Three departed about 9 a. m. and the other an hour later for Prince Rupert, B. C., where the squadron will rest before the next stage, to Sitka, Alaska. The 17 days stay here was for installation of pontoons with which the fliers, led by Major Frederick L. Martin, hope to conquer the pacific ocean over a land and water course of 4,165 miles.

Sleuths Capture Big Rum Fleet

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Five liquor boats and some 1,400 cases of assorted liquors were seized and 16 alleged rum smugglers were captured last night and today by the new customs prohibition navy operating off Long Island, the prohibition authorities announced today.

The Theodore, a yacht estimated to be worth $25,000, was one of the craft seized by the dry navy, which consists of four fast boats and 40 customs men. Three sloops and a motor boat constituted the other seizures.

Prohibition agents arrested two men on Robbins Island off Long Island, after the alleged purchase from them of 35 cases of whiskey.

U. S. IMPROVES CASH POSITION

Strengthens Self As World Depository In 1923

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The United States strengthened its position as a world depositary in 1923 as "the flight of capital" continued from the unstable economic conditions of the old world, the department of commerce said today in the summary of international transactions. In the future, the department predicted this country will take a more and more important part in financing world enterprises.

Balance Favors U. S.

Once again the "invisible" trade, the transactions for which there are no government records, played an influential part in the balance of the books. The "invisible" items last year were such as to cut to $19,000,000 a balance of $389,000,000 in favor of the United States in the transaction passing through the customs houses. Included in the "invisible" items was an estimated $30,000,000 in smuggled liquors.

Ocean freight appeared to be the only consequential service or commodity for which the United States paid foreign ports more than it recovered.

Seek To Coroborate Jennings' Testimony

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Resuming its sessions after a three-day recess, the senate oil committee will seek this week testimony corroborative of the story which A. L. Jennings, once famous train robber, told on the witness stand two weeks ago about "oil deals" at the republican national convention at Chicago in 1920.

W. L. Kistler of Tulsa, Okla., connected with the Producers and Refiners Oil company, will be the first witness tomorrow in this phase of the inquiry. At least five others will be heard in the same connection, including John Smith of Paris, Texas, and J. F. Baughan of Harlengin, Texas.

Selecman Opens Revival at Floral Heights M. E.

Capacity crowds were on hand at the Sunday morning and evening services at the Floral Heights Methodist church to hear Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist university of Dallas. The morning service was in the nature of a preparatory session for the Methodist revival services to be held here this week, while the general theme of the evening address dealt with organized warfare against the sources of evil.

The need of a revival and some of the things that, it was hoped, would be accomplished by the services was touched on by Dr. Selecman Sunday morning. He went into some detail on the meetings to come.

At the evening hour, his address was taken from the scripture story of the victory of Gideon and his 300 men over the Midianites and was in part as follows:

"The supreme need of the world is a real God, not the great perhaps, but the great I am; not the God of yesterday or tomorrow but the God of today; not a Sunday God, but an every day God.

"Men are inclined to banish God from their actual lives of trial, and love, and sorrow to a realm of mystery and mere pious sentiment.

CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATIONS LOSING POWER

Pressure Drops Under Teapot Dome And Other Probes

SPEED UP ACTION

Both Branches Seek To Clear Decks Before June

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 7.—By common agreement among party leaders congress will begin this week to speed up its work in an effort to clear its decks in time for adjournment for the national political conventions which assemble in June.

Both the house and senate will resume consideration of the immigration bill with a view to getting it to conference next week. The stumbling block in each house is whether the two per cent quotas shall be based on the census of 1890 or 1910.

Tax and Bonus Bills

The senate finance committee plans to report out both the tax revision and bonus bills and one or the other will be taken up as soon as the immigration measure has been disposed of. Some republican leaders favor putting the bonus ahead so it will be known just what provision must be made for taking care of it.

The several investigations which have been productive of so many sensations as to obscure much of the legislative effort of the two houses will be resumed this week, but under less pressure than has marked their progress to date. An evidence of the lessening of this pressure was furnished yesterday when for the first time in weeks not a single public hearing was conducted by a congressional committee.

More Inquiries

Besides the oil, department of justice and land frauds inquiries at the senate end of the capitol, the agriculture committee will open hearings on Muscle Shoals and the interstate commerce commission will resume public consideration of proposed railroad legislation.

At the other end of the capitol four investigations and two public hearings will go forward before house committees. The inquiries include investigation of the charges against Representatives Langley, Kentucky, and Zihlman, Maryland, republicans, and investigations of the shipping board, aircraft industry and the bureau of engraving.

Memorial Stone Unveiled

By The Associated Press

PICKERING, Yorkshire, England, April 6.—Here, near his ancestral home, a memorial tablet to Walter Hines Page, friend of England, and American ambassador to the court of St. James through the great war, was unveiled today by the present American ambassador, Frank B. Kellogg. Mr. Kellogg left the British capital for the first time since his arrival in November to participate in the ceremonies and deliver the address of the day.

The services were conducted by the Archbishop of York, and many prominent persons in the official and social life of northern England attended.

The Page tablet is a part of an American memorial in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, an ancient edifice built on the site of Saxon church.

In the chancel on the north wall of the church there is an American monument commemorating Nicholas King, surveyor of the city of Washington, who died in 1812, this monument being the center of an American memorial on either side of which American flags are displayed permanently. Above the memorial is a plate referring to Anglo-American co-operation during the great war, and as a pendant to this plate, the Page memorial was affixed.

In his address, delivered in the twilight shadows of the seventh anniversary of America's entry into the war, Ambassador Kellogg characterized Walter Hines Page as the man who did more than anyone in American public life to make participation of the United States possible. He never had any illusions about the outcome. He was at one time deeply chagrined at what he thought a want of firmness shown by the president in his dealings with Germany, but Mr. Kellogg said he would not assume to pass judgment upon this question, for the events which marked this critical period had passed into history and the chief actors had passed from life's stage.

Shot At "Masher" Goes Wild And Hits Automobile As Target Flees From Wrath of Woman's Husband

Auto Glass Broken At Tenth Street and Scott; Two Booked at Police Station.

A shot directed by a man against another, whom it is alleged had insulted his wife, missed its mark last night and hit a Durant sedan belonging to J. S. Ellis of Iowa Park, breaking two of its glass windows, but not injuring any of the occupants.

According to the story told the police last night following the shooting, a woman, walking down Scott avenue with a companion was accosted and mishandled by a man near the Tenth street intersection. The man was said to be intoxicated. She notified her husband, and when he arrived pointed out to him the alleged masher, sitting in a Buick roadster. Her husband, making the remark that he was going to make him apologize, strode up to the car and, demanding an explanation, struck at the man. When the man got up to return the blow he was faced with a revolver in the hands of the husband. He turned and ran, gaining some speed, according to bystanders. It was at this point that the shot was fired, it going wild and striking the Durant sedan.

Both men were taken to the police station where charges of disturbing the peace were filed against them. Both were released on a $250 bond. Their cases will come up in corporation court this morning.

BORAH ASSAILS ACCEPTANCE OF "BUSINESS BRIBE"

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—So long as political parties seeking control of the government accept vast contributions from those who are interested in matters of legislation or administration there will be "sinister and corrupt and controlled government," Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, declared in an address here today before the Students' Law Enforcement convention.

"In these days," Senator Borah said, "the government deals with all the vast concerns of business, coal, railroads, ships, oil, tariffs, and it is simply intolerable that political parties accept vast contributions from those vitally interested in these matters. It is still worse for the parties to go out and solicit contributions from such individuals.

POLITICAL CALM RULES MICHIGAN

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 6.—A dead political calm has settled over Michigan, the sails of candidates in Monday's presidential primary election flapping languidly for lack of even the faintest breeze of an issue or an interest.

For the democrats, the campaign is bereft of the slightest of enthusiasm. It is merely a matter of expressing preference for one of two Michigan men—Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris and Henry Ford. Neither candidate sought the nomination and neither has made an effort to win the preferment.

There has been no campaigning for Calvin Coolidge, whose name with that of Senator Johnson and William G. Simpson, a Detroit civil engineer, is on the republican ballot.

DAWES REPORT TO BE MADE PUBLIC

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, April 6.—Sunday was just another "working day" for the committee of experts headed by Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, the report of which on German's economic and financial situation is on the eve of being made public. The date of the release of the report to the public still is problematical.

In official circles, Tuesday was given as the probable time for submission of the report to the reparation commission, for which it was formulated. A member of the Dawes committee, however, said: "If I were a gambling man, I would bet on Thursday as the time for its release."

BRITTEN DEFENDS DENBY'S LEASES

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Declaring that Secretary Denby "made a most excellent bargain for the government," when he agreed to the leasing of the naval oil reserves to the Doheny and Sinclair interests, Representative Britten of Illinois, a republican member of the house naval committee, in a formal statement issued here today assailed Senator Walsh of Montana, and other democrats who have been attacking the leases.

As a part of their lease to their California reserve, the Doheny interest are constructing oil storage at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, he pointed out, adding that this work will make possible naval base there which will make the Pacific coast safe from invasion.

BATTLES COMING ON EVERY MAJOR RATE SCHEDULE

Finance Committee To Report Bill This Week, Belief

BOTH PARTIES DUBIOUS

Demos Busy Working Out Revised Proposals For Presentation

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The reporting of the revenue bill to the senate by the finance committee, in sight for this week, was heralded today by a war cry of democrats which forecast a battle on practically every major rate schedule.

Senator Simmons, New York, ranking democrat on the finance committee declared today the minority members would propose changes in about a dozen provisions of the bill outside of the income tax rate schedule.

Work Out New Plan

Democrat members of the finance committee expect to work out definitely tomorrow the substitute income tax rate plan which they will offer for the Mellon rates. On this schedule the heart of the bill, their offensive will be centered, with support assured from some republican insurgents. The exact division of the forces, however, is problematic, pending announcement of the plan the democrats will offer, some of their own members being counted doubtful on high surtax rates.

Repubs Dubious

The republicans also are dubious of the outlook for the Mellon rates, already turned down by house majority members, but none has made a move toward a compromise.

Included in the other rate schedules which the democrats probably will attack are the automobile and corporation taxes. Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, proposed in committee substitution of a graduated scale of rates for the flat corporation tax of 12 1-2 per cent which the committee voted to make 14 per cent along with elimination of the special tax on capital stock.

"Indelible Records of Life Being Written," Boaz

"Each year of our lives constitute a volume of a great book, the book that contains the record of our actions, the record of our thoughts, and the record of our wishes and desires. That book is kept in heaven at God's hand and some day it will be opened for inspection. By the things that are set down therein He will pass judgment upon your life, and it will be decided irrevocably whether or not your life was a failure."

These were the words of Bishop H. A. Boaz at last night's service at the First Methodist church, Tenth and Lamar. Taking his text from Revelations, 20-12, "And the dead were judged out of those things written in the books," he told of the book of life that each of us was writing, the book that eventually would be the basis for God's judgment upon us. His sermon in substance follows:

"Each day you add a page to the record that is being kept of your lives. Written once that record is there, indelible and eternal. Your conversation with your friends, with your business associates, your daily contact with men, a record is kept of all, a record that can never be destroyed. You talk with a man and you have written a paragraph on his mind. I am writing paragraphs o nyour minds now. Parents write on the minds of their children, teachers on their pupils, employers on their employees, and all on their associates. The good man writes for zeal and the bad man for woe. A few have written on my mind for eternal profit, some have done an everlasting harm by the pencil marks of their actions on my mind.

"A duplicate of this record is kept in heaven in God's mind. Every deed, word, and thought is recorded there, nothing escapes. After a while you will write the last line on the last page of the last volume. The death angel will call and you must go, your

ILLINOIS TO BE CENTER OF BRISK PRIMARY BATTLE

By The Associated Press.

The explosion occurred at 10.45 Sunday morning as Willis struck a match to light a cigar. The floor, over a space of 30 or 40 feet square, was ripped to kindling, and office fixtures were splintered and seared by flames. Willis, who was standing about 20 feet from the front entrance, was hurled to the floor and his clothing set afire.

Death Toll Cut to Two at Lilly, Pa., Score Under Arrest

45 Pistols Taken from Special Train Carrying Klansmen When It Lands At Johnstown After Rioting

By The Associated Press.

LILLY, Pa., April 6.—Two men were killed, another believed fatally wounded and a score of others were more or less seriously hurt in rioting Saturday night between townspeople and members of the ku klux klan, a close check up by state police and deputy sheriffs disclosed today.

Four residents of Lilly were being held by state police upon charges of rioting while at Johnstown twenty-five men, said to klansmen, were being held by Sheriff Logan N. Kellar, pending an investigation.

The rioting occurred when the stream from a fire hose was turned upon the klansmen as they were boarding a special trian for Johnstown, 19 miles west of here, after having paraded in the darkness through the town from an adjoining hill where a ceremony attended by some 600 klansmen had been held. Firing began immediately and when the special train pulled out 30 minutes later several wounded men had been taken aboard while Phillip T. Conrad and Floyd Paul, both of Lilly, lay dead on the street. Eleven of the wounded, all declared to be residents of Lilly, were taken to the Altoona hospital, the most seriously hurt being Frank Missco, whose recovery physicians declared was doubtful. Three of the injured taken to the Johnstown hospital were said to be klansmen.

Patroling Town.

Sheriff Kellar with a force of deputy sheriffs and a detachment of state police patrolled the town today. Sheriff Kellar returned to Johnstown late today saying the situation was quiet and that he feared no further disorders. Members of the state police remained, however, to conduct an investigation into the riot.

About 45 pistols were taken from the special train after its arrival at Johnstown, according to Sheriff Kellar, who declared that some were found upon the men arrested while others were in the cars.

Electric lights in Lilly had been extinguished earlier in the evening and as the klansmen marched down from Piper's Hall where a ceremony had been staged with the burning of a cross, the way was lighted by pocket flash lights. Several hundred of the robed figures had already boarded the train after having passed through a line made by the townspeople assembled at the station, when a stream of water from the fire hose was suddenly turned upon them. One of the klansmen was reported to have rushed to the group of young men holding the hose, wresting it from their grasp, turned it upon them. A moment later the battle in the darkness began.

Firing Begins.

All but a group of about 100 klansmen had boarded the train when the firing began. The loading of the train continued as bullets whistled through the air and stones and other missiles were hurled from all directions. Three wounded men, said to be klansmen from the vicinity of Johnstown, were among those taken aboard the train, which departed as soon as the visiting klansmen had entered the cars.

Stops were made at various places and when the special arrived at Johnstown it was met by Sheriff Kellar and Chief of Police Charles Briney. Those remaining on the train were searched and 25 men with pistols were arrested, according to Sheriff Kellar. He declared that any charge to be made against them would be preferred after the investigation of the riot had been completed.

Weimer, district attorney of Cambria county, declared tonight. Information will be filed against them, tomorrow, he said, and the facts surrounding the riot will be developed at later hearings.

By The Associated Press.

Booth, a special assistant attorney general now in charge of Indian land fraud prosecutions in Oklahoma. He will be followed, if the program is not upset, by H. L. MAN A COPYIST MILLER ASSERTS

Methodist Minister Points Out Manner in Which Life Is Created

Taking as his text John 13:15, "For I have given unto you as an example that you should do as I have done." Rev. Leslie Miller of the First Methodist church preached Sunday night on the manner in which man reflected the works of Christ. His complete sermon was as follows:

All the universe is a "copy book." God is the only originator. He is the true creator. Even He, from the time He brought into being the original, has been copying. His first and original creatures belong to the essential and fundamental. All that follows is copy; rearrangement of the first things.

When God made the first rainbow. He set it in the heavens, and nature has been copying ever since. This flower path of the skies is always the same. All the grandure of the natural earth, all life is merely manifestations of the mixing, in the Creator's infinite crucible, different proportions of the fundamental chemical elements, and the laws of God. Originally God made nitrogen, hydrogen, oxygen and all the other elements. He also set in order His many laws, physical, moral and spiritual. The various combination of these laws and elements gives us the onion and the rose, man and the beasts of the field, mighty Niagara and the Rocky mountains.

"Nothing New."

Solomon, the wisest man that ever lived, said "There is nothing new under the sun." Relative to the so-called fundamental, this is true, but from first things all that has been made, is composed, and many surprising creations shall undoubtedly yet appear, as mankind marches behind God up the golden stairs of eternity. The difference in the many forms of God's creatures is transcendent; one contains nothing save inanimate matter, subject to a few physical laws; in other forms we find mute life; while in humanity we have not only matter, and life as we know it, but intelligence, reason and a will. All of these are played upon, not only by the myriad of God's physical laws, but by the great multitude of spiritual and moral laws, many of which we are yet to discover. Our God creates all of these things, animate and inanimate, from the same "stuffs." As a Handel or a Beethoven can take the same eight notes, plus the laws of harmony, plus their own genius, and give to the world "The Messich," and the "Moonlight Sonata"; as a Rubenstein or a Rachmaninoff can sit before the same key board and with the same system of notes, bring forth their mighty tone pictures that run the gamut of human life with its varied emotions, so God takes from His original creations of elements and laws, and makes the different creations as we know them.

God a Worker.

Our Heavenly Father is a worker. He is patient and skillful. He is truly the infinite Master in the work-shop of the universe. As the artisan, or the artist must thrill over the creations of their hands and brains, so God must get great pleasure in His work, and the world He has made and is still making. He must view with pride a Niagara Falls that it has taken thousands of years to finish. The vast range of the Himalayas, or the sombre mystery of the mighty Sahara, or the trackless ways of the starry firmament above, all must fill the Father heart of God with pleasure at His handiwork.

But man is God's highest achievement. He made us in His likeness. We are the highest of His creatures for we are learners at the feet of God. Man is God's understudy.

I have always liked the idea of the apprentice. We are the apprentices to God. We are learners from Him and workers with Him. Happy is the man whose attitude towards life is ordered after this ideal.

Nature is perfect in her obedience to her Maker. In the plant kingdom, the "morning glory" was taught to open with the rising sun, and the "four o'clock" was bid to show her face and shed her fragrance on the afternoon air, and they never fail. The "woodpecker" was taught to make his home in the hollow tree, and the fox, his den in the side of the hill, while the eagle learned from her Creator to build her nest and rear her young on the crag, far above the enemies of the valley.

And these children of nature always do the Creator's bidding. All of these are God's understudys. But God's greatest apprentice is man.

The Creator says to man, "Here is a wild rose." Man says, "Father, I thank thee for the secrets of thy world thou hast revealed to me." He then takes the wild rose into the laboratory and the experimental gardens, and there, with the Master Maker of the universe, even our God, the wild flower is transformed into the American Beauty. God gives man the original sour, seedy orange, plus a little knowledge and soon His apprentice returns and hands back to God and to the children of men the seedless, sweet fruit that we enjoy so much. God places in the hands of man his laws of electricity, and behold man returns with light, power, the radio and all the other modern electrical inventions and discoveries.

But the greatest realm of toil and discovery is not in nature as such, but in the realm of the human heart. Men make perfect cows by following the laws of heredity and scientific care, but in the making of citizens we often fall far short. The greatest workshop, as we strive to learn, at the feet of God, is the workshop of the heart, of moral and spiritual things.

How important it is that parents, teachers and all those who have to do with the rearing of the young, shall do, each one, his best to live the Christian life for our children reflect the lives we live. We all remember the homely illustration about the little fellow tagging along behind his daddy, as they trudged along through the snow, and the little son called out to his daddy, saying: "O, look, daddy, I'm stepping right in your tracks." One day a man said to me, "I quit smoking cigarettes because I do not want my boys to learn to use them." Man is a copyist. The boy or the girl, in the home, in the school, emulate their elders. If the father uses profane language, how can you expect the children not to use it? If the child finds his parent untruthful, what can you expect of the child?

The least any parent can do, or any one else who has the molding of the lives of our boys and girls in their hands, is to be clean, Christian, unselfish, and a serving member of society.

Emerson says in his essay on "Character": "Every trait which the artist recorded in the stone, he has seen in life, and better than the copy." If the copy is good, the result will be as good or better. The converse of this is equally true.

I remember the old "copy book" that had the "copy" at the top of the long page. The farther you got from the top of the page the worse your work would become.

Thank God we have the person, life, words, and personality of Christ as our "copy." May we continue to look to our Master, and in the power of the Holy Spirit strive to be like him. May we again listen as He says, "For I have given unto you an example, that you should do as I have done."

Grafton Delivers Special Sermon Sunday to Order of Rainbow Girls

Sketching the quest of true womanhood in the colors of the rainbow, Rev. N. F. Grafton at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning delivered a special sermon to the Order of Rainbow girls of the city. His text was Genesis 9:8-16 "I do set my bow in a cloud and it shall be a token of a covenant between me and the earth." Revelation 1:13 "And there was a rainbow around the throne, in sight like unto an emerald."

His sermon was as follows:

The service today is the annual service for the Order of Rainbow Girls. The Rainbow girls are members of the families of Master Masons or of the Eastern Star. Their ritual is "a quest for true womanhood," and all through their work in their chapter they are emphasizing and exemplifying the characteristics of a true woman. They are seeking ever to attain to those graces of womanhood that are anxiously looked for by every sincere girl. They have selected the rainbow on the fringe of the cloud as the symbol of their order, and it is a very beautiful and a very suggestive thing. It has to do with the covenant of Almighty God between Himself and man.

When one has been through a great experience, as had Noah and his family, and has found time for meditation and real thought, he can but see in that experience of his the hand of God. The story of the flood is a very thrilling one and in it we see the Providence of God as He is seeking to carry out a great plan or program for the earth and its inhabitants. The rainbow on the fringe of the cloud was very necessary and God put it there as the symbol of His covenant entered into with man.

Fear of Flood.

Naturally there would be a haunting fear that would paralyze effort following the destruction of the earth by the flood. To Noah and his descendants every cloud would be a portent of misfortune and death. When the people heard the voice of thunder they would tremble and be afraid; when they saw the flash of lightning they would feel the possibility of a coming disaster that would again wipe them off the face of the earth, and under that sort of condition no race progress was possible. Fear paralyzes effort and any individual who is dominated by the spirit of fear is dominated by that which will retard his effort and will write failure across his life during that period of time when he was under the spell of fear.

So there could be no race progress as long as the human family was afraid that once again the storms would come and the rains descend and the population of the earth be destroyed by a mighty flood like unto the one which had just passed over them. And God promises them that there would not be any more flood, and in order that they might not be under the dominion of fear He set the rainbow on the fringe of the cloud. Under fear all effort is retarded, the heart is paralyzed and the nerves deadened; time spent in self defense shortens progress of development of the people. God sought to allay that fear, and under the Rainbow Covenant He assured Noah and his posterity that never again would the earth be destroyed by flood; hope could bloom, progress could be made and they could have dominion over the Kingdom which God had put in their hands.

Covenant Repeated.

The word "covenant" appears three hundred times in the Old Testament. It means a compact, a bargain entered into, an agreement. The covenant which God made with man was an agreement with man and God never failed to keep His compact. There was a very significant statement in the Sabbath school lesson this morning, which perhaps few caught, and that was that when the Kingdom was divided and just that one tribe remained of the House of David it was the Tribe of Judah and not that of some other son of Jacob. What was the significance? Back yonder God said He would bless the world through a certain line and that line came down through David and Judah and through Christ. God has never failed to keep His Covenant.

Over there in Revelation as we read that wonderful story we find Christ seated on His throne and there was a rainbow round about that throne. From the beginning of God's covenant to the consummation of all things there is this rainbow of God's promise that he will bless and keep and sustain His people. It signifies an unchanging purpose amid changing things. Fixedness, stability and permanence bring peace of mind and assurance to man who lives in an unstable and changing world, and the human heart demands the abiding, the sure things.

Every time it rains you stand out there and look at that great bow with its seven colors and it speaks to you directly from the Father God, saying that the Eternal God with all of His fixedness of purpose is carrying out His plan and there will be no change in the plan of our gracious, Heavenly Father.

Signifies Other Things.

That rainbow on the fringe of the cloud signifies another thing and that is that God illuminates dreaded things. There is nothing quite so frightening as a thunder cloud. You stand and watch it as it comes up in the southwest; you see the wind clouds as they float back and forth across that heavy cloud; you see beneath that cloud a tail-like something that continually dips and draws itself up and you hear the angry murmur of thunder in the distance and see the flash of lightning and somehow you feel helpless and utterly dependent upon some higher authority and you shrink back in terror. And, then somehow, as you gaze off yonder, there appears the rainbow and you know the storm is passing; the rainbow stands for the assurance that God is with you.

You have experiences in life that make you shudder and make you fearful and afraid, and then all at once God's hand is stretched out and God illuminates that which has been dreadful to you, that from which you shrank in terror.

In quest of the rainbow! How many multitudes of people have set out to travel that road that leads to the foot of the rainbow. When I was a little fellow I heard the story of the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow. In my childish imagination I thought I could find it in just a little while and out of the house and out of the yard I went in search of it. After awhile my mother discovered my absence and sent one of the older boys after me and when he caught me I was on the other side of the town, entering the woods, and I told him I was hunting the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow.

There have been men and women all along the way of life who have hunted the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow, but no man has ever gone on that search but that he has been rewarded. I see a man on that journey, tired and weary, and I ask him what it is he is seeking for and he tells me: "The pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow. I seek material comfort, that which gold alone will purchase for me." One day I see him as he sits there tired but contented, and piled around him is the gold he discovered at the foot of the rainbow of life. I see another pilgrim and I ask him what his quest is and he says: "I am seeking an education; I am hunting the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow." One day I see him tired and worn and I ask him if he has found the pot of gold and he tells me he has, and as I listen to his scholarly conversation I come to know that has met with the chief desire of his heart in the discovery of his pot of gold. Out there is a man or woman seeking culture and by and by returns with rich rewards of culture and refinement of nature because the quest has been made.

Here are girls before us who have a quest, and it is a beautiful one, a magnificent one, far greater than riches, far greater than education, far greater than refinement, far greater than the arts. It is taking from the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow of true woman hood. That is your quest as you go out on the journey of life. You are in that period of your life when all is bright, when your faith in God and in manhood and womanhood is at its height. True womanhood keeps the altar fires of this faith in God and man burning.

Let me say to you that you cannot afford ever to lose your abiding faith in God and His Covenant to you as an individual. No more can you afford to lose your faith in womanhood; no more can you afford to lose your faith in manhood. You are going to be disappointed sometime, somewhere and you are going to be tempted to say things are not true, that there is more evil than good in manhood and womanhood, but I want to say if you keep the fires of your faith in God and man burning, you will find it advances you along the road to the discovery of true womanhood.

Way Not An Easy One.

Your way will not be an easy way. Even when the sun is shining brightest, the storm of life will come but through the storm will come the white light of promise and after that the victory. Out of the trials and temptations through which girlhood passes there comes the rainbow in the heavens, spanning from the north to the south. You have learned its significance; keep it ever before you in the quest of true womanhood.

Your colors are symbolical. In your rainbow, in that pot of gold, there are seven colors and everyone of them significant to you in your quest for womanhood. There is the red, which signifies love, the love that revealed itself in Christ and the love that reveals itself in every true woman. Somehow woman has always stood for that beautiful thing—Love. The orange symbolizes the heroic — the heroic in sacrificial service of womanhood. You do not know now what sacrificial service means, but the hour will come in your life when you will plumb that experience in its profoundest depth. I want to say to you that this color of the rainbow which stands for one of the graces of your character in your quest for true womanhood will mean much to you in the future years. Blue signifies fidelity—that loyalty and steadfastness that crowns all true womanhood. Indigo signifies patriotism—that vicarious offering of all on the altar of one's country. No individual pays such a sacrificial price to the god of war as does womanhood. That great monster draws into his hands the very flower of womanhood's heart. Remember that indigo means patriotism, but make it mean patriotism in the truest sense of the word; that patriotism that would dare to stand before the war god and declare that there be no more war, that patriotism that loves its country and its flag and its constitution and that its citizenship so much that it declares that never again shall the house be robbed of its purest and best to satisfy the greed of man. Violet signifies royal service. There is nothing more queenly than that quality of serving, going about doing good, ministering in love and sympathy and helpfulness. Yellow, Nature in the heighth of her glory as seen in the fall of the year; yellow and gold painted by the brush of nature's great artist, that thrills the mind and satisfies the heart. So there is that yellow and gold of true womanhood that will be beautiful in the evening of life, in the fall when the sap is going down. Green signifies immortality. Christ, who "brought life and immortality to light" is pictured in Revelation as sitting upon His throne and round about that throne a rainbow like unto emerald. Why that statement? Jesus Christ has made it possible for us to live again and it is symbolized there around His throne. "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of Glory shall come in."

Jesus Christ shall sit upon His throne and the rainbow will be round about that throne to signifies everlasting peace, everlasting joy, everlasting honor and everlasting glory and it is your privilege to be in that great throng when Jesus Christ is crowned King of King and Lord of Lords.

Well, One Car's As Good As the Other

A loss of an unusual nature was reported to police yesterday.

During the Rotary convention Mrs. Katharine Barr of Electra, placed a fur cape valued at about two hundred dollars underneath the rear seat of a Chevrolet touring car parked outside the Kemp. She thought the car to be her own, both being new and otherwise alike.

On reaching home and searching for the coat she found that it was not there, and remembering the Chevrolet touring cars parked side by side it is supposed that the cape was left under the rear seat of the wrong car where it will probably remain until a puncture or other accident necessitates getting some tools from the container there.

HOW TO BUILD, FINANCE

BETTER HOMES

HAPPINESS

AND FURNISH A HOME

Copyright, 1923

Frame Bungalow House Builders

Bungalows can be built of either frame, brick, tile or stucco. For economy at present it is advisable to build of frame. The reason for this is a shortage of bricklayers and the consequent delay.

If built of cypress weatherboard or red cedar shingles, the cost is approximately the same. Shingle, however, for the bungalow type, seems to be the most popular owing to the rustic atmosphere it lends to the home and also it is a little cheaper on upkeep because stain on shingles last longer than paint on the weatherboard.

A house built of frame, of course, has a foundation of either brick, tile or cement. The frame part is constructed of 2x4 upright studding with subsiding, heavy building paper and then either shingled or weatherboarded. A house built in this manner can be easily heated and will last indefinitely if kept well painted.

An economical roof produced now is the "Flintpote" roofing. This is a composition of roofing made of fabricated asphalt and crushed slate. This is easily laid and it lasts from ten to thirty years. There is of tin, or of breaking, as in the no chance of rusting, as in the case case of slate.

Interior

In this moderately priced home the interior finish is similar to a more expensive home. Hardwood floors are installed generally in the living quarters and hard pine in the bedrooms. These floors are scraped and finished with either shellac and wax or varnish, giving a clear, golden appearance.

The popular finish for the standing trim is the old ivory gloss finish. This color goes well with any type of furniture and, although it is light in color, it can be easily cleaned, because of the fact that a gloss paint can be readily washed without spotting.

In the living room an open fireplace lends that finishing touch to the real home. Every person, even from the savage up, is charmed to some degree by the flickering flames of an open fire. Adjoining the living room, through a trimmed opening, is the dining room with large twin windows. In the rear of this is the kitchen with its attractive breakfast alcove, built-in dressers and pantry.

There are two large bedrooms with a tiled bath between them, each room has ample light through two large windows, with excellent wall space for the well appointed bedroom.

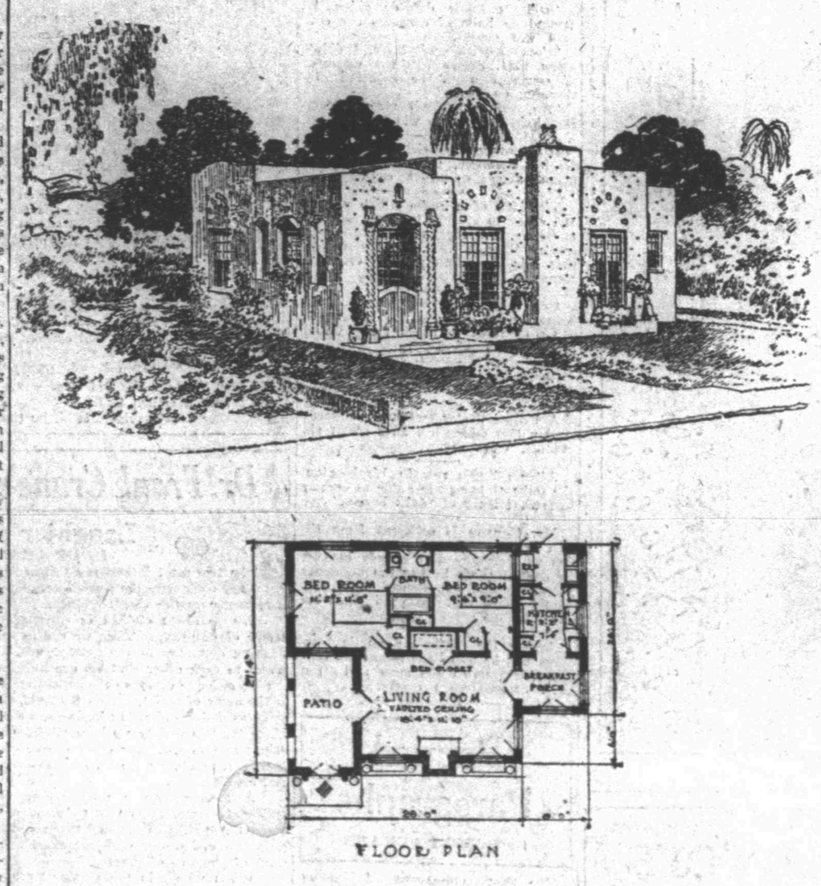

Large Porch

There is a large porch. Each house has a spacious cellar and attic. In the cellar there are four windows. Insuring plenty of light and ventilation. Laundry tubs are located under the windows. In the attic there is ample space for storage or another room could be finished there.

All in all, this home can be built and marketed at a reasonable figure, which means much in the case of a young couple trying to get a start. It meets their needs and, being located in suburban sections, giving ample room on a large lot for play space for young, growing children and also a small garden, which affords the husband some outdoor exercise. It is easily taken care of by the housewife, as all the rooms are on one floor and the house is equipped with all modern improvements.

THE SANTA BARBARA

A Delightful House for Sunny Climate

FLOOR PLAN

The Spanish type of architecture is particularly popular in the warm, sunny climates of Florida and California, although it has also found favor in other parts of the country. This type is usually low and rambling in design and is therefore suited to bungalow construction.

The Santa Barbara is a splendid example of this type. With its entrance facing on the street, this house requires a lot 45 feet wide but with the narrow end on the street, a 36-foot lot would serve. A flat or even low piece of ground is best for this style.

Through a wooden gate one enters the patio, a roofless enclosure which, when fitted with garden furniture and potted plants, makes an ideal, private outdoor room. From here, through large double doors, we enter the unusually large living room. Its vaulted ceiling and great fireplace give it distinctive character while the low casement windows of many small panes frame colorful pictures of outdoor scenes enhanced by builtin flower boxes. A bed closet hides a useful and comfortable wall bed for use when guests are to be accommodated. The breakfast porch adjoining is large enough for four people and is used for all but formal meals.

The compact kitchen is a most enjoyable home workshop. The sink is beneath a window with drainboard and closets to each side and below. The range is opposite in a nook formed by two closets on either side.

Each of the bedrooms has a large closet. They adjoin the bath which is between them and which has a linen closet built above the tub. The larger of the bedrooms has windows on three sides.

The flat roof is of reinforced concrete carried on concrete block or tile walls. The rooms are kept cool by an insulated ceiling of plaster on wire mesh, suspended several inches below the roof slab as well as by the heat resisting qualities of the walls themselves. Portland cement stucco in light tones and attractive textures gives an enduring, attractive finish to the outside of the house.

MUSIC RANKED HIGH AS HOME PRESERVER

Among the different elements that contribute to the real home, we must not forget music.

A home without music may be stripped of almost everything else and yet its occupants will smile and radiate happiness.

So much has the piano become an institution of the American home that the average family buys its baby grand before its baby carriage.

Phonograph "Grows Up"

And the phonograph, sister to the player-piano, is now more familiar to the visiting doctor than the perambulator.

Perhaps because the appreciation of good music is growing more rapidly than the ability to interpret it, the phonograph is rapidly passing from the position of a luxury to that of a necessity in the home.

Born of a love of music and an altruistic desire to place the best in harmony at the disposal of the masses, the phonograph passed through many long and tedious years of adolescence, in which the perfection of its mechanism was of prime importance and its decorative value a thing that was given little if any consideration. It was the red-headed stepchild of a home, a very young stepchild who, it was desirable, should be heard and not seen.

A few years ago the phonograph field was virtually in the hands of a half-dozen manufacturers, due primarily to the fact that these manufacturers had a virtual monopoly on basic patents covering machine and record manufacture. About 1915 some of the principal patents expired and the mechanism became public property. The result was a rush of new manufacturing concerns into the market.

No Longer a Toy

During the last five years several hundred new makes of talking machines have come out, the majority of them simply assembled from cabinets and mechanical parts bought in different places. There has been a constant shifting among these concerns. In what direction the industry will move, only the coming years can determine.

The phonograph no longer is considered a novelty or bought as a toy for the passing moment. It has a recognized service to perform and is gradually working its way into a permanent place as a music-making instrument for the home. Of course it is largely a matter of supposition what direction the rapidly increasing taste for good music will take.

At present it looks as if appreciation for good music is increasing more rapidly than ability to produce good music. The outstanding fact is that if a family wants to hear certain music it will not be content to wait until its children have had sufficient training to play that music on the piano.

SOCIAL NOTES

Lent is half way gone and the indications are that for the rest of the pre-Easter season there will be only the meeitng of the study clubs with perhaps informal afternoons when there will be one or two or three tables of bridge, the afternoon closing with tea and sandwiches. Mrs. George Kehler of Huntington, Ind., who has been for two weeks the house guest of Mrs. A. E. Landon and Mrs. R. E. L. Hitt of Oklahoma City, who has been the guest of her cousins, Mrs. Josephine Carter and Mrs. Fred Pittman, two charming visitors have been the social incentive for several lovely affairs the past two weeks. In all probability from now on, flower gardens, spring sewing and a little house cleaning will loom large on milady's horizon.

PARTY

Complimentary to Mrs. George Kehler, Mrs. Emmet Clark gave one of the loveliest parties of the season Wednesday afternoon of last week. The Clark home looked lovely with its suggestions of springtime — a color scheme of blue and pink being carried out. The electroliers were wrapped with pink from which were suspended baskets of spring flowers, while tall blue candles with pink tulle bows added to the attractiveness of the rooms.

The tables of bridge were arranged and named "Hoosier," "Sooner" and "Golden Gate" and the games were prefaced by a little travelogue by the hostess telling of the journeying of Mrs. Kehler.

In the games Mrs. J. L. Vertrees won high points and was remembered with a silk vest, Mrs. G. A. Nelson had high honors and received a box of powder and to the guest of honor was given a bottle of perfume.

A delicious three course lunch was served by the hostess assisted by her neice Miss Anna Louise Sickles.

Mrs. Clark's guests for the afternoon were Mesdames D. M. Bridges, Gail Durham, E. E. Watkins, Donald Stuart, G. A. Nelson, W. T. F. Bush, M. F. Walsh, E. B. Ellis, Earl Morris, J. L. Vertrees, A. E. Landon, Wm. Milchrist of Sioux City, Iowa, who was the house guest of Mrs F. E. Watkins, the honor guest and Mesdames W. H. Gresham and her mother, Mrs. H. C. Gresham of Cleburne, Texas, and Mrs. Ruby Dunkin.

BRIDGE

Thursday Bridge club held its regular weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Jasper which was made beautiful with baskets of sweet peas and vases and bowls of spring time flowers. There were four tables of bridge, Mrs. Gail Durham having high points, Mrs. Fred Pittman high honors and the guest prize going to Mrs. Miles Murphy. The prizes to out-of-town guests went to Mrs. R. E. L. Hitt and to Mrs. George Kehler.

Lovely refreshments were served after the games to the club members and Mesdames Miles Murphy, Donald Sturat, E. B. Ellis, Earl Morris, Mrs. George Kehler of Huntington, Ind., Mrs. Wm. Milchrist of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mrs. R. E. L. Hitt of Oklahoma City.

KUREANS

Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Heacock the Kureans entertained their husbands with a party, complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. George Kehler. The evening was spent very informally. On arriving each guest was given a head-piece in order to listen in on a radio concert for the evening. In addition to hearing the various performers, which included the famous Night Hawks, and other well known entertainers, the guest were also permitted to see those who were taking part. The burlesque was very much enjoyed. This was followed by a fine musical program, Mrs. C. A. Holding and Miss Verna Davidson, both singing in their usual pleasing manner, Mrs. Emmet Clark gave a violin number accompanied by Mrs. Will Aydelotte at the piano.

The rest of the evening was given over to "charades" and stunts of various kinds. Lovely refreshments were served at a late hour, after which there was some lovely musical numbers given by Mrs. C. A. Holding, Mrs. Bill Dighton, Miss Verna Davidson, Tyler Carter and Alva Clymer, with Mrs. Alva Clymer at the piano.

CLEANER KITCHENS URGED AS INSURANCE AGAINST PESTS OF MANKIND

Coal buckets, sink strainers, refrigerator pans and every household receptacle for waste should be kept absolutely clean. Brushes, brooms, dustcloths, scrub and window cloths and dish towels should be immaculate.

The greatest offender—the dish cloth—deserves especial notice. It is used and indifferently washed out in most instances until it falls to pieces after a period of germ-laden usefulness. A dishcloth should be boiled out, washed and replaced very often.

Modern Furniture Traced

The story of modern furniture rightly belongs with the crumbling of the middle ages. The baronial hall stage, with its religious formality, combined with its rugged simplicity, was being followed by a more withdrawn, domestic and luxurious life. As always this was reflected in the furniture. The strong and simple high-and-narrow Gothic style, with its characteristic pointed arch began to be debased.

France is said to be the first country to be influenced by the Italian Renaissance, but there the Gothic and the classic clashed. The process of grafting the Italian style on the Gothic hardly began in England until 1550, when it was nearly completed in France. By the end of Elizabeth's reign, 1603, there was a semblance of unity, and the Jacobean period created itself.

FURNITURE VALUE POINTS

Into three general groups or divisions can the value of furniture be divided. First in cost and carriage; second, utility or service; third, the elements of beauty or attractiveness.

The first two groups are tangible things and can be figured out by rule and formula, but the elements of beauty, which comprise the third division are things complex and often intangible.

To obtain the best results in furnishing your home, inspect the displays in your home town dealer's store. Note the lines, bulk and color. What pleases you most will be the most acceptable pieces of furniutre for your home, provided you have also considered the color of the surroundings into which you will place that furniture. And your dealer will easily assist and guide you in solving that question if you ask him.

HOW TO TREAT PIPES

Europe has its gargoyles, the United States has its gutters. There is more difference of opinion regarding the ornamental value of a gargoyle, none at all regarding that of a gutter. Like the "ghost of a show that was stranded in Peoria," it is not. Gutters are gutters, and have always remained so. Designed for the strictly utilitarian purpose of carrying away water from roofs, th have been drably used.

BRIDGE

Friday afternoon, Mrs. J. L. Vertrees and Mrs. D. M. Bridges gave a lovely bridge party at the home of the latter, when Mrs. George Kehler and Mrs. R. E. L. Hitt were honorees.

The Bridges' home was lovely with crystal vases of spring time blossoms and cut glass bowls of violets. In the games, Mrs. P. F. Dawson had high points and was remembered with silk hose, Mrs. Jack Jasper had high honors and was given a lovely compact, while each of the honor guests were given silk hose.

AN OBJECT LESSON FOR RUSSELL.

Charles Edward Russell is a noted magazine writer and newspaper man. An original advocate for equal suffrage after three year's trial of the ballot Mr. Russell came to the conclusion that as far as purifying politics or creating independent political thought is concerned, the American women as a voter has been a rank failure. His views appeared in a recent number of the Century magazine.

Perhaps this noted correspondent and magazine writer is mistaken. He advanced the viewpoint that the women followed the lead of the men folk of their family; that they attached themselves to the political machines of the country and followed the leadership of the political bosses. He had made a study of political conditions in the larger cities and for the life of him he could not see wherein the women voters had been a purifying element in the politics of the nation.

This veteran of the press should come to Texas. He should visit Dallas. He should investigate conditions and the result of a very recent election where the representative mothers of the city whipped the politicians of the city to a frazzle when the aforesaid politicians had greased the skids to place their own candidates in office and secure control of the public schools of the place that advertises itself as the fastest growing southern city as well as the wealthiest and most progressive.

Fourteen years ago progressive men and women of Dallas insisted that the public schools should be taken out of politics and that the politicians should be driven into their holes. Two women were elected members of the board of education and from that day to this the Mothers Council has dominated the public schools of Dallas with the result throughout these years that the politicians have kept hands off, there have been no scandals, Dallas has public school buildings which are the pride of the people and neither religious nor racial prejudices have ever been permitted to show their ugly heads.

This year a coterie of politicians who have controlled the city of Dallas in recent elections ordered the Mothers' Council to retire from the board, four of the seven members to make way for four whose names would be furnished by the aforesaid coterie of politicians. Did the recently emancipated female accede to the demand? Did she run up the white feather? Did she order a disorderly retreat of her forces?

She did not. She hurled defiance in the teeth of of the politicians. She said that the Mothers' Council backed by the Parent-Teachers association had directed the public schools for years, that they were the finest in the land, that they were free from the sordid touch of the selfish ward politician and that they should remain while the mothers of the city had a voice in the affairs of government and a vote at the ballot box.

Following the defi the politicians who rule the city and the county government put out a full ticket of a president and six members, and sounded the slogan for the politically ruled hosts to rush to the ballot box on election day.

Mark you, the Mothers' Council and the Parent-Teachers associations had only four days for organization purposes and to rally to the polls men and women voters who believed that the mothers of the city and not the politicians of the city should rule the schools. It was the greatest political battle ever staged in the city of Dallas. The women won.

There is to be no contest. The politicians threw up their hands. They complimented the victors. They had enough. They failed to capture the public schools of Dallas and the Mothers' Council of Dallas is doing business at the old stand.

This for the edification of Mr. Charles Edward Russell, the noted newspaper contributor and magazine writer who pronounced equal suffrage as a purifying element in politics a lamentable failure.

SPEAKING OF LABOR SHORTAGE

The Persistent Lovers

Time was so short! Was he going the right way to get happiness for himself and Audrey? Why were they forced to potter uselessly? Why couldn't they marry, and, as the children's stories always end, live happily ever after?

There was Joyce waiting for love — and death snatched up the man who loved her. There were men of means and standing who would have given their souls to marry Audrey—and she thought only of a man of whom she was forbidden to think. And there was Dick, the man she loved, rendered powerless by lack of money.

Is fate a humorist, or only a sort of vivisector?

After some discouraging experiences Dick procured a job in London that at least promised to last. But it held out little prospects of advancement, and finally Dick made a clean breast of it to Audrey. He told her the apparent hopelessness of his present position, explaining that after 30 years' work he might be drawing 500 a year—which was a fairly respectable sum to marry on at the age of 20.

She smiled.

"Stick to it," she said. "You won't have to wait all that time to get 200 a year, and we can manage on that. I've got stacks of clothes that'll last me for ages, and we'll get a tiny flat somewhere with a girl to wash up. It'll be splendid fun. Just think of hanging up our pictures in our own home! I've got one or two I'm awfully fond of and you'll have all your Oxford things. We'll make the place look simply ripping."

So Dick set his jaw and stuck to it, thanking Heaven for small mercies, but asking if they couldn't possibly be made a bit larger.

Every day he toiled, up at 9 o'clock with the army of daily-breads, passing the same faces in the streets at the same places, breakfasting at the same table in the same lunchroom, with the same waitress to bring him his uninviting and inefficient meals.

Audrey and he met in odd corners and drew strength from each other's eyes. Sometimes, like Wilson and the Watford girl, they waited in line outside the pit of a theatre for a Saturday matinee, and afterward went to a tea-shop, where they could sit and talk until Audrey had to get back home.

Sometimes she came in her car and they motored out somewhere into the country and made a day of it. At other times they lunched cheaply, or went to a picture-gallery, or simply for a walk in the park. Dick almost liked the office on those happy days. If it offered him no future, at least it gave him a glorious present.

One day, not long before Christmas, he had his eyes opened to a new aspect of their mutual position which hitherto had never occurred to him. They had lunched together, and it had cost him three shillings, besides sixpence to the waitress.

Then Audrey said that she wanted to do some shopping; so they walked down Bond street.

Altogether she spent about 15 sovereigns. As he helped her across the street, Dick said:

"I want to ask you something."

"Fire away," said Audrey.

"It's about money," Dick went on slowly.

Audrey shot a quick look at him.

"What about it?" Her tone was antagonistic.

Dick stood firm.

"How much money have you?"

Audrey thought quickly.

"Well, if you must know, I have somewhere about three hundred and fifty pounds a year."

"That's done it!" he said, "it's no good, Audrey. I shall never be able to marry you now with all that money."

He looked the picture of rampant self-respect, or, as she preferred to put it, pig-headed idiocy.

"I'd rather die than marry you unless I'm earning at least as much as you've got," he said.

"Oh, but why? You'll never get 350 in that wretched office! We shall be old and gray and bad-tempered. You've got to take me for better or for worse, Dick. Don't be proud and obstinate. Take me for better. When we're married it will be your money. I'll make it over to you, every penny of it. Let's go and get married and—"

"No!" said Dick. "No, no! If I'm not man enough to be able to earn sufficient to keep a wife, at least I'm man enough not to live on a girl's money!"

"Oh, don't let's argue that all over again!"

"There's no need for argument."

"It's what you call your self-respect against my—love. Which do you prefer?"

"Audrey!"

"Well you said that my happiness came first. If you mean that honestly, you must sacrifice your self-respect and do what I ask."

"I can't!"

"You can't? You can't? Can't you do anything for me? Have I done nothing for you? Have I no pride? Do you suppose that every girl would beg a man to marry her? I hate you!"

She left him, ran across the road, jumped into a taxi, slammed the door, and drove away.

CHAPTER XI.
Fortune's Football.

A day or so later Dick was summoned into the office of the senior partner of the firm which employed him, Mr. Thompson.

"We're not pleased with you, Mr. Manners, very displeased, in fact," said Thompson. "You see, we want our clerks to be very accurate. The number of mistakes that have come back to the office is terrible, quite unbelievable. No one would believe that a great, tall man like you could do such things. It won't do. In fact, it won't do at all. You ought to have been a sailor. Your build, your hair, your eye, everything. You're so breezy, so devil-may-care—what?"

Dick was divided between wondering what it all meant and a longing to go into shrieks of laughter.

"Tell me," Mr. Thompson went on, "don't you think that you are unsuited to this office? Honestly now, don't you think you could do much better somewhere else? Have you ever thought of the sea, for instance?"

"No, sir," said Dick. "I haven't."

"Well, I've been thinking that perhaps a boat, a nice big boat, you know, eh? You see, there's so much more room on the sea. In fact, we don't want to be harsh and unkind, Mr. Manners; we don't want to sack you, eh. But we've come to the reluctant conclusion that we must accept your resignation. In fact, Mr. Benthall will give you four weeks' wages in exchange for it."

Something like despair engulfed Dick. What would Audrey say when he told her what had happened? She would urge him to marry her all the more, and he would not marry her! He would refuse more firmly than ever now. He was a failure, practically a pauper, and he wasn't going to accept charity from a girl, however kindly it was veiled.

Well, what was he going to do? He shrugged his shoulders. He was like a boxer who has been picked up and carried to his corner after the timekeeper has counted 10 over him. He didn't care what happened to him just then. The fight was over.

Another man would have stepped gladly into his shoes by tomorrow. To what end?

A life of slavery that others—men like Thompson—might have gold toothpicks and manicured hands.

That was London, a city of slaves and slave-drivers.

Mechanically he bought a copy of the Sketch and glanced at it as he sat in the bus that bore him toward his lodgings. There in cold, unmotional black and white for all the world to read was this heart-breaking news:

The Duke and Duchess of Harborough will spend Christmas quietly at their town house in Grosvenor square.

An engagement is announced between their daughter, Lady Audrey Beaumont, and the Hon. Ivo Jocelyn of the First Life Guards, son of Lord Laisterdyke. The marriage will take place early in the new year.

Dick's last castle had tumbled about his ears.

CHAPTER XIII.
A Decision.

When the maid took in Audrey's early tea that day she didn't receive her usual bright "Good morning, Prichard. What's it like out?" while Audrey uncurled and stretched like a kitten.

Audrey woke with a start when she heard the blinds being put up. Her eyelashes were all wet. She looked eagerly for a letter.

The morning newspaper, neatly folded as usual, lay on the tray, and there was a pile of Christmas cards, but no letter.

Languidly she read the paper. There was a column of new books which looked interesting. She would read that later on.

Births, marriages and deaths—there was no name there she knew.

Special matinee in aid of—court and society—the king and queen had left for Sandringham. The duke and duchess of Harborough will—

What was that?

Audrey gave a gasp of disbelief and horror. Two small paragraphs half-way down the column seemed to have dismayed her more than a train collision or the wreck of a liner.

"How awful!" she said. "How ghastly!"

For she had seen for the first time the announcement of "Lady Audrey Beaumont's engagement to Ivo Jocelyn." She leaped from bed and found her mother.

"My darling! I know nothing about it," the duchess answered her daughter's excited protests.

If the report that we have before us is true, we know what is the matter with Russia. Shorn of its detail that report is to the effect that divorce is a simple matter in Russia and that re-marriage is easier still.

Congress should either get to work, or adopt the snail as its emblem.

Which recalls a minstrel gag wherein the blackface end man says to the interlocutor:

"Did ju know dat de sidewalks around de halls of congress are covered wid snails?"

"Covered with snails? No, I didn't know that. Seems like the members of congress would be bothered by stepping on them."

"No, suh, dey don't step on 'em. Dey kain't catch up wid 'em."

If the average politicians could keep all his promises, wouldn't this be a grand and gle-e-orious country?

The idea of a radio which a man can carry in his hat is being scorned. It is argued that men have been talking through their hats for so long that this idea can't possibly create a sensation.

One thing that should be said in behalf of the radio, is that it compels a lot of folks to listen that would otherwise be talking.

As far as that is concerned the radio speaks for itself.

A United States treasury statement says a two dollar bill lasts about six months. Ours don't.

After all this row in Washington, the folks at home are liable to become somewhat leary of "dark horses."

Mr. Kenyon is different from the rest anyhow. He refuses to take the job as secretary of the navy because he doesn't think he has the necessary knowldge and experience. Most men would think that equipped them for the job.

Among the season's domestic tragedies will be listed the folks who take the stoves down too soon and put their screens up too late.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE AIRES.

An inauspicious day for any risky ventures. You should safeguard yourself against financial loss by making no investments, furnishing no guarantees, nor extending any loans. Avoid excitement, over-strenuous work, and do not start any new business.

A child born today will be rather phlegmatic, and, although possibly attaining success, it will be quite indifferent to same.

If today is your birthday, you are not of the warm affectionate or trusting type, but are rather cold blooded and calculating. You have very determined and fixed lines of conduct, both for yourself and others. As you very rarely deviate from the path of action you have outlined for yourself, no matter what the inducements may be to do so, you have very little patience with those who do those things which they ought not to do, or leave undone those things which thye ought to do.

Enthusiasm and emotion are not evidenced in your disposition; you have a limited imagination, and are very matter of fact. You do not subscribe to the theory that "to err is human, to forgive divine." You very rarely err, and it is not in your nature to forgive, although you are not vindictive.

As a result of your lack of personal magnetism, and your want of affectional emotion, your friends admire and respect you, but none come to you with their troubles, as they fear your condemnation or criticism, and rather look upon you as being superior and aloof.

Your relations with the other sex are not founded upon attractiveness and sympathy; rather are they based on common sense and hard reason. You will never be a victim of love at first sight, or angered at the first slight; your "sang-froid" will preserve you from both of these dangers.

A keen imagination and affectionate sympathy are antidotes for cynism and excessive materialism.

Successful people born on this date, are:

IN ALMOST ANY GARDEN

Come into the garden Maud,
For the pea vines are eaten clean!
Come into the garden Maud,
With that package of Paris green,
And a stick to impale the ugly slug
That is eating the tender bean!

The aphis is also here,
And the cut worm will follow fast;
Make haste, Oh! make haste, my dear,
Or the lettuce will breath its last;
For whetting their teeth on the water pipe,
Is an army of beetles massed.

I have several cans of sprays,
Of various vivid hues,
But I wander about in a daze,
For I never know which to use
For the little green bug on the celery plants,
Which he chews and chews and chews.

Come into the garden Maud,
Another new worm I've spied;
Come into the garden Maud,
With a box of insecticide.
But wait, oh! wait, it all too late;
The last living plant has died!

TOO BAD THEY'RE GONE

Laughter and Tears

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The two most interesting things in the world are laughter and tears.

They constitute the world's tragedy and comedy; which, since time began, have made up the theatric stage.

We go about clothed in conventions, each one of us clad in his thick armor of propriety. Thus we are to each other, for the most part, puppets, stalking dominoes in the masquerade of life. It is laughter and tears that reveal to each other that we are living souls.

In order to carry on the great battle of existence each must have his place in the army of society as, on the field, there are generals, colonels, lieutenants, privates and the like. In business, we have manager and clerk, messenger and office boy; in society we have circles of aristocracy, of bourgeoise and proletariat; and in whatever other sphere of endeavor we go we have our grades, positions, precedences, man and master, servant and lord, principal and agent and the like.

And every once in a while there comes a gush of tears and sweeps the artificial barrier away and we discover that after all the gentleman with the coronet and silken shirt and the poor barefoot gentleman in rags and dirt are twin flames burning with the same heats and sending forth the same radiations of glory or of shame.

When we sit in the theatre we may be at first like a handful of loose beads but, when the clown starts his laughter, it runs through us all and we discover that we are each but a living pearl in the necklace of souls.

Preachers may preach human brotherhood until they are black in the face; but all their arguments are not worth one note of laughter nor one salt and genuine tear.

We might forget that this earth we tread is but the thin, cooled crust covering a molten mass, did not the volcano now and then spout up its lava.

So we might forget that the blood in all men comes from one reservoir and the souls of all men are sparks from the same fire, if, now and then, laughter did not shake us and tears reveal our inward consanguinity.

For laughter is the earthquake and tears are the volcanic lava that reveal the molten unity of the human race.

Cubs Hit Spree and Stow Away Second, 7-3

CHEEVES NICKED FOR ROW OF SAFE ONES WHILE ALEXANDER ET AL HOLD SPUDDERS SAFE

Grover Cleveland Alexander, Vick Dumovich and Bob Osborne held Wichita Falls to six hits in the second game of the series, Sunday, while the Chicago Cubs were hitting for thirteen and the Nationals made a clean sweep of the series, 7 to 3. A crowd of 3,000 saw the last appearance of a major league club.

Virgil Cheeves and Buck Freeman were hit freely, two home runs by Cub batters adding to the big victory. The Cubs started with the first inning and scored in every inning but three.

The Spudders scored their first tallies in the lucky seventh. Fitzgerald and White were hit by Dumovich, taking the first two bags. Locker grounded, and White was out at second. Turgeon, playing shortstop for Michaels, to bat his first trip, clouted a two-bagger, scoring Fitzgerald and Locker. Jonnard and Freeman went out.

One in Ninth

Last run for Wichita came in the ninth, on a belated rally. White grounded out, but Locker singled. Turgeon singled, advancing Locker to second. Jonnard doubled, scoring Locker. Williams popped out and Callaghan fanned, ending the game.

Cubs Run Wild

In the first, with two down, Cheeves walked Grantham and Grimes. Friberg doubled, scoring Grantham. Miller flied out. Two hits, by Stats and Grantham, and an error were good for one more score in the third. Hartnett got the first home run of the game in the fourth, with none on base. Grantham, Grimes and Miller hit safely in the fifth, which registered one more tally. The sixth and seventh Freeman held the Cubs scoreless and hitless but they jumped on him in the eighth for two runs. Barrett's circut drive with Hartnett on base, were good for the two. Singles by Grimes, Dumovich and Grigsby in the ninth scored Grimes for the last run for Chicago.

New Spudders

There were new bats in the Spudder rack yesterday. Callaghan started at right field and played a good game his first time in a Wichita Falls uniform. Pete Turgeon was a whiz at shortstop, getting no fielding chances in his three innings but batting a thousand. In two times at bat the new shortfield man connected for a double and a single.

Dallas Locker was next high man for the locals, as far as that leads, got a hit and scored two of the three runs. Fitzgerald also hit one, the only safe slam off Alexander, and turned in the third tally for Wichita. Bubber Jonnard, with his second two-base clout in as many days, was responsible for the last run.

While nearly everybody with the Cub outfit hit, Grantham, second sacker, was best with three one-base drives. Stats, center fielder, collected two singles.

The two home runs by Hartnett and Barrett were over left field fence. Barrett's drive was a hot liner, clearing the bars on near the same level as at its height.

Double plays went to Wichita, two one. Michaels, White and Locker, Dorman, White and Locker, were the plays. Alexander started the Cubs two-ply play, going to Grantham to Grimes.

Practically errorless ball was played on both sides. Freddie Dorman was guilty of one miscue at the hot corner, which did not keep him from looking great at the stick.

Cheeves was off in his pitching, though never giving away under any volley of hits. Freeman was considerably better than at any other appearance this season.

Better ball for the club was played the last two games than has been shown yet. Skipper Tanner was very much pleased with his hopefuls and considers prospects brighter.

SPORTS OF 1924

Gene Sarazen, ex-Native II open and present professional champion is almost an expert at breaking clay pigeons in a trap-shooting contest as he is at breaking par and shooting birdies out of traps in a golf tournament.

Babe Ruth, a prominent citizen of Sudbury, Mass., has more than once expressed the opinion that he thinks he'd make a first class heavyweight boxer. Question—If Babe, the prize fighter, knocked his opponent over the ropes would he trot around the ring, touching all the corners?

Bill Bachrach, world's heaviest and greatest swimming coach, challenges anyone in the world to a game of pinochle, at catchweights.

Today Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world since 1917, is 28 years old.

Turgeon, Osborn and Calaghan To Wichita

MICHAELS TO CUBS ON TRADE

Bob Osborn, Pete Turgeon, and Martin Calaghan are the three new men on the Spudder roster, left Sunday by the Chicago Cubs. Osborn and Calaghan came to Wichita Falls as due the Spudders from a former deal, while Turgeon came in on a separate trade. For Turgeon, Michaels, shortstop secured this year from Pittsburgh, was given in exchange. The standing now is that the Cubs still owe the Spudders a man, following previous deals.

Osborn, right-handed flinger, went up from Wichita Falls last year. Turgeon is a well known infielder in the Texas league, while Calaghan was with Chicago last year. Turgeon played with Beaumont, going up from there.

The exchange is probably not on the same order as had been planned, earlier in the year. However, in Turgeon it is felt the Spudders have an all-around ball player who will suit in better than Michaels. Turgeon, though probably not the finished fielder that Michaels is, is a better hitter, which is needed. Michaels will go to fill up a possible infield gap for the Cubs, since the injury to Ace Elliott. There is little need of hitting power for the Chicago Nationals, should the need arise to play Michaels.

Calaghan is a good hitter and fields his position well. Bob Osborn has done some nice pitching here, and although the staff looks like a winner, he may be able to add materially. It is expected that Calaghan will fill in the field position, or help toward solving it. Should his hitting come up to standard, the Spudder garden will be a slugging crew.

MOTORISTS OUT IN FORCE SUNDAY

A warm and inviting day drew the usual swarm of Sunday motorists to the country roads, Sunday and, in addition, was responsible for a exodus from the inside.

The day was ideal in which to be out of doors and it was utilized to the utmost. Paved highways leading from the city were crowded all afternoon and until late in the evening, while driving about the city proved sufficient for another large number.

Weather predictions for the next few days hold out a promise of continued warm and balmy weather.

Today we need the renewed assurance 'Jehovah is with thee.' He will help us fight our battles, and without him we grow weak and fearful, the victims of our foes.

"Confidence in God should be productive of humble confidence in ourselves. By His help I can do all things through Him that strengtheneth me, is the voice not of mere presumption but of triumphant faith. Strength, resourcefulness, courage, adventure are products of Christian faith. Of the early apostles they said: 'The men who have turned the world upside down have come hither to us also. Because he believed God, Gideon became a man of valour, a mighty mountain chieftain, a conqueror. Believe in God —and in yourself.

"Courage is an element of success. Two-thirds of Gideon's original army were cowards. They were gun shy. Like Pat, who, related the captain, said: 'Boys the time has come to strike for your homes, your flag and your country,' and while all the other galoots were striking for their flag and country he had the presence of mind to strike for his home.

"If Gideon's volunteer army of mountaineers were two-thirds cowards what shall we say of the average church member? It is futile to sing 'Am I a Soldier of the Cross' and then be a moral coward. God Almighty hates cowardice. He wants men today who are willing to climb out of the trenches at the zero hour and plough through barbed wire entanglements, poison gas and bursting shrapnel for the cross. One hundred brave men with clean hands and faith in God and confidence in each other could clean up this city and make it known nation-wide as a peace loving, law abiding, sober and prosperous community where womanhood is revered, childhood protected and loved, and where manhood is free and strong.

"What will mean your oil wells and refineries if the devil gets your young men and women?

"Gideon knew the value of organization and co-operation. He had only a small band but they worked as a unit. Team work is needed in the church and between various churches. The force of organized Christianity is broken when Christian people exhibit prejudice, suspicion or discord. Our enemy is the devil, deeply intrenched. We are not here to fight each other, but to fight a common foe. Let us hope and pray that every church in Wichita Falls will be helped by this evangelistic campaign."

INDELIBLE

record in your mind, before God. There you will face the Eternal Father and receive the judgment to which your actions entitle you. For it is written. 'The books were opened and the dead judged out of those things which were written in the books.'

Your Record Inspected.

"On that day God's holy eye will be turned on your record and mine. Will we be able to stand? Will our records stand the scrutiny of that eye too pure to behold iniquity?

"Our only hope is in Christ. Only through Him can this record be cleansed of its stains of sin. The record may remain indelible but the sins will be purged away, for the blood of the Lamb can remove all ugliness and make it as white as snow.

"The destroying angel passed over the house on which the blood of a lamb might be seen; so will the Divine Eye pass over your record when the blood of Christ is seen there.

"Get under the blood tonight. Seek pardon. Begin to write a better record. Face God on that last day with a clearer conscience.

"Review your record in your mind. Are you writing for good only? Some of you are writing for the glory of God and the good of your fellow man. Some records are profane, licentious. The memories of some are crowded with evil. Could you bear it to be spread before the eyes of the public? Dr. Grizzard once said that the record of one night of revelry would drive men out of town. Hear the word of God: 'There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, nothing hid that shall not be made known.' (Luke 12-2)

Influences Character.

"This record in your minds influences character and determines destiny. The memory of your past influences present conduct. Sin leads to deeper sin and virtue to greater virtue. One naturally follows the trend of past life. What others have written on our minds influences us. Your parents wrote for good or ill. My mother wrote on my mind the great principles of right living. By Godly example and admonition she turned my heart to Christ and started me right.

"Parents almost always make or mar their children. Son follows father; daughter follows mother. How can a sane man write evil on the heart of a child? To use profane or vulgar words before a child is fiendish. Young men influence their companions by writing for evil, by telling of nights of revelry, or by leading them into vice.

"The record is indelible. You can always erase pen or pencil lines, stone may crumble, brass may melt, but the lines on the human heart are never lost. Lines written by my childhood associates will stay there forever. Some of these are profane and licentious, some angelic and God-like. Lines written by my mother will also abide. I shall always remember her good-night kiss, how she tucked the cover in, and prayed with me at my bedside. A heritage is this for which I would not take all the world. Will your children bless your memory so? How awful to leave an evil thought for heritage of a child! Once written it must abide for it can never be erased. Hell could be no worse than a memory of a misspent life. The memory of evil words and evil deeds will some day fill your soul with horror. Such memories drive men mad every day. When that final bell is tolled will you cry in your anguish, "Oh, that the years were blotted from my life!"

A NEW DISCOVERY
Overcomes the biggest difficulties in chick raising.
The medical profession prescribe cod liver oil to cure and prevent rickets which in chicks is leg weakness. The poultry husbandry departments of some of the agricultural colleges including Wisconsin and Illinois have demonstrated that the use of cod liver oil is a preventative of leg weakness in chicks. By including it in Ful-O-Pep Chick Statter by a process which keeps the feed sweet, dry and granular we are placing a complete feed at the service of every poultryman. Leg weakness which so frequently causes disaster to early hatched chicks is practically elliminated where Ful-O-Pep Chick Strater is fed and the birds are properly housed and cared for. Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter solves the greatest problem which the poultryman has. It will grow his chicks more rapidly, with greater safety and economy, bringing out the best that is in them. Judge Kay Speaks On "Solomon" to Another Record Breaking Crowd Sunday

694 ATTEND AT SUNDAY MEETING

Morning Lecture Concerns Famous Character Of Biblical Times

Another record breaking crowd, 694 men, attended the Sunday morning Bible lecture of Judge John C. Kay, this making the fourth consecutive week in which the attendance mark has been shattered. A total of 602 men were present a week ago.

Judge Kay's address, which concerned Solomon, was as follows:

Now, I like for us to be aristocratic. I like for a man to think well of himself, but not too much so. Your old grandfather was the most independent, probably the finest citizen that this country ever saw. And, when he took the corner of the tablecloth and wiped the buttermilk off his whiskers, he was some man. He was a freer man than you are, because he didn't need so much as you think you need.

Oh, the boasts that we make. Do you know the boast that made this country? Let me tell you what it is. There is one little saying that utterly and absolutely made this county, and that is the old farmers' boast that: "I always make enough meat and corn to do me." In a civil way, that is the biggest thing that was ever said in America. You do not do that, you fellows who live out of a paper sack. You cannot say it. But, you could say it if it was not for the fact that you need so many other things besides that corn and meat. Some of you are getting along too well. You are like a fellow down in Alabama. I think I told this before, but maybe some of you didn't hear it. Two fellows lived upon the sandy mountain. One of them moved away to Texas, or some other country, and had been gone about 20 years. He went back and called on his old friend who still lived in the same old log cabin, but was glad to see his old friend who had gone out west. This western man looked around the cabin, and saw the squirrel rifle up over the deer horns above the door, and said: "John, I see you have got you a gun. I am glad to see you doing so well." Some of you fellows are not satisfied with enough.

The man that made this country did not have it, and did not care about it.

Lesson About Solomon.

Now, the lesson this morning is about Solomon, and one of his sons. Solomon did pretty well until it came to his children. He grabbed the world and lost his boy.

Now, I am not hard on a bad boy. If there is one human in the world that you ought not to put a yardstick on and try to measure, it is the boy. Give him time, and give him a chance. But Solomon lost his in running after the other things of the world. Now, this boy went out to get some advice, when he got to be king, and he first consulted the old men and they told him to go out and treat the people right, to make the burdens of the public easy. And, then, he talked to the young men, and they said: "Go out and make it bitter for the public."

Now, young men, young men! I am going to make you a great concession here this morning. I think that when you come out of college, and out of school, and out of the books, that you know more than we do; know more of facts; know more of that thing that the world calls knowledge; but, you do not have wisdom. Wisdom is the ability, as I think, to make selections in life. Wisdom is the ability to judge, and to determine between that which is right and that which is wrong; that which is lawful and that which is unlawful; and that which is lawful and that which is expedient. Now, young men cannot do that as well as older men and, after all, heaven has given us some gifts along with your gift of knowledge, and we are better able, I think, and, if we are not better able, we should be better able to make the selections.

Defied People.

So, this fellow went out and defied the people. Defied everybody. He said, "I am going to make it much worse than my father made it for you." Well, now, you cannot defy everybody. You cannot run across the current of a whole humanity. I am not stopping here to relate his history. He is dead, and not only dead, but unimportant, so far as his personal matters are concerned.

But, the lesson that we get there is a great, strong father with both knowledge and wisdom, and with wealth, might be wrecked by his children. It is a terrible thing to think about. Is this only the story of Solomon and Rehoboam? Ah, what about that ancient and homely English proverb that is known to us all, that "It is just three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves?" What does that proverb mean, if it has a meaning? It means that man cannot stand prosperity.

Almost every day I hear a man say: "I want my children to have a better, easier life than I have had." A man might want that; he might wish it, but the grapes of God must forever grow beyond the reach of his wish and be you careful in wishing that the children may have an easy life, that you do not put them into a life of bitter bondage and toil.

You know, I hold to the ancient and somewhat foolish doctrine that there is nobody too good in this country to eat bread that is earned by himself. That man and that woman—it would be a shame if I would try to deceive an audience like this, and I refuse to do it. That man and that woman who slips through life worshipping luxury, never knowing from whence the bread comes, never toiling, never working for others; that man and that woman is unworthy of life and unworthy of men. So much for the boy of Solomon.

Great Worshiper.

Now, I want to speak to you about another related matter, although you might not think it is related. Solomon was a great fellow to worship. He built a most magnificient church. He filled it with golden vessels. He had an exquisite ritual and an elaborate ceremony and, with all that, he failed because he himself was a failure. It takes something more than that to make a church. It takes something more than that to put the Kingdom of God into the hearts of men. What is it? You know, men, I would be untrue to myself, and untrue to you, if I should fail to say to you now what I think is the most important thing that I have ever said to you. What is it?

I do not believe that the worn, weary Christ, marching up the ascent to Golgotha was strapped upon the cross to die that men might have a doctrine. I do not believe that with His last thought and His last word, when He said: "It is finished," I do not believe that He meant that He had fixed life so, and religion so that you and I would have something to argue about. I wish men could get that thought as I have it. I wish that I had the power to put it out in this country as I think and understand it, that Christ and His religion is a simple Christ and a simple religion. That He just simply holds out His wistful hands toward you and toward me, and says: "Come! Come! Come!" I can understand that, and I can appreciate that.

The Christ.

Isaiah writing about Him in the Old Testament a thousand years before He came, said: "Who is this that cometh forth from Edom with dyed garments from Bozrah? He that is glorious in his apparel, traveling in the greatness of his strength?"

Now, that might have been anybody, up to there. Anybody could have come out of Bozrah, anybody could have been glorious in apparel. Anybody could travel in his strength. But, Isaiah was leading up to one of the greatest truths in all history. "Who is this that cometh from Edom with dyed garments from Bozrah? He that is glorious in his apparel, traveling in the greatness of his strength? Mighty to save!" That is the Christ that you want to know, ot a historical Christ Not a doctrinal Christ. Not the Christ of theology, but, you want to know that Christ of whom it is said that "He is mighty to save." Christ might be great, and strong, and powerful, and a great king, and yet have no relation to you. But, when He steps out into the field that is occupied by humanity and says to this man, and to that man, and to all men, that "I am mighty to save," then He touches humanity, and all of humanity. So, we want to think about Him as being "mighty to save." That is what there is to religion.

Now, what kind of religion did He preach? Did he have some doctrine? He certainly did. What was it? It needs not the philosopher, nor the artist, nor the scientis to discover His doctrine. He said: "A new commandment I give unto you, that you love one another." And, old Saint James, writing about that, says—what? He says that is the way you can tell whether they have passed from death unto life, if they love the brethren. That is His religion. It is a religion that makes you love your fellowman. Do you do it? Do I do it? Or, are we lost in the fog and the clouds of self-love?

I want you to go out from here, then, and say that—I, even I, am going to love my fellowman better; that I am going to follow the example of the Master and love men. Perhaps not die for them, as He died, but do something for them—some little something—but, do something! Are you going to do it? Love is His measure for everything.

He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things, both great and small
For the dear God who seeth us
He sees and loves us all.

BAPTISTS READY FOR CONVENTION HERE THIS WEEK

Rally Held at Church Sunday Afternoon To Plan Meetings

OPENS TUESDAY

Committee Reports And Addresses Received; Song Service Held

With the vanguard of delegates and visitors already arriving in the city, everything was announced ready Sunday afternoon for the Baptist Organized Bible Class convention of Texas, the three day session of which opens here Tuesday morning. Over 1,500 Baptists from all parts of the state are expected to be in the city, constituting one of the largest if not the largest ever entertained in Wichita Falls.

Committee reports were received and final plans made Sunday afternoon at a rousing rally held in the Baptist church. Talks and discussions concerning the convention were heard, after which the reports of the various committees were received. The rally, which was attended by a representative gathering of all Baptists in the city, was opened by William P. Phillips, state Sunday school secretary of the church, who dealt with the program and went into other details incident to the convention.

He was followed by Hubert M. Harrison, vice-president and general manager of the chamber of commerce, who discussed the part his organization was to take in the convention. R. E. Shepherd, city finance commissioner appearing in behalf of the city council, assured the Baptists that the city officials extended a hearty greeting to the incoming delegates and stood ready to assist in any way possible in the task of making the meeting a success.

Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the church, concluded the addresses with a short talk on some of the entertainment features being planned. A song service was led by W. E. Young.

The general convention chairman is Lee Roy Moore, with vice-chairmen being Pat H. Simmons, B. A. Stayton and A. F. Kimmell. Reports from the following committee chairmen were received: Will Daniel, automobile; E. E. Fuller, reception; Miss Celia Stayton, decoration; G. Clint Wood, finance; O. D. McCoy, publicity; W. L. Robertson, registration; J. L. Jackson, entertainment.

A big influx of delegates is expected to start Monday night. A solid special train is to arrive at that time from points in east Texas, while special cars filled with delegates will come in on the regular trains from Waco, Dallas, Fort Worth and other points. Elaborate preparations have been made for the housing and entertaining of the visitors.

Incidentally, Sunday was a busy day in other ways for the Baptists. A total of 1,468 persons attended Sunday school classes in the morning, while capacity crowds were on hand for the morning and evening church services. The sermon of Dr. O. L. Powers was on "Entertaining the Stranger at Our Gate," a topic bearing directly on the convention. In the evening a special service was conducted by Mr. Phillips which ended in the presentation of 346 Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. study course diplomas and seals. The Dickson Jubilee Singers from the Dickson colored orphanage at Gilmer provided special music for the occasion.

Michel Guiskoff, St. Louis Symphony Concertmaster, Youngest in America

Michel Gusikoff, the concert-master of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, which is to play here April 8 at the Junior College auditorium under the direction of its conductor, Rudolph Ganz, possesses the distinction of being both the youngest and most noted concert-master in America. Although still in his twenties, he has already won success in a greater measure than has come to many older musicians, both as a violinist and in his duties as concert-master. This young man, truly an artist to his very finger tips, comes from a long line of musical artists, from whom he no doubt inherits a large portion of his scholarly musicianship. He will be the soloist for the school children's matinee on the afternoon of April 8th.

Gusikoff is an American, born in New York, of Russian parentage. His father was his first teacher, and, realizing the unusual talents that the young lad gave evidence of, he sent him to Mark M. Fonaroff for further instruction, under whom the young Gusikoff made rapid strides. Then came an incident that was to play an important part in Gusikoff's destiny. One day he attracted the attention of the great violinist and teacher, Frank Kneisel, who, after listening to Gusikoff's playing for a while, said: "Here is a coming artist, I must watch his career." The upshot of the matter was that Kneisel became Gusikoff's teacher and it is to this acknowledged master of the violin that Gusikoff owes most of the sound musicianship and interpretative powers that he possesses, in addition to his splendid technique.

When Gusikoff was only 21 years old he became the concert-master of the Russian Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Modest Altschuler. He attained eminence in this position and toured the country for several years with this organization and also as a valued member of the Russian String Quartette.

Police and Store Head Catch Forger

The co-operation of the proprietor of the Model Clothing Store with the police early Sunday morning resulted in the apprehension of a bad check artist who might otherwise have made his way undisturbed to more lucrative fields, according to police officials.

A stranger managed in some manner to obtain a check for $80 of the Riner and Bailey company. The check had not been signed, and when he attempted to make up for that fault he made the mistake of signing one of the partners' names and using the other's initials.

He passed the check on the Model Clothing Store, buying some clothes and taking about thirty-five dollars in change. The bad signature was soon noticed and the affair reported to the police. The Model proprietor took up the work in co-opertation with the police and early Sunday morning caught his man as he was returning from Holiday where he had been with some friends.

He was lodged in jail, charged with forgery, and is being held there pending his making bond.

BENTON SPEAKS AT LABOR HALL

"Time Drawing To A Close," He Says In Sermon

"Never has the population of the earth experienced times like unto these since the days before the flood when pleasure, and wealth were the gods of the masses," declared Rev. Roy L. Benton in last night's sermon at the Labor Temple of this city.

Speaking on the topic, "The Prophets Foretelling Our Day" Mr. Benton outlined striking conditions in the religious, industrial and social world, and then read from the prophecies scriptures which he affirmed were pen pictures of the events now taking place.

Referring to the prophecy of Daniel which reads, "Close up the book until the time of the end; many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased," he said, "For centuries man has been content to walk, ride in chariots and wagons and ride the waters in a sail boat. It has been reserved until "the last century—the 'time of the end'—for the rapidly increasing varieties of transportation to be discovered. Today we ride the fast train, the auto, the airplane and the ocean liners and submarines, but the century before this generation knew them not. What would be the surprise that would come to Benjamin Franklin were he to rise from the dead today and see the mighty presses that are the outgrowth of that first press he brought to light? How would Moses feel riding in the latest sport model of the high priced cars of today?

"But there is a meaning to all this. It means that we are in the closing up time of God's program; that human probation is fast drawing to a close, and soon the Spirit of God which is being grieved away from the earth as in Noah's day, will leave this earth never to return; that Jesus will come to take His people home.

Referring to the issue between the Modernists and the Fundamentalists, Mr. Benton said, "In this time when men and women are thirsting for truth it is said to see the ministers debating among themselves as to whether or not they will believe the Bible. But this too is foretold in God's word, for He said, 'For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine . . . and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and be turned unto fables.'"

NOON SERVICE PALACE TODAY

A large crowd is expected today and at all of the succeeding noon day meetings to be held at the Palace theatre by the Methodist churches of the city and at which Bishop Boaz and Dr. Selecman are to be the speakers. The two men will alternate each day in addressing the meetings, Bishop Boaz speaking Monday, Dr. Selecman Tuesday, Bishop Boaz Wednesday, etc.

The public is cordially urged to attend the meetings, which are to be held in connection with the revival services now being conducted by the Methodists of the city.

My-Gra-Co Growing Mash, the ideal body building feed for young chicks, should be kept before them constantly in hoppers after they are three weeks old. Be sure this is fed to them DRY and give them plenty of fresh water in clean, accessible drinking pans at all times.

My-Gra-Co Growing Mash is a carefully blended feed containing the proper proportions of high concentrates (dried buttermilk, linseed oil meal, meat scraps, bone meal, corn gluten feed) for producing sturdy birds with good plumage, and healthy bodies which develop into early layers.
