Chief Perry Thomson and wife, Rheta, member of the Rotan Fire Department, attended the 108th annual conference/convention of the State Firemen's and Fire Marshal's Association June 16-20 in McAllen.

Congressman Phil Gramm of College Station, the Republican nominee for the U.S. Senate in the November elections, was keynote speaker. Corinne Broderick, public manager for the National Fire Protection Association in Quincy, MA* also addressed the convention.

The conference/convention, which this year drew approximately 2,000 firefighters and their guests, provides an opportunity each year for paid and volunteer firefighters to get together for business meetings, a memorial service, training sessions, and a trade show of state-of-the-art fire equipment and apparatus.

The State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association of Texas is a statewide association of both paid and volunteer firefighters which conducts a volunteer certification program, publishes a monthly magazine, sponsors the annual municipal fire training school at Texas A&M, and represents the estimated 40,000 members of the fire service in Texas before the Texas Legislature.

"The annual conference/convention affords us the best opportunity all year to stay in touch with the needs and desires of our membership," says Ed S. Kirkham, SFFMA executive manager.

Read John 17:6-21

[Jesus prayed that those who believe] "may all be one . . . so that the world may believe."

—John 17:21 (asv)

WHEN I told my three-year-old grandson, Jimmy, that I like to go to church because I love Jesus, he looked at me gravely and assured me, "Grandma, Jesus isn't in your church. He stays in my church all the time!"

His remark set me to thinking about divisions that exist among Christians. At first I felt smug because I don't condemn others simply because they belong to a denomination other than mine. I believe God has made us one in Christ. I also see diversity everywhere. Since God has made us all so different, surely God does not expect us to try to be just alike. Therefore, in the past I have accepted unhappy divisions among those in Christ's church as normal. But now I am beginning to recognize the need for a visible unity which will show all the Jimmys of the world that Jesus abides with all of us who believe in Him.

If we do not show our oneness in Christ, how can we hope to encourage the world to believe? I have not been doing enough to support the united ministries of the church. I am going to do better in that regard.

PRAYER: Jesus, our good shepherd, may I help You bring all of Your sheep into one fold, into unity. Amen.

Tax Planning by Gerald Rodgers, CPA

OTHER MEDICAL DEDUCTIONS

Everyone knows that medical and dental expenses paid for yourself, your spouse, and your dependents are deductible. What you may not know is that you may also be able to deduct medical expenses that you pay for a parent, child or certain other relatives even if you are not entitled to claim them as dependents.

For example, suppose you provide over half of your father's support but are not entitled to claim him as a dependent on your tax return because he has over $1,000 of taxable income. You are still allowed to deduct medical expenses that you pay on his behalf. Or suppose that your father must be in a nursing home for medical reasons. Payments that you make to the nursing home can be deducted along with your other medical expenses if you meet the support test. To determine whether you meet the more than one-half support requirement, you must count all the money that your father spent for his own support whether or not it comes from taxable sources or from such non-taxable sources as social security.

Another medical expense deduction that you may not be aware of is for a health spa, hot tub or swimming pool that you add to your residence for medical purposes. For instance, if your physician prescribed a specially equipped pool for your arthritic condition, the costs of construction and operation could be deductible to the extent they do not increase the value of your residence. If you spent $26,000 on the pool, and the property value increased by only $15,000, you may have a medical deduction of $11,000.

Medical expenses must exceed 5% of your adjusted gross income to be deductible. Don't overlook any deductions in this area. Review all costs for health care, including health travel, with your accountant at the time your return is being prepared.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby Critizes Teachers Group For Failing To Support Bill

A conference committee last week approved the education reform bill but postponed sending it back for a final vote so that the House could first hammer out a tax bill.

Meanwhile, generally mild-mannered Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby criticized the state's largest teacher group for failing to support the reform bill, and said the Texas State Teachers Association was finished as the major voice for teachers.

The education bill must be funded with the tax bill, and will likely come out of the legislative chute at about the same time. Like comedy, legislation depends on timing.

The House, which originates all tax bills, has insisted that the education bill proceeds first...and it has. But with Senators controlling the conference committee, they are now holding while the House brings up the tax bill from behind, urging that it be debated on both floors in front of the reform bill.

While it may seem like a cat-and-mouse game between factions who differ on reform and how much they want to raise taxes to pay for it, it's also important to coordinate activities to prevent a busted play. With time running out on the 30-day deadline, one misstep could necessitate another special session to wrap up the package, and who knows where that could lead.

Teachers Protest
Tempers flared Wednesday when leaders of the Texas State Teachers Association concluded they did not approve of the education reform bill and tried to derail it.

They denounced it in a press statement that compared teachers to dogs who were "being stumbled over and kicked."

The tactic angered Hobby, who reportedly banned them temporarily from his office. But TSTA leaders insisted they couldn't support the bill because it enforces competency tests for teachers and provides for too small raises.

Surprisingly, the bill is supported by another teacher group which has taken more radical stands, the Texas Federation of Teachers AFL-CIO.

Salaries, Merit Raises
Acknowledging that the bill contained only half a loaf, their president said he didn't understand why teachers should throw almost $900 million in raises in the face of the Legislature with righteous indignation.

In conference committee the bill would increase salaries from $11,100 to $15,200 a year, while the top grade salaries would go from $21,500 to $26,600.

Up to 30 percent of the 140,000 Texas teachers can receive a maximum $2,000 in bonuses next year for exceptional work.

Higher Drinking Age
When the U.S. Congress voted last week to withhold highway construction funds from states that refuse to raise the minimum drinking age to 21, it hit the Texas Legislature in the pocketbook.

Lost among the hubbub of this special session on education is the effect that federal action will have on the coming regular session.

Texas must raise the legal age by late 1986 or stand to lose $33 million in fiscal year 1986 and more than double that the next year.

Hurting for revenues as badly as it is, the Legislature will be under heavy pressure to comply rather than lose money.

Mattox, Railroad Panel

Embattled Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox seems to be in new trouble every time he turns around.

Last week it was reported he angered officials at the Texas Railroad Commission by intervening in a federal oil and gas regulatory case.

The case involves two of Mattox's campaign contributors who are facing regulation by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Mattox intervened saying it was up to the Texas Railroad Commission to regulate production in Texas.

MICROWAVE DRYING NOT ALWAYS BEST....

It's safe to dry fruits, vegetables and jerkies in a microwave oven but most results aren't very satisfactory. The end product usually has more of an overcooked than a dehydrated appearance, texture and flavor.

But leafy herbs like parsley, chives, basil, sage and the leaves of celery are an exception. Small amounts of these herbs can be satisfactorily dried in a microwave oven.

To microwave dry leafy herbs, wash them thoroughly and pat dry between paper towels. Then place the herbs in the microwave oven between two dry paper towels and heat on high or full power for thirty to sixty seconds at a time until the herbs are dry and brittle to touch. This will usually take two to five minutes, depending upon the amount being dried. Watch carefully to prevent overdrying and burning.

One dry, allow the herbs to cool, then crumble them and place in small airtight containers for storage in a cool, dry, dark place.

EVEN WHEN YOU'RE AWAY...YOUR HOME KEEPS RUNNING

You may naturally expect your home to use less electricity while you're away for a week or more. The reduction may not be as great as you think, however. That's because there are many factors that can affect your usage: weather conditions, billing periods and even vacation preparation.

1. Very hot weather before you leave and after you return means increased use of air conditioning; this makes it difficult to compare your bill with a previous month of milder weather.
2. Hot weather causes your refrigerator/freezer to run longer, particularly if your home air conditioning is turned off while you are away.
3. If the time you're away falls within two billing periods, the reduction you expect will be split between two bills.
4. If you didn't turn off your electric hot water heater before you left, it continued to keep your water hot 24 hours a day, even though you weren't there.

5. And don't forget...when getting ready for a vacation, you often use more electricity than usual for cleaning, washing, drying, ironing, cooking and general preparations. The same is true about your return.

Check your meter.

If you learn to read your own meter, you can find out just how much electricity was used while you were gone. And, you'll see just how much energy you're using during the summer, the heaviest electricity consuming season, with your air conditioning operating most of the time.

MRS. JOHN MOESCH

Martha Ellen Hargrove & John Leroy Moesch United

Martha Ellen Hargrove and John Leroy Moesch exchanged marriage vows Saturday, June 23 in First Baptist Church with Lloyd Cross, uncle of the bride, and Geneva Chandler officiating.

Given in marriage by her brothers, David, Neal, and Walter, the bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bettie Hargrove and the late Bernice Hargrove of Rotan. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charlotte Moesch and the late Roy Moesch of Snyder.

Maid of Honor was Jana Smith. She wore a ruffled dress made of red and white dotted Swiss material. Greg Moesch of Snyder was his brother's best man. something borrowed, and she wore the traditional blue garter.

David Hargrove and Neal Hargrove, brothers of the bride, served as ushers. Presenting the music was Kay Kennedy on the organ and Floyd Garcia, Jr., on piano.

THERE'S ONE NEAR YOU

Hustling Around Hobbs

By Joy Walker

We got a light shower during the night (Sunday) but the most I have had reported has been half an inch, and some folks just got a sprinkle. Anyway it did rain at night, and the saying is that it never rains at night in July, so maybe we are going to have an unusual month and hopefully it will rain day and night for a few days, and we can get that much needed moisture in the tanks and one the cultivated land, also the pastures are so dry and dead looking, a good rain would really green them up.

Jim Armendariz was in the Fisher County hospital for several days last week; they transferred him to West Texas Medical Clinic in Abilene on Wednesday and they did surgery on Thursday. He is still in the hospital there, but he is doing great, and we hope that he will continue to improve.

Krystal Brook Martinez from Rotan spent the week visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Martinez. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Martinez.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Cave, and Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Cave, all from Farmington, New Mexico, have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Cave during the week. Also, Mrs. Billy Carter from Brownwood visited with the Caves last week.

We are sorry to learn that Lealon Wilburn is now back in the Rolling Plains Hospital at Sweetwater; he has been there now for about 4 weeks. All of the Wilburn family have been there with him while he has been in the hospital. We wish that he would soon begin to feel a little better.

Mrs. Irene Etheredge was still in the Fisher County hospital at last report, but she seems to be getting along real well, and hopefully will be able to return home soon.

We are pleased to report that Windle Cave is doing real well after his accident, and hopes to get 100 percent vision back.

Our community was saddened by the sudden death of Hack Templeton who passed away Monday morning. He was buried in the Hobbs cemetery on Wednesday, with services at the Weathersbee Funeral Chapel in Rotan. Our sincere sympathy goes out to his wife, and his children, also to his brother Mickey, and to the remainder of his family.

Morris Hardin from Lubbock spent last weekend visiting with his mother, Mrs. Bea Hardin.

Mrs. James Ratliff and Mrs. Tracy Knipe from Snyder spent Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Acorn Bohanan in Stanton.

Mrs. Bohanan is James' sister. Thursday they went to Midland where Kim had some surgery done on her knee. She got to come home that same night and is doing real good. Teresa Ratliff rode in the Colorado City AJRA rodeo Saturday morning. Mrs. Opal Phillips has just returned from a trip to Greenville where she stayed with her sister, Mrs. Frank Hackney. She stayed a week there, going with Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Thornton, who came back by for her and brought her home. Sunday Opal went to Maries for lunch. Michael Porter from Arlington was here visiting for the weekend. The Porter family were also at Maries on Sunday.

Congratulations to Kristi Price and Mathew Givens who were married on Saturday at the Roby Church of Christ. Kristi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Price of this community.

Mr. and Mrs. D.H. Hornsberger from Sweetwater and Mrs. Eunice Arp from Roby all visited Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Kincaid on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson from Rotan visited with the Kincaids Saturday evening.

Mrs. Sally Etheredge and Mrs. Norma Parks brought our special music on Sunday morning at Church. It was really beautiful and we all enjoyed it so much.

Jim and I have been staying close to home, or I have, and Jim has sure been busy in the oil patch. Seems like everything goes wrong at the same time, and he has to be several places at the same time. Melody and Mark are slowly getting everything straight, and when they moved, it rained on them from Waco on down to Austin. So some folks are getting rain, although right around Austin, has been pretty dry, and they need rain nearly as badly as we do.

Jim went to Haskell Thursday evening late; he went with Doc Davis from Snyder.

Fluvanna reported anywhere from 3 to 4 inches of rain on Wednesday night, which was a pretty good rain; sure wish we could have got that much, but we only got a light shower here.

That's all for this week. Hope everyone has a happy and safe 4th of July.

Do some teenagers you know drive as if they think they'll live forever? We've heard of a driver education instructor who has students write a will before they can drive. It makes them more careful behind the wheel, he says.

New safety standards from the Department of Transportation call for a third stop light on all cars produced after September 1, 1985. It will be mounted near the center of the rear window, where following drivers can't miss it. Tests shows it could cut collisions in half.

Another change: the DOT has now okayed windshields and other windows coated with a layer of plastic inside to avoid facial lacerations in the event the windows shatter in a crash. Cost is about $40 a car; savings in medical costs could be $10.8 million, not to mention reduced anguish.

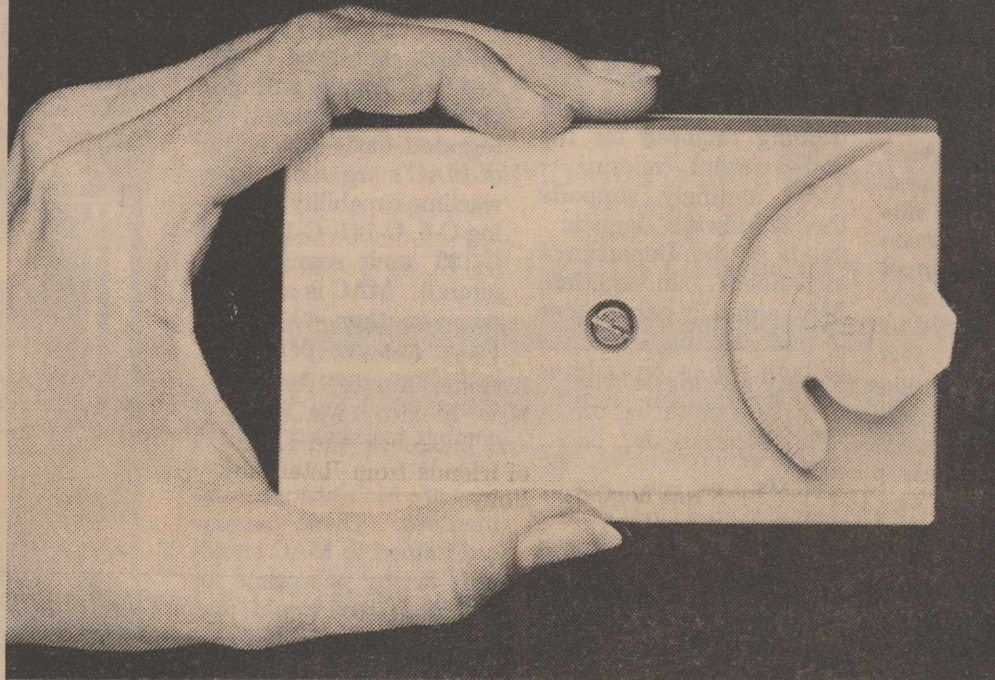

Check the limits of the property damage liability coverage on your auto policy. Some cars on the road cost $25,000 or more. What if you hit one?

Make sure YOU are adequately covered for the driving you do. See the helpful insurance people at:

This plastic box is important to you.

It's your connecting link to the telephone network.

This plastic box is a "network interface." That's where you join the local telephone network, which can also connect you to a long distance network.

It's this box where we terminate a pair of wires from our switching center to your residence. That's technically where our service ends, but not our concern for our customers. We want you to understand the importance of this interface device and the other changes which have taken place with the breakup of the Bell System so that you can relax and continue to enjoy good telephone service.

The network interface is being installed on the outside of most new homes, usually adjacent to the power meter. For others it may be found on the wall of a walk-in closet, a utility room or garage. Southwestern Bell Telephone began installing network interfaces in 1982, therefore, wiring installed prior to 1982 may not have a network interface. Unfortunately, not all of the older network interfaces are exact look-a-likes, but they are similar.

From the network interface, you have at least three options on how to handle installation and repair of inside wiring and jacks to your telephones:

- (1) hire Southwestern Bell Telephone to do it,
- (2) hire another contractor,
- (3) or save the money by doing the work yourself.

(Materials are readily available from numerous retail stores.)

If you choose Southwestern Bell Telephone to do the inside work, you should know about recently approved "Premises Work Charges," which include both time and materials. Premises Work Charges are billed according to the time required to do the job.

Here is Southwestern Bell Telephone's schedule of charges:

PREMISES WORK CHARGES FOR JACKS AND INSIDE WIRING	8 a.m.- 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.	Other Times Mon.-Fri. and All Day Saturday and Holidays
		Mon.-Fri. and Saturday	Sundays and Holidays
INSTALLATION
Initial 15 min.	$18.50	$22.75	$27.00
Each Addl. 15 Min.	$10.50	$12.50	$14.75
REPAIR
Initial 15 Min.	$28.25	$31.75	$35.25
Each Addl. 15 Min.	$10.50	$12.75	$15.00

These charges are similar to those made by other service personnel for work performed on customers' premises. Remember, too, that while inside wiring and the workmanship required to install or repair it may be obtained from many sources today, we're still in the business, if that's your choice.

When we complete the work, you get a 30-day warranty against defects and malfunctions from the date of installation or repair. For your convenience, keep your Southwestern Bell Telephone warranty handy.

We sincerely hope this information will be helpful to you in the future. We know most of our customers still have a lot of questions about the changes which have taken place since divestiture.

While we are no longer responsible for every facet of your telephone service like we used to be, serving you is still our only business. After all, it's AT&T we separated from... not you. And, in the coming weeks, we will be reviewing other information you'll need to help you understand—and enjoy—the benefits of the new Information Age.

In addition to Scott AFB, MAC's U.S. bases are McChord AFB, Wash.; Travis AFB, Calif.; Norton AFB, Calif.; McGuire AFB, N.J.; Altus AFB, Okla.; Charleston AFB, S.C.; Dover AFB, Del.; Pope AFB, N.C.; Little Rock, Ark.; Bolling AFB, D.C.; Andrews AFB; Kirtland AFB, N.M.; and Hurlburt Field, Fla.

MISSION

MAC is responsible for several major missions which serve the Air Force and Department of Defense: aerial deployment, employment and redeployment of combat forces and their support equipment; logistical resupply of these forces; aeromedical evacuation; presidential airlift; aerial search, rescue and recovery of downed fliers; participation in special operations, such as unconventional warfare and psychological warfare; weather reconnaissance and atmospheric sampling; acquisition and dissemination of atmospheric and space environmental information; and combat, operational and technical audiovisual documentation. Additionally, the command contracts for long-term commercial airlift for the Department of Defense.

Commander in chief, MAC, as commander of a specified command, is responsive to directions of the secretary of defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In this capacity, CINCMAC exercises command of all airlift forces made available by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and provides airlift support to all Department of Defense agencies.

CINCMAN, as commander of a major command of the U.S. Air Force, is responsive to directions of the secretary of the Air Force and the chief of staff, U.S. Air Force. In this capacity, CINCMAC provides administrative and logistics support to assigned airlift forces and exercises command of Aerospace Audiovisual Service, Air Weather Service, 89th Military Airlift Wing, special operations forces, rescue and recovery forces, operational support airlift units, and special aircrew training.

On March 1, 1983, the 23rd Air Force was activated at Scott AFB to provide central management of MAC's Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service and the newly acquired U.S. Air Force Special Operations Forces. The single management of those forces allows the Air Force to do a better collective job for the Department of Defense.

GLOBAL AIRLIFT

Airlift is the vital component which gives rapid mobility to our fighting forces. To insure a constant state of readiness, MAC maintains a worldwide airlift system of aircraft, maintenance units, air terminals and supplies essential to movement of troops and their equipment across oceans and within combat theaters. This means that MAC crews must be ready to deliver thousands of combat troops and their battle equipment anywhere in the world—by airland or by airdrop—and be able to do it in a matter of days. As a byproduct of the constant training required for the global airlift mission, MAC routinely supports the worldwide logistic needs of the Department of Defense. In addition, MAC annually participates in joint training exercises to both refine procedures and demonstrate airlift capability.

MAC's unique airlift capabilities were successfully demonstrated in October 1983 during the Grenada operation, URGENT FURY. MAC pilots flew more than 850 missions, transporting 15,000 tons of cargo and 36,000 passengers.

HUMANITARIAN AIRLIFT

MAC's airlift force is used frequently to meet emergencies and relieve suffering caused by disasters. During 1983, the command was again asked to use its airlift capability for humanitarian support. Typical of the humanitarian airlift provided by MAC were the following:

—MAC operated 21 C-141s airlifting 336 tons of cargo from CONUS to Chad.

—Following the October terrorist bombing of the U.S. Marine compound in Beirut, MAC flew 63 wounded servicemen to various hospitals in Europe and 237 human remains back to Dover AFB, Del.

—MAC flew 13 missions to provide humanitarian relief to the earthquake victims of Turkey.

As noted above, worldwide airlift of the sick and injured is also a mission of MAC. C-141s arriving in overseas theaters are refitted as needed to accommodate stretcher and walking patients for the return mission to the continental United States. Highly skilled medical technicians and flight nurses provided medical care to more than 78,000 patients on more than 3,400 aeromedical evacuation missions using C-9As, C-130s and C-141s in 1983.

MAC-GAINED AIR RESERVE FORCES

When mobilized, Air Reserve Forces will provide—on a completely integrated basis—about half of MAC's organic military wartime capability, including C-5, C-141, C-130, C-9, C-123 and rotary wing aircraft. MAC is authorized more than 42,000 Air Force Reserve personnel, including members of about 40 flying and 167 combat sustaining Reserve units and 500 individuals who are Mobilization Augmentees. These persons are trained to MAC standards during peacetime for the jobs they would perform during national emergencies. If called to active duty, both the units and the Mobilization Augmentees will become an integral part of MAC, giving it a valuable depth in a wide variety of jobs ranging from actual flying to maintenance and various administrative and other support functions.

The services of the Air Force Reservists and the airlift capability generated during training missions are made available for MAC use in performing its mission.

There are 10 principal categories of Air Force Reserve activity in support of MAC. They are:

(1) Reserve Associate units located at MAC airlift bases where they are associated with and use the equipment and facilities of an active military airlift unit, including the flying of C-141, C-9 and C-5 aircraft.

(2) Intratheater airlifts operating from their own locations with C-130 and

C-123 aircraft. In addition to their airlift and airdrop training requirements, these units fly in support of U.S. Army airborne training, fire-fighting, aerial spray (UC-123) and other support missions for the active force.

(3) Aerospace rescue and recovery units using their H-1, H-3, and HC-130 planes on actual search and recovery missions in addition to routine training that includes the latest techniques of pararescue recovery. (4) Special Operations Forces using AC-130 and CH-53E aircraft provide unconventional warfare force augmentation worldwide. (5) Aeromedical evacuation units which train and work alongside active-duty units to provide inflight medical care to patients plus administrative and operational support.

(6) Aerial port squadrons that have the mission of operating aerial ports of embarkation-debarkation and air terminals to provide passenger, cargo and fleet services for airlift aircraft.

(7) Medical service units trained to furnish emergency treatment of casualties, augment established units, handle casualty staging and provide medical treatment in non-fixed facilities.

(8) Mobilization Augmentees who are individual Air Force Reservists assigned specific jobs to perform if mobilized to augment and replace active-force personnel needed elsewhere, and to alleviate active-force shortages during national emergencies.

(9) Civil engineering units which support active-duty components during annual training sessions worldwide.

(1) A weather reconnaissance squadron at Keesler AFB, Miss., equipped with WC-130 aircraft which flies weather reconnaissance missions together with an active-duty weather reconnaissance squadron.

In time of national emergency, many Air National Guard units called to active duty will also join MAC.

These units will reinforce the global airlift force and Air Weather Service. In peacetime these units look to MAC for supervision of training toward their wartime mission, for help in conducting an effective flying safety program and for inspections.

Air National Guard units, assigned to MAC when mobilized, include approximately 20,000 people and five tactical airlift wings; 14 tactical airlift groups; 19 tactical airlift squadrons, two Aerospace Rescue and Recovery groups; one special operations group; one weather squadron; and 29 weather flights. ANG units operate HC-130 (rescue), EC-130 (special operations) and

C-130 aircraft and HH-3E (rescue) helicopters.

MAC AIR TERMINALS

MAC maintains a worldwide system of terminals to support the movement of DOD passengers and cargo. In addition to the fixed air terminals, several mobile units are maintained to provide a quick reaction force for deployment in support of airlift missions responding to a crisis or natural disaster.

ORGANIZATION

MAC's resources are separated into four types of organizations—airlift, combat rescue/special operations, technical service and special units.

Airlift

The Twenty-First Air

Force, McGuire AFB, N.J., is one of two combat ready intertheater and intratheater airlift arms of MAC. The 21st AF area of responsibility extends eastward through Canada, Greenland, Iceland, NATO Europe, Africa and through the Middle East to the eastern boundaries of Iran and the Arabian peninsula.

Southward, the 21st AF area of responsibility includes the Caribbean and South America. Within this region, over 32,000 MAC people and more than 280 airlift aircraft operate from more than 50 locations.

Principal 21st AF units include: 322nd Airlift Division, Ramstein AB, Germany; 76th Airlift Division, Andrews AFB; 89th Military Airlift Wing, Andrews AFB; 317th Tactical Airlift Wing, Pope AFB; 435th TAW, Rhein-Main AB; 436th MAW, Dover AFB; 437th MAW, Charleston AFB, 438th MAW, McGuire AFB; and 1605th Military Airlift Support Wing, Lajes Field.

The Twenty-Second Air Force, Travis AFB, Calif., area of responsibility extends westward across Alaska to Japan, southward along the shores of the Asian landmass, around Southeast Asia, across northern India to Iran, and southward along the eastern shores of Arabia and Africa. Southern perimeters of this area include all of Antarctica. With a military and civilian work force of 38,000 people, the 22nd AF manages over 370 transport aircraft and support facilities.

Principal 22nd AF units include: 834th Airlift Division, Hickam AFB, Hawaii; 60th MAW, Travis AFB; 62nd MAW, McChord AFB; 63rd MAW, Norton AFB; 314th TAW, Little Rock AFB; 443 MAW, Altus AFB; 463rd TAW, Dyess AFB, Texas; 616th Military Airlift Group, Elmendorf AFB, Alaska; and the 374th TAW, Clark AB, the Philippines.

The 21st and 22nd Air Forces maintain their mobility posture for worldwide airlift by participating in combat exercises throughout the world. In a national emergency, however, they would rely also upon the Civil Reserve Air Fleet.

This global airlift capability enables an immediate response to disasters and problems anywhere in the world.

Combat Rescue/Special Operations

The Twenty-Third Air Force, Scott AFB, Ill., provides a focal point within MAC for integrating dedicated Air Force special operations forces, rescue and recovery forces and aeromedical airlift within the CONUS, and worldwide aeromedical evacuation units to support national objectives. The 23rd AF has no geographic boundaries; its management responsibilities encompass all aspects of special operations, rescue and recovery and aeromedical missions worldwide. The 23rd AF manages about 14,000 military and civilian people and more than 200 aircraft.

Principal 23rd AF units are: 2nd Air Division and 1st Special Operations Wing, both at Hurlburt Field, Fla.; 39th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Wing, Eglin AFB, Fla.; 41st Rescue and Weather Reconnaissance Wing, McClellan AFB, Calif.; 1550th Aircrew Training and Test Wing, and 1606th Air Base Wing, Kirtland AFB, N.M.; and 375th Aeromedical Airlift Wing, Scott AFB.

The 23rd AF varied missions include: combat rescue; special operations; aeromedical evacuation; humanitarian search and rescue; aircrew training; Strategic Air Command missile site support; airborne weather reconnaissance; atmospheric sampling; space shuttle contingency support; operational support airlift of high-ranking Department of Defense civilian and military leaders, VIP foreign dignitaries, and Congressional members and their staffs; target drone recovery, support of both eastern and western space missile centers and support of Air Force survival schools.

Technical Services

MAC maintains specialized technical services to provide essential information and service to facilitate day-to-day Air Force and Department of Defense operations.

Aerospace Audiovisual Service is the Air Force's single manager for combat, operational and technical audiovisual documentation. Headquartered at Norton AFB, AAVS operates five squadrons, 26 detachments and 26 operating locations around the world providing motion picture, television, still photographic and graphic art coverage of Air Force activities. AAVS operates base audiovisual service centers throughout the continental United States and locations in Europe and Central America.

Air Weather Service, headquartered at Scott AFB, operates a network of weather observing and forecasting facilities providing weather support to Air Force and Army units worldwide. As a part of its responsibility for global weather information, AWS cooperates with the 23rd AF to provide tropical storm reconnaissance and special weather reconnaissance for aircraft deployments, satellite and missile launches, and other military operations. In addition, AWS obtains and disseminates data on solar activity and other space environment phenomena in support of military requirements.

AWS has demonstrated an operational capability to dissipate supercooled fog over selected areas, using ground-based weather modification techniques. Additionally, and in cooperation with the 23rd AF, a similar capability has been demonstrated using aerial techniques.

Special Unit

The 89th Military Airlift Wing, Andrews AFB, carries out one of the greatest responsibilities of any element of U.S. government—the air transportation of the president, vice president, cabinet members, top government officials and foreign dignitaries. This important mission extends throughout the United States and around the world.

COMMERCIAL AIRLIFT

In addition to MAC's airlift resources, MAC personnel negotiate contracts with commercial airlines to augment peacetime military airlift capability. The primary purpose of these contracts, however, is to formalize the Civil Reserve Air Fleet program. CRAF is a program to provide an orderly integration of a select fleet of civilian airlines to augment U.S. Air Force airlift forces in times of emergency or national crises.
