

DEMOCRATS LEADING IN TEXAS TEN TO ONE SCENE NORRIS TRIAL SHIFTED TO AUSTIN; NEW DATE NOT SET

PREACHER WINS FIGHT TO MOVE MURDER HEARING

TWENTY WITNESSES TELL JUDGE HOSEY OF PREJUDICE

"CASE WON" HE SAYS

ACCUSED MAN SAYS ONLY FEAR BEING TRIED IN FT. WORTH

(By The Associated Press) FORT WORTH, Nov. 2 (AP)—Fort Worth today won the murder trial of its leading fundamentalist pastor, Judge George Hosey of the criminal district court, after hearing about 20 witnesses testify that Norris could not obtain a fair trial on the indictment charging him with the murder of Ed-ward Clippis, decided to grant the pastor a change of venue. He selected Austin, the Texas capital for the trial city.

Some of these witnesses said that they had heard men express belief that Norris' neck should be broken, that he should be shot, and that he should be hanged and the testimony of the mayor of Fort Worth, H. C. Meacham, that he had hired special prosecutors at a $12,000 fee to prosecute Norris for the killing of his friend Clippis, was considered to have no little weight with the judges.

Ignore "Combination"

No evidence was heard on Norris' allegation that a "combination" of politics and religion, of the city administration and Roman Catholics, had been created to prosecute him all of the testimony going to the question of alleged widespread fixed opinions in the case. The judge announced after noon recess, that the defense had established its case on the change of venue and that he did not wish to hear any more evidence on the question. Prosecution attorneys vigorously protested that they should be heard on the "combination" charge, and intimated that they wished to defend Mayor Meacham and the citizenship of Tarrant county as they stated the prosecution had been left that the citizenship was not fair minded, but the judge declined to receive his stand.

Knotty Problem

The question of where the case should be held, after Justice J. Knott, at one time that they had agreed on Austin, the state capital, but when it developed that District Attorney Hanger had not been a party to the agreement that he wanted a non-popular county, the agreement was withdrawn by the prosecution attorney, that since his term expires January 1, and it is probable the case cannot come to trial before that date, no personal desire influenced his judgment. He believed the case was of such magnitude and interest that the facilities of a larger city would be needed.

Dodges Catholics

Judge Hosey said that he did not want to send it to San Antonio because of the large Catholic population here which might be an injustice to Norris, and that he had heard Norris had experienced trouble in Dallas and Houston and that he would rather see some other place.

Attorneys continued hours following the judge's announcement in arguing relative merits of Texas cities. Almost every town in the state was mentioned in conference and in the court room.

The date of the trial at Austin is unknown, as the case must be set by the criminal court there. Mr. Hanger said he thought it would be set for the January term. The only step now is to transfer the papers to the Austin court and certify that the change of venue has been placed in that court.

Dr. Norris was elected at the trial of the case, characterizing his application for change of venue as a "bomb shell" to the prosecution and declaring that the state "now hasn't a leg to stand on, the case is all over." He said any county but Tarrant would suit him.

One of the weighty considerations of the judge's decision was the response of the courtroom of prospective jurors on the judge's questions as to how many of them had formed opinions about 30 per cent of the verdict they did by their hands and when the place asked how many did not have fixed opinion only a few put up their hands.

CO-OPERATION URGED BY MARKETING EXPERT IN LUBBOCK

Introducing himself and at the same time explaining that he did so because the chairman of the meeting, whom he said was a Lubbock banker, had refused the task, Aaron Sapiro, nationally famous apostle of cooperative farming, captured the audience of approximately 250 farmers and business men in a speech in the Tech College pavilion yesterday afternoon. Mr. Sapiro was brought here for the address by the Texas Farm Bureau cotton association and the Lubbock chamber of Commerce. While his audience was made up largely of farmers, many specialists that despite notable democratic gains some of the outstanding contests remained in the doubtful column.

The speaker was very enthusiastic, and is well informed. He understands his work and is equal to the task of putting it over in a dignified manner, and the people who were fortunate enough to hear him, agree that his mission is one to be considered seriously.

Farmers are Praised "Cotton farmers in the Southern states are producing more than 70 per cent of all the good cotton in the world. They are helping the bankers, the spinners and the dealers. They are enriching everybody, but themselves."

DEMOCRATS GAIN TWO IN CONGRESS, VOTE INDICATES

NEEDED 36 FOR CONTROL OF LOWER HOUSE AT WASHINGTON

BUTLER IS DEFEATED

AL SMITH IS RE-ELECTED IN NEW YORK; DIXIE REPORTS SLOW

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP)—Slowly accumulating returns from yesterday's general elections developed so many uncertainties that despite notable democratic gains some of the outstanding contests remained in the doubtful column.

The democrats not only re-elected Governor Smith in New York, but picked up one senatorial seat in Massachusetts, defeating Senator Butler, personal friend of President Coolidge and chairman of the republican national committee. Senator Wadsworth of New York also appeared to be in danger.

Two seats in the house of representatives, one in Pennsylvania and one in New York, had swung over from the republican to the democratic column, but most of the congressional districts which had been debatable ground still were to report.

Lead in Oklahoma

On top of their victories in Massachusetts and New York, the democrats, were keeping their senatorial candidates in the lead in Arizona, Missouri, Maryland, Oklahoma and Kentucky, although the returns were not decisive, all of these states now are represented by republicans.

In all, the democrats must pick up nine seats to overturn the present republican majority in the senate.

In Indiana, stirred in the closing days of the campaign charges of a corrupt republican K. K. K. Klan combination, Senators Watson and Robinson, both republicans, were leading on partial returns, but by comparatively narrow margins.

Illinois and Pennsylvania, on which the senate's "rush funds" committee concentrated its attention, showed widely differing returns. Representative William S. Vare, the republican senatorial nominee in Pennsylvania, had a comfortable majority, in Frank L. Smith, named for the senate by Illinois republicans, was faced with party rolled up in Chicago by George E. Brennan, his democrat opponent. The Smith managers professed confidence in the outcome.

The slowness of the returns left in doubt many contests for senate and local offices. Of the thirty-three states electing governors, only six had reported the result early today, and except for New York all of them were either in the democratic solid south or in undisputed republican territory.

The available figures likewise made it impossible to visualize clearly the whole drift of the advisory prohibition referendum held in eight states. From the first returns, it appeared that New York had given the vote, a vast majority, and they also were leading in Montana and Illinois. In Missouri, where the question was an appeal of the state enforcement act, and where the anti-union league advised the drys to refrain from voting the first precincts returned a heavy majority against the proposal. A like result was indicated on available figures from Colorado.

Butler Concedes Defeat

Senator Butler's defeat in Massachusetts, conceded by him after he had failed to pile up a sufficient majority against to overcome the expected Walsh tidal wave in Boston, will mean that he retires immediately from the senate. He was appointed by the governor of Massachusetts to succeed the late Henry Cabot Lodge, and to serve until a successor was elected. Mr. Walsh will take his place at Washington when the senate meets on November 15.

Senator Butler was the only republican senator to be endorsed publicly by President Coolidge who journeyed to Northampton and cast his vote there for his friend and party leader.

Back in the white house last night the president listened for a while to the returns but went to bed before he had heard the outcome of his home state.

No Lubbock Returns Yet

How did Lubbock vote? Nobody knows, except that it is presumed that it did as the rest of Texas did, and swamped the republicans under a landslide of about ten to one, as usual. County Judge Charles Nordyke, to whom the returns of the election judges said last night that he had told the judges they need not make any report until today, so no count was available. The vote, while light, was apparently heavier than is usual at general elections.

MOODY GETS 65,000 TO HAINES' 7,000 IN 109 COUNTIES

WURZBACH LEADING

SEALE AHEAD MARSHALL IN SHERIFF'S RACE AT DALLAS

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 2.—The general election in Texas adhered closely to precedent Tuesday and served simply as the medium of confirming choices of the democratic primaries for all state offices.

Returns late Tuesday night gave Attorney General Don Moody a lead of approximately ten to one over the republican opponent, Col. H. H. Haines. Democratic candidates for all other state offices held corresponding leads.

Wurzbach Leads Reports from congressional districts indicated that democratic candidates in 11 of the 18 districts are assured of election. In the fourteenth (San Antonio) district, Harry M. Wurzbach, only republican member of the Texas congressional district held a small lead over his democratic opponent, A. D. Rogers, who had lost an early lead.

Yoting was unusually heavy for general election in Texas despite the unfavorable weather. Local issues were responsible for heavy polling in many counties.

Seale is Ahead In Dallas county, much interest was displayed in the sheriff's race, in which Allen Seale was receiving an increasing majority at a late hour over the incumbent, Sabourier. Marshall, his whose name appeared in the ballot as the democratic nominee, Marshall had been declared the nominee after a contest following the primary, in which Seale was given a small majority. Seale's name was "written in" by those who voted for him today.

Wilfacy in Doubt

Outcome of the election in Wilfacy county, where a strong independent ticket was in the field, was still in doubt at a late hour, only a small margin separating the opponents. No disturbances were reported there or in other border towns as some of which, rangers had been sent by Governor Ferguson.

Early returns of the Quincey, Moore race at Denton for district judge in which an injunction fight had been waged, indicated that Orkeley was well ahead.

Last Reports

Authorities Seek Clue in Death of Salesman at Fort Worth Left at Gas Station

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 2 (AP)—The death of E. K. King, automobile salesman, early today, following mysterious injuries of apparently minor nature, was still an enigma tonight to those trying to learn who or what killed him.

On this information furnished by a filling station attendant, police are searching for the man, while a coroner's verdict is "death from unknown cause."

First School Lyceum Course Presented Tuesday Eve

"Daddy Long Legs" a dramatization of Jean Webster's book bearing that name, was presented last evening at the high school auditorium by a troupe of New York players under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher council of the city. The play was well received by a group of school children and citizens who witnessed the performance.

The part of Jean Abbott, the founding girl, who rebelled against the tyranny of the institution in which she had grown from babyhood to adolescence, was portrayed with excellence as were the other characters. The pathos of the story was relieved throughout by much provoking incidents that lent much to the appeal of the play.

Pleasing a Queen's Taste

Mrs. Eleanor Woodruff

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—While democratic America, unused to queens and their ways, was getting all excited wondering what a queen likes and what may possibly bring a frown, one fearless woman calmly prepared the royal suite without a quiver of fear.

"To be sure, I am not familiar with queens," Eleanor Woodruff admits with a smile, "but I do know women. And my feminine psychology tells me a queen is no less averse to flattery than the humblest of her subjects."

"Greated Beautiful Background" "So, in decorating Queen Marie's New York abode, I have had but one idea in mind—to create a beautiful background for a beautiful woman. That she happens to be a queen adds glamor to me, but does not change my problem."

Though well known as an actress, and at present playing a leading role in a Broadway hit, Miss Woodruff was practically unknown as an interior decorator until this commission to decorate the queen's suite brought her into prominence.

For she is a graduate of no decorating school, is not dependent on any particular period or style, and is practically self-taught.

Rose Curtains for Color

"The queen herself is beautiful," she goes on, "everything around her must be lovely, but not conspicuous. That is why I selected green for the walls of her living room. Green is the most flattering color there is, and it makes a neutral background."

"For high spots of color I used" rose damask curtains, crystal chandeliers, tapestries and Louis XVI furniture. Each article is not only lovely in itself, but it will reflect loveliness on the occupant."

Queen Marie's bedroom is very modern, with a painted bed, taffeta bedspread, chintz curtains, a sapphire blue velvet chaise longue and cream-colored walls.

"Beautiful but not insistent," Miss Woodruff comments, "Nothing to compete in beauty with its mistress."

The regal note, however, has not been omitted. The doorknobs and all the lighting fixtures have been gold plated. The gold service has been taken out of the safe and shined up for the royal party's use. And thousands and thousands of dollars have been spent purchasing inconspicuous alabaster and jade lamps, and fabrics a queen might love to touch.

A crew of carpenters, upholsterers, decorators and painters have transformed the entire fourth floor of the Ambassador hotel into a royal suite of 24 rooms for the queen her two children, Prince Nicholas, and Princess Helena, and their party.

Miss Woodruff is unable to account for her good fortune in being selected to manage it all.

Her Big Chance

"It's luck, just luck," she insists, "and it's my big chance."

However, Miss Woodruff has been a tireless worker. All the time not actually demanded by her stage career has been given to decorating. It started with just natural good taste and an instinctive knowledge of what a room should look like. Her own apartments have always been beautiful. First friends sought her for advice, and then strangers, until without exactly realizing it, she found herself a recognized decorator.

"I'm quite sure the queen will like her suite," she says with confidence, "because it is so obviously decorated for a beautiful woman as well as for a queen."

GOD AND HIS PROPHETS

"Believe in the Lord your God, so shall ye be established; believe His prophets, so shall ye prosper." 2 Chron. 20:20.

VALUE OF HUMAN LIFE

Thousands of American lives valued at hundreds of millions of dollars are lost in the United States every year as a direct result of violent changes in the weather, according to Professor Ellsworth Huntington of Yale University. In two months of this year—from the middle of February to the middle of April—more than 75,000 lives valued economically at more than $500,000,000 were lost in this country because of changes in weather conditions," Professor Huntington declared.

This loss of life resulted from sharp fluctuations in temperature and moisture and not from unexpected disaster, such as the recent Florida catastrophe. Professor Huntington's investigations have shown that the largest ratio of deaths from weather changes took place in the warmest cities while the ratio dropped considerably in the coolest cities. Professor Huntington, who places an economic value of $7,000 on the life of each person, pointed out that "unless the deaths happened to touch us individually, we did not notice how greatly they disturbed our financial situation. That is merely because we are still extraordinarily stupid," he said. "If 100,000 cows should be killed by bad weather within a few days, or if 100,000 persons should perish in an earthquake, almost everybody would be talking about it. But because the weather atkes its toll quietly, we do not notice the great strain. Nevertheless, the country is just that much poorer than if the weather had been normal."

AN HONEST SENATOR

The welfare of these United States would be served if every member of every political party would exercise a critical and independent study of each candidate offering for election and then deliberately vote for the man most capable of giving the balance of the American people fair, honest, and unselfish service. In politics, too often, the candidate bearing the Democratic label gets the Democratic vote, and vice versa. Very seldom does a prominent member of one party openly advocate the election of the candidate of the other. Yet that is happening in Pennsylvania today, Senator Norris of Nebraska, a man who refused to make a fight to be re-elected but who was a member of the Progressive Republican group which does not hesitate to oppose a Republican president or a Republican majority in following honest convictions, is campaigning in the Keystone State for former Secretary of Labor Wilson who is the Democratic candidate for the Senate against Congressman Vare. Pennsylvania is an overwhelmingly Republican state. The Democrats as a rule, in seeking important offices, run for exercise. That the great body of good citizens in that state, who have been accustomed to the young Republican ticket, should now be compelled to approve the use of vast sums in primaries upon penalty of voting against the party, in that particular race is unwholesome. It is regretted by all who want the best in American public life. The corruption revealed in the primary between Pepper and Vare is too much for the patriotic Republican from Nebraska. He says: "The issue in Pennsylvania is a simple but fundamental issue with the mass of good citizens of all parties or no party aligned on the one side, and on the other a corrupt political machine seeking to nullify the franchise by a lavish use of money and by the theft of ballots legally cast at the polls." While many honest Republicans will condemn Senator Norris for his action it will impress the independent voters of the nation, and convince them that the presence of such outspoken representatives increases the worthiness of that party to serve the country. The Democrats could follow Senator Norris' example in some instances, with credit to themselves.

A VISITING QUEEN

There is a great amount of slather being slung around the royal personage who happens to be visiting the United States just now. Just why everybody should be excited over what Queen Marie, of Roumania, thinks, escapes our intellect. That she is a remarkable woman is, we believe, admitted by those who are in a position to judge. But that the adulation and admiration being heaped upon her is a recognition of her qualities rather than the desire of the so-called democrats to rub elbows with the queen is to be doubted. The truth of the matter is that there are in this country any number of people who accept the doctrine of royalty and, just like in the days of the beginning of this republic, would like to see some system in vogue in America that would enable some king or queen to "recognize" them. They would be willing to be apes, if necessary, for the purpose. Of course, Queen Marie, as the distinguished official guest of this country, should receive proper recognition from our officials and this is only carrying out the correct etiquette that governs international courtesies. That the American people should exhibit any wild eyed enthusiasm for the lady as a queen, is absurd.

SUPERSTITION ABOUT FOODS

People have all kinds of ideas about different foods and the taking of different foods in combination. Of course most of their ideas are wrong and Dr. George Foster of the University of New Hampshire laughs at the idea that omelets thin the blood or are in any way unhealthful. He said that no proof has ever been given that cucumber skins are poisonous nor that lobsters and milk do not go well together. Further he declares cherries and milk together are not dangerous, and that other fruit juices can be taken with milk and that eggs cooked in water do not cause warts. With the exception of possibly a few cereals such as bran and oatmeal which is strengthening to some individuals and as a laxative to others there is absolutely no foundation for reports of great benefits or ill health from eating certain foods, with possibly the exception of vitamin-bearing fruit juices and certain raw vegetables.

Better Crops says: "Apparently it takes science and experience a long time to drive out superstition about foods otherwise there would not be much talk about it."

FIGHTING THE COMMON COLD

One of the amazing outlooks of present-day life is the general acceptance of the common cold as an inevitable ailment. That it is a source of great inconvenience much danger and economic loss is not disputed. However, the idea that once here it must always afflict us remains strongly entrenched. It is refreshing to learn that the Chemical Foundation is preparing to undertake a scientific study of this nuisance, with a view toward the discovery of some cure. The medical men, it would appear to a layman, have not made as much progress in combating the epidemic cold as is possible. The results of intensive research into the methods of preventing other diseases indicate that colds, too, can become rare, if proper measures are evolved. Colds, in addition to being troublesome and inconvenient, render the sufferer liable to grave diseases on account of lessening resistance to disease germs. Very often a sufferer from a "bad cold" becomes a sufferer from other more serious maladies, like influenza and pneumonia. Of course every citizen can do much to prevent the spread of colds, which spread by contact and association. Years ago it was rare when a sufferer from cold thought about the other fellow, but nowadays, it is frequent for one to remain aloof, and sometimes, in bed, during the course of a cold.

THE MATTER OF DRESS

She was one of the flapper ilk, ready to adopt anything new, which might be calculated to create a sensation, and set Lubbock agog with comment. She was, in a manner, confiding to one of her friends and was overheard to remark that she was a good mind to follow the lead of those five Denver girls and discard stockings. She said it mattered little to her what folks might have to say about it, she thought it was just as sensible as some of the other things folks are doing now adays, and she did not care whether any of the other girls fell in line or not. She continued to advance reasons for adopting the practice, and pointed out that it certainly would be economical. Hose at $2.5 a pair and up, is a considerable item she said, and then too from a health standpoint she believed it was the part of wisdom. Her companion, however, just at this juncture, asked if she had considered very seriously the winds of winter. "You know chapped hands are not very attractive and are painful too. Maybe chapped limbs would not be so desirable." "Then too," her companion said, "some doctors say, such a practice invites the growth of hair on the legs, and I think that would simply be awful." The trail blazer, notwithstanding all of these arguments, held firm to her conviction that it was a good thing, and she intended making a trial anyway. So, if she does not change her mind, this town is going to see some bare legged females strutting around the streets.

We think many of the women and also many of the men go entirely too far in the matter of styles. Some are so ridiculous that they are absurd. We presume that Lubbock is no worse than some other places, in fact it seems that these fads originate somewhere, and of course the Lubbock folks are not going to be outdone, and our women and girls fall for the style whether there is any sense in it or not.

Overdressing is one of the curses of the land today. We know of many women and men of this community who undertake to dress like a million dollars on a thirty-dollar-a-week job, which is impossible and causes many people to lose their credit and their good name at the banks and the stores of the city in which they live.

Little Avalanches

A late triumph of dental engineering is the construction of a metallic jaw bone joint for a war veteran who lost the natural one through a bullet wound. Scientifically stated, "this particular case involved the construction of a mechanical device to take the place of the ramus and temporomandibular articulation." This sort of contraption may now be carried in the regular stock of spare parts supplied by the Veterans' Bureau.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Rose Murray of Boston was rescued from the Titanic and later from the Lusitania, but still lives the sea and has crossed the Atlantic 34 times.

Mrs. Marie L. Baldwin, born an Indian princess on a western reservation is now a transportation expert in the government Indian Bureau at Washington.

Mrs. Mattie Chandler of Pittsburgh, Cal., one morning recently cooked breakfast for the family, did her other household work and then went to the city hall to be inaugurated as mayor.

Lady Stonehaven, wife of Australia's governor-general, recently made an airplane trip totalling 3,500 miles with her husband.

Miss Sorel, eminent French actress, has been decorated by the King of Spain.

Miss Madeline Couzens, daughter of Michigan's senior senator, who is worth $40,000,000 is a student at the Washington College of Law.

A new super-sensitive heat meter, the use of which will aid in conserving coal, has been on exhibition in Pittsburgh.

Tubes for measuring the cathode ray, the most powerful known to science, have been invented by C. C. Coolidge of the General Electric Co.

Stones are removed from cherries by a new power-driven machine which handles 4,000 or more pounds of fruit in a day.

The new method of home postage for guiding the secretary has been invented.

SO THINK WE

We think it is a very fine thing for people to own their home, but it is about the only thing that we would recommend that people buy on the installment.

We think the greatest citizen that any town can boast of is the fellow who is always willing and ready to talk for the old home town and do anything that is reasonable for its upbuilding without first stopping to figure out whether there are any dollars in it for him.

We think the main reason that we cannot see anything but the selfish and mean about some folks is because we do not know how to look.

We think it is a very great reflection on the churches of the town, where the membership is as wealthy as most of the churches here are that this condition should be allowed to exist.

We think a large number of people failed to vote yesterday. Did you?

We think independent candidates are just in hard luck in Texas. Texas usually stays with the nominee. Especially if he or she is a Democrat to begin with.

We think some conversations are very interesting, while others are more like a phonograph jazz record.

We think that most people have some opinions of their own, but we also believe that most of us have our opinions made for us on many of the things of life.

We think that in this day and time more people are swayed by the newspapers and the moving picture shows, than by any other means. It used to be that the pulpit had a mighty sway, and now, it has yet, but it has lost much of its former reason or other.

We think from observations necessary are as necessary for women as automobiles, and the average married man will tell you that they are just about as expensive.

We think some of the representatives get in a very uncertain mood when they get to Austin. They hardly know what they do want or what they are doing. One representative caused a game law to be vetoed recently in a tier of counties just because he forgot to include the names of four counties within the boundaries of the proposed bill, in the petition.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that several young couples in Lubbock have found out that they can pay out money a lot faster than they can make it.

It is reported that the other town has about as many drawbacks as this one, and you might just about as well put on the garment of contentment, and boost for Lubbock.

It is reported that simply going to church on Sunday will not always make a man a saint, but we believe that it will have a better effect on his life than if he never went.

SOUTH PLAINS PRESS

BLAMES THE WOMAN:
Shion Times: "I want to know," asked a Lubbock wife, "why all you men look so seedy? A few years ago you tried to be neat and clean and I never knew you to neglect your daily shave. Now your whiskers resemble a clump of brush."

The husband was silent for a moment. "If you will go with me tomorrow I will show you your answer rather than try to tell it." The wife was indignant, so the husband explained. "I went into a barber shop at 3:15 this morning. I wanted a shave, but as I was busy I did not have time to wait. There were seven women and girls waiting for bobs. At 3:30 I tried again in two shops, but both were jammed with women. In one of the shops there wasn't a man in the building other than the barber. I waited three hours this afternoon, but I could not wait, so I gave up. The only way I see out of this trouble is for the men to all grow vanities. Of course you women would be trying to grow them, too, but I am thankful to say that in the effort most of you would fail. You can kill yourselves, the most of the time, but you will have a hard time changing the law of God and Nature."

The explanation was apparently quite satisfactory as the woman remained silent, but her husband is of the opinion she was trying to figure out some new cosmetic that would cause women to sprout beards.

While we doubt very much whether this incident occurred in Lubbock (as we have seen the story elsewhere) it conveys a point that possibly will be of value to some people, and at least give the fair sex something to be thinking about while they are criticizing the men for the way they look. There are a number of other things that the men lack now days that they used to have. They had a great deal more respect for the women years ago than they do now. The women are to blame for that. At least to a very great extent. The Home life of the nation is not what it used to be either, and we men believe the women largely are to blame for that. In as much as all of them are thinking more about society and clubs, and having a job down town rather than looking after the home and the men. It has been acknowledged on various occasions that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, and the average woman is not paying much attention to what is going into hubby's stomach or where he gets it just so he comes home early enough to help the children with their lessons and do up the chores about the place.

Japan—Incredibly Old, Distressingly New

EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of this story about Japan, W. H. Porterfield, has gone traveling again for The Avalanche and his readers. Now in the Orient, Porterfield is writing a series of vivid articles about what's going on in that extremely important portion of the earth. They will be printed weekly.

BY W. H. PORTERFIELD
NEA Service Writer

TOKYO, Japan—Japan at once is incredibly old and distressingly new. Like "the fault" in the earth's crust, which, according to scientists, is the chief contributing cause of her terrible earthquakes, these two civilizations, the ancient and very modern, have not been properly cemented yet and the results are not always pleasant.

Alongside the most pitiable poverty, where millions struggle bravely, but at times well high hopelessly, with an ever-increasing cost of living, one sees with wonder the magnificent department stores and splendid all-steel constructed office buildings, erected since the awful earthquake of three years ago, the finest examples of the builder's art yet developed in the far east.

From two to three times the average amount of steel has gone into these magnificent buildings, in a determined plan to make them earthquake proof if human ingenuity and money can do it.

Two hundred thousand dollars in damage to property in the great disaster of Sept. 1, 1923, might well have thrown a people back into the very depths of despair, but whatever else you may think of the son of Nippon, one thing you must accord him, viz: a dauntless courage in the face of conditions which would crush a less determined nation.

As I have walked and motored over the splendid streets and avenues of this vast collection of human habitations, called "Greater Tokyo," I have been simply amazed at the progress which has been made in reconstruction in the last three years and the tremendous development of a modern city here in so short a time.

Here we see a city, so-called, covering 800 square miles, in which live and work and play more than 2,000,000 human beings—a city with a half million separate buildings, most of them little more than shacks of wood, subject as they have always been to earthquake shocks and destruction by the most awful fires.

On the other hand, and often a stone's throw distant, rise the class "A" structures, an example of which is shown in the picture. Contrast Eight years ago there was not a mile of modern highway in Tokyo; today there are boulevards as wide as those of Washington or Paris, tree-

CONCERNING THEM

So goes the procession up and down and across this great city and indeed across and up and down all of Japan—a land of volcanoes and precipitous mountain peaks, of tremendous rainfall and consequent lovely green valleys, and hillides. Great waterfalls furnish the hydro-electric power for trams and lights and heat and factories.

It is a land without oil, with a total ton for Japan proper of but 170,000 square miles, only a shade larger than the state of California upon which 10,000,000 people, increasing at the rate of three-quarters of a million per annum, must live and grow and develop.

In this all too crowded land but 19 per cent of the area is tillable, and of that all is subject to frequent and disastrous floods, some of it to tremendous snow fall, to early and late frosts which destroy the crops and bring ruin to the countryside.

Of timber there is little and much of it very beautiful, of rice there is perhaps enough to feed the population in a normal year, although importations are increasing steadily; for wheat and barley and rye there is a modicum, negligible when the vast number of mouths to be filled is considered.

Of fruit there is a little and delicious, but raised with great effort and infinite care to protect it against the myriad predatory insects which infest the land. Of vegetables there are plenty and most of these can be eaten with impunity, as the country is practically free from typhoid. Of work there is plenty from dawn noon till night falls over this busy land; of pleasure there is some, no doubt, and of anxiety there is much.

Japan could not go to war with any foreign nation, even if she wished to do so, which she doesn't. She has all the problems she needs at home, but that she will work out her own problems, one must believe after a very few days' close-up study of the Japanese in his home.

ON MISSING SOME BIG EVENT

I cannot keep forever on the go. Some big events I know I'll have to miss. I've fully made my mind up now to this: I cannot hope to witness every show, I can't always be Johnny-on-the-spot. Nor does it matter am I there, or not.

But here at home contented I can be. Let other men enjoy the banquet spread. I'll read a book and early go to bed. "You can't afford to miss it," some declare. "I've had to miss a lot of things," I sigh. "And I shall miss many more before I die. No man can hope in every thrill to share. I'll stay at home tonight, and to the best. Add just one more attraction I have missed."

LITTLEFIELD HAS OLD EXPERIENCED FOOTBALL CLUB

Saturday at the Texas Tech gridiron beginning at three o'clock the High school Westerners will meet with the Littlefield Wild Cats. This is a non-conference game as Lubbock is a Class A school, while Littlefield is in the Class B division.

The Wild Cats while only a Class B school, will put up a stinger of a battle with the Westerners. The Littlefield aggregation has for the past few years been strong with an offense led by Woods, the captain of the crew, the Wild Cats present a great Class B club. The record for the season's operation is an excellent one: winning all of their Class B contests thus far.

The Lamb County club is composed of a number of experienced men; most of the club have had from one to two years service before entering into the performance for 1926. Among those are: Courtney, right guard; Phipps, right end; Haze, quarter back; Woods, half back, and Davenport, half back.

Recently the Wild Cats trimmed the strong Lockney Steers with a score of 13 to 0. Lockney is considered as one of the best Class B clubs on the North Plains.

Big Ten Title May Be In the Balance

CHICAGO, Nov. 2. (AP)—Half a hundred extremely critical spectators will watch Michigan and Wisconsin battle on the football field at Ann Arbor Saturday.

The contingent will be the Ohio State football squad, which is taking advantage of an open date to watch the Wolverine team which it will try to wreck a week from Saturday at Columbus. Ohio State thinks it will win the conference from now on.

Chicago's bedeviled Maroons, trampled by the big ten horde, prepared tonight with spirit for Illinois, but drilled again on defense, scarcely hoping for more than a "good showing" against the Illini.

A big ten title aspirant should be eliminated when Purdue meets Northwestern, and in no previous year has the battle meant so much to both teams, for in other years both have been kicked about in the lower stories of the conference structure.

Minnesota will go to Iowa a favorite, although it has not won a game since 1914 on an Iowa field.

Strolling Down Sport Lane With James R. Dow

Saturday's high school battle will be a most battle as the members of the "Wild Cat" crew of the Littlefield high school have a formidable offense and several members of their backfield are old and experienced. The Littlefield eleven put up a good fight with the Westerners last season.

"Willie" Rogers, noted cowboy humorist, who will appear in Lubbock on Thursday night, stated that he was booked for Lubbock and would try to beat Queen Marie to find it, if he was able to find it.

But no doubt he knows where Lubbock is, for he is certainly for the Texas Tech Matadors.

No doubt most of you fans know just what the Matadors are up against Friday afternoon down in Brown county, with the Daniel Baker High Billies—the goat eleven, composed of well seasoned men with several years' experience behind them and have definite clubs over the state with decisive counts.

The Billies defeated the Simmons University Cowboys with a score of 27 to 7—the Matadors beat the Cowboys to a scoreless tie.

Then too, the Goat eleven defeated the McMurray Indians with a score of 26 to 2, while the Tech only defeated the McMurray Indians with a score of 7 to 0.

Early in the season the Billies held the T. E. U. Horned Frogs to a 5 to 2 count.

With the relative comparison of the score, it indicates that the Brownwood college eleven has a few points better club.

Several of the members of the Hill Billies have worked under the direction of Coach Higginbotham, and "Big" knows well what the club is made of.

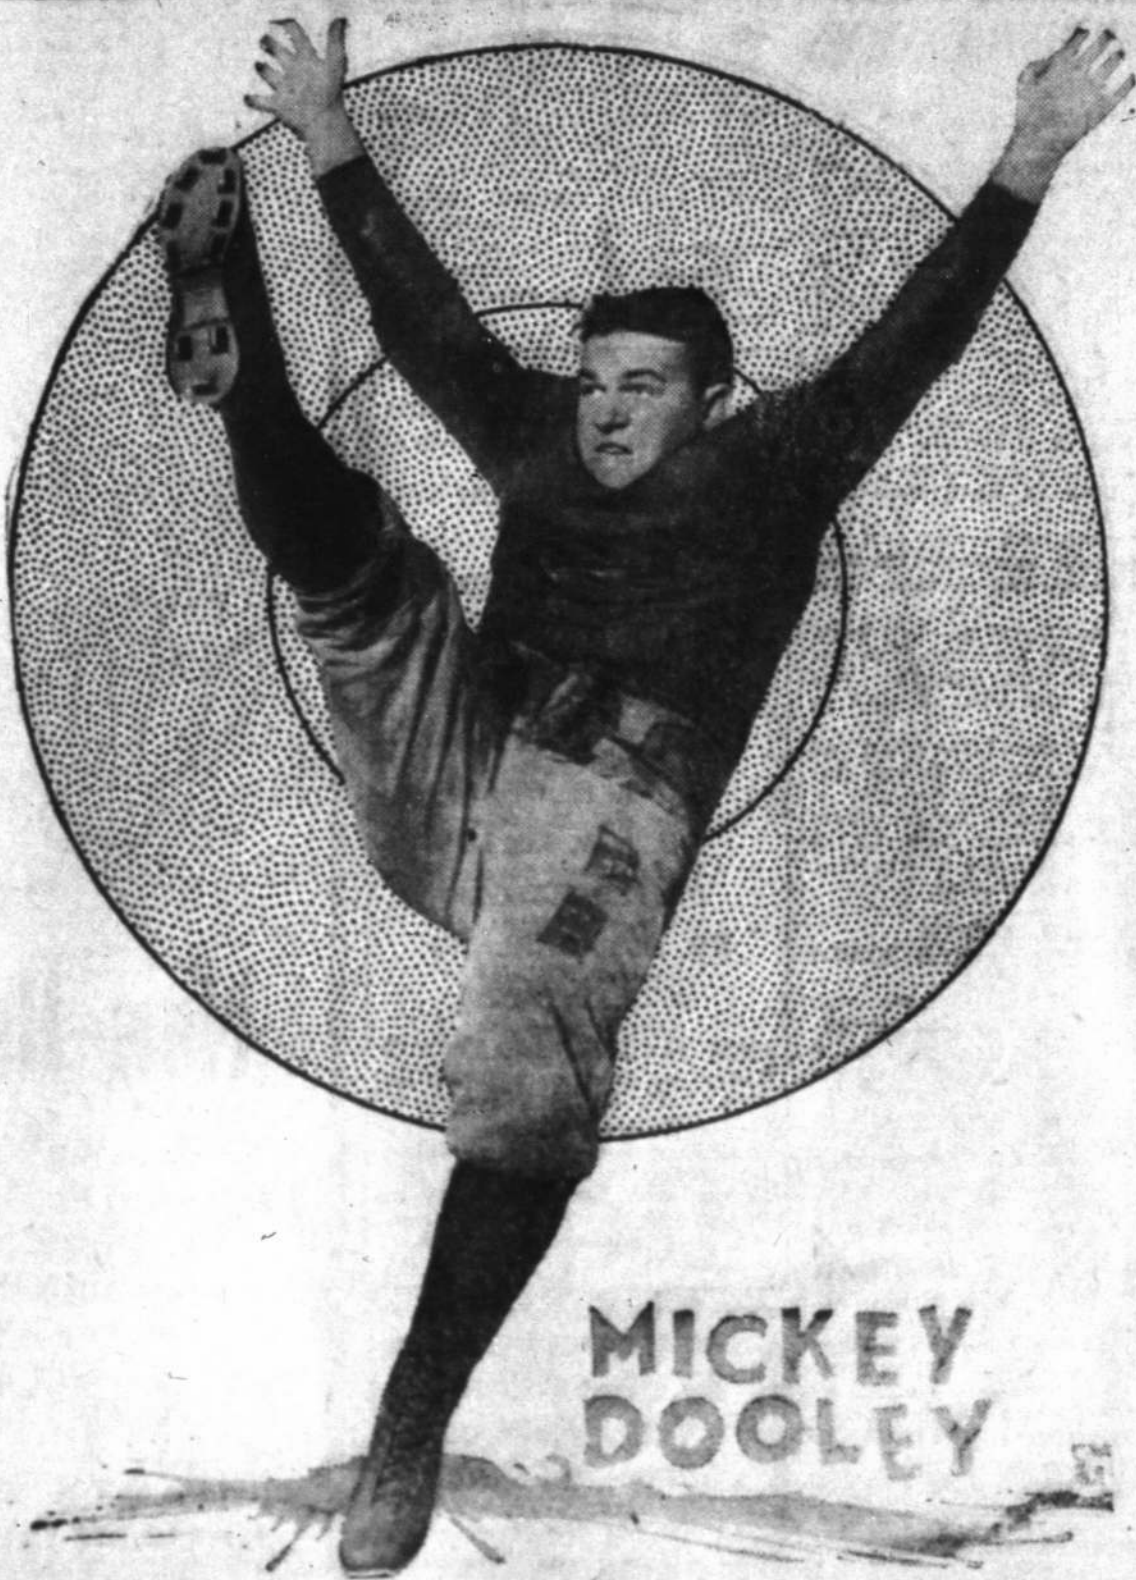

Plack, quarterback of the Billies, is little but fast, in all of the games the Billies have taken part in, Plack has been the "minute man."

But never think that young Plack is all the Goats have, for there is Willie McWilliams, a host of others that are bidding for berths in the T. E. U. A. all-conference team.

Speaking of all-conference material, the Matadors have a number of men that would make someone bump up if they were in some conference. There is "Satchel" Hill, a powerful fullback, who is capable of handling an all-conference position; then there is "Ox" Reed, "Red" Smith, Floyd Woodridge, Kern Aldridge, "Red" Carpenter, all would be bidders for a conference berth in their respective positions.

Can truthfully say that no other institution in the state has backed their gridiron aggregation better than the Tech fans and students have done. The fans and students have attended many games away from Lubbock on four special trains since the college's organization of which have been pro-

Dashing Dooley of Dartmouth

MICKY DOOLEY

MR. DOOLEY, of Dartmouth, sometimes called "Mickey," has certainly had his ups and downs in collegiate football. If you don't believe it—listen to this tale of woe:

After starting for Dartmouth in 1924 and being elected to the captaincy of the 1925 eleven, an accident, suffered from a fall from a horse, forced him to retire from college for a year.

Dartmouth then proceeded to win the 1925 championship, minus the one player the coaches had barked on. The big noise at Dartmouth last year was "Sweden" Oberlander.

This fall, Dooley, on his return to Dartmouth, finds that he must fill the shoes of the great Oberlander, to live up to his past reputation.

He's throwing a mean foot in that direction, as shown in the above action picture.

Among those recognized was one girl—Miss Phyllis K. Perry, of 645 Clifton avenue, Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, Miss Perry, aged fifteen years, rescued two girls from drowning at Chippawa, Ont., August 10, 1921. She received a bronze medal.

The other heroes who received bronze medals were: J. Arthur Barry, 1242 Mount Vernon street, Philadelphia, Pa., attempted to save a girl from drowning at Wildwood, N. J., September 5, 1925.

John V. Masterson, 138 Golden street, New Brunswick, N. J., saved a number of children who were marching in the street, from a runaway team of horses at New Brunswick, June 9, 1925.

The Southwestern conference games for Saturday will no doubt be a series of battles. Texas Aggies are playing at home with the T. E. U. Horned Frogs, the Frogs defeated the Aggies last season, then, there is the Baylor Bears playing at home with the Texas Longhorns. S. M. U. is playing Rice Institute at Houston, and the Razorbacks of Arkansas University venture to Shreveport to meet with the L. S. U. crew.

CONVERTED MOSLEM PREACHES IN TEAXS

FORMER HIGH PRIEST OF ALLAH IN AFGHANISTAN IS NOW CHRISTIAN

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 2. (AP)—Dr. Hassan Allah, former Mohammedan high priest in Afghanistan, of which his father now is governor, had a hard time of it after he turned Christian.

Far from sorry of his decision, however, Dr. Allah, once condemned to a heretic's death in touring Texas touring clubs and college students to greater appreciation of Christianity, while his wife and daughter languish in an Indian prison for his refusal to renounce his Christian conversion. He expects to return to India soon as a medical missionary.

Allah said he met one night Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, decided to become a Christian and did. His troubles began shortly afterward.

The Indian division of the allied army in which Allah was a Mohammedan chaplain, was returned to Asia, and he was sent back to Afghanistan. He was accused of violating his Mohammedan vows and tried in the very temple which he had been ordained to preside over as high priest.

During the trial Allah said he refused an order to recant. Two of his children, he said, were killed as Christians and his wife and daughter were dragged off to prison, where they are now. Still refusing to give in, Allah himself was condemned to die after fourteen days in jail.

British officers interfered and affected his escape. After two years study in Oxford, Allah returned to Afghanistan as a missionary only to find that there was a price on his head and that he was powerless to release his wife and child from prison.

Allah then came to America to become a citizen. While working out his naturalization, he studied medicine with the help of Rotary.

Finally he got out on a lecture tour telling Americans how much they ought to appreciate their environment as contrasted with his own experiences. He lauds the freedom of the women of this country, but pleads with them not to carry it too far.

TELLS OF SEARCH FOR CIBOLA CITIES

TEJOS INDIAN WAS FIRST OF TEXAS BOOSTERS; HE TOLD THE YARN

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 2. (AP)—Cortes and the conquistadors who followed him were lured to the Southwest through a story told them by a Tejos Indian, a representative of the tribe after which Texas was named, Colonel M. L. Grimmins retired, authority on

The coming winter threatens to be the most disagreeable one the country has had in years. . . . For one thing, Fred Fulton is going to try a comeback.

The Oberlin football team in the Southwest history and, editor of the Army and Navy Courier, has discovered.

Whether the Indian can be called the original Texas booster is doubtful as his tale was vague, but his description of the seven fabulously wealthy cities of Cibola, lying to the north was largely responsible for at least two explorations of the territory.

"When Cortes landed in Mexico more than 400 years ago," Colonel Grimmins said, "he learned from the Aztecs their tradition that they came from a people in the north who lived in seven caves or canyons. A Tejos Indian told of the seven great cities in the north where houses were filled with workers in gold, silver and turquoise.

However, it was not until Cabeza de

Vaca arrived in New Galicia in 1523, after a weary march from the mouth of the San Antonio river where he had been shipwrecked eight years before, that these tales bore fruit.

"His apparently verified parts of the Indian's tale and in 1539 the Franciscan, Marcos de Niza, guided by Estevan the Moor, who had been with Vaca, penetrated the southwest. Estevan was killed by the Zunis near the village of Hawikuh, however, and after setting up the cross and proclaiming the authority of Spain the expedition withdrew.

"The following year Coronado led 300 Spaniards into the new country and found almost everything described by the Indian, but the gold and silver."

Concrete is the aristocrat of pavements

Why Wichita Falls Builds Concrete Streets

Wichita Falls laid its first concrete pavement in 1915—on Scott Street.

For ten years this firm, rigid, unyielding pavement has carried the heavy traffic of the business district. During that time only simple, inexpensive maintenance has been necessary to keep the pavement as good as when built. On many other streets in this thriving city concrete has given the same satisfactory service.

It now has over 500,000 square yards of concrete street pavement, and recently contracted for 200,000 square yards more.

Wichita Falls is known as "The City That Faith Built." Her citizens have pride in the present and vision for the future. Concrete pavements have helped this faith because they act as a town tonic.

What about the streets in your town?

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for yours now.

STATE SEEKS TO PROVE AIMEE PURCHASER OF APPAREL FOUND IN ORMISTON'S TRUNK

(By the Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 2.—District attorney's investigators today began a final search in the city's exclusive shopping district for evidence with which they seek to definitely brand Aimee Semple McPherson as the woman who spent ten days in a Carmel, Calif., cottage with Kenneth G. Ormiston.

Seek to Trace Purchases
The official tour of the shops with an attempt to identify Mrs. Angelo Temple's wardrobe as the purchaser of an array of costly articles of wearing apparel found in a trunk recently seized in New York as the property of Ormiston. This the state considers its last task in weaving a web of evidence to explain its version of Mrs. McPherson's disappearance last spring.

The "white" girls with expensive gowns, linens and furbelows, arrived here yesterday. It is declared by District Attorney Asa Keyes to furnish irrefutable proof of his charges that the Angelus Temple pastor remained in hiding with her former radio operator at Carmel during a part of the time she was mysteriously missing. The trunk was found to contain 21 articles of women's apparel.

Some Discoveries
Among the discoveries announced by Keyes were eight long strands of amber hair and a mother of pearl pendant, which, the prosecutor says, was purchased by Mrs. McPherson during her tour of Palestine last spring.

The hair strands were caught in the teeth of two combs and in their ornaments found in the trunk. "I expect to prove that Mrs. McPherson bought the pendant during her trip to the holy land and that the strands of hair came from her head," Keyes announced.

MORE EVIDENCE STOLEN SUNDAY

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN FOR RECEPTION OF TRUNK OF ORMISTON

(By the Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 2.—Disappearance yesterday of the eighth group of documents which the state had used for evidence, in the Aimee Semple McPherson conspiracy case caused District Attorney Asa Keyes to take extra precautions today toward guarding the trunk seized in New York recently as the property of Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio operator.

The trunk, packed with gowns, robes and other articles of feminine apparel, which Keyes says will definitely link the Angelus Temple evangelist with the former radio operator in a conspiracy to defraud justice, is due to arrive here today.

Destination Shrouded
Keyes has arranged to have detectives receive the trunk from the carrier and remove it to a secret destination, where it will be opened and its contents examined.

Every fragment will be photographed from every conceivable angle and the original negatives will be placed in the county's vaults. The evidence then will be stored away for use in the event Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, are held for trial in superior court on criminal conspiracy charges.

Keyes today prepared to question Miss Emma Schaeffer, the evangelist's secretary, and Mrs. Elizabeth Frame, the pastor's confidante and a member of the Angelus Temple.

Wife To Seek Divorce
Mrs. Ruth Ormiston, wife of the missing radio man, will return to Los Angeles from Sydney, Australia, next January, and will file suit for divorce here. This was made known in an interview which she recently granted in Sydney.

Mrs. Ormiston was quoted as saying that she will charge desertion, and that she will not mention Mrs. McPherson in the suit.

"I am not interested in Mrs. McPherson or her troubles," she said.

BELGIUM AND SWEDEN HAVE HARD TIME ARRANGING "DIPLOMATIC MARRIAGE" SO AS NOT TO OFFEND DEMOCRACY

BRUSSELS, Nov. 7.—The task of making the wedding ceremony of Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid democratic was the chief problem of the king of the Belgians and the Duke of Vastergotland, father of the bride, in arranging the program of the coming nuptials.

King Albert, ruling over a country where the socialists are a formidable force and the Duke of Vastergotland, representing Sweden which for many years was ruled by a socialist government, were both anxious to avoid any criticism from that quarter.

They were appalled when they took cognizance of the rigid protocol covering royal marriages in Belgium. The precedent dated back to the wedding of Leopold II and Archduchess Marie Henriette of Austria.

The bride was then received solemnly at Verviers, the frontier town, where a special "exteriorized salon" had been erected. It was in this "diplomatically neutralized" strip of territory, that the title of Duchess of Brabant was confirmed on the Austrian archduchess. She was then officially and "against duress" handed over to the Belgian authorities.

The "diplomatic marriage" had already taken place by proxy in the chapel at Schoonhoven.

King Albert decided to do away with the 1822 protocol. This would necessitate the coming of Princess Astrid overland, crossing Denmark and Germany, with official greetings at the frontiers by the civil and military authorities of both countries.

"They can come by boat," said King Albert.

"Sweden will provide a cruiser," agreed the duke.

"Perfect," said King Albert, and the entire matter was thus simplified.

PALE & PEAKED

Texas Lady Was Advised by Her Mother To Take Cardui, Which She Did With Good Results.

Hamilton, Texas.—Mrs. Gladys Poitevent, of this city, says: "At times I suffered awfully with pains across my back and through my sides. I would have to go to bed and stay two or three days at a time. It was very worrisome. I managed to keep going, but I did not enjoy myself at all.

"One day my mother remarked on how bad I looked. She said: 'You look so pale and peaked, why don't you take a bottle of Cardui?' She had taken it herself a number of times, and it had always improved her health, so she thought I had better try it.

"I got the Cardui and began taking it, and from the first dose or two I could see a change for the better. The first thing I noticed was that my appetite was improved. I began to be hungry and I enjoyed my meals. I sleep better at night. My rest was so much quieter that I got the benefit from it. I kept on with the Cardui and took it for several months. The pains in my back and sides grew less until they finally quit bothering me."

Try Cardui for your case.

You are hereby commanded to summon U. H. Helm, by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular-term of the District Court of Lubbock county, to be holden at the Court House hereof in Lubbock, Texas, on the 2nd Monday in January, A. D. 1927, the same being the 19th day of January, A. D. 1927, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 19th day of October, A. D. 1926, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 3725, wherein, Mrs. J. R. Montgomery, joined pro forma, by her husband, L. C. Montgomery, are plaintiffs, and C. L. Lindquist and J. R. Sessom and U. H. Helm, are defendants, said petition alleging That heretofore, on Dec. 31, 1925, the defendant, U. H. NORRIS TRIAL STIRS SOUTHWEST AS MUCH AS CLARA SMITH HAMON CASE

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 2.—Memory of southwestern folk travels back to the Clara Smith Hamon murder trial in Ardmore, Oklahoma, as Rev. J. Frank Norris, famous "fighting pastor" of the great First Baptist church here, faces district court on the charge he slew D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumberman.

Only in the Hamon case, broad-sided in newspapers across the country for weeks, can be found a parallel of recent years to the Norris trial, wringing-wetness with typically western melodrama, its stormy clashing of human emotions, its parading of sensation-fraught tragedy across a public stage.

In Both Trials

Oddly enough, two out-standing characters of the Norris case also figured prominently in Clara Smith Hamon's battle to justify herself for the killing of Jake Hamon, the Oklahoma capitalist and politician.

William P. "Wild Bill" McLean, most picturesque of southwestern criminal attorneys and his partner, Walter E. Scott, were Clara Smith Hamon's defenders. In the Norris trial, they will participate as special prosecutors.

Rev. Norris goes before a jury with the majority of Fort Worth people—many of his bitter enemies among them—predicting that a conviction at least is extremely improbable. The "man on the street" forecasts either acquittal or a hung jury.

Such Ku Klux Klan sentiment, pro and anti, as survives in Texas is curiously involved in the trial. Rev. Norris contends there was a "Catholic conspiracy" against him, and that this led to the visit to his church study by Chipps on the day of the shooting.

Klan leaders have voiced their support of the pastor. But the prosecution of the clergyman will be directed by District Attorney Robert K. Hanger, who was elected on a "Klan ticket" and whose father, W. A. Hanger, formerly was one of the Klan's highest Texas officials.

Rev. Norris is of world wide reputation as a Baptist "fundamentalist." He holds that every Christian should accept literally and implicitly every injunction of the Bible. Chided with the commandment "Thou shalt not kill," he has retorted that this does not preclude the right of a man to defend himself.

Dayton Moses, who is to be the pastor's chief counsel, for long years has served as attorney for the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association. Like "Wild Bill" McLean, the Norris prosecutor, he has a reputation as wide as the "great open spaces" themselves. (Copyright, 1926, NKA Service, Inc.)

Mr. Moses has tried several cases here, among them the famous Ross-Good murder trials of several years ago. He is attorney for the Texas and Southwestern Cattlemen's Ass'n.

CONFISCATED TOY GUNS TURNED OVER TO COUNTY

Five toy pistols and the names of five boys from whom the pistols were taken by police officers were turned over to the county authorities today for investigation. The pistols, while of the toy variety, can be used in such a way as to be dangerous, and the local officers are endeavoring to suppress the carrying of such toys by the thoughtless youths.

One man was brought into police station yesterday afternoon flustered and drunk. One speaker and one violation of ordinance 199 was detected on the police blotter yesterday.

NO SNOW FELL AT LITTLEFIELD

REPORT OF ICE AND SLEET OVER PANHANDLE WERE EXAGGERATED

(Special to The Avalanche)

LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 2.—The recent report of snow and sleet in the Panhandle country seems to have included too much territory as there has not been even a killing frost in the vicinity of Littlefield so far this fall. In fact old settlers claim this to be the warmest autumn in many years.

The cotton is practically all open and very little will have to be picked over the second time. 1,000 pickers are needed to help the farmers harvest their crops. Cotton is making from a half to a bale per acre. The estimated cotton crop is between 14,000 and 18,000 bales, with something over 2,000 already ginned.

Boundary Case to Be Heard Soon

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 2. (AP)—Innumerable slight changes in the boundary between this country and Mexico which will throw many American holdings into Mexico and many Mexican holdings into this country, are scheduled to take place here some time within the next six months when the international boundary commission finishes 100 years of work with a session in San Antonio.

The commission will meet in San Antonio Nov. 8 and later in Rio Grande City to iron out the final stretch of the troublesome boundary, the line between Rio Grande City and Brownsville according to Joaquin C. Bustamante, assistant consulting engineer for the Mexican commission.

ROYAL GREETING TO ROGERS THURSDAY

PRINCE OF ENTERTAINERS WILL FIND LUBBOCK READY TO WELCOME HIM

Will Rogers, world famous humorist, "Prince of Entertainers and Entertainer to the Prince," will be given a royal reception when he arrives here Thursday for his appearance in the evening with the Delta-Sigma Strikers and the Avalanche-Journal.

Sponsor of the program is being joined not only by many interested citizens of the city, but by the entire band organization of the Tech College.

The band, beneficiary of the generosity of Mr. Rogers, who last week sent $200 to be used by the musical organization on the trip to Fort Worth for the game against T. C. U., will be in full regalia with all honors firing when the humorist and party steps from the train, in an effort to show their appreciation of the visit.

In the meantime, seats are on sale at the Hotel Druz, and Bowen's Drug, and according to the managers of these places, only a few seats remain. Many out-of-town reservations have been made for interested South Plains inhabitants who will come here for the performance that will present one of the world's best cowboy-actors and humorists.

The program is unusual for the more sparsely settled portions of the country, and many are taking this opportunity to enjoy high class entertainment. Rogers is one of the best known men in the world for he has been in parts of the globe, and makes no bones about his reputation "that he can get by with nearly anything except murder" when it comes to razzing the rich and poor alike.

In a statement issued from his New York headquarters Tuesday, a hint of his witty sarcasm is shown. The statement said that the humorist "is sorry he would not get a chance to vote as he was killed for Lubbock, and he is rushing there to beat Queen Marie. If he can find it, he will be here in person to give first hand information in a witty manner on the progress of a modern world."

The performance will be given in the auditorium of the high school building.
