In Poland...

Soviet Kremlin Fears Long Term Military Ascendancy

MOSCOW (AP) — Kremlin leaders fear that Poland's martial law regime, which claims it took power temporarily, may bring unwanted domination of the Polish army over the Communist Party, Soviet and Western sources say.

Such a situation would reject Soviet-style Communism, in which the party dominates society. It would also make Poland the first such nation in the Eastern bloc in which the Communists do not control the government.

"In a sense, it was a coup d'etat," said one Soviet source who has proved reliable in explaining Soviet thinking.

The source said Kremlin leaders agreed Polish Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's declaration of martial law Dec. 13 was the only solution to the struggle between the Poland's ruling Communists and the independent Solidarity union. Jaruzelski promised to end martial law when order was restored.

"The Kremlin is resigned to the fact that martial law rule was the only way out of the situation," the Soviet source said.

But Western diplomatic sources say Kremlin leaders worry because Jaruzelski's ruling military council has suspended not only activities of Solidarity, but apparently also the Communist Party, which by Polish law plays a "leading role" in society.

A major party purge also is reportedly underway. Several party members, at least four governors and 77 mayors have been sacked. Martial law authorities seem to be using military command structures, not regional party organizations, to run the country.

"Soviet leaders must be asking themselves, is Jaruzelski more loyal to the army or to the party?," said one Western diplomat.

Jaruzelski heads the Polish United Workers (Communist) Party. But he is also defense minister, army commander-in-chief and a career military man. The forces he leads are respected by Poles as defenders of their tradition and history. When he announced the crackdown, Jaruzelski said he was doing so "as a soldier."

Despite assertions by President Reagan that the Kremlin was behind imposition of martial law, Soviet and Eastern European sources in Moscow believe it was largely a Polish decision.

Some diplomats see Jaruzelski's crackdown as a way to satisfy Kremlin leaders by neutralizing Solidarity, appeal to Polish nationalism by avoiding a Soviet invasion and gain popular support by reducing Communist authority.

Little Impact Expected On Farmers, Businesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — One heavy-equipment manufacturer didn't fare too well, but most U.S. companies and thousands of American farmers will not be affected by President Reagan's new trade sanctions against the Soviet Union.

The most significant steps in the administration's package, announced Tuesday in response to the military crackdown in Poland, was the cutoff of about $300 million in annual sales of high technology products, including computers and oil and gas equipment.

The biggest loser apparently will be the Caterpillar Tractor Co. of Peoria, Ill., which had been given preliminary approval earlier this month to sell 200 pipelayers — sophisticated bulldozers — to the Soviets.

That sale, which company officials estimated would have amounted to $90 million, was halted. But a sale of 100 pipelayers this summer was not affected because the machinery already been delivered.

Caterpillar officials said it was too soon to predict whether the action will result in further layoffs by the company, which already has furloughed 1,400 workers because of sluggish equipment sales.

The company said the sanctions, unless supported by U.S. allies, would "not deny pipelayers to the Soviet Union" but only divert sales to a Japanese company that also manufacturers the bulldozers.

Reagan has said the Soviet Union "deserves a major share of the blame" for martial law in Poland and warned last week that the Kremlin would face economic reprisals if the repression continued.

He declared Tuesday that the new sanctions against Moscow were designed "to put powerful doubts in the minds of the Soviet and Polish leaders about this continued repression."

Administration officials estimated the new trade bans would halt about $100 million in sales of high technology equipment and an additional $200 million worth of oil and gas drilling and transmission equipment.

That represents barely 8 percent of annual U.S. exports to the Soviet Union of $3.7 billion.

Agricultural products, which make up about 70 percent of U.S. sales to the Soviets, were not touched by Reagan, who criticized and lifted the grain export ban imposed by then-President Carter after the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

Israeli Planes Are Intercepted

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq claimed today that its warplanes intercepted two Israeli fighter jets that violated Iraqi airspace in the southwestern part of the country.

The announcement was made by the official Iraqi news agency, INA, quoting military spokesmen in Baghdad.

The announcement said Iraqi planes forced two U.S.-made, F-15 Israeli jets to turn back, but made no mention of any gunfire being exchanged.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command had no immediate comment on the Iraqi claim.

On June 7, Israeli warplanes attacked and destroyed an Iraqi nuclear reactor on the outskirts of Baghdad. Because U.S.-supplied jets were used in the attack, American shipments of fighter planes to Israel were temporarily halted by President Reagan.

Open Records Rule Clarified

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Resumes of employees of the Houston Housing Authority may be made public but correspondence between executive director William McClellan and a management consultant may be kept private, Attorney General Mark White said Tuesday.

White concluded that McClellan may withhold the correspondence "in its entirety."

White also said that neither the amount of disability payments to a former employee of the authority nor correspondence between the authority and accountants hired to audit the agency may be withheld from public disclosure.

Free To Probe Allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The special prosecutor appointed to investigate Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan will not be restricted to a probe of allegations that Donovan's New Jersey construction company made an illegal kickback to a union official in 1977.

A three-judge special prosecutor court told New York Attorney Leon Silverman on Tuesday that he could investigate "any other allegation" against Donovan — including whether he lied at his Senate confirmation hearings.

During those hearings, Donovan denied any wrongdoing by himself or the company, Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J. Questions directed to Donovan at the hearings revolved around alleged kickbacks by Schiavone to union officials.

American Allies Won't Impose USSR Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no sign America's allies will follow President Reagan's lead and impose sanctions against the Soviet Union nor any certainty the U.S. action will prompt Moscow to back down on Poland.

A senior U.S. official who asked not to be identified said Tuesday that the allies have been asked to invoke parallel measures and "at the very least not to take actions to undermine these steps."

"The Achilles heel...is there is no indication that our allies are supporting the details of the programs spelled out by the White House," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

And the senior official acknowledged that — even after intense consultations before and after the imposition of martial law in Poland — "it remains to be seen what the attitude of other countries will be."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told an audience in San Francisco that, contrary to press reports, West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher is "totally supportive" of Reagan's actions and shares "the concerns of Washington."

However, Haig stopped short of saying Genscher is prepared to recommend that West Germany invoke similar sanctions of its own.

Reagan and other U.S. officials have made it clear in public statements and a letter to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev that the United States holds the Soviet Union responsible for the military crackdown in Poland.

Reagan thus "tightened the screws" on Moscow on Tuesday with seven sanctions designed to crimp future U.S.-Soviet dealings in high technology, grain sales, air travel and ocean shipping.

He said he acted "to speak for those who have been silenced and to help those who have been rendered helpless."

Reagan said he may take harsher unilateral steps later if the Soviet-backed military regime in Poland does not ease its crackdown.

Court Upholds Harris Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — A state appeals court today unanimously upheld Jean Harris' conviction for the murder of her lover, Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower.

In his opinion, presiding justice Milton Mollen said, "We are convinced that although Jean Harris did not receive a perfect trial, she received an eminently fair one. Nothing more is required."

The court rejected defense claims that the case was seriously prejudiced by the prosecution's use of a police officer's report that he heard Mrs. Harris say, "Oh my God, I think I've killed Hi."

Mrs. Harris made the statement on the telephone to her lawyer the night of the shooting and was overheard by a police officer who later testifed at the three-month trial.

The statement, "made under these circumstances, neither indicates nor suggests an intent to kill on the part of Mrs. Harris. It suggests the contrary since it reflects her surprise at Tarnower's condition and her uncertainty with respect to her responsibility for that condition," the decision said.

The court said the telephone conversation issue was "the most difficult and troubling" of Mrs. Harris' appeals arguments.

Soviets Taste Chemical War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet troops wielding potent chemical weapons in Afghanistan occasionally have gotten a gruesome taste of their own war gases, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

American officials say they are carefully studying the reports, which indicate casualties have occurred from air-dispersed chemical agents accidentally blowing back on Soviet and Afghan government troops fighting Moslem insurgents.

One U.S. analyst, who asked not to be identified, said in an interview this week that he was aware of "a lot of reports about the Soviets getting caught in their own (chemical) agent."

He said that although details were still lacking, an incident of this sort must have occurred during the recent fighting because word about Soviet chemical casualties came from a variety of sources, including hospital sources in Kabul.

The emerging picture of chemical backlash — based on sources ranging from rebel eyewitness accounts to spy satellite photography — adds an acerbic footnote to the Reagan administration's drive to publicly condemn the use of Soviet-supplied chemical weapons in Afghanistan as well as Indochina.

A newly released State Department paper on Afghanistan said there is "growing concern" that pressure on the Red Army to chalk up substantial gains in the guerrilla war "will lead to an increased use of chemical warfare by the Soviets."

"Evidence of the use of lethal and casualty-producing chemical agents against the mujahidin (insurgents) is mounting," it said, adding that the toxic substances were most frequently employed against rebel bases inside mountain caves.

The State Department paper did not touch on the question of Soviet or Afghan government troops being afflicted by their own chemical weaponry.

However, according to U.S. officials monitoring the Afghan conflict, there is evidence that Soviet troops suffered an undetermined number of chemical casualties during a November offensive against rebel mountain strongholds in the Paghman area just west of Kabul, the Afghan capital.

The SDN Column

It is inevitable that tragedies mar holidays, but it has dawned on some of the media recently that progress has been made in some areas. For many years, law enforcment agencies and safety organizations have preached caution as holiday periods approach. It seemed that there were more fires, accidental shootings and traffic accidents during holiday seasons than any other time of the year.

There was a logical explanation, of course. More people participate in more activities and do more traveling during the holidays than at other times.

Also, the tragedies that occur during holidays usually get more attention than those that happen at other times because people seem to be more sympathetic as they celebrate special seasons.

Traffic safety has been a topic that commands special attention during holidays since the automobile came into its dominant position in the field of transportation. In years past, we have seen publishers and editors literally tear their hair as they watched reports of soaring traffic fatalities following all-out campaigns to alert drivers to the dangers of holiday travel. We recall one in particular who declared that the holiday safety campaigns were like beating your head against the proverbial brick wall.

But there has been a change for the better in recent years. Not a cure, but an improvement has been noted. Just this week, we heard a commentator who was puzzled over the situation in Texas over the Christmas weekend. Pre-holiday estimates were that 51 persons would lose their lives on Texas highways during that period. But the actual count turned out to be 37. That is of little significance to those who lost relatives in these accidents, but over-all it is encouraging.

We have noticed for some time now that the number of traffic fatalities during a holiday period often is lower than that for a non-holiday period of corresponding length.

So, the law enforcement people, the safety organizations and the media will keep on attacking that brick wall.

Negotiations Ended By Norsk, American Mag

American Magnesium Co. of Snyder and Norsk Hydro, A. S., of Oslo, Norway, today jointly announced termination of negotiations for Norsk's purchase of American Magnesium's plant southwest of Snyder.

Norsk Hydro officials cited economic conditions and uncertainties for its decision not to exercise its purchase option.

Today's announcement ends Norsk's option to negotiate on an exclusive basis amd frees American Magnesium to pursue other opportunites which arose during the option term, according to AM's president, E. D. Loyd.

American Magnesium closed its plant in December of 1980, following an 11-inch rain storm which diluted its solar pond feed stocks. American Magnesium subsequently filed for Chapter 11 reorganization under protection of the U. S. Bankruptcy Act and obtained a final judgment in that action last Sept. 10.

Norsk took a six-months option to negotiate for possible purchase of the plant last March. This was later extended and for the past several weeks Norsk had continued the option on a day-to-day basis.

Other firms had expressed interest in negotiations in the event Norsk gave up its option.

Meanwhile, sales of magnesium chloride and owner advances have and continue to fund the caretaker operation of the facility until it is sold, said Loyd.

Slain Priest Mourned By Denver City People

DENVER CITY, Texas (AP) — Parish priest Patrick Ryan was eulogized as "yet another martyr" when an overflow crowd jammed Ryan's tiny church for funeral services, a week after he was found beaten to death in a West Texas motel room.

Police say they have no suspects in the death of the man parishoners called "Father Paddy," a native of Ireland whose body will be flown back to his home sod for burial.

Two Roman Catholic bishops, Joseph Fiorenza of San Angelo and Leroy Matthiesen of Amarillo, were co-celebrants at Tuesday's funeral Mass, with another 50 priests joining the throng of mourners. Police more than 500 people attended the funeral, many of them standing outside in bitter, blustery cold winds and listening to the service on loudspeakers.

"They were standing in the front yard of the church and the church was packed. There was a lot of love," said Jan Sulecki, who works for the funeral home that handled the funeral arrangements.

Matthiesen, Ryan's bishop, gave the eulogy and called Ryan "yet another martyr."

"May his blood — shed by strangers, as with the savior — be the seed that springs up new Christians," Matthiesen said.

The bishop said Ryan "could have stayed in the rectory, perhaps safe and secure. But someone drew him away from the table and compelled him to take a journey — a journey which was to end in the awful tragedy of yet another senseless death."

Ryan, the only Roman Catholic priest in this West Texas town of 5,000 people, was found beaten to death, nude and bound in an Odessa motel room last week.

He left a steak dinner on the stove when he vanished without a word to his congregation. He was reported missing Christmas Day after he failing to con... a mass Wednesday, a Christmas Eve midnight Mass and a Christmas Mass.

Ryan lived alone in a parsonage beside the church.

After the 80-minute funeral, the body was being taken to Lubbock for a flight to Ireland. Ryan, 49, is to be buried in his native Doon, Ireland.

"He was a great person. Truly the gentlest man I ever met," Ms. Sulecki said.

Walesa To Negotiate With Poland's Military Regime

By The Associated Press

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa has agreed to begin negotiations with Poland's martial law regime, according to uncensored reports reaching the West. Military council members contend "the country is calm, "production is growing and worker discipline is increasing."

The government Tuesday acknowledged eight people have been killed in clashes since martial law was declared Dec. 13, according to reports Tuesday. Earlier official reports conceded seven deaths, but unconfirmed reports put the number in the hundreds.

President Reagan on Tuesday banned natural gas pipeline equipment to the Soviet Union as part of trade sanctions "to put powerful doubts in the minds of the Soviet and Polish leaders about this continued repression."

Reagan, who blames the Kremlin for the crackdown in Poland, announced Tuesday that Soviet air and sea rights within U.S. territorial zones would be suspended as well as the sale of the gas pipeline equipment.

Last week, Reagan suspended food aid to Poland, cut off fishing rights and slashed Polish air service to the United States.

West German officials said Polish Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski arrived in Bonn today to meet with Foreign Minister Han-Dietrich Genscher to discuss the sanctions, which would halt U.S. cooperation in construction of a Soviet gas pipeline to Western Europe.

The general feeling in Bonn and other Western European capitals involved in the gas deal was that the Soviets would look elsewhere for equipment to build the 2,400 mile pipeline. Rakowski is the first senior Polish official to travel abroad since martial law was declared.

Polish television announced industrial price hikes beginning Jan. 1 for gas, oil, coke and building materials "in line with the economic reform." The cost of a ton of crude oil will go from $64.52 to $432.26, the state-run Television said, adding that the increases "will necessarily mean a rise in retail prices."

Earlier this week, the government said meat and butter rations would be cut.

"There's no food again," said a Polish woman from Katowice who arrived in Vienna, Austria today by overnight train. "It's terrible."

Price hikes and food shortages in the summer of 1980 led to nationwide strikes that launched Solidarity as the first union in the Soviet bloc free of Communist Party control. The union was suspended when Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski imposed martial law Dec. 13, ending 16 months of reforms.

Reports quoting a member of Walesa's family said the union chief had decided on Christmas Day to begin talks with the military regime. The negotiations were to have begun Monday, but it could not be learned if they were underway.

A government source who asked not to be identified said, "There is room (in Poland's future) for an independent trade union, independent both of the state employer and of political manipulation."

A senior Solidarity adviser still at large said that any political solution to the crisis must be made between "authentic Solidarity leaders" and the government. He said any attempts to replace unionists with Communist Party loyalists would be unacceptable.

The sources also confirmed that Walesa had been on a two-day hunger strike. At a news conference Tuesday, government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Walesa was in good health and was in contact with representatives of the government, Poland's Roman Catholic Church and his family, according to reports.

The mustachioed union leader was not under arrest, Urban claimed. "He is in Warsaw because that's where the government wants him."

Previous reports from Warsaw have said Walesa was held at the headquarters of the army general staff. Walesa's current whereabouts could not be independently confirmed.

Normal communications were cut in Poland when martial law was declared and censorship imposed. Reliable news reports from within Poland have been few and Western news organizations must piece together information from travelers, diplomatic sources and others.

Solidarity is the only independent union in the Soviet bloc free of Communist Party control.

The same government source said Jaruzelski, an army general, will unveil a social, economic and political program in early January that will include guidelines under which a union along the lines of Solidarity could operate.

Shortly after martial law was imposed, there were reports of industrial sabotage and protest strikes by thousands of workers from the Baltic shipyards to the coal mines in Silesia. But on Tuesday, a dispatch filed by AP correspondent Thomas W. Netter and subject to censorship, quoted government officials as saying the country was calm.

"Today is the first day in Poland that there are no strikes, or other forms of tension," said Gen. Tadeusz Szaflo, a member of the ruling military council.

Rescuers Save Crash Survivors

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP) — Rescuers plucked three survivors of a Christmas Eve plane crash from a mountain and battled deep snow early today in a race to get a fourth survivor off before a new storm hit the Colorado Rockies.

A man, a woman and two teen-age boys were found at midday Tuesday just as their emergency tracking beeper on the wrecked plane was about to die out. The woman and the boys were taken away by Army helicopter in a daring nighttime rescue during a break in the weather.

A four-man rescue team was left behind in the wreckage of the light plane with the remaining survivor. They were joined by three rescuers who came overland with additional supplies and more were on the way with toboggans to carry them off the mountain.

The fourth survivor and the four rescuers were left behind because of space and weight limitations in the chopper, authorities said.

A winter storm warning was issued for the area today, with up to 18 inches of new snow and winds up to 40 mph predicted.

The only other person known to have been in the plane when it crashed into the side of Mount Columbia, 100 miles southwest of Denver, was the pilot, who vanished after leaving to get help shortly after the crash five days ago.

Meanwhile, another search was under way nearby for a cross-country skier missing since he set off Christmas Eve on a two-day trip that was to have taken him from Crested Butte to Aspen. The search, hampered by weather and the threat of avalanches, was to resume today, weather permitting. Robert Shaw, 38, of Crested Butte, did not show up to meet his friends in Aspen and the search was begun.

The three people rescued from the 11,600-foot level of the 14,196-foot mountain near Kroenke Lake in the Rocky Mountains were taken by ambulance after their flight to a hospital in Salida, a nearby town.

"They looked very, very pale," said Jeff Beavers, a radio news reporter who saw the survivors at the airport.

Helicopter crewman Brent Evans said the woman had suffered a possible back or pelvic injury, and all four were said to be weak and frostbitten. He said they obtained extra clothing from their luggage.

"It's a miracle they weren't killed," Evans said.

The helicopter was forced to land on a ledge about 200 yards above the downed plane, and the transfer of the three in darkness took several hours. The snow was waist deep.

The rescue team had radioed to officials at a command post in Buena Vista that conditions were "not too serious," because body heat had raised the temperature inside the downed aircraft to 50 degrees. Outside, the temperature had fallen to about zero.

The rescuers suggested that they and the survivors could stay overnight at the crash site, but the coming storm changed that plan.

The site was about four miles from a trailhead accessible to four-wheel drive vehicles.

There were no details on the identities of the survivors. Beavers said one of the rescued boys told him the group was from Texas.

Pictures Ask Right Frame

CHICAGO (AP) — Although most people know what kind of art they like, they sometimes have difficulty choosing the right frame for a particular picture, says an expert in the field.

"A frame should be in proportion to the size and characteristics of the art — not overpowering it, yet strong enough to contain it," says Dave Klitzky, president of a chain of do-it-yourself framing stores.

"In many cases a picture's tonality will suggest the best frame," says Klitzky, who heads the Great Frame Up. "If you're working with warm tones, try a warm wood frame; cool tones would suggest a darker wood frame or metal frame."

Klitzky suggests that the visual weight of a picture can sometimes be a guide to how wide the frame should be. If the picture has strong lines and dark colors, the frame should be wider than if the picture has fine lines and light colors.

A picture with three-dimensional qualities can be enhanced by using a frame that slants into the picture, adding to the feeling of depth, he says. An action-oriented subject usually needs a larger frame to contain its motion.

"A two-dimensional graphic poster seems to frame better in a flat-faced molding," he adds.

A couple of don'ts, according to Klitzky: don't trim the picture to fit an existing frame's size; remember, the frame is subordinate to the picture and should follow its dimensions. Avoid choosing the frame to match furniture or wall coverings in the room. "You will lose the picture in a sea of harmony," he warns.

Russians Search For Stylish & Warm Overcoats

MOSCOW (AP) — When the winter wind blows cold in Russia, life itself can depend on an overcoat. And few commodities better illustrate the bleak lot of the Soviet consumer than the search for a coat that is both warm and stylish.

"We can buy coats. But they last only a year or two. And besides, I don't have time to spend the afternoon waiting in line to find one," grumbled one Russian woman.

The price of a Soviet overcoat can run more than double the average monthly wage, 172 rubles (about $250), and imported coats cost even more.

The situation, however, has improved since Nikolai Gogol penned the 19th century classic "The Overcoat," a bitter chronicle of Akaky Akakevich, a clerk in czarist Russia who spent all his money on a tailored overcoat. Thieves stole his new coat, and he suffered from exposure and died because he could not afford another.

A visitor to modern Moscow could be excused for thinking he is seeing double or triple while strolling the street. All the people are wrapped in warm coats, but many sport identical models.

"Our styles are way behind the West. Here, they make the same models every year," said one shopper, adding that she preferred imported over Soviet models.

Among the favorite Soviet-made coats for women are green, blue and maroon models of a wool and synthetic mix, adorned with fur collars sewn on by individual owners. Parkas stuffed with down have yet to appear but those made of synthetics are on the increase.

Men who work out of doors favor the "telogreika," or body-warmer, made of quilted fabric, while factory managers and politicians seem to prefer formal wool coats similar to those worn by their counterparts in the West.

The long lines for clothing, and the lack of variety, has not escaped the attention of the Soviet government, which makes and sells virtually all commercially available clothes in the country.

Kremlin leaders promised to boost production of consumer goods in 1981 by 4.2 percent, faster than the 4.1 percent growth they project for heavy industry. Final data for the year have not been published, but preliminary figures suggest neither goal will be met.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in a major address Nov. 17, promised that over the next five years "Tte production of fabrics, footwear, and knitwear will grow by a far larger amount than during the previous five-year period."

"The range of goods will increase and their quality will improve," Brezhnev said, repeating a promise first made in October.

Despite Brezhnev's rhetoric, the Supreme Court (the national parliament), subsequently passed a law which called for faster growth of heavy industry in 1982, at 4.8 percent, over consumer industry, at 4.6 percent.

The Soviet leadership has not explained the shift in priorities, although Premier Nikolai Tikhonov hinted this month that the Kremlin was spending money on arms at the expense of the consumer.

"At the present, we are forced to draw off significant (economic) resources to maintain our defense capacity in order to safeguard the security of the Soviet Union as well as that of its friends," Tikhonov said in a speech Dec. 8.

Western diplomats said the shift in targets might presage a repeat of the 1971-75 period when Soviet planners abruptly dropped promises to boost consumer-goods production.

Kremlin planners made no such promises during the 1976-81 period, and growth in heavy industry continued to outstrip that of consumer goods.

Soviet economists publish little data, and what they have released lately gives no indication that investment in consumer industries will rise adequately to produce a wider and more bountiful selection of overcoats or anything else for the Soviet consumer.

Employees of a Moscow overcoat factory, however, say they are striving to improve the quality and variety of their products, even if their overall output increases only slightly this year.

"We are widening the assortment of styles every year, replacing about 40 percent of them," said Alexei Maksimov, director of the Clara Zetkin factory.

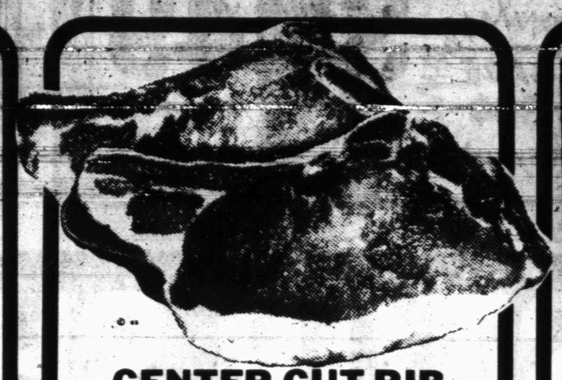

"We vary the volume of each model each year. Five years ago, we offered 60 different styles. Now it is up to 80," he said. The most popular models are wool, he said

U.S. Army College Still Going After Century

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — It was created in 1881 to drill some sense into a bunch of foxhole flunkies. A hundred years later, the Army's Command and General Staff College is a fortress of military scholarship.

"I guess you could say the first students to come here were remedial," says Col. William Stofft, director of the college's Combat Studies Institute. "They were here for basic reading and writing."

In at least one class in the 1880s, a quarter of the students flunked.

"Instead of sending their best officer material, regimental commanders sent their worst people," said Roger Spillar, Fort Leavenworth Command historian.

But a century later: "The college is at the heart and soul of the Army," Stofft boasted. "It's a marvelous place with an incredibly dedicated student body."

It's been that way for a while now.

Gens. Maxwell Taylor, Dwight Eisenhower, George Marshall, Omar Bradley and many other noted generals studied at the CGSC, the oldest school for tactical instruction for military officers.

Nearly every general in the Army today is a graduate of the CGSC, housed in a large, drab brick building overlooking the bluffs of the Missouri River, a peaceful setting where the science of war is learned.

Lt. Gen. William Richardson, former commandant of the CGSC, says the school strives to provide students with two essential ingredients for a successful military career: competence and confidence.

Richardson, recently reassigned to Washington as the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Planning, said the curriculum focused primarily on battle tactics and planning, and communicative arts. In simpler terms, that's reading, writing and fighting.

"That constitutes the heart of what the Army believes is important: to make the student think, plan and decide how to fight and win," Richardson said.

A sample of core curriculum classes at Leavenworth: Soviet Army tactics, principles of war, defensive tactics and nuclear and chemical operations.

About 10 percent of the 1,000 officers who spend 10 months at the college go on to another two semesters of Army-paid study at a state university and earn a master's degree in traditional disciplines such as history, economics and journalism.

Civilian universities taking part in a cooperative degree program with the CGSC include the University of Kansas, Kansas State University and the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Most officers picked to attend the CGSC are Army majors, but there is a smattering of representatives from other branches of the service. Also among the class are about 100 high-ranking officers from armies of allied nations. And 12,000 soldiers worldwide are working toward diplomas through a three-year correspondence program.

The enrollment list is growing steadily.

By 1985, another 2,000 mid-career officers will go yearly to the college's Combined Arms and Services Staff School, said Lt. Col. Ron Hibbard, executive officer of the CGSC. Most of them will be captains being groomed for field officer duties, Hibbard said.

In 1947, an Indian assembly voted unanimously to adopt a resolution proclaiming India a sovereign and independent republic.

Stenholm's Panel To Pick Interns

Students and teachers interested in participating in the third summer internship program sponsored by Congressman Charles W. Stenholm can pick up applications at Stenholm's Abilene District Office in the Federal Building.

Applications for the program, which will include two Omar Burleson Congressional Interns and two Lyndon Baines Johnson Congressional Interns, must be postmarked by midnight, Feb. 12, and mailed to the Abilene office.

The interns selected will receive full Congressional Office experience at Stenholm's Washington office, with one intern from each program to serve in June or July.

"We have had an outstanding group of interns to participate in the program for the past two summers," Stenholm said.

"The competition for the positions has been keen and I would encourage anyone inerested to get their applications in as soon as possible."

Selection for the internships is made by a district-wide selection committee, chaired by former Congressman Omar Burleson.

Applicants must be at least 18 years old by the time they go to Washington, allowing high school seniors who have enrolled in an institute of higher learning to be eligible. Others eligible include any student or graduate student who was enrolled during the preceding academic year at any of the district's colleges, universities or technical institutes, or any other school, if the person's home of record is within the 17th Congressional District. Teachers, counselors or administrators also are eligible.

"The program is designed to provide the intern with a full Congressional legislative experience in the Washington office," said Stenholm.

Formal applications and further details may be obtained by contacting Stenholm's Abilene office, P. O. Box 1101, Abilene 79604, or by calling 915-673-7221.

Avoid salmonella problems

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The other day I read an item that really frightened me. It said that a lot of the meat we buy contains germs that can cause food poisoning. It also said that most butcher shops actually contaminate the meat before it is sold in handling it. I always thought that the meat you buy would be clean and not dangerous to your health. The article also said that food poisoning from germs was a far greater threat to our health than the problem of chemicals.

I don't want to poison my family. I always knew about potato salads and cream pies but didn't know about meat. What can we do to avoid getting sick from eating infected meat?

DEAR READER — You are probably overreacting but there is a lot of truth in your comments. The food poisoning from potato salads and cream pies is from a toxin released by the staphylococcal germs. The toxin is already there when you eat it so you get sick right away.

The germ that causes food poisoning from meat, which includes poultry, is salmonella. It acts differently. The germs set up housekeeping in your intestine and then release toxins to make you sick. Studies have shown that about 40 percent of turkeys sold have salmonella on their surface. And beef and pork can be contaminated. It is true that the butcher's block often has salmonella on it from processing one piece of meat after another.

But as long as you cook your meat adequately that will not hurt you because adequate cooking will kill the bacteria.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-2, Food Poisoning of Infectious Origin, to help you handle this problem in your own kitchen. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You'll be shocked to learn that your own kitchen counters are likely to be contaminated with salmonella, too. In cooking if you use a modified sterilized technique you can help avoid contaminating your own food. Try not to handle the meat or food with utensils that have touched uncooked meat or poultry, as the utensils may contain salmonella. The same applies to dishes and pans. An internal meat thermometer will help you achieve and maintain a temperature adequate to kill bacteria.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been dating a man who has had a vasectomy. If marriage should be considered, I realize that there can be no children. You said that a tubal ligation can be reversed in some women. I would like to know if this is also true for a vasectomy. If so, is it a painful procedure?

DEAR READER — You are on the right track. In some instances a good reconnection can be accomplished. The percentage of good results has been improved by a special technique using microsurgery. The tube is very small and this makes it possible to make a better connection.

Just connecting the two ends of the tube (vas) that have been severed is not enough. Even with good surgery not every man will be able afterward to produce enough viable sperm to produce a pregnancy. So I'd think men must still consider a vasectomy a permanent form of sterility. But perhaps as high as 50 percent of men become fertile again after the microsurgical technique. It is not any more painful (which means minimal) than a vasectomy, but the procedure is longer and more difficult to perform.

Some Cities To Enforce Driver Liability Law; No Grace Period

DALLAS (AP) — Police in a number of major cities will begin enforcing a state law Friday requiring motorists to prove liability insurance coverage, even through state troopers will not ticket drivers during a grace period.

Only warning tickets will be issued by the Texas Department of Public Safety for the first three months after the law goes into effect, unless the motorist stopped already has received a warning from the DPS, a spokesman said.

A similar plan will not be adopted in five cities, police said Tuesday.

"We are not telling our officers that there is a certain grace period," Houston police spokesman Larry Troutt said in a telephone interview. "But officers have been instructed to be as lenient as possible for the first few weeks or so, and to take any evidence as proof."

After that time, he said, officers have been instructed to use their discretion in issuing tickets.

A motorist on Houston streets with no evidence of insurance may be ticketed for a Class C misdemeanor, punishable on first offense by a $75 fine. Second and subsequent offenses provide for fines of not less than $200.

Traffic officers in Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi and San Antonio will also issue tickets to uninsured motorists after Friday. Austin police will follow the DPS warning ticket guideline.

In Corpus Christi, police will request proof of insurance from motorists during accident investigations, driver's license checks and routine traffic stops, said traffic Capt. L.E. Daley.

"Motorists can anticipate being asked to show liability coverage on any of these types of incidents," Daley said. "This department believes that people have had sufficient time to educate themselves.

"It is not like it was a brand new ball game to them, he said. "They were supposed to have had it all along."

"We are going to start enforcing it right from the start," said Deputy Chief Edward Foresman in San Antonio. "But we are not sure just how our municipal court people will react."

Dallas police would ticket cars immediately since the public has been exposed to six months of publicity about the law, said Deputy Police Chief Harold Warren.

DPS spokesman David Wells said the 90-day grace period is "standard policy" on the enforcement of a new traffic law.

"The only exception is if we stopped them once before and warned them about it and they did not have the proof the next time they were stopped," Wells said. "Then they will be cited."

He said motorists must carry a copy of their insurance policy or a company-issued card that lists the policy limits or a statement that the limit meets the legal requirements. The new insurance law requires drivers to carry at least $20,000 coverage for medical expenses and $5,000 in property damage.

In addition, the documentation must list the insuror's name, the insured person, policy period and number.

Chief Amazed At Bargaining Pace

DENVER (AP) — Bargaining among 55,000 union oil refinery workers and 98 oil companies across the nation appears certain to "go down to the 11th hour" following the rejection of three two-year contract offers from major refiners, says the oil workers union chief.

Robert F. Goss, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said Tuesday night that the rejected contract offers were "ridiculous" in that they provided too small of a wage increase and did not address the union's primary demand for a no-layoffs guarantee.

"There's no way there could be a settlement without that," Goss said. "It does no good to get a good pay increase if a man gets laid off two months later.

"I'm amazed that there's been so little realistic bargaining going on so far," he added. "We're eight days away from the deadline and they have not even addresssed the major issues. Mechanically, we could handle a settlement at this point, if they don't want a strike. But I'm sure now that it will go down to the 11th hour."

About 400 contracts covering the 55,000 refinery workers represented by OCAW are set to expire at midnight, Jan. 7, 1982, unless there is a settlement. "I'll make the strike decision that night," Goss said.

He has recorded 11 long-playing albums and has traveled across America. He also is heard regularly on the "Robbie Hiner Program" on radio, presenting a 15-minute broadcast daily in major cities throughout the country.

He is owner and operator of Eagles Landing, a 24 track recording studio in North Carolina with the sole purpose of advancing young people in their careers in gospel music. He is a graduate of Liberty Baptist College, with a major in voice.

The public is invited to attend the concert Friday evening, said the Rev. Buck Hatfield, pastor of Faith Baptist Church.

Tigers Defeat Big Spring, 42-34

Snyder's Tigers celebrated the holiday season with a less than spectacular victory over Big Spring here last night, winning 42-34 in a game punctuated by referee's whistles other than fireworks.

Snyder junior varsity also defeated the Steers, 52-43. The local squads return to District 2-AAAA action Saturday as they host Fort Stockton at 6:15 and 8 in the coliseum.

Eleven of the first 13 points put up in last night's contest came from the free throw line. Snyder, which scored the only two field goals of the period, led 11-6.

Early fouls led Coach Larry Scott to bench James Caldwell and Riley Kitchens in the second period. Big Spring took advantage of the situation as Robert Rubio hit three back-to-back shots to put his team in front 16-15, but Snyder rallied to tie the game at halftime, 18-18.

The third quarter was the decisive one in the ballgame as Snyder outscored the visitors 13-4 to take a 31-22 lead into the final eight minutes. Big Spring went to a man defense after halftime and Snyder was able to get several easy baskets inside. Caldwell led the scoring with five Tigers points. The Steers were also suffering from foul trouble which limited their aggressiveness somewhat.

"We played most of the second quarter without James and Riley," said Scott, whose team is now 13-4 for the season. "And the lack of rebounding made a difference. In the third James and Riley were back in and that was probably the biggest difference in the game."

Field goal shooting percentages were unavialable, but Snyder hit 16 of 23 free throws for the night. Big Spring was 14 of 28 from the floor as neither team sparkled offensively.

Despite a poor shooting night, Scott wasn't bemoaning his Tigers' effort.

"We were in better shape than I thought we'd be after a week's layoff," he said. "I think a lot of our fouls were probably due to the layoff though," he said. "We've had this game now and we'll have three days of practice before we play Fort Stockton so that should put us back in pretty good shape."

Caldwell was the only player to hit double figures for either team last night, scoring 13. Kitchens notched 8 and D.W. Lofton and Brad Robertson added 7 each.

Bobby Earl Williams led Big Spring with 9. John Green had 7 and Rubio had 6.

In earlier action, Snyder placed four athletes in double figures to defeat Big Spring junior varsity. Don Johnson knocked out 14 points to pace the victory while David Miller had 12 and Trey McWilliams and Marcus McGlouthin had 10 apiece.

Henderson Arrested For Alleged Theft

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) - Miami Dolphins linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, arrested in connection with the theft of a typewriter from the police station in this Dallas suburb, was jailed for several hours before being released on $1,500 bond, police said.

Henderson, 28, was arrested early Tuesday and the missing typewriter was found in the trunk of the car he was driving, said Richardson police official Kathy Laws.

The incident really began late Monday, said Ms. Laws, when Richardson officers stopped Henderson for a traffic violation and discovered there were six traffic citations outstanding against him.

He was taken to the Richardson city jail, where he telephoned two female friends for help, Ms. Laws said. The women arrived and one of them paid a $500 bond against the outstanding traffic warrants, said Ms. Laws.

However, a witness later told officers, the other woman took an electric typewriter from a desk in the police station lobby and put it in the trunk of Henderson's car.

Dallas police, notified of the incident, later arrested Henderson and a companion, Patricia Smith, 48, of Richardson, and found the missing typewriter in the trunk of the car, Ms. Laws related.

Liberty Bowl: Welsh vs Bruce

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Little did George Welsh know how important his clinic lecture last summer would be for one of his pupils, Earle Bruce.

The two friends will be coaching rivals in the Liberty Bowl tonight. Welsh will be coaching his final Navy game before moving to Virginia. Bruce will lead 14-point favorite Ohio state.

"We were on the same clinic in the Catskills," recalled Welsh. "He sat in on all of my lectures. I told him all of our secrets. I didn't sit in on his lectures - I was swimming or something."

Bruce denies he learned anything he didn't already know about Welsh's philosophies.

"He never gave any secrets out. What are you talking about? He gave the same clinic talk I've heard for a long time. He talked about his tailback, because that's what he runs. He does it good," the Ohio State coach said.

The game marks the final collegiate appearance for Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter, who led the Buckeyes to a Big Ten Conference co-championship with Iowa and an 8-3-0 overall record.

Schlichter has rolled up more than 8,700 total yards in his 47 straight starts.

But his most impressive performances have come in the Gator, Rose and Fiesta bowls. In those three losses, he has completed 47 of 76 passes for 804 yards and four touchdowns.

Schlichter thinks he knows why. "All of the bowls have been on grass and I enjoy playing on the grass. Besides, in the course of the year, I've been banged up. The bowl break has given me a chance to heal," he said.

In contrast, Navy starts Marco Pagnanelli, a sophomore who has been a regular for just eight college games. Pagnanelli doesn't think his performance should measured with Schlichter.

"It's not me against Schlichter," said Pagnanelli, who helped lead Navy to a 7-3-1 record. "It's me against the Ohio State defense."

Bruce, however, does not expect Pagnanelli to be the Midshipmen's offensive hub. That role, he says, likely will fall to tailback Eddie Meyers.

Meyers, a 202-pound senior, accounted for 1,318 yards rushing and broke several Navy records this season, despite missing parts or all of three games.

Cotton To Pit Lyles And Babb In Key Battle

DALLAS (AP) - One of the down-in-the-trenches sidelights to the 46th annual Cotton Bowl New Year's Day will be the man-to-man battle between Alabama middle guard Warren Lyles and Texas center Mike Babb.

Both are highly decorated seniors who played a big hand in the 9-1-1 seasons posted by the teams during the 1981 season.

Lyles has the biggest honor to defend. He was named the Defensive Player of the Game in last year's Cotton Bowl when Alabama defeated Baylor 30-2.

"I didn't even know I had won the award after last year's game until my mother told me two days later," said Lyles. "I had just assumed that (end) E.J. Junior had won it. I couldn't believe it."

Lyles said he will carry many memories of Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant away after Friday's game.

"We taught me how to survive," said Lyles. "He turned me into a grown man capable of understanding the facts of life."

Lyles said the Alabama team is driven by a desire not to let Bryant down.

If Alabama beats the Longhorns, it will give the Crimson Tide seven straight victories in seven straight years, an NCAA record.

"That would be a nice memory," said Lyles.

He said the No. 3-ranked Crimson Tide was also aware it still had a shot at winning the national championship.

"We've got an outside chance at it if Georgia and Clemson lose," he said.

Lyles said he would also like to be on a team that beat Texas for the first time. The Longhorns are 6-0-1 in previous meetings with Alabama.

He said had a lot of respect for Babb.

"He has a remarkable balance," said Lyles. "I just hope the referees don't let him hold. He was getting away with it in some films I saw."

Alabama was a one to two-point favorite in the 1 p.m. CST game that had a sellout crowd of 72,500 assured.

Olajuwon Sparks Cougars To Victory Over LSU

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Louisiana State University basketball Coach Dale Brown knows a long-distance recruiting gem when he sees one, and he says Houston has one of the best.

Akeem Abdul Olajuwon, a 7-foot sophomore center from Lagos, Nigeria, rallied 18th-ranked Houston to a 73-69 victory over LSU in the championship game of the Sugar Bowl basketball tournament Tuesday night.

Wake Forest took the consolation trophy with a 76-68 victory over Purdue in the first game of Tuesday night's action.

At the opening tipoff, Olajuwon was matched against LSU's 6-10 freshman center Ray Borner of Victoria, Australia - the third Australian to play at LSU since Brown took over there in 1972.

Olajuwon scored 20 points and pulled down eight rebounds for Houston.

Thirteen of his points came in the final seven minutes of play after Houston had erased a 37-32 halftime deficit to tie the score at 52-all.

And with four seconds left in the game - Houston holding a 71-69 lead - Olajuwon swatted away an 8-foot jumper by Howard Carter that could have sent the game into overtime.

"He's an outstanding center," Brown said after the game. "He's one of the best in the country."

Houston Coach Guy Lewis said Olajuwon will be even better when he overcomes the after effects of a back injury.

"He's not in shape," Lewis said after the game. "He missed three weeks of practice because of the back problem."

Rice Upsets San Francisco

HONOLULU (AP) - Coach Tommy Suitts says it was probably "the biggest game in our school's history," and it propelled the Rice Owls into tonight's championship of the 18th annual Rainbow Classic, where the favorites have been swept aside.

Rice, with a surprising 78-66 win over No. 6 ranked San Francisco in a semifinal game Tuesday night, will go against No. 20 North Carolina State, which upset No. 2 Wichita State in the other semifinal game.

Says Landry...

Experience Could Have No Bearing

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Coach Tom Landry says playoff tradition doesn't mean much.

"I thought it would give Philadelphia an edge over the New York Giants last Sunday and you saw what happened," says Landry. "I hope it does help but I'm afraid it doesn't mean all that much."

The Cowboys, who meet 7½-point underdog Tampa Bay in a National Conference divisional playoff in Texas Stadium Saturday, have played in more playoff games than any team in NFL history.

The record stands 17-12 going into the meeting with the Buccaneers.

Dallas won three more regular season games than Tampa Bay on a 12-4 record but Landry believes his team respects the Buccaneers.

"If they don't then we won't have to worry about ticket sales around here next Sunday," he said.

Tampa Bay, the NFC Central champion, meets the NFC East champion Cowboys at noon Saturday in Texas Stadium.

The winner plays the survivor of the New York Giant-San Francisco matchup which will be played Sunday in Candlestick Park.

Landry said "Tampa Bay is a better team than the one we played last year. Of course, we have more emotions about playing an intra-conference rival but just because we don't talk much about them doesn't mean we don't respect them."

Landry spent several days looking at films of Dallas' 28-17 victory over Tampa Bay last year.

"You can see they are a better team but we are too," said Landry.

"They (the Bucs) close on you quick and punish when they arrive."

Dallas' only other meeting with the Bucs came in their expansion year of 1977 when the Cowboys prevailed 23-7 in Texas Stadium.

"I don't really know why we've been so successful in the playoffs," Landry said. "Of course, we didn't get there in 1974 after the Super Bowl. Maybe, it's just hard work."

Dallas has been in the playoffs 15 of the last 16 years. Tampa Bay has been in the playoffs twice in its six years of existence.

Peddlers Hawk Backwoods Charm

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — When J.J. Hale grins, lines etch into the sugarcane salesman's face like a dry river bed.

"They kid me a lot about my sign here," he said, smiling. "They say the Q in squash looks more like a G."

Hale often thought of getting himself a bigger, better and more modern sign for his roadside business, but said then he might not have as many customers.

The 63-year-old farmer is like many rural salesmen along the numerous East Texas highways. He banners his wares in a manner reminiscent of the Middle Ages, when shops boasted their products and services by hanging an indicative object above the door.

Hale and the countless number of vendors throughout the Piney Woods cannot be missed as they parade their jams and jellies, sweet potatoes and greens, handmade furniture, dolls and sunbonnets.

"I knew you could sell, but I didn't know you could sell so much ... I tell you, nobody is farming anymore," Hale says.

What Hale has discovered, in a roundabout way, is that he has something to offer that is much in demand — and it's not just the sugarcane and pro[illegible] Hale is hawking [illegible] backwoods charm from an open-air shack on U.S. 96 between Jasper and Kirbyville.

He began his informal business in the last year and since then has seen a fair profit, and in "good weeks" makes more than $100 and can sell 50 stalks of his sugarcane, at 25 cents each, per day.

"Yep, this is my supplemental income," he says, noting that his produce brings in as much, if not more, than his Social Security checks. And the longer he is in business, the more Hale becomes streetwise to the ways of his vehicular customers.

"Lots of times, they wanna go out and pick their own," he says, motioning to the 30-odd acres behind the produce stand that he purchased because "I was born here and farmed here when I was real young.

"Oh, 20 or 30 years ago, somebody'd told me I'd come back here and farm I'd have told them nuts." It's still work keeping the farm going by himself, but he's proud that "everything I sell, I grow."

Hale eyes "the many" as they speed past his home. "Seems like one'll stop and then everybody else'll stop. But I don't even come out here on Sundays ... I don't work Sundays. But there'll be people come by and buy some sugarcane and they pay for it ... they put the quarters in the bucket here."

Hale welcomes conversation and when the chatter usually opens with his sugarcane, he is quick to explain, "I can't chew it now, I've got these false teeth."

Hale is just one of many talkative highway salesmen who are quick to offer a sales pitch.

"I'm not bragging or anything, but I can make anything anybody wants if they tell me what they want me to make," says 71-year-old Carrie Rich, who lives a few miles north of Hale. Mrs. Rich strings her most popular item, hand-sewn sunbonnets, on a wire between three wood posts just off the highway.

"I do it for a hobby," she says. "I make enough to buy my husband's medicine and that sort of thing. I've been at it for about six years."

The mighty colored bonnets hang across the line with caps of all sizes, including one she says is for a month-old infant. Also available are pin cushions and pot holders. And Mrs. Rich will walk back to the house, which is well off the road, and bring back her wire basket filled with homemade lye soap, which sells for 50 cents a lard-colored block.

Mrs. Rich says she's not in the business for the business, that there are many more motives for her handiwork.

"I try to keep the soap going and teach others how to make it, you know ... It's something you just don't see anymore. And I get nervous sometimes, so I sew, and you know I just love to sew," she says.

She has 27 grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and "what with all those kids you can understand why I get nervous."

The seamstress said she has an industrial sewing machine in her house and uses it for "making coats and upholstery and all," although most of those projects are personal and not for sale.

Bullet Riddled Body Is Found

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A 33-year-old man whose bullet-riddled body was discovered in an orange grove near this South Texas city was identified Monday, authorities said.

Margarito Almeida of Elsa had been shot 28 times, possibly with a machine gun, Hidalgo County sheriff's officers said. He was found at about 1:30 p.m. Saturday about 10 miles west of Edinburg, investigators said.

Sheriff's investigator Manuel Ochoa said that Almeida's car was located about one-half mile from his body. Relatives identified the body, Ochoa said.

An autopsy conducted by Dr. Ruben Santos, a McAllen pathologist, showed that Almeida was probably killed sometime Saturday. Almost all the bullets entered through Almeida's back, according to the autopsy report.

Ochoa said he may have been taken to the grove after he was killed.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Ethridge are parents of a 7 pound, 1 ounce son born December 25 in Lubbock Methodist Hospital. He has been named Cameron Rydel and is the grandson of the late Nathan E. Small, longtime Santa Fe employe and Snyder resident.

Minor Mishap Reported Here

Snyder police officers investigated one minor traffic mishap Tuesday.

Involved in the wreck at the intersection of 38th St. and Austin Ave., were a 1981 Buick driven by Osberto Vargas and a tree. Only minor damages and no injuries were reported in the mishap.

De LaCruz Is Sentenced

Emilio De LaCruz was sentenced to 6 years in the Texas Department of Corrections by the 132nd District Court in Snyder.

De LaCruz entered a plea of guilty Tuesday morning to charges of burglary. He was charged with a break-in and theft of stereo equipment from the Sound Concept store on the East Highway. The crime was committed this last summer.

Fund Set Up At Local Bank

A fund has been established at West Texas State Bank for Brooke and Laurie Phillips who were injured in a car accident Christmas Eve. They are both at Lubbock General Hospital. The fund is to help defray hospital expenses.

No discussion of women bridge players would be complete without mentioning Josephine (Jo) Culbertson. She won the 1930 Vanderbilt, but had retired from active competition before the Spingold was first played.

Jo was the perfect partner for an active expert. Playing with Mike Gottlieb, Waldemar von Vedtwitz or Louis Watson, she was always the very sound half of the partnership.

She was also the greatest exponent of the Culbertson system which she knew better than anyone.

In today's hand we show Jo using the grand slam force, which is still called the "Josephine" by some British writers because she actually invented it way, way back.

Her five-notrump call asked her partner, Louis Watson, to bid seven with two of the three top honors in spades and Louis did as she had asked.

Jo won the diamond lead with her ace, drew trumps and went after hearts. The 5-1 break meant she had only 12 top tricks, but Jo found the 13th on a squeeze. She cashed all her trumps discarding a heart and a club from dummy, led her queen of diamonds to dummy's king and discarded her three of clubs on the queen of hearts.

Jo had a perfect count on the hand since West had shown three spades, five hearts and a diamond. He was marked with four clubs, leaving just two for East. Since West had to retain the heart jack he had to come down to two clubs and the club queen was sure to fall.

WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Gardeners, bird lovers and others can put their Christmas trees to good use after the holidays. Don't just throw yours away and add to the burden of community rubbish handlers.

The tree, of course, can help feed your fireplace, but it would be so much better as an attractive, practical bird-feeding station. Dig a hole in which to set the tree, or sharpen the trunk base and pound it into the ground, if possible in a place where you can watch the birds dine from your window.

Chunks of suet tied in small pieces of a mesh onion bag and fastened to the branches will attract jays, chickadees, nuthatches and woodpeckers. Small grains will lure seedeaters. Supermarkets sell suet balls rolled with seeds, or you can make your own. Buy a seed assortment, put some in paper cups then pour melted suet into the cups. After it hardens, tie the cups or ball to the tree.

Loose seed can be placed in containers — such as half a grapefruit or orange — tied to the tree, which will retain its needles a long time outdoors.

Trim boughs of Christmas trees and place smaller branches, curved ends up, around plantings or on garden beds as a mulch, thus reducing frost heaving. Bigger branches will protect landscape plantings such as rhododendrons, azalea, boxwood and other tender items. Anchored firmly, these should provide shelter from wind and snow, and sun scald.

Stripping needles from the trees and spreading them beneath azalea, laurel and andromeda will help these acid-favoring plants.

Other bird goodies that can be fastened to trees are popcorn, apples and peanut butter. In return for being fed, the birds will help rid trees of insect eggs and larvae that could bring trouble in spring.

Aging neighbors, discarded trees, you can fashion a sidewalk or driveway windbreak to block drifting snow.

Old Christmas trees may also be carted by sportsmen to open land to shelter rabbits, grouse and squirrels. One group spread abandoned trees in rows from natural cover out to a cleared space to provide both cover and escape routes for small animals against hawks, owls and other predators.

If the birds have regular feeding stations, trim branches from the holiday tree and put them in window boxes as decorations, adding dried flowers or branches of berry-bearing bushes for color.

Branches also will insulate beds of spring-flowering bulbs.

(Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Egyptian Life

BOSTON (AP) — A major traveling exhibition on Egypt's "Golden Age" opens at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts Feb. 3.

The show, which runs through May 2, is subtitled "The Art of Living in the New Kingdom, 1558-1085 B.C.," and features more than 400 treasures representing everyday life in Egypt as it existed some 3,500 years ago.

Vidkun Quisling was installed as minister-president of Norway by the Germans in 1942 during World War II. He dissolved the constitution within a week and ruled as a personal dictator while attempting to Nazify Norway. He was executed for treason after the war.

Art Of Mamluks Is Showing

NEW YORK (AP) — "Renaissance of Islam: Art of the Mamluks," the first international loan exhibition devoted solely to the art of the Mamluk Period (1250-1517), is on show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art through Jan. 10, 1982.

The Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service organized the original collection of 123 objects lent by institutions including the Louvre, the British Museum and museums in the Middle East, which has already been presented in Washington, D.C., and Minneapolis.

An additional 89 pieces, from the Metropolitan's own collection and from other collections, has been added to the exhibition in New York, to make it the most complete survey of Mamluk art ever seen in the West.

Mary, Queen of Scots, was condemned to death in 1587 by Queen Elizabeth I of England.

Dear Abby

Silence Is Golden In Case of Missing Silver

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I invited a group of friends to our home for a formal dinner. One couple called and asked if they could bring a dear friend from out of town. We said, "Of course."

Our table was set with our finest china, crystal and sterling silver flatware.

After dinner I cleared the table for my wife and carefully checked the silverware and found that two pieces of silver were missing! I checked the trash bag to make sure the missing silver had not been accidentally thrown away. I even checked the dining area, floor, chairs, table, etc. The two pieces were nowhere to be found! They were obviously stolen by one of our guests.

I took my wife aside, told her, and asked her what we should do. She said, "Nothing." Abby, what would you have done or said? Is there a diplomatic way of handling this?

LONG JOHN SILVER

DEAR JOHN: I'd have remained silent. The alternative would be to announce that two pieces of silver were missing — then wait for the "thief" to surrender the stolen goods. Such a scene would have created more humiliation than the silver was worth.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Talk about a mess, this is the worst. Our 19-year-old son has just told his father and me that he wants to get married and the sooner the better!

The girl is his first cousin. She's 18. We knew they had been spending a lot of time together lately, but had no idea it was that serious. Anyway, the kids are "in love," she's expecting, and our problem is that first cousins aren't allowed to marry in Nevada. We were told that first cousins are allowed to marry in California, but if the kids go there to get married, would their marriage be legal in Nevada?

PREMATURE GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Yes. A marriage performed in a state that permits first cousins to marry is usually considered legal in all states. But you'd be wise to check with a lawyer.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: You recently defined a professional as someone who receives remuneration for a job, as opposed to an amateur who does what he does without pay.

I am sure that mine will not be the only letter of protest. As an unpaid volunteer fireman for seven years, I do not consider myself an amateur. I am well-trained and certified by the state of Florida, and I feel qualified to call myself a professional.

Abby, approximately 90 percent of the firefighters in the U.S.A. are volunteers. On behalf of that 90 percent, may I assure you that should anyone need us at 3 a.m. in the freezing rain, we will be there, performing the same dedicated service as our professional brother firefighters who do it for a living.

CHARLES W. NOAH

DEAR MR. NOAH: My definition lighted a few fuses among some dedicated volunteers who resented being called amateurs. Mea culpa. Mea maxima culpa.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UNDECIDED IN THE MIDWEST": Ask for a prenuptial agreement. Every divorce began with a honeymoon. Trust me.

Top 10 News Events For 1981 Given

NEW YORK (AP) — In a year in which the biggest news came from the barrel of assassins' guns, the attempt on President Reagan's life has been voted the top story of 1981 by Associated Press editors and broadcasters.

Reagan, his press secretary James Brady, and two other men were wounded in the shooting March 30. The story edged out the return of the American hostages after 444 days of captivity in Iran.

The Top 10:

1. The attempt on Reagan.
2. The return of the hostages.
3. The Sadat assassination.
4. The attempt on the Pope.
5. The new conservative administration in Washington. Reagan gets his way with a Republican Senate and a reduced Democratic margin in the House.
6. The American economy; the budget and tax cuts of Reaganomics; high interest rates and recession.
7. The flights of the space shuttle Columbia.
8. The air traffic controllers strike and their dismissal by Reagan.
9. The appointment of Sandra Day O'Connor, the first female Supreme Court justice.
10. Developments in Poland.

The runners-up were stories about the wedding in England of Prince Charles and Lady Diana; the deaths of 113 people in the collapse of a walkway over a dance floor at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Kansas City; the strike that eliminated a third of the baseball season; the arrest of a suspect in the two-year run of deaths and disappearances of blacks in Atlanta, and Israel's bombing of Iraq's nuclear reactor.

The ballots were compiled before the Polish government's declaration of of martial law and crakdown on Solidarity. The vote was on the preceding unrest and conflict attending the rise of Solidarity.

Votes were tabulated by 10 points for a first place vote, nine for second down to one point for tenth place. The vote for first was one of the closest — the shooting of Reagan finished with 5,246 points to 5,224 for the hostage story.

The Top 10 stories: The Attempt on Reagan

At 2:25 p.m. on March 30, the president was leaving the Washington Hilton Hotel after addressing the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council when six shots were fired at him from close range. Before Reagan was pushed into his limousine by Secret Service agents, he was hit in the side below the left arm. A bullet penetrated Brady's brain. A Washington police officer and a Secret Service man were also hit.

Police and agents seized John Warnock Hinckley Jr., 25, son of a well-to-do oilman from a Denver suburb. Authorities described Hinckley as "wandering, aimless and irresponsible." In a series of letters to teen-aged actress Jodie Foster he said his unrequited passion for her might lead him to do something which would make him famous.

Since Nov. 4, 1979, when Muslim fundamentalist militants seized the American Embassy and its occupants in Tehran, the fate of the hostages preoccupied America. That was so up to the final moments on Jan. 20, 1981, when the hostage release upstaged the inauguration of the new president.

Jimmy Carter had hoped that he could leave office with the hostages free. After several weeks of convoluted negotiations revolving around the transfer of Iranian financial assets held in American banks, it appeared a deal was set for Jan. 19, the day before Ronald Reagan was to take office. After several near-misses, it was finally closed shortly after 3 a.m. on Jan. 20.

But the Iranians had the last laugh on Carter. The 52 hostages were held at Tehran airport until after noon EST, when Reagan took the oath of office, and it was the new president who announced their release. The Sadat Assassination

On Oct. 6, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and most of his Cabinet were watching Egypt's Armed Forces Day Parade when four men in military uniforms jumped from a jeep and began throwing grenades and firing automatic weapons. Stunned guards seemed frozen as the assassins charged the reviewing stand, killing Sadat and leaving carnage in their wake. 4. The shooting of the pope

Pope John Paul II was greeting pilgrims from his jeep in St. Peter's Square on May 13 when he was shot by Mehmet Ali Agca, a 23-year-old Turk who authorities said had connections to right-wing terrorist organizations. Two American women were wounded in the attack.

The 61-year-old Polish-born pontiff was hit in the stomach but was sufficiently recovered within a day to take Communion annd listen to mass. He spent three months in and out of hospitals. 5. Reagan Takes Over

It was probably the sharpest reversal in the course of government since 1932. Reagan, a man of conservative principles, became president and proceeded to cut taxes, government spending, particularly in social programs, and to beef up the defense budget. The latter was in line with a new hard-line anti-Communist approach to international affairs.

If Reaganomics steered a new economic course for the country, the economy itself seemed as balky as ever. Inflation eased to a rate below double digit, but interest rates soared to a new high in midyear before easing a bit. Unemployment climbed to over 8 percent. 7. The Space Shuttle

On April 12, the space shuttle Columbia, designed as a reusable space cargo ship, roared into space from Cape Canaveral, Fla., with astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen aboard. The flight went smoothly and the Columbia became the first fixed-wing space vehicle to land itself when it touched down at Edwards Air Force Base in California 54½ hours later.

In November, when Joe Engle and Richard Truly took the Columbia on its second flight. It was delayed several times, then halted after 54 hours and 13 minutes — three days early — when a fuel cell broke down. 8. The Air Traffic Controllers' Strike

It was another example of the Reagan administration following through with action on conservative principles. When 12,000 members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers' organization walked off the job Aug. 3 in a dispute over pay and working conditions, Reagan gave them one day to return to work. When they didn't, he fired them.

Public support was clearly lacking for the controllers, who averaged $33,000 a year in salary. They predicted dire consequences. But with supervisors and new recruits filling their spots, there were none. 9. Sandra Day O'Connor

During the 1980 campaign, Ronald Reagan pledged to name a woman to the U.S. Supreme Court. When Justice Potter Stewart announced he was stepping down, Reagan had the opportunity. He named Sandra Day O'Connor, a 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge, to become the first woman on a court where 102 men have served. 10. Poland

For most of the year, events in Poland were as they had been since the rise of the Solidarity union movement in the summer of 1980: strike, negotiation between union and government, liberalization, a government shakeup. Then a repeat of the cycle. And above it all hovered the specter of Soviet intervention.

But it wasn't the Soviets who intervened, it was the Polish government and military. On the evening of Dec. 12, tanks rumbled in Warsaw. Martial law was declared and union leaders and dissidents were rounded up. Strikes were met by force.

Rotton Wood Caused Ramp To Collapse

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rotten wood in a support timber is being cited as the cause of the collapse of part of a ramp suspended over an open-air koala exhibit at the San Diego Zoo. Three people were slightly injured.

Clayton Swanson, general manager of the zoo, said about 30 people were standing on the ramp Saturday when the timber gave way. Only two or three of the zoo's nine koalas were in the outdoor exhibit at the time, and they were not injured, he said.

Swanson said dry rot had set in on the support timber that broke.
