Events for exes due AJRA focus

As the 35th annual AJRA National Finals Rodeo moves toward its grand finale Friday and Saturday, attention will be focused on AJRA exes, who are scheduled to begin registration at 3 p.m. Friday for a slate of reunion events.

This marks the 12th consecutive year that the growing rodeo spectacular has been hosted by Snyder and the chamber's AJRA committee in the Scurry County Coliseum.

The registration for exes Friday at Willow Park will precede a reception there from 5 to 7 p.m.

The social events will give way to rodeo competition Saturday as a special exes rodeo is on tap at 11 a.m.

AJRA roper 'rises' to top

It's an old saying, the cream comes to the top, but Paris cowboy Josh Wilson is showing why he is the nation's all-around leader in the 13-to-15 age division as the AJRA National Finals Rodeo continues at Scurry County Coliseum.

Wilson took over the lead in the breakaway roping with a lightning-fast 1.86 during Wednesday morning's slack, then moved into third place in the calf roping with a 10.95 in the evening performance. Earlier in the week, he slipped into fourth place in the ribbon roping with a 6.36 clocking.

Several events witnessed leadership changes Wednesday, either during the nightly 8 o'clock show or the morning slack. The finals rodeo continues with shows tonight, Friday and Saturday at the coliseum. Tickets are $6 for box seats or $4 for adults and $2 for children.

Sunset cowboy Brad Butler took over the lead in the bareback event Wednesday with a 68. Another best came in the girl's 12-under breakaway roping, where Freer cowgirl Brandi Walker clocked a 3.93. Mecca McMullan of Iraan also posted a best of 3.24 in the girl's 13-15 division while current national leader Lorissa Edmondson of Roby posted a 3.76 for second place.

Adam Carrillo of El Paso moved to the top in the junior bull riding with a crowd-thrilling ride which earned him a 75 score. Lance Reed of Canyon took over second place with a 72.

Other new leaders included:

— Lynn Uptmor of West, with a 74 score in the bull riding.

— Crane's Alison McFadden with a 14.76 in the second-go of the girl's 13-15 barrels.

To be a top performer, the young athletes have to be at their best both in front of the crowd and during slack. One performer who has eased into the forefront is Shay Good of Caprock, N.M. In Wednesday's slack roping, Good took over first place in the 16-19 calf roping with a 9.24 and in the ribbon roping with a 5.48.

Chain collision...

Motorcyclist, rider hospitalized after 3-vehicle smashup

A motorcyclist and rider were critically injured in a Wednesday night chain-reaction wreck on College Ave. involving the cycle, a four-wheel-drive vehicle and a car.

Miguel Martinez, 20, of 1100 28th St. and Blas Baez, 16, of 807 27th St. were both hospitalized following the 10:30 p.m. accident.

Martinez reportedly suffered head injuries. Both were listed in critical but stable condition Thursday in the intensive care unit at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Police report the pair were riding a 1981 Suzuki motorcycle in the 3400 Block of College when the lens fell off the tail light. They reportedly turned around to retrieve it, a city patrolman who investigated the accident said.

One of the youth had gotten off the motorcycle to pick up the cap when a 1976 International Scout driven by Robert Olen Fryar of Roby hit the motorcycle lightly from behind, the officer reported Thursday.

This caused a second collision as a 1979 Oldsmobile four-door driven by Prentice Merrill Burnett of Hermleigh struck the rearend of the Scout.

Reagan's speech...

Party leaders give reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, having told the nation he regrets the "lies, leaks, divisions and mistakes" of the Iran-Contra affair, left today on a 25-day vacation with a promise to return to an energetic agenda in the autumn of his presidency.

Before leaving, he gave the nation a long-promised accounting that suggested his former national security adviser, John M. Poindexter, had usurped presidential power by making decisions that rightfully belonged to Reagan alone.

Leaders from both parties agreed with Reagan that the nation cannot allow itself to become bogged down in the administration's foreign policy debacle, but the Democrats said they want evidence that lessons have been learned.

Nevertheless, White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker said today he doubted that the president's speech will put the Iran-Contra affair behind him and was sure it would not be Reagan's last word on the subject.

"Did it put Iran-Contra behind him? I guess not," Baker said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Reagan, who left the White House with only a thumbs-up sign to waiting reporters, arranged for two quick appearances today in the nation's heartland — stopping for speeches at North Platte, Neb. — before starting a vacation on his beloved ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

In the text of the first of two speechs in Nebraska, the president made no direct reference to the Iran-Contra affair and instead concentrated to generating support for his nomination of Robert H. Bork to succeed retired Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.

"No other issue could be more pressing," the president said. "Although their work has increased to near the break-point, the court is now operating short-handed."

In the speech broadcast live to the American people, Reagan coupled a message of contrition on Iran-Contra with a hopeful-sounding enunciation of goals he wants to pursue during his last 17 months in office. These include nuclear arms reduction, budget-balancing and winning Bork's confirmation.

"The fact of the matter is that there's nothing I can say that will make the situation right," he said of the arms-to-Iran furor that has bedeviled his presidency over the last nine months. "I was stubborn in my pursuit of a policy that went astray."

Reagan repeated that he had wanted to use whatever means possible to win the freedom of Americans held hostage by pro-Iranian elements in Lebanon, but confessed that "I let my preoccupation with the hostages intrude into areas where it didn't belong."

The president went further than ever before, in two previous nationwide addresses, in accepting blame for the Iran-Contra mistakes. But at the same time, he broke very little new ground.

He did corroborate Poindexter's congressional testimony that Poindexter — not Reagan — made the decision to use a portion of Iranian arms sales proceeds to benefit the Nicaraguan rebels known as Contras.

Parents who raise their kids around farm animals seem to have less difficulty with sex education that do city dwellers.

There are problems, even on the farm, says one rancher-type who perfers to remain anonymous. He recently took his young son to ride in competition in San Angelo.

The boy's mare is generally gentle, but this particular time the horse was in the cycle that is perfect for mating. To calm the mare, the boy's father followed the vet's advice and had given it a shot.

On the way home late that night, the mare was becoming mighty restless in the horse trailer. The father decided the best thing was to take the mare out of the trailer and let it walk off some steam going down the highway.

The pickup and trailer rig were pulled far off the shoulder of the road. What the father-son duo had not observed in the dark was a stud horse in the adjacent pasture who decided that the rancher's fence was not sufficient to prevent a midnight rendezvous.

There's still a way to make money in this country. A husband-wife team decided that family pets deserved more distinguished burials than cardboard boxes.

Althought they weren't taken seriously at first, friends are no longer laughing. Their Pet Rest backyard burial receptables come in four sizes, and the owners are quick to point out that they are not coffins.

The pet receptables come with a personalized name identification and a sample memorial service for backyard burial. An optional pillow pad is available.

Although friends giggled, the owners are laughing all the way to the bank with company sales for 1987 projected at just under $1 million.

Rites Saturday for civic, church leader

Services are scheduled Saturday for Herman Doak, a longtime civic and church leader and charter member of the board of directors at West Texas State Bank.

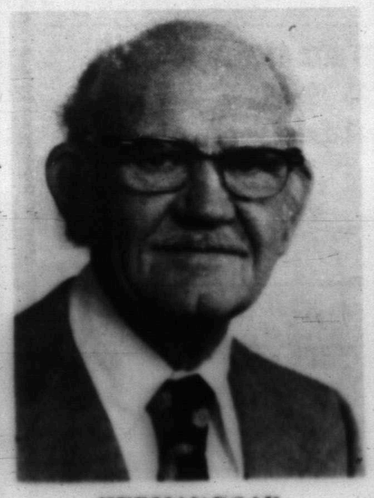

Doak, 77, of 2802 32nd St., died at 1 p.m. Wednesday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at First United Methodist Church, which Doak served as a lifelong member.

Officiating will be Rev. Bob Metzger, church pastor. Burial will follow at Snyder Cemetery under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Scale Funeral Home.

In Brief

Two are dead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A shooting incident in the parking lot of Tarrant County Junior College has left two people dead and a security officer slightly wounded, police say.

Witnesses said Wednesday they saw a man and woman struggling in a car parked in a lot at the Tarrant County Junior College South Campus about 6:15 p.m., Fort Worth police spokesman Doug Clark said.

Syrena Ingram, 19, and Vernon D. "Darrell" Krakue, 18, were pronounced dead at the scene.

Krakue, a native of Liberia, apparently shot the woman with a .25-caliber semiautomatic handgun as a campus security officer was driving by on routine patrol, Clark said.

Tropical storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Arlene slogged through the mid-Atlantic toward Bermuda today, where it is expected to hit full-force with 50 mph winds and heavy rain.

Islanders boarded up windows to prepare for the storm's arrival as squalls on the leading edge of the storm struck Wednesday.

"As with any tropical storm, they should have some windows boarded. There will be flying debris," said National Hurricane Center specialist Bob Ebaugh. He said the storm should move over Bermuda by noon today.

Bankruptcy situation outlined

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — As his creditors listened in surly disbelief, oil heir Cullen Davis told how he sold household goods recently to defray legal fees stemming from a murderous 1976 shooting spree at his $6 million mansion.

But, he said Wednesday, it was not legal expenses as much as a crippled oil and real estate market that toppled his vast family business empire and plunged him into corporate and personal bankruptcy.

He listed $730 million in liabilities, about $1 million in personal assets and said he has less than $3,000 in cash.

"The Lord sustains me through all this," he said.

With his third wife Karen at his side, the graying Davis, 53, and his attorney answered a wide range of questions from lawyers, creditors and a court-appointed bankruptcy trustee.

Many were hostile and accusatory.

Once among the richest men in Texas, and the wealthiest ever to stand trial for murder, Davis said he donated hundreds of thousands of dollars to churches and charitable organizations since his conversion to Christianity in 1980. Those contributions dwindled to no more than $200 in the last year or so, he said.

"You're telling the creditors here that you've lost $700 million in the last few years?" asked David Burrows, an attorney representing Davis' ex-wife Priscilla Davis.

"No, I'm not saying that," Davis replied.

Davis' lawyer, Ed Roush Jr., pointed out that those are just claims against his client: $500 million in debts owed by Kendavis Industries, $200 million in personal, ill-fated real estate deals and $30 million in wrongful death and personal injury suits linked to the mansion shootings 11 years ago.

Three survivors of the shootings identified Davis as the gunman in black who wounded Priscilla Davis and killed her lover and her 12-year-old daughter.

But an Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of capital murder in 1977 and a Fort Worth civil jury failed last June to reach a verdict in a $16.5 million wrongful death suit filed by Priscilla Davis, now 46, and the slain child's father, Jack Wilborn, 66.

A chance mansion visitor that night, Gus Gavrel, then 22, was permanently disabled in the gunfire and settled his own multimillion-dollar lawsuit against Davis last year.

Davis, while not admitting guilt, revealed for the first time Wednesday the settlement included up to $125,000 in cash, land and an "insurance annuity" which he refused to discuss with reporters.

Alamo movie said wrapping up filming

"I won't have to tell you how to react," he said. "This is the ultimate expression of freedom and this is what the movie is all about."

After about four hours in rehearsing and several takes, Merrill got what he wanted from the several hundred men, who were actors in "Alamo...The Price of Freedom."

The filming of "Alamo...The Price of Freedom" ends this week at the movie set near this South Texas community.

For six weeks, Merrill and several hundred actors and crew used the set at Alamo Village to film a new version of the famous battle that led to Texas' independence from Mexico in 1836.

The village has been used for several hundred television movies and motion pictures, including the 1960 classic, "The Alamo," that starred John Wayne.

In one of the current movie's major scenes last week, Merrill directed about 200 actors dressed in 1830s garb who were participating in the famous "Walk Over the Line" that was drawn by Col. William B. Travis.

Casey Biggs, a 32-year-old New York theater actor who played Travis, said the scene, where Travis asked those willing to stay and fight with him to step over a line he drew in the dust, was genuine.

"I think any one of those men would have stayed to die there," Biggs said.

Film producers say the new movie will be the first to try to make an authentic recreation of the days before the fall of the Alamo.

"The authenticity has been a big factor from the beginning," Merrill said. "I can't help to think the reaction to the movie is going to be extremely positive. We've been particulary sensitive to the Hispanic. We're certainly not trying to resurrect the Anglo vs. Hispanic or Mexican issue."

Enrique Sandino, who plays Mexican General Antonio Santa Anna, said he studied the man a great deal.

"He is a hated man in Mexico and he is a hated man in America," said Sandino, a Los Angeles-based actor.

Movie makers will spend another six months in production before the movie premieres in March 1988 in a specially built theater near the Alamo in San Antonio.

The movie was shot on 70mm film and will give the audience a feel of being in the movie, producers say.

Texas rancher and historian George McAllister, who participated in the weekend scene, spent 12 years researching and writing the project. He said finding the financing and dedicating time to the project were the most difficult.

"It's just a great story that is being told with an authenticity than has ever before been attempted," McAllister said.

McAllister said he was pleased with the project.

Large fruit expected to be feature of crop

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Nearly perfect weather has blessed the Texas citrus industry this year, and officials expect larger-than-normal grapefruits and oranges to hit the market this fall.

That translates to good money for growers who are still recovering from a 1983 freeze that damaged or killed thousands of trees and squeezed the next year's crop almost dry.

Large, attractive fruit will increase its value in the market, because fresh fruit brings roughly twice as much money as citrus used for juice, said Les Whitlock of the Texas Valley Citrus Committee, an organization of growers and shippers.

"Fresh fruit. That's where the bucks are," Whitlock said Wednesday.

Questionnaires that growers have returned show few problems from pests and wind-scarring, he added.

"I heard one grower say the other day his crop looked like September fruit instead of August fruit," Whitlock said.

Nearly everything has gone right this season, said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of Texas Citrus Mutual, a growers' group.

"It is really unusually good," he said. "We've got some awfully big fruit out there. We're going to have a higher percentage of large-size fruit, which bring a higher price."

He said the weather has been cooperating with growers.

"We've just had rains at all the key times throughout the whole growing season," Prewett said.

Dear Abby

Mom Suspects Daughter's Pal Is Writing to Her From the Pen

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, age 16, is corresponding with a "pen pal" who, I believe, is writing from the state prison near here.

What are the dangers from this, and how can I find out if this person is at the prison and what the nature of his crime might be? Please do not use my name or city.

Sign me,

CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Your daughter is a minor, so I think it is entirely appropriate for you to look into this matter. Ask her directly if she is corresponding with a man who is in prison. Also, ask her if she knows why he is there and for how long.

If you can't get this information from your daughter, you are within your parental rights to write to the warden, explaining your interest in this inmate, and asking for information about him.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Regarding surprise visits by pastors and other people: I resent such visits.

One time, my gums were killing me and I had my dentures out. I looked horrible. Another time, I had a migraine headache and was still in my nightgown at 10:30 a.m. My hair had not even been combed when my pastor made a social call.

On another occasion it didn't bother this same pastor that he interrupted my three-table bridge club. He came in, sat down and made himself right at home.

Some visits are an invasion of privacy. Thanks, Abby, for letting me blow off steam.

LITTLE G IN GARLAND, TEXAS

DEAR LITTLE G: The meek shall inherit a lot of drop-in company. It isn't wrong, nor is it rude, to politely tell an unexpected visitor that you're unable to invite him or her in because you're not feeling well.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: As you no doubt are aware, few men will admit that they ever read "Dear Abby."

The day your story about the wife of 40 years who had found $10,000 and three ears of corn locked in the trunk of her husband's car appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle, I had lunch, as usual, at a large seafood restaurant patronized almost exclusively by men. One sees many of the same faces there — "macho" men who stop in at lunchtime for a drink or two, who discuss football, women and swap a few stories.

This day I started to tell your story about the "ears of corn" when the bartender interrupted, saying, "Yes, I read that in 'Dear Abby' this morning," adding quickly, "I never read 'Dear Abby,' but the paper came early this morning, and I had more time than usual."

Then the customer to my right, a young fellow about my age (77), said he seldom reads "Dear Abby," but he had also read it that morning.

The gentleman to my left, a much younger man, then volunteered that he had already repeated that story twice that morning!

Thus four men of quite varying ages, none of whom ever read "Dear Abby," just happened to read it that morning. Ha!

New opportunities will be offered to you in the year ahead. Take advantage of those that are advanced by people whose ideals parallel your own. Shun materialistic schemers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Opportunity is all around you today, yet your attitude may be unduly pessimistic. Brighten up. If you expect good things to happen, they will.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Proceed cautiously in important financial affairs today. What looks good to you now may prove to be costly in the long run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be wary today of the grandiose schemes of an associate who, up until now, has had a rather unimpressive track record. This could be another loser.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you attend to important assignments early in the day, the results will be pleasing. However, should you let things drag on until later, the outcome could be disheartening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Limit your involvements today. If you overtax yourself, you might deplete your mental and material reserves and gain nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful today; the urgings of your ego may get you into a situation where you might make promises you can't keep.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For the sake of your own peace of mind today, it's best to avoid a companion who is always insistent upon having his or her way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let money burn a hole through your purse today. If you have a little accumulation, save it for a rainy day instead of wasting it on a drizzle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It could prove unwise today to abdicate your authority and let someone else make an important decision for you. Think for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Let your charitable instincts direct your behavior today. Strive to be helpful, even toward those who have been unappreciative of your gestures in the past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends with whom you'll associate today might be a trifle more temperamental than usual. Do what you can to lift up their spirits instead of sinking to their level.

Recipe timings are a good guide to how long meat will take to roast, but the most reliable and accurate indicator of doneness is a meat thermometer. Always cook pork to 170 degrees (well-done).

PORK TENDERLOIN WITH GINGERED FRUIT SAUCE

1 pound pork tenderloin
8-ounce can pineapple tidbits (juice pack)
⅔ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ teaspoon grated gingerroot
Dash ground red pepper
4 green onions, bias-sliced into 1-inch pieces
1 medium carrot, cut into thin strips
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon margarine or butter

Place pork on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer in thickest portion, making sure bulb doesn't touch pan. Roast, uncovered, in 325-degree oven 1 hour or until thermometer registers 170 degrees. Remove from oven. Cover to keep warm.

Meanwhile, drain pineapple, reserving juice. For sauce, combine reserved juice, orange juice, cornstarch, soy sauce, gingerroot and red pepper. Set aside.

In a medium saucepan cook onions, carrot and garlic in hot margarine 3 to 4 minutes or until crisp-tender. Stir sauce; add to vegetables. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Stir in pineapple; heat through. Slice pork; spoon sauce on top. Makes 4 servings.

Unsafety play

By James Jacoby

Even in a tournament (a form of the game that may bore some readers), it is difficult to conceive of anyone being so greedy as to go set in today's game contract. Let's look at how the play developed and what declarer should have done.

Just a word about the bidding: Rather than jump to three no-trump with the 10-8-7 of spades, South would have been better off trying two diamonds. North, holding K-J-6 of spades, would now have bid no-trump. Today's bidding could leave South with no play for game if North held one or two little spades and his opening-bid values were elsewhere. However, South did bid the no-trump game, and West did play the ace and another spade. Declarer played dummy's jack at trick two. East won the queen and cleared the suit. South now took the ace of hearts and played a low club to the queen. When that held, he played the ace of clubs, but the king did not fall. The final result — down three.

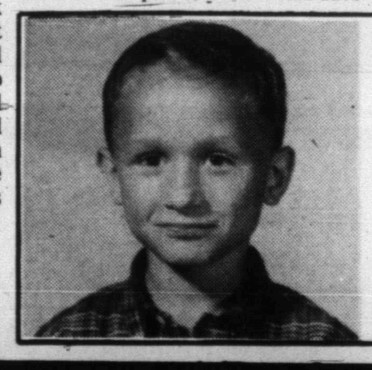

Declarer was guilty of highly obscene greed. He was in a contract that was surely going to make. All he had to do after winning the club queen was simply play a low club from dummy. West gets his club king, but he cannot prevent declarer from taking the remaining club tricks and making his contract.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Trick ropers join AJRA rodeo show

Visitors to the AJRA National Finals Rodeo this week will be in for a special treat.

In addition to the regular rodeo attractions tonight, Friday and Saturday, the shows will feature the talents of trick rope artists Sonna Warvell and Ramon Becerra.

Warvell, a former Miss Lubbock, has been performing since the age of three. Though she has worked the same shows as Becerra in the past, this will be the first time both have been together at the same time in the same arena.

"I'm really looking forward to it, performing here," said Warvell, a blonde in the mold of Hollywood's prettiest stars.

Warvell will be featured at the center of the coliseum arena while Becerra, who trains the horses of cinema notables John and Bo Derek, will also do rope tricks and show the horses.

Although Warvell has appeared at numerous rodeos, she has never competed. Her youth - she is in her 20's - was spent touring with her family.

"I've been performing with my family since I was three. I started out with my sister riding and doing little tricks with a shetland pony," she said. "Eventually, I progressed to riding Roman style."

Roman is the style of riding standing up on two horses.

She became interested in trick roping at age eight.

"There were always ropes lying around everywhere and I would just pick one up and play with it. We just didn't have Tonka trucks to play with. So I started learning rope tricks," she said.

There aren't a great number of rope trick performers, and only a few women. Most women to do tricks with ropes rely more on their feminity than talent.

"I like to think I have both. Feminity and talent," she grinned.

Warvell's travels have taken her all over the world. Closer to home, she has appeared in Madison Square Garden, the Las Vegas Hilton, the Dallas Convention Center and the Cow Palace in Fort Worth.

She calls Weatherford home and when she isn't performing, she is usually working on her college degree - radio and television.

Whether she continues to perform or inform, she hopes to continue in the entertainment business.

This week, her goal is to entertain fans of the AJRA Rodeo. Undoubtedly, she'll be a hit.

Texas blasts Brewers; Molitor extends streak

MILWAUKEE (AP) -- Texas' Rangers banged out 16 hits Wednesday on the way to a 12-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

"This is a good game to end our series against Milwaukee," said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine. "I think these two games (Wednesday's and a 7-1 Ranger win on Tuesday) proved they're human and that if we play good baseball we can beat any team in the league.

Paul Kilgus, 2-4, went 6 2-3 innings and was backed by three RBI from Pete Incavilia and three hits, including a homer, from Darrell Porter.

Milwaukee's Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 27 games - longest in the majors this season - with three hits off of Kilgus. Molitor is 48-for-112 during the streak.

Angels 8, Twins 2

Kirk McCaskill pitched a four-hitter over 7 1-3 innings and Gus Polidor drove in three runs as California snapped Minnesota's five game winning streak.

Royals 2, Yankees 1

Steve Balboni slammed a 1-0 pitch from Rick Rhoden over the left field fence with two outs in the eighth inning, lifting Kansas City to a three-game sweep of the Yankees.

Charlie Leibrandt, 12-9, scattered eight hits, struck out six and walked three for his seventh complete game. Rhoden, 14-8, took the loss.

Blue Jays 10, Red Sox 4

Jesse Barfield hit a three-run homer and Dave Stieb won his sixth straight decision as the Jays defeated the Red Sox.

Toronto retained its 1½ game lead in the East and won the season series with Boston, 7-6.

Mariners 4, Athletics 3

Mickey Brantley hit a two-run, inside the park homer and Ken Phelps powered a solo home run as Seattle nipped Oakland.

Mark Langston, 13-9, gave up three runs on seven hits in 6 1-3 innings while raising his major league-leading strikeout total to 188 with six.

Outing tough for Mike Scott

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- Houston's Mike Scott had one of his toughest outings of the season in an 8-1 loss Wednesday, and the San Francisco Giants suggested they know why.

"I didn't see the ball doing tricks like it normally does," Giants Manager Roger Craig said after his club rapped 12 hits and scored eight runs off Scott in 6 2-3 innings.

"If he had any thought of scuffing the ball, everything that's been happening the last couple of weeks probably discouraged him. We looked at a lot of balls and none of them were scuffed," he said.

Scott, 12-9, was chased in a six-run seventh, an inning crowned by Bob Brenly's grand slam.

WTC rodeo coach inks Snyder's Byrd, others

Western Texas College rodeo coach Bob Doty has announced the signing of several talented young men and women to rodeo scholarships at the college - including Snyder's Barry Byrd.

Byrd, who joined with Manor's Jim Bob Mayes to place third in the second go of the team roping at the AJRA National Finals Rodeo this week, will be a welcome addition to the WTC team.

He won the Scurry County Rodeo Association Stockholder's Team Roping in 1985 and the calf roping in 1986.

He also qualified for the Tri-State Rodeo Association finals in Amarillo and the AJRA National Finals.

"We're looking forward to having Barry with us," said Doty. "He's a fine calf roper."

Jim Bain Kenney of Pecos will also be joining the Western Texas College rodeo team next season.

Kenney, who qualified for the Texas High School Rodeo Association Finals in team roping, is an outstanding student and FFA leader. He was fifth in his class of 193.

"We're glad to have Kenney," said Doty. "We're always happy to get students who are both solid in their academics and athletics."

Kenney will compete in team roping, calf roping and saddle bronc riding. He has won several THSRA all-around titles in the region.

Among others who have signed are Bill Davis of Sterling City, Canyon Clowdus of Dripping Springs, and AJRA and THSRA standout performers Tana Mahoney of Alpine and Melanie Graf of Vernon.

Jeffery not talking

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Texas Christian University running back Tony Jeffery won't comment on what was discussed when he met with university officials to discuss his possible ties to an Atlanta-based sports agent.

"I'm not talking about this," Jeffery told reporters Wednesday after he met with the TCU officials headed by vice-chancellor William Koehler and assistant coach Bob DeBesse.

Jeffery, the second leading rusher in the Southwest Conference last year, was questioned about trips to Atlanta, the Atlanta Journal reported. He was also questioned about any business dealings he might have with Gary Wilson, who works for sports agent-promoter Jim Abernethy, the newspaper reported.

The school will continue to investigate the matter and "no statement is forthcoming," said TCU Sports Information Director Glenn Stone.

Jeffery gained 343 yards in 16 carries in a season opener against Tulane last year, most yards ever gained in an opening game of the season.

Oilers, Chiefs clash tonight

HOUSTON (AP) - Kansas City, which is trying to improve its running game, and Houston, trying to become more effective at passing, battle tonight in an NFL exhibition game in the Astrodome.

Kickoff is at 7 p.m. CDT.

Despite last week's 20-7 loss to San Francisco, the Chiefs gained 142 yards on 27 carries against the 49ers for a 5.3 per-carry average. The Chiefs averaged 3.4 yards per carry last season.

Chiefs Coach Frank Gansz has been pleased with his young running backs, including first- and second-round picks Paul Palmer and Christian Okoye and James Evans and Michael Clemens.

Clemens, 5-5, 166, returned four punts 83 yards against the 49ers.

"To see the fine efforts of those young running backs ... I'm very encouraged," Gansz said.

The Oilers have placed heavy emphasis on pass-blocking during training camp under the tutelage of new coach Kim Helton. Houston has three first-round draft choices on the starting line, but Helton says he's more interested in results.

"I'm not a guy that likes to see people walk to the line and walk back and say how great we are," Helton said. "How great we are is determined by the way we win."

It's the exhibition opener for the Oilers, 5-11 last season. Houston's offensive line has struggled despite heavy investment in first-round draft choices.

Jay Pennison, who has replaced Jim Romano as the starting center, is the only offensive-line starter who hasn't required surgery since last season.

Romano and reserve Jim Kelley walked out of camp in the first week of drills but have returned. Starting tackle Bruce Matthews is a contract holdout.

"We won't win if we're not pressing the issue," Helton said.

The Oiler offensive line has received criticism for the team's lack of punch, but Helton says there's enough blame to go around.

Reagan says...

U.S. hostages burdened his thoughts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine months after he first went on the air to discuss the Iran-Contra crisis, President Reagan is still trying to reconcile what he has said about trading arms for hostages with what he did about it.

And his explanation is still that he let his heart rule his head.

In a televised speech in which he said government "will never be free of human hopes, weaknesses and enthusiasms," Reagan acknowledged Wednesday night that some of the foibles that led to the Iran-Contra debacle were his own.

"I let my preoccupation with the hostages intrude into areas where it didn't belong," he said. "The image — the reality — of Americans in chains, deprived of their freedom and families so far from home, burdened my thoughts. This was a mistake."

That image had burdened his thoughts for a long time.

In June 1985, after an emotional meeting in Chicago with families of Americans held on a hijacked TWA plane in the Middle East, Reagan was asked about other American hostages in the same region.

"I don't think anything that attempts to get people back who have been kidnapped by thugs and murderers and barbarians is wrong to do," he replied.

Within two months, senior National Security Council officials had set in motion the steps that led to the plan to ship arms to Iran, despite the administration's public advocacy of a worldwide embargo on such sales.

Reagan and his aides had long said that the United States would never make concessions to terrorists to gain freedom for hostages, and argued that other nations should not do so either. Yet in selling arms to Iran, they were making a deal with elements of a radical Islamic government, branded by the United States as a supporter of terrorism, that had influence with the kidnappers.

When news of the deal broke last fall, Reagan first said the story had "no foundation" and then, when he acknowledged that U.S. arms had been sold to Iran, sought to explain it by saying the main purpose was to build a bridge to a possibly more moderate Iranian government of the future.

"We did not trade weapons or anything else for hostages, nor will we," he said.

After the Tower commission made its critical report on the affair in February, however, Reagan said, "My heart and my best intentions still tell me that is true, but the facts and the evidence tell me it is not."

In his Wednesday night speech, the president put it a little differently, saying that "our original initiative rapidly got tangled up with hostages."

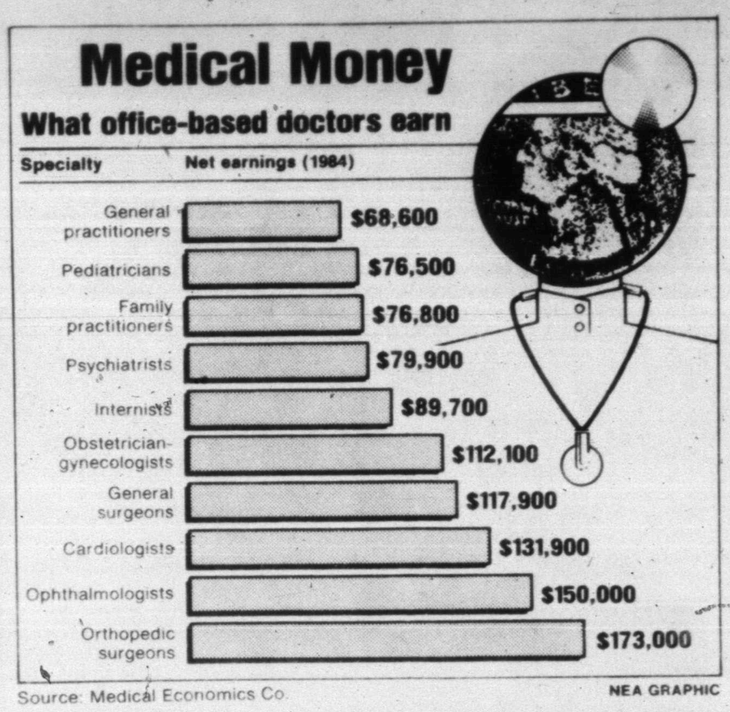

He said Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger "both predicted that the American people would immediately assume this whole plan was an arms-for-hostages deal and nothing more."

"Unfortunately, their predictions were right," he said.

For the first time, Reagan called the Iran-Contra affair a mess, saying the need for increased cooperation with Congress "may be the eventual blessing in disguise to come out of the Iran-Contra mess."

On the crucial issue of the diversion of arms sale profits to help Nicaraguan rebels, he had little new to say. He repeated that he didn't know about it and said he shouldn't have been shielded from such knowledge because as commander in chief he had "the right, the obligation, to make my own decision." But he didn't say what his decision would have been.

The average U.S. physician working out of an office had net earnings of $102,000 in 1984. Only 7 percent of the doctors earned less than $40,000 and 1.1 percent made $200,000 or more.

The investigating officer said he had not finished his investigation to determine exactly how each of the two injured parties was struck.

The Oldsmobile was heavily damaged and had to be towed from the scene. Neither driver of the other involved vehicles was injured.

Drug may offer some hope for MS

BOSTON (AP) — An experimental drug could become the first safe treatment for early cases of multiple sclerosis, scientists said today, although experts cautioned it probably will not help people already crippled by the disease.

A study in today's New England Journal of Medicine said daily shots of Cop 1 significantly reduced the symptoms and progression of the disease in people with relatively mild cases.

Other drugs have been shown to slow the disease but are so toxic they cannot be used routinely. Cop 1's only common side effect was soreness and itching at the spot where the daily injections were given, scientists said.

"It's very encouraging at the moment," said Dr. Murray B. Bornstein, who directed the study at New York's Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

"Surely it is not at the level where anybody can say this will significantly alter the course of the illness in a safe and effective way. It's very promising, but we still have work to do."

Doctors said they are not convinced Cop 1 will become a part of MS therapy, and even if it does, its uses will be limited.

"It offers hope for early cases, but there is no evidence that it helps people with more severe disease," said Dr. Howard L. Weiner of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. "Clearly it is not the cure for MS."

About 250,000 people in the United States have MS. The disease destroys the myelin that sheathes and protects the nerves, disrupting messages sent along them.

Symptoms can include muscle weakness, dizziness, tremors and blurred vision. Many victims have trouble walking.

ducts, served as a bank director at WTSB until ill health prevented him from further service.

His work with First United Methodist included almost continual service on the official board of the church. He served as chairman of the board of trustees and also served as chairman of the building committee for the present sanctuary, and the buildijg committee for the education building.

He served as church lay leader and in December of 1981 was made honorary member of the administrative board in recognition for his long and dedicated service.

He was also actively involved in civic events and was a charter member of Snyder Rotary Club, holding all offices of that club. He served as president of the United Way the first time the county achieved its goal.

He was also a past member of the Cogdell Memorial hospital board and a former trustee for the Snyder school board.

When the City of Snyder established its current form of government in the 1950s, Doak served on the committee which wrote the current city charter.

He is survived by his wife Mary; one daughter, Mrs. Harold (Mary Ann) Hooks of San Antonio; one son, William H. Doak of Milwaukie, Ore.; and four grandchildren. Locally, he is survived by his aunt, Josephine Doak Roberts, and several cousins.

Texans to decide 25 amendments

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans will decide the fate of 25 proposed constitutional amendments in this November's election, along with the question of legalizing gambling on horse racing.

Secretary of State Jack Rains, drawing slips of paper out of a cowboy hat, Wednesday determined the order in which the amendments will be placed before voters on Nov. 3.

For the first time, Rains said, two statewide referenda also will go to voters. By law, those follow the constitutional questions, he said.

Gov. Bill Clements on Wednesday issued a proclamation designating the order for the two referenda which had been sent to voters by the Legislature.

The question of whether to maintain the State Board of Education as an appointed — rather than elected — body will be listed ahead of the pari-mutuel gambling referendum. Currently, the school board is scheduled to return to an elected group in 1989. The gambling issue was sent to the ballot by legislators in 1986.

Local issues, if any, will follow the statewide questions. At least four counties already have decided to place local-option horse-racing elections before their voters Nov. 3.

"There are 25 amendments before the voters, which is the highest number in Texas history ... It is the first time in Texas history that statewide referenda will come before the voters," Rains said before conducting the drawing.

"The top of the ballot will be the state elections. The ballot is constitutional amendments, referenda and whatever your local issues trail after that," he said.

Rains' drawing established the November constitutional amendment ballot order as follows:

— HJR104: To provide for the surety of a grain warehouse fund to be established by the grain industry for the protection of farmers and depositors of grain in public warehouse facilities.

— HJR60: To raise the maximum property tax rate that may be adopted by certain rural fire prevention districts.

— HJR48: To limit school tax increases on the residence of the surviving spouse of an elderly person if the spouse is at least 55 years old.

— HJR5: To authorize the Legislature to provide assistance for encouraging economic development.

— HJR65: To authorize agreements between the state highway department and the turnpike authority and counties of more than 400,000, adjoining counties and cities to aid turnpikes, toll roads and toll bridges by guaranteeing bonds.

— HJR4: To allow the Legislature to provide for state financing of the development of Texas products and businesses.

— SJR55: To provide for the issuance of general obligation bonds to finance local public facilities.

— SJR56: To authorize issuance of general obligation bonds for projects relating to corrections institutions and mental health facilities.

— SJR9: To allow legislators to be elected or appointed to other state offices but not receive any increase in pay granted to that office during his legislative term.

— SJR12: To allow the Legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxation certain personal property not used for producing income.

— SJR12, Part II: To provide for exemption from ad valorem taxes of certain property located in the state temporarily.

— SJR27: To allow for creation of special districts for emergency services.

— SJR34: To give the state a limited right to appeal in criminal cases.

— HJR35: To abolish office of county treasurer in Gregg, Fayette and Nueces counties.

— SJR6: To allow more than one justice of the peace court in certain precincts.

— SJR26: To allow the Legislature to define for all purposes the governmental and proprietary functions of a municipality.

— HJR18: To allow creation of jail districts.

— HJR88: To authorize issuing general obligation bonds for a "super collider" research facility.

— HJR96: To allow the Legislature to grant ad valorem tax relief for certain unused offshore drilling equipment.

— SJR17: To permit the Legislature to include the speaker of the House or speaker's appointee in membership of an executive agency or committee.

— SJR53: To allow Legislature to limit authority of governor to fill vacancies in state offices at the end of a term in which the governor wasn't re-elected.

— SJR54: To authorize issuing $400 million more in water development bonds.

— HJR83: To permit county to perform work, without compensation, for other governmental bodies.

— SJR5: To authorize the Legislature to permit the Amarillo Hospital District to serve certain residents of Randall County.

Emergency order sets new rules

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials issued an emergency order imposing new rules for flying the crowded skies above Los Angeles International Airport, prompting a private pilots' association to protest and issue a plan of its own.

The Federal Aviation Administration's order Wednesday raising the ceiling of the Terminal Control Area over the airport from 7,000 to 12,500 feet followed the near collision of a Boeing 737 and a small plane flying under visual flight rules (VFR).

"I have taken this action to lessen the risk posed to the traveling public by VFR aircraft in and around the Los Angeles basin," FAA Administrator T. Allan McArtor said in a statement released in Washington.

The FAA originally announced the restrictions on Tuesday, hours before the small plane passed within 100 feet of the jetliner. But implementation would not have taken place for two years because of hearings.

Sheriff warns about terrorist camps

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities are apparently ignoring information that terrorist camps are operating in Mexico, Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter says.

The sheriff said a reliable informant in Mexico told him that Cubans, Colombians and Libyans are operating five terrorist training centers scattered across Mexico.

The informant, who had previously furnished narcotics information regarding narcotics traffic from Mexico, said the training camps are funded by drug sales, Painter said.

The sheriff said his warnings a year ago to the FBI, CIA, State Department and U.S. Customs Service have been ignored. All he got, Painter said, was a warning from the FBI that he might have broken three federal laws by gathering intelligence outside the country.

"It's my duty that I make certain someone in authority got this information," Painter said. "I don't feel I violated any laws. If it comes down to you can't pass on any information concerning the security of the U.S., then something's wrong."

Painter said Wednesday he could not remember the exact locations of the camps. He said one was southwest of Ciudad Chihuahua in northern Mexico, one was in the vicinity of Hermosilla, near the west coast, two were near Tampico on the Gulf of Mexico and the other was somewhere in southern Mexico.

He said he was unsure who was being trained and what they were being taught, and that he cut off contact with the informant after the FBI told him he might be breaking the law. Painter said he understood that the trainers wanted to export communism to Mexico and harass the United States.

A year after delivering the warning, Painter expressed frustration with federal authorities.

"I know our leadership has been notified," he said. But "we haven't received any feedback. I would feel more comfortable if someone would say, 'Shut up, we're working on it.'

"If they were going to conduct an investigation, why wouldn't they call me to get the name of my informant so they could talk to him? That's the first thing I would do."

Bernardo M. Perez, FBI assistant special agent in El Paso, said the bureau looked into the matter, but declined comment on whether Painter's allegations were substantive.

"The FBI has jurisdiction for the security of the United States; sheriffs and police chiefs do not," Perez said.

Painter said he had talked to a State Department counter-terrorism agent, but a State Department official said no one by the name Painter provided has been an agent.

Sunday benefit slated for tornado victims

AUSTIN (AP) — When singer-songwriter Tony Joe White saw news reports and photos of the tornado that destroyed Saragosa, he decided to get a flat-bed trailer and race west for a small benefit concert.

But first, he called his friend, Waylon Jennings.

"Waylon said, 'Well, I'll go with you,' " White recalled. The results are a benefit concert scheduled for Sunday at Manor Downs, east of Austin, with a lineup White says will include himself, Jennings, Johnny Cash, Neil Young, Jessi Colter, Johnny Rodriguez, John Anderson and Steve Earle.

"I told Waylon, this is a long ways from a flat-bed trailer. This thing kind of snowballed. Waylon just got on the phone and it got a lot bigger," White said.

White, whose songs have included "Polk Salad Annie" and his latest album, "Dangerous," lived in Corpus Christi for several years.

Although he's never been to tiny Saragosa in West Texas, where 30 people died and 160 were injured in the May 22 tornado, he said in a phone interview from his Tennessee home that the news coverage struck a chord.

"When I read that in the newspaper up here, there was something about the looks on their faces. I knew some people weren't going to get any help," he said. "It was something about the looks in those peoples' eyes. Man, they got hit."

White said he and Jennings plan to donate all proceeds from their concert directly to the tornado victims.

"Me and Waylon are going to go down to Saragosa the next day with a priest and nun who've been working with the people. The whole point of this is to get the money straight to the people who need it," White said.

Gov. Bill Clements saluted the two performers for their interest in helping victims.

"They heard of the disaster and immediately began to formulate plans for this benefit. What they hope to accomplish with this concert is admirable. It will bring the citizens of Saragosa another step closer to rebuilding their lives," Clements said.

The concert, which has attracted corporate sponsorship from Tyson Foods Inc. of Springdale, Ark., is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Manor Downs, a horse-racing track, also served as the site for Willie Nelson's Farm Aid II concert last summer.

Port's conviction said overturned

HOUSTON (AP) — An appeals court overturned the murder conviction of a man sentenced to 75 years in the slaying of a Houston mail carrier and sent the case back for another trial.

The 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin threw out the conviction and sentence of David I. Port, 20, on Wednesday, saying the trial court erred by allowing a verbal confession Port made after his arrest to be admitted into evidence.

Harris County District Attorney Johnny Holmes said the state has 15 days to ask for a rehearing, but added that since the appeals court decision was unanimous, it is unlikely to get one.

If the rehearing is denied, the state can then ask the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for a discretionary review, Holmes said.

"The chance of having that occur is not very favorable," Holmes said. His office will have to decide if it wants to retry Port or dismiss the case once the appellate court's decision is affirmed.

Port's attorney, Jack Zimmerman, had argued in the appeal that Port's confession should not have been admitted into evidence.

"The statement was not reduced to writing, it was not tape-recorded, there were no notes made of it that reflected the content. Those types of statements are considered inadmissable because they are unreliable," he said.

The Court of Appeals agreed. In an opinion written by Justice Marilyn Aboussie, the court said Port's improperly admitted statements probably helped convict him.

"Since Port's statements were the only direct evidence of his guilt in the record, it is reasonable to assume that his own statements likely contributed to his conviction and the lengthy sentence," Ms. Aboussie wrote.

Joining in the opinion were Justices Robert A. Gammage and Earl W. Smith, a retired justice sitting by assignment.

Port, who was 18 at the time of the crime, will probably be imprisoned until the Court of Appeals decision is final, Zimmermann said.

Port was convicted in March 1985 of the June 7, 1984, slaying of Debra Schatz, 23, who disappeared while delivering mail in the affluent west Houston neighborhood where Port lived.

Her body was found two days later in a remote wooded area in northwest Harris County. She had been shot in the head with a .22-caliber handgun. Houston police said Port admitted killing Ms. Schatz while she was delivering mail.

Port was arrested June 8, 1984, the day after the killing. After he had been read his rights, officers began questioning him.

According to court records, an officer asked Port whether he had killed Ms. Schatz, to which he responded: "Yeah, I shot her." Port also said he had shot her in the head with a .22-caliber gun.

According to the appeals court opinion, after about 10 minutes of silence during a ride to the police station, Port gave a longer statement to an officer, without being asked.

In that statement, he said in part that the woman was struggling so he shot her, missing many times, "but I know I hit her at least two times, maybe on the head, I don't know."

That verbal statement was admitted into evidence during his trial. Prosecutors argued that the statement was voluntary and not in response to interrogation.

When an officer removed a .22-caliber pistol from the squad car's trunk, evidence showed Port asked, "Is that my gun?"

The officer asked whether he recognized it, and court records say Port replied, "Yes, that is the one I used to kill her."

Medicine may be the culprit

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A couple of years ago I was diagnosed as having "bipolar affective disorder — mixed." I take 200 milligrams of Sinequan and 600 milligrams of lithium. I'm developing muscle jerks. When I have one of these spells I can't hold on to whatever is in my hands. Could my medicine be causing this?

DEAR READER — Bipolar affective disorders are the same thing as manic-depressive illness, in which a patient alternates between crushing depression and euphoria. The disorder is thought to be due to a chemical abnormality within the brain.

Lithium affects the metabolism of brain substances called catecholamines. Although its precise role in alleviating the euphoria of bipolar disorders is unknown, the drug works well and has become a mainstay of psychiatrists' treatment of manic illness. Sinequan, an anti-anxiety agent and anti-depressant, is extremely useful therapy for severe depression. Hence, lithium and Sinequan (doxepin) usually work well together in treating the emotional roller-coaster of bipolar disorders.

Unfortunately, one of the earliest signs of lithium toxicity is muscular weakness and lack of coordination. This may progress to giddiness and stumbling gait. Sinequan has also been reported to cause loss of coordination and difficulty walking. Therefore, in my opinion, either of your medicines could be causing your symptoms — although lithium is the most likely culprit. I doubt that your muscle jerks are the result of your emotional illness.

Explain your symptoms and concerns to your doctor. He or she will probably obtain a blood test to determine the lithium level in your body. If you have too much, the dose of medicine must be reduced. If the level is normal, the physician will surely adjust your medication schedule so that your unpleasant muscle twitches will be relieved.

DEAR DR. GOTT — The lymph node under my left armpit is much larger than the one on the right. Now one has turned dark. I'm 30; should I see a doctor?

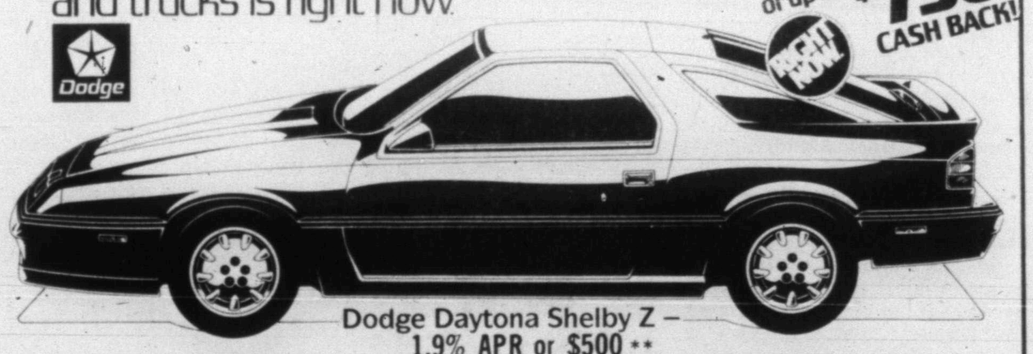

DEAR READER — Without a doubt. Swollen lymph glands can indicate chronic infection or serious diseases, such as cancer. The fact that the lump under your arm is darkening can be an ominous warning. See a doctor immediately.

Be informed about prescription drugs. Send for Dr. Gott's new Health Report, CONSUMER TIPS ON MEDICINES. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.
