead of these expenses being reduced to zero, they are constantly increasing. And they are constantly increasing because government schools cannot teach the most important part of education — voluntaryism, as set forth in the Last Table of the Commandments

One cannot teach very well what he does not understand. And those advocates of government schools who advocate the use of aggressive force to make people help pay for their ideas of education are completely violating the Coveting and Stealing Commandments. It is little wonder that crime and bigger government and more tyranny and more and more oppressive laws and wars are increasing.

The other day a teacher in a Sunday School class was in the office and she explained that if people were properly taught to understand the Commandments, we would not even need to lock up our homes. How true that is. But instead of government schools reducing the need of locking up our homes, they are teaching the youth of the land not to have respect for private property.

How in the world can we expect the youth of the land to grow up to be men and not believe in something for nothing when they are taught to believe that their parents are not responsible for their education?; that their parents can force other people to help pay for their schooling? It is only natural for them also, then, to believe that the voters can also force people to furnish them jobs at the wages they want, rather than at wages some other worker is willing to pay.

If we were properly educated, of course, we would not have strikes; we would not have ever-mounting debts; we would not have a dollar that is depreciating; we would not have almost continuous wars.

Individual Responsibility

The most important thing to teach any child or any person is individual responsibility; that he must live by the sweat of his own brow instead of by the sweat of somebody else's brow; that he must get what he gets by benefiting others; that the best way to serve himself is to serve others, where both people believe they are benefited by exchanging goods and services. But the tax-supported schools completely deny, by their actions, that both parties must believe they are benefited in an exchange.

Increase In Organized Religion

Recently the Newspaper Enterprise Assn. published a chart showing the membership in the various churches. It showed in 1958 61,504,669 Protestants, 39,508, 508 Roman Catholics, 5,500,000 belonging to the Jewish faith, and 2,545,318 belonging to the Eastern Orthodox. This makes a total of 109,059,495 members of churches out of a total population of 173,374,000. In other words, 58 per cent of the total population belong to some organized religion.

It would seem that members of the churches should give some serious thought as to why crime is increasing and freedom of the individual is being interfered with when the percentage of members belonging to churches is increasing.

Between 1890 and 1916 membership increased faster than any other 20 year period; percentagewise it nearly doubled.

Whether it was a cause or coincident, in 1913 the United States government passed most of the laws that are leading us down the road to state socialism and the welfare state.

The news release previously mentioned gave the membership of the five largest Protestant denominations as follows: Baptist 20,493,381, Methodist 12,213,097, Lutheran 7,791,248, Presbyterian 4,126,583 and Protestant Episcopal 3,042,286.

Yes, the praxiology of the kind of education, whether it be religous or secular, we have will depend entirely upon how much freedom and peace we have and our general prosperity. There is nothing more important than the means we use to educate ourselves and the youth of the land.

HERTER PUZZLED OVER DELAY OF IKE'S RETURN VISIT TO USSR

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Herter is just as baffled as you are over why President Eisenhower is delaying his visit to Russia until spring.

The President's chief foreign policy adviser has informed members of Congress that the delay came as a complete surprise and he has reasons for making the change.

"All I know about the reasons why the President is delaying his Soviet visit is what I have read in the newspapers and I presume those storys are accurate," Herter told the startled legislators when questioned about the delay. "I was never informed and I haven't had the time to discuss the matter with the president since the White House made the announcement."

His astounding admission came during a briefing Herter gave seven members of Congress on the secret Eisenhower - Khrushchev talks at Camp David. Present were Senators Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), Bourke E. Hickenlooper (R., Ia.), Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.), Frank L. Lausche (D., O.), Congressmen Wayne Hays (D., O.), Harris B. McDowell, Jr., (D., Del.), and Barratt O'Hara (D., Ill.).

These legislators report that Herter's briefing was almost as terse as the final Eisenhower-Khrushchev communique on the talks.

For instance, Rep. Hays, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in making his report to a Democratic House leader who was unable to attend, phoned:

"Secretary Herter's briefing lasted only six or seven minutes at the most. The meeting would have ended right then and there if it hadn't been for a barrage of questions. After Herter finished his brief report, Senator Dirksen got up and, motioning for us to leave, began to thank the Secretary for his talk. We interrupted with questions that kept the session going for another 30 minutes.

SECRET DETAILS — The briefing that took place in Herter's plush State Department office was almost as frank as it was brief. In opening, the Secretary told the legislators:

"The Camp David talks between the President and Chairman Khrushchev produced two accomplishments. There is the Khrushchev agreement to remove all Soviet threats to Berlin, and an agreement by both parties to reopen the suspended foreign ministers negotiations with no deadline on reaching a new accord on Berlin."

"Are these real accomplishments?" challenged Rep. Hays. "I would like to point out that Khrushchev made the original threats on Berlin and what is to stop him from renewing them at any time."

"You could be right," replied Herter. "But we feel that they are accomplishments because Khrushchev is now on record. If he renews his threat to Berlin, he will have violated his word for all the world to see."

"You are basing an awful lot on the word of a Communist," remarked Senator Hayden.

Nodding his head in apparent agreement, Herter continued his briefing. He told the story of how the President refused to discuss anything but Berlin with Khrushchev until the Soviet Premier agreed to join him in making separate public statements that there would be no more threats.

After Khrushchev gave this assurance, Herter said the President then agreed to a reopening of talks on Berlin by the "Big Four" foreign ministers and a general discussion on other major issues. These included brief talks on Khrushchev's disarmament proposal, reduction of troops in both East-West Germeny, Soviet - U.S. trade, and Russia's position on Formosa.

RED MANPOWER CUT? — On these topics, Herter only elaborated on Eisenhower - Khrushchev talks on disarmament, stating:

"The President believes that Khrushchev is sincere in wanting to reduce arms. This is also my opinion. I believe the Soviet leader wants to reduce his military load because it is to his advantage to do so. He needs more manpower for the general economy."

It was at this point in the meeting that Senate Minority Leader Dirksen tried to end the conference, but the move was met with a drumfire of questions from other members.

"Does this mean there will be a summit meeting soon?" asked Senator Lausche.

"No," replied Herter. "The President is waiting to see what happens in the British elections before agreeing to any date. If the Labor Party should win there would be a need for more time to prepare for such a meeting. I don't believe there will be a heads-of-government conference before 1960."

"Who do you believe will win the elections?" inquired Hays.

"I believe you are the expert on that subject," countered Herter. "Didn't you just return from a visit to London?"

"Yes, and I wouldn't want to bet any money on the outcome," said Hays.

"What is your opinion of Khrushchev?" asked Senator Hayden.

"He is a very complex man. In negotiations, he is a very tough bargainer, very direct, and you could almost say very simple. He is a dedicated Communist," answered Herter.

"What about those fits of anger?" asked Senator Dirksen.

"It is hard to tell how much of his anger is real or just put on," replied Herter. "I have a feeling that he can turn his anger on or off at his pleasure."

"What is your opinion on whether these exchange visits are of any value to us?" asked Senator Hickenlooper.

"I believe they are producing at least a temporary easing of tensions. But it will take some time to assess the value of these visits," concluded Herter.

With that reply, the meeting broke up.

TO INSPECT SAC

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI) — Britain's top military man, Louis Lord Mountbatten, leaves here today for Charleston, S.C., to inspect Strategic Air Command facilities and receive an honorary degree at The Citadel.

The Doctor Says:

by EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Few members of primitive races who walk barefoot on comparatively soft soil suffer with flat fleet. Flat feet seem to be an ailment of civilized human beings who wear shes often poorly fitted—and perhaps walk very little, and who, when they do, walk almost entirely on hard surfaces.

Whatever the causes of flat feet, pain and a good deal of fatigue can often be traced to them. Furthermore, strain or discomfort may occur in the calves, or even higher in the legs.

Prevention is, of course, preferable to correction. And prevention begins early. Keep watch on the condition of children's feet and, most particularly, on the fitting of their shoes.

Shoes that are too tight are harmful, and yet children's feet grow so fast that it is often difficult to keep up with the growth. Also, children should be watched to see that they walk in a normal manner and not with their toes turned too far in or out.

What can be done for the child or grownup who actually has flat feet? "A great deal," is the answer.

Treatment usually involves a careful and slow rebuilding of the arches. This is frequently done by adding slowly layer after layer of thin felt inside the shoe at the proper places, for support. Of course, the shoe itself has to be carefully fitted and often a bar is placed on the outside of the shoe under the instep.

In some cases, patients with flat feet are often given special exercises such as grasping the edge of a rug with their toes, or walking around the room in their stockinged feet, on the outside edges of the feet.

Sometimes, they are also given "contrast" foot baths; that is, their feet are placed alternately in very warm and then in very cold water, in order to stimulate circulation. Any such measures should be taken ONLY under explicit medical advice for the particular person, of course.

The foregoing might read as if the various procedures would be a great deal of trouble, but unless one has suffered from the effects of flat feet or observed them in others, it is hard to realize the misery flat feet can cause.

The time spent in effecting corrective measures pays well in a bonus of comfort, in many cases.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — A man I know, who has an apartment terrace in New York so big that it has a two-room playhouse on it, called up the other afternoon and said he had some color film he thought it would interest me to see because, in spite of sincere and dogged efforts to remove the bathing suit symbol from womanly contests, the American public continued to think of Mrs. and Miss America as a bikini - clad hoyden offering nothing to the good of mankind except her good looks.

"This is frankly a commercial film," he said, "and it concerns Miss America's older sister, Mrs. America. But I think you ought to see it because it will open your eyes and maybe you can open other people's eyes. The contestants in this Fort Lauderdale pageant are serious, accomplished American wives and mothers who work like dogs to be conidered as contestants and work like nine dogs to get to First Place. There are literally hundreds of thousands of American women, estimable in every way except the talent to compete."

So we sat in a dim projection room and I watched 51 women—50 States and the District of Columbia — vie for the title of Mrs. America and the perquisites that go with the title. Confession: it opened my eyes and if your gas company shows it in your area I think it will open yours. It not only was a completely smooth and professional 30-minutes of film but it did show that any woman who wants to be Mrs. America had best think of everything she ever learned except how to wear a bathing suit. This is not a requirement and the only time the ladies wear them during contest time is on an afternoon off from the literally dozens of feats they have to perform.

Entrance blanks are acquired through a magazine, and that is the easiest of the many, many steps. If a woman is chosen to compete at the state level, she has to demonstrate superior abilities in cooking, baking, home - keeping, self-grooming, silver polishing, tablesetting, laundering and a neat dozen other crafts.

Once in Florida, a lady having been chosen to represent her state, she faces 50 other talented women in a long, exacting, no foolishness series of skills which go as far as learning to play an electric organ well enough to compete against all the others.

Each woman was shown to a kitchen exactly like 50 other kitchens and equiped to the hilt. Then each was given a defined amount of meals. Judges took a serious view of what she bought and how much she paid for it and how much would be wasted. Then various meals were to be made: breakfasts, lunches, dinners, formal dinners, buffet meals and so on. In addition, each had to bake. While the meals and baked goods were under way, each was given a bushel of pre - soiled dishes and had to demonstrate with what ease and efficency she used an electric dishwasher. Then each was given tarnished silver and plain white table cloths and asked to dye the cloths and napkins to whatever hue she wished, polish the silver and, when the table linens were dry and done, set a table. In between, they had to make up menus, do their hair to judges' standards, show their ability as decorators, money savers, cleaners, polishers and so on into what must be an exhausting, demanding routine. They had to prepare beautiful tables, each with exactly the same materials; they had to prepare ham dishes in any desired way but attractively. They baked cookies, muffins and cakes and at each step judges stood there and made disconcerting check marks on pieces of paper. They had to clean up their kitchens afterward, clean up washing machines and, somehow, find time to fix their hair in six different ways, doll themselves up for the evening contests and learn to play those organs well enough to be agreeable to the ear.

Unearned Income Can Be Interpreted Many Ways

By HOWARD KERSHNER, L. H. D.

A realistic use of the term "unearned income" would be not with reference to interest, dividends and rent but in connection with payments made to farmers for not farming, to people living in housing projects who pay less than enough to build, replace or maintain the property, people who pay less than cost for electric current, people who pay less than a normal rate of interest upon loans and people who send their children to school and universities while paying much less than the cost of the educational service enjoyed. Other examples are the strikers who have refused to work while living from public relief, the numerus individuals who make a practice of working about half of the time and drawing relief the other half, those who multiply the number of children for the sake of increasing their take from the public purse and those who could earn their livings but who in a variety of ways manage to live from the public bounty.

And what about featherbedding, that is being paid for work not performed? What about the man who draws a day's wages for pressing an electric switch twice or a train crew that draws a full day's wages for 81 minutes of work, or a so - called "standby" who draws a full day's wages for nothing. What about the one who spends more time in the hospital than necessary simply because his insurance company is paying for it, or one who collects damages far in excess of the injury he has sustained because a jury thinks it unimportant when insurance money is at stake?

These are only a few examples of the many ways in which a multitude of Pauls are robbing an unknown number of Peters.

In the beginning the Pauls think they are robbing only the Peters. But after the Peters are dispossessed, then the Pauls continue robbing one another. We have already reached that stage in our country. About 89 per cent of the revenue derived from the individual income tax comes from the lowest bracket, only about 11 per cent from the brackets in excess of 20 per cent. Obviously, therefore, we are engaged in the process of robbing one another. The Pauls have organized themselves into numerous pressure groups and are engaged in a gigantic struggle to see how much they can get from other Pauls. A society concerned with robbing its members cannot function efficiently in the creation of wealth.

Robbing Peter to pay Paul destroys the civilization and creates a snarling mass of people who know socialism costs them something, but who live in the hope that they will be able to gain more from others than they must pay to others. Civilization cannot be built or maintained on that basis. We shall either abandon our present practice of coveting and stealing or our standards of living and spiritual welfare will decline as our civilization goes the way of those that have preceded us.

A Pilgrimage To Eat Italy's National Dish

By HENRY McLEMORE

SORRENTO — Did you ever hear of a Pizza Pilgrimage?

Well, there is such a thing, and I am on one.

It's not my first one, either. Since 1946, when I first found Mario's, my visits to Italy have always included a pilgrimage to Sorrento.

There is good pizza to be found all over Italy, and in the United States, and even in Finland, but only at Mario's is there to be found the very best pizza in the world.

How do I know it is the best pizza in the world? Answer: I have eaten it. And, with no pretense at modesty, I claim to be an authority on the dish. I have eaten pizza in half the countries of the world, and in many islands and possessions, but Mario's towers above all others as surely as an ostrich towers over a wren.

Mario's, like nearly everything else in the world, has changed in the thirteen years since I found it. And I really didn't find it at all; it was shown to me by an old and dear Sorrento friend, Bija Gargulio, whose family has lived in Sorrento since the time of Tiberius, or thereabouts.

When I first walked into Mario's there was hardly room to walk into it. It couldn't have been more than twenty feet square, and half of that was taken by by the ancient brick oven.

Papa Mario was alive then, and I can see him now, standing at a little table, a wizened, tiny man, making the pizzas for Mario Junior to bake.

Papa was as proud of his pizzas as Cellini ever was of his salt shakers. He grew the tomatoes he used, he made his own cheese, and the wine he served was from his own small vineyard. And if the Sorrento climate allows it, I suspect he grew his own wheat for his flour.

As he finished a pizza, Papa would place it on the end of the long paddle held out by Mario Junior, and into the oven it would go, to come out crisp, juicy, bubbly, piping hot, and as light as sea foam.

And what an aroma! Bottled, it could have been sold by Chanel at ten bucks a whiff.

Mario Junior did the serving as well as the baking, and his waiter's outfit consisted of a pair of nondescript trousers, a turtle neck sweater, and a battered derby hat.

Now, Mario's has changed. Papa is gone. Mario Junior has prospered. There's a big, new restaurant, waiters in white coats, fine table linen and soft lights.

But who cares? The pizza hasn't changed. It is still the same as when it was baked and served in the little fishermens' joint.

Mario has discarded his derby and turtle neck sweater, but he still does the making and the baking. And the tomatoes are still home-grown, the cheese still homemade.

Let others go to Mecca — I'll go to Mario's.

Sponsors Tame Prize TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD
By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rod Serling, Emmy - winning TV scripter, has thrown in the sponge in his lengthy war against networks and sponsors now that he's producing his own TV series.

"The sponsor is king in television," Serling said grudgingly. "And he always will be. It's a fact of life we must live with."

This total surrender just about eliminates the rebellious young men who once fought tooth and nail for uncensored scripts. Rod was one of the last of them.

"I never got along with sponsors when I was a writer," he said. "That's why I'm producing my own show. There still are restrictions, but now I'm dealing directly with the sponsor and running into less trouble.

"The situation finally reached the heights of stupidity when normal words couldn't be mentioned because they also were the names of competing products. I had to take a line out of a script that read, 'have you got a match?' The show was sponsored by a lighter company.

"Nobody can be 'lucky' on a program that is sponsored by a cigaret firm, and criminals can't go to the gas chamber if the guys picking up the check manufacture gas stoves."

Serling's new show, "The Twilight Zone," already has come a-cropper with sponsors, but Rod doesn't fight them.

"I'm too busy trying to prove a pet theory of mine," he said.

"I believe we can tell a story in the half-hour time restriction, and make it legitimate and interesting. This show is adult, meaningful, arresting drama which I hope will be both an artistic and commercial success."

He described the program, based on science-fiction, fantasy and the occult, as being tilted off-center. Working 12 hours a day for the past seven months, Serling has written 21 of the 26 scripts.

"The beauty of it is we're not restricted to any era or locale," he explained. "We go from a tramp steamer to a guy in an asteroid with a female robot, to a western. It has tremendous scope."

At 34 Serling is a scarred veteran of 10 years of TV writing, including "Playhouse 90," "The U. S. Steel Hour," "Studio One" and "Climax."

"I began producing so I could write for myself, have a hand in the casting, and meet sponsors on their own ground," he concluded.
