PEACE PARLEY NEAR COLLAPSE SAY DELEGATES

Turkish Sovereignty Asked By Ismet Is Proposed

By Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 28.—So far apart have the Turks and the allies drifted that Lausanne is confronted tonight with the probability that the near eastern conference will adjourn without reaching an agreement. Such at least, is the view voiced by practically all the delegations.

With their traditional tenacity the British are clinging to the hope that the Turks will sign, but in this they stand alone. Ambassador Child, by conferring with Ismet Pasha and Lord Curzon, is contributing his bit to saving the conference from collapse.

The conference can be saved, Ismet Pasha and Riza Nur Bey, the Turkish delegates informed the Associated Press late tonight, if the allies are willing to adopt a set of essential principles recognizing the complete sovereignty of Turkey, with total abolition of the capitulations and an equitable distribution of the Ottoman debt.

Riza Nur Bey said that if the conference did this, Turkey's national dignity and primary rights as an independent nation would be safeguarded; the details of the treaty could then be worked out later by the experts.

Armenians Accept.

The Armenian delegation announced today that they had accepted with gratitude Russia's generous offer of asylum to 250,000 Armenians, now for the most part refugees in Greece, Bulgaria and Syria. Unhappily, the Moscow government cannot stand the expense of transporaion and insailation of this multitude, and the Armenian delegation hopes that other countries will follow the example of Russia and "philantbropically help in the noble work of establishing the Armenians in their new Russian homes."

The belief that Leon Harington was a victim of a feud existing between the Harrington family and another family was given some credence tonight by the authorities here.

Harrington was found by a member of his family and carried to the house. Physicians said he was not seriously injured. He regained consciousness about an hour and a half later and told of the attack.

Ardmore Citizens Face Trial Today; Demurrer Sought

DEBT BEGINS TO WORRY BRITISH

Public Disappionted In U. S. Plan

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The frank and plainspoken exposition made by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer of what he considers the reason for the failure of his mission to Washington in an endeavor to arrange for the funding of Great Britain's debt to the United States, comes as an unpleasant surprise to the British public.

The public had been led by semi-official utterances to believe a satisfactory adjustment of the matter would not be difficult; hence the question again to the forefront of public attention and is considered to present to the new government of Andrew Bonar Law, which was elected on a policy of economy and retrenchment, a very awkward problem.

Acceptance of the American terms will mean, it is said, a yearly burden of more than 30,000,000 pounds on the British exchequer for the next sixty years. The government is confronted with demands for reductions in the income tax and the duty on beer. How to meet these demands with paying 30,000,000 annually to the United States is the government's dilema.

It is clearly evident from statements published here during the week end that the British government had anticipated being able to fund the debt on an interest basis nearer two per cent than three per cent or 20,000,000 pounds annually.

Crow."

Eleven Charged With Killing of Farmer; Activities of Masked Bands Are Involved

By Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Okla., Jan. 28.—The hearing of a demurrer to the sufficiency of the charges, offered by nine of the defendants will, it was indicated tonight, precede the opening of the trial here tomorrow of 11 prominent citizens charged with the murder of Joe Carroll, farmer, who lived near Wilson on December 15, 1921. Two of the defendants, it is said, will ask for a severance.

The trial will mark the reopening of a case, which assumed proportions unique in the annals of the state. It involved the alleged participation of the ku klux klan, the imprisonment for a period of 17 well known men, and an appeal for the declaration of martial law in Carter county.

Two Deaths Follow.

Two other deaths followed the alleged murder of Carroll, who, it is charged, was shot to death with a gun in his hands after he had been called to the door of his home by a group of masked men. Statements said to have been obtained by county officials, said that after Carroll's death members of his family opened fire on the masked party.

John Smith of Wilson was found wounded near the Carroll home, and died later at a Wilson hospital. C. C. Sims, Ardmore police detective, was found dead at a point near Joiner City, which was described by Jeff Smith, brother of John Smith, as the meeting grounds."

Jeff Smith himself was wounded by a bullet, and is one of the 11 defendants. He and J. A .Gilliam, another defendant, have announced they will ask severances.

Masked Men Carried Tar.

Statements made by county officials after an investigation, indicated that the masked men called on Carroll equipped with buckets of tar and a sack of feathers after he had received a warning to stop selling liquor or leave the county.

After the arrest of the 17 men following the murder, the sheriff received a warning purporting to be from "Ardmore Klan No. 7," that the jail would be stormed. The jail was filled with deputies but the attack failed to develop.

Freeling Takes Charge

At the time an investigation of alleged lax law enforcement in Carter county was under way by the attorney general, directed by Former Governor J. B. A. Robertson. After a delegation of citizens had asked the governor to declare martial law which he refused, he ordered Attorney General S. P. Freeling to personally take charge of the case, at the preliminary hearing. Other county officers were superceded by special orders.

The refusal of one of the witnesses Frank Bourland, to answer on the stand 17 categorical questions regarding the klan, ended the first hearing December 22. Two hours before it was to be resumed, December 27, the attorney general announced it would be set over to the next term of court and the defendants freed on $10,000 bonds.

"Boat Tail" Bullet Perfected By Army Experts Needs Address Only

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Work of army experts since the war has produced a new bullet for use in rifles and machine guns which is expected to add enormously to the effectiveness of these weapons in any future conflicts.

The new bullet is known as a "boat tail," because of a six degree taper at the tail. Exhaustive tests by the army have shown that the change in shape has given wings to the bullets, adding 1,400 yards to the maximum range attained and flattening the trajectory or arc of flight at 1,000 yards, approximately thirty per cent.

In addition the army experts have worked out a new jacket for the bullets that virtually eliminates fouling of gun barrels.

Tests of the army infantry school have fixed the maximum range of the new bullet at 4,800 yards, as compared to 3,450 yards with the present ammunition. It also has been demonstrated that at six hundred yards with the new ammunition it is possible to put every shot into a circle the size of a teacup as the "boat tail" bullet is less subject to wind current reflection.

The army has in reserve a vast store of war time rifle ammunition which will be used up before any project of equipping with the new "model 1922 E" boat-tail bullet ammunition is undertaken.

RAIL WORKERS QUIT POSTS AS FRENCH ARRIVE

Church Goers Unable To Return Home On Trains

By Associated Press.

DUSSELDORF, Jan. 28.—The telegraph and telephone central stations went on strike at 7 o'clock this evening. They took this action in protest against the presence of the French soldiers.

DUSSELDORF, Jan. 28.—"De Profundis" was the prayer that went forth from millions of persons assembled in the Catholic churches of the Rhineland and the Ruhr tonight in compliance with a pastoral letter from Cardinal Schulte.

The cardinal himself, officiated in the Cologne cathedral, where the service was a most impressive one. Many persons from surrounding towns along the Rhine, who went to Cologne to attend the service proceeded afterwards to the railway station where they found the railway strike so effective that they were unable to leave the city.

In Coblenz the railroad strike also is complete. Likewise at Bonn not a wheel is turning. There was a huge demonstration by the students at Bonn this afternoon but no clashes of a serious nature took place. The train service is paralyzed between Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Essen. No mail has arrived here from Paris or Berlin in two days.

Coblenz Troubles French.

The French are having trouble with the Coblenz population. Quiet and orderly during the American occupation of this area, the population has become unruly.

The strike of the railroad men in the Ruhr is growing proportionately with the taking over of the stations by the French. As soon as the French arrived on the railroad men quit their jobs.

Dortmund alone remains the open door into the interior of Germany. When the French close this gateway complete isolation of the Ruhr will be only a question of a few hours.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS NOT TO DISCUSS OCCUPATION

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Tonight there is little chance that the subject of the occupation of the Ruhr district will be discussed by the council of the League of Nations, which will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Leon Bourgeois. Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish premier, who announced before leaving home that he would bring up the question, told the Associated Press today that after a talk with Premier Poincare he did not think the question would be broached in the council.

"I shall not bring it up," said M. Branting, "if after consulting my colleagues on the council, I find it will be disagreeable to any of the chiefly interested countries."

325 BARRELS IN HOUR FROM WORSHAM TEST

Huge Crouds Visit Well Through Sunday

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Jan. 28.—Interest in the Worsham No. 1 well, brought in by the Gulf company on the Carl Worsham ranch near here Saturday afternoon, mounted rapidly Sunday morning when 325 barrels of oil were produced in less than an hour's time. The well flowed by heads throughout Saturday night and Sunday morning, producing approximately 140 barrels of oil prior to the biggest spurt of the day which came between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Production Lost.

Much of the production was lost Sunday because of a shortage of storage facilities. Two 500 barrel tanks were being rushed to the test Sunday night with promise of being installed Monday morning. The one 500 barrel tank on the lease was filled Sunday afternoon and production after that was a total loss.

With prospects of a new field opening up, Clay county turned out in full force Sunday to visit the test. Thousands milled around the well throughout the day, the majority of the sightseers treking in from Henrietta, Bellevue, Vashti and other Clay county communities although many Wichita Falls visitors were numbered among those on the ground at some time through the day. Scores of prominent oil men were included in the crowds.

Reports of deals and impending deals for acreage around the test were many Sunday. R. S. Huffman and associates of Breckenridge were reported to have closed a lease on 2500 acres in the Antelope community, in the southwest part of Clay county, where drilling is to be started immediately. A Standard rig is now on the groud to be used on a 3500 foot test. MAN SHOT IN SUNDAY FIGHT

J. A. Bird's Wounds Not Serious

J. A. Bird, an employe of a local piano company, was shot and painfully wounded early Sunday following an altercation at the home of J. T. Parr, two miles east of town on the Henrietta road. Parr is being held in the county jail in connection with the shooting.

It was not thought last night that Bird's wounds would prove serious. Four shots were fired at him, according to Chief of Police McCormick and Deputy Sheriff Jack Miller, but only one of these took effect. A bullet entered the man's left side, below the ribs, passed through the fleshy portion and came out again. It then penetrated the palm of the left hand, passing entirely through. Reports from attending physicians were that none of the vital organs had been touched by the shot and that serious complications were not expected.

Bird was not taken to a hospital, but was removed to his room in a local hotel.

Police were unable to learn the motive of the shooting last night. A call to the Parr home was received at 7:30 and Chief McCormick with Deputy Sheriff Miller, immediately responded. Parr was taken into custody a short distance away from his home, the officers reported, and a pistol was found on his person. A further investigation of the affair is planned for today.

Cox Condemns French Invasion Of Ruhr Valley

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Expressing his opinion that the invasion of Germany by France was a mistake, James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, and democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920, in an address here today declared "the time has come when no question should be settled by force of arms."

"We kept politics out of the war, but unfortunately the tasks of peace became ambroiled in our politics by the senatorial mound robin," said Mr. Cox. "It created an international disaster that is recognied now even by partisians. It is but a waste of time to elaborate upon the mistakes and misfortunes of the past. The one vital living question now is, what can be done to save the world's threatened civilization. Certainly there is agreement in the proposition that there can be nothing worth while accepted without co-ordinate! international endeavors and there con be no efficient merging of purpose without American participation.

Verdict Is Returned At Noon Sunday After Short Trial Of Only Three Days

A verdict of guilty and a sentence of 5 years in the penitentiary was returned Sunday against Mrs. Ida Bell, charged with the murder of G. A. DeMoss. The verdict was returned in the 30th district court a few minutes before noon after the jury had been out since 6:15 o'clock Saturday night. Whether an appeal will be taken could not be learned Sunday.

On Trial Thursday.

Mrs. Bell went on trial Thursday morning. She was charged with having killed DeMoss on the porch of the Electra hotel, in Electra, September 27, last. Testimony given by herself in the course of the trial was to the effect that she shot DeMoss to "save her life and home." At no time after the homicide did the defendant deny having fired the fatal shots. DeMoss died September 29, in a Wichita Falls hospital.

Intimate Relations.

Testimony brought out in court Saturday developed that intimate relations had existed between she Mrs. Bell and DeMoss while they were both living at the Electra hotel last year. The woman declared that DeMoss' actions in persuading her to attempt to secure a divorce, followed by her discovery that he had no intentions of marrying her after a divorce was obtained, led to a breaking off of their relations. This, she averred, angered the man so that she was moved to shoot him after he had threatened her own life.

Bahama Isles, Enriched By Liquor Smuggling, Turn Deaf Ear to Drys

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Liquor is now being smuggled into the United States from the Bahama islands at the rate of 1,200,000 gallons annually, while the goverument and population of that British colony, getting "relatively immense hevenues from the traffic," are absolutely indisposed to sympathize with efforts to check it, according to a statement issued today by Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, based, he declared, on official data furnished him by the state department.

From the duties on Whiskey alone, Mr. Rogers said the islands are driving an income three times as great as their government revenues from all sources in 1918, while the estimated profits of those interested in the traffic, including members of the elected legislative body, are said to be enriching.

Mr. Rogers declared the state department report "read like a book of fiction" in describing the mushroom growth—still continuing—of what he classed as "an established practice with great capital and organized procedure," of running liquor into the United States through the screen erected by prohibition enforcement agents.

Up to 1919, Mr. Rogers asserted the annual imports of liquor to the Bahamas were 50,000 gallons, while for 1922 they amounted to 1,200,000 gallons.

"To the last quart, I am advised, the liquors are shipped to the United States. All told 2,000,000 gallons have found their way into the country, all the way from Norfolk, Philadelphia and New York as far east as Boston."

Hagen Captures Texas Open Golf Title By One Stroke

MEHLHORN AGAIN MISSES PUTT NEEDED

Big Purse Is Decided After Thrilling Match

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 28.—Walter Hagen, American holder of the British open golf championship, added the Texas open title to his list of wins here today when Bill Mehlhorn, Shreveport, La., missed a foot and a half putt on the last green which had he made, would have meant another tie for the $1,500 prize. At the end of the 72 holes of the match yesterday the two golfers had 279 strokes each and an 18 hole match had to be played off to decide the winner today.

It was one of the most thrilling matches ever played in San Antonio and was witnessed by approximately 10,000 spectators. Throughout the match Hagen was to the bad with the Shreveport golfer and led him on but two holes. The British title holder was off his putting game and he gave away several strokes by missing one and two foot putts.

Mehlhorn came to the 17th hole being one stroke down to Hagen. Both golfers put their irons on the green, which is 175 yards, Mehlhorn being the farthest away had about a ten yard putt. He lined up the ball, took distance, cleared the way and sunk the putt which looked as if it would win him the match. Hagen followed suit with his great putt after him and pulled the long putt.

Bill Gets Into Trouble.

On the 18th hole Bill drove his ball high and it caught a yellow rabbit it into the street. It hit [illegible] one of the trees and fell backing the fairway. Hagen's drive was for 200 yards straight down the middle of the course. On the second shot Bill put the ball about 15 yards short of the green. Hagen pitched on the green and rolled 12 feet past the cup. Bill's next shot put him eight feet from the pin. Hagen then tried to sink for a three but his ball rimmed the cup and jumped out. He took a four on the hole.

Bill lined up the putt and took his time. That putt meant $700 to him or Hagen. He hit the ball. It rolled past the cup about a foot and a half. He sighted the putt from all angles of the green, walked back to his ball to sink what everyone thought was a cinch, to tie the British holder for the second time. He hit the ball. It rimmed the cup and jumped out—he had lost his chance at the Texas title and the $1500 first money purse.

RUHR SITUATION WORRIES POPE

Events Are Watched By Vatican

BY GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright 1923 by International News Service)

ROME, Jan. 28.—Pope Pius XI is deeply worried over the situation in the Ruhr but believes it would be unwise for the Vatican to make any move toward intervention at the present time, it was learned through official channels.

"The pontiff is anxious over possible consequences of occupation of the Ruhr by the French, but he does not believe it will lead to actual war," Vatican Secretary Pizzardo told International News Service. "His holiness does not believe that the present is a psychological time to attempt to intervene. He thinks that neither the Germans nor the French want intervention at this moment. Consequently, nothing is being done by the Vatican in a political way. The pope is hopeful that the whole trouble will be smoothed out and that hostilities will not follow."

Vatican officials are watching the Rhineland developments closely.

It is significant to note that the Thyssen family in the Rhineland the most powerful coal and iron magnates in the Ruhr aside from the Stinnes family, are devout Roman Catholics. All their holdings have been taken over by the French.

Howard Ehmke, lean and lanky right handed hurler, has been traded. Detroit swapped Ehmke and Carl Holling to Boston for Rip Collins and Derill Pratt.

For the edification of law abiding fans who are often puzzled at the why and wherefore of these numerous trades, we are prepared to let them in on the ground floor of this Ehmke deal.

There's nothing about Ehmke's pitching arm broke even last year, winning 17 games and losing the same number. He struck out 105 men all told. Very good, so far but here is where the shoe begins to get a half poison on the instep. Ehmke hit 29 batsmen in various sections of the anatomy last season. He soaked eight more customers than the next highest bird on the "hit the batter" list. Limps and groans were the order of the day after Howard had been on the slab. Arnica and witchhazel flowed over the team like a pocket edition of Niagara Falls.

Several of the boys who felt the little, leather bound pellet smash up against a leg or sink in between a couple of ribs played with Boston and returning to the Hub city, were forced to suffer much embarrassment by limping around the lobbies which were generally filled with good looking tourists or gals from the stage. Something had to be done and from all appearances they did it.

However, this may be entirely wrong. We're not asking you to take our word for it. Howard may have been intensely fond of baked beans and brought the whole thing about by his own maneuvering or it may have been one of those deals which the moguls pull off in the front room when not arguing with the official statisticians. Anyway, Ehmke goes to Boston, so there you are.

The rest of the American league circuit gents are taking a farewell look at the old home town before starting south and with the exception of the Boston Red Sox, the boys will soon have a petition before their respective managers demanding galvanized union suits to be worn when Ehmke is pitching.

Billy Whiskers

By Francis Montgomery.

"Gee, Bobbie," said Johnnie when he heard Bobbie's mother tell Sarah to put a little chicken in with Bobbie's bread and milk, "your mother is tender-hearted! Mine would not give me even molasses on my bread. If she said bread and milk it would be bread and milk!"

"I know I am a terrible trial to mother, and she is always so good to me. It is a shame, and it was an awful mess we made! But I did not think of that when I proposed the fire. I just thought of the fire coming out of the chimney. I never dreamed of the soot flying out. I am awful sorry, for mother is a dear and I know that every time she punishes me she gets a sick headache. I really mean not to do anything to bother her, but somehow I just do get in messes without knowing it."

"Gee. Look the ice cream is melting! Sarah brought so much we can all three have some if you don't mind eating out of the soap dish tumbler and match safe!"

"We don't care!" for Mrs. Banks' ice cream was known far and wide as being the best anyone could make even beating the caterers from the city.

"What will we do for spoons."

"There is one spoon. And I can wash a demicine spoon I have, and I will eat mine with my toothbrush handle."

"No, you don't!" said Johnnie, "You go ahead and eat it all in peace. Paul and I have had one dinner, and we don't want to come over here and eat yours."

"Oh, you go along! I know how to get spoons for us all," and Bobbie walked to the window, and the boys ran to him, for he hung out so far they thought he would surely fall out head first.

"What are you swinging your arms so for?" asked Paul.

"Come, look!" replied Bobbie, and then all three boys hung out of the window and watched Bobbie trying to hit the kitchen window with a nail tied to the end of a string. This made a tick-tack of it which attracted Sarah's attention, and she came out to see what was tapping on her window.

When she looked up and saw the boys she opened her mouth to say something, but Bobbie put his finger to his lips for her not to speak, and she closed her mouth without uttering a word.

"Sarah, tie three spoons onto the string, so we can eat our ice cream!"

"I'll do better than that! I'll tie a little basket on with spions, three saucers and more cake in it!" she replied. "Pull up your string and get your heads in! I hear someone comin'." And the boys dodged their heads in and pulled up the string.

(Tomorrow you'll hear the end of this scrape but the boys soon get into another.)

Splash Day At Galveston Taboo

(By International News Service)

GALVESTON, Jan. 28.—Mother's daughters no more will display their lines and dimples made more charming by clever bathing suits or by the almost lack of such a covering, on Galveston's beaches in a countrwise beauty prize contest—not if fifty-three civic and religious organizations here have their way. "Splash day" here tofore an annual affair is taboo.

"Such an exhibition as the bathing girl revue is destructive to all sense of modesty and lowers the standards of morality to those who participate and of those who are onlookers," says a petition conveying a "most earnest protest" against "splash day," presented today to the board of city commissioners. The petition was signed by accredited representatives of the fifty-three religious and civic bodies of this city. It was referred to the city attorney for an opinion.

Mountain Range Formed In Ocean

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—A range of mountains 10,000 feet high has sprung up in the Pacific ocean off the coast of lower California and northern Mexico as a result of the seismic disturbances which rocked South America with large loss of life and property in Chile recently.

According to the reports received here, the peaks of the new mountain range were found to be only a few hundred feet from the surface at points where existing charts gave a depth of 10,800 feet. At a point near Bishop's rock off the southern California coast the peaks came within 200 feet of the surface at a point previous charted as 6,400 feet deep.

The appeal, it was said, would be presented by the Greek minister to the state department Monday.

RIDING FINDS FAVOR IN WICHITA

Many Spend Sunday Afternoon In Saddle

The Call Field Riding Academy inaugurated here some time ago, is finding increased favor among sportsmen. In spite of the cool weather yesterday found scores of persons enjoying the sport. A record crowd was announced by Walter Richardson manager of the academy.

More than 50 horses and ponies are kept in two hangars, all trained for the saddle, and all of standard stock. Among them are singlefooters, some of imported stock from Kentucky, as well as walk-trot canter horses. Then there are ponies for the children.

The Riding Academy was established here with the purpose of introducing standard saddle horses in Wichita Falls. The managers came here on the invitation of the fair committee after several ribbons had been won by horses of the academy. A track has been built by the academy where horses are trained, and attendants are at work now in putting the horses through their paces. They will be entered in the Texas-Oklahoma fair to be held here in the fall. Mr. Richardson announces that he will soon construct a bridle path near the hangars, and that increased stock will be brought here as the occasion warrants. He hopes to organize a riding club among the younger men and possibly a polo team.

BRIGGS ASSAILS BIG THREE PACT

Foundation Of Sport Being Unrooted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 28.—The athletic agreement now in effect among Princeton, Harvard and Yale involves an inquisition into the financial status of athletes that strikes at the foundation of sportsmanship, Dean Lebaron R. Briggs, asserts in his annual report as chairman of the Harvard athletic committee, which was made public today. Though the athletic situation at the time seemed to make the inquisition necessary, the dean said he looded for the time when Harvard, Yale and Princeton should say to one another "I need know nothing more about the legitimacy of your players than is implied by your willingness that they shall represent you."

Only then, he added, would those involved be sportsmen.

Dean Briggs introduced his criticisms of the agreement with a reference to the conditions out of which it grew.

"The evils of subsidizing athletes were illustrated last year," he said, "by discoveries which led the authorities at Princeton to disqualify several of their best known and most skillful players. The disqualification already determined at Princeton by Princeton alone, was promptly reported to the committee of the three chairmen. Like every other act of the kind it was assailed as unjust by those who did not know the circumstances and it gave rise to new suspicions, naturally enough, regarding the athletes of Yale and Harvard."

Flatfootedness Declared Common

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Flatfootedness is becoming a common affliction among the young men of the country, Professor L. G. Kranz of the Physical education department of Northwestern university declared in a statement tonight in which he asserted that 33 per cent of the male freshmen at Northwestern had been so afflicted. Seventy-five per cent of them no longer had flat feet, he added, because they had been trained to bear most of the weight on the outside of their feet.

Policemen, particularly crossing policemen, are particularly susceptible to flat feet, Professor Kranz said, because they attempt to save themselves by standing first on one foot and then the other.

STOCKS QUIET DURING WEEK

Speculators Held Up By Ruhr News

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Quietness and a certain amount of irregularity in the financial markets during the past week offered a contrast to the encouraging character of reports from industrial and trade centers. The main causes of the irregularity were not difficult to find. For one thing the situation in the Ruhr valley still acted as a brake on speculative enthusiasm although the markets displayed a calmness in the face of alarmist rumors that transferred to diminishing susceptibility to things of that sort. It also appeared that the security markets had entered into something of a resting period, the effects of the early January reinvestment demand having passed and the unusually large volume of new capital issues having taken the edge off the bond market for the time being.

Despite these circumstances, a firm undertone was apparent. In financial quarters the opinion still holds that the French entrance into the Ruhr ill-advised but there is a disposition to be hopeful with regard to the ultimate results.

Reports Cheerful

The trade reports are distinctly cheerful. Many signs indicate that business is considerably better than is usually the case at this time of the year. Prices are firm, demand is active and the initiative is now stated to be taken by the buyer rather than the seller.

In the steel industry, production is being maintained at the best rate attained during the present recovery. Recent buying of fabricated steel is stated to be extraordinarily heavy but the demand from the railroads and the builders of equipment and automobiles is being well maintained. Increased activities are also reported by the manufacturers of agricultural machinery. Some concern is displayed in the steel industry, over the labor situation. The supply of workers already is somewhat inadequate and it is feared the situation may be accentuated in the spring.

BOND MARKET IS REACTIONARY

New Offerings Drop During Week

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—New bond offerings for the past week totaled $82,023,000, par value, as compared with the total of the preceeding week of $232,276,000. This sharp drop in the offerings was not unexpected as the bond houses had anticipated giving the market a week or two in which to absorb the nearly $800,000,000 of all classes of bonds that had already been distributed during the first part of the month. The outstanding feature of the week's offerings was $35,000,000 of steel bonds from two of the big independent companies which was quickly taken up.

No new foreign bonds were put on the market during the week and the troubled foreign situation evidently precludes anything serious in the way of foreign financing being considered by the bankers at the present time. Some South American business is in sight particularly with the Argentine where the government is seeking legislative authority for large internal and external loans.

Market Reactionary

The bond market continued reactionary during the week and all classes of securities suffered a readjustment in their quoted values both because of the effect of the new bond issues in the market and the unsettled state of economic and political affairs in Europe. While quotations were governed in a large measure by domestic condition, there was a noticeable absence of outside trading and most of the business was in the hands of professionals.

French and Belgian government and municipal liens dropped to new low records during the week.

The British investment market handled new offerings in 1922 which amounted to 235,668,550 pounds and which exceeded 1921 by about 20,000,000 pounds.

The principal large offering in last week's bond market was $25,000,000 5½ per cent 30 year Bethlehem steel corporation consolidated mortgages gold bonds offered at 93 to yield 6 per cent. Other large offerings during the week were: $10,000,000, 5 per cent, 124 year Northern Pacific railway refunding and improvement mortgage gold bonds, offered at 90, to yield 5.65. $10,000,000, 5½ per cent 30 year Republic Iron and Steel refunding and general mortgage gold bonds offered at 94½ to yield 5.90.

Gospel Needed To Cure Divorce, Says Miss Robertson

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—"More gospel and less law."

This was the rule Miss Alice Robertson, congresswoman from Oklahoma, offered for ridding the country of the "divorce evil."

"You can't stop hasty and foolish marriages, or prevent divorce by legislation," she told International News Service, in voicing strenuous opposition to the Capper bill for a new federal marriage and divorce law. "That measure is un-American," she said.

"Teach our boys and girls the doctrines of love as set forth in the Bible and we'll have less of these hasty, ill-conceived marriages with subsequent divorce."

Your Heart and Home Problems Solved By Elizabeth Thompsun

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am engaged to a very nice gentleman. Wherever he goes, he is well liked by every one. There is a great difference between our ages. I am 17, but will soon have a birthday. His next birthday will make him 41, but you would not take him for over 36 or 38. Do you think in years to come that I will get tired of him? I will be young and he will be old.

I love this man with all my heart and it would be quite hard for me to have to give him up. He likes to go out quite often to shows, dances, etc., but he doesn't seem to find dancing much of a pleasure. I love to dance and am afraid that will always be a trouble to me. How can I make him interested in dancing?

ENGAGED.

There is no question but that the man is too old for you. He may still enoy amusements, but after marriage he will enjoy his home so much more than the pleasures which mean so much to you and does not seem so much to you and as they do not interest him in the least. Since dancing is distasteful to him, there is no way I can suggest for you to make him like it.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I have a sister 15 years old who is getting far beyond my mother's control. She wants to run out nights and mix with bad company. Every time we lecture or corect her, which is in a good way she simply replies that it is her own business. She is teribly important and we can't do a thing with her.

My other sisters and brothers feel very bady over it as all of them are respectable. She is next to the youngest and has always been spoiled and she thinks she must have her own way. She is getting a bad reputation. She has a good home and doesn't have to worry about anything.

She was going with a "steady" and my mother felt relieved, but sister treated him very unbecomingly until he stopped coming to see her. But he says he loves her and wants to go with her again. She is good looking and attractive.

I wish you could give us some advice. Please tell us what to do.

B. B.

You might be able to control your sister by offering her an allowance for good conduct. It is not wise for many of you to show disapproval of what she is doing. The less you say the less she will be antagonized. If your mother should offer her a certain sum of money each week on condition that she does not go away from home evenings without permission, it might help. She should be allowed to have company in her home under the circumstances. Although she is very young for such a thing, it would not help matters to forbid company. Present the proposition to her and ask her if she thinks such an arrangement is fair. For instance, if she receives a dollar a week for spending money, 25 cents should be deducted every time she disobeys. Don't let the child think she is bad. Believe in her and expect the best of her.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am in love with a loung man. He is 25 and wants to come to see me. My folks don't want me to go with him. I don't have a chance to see him very often. He has red hair but is very good looking. I am 13 with brown hair and eyes.

LITTLE BETTIE.

Your parents are right in objecting to your letting the young man call. You are too young to receive callers, and he is too old for you.

Somebody's Birthday

By ELSA ALLEN

January 29th.

Yours is the way of dignity if today is your birthday. You are proud but not ostentatious, self-reverent, but not conceited. You live, think and act in the grand manner—if anything just a little too ponderously. But then these are sterling qualities, and inasmuch as you cannot do much to change them, you had better make the best of them.

However, if you could manage to cut loose from your self now and then and raise a little cain, it would have an amazing and beneficial effect on you. Take life less seriously and you will find it much more important.

At present you are secretly afraid of your own shadow. You are afraid of life because you think once you yield to the gratification of your desires they will overwhelm you. Well, they certainly will if you try to suppress them, and probaby sooner than if you gratify them. You are between the devil and the deep blue sea, and try them both, almost anyone can swim.

You are curiously analytical in your nature. You lack the courage of the scientist, but you cannot lose your mind completely to new discoveries which you make. Instead you worry about them and if you act in contradiction you are ant to have a troubled conscience.

You are upright and honorable and just and affectionate, etc., but nevertheless you are hardly human and you won't be until someone of the opposite sex somes along and bowls you over with one look.

Today is one of extremely good fortune. Force the issue in all your dealings.

Your ensuing year will be peaceful and quiet, a recuperation from past trials and a preparation on an extremely critical year to come.

A child born today will be robust and inclined to fatness—rather more serious than necessary and easily spoiled.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Mock Bisque—One quart tomatoes, two tablespoons cracker crumbs one-half teaspoon salt, three pints milk, one tablespoon butter, speck pepper, one-quarter teaspoon soda.

Heat the tomatoes and milk in separate dishes. Add to the tomatoes the salt, pepper, butter and bread crumbs. When the tomatoes are thoroughly cooked, add the soda and milk and remove from stove.

Brisket of Beef—Two pounds brisket of beef, two pounds carrots, two tablespoons fat, two tablespoons flour, one cup carrot liquid, salt and peper to taste.

Salt and pepper the meat and let stand an hour or two. Scrape and cut carrots into cubes or slices. Place in kettle with meat, cover with boiling water and cook until meat and carrots are very tender, and the water is half boiled away. Heat the fat in a pan, let brown slightly, add the flour and gradually one cup of carrot and meat liquid. Place in kettle with meat and carrots and boil until carrots become browned.

Celery and Cabbage Salad—Hollow out green peppers and fill with chopped celery and cabbage, equal parts. Top with mayonnaise.

SUGGESTIONS

Fixing Leaks—A leak in a gas or water pipe causes no end of damage before the plumber can be called. It can be stopped temporarily with a filling mixture made of yellow kitchen soap and whiting, mixed in a thick paste.

Cleaning Floors—When cleaning floors, if a small hand brush is used for corners the result will be more successful than trying to get into them with large scrubbing brush. It will also save woodwork from being knocked and scratched.

Cheese Sandwiches—Toast quickly slices of bread three-eighths of an inch thick on one side. Spread the toasted side with butter which has a bit of mustard mixed with and cover with chopped cheese. Sprinkle with salt and paprika, cover with a slice of bread, toasted side down. Toast the sandwich top and bottom with a medium heat, so that the cheese melts while it is browning.

Iron Holders—When making iron or stove holders first make the pads, then use some pretty bright colored covers seperate, using snaps to fasten, and they can be removed and washed without washing the padding.

Picture Brides Of Japan May Upset Hawaiian Peace

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Continued importation of "picture" brides in Hawaii threatens to give the Japanese numerical, political and commercial control in the territory and menaces the security of the United States, according to a report submitted today to Secretary of Labor Davis by a special commission which has just completed an investigation of labor conditions in the islands.

The traffic in "picture brides" coupled with the present policy of "parental adoption" have defeated the purpose of the so-called "gentlemen's" agreement, between Japan and the United States, the commission declared.

"The menace from a military standpoint," the report of the investigators stated, "can be fully verified by referring to the records of related federal departments.

COTTON REACTS AFTER ADVANCE

Week Sees High Peak Then Slump

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—The early part of last week in the cotton market saw the upward tendency of prices still very strong but the advance culminated at the middle of the week when prices were at the highest levels of the season, March trading up to 28.63 cents a pound. After the middle of the week more or less of a reactionary feeling was in evidence with breaks of about a cent a pound registering during the Friday session.

At the highest the trading months were 24 to 68 points over the close of the preceeding week; at the lowest they were 70 to 161 points under. On the close the trading positions were 55 to 98 points lower than the close of the preceeding week, March closing at 27.40 and October at 24.28. In the spot department prices closed net unchanged on middling at 28 cents a pound, which price compared with 15.50 as the closing price this week last year.

Spots Cause Advance

The reasons for the advance were mainly a continued good spot demand while the reasons for the reactions were mainly the liquidation from the long side and the selling encouraged by a somewhat better outlook regarding the new crop, due to the rains in the western sections of the belt and talk of increased acreage in several states, more especially Texas and Louisiana. The spot demand was all devouring for a while, embracing all grades from the highest to the lowest and even including linters. During this period of strong markets middling was quoted at the new high record price for the season of 28.63 cents a pound. According to messages received here from Texas planting of the new crop has commenced in the very earliest sections of the state.

The rains that fell were sufficient to check complaints of drouth although at the end of the week, it was evident that Texas still could use more moisture in many sections.

The machines are scheduled to be parked at an angle touching the curb by the right front wheel with the left front wheel not more than 12 inches from the curb.

'Fire Mountain'

By NORMAN SPRINGER

It is a cruel thing to shut up a young man between the four walls of an offcie, when that young man is romantic, heart-hungry, and twenty-three. It is especially cruel, when the walls are lined with dull tomes of legal lore and adorned with pictures of even duller-looking legal lights, as were the walls of Joseph Smatt's office. The window was Martin Blake's safety-valve. For a year, he had been Josiah Smatt's retainer, keeper of the outer office, slave of writes and all the musty forms of law.

It was the view that gave him succor. The window was on the tenth floor, and througt it Martin had a magnificent view—the broad sweep of San Francisco bay and the opening to the Golden Gate. It was a canvas that never wore out, and upon it Martin painted bold day dreams.

"Mr. Smatt is in, perhaps?"

The softly spoken words shattered a castle in Spain. Martin swung about, and found himself eying an odd figure, though become a familiar one to Martin these past few weeks—a Japanese dandy. Silk-hatted, frock-coated, and a brown unwrinkled face that spoke of anywhere between thirty and sixty years.

Martin's orders were explicit; Mr. Smatt would see Dr. Ichi without delay or preliminary, whenever Dr. Ichi favored the office with a visit.

So, Martin inclined his head toward the door of Smart's private office. The Japanese disappeared within Smatt's sanctum.

Martin turned to his window again But his bright day dream was fled, and he could not conjure it back again.

What manner of client was this Dr. Ichi? Martin had not seen a single scrap of paper, nor had Smatt dropped a single hint, concerning the case. It was mysterious!

Much of Smatt's time was taken up with cases Martin knew nothing about, with clients who appeared to shun the daylight of the courts. The Nippon Trading company, for instance! Martin knew Smatt was interested in a company, that apparently conducted business without using the mails.

He turned from the window and discovered the office to have a second visitor, a hunch-back. He was seedily, but a green velvet hat, several sizes too small gave him an oddly rakish appearance. His face was pleasing—a wide grin, a snub nose, a pair of twinkling eyes beneath a broad, intelligent forehead. Martin immediately comenced to thaw as the other smiled.

The hunchback carried a book under one arm, a formidable appearing volume.

"The bargain of the century—can not afford to miss it—wonderful opportunity first time offered," he began in a sing-song.

Martin stiffened with surprise. Not at the words; he was accustomed to book-agents of strange guise. But the voice! A rich, throaty tenor with not a squeak in it. The man's discourse was like a song.

Martin found his gaze upon the hand that held the book. That hand! Surely no book-agent ever possessed such a hand—brown-backed, big, and muscular, plainly the hand of an outdoors man. Where the sleeve fell away from the wrist Martin glimpsed the blue of a tatooed figure. A sailor's hand?

"Possible to make offer only because of great advertising campaign—you reap advantage free of charge. You merely subscribe to Coleman's Weekly—ten cents a week, fifty cents a month, price of a magazine—wonderful compendium of universal knowledge costs you absolutely nothing—"

The hunchback pattered on. Book-agent or no, Martin conceded he had the technique of the craft at his tongue's tip.

His eyes—suddenly, Martin was aware of the peculiar behavior of the other's eyes. They were roving about the office from point to point, as if the fellow were endeavoring to fix in his mind every feature of the room. But most often, Martin noticed, his gaze rested upon the door to Smatt's private office, through which came at intervals the hoarse murmur of Smatt's voice. Once, atop the murmur, came a few words in Dr. Ichi's cliped and even tones—

"Plan—good—have caution— proceed—"

The hunchback ceased talking. Martin felt almost sorry as he declined the greatest offer of the century, though the purveyor of knowledge took the refusal easily.

"Blake, come here!"

It was this bellow that checked the book-agent's flow of words, and startled Martin into activity. Mr. Smatt did not like to be kept waiting.

"Sorry," Martin said to the hunchback, "but I'm called in there. Couldn't use your book anyway."

"Oh, that's all right," responded the other airly.

* * *

Martin, standing before Smatt's desk, discovered himself to be the subject of a searching scrutiny from two pairs of eyes. Both Smatt and Dr. Ichi, the latter seated at the lawyer's right hand, were critically inspecting the tall, good-looking young fellow, who faced them.

"Blake, I wish you to execute a mission for me tonight," said Smatt.

Martin inclined his head in understanding. Executing missions at night-time for Mr. Smatt was a not uncommon experience. They took him into strange corners of the city, to interview strange characters. They were the one exciting feature of his drab employment.

The lawyer picked up from his desk a well-stuffed and tightly sealed legal-sized envelope.

"You are to deliver this envelope to a Captain Robert Carew," commenced Smatt. "At ten o'clock tonight, exactly, you will enter a saloon situated on the corner of Green street and the Embarcadero. This resort is known as the Black Cruiser saloon, and is conducted by a person named Spulvedo. You will speak with Spulvedo, taking care not to be overheard, and will ask him to conduct you to Captain Carew."

Martin nodded his understanding.

"Very good," said Smatt. "This person, Spulvedo, will lead you into Captain Carew's presence. Under no circumstances will you deliver this envelope to other than Carew, himself. You may identify him readily by his appearance. He is a large, blond man, with a deep voice. He speaks with the words of an educated man. A star is tatooed in red upon the back of his right hand."

"To make your identification doubly sure, you will use this precaution: When you approach Carew you will say, 'I wish to see you on the Hakodate business.' He will respond: 'It is time that business is settled. Did the chief send you?' Then you will deliver the envelope to him. Now repeat in full my instructions."

It seemed to Martin, as he reentered the outer office that the room's air had the indefinable tinge of a very recent occupancy. When he emerged from the private office, he seemed to be treading upon some one's heels, so to speak.

* * *

A night of bright stars, but no moon. A sharp, windy night. He shivered even beneath his overcoat, but the air tasted good and fresh.

Martin's spirits mounted. Was he not setting forth on an errand of mystery? Why, something might happen to a fellow on such a night!

No street car was in sight at the corner and Martin withdrew to the friendly lee of Feiglebaum's saloon, to await its coming. He shrank back into the doorway in search of a warmer retreat and backed against something soft. He swung about with words of apology on his tongue for the prior occupant of the shelter.

His startled gaze encountered a broad back. A man stood there in the far corner of the doorway his back to the street, his head seemingly bowed in his arms. A man of such huge proportions, that Martin, but two inches less than six feet himself, felt like a pigmy beside him.

"Ow, swiggle me!" rumbled a deep and husky voice. "Ow, I'm in a proper fix, I am! I've gone an' lost Little Billy. Can't find 'em can't find 'im in the blooming town. I've looked in a thousand bleedin' pubs, I 'ave, an' I can't find little Billy."

The words tumbled forth heavy laden with alcohol.

"Cheer up, there are many more than a thousand saloons in this city," assured Martin, "You have not yet tried them all. There is one in this building. Have you visited it?"

"In this building! Ow swiggle me stiff lad let's go 'ave a wet!"

Inside the barroom Martin seized a chance to take stock of the fellow. He gathered an impression of size and redness. Why the man must stand six feet and a half in his boots! A son of Anak! And his head! He was afire. A red face, a moustache that bristled, a thatch of brick red hair that protruded from beneath a blue, peaked cap, and he explained that he was bosun of the brig Cohasset.

"We was walking up the Market street," he continued, sober as judges, both. And Billy says a bokay was what he wanted for the blessed little mate's birthday. And so we stops into a place or two to talk it over. Swiggle me stiff, could anything 'ave begun more innercent Just going to buy a bokay, that's what! And now—"

The big fellow muttered to himself. He was evidently delving into the clouded realm of memory.

I"t was them blighted brown devils!" he swore suddenly. "What chance 'as a poor 'unchback against them blasted Japs? They get 'im in 'Onolulu, and, swiggle me stiff, they get 'em in 'Frisco. It was that blasted shark, Ichi! It was Ichi, says I, as took little Billy!"

Japanese! Hunchback! Ichi! Martin seemed to see a light.

"Say, what does little Billy look like?" he queried. "Did he wear a black suit and a green velvet hat?"

"Yes, 'e did," answered the boatswain. "Ave you seen 'imm?"

"Yes, this afternoon." laughed Martin. "You need not worry about your little Billy. Neither the police nor the Japs have captured him. He is improving his chance to pursue the avocation of book salesman."

Martin recounted his meeting with the purveyor of universal knowledge.

"But say," finished Martin, "who is this Ichi you mentioned? Do you know Dr. Ichi?"

"Do I know Dr. Ichi?" echoed the boatswain.

He glowered at Martin. The query seeme dto inflame his temper.

If Martin had been a cautious young man he would have let well enough alone. The sailor seemed a hasty and a heavy-fisted man. But Martin's interest was more than piqued. Here seemed a chance to learn something about a mysterious Japanese.

"Perhaps little Billy is down on the water front," he remarked casually. He mentioned that he was going to look up a fellow by the name of Carew."

The sailor received the remark in a most disconcerting manner. He stiffened and stared at Martin, his mouth agape ,for an appreciable instant. He seemed breathless.

"Carew—Wild Bob Carew!" he cried. "And Wild Bob Carew takes a 'and in this!"

This was progressing!

"You talk of Ichi, and then you talk of Wild Bob Carew!" he said to Martin; "Swiggle me stiff, young man, you must be one of 'em."

His great hands reached forward toward Martin. There was annihilation in his eye.

Dr. Grant Says Capital Inspired Heresy Charge

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Reverend Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, under fire for alleged heretical utterances, charged in his sermon at the Protestant Episcopal church of the Ascension today that the fight against him was inspired by capitalistic interests, working "under the surface" rather than by any true religious zeal to purge the church of apostates.

Dr. Grant referred to his theological views today only to say that were the same views he had been expounding unmolested for 50 years.

He indicated broadly that he intended to continue preaching his conception of a "humanistic" religion even if he had to exchange his pulpit for a street corner soap box.

COTTON REVIEW IS OPTIMISTIC

Strong Position Is Held By Industry

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The statistical position of cotton is usually strong, the department of agriculture announces in a review of the cotton growing industry for 1922.

"The world supply is so limited," says the review, "that it seems unlikely that the rate of consumption prevailing during the last five months of 1922 can continue. If it does, supplies by the end of the season will have come dangerously near the irreducible minimum, and it should be borne in mind that the 1923 crop will not be available to spinners in any appreciable volume, until well into September.

"However, the financia and economical conditions in Europe are very unsettled and should not be overlooked in considering the 1923 cotton market, as America needs European markets for its raw cotton, and to a lesser degree for its cotton goods.

At present there seems to be some inclination among cotton producers to increase the cotton acreage during 1923 and to put forth special efforts in combatting the boll weevil and other insect pests. No doubt the relatively high price of cotton will stimulate such efforts. The feeling seems to be 'more cotton for clothes and less for the boll weevil'.

How To Use Vicks VapoRub For Deep Grippy Colds

First, It Is Very Important That a Thorough Rubefacient or Counter-Irritant Effect Be Produced on the Surface of the Skin Around the Lungs.

This Draws the Blood From the Congested Lungs and Lessens the Danger of Pneumonia.

THEN TREAT WITH VICKS

Deep, grippy colds, frequently leading to pneumonia, have been unusually prevalent this winter. In some sections they are called influenza, but are not so virulent as the influenza cases during the first epidemic, though they are worse than ordinary colds. For these cases the usual light application of Vick's is not sufficient.

The Danger Is From Pneumonia

What is needed therefore is something to decrease the congestion of the lungs. For this purpose there is nothing like a rubefacient or counter-irritant, as witness the use of blisters, poultices and plasters for many generation. This reddening or irritation of the skin causes a rush of blood to the surface; the circulation of warmth and the possibility of pneumonia is greatly lessened.

A "Quick" Rubefacient Needed

The value of this counter-irritant effect is greatly increased if it is produced quickly. Nearly every family has its favorite method—onion poultices, turpentine stupes, mustard plasters and poultice of various kinds are all good.

How to Produce This Effect

Our experiements have shown that an ordinary mustard plaster is very effective. Use one part of mustand to two parts of flour or flaxseed meal for adults, and one to three parts for children under eight years. An even simpler method, particularly for adults, is to apply towels wrung out in very hot water—as hot as the patient can stand. Whatever method is used, the application should be applied over the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. In very deep colds, the sides and especially the back from the middle of the shoulder blades to a point just above the waist, should also be treated. For adults, a hot mustard foot-bath—one tablespoon of mustard to a gallon of water—given at this stage of the treatment, will aid in drawing the blood from the congested parts.

Then Massage With Vicks

After the skin is thoroughly reddened, it should be dried lightly and immediately and the patient should be given a brisk massage with Vicks all over the parts. Continue this for five minutes. This increases the counter-irritant effect. Then apply Vicks thickly over all the parts; that is spread it on like you would a poultice—about one-sixteenth of an inch thick or more—and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

Vicks Acts Like a Vapor Lamp

The advantage of applying Vicks thickly over the body is this: Vicks is so made that the body heat gradually releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. The more Vicks applied, the stronger will be the vapors and the longer these vapors will last. The night clothing should always be loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel. These vapors being lighter than air rise up from the chest and, if the clothing is properly arranged, pass by the nose and mouth and are thus inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication directly through the air passages to the lungs. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

Repeat the Entire Treatment

When the vapors begin to lose their strength, fresh Vicks should be applied over the parts. This to keep up the continuous supply of vapors. When the redness of the skin begins to die out, all the Vicks remaining should be wiped off and the entire treatment repeated. That is, the hot wet towels or mustard plasters should be used until the skin is again thoroughly reddened, then massage with Vicks, spread on thickly and cover with hot flannels, just as previously done.

Cann Add Mustard to Vicks

This redness of the skin should last for two or three hours, but varies with different patients. Some skins are much more senstative than others. This redness can be prolonged by mixing a little ordinary powdered mustard with Vicks—about one part of mustard to four parts Vicks, but this can be varied according to the patient's skin. Just enough mustard should be used to keep up the counter-irritant effect for two to four hours, so that the wet towels or mustard plasters will not have to be used so frequently as to prevent the patient from resting.

Use a Tea-Kettle

Sometimes when the patient is badly choked up, the vapors from the application on the chest are not sufficient to make the breathing easier. In these cases drop a tablespoonful of Vicks into a kettle of boiling water and allow the patient to inhale the warm steam and vapors, combined for about 10 minutes. Do this several times a day if needed. Keep the water boiling and put in additional Vicks whenever the vapors decrease. Put a sheet over the patient and the tea-kettle, making a kind of a tent, so as to confine the vapors. An ordinary steam vaporizer is even more convenient than a tea-kettle.

Seanty Applications Useless

This is a vigorous treatment, but to check congestion requires vigorous measures. Vicks must be used freely to be effective. The cost of this treatment is insignificant compared with the results which are frequently obtained.

Does Not Take the Place of the Physician

In all cases a physician should be called. These deep colds are too serious and have too many complications to rely entirely on any home medication. Vicks, however, does not interfere with any treatment that the doctor may prescribe. In addition the formula of Vicks is given on every circular so there is no reason why any doctor should object to its use except the fact that a few physicians do not care to use anything which is advertised directly to the public.

A Pharmacist's Discovery

Vicks VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina pharmacist. From the back room of a little drug store its use has grown until today literally tens of millions of families are never without the family blue jar. It is their standby for all forms of cold troubles and, in addition, is useful for the many minor ailments of the home. It is particularly a boon to mothers with small children, because it is externally applied.

Over 17 million jars are used yearly in the United States alone.—Adv.

Repealers of the open port law enacted by the Hobby administration are up against a stone wall. Every rail executive in the state or legal representative of a rail executive attended the hearing on the Rogers bill. Representative Rogers hails from Harris county. Democrats of Harris county in convention assembled, adopted a resolution demanding the repeal of this law. This called to Austin powerful advocates of the law, the bill was threshed out at a joint meeting of the senate and the house committees and then the committees made unfavorable report on the measure which makes certain its death for this session at least.

It is contended by leaders of organized labor that the open port law makes the winning of a labor strike absolutely impossible as the rangers lose no time in breaking the back of the strike.

There were several hundred affidavits gathered by strikers and their sympathizers concerning the methods employed by Adjutant General Barton and his men. These affidavits were finally tossed aside by the joint committee and then the repealers admit that they found themselves in a hopeless minority. They are going to make their fight within the democratic party two years hence and particular attention will be given to the legislative districts of the state. Senator Joe Burkett is said to be in deep sympathy with the repealers not so much in opposition to the law as to the methods employed by those who enforce it.

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

THE ABSOLUTE DEPOSTISM

Because it has been the custom to do anything, is always sufficient warrant for doing it, whether it is not an intelligent thing to do.

The fear of "making oneself ridiculous" which is one of the most powerful influences upon all human action, is merely the fear of violating customs.

There was a time not many years ago, when half the baseball players of the size and shape now chiefly seen o fthe size and shape now chiefly seen adorning the upper lips of police captains.

Today no baseball player would dare appear on the diamond with a mousache.

Thousands of "young men about town" would be afraid to show their faces in their familiar haunts for a year if they had, in a moment of forgetfulness, appeared at a dinner without the clothes usually worn to dinners.

It has been said that a gentleman is a person who takes better care of his finger nails than he does of his morals.

The custom among gentlemen for many centuries has been to keep the finger nails immaculate.

Unfortunately the same custom has not prevailed as to morals.

There is a certain duty that every one owes to society, a certain conformity to what it regards as what ought to be done.

But the most cruel and absolute despotism today is that of custom.

And the most helpless and abject creature in the whole world is he who is its slave—who has to stop and think before he takes any action, as to whether it is something that is "done."

Geniuses are never custom bound. Neither are men of genuine independence.

There is a sharp line between what ought to be done because it is right, and what ought to be done because it is customary.

Custom must be violated repeatedly by all thinking men if they expect to rise above their fellow men. For custom is an average of the actions of average human beings. Sometmies it is right and sometimes it is wrong. But the name may be said of despotisms.

The man who thinks that merely by violating custom he is doing something wise and individual and distinctive, is in grave danger of making a real fool of himself.

The best guide is to put every custom to the test of careful thought, and to abide by it or to refuse to abide by it as it seems wise or founded in sane stupid superstition, or on the condition that arose in an age long since dead.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO MARY IN HEAVEN.

Thou lingering star, with lessening ray,
That lov'st to greet the early morn,
Again thou usher'st in the day
My Mary from my soul was torn.

O Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
Seest thou thy lover lowly laid
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

That sacred hour can I forget,
Can I forget the hallow'd grove,
Where by the winding Ayre we met,
To live one day of parting love?
Eternity will not efface
Those records dear of transports past;
Thy image at our last embrace;
Ah! little thought we 'twas our last!

Ayr gurgling kiss'd his pebbled shore,
O'erhung with wild woods, thickening, green,
The fragrant birch, and hawthorne hoar,
Twined amorous round the raptured scene.

The flowers sprang wanton to be press'd,
The birds sang love on every spray,
Till too, too soon the glowing west
Proclaimed the speed of wing'd day.

Still o'er these scenes my memory wakes,
And fondly broods with miser care!
Time but the impression deeper makes,
As streams their channels deeper wear.

My Mary, deer departed shade!
Where is thy blissful place of rest?
Seest thou thy lovely lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

German Fascisti Hold Twelve Big Meetings

MUNICH, Jan. 28.—German fascisti succeeded in holding 12 largely attended meetings tonight, by reason of an eleventh hour dispensation of the police, who removed the previous embargo when Adolph Hitler, leader of the organization, promised that the meetings would proceed quietly and that no anti-government demonstration would be attempted.

Herr Hitler went by automobile from one meeting to another and was loudly cheered when he declared that all German eyes today were turning to Munich, where the thought of national unity was being vigorously promulgated.

How false is the dictum
That a tubercular victim
Must hunt for his health in the west;
For, surrounded by friends
And a few laying hens,
His chances at home are the best.

With his cough and a ticket
To some western thicket
Out in the dry atmosphere—
Why, surrounded by friends
And a few laying hens,
His chances are better right here.

Sick folks often seek health while running away from it.

Local sanatoria is the solution of the tuberculosis problem.

The doctor we hear about is always better than the one we know about.

Undertakers now call themselves "Morticians." Editors, we suppose, will soon be known as Editicians.

In the wake of winter and bad housing follow chronic diseases of which tuberculosis is the chief offender.

When money is limited it is better to concentrate on food and care, in the home treatment of tuberculosis, than to waste it on the desert air.

Unless provided with ample funds with which to secure popre food, patients with tuberculosis should avoid the arid west.

It is estimated that one person in every 53 has active tuberculosis. Furthermore, a tenth of the victims die each year; that is, for every death there are nine active cases.

A NEW PRISON HORROR

(Many of the convicts in Sing Sing have lately taken to writing poetry.)

When Number Nine-Eighty objects to the chops
That they serve in the prison cafe,
His knife and his fork and his napkin he drops
And scribbles the following lay:

"Me molars is nicked; me bicuspids is bent,
Me jawbone is lame to de ears;
But dem chops wot you give us shows never a dent.
Dat sheep must 'a' lived enighty years!"

When Seven-Eleven observes that the cot
In his cell is uncomfortably hard,
In meter he roundly complains of his lot,
For Seven-Eleven's a bard:

"Dem bunks ain't a place where a turtle would flop
If a comfortable stump was in sight,
If you want to be nice to me, Warden Ole Top,
Lemme sleep on de rockpile tonight!"

In cell and in corridor, all the day long,
At work and at play and at meals,
From the convicts the music of improvised song
Bursts forth in continuous peals.

They sing as the boulders with hammers they hit;
They sing as they're running about;
Till the Warden declares that they simply must quit
Or he surely will put them all out.

WHO'S WHO

JAMES SIMPSON.

Once more an office boy has risen to the president's chair of one of the world's largest industrial corporations. James Simpson, after thirty-two years of service with Marshall Field & Co., recently made president of that mammoth company to succeed John G. Shedd, is proud of the fact that he started at the bottom.

Simpson is only forty-nine years old. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and brought to this country when only six years old. He went to the public schools and business college in Chicago. He entered the employ of the Field company as an office boy when he later was seventeen. A few years later he was made confidential secretary to Marshall Field and he remained in that office until the great merchant died in 1906. He was then made second vice-president and assistant to the president. The following year he became first vice-president.

In 1908 Simpson went to France to assist in extending the organization of the American Red Cross. He was also a member of the capital issues committee during the war. He is director in several philanthropic and welfare organizations in Chicago.

Simpson has a dynamic personality and is described by his friends "as smart as a steel trap."

JIMMIE AND DAD RADIO STORIES

LII.—Jimmie and Harry Co-Operate Like an American Gob and a British Limie.

(By Broad Catser)

"Now that we have all the junk to make a CW set, let's go to it, Jimmie."

"All right, Harry. Where in the world did you round up your ideas on that CW oscillator coil system, Harry? Why don't you collect a real flock of ideas. I have a dandy diagram in dad's red book of one that will work nicely on 200 meters. Take three coils, wind about ten turns of wire on a four-inch cardboard tube for the antenna coil, and then wind about 20 turns of bell wire on another tube four and one half inches in diameter, and cap each turn of wire. Next take a small piece of formica panel and place taps on each. Let's call the upper tap the plate coil tap, and the lower one the grid coil tap. Then cut the two coils in two in the middle, making two coils of ten turns each. Then we will have three coils of ten turns maximum apiece."

"Yes, that will be all right providing it will work all right. But how do you know will work, Jimmie?"

"Oh, I got a hunch it will work if you will only folow all the plants 'egzakly'."

"All right, shoot ahead, teacher's pet."

"Say, now look here, you old principal apologizer, you cut out all that rought stuff."

"Oh, come on now, Jimmie, I was only kiddin'."

"All right. I saw a set like the one I'm telling you about and it worked fine. Put out over one end a half amp on 200 meters. Nexa, let's take a rod and make a sliding rack so the antenna coil can slide in and out of the other tube as far as about three inches. This will give loose coupling for sharp tuning. This set is known as a positive oscillating set and will not change wave length at all. Now connect the antenna to one side of the antenna enodenser then the other side of the condenser on the antenna coil. Connect the opposite side of the antenna coil to the ground. Nexa connect one side of the plate coil to ground and the other side through our one thousandth microfarad mica condenser to the plates of the two tubes. Got that done?

"Yep, that's done."

"All right, now connect your grids of the two tubes through the grid coil and then through th one thousandth microfarad mica condenser, shunted by a 2,500-ohm grid leak to ground. Next connect the negative of the 500-watt generator to ground and the positive to the generator to a one-thousand turn honeycomb coil to the plates of the tubes."

"That's easy, I have all that. What do you do next?"

"Let's see if we have it all right first. Yes that is all O. K. Next better place a one microfarad tinfoil condenser across the 500-watt generator terminals to keep out any kickbacks from the generator."

"Wait till I find one. I had about ten of them her that I got from the telephone company last year to play with."

"All right now, Harry, we are now ready. Where is your antenna ammeter?"

"There it is. It reads three amps. Is that enough?"

"Yes that may be too big for we haven't the thing going yes. Hurrah! All right, throw in the juice, Harry."

"Look out Jimmie, you will get burned."

"Oh, I'm only trying to get a peep out of it. You see, Harry, I have to turn the antenna condenser to see if she will percolate."

"There isn't a single thing doing. Guess you don't know your stuff, Mister Jimmie, even though you have been blowing about seeing one work at the factory. I guess you're not so good."

Self-Mastery Through Auto-Suggestion

By DR. EMILE COUE.

DR. COUE DISPELS APPREHENSION OF REAL DANGER IN AUTO SUGGESTION

The Moral Aspects of its Practice Weigh as Advocate Says "You Must Know How to Use It!"

Perhaps my statement that, imprudently, suggestion, is a dangerous thing will be recalled and it be said that it can be used for evil purposes.

This is no valid objection; first, because the practice of suggestion would be confided only to reliable and honest people, to the reformatory doctors, for instance: and in the second hand, those who seek to use suggestion for evil ask no one's permission!

But even admitting that it offers some danger I should like to ask whoever proffers the objections, to tell me what thing we use that is not dangerous?

Is it steam? Gunpowder? Railways? Ships? Electricity? Automobiles? Aeroplanes?

Are the poisons not dangerous which we doctors and chemists, use daily in minute doses, and which might easily destroy the patient if in a moment's carelessness, we unfortunately made a mistake is weighing them out?

Auto suggestion is an instrument which you have to learn how to use just as you must learn how to use any other instrument.

An excellent gun in inexperienced hands gives only disappointing results, but the more skilled the same hands become, the more easily they place the bullets in the target.

"If you formerly alowed yourself to make bad auto suggestions because you did it unconsciously, now that you know what I have just taught you, you must no longer let this happen I told one disciple. "And if in spite of all, you still do it, you must only accuse yourself, and say 'Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa.'"

The means employed by all healers go back to auto suggestion. That is to say that these methods whatever they are—words, incantations, gestures, staging—all produce in the patient the auto suggestion of recovery.

Let me quote here, for it sets forth succinctly and truly what I may call the ethical surrounding of our principle—the followig paragraphs from "Culture de la Force Morale," by C. Baudouin."

"To have and to inspire unalterable confidence, one must walk with the assurance of perfect sincerity, and in order to possess this assurance and sincerity, one must wish for the good of others more than one's own."

With pride in the method and not from any personal point of view, I quote here some excerpts bearing, I think, effectively on the moral aspect of the practice. These quotations are designed for good which auto suggestion is, "The "danger" of its use for evil is as nothing.

From the Description of a "Seance"

"The town thrills at this name, (Coue) for from every rank of society people come to him and everyone is welcomed with the same benevolence which already goes for a good deal.

"But what is extremely poignant, is at the end of the seance, to see the people who came in gloomy, bent almost hostile (they were in pain), go away like everybody else; unconstrained, cheerful, sometimes radiant (they are no longer in pain!)

"With a strong and smiling goodness of which he has the secret, M. Coue, as it were, holds the hearts of those who consult him in his hand he addresses himself in turn to the numerous persons who come to consult him, and, speaks to them in these terms:

"'Well, Madame, and what is your trouble?"

'Oh, you are looking for two many whys and wherefores; what does the cause of your pain matter to you? You are in pain, that is enough—I will teach you to get rid of that."

"For the Good of Humanity."

"Your lecture interested us very much. It would be desirable for the good of humanity, that your words should be published in several languages, so that they might penetrate to every race and country. Thus they might reach a greater number of unfortunate people who suffer from the wrong use of that all-powerful (and almost divine) faculty—the most important to man, as you affirm and prove so luminously and judicously—which we call the imagination.

"I have already read many boons on the will, and had quite an arsenal of formulae thoughts, asphorisms, etc!

"Your phrases are conclusive. I do not think that ever before have "compressed tablets of self confidence." as I call your healing phrases, been condensed, into typical formulae in such an intelligent manner.

"Don Enrique C—,
"Madrid."

On the Spur of the Moment

DR. COUE

I do not know Dr. Coue,
But I have read through his book.
It's plain to me the methods that he
Sets forth have a sensible look.
Brain is a sensative tissue.
Mind is quite easily swayed,
It can be turned, we've already learned,
By every emotion that's played.
Mine is susceptible, very
Others can fuddle it, right.
Others can sway my mind any way
And make me believe black is white.

Outsiders easily swing me,
For this own reasons of pelf.
So why shouldnt I provide I try,
Perform that same trick on myself?

"Master your mind" is the watchword.
He does that cannot fail.
Make it your slave from the cradle to grave
And you'll have the world by the tail.

President of Long Island Railroad says you can raise anything on a farm if you try, but one of the hardest darned thing to raise on a farm, we believe, is the mortgage.

MARCELLETTE

He had worked hard all of his life and she had helped him. They had amassed a comfortable fortune and decided to live in the gay city of Paris. At first all went well; but then they began going around with the fast set. They knew more about dancing, G. H. A chap with an Argentinian mother and a Portuguese father came into their lives and she thought he danced divinely. He did; but he also knew women.

SWEET INFAN

The new year looks so innocent,
So pure and so discreet;
A rosy, blushing chrub, with
A disposition sweet.

But fie upon appearances,
Look out for conduct bolder.
It will grow more cantankerous
When it's a little older.

Mexia Raises Big Sum For Y.M.C.A.

Special to Record News.
MEXIA, Jan. 28.—A campaign to raise an appropriation for the building of a Y.M.C.A. in Mexia was partially closed Saturday with $80,050 subscribed. This campaign was headed by Col. J. K. Hughes, well known oil man, assisted by Dr. David Carson Barless of Denver, Colo., secretary of the Humphreys Foundation, the Mexia chamber of commerce and others.
The first installment on subscriptions will be due March 1st, and a building committee was appointed and Colonel Humphreys left instructions which contemplated the actual beginning of the building by April 1.
The building will be located at the corner of Sherman and Main streets in the heart of the business district.

British Recovers World Commerce

British trade territory both from war time maladjustment and from the depression of 1921 is well under way, says Commerce Monthly, the magazine of the National Bank of Commerce in New York.
"British foreign trade has enjoyed a gradual but none the less substantial improvement during the past year. This fact is of significance because the commerce of the United Kingdom affords one of the most sensitive indications of the general trend of production and trade throughout the entire world. It is of particular interest to the United States, since Great Britain is our main foreign customer, taking not far from one-quarter of total American exports and furnishing the principal market abroad for such important agricultural products as cotton, wheat and meats."

Oil Tax Attacked By Humphreys

Special to Record News.
MEXIA, Jan. 28.—Col. A. E. Humphreys, the well known president of the Humphreys Oil company and other Humphrey interests, left Mexia at noon Saturday for Denver, where is to meet Mrs. Humphreys, leaving in a few days for an extended trip to points in Europe on what is known as the Mediterranean tour.
Colonel Humphreys expressed confidence in the future of the Mexia field stating that developments in Texas had just begun provided the oil companies were given a square deal with reference to taxes.
"I regarded the present attempt to tax the oil companies 5 per cent on the gross production as a very bad mistake if permitted to be put into execution.
"It amounts to confiscation," said the Colonel, "and is just killing the goose that laid the golden eggs for no producing company can pay these enormous taxes and live, especially in view of the other taxes already saddled on the oil industry."

PEACE PARLEY NEAR COLLAPSE SAY DELEGATES

Turkish Sovereignty Asked By Ismet Is Proposed

By Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 28.—So far apart have the Turks and the allies drifted that Lausanne is confronted tonight with the probability that the near eastern conference will adjourn without reaching an agreement. Such at least, is the view voiced by practically all the delegations.

With their traditional tenacity the British are clinging to the hope that the Turks will sign, but in this they stand alone. Ambassador Child, by conferring with Ismet Pasha and Lord Curzon, is contributing his bit to saving the conference from collapse.

The conference can be saved, Ismet Pasha and Riza Nur Bey, the Turkish delegates informed the Associated Press late tonight, if the allies are willing to adopt a set of essential principles recognizing the complete sovereignty of Turkey, with total abolition of the capitulations and an equitable distribution of the Ottoman debt.

Riza Nur Bey said that if the conference did this, Turkey's national dignity and primary rights as an independent nation would be safeguarded; the details of the treaty could then be worked out later by the experts.

Armenians Accept.

The Armenian delegation announced today that they had accepted with gratitude Russia's generous offer of asylum to 250,000 Armenians, now for the most part refugees in Greece, Bulgaria and Syria. Unhappily, the Moscow government cannot stand the expense of transporaion and insallation of this multitude, and the Armenian delegation hopes that other countries will follow the example of Russia and "philantbropically help in the noble work of establishing the Armenians in their new Russian homes."

MAN FLOGGED; LEFT FOR DEAD

Famly Finds Kansan Behnd Barn

By Associated Press.

BONER SPRINGS, Kan., Jan. 28.—Sanford Harrington, 14, was beaten unconscious last night by two unidentified men and left for dead in a barn in the rear of the Harrington home near here. Sanford was the brother of Leon Harrington, who was slain on Nov. 7, on a road between Bonner Springs and Tonganoxie.

The belief that Leon Harington was a victim of a feud existing between the Harrington family and another family was given some credence tonight by the authorities here.

Harrington was found by a member of his family and carried to the house. Physicians said he was not seriously injured. He regained consciousness about an hour and a half later and told of the attack.

Investigation Of Oil Industry Will End Soon

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Plans have been made by the senate manufactures sub-committee investigating practices and prices in the oil industry to bring the inquiry to an end within ten days, it was announced today by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, chairman of the sub-committee. As soon as the hearings are closed work will be started by the committee on its report, which will be presented to the senate before adjournment of congress March 4.

Five complaints are listed for hearings this week.

Refuses To Appeal

Ardmore Citizens Face Trial Today; Demurrer Sought

DEBT BEGINS TO WORRY BRITISH

Public Disappionted In U. S. Plan

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The frank and plainspoken exposition made by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer of what he considers the reason for the failure of his mission to Washington in an endeavor to arrange for the funding of Great Britain's debt to the United States, comes as an unpleasant surprise to the British public.

The public had been led by semi-official utterances to believe a satisfactory adjustment of the matter would not be difficult; hence the question again to the forefront of public attention and is considered to present to the new government of Andrew Bonar Law, which was elected on a policy of economy and retrenchment, a very awkward problem.

Acceptance of the American terms will mean, it is said, a yearly burden of more than 30,000,000 pounds on the British exchequer for the next sixty years. The government is confronted with demands for reductions in the income tax and the duty on beer. How to meet these demands with paying 30,000,000 annually to the United States is the government's dilema.

It is clearly evident from statements published here during the week end that the British government had anticipated being able to fund the debt on an interest basis nearer two per cent than three per cent or 20,000,000 pounds annually.

Eulogies were delivered by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, Warren of Wyoming, Nelson of Minnesota, McCumber of North Dakota, Moses of New Hampshire, Walsh of Montana, and Pepper and Reed of Pennsylvania.

Crow."

Eleven Charged With Killing of Farmer; Activities of Masked Bands Are Involved

By Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Okla., Jan. 28.—The hearing of a demurrer to the sufficiency of the charges, offered by nine of the defendants will, it was indicated tonight, precede the opening of the trial here tomorrow of 11 prominent citizens charged with the murder of Joe Carroll, farmer, who lived near Wilson on December 15, 1921. Two of the defendants, it is said, will ask for a severance.

The trial will mark the reopening of a case, which assumed proportions unique in the annals of the state. It involved the alleged participation of the ku klux klan, the imprisonment for a period of 17 well known men, and an appeal for the declaration of martial law in Carter county.

Two Deaths Follow.

Two other deaths followed the alleged murder of Carroll, who, it is charged, was shot to death with a gun in his hands after he had been called to the door of his home by a group of masked men. Statements said to have been obtained by counyt officials, said that after Carroll's death members of his family opened fire on the masked party.

John Smith of Wilson was found wounded near the Carroll home, and died later at a Wilson hospital. C. C. Sims, Ardmore police detective, was found dead at a point near Joiner City, which was described by Jeff Smith, brother of John Smith, as the meeting grounds."

Jeff Smith himself was wounded by a bullet, and is one of the 11 defendants. He and J. A .Gilliam, another defendant, have announced they will ask severances.

Masked Men Carried Tar.

Statements made by county officials after an investigation, indicated that the masked men called on Carroll equipped with buckets of tar and a sack of feathers after he had received a warning to stop selling liquor or leave the county.

After the arrest of the 17 men following the murder, the sheriff received a warning purporting to be from "Ardmore Klan No. 7," that the jail would be stormed. The jail was filled with deputies but the attack failed to develop.

Freeling Takes Charge.

At the time an investigation of alleged lax law enforcement in Carter county was under way by the attorney general, directed by Former Governor J. B. A. Robertson. After a delegation of citizens had asked the governor to declare martial law which he refused, he ordered Attorney General S. P. Freeling to personally take charge of the case, at the preliminary hearing. Other county officers were superceded by special orders.

The refusal of one of the witnesses Frank Bourland, to answer on the stand 17 categorical questions regarding the klan, ended the first hearing December 22. Two hours before it was to be resumed, December 27, the attorney general announced it would be set over to the next term of court and the defendants freed on $10,000 bonds.

"Boat Tail" Bullet Perfected By Army Experts Needs Address Only

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Work of army experts since the war has produced a new bullet for use in rifles and machine guns which is expected to add enormously to the effectiveness of these weapons in any future conflicts.

The new bullet is known as a "boat tail," because of a six degree taper at the tail. Exhaustive tests by the army have shown that the change in shape has given wings to the bullets, adding 1,400 yards to the maximum range attained and flattening the trajectory or arc of flight at 1,000 yards, approximately thirty per cent.

In addition the army experts have worked out a new jacket for the bullets that virtually eliminates fouling of gun barrels.

Tests of the army infantry school have fixed the maximum range of the new bullet at 4,800 yards, as compared to 3,450 yards with the present ammunition. It also has been demonstrated that at six hundred yards with the new ammunition it is possible to put every shot into a circle the size of a teacup as the "boat tail" bullet is less subject to wind current reflection.

The army has in reserve a vast store of war time rifle ammunition which will be used up before any project of equipping with the new "model 1922 E" boat-tail bullet ammunition is undertaken.

RAIL WORKERS QUIT POSTS AS FRENCH ARRIVE

Church Goers Unable To Return Home On Trains

By Associated Press.

DUSSELDORF, Jan. 28.—The telegraph and telephone central stations went on strike at 7 o'clock this evening. They took this action in protest against the presence of the French soldiers.

DUSSELDORF, Jan. 28.—"De Profundis" was the prayer that went forth from millions of persons assembled in the Catholic churches of the Rhineland and the Ruhr tonight in compliance with a pastoral letter from Cardinal Schulte.

The cardinal himself, officiated in the Cologne cathedral, where the service was a most impressive one. Many persons from surrounding towns along the Rhine, who went to Cologne to attend the service proceeded afterwards to the railway station where they found the railway strike so effective that they were unable to leave the city.

In Coblenz the railroad strike also is complete. Likewise at Bonn not a wheel is turning. There was a huge demonstration by the students at Bonn this afternoon but no clashes of a serious nature took place. The train service is paralyzed between Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Essen. No mail has arrived here from Paris or Berlin in two days.

Coblenz Troubles French.

The French are having trouble with the Coblenz population. Quiet and orderly during the American occupation of this area, the population has become unruly.

The strike of the railroad men in the Ruhr is growing proportionately with the taking over of the stations by the French. As soon as the French arrived on the railroad men quit their jobs.

Dortmund alone remains the open door into the interior of Germany. When the French close this gateway complete isolation of the Ruhr will be only a question of a few hours.

"I shall not bring it up," said M. Branting, "if after consulting my colleagues on the council, I find it will be disagreeable to any of the chiefly interested countries."

Healy's Guards Exchange Shots With Irish Rebs

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—The rebel campaign of murder and destruction continues unabated, and although these activities are mostly in the provinces Dublin itself is not exempt. It was nearly half an hour before the attacking party retired.

About the same time the Marlborough barracks was similarly attacked.

The coming week probably will be a crowded one for both houses, for the marking the close of the first half of the regular 60-day session.

325 BARRELS IN HOUR FROM WORSHAM TEST

Huge Crouds Visit Well Through Sunday

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Jan. 28.—Interest in the Worsham No. 1 well, brought in by the Gulf company on the Carl Worsham ranch near here Saturday afternoon, mounted rapidly Sunday morning when 325 barrels of oil were produced in less than an hour's time. The well flowed by heads throughout Saturday night and Sunday morning, producing approximately 140 barrels of oil prior to the biggest spurt of the day which came between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Production Lost.

Much of the production was lost Sunday because of a shortage of storage facilities. Two 500 barrel tanks were being rushed to the test Sunday night with promise of being installed Monday morning. The one 500 barrel tank on the lease was filled Sunday afternoon and production after that was a total loss.

With prospects of a new field opening up, Clay county turned out in full force Sunday to visit the test. Thousands milled around the well throughout the day, the majority of the sightseers treking in from Henrietta, Bellevue, Vashti and other Clay county communities although many Wichita Falls visitors were numbered among those on the ground at some time through the day. Scores of prominent oil men were included in the crowds.

Reports of deals and impending deals for acreage around the test were many Sunday. R. S. Huffman and associates of Breckenridge were reported to have closed a lease on 2500 acres in the Antelope community, in the southwest part of Clay county, where drilling is to be started immediately. A Standard rig is now on the groud to be used on a 3500 foot test. 5 Year Sentence In Pen Given Mrs. Bell For Slaying DeMoss

MAN SHOT IN SUNDAY FIGHT

J. A. Bird's Wounds Not Serious

J. A. Bird, an employe of a local piano company, was shot and painfully wounded early Sunday following an altercation at the home of J. T. Parr, two miles east of town on the Henrietta road. Parr is being held in the county jail in connection with the shooting.

It was not thought last night that Bird's wounds would prove serious. Four shots were fired at him, according to Chief of Police McCormick and Deputy Sheriff Jack Miller, but only one of these took effect. A bullet entered the man's left side, below the ribs, passed through the fleshy portion and came out again. It then penetrated the palm of the left hand, passing entirely through. Reports from attending physicians were that none of the vital organs had been touched by the shot and that serious complications were not expected.

Bird was not taken to a hospital, but was removed to his room in a local hotel.

Police were unable to learn the motive of the shooting last night. A call to the Parr home was received at 7:30 and Chief McCormick with Deputy Sheriff Miller, immediately responded. Parr was taken into custody a short distance away from his home, the officers reported, and a pistol was found on his person. A further investigation of the affair is planned for today.

Cox Condemns French Invasion Of Ruhr Valley

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Expressing his opinion that the invasion of Germany by France was a mistake, James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, and democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920, in an address here today declared "the time has come when no question should be settled by force of arms."

"We kept politics out of the war, but unfortunately the tasks of peace became embroiled in our politics by the senatorial mound robin," said Mr. Cox. "It created an international disaster that is recognied now even by partisians. It is but a waste of time to elaborate upon the mistakes and misfortunes of the past. The one vital living question now is, what can be done to save the world's threatened civilization. Certainly there is agreement in the proposition that there can be nothing worth while accepted without co-ordinated international endeavors and there con be no efficient merging of purpose without American participation.

Verdict Is Returned At Noon Sunday After Short Trial Of Only Three Days

A verdict of guilty and a sentence of 5 years in the penitentiary was returned Sunday against Mrs. Ida Bell, charged with the murder of G. A. DeMoss. The verdict was returned in the 30th district court a few minutes before noon after the jury had been out since 6:15 o'clock Saturday night. Whether an appeal will be taken could not be learned Sunday.

On Trial Thursday.

Mrs. Bell went on trial Thursday morning. She was charged with having killed DeMoss on the porch of the Electra hotel, in Electra, September 27, last. Testimony given by herself in the course of the trial was to the effect that she shot DeMoss to "save her life and home." At no time after the homicide did the defendant deny having fired the fatal shots. DeMoss died September 29, in a Wichita Falls hospital.

Intimate Relations.

Testimony brought out in court Saturday developed that intimate relations had existed between she Mrs. Bell and DeMoss while they were both living at the Electra hotel last year. The woman declared that DeMoss' actions in persuading her to attempt to secure a divorce, followed by her discovery that he had no intentions of marrying her after a divorce was obtained, led to a breaking off of their relations. This, she averred, angered the man so that she was moved to shoot him after he had threatened her own life.

Bahama Isles, Enriched By Liquor Smuggling, Turn Deaf Ear to Drys

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Liquor is now being smuggled into the United States from the Bahama islands at the rate of 1,200,000 gallons annually, while the government and population of that British colony, getting "relatively immense revenues from the traffic," are absolutely indisposed to sympathize with efforts to check it, according to a statement issued today by Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, based, he declared, on official data furnished him by the state department.

From the duties on Whiskey alone, Mr. Rogers said the islands are driving an income three times as great as their government revenues from all sources in 1918, while the estimated profits of those interested in the traffic, including members of the elected legislative body, are said to be enriching.

Mr. Rogers declared the state department report "read like a book of fiction" in describing the mushroom growth—still continuing—of what he classed as "an established practice with great capital and organized procedure," of running liquor into the United States through the screen erected by prohibition enforcement agents.

Up to 1919, Mr. Rogers asserted the annual imports of liquor to the Bahamas were 50,000 gallons, while for 1922 they amounted to 1,200,000 gallons.

"To the last quaft, I am advised, the liquors are shipped to the United States. All told 2,000,000 gallons have found their way into the country, all the way from Norfolk, Philadelphia and New York as far east as Boston."

Hagen Captures Texas Open Golf Title By One Stroke

MEHLHORN AGAIN MISSES PUTT NEEDED

Big Purse Is Decided After Thrilling Match

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 28.—Walter Hagen, American holder of the British open golf championship, added the Texas open title to his list of wins here today when Bill Mehlhorn, Shreveport, La., missed a foot and a half putt on the last green which had he made, would have meant another tie for the $1,500 prize. At the end of the 72 holes of the match yesterday the two golfers had 279 strokes each and an 18 hole match had to be played off to decide the winner today.

It was one of the most thrilling matches ever played in San Antonio and was witnessed by approximately 10,000 spectators. Throughout the match Hagen was to the bad with the Shreveport golfer and led him on but two holes. The British title holder was off his putting game and he gave away several strokes by missing one and two foot putts.

Mehlhorn came to the 17th hole being one stroke down to Hagen. Both golfers put their irons on the green, which is 175 yards, Mehlhorn being the farthest away had about a ten yard putt. He lined up the ball, took distance, cleared the way and sunk the putt which looked as if it would win him the match. Hagen [illegible] putts in this green after him and pulled the long putt.

Bill Gets Into Trouble.

On the 18th hole Bill drove his ball high and it caught a valley taking it into the creek. It hit a rock on one of the trees and fell back into the fairway. Hagen's drive was for 290 yards straight down the middle of the course. On the second shot Bill put the ball about 15 yards short of the green. Hagen pitched to the green and rolled 12 feet past the cup. Bill's next shot put him eight feet from the pin. Hagen then tried to sink for a three but his ball rimmed the cup and jumped out. He took a four on the hole.

Bill lined up the putt and took his time. That putt meant $700 to him or Hagen. He hit the ball. It rolled past the cup about a foot and a half. He sighted the putt from all angles of the green, walked back to his ball to sink what everyone thought was a cinch, to tie the British holder for the second time. He hit the ball. It rimmed the cup and jumped out—he had lost his chance at the Texas title and the $1500 first money purse.

RUHR SITUATION WORRIES POPE

Events Are Watched By Vatican

BY GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright 1923 by International News Service)

ROME, Jan. 28.—Pope Pius XI is deeply worried over the situation in the Ruhr but believes it would be unwise for the Vatican to make any move toward intervention at the present time, it was learned through official channels.

"The pontiff is anxious over possible consequences of occupation of the Ruhr by the French, but he does not believe it will lead to actual war." Vatican Secretary Pizzardo told International News Service. "His holiness does not believe that the present is a psychological time to attempt to intervene. He thinks that neither the Germans nor the French want intervention at this moment. Consequently, nothing is being done by the Vatican in a political way. The pope is hopeful that the whole trouble will be smoothed out and that hostilities will not follow."

Vatican officials are watching the Rhineland developments closely.

It is significant to note that the Thyssen family in the Rhineland the most powerful coal and iron magnates in the Ruhr aside from the Stinnes family, are devout Roman Catholics. All their holdings have been taken over by the French.

Two Killed When Boiler Explodes

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Two men were killed and two others were injured today when the boiler of an engine which they were repairing in the Pennsylvania railroad yards here exploded. Julius Grill, 50 years old, a boilermaker, was almost instantly killed, and Joseph Horan, 51 years old a boilermaker, died of scalds.

It's a wise herding that knows its not a whale.

Ehmke Is Wild Youth

Howard Ehmke, lean and lanky right handed hurler, has been traded. Detroit swapped Ehmke and Carl Holling to Boston for Rip Collins and Derill Pratt.

For the edification of law abiding fans who are often puzzled at the why and wherefore of these numerous trades, we are prepared to let them in on the ground floor of this Ehmke deal.

There's nothing about Ehmke's pitching. He broke even last year, winning 17 games and losing the same number. He struck out 108 men all told. Very good, so far but here is where the shoe begins to get a half unison on the Instep. Ehmke hit 20 batsmen in various sections of the anatomy last season. He soaked eight more customers than the next highest bird on the "hit the batter" list. Limps and groans were the order of the day after Howard had been on the slab. Arnica and witchhazel flowed over the team like a pocket edition of Niagara Falls.

Several of the boys who felt the little, leather bound pellet smash up against a leg or sink in between a couple of ribs played with Boston and returning to the Hub city, were forced to suffer much embarassment by limping around the lobbies which were generally filled with good looking tourists or gals from the stage. Something had to be done and from all appearances they did it.

However, this may be entirely wrong. We're not asking you to take our word for it. Howard may have been intensely fond of baked beans and brought the whole thing about by his own maneuvering or it may have been one of those deals which the moguls pull off in the front room when not arguing with the official statisticians. Anyway, Ehmke goes to Boston, so there you are.

The rest of the American league circuit gents are taking a farewell look at the old home town before starting south and with the exception of the Boston Red Sox, the boys will soon have a petition before their respective managers demanding galvanized union suits to be worn when Ehmke is pitching.

Billy Whiskers

By Francis Montgomery.

"Gee, Bobbie," said Johnnie when he heard Bobbie's mother tell Sarah to put a little chicken in with Bobbie's bread and milk, "your mother is tender-hearted! Mine would not give me even molasses on my bread. If she said bread and milk it would be bread and milk!"

"I know I am a terrible trial to mother, and she is always so good to me. It is a shame, and it was an awful mess we made! But I did not think of that when I proposed the fire. I just thought of the fire coming out of the chimney. I never dreamed of the soot flying out. I am awful sorry, for mother is a dear and I know that every time she punishes me she gets a sick headache. I really mean not to do anything to bother her, but somehow I just do get in messes without knowing it."

"Gee. Look the ice cream is melting! Sarah brought so much we can all three have some if you don't mind eating out of the soap dish tumbler and match safe!"

"We don't care!" for Mrs. Banks' ice cream was known far and wide as being the best anyone could make even beating the caterers from the city.

"What will we do for spoons."

"There is one spoon. And I can wash a demicine spoon I have, and I will eat mine with my toothbrush handle."

"No, you don't!" said Johnnie, "You go ahead and eat it all in peace. Paul and I have had one dinner, and we don't want to come over here and eat yours."

"Oh, you go along! I know how to get spoons for us all," and Bobbie walked to the window, and the boys ran to him, for he hung out so far they thought he would surely fall out head first.

"What are you swinging your arms so for?" asked Paul.

"Come, look!" replied Bobbie, and then all three boys hung out of the window and watched Bobbie trying to hit the kitchen window with a nail tied to the end of a string. This made a tick-tack of it which attracted Sarah's attention, and she came out to see what was tapping on her window.

When she looked up and saw the boys she opened her mouth to say simething, but Bobbie put his finger to his lips for her not to speak, and she closed her mouth without uttering a word.

"Sarah, tie three spoons onto the string, so we can eat our ice cream!"

"I'll do better than that! I'll tie a little basket on with spions, three saucers and more cake in it!" she replied. "Pull up your string and get your heads in! I hear someone comin'.' And the boys dodged their heads in and pulled up the string.

(Tomorrow you'll hear the end of this scrape but the boys soon get into another.)

Splash Day At Galveston Taboo

(By International News Service.)

GALVESTON, Jan. 28.—Mother's daughters no more will display their lines and dimples made more charming by clever bathing suits or by the almost lack of such a covering, on Galveston's beaches in a countrwise beauty prize contest—not if fifty-three civic and religious organizations here have their way. "Splash day" here tofore an annual affair is taboo.

"Such an exhibition as the bathing girl revue is destructive to all sense of modesty and lowers the standards of morality to those who participate and of those who are onlookers," says a petition conveying a "most earnest protest" against "splash day," presented today to the board of city commissioners. The petition was signed by accredited representatives of the fifty-three religious and civic bodes of this city. It was referred to the city attorney for an opinion.

Mountain Range Formed In Ocean

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—A range of mountains 10,000 feet high has sprung up in the Pacific ocean off the coast of lower California and northern Mexico as a result of the seismic disturbances which rocked South America with large loss of life and property in Chile recently.

According to the reports received here, the peaks of the new mountain range were found to be only a few hundred feet from the surface at points where existing charts gave a depth of 10,800 feet. At a point near Bishop's rock off the southern California coast the peaks came within 200 feet of the surface at a point previous charted as 6,400 feet deep.

The appeal, it was said, would be presented by the Greek minister to the state department Monday.

RIDING FINDS FAVOR IN WICHITA

Many Spend Sunday Afternoon In Saddle

The Call Field Riding Academy in augurated here some time ago, is finding increased favor among sportsmen. In spite of the cool weather yesterday found scores of persons enjoying the sport. A record crowd was announced by Walter Richardson manager of the academy.

More than 50 horses and ponies are kept in two hangars, all trained for the saddle, and all of standard stock. Among them are singlefooters, some of imported stock from Kentucky, as well as walk-trot canter horses. Then there are ponies for the children.

The Riding Academy was established here with the purpose of introducing standard saddle horses in Wichita Falls. The managers came here on the invitation of the fair committee after several ribbons had been won by horses of the academy. A track has been built by the academy where horses are trained, and attendants are at work now in putting the horses through their paces. They will be entered in the Texas-Oklahoma fair to be held here in the fall. Mr. Richardson announces that he will soon construct a bridle path near the hangars, and that increased stock will be brought here as the occasion warrants. He hopes to organize a riding club among the younger men and possibly a polo team.

BRIGGS ASSAILS BIG THREE PACT

Foundation Of Sport Being Unrooted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 28.—The athletic agreement now in effect among Princeton, Harvard and Yale involves an inquisition into the financial status of athletes that strikes at the foundation of sportsmanship, Dean Lebaron R. Briggs, asserts in his annual report as chairman of the Harvard athletic committee, which was made public today. Though the athletic situation at the time seemed to make the inquisition necessary, the dean said he looded for the time when Harvard, Yale and Princeton should say to one another "I need know nothing more about the legitimacy of your players than is implied by your willingness that they shall represent you."

Only then, he added, would those involved be sportsmen.

Dean Briggs introduced his criticisms of the agreement with a reference to the conditions out of which it grew.

"The evils of subsidizing athletes were illustrated last year," he said, "by discoveries which led the authorities at Princeton to disqualify several of their best known and most skillful players. The disqualification already determined at Princeton, by Princeton alone, was promptly reported to the committee of the three chairmen. Like every other act of the kind it was assailed as unjust by those who did not know the circumstances and it gave rise to new suspicions, naturally enough, regarding the athletes of Yale and Harvard."

Flatfootedness Declared Common

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Flatfootedness is becoming a common affliction among the young men of the country, Professor L. G. Kranz of the Physical education department of Northwestern university declared in a statement tonight in which he asserted that 33 per cent of the male freshmen at Northwestern had been so afflicted. Seventy-five per cent of them no longer had flat feet, he added, because they had been trained to bear most of the weight on the outside of their feet.

Policemen, particularly crossing policemen, are particularly susceptible to flat feet, Professor Kranz said, because they attempt to save themselves by standing first on one foot and then the other.

STOCKS QUIET DURING WEEK

Speculators Held Up By Ruhr News

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Quietness and a certain amount of irregularity in the financial markets during the past week offered a contrast to the encouraging character of reports from industrial and trade centers. The main causes of the irregularity were not difficult to find. For one thing the situation in the Ruhr valley still acted as a brake on speculative enthusiasm although the markets displayed a calmness in the face of alarmist rumors that transferred to diminishing susceptibility to things of that sort. It also appeared that the security markets had entered into something of a resting period, the effects of the early January reinvestment demand having passed and the unusually large volume of new capital issues having taken the edge off the bond market for the time being.

Despite these circumstances, a firm undertone was apparent. In financial quarters the opinion still holds that the French entrance into the Ruhr ill-advised but there is a disposition to be hopeful with regard to the ultimate results.

Reports Cheerful

The trade reports are distinctly cheerful. Many signs indicate that business is considerably better than is usually the case at this time of the year. Prices are firm, demand is active and the initiative is now stated to be taken by the buyer rather than the seller.

In the steel industry, production is being maintained at the best rate attained during the present recovrey. Recent buying of fabricated steel is stated to be extraordinarily heavy but the demand from the railroads and the builders of equipment and automobiles is being well maintained. Increased activities are also reported by the manufacturers of agricultural machinery. Some concern is displayed in the steel industry, over the labor situation. The supply of workers already is somewhat inadequate and it is feared the situation may be accentuated in the spring.

BOND MARKET IS REACTIONARY

New Offerings Drop During Week

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—New bond offerings for the last week totaled $82,023,000, par value, as compared with the total of the preceeding week of $232,276,000. This sharp drop in the offerings was not unexpected as the bond houses had anticipated giving the market a week or two in which to absorb the nearly $800,000,000 of all classes of bonds that had already been distributed during the first part of the month. The outstanding feature of the week's offerings was $35,000,000 of steel bonds from two of the big independent companies which was quickly taken up.

No new foreign bonds were put on the market during the week and the troubled foreign situation evidently precludes anything serious in the way of foreign financing being considered by the bankers at the present time. Some South American business is in sight particularly with the Argentine where the government is seeking legislative authority for large internal and external loans.

Market Reactionary

The bond market continued reactionary during the week and all classes of securities suffered a readjustment in their quoted values both because of the effect of the new bond issues in the market and the unsettled state of economic and political affairs in Europe. While quotations were governed in a large measure by domestic condition, there was a noticeable absence of outside trading and most of the business was in the hands of professionals.

French and Belgian government and municipal liens dropped to new low records during the week.

The British investment market handled new offerings in 1922 which amounted to 235,668,550 pounds and which exceeded 1921 by about 20,000,000 pounds.

The principal large offering in last week's bond market was $25,000,000 5½ per cent 30 year Bethlehem steel corporation consolidated mortgage gold bonds offered at 93 to yield 6 per cent. Other large offerings during the week were: $10,000,000, 5 per cent, 124 year Northern Pacific railway refunding and improvement mortgage gold bonds, offered at 99, to yield 5.05. $10,000,000, 5½ per cent 30 year Republic Iron and Steel refunding and general mortgage gold bonds offered at 94½ to yield 5.90.

Gospel Needed To Cure Divorce, Says Miss Robertson

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—"More gospel and less law."

This was the rule Miss Alice Robertson, congresswoman from Oklahoma, offered for ridding the country of the "divorce evil."

"You can't stop hasty and foolish marriages, or prevent divorce by legislation," she told International News Service, in voicing strenuous opposition to the Capper bill for a new federal marriage and divorce law. "That measure is un-American," she said.

"Teach our boys and girls the doctrines of love as set forth in the Bible and we'll have less of these hasty, ill-conceived marriages with subsequent divorce."

Your Heart and Home Problems Solved By Elizabeth Thompsun

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am engaged to a very nice gentleman. Wherever he goes, he is well liked by every one. There is a great difference between our ages. I am 17, but will soon have a birthday. His next birthday will make him 41, but you would not take him for over 36 or 38. Do you think in years to come that I will get tired of him? I will be young and he will be old.

I love this man with all my heart and it would be quite hard for me to have to give him up. He likes to go out quite often to shows, dances, etc., but he doesn't seem to find dancing much of a pleasure. I love to dance and am afraid that will always be a trouble to me. How can I make him interested in dancing?

ENGAGED.

There is no question but that the man is too old for you. He may still enoy amusements, but after marriage he will enjoy his home so much more than the pleasures which mean so much to you and does not seem so much to you and as they do not interest him in the least. Since dancing is distasteful to him, there is no way I can suggest for you to make him like it.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I have a sister 15 years old who is getting far beyond my mother's control. She wants to run out nights and mix with bad company. Every time we lecture or corect her, which is in a good way she simply replies that it is her own business. She is teribly important and we can't do a thing with her.

My other sisters and brothers feel very budy over it as all of them are respectable. She is next to the youngest and has always been spoiled and she thinks she must have her own way. She is getting a bad reputation. She has a good home and doesn't have to worry about anything.

She was going with a "steady" and my mother felt relieved, but sister treated him very unbecomingly until he stopped coming to see her. But he says he loves her and wants to go with her again. She is good looking and attractive.

I wish you could give us some advice. Please tell us what to do.

B. B.

You might be able to control your sister by offering her an allowance for good conduct. It is not wise for many of you to show disapproval of what she is doing. The less you say the less she will be antagonized. If your mother should offer her a certain sum of money each week on condition that shedoes not go away from home evenings without permission, it might help. She should be allowed to have company in her home under the circumstances. Although she is very young for such a thing, it would not help matters to forbid company. Present the proposition to her and ask her if she thinks such an arrangement is fair. For instance, if she receives a dollar a week for spending money, 25 cents should be deducted every time she disobeys. Don't let the child think she is bad. Believe in her and expect the best of her.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am in love with a young man. He is 25 and wants to come to see me. My folks don't want me to go with him. I don't have a chance to see him very often. He has red hair but is very good looking. I am 13 with brown hair and eyes.

LITTLE BETTIE.

Your parents are right in objecting to your letting the young man call. You are too young to receive callers, and he is too old for you.

Somebody's Birthday

By ELSA ALLEN
January 29th.

Yours is the way of dignity if today is your birthday. You are proud but not ostentatious, self-reverent, but not conceited. You live, think and act in the grand manner—if anything just a little too ponderously. But then these are sterling qualities, and inasmuch as you cannot do much to change them, you had better make the best of them.

However, if you could manage to cut loose from your self now and then and raise a little cain, it would have an amazing and beneficial effect on you. Take life less seriously and you will find it much more important.

At present you are secretly afraid of your own shadow. You are afraid of life because you think once you yield to the gratification of your desires they will overwhelm you. Well, they certainly will if you try to suppress them, and probaby sooner than if you gratify them. You are between the devil and the deep blue sea, and try them both, almost anyone can swim.

You are curiously analytical in your nature. You lack the courage of the scientist, but you cannot lose your mind completely to new discoveries which you make. Instead you worry about them and if you act in contradiction you are apt to have a troubled conscience.

You are upright and honorable and just and affectionate, etc., but nevertheless you are hardly human and you won't be until someone of the opposite sex somes along and bowls you over with one look.

Today is one of extremely good fortune. Force the issue in all your dealings.

Your ensuing year will be peaceful and quiet, a recuperation from past trials and a preparation on an extremely critical year to come.

A child born today will be robust and inclined to fatness—rather more serious than necessary and easily spoiled.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Mock Bisque—One quart tomatoes, two tablespoons cracker crumbs one-half teaspoon salt, three pints milk, one tablespoon butter, speck pepper, one-quarter teaspoon soda.

Heat the tomatoes and milk in separate dishes. Add to the tomatoes the salt, pepper, butter and bread crumbs. When the tomatoes are thoroughly cooked, add the soda and milk and remove from stove.

Brisket of Beef—Two pounds brisket of beef, two pounds carrots, two tablespoons fat, two tablespoons flour, one cup carrot liquid, salt and peper to taste.

Salt and pepper the meat and let stand an hour or two. Scrape and cut carrots into cubes or slices. Place in kettle with meat, cover with boiling water and cook until meat and carrots are very tender, and the water is half boiled away. Heat the fat in a pan, let brown slightly, add the flour and gradually one cup of carrot and meat liquid. Place in kettle with meat and carrots and boil until carrots become browned.

Celery and Cabbage Salad—Hollow out green peppers and fill with chopped celery and cabbage, equal parts. Top with mayonnaise.

SUGGESTIONS

Fixing Leaks—A leak in a gas or water pipe causes no end of damage before the plumber can be called. It can be stopped temporarily with a filling mixture made of yellow kitchen soap and whiting, mixed in a thick paste.

Cleaning Floors—When cleaning floors, if a small hand brush is used for corners the result will be more successful than trying to get into them with large scrubbing brush. It will also save woodwork from being knocked and scratched.

Cheese Sandwiches—Toast quickly slices of bread three-eighths of an inch thick on one side. Spread the toasted side with butter which has a bit of mustard mixed with and cover with chopped cheese. Sprinkle with salt and paprika, cover with a slice of bread, toasted side down. Toast the sandwich top and bottom with a medium heat, so that the cheese melts while it is browning.

Iron Holders—When making iron or stove holders first make the pads, then use some pretty bright colored covers seperate, using snaps to fasten, and they can be removed and washed without washing the padding.

Picture Brides Of Japan May Upset Hawaiian Peace

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Continued importation of "picture" brides in Hawaii threatens to give the Japanese numerical, political and commercial control in the territory and menaces the security of the United States, according to a report submitted today to Secretary of Labor Davis by a special commission which has just completed an investigation of labor conditions in the islands.

The traffic in "picture brides" coupled with the present policy of "parental adoption" have defeated the purpose of the so-called "gentlemen's" agreement, between Japan and the United States, the commission declared.

"The menace from a military standpoint," the report of the investigators stated, "can only fully verified by referring to the records of related federal departments.

Special to The Record News.

COTTON REACTS AFTER ADVANCE

Week Sees High Peak Then Slump

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—The early part of last week in the cotton market saw the upward tendency of prices still very strong but the adavnce culminated at the middle of the week when prices were at the highest levels of the season, March trading up to 28.63 cents a pound. After the middle of the week more or less of a reactionary feeling was in evidence with breaks of about a cent a pound registering during the Friday session.

At the highest the trading months were 24 to 68 points over the close of the preceeding week; at the lowest they were 70 to 161 points under. On the close the trading positions were 55 to 98 points lower than the close of the preceeding week, March closing at 27.40 and October at 24.-28. In the spot department prices closed net unchanged on middling at 28 cents a pound, which price compared with 15.50 as the closing price this week last year.

Spots Cause Advance

The reasons for the advance were mainly a continued good spot demand while the reasons for the reactions were mainly the liquidation from the long side and the selling encouraged by a somewhat better outlook regarding the new crop, due to the rains in the western sections of the belt and talk of increased acreage in several states, more especially Texas and Louisiana. The spot demand was all devouring for a while, embracing all grades from the highest to the lowest and even including linters. During this period of strong markets middling was quoted at the new high record price for the season of 28.63 cents a pound. According to messages received here from Texas planting of the new crop has commenced in the very earliest sections of the state.

The rains that fell were sufficient to check complaints of drouth although at the end of the week, it was evident that Texas still could use more moisture in many sections.

'Fire Mountain'

By NORMAN SPRINGER

It is a cruel thing to shut up a young man between the four walls of an offcie, when that young man is romantic, heart-hungry, and twenty-three. It is especially cruel, when the walls are lined with dull tomes of legal lore and adorned with pictures of even duller-looking legal lights, as were the walls of Joseph Smatt's office. The window was Martin Blake's safety-valve. For a year, he had been Josiah Smatt's retainer, keeper of the outer office, slave of writes and all the musty forms of law.

It was the view that gave him succor. The window was on the tenth floor, and througt it Martin had a magnificent view—the broad sweep of San Francisco bay and the opening to the Golden Gate. It was a canvas that never wore out, and upon it Martin painted bold day dreams.

"Mr. Smatt is in, perhaps?"

The softly spoken words shattered a castle in Spain. Martin swung about, and found himself eying an odd figure, though become a familiar one to Martin these past few weeks—a Japanese dandy. Silk-hatted, frock-coated, and a brown unwrinkled face that spoke of anywhere between thirty and sixty years.

Martin's orders were explicit; Mr. Smatt would see Dr. Ichi without delay or preliminary, whenever Dr. Ichi favored the office with a visit.

So, Martin inclined his head toward the door of Smart's private office. The Japanese disappeared within Smatt's sanctum.

Martin turned to his window again But his bright day dream was fled, and he could not conjure it back again.

What manner of client was this Dr. Ichi? Martin had not seen a single scrap of paper, nor had Smatt dropped a single hint, concerning the case. It was mysterious!

Much of Smatt's time was taken up with cases Martin knew nothing about, with clients who appeared to shun the daylight of the courts. The Nippon Trading company, for instance! Martin knew Smatt was interested in a company, that apparently conducted business without using the mails.

He turned from the window and discovered the office to have a second visitor, a hunch-back. He was seedily, but a green velvet hat, several sizes too small gave him an oddly rakish appearance. His face was pleasing—a wide grin, a snub nose, a pair of twinkling eyes beneath a broad, intelligent forehead. Martin immediately comenced to thaw as the other smiled.

The hunchback carried a book under one arm, a formidable appearing volume.

"The bargain of the century—can not afford to miss it—wonderful opportunity first time offered," he began in a sing-song.

Martin stiffened with surprise. Not at the words; he was accustomed to book-agents of strange guise. But the voice! A rich, throaty tenor with not a squeak in it. The man's discourse was like a song.

Martin found his gaze upon the hand that held the book. That hand! Surely no book-agent ever possessed such a hand—brown-backed, big, and muscular, plainly the hand of an outdoors man. Where the sleeve fell away from the wrist Martin glimpsed the blue of a tatooed figure. A sailor's hand?

"Possible to make offer only because of great advertising campaign—you reap advantage free of charge. You merely subscribe to Coleman's Weekly—ten cents a week, fifty cents a month, price of a magazine—wonderful compendium of universal knowledge costs you absolutely nothing—"

The hunchback pattered on. Book-agent or no, Martin conceded he had the technique of the craft at his tongue's tip.

His eyes—suddenly, Martin was aware of the peculiar behavior of the other's eyes. They were roving about the office from point to point, as if the fellow were endeavoring to fix in his mind every feature of the room. But most often, Martin noticed, his gaze rested upon the door to Smatt's private office, through which came at intervals the hoarse murmur of Smatt's voice. Once, atop the murmur, came a few words in Dr. Ichi's clipped and even tones—

"Plan—good—have caution— proceed—"

The hunchback ceased talking. Martin felt almost sorry as he declined the greatest offer of the century, though the purveyor of knowledge took the refusal easily.

"Blake, come here!"

It was this bellow that checked the book-agent's flow of words, and startled Martin into activity. Mr. Smatt did not like to be kept waiting.

"Sorry," Martin said to the hunchback, "but I'm called in there. Couldn't use your book anyway."

"Oh, that's all right," responded the other airly.

* * *

Martin, standing before Smatt's desk, discovered himself to be the subject of a searching scrutiny from two pairs of eyes. Both Smatt and Dr. Ichi, the latter seated at the lawyer's right hand, were critically inspecting the tall, good-looking young fellow, who faced them.

"Blake, I wish you to execute a mission for me tonight," said Smatt.

Martin inclined his head in understanding. Executing missions at night-time for Mr. Smatt was a not uncommon experience. They took him into strange corners of the city, to interview strange characters. They were the one exciting feature of his drab employment.

The lawyer picked up from his desk a well-stuffed and tightly sealed legal-sized envelope.

"You are to deliver this envelope to a Captain Robert Carew," commenced Smatt. 'At ten o'clock tonight, exactly, you will enter a saloon situated on the corner of Green street and the Embarcadero. This resort is known as the Black Cruiser saloon, and is conducted by a person named Spulvedo. You will speak with Spulvedo, taking care not to be overheard, and will ask him to conduct you to Captain Carew."

Martin nodded his understanding.

"Very good," said Smatt. "This person, Spulvedo, will lead you into Captain Carew's presence. Under no circumstances will you deliver this envelope to other than Carew, himself. You may identify him readily by his appearance. He is a large, blond man, with a deep voice. He speaks with the words of an educated man. A star is tatooed in red upon the back of his right hand."

"To make your identification doubly sure, you will use this precaution: When you approach Carew you will say, 'I wish to see you on the Hakodate business.' He will respond: 'It is time that business is settled. Did the chief send you?' Then you will deliver the envelope to him. Now repeat in full my instructions."

It seemed to Martin, as he reentered the outer office that the room's air had the indefinable tinge of a very recent occupancy. When he emerged from the private office, he seemed to be treading upon some one's heels, so to speak.

* * *

A night of bright stars, but no moon. A sharp, windy night. He shivered even beneath his overcoat, but the air tasted good and fresh.

Martin's spirits mounted. Was he not setting forth on an errand of mystery? Why, something might happen to a fellow on such a night!

No street car was in sight at the corner and Martin withdrew to the friendly lee of Feiglebaum's saloon, to await its coming. He shrank back into the doorway in search of a warmer retreat and backed against something soft. He swung about with words of apology on his tongue for the prior occupant of the shelter.

His startled gaze encountered a broad back. A man stood there in the far corner of the doorway his back to the street, his head seemingly bowed in his arms. A man of such huge proportions, that Martin, but two inches less than six feet himself, felt like a pigmy beside him.

"Ow, swiggle me!" rumbled a deep and husky voice. "Ow, I'm in a proper fix, I am! I've gone an' lost Little Billy. Can't find 'em can't find 'im in the blooming town. I've looked in a thousand bleedin' pubs. I 'ave, an' I can't find little Billy."

The words tumbled forth heavy laden with alcohol.

"Cheer up, there are many more than a thousand saloons in this city," assured Martin, "You have not yet tried them all. There is one in this building. Have you visited it?"

"In this building! Ow swiggle me stiff lad let's go 'ave a wet!"

Inside the barroom Martin seized a chance to take stock of the fellow. He gathered an impression of size and redness. Why the man must stand six feet and a half in his boots! A son of Anak! And his head! He was afire. A red face, a moustache that bristled, a thatch of brick red hair that protruded from beneath a blue, peaked cap, and he explained that he was bosun of the brig Cohasset.

"We was walking up the Market street," he continued, sober as judges both. And Billy says a bokay was what he wanted for the blessed little mate's birthday. And so we stops into a place or two to talk it over. Swiggle me stiff, could anything 'ave begun more innercent Just going to buy a bokay, that's what! And now—"

The biz fellow muttered to himself. He was evidently delving into the clouded realm of memory.

I"t was them blighted brown devils!" he swore suddenly. "What chance 'as a poor 'unchback against them blasted Japs? They get 'im in 'Onolulu, and, swiggle me stiff, they get 'em in 'Frisco. It was that blasted shark, Ichi! It was Ichi, says I, as took little Billy!"

Japanese! Hunchback! Ichi! Martin seemed to see a light.

"Say, what does little Billy look like?" he queried. "Did he wear a black suit and a green velvet hat?"

"Yes, 'e did," answered the boatswain. "Ave you seen 'imm?"

"Yes, this afternoon." laughed Martin. "You need not worry about your little Billy. Neither the police nor the Japs have captured him. He is improving his chance to pursue the avocation of book salesman."

Martin recounted his meeting with the purveyor of universal knowledge.

"But say," finished Martin, "who is this Ichi you mentioned? Do you know Dr. Ichi?"

"Do I know Dr. Ichi?" echoed the boatswain.

He glowered at Martin. The query seeme dto inflame his temper.

If Martin had been a cautious young man he would have let well enough alone. The sailor seemed a hasty and a heavy-fisted man. But Martin's interest was more than piqued. Here seemed a chance to learn something about a mysterious Japanese.

"Perhaps little Billy is down on the water front," he remarked casually. He mentioned that he was going to look up a fellow by the name of Carew."

The sailor received the remark in a most disconcerting manner. He stiffened and stared at Martin, his mouth agape ,for an appreciable instant. He seemed breathless.

"Carew—Wild Bob Carew!" he cried. "And Wild Bob Carew takes a 'and in this!"

This was progressing!

"You talk of Ichi, and then you talk of Wild Bob Carew!" he said to Martin; "Swiggle me stiff, young man, you must be one of 'em."

His great hands reached forward toward Martin. There was annihilation in his eye.

Dr. Grant Says Capital Inspired Heresy Charge

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Reverend Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, under fire for alleged heretical utterances, charged in his sermon at the Protestant Episcopal church of the Ascension today that the fight against him was insoired by capitalistic interests, working "under the surface" rather than by any true religious zeal to purge the church of apostates.

Dr. Grant referred to his theological views today only to say that were the same views he had been expounding unmolested for 50 years.

He indicated broadly that he intended to continue preaching his conception of a "humanistic" religion even if he had to exchange his pulpit for a street corner soap box.

COTTON REVIEW IS OPTIMISTIC

Strong Position Is Held By Industry

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The statistical position of cotton is usually strong, the department of agriculture announces in a review of the cotton growing industry for 1922.

"The world supply is so limited," says the review, "that it seems unlikely that the rate of consumption prevailing during the last five months of 1922 can continue. If it does, supplies by the end of the season will have come dangerously near the irreducible minimum, and it should be borne in mind that the 1923 crop will not be available to spinners in any appreciable volume, until well into September.

"However, the financia and economical conditions in Europe are very unsettled and should not be overlooked in considering the 1923 cotton market, as America needs European markets for its raw cotton, and to a lesser degree for its cotton goods.

At present there seems to be some inclination among cotton producers to increase the cotton acreage during 1923 and to put forth special efforts in combatting the boll weevil and other insect pests. No doubt the relatively high price of cotton will stimulate such efforts. The feeling seems to be 'more cotton for clothes and less for the boll weevil.'

How To Use Vicks VapoRub For Deep Grippy Colds

First, It Is Very Important That a Thorough Rubefacient or Counter-Irritant Effect Be Produced on the Surface of the Skin Around the Lungs.

This Draws the Blood From the Congested Lungs and Lessens the Danger of Pneumonia.

THEN TREAT WITH VICKS

Deep, grippy colds, frequently leading to pneumonia, have been unusually prevalent this whiter. In some sections they are called influenza, but are not so virulent as the influenza cases during the first epidemic, though they are worse than ordinary colds. For these cases the usual light application of Vick's is not sufficient.

The Danger Is From Pneumonia

What is needed therefore is something to decrease the congestion of the lungs. For this purpose there is nothing like a rubefacient or counter-irritant, as witness the use of blisters, poultices and plasters for many generation. This reddening or irritation of the skin causes a rush of blood to the surface; the circulation of warmth and the possibility of pneumonia is greatly lessened.

A "Quick" Rubefacient Needed

The value of this counter-irritant effect is greatly increased if it is produced quickly. Nearly every family has its favorite method—onion poultices, turpentine stupes, mustard plasters and poultice of various kinds are all good.

How to Produce This Effect

Our experiements have shown that an ordinary mustard plaster is very effective. Use one part of mustand to two parts of flour or flaxseed meal for adults, and one to three parts for children under eight years. An even simpler method, particularly for adults, is to apply towels wrung out in very hot water—as hot as the patient can stand. Whatever method is used, the application should be applied over the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. In very deep colds, the sides and especially the back from the middle of the shoulder blades to a point just above the waist, should also be treated. For adults, a hot mustard foot-bath—one tablespoon of mustard to a gallon of water—given at this stage of the treatment, will aid in drawing the blood from the congested parts.

Then Massage With Vicks

After the skin is thoroughly reddened, it should be dried lightly and immediately and the patient should be given a brisk massage with Vicks all over the parts. Continue this for five minutes. This increases the counter-irritant effect. Then apply Vicks thickly over all the parts; that is spread it on like you would a poultice—about one-sixteenth of an inch thick or more—and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

Vicks Acts Like a Vapor Lamp

The advantage of applying Vicks thickly over the body is this: Vicks is so made that the body heat gradually releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. The more Vicks applied, the stronger will be the vapors and the longer these vapors will last. The night clothing should always be loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel. These vapors being lighter than air rise up from the chest and, if the clothing is properly arranged, pass by the nose and mouth and are thus inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication directly through the air passages to the lungs. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

Repeat the Entire Treatment

When the vapors begin to lose their strength, fresh Vicks should be applied over the parts. This to keep up the continuous supply of vapors. When the redness of the skin begins to die out, all the Vicks remaining should be wiped off and the entire treatment repeated. That is, the hot wet towels or mustard plasters should be used until the skin is again thoroughly reddened, then massage with Vicks, spread on thickly and cover with hot flannels, just as previously done.

Cann Add Mustard to Vicks

This redness of the skin should last for two or three hours, but varies with different patients. Some skins are much more senstative than others. This redness can be prolonged by mixing a little ordinary powdered mustard with Vicks—about one part of mustard to four parts Vicks, but this can be varied according to the patient's skin. Just enough mustard should be used to keep up the counter-irritant effect for two to four hours, so that the wet towels or mustard plasters will not have to be used so frequently as to prevent the patient from resting.

Use a Tea-Kettle

Sometimes when the patient is badly choked up, the vapors from the application on the chest are not sufficient to make the breathing easier. In these cases drop a tablespoonful of Vicks into a kettle of boiling water and allow the patient to inhale the warm steam and vapors, combined for about 10 minutes. Do this several times a day if needed. Keep the water boiling and put in additional Vicks whenever the vapors decrease. Put a sheet over the patient and the tea-kettle, making a kind of a tent, so as to confine the vapors. An ordinary steam vaporizer is even more convenient than a tea-kettle.

Scanty Applications Useless

This is a vigorous treatment, but to check congestion requires vigorous measures. Vicks must be used freely to be effective. The cost of this treatment is insignificant compared with the results which are frequently obtained.

Does Not Take the Place of the Physician

In all cases a physicinn should be called. These deep colds are too serious and have too many complications to rely entirely on any home medication. Vicks, however, does not interfere with any treatment that the doctor may prescribe. In addition the formula of Vicks is given on every circular so there is no reason why any doctor should object to its use except the fact that a few physicians do not care to use anything which is advertised directly to the public.

A Pharmacist's Discovery

Vicks VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina pharmacist. From the back room of a little drug store its use has grown until today literally tens of millions of families are never without the family blue jar. It is their standby for all forms of cold troubles and, in addition, is useful for the many minor ailments of the home. It is particularly a boon to mothers with small children, because it is externally applied.

Over 17 million jars are used yearly in the United States alone.—Adv.

Repealers of the open port law enacted by the Hobby administration are up against a stone wall. Every rail executive in the state or legal representative of a rail executive attended the hearing on the Rogers bill. Representative Rogers hails from Harris county. Democrats of Harris county in convention assembled, adopted a resolution demanding the repeal of this law. This called to Austin powerful advocates of the law, the bill was threshed out at a joint meeting of the senate and the house committees and then the committees made unfavorable report on the measure which makes certain its death for this session at least.

It is conceded by leaders of organized labor that the open port law makes the winning of a labor strike absolutely impossible as the rangers lose no time in breaking the back of the strike.

There were several hundred affidavits gathered by strikers and their sympathizers concerning the methods employed by Adjutant General Barton and his men. These affidavits were finally tossed aside by the joint committee and then the repealers admit that they found themselves in a hopeless minority. They are going to make their fight within the democratic party two years hence and particular attention will be given to the legislative districts of the state. Senator Joe Burkett is said to be in deep sympathy with the repealers not so much in opposition to the law as to the methods employed by those who enforce it.

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

THE ABSOLUTE DEPOSTISM

Because it has been the custom to do anything, is always sufficient warrant for doing it, whether it is not an intelligent thing to do.

The fear of "making oneself ridiculous" which is one of the most powerful influences upon all human action, is merely the fear of violating customs.

There was a time not many years ago, when half the baseball players of the size and shape now chiefly seen o fthe size and shape now chiefly seen adorning the upper lips of police captains.

Today no baseball player would dare appear on the diamond with a mousache.

Thousands of "young men about town" would be afraid to show their faces in their familiar haunts for a year if they had, in a moment of forgetfulness, appeared at a dinner without the clothes usually worn to dinners.

It has been said that a gentleman is a person who takes better care of his finger nails than he does of his morals.

The custom among gentlemen for many centuries has been to keep the finger nails immaculate.

Unfortunately the same custom has not prevailed as to morals.

There is a certain duty that every one owes to society, a certain conformity to what it regards as what ought to be done.

But the most cruel and absolute despotism today is that of custom.

And the most helpless and abject creature in the whole world is he who is its slave—who has to stop and think before he takes any action, as to whether it is something that is "done."

Geniuses are never custom bound. Neither are men of genuine independence.

There is a sharp line between what ought to be done because it is right, and what ought to be done because it is customary.

Custom must be violated repeatedly by all thinking men if they expect to rise above their fellow men. For custom is an average of the actions of average human beings. Sometmies it is right and sometimes it is wrong. But the same may be said of despotisms.

The man who thinks that merely by violating custom he is doing something wise and individual and distinctive, is in grave danger of making a real fool of himself.

The best guide is to put every custom to the test of careful thought, and to abide by it or to refuse to abide by it as it seems wise or founded in some stupid superstition, or on the condition that arose in an age long since dead.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO MARY IN HEAVEN.

Thou lingering star, with lessening ray,
That lov'st to greet the early morn,
Again thou usher'st in the day
My Mary from my soul was torn.

O Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
Seest thou thy lover lowly laid
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

That sacred hour can I forget,
Can I forget the hallow'd grove,
Where by the winding Ayre we met,
To live one day of parting love?
Eternity will not efface
Those records dear of transports past;
Thy image at our last embrace;
Ah! little thought we 'twas our last!
Ayr gurgling kiss'd his pebbled shore,
O'erhung with wild woods, thickening, green,
The fragrant birch, and hawthorne hoar,
Twined amorous round the raptured scene.

The flowers sprang wanton to be press'd,
The birds sang love on every spray,
Till too, too soon the glowing west
Proclaimed the speed of wing'd day.

Still o'er these scenes my memory wakes,
And fondly broods with miser care!
Time but the impression deeper makes,
As streams their channels deeper wear.

My Mary, deer departed shade!
Where is thy blissful place of rest?
Seest thou thy lovely lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

German Fascisti Hold Twelve Big Meetings

MUNICH, Jan. 28.—German fascisti succeeded in holding 12 largely attended meetings tonight, by reason of an eleventh hour dispensation of the police, who removed the previous embargo when Adolph Hitler, leader of the organization, promised that the meetings would proceed quietly and that no anti-government demonstration would be attempted.

Herr Hitler went by automobile from one meeting to another and was loudly cheered when he declared that all German eyes today were turning to Munich, where the thought of national unity was being vigorously promulgated.

How false is the dictum
That a tubercular victim
Must hunt for his health in the west;
For, surrounded by friends
And a few laying hens,
His chances at home are the best.

With his cough and a ticket
To some western thicket
Out in the dry atmosphere—
Why, surrounded by friends
And a few laying hens,
His chances are better right here.

Sick folks often seek health while running away from it.

Local sanatoria is the solution of the tuberculosis problem.

The doctor we hear about is always better than the one we know about.

Undertakers now call themselves "Morticians." Editors, we suppose, will soon be known as Editicians.

In the wake of winter and bad housing follow chronic diseases of which tuberculosis is the chief offender.

When money is limited it is better to concentrate on food and care, in the home treatment of tuberculosis, than to waste it on the desert air.

Unless provided with ample funds with which to secure popre food, patients with tuberculosis should avoid the arid west.

It is estimated that one person in every 53 has active tuberculosis. Furthermore, a tenth of the victims die each year; that is, for every death there are nine active cases.

More Truth Than Poetry

A NEW PRISON HORROR

(Many of the convicts in Sing Sing have lately taken to writing poetry.)

When Number Nine-Eighty objects to the chops
That they serve in the prison cafe,
His knife and his fork and his napkin he drops
And scribbles the following lay:

"Me molars is nicked; me bicuspids is bent,
Me jawbone is lame to de ears;
But dem chops wot you give us shows never a dent.
Dat sheep must 'a' lived enighty years!"

When Seven-Eleven observes that the cot
In his cell is uncomfortably hard,
In meter he roundly complains of his lot,
For Seven-Eleven's a bard:

"Dem bunks ain't a place where a turtle would flop
If a comfortable stump was in sight,
If you want to be nice to me, Warden Ole Top,
Lemme sleep on de rockpile tonight!"

In cell and in corridor, all the day long,
At work and at play and at meals,
From the convicts the music of improvised song
Bursts forth in continuous peals.

They sing as the boulders with hammers they hit;
They sing as they're running about;
Till the Warden declares that they simply must quit
Or he surely will put them all out.

WHO'S WHO

JAMES SIMPSON.

Once more an office boy has risen to the president's chair of one of the world's largest industrial corporations. James Simpson, after thirty-two years of service with Marshall Field & Co., recently made president of that mammoth company to succeed John G. Shedd, is proud of the fact that he started at the bottom.

Simpson is only forty-nine years old. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and brought to this country when only six years old. He went to the public schools and business college in Chicago. He entered the employ of the Field company as an office boy when he later was seventeen. A few years later he was made confidential secretary to Marshall Field and he remained in that office until the great merchant died in 1906. He was then made second vice-president and assistant to the president. The following year he became first vice-president.

In 1908 Simpson went to France to assist in extending the organization of the American Red Cross. He was also a member of the capital issues committee during the war. He is director in several philanthropic and welfare organizations in Chicago.

Simpson has a dynamic personality and is described by his friends "as smart as a steel trap."

JIMMIE AND DAD RADIO STORIES

LII.—Jimmie and Harry Co-Operate Like an American Gob and a British Limie.

(By Broad Catser)

"Now that we have all the junk to make a CW set, let's go to it, Jimmie."

"All right, Harry. Where in the world did you round up your ideas on that CW oscillator coil system, Harry? Why don't you collect a real flock of ideas. I have a dandy diagram in dad's red book of one that will work nicely on 200 meters. Take three coils, wind about ten turns of wire on a four-inch cardboard tube for the antenna coil, and then wind about 20 turns of bell wire on another tube four and one half inches in diameter, and cap each turn of wire. Next take a small piece of formica panel and place taps on each. Let's call the upper tap the plate coil tap, and the lower one the grid coil tap. Then cut the two coils in two in the middle, making two coils of ten turns each. Then we will have three coils of ten turns maximum apiece."

"Yes, that will be all right providing it will work all right. But how do you know will work, Jimmie?"

"Oh, I got a hunch it will work if you will only folow all the plonts 'egzasty'."

"All right, shoot ahead, teacher's pet."

"Say, now look here, you old principal apologizer, you cut out all that rought stuff."

"Oh, come on now, Jimmie, I was only kiddin'."

"All right. I saw a set like the one I'm telling you about and it worked fine. Put out over one end a half amp on 200 meters. Nexs, let's take a rod and make a sliding rack so the antenna coil can slide in and out of the other tube as far as about three inches. This will give loose coupling for sharp tuning. This set is known as a positive oscillating set and will not change wave length at all. Now connect the antenna to one side of the antenna enodenser then the other side of the condenser on the antenna coil. Connect the opposite side of the antenna coil to the ground. Nexs connect one side of the plate coil to ground and the other side through our one thousandth microfarad mica condenser to the plates of the two tubes. Got that done?

"Yep, that's done."

"All right, now connect your grids of the two tubes through the grid coil and then through th one thousandth microfarad mica condenser, shunted by a 2,500-ohm grid leak to ground. Next connect the negative of the 500-watt generator to ground and the positive to the generator to a one-thousand turn honeycomb coil to the plates of the tubes."

"That's easy, I have all that. What do you do next"

"Let's see if we have it all right first. Yes, that is all O. K. Next better place a one microfarad tinfoil condenser across the 500-watt generator terminals to keep out any kickbacks from the generator."

"Wait till I find one. I had about ten of them her that I got from the telephone company last year to play with."

"All right now, Harry, we are now ready. Where is your antenna ampmeter?"

"There it is. It reads three amps. Is that enough?"

"Yes, that may be too big for we haven't the thing going yes. Hurrah! All right, throw in the juice, Harry."

"Look out Jimmie, you will get burned."

"Oh, I'm only trying to get a peep out of it. You see, Harry, I have to turn the antenna condenser to see if she will percolate."

"There isn't a single thing doing. Guess you don't know your stuff, Mister Jimmie, even though you have been blowing about seeing one work at the factory. I guess you're not so good."

Self-Mastery Through Auto-Suggestion

By DR. EMILE COUE.

DR. COUE DISPELS APPREHENSION OF REAL DANGER IN AUTO SUGGESTION

The Moral Aspects of its Practice Weigh as Advocate Says "You Must Know How to Use It!"

Perhaps my statement that, imprudently, suggestion, is a dangerous thing will be recalled and it be said that it can be used for evil purposes.

This is no valid objection; first, because the practice of suggestion would be confided only to reliable and honest people, to the reformatory doctors, for instance; and in the second hand, those who seek to use suggestion for evil ask no one's permission!

But even admitting that it offers some danger I should like to ask whoever proffers the objections, to tell me what thing we use that is not dangerous?

Is it steam? Gunpowder? Railways Ships? Electricity? Automobiles? Aeroplanes?

Are the poisons not dangerous which we doctors and chemists, use daily in minute doses, and which might easily destroy the patient if in a moment's carelessness, we unfortunately made a mistake is weighing them out?

Auto suggestion is an instrument which you have to learn how to use just as you must learn how to use any other instrument.

An excellent gun in inexperienced hands gives only disappointing results, but the more skilled the same hands become, the more easily they place the bullets in the target.

"If you formerly alowed yourself to make bad auto suggestions because you did it unconsciously, now that you know what I have just taught you, you must no longer let this happen I told one disciple. "And if in spite of all, you still do it, you must only accuse yourself, and say 'Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa.'"

The means employed by all healers go back to auto suggestion. That is to say that these methods whatever they are—words, incantations, gestures, staging—all produce in the patient the auto suggestion of recovery.

Let me quote here, for it sets forth succinctly and truly what I may call the ethical surrounding of our principle—the followig paragraphs from "Culture de la Force Morale," by C. Baudouin."

"To have and to inspire unalterable confidence, one must walk with the assurance of perfect sincerity, and in order to possess this assurance and sincerity, one must wish for the good of others more than one's own."

With pride in the method and not from any personal point of view, I quote here some excerpts bearing, I think, effectively on the moral aspect of the practice. These quotations are designed for good which auto suggestion is, "The "danger" of its use for evil is as nothing.

From the Description of a "Seance"

"The town thrills at this name, (Coue) for from every rank of society people come to him and everyone is welcomed with the same benevolence which already goes for a good deal.

"But what is extremely poignant, is at the end of the seance, to see the people who came in gloomy, bent almost hostile (they were in pain), go away like everybody else; unconstrained, cheerful, sometimes radiant (they are no longer in pain!)

"With a strong and smiling goodness of which he has the secret, M. Coue, as it were, holds the hearts of those who consult him in his hand he addresses himself in turn to the numerous persons who come to consult him, and, speaks to them in these terms:

"'Well, Madame, and what is your trouble?'

'Oh, you are looking for two many whys and wherefores; what does the cause of your pain matter to you? You are in pain, that is enough—I will teach you to get rid of that."

"For the Good of Humanity."

"Your lecture interested us very much. It would be desirable for the good of humanity, that your words should be published in several languages, so that they might penetrate to every race and country. Thus they might reach a greater number of unfortunate people who suffer from the wrong use of that all-powerful (and almost divine) faculty—the most important to man, as you affirm and prove so luminously and judicously—which we call the imagination.

"I have already read many boons on the will, and had quite an arsenal of formulae thoughts, asphorisms, etc!

"Your phrases are conclusive. I do not think that ever before have "compressed tablets of self confidence." as I call your healing phrases, bean condensed, into typical formulae in such an intelligent manner.

"Don Enrique C—,
"Madrid."

On the Spur of the Moment

By Roy K. Moulton.

DR. COUE

I do not know Dr. Coue,
But I have read through his book,
It's plain to me the methods that he
Sets forth have a sensible look.
Brain is a sensative tissue.
Mind is quite easily swayed,
It can be turned, we've already learned,
By every emotion that's played.
Mine is susceptible, very
Others can fuddle it, right.
Others can sway my mind any way
And make me believe black is white.

Outsiders easily swing me,
For this own reasons of self.
So why shouldnt I provide I try,
Perform that same trick on myself?

"Master your mind" is the watchword.
He does that cannot fail.
Make it your slave from the cradle to grave
And you'll have the world by the tail.

President of Long Island Railroad says you can raise anything on a farm if you try, but one of the hardest darned thing to raise on a farm, we believe, is the mortgage.

MARCELLETTE

He had worked hard all of his life and she had helped him. They had amassed a comfortable fortune and decided to live in the gay city of Paris. At first all went well; but then they began going around with the fast set. They knew more about dancing, G. H. Mumm & Co., Extra dry, Ruinart Burt and demi-mondaines than about home, love and children.

A chap with an Argentinian mother and a Portuguese father came into their lives and she thought he danced divinely. He did; but he also knew women.

The French Court handed down the final decree in the divorce case recently.

SWEET INFAN

The new year looks so innocent,
So pure and so discreet;
A rosy, blushing chrub, with
A disposition sweet.

But fie upon appearances,
Look out for conduct bolder.
It will grow more cantankerous
When it's a little older.

Reward Offered For Missing Man

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising clubs tonight announced a reward of $500 for information concerning its director, William P. Green of east Orange, N. J., who disappeared last Monday night while a guest at the York hotel in this city, shortly before he was to have left for Columbus, Ohio, on business.

Associates of the missing man expressed fear that he had met with foul play as his impending trip to Columbus was to have been in connection with the investigation of a big business fraud.

Mexia Raises Big Sum For Y.M.C.A.

Special to Record News.
MEXIA, Jan. 28.—A campaign to raise an appropriation for the building of a Y.M.C.A. in Mexia was partially closed Saturday with $80,000 subscribed. This campaign was headed by Col. J. K. Hughes, well known oil man, assisted by Dr. David Carson Bayless of Denver, Colo., secretary of the Humphreys Foundation, the Mexia chamber of commerce and others.
The first installment on subscriptions will be due March 1st, and a building committee was appointed and Colonel Humphreys left instructions which contemplated the actual beginning of the building by April 1.
The building will be located at the corner of Sherman and Main streets in the heart of the business district.

British Recovers World Commerce

British trade territory both from war time maladjustment and from the depression of 1921 is well under way, says Commerce Monthly, the magazine of the National Bank of Commerce in New York.
"British foreign trade has enjoyed a gradual but none the less substantial improvement during the past year. This fact is of significance because the commerce of the United Kingdom affords one of the most sensitive indications of the general trend of production and trade throughout the entire world. It is of particular interest to the United States, since Great Britain is our main foreign customer, taking not far from one-quarter of total American exports and furnishing the principal market abroad for such important agricultural products as cotton, wheat and meats."

Oil Tax Attacked By Humphreys

Special to Record News.
MEXIA, Jan. 28.—Col. A. E. Humphreys, the well known president of the Humphreys Oil company and other Humphrey interests, left Mexia at noon Saturday for Denver, where is to meet Mrs. Humphreys, leaving in a few days for an extended trip to points in Europe on what is known as the Mediterranean tour.
Colonel Humphreys expressed confidence in the future of the Mexia field stating that developments in Texas had just begun provided the oil companies were given a square deal with reference to taxes.
"I regarded the present attempt to tax the oil companies 5 per cent on the gross production as a very bad mistake if permitted to be put into execution.
"It amounts to confiscation," said the Colonel, "and is just killing the goose that laid the golden eggs, for no producing company can pay these enormous taxes and live, especially in view of the other taxes already saddled on the oil industry."

Civilization Makes Charity Necessary Kay Tells His Class

"Because of the spread of our gospel, because of the type of our civilization, you might as well make up your mind to go down into your pockets and provide for those who cannot help themselves," Judge John C. Kay told his Men's Bible class at the Olympic theatre Sunday morning. The speaker chose as his topic, "The Right Use of Wealth," and based his remarks on the story of Dives and Lazarus. His address follows:

It is one of the peculiarities of the human mind that it is prone to miss the importance of that which is simple. We all grasp, or claim to grasp that which requires an elaborate explanation, but we miss the plainest, simplest things so often.

Now, sometimes the Savior entered into an explanatiin of the lessons that he taught to humanity, but, sometimes, He just went along and plowed up the nuggets and left you to pick them up if you would.

This is an example of that kind; a seemingly simple story. There is nothing in the Bible that has been more misunderstood than the story if Dives and Lazarus.

The common acceptance of the story is that God would have three worlds, and if He didn't punish you now, He would punish you in the next; and, if you had a good time here, you couldn't have a good time hereafter, and, if you had had a bad time here, you would get your inning in a fairer field and a brighter day. That's the common view of this story.

Hopeless Situation.

Now, that would be a hopeless situation. That would be to say that you have got to lose either here ir hereafter, and that you can pick your choice as between now and the sweet bye and bye.

Now, the lesson was not intended to teach that. The lesson was not intended to point out that Lazarus was a good and great man. It doesn't say so. After all is said and done about this story, Lazarus was not the kind of a man that you would want to have marry into your family. He is just simply used here as an illustration.

Rich man, in that day, had no place to use his money much. They didn't have great corporations, and great aggregates of capital by which great enterprises were carried forward. Therefore, the reason why Dives failed was that he spent his money on himself. He is not condemned because he had money, but because he spent it upon his iwn entertainment.

Capital Misunderstood.

Now, we are going to clean out a little underbrush right here. I have often spoken here in favor of the laboring man, but the laboring man speaking broadly, has always had a little misconception about that great monstrous, powerful juggernaut that he calls capital.

It is plain to me that there can be no wages without capital, that there can be no wages without industry, that there can be no wages without enterprise. All right, the next step in that sort of logic would be to say that you couldn't have enterprise, you couldn't have industary, you couldn't push forward great projects, unless somebody had some money. Therefore, I say that I am strong for the rich man who furnishes opportunity for the man with the tin bucket. I believe he is doing a service when he goes out and creates an opportunity that other men may live and enjoy the things of life.

Living High

But the Dives wasn't doing that. He had to have imported stuff. You know, I am weak that way. I go down to the tailor and he says: "This cloth here—this blue serge or this chevolt—came from Devonshire, in Scotland, and I perk up and say that that would be much better than to wear something that was made out in the mountains of North Carolina, or up in Massachusetts. We are all that way. We want something brought just as far as they can bring it. That is the idea that has kept the camels crossing the sands of the Saharas. That's the way Dives wanted to dress. He lived high.

Now the record is silent—don't know how it forgot this. I used to think, in a half-baked way, that he didn't do anything for Lazarus, but the record is silent about that.

Now, Lazarus died and went to Abraham's bosom. Abraham's bosom doesn't mean anything more than our idea and his idea, of heaven. And, of course, Dives died. The book says so, and went to his place.

Death Democratic.

You know, death is the only democratic instution we have got. You talk about a pure democracy. We have got one in that institution. And Dives went to his place.

Now, all that, is the mere story that the Savior was telling, but when Dives wanted to let somebody go back and tell his brethren what kind of a fix he was in, and not to come, there we come to something in the lesson that we can use. Abraham says: 'They have got Moses and the prophets, and let them hear them.' What does that mean? That means that we have got to make out with the ordinary, every-day opportunities that are presented to us, and not be crying out for some great and miraculous thing to be done, in order that you, or others, may be saved.

It may be that neither Dives nor Lazarus understood life very well. Most of us don't. Lazarus understood as well as I do, and as well as you do, that there is no virtue in being poor. Whatever other view you might have about Lazarus, there is not a chance on earth that he was proud of being poor and there is no doubt on earth, at least in my mind, but that he would have been rich if he could, but he was afflicted with all these sores and was laid here at this man's gate, helpless.

What does the lesson mean in that regard then? It means something that we understood better than they did in that age.

Christianity Brings Charity.

Christianity has brought about that great thing that is called charity; taking care of the feeble, helpless and afflicted. When we do that, we call it charity. But, the time is coming in this country when that word will be lost in taxation. Why will it be? Because, God bless you while some of us put up this money, and some of us give, and some of us strain ourselves to keep up what we call charity, when they take care of these things by taxation, it will be done better, because taxation bears on the willing and unwilling just alike. And, when they commence taking care of these felliws, like Lazarus, with taxation, why, it is in the arithmetic that Dives is going to pay the most of it.

I am going to talk to you a moment about taxation. We are going to have all kinds of taxes. You might just as well make up your mind straighten up your shoulders, look the world in the face, and commence saving money to pay it with, because you are going to have them. You are going to have old age pensions right here in Texas, before you know it. And you are going to have pensions for widows, that are left with little children, right here in Texas before you know it. And, you are going to have every little orphan cared for by taxation, right here in Texas, before you know it.

Not with our money, or boasted pride can we afford to have a Lazarus lying upon our front steps, and we are not going to have it. Why are we not going to have it? Let me tell you something. We are not going to have Lazarus lying on our steps helpless and unaided, we are not going to have him there because it is not lucky to have him there. You are not going to have what you call luck, and I shall not, if there is one hungry orphan down here on the river in these flats; if there is one sick man, helpless man, who needs aid and we don't give it, somehow this community is going to lose on that project. It is bad luck not to do it.

So, the thing that I have come to tell you this morning, is to make up your mind that because of the coming of our christianity, because of the spread of our gospel, because of the type of our civilization, you might as well make up your minds to go down into your pockets and take from off your doorsteps, and provide for thise who suffer and cannot help themselves.

Irrigation Questions Asked And Answered Through The Record News

Through arrangements with A. M. McPherson, consulting engineer of this city who has had wide experience in irrigation work, The Record News is enabled to answer questions of all interest pertaining to irrigation work. Mail your questions to the Irrigation Editor, of The Record News.

Will the irrigation water carry weed seed all over the project?

While irrigation is a great blessing taken as a whole, still it has some disadvantages, and the ease and facility with which weed seed is distributed by irrigation water is a great nuisance.

Many devices have been tried for removing weed seed from the water in irrigation canals. Fine meshed screens have been employed, but without success as they soon become choked and hinder the flow of water to a great extent.

Then other contrivences have been tried such as skimmers placed in the canals just under the surface of water, the theory being that the weed seed would float on the top of the water and that the skimmer would remove them. These skimmers did not work as it was soon found that many seeds do not float on the surface, but are carried along by the current underneath.

Of course if ditch banks are kept free from weeds at all times it is a great help, but as the water shed of the Wichita river is mostly prairie country the water here on this project will always carry some seed.

About the only remedy will be frequent cultivations and hoeings on the part of the farmer.

How much water will be evaporated from the reservoirs in a year?

As far as we can learn no evaporation tests have ever been made in this section of the country. In our judgment the gross evaporation loss will be five or six feet per annum, but as the rain fall is almost two and a half feet the net loss will not be so great.

Gonzales Locates Two More Bicycles

City Officer Jimmy Gonzales recovered two new bicycles yesterday afternoon, from a cache in the Mexican quarter of the city. The discovery is the second to be made in the last week by Officer Gonzales, more than a dozen wheels being recovered, here. The bicycles were entirely new, and had not been repainted, as had others recovered. The officers believe that they had been stolen Saturday.

Temperature Drop Looked For Today

Clouds hung low over the city all day yesterday and a chilly breeze was stirring all day. In the afternoon the temperature began to drop steadily with promises of colder weather today. For the first time in several days no rain fell. Due to the drop in the temperature very few people enjoyed their regular Sunday afternoon car drive.

Negro Jailed For Running Still

A negro man was arrested yesterday afternoon by city officers when it was found he was operating a wholesale bootlegging ring in the flats district. He will be charged with the possession and sale of whiskey, officers say.

The officers have conducted an investigation in the negro section for the past week, and have discovered clues that are expected to lead to wholesale arrests should the sale there not cease.

Whiskey Charge Is Filed Against Man

John King was arrested late Saturday night by officers of the sheriff's department and charged with possession of intoxicating liquors by officers of the sheriff's department. When taken, 15 gallons of whiskey were found in the car he drove.

The officers intercepted the automobile between Newtown, where King lives, and Wichita Falls.

Corn Whiskey Tests 10 Percent

When a quantity of corn whiskey, taken by officers of the sheriff's department, was tested yesterday, it was found to contain over 10 per cent wood alcohol. This amount is sufficient to kill any person drinking it, according to officers.

Sheriff Pat Murphy said after the liquor had been tested that there is probably a large quantity of the same type still in the hands of bootleggers and persons here, since the amount taken was found on the person of a man arrested in Burkburnett Saturday.

Officers are on the look out for more of the brand and will test every bit of liquor brought in by them.

Rum Runners Do Rushing Business

By Associated Press.

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Jan. 28.—Rum runers off the New Jersey coast, idle for more than two weeks, resumed brisk activities last night. It was learned today. Many small boats were said to have made several successful trips, carrying from 75 to 150 cases of liquor to shore on each run.

Not all the runners were able to elude the attention of the prohibition enforcement marine forces. Two of the boats came to grief when they were sighted by vessels of the "dry navy," which chased them close to shores. The rum runners eluded capture by throwing their cargoes of whisky overboard.

CHARGES DENIED BY UNTERMEYER

Says Goodykoontz Is Fabricating

By Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28.—Samuel Uttermeyer, in a statement today denied charges made against him by Representative Goodykoontz, of West Virginia, during debate on the Daugherty impeachment resolution in the house of representatives on Thursday. Mr. Uttermeyer declared that the assertions made concerning his record were utterly fabricated and libelous.

"If as Representative Goodykoontz charges," Mr. Uttermeyer said, "my social relations with Count Bernstorff in 1915, and his visiting my home at that time, when we were at peace with Germany, constituted disloyalty, then our president and most of the public officials at Washington were traitors."

Concerning the charges made by Representative Goodykoontz that Mr. Uttermeyer was convicted by the court of chancery in the state of New Jersey for fraud, the statement said.

"The New Jersey chancery case referred to by Representative Goodykoontz, concerns a transaction more than 32 years ago, in which he recklessly asserts that hundreds of working people lost hundreds of thousands of dollars. The fact is that there were no working people or other people concerned. There was no public issue of securities and nobody ever lost a penny except myself, who lost $170,000.'"
