AWARDS CONTRACT FOR MACHINERY

NORTHWESTERN PLACES ORDER FOR EQUIPMENT FOR NEW REPAIR SHOPS.

SPEND FIFTY THOUSAND

Equipment Will Include Modern Shop
Machinery For Use by the Northwestern.

The Wichita Falls and Northwestern awarded the contract Saturday for the machinery for the shops it is to construct in this city, to Maxwell, Manning & Moore of St. Louis. The machinery equipment includes turntables, lathes, foundry furnishings and the other things that go to make up a well equipped railroad machine shop. The contract was eagerly sought by the representatives of a large number of concerns.

The total cost of the machinery ordered will be in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars, while the cost of the buildings themselves will be as much more, making a total expenditure for the shops of fully one hundred thousand dollars. The contract for the buildings is to be awarded before the end of the month and the work will be under way as soon as possible.

The shops will employ about twenty-five men at first, and this force will be increased as the needs of the company demand. So far in its history the Northwestern has been without shop facilities and practically all of its repair work has been done in the shops of other railroads. It has been planned, ever since the road was first built, to build shops here and the officers of the road put this plan into execution as soon as it was feasible.

Texas News Service Special.
Fort Worth, Mar. 14.—Mayor W. D. Davis, in making his opening address at the convention of the Texas Cattle Raisers Association today warmly criticized Governor Campbell for failure to attend the convention, as he agreed and said the killing of a Mexican by an American at Falfurrias was a flimsy excuse. Governor Haskell of Oklahoma at the last moment also advised he was unable to attend, although Governor Shallenberger of Nebraska was on the platform and made the first formal speech. He was loudly cheered. Cone Johnson and William Pindexter are here with a large following. The Pindexter Club with 600 delegate came up from Cleburne. R. V. Davidson has not arrived so far.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY IS NOW PROBABLE

BELIEVED DONATION WILL BE SOON FORTHCOMING FOR SUCH INSTITUTE HERE.

PROF. PAYNE IS WORKING

He is at Head of Movement and Believes the Outlook for it is Excellent.

A Carnegie library may be in store for Wichita Falls and if an effort now being made is successful, this city will have an institution of this kind before many months. Prof. O. C. Payne, president of the boys' school, has this important matter in charge and it is stated that the outlook is excellent for securing the library. As planned, the institution will cost twenty thousand dollars which would be sufficient to erect a handsome building.

If Prof. Payne is successful in this effort, the building will be erected probably at some point near the boys' school. The site will be donated.

It has long been felt that in being without a public library of any kind, this city is behind others of her class and this chance to secure such an institution will in all likelihood be made the most of. Prof. Payne believes that he will be successful and will spare no efforts to secure the donation.

Dolan was taken to Corpus Christi and with the arrival of the Rangers the town today is quiet. However, resentment on both sides is not dampened and only a leader is lacking to precipitate a fight.

Eight justices will hear the case, as Justice Moody is ill. Every available seat in the little room was occupied when the case was called.

Third Commandment is Subject of Able Lecture by Dr. J. L. McKee

At the First Presbyterian church last night, Rev. J. L. McKee delivered the third of his series of lectures on the Ten Commandments, the third commandment being the theme last evening. In discussing the Third Commandment, Dr. McKee pointed out that the first two commandments established God as the creator and redeemer of humanity and that the third was logical in its sequence, as it enjoined reverence.

The positive commandment, he said, enjoined reverence. He pointed out he need of caution in the present day, on this subject. The growing irreverence of children, the ridicule of even the most sacred truths and the diminished sanctity of the home, he pointed out, were evidences of this fact. True greatness, he said was true reverence and no soul can be great unless it recognizes something greater. In our literature today, continued Dr. McKee, were slurs on home and wedlock, travesties on religion and comments on the weakness of humanity, all of which constituted a profanity and irreverence that was a menace.

All swearing, he continued, was taking the name of God in vain. This in-

KEELER CONFERS WITH COMMITTEE

THE SEVENTH STREET PROPERTY
OWNERS SUBMIT THEIR SIDE OF CONTROVERSY.

OUTLOOK MUCH IMPROVED

Keeler Promises to Consider Matter and Belief is All Parties Will Be Satisfied.

D. B. Keeler, vice president and general manager of the Fort Worth and Denver Railway Company is in the city and held a conference this morning with R. E. Huff, J. L. Jackson, H. B. Hines, Job Barnett, Wylie Wyatt and A. Zundelwitz, the committee appointed to represent 7th street property owners in their protest against a removal of the Denver passenger depot from that street.

The committee assured him that while they earnestly favored progress in Wichita Falls there was no necessity for tearing down existing values around the present depot and thereby injure individual property owners in that vicinity when the same general good could be obtained by making improvement in the present location.

The committee stated that they would prefer no union depot to the abandonment of 7th street and suggested various plans for these improvements, which they thought would be as satisfactory to the public and still not injure them. While the committee preferred retaining the passenger depot of the Denver and Valley on the north side of 7th street they thought their people would make no objection to having a union depot between 7th and 8th streets with waiting rooms in the center and entrances on both 7th and 8th street of the same character that would not favor either street at the expense of the other.

Mr. Keeler received the committee very courteously and promised to submit their suggestions to his chief engineer and other parties interested and see what could be done and submit his answer within a week.

The Times hopes that some plan may be devised that will prove satisfactory to all concerned and make for general progress without individual injury to any one.

FATE OF OIL TRUST HANGS IN BALANCE

WILL BE DECIDED IN SUPREME COURT SOME TIME IN NEAR FUTURE.

FINAL HEARING TODAY

Legal Battle Has Been in Progress Against Alleged Trust Since 1906.

Washington, Mar. 14.—The momentous case of the Government against the Standard Oil Trust, which eventually involves the dissolution of the gigantic corporation, is on the eve of being heard before the court of last resort, the United States Supreme Court, from the decision of which there is no appeal. The case, having been advanced upon the docket, will come up for final hearing today.

No case that has been submitted to the United States Supreme Court in modern times ever attracted more general interest, and lawyers, men of finance, politicians, men of industry and economists agree in the opinion that this case, together with the somewhat similar case of the American Tobacco Company, present for the consideration and final decision of the highest tribunal of the country practically the entire range of modern industrial organizations and substantially every feature of the "trust-question," so far as it falls within the purview of the Sherman anti-trust law.

It is admitted that the Standard Oil case is the more important of the two cases, as it affects the widest range of combinations and contracts which may be claimed to offend against the Sherman law. Under these circumstances and as this act in its general scope effects an enormous number of business and industrial organizations throughout the country, the final decision of the Supreme Court is awaited with intense interest. In view of the delicate relation which "the market," Wall Street and the financial world, generally, bears to the news and gossip of the three great branches of the Government it will be readily understood that the decision, be it what it may, is sure to produce a profound impression, to be felt throughout the financial and business channels of the country.

Industrially, practically the whole scope of modern corporate organization is in one way or another involved in the case. Good trusts and bad trusts are interested in the outcome, which may affect their very existence. If the Supreme Court should sustain the judgments of the lower court, it may necessitate industrial readjustments far-reaching effect. Political leaders, realizing that, whatever the final decision may be, it will necessarily affect not only the industrial and financial but also the political situation in this country, express the hope that the court, should it decide in favor of the Government, will, at the same time, point out some measure of relief which, from any point of view, now appears outside the possible range of legislation.

The present case, which will come up in the Supreme Court next week on an appeal of the Standard Oil trust was begun November 15, 1906, when the complaint was filed in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis, for hearing by the four judges of the Eighth Judicial Circuit. In its petition the Government complained that the defendants had conspired "to restrain the trade and commerce in petroleum, commonly called crude oil, in refined oil and in the other products of petroleum among the several states and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia, and with foreign nations, and to monopolize the said commerce." John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller and Henry M. Flagler were named as the originators of the alleged conspiracy. The bill asserted that between 1870 and 1882 Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Chas. M. Pratt joined the conspiracy which culminated with the organization of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1899. It was also charged that in their alleged efforts to monopolize the oil business the defendants had solicited and received rebates on shipments, and later acquired control of various pipe lines which were merged into the National Transit Company.

Service was had upon the defendants in December of 1906 and the first legal battle came in the following month, when the defense tried without success to have the service revoked on all concerned save the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri, because it was the only defendant resident in the judicial district in which the suit was filed. This contention was overruled and the company's answer was filed April 9, 1907. It included thirty-seven exceptions to the Government's petition. Argument on these took place at St. Paul, May 21, 1907 and the four judges overruled every one of the exceptions. The taking of testimony was entrusted to Franklin Ferris of St. Louis, who was appointed special master in chancery in June, 1907. He filed his voluminous report in St. Louis on March 22, 1909 and the arguments, which lasted a week, began

Amusements

On Thursday evening the 17th will be offered Charles Klein's greatly discussed new play, "The Third Degree," which Henry B. Harris is sending to the Wichita Theatre.

The cast which Manager Harris will present in this city is one of peculiar fitness, having been selected by that gentleman especially for the strange yet natural characters in the play. Fernanda Elisca, well known in New York for her splendid interpretations of Tiddiah characters in the native tongue is the leading woman. Last season Miss Elisca was leading woman with Arnold Daly, the season before that she was with Minnie Maddern Fiske. She is said to be admirable in her present role of the cast, with Margaret Drew, Alfred Moore, E. A. Eberle, T. L. Coleman, H. H. Foreman, Abner Symmons and Ralph Ramsey in support.

The story of the play is one of compelling interest and has to do with types of people who are plausible and interesting and who are involved in an episode fraught with pain and mystery. The source of the complication is one of those frightful disasters that might befall any man in any walk of life, and, were the issue of his trouble fortunate or tragic, would leave its mark upon his soul forever. A young man, weak, good natured, intemperate and constitutionally incompetent, is placed in a conspicuous relation to a case of suicide, the victim being a man to whom the youth comes for assistance in an hour of perplexity. The boy drinks copiously from a decanter close at hand and falls into a drunken sleep on a divan in his friend's apartment. That friend, debt-ridden, and threatened with exposure of his fraudulent business transactions, kills himself during the night. When the alarm is given and the police come and find the young man in a dazed, half frantic condition he is immediately suspected of murdering his friend and subjected to the form of police torture known as the third degree. This ordeal lasts for seven hours.

The torture is applied by brutal men, who bring their horrible task all the resources of their experience in dealing with people of the under world. They bulldoze, browbeat, threaten and cajole by turns, but their principal expedient is to shatter the delicately organized nervous system by launching against it loud tones, menacing gestures and the most daring lies relative to facts they pretend to know. The physical and mental being are played upon in turn and the result is the body, graving sleep and the mind, craving succor from the insane, and in that state confesses to anything, he then sets to the transcript of his ravings a scrawl that serves as a signature.

The first act develops the facts upon which Mr. Klein's drama is based and introduces the principal actors in the tragedy that unfolds itself gracefully and naturally in conjunction with a romance that is at once absorbing and fascinating. The real human interest centers in the girl wife and her heroic efforts to save the man of her choice. She is shown in all her simplicity endeavoring to interest a celebrated lawyer in her cause, resorting to the most wonderful woman's methods of procedure that could be imagined.

"The Thief"
Charles Frohm sends Henry Bernstein's highly interesting domestic drama, "The Thief," to the Wichita Theatre Friday night, with the special company headed by Herbert Kelley and Effie Shannon and including Edward Mason, Eleanor Tennines, Leonard Ide, Arthur Lawrence and Edward Elmer.

The play has the firmly established reputation of being vastly superior to any of the dramatic offerings of the stage in many years. The improbabilities in the play, it is contended, rather more make it real and human and logical. Because of its absorbing construction the play holds the attention taut, concentrates the auditor's faculties and communicates the intensity of the narrative right from the beginning, maintaining the hold until the conclusion.

Bernstein's work is not accepted as a problem play. It does call for exertion or penetration of thought. Its plot is simple and limpid and clearly told. It is conventional. It is unfolded with a nice regard to continuity and is deceptive in its unwinding. It has the quality for keeping the audience in doubt, for all are carried along deluded by its apparent simplicity, confident that they already discern far ahead where the denouement develops, but they are deceived and go astray through the craftiness of the dramatist. At an unexpected turn he unfolds the finale to the delighted surprise of the beholders.

STATISTICS OF THE BIG CITIES.

Cost of Street Lighting and Cleaning in the Year 1907.

Washington, Mar. 14.—Many interesting comparisons appear in the United States Census Bureau's special annual report on the statistics of the 158 cities having a population of over 30,000 each for 1907.

The section devoted to the subject of street lighting includes payments for expenses of street lighting per acre of land and per capita, lights classified by kind, number, candle power, price per light per year, number of hours lighted per year, and average number of each kind of lights to each 100 miles of streets.

The cities with the highest per capita payments for lights were Yonkers, New York ($159), and Los Angeles ($157); and those with the largest payments per acre of land area were Hoboken ($35.03), and Boston ($32.00). Owing to the great length of their unimproved streets, the average number of lights to 100 miles of streets is very small in some cities. Of the cities using Welsbach lights, largely in the residence districts, Boston leads in the number used in proportion to street mileage, followed by Washington, St. Louis, Cleveland, New York, and Baltimore.

In comparison with similar statistics for 1905 it is interesting to note that the flat flame gas lamp is fast disappearing from use, the per cent of decrease in number reported amounting to 43.7. This decrease has been offset by a large increase in the number of Welsbach, incandescent and arc lights.

Street cleaning cost New York city in 1907, $6,941,912, though a portion of the cost of refuse disposal is included in this amount. The city next in rank was Philadelphia, which paid less than a million dollars for maintaining its street cleaning department.

Cities of over 300,000 population with a small expense for street cleaning were Milwaukee ($129,380), New Orleans ($138,993), and Buffalo ($189,683). The cities with the largest areas cleaned at least once a week were New York, 25,312,729 square yards, Philadelphia, 17,279,034 square yards and Buffalo, 12,736,158 square yards. New Orleans had the smallest such area for cities of over 300,000 population, or less than one million square yards.

Nearly all of the area in New York, Chicago, and San Francisco subject to regular cleaning was swept by hand while most of that in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Boston and large areas in Philadelphia, Buffalo and Washington were swept by machine.

In Buffalo, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Detroit large areas were cleaned by flushing, though this method in Buffalo was only an experiment and was continued for only two weeks. In comparison with similar figures for 1905, the area regularly cleaned by flushing shows a large increase.

Of those 158 cities reported, 117 owned water supply systems whose estimated value at the close of 1907 was $647,334,495. The revenue receipts from the public amounted to $52,831,096 and the actual expenses of operation to $21,231,273. The excess of receipts over operating expenses was, therefore, $31,599,823, nearly two-fifths of which was consumed in payment of interest on the outstanding debt. The remaining three-fifths was apparently net profit, but it is impossible to argue from this result that municipally owned water supply systems are exceedingly profitable. Cities owning their water works do not receive taxes results indicate, when these factors are a sufficient amount for depreciation. The report states that the financial results indicate, when these factors are taken into consideration, that few systems are operated at great profit while some are conducted at an actual loss. Some cities, however, aim to furnish water to their citizens at cost, and it is possible that in such cities water rates are lower than they would be if the water system was owned by private parties.

There will be work in the Mark and East Degree on tomorrow night. All members will please bear this in mind and be on hand.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For Wichita Falls and Vicinity.

The Times solicits and accepts advertising for its columns under a positive guarantee that it has a greater number of subscribers than any other publication in Wichita Falls. Its subscription books and press room records are open for inspection to those who have a right to such information, and who want evidence of the above statement.

THE TIMES PUBLISHING CO.,
—259-tfc ED HOWARD, Manager.

The Times is pleased to make the announcement that on and after April 1st, Mr. Geo. Trevathan, late of Batesville, Ark., will be connected in an active way with the Times. Mr. Trevathan, besides being a thorough newspaper man, is a high-toned gentleman, with whom it is a pleasure to meet and become acquainted. He is now making his arrangements to establish his home in this city, and when that is done he will take up his work with the Times.

The son of Secretary of State Knox is to receive a monthly allowance of one hundred dollars. With that and about twenty-five dollars more, he and his bride could rent a nice little cottage in Wichita Falls.

The campaign publicity bill has been reported favorably in Congress. It calls for the same kind of publicity that the Republicans gave to their expenditures in the last campaign.

Fort Worth man died after eating the heads off of some matches. The light diet was evidently too much for him.

It seems that Prophet Patten finds that he can get all the honor that is coming to him in his own country.

Even the report of the Mabray million dollar faking schemes does not take the belt away from Dr. Cook.

It has been suggested that Congress might at least say "much obliged" to Henry.

THE BLAIR AND HUGHES COMPANY.

During the past week all the formalities having been complied with, the amendment to the charter of the Coleman-Lysaght-Blair Company was filed at Austin, and the increase in capital stock and change of name legally made, as authorized by the stockholders of the company and reported at the time in the Times.

The Coleman-Lysaght-Blair Company has been quite a factor in the upbuilding of Wichita Falls, and it naturally follows that the dropping of the old familiar name cannot be done without creating a feeling of regret on the part of its patrons and the public generally. But with the purchase of the interest formerly owned by the Coleman estate and that of Mr. E. H. Lysaght, and the re-election of a new board of directors entirely in sympathy with the president and general manager, Mr. Wylie Blair, the Times believes the Blair and Hughes Company will prove worthy successors of the Coleman-Lysaght-Blair Company, and will be even more liberal than ever before in its efforts to assist in the upbuilding of Wichita Falls.

WYLIE BLAIR.

Wylie Blair, from the time he first came to Wichita Falls, has had faith in Wichita Falls and West Texas. It is no secret that in some of the company's most aggressive measures, his more cautious associates were rather doubtful of the wisdom of his investments for the extension of the business and of his assistance to public enterprises, although finally assenting to it.

However, in six years' time the company has doubled its capital from its earnings, as shown by its official report, besides paying its stockholders handsome annual dividends, and the fact that this has been accomplished is indeed a great tribute to Mr. Blair's business ability and a wonderful record of the growth of West Texas.

The company is now equipped with a paid-up capital stock of six hundred thousand dollars. Wylie Blair is its president and general manager. Herbert M. Hughes and J. F. Blair have charge of the Dallas house, and with Mr. D. P. Woodward and all the old well-trained office force and traveling salesmen enthusiastically seconding their efforts, together with the active co-operation of Frank Kell and J. A. Kemp, the Times confidently predicts for the Blair and Hughes Company a great future for itself, and to be a great factor in the development of Wichita Falls, Dallas, Amarillo, Quanah, Seymour and the other western towns in which the company maintains its business.

By special arrangement a troop from the army post at San Antonio will be detailed to visit the National Feeders and Breeders' Show at Fort Worth, March 14 to 19, and take part in the horse show. The thousands who attend that show will see things to open their eyes, and will carry them away with corrected ideas of the efficiency of the cavalry branch of our National army than they have ever had. This attraction is worth going to see, not to speak of the thousands of pure bred cattle, horses, swine and sheep on exhibition at the show.—Hallettsville Herald.

A Fruitful Ministry.

When R. R. Hamlin was called to the ministry of the First Christian church of this city and after looking over the field he said to the church "We ought to pray for at least one hundred accessions to the congregation the first year and a doubling of the average attendance at Sunday school." Last night at the close of the service he announced that with four additions to the church yesterday and a Sunday school attendance of over five hundred they had gone a little beyond the desired goal in seven months and that the church was in the most harmonious and flourishing condition it had ever been in its history.

An Amusing Incident.

During Dr. Hamlin's sermon last evening the service was interrupted by what sounded like a child thumping on the piano in the Christian Endeavor room. A member of the choir went in hastily to stop the noise and found it to be a pet cat that had followed a child to church and was walking back and forth upon the piano keys.

Tree Ripened PEACHES For Sauce

There is nothing so good as tree-ripened fruit for any purpose.

There is no way in which the real peach flavor, tenderness and sweetness can be put into a peach except by the tree, the sun and the air.

Nature has not yet been duplicated, and that is why our evaporated peaches at 15c per pound are really more desirable than most of the fresh peaches that you buy during the summer for most of them were picked green and artificially ripened.

We have two grades of evaporated peaches, one at 15c and the other at 12 1/2c per pound.

They are about the same in quality, about the only difference being in size, and our 15c quality are real "peaches"—if you will pardon the slang.

We know they will give you perfect satisfaction.

The others are good, too, but not quite so good as the 15c kind.

KILLED HIS FATHER.

To Try Youth for Patricide in South Carolina.

Laurens, S. C., Mar. 14.—John Irby Fuller, an 18-year-old youth who last November shot and killed his father, Jesse V. Fuller, a prominent farmer, will be tried for murder at the spring term of the general sessions court for Laurens county, which convened today with Judge Charles G. Dantzler of Orangeburg presiding.

The shooting of Fuller by his son was the result, it is alleged, of frequent family quarrels, culminating on the morning of November 27, in what is said to have been a brutal attack upon Mrs. Fuller by her husband. The young man is said to have fired upon his father warning the latter not to strike his mother again.

LONG, LITHE LINES
That Express Suppleness and Grace

We invite you to meet Mrs. A. C. Doolittle, an expert Corsetiere representing The H. W. Gossard Co., who will be at this store one week, beginning March 12th.

THERE! We have given you the story of Corset styles in one brief sentence. You, madam, who are posted in fashion matters, will realize its truth at once. You will likewise see that Gossard Model "F" carries out Fashion's dictum with remarkable faithfulness.

CORSETS
They Live by Front

These are the corsets which are built according to the tenets of the "New School" of corset design. Through "New School" methods every seam and gore is placed with scientific precision—every bone is located with the accuracy that obtains in adjusting the balance wheel of a fine watch.

Every Gossard Corset is boned with Electrobone, a boning which in resiliency and strength excels whalebone. The basis of Electrobone is high carbon clock-spring steel, which is the only quality considered adequate to mould the figure to the exquisite Gossard lines. And the only quality that can be rust-proofed without destroying its flexibility.

But in commending the Gossard Corset to you, we particularly call your attention to the fact that in the Gossard we are showing not merely a model for every figure, but a "long model" for women of every height and build. This is an innovation that you will appreciate.

The Gossard is the American modification of the original French front-lacing corset. Its constructive principle is: That beauty and hygiene should have the closest union in a corset that essays perfection. The beautiful sculptured back and the adjustable front-lacing features of the Gossard are the product of this principle.

It is the only corset that has the unqualified approval of physicians. Instead of injurious pressure, it affords support for the organs, compels a correct standing position and carriage, and imparts that poise which never fails to elicit the admiration of the beholder. The proof of the corset is in the fitting.
