Compromise clears way for Department of Energy

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — An impasse on creating President Carter's proposed Department of Energy was broken Friday when White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger and a bipartisan group of senators reached a compromise agreement on how future oil and natural gas prices would be set.

The development indicated that Carter soon will get the new Cabinet department he requested more than two months ago as a major step in his government reorganization program and as a needed mechanism for coordinating his energy program.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff (D-Conn.), chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee, announced the compromise as his committee considered revisions in legislation to create the department.

The committee is expected to endorse the agreement Monday and send the legislation to the Senate floor for swift approval.

The House also is expected to embrace the compromise, although the House Government Operations Committee adopted somewhat different legislation Friday while the Senate-Schlesinger agreement was being worked out.

Congressional approval of a Department of Energy has been held up largely by opposition to Carter's proposal to give total price-setting power to the department's secretary — who is expected to be Schlesinger.

Under the compromise plan, a quasi-independent Energy Regulatory Board within the new department would set oil and natural gas prices subject to presidential veto.

Currently, the Federal Energy Administration has limited authority for pricing crude oil while the Federal Power Commission, an independent regulatory agency, controls all wholesale prices of interstate deliveries of natural gas.

Both the FEA and FPC would be abolished under the pending legislation.

Ribicoff and others objected to transferring the agency's price-setting powers into the hands of one man — the energy secretary — because of the potential for putting consumers at a severe disadvantage.

Ribicoff first proposed setting up an Energy Regulatory Board whose three members — appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate — would haggle over oil and gas prices with the energy secretary. Any differences would be resolved by Congress.

Schlesinger objected to that idea. He didn't want Congress getting entangled in complex pricing issues, sources said.

So the compromise plan of giving the veto power to the President rather than Congress satisfied Ribicoff and company because it avoided one-man rule. It satisfied Schlesinger because it kept Congress out of the picture.

Having the quasi-independent Energy Regulatory Board set prices subject to presidential veto would be similar to the procedure under which the Civil Aeronautics Board establishes airline fares and routes subject to disapproval by the President.

Involved with Ribicoff in the compromise effort were Sens. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.), Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash), Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), Edmund S. Muskie (D-Me.), William V. Roth Jr. (R-Del.),

She's bent on making Tall City even taller

She's got a touch of the spunk and spirit that legend gave to the hero of all lumberjacks and to the greatest steel driver of them all.

But Barbara Traxler could never be a match for Paul Bunyan or John Henry . . . or for King Kong for that matter, though she does climb buildings.

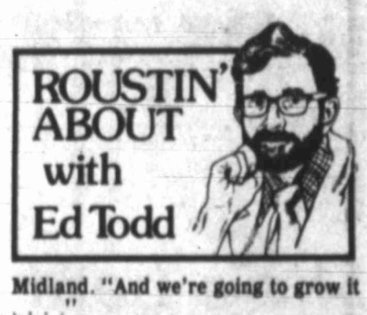

She's so petite and downright pretty, even if she does work like a real he-man.

The king might even take a fancy to her.

Feisty soul.

She talks big.

"Your little town needs some growing up," she said while poised for work in the middle of downtown Midland. "And we're going to grow it . . . "

She meant it and, with lots of help, she'll do it.

She's on the heavy construction gang that is out to make The First National Bank building the tallest building in town.

By the time she and her co-workers have spent 1½ years on the job here, the present eight-story edifice will have grown to 24 stories plus a roof.

The novelty of this Traxler gal is that she's a big-time construction worker, a journeyman carpenter, and she's the only woman on the job.

". . . She doesn't get any special favors," said Ron Nield, superintendent of the construction job.

"For sure," the lady agreed. She also said that she became a carpenter "by doing it the hard way. I had to prove I could do it."

And just judging by her length and breadth, you'd have to figure that she's the lightweight of the crew.

She weighs 103 pounds "soak 'n' wet," stands 5-foot-3, wears her blonde hair shoulder-length and views the world through her hazel eyes. She calls 'em "cat eyes, bedroom eyes."

Working with Traxler are 34 other carpenters, union men all, 14 iron workers and many helpers.

She's 29 and good at what she does.

"I like the challenge of doing my own work," she says. "That's what I've always wanted — keeping busy."

Her boss, carpenter foreman Freddy Bunch, bluntly says she's "damn good" at her job.

Nield says she's treated like anybody else on the job and does her work right.

And the big boss, project manager Bob Montgomery of the J. A. Jones Construction Co. of Charlotte, N.C., officially views her as a carpenter and no more.

"I can't differentiate whether she's a man or a woman," said Montgomery, who goes by the rules. "She's a carpenter."

Fair enough. There's a job to be done. But people still notice.

"They all know I'm not a man when I work out there, for sure," working lady Traxler said.

Fellow carpenter Richard Hartman is keenly aware of that, too, and jestingly accused her of getting preferential attention just because she's a woman.

True.

It was the noon hour. And Traxler

Uranium shipments OK'd

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

LONDON, May 6 — High Carter administration officials said Friday night that the President, moments before leaving Washington yesterday for the summit here, approved resumption of shipments of highly enriched uranium to a number of countries.

Carter's decision was welcomed here, on the eve of the two-day meeting of heads of state, as a gesture that bodes well for the success of the meeting. Countries dependent on highly enriched uranium as a source of energy had been pressing such a step on Carter.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, in response to questions, said that Carter's decision "is the first concrete demonstration of the (American) commitment to be a reliable source of supply of highly enriched uranium to meet other nations' legitimate requirements."

The nations specified in Carter's decision, which must be formally approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, are Canada, the Netherlands, Belgium, West Germany, Japan and a multinational group that includes France, among others.

Another administration source said that these countries "meet the standards" of Carter's new nuclear program.

Powell said that the U.S. decision did not alter Washington's disagreement with West Germany over that country's plans to export nuclear technology to Brazil.

The decision to resume uranium shipments appeared to confirm that the Carter strategy for the summit is to push hard for concrete achievements, and avoid a final communique filled with platitudes.

"He (Carter) doesn't want another heads-of-state meeting to end with just a burst of rhetoric," one of his closest advisers said in an interview.

American officials anticipate that in a meeting with six other national leaders, most of whom have extensive political and economic problems, Carter should be able to exert strong leadership, if not a dominant role.

The two-day session, which begins formally this morning at 10 Downing St., includes the host, Prime Minister James Callaghan of Britain; Carter; French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing; West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt; and prime ministers Pierre Trudeau of Canada, Giulio Andreotti of Italy and Takeo Fukuda of Japan.

During the flight to London Thursday Carter told reporters that he would offer "new initiatives" in his talks with other heads of state. Highly-placed sources said that Carter had these areas in mind:

—A U.S. proposal that the major nations with strong economies pledge to take whatever actions are necessary to meet their stated economic growth targets. Weaker ones would pledge stabilization efforts.

—Endorsement of increased financial resources for the International Monetary Fund and other international institutions.

—Acceptance of the notion that all nations have common problems, especially unemployment, that require common solutions.

—A commitment to get stalled trade negotiations "off-the-ground." This would involve not only reiteration of a stand against protectionism, but identification of specific problems among the big powers that need to be resolved.

—A worldwide endorsement of

Young not welcome, South Africa tells U.S.

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times

JOHANNESBURG — In a diplomatically worded note, the South African government Friday informed the United States that its United Nations ambassador, Andrew Young, was not welcome in South Africa.

The response came after the U.S. embassy had made known that Young would overnight in Johannesburg May 19 and speak to students at one of the nation's liberal universities and also to a mixed group of white and black businessmen. Young would be coming from Maputo, the Mozambique capital, after attending a U.N.-sponsored conference in support of southern African black liberation movements.

However, unofficial sources disclosed that Young might also visit Robert Sobukwe, a former leader of a South African black political group now banned, with Sobukwe himself under house arrest since 1969 in the mining town of Kimberley. Sobukwe's two children live as guests of Young in Atlanta and go to school there.

It appeared that Young's purported plans to talk with Sobukwe and perhaps other black leaders in private, while seeing no government officials at all, is what provoked Foreign Minister Pik Botha to announce Friday that "it would not be convenient for us to receive him (Young) here."

Botha's full statement read, "According to press reports, the purpose and basis of his (Young's) visit would appear to be different from the understanding we had. It would also appear that the normal channels were not used in approaching us."

Previously the South African government had told a South African industrialist, Harry Oppenheimer, that it had no objection in principle to a proposal to invite Young to speak at the university, and to meet "a broad cross-section of the South African business community."

American embassy officials would not discuss whether the stopover by Young would now be with a schedule of meetings satisfactory to the South Africans, or canceled altogether.

Friday's diplomatic tempest follows the recent row over the free-speaking Young's declaration that the South African government is "illegitimate" because it is composed solely of whites, therefore does not represent South Africa's black majority. Young's opinion was not supported by President Carter nor Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, but — South Africans noted disapprovingly — Young was not reprimanded.

Cullen Davis trial may be moved here

Midland might be chosen as location for the Cullen Davis murder trial if that case receives a change of venue from Fort Worth, District Attorney Vern Martin said.

Martin said Friday night that he had "reason to believe" that Midland is one of the few places both the defense and prosecuting attorneys in the case have agreed on as a possible alternative location for the trial.

Nevertheless, 142nd District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett said he had turned down the unofficial queries he had received on the matter, saying "we have enough business of our own."

Martin agreed, saying, "We don't have the time to mess with it, because of our backlog."

If the trial were changed to Midland County, however, Martin said it would not destroy but would interfere with his office's process to clear up the docket. His office would have another district court to work in, he explained.

Also, the Tarrant County district attorney's office would send in their own prosecutors, so that it is "not as if it would be dumped in our lap," Martin said.

Bell questioning urged

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate opponents of President Carter's voter registration plan urged Friday that Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell be called for questioning after the disclosure of a second Justice Department warning that the plan would increase election fraud.

The plan would permit persons to register on election day at a polling place and then vote in presidential and congressional elections.

The Justice Department's warning came in the form of a telegram sent to all U.S. attorneys by Thomas H. Henderson Jr., chief of the public integrity section of the department's criminal division.

"We recognize that election day registration may increase the opportunity for election fraud," the telegram said.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., gave the Senate Rules Committee a copy of Henderson's telegram after assailing Carter's plan as "opening the door to more election fraud than anything I have ever heard of."

On Thursday, the committee obtained a copy of a memo by Craig Dansanto, a career lawyer who heads the election unit of the Justice Department's criminal division, warning that the bill has a "tremendous potential for fraud."

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., a committee member who has joined Republicans in attacking the bill, suggested that Bell be called to "shed further light on the position of the Justice Department" in light of these developments.

Allen said Bell had "shot from the hip" when the attorney general testified before the House Administration Committee on April 6 in support of the bill. Allen said Bell apparently had never read the measure at the time of his testimony.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., joined Allen in urging that the attorney general be called by the Senate panel for questioning.

Griffin also said the panel should obtain the testimony of the heads of the department's criminal, public integrity and civil rights units.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., the committee chairman, said Bell had been invited to testify at the start of its hearings but that Bell instead sent Deputy Atty. Gen. Peter F. Flaherty to testify for the department.

Cannon said he didn't think the committee should interfere if the attorney general wanted to have his deputy testify. However, Cannon said he would ask the Justice Department if it wants to supplement its testimony and also find out if Bell wanted to appear or have Flaherty testify again.

Price hike announced by major steelmaker

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. led the way Friday in announcing long-expected price hikes on steel used in a wide range of consumer goods.

The federal Council on Wage and Price Stability immediately called the boost "excessive" and said it would investigate even though it does not have the power to force a rollback.

Also Friday, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., a unit of Lykes Corp. of Ohio, boosted prices 6.8 per cent on its hot rolled sheet, effective May 15.

Other major steel producers, who have long complained of underpriced products and rising costs, said they were studying the increase.

"We all need it," said an official at one steel firm.

Republic, the nation's fourth largest steelmaker, said the price of flat-rolled products would go up an average of 8.8 per cent, while the price of hotrolled and cold-finished carbon and alloy bar would be increased an average of 6.8 per cent, effective May 15.

Flat-rolled steel is used mainly in auto bodies, appliances and office furniture such as filing cabinets, and accounts for nearly half of the industry's shipments. Bar products are used in machinery, tools and forgings and make up about 16 per cent of the steel market.

"Rapidly rising costs make an increase at this time imperative," said Republic President W. J. DeLancey.

A government spokesman said in Washington that the price council thinks the industry needs some relief, "but this seems too high."

Imported steel is selling in the United States for about $50 per ton less than domestic steel and "you can draw your own conclusions from that," he said.

But a steel industry analyst in New York said that the discount price was for different kinds of steel and that Japanese producers themselves recently announced average 9 per cent price hikes on flatrolled products for which there is good demand.

strict energy conservation, ratifying, it is hoped, some of the principles of the Carter energy program.

—A common approach to aid for the Third World, without endorsing a multibillion-dollar "common fund," as proposed by the poor nations. Carter favors individual commodity stabilization to assist countries whose economies are vulnerable to rapid price changes in raw materials.

It has also been learned that special U.S Trade Negotiator Robert Strauss has met with Japanese officials in an effort to work out a "special marketing agreement" on color television exports to the United States. Strauss, in an interview, defended such agreements, which would have the effect of limiting Japanese sales, "as the best available course."

Whatever the results of the two-day summit, Carter ordered that they be made plain in language that people can easily understand. The President has told aides, that there should be special emphasis on the important link between international economic decisions and the creation of jobs in the United States.

Sources in all of the delegations — including the U.S team — concede that the Carter agenda is ambitious, and that a "realistic" expectation is that there would be no dramatic breakthroughs.

Not the least of the problems is the series of disputes between West Germany and the United States.

These involve not only differences over issues, but a personal coolness between Carter and Schmidt.

"One of the most important results of this summit, you might never see in a communique," said a U.S insider, "and that would be if Carter and Schmidt, with a chance to talk to each other, hit it off well."

American policy has stressed the need for faster economic growth in both West Germany and Japan as a way of spreading strength through the rest of the Western world. Expansion in the United States, West Germany and Japan, according to the theory, would reduce the smaller countries' deficits because more imports would naturally flow into the big three.

Carter favors diversion of income tax revenue

By SPENCER RICH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter is expected to propose next week that, for the first time, substantial amounts of income tax revenue be used to help pay Social Security benefits.

In addition, the President is expected to recommend that Congress change the Social Security tax so that employers have to pay it on all wages they pay an employe and not just on a portion of those wages, as now.

The so-called wage base — the amount of an individual's earnings on which the Social Security tax is levied — also would rise for employes, but not all the way, as it would for employrs.

The wage base is $16,500 this year, and is scheduled to rise each year in the future by the same percentage as wages generally in the economy. Thus experts expect it will be $17,700 in 1978, $19,200 in 1979, and so on.

Carter would add to these scheduled increases an extra $600 in 1979 and $600 more in 1981, 1983, and 1985 for a total add-on of $2,400.

IN THE LAST several years, Social Security benefit payments have started to outrun Social Security tax collections, and the system's giant trust or reserve funds have been drawn down.

These reserve funds will be exhausted in the early or middle 1980s if Congress takes no action to reconstitute the system, which now pays benefits each month to more than 30 million individuals — roughly one American in seven.

Carter's expected recommendations are the way he wants the system shored up. But they are sure to run into resistance from employers and those who believe that only the Social Security tax should be used to pay benefits under the plan.

The Social Security tax is currently 5.85 per cent for employer and employe on the wage base. The tax rate is scheduled to rise to 6.05 per cent for company and worker next year. That increase was originally planned to help pay Medicare costs, which also come out of the Social Security tax.

But the Medicare trust fund is in relatively good condition, and another step Carter will propose in his message, probably Monday, will be to divert half of this increase to pay for retirement and disability benefits.

PRESIDENT FORD proposed last year, and again in January before he left office, that Social Security's financial problem be dealt with by an additional increase in the tax rate beyond this scheduled one.

But Carter said in last year's presidential campaign he opposed that step on grounds that such a rate increase would fall harder, in relative terms, on low-income workers.

Social Security amounts to about one-fifth of the federal budget. Benefit payments to the elderly, the disabled and survivors of workers who have died are expected to be $95 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Tax receipts in that period will be $88.9 billion.

There are several reasons for the system's financial problems.

The simultaneous high unemployment and high inflation of the last several years have hurt. With high unemployment, total wages drop, as do tax receipts based on those wages. Benefits, on the other hand, are pegged to prices, so that high inflation means big increases in the system's costs.

A second, longer-range problem is that the birth rate has declined after the baby boom of the 1940s and '50s. This will eventually mean a change in the ratio of workers to retirees; there will be fewer workers to support each elderly beneficiary, and each worker will have to pay higher taxes if nothing else is done.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is action Congress took in 1972 when it voted to have benefits rise each year with prices. Congress over-adjusted for inflation, and another step Carter is expected to propose is a correction of this over-adjustment.

Carter's proposal to shore up the system partly with an income tax injection will be presented as a temporary expedient, to last until the next Social Security advisory committee can pass judgment on the idea. That would be a year or two away.

In the meantime, the Carter recommendation is that the Treasury Department put into the Social Security trust funds, out of general or income tax revenues, the difference between what has been collected since 1974 in Social Security taxes and what would have been collected if unemployment had not exceeded 6 per cent.

This is the same idea used in so-called countercyclical revenue sharing to cities and states.

Several bills receive OK

Austin Bureau

The House has given final approval to several bills by West Texas legislators on a local and consent calendar.

House Bill 1990 by Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland is enabling legislation needed if constitutional amendments introduced in both houses is passed. The bill would allow the use of industrial revenue bonds in Texas by political subdivisions to build industrial facilities.

HB 1741 by Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield would allow counties to own, operate and maintain cemetaries.

These bills go to the Senate for consideration.

Senate Bill 187 by Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo would drop the word from law that requires bids to be taken for any purhcase for supplies of every kind, road and bridge material, or any other material, "for the use of counties." The bill would drop "daily," allowing advertising in newspapers published and circulated in a county other than daily newspapers.

SB 889 by Sherman would raise the value of an estate that does not require appointment of a personal representative from $5,000 to $10,000.

These bills now go to the governor for consideration.

She's bent on making Tall City even taller

was off the job for an interview with a reporter. Hartman and some others were milling around during the lunch break.

"You're a celebrity," Hartman said. He seemed more amused than envious.

"No, not really, Richard," she replied. "I'm not different than anybody else" in the crowd.

•

Certainly, like everybody else on the job, Traxler wears a hard hat, an orange one she picked up 4½ years ago when she first became a carpenter. She had already served her apprenticeship.

On the back of the hat is printed "PROBLEM CHILD," thanks to a girl friend of hers.

"And that's my handle on the CB," she said.

Perhaps Traxler was a "problem child" when she first tried to break into big-time construction work.

That was down Houston-way where she shed her secretarial clothes and put on her he-man work clothes — blue jeans, boots, T-shirt, hard hat and all.

Traxler, who hails from the Houston suburb of La Porte, got a job as a carpenter's helper with Brown & Root, Inc., one of the world's largest general construction contractors.

". . . I fought for six months," she said, "because I was too little, and they thought I couldn't handle it." Of course, she did.

•

Off the job, Traxler is just "as normal as anybody else."

"I go home at night. I cook. I clean house, if I feel like it, and I take care of my kids. If they want to go to a ball game, I go, too."

And on evenings and weekends, she can doll up. And no one but her friends and possibly some passersby at the job would know that she's in the heavy construction trade.

"I wear go-go boots, I wear shorts, (and) I wear dresses," she said. She also said that she uses a lot of hand lotion in the prettying-up routine.

On the job, however, she doesn't bother with impressing anyone with anything other than her work.

"I take pride in what I do," she said.

". . . I don't come out here to look pretty for none of these guys."

After all, she's just another carpenter.

Partly cloudy skies forecast

No rain, but a partly cloudy sky, is in sight for the Midland area today, the weatherman said.

Skies should remain partly cloudy through Sunday, a National Weather Service spokesman at the Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

The high today and Sunday should reach near 90, with a low tonight in the lower 60s.

Southwesterly winds should 10 to 15 mph today and tonight.

Pleasant, tornado-free weather prevailed throughout the Midland area Friday night.

Andrews reported calm, fair weather with scattered clouds. Lamesa was calm and clear.

Stanton was clear and warm, with a slight wind. Clear and cool with a slight breeze was the report from Rankin.

Big Lake also had a slight breeze, with partly cloudy skies. Odessa was partly cloudy, warm and calm.

Parts of the Rocky Mountains were hit with a spring snowstorm Friday. As much as eight inches of snow fell in parts of northeast Utah.

Travelers advisories continued over southeast Idaho and northern Utah with snow expected in Montana. A freeze warning was posted for the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

The Ohio Valley and central Mississippi Valley received showers and thunderstorms.

Bell expects calling rush

The telephone company is gearing up for an expected record number of long distance calls for Mother's Day Sunday.

The volume of Mother's Day calling traditionally is heavier than at Christmas, said Royce Brookmole, district manager for Southwestern Bell.

A record 13 million long distance calls are expected to be placed throughout the U.S., with 1.5 million expected from Texas.

"Because of the popularity of Mother's Day, we will have 39 operators on duty in Midland to handle the 7,000 calls expected in this area," Brookmole said.

To avoid the rush, Brookmole said, calls should be placed before 5 p.m. Sunday. "Your call will go through faster, and you'll be getting the lowest rates if you dial direct," he said.

Vance meets with Owen

LONDON — British Foreign Secretary David Owen and American Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance reached "full agreement" here Friday on the next steps in a coordinated strategy to move the Rhodesian problem gradually from confrontation to the conference table.

In a two-hour bilateral meeting at the foreign office, in advance of the seven-nation international summit conference which opens at No. 10 Downing Street Saturday morning, it was decided to launch a concerted series of exploratory talks and consultations with the Africans over the next several months with the aim of maintaining the diplomatic initiative toward a conference and keeping the situation fluid in order hopefully to head off any irretrievable outbreak of fighting in Rhodesia.

Hearings set on Lo-Vaca

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission Friday called for a pair of summer hearings designed to produce a final order on Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. gas rates.

Chairman Mack Wallace said the unanimous decision to reopen the case resulted from a Texas Supreme Court opinion saying the commission had a duty to issue a final order.

Lo-Vaca has been passing through to consumers the full cost of the gas it buys, plus a nickel per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf) for pipeline expenses, under the commission's September 1973 temporary order.

A temporary order cannot be appealed to the courts but a final one can.

Compromise opens way for department

Shortly before the House Government Operations Committee completed actions on its Department of Energy bill, Chairman Jack Brooks (D-Tex.) said in an interview that it was too late to consider incorporating the compromise Senate language.

He said it could be taken up in an amendment on the House floor or, failing that, in a Senate-House conference on differences in the legislation.

On Wednesday, Brooks' committee defeated, by 19 to 12, a proposal by Rep. John Conyers Jr. (D-Mich.) to vest the price-setting authority completely in the Energy Regulatory Board. Neither Congress nor the President would have had veto power.

Conyers said that Carter's proposal, giving the energy secretary sole price-setting authority, would make the secretary the most powerful person in government after the President. The pricing power would have enabled him to "conserve energy by pricing us all out of the market," Conyers said.

The House committee bill retains the original Carter price-fixing proposal, but sources said that Schlesinger's concessions to the Senate made that proposal no longer tenable.

Before the bill was adopted, 35 to 2, the committee reversed itself on an amendment adopted Thursday that would have made the U.S. government the sole purchasing agent of imported oil.

The Conyers-backed amendment was killed, 24 to 17, after it had won approval during hasty consideration the previous day, 18 to 16.

One amendment which survived would impose on supervisory employes in the New Department of Energy the toughest conflict-of-interest code in the government.

The provision, sponsored by rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal (D-N.Y.), would require top-level officials to divest themselves of all financial interest in energy firms.

It also would require full disclosure of previous employment with energy firms and, for two years after leaving the Department of Energy, disclosure of subsequent employment with energy firms.

Departing officials could not represent any energy firm in department proceedings for two years. The ban would extend to five years if the former employe had been involved in the subject matter while he was still in the department.

Supermarkets' productivity rises

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Supermarket profits took a smaller share of the shopper's dollar in 1976 than they did a year earlier, but the stores apparently learned to manage their money more wisely and improved their productivity.

That's one of the findings of a study released by the Food Marketing Institute — FMI — at its annual convention in Dallas last week.

The institute said that while profits as a proportion of sales declined, profits as a percentage of total assets went up, meaning an improved return on investment for the stores. "Apparently the industry is sharpening ... its skill at managing the balance sheet," an FMI spokesman said.

The study said rising costs for labor, rent and fuel cut into profit margins, but added: "For the first time in five years, there has been a general increase in real sales (adjusted for inflation) per square foot, per transaction and per manhour."

The institute cited figures from Forbes Magazine on publicly held companies in reporting that profits represented a 9 per cent return on total assets in 1976, up from 7.6 per cent a year earlier.

A survey by FMI itself showed that net profit before taxes represented 1.3 per cent of sales in 1976. Put another way, that means that $1.30 of every $100 you spent at the supermarket last year was profit for the store operator.

The figure compared with a 1975 net profit before taxes of 1.5 per cent of sales. Supermarket profits traditionally have represented about one penny out of every dollar spent at the store. They dipped below this level in the early 1970s, but had recovered by 1974.

The government has predicted that food prices will rise between 4 and 6 per cent this year, compared to 3.1 per cent in 1976 and 8.5 per cent in 1975.

(Food, of course, represents only part of what consumers buy in the supermarket. A study of grocery store sales for 1975 showed that almost 22 per cent of the money spent went for nonfood items.)

Among other highlights of the FMI report:

—The number of items on the shelves of a typical supermarket has remained fairly stable at 9,000.

—Trading stamps continue to decline in popularity. Only 10.5 per cent of the stores surveyed offered stamps last year, compared to 37 per cent in 1970.

—Sales increased 9.1 per cent from 1975 to 1976 for the typical grocery store operator, compared to a 14.8 per cent increase for the previous year. When the figures were adjusted for inflation, however, they showed the typical retailer had a real 1976 sales gain of 7 per cent, up half a percentage point from 1975.

—The grocery sales increase lagged behind an 11 per cent sales gain for other retailers. The institute said this was because food sales were not so severely affected by the 1975 recession. It also noted that restaurant sales grew faster than grocery sales in three of four quarters last year, confirming a growing trend toward eating out.

—More old stores were closed in 1976 than in 1975. The number of large stores — ranging in size from 15,000 to 18,000 square feet — that were closed tripled from 1975 to 1976, while the number of small stores shut down declined sharply.

—Seventy per cent of the new stores opened included electronic cash registers that can be converted to use as scanners when and if the stores abandon individual item pricing.

—Rising fuel costs have made store operators more conscious of energy use. More than three-fourths of new stores opened last year had ceiling insulation and 27 per cent had wall insulation. At the same time, however, 15 per cent of the stores had no insulation at all. In the North, one-third of new stores did not report having insulation.

National Front registers gains in British election

The Washington Post

LONDON — The nakedly racist National Front Friday emerged as a new and ominous factor in British politics.

Local elections across the country — and, above all, in London — showed the front has made some striking gains in a time of economic distress.

The front did not capture a single seat on an county council. But its man drew a stunning 19 per cent of the vote in one London East End constituency. In Leicester, a city frequently troubled by racial violence, a front candidate polled 20 per cent in his district.

"We're a new force," exulted Martin Webster, the front's national activities organizer.

"There's a ground swell of public opinion saying we are fed up with alternate Labor-Conservative misrule ... the flooding of this country with four million colored immigrants ... the ruination of industry ... the Common Market."

Most commentators here have ignored the National Front and concentrated on the sweeping and predictable Tory triumphs over Labor in London and most other cities and counties. But one of the more respected analysts, Robert Carvel, Friday night began his front-page story in the London Evening Standard this way:

"The advance of the extreme right-wing National Front as an organization now capable of attracting significant support at the polls was a notable development."

Webster and the other largely middle-class front leaders mounted their biggest drive in the Greater London area. The results were grimly impressive. In all, they picked up 119,000 votes, or 5 per cent, a share diluted by affluent districts where the front is regarded as an unseemly disgrace.

Misuse of funds reported in Vietnam refugee program

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — Federal and state officials have found indications of serious financial irregularities in the Indochinese refugee relief program, including widespread double billing, billing for non-existent refugees, questionable contracting procedures and poor handling of resettlement programs.

When it formally ends Sept. 30, about $455 million in federal aid will have been spent by the State Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on nearly 145,000 Indochinese refugees who fled here and were resettled under the 1975 Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act. Congress is considering a bill to extend the program with additional funding for three more years.

Although millions of dollars appear to have been misspent the full extent of the financial irregularities may not become clear until fall.

No overall audit of the refugee program has ever been undertaken, so federal officials said they are unable to tell the breadth of the financial mismanagement or whether it involves corrupt handling or just poor money management. In some cases, officials said, only the loosest control has been maintained over the federal funds.

Kenneth Day, financial controller for the State Department's Indochina Task Force, said a full audit of the program will not be made until after the expiration of the refugee act in September.

According to Day, although the refugee relief program was started in May, 1975, no provision for an audit was made until about eight months ago, and funds for the audit were not approved until two weeks ago. If federal auditors find misuse of funds the money must be returned to the State Department of HEW, Day said. But, he added, "I really don't think we'll get substantial amounts of money back."

The most serious problems so far appear to exist in a portion of the refugee program administered by the State Department, which paid 19 voluntary relief agencies $500 for each refugee who was resettled.

State Department officials said they have already found duplicate claims filed by the agencies for 7,000 refugees and additional claims for 3,500 refugees who apparently do not exist, for a total irregularity of $5.25 million.

Some bridge hands present situations that constantly occur in play. Others are unlikely to occur even if you played 12 hours a day for the rest of your life. Perhaps the unusual hand is more entertaining than instructive, but men (and bridge players) do not live by bread alone.

West takes the ace of diamonds and continues with the queen. Dummy ruffs, and East discards whatever he doesn't need.

For example? Name a card that East doesn't need.

If East discards a club, declarer can take the top clubs to set up the nine of clubs as his 12th trick.

If East discards a spade, South can draw trumps, cash three high spades and ruff a spade. Summy's last spade is then good for the 12th trick.

Fortunately, East has a third suit: he can discard a trump.

This strange discard postpones the evil day when East will have to wean one of the black suits. More important, that day is not evil when it does come.

COPIES DISCARD

If South leads out four rounds of trumps to force a discard from the East hand, he must first discard from dummy. East discards the same suit as dummy, and this does declarer no good at all.

Don't bother to file this away in your little lesson book. The next time you have to discard a trump will probably occur in 2077. You should live so long!

Broken promises

William Safire, a syndicated columnist writing in The Dallas Morning News, brings to light something which perhaps has been overlooked by many persons concerned with President Carter's going back on his campaign pledge to deregulate natural gas.

Pointing out that Carter owes his election to narrow victories in Texas and Louisiana, thanks to his pledge to remove government controls on newly- discovered natural gas, Safire said that when the time came for him to deliver on his promise, he took off in the opposite direction.

This, of course, is well-known in the oil country, but the columnist says that the point of interest is not that Carter broke a campaign pledge, "which happens to every politician, but that he resolutely refuses to face up to it. His explanation is that he never said WHEN he would keep his promise on decontrol."

We must agree with Safire in his comment that this is less than honest. He compares this with the maneuvering of the sharp practitioner who tells someone that he didn't read the fine print.

As has been stated in this space previously, going back on one's word never has been a popular sport in Texas. And this new aspect as stated by Safire makes it all the more deplorable.

Safire, incidentally, goes on in his recent column to state that the "fine-print syndrome" also appears in other Carter actions. He mentions the fact that Carter campaigned for more than two years against the swollen size of the White House staff. Then after he was elected he had said that he would reduce the size of the staff. But the staff today is larger than it was when Carter took over. The fine print element in this connection is discussed in some detail in Safire's column. But that's another story.

But it all boils down to the fact that Mr. Carter simply will not face up to his broken campaign promises and offer satisfactory reasons as to the why of his actions.

It's 'Mayfair' time

Looking for something different to do today in the way of entertainment, feasting, visiting or just plain enjoying yourself in a typical "county fair" atmosphere?

Well, if you are, we have the very thing to recommend .... the answer to your particular weekend problem.

Just drive out to Trinity School, where its annual Mayfair celebration will be underway from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on the school campus.

And when you are on the scene, there will be art, music, food and carnival rides, among other things, from which to choose. Or you can try them all, for that matter.

Of special interest to most patrons will be an arts and crafts fair, which will have approximately 50 participating artists. A number of noted artists from out-of-city will have their works on display.

All kinds of tempting foods will be available during the day. A gourmet kitchen, offering frozen party foods and casseroles, is likely to attract plenty of attention. And a complete chicken dinner will be served from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., for those who are real hungry by that time.

Carnival rides for persons of all ages will operate throughout the day, providing fun, thrills and excitement for one and all.

A wide variety of entertainment, featuring some of the area's top entertainers, will be presented from 11 a.m. until closing time.

And going to or coming from the Mayfair event, it is suggested that you stop by the Dellwood Plaza Mall, where the Midland Westside Lions Club is staging its 6th annual "Salad Special." Special entertainment also will be on tap there.

Now, how about this for a fun-filled Saturday in the Tall City?

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Nuclear power: a necessity worldwide

By V.H. KRULAK
Copley News Service

President Carter's effort to diminish the worldwide use of plutonium as a fuel is bound to fail because it depends on jawboning, and jawboning doesn't work.

There is no question that plutonium is a deadly substance. In the wrong hands, with the wrong motivation, it could change the face of the earth.

But there is no way to reverse the history of the last 30 years. Plutonium is with us, the techniques for its production are an open book. The nations of the world, large and small, want it and, more important, they are going to have it.

While plutonium is indeed the fabric from which nuclear weapons can be fashioned, it is not the only way to make a fission bomb. Enriched uranium, a substance that is far more readily obtainable, will do it too.

There is no way on earth to prevent a nation from acquiring the few pounds of enriched uranium needed to make a rudimentary bomb. The fact is, with or without plutonium, the world nuclear club — now probably 15 nations — is going to grow.

Quite apart from the military realities is the fact that the nations of the world, both the haves and have-nots, want plutonium because it could represent the difference between economic survival and economic serfdom.

Energetic countries like Japan which have little coal, little oil and little hydro capacity face the bleakest of futures if they cannot continue their exploitation of nuclear power to run their factories and light their homes.

There is question as to just how much accessible uranium there is in the world. Where the United States is concerned, the Energy Research and Development Administration says that we face domestic shortage within the next five to seven years, even with the limited number of plants now in operation or building. In any case we know that its cost has increased tenfold over the last 20 years, and it is likely to become progressively more costly as the number of plants around the world increases.

The foreigners see plutonium — dangerous as it is — as their ultimate answer. Japan, which has more knowledge than anyone else of the horror of the atom, is quite prepared to take the risks associated with using it, and will commence the production of plutonium within the next few weeks.

The cost of extracting plutonium from the spent uranium rods used in most existing power reactors is not small but, in the long term, may be the most economical way to go. In any case both industrial and developing nations are determined to have the plutonium. Beyond this, the breeder process, where plutonium converts small amounts of uranium into power while creating still more fuel, will give them great amounts of energy without heavy reliance on the world uranium supply.

Our attitude in seeking to dissuade other nations from the use of plutonium must be faulted on purely practical grounds. It is as if we banned the manufacture and use in the United States of cellulose and asked the rest of the world to do the same because cellulose is the substance from which explosive powder is made. If there were no cellulose produced in the world, bombs, artillery shells, torpedoes — even the bullets in a Saturday Night Special — would theoretically disappear.

But so would much of the textile industry — shirts and suits and nylons — and the related jobs. The ban would be condemned as unreasonable at home and other nations would pay no attention to it, which is their initial reaction to our plea to abandon plutonium as a fuel.

Finally, there is an inconsistency visible in the administration's action where, on the eve of announcing a major program of energy conservation, it renounces utilization of one of our most promising energy resources.

By forswearing the use of plutonium as a fuel in power reactors President Carter guarantees that we will remain in the horse and buggy days of the peaceful use of nuclear energy and intensifies our reliance on foreign petroleum, with all of the adverse effects of shortage and escalating fuel costs.

And meanwhile, our world neighbors — friends and foes alike — will ignore our jawboning and drive ahead with all speed toward the next era of nuclear power.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Lots of brass in General Brown

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Gen. George Brown, the brass-hatted blabbermouth who heads the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has managed to insult American Jews, Israel, Iran and Great Britain in succession. He has even suggested that the constitutional right to privacy be ignored by wholesale opening of citizens' mail.

Now the tart-tongued general has vented his wrath against Congress. But the Pentagon, we have discovered, has managed to make it appear that Brown was actually praising the legislators.

In a long interview last year with writer and cartoonist Ranan Lurie, Brown charged that Congress lacked the courage to stand up to the Soviet Union in Angola. Although the Joint Chiefs traditionally refrain from criticizing Congress, Brown said brashly:

"We certainly didn't act that way (courageously) in Angola. You know we didn't. Congress prohibited us from spending money to provide some balance to the Soviet initiative ..."

The Pentagon later released a transcript of the interview, but amazingly, it quoted Brown as praising Congress. "No one involved in Congress is prohibiting us from spending money" to counter Soviet intervention, the military version said.

Admittedly, the tape is unclear on first hearing, as we learned from listening to it ourselves. Pentagon officials acknowledged their transcript was wrong but insisted it was only an inadvertent mistake.

In the past, the loose-lipped Brown has decried Jewish "ownership" of American newspapers and banks, called Israel a "burden" on the United States, and described Britain's military as "pathetic."

Brown has not heard the end of this latest brouhaha. For Lurie, who broke many of the stories about Brown's previous insults, is now charging the Pentagon with covering up the general's attack on Congress.

ARAB GAINS NOTED — A subtle shift has occurred in the political pressures that shape U.S. policy toward the Middle East. Suddenly, the top policymakers are paying more attention to the Arab arguments.

The change in the political balance has been so delicate that it has been hardly perceptible. There has been no twisting of arms, no dangling of economic bait, no influence buying in the Korean manner. The policy makers simply have become aware that the Arabs now speak with more authority than they used to.

The story is told between the lines of secret documents, which describe the increasing dependence of the United States on Arab oil and the growing economic power of the Arab oil potentates. Here are the highlights:

— A CIA analysis, cited by President Carter, warns that the worldwide demand for oil is likely to outstrip supply in the next five to 10 years. The president didn't mention that the CIA also estimates that the United States will double its oil imports from Saudi Arabia by 1980. The United States now imports 1.2 million barrels of oil from Saudi Arabia every day. This is expected to hit a daily 2.5 million barrels in less than three years.

— A separate, secret CIA survey claims that the oil-producing countries now have a prodigious $34 billion invested in U.S. holdings. The Arab oil sheikdons have entrusted their portfolios to such mighty banks as the Bank of America, Chase Manhattan, First National City Bank and Morgan Guaranty. These financial institutions speak with a soft voice but carry big clout in the backrooms of Washington.

— Secret Treasury documents reveal that the Saudis have asked the industrial nations for safeguards against inflation, fluctuating exchange rates and political uncertainties. One classified memo suggests that the Saudis feel they've been taken advantage of. To help alleviate the world energy shortage, they have produced more oil than they need to sell to meet their own revenue needs. The surplus has gone into investments in the West, particularly the United States.

The Saudis, therefore, feel they deserve safeguards for their investments. They have asked for assurances that their overseas assets won't be frozen. They want an "indexation" agreement, which would tie their oil revenues to changes in inflation. Unless their assets are properly protected, the Saudis have suggested, they may be compelled to keep their wealth in the ground. In other words, they may cut back oil production.

Yet the Saudis feel that "all they get from the West, particularly the U.S.," one secret Treasury memo states, "is abuse in the form of anti-boycott legislation and threats, and the postponement of arms sales."

The memo sums up the new political realities in these succinct words: "The Saudis' ... financial surplus is really beginning to mount rapidly. Their leverage on the industrial countries has increased."

INSIDE REPORT:

Trader Strauss calling shots in trade negotiations

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — President Carter informed the April 18 meeting of his cabinet that Robert S. Strauss was in charge of foreign trade negotiations and was to receive full cooperation from the Economic Policy Group — a message with broad implications about the handling of an increasingly dangerous political issue.

The moment he was named chief trade negotiator Strauss became the target for sniping from the Treasury and State Department bureaucracies. But the President himself had been the victim of faulty advice from these bureaucrats, leading to a serious blunder about color television set imports while meeting Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan a month earlier.

So, the politically attuned understood Mr. Carter's message at the cabinet table April 18: Bob Strauss, not the trade experts, was calling the shots for U.S.-Japanese negotiations on color TV imports. Since Strauss had handled Japan's traditionally tortuous negotiatons in Tokyo earlier in the month by simply adjourning the meeting, the President was voting for tough bargaining.

Strauss' role extends beyond present haggling over color TV sets and shoes to a paramount political problem: foreign imports vs. American jobs. The one-day garment industry strike April 14 may have been the first ever of American workers protesting against foreign competition. Not only has this become issue No. 1 for organized labor, but Mr. Carter's private polls show Americans for the first time say they are willing to pay higher prices to save jobs.

This combustible political climate is reduced by trade experts in the bureaucracy to "bad guys" (protectionists) vs. "good guys" (free traders). A Treasury memo prepared for Prime Minister Fukuda's visit here March 21-22 rejected out of hand the idea that the rise of color TV sets imported from Japan, from 16 to 27 per cent of the U.S. market over the last 12 months, was caused by Japanese government export subsidies.

Rather, the Treasury's principal concern was making sure the issue did not get to Congress. "There are obvious risks in opening up the subject of imports of Japanese electronic products, including television sets, to congressional scrutiny at this time," the Treasury advised the President.

The same memo warned against Congress "opening up the issue of trade policy in general and U.S.-Japan trade relations in particular."

Similar State Department advice is blamed by administration officials for the President's blunder in offering Fukuda a color TV import quota at 2.5 million a year. That doubles the 1.3 million average of 1973-75 which is sought by the industry and labor as the new quota.

It was at this point that Strauss entered the picture. Selection of the former Democratic national chairman as trade negotiator had been greeted by the bureaucrats with derisive laughter. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, trade negotiator in Kennedy-Johnson days, argued with the President against naming such a novice.

Indeed, Strauss on trade is markedly less a free trader than Blumenthal or particularly Richard Cooper, under Secretary of State for economic affairs. Viewing the current Japanese export surge as akin to a commanding general grabbing land just before the peace conference settles boundaries, Strauss sees nothing sacrosanct in current import figures. Strauss, never bashful about expressing his views at high volume and intensity, introduced political realities to Economic Policy Group meetings.

Less than a week after being sworn in, Strauss was in Tokyo confronting the Oriental stonewall built by Japanese negotiators. After almost eight hours of getting nowhere, Strauss astounded his Japanese adversaries by getting up and going home. "The Japanese nearly beat him back to Washington to keep talking," one insider told us.

Then came the April 18 cabinet meeting at which the President clearly designated Strauss as his lieutenant for foreign trade. What's more, Strauss has the backing of budget director Bert Lance, emerging as the administration's economic strongman, in trying to shape a trade policy consistent with labor's demands and the public's sentiments.

The color TV issue fully tests Strauss' famed negotiating skills. Japanese-produced sets are swamping the U.S. market (under American chainstore brand names) not because they are better but because they are cheaper, thanks to Japanese export subsidies. Unless they are limited, the remaining 70,000 American jobs in this industry will be gone forever.

But more than 70,000 jobs are at stake. While backing the industry's attempts to limit color TV imports, AFL-CIO president George Meany is known to feel that failure to get an agreement might be a blessing in disguise by forcing a general trade bill. That would bring out the sentiment in Congress warned about by the Treasury bureaucrats — possibly resulting in legislation that could generate a world trade war. To prevent this calamity, Jimmy Carter has taken responsibility from the experts and given it to Trader Strauss.

Churchill paintings on display

SALADO, Tex. (AP) — Three pre-World War II paintings by British Prime Minister Winston Churchill are now on exhibit at the Salado Galleries, a small gallery in this tiny South Central Texas town.

The works are "Mimizan," "Amsterdam Harbour from Lord Beaverbrook's Yacht," and "The Coast near Antibes." They are priced at $45,000, 35,000 and $40,000.

Salado Galleries is owned by Mrs. Charlene Sewell and Mrs. Daurice Bowmer. The two offered to buy the paintings after learning that Lady Clementine Churchill was going to auction them to pay for her nursing bills and rent on the London apartment where she resides. Their bid arrived late, but the two Texas sisters continued to search for Churchill paintings and finally traced three of them to a private collector and bought them. The paintings were brought to Texas two weeks ago.

"Amsterdam Harbour from Lord Beaverbrook's Yacht" was painted from the yacht of a man who was Sir Winston's close friend and later became one of his wartime cabinet members.

El Paso utility asks higher electric rate

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Citing the effects of inflation and costs, El Paso Electric utility asked Friday for rate increases averaging about 19 per cent in Texas and 33 per cent in New Mexico, effective early in June.

The applications were filed at El Paso, Anthony, Clint and Van Horn in Texas and with the New Mexico Public Service Commission in Santa Fe.

The increases to residential customers would range from 18-23 per cent in Texas and from 32-39 per cent in New Mexico.

A spokesman for the company said the "typical" customer in New Mexico would receive bills about $7.66 higher each month, while his Texas counterpart would see bills rise by about $4.38 per month.

Similar rate requests were to be filed with the Federal Power Commission for higher rates on sales to other utilities, and with the Texas Public Utility Commission for sales in unincorporated areas in its Texas service area.

Reasons for the difference in the Texas and New Mexico applications were given as differences in state laws and the cost of doing business in the sparsely-populated New Mexico service area as opposed to the more densely-settled Texas area.

"The new base rates are designed to provide revenues needed to cover higher operating expenses experienced by the company since Jan. 1, 1975," said EPE President Evern Wall. "We have reached a point where we can no longer absorb the increases in prices of everything we must buy to run an electric companyy."

In accordance with Texas law, fuel charges will be excluded from the proposed base rate and will be shown as a separate line item on monthly bills.

New Mexico laws require fuel costs to be included in the base rates, thus the New Mexico base rate would be higher, but the "adder" fuel costs would be lower.

Wall said proposed return rates of 7.5 per cent in Texas and 7.35 per cent in New Mexico are the minimums necessary for the company to attract capital for expansion.

Scallop diving becoming popular along Maine coast

By JERRY HARKAVY

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Hungry for a scallop dinner, Tom Gallant donned a wetsuit, strapped on his scuba gear and dived to the bottom of Casco Bay, where the tasty shellfish live.

It was a blustery day a couple of weeks before the end of the scallop season, and Gallant had tried two other spots without success.

This time he was luckier. Wedged between the rocks, 25 feet below the surface, were a couple of dozen scallops. One by one he plucked them from the bottom and placed them inside his net gunny sack.

Minutes later he bobbed to the surface, his black rubber suit and yellow tank of compressed air cutting through the choppy waters off Great Diamond Island.

For Gallant and scores of other scuba divers along the Maine coast, shellfish diving has become a favorite pasttime.

Maine's Department of Marine Resources says the growing popularity of skin diving has led to an increase in the number of persons who dive for scallops.

While a handful of commercial divers hold licenses that permit an unlimited catch, Wayne Smith, who supervises wardens along the coast, says the vast majority dive for scallops to feed friends and families.

The daily limit of two bushels in the shell or four quarts shucked can provide the makings of a sumptuous dinner.

In Maine, the scallop season begins Nov. 1 and runs through the winter, but cold weather doesn't prevent Gallant, 27, or his diving companion, Phil Berry, 40, from stalking scallops.

Wearing a quarter-inch wet suit, they've been at the bottom of the icy bay when the water temperature dropped into the 30s and the air temperature hovered at zero or below.

With Gallant back underwater, Berry piloted their 17-foot outboard-powered boat while explaining where to seek the richest scallop beds. The key, he said, is to discover a spot where commercial fishing boats are unable to lay out their huge steel nets.

"A diver has to get in between the rocks where the draggers can't drag," he said. "In some places there's nothing but drag marks, and the bottom is clean."

On this outing, pickings were slim, but Gallant pointed to his net sack and recalled better days when the scallops were more plentiful.

"I've had this filled on one dive," he said. "You just have to hit the right spot at the right time."

Back in the boat, Gallant took out his knife and began shucking the scallops, tossing the shells overboard and saving only the rich adductor muscle — the edible portion which he planned to broil in lemon and butter later that night.

One advantage of catching your own, he noted, is that "you know they're always fresh.

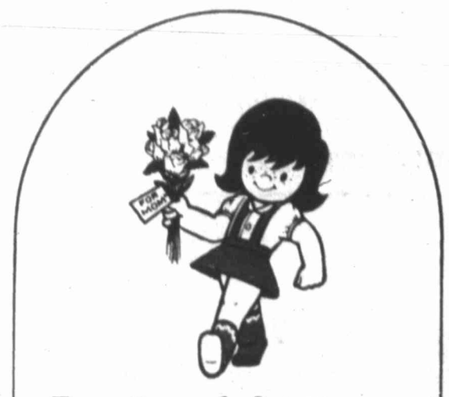

"You buy some in the market, and then you taste the fresh ones, and there's quite a difference."

Cockroaches under study

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Hammock has a lot of cockroaches around him: some 500 Madagascar and Panamanian cockroaches measuring up to three inches.

Hammock, 27, an insect endocrinologist at the University of California here, has been studying cockroaches for the past eight years.

He is working with juvenile hormones of cockroaches, and is trying to come up with a synthetic material that would replace insecticides like DDT.

Tower says higher gas tax chances 'marginal'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex, says the outcome of President Carter's energy program in Congress is doubtful.

"I've heard comments that it will be late this year before he gets anything, maybe next year," Tower told a news conference in Austin. "Maybe never for this Congress."

Tower said the extension of federal controls to cover intrastate gas will be "heavily contested" in Washington and the passage of a gasoline tax increase is "marginal" at the best. "The gasoline tax would need a great deal of popular support to pass and I don't see that it has that," he said.

"More massive government intervention is not going to contribute to the solution of our energy problem."

The senior Texas senator said he did not think Carter would have carried Louisiana and Texas in the 1976 election if voters had known what energy program he would recommend. "And if he did not carry those two states it would have given the election to Gerald Ford."

Tower said he thought the energy crisis definitely would be an issue in the U.S. Senate race in Texas next year, when Tower is expected to run for re-election.

"I am 99.9 per cent sure I will run for re-election," Tower told a news conference in San Antonio.

A short while later he told the conference he called in Austin that "I just don't want to announce before January of next year."

Tower refused to commend on the televised interview with former President Nixon.

"I didn't watch it. I've already been through that and I have no desire to go through it again," he said.

He added that he had no comment after reading news stories of the interview."It just stirs things up and makes people relive a bad period. It does no good," Tower said.

Schools superintendent rejects violence charge

HOUSTON (AP) — The superintendent of Houston schools rejected Friday a charge by a teacher group that crime and violence are rampant in the district.

Dr. Billy Reagan said violence in the schools is no more rampant than elsewhere in the city that had a 16.7 per cent increase last year in serious crime.

"There is just as much crime and violence on church parking lots and in shopping centers as in the schools," Reagan said.

A study report released Thursday by the Houston Federation of Teachers said many principals and administrators cause violence by creating conditions in which it can flourish. The report said many principals cover up acts of violence so as to keep their jobs.

"Houston schools have the lowest rate of violence of any major scity school system," Reagan said.

He said the report was a "public relations gimmick" for the smallest of three organizations that represent Houston teachers.

Reagan said the two larger groups, the Houston Teachers Association, and the Congress of Houston Teachers, released similar studies last year.

"Violence in the schools is a recruitment theme used by the organizations as they compete so desperately for memberhip," he said.

Only about one-half of the districts 10,000 teachers are members of the three organizations, Reagan said, adding that this makes the district "the most lucrative and most sought after market in terms of organizing teachers of any district in the nation."

Reagan said he knows of no incident in which a principal has attempted to hide an act of violence.

"Our reporting system requires principals to report any act of violence," he said. "I get a full report every month on every incident in the district."

Reagan said the reports by the teacher groups have very little validity but hold a potential of damaging the district's image.

"The continual play on violence is going to raise questions among parents and that will hurt the district," he said.

Probation fee raise voted down

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — It was Freaky Friday in the House.

Rep. Wayne Peveto's tiger became a pussycat.

Law and order conservatives voted down a bill allowing judges to slap higher probation fees on convicted criminals.

Rep. Bill Heatly, D-Paducah, never one to surrender lightly, waved the white flag after his bill to give State Fire Marshal Charles Meadows more to do was gutted by an amendment.

On top of all that, the it was the first Friday the legislature has worked this session.

First, Peveto.

He served notice he would knock off the morning calendar of local and uncontested bills any measure sponsored by a senator who had not publicly agreed to vote to bring up Peveto's property tax "reform" bill.

"We in the House have sat here for too long and let the Senate run over us, and that affects the integrity of the House," Peveto, D-Orange, said in a personal privilege speech.

He knocked off four bills.

Then came his chat with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, followed by another personal privilege speech in which he withdrew his threat and agreed to let the four bills go through.

"The lieutenant governor told me he would work very hard and commit himself to work with the committee and get it out and pass it," Peveto told reporters.

House members voted 68-59 against a Senate-passed bill raising from $10 to $25 per month the amount a judge can assess a convicted criminal to help defray the cost of probation.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, no softy on criminals, told the House the bill would tell drug abusers and alcoholics, "here is another $25 per month we are imposing on you because of your illness or sickness."

"I don't think we ought to punish persons who really suffer from an illness," Wilson said.

Backers of the bill said it would cut the cost of probation to the taxpayers.

Heatly's bill would have taken the state fire marshal out of the insurance department and made him the head of a new agency combining the fire marshal's office with those of the firemen's pension commissioner and the Commission on Fire Protection Personnel Standards and Education.

In a recent reorganization, Meadows was left with the title of fire marshal but operating authority was given to a deputy.

"Who's opposed to this bill? The fire insurance lobby and the chairman of the State Board of Insurance. The men that swallow the smoke are for it. . . . I know the state fire marshal is a good, energetic, fine man and will do a heck of a good job if the opportunity affords itself," Heatly said.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, said that since the fire marshal's office had been reorganized things were "getting done instead of the fire marshal trying to see if he could make an 18-foot birdie putt every day."

An amendment by Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, to leave the fire marshal in the insurance department but put the other two firemen's agencies under him was adopted on voice vote.

Heatly then moved successfully to table his own bill.

The House voted 106-26 to call for a conference committee to negotiate differences with the Senate over the medical malpractice insurance bill. Senators amended the House bill drastically before passing it on April 19.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, the sponsor said if the Senate changes are not removed, "we will have no medical malpractice legislation this session."

One item of controversy is a Senate provision allowing judges to reduce awards in malpractice cases by the amount of money a victim might already have received from his or her own insurance.

"I hope to have it back to the floor of the House next week," Uher told reporters.

The House passed and sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for signature a bill requiring insurance companies to offer "underinsured motorist coverage." It would fill the gap between actual cost of injuries received in an accident and the amount of liability insurance carried by the at-fault driver. The bill also adds property damage to the present uninsured motorist coverage.

HOW DOES SHE DO IT ?

Knitting is Mom's thing . . . sweaters, skirts, scarves, the works. Somehow in her spare time she keeps house, raises a family, participates in her church activities, collects for the community fund, is a den mother, and on/and on.

How does she do it? She evades this question.

If you ask me, a lot of people aren't like Mom. They stick to one job, one hobby, one project — and frequently turn their back on others.

It's people like Mom who make "community" mean something. From her, the young learn that adding — not dividing — brings us together. That's what the church is all about . . . LOVE.

Catholic bishops spurred to plan

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, spurred by urgings of its people, have headed the church toward new, broadened efforts for faith, peace and social justice.

A five-year "plan of action," born of a grass-roots consultation, got a preliminary go ahead, in part, at a closing session this week of a three-day meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"We're with the people," said Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, the conference's president. In response to them, he said, "the bishops have faced the call to action realistically."

He told a news conference the bishops had sought to "listen and learn, but sometimes, we also have to judge."

The meeting is the bishop's first response to a national assembly of Catholic laity and clergy in Detroit last fall that climaxed a countrywide series of open hearings. All 182 of the people's recommendations have been referred to committees and a special ad hoc committee named to keep track of them.

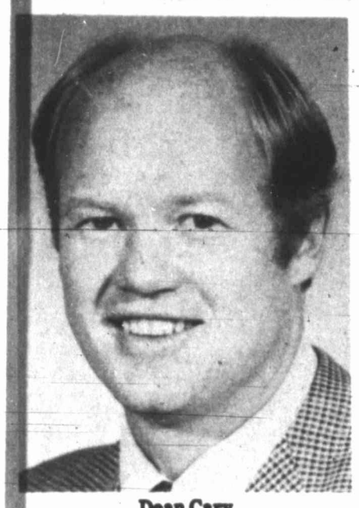

The bishops said a definite "no" to some of the more drastic recommendations, such as calls for easing their stand against contraception and for backing ordination of married men and women.

"As bishops, we cannot compromise Catholic teachings," they said, declaring the proposals unacceptable.

Nevertheless, on a motion by Archbishop William D. Borders of Baltimore, the bishops asked "theologians to join us in a serious study of the issues" behind the Vatican's recent declaration against ordaining women.

A "sign of hope," Sister Kathleen Keating of Chicago, head of the National Assembly of Women Religious, said of the addition. "It says this matter is still open."

The bishops also called for stepping up diocesan church tribunals to handle marital annulment cases, following earlier action to lift a century-old decree excommunicating Catholics who have divorced and remarried.

Dean Cary

Eagle Pass man to be speaker

Dean Cary of Eagle Pass will be guest speaker at the Sunday night service of the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely St.

Cary is president of the Colegio Biblico at Eagle Pass, a Bible college that trains Spanish-speaking students for the ministry. In previous years, the institution has primarily drawn students from Mexico, but currently there are students from several countries in South and Central America.

Colegio Biblico has been in existence for more than 30 years, having been founded by Dean Cary's father, Harland Cary.

Accompanying Dean Cary to Midland for the speaking engagement here will be a team of students from the college. The public is invited to hear the Sunday evening program.

Rev. William Crossman

Rev. W. Crossman leads Northside revival service

Revival services which began Wednesday at the Northside Church of the Nazarene, 424 Neely St., will continue there through Sunday.

The Rev. William Crossman is evangelist at the series of services and the Rev. Ralph Buffington, host pastor, is inviting the public to hear him. A service today will begin at 7 p.m., while Sunday services are scheduled for 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Episcopal Diocese reps will gather in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Representatives of parishes and missions throughout the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas will gather next weekend to consider a recommendation that the diocese launch a million-dollar capital funds drive.

The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton, bishop of the diocese, will convene the meeting at 10 a.m. May 14 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Lubbock. Among representatives at the meeting will be those from Midland's two parishes, St. Nicholas' and Holy Trinity, and those from units in Odessa, San Angelo, Big Spring, Monahans, Andrews and elsewhere in this region.

SAINT ANN'S CHURCH
1906 WEST TEXAS AVE.
MIDLAND, TEXAS 79701

St. Ann's Parish will host a May workshop on Faith and Prayer. The main idea will be deepening our relationship with God through Faith and Prayer. All the talks will be centered on Faith and Prayer-and how they must reach into every area of life. Rev. Frank Montalbano, O.M.I., professor of Ecclesiology and Sacred Scripture at the Oblate College of the Southwest in San Antonio will be giving the workshop on May 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, 19, 24, and 25. The time will be at 7:30 P.M. The workshop will be held in the School Library, and there will be a baby-sitting service available.

Also, St. Ann's Parish Family will have its Graduates' Eucharistic Celebration and breakfast on May 15. The Mass will be at 9:30 A.M., followed by a breakfast at the Rodeway Inn. All High School graduating parishioners are invited to participate in this celebration.

Singing Men to perform in Midland

The Singing Men of West Texas, an 80-voice chorus made up of church music directors and education and youth ministers in Southern Baptist churches throughout this region, will be heard in concert Tuesday night in Midland's First Baptist Church.

The 7:30 p.m. event, open to the public at no charge, will feature a program of sacred music, ranging from musical classics to spirituals and gospel songs. The concert will feature piano, organ, brass and rhythm accompaniment.

Doyle and Donna Terry

Singing Terrys slated at church in Midland

The Singing Terrys, a husband-and-wife team of musical evangelists, will present a gospel concert Sunday morning in Midland's First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall Ave.

Doyle and Donna Terry, longtime residents of Wichita, Kan., began a part-time ministry of music and testimony in 1967 and in 1973 launched a fulltime ministry. They travel from coast to coast and from border to border, presenting their programs of music and witness in churches and at rallies and encampments. They provide a special ministry for travelers in trailer parks across the country. The couple has recorded several gospel LP albums. The Sunday concert here is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. and will be open to all interested persons, said the Rev. Harold L. Quarles, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene.

Rev. Arbuckle leaves retirement

The Rev. Milo B. Arbuckle has accepted a call from the Alamo Heights Baptist Church to serve as interim pastor of that congregation. He fills the vacancy created by the recent resignation of the Rev. Bruce McNair.

Mr. Arbuckle retired last year from the active ministry and he and his wife moved to Midland several months ago. His last pastorate was in Denver, Colo.

A minister for 43 years, Mr. Arbuckle began pastoral work in Ada, Okla., while still in college. He later served as pastor of First Baptist Church in Frederick, Okla., and First Baptist Church at Lamesa before moving to Denver.

Alamo Heights Church, located at 1305 N. Midland Drive, has a membership of approximately 700. The church is affiliated with the Midland Baptist Association, the Baptist General Convention of Texas and the Southern Baptist Convention.

Calabrese, anomaly of analyst, combines Christianity, psyches

NEW YORK — Alphonse Calabrese has some advice on how to help folk whose psyches are a little bent out of shape. Much of the advice is standard Freud combined with common sense: Listen. Find some beauty and focus on it. Respond to the person's pain. Don't be judgmental. Become the "good parent."

Fair enough. Calabrese is a psychoanalyst, a member of a profession whose practitioners feel qualified to dispense instruction on the subject of healing psychological problems large and small.

But Calabrese, who practices on Long Island, goes a bit further, departing from what he says is the usual psychoanalytic line. Stress responsibility, he says. Learn to handle sin and guilt. Introduce the meaning of life.

Alphonse Calabrese is an anomaly of an analyst: a born-again Christian psychoanalyst. He says that on the night he was "born again" — it happened at a Billy Graham rally at Madison Square Garden — a Graham counselor heard that Calabrese was a psychoanalyst and asked him, "What are you going to do now? ...Now that you're a Christian, what work are you going to do?" The implication in the question was that he could not be both.

Calabrese disagreed that the two could not be reconciled. In the years since his conversion, he's given up a Park Avenue practice and, with a fellow born-again analyst, Rudolph Calabrese, a cousin, set up the Christian Institute for Psychoanalytic Studies. They have attempted — Calabrese says with good results — to put the tools of psychoanalysis into the context of their brand of evangelical Christianity, and have added such activities as praying over patients to the more common therapeutic methods. The staff of "20 firmly committed therapists" have a clientele largely made up of born-again Christians, including pentecostal Roman Catholics and Protestant evangelicals, he said.

But Calabrese has not been content to perform his healing function just in his office. Not everyone with a problem needs a professional psychotherapist, he says. Moreover, while he firmly believes in faith healing, he adds, "It's simplistic to say if you have enough faith, you'll be healed. Jesus works through nature." And part of nature is people.

From that combination of notions flows another: "It's quite possible for Christian lay people to help one another in a distinctive way as lay therapists." With that in mind, he wrote a book, "Rx: The Christian Love Treatment," in which he lays out his ideas on how persons can help one another. "The Lord has made me concerned with healing in the most complete sense of the word," he says. "True healing should repair the wounds in the individual's personality, in his dealings with others and in his relationship with God."

Among his suggestions are these:

—"Find some beauty and focus on it." Calabrese says that trying to help someone whom you view as devoid of any "element of lovableness" may cause more harm than good. Look hard, he suggests; but if you still can't stand the person, steer clear.

—Become the "good parent. After you've identified the problem ...put yourself in the shoes of the offending real parent or parents and try to guide the pejson toward a healthier emotional condition ...When you show love instead of hate or indifference, he'll test you, try to get you to change your behavior because it's unfamiliar to him. Most people dislike their neuroses ...but their hangups are familiar and even somewhat comfortable."

—Stress responsibility. Here, says Calabrese, is where he parts company with his former therapeutic style and a theory that he claims permeates contemporary psychoanalytic theory: the "erroneous idea that we're responsible only for our own behavior. What a patient does in this life is up to him and no one else, this argument goes. Live to the hilt and concentrate on how to maximize your own pleasure.

"The Christian approach to interpersonal relationships is completely different from Freudian psychotherapy," he says. "Responsibility and concern for others are keystones ...and the only valid road to real self-fulfillment."

—Learn to handle sin and guilt. "There is a valid, realistic kind of guilt, as well as a neurotic, unhealthy guilty. If you try to remove realistic guilt, you may plunge your friend into a depression because he may know that he has done something wrong but will have no firm sense of morality to guide him in the proper direction.

Church service has been reset

Special services which were to have been held this week at the North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ have been rescheduled for next week.

The series of meetings, featuring well-known Bible authority Guy N. Woods of Memphis, Tenn., as guest speaker, will be held Sunday through Thursday, beginning at 7:30 p.m. daily. All will be open to the public.

IT'S IN THE BOOK

Way of offering 'warm fuzzies'

The Bible has always been a best seller. Suddenly it has become "hot copy," which means individuals, couples, families are turning to scripture for answers. Dr. Charlie Shedd has done a weekly Bible study for the whole family.

THE WARM FUZZIES

Abraham was an old man who had everything. Almost. The one thing he still wanted was a daughter-in-law, because his only son, Isaac, wasn't married. In that day it was the custom for parents to pick their children's mates. So he sent his servant out to find the right girl. Being a wise man, the servant went to where the girls came to draw water. Then he prayed, "Lord, help me choose the right one." Fine prayer. But after we have prayed, God still expects us to use our head—and the servant did.

RELIGION

When he had chosen the girl he liked best, he asked her for a drink. Her name was Rebekah, and she said, "Drink, my lord." That let him feel he had chosen well and then he knew for sure when she added, "I will water your camels, too."

Read the whole story in Genesis 24. In the tenth verse see how much watering she was taking on. If you will look up how much a camel drinks, you will say, "This was a most unusual girl."

As you read the rest of the chapter together, notice these other fascinating verses: "She invited him to her home" (verses 25-26)...When her folks couldn't decide how soon they would let her go, they said, "We will call Rebekah and let her tell us what she thinks." (verses 57-58)

Family life can be built on minimums or maximums. We can do only what is required and no more. Or we can add those little extras which make all the difference. We can water the camels with a compliment. We can pick up the phone to call home and say, "I'm thinking of you." We can ask, "How's it going? What can I do to help?"

At our house we call these "warm fuzzies." It's a psychological term for really caring about other people and how they feel.

To do: Write down seven warm fuzzies you can give someone in the family; seven nice things to say or do. Then every day for one week live by Rebekah's beautiful offer, "Let me water your camels, too."

Rev. Bob Elliott

Bellview plans to continue its revival

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., will hold its Living Proof revival next week, to continue the "Good News Texas" emphasis under way this spring in Southern Baptist churches throughout the county, the area and the state.

The Rev. Bob Elliott of Baytown will be the evangelist for the revival which begins Sunday and continues through May 15.

Jerry and Peggy Young and their puppet Tommy will be featured as singers and song leaders during the special week, said the Rev. Elbert Smithen, pastor of Bellview Baptist Church.

Mr. Smithen said that Sunday services will be held at 10:50 a.m. and 6:40 p.m., with weekday services scheduled for 7:30 p.m. There will also be a noon Bible study and luncheon each weekday. All events will be open to the public.

The weeknight services will have special themes, it was announced. Monday's service will be Sunday School Night, Tuesday's service is to be Junior Night and Wednesday's gathering is designated Missionary Night. Youth Night is scheduled Thursday and Friday will be Family Night. The May 14 service is themed Praise Night and the concluding day of the revival May 15 will be high attendance day.

The revival speaker, Mr. Elliott, is staff evangelist of the Memorial Baptist Church at Baytown and head of the Bob Elliott Evangelistic Association.

A GIFT WILL BE GIVEN TO EACH MOTHER PRESENT.

Dear Neighbors,

According to the Guinness Book of Records, the longest sermon ever preached was by Clinton Locy in February 1955. It lasted for 48 hours and 18 minutes at the end of which an audience of eight stalwarts remained. The lesson ranged over every book of the Bible.

By way of contrast, our Sunday morning lessons on the Beatitudes are only 45 minutes long! We hope they will be pleasant, helpful, and practical for you. Why not attend Sunday morning at 9:30?

MC teams assure national net berths

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

They haven't even gotten down to the nitty gritty yet, but despite the outcome of today's semifinals and finals of the Region V Junior College Tennis Tournament being held at the Midland College tennis complex, one thing is almost certain. There will be a tomorrow for the Chap netters.

Both the MC men's and women's net teams advanced enough competitors through Friday's preliminary and quarterfinal rounds to assure them of berths in the respective national tourneys scheduled later this month.

Midland's Tony Luttrell and Denis McKeown in men's singles, and Jana Hanks and Ann Layman in women's singles have all made it to today's semifinals, which are set for 9 a.m. Derek Edmonds and Reg Luttrell were both second round victims in men's singles, but the two teamed up in doubles, and have earned a semifinal berth. McKeown and Tony Luttrell won their first round doubles match, and will face Amarillo's John Witter and Keith Taylor this morning in a delayed quarterfinal battle.

The MC men have 11 points (one point is given to a team for an advancement) entering the final day of competition, and are deadlocked for first place with New Mexico Military Institute. Odessa College and Amarillo are tied for third with five points, and Cooke and Grayson trail in the six team race with one apiece.

There are only four women's teams entered and Odessa is on top with eight points, followed by Midland with six, South Plains, two; and Cooke, one.

There are three men's and two women's team qualifying berths for the nationals at stake in this tournament, and while Odessa and Midland have just about sewed up the women's spots, and the Chap and NMMI men seem equally assured of moving on, there is an interesting battle being waged for the final men's position.

Odessa and Amarillo are both tied with five points apiece. All of the Wranglers singles and doubles entries have been eliminated, so there is no hope of them bettering their total, and Amarillo has !ust the doubles team of Witter and Taylor alive, and there appears little hope that they will beat Midland's McKeown and Luttrell, the events' top-seeded duo' in their match this norning.

It also appears that the Odessa women will beat out MC for team honors for the second straight weekend. They outpointed the Chaps in the conference event seven days ago, and can do no worse than tie for the top spot today.

Both of Midland's surviving women's singles performers, Hanks and Layman, will face Odessa netters, but even if they both win, all the Wranglers need is a win from either one of their two doubles tandems which are still alive and well.

Hanks, a 6-3, 6-1 quarterfinal winner over fourth seeded Maggie Thompson of South Plains, will face top-seeded Sandy Collins of Odessa in the semis.

The third-seeded Layman, who eliminated Odessa's Debbie Phillips, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 in the quarters, will meet another Wrangler, second-seeded Andrea Galloway today.

Tony Luttrell, who had been playing in the number four singles slot all year for Midland, but nade it to the conference finals a week ago before losing to eventual champion, Tsuyoshi Fukui of NMMI, defeated all three of his opponents in straight sets Friday, including Odessa's Carlos Mora, a 6-1, 6-3 victim in the quarters. He will meet Alberto Jiminez of NMMI this morning.

McKeown also used up just six sets to dispose of three opponents, but now has the unenviable task of facing Fukui, the former Japanese Davis Cupper this morning in the semifinals.

Should McKeown and Luttrell get by Witter and Taylor in their quarterfinal doubles match, they would then face off against Fukui and Jiminez in the semis. Reg Luttrell and Edmonds will meet the winner of the quarterfinal match between Doug Whitehead and Jesse Bridges of Grayson, and Daniel Oropeza and Wilson Alvarez of NMMI.

NET NOTES: The first few rounds of the tournament have been what you might call "predictable." All of the top three seeds in each of the four events are still alive, and only three fourth seeds have bit the dust. . . Bill Matyastik, the former All-American from Trinity University and the one-time assistant tennis pro at MCC, was on hand to see some of Friday's action. . . Brian Gilley, the new MC tennis coach is doing a commendable job in running the regional event. The former El Paso High mentor just purchased a home in Midland.

Crenshaw rally knots tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Ben Crenshaw capped a typically erratic round with an eagle three on the 15th hole and tied three other players for the second round lead Friday in the windblown, $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Crenshaw, a big favorite with the gallery in his native Texas, had two bogeys, a double bogey, three birdies and the 100- foot chip-in for the eagle on his way to a 70 and a 139 total, three under par on the Preston Trail Golf Club course. The course is 6,983 yards of rolling Texas real estate made more difficult than usual by the whipping winds, new traps, unusually tight fairways and rough that goes knee-deep in places.

"I HAVE not played consistently and I'm extremely disappointed in my game," Crenshaw said despite his high position. "I can't seem to get it around the golf course with getting in all kinds of trouble."

He sahared the top spot at the halfway mark of this chase for a $40,000 first prize with ray Floyd, Fuzzy Zoeller and Lyn Lott.

Floyd, who has threatened for at least three titles this year, and Zoeller, who was third in consecutive starts earlier in the season, also had one-under-par 70 to match Crenshaw's total. Lott, the firstround leader, had to birdie the last hole to salvage par 71 and a share of the lead.

"THE WIND died down a little in the afternoon" when all the leaders played, Floyd said. "Our half of the field, early on Thursday and late on Friday, was fortunate to get the luck of the draw."

He had the lead alone until a three-putt bogey on the final hole dropped him back into a tie.

It was two shots back to the group at 141, the only others under par after two rounds over the course that Joe Inman called "treacherous."

They included Jerry McGee, Rod Curl, Inman and Mark Alwin. Curl shot a 69, Inman and Alwin 70s and McGee matched par 71. All but Inman played in the afternoon half of the field.

MASTERS CHAMP Tom Watson and Arnold Palmer each shot 72-145. They were tied with South African Gary Player, who shot a 70. Lee Trevino was 72-146. Johnny Miller also was at 146 after a second-round 74. Bruce Lietzke, winner of two titles and runner-up in two other events already this season, was 73-147.

Defending champion Mark Hayes, winner of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship earlier in the season, failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 73-152.

Crenshaw, who won three titles in the United States plus the Irish Open last year, had it one under par for the day before. he went bogey-bogeydouble bogey starting on the fifth. A bad drive cost him there. He three-putted the next one. And on the seventh, he drove into the trees, got his next into trees on the other side of the fairway, hit his next shot left-handed, eventually missed the green and had to one-putt for a six.

Midland's Jerry Mobley, Ranchland Hill Country Club pro, failed to qualify for the final two rounds with a two-day score of 166.

Mobley had an 86 on Thursday, but came back with an 80 Friday. He still failed to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Midland pounds El Paso, 14-13

By TED BATTLES

Pete Reiser, batting coach for the Chicago Cubs organization, and Cotton Nash, who serves in a similar capacity for the California Angels, were in Midland Friday and it showed Friday night at Cubs Stadium.

Midland outlasted El Paso, 14-13, in a Texas League slugfest that saw 34 hits rattle around the ball park, including two doubles, two triples and six homers.

It was enough to make any self-respecting pitcher take up paper hanging.

Midland twice hit back-to-back homers, in the second when Aaron Randall delivered a three-run job and Steve Davis followed with his third of the season over the fence in center.

That made it 4-0, but a lackadaisical third, in which a fly ball fell in during the tough to see twilight, a double play was foiled and another potential DP averted when a base was stolen led to a 7-run third for El Paso. After that it was a question of who would get the last run.

IN THE sixth Karl Pagel hit a three-run homer and Tony Pepper followed with his first of the year to give Midland a seemingly comfortable 13-9 lead, but El Paso stormed back for four runs in the seventh on Carney Lansford's three-run homer and a run-scoring single by Gil Kubski, who is now 16 for 25 against Midland pitchers after going four-for-five Friday.

So after all was said and done, it was a two-out triple by Karl Gordon in the seventh and a bloop single to left by Pagel that won it.

Andy Muhlstock, 1-1, Midland's third pitcher, arrived in the seventh to douse the Diablos fire and, after yielding a run in the process, held the West Division leaders runless the rest of the way to hang up the victory.

BUT PITCHERS were just a necessary, and not very effective evil. It was a hitter's night.

Gordon and Randall both were 4-for-4 and Pepper doubled his season's rbi total with his three hits good for five runs. Pagel, in addition to his sixth homer, singled and doubled and batted in four runs to make it 28 for the season.

For the Diabloo, Pat Kelly hit his second homer, good for two runs in the third, and the homer for Lansford in the seventh was his fourth. Kelly also had two singles.

The second of the five-game series will be played at 7:30 p.m. today with Jeff Albert, 0-2, going for Midland against Bob Ferris, 2-1, for El Paso...

Arizona State stabs UTEP

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Arizona State got a grand slam homer from Dave Hudgens and six-hit pitching from Larry Eiler to storm past Texas-El Paso 27-1 in Western Athletic Conference baseball action Friday.

In addition to Hudgens' grand slammer in the fifth inning, the Sun Devils got back-to-back homers in the sixth frame from Jamie Allen and Bob Horner.

The Miners avoided a shutout in the ninth inning when Keith Dwinell homered.

ASU, who scored in every inning but the fourth, had 25 hits, including seven doubles in addition to the three homers.

The Sun Devils now have a 10-3 WAC record and a 42-11 season mark. UTEP dropped to 2-11 and 25-20-1.

Vasicek falls in semis

AUSTIN — A coach, whose name is really not worth mentioning right now, once said his team never lost. They may have finished second a few times, but they never lost.

Vicki Vasicek didn't lose here Friday afternoon either. She, like that team, finished second. Angela Bartzen, a senior from Fort Worth Paschal High School edged the 15-year-old Tall City tennis darling out in the semifinals of the state AAAA net championships by the score of 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

For the record, it was the first time she finished second since October 16, 1976. For the record, that makes a whole lot of firsts in between.

Playing in hot, humid weather here at the Penack Allison courts on the University of Texas campus, Vasicek earned a berth in the semifimals by disposing of Corpus Christi Carroll's Lori Nelson in straight sets in her Friday morning quarterfinal match, 7-6, 6-4.

Four hours later, the Midland High sophomore was back on the court, and gave the older and more experienced Bartzen the match of her tennis life.

Down 4-1, Vasicek stormed back in the first set to break Bartzen's service three consecutive times and win five games in a row for the 6-4 victory.

Vicki came within a whisker of taking the Fort Worth netter in straight sets and advancing to Saturday's finals, before she lost the second set in a 5-4 tiebreaker.

Down, but certainly not out, Vasicek held her own service twice, and broke Bartzen's in the second game to take a 3-0 lead and threaten to put it out of reach. But Bartzen battled back, winning six of the next seven games, and holding service in the crucial tenth game to win the match and earn the right to meet Susan Fancher in today's final. Fancher, a Beaumont French High School netter, defeated Abbie Brazwell of Corpus Christi Ray in the other semifinal matchup, 7-6, 6-4.

"If she had a little more experience," Vicki's coach Larry Burgin said after the heartbreaking match, "she would be in Saturday's finals instead of Bartzen. Experience is the only thing that gave Bartzen the win today."

District 5-4A had two doubles teams in the state competition here as well, but both were eliminated in the first round. Odessa Permian's tandem of Leslie Miller and Carmen Lewis extended Houston Memorial's Mary Jo Giammalva and Eva Vranisa to three sets before succumbing, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0, and Karen Berg and Julie Jones of Abilene Cooper were also victimized by a Houston Memorial pair, Lorri Reed and Lynn Daniels, who beat them 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

Wichita Falls' combo of Belinda Apperson and Karen Young, who were beaten in straight sets in the Tall City Tennis Classic by Midland High's Amy Tompson and Dinah Boyd, won their Friday morning quarterfinal match, before losing in the semis to Giammalva and Vranisa, 6-3, 6-2.

NET NOTES: Susan Tighe, Chuck Fraser and Betsy Kellogg, who played for Larry Burgin last year at Midland and are now students at UT, paid their former coach a visit Friday.

Stanley Cup set today

MONTREAL (AP) — The Stanley Cup best-of-seven final between the Montreal Canadiens and the Boston Bruins will start here today despite a request by the Canadiens that the series begin Sunday.

Montreal General Manager Sam Pollock said in an interview Friday that the Canadiens complied with an National Hockey League rule which requires the home team for the series to inform the league in writing whether they want to play Saturday or Sunday.

Pollock said the team opted for Sunday, but that the league decided to start the final round Saturday, apparently because of television commitments the NHL has in the United States.

He denied radio reports that the bid for a Sunday start constituted a special request by the Canadiens, who finished a tough, six-game semifinal round Thursday with the New York Islanders. The Bruins have been resting since they eliminated the Philadelphia Flyers last Sunday to sweep that best-of-seven semifinal series in four games.

NHL Information Director Ron Andrews said the league had received the written notice request from the Canadiens, but that NHL President Clarence Campbell ruled "according to the league bylaws" that the opener would be on Saturday.

Game Two of the series will be played here next Tuesday. The teams then move on to Boston for Game Three next Thursday and Game Four on May 14. If further games are necessary, they will be played in Montreal on May 17, Boston on May 19, and Montreal on May 22.

Rebels place sixth at state

AUSTIN—The Midland Lee girls golf team found the Jimmy Clay golf course here Thursday and Friday a bit much to take while seeking state AAAA golf glory.

The Rebels managed a two-day 761 to earn sixth place in the state tournament, but the total was 31 strokes above the mark they acheived in the Lubbock regionals two weeks ago. Lee had a 377 the first day and a 384 on the final round Friday.

Defending champion Conroe easily defended its title with a 696, 16 strokes ahead of second place Stratford-Dulles, which managed a 712.

Wendy Goodwin led the Lee effort with a fine 176 to earn eighth place in the medalist race. Conroe's Kim Bauer won the AAAA medalist honors with a blazing 154. No other Lee scores were available, but none of the others finished in the top 10 of the medalist chase.

The Rankin girls failed in its bid to win the Class A championship, but the Red Devils did post an 810 score to place second. Farwell won the Class A championship with a 732, beating second place Rankin by 79 strokes.

Rankin's Jami Gossett carded a 181 in the medalist race, but Carla Vinton of Farwell won the top honors with a 170.

Humble walked away with the AAA state championship with a winning total of 785 while Columbus took the AA crown with an 831 two-day score.

Other members of the Midland Lee squad were Diane Robinson, Sheryl Guthrie, Cindy Blake and Jean Ashland.

The Class A and B schools played at the Morris Williams golf course.

Seaver, Grant at it again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tom Seaver has had his ups and downs with the New York Mets management, but Friday his disenchantment reached a new low.

Seaver, who has expressed unhappiness in the past over contract difficulties, was particularly irked over a reported "must win" edict from Mets Chairman of the Board M. Donald Grant in Monday night's Mayor's Trophy game with the New York Yankees.

"The man is a maniac," said Seaver. "The man is imageconscious, that's all. I never wanted to leave this organization. Never. But the time is now."

Seaver made his views known in an interview in the Saturday editions of the New York Daily News.

Mended Hearts make heart grow fonder

Absence may make the heart grow fonder, but as far as four Fort Worth men are concerned, bowling makes the heart grow stronger.

Eston Rose, Vernon Bland, John Rios, Chuck Gattis and Roy Cooper all agree on the latter.

They are in Midland today as members of the Mended Hearts bowling team and will bowl at 5 p.m. today in the Texas Men's Bowling Tournament team competition at Super Bowl.

All are past heart attack victims. All are former open heart surgery patients. All are avid bowlers. They compete as a team in the Monday Men's Handicap League at East Fort Worth's Meadowbrook Lanes.

Rose, 61, the organizer and captain of the Mended Hearts, underwent his operation four years ago and three months later rolled a scratch 628. Bland was operated on in March 1976 after his fifth heart attack in as many years, yet within two months he had rolled a 638. The team carries an 873 average with Rose the high with a 187 and Jones' 157 the low. Rose says he's supposed to walk three miles a day to keep his heart and body in good shape, but doesn't normally get that much exercise, so the bowling helps. "As a team, we're pretty close on account of the operations," says Jones. "We all have good spirits." Three of the team members have undergone heart surgery in the last three years and had given up bowling until recruited by Rose.

Rose said the fear of collapse during a game doesn't bother him. "Too many cigarettes bother me more than anything," he says.

Seattle Slew faces Derby frenzy

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Seattle Slew faces the biggest challenge of his short but spectacular career Saturday when the 103rd Kentucky Derby is run amid fanfare and frenzy at Churchill Downs.

It is the frenzy that worries trainer Billy Turner.

"My only concern is how he acts in the paddock, something you always hear about. And, of course, the gate is a concern," Turner said Friday morning after sharpening his heavy favorite with a three-eighths of a mile blowout in 342-5 seconds.

"Those two things can beat you."

When Derby horses leave the stable area Saturday they will enter a world of noise and human movement that can be unnerving. Seattle Slew has twice been schooled in the paddock during afternoons this week, but there is no real way a trainer can prepare his horse for the crowd conditions on Derby Day.

"I was very impressed with For the Moment in the Blue Grass and he looks good," said Turner. "Affiliate appears well, and Steve's Friend certainly made an impressive move to win the Hollywood Derby. And there are a couple of others who also could run well."

"Seattle Slew is impressive ...so far said Barrera. "When you have a horse that runs six times and wins six times, how do you have a knock against him?"

LeRoy Jolley, trainer of For the Moment, beaten by 9¾ lengths in Seattle Slew's sensational Champagne Stakes win last year, said:

"He was outstanding then. He's still outstanding. Nobody's going to beat him easily, I'll tell you that."

When the field of 15 3-year-olds, each carrying 126 pounds, parades onto the track to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," it could be raining. The weather forecast calls for a 40 per cent chance of a thundershower in the late afternoon and temperatures in the mid 80s at 5:38 p.m. EDT post time.

Others entered are Sanhedrin, Sir Sir, Get the Axe, Flag Officer, Western Wind, Best Person, Giboulee, Nostalgia, Papelote and the Smiley Adams-trained entry of Run Dusty Run and Bob's Dusty.

Midland, Lee close out baseball season

The 1977 baseball season closes out in the Tall City today when the Robert E. Lee Rebels entertain the Midland High Bulldogs at the Lee diamond at 2 p.m.

Lee takes a 15-13 season record into today's finale compared to Midland's 5-20 reading and both teams have only won one game in the second half of the District 5-4A race, so they sport a 1-5 loop mark.

The Bulldogs took a 7-0 forfeit victory over the Abilene Cooper Cougars here Tuesday while Lee was dropping a tough 1-0 decision to Abilene High's Eagles.

Abilene, Big Spring and San Angelo currently lead the second half of the race with 5-1 records, but the Steers and Bobcats square off today while Abilene meets Cooper which won the first half of the race with a 6-1 record.

Craig Van Horn most likely will throw today for Lee while Kevin Pearce will toe the rubber for the Purple Pack.

LEE HAS beaten the Pack twice, once during the Tourney of Champions and then in their meeting on the MHS diamond, the Rebs scored seven runs in the seventh inning to nudge Midland, 12-10.

Theismann given huge offer by Argonauts

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Star said Friday that the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League have offered former Argos quarterback Joe Theismann a million dollar contract.

Theismann played for the Argos from 1971 to 1973 before moving to the Washingto Redskins of the National Football League where he now is in his option year.

The Star said the offer, believed to be for a seven-year period, was made by Argos owner Bill Hodgson without the knowledge of General Manager Dick Shatto.

"I haven't talked to Theismann or his agent, but Bill Hodgson would be personally involved if any negotiations did take place because of the length of the contract and the dollars involved," said Shatto.

"There is also the question of tampering to condsider. Technically, Theismann is still under contract to Washington until next year."

Theismann and his agent, Ed Keating of Cleveland, had planned to visit Toronto on Friday but delayed the trip because Hodgson has not yet returned from Europe.

"The Argos have expressed a sincere interest in Joe's future and his return to Canada," Keating said Thursday night in a telephone interview from Cleveland. "As far as I'm concerned, I am not breaking any National Football League rules by investigating an offer from Toronto.

"I have already had unofficial negotiations with the Argos. It may be that Toronto can come up with a contract that would warrant Theismann playing out his option in Washington."

Theismann, 27, who has not been directly involved in talks with the Argonauts, was drafted by the Miami Dolphins in 1971 but Toronto Coach Leo Cahill outbid the NFL club. Theismann led Toronto to the Grey Cup where the Argos were defeated by the Calgary Stampeders.

In three seasons with Washington, he has been mostly confined to backup duty behind Billy Kilmer. Keating said Theismann is unhappy playing second fiddle, and the quarterback himself said "the Redskins have made no contract offer whatsoever."

Mays hits national mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jackie Mays of Stamford set a national record in the triple jump, a state record in the 100-yard dash and a Class AA record in the long jump at the girls' state high school track meet Friday.

Miss Mays, a junior, was defending AA champion in all three events but improved on her 1976 performances in establishing three records.

Her triple jump of 39 feet, 11¼ inches broke the old national record of 39-6¼, set by Sheila Pettit of Van Vleck, Tex., in 1975.

Merry Johnson of Canyon nipped Sherrie Golden of New Caney in the 440 to set another national record in a winning time of 54.2 seconds in Class AAA. Miss Golden was clocked in 54.5, which also breaks the national record of 54.9 held by two girls, including Essie Kelley of Spur, Tex.

Brenham tied the national record in the mile relay with a time of 3:53.6, which was set in 1976 by Houston Worthing.

Canyon, with Miss Johnson also running in the 440 and mile relays and placing in the triple jump and high jump, captured the AAA team title, with Vernon a distant second.

Marble Falls took the AA team championships with 58 points, winning the 440 relay, placing second in three events and two-three in the 100.

Bellville, anchored to a conference record of 3:53.8 in the mile relay by Jeanine Brown, nipped Powderly North Lamar for second, 54-50.

Miss Brown also anchored Bellville to victory in the 880 relay in 1:41.7, which ties a conference record, and she won the 220 in a non-record time of 24.3.

Miss Mays' 10.8 seconds in the 100 cut one-tenth of a second off the state record and her long jump of 19-2 2-3 was three-fourths of an inch better than the AA record.

Sandra Brown of Cotulla set a state record in the AA 880, winning that event in 2:13.9, four-tenths of a second faster than Laura Davis of Houston Memorial in 1975.

Vickilee Cobern of Paint Rock set a state record in the Class B discus with a throw of 146-10, breaking the mark of 143-10½, set by Linda Montgomery of Bogota Rivercrest in 1973.

Marble Falls' title was built on the performances of Carolyn Amos—second in the long jump, triple jump and 100—and Barbara Conely, second in the 220 and third in the 100. They also ran on the first place 440 relay team.

Canyon piled up 52 of its points in relays, finishing first in the 440 and second in the 880 and mile baton races.

It was Canyon's second straight team title in AAA.

Vernon had 46 points, followed by Austin Westlake with 32, A&M Consolidated and New Caney with 22 each and Belton and Orange Stark with 18 each.

Stacy's bogey produces tie

By ED SHEARER

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Hollis Stacy bogeyed the last two holes and fell into a three-way share of the lead at four-underpar 69 with veteran Kathy Ahern and rookie Janet Coles in Friday's opening round of the $50,000 Lady Tara golf tournament.

Stacy had narrowly missed birdies at the 15th and 16th greens that would have given her a four-shot edge at the time, but she faded back into the pack after sending her tee shot into trees lining the 17th fairway.

She attempted to play out safely, but struck a rock under her ball and sent it deeper into the woods, forcing her to play for a bogey. She flew a seven iron into the back bunker on the finishing hole and took another bogey.

She had a half dozen birdies in her round, including putts of 10 feet at No. 4 and 15 feet at 10, with a pair of tap-in onefooters on the par three 11th and par five 14th.

"I was going after it," she said. "Then at 17 I was just playing for a bogey after I knocked it safer into the woods."

Coles, playing in only her seventh LPGA event, shot in the 60s for the first time. She really scrambled on her front nine, which was the backside of the 6,197-yard, par 73 Brookfield West Country Club, a hilly course.

She overcame poor tee shots at Nos. 10 and 12 to score birdies with putts of five and 35 feet, came back with onefooters for birdies on 15 and 16 and had a trio of bogeys, two with three putts. Her backside was more consistant, sinking putts up to 12 feet for birdies at one, four and nine.

Ahern, a 10-year tour veteran seeking her first victory since 1972, two-putted from 20-30 feet for a pair of birdies and sank putts of 15, 13 and 10 feet for her others. Her only bogey came when she drove into water and two putted from 12 feet.

There were three others tied at 70, defending champion Joanne Carner, Betsy Cullen and Marlene Floyd, sister of former Masters champion Ray Floyd.

Grouped at 71 were Mary Mills, Kathy Postlewait, Jan Stephenson, Amy Alcott and Patty Hayes.

At one-under 72 were Donna Caponi Young, Marbo Sasaki, Sandra Post, Amelia Rorer and Pat Bradley.

TEE TIME

Brown, Sitton set golf fire

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park golf pro

Keenage playing sensation, Chet Brown, scorched Hogan Park this past week with a superb round of 41-34-75, for a career low 18-hole score. Chet recently retired from Mobil and started playing golf regularly after his retirement.

His 34 on the back nine is the first time he has mastered par for that nine. Congratulations, Chet.

A teenager, Billy Sitton, reported a round of 30-31-61 while playing this past week at Hogan Park. It is, however, a non-competitive course record since it came in non-competitive play. That's tremendous golf, Billy.

The West Texas Chapter PGA Pro-Am schedule for the month of May for those interested is May 9 at Odessa Country Club; May 16, Brownfield Country Club; May 18, Plainview Country Club; May 20, Levelland Country Club; May 23, Lamesa Country Club; May 25, Winkler County Country Club in Kermit and May 27, Big Spring Country Club...

The Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held Trophy Day this past Thursday with the following results: Nine-Hole Division winner was Frances Stahl with a net score of 35. Second place went to Rita Boe with a 36 while Betty Ireland wound up third with a 37.

Eighteen-Hole Division winner was Marilyn Philpy with a net score of 66 followed by Muriel Inman with with a 68; Dorothy Melzer with a 69 and tied for fourth place were Florence Mailey and Alvina Mill with net scores of 70 each.

There will be a Board Meeting of the HPWGA in the home of Dorothy Melzer on Wednesday, May 11, at 9:30 a.m.

A General Meeting of the HPWGA will be held in the Golf Shop at Hogan the Following day at 8:30 a.m. and the ladies will make their own pairings for play after the meeting.

Aggressive Canadians lose, 8-1

VIENNA (AP) — The Soviet Union overcame an aggressive Canadian team 8-1 in a penalty filled game in the World Ice Hockey Championships Friday night.

Eric Vail of the Atlanta Flames was ejected from the wild match with a game-misconduct penalty and two other Canadians—Carol Vadnais of the New York Rangers and Pierre Larouche of the Pittsburgh Penguins—were given 10minute misconduct penalties.

In an earlier game, Czechoslovakia edged Sweden 2-1 and became the favorite to retain the title.

With one round of games left in the playoffs, the Czechs have 15 points, the Russians 14, the Swedes 12 and the Canadians 11.

Only the Russians can deprive the Czechs of the title. The Russians would have to beat Sweden and the Czechs would need to lose to Canada in the final games Sunday.

The Canadians held their own with the Russians in the first period. After an early power play goal by Gennadi Tsygankov for the Soviets, Greg Smith of the Cleveland Barons tied the scores.

But from the start of the second period, the Canadians' aggressiveness triggered penalties and they threw their chances away with the roughest hockey seen in the championships.

Hrebec leaves Nastase

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romania and Czechoslovakia were tied 1-1 Friday after the first day of Davis Cup play following the withdrawal by the Czechs of one player in the second singles match.

In the first match, Czechoslovak champion Jan Kodes beat Romania's No. 2 player, Dumitru Haradau 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Ilie Nastase, the internationally known Romanian ace player, was leading Czechoslovakia's Jiri Hrebec 6-2, 1-0. After some 50 minutes of play, Czech nonplaying Captain Antonin Bolardt urged Hrebec to leave the court, apparently to protest bad refereeing.

After Hrebec argued for some time, the two players and their captains then talked with the judge, Otto Heydrich of Austria, and then left for their dressing rooms.

Renner keeps sailplane lead

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Australian Ingo Renner, 37, mastered gusty West Texas winds Friday to maintain his lead in a coast-to-coast sailplane derby.

Renner, the world standard class soaring champion, has now captured the first three legs of the 2,900 mile derby. Friday's 266-mile leg began in Las Cruces, N.M.

Finishing second in the leg, eight minutes behind Renner, was defending champion Wallace Scott, 52, of Odessa, Tex.

The derby began May 3 in Los Angeles and the five pilots are heading for a May 17-20 finish in Washington, depending on weather along the route.

The invitational event is the longest glider competition in the world and the only coast-to-coast air race in the nation.

The fourth leg, Odessa-Dallas, will be held Saturday and a spokesman said the aircraft should arrive at Dallas' Red Bird Airport by 6 p.m. After a day of rest in Dallas the pilots will soar to Oklahoma City.

Third place in Friday's leg went to former world champ George Moffett Jr., 50, of Elizabeth, N.J. In fourth place was U.S. unlimited soaring class champ Allan Leffler, 46, of Santa Paula, Cal. The final finisher was RAF fighter pilot George Lee, 31, of Scotland.

Tech signs top cager

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — All Texas Eastern Conference center Joe Baxter Friday became Texas Tech's fifth basketball signee of the spring.

The 6-9 Richardson native pumped in 14 points and grabbed 11 rebounds per game during his sophomore season at Lon Morris Junior College this year.

Baxter, a Richardson Pearce High School alumnus, was recruited by more than 100 universities.

Kentucky Derby has holiday atmosphere

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's unlike any other time of the year, bigger than any holiday. Booze flows like water. Visitors invade the city. Hotels and bars are jammed. Countless parties are held.

It's symbolized by mint juleps, the best horses in the world, and the playing of "My Old Kentucky Home."

The mood changes here during the days leading up to the first Saturday in May—the traditional date for the world's most famous horse race. Everyone agrees. It's the most festive time of the year.

"Kentucky Derby week is our week, our thing," says Charlie Herd, executive director of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce. "It's our party. It's our fun time. It's the most important week of the year."

The finest thoroughbred horses, prancing gingerly on pencil-thin legs and mounted by jockeys decked out in multi-colored silks, greet the playing of the state's theme song—"My Old Kentucky Home"—on the day of the race.

That song brings thousands of Kentuckians to Louisville each year on Derby day, and others who've moved away celebrate in their own way.

"If they are from Kentucky, they feel homesick when they watch it," Herd said. "And if they've moved away, they still celebrate. They have Derby parties."

Tigers trip Brewers, 5-2

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie Phil Mankowski drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Dave Roberts snapped Detroit's three-game losing streak Friday night as the Tigers beat the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2.

Mankowski singled runs home in the second and sixth innings off Jerry Augustine, 3-3.

Roberts, 2-4, scattered nine hits before being relieved by Steve Foucault in the eighth. He struck out six and walked none in snapping his own personal three-game losing streak.

Chisox win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jorge Orta's single in the fourth inning drove in a pair of unearned runs that helped the Chicago White Sox to a 7-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday night.

The White Sox chased Cleveland starter Dennis Eckersley, 2-2, as they made the score 5-0 in the fourth.

Astros lose

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pete Falcone and Al Hrabosky combined for a three-hitter, pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-1 triumph over the Houston Astros Friday night in a game marred by a free-for-all in the ninth inning.

Houston's Cesar Cedeno triggered the fighting by charging Hrabosky after he was struck by a pitch by the St. Louis reliever while leading off the ninth.

St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons followed Cedeno to the mound and both benches emptied onto the field to engage in a series of skirmishes which delayed the game for nearly 10 minutes. After order was restored, Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar and St. Louis reserve Roger Freed were banished from the game by umpire Bob Engel.

Bucs sizzle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher John Candelaria drove in two runs with his first hit this season to key a five-run fifth inning that helped the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 Friday night.

Rich Gossage pitched three innings of scoreless, one-hit relief for Candelaria, 3-0, as the Pirates earned their 11th victory in 12 games and sixth in a row.

The World Series champs, 10-13 with the loss, led 3-1 into the Pirate fifth after Pittsburgh stranded nine runners in the first four innings against loser Jack Billingham, 3-2.

Rangers pump

ARLINGTON (AP) — Willie Horton and Bump Wills hit home runs to back Doyle Alexander's crafty pitching Friday night and the Texas Rangers downed the Kansas City Royals 5-2.

Horton, the designated hitter obtained from Detroit in a recent trade, also knocked in another run with a single in the fourth inning to the delight of the 25,728 fans in Arlington Stadium.

Alexander, 4-1, baffled the hard-hitting Royals for six innings before John Mayberry and Al Cowens found the range for seventh-inning home runs.

Krukow wins first game

CHICAGO (AP) — George Mitterwald and Bobby Murcer hit two-run homers Friday and Mike Krukow picked up his first major league victory as the Chicago Cubs pounded Atlanta 7-2 to hand the Braves their 12th straight defeat.

Mitterwald's third homer of the season and second in two days highlighted a five-run fourth inning against Buzz Capra, 0-2, which included a two-run triple by Steve Ontiveros.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals, addressed to the Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for earth work at the Water Pollution Control Plant lagoons southeast of Midland will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until 2:30 p.m. on the 20th day of May, 1977, and publicly opened and read aloud at 3:00 p.m. on the same day.

Any bid received after closing time as stated above will be returned unopened.

Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked "Earth Work".

Complete copies of plans specifications and contract documents may be examined and/or obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, Midland, Texas.

A bid or proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by the bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws it bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder withdraws its bid anytime tract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalities, to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications to award this bid by items and to accept what in the judgement of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantanageous bid.

PATIO SALE

Check your attic, basement, garage and closets for good, but no-longer-used items — furniture, tools, ... the list goes on and on. Every item should be priced, of course. You may want to combine your sale with a friend or neighbor. Choose your days, get your signs ready and place your ad in the Classified section. Your ad should list a few key items, give the date, time, and good directions.

A friendly Classified Ad-Visor will help you word your Garage Sale ad for maximum results.
