Texas Votes Today On Amendments to State Constitution

Faith

Carter's Experiment—Seeking Lesser Evil—Mow Your Own—To Harmnoica Players—

POLICE COMMISSIONER ROY CARTER'S experiement of lifting the time limit on parking during the month of August should prove an interesting one, and perhaps surprising.

Finding a police tag on your car for over-parking, or having to rush out and move your vehicle just when you're in the midst of a social visit, business deal or shopping excursion is no joke, but neither is an absolute lack of parking space.

Removing the time limit on cars in the down town area will certainly reduce the amount of space available for parking. Mr. Carter hopes to determine whether this reduction in parking space is more to be desired than the annoyance of time limits and police tags.

TRAFFIC ordinances of all kinds are about the most unpopular on city or state statute books, and almost of the greatest importance. We fret at green lights, stop signs and parking rules. We are irked by the gymnastics necessary to circle a metal disc in the center of the street, when it would be much simpler to cut the corner in making a turn.

These grievances become of small consequence, however, when some "reckless" driver takes some of the paint off of a fender in a fancy curve or fails to halt for a stop sign.

In either case the traffic officer is blamed—for enforcing too strictly the law in our own case, or not strictly enough in the case of the other man. It must be a great life to be a cop.

STATE constitutional amendments up for the adoption or defeat by the voters of Texas today, deserve your consideration on each proposal, and your ballot on the issues as you view them.

If you disapprove of any one or all of the amendments, go out and vote against them. If you think one or more will bring some improvement in state affairs, vote your best judgment.

Don't be stampeded by the crowd of "againers" that yells on any proposed change or progresive amendment, "Scratch 'em all."

"WEED Cutting Week" inauguated by the city health department, should have the support of every Wichita Falls resident, not only in clearing his own premises, but in reporting unsightly overgrown lots and back yards to the authorities.

Lots and yards covered with weeds constitute a menace to the health of the city, says the health department. The same lots and yards offer a serious fire hazard, says Chief J. L. McClure. Any person with ordinary eyesight knows that such places unsightly and offensive.

Cut your own weeds, and if your neighbor doesn't do the same, give the city police or health department a tip.

"DON'T miss entering the harmonica contest sponsored by the park department." The Record News wiuld say to experts and aspirants alike. Of course harmonica music doesn't compare with grand opera, the kind Wichita Falls has just contracted for, or perhaps not even with a good phonograph record.

A harmonica, however, is a comparatively simple instrument to play, for all the disuse it has fallen into with the advent of jazz bands and the exit of fiddles and guitars.

The true worth of a harmonica lies in the satisfaction wihch the player secures in his music, whether it be excellent or atrocious. This is a self-evident truth which applies to players of other instruments than harmonicas, although apparently more marked in be case of the harmonica player.

The mere act of passively listening to Kreisler's softest tones or Galli-Curci's most perfect notes does not compare in satisfaction with that music is plunked, blown, drawn or otherwise extracted from your own instrument, whether it be 50-cent harmonica or Stradivarus violin.

FOUR CHARGES IN BASIC LAW UP TO VOTERS

New Tax System Chief Of Amendments Up For Decision

RAISE IN SALARIES

Governor and Legislators May Get Pay Hike In One Issue

DALLAS, July 31. (AP)—The 50-year-old constitution under which Texas is operating will undergo several changes if proposed amendments to be voted on tomorrow are adopted.

The general opinion is, however, that one of the lightest votes ever cast in the state will be the result of the election, and that the proposed amendments to be the fundamental law of the state may fall through apathy of the general public.

Ballot boxes have been distributed in most of the precincts, though there were reports that some precincts would not cast a single vote.

The four amendments involves changes in the judiciary system, and taxing system, the salaries of state officers, and the fee method of remunerating county law enforcing officers.

Moody Is Busy

Gov. Dan Moody has personally campaigned for the judiciary amendment which he declares will bring about a greatly needed reform in the appellate courts. A large number of leading lawyers and judges favor the changes proposed by the amendment.

The governor's championship of the judiciary amendment brought his old opponent, James E. Ferguson, former governor, into the argument with a statement that all the amendments should be defeated and an appeal to his friends to turn out at the polls tomorrow to make this defeat certain.

The returns will be gathered by the Associated Press from its members and correspondents throughout the state. In previous years such returns were compiled and supplied to newspapers by the Texas election bureau.

The four amendments appear on the ballot in the following order:

The Four Amendments

First, to amend sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of article V for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system. This amendment, if adopted, will enlarge the membership of the supreme court to nine and abolish the commission of appeals, which now aids the high court.

The second amendment relates to taxation, and would empower the legislature to segregate objects of taxation as between state and county purposes, and to levy other than ad valorem taxes for state revenues, so long as the rate of taxation does not exceed the constitutional limitation already in effect. This would enable the state to obtain all or part of its revenues from corporation or occupational taxes, in addition to or in lieu of taxation upon land and its improvements.

Salary Amendment.

The third amendment would give the legislature power to compensate district attorneys, county judges, county attorneys, sheriffs, county and district clerks, tax assessors and collectors, by prescribing duties of these officers and fixing salaries for them instead of fees and perequisities, now the source of compensation wholly or in part.

The fourth and last amendment would remove from the constitution all limitations on salaries of state officers, allowing the legislature to fix such salaries, except for governor, who would receive $10,000 a year instead of $4000 now paid. The legislature also would be authorized to fix salaries of its members at not to exceed $1500 a year instead of the $5 a day now paid. This amendment would not take effect until Jan. 1, 1929.

Voters Go to Polls Today To Decide On Amendment

Residents of Wichita county, with other voters of the state, will decide the fate of four constitutional amendments today in balloting which will open here at 8 o'clock Monday morning.

Officials of the county have designated 39 boxes in Wichita county at which voters may cast their ballots. The polls will close at 7 o'clock, with indications that while the voting may be heavy for a constitutional amendment election, it will otherwise be comparatively light.

The 39 polls and presiding judges are designated in Wichita county follow:

37. Lina Motor company, Electra, G. E. McDaniel.
38. City hall, Electra, C. L. Owen.
39. Mount Carmel Implement store, Jake Roessler.

Voters will pass on the four following amendments:

Revision of the state tax system, revision of the state judiciary system, increasing the salaries of certain state officers, and abolishment of the fee system.

LAST ACT OF BITTER FIGHT

Demonstration Held Sunday On Boston Common

By Universal Service.)

BOSTON, Mass., July 31.—Sacco and anzetti will be moved from their cells in Cherry Hill section of state prison to the death house tomorrow morning. The announcement was made by Warden Hendry tonight.

With them wil go to Celestino Madieros, sentenced for another murder, but reprieved until the Sacco case is settled upon his confession that he committed the payroll robbery and murder at Braintree for which Sacco and anzetti are condemned.

Vanzetti at noon, after receiving word that he was to be placed in the death house, broke the hunger strike which he had maintained with the exception of a single meal for 16 days. Sacco, so weak he is hardly able to stand and walk in his cell, continued his fast which began at the same time.

Will See Chair

Warden Hendry announced that the three doomed men will be taken to the death house while the other prisoners are at breakfast. The journey to the death house from the Cherry Hill section of the prison will take the trio through the death chamber, so that they will see the lethal chair as they walk.

As these preparations went forward, Governor Fuller, interrupted in preparation of his decision Saturday by the sudden illness of his son, announced that he has resumed work on the decision and will positively have it ready Wednesday night. The boy, operated on for appendicitis, is recovering.

During the afternoon 5000 gathered on Boston Common and half remained through a downpour of rain to listen to various speakers who made Judge Webster Thayer, who conducted the trial and condemned the men, and District Attorney Julius Katzman of Plymouth and Norfolk counties, who prosecuted them, the targets of bitter attacks.

Darrow Not Present

Clarence Darrow, billed as the principal speaker, sent a telegram to the defence committee stating that while he believed the men may not have had a fair trial he had not studied the case and could not speak.

Gardner Jackson, a member of the committee filled in and denounced Judge Thayer as prejudiced and quoted alleged assertions of the judge during the rtial that he would "get" the pair.

Katzman, he alleged, "stage managed the trial to build up prejudice in the minds of the jury on the "radical" issue.

In breaking his fast Vanzetti at noon ate a meat ball and a little spinach.

Kemal Pasha Now Rules Turks With Iron Hand

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 31. (AP) Kemal Pasha is exercising a new authority given him to name each man who may be a candidate for deputy at the fall elections, and thereby virtually is making himself absolute dictator of Turkey. SUICIDE NOTE CLEARS DEATH

Mother Dies Over Absence Of Her Son

By Universal Service.

EVANSTON, Ill., July 31.—The body of Mrs. Saide Pettit, divorced wife of Attorney Orville J. Taylor, once prominent society woman and noted pianiste, was found, almost unclad, a suicide on the beach here today.

She had slain herself to stop brooding over her separation from her son, and because of long illness, authorities' investigations disclosed.

At first it was believed she had been murdered, and her body thrown on the sandy shore just north of Calvary cemetery, because of the bruises found on her head. But her note to her physician, Dr. William G. Stearns of Evanston, helped to dispel this theory.

"Dear doctor," the note read, "kindly pay the nurses' bills out of the money I sent you. Billy is to go at once to his Aunt Gertrude. Two years without him is entirely too much."

Billy was her son by her first marriage. His father was the late James Pettit, wealthy Chicago lumberman. When the boy's health failed, he was ordered to a ranch in Arizona. The separation is believed to have intensified his mother's despondency.

The authorities are puzzled by the absence of most of her attire. She was fully clothed when she left her hotel apartment here. But when found she was clad only in a silk chemise, half of one stocking, and black leather pumps. On her wedding ring was engraved, "kismet!" (fate) 1903."

FORMER KLAN DRAGON TALKS TO GRAND JURY

D. C. Stephenson, Under Sentence, Tells Of "Buying Men"

GOVERNOR INVOLVED

Indiana's Chief Executive Named in Political Scandal

By Universal Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 31.—For five hours, D. C. Stephenson, former dragon of the Indiana klan and the center of its political scandals, talked Saturday to the members of the Marion county grand jury.

The elation of the prosecutors when he was finally turned back to the custody of the penitentiary guards led to the belief that Stephenson had amplified the secrets of the little black box in the hands of the prosecutors and had given information of a character that will abrogate the statute of limitations which has been a formidable obstacle to prosecutions.

The grand jury reported to Judge James A. Collins, after having heard Stephenson, that it would continue its deliberations throughout August and make a report in September when the prosecutor and his aids returned.

Session Through August.

During August the jury will be directed by Special Prosecutor Emsley Johnson and Deputy William H. Sheaffer.

The bringing of Stephenson from the Michigan city penitentiary where he is under a life sentence for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer was as dramatic as the old klan episodes which Stephenson was accustomed to stage for the benefit of his followers.

Summoned from his cell at midnight, Stephenson was dressed in a blue suit furnished by the authorities and told that he was to be taken to Indianapolis.

The order to bring him here was given by Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom after a conference with Prosecutor William H. Remy.

Every precaution was taken to prevent Stephenson from being visited, as he was on former occasions, by any emmisaries of those who are interested in his silence.

Four Guard Him.

Accompanied by four guards, he was brought here the 180 miles by automobile, his arrival being timed for the hour when the grand jurors had been told to meet again.

On arrival, the prison car was sequestered and a city block closed to prevent any contact with any person.

At the designated hour Stephenson was ushered into the grand jury room and the questioning began.

Into that room was carried the black box and the documents which had been turned over to the prosecutors.

For the five hours Stephenson is reported to have talked freely and volubly. It is estimated that he not only gave verbal evidence con-

PRISON AGENTS GET ESCAPES

Two Convicts Here Turned Over to Officers

Two escaped convicts one from the Oklahoma state penitentiary at McAlester, and one from the Huntsville penitentiary, both apprehended here by local officers within the last week, were turned over to officials from these institutions Sunday by Chief of Police Frank Burns.

Cherles E. Harroun, alleged to have escaped from the McAlester penitentiary August 24, 1926 while serving a five year sentence for the theft of an automobile, will be returned to Oklahoma Monday morning by Lee R. Moore, prison official, who arrived here Sunday. Harroun escaped in a car belonging to a prison officer while serving as a "trusty," Moore said.

Clifford Earrett, who is alleged to have escaped from the Texas penitentiary several months ago while serving two years for forgery, was taken back to Huntsville Sunday in company with 12 other prisoners awaiting their sentences in the Wichita county jail, by Bud Russell, penitentiary agent. Barrett was apprehended here late Sunday.

Bridge at Tascosa In Dangercus Condition, Is Report

Reports of violent wind, rain and hail storms along the route of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, with hail near Des Moines, New Mexico, six feet deep along the railroad tracks, were received by The Record News shortly before 1 o'clock this Monday morning from its Childress correspondent.

Fort Worth and Denver train No. 2 arrived at Childress at 12:30 Monday morning, almost 22 hours late after being delayed by a washout at Des Moines. It was due at Childress at 2:15 Sunday morning Train No. 8, due in Childress at 9:30 Sunday, was reported running about an hour late behind train No. 2.

Hail Along Route

Members of the train crew and passengers brought the story of storms along the route and told of violent hail, rain and wind storms that extended from far in New Mexico into Childress. The train crew reported 86 telegraph poles down in the Godnight area, but had no other reports of any damage. No wire connection were available west of Godnight, it was said.

The storm, somewhat diminished in intensity, reached Childress shortly after midnight, with considerable wind and a vivid electrical display. Rain fell in torrents for a short time, but ceased shortly before 1 o'clock, it was stated

Rail Bridge Endangered.

Members of the train crew arriving in Childress declared the bridge of the Canadian river near Tascosa to be endangered by the flood which followed a violent rain, but at the Wichita Falls dispatchers office it was stated the bridge was apparently safe, and two trains had passed over it at 10:45 and 11:45 Sunday night. After reaching Childress, the trains delayed by the storm were expected to operate on schedule time.

Heavy showers were reported to the Denver dispatcher from Oklahunion. While no rain had fallen shortly after 1 o'clock in Wichita Falls, a sharp drop in temperature came shortly after midnight.

Fugitive Pet Monkey Hurls Bottles At Woman As He Escapes Pursuit

An escaped pet monkey on a rampage early Sunday afternoon in the 1500 block on Seventh street and vicinity upset wash tubs and hurled bottles at Mrs. R. E. Newman, 707 Grace; bit and scratched George Burris Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burris, 1513 Seventh, and assaulted several others; and led armed officers on a merry chase through the grounds of the Wichita General hospital and on for several blocks. The pet was a sensitive monkey, seemed to be conscious of its superior speed, and turned at intervals in the chase to shriek laughingly at its pursuers.

One of the pursuers, Frank Carpenter, 1408 Eighth street, was bit in the left thumb by the same monkey about a month ago. His explanation was the pet had gone mad because it had seen a negro, the slightest variation in color presented before its eyes driving him into a rampage.

Burris Jr., was treated for the bites and scratches received, which were apparently not very serious.

Officers couldn't fire at the pet on account of its vivacity, and it was never caught. The owner is said to live in the neighborhood on Eighth street.

The monkey was reported captured three hours later by C. T. Jones, 705 Baylor, who told police he had trapped it in a garage in the rear of his house. An effort was made to find the owner.

Pastor Starts Himself Real Racket By Calling Blondes 'Dumb Brides'

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Oh, boy, what the Rev. F. V. Loos of Liberty, Mo., started when he said that blondes are the "dumbest" brides. And the Rev. Loos has married 4500 couples.

For one thing, he converted numerous Chicago blondes into red-heads, figuratively speaking, for they are mad.

"It's time folks stopped taking blondes lightly," was the tart comment of pretty, blonde Edith Nelson, Hotel Sherman stenographer.

"It's not the hair but what's under it that counts," was another "snappy comeback" from Tex Burns, manicurist. "Blondes make keen business women."

And so it went on as blonde haired beauties were asked for opinions. As for the Chicago clergy, there was agreement and disagreement with the Missouri pastor's dictum.

"He's right, but you don't have to marry us many couples a he has to find that out," said a St. Chrysostom's church official—his name has been withheld for fear of physical assault from the sufficiently infuriated blonde-haired girls here.

"It's not the coloring of the hair but the coloring of the grey matter beneath that counts," remarked the Rev. John H. DeLacy, pastor of the Thoburn Methodist church. "Nine-tenths of the couples I have married have been happy in spite of the coloring of their hair—and they include blondes, brunettes and the rest."

CITY LAID OUT IN SHAPE OF GIANT PLANE

Lindbergh, Texas, Includes Unique Features In Layout

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas, July. 31. (AP)—Lindbergh, the newest town in Texas, if not in the United States, is officially on the map today, the dedication papers to the state having been filed in Starr county July 20.

Named for the air hero, the dedication was made to Colonel Chas. Lindbergh, his mother and the public. It follows in part:

"State of Texas

County of Starr.

Know all men by these presents that we, Mary S. McKay, Scott S. McKay, and J. B. Dune of Cameron county, Texas, owners of tracts numbered 99, 100, 101, 103, 104, 115, 116, 118, and 119 of unit No. 7 of the Valle Rico Rio Grande sub-division the plat of said sub-division being filed Sept. 4, 1926, in the office of the county clerk of Starr county, Texas, to which map—have caused said tracts of land to be sub-divided and designated as Lindbergh in Starr county, Texas, and to be named and referred to hereafter as Lindbergh as shown by the map to which this is attached and made a part thereof. And we do hereby dedicate the streets and alleys shown on said plat to Colonel Chas. A. Lindbergh, who alone successfully flew in his airplane, the Spirit of St. Louis, from New York to Paris; to his mother and to the public."

In Shape of Plane

The townsite which is laid out in the shape of an airplane is one-half mile west of here on the Rio Grande City-Laredo highway and is spaced at exactly half way between Brownsville and Laredo, the distance to either city being 108 miles. This town was in formation at the time Lindbergh completed his tiflight, and up to that time had no outstanding name, being commonly referred to as West Rio Grande. Within an hour of the time that the news of the successful flight of Lindbergh in his plane, the Spirt of St. Louis, had crossed the Atlantic, Mrs. Mary McKay, owner, was determined to name the town in honor of the brave lad who had accomplished what otherw ho were older and wiser had declared impossible.

Simultaneously, with Mrs. McKay's idea came a telegraphic message from a friend in the city of St. Louis, Mrs. Ludlie Waggoner, who suggested the identical name.

The promoters all agreed heartily with the idea, and made tentative plans toward this end, but awaited the return of Lindbergh to the United States in order to secure permission. John B. Dube, a member of the Starr County Realty company, who has charge of the development, journeyed to St. Louis at the time the celegration was arranged for the returned hero. The proposition of the new townsite was explained briefly to Colonel Lindbergh to which he evidenced interest, but a gift of two town lots was declined. Colonel Lindbergh stating that for obvious reasons he would be unable to accept these and the thousands of other gifts proffered him by individuals and firms.

Includes His Mother

He asked that the dedication papers include his mother's name as well as town, and this request was gladly carried out, as it was sympathetic pride of a mother's heart which had prompted Mrs. McKay to first think of a suitable memorial to so brave and devoted a son.

Mr. Dube learned that Lindbergh was not familiar with the Rio Grande valley and that while he had spent some time in San Antonio he had never gone so far south. He agreed that if ever his journey should take him to the lower Rio Grande Valley that he would fly to Lindbergh to look over his borderland namesake.

Mrs. Prichard is survived by her husband.

MRS. JESSIE KERR PRESLEY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jessie Kerr Presley, 34, 1005 Hayes street, who died at her home Saturday morning, will be held from the family residence Monday morning at 9 o'clock with the Rev. E. S. Lowrence, pastor of the Iowa Park Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be in Riverside.

Members of the Wichita Falls chapter No. 237, O. E. S. to which Mrs. Presley belonged, will attend the funeral in a body, meeting at the Masonic Temple, Tenth and Scott, at 8:30 a. m., it is announced.

Mrs. Presley was a prominent musician here, the daughter of A. E. Kerr, deceased, who was district clerk here for 14 years.

She is survived by her husband, J. C. Presley; three children, Mildred, Dorothy, and Robert Kerr Presley; her mother, Mrs. A. E. Kerr, 1512 Kemp boulevard, and two sisters, Mrs. Duane Meredith, and Mrs. Clifford Stoghill, both of Wichita Falls.

New Oakland Model On Display Here Creates Stir Among Motorists

Much attention is being attracted in Wichita Falls by the new Oakland "All-American" six motor cars, now on display at the McElreath Motor company at 609 Scott avenue. The McAlreath company opened a special display of the cars Sunday, and will continue its display during the week. Above is shown the sport roadster and landau sedan, two of the leaders of the new line, and in the inset is a view of the new engine.

U. S. TO BUILD GIGANTIC NAVY

Britain May Force Large Building Program

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Congress will be called upon to lay down a navy building program costing taxpayers about $40,000,000, in the event the Geneva arms conference collapses as now seems likely, it was indicated in congressional quarters today.

A program of that magnitude is necessary to place the United States on a parity with Great Britain, it has been figured by naval observers.

Build More Cruisers

Attention will be given chiefly to construction of cruisers of 10,000 tons and carrying 8-inch guns. That is the type of vessel declared most suitable to the nation's defense plans.

It is the type of ship that Great Britain has been striving to limit at the Geneva parley. Because smaller cruisers mounting 6-inch guns are more desirable to the British plan.

The counter proposal of Great Britain for naval "reduction" does not call for the scrapping of any warships by that nation in order to strike a comparable basis with Great Britain in tonnage under the plan proposed by that nation, the United States would have to engage in a building program.

With indications that the Geneva parley will be continued at least until the end of the week, a faint glimmer of hope were evident in official quarters; a hope that the pronounncement on behalf of President Coolidge at Black Hills on the British counter proposa, might save the conference from failure.

Delay Not Favored

Postponement of the conference until winter is not desired by state department officials. That would bring the conference squarely before congress while in session.

The biggest navy bloc in congress, led by Speaker Nicholas Longworth in the house, and a coalition of republicans and democrats in the senate, is expected to make a fight for more ships shuld the Geneva meeting be barren of worthwhile results.

Police Hunt Negro Who Struck Woman

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 31.—Police here tonight are searching for a negro who struck Mrs. Elmer Patterson of this city in her home after she refused his demands for money. The negro threw Mrs. Patterson against a table and frightened by her screams ran out the back door and escaped.

Mrs. Patterson is a sister of the Rev. C. S. McClung of Wichita Falls, Texas. Another brother is W. C. McClung, pastor of the First Bantist church of Denton, Texas. Rev. C. S. McClung is the pastor of the Floral Heights Baptist church in Wichita Falls.

FARMERS SEE RED

40-Cent Melon Retails In City For $5.60 Ala Slice

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Mr. Watermelon offered an explanation today of why farmers see red and city folks complain of indigestion.

Investigation discloses that a watermelon for which the restauranteur pays 40 cents is cut into 16 pieces. Each piece is sold at from 15 to 35 cents according to the style of the place. So the melon, when it has reached the consumer, has cost him from $2.40 to $5.60.

Thanksgiving is coming and watermelons will be forgotten. But the Idaho turkey is going to sell at from $5 to $7 a piece, according to advance prices.

FAULTY AUTO LIGHTS BANNED

Garage Men Requested To Advise Drivers

AUSTIN, July 31. (AP)—The garageman would be ultimate guardian of the public's automobile headlights under a safety plan announced here today by W. B. Schultz, engineer of the state headlight division.

Schultz appealed to garage and filling station operators over the state to notify their motorist customers immediately of any defect in the latter's auto lights.

He suggested that the operators "ask the driver of the car which stops at your place of business to switch the lights on a moment. Tell him immediately if any of the three lights does not burn. Most persons will thank you for this courtesy and will be the best way to get in touch with them—when they come for battery service or gasoline.

"This plan will save many lives if we can get your co-operation."

Schultz disclaimed any desire to "make arrests" and said "intelligent people" if told of lighting defects, "can see the safety of displaying the proper lights."

He suggested that those who observe a faulty light should report it to the headlight division where "the cases will receive attention."

SUSPECT HELD IN DRUG CASE

Police Arrest One Man In Dope Theft

R. L. Wilson, supposedly of Chillicothe, was charged with violation of the Harrison narcotic act Sunday morning before United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz, by M. W. Barnett, narcotic agent, in connection with the theft of morphine and other narcotics valued at approximately $2000 from a Chillicothe drug store Friday afternoon.

All of the drugs were recovered, some from Wilson, and some from a car in a Burkburnett garage supposed to belong to a second drug thief who escaped from Barnett and Police Officer Pat Allen amid a fusillade of shots in the railroad yards about noon Saturday. The latter, supposed to have been wounded, had not been apprehended by police late Sunday.

Officers here were notified early Saturday of the theft Friday afternoon of morphine, heroin and cocaine from the Chillicothe store and of 26 pints of whisky, a quantity of morphine and other articles from a Breckenridge drug store Friday night, and a close watch was maintained here for the thieves, reported heading this way. Whether Wilson and his companion were connected with the Breckenridge robbery was a matter of speculation among officers Sunday.

A vial of cocaine and small quantities of heroin and morphine were taken from Wilson when he and his companion who later escaped were stopped at Seventh and Ohio by officers. When the second made a break for liberty Allen held Wilson, while Barnett took in after the fugitive, firing several shots in the pursuit.

Wilson was transferred Sunday to the county jail. Bond had not been set. Action in the case awaits the October session of the federal district court.

Physician Employs Bullets Instead Of Capsules

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 31.—If a bandit kills a citizen it is to be taken as a matter of course; but if a citizen kills a bandit, something's got to be done about it.

Dr. Frank L. Nathanson killed two men when they entered his office last Thursday to hold him up. He beat them to the draw. But when the authorities came he couldn't prove the men were bandits. He was taken into custody and held, facing a possible murder charge.

Friends of the doctor got busy. With the aid of the authorities they found where the slain men had lived.

They were identified by two women with whom they shared rooms as Gilbert T. Ferris and Jack Stewart. They came here recently from St. Louis and, according to the women, had robbed a number of restaurants and held up a physician and committed a number of other crimes before they were slain by Dr. Nathanson.

Stewart, who also went under the name of Carl Kussner, was a member of President Wilson's bodyguard in Paris. Ferris had been a college student, attending Washington university at St. Louis and Georgetown university at Washington.

MEXICO LOSES MANY CITIZENS

Move to Halt Exodus Of Laborers Fails

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent, Special Cable Dispatch.

MEXICO, July 31.—Desperate efforts to check the flow of immigration to the United States by which Mexico is being bled of its workers have failed of their purpose, according to reports reaching the capital today from the border region.

Despite the most strenuous campaign designed to convice would-be immigrants that only misery awaits them in the United States the trek northward seems to continue practically without interruption.

In some parts of Mexico, reports reveal, an actual shortage of needed workers has been produced by the exodus. This is particularly true in the cotton districts around Torreon, where although exceptionally high wages are offered, cotton pickers are hard to find.

Not only does the flow of emigration continue, but, according to word received from the Mexican centers in the United States, the children of the emigrants are becoming Americans. A recent letter from a Mexican in Los Angeles to the Mexican department of education lamented this development the official reply was that the Mexican government was doing everything in its power to preserve the patriotism of the emigrants and their children, but that the Americanizing influences were very strong

Mexican newspapers continue to publish conspicuously the most astounding articles purporting to describe the sufferings undergone by emigrants to the United States They are described as enduring all sorts of misery, some even being driven to insanity by their trials. The difficulties of leaving Mexican territory and entering the United States also are vividly portrayed.

But, in spite of everything, the lure of employment, high wages and security in the United States continues to attract the Mexican worker.

Giant New York-to-Rome Plane Christened 'Old Glory' On Eve Of Hop

NEW YORK, July 31—The giant Fokker monoplane "Old Glory," in which Lloyd W. Bertaud and James D. Hill, United States air mail pilots, hope to fly to Rome and back, a trip of 4300 miles each way, was officially christened at Curtiss field this afternoon.

Congressman F. H. Laguardia introduced the two aviators, and said that the Old Glory would be "the most heavily ladened plane ever to leave America, because it will carry all the love and hope in the hearts of our Italian citizens here."

Other speakers were F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation; Giacomo de Martino, the Italian ambassador to the United States; Admiral Charles Flunkett, commandant of the third naval district; Major General Jas. H. McRae, commander of the second corps army area, and Clifford B. Harmon, the millionaire real estate man.

Actual christening ceremony was performed by Miss Theresa Passoni, of the Bronx, a graduate of Hunter college and American-born of Italian parents.

It rained occasionally, and the crowd sought shelter, on these occasions, in the many automobiles and in the hangar. The rain was heavy when Bertaud and Hi", with Congressman Laguardia, Major General McRae and Austin Clark, a newspaperman, as passengers, took the plane up for about half an hour, encircling the field many times.

Commander G. O. Guestafson of Old Glory post, presented the two pilots with a scroll.

Bertaud and Hills, beginning tomorrow, will put Old Glory through a stiff series of tests to determine the most economical speed. These tests will probably last a week or 10 days, after which the hop-off for Rome will be made.

BIG TRACTS OF LAND LIE IDLE

Reclamation Only Solution For Situation

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, July 31.—"Along the creeks and rivers of Texas there are millions of acres of virgin land subject to reclamation by drainage and by levees at reasonable cost," B. F. Williams, state reclamation engineer, said in a discussion of the levee and drainage possibilities indicated by topographic surveys, given at the water conservation and utilization meeting, farmers' short course.

"Many streams are now choked with weeds, brush and silt. The valley is sometimes cleared, and attempt made year after year to cultivate it, only to be abandoned after several plantings. It has never occurred to the farmer to improve the channel in order to keep the water in it. Water in one respect is like people—it takes the course of least resistance. If the valley is clear of obstructions and the channel is filled with brush, weeds and silt, the water will take the farmer's fields and crops in the valley.

Reclamation Idea.

"Reclamation by channel improvement and rectification has been practiced very successfully by some engineers in narrow valleys, but absolute protection against maximum floods can rarely be accomplished by this method. But the greater floods occur once in a 10-20 year period, and it is more economical to take the loss than to protect the land against them. Another advantage in this method of flood control lies in the fact that if a larger flood comes than has been prepared for, it can spread out over the valley without doing any damage either to the lands or the flood control structures.

"In the larger valleys complete protection can be secured by levees. This is the oldest, most dependable and most universally used method of flood control, having originated along with earliest agriculture. This may appear to be a very easy and simple method, but in actual practice it is apt to be very difficult.

"About 1,500,000 acres of the river bottoms of the state have been mapped by the state reclamation department with a view to aiding in bringing these neglected fertile lands into the common stock and making them available for cultivation.

Big Project Under Way.

"Very important reclamation undertakings are proceeding in Cameron, Willacy and Hidalgo counties, and in Wharton and Matagorda counties. The city of Dallas has in view a great levee system for the protection of the city and the development in various ways of the present unsightly tracts in the Trinity bottom in front of the city."

Negro Boy, 13, Injured When Struck by Car

Jesse McNeil, 13, negro, was taken to the Wichita General hospital late Sunday afternoon with bruises and minor injuries sustained when he was struck by a Ford coupe driven by Mattie Sewerl, negress, at the corner of Brick and Bonner streets. A Hines ambulance answered the call. Injuries are not serious, Dr. M. A. Beckman, attending physician, said.

A. TAXPAYER'S VIEW

Editor The Record News:

"I see in the semi-weekly Farm News printed at Dallas July 27 that D. E. Hirshfield of Waco, Texas, says he backs Moody by voting for all the amendments. I would like to know how much taxes this man pays.

"I live four miles south of Estelline in Hall county, Texas, in the Estelline independent school district. I paid for the year of 1926 state and county taxes $2-537.24. Of this amount $927.50 is road tax (it is $1.25 on the $100 valuation) and $657.70 is independent school tax. The independent school board doubles some and triples some of the state and county valuations on the part of my property that is in the school district. I am having a hard time making the money to pay it.

"I can't stand any more taxes. If Governor Moody and the representatives can't live on what they are getting, let them die and we will try another set.

Dixie Leads In Realm Of Sport

Texas Boy Climbs Peak In Net World

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 31.—That bumper crop of sports champions being grown by sunny Dixieland, which gave Bobby Jones to golf and Alabamas Crimson football tide to the gridiron, has now produced a national tennis figure.

He is young Wilmer Allison, of the University of Texas, who was today named intercollegiate tennis champion. Allison, received number one position in the intercollegiate singles rankings, made public by the United States lawn tennis association today.

The east upheld the tennis prestige built up by Tilden, Richards, and other net warriors, when J. Van Ryn and Kenneth B. Appel, of Princeton were named as national intercollegiate doubles champions.

Standfort Ranks High.

The Pacific coast section, which usually dominates the intercollegiate championship divisions, was saved from complete rout this year, when Standford was accorded the honor of largest number of players ranked. The coast university led all other colleges, with three men, Ben Gorchakoff, A. Harrington and R. McCelvenny, receiving positions in the first 10 of the singles rankings.

Princeton was second with two places in the doubles.

A perusal of the rankings reveals that this comparatively young court event, the intercollegiate tournament, has already become thoroughly national in its scope. Eight universities, representing practically every section of the country, are included in the singles rankings and seven in the doubles.

The selections were prepared by Charles N. Beard, chairman of the intercollegiate tennis committee, and referee of the recent, championship tournament held at the Merion Cricket club, Naverford, Pa.

Van Ryn Second.

John Van Ryn, the youthful Princeton star, who for two consecutive years has fought his way to the semi-finals of the national indoor tournament was given second place in the singles rankings, Ben Borchakoff, of occidental college, was third, and J. F. Whitbeck, of Harvard, four.

Cranston Holman, twice runner-up for the college title, and ranked number eight in the senior national rankings a year ago, was left completely off the list.

Ben Gorchakoff and N. Craig, of Occidental college were second on the doubles ranking list while Wilmer Allison and E. O. Mather, of the University of Texas, were given third position.

Allison's achievement is another argument against the popular theory that athletics have been more or less dormant in the south since the old Dixie sport of winging yanks, so popular in the days of Gen. Robert E. Lee, died out.

U. S. Needs Stars.

Particular significance is attached to the intercollegiate rankings at the present time because of the condition of the Davis cup team. The United States, having lost young Vinnie Richards, must depend upon the aging Tilden and Johnston for the bulwark of her cup team this year. Pitted against these veterans France has a quartet of youthful stars, in Borotra, La Coste, Cochet and Brugnon, who should be formidable in the tennis field for at least 10 more years.

So it is not strange that Uncle Sam is casting his eyes speculatively upon the younger generation of netsters.

Allison has made an excellent impression on tennis critics. In a recent dinner tendered the press by the United States Lawn Tennis association his name came up from discussion and Julian Myrick, former president of the national net organization, paid high tribute to the youthful southern player, saying he "not only had the reputation of owning an excellent stroke repertoir, but that he was also a fighter." The rankings follow:

Singles Rankings.

1.—Wilmer L. Allison, University of Texas.
2.—John Van Ryn, Princeton university.
3.—B. Gorchakoff, Occidental college.
4.—F. W. Whitbeck, Harvard university.
5.—A. Herrington, Stanford university.
6.—C. B. Marsh, Jr., Williams college.
7.—L. Ogden, Stanford university.
8.—R. McElvenny, Stanford university.
9.—M. Partridge, Dartmouth college.
10.—M. Hofkin, University of Pennsylvania.

Doubles Rankings.

1.—J. Van Ryn and Kenneth B. Appel, Princeton university.
2.—Ben Gorchakoff and N. Craig, Occidental college.
3.—Wilmer Allison and E. O. Mather, University of Texas.
4.—F. McElvenny and A. Harrington, Stanford university.
5.—W. B. Evans and S. E. Ewing Jr., Princeton university.
6.—F. W. Whitbeck and L. H. Gordon, Harvard university.
7.—C. B. Marsh Jr., and H. F. Wolf, Williams college.
8.—T. Clines and W. Clines, St. Xavier college.

POISONED RUM TAKES LIVES

Okla. Penitentiary Scene Drinking Joust

McALESTER, Okla., July 31. (AP) Three convicts of the Oklahoma state penitentiary are dead, two are in the prison hospital in a serious condition and three or four more are suffering from drinking wood alcohol within the prison walls, early today.

The dead:

Robert Barnett, serving a 35-year sentence for highway robbery from Craig county.

Joe Wilson, serving 18 months on narcotic charge from Seminole county.

J. D. Williams, serving three years for larceny from Seminole county.

Those seriously from draughts of the fluid are Oth Barnes, serving five years for burglary from Sequoyah county, and Eugene Wade, serving 10 years for robbery from Oklahoma county.

Others are believed to have partaken of the wood alcohol and according to Warden J. Q. Newell, three or four convicts may be ill in their cells.

Carol Will Try For His Crown

Disinherited Crown Prince Still Has Hopes

By Universal Service.

PARIS, July 31.—Prince Carol of Rumania tonight denied the reports that he would not seek to return to Rumania before the expiration of the ten years' exile imposed upon him but he is not intent on 'sneaking in.'

The former crown prince told Universal Service that he was awaiting reaction to a message to the Rumanian people issued last night before making any official move.

In his message, Carol declared that the renunciation of his rights to the Rumanian throne 18 months ago was forced upon him and he feels that he has the right to intervene personally to protect the interests of his son and the Dynasty and could not refuse to respond if any appeal was made to him by the Rumanian people.

"I am awaiting a response to my message, though I do not expect any immediate reaction," said Carol. "I issued a statement which I consider comprehensive in order to make it clear to everybody that under proper circumstances, I intend to go back to Rumania before the exile imposed upon me expires.

"The period of exile stipulated in the reunuciation is ten years. Having given notice, no one need be surprised if I do go back but I won't sneak in. I have said my last word for the present."

Sunday School Total Crowds Last Sunday

In spite of the absence of reports from approximately half of the Sunday schools of the city, attendance at the Wichita Falls churches on July 31 maintained a fair average in comparison with attendance of the previous Sunday by keeping close to the 2500 mark. KID DUGAN — By DICK DORGAN

London, England.
August 1, 1927.

Friend Al,

You don't hear nothing about baseball here in London, only cricket which they play in long pants. A American bartender where I stopped to get a glass of suds was asking me about the crooked World's Serious in 1919 and what become of the ball players and gamblers like Abe Attell what fixed it and etc. They remember all the crooked things here the same as in the U. S.

They tell me Georges Carpentier is dancing in Paris with Florence Walton and their act looks like the first round of the Dempsey-Tunney fight, a dance.

Yours in a monocle,

EXPERT GIVES POULTRY TIPS

Care of Pullets Biggest Factor in Success

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, July 31.—"Since the poultryman's future business depends upon his pullets, he should take a great pride in their growth and development," W. C. Homeyer, professor of poultry husbandry, John Tarlton college, Stephenville, said in a discussion of preparing pullets for the laying house given before the poultry group at the Farmers' Short course, A. & M. college of Texas.

"The success of any poultryman depends largely upon the proper preparation of the pullets for the laying house. Far too many people neglect the growing stock until the birds are ready for the laying house, and then they expect to find a feed that will make the small, weak and immature pullets lay eggs of good size, and plenty of them. A pullet that has been neglected during its growing period will lay les eggs, will be more susceptible to disease, will lay for much shorter period, and the eggs from such stock will, as a rule, produce weak chicks.

"The secret of success in feeding growing pullets its to neer feed a forcing ration. Give them a chance to grow and mature well before forcing egg production. A pullet that starts laying early at the season usually goes into a molt in the fall of the year, and consequently produces less eggs during the period that they are wroth most. Furthermore, a pullet that starts laying before it is well matured cannot stand the strain of high egg production and when used as a breeder will produce weak chicks.

"In order to mature pullets that will make real laying hens, be sure that you do not neglect the following points:

1. Separate the sexes and have all of the pullets in one house, grouping the pullets according to size. 2 Place them in a house with plenty of room, fresh air, roosters, feed hoppers, and water fountains. 3 Give them a range that is shady and provided with an abundance of succulent green feed. 4 Keep houses, yards, and birds sanitary and free from insects. 5 Be sure that the pullet get a properly balanced growing ration at all times, which includes green feed, mineral, and water, as well as grain and mash.

"Well prepared pullets mean strong healthy birds, and a good profit. Through preparedness, you are better able to compete with your fellow poultrymen regardless of feed and egg prices."

40 ARRESTED AT DANCE HALL

Constables Confiscate Beer And Guns in Raid

Officers of the constables' department in an all-night seige on a negro dance hall about seven miles north of Wichita Falls on the Seymour road, took stock of the fruit of their raid about 4 o'clock Sunday morning and found they had confiscated no less than 500 bottles of beer, three pistols, and had arrested in all about 40 singing negroes.

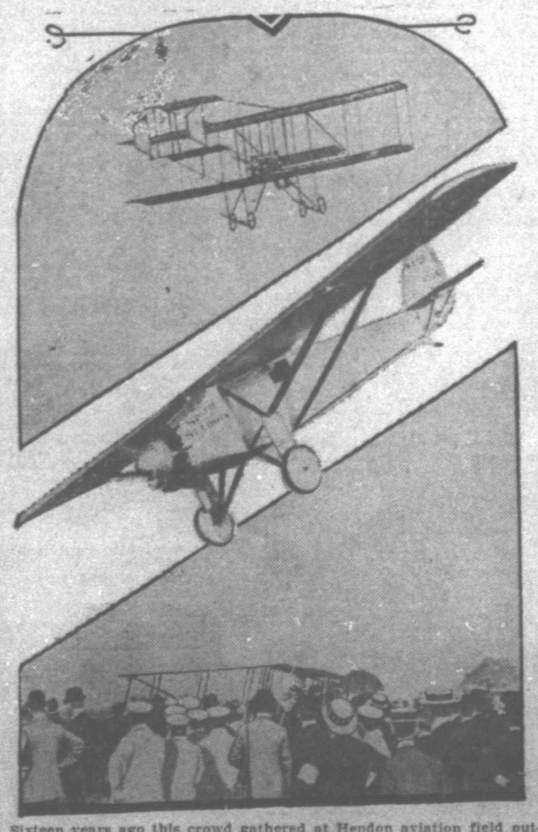

All were lodged in the county jail. Twenty-five of them made bond Sunday morning and the others are held, all to face charges ranging from gaming, vagrancy, intoxication, to carrying concealed weapons anad the possession of intoxicating liquors, in the justice court of O. L. Gibbs Monday and Tuesday mornings.

Constables "Blackie" Wilson, Dan Ellis, Ted Slusher, Bill Scott, and Lewis Coleman made the raid.

Man Jailed and Beer Confiscated in Raid

One man was lodged in the county jail, and a large quantity of beer was confiscated by officers of the sheriff's department, who conducted a raid on an alleged "beer joint" on the Iowa Park road late Saturday night. No charges were filed.

When Aviation Was Young

Sixteen years ago this crowd gathered at Hendon aviation field outside London, England, to watch Claude Graham-White fly the fragile, spidery collection of wood, wire and fabric which passed in those days for an airplane. By way of emphasizing the contrast of past and present, inset is a picture of Colonel Lindberg's plane which is now touring the United States in the interest of commercial aviation.

REBELS LOSE IN NICARAGUA

500 Marines Leave For United States

By Universal Service.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 31 Combined forces under Major Floyd and Capt. Aranas after a minor battle drove rebels under Colonel Sandino out of the village of San Fernandino. The rebels suffered the loss of several dead and wounded.

San Fernandino is 18 miles south of Ocotal on the road to San Albano mines, which the rebels also hold. Airplanes of the regular forces dropped some bombs on the latter place in the hope of dislodging the rebels, but the move was not successful.

The city of Somoto has been taken by rebels under one of Sandino's leaders.

Some of the American troops have left Tipi Tapa for the northern departments to guard ammunition and food supplies for the troops that are charged with disbanding the Sandino forces.

Five hundred of the American marines took passage yesterday for the United States on the transport Argonne.

Many families from Estell and Jinotega are coming to Managua fearing outrages by Sandino's men who are already threatening these cities, according to information gathered by the airmen. Groups of rebels have been seen going in the direction of Chontales where it is thought they have hidden large quantities of arms and ammunition.

Former Klan Dragon Talks

cerning the $2500 check which was made public by the Indianapolis Times, and which was paid to Ed Jackson, now governor, but gave also an explanation of his refusal to talk when called before a previous grand jury.

Limitation Abrogated.

It was on this point that the prosecutors were especially interested and the statute of limitations has run against the matters of which Stephenson wrote when he smuggled out his first letter 10 months ago. The law provides that the statute does not run when any concealment has been made by those affected. It is known that the prosecutors inquired into promises that may have been made and hopes held out for freedom and favorable action on his appeals.

Later in the morning Lloyd O. Hill, Stephenson's Indianapolis attorney, was called and went into the room with Stephenson still present.

The Miss Mildred Meade, former confidante of "Steve," who has been before the jury a number of times, appeared and was taken before the investigators.

Black Box Shown.

Deputy Prosecutor Sheaffer took one of the two "black boxes" and a bundle of what appeared to be letters and documents into the grand jury room.

This was presumed to be some of the material which the prosecutors obtained 10 days ago from Stephenson's agent, L. G. Julian, his former partner.

The grand jury is in possession of the 32 Stephenson cancelled checks which the former dragon turned over to the Times, and several other cancelled, uncalled-for checks which the Times located for the grand jury at the Indiana National bank.

Outstanding among the checks the Times turned over was the $2500 check to Governor Ed Jackson, which "Steve" said was a political contribution and Jackson said was payment for a "horse and equipment."

He'll Finish Job.

Robert H. Moore, Stephenson's attorney, reported Stephenson as saying Friday when arrangements were being made to bring him here: "I will go through with what I have started."

Moore said Stephenson added:

"I purchased the Marion county and state officials involved in this investigation in an open market and paid an excessive price for them. After that they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty.

"I can't even have the right to talk with my attorney privately. They have denied me that privilege. Now, I am going to turn them over to the state of Indiana for awhile."

Stephenson wore the same blue suit he had on when he was here last fall. He wore a gray cap. He was not handcuffed.

Made Visit Before.

Stephenson's other visit to this city, since he was sentenced to Michigan City for murder, was on Oct. 13, 1926, when he appeared before the first grand jury engaged in investigation of Indiana political corruption under his regime as grand dragon of the K. K. K. and self-styled "the law of Indiana."

READ AND WEEP

'Them Days' Have Gone Forever; Letter "Too Late."

By Universal Service.

UNIONVILLE, N. J., July 31. "Please send a gallon of good whiskey," the letter read. "Mr. and Mrs. Cole got hurt and need it bad."

It was found when they tore up the floor of a drug store here today.

It was addressed to C. E. Ferguson—but he died, years and years ago.

So it was turned over to his son Everett.

But Everett will not send the gallon of whiskey to W. E. Pollson, of Port Jervis, as requested; for, you see, the letter was posted in 1887.

It fell through a crack in the postoffice floor. And when the postoffice moved out and the drug store moved into the building the order for wet goods lay undisturbed.

It was Uncle Sam's fault that Mr. and Mrs. Cole didn't get the whiskey when they needed it bad; nevertheless he will not let anyone fill the delayed order now.

AMERICAN AND MARQUIS QUIT

Former New Orleans Woman Granted Divorce

By ROBERT J. PREW
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 31—Another stage in the marital vicissitudes of the former Josephine Wainwright of New Orleans was reached yesterday when a London divorce judge quietly granted her a decree against the Marquis de Amodio.

The new British law forbids the publication here of the details of divorce suits, the only announcement permitted in this case being the following:

"In an undefended suit Josephine Amodio de Moya, Marquise de Amodio, nee Wainwright, now living at Rice, sought dissolution of her marriage with Julio Amodio de Moya, Marquis de Amodio, on the ground of misconduct at a hotel at Cliftonville with a woman who is unknown. A decree nisi was granted."

Records show that the couple were married in 1903, and that Josephine is a niece of Ellis Wainwright who once thrashed the marquis on the street following a dispute over a loan. The couple separated in Paris early in 1914, the courts giving the marquis custody of their two children and ordering the wife to contribute $80 a month for their maintenance.

Ellis Wainwright once attained considerable notoriety when entangled in a charge of bribing the city council of St. Louis with $60,000 to pass a street car franchise. He afterward went to Paris to live.

"Wheat King" Foresees Prosperous Era in U. S.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Nothing but prosperity lies ahead of business and agriculture for the balance of this year, according to James A. Patten, multi-millionaire "wheat king," today.

"There's plenty of money for those who need it," he added, "and while I wouldn't say exactly that bankers are begging people to come and get it, the situation virtually amounts to the same thing."

Mexicans Are to Be Barred

ACCORDING to a Washington correspondent the restriction of Mexican immigration has been formally approved by Harry Hull, the commissioner general of immigration, and this may mean the beginning of legislation to apply the quota law of the immigration act to the entire western hemisphere. Commissioner General Hull declares that it is incongruous to limit all the rest of the world, including such countries as Great Britain, in the number that may be admitted to the United States and to allow unrestricted immigration from Mexico.

If the 70th congress approves the Hull recommendation, Mexico will be permitted to send about 1500 immigrants a year. This is calculated on the percentage of the number of persons of a given nationality resident here when the census of 1890 was taken. According to immigration officials 68,000 Mexicans came in in 1926.

Commissioner General Hull is of the opinion that the quota system should be applied to Canada. There is no quota restriction as far as Canada is concerned. It is admitted that western railroads and the heads of many industries in the southwest are certain to oppose the Hull recommendation. They say that Mexican labor is cheap and serviceable; that the Mexicans do the rough work of the southwest and that it is impossible to get whites or negroes to work in the fields, to serve the sheepmen and the goat raisers, to clear new land or to pick cotton when the picking season is on.

Commissioner General Hull has behind him the American Federation of Labor as well as all the allied labor organizations. Leaders of these organizations demand that the quota shall be applied to Mexico, Central America and Pan-American countries. Congressman John C. Box of Texas is a member of the house committee on immigration. He is for the Hull recommendation and is confident that the 70th congress will bar Mexicans and South Americans as well as Canadians by the application of the quota law, which governs the coming of aliens from European and Asiatic countries.

Cotton growers of West Texas as well as North Texas are for placing the bars high on the coming of Mexicans who are known as seasonable laborers. Cotton growers in the Gulf Coast country, the Magic Valley, and in that stretch of country from Corpus Christi to El Paso, are said to be opposed to the quota application and their representatives are expected to take up the gauge of battle when it is thrown in their teeth.

Organized labor is a power in the land. There is a presidential election coming. Now what will the congress and the president do about it?

Spencer and the Mexicans

THOUSANDS of Mexicans come to Texas yearly as seasonal laborers and when the harvest is over they hike back to their own country. Manager A. B. Spencer of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce is a former executive of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and for a number of years was engaged in ranching and farming out in the land of the open spaces. He insists that the farming industry and the railroads of Texas would be dealt a hard blow if the influx of workmen from Mexico were pinched down to the 1500 annually suggested by certain members of the federal immigration commission.

He declares that Texas with her annual problem of harvesting the great cotton crop needs the Mexican laborers who come to this country yearly and then return to Mexico at the close of the harvesting season. Cutting this down to 1500 is branded as an absurd suggestion by this former ranchman and farmer and banker, who is widely known throughout West Texas. Manager Spencer is not in harmony with the Box program. He is not in harmony with the quota program of the immigration commission. Speaking of the Hull quota proposal, he says the contention of those who want immigration from Mexico restricted is that there are now restrictions placed on would-be citizens from England, Germany, France and other countries and that Mexico should be no exception.

Manager Spencer is opposed to any restriction of immigration. His theory is that this country will be better off if we allow those to come over who are not criminals and who want to become good thrifty citizens of the United States. This is his conclusion, "Those are the kind of people who have founded this nation. Besides putting a ban on Latin-Americans, it would only add another cause of friction between us and the nations of the south."

Restricted immigration is a law of the land. Thousands of Canadians cross the border every year. They invade the United States to better their economic conditions. If the quota restriction is applied to Mexico and the South American countries, the politicians in congress backed by the great labor organizations, are certain to include the Canadian provinces in the quota restrictive act. This is the program of organized labor.

This will be the program of the political leaders in all congressional districts where the labor vote is a potential factor and in states where senatorial elections will take place in 1928.

Borger and the Rangers

BORGER wants the rangers recalled. Borger held a general mass meeting. It is said to have been an overflow affair. A committee was named to get in touch with Governor Moody. Asa Ramsey was named chairman of the committee. He is former chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve bank at Kansas City, and now president of the First National bank of Borger.

This committee will ask the governor to recall all rangers and give Borger opportunity to handle its own affairs. It was declared by the citizens in mass meeting assembled that Borger is peaceful, that the governor has been misinformed, that Borger has been misrepresented and that the services of the rangers are not needed. A petition signed by 50 leading citizens was forwarded to the governor some time ago asking the recall of the rangers who have been there since April 1.

A special grand jury sitting at Stinnet returned an indictment charging a ranger with assault and attempt to murder a deputy sheriff. Where is former Speaker Lee Satterwhite? In the not remote past he was a special guardian of the morals of Borger. Borger is in his legislative district. Borger is a big oil town. Did the Cherokee chief of Panhandle politics attach his name to the recall petition? Did he participate in the protest meeting? All the world would like to know.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 30. (EFS).—Not long ago two young men of considerable means laid a wager of $1000. They had been arguing about what could and what could not be done in New York. One of them asserted that New Yorkers were so used to seeing strange sights on the principal streets that one could affect any costume, however bizarre, short of complete nudity, and walk the length of Fifth avenue without attracting any special attention.

There is a law, of course, against improper exposure of the person, and a night-dress is supposed to come under that heading. The young men knew of this law, and the one who started the argument bet he could walk from Washington square to Forty-second street on Fifth avenue in a pair of silk pajamas without ever being questioned by a cop. The other one said he could not, and so the wager was made.

The confident one went to his wardrobe, selected a flowery suit of silk pajamas, a pair of bedroom slippers, and a Panama hat. He sent the doorman of the apartment building in which he lived around to the corner drug store for some brown grease paint such as actors use to give them a tan complexion behind the footlights. He smeared this on exposed surfaces of his skin, turned the brim of his Panama down and went out into the street. He held his hands in the sleeves of his pajamas like a stage Chinaman and shuffled along, head down. His friend followed him from a safe distance. Not only was the strangely-garbed fellow not stopped by a policeman, but not 10 persons turned to stare at him.

* * *

A news report from London tells of the growing tendency of young men to have their hair marcelled, even permanently waved. That is old stuff, as any Broadway hair dresser will tell you. Hair dressing for men has been a thriving business on Broadway for years. With the advent of the boyish bob for women, some of the Longacre square hair dressing shops would have gone out of business if the pretty boys of the musical shows had not continued to stimulate the trade.

Sally's Shoulders

© by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

"Heaven alone knew what went on in offices all day long," she declared.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, 20 and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has been separated from her mother for nine years.

The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY downtown afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But Sally refuses him, not because she minds working after she's married, but because she hopes to have a real home and babies when she marries. The only man in whom she is interested, however, is JOHN NYE, whose office is opposite Mr. Peevey's. Nye has hired the siren Millie as his stenographer, and Millie is waiting to take the position when he returns from a trip to see his mother, who is ill at a summer resort. Millie, out of work, borrows $2 from Sally to "tide her over." She spends it all and tries to borrow more, but Sally has only enough for the week. Beau, who seldom contributes a cent toward the upkeep of the house, has spent all of his on liquor for a party given by MABEL WILMOT, his best girl. He, too, is dead broke and tries to borrow some from Sally, who is forced to refuse him, too.

The next night she is amazed when Beau comes home with a guitar that he has long been craving. Millie, too, blossoms out in a brand new pale blue flannel, and Sally wonders where on earth they got the money for their purchases.

Ted Sloan, drawn by the sound of Beau playing the guitar, comes upstairs just as Millie's "sweetie"—a young man named DAVIDSON—arrives to take her out for the evening. Millie, who has been refusing to speak to Sally because she refused to let her cut down one of her dresses into a bathing suit, breaks her sulky silence long enough to ask Sally to go into the living room and entertain him while she finishes dressing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI

When Sally went back into the living room with its old brown walnut furniture, its crisp muslin curtains and pots of salmon-pink geraniums, Beau was still playing "Miami Shore" on his new guitar.

"Come on, Sally," the man named Davidson said, when he caught sight of her in the doorway. "Rattle your ankles for us again!" He spoke to her as casually as if he had known her for years instead of for five minutes. Sally hated his air of intimacy, all at once. She didn't like the way his eyes ran over her, from her head down to her slim ankles that he wanted her to "rattle" for him again.

She shook her head and dropped into Mrs. Jerome's old green velour chair. "Please don't ask me to dance," she said, and gave him a little smile that barely lifted the corners of her mouth. "I don't do it well enough."

This, of course, was not the truth. Sally was a marvelous dancer, and she knew it without conceit and without special pride in it . . . She simply knew that she could dance, just as she knew that she could cook and keep house well.

"I'll bet you do!" Davidson said with enthusiasm. "I'll bet there isn't a thing you do that you don't do well!" He came across the lamplit room and sat down on the wide arm of the green velour chair.

"Dear me," thought Sally. "I don't do anything particularly well. I can't sing or play the piano or do any of the smart things most girls can do. I'm just a plug—"

"She can cook!" came Millie's triumphant little voice from the door. She was standing between the curtains that hung there, a perfect picture of youth and loveliness and girlish innocence in her blue dress that matched her blue eyes.

"And she can scrub floors and wash dishes and iron clothes to beat the band," she went on with a soft, cruel little laugh. "Sally's just the dearest old kitchen mechanic that ever was. We couldn't keep house without her."

Sally felt her face going rosered with shame an dembarrassment. Millie's words made her suddenly feel thick-witted and slow and stupid—as if she were a human scrubbing brush, fit for nothing but the grubby tasks of this world.

And yet she knew that what Milly said was not the truth . . . She was not a scullery maid, even if she did keep house for the family. She was just as clever and smart and up-to-date as Millie, even if she wasn't as well dressed and cunning and pretty. Sally always thought of Millie as having all the looks in the family.

"So Sally's the housekeepr," Davidson said, slowly, and, looking up at him, Sally saw that his eyes were full of kindness. "Well, let me shake hands with you, Sally. You're the only girl I know who can cook a meal—and who isn't ashamed of saying so. Most of the kids that are growing up these days don't know a waffle-iron from a flat iron."

"I hope you aren't slamming me when you say that," piped Millie, who was never happy unless she were in the lime-light. "Come on, Davy, let's go if we're going."

She shot Sally a jealous glance from her shallow blue eyes, and bore Davidson off with the air of a warlike Indian hanging his enemy's scalp upon his belt.

"Nice baby, isn't she?" Ted Sloan asked when the pair of them were gone. He stood at the window with his back to the room, looking down into the street that was filled with twilight. "Nice, sweet sister to you."

"Davidson sort of fell for you, didn't he?" he asked quietly, after a little pause.

"Oh, me!" Sally said again. Who'd look at me when Millie's around?"

"I would," he answered, with a sort of huskiness in his voice. "I would, any day in the week—every day in the week!"

On Saturday Mabel came to have supper and spend the night with the Jeromes.

Beau brought her home with him at 5 o'clock. In his arms was a bulky gray package, and upon his head was a new felt hat.

"Bought myself a few socks and things, so you wouldn't have to wear your eyes out mending the old stuff any longer," he said to Sally, with the air of a missionary and a good Samaritan.

"That's nice," his sister answered, and as she spoke a little troubled frown printed itself upon her forehead. . . . She hoped that Beau handn't spent all of his salary on his new clothing. For with Millie out of work, it was going to be hard work to keep the bills paid unless she borrowed some money from him this week.

That night, when she went into his room to turn down the bed, it was littered with the things he had bought. There were six or seven new neckties on the dresser. The top drawer stood open, and it was filled with soft collars still in their glazed - paper envelopes. There were three new shirts — loud striped ones—on a chair beside the bed, along with a dozen pairs of heavy silk socks.

Sally gave a little gasp of astonishment as she looked at them. The troubled look came into her eyes again. . . . Why, Beau must have spent every nickel of his $40 salary on this stuff. It was all good, all expensive.

Then, as she opened the bottom drower to put the uhirt away, a folded slip of paper fell from them. She laid the shirts down and looked at it. It was the bill for Beau's splendor, and it was $46.45.

For the love of little green apes! Where did he get $46? said Sally, in a horrified whisper. Her eyes darted to one corner of the room, where the guitar stood upright against the wall—the guitar that he had bought three days ago, when he had said he was "flat busted."

Sally did not know exactly what a guitar cost, but she supposed that a good one was pretty expensive. She knew, too, that Beau wouldn't buy one unless it was a good one.

He disliked cheap things, he always said. Even the cigarets that were habitually pasted upon his lips were a cork-tipped kind that cost 30 cents a box.

"If I can't have the best, I don't want anything," was one of Beau's favorite sayings. "I'd rather do without!" And he did without very little that he wanted. A man can spend $40 a week upon himself, and have a fairly comfortable time of it.

"Mother must have got her check and turned it over to him," was the conclusion that Sally finally came to, as she put the clothes neatly away in his drawers.

Every month or so, a check came from Mr. Jerome for her. Sometimes it was not a very big check, and sometimes it was. The only bad feature of it was that it came at irregular intervals, and that Mrs. Jerome often spent it on foolish luxuries instead of putting it into the bank or paying a grocery bill with it.

Lately she had been turning it over to Beau and Millie, who knew when it was about due, and did not hesitate to ask for maney not hesitate to ask for money sght.

"Money just runs through my fingers," Mrs. Jerome was wont to say in her helpless, good natured way, and Beau and Millie were just like her. Born spendthrifts.

"Sally's the tightwad of the family," they often said, especially when she had refused to lend them money for cigarets or perfume of motion picture magazines.

Sally went now to her mother, who was sitting at the dining room table, reading and finishing her after-dinner coffee. She just would drink coffee at night, even though she stayed awake 'til dawn. She said she couldn't do without it. It kept up her strength — what strength she had.

The table before her was littered with dirty dishes and bread crumbs, and on the other side of it sat Millie, looking over a new woman's magazine. Mabel was reading it, from over her shoulder.

"Say, I thought you two were going to do the dishes for me, so I'd have tme to mend Mlle's stockings for her!" Sally spoke sharply to the pair of them. They were always promising to help her with the dishes or the bed-making in return for work she did for them.

Mabel opened her big eyes and shrugged one shoulder.

"I'm perfectly willing to do them—but I won't unless Millie helps," said she pertly. "There's no reason why I should—Beau pays for any trouble I make in this house."

Sally's scarlet mouth made a round O of astonishment. "Beau pays for any thouble you make here, Mabel!" she repeated. "Why, what are you talking about? Not that you're any trouble. We love to have you any time you can come—but don't get it into your head that Beau pays your board here, or anything like that. Why, Beau doesn't even pay his own board—"

"Sally! Sally! I wouldn't talk about my brother if I were you!" Mrs. Jerome glanced up at her daughter with strong disapproval, making her plump face almost haggard for an instant.

"Well, Mabel ought to know the truth about him. She's going to live with him all her life!" declared Sally. "It isn't fair to let her think that he pays her bills when he doesn't! He shouldn't be allowed to get away with such tales—"

She laid the bill for his clothes down before her mother on the cloth. "And you! You've been lending him your money again!" she said hotly. "Look at that! Spending almost $50 on those silly-looking clothes in there, when you haven't even paid your doctor bill for last month. When you need a new bathrobe and a lot of things and then he can pay $4 for one necktie, and $3 for another, and—"

"But I didn't lend him any money," Mrs. Jerome broke in mildly. "I haven't had my July check from your father yet. I haven't any money."

And then, all at once, her face seemed to crumple up like a dried rose-petal, and she began to cry.

"You talk to me just like your Aunt Emily does!" she sobbed. "You're getting to be just like her—just like her. And I can't stand it—I won't be scolded. I've got enough to bear as it is!"

Sally rushed to her and put her arms around her and begged her forgiveness. "Darling, you know I didn't mean to be nasty!" she whispered, while Millie and Mabel, moved to sudden action, began to carry out the dishes. "But it makes me wild when I haven't got enough money to keep you comfortable, and then Beau spends all of his on his own selfish self—I just burn up when I think of it!"

After a while Mrs. Jerome dried her tears and had a fresh pot of coffee.

"It doesn't matter, Sally," she said with a gulp. "I've had so many bangs and disappointments in life that it takes a lot to really down me."

She went on reviewing her wrongs. It seemed hard, she said, that they should have such a dreadful time of it all because of their father—because he ran away and left her to face the music alone.

"To think of my girls having to work in offices all day with a lot of tobacco-smoking men!" she sighed. "Especially Millie—Millie, poor little thing, is so attractive to men—"

Heaven alone knew what went on in offices all day long, she declared. She never had a minute's peace while her girls were away at work in them.

"You don't need to worry about us!" said Sally. "Not right now, anyway. But we've all got to worry about Beau . . . Where's he getting all this money later—this money that he's spending on guitars and haberdashery, eh?"

Startled, Millie came in from the kitchen, dish towel in hand.

"By jinks, that's right!" She cried. "He HAS had a lot lately, hasn't he? And do you know, he let me have the money to buy that blue flannel dress with! Forty-five dollars!"

MODISH MITZI — Heavy Correspondence — By JAY V. JAY

So many letters! exclaims Mitzi as she sorts out the most important looking ones. The arrival of mail in the country far from the maddening throng and tantalizing shops has a great significance. The Goofer is looking right through the transparent brim of her large hat and wondering a thing or two. (Who from? All of these?)

"No," Mitzi says. She is sorry but she can't play tennis till she's read her mail. That will take some time for hasn't she received folders from her favorite shops telling about the new things that have arrived since she left their midst. Now here's pink, delicate pink that has become fashionable in chiffon frocks.

"Just one more to open," mumbles Mitzi to the impatient Goofer. That last letter, of course, contained a circular about the very popular coolie coats that are worn on the beaches and for lounging jackets. This one is of heavy silk with a gorgeous splashy design. Notice her hat has a ripple edge to the wide brim.

"I've got to answer one or two of them right away," says Mitzi. It's as important as all that. Poor Goofer. He cherishes a fond hope that she will be as eager as that to write him some day. He ought to know that no man can compete with fashions. Well, he'll wait. He's done a lot of that around Mitzi before.

RUBBER BALL HEARTS BEST

They Don't Break Quite So Easily

Why are So Many Attractive Old Maids Unmarried— The Bride Who Cannot Cook.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have observed that almost all the flappers and very young girls are married, whereas many intelligent and dignified women are left unwed. Is this because Providence has special care for fools, while the wise are left to care for themselves? Which type of woman do you think is best—the one who falls in and out of love easily or the woman who lover but once?

A READER.

ANSWER: It is one of the inscrutable mysteries of life why so many young women who are apparently designed to be ideal wives and mothers never have a chance to fulfill the purpose for which they seem to be created. Every community has its scores of old maids who have every quality that would fit them for being perfect helpmates to any man, but men have passed them over for inferior women.

I know plenty of girls who are pretty and bright and attractive, who are interesting to talk to and good to dance with, who are thrifty and industrious and domestic and who would make wonderful wives, yet they never have a date. Men pass right by their doors to see girls who are less good-looking and who are silly and selfish and extravagant and who will be a curse to the men they marry.

Why men do this, nobody knows. Perhaps your explanation that there is a special Providence that looks after the fool flapers is as good a one as any. I have always attributed it to the lack of intelligence and taste in men. But when all is said, it is a strange and incomprehensible thing that men who are intelligent enough in other matters should be such poor judges of women.

Undoubtedly the highest type of woman is the one who gives her whole heart in one love; but this is not the happiest type of woman, because if the one she loves fails her she is forever bankrupt in affection.

The lucky woman is the woman who falls in and out of love easily. Her heart has the resilence of a rubber ball and no man more than scratches it. It never breaks.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTRY DIX—I am going to be married and I cannot cook. Don't you think my husband-to-be is taking a great chance?

BLONDIE.

ANSWER: On dyspepsia, yes. On happiness, no, unless you are the type of woman who does not mean to make a home for her husband. It is a pity for a girl to get married without knowing how to cook, because about the third mean meal brings the honeymoon to an end with an abruptness that jars most of the romance out of both the bride and the groom.

Whereas, if the wife who knows how to cook and the housekeeping runs along on greased wheels, the sentimental situation can be prolonged almost indefinitely.

You see, love has to be nourished, especially a man's love. If you will observe, even before marriage, you will note that your sweetheart is never so affectionate and never so prone to compliments and sweet talk as after he has just had a good meal. Then everything looks rosy and you are the Only Girl in this best of all possible good worlds.

After you are married much of your husband's attitude toward you is going to depend on how he is fed. Let him come home to a good dinner and a smiling little wife in a pink bungalow apron and he feels that his dream of domestic felicity is being realized. But let him come home tired and hungry to a wife who is dissolved in tears because she has made a pie that she could sell for concrete and let him sit down to a meal that would kill an ostrich and he is disillusioned and disgusted man.

Many a man gets his first clear-eyed vision of his wife as an incompetent homely little slattern when he sees her across a dirty tablecloth. Many a man's first criticism is coupled with his remarks on his wife's cooking. And so if I were a girl I wouldn't take that chance of disallusioning my husband about myself. I'd learn how to cook before I got married, as the best-known means of preserving my husband's love.

But if you really want to learn how to cook you can do it. Any woman who can read can make herself a first-class cook in three months. And if she is wise she will put off the wedding until she learns how to do it.

Christian Scientist Says She Will Not Die

NEW YORK, July 31. (AP)—The New York World in a copyrighted article says Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, leader of a movement of dissenting Christian Scientists, declares she will not die and that Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science who died in 1910 will manifest herself again on earth in human form.

Mrs. Stetson says she has so fir grasped the ideas set forth by Mrs. Eddy that she will not experience death in the sense that she experienced physical birth.

STICK TO A REGULAR DIET

Oftentimes, it seems that the best patients are those who do not have homes, and who eat their meals by themselves in restaurants. These people seem to be better able to stay on the diet prescribed than those who live at home and eat with other members of the family. The patients hardest to do anything with are those who go out to parties a great deal, and who are constantly tempted by the sight of appetizing dishes, the use of which will upset a carefully planned diet which has been prepared for them.

Those who are trying to live on diets, such as I recommend in this column, should have no difficulty in selecting a meal of good combinations from any meal which is served to them at their friends' houses. The good foods are usually there, but in addition to the three or four good articles which are necessary, the average table contains as many as ten or fifteen more unnecessary dishes which are prepared apparently with one sole object in view, namely, to tempt the appetite of the diner so he will over-eat. When friends are invited to your house, you invariably try to fix up a number of dishes which are more queer than those served on you by these same friends. Thus, one housewife contests with the other to see if she cannot prepare a larger and tastier meal.

A business man who is successful in following certain definite rules about buying and selling has, perhaps, achieved his succes because of adhering to certain strict business principles. The same man who would not change his business methods which have proven successful will sit down to a friend's table and throw over all dietetic rules, eating foods which he knows will be harmful to him as has been proven in times past.

A chemist, who knows that there are rules of food chemistry as well as those of inorganic chemistry, needs only a little urging by some friend to put into his stomach an inharmonious conglomeration of soup, meat, bread, pie and coffee, which he knows to be a bad mixture from a chemical standpoint.

Few people have the will power to stay on a regular diet, when their appetites are tempted by foolish friends who wish to "treat" them to some favorite food or drink. It takes a good deal of "uncommon" sense for one to have the courage of his convictions enough to be able to eat with his friends and still stick to a strict diet, and not be harmed by bad dishes with which he is tempted. One who can remain on a strict regime, however, will be well repaid by the admiration of his friends, and better still, by his own estimate of himself.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Inquirer writes: "I am very fond of all kinds of fish, but I notice that you never recommend sardines. I had an idea that those put up in oil were pretty good. What do you think of them?"

ANSWER: The sardines in oil are the best for you to use, and if your digestive power is good you can use these sardines as the protein part of a meal, using whatever non-starchy vegetables you desire. Tomatoes seem to combine very well with sardines.

QUESTION: Miss M. P. writes: "Please tell me whether I should see a doctor. I suffer from palpitation of the heart. Sometimes I have a feeling in every part of my body as though things were crawling inside of me."

ANSWER: You doubtless have some kind of functional heart trouble caused by excessive intestinal gas. The movement of the gas is probably what you feel which gives you the sensation of something crawling inside of you. Your doctor can tell you whether or not you have any other trouble, and you should go to him for a diagnosis.

QUESTION: Mrs. E. A. C. writes: "Neither my husband nor myself ever miss reading your invaluable articles in the paper, but I have not seen an article about the tiny thread worms which bother my children so much."

ANSWER: Thread worms can always be removed by a course of enemas. Give your children two enemas each day for about a week. If you will thereafter keep them on the right diet there will be no return of the worms.

QUESTION: Wm. J. C. writes: "On account of a sluggish, half-sick feeling in the mornings I do not eat any breakfast, but during the day drink lots of milk and chocolate milkshakes. Why this lack of appetite on arising?"

ANSWER: Take fruit for breakfast and lunch, and eat a well balanced meal at night. Eliminate the milk and milkshakes entirely and you will soon find you are hungry for breakfast and your muscs will disappear.

SCHOOL WINS HIGH RATING

Childress High Listed With 31 1-2 Credits

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, July 31.—With 31 1-2 units of affiliation this year for the high school, the Childress schools will open September 12, according to an announcement made Saturday by Roger A. Burgess, superintendent of schools. This is the largest number of units of affiliation ever possessed by the Childress high school as three of them were obtained at Austin this summer by Mr. Burgess.

The three new buildings which were not open at the start of last year will be in service all of the present year. The faculty is the same this year with few exceptions. The prospects for a record-breaking enrollment are good. These observations, and a request for the continued excellent co-operation and support on the part of the parents and students made up the body of the superintendent's announcement.

Tulsa Police Chief And Sheriff Indicted

TULSA, Okla. July 31 (AP)—Facing indictments returned by a federal grand jury, Reese D. Moran, Tulsa police chief, and R. D. Sanford, Tulsa county sheriff, surrendered to Henry G. Bard, United States marshal, late this afternoon.

Both men immediately furnished bond and were released from custody.

Two indictments were returned against Sheriff Sanford, one charging he allowed a federal prisoner to escape, and the second alleging possession of liquor.

One indictment was returned against Chief Moran, containing three counts, alleging possession, transportation and disposing of liquor.

Fort Worth Cops Down Waco in Ball Game

FORT WORTH, July 31, (AP)—Combined efforts of the Fort Worth police and fire department ball teams subdued the Waco fire department nine at Worth field Saturday but it was no easy task, the game going 11 innings before the home guard won. The score was 7 to 6.

GOLF WIDOWER DIVORCED.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Nova Angustus Brown, who represented himself as a golf widower, has been divorced. He averred his wife was on the links so much that she never could sew buttons for him. She obtained a decree on other grounds.

SPUDS SPLIT WITH SANTONE

Bears Come Back Strong In Night Cap

SAN ANTONIO, July 31.—After Milt Steengrafe had come to George Payne's rescue and saved the first game of a double-header, 6 to 4, the prospect champs found Dana Fillingim's spitter hard to hit in th seven-inning second game of 1 to 0.

The Spuds cracked the left-handed slants of Sep Good for their six runs early in the first game, then Good settled down and held them hitless in his last four innings on the hill while the locals strove vainly to bring the scores level. When it seemed they might succeed, Steengrafe came in and turned back the Bruins with ease and finesse.

Cobb Has Tough Break

Cobb lost a tough one in the second game, allowing but five hits to eight that his mates made off Fillingim. But Bob Harris, the Texas university rookie, singled through second in round four after Phipps had handcuffed Swenson with a wallop and advanced on a sacrifice and an infield out. The one-run that resulted was enough to decide the game. The Spuds threatened almost constantly but Fillingim and his mates were there in the clinches. In the third inning, Fitzgerald grounded to the pitcher with the bases full and an out at the plate resulted. Lamb's grounder to Harris ended that to deliver and two runners were left stranded. Ten Spudders died on bases.

In the first game, Benton opened the fun with adouble, but a twin killing temporarily halted the visitors. Jenkins singled to start the big second frame. Griffin scored him with a double and came home on Swenson's two-bagger. Two infield outs followed but Benton tripled, scoring Swenson and Turgeon laced on through short to bring in Benton.

Turgeon Goes Out

Turgeon went out stealing.

Two innings later, Swenson singled, Tobin walked, Payne sacrificed and Benton hit a sacrifice fly to score Swenson. Turgeon poked out a hit to count Tobin. Fitzgerald doubled but Lamb left both runners aboard by flying to Najo.

A single, a force out and Wirts first first of two triples gave the Bears a run in the fifth. Klein and Najo opened the busy ninth with doubles. Leslie fanned. But Wirts tripled and when Tim Grisenbeck, just signed as acatcher, came up to pinch hit and walloped a single, scoring Wirts, Payne was derricked. Flaskamper fouled Steengrafe's first pitch and Tobin captured the ball. Brown smacked one down to Benton, who fumbled momentarily but recovered quickly and threw the batter out to end the game. The teams will take a day off Monday and play off their postponement of early June on the last visit of the Spudders here as part of a double header on September 4.

BUFFS CAPTURE TWO

HOUSTON, July 31. (AP)—After spotting the Dixie champs to a two run lead in each encounter, the Buffs Sunday came through with smashing rallies to grab a twin bill from Dallas, 6-2, and 7-3. In the initial fracas, Ken Penner twirled his eighteenth triumph of the season. When Grabowski faltered in the third round of the second game Carleton went to the hillock and proceeded to show just how much stuff he can put on the old agate when he is right.

Father to Defend Accused Daughter

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31. (AP)—George F. Morse today declared he would spend as much of his $500,000 fortune as was necessary to defend his daughter, Miss Bessie Morse and her negro maid, Mamie Todd, who were indicted yesterday on charges of conspiring to take his life and those of three relatives. Morse, who furnished the $7,000 bail for his daughter, after her arrest on the charges last month today retained former Judge Freeman Woodbridge as counsel.

Cubs Gain Half Game On Loafing Pirates

CHICAGO, July 31. (AP)—Chicago gained half a lap on the league leading Pirates who were idle today by hammering both Pruett and Decatur hard to win the second game of the series 12 to 5, before a crowd of about 30,000. Pruett was knocked off the hill in the first inning and Decatur was peppered hard in the fifth and sixth. Hack Wilson smashed out his 19th homer of the season and scoring behind Scott in the sixth. Charley Root eased up toward the finish and had little difficulty turning in his 18th victory of the year. Score:

CUBS WIN COUPLE.

WACO, July 31. (AP)—The Waco Cubs broke their double header jinx here today by defeating the Shreveport Sports 9 to 6 and 6 to 4. In the first contest the Sports rapped Elliott hard but Kerr who relieved him held the visitors in check. Pratt for Waco and Taylor for the Sports were the slugging stars, the former getting four singles in five times up and Taylor duplicating including a home run with none on. Windle, Roy Moore and Hayworth also hit circuit drives. Windle's play at short featured the night-cap, robbing two visitors of hits and turning them into outs. Gill hit for the circuit with none on. Longhorns Rout Muny Gas Nine

Wild 19 to 1 Contest Put On Here Sunday

The Panhandle Longhorns hammered the slants of two Muny gassers slab artist Sunday afternoon at Katy park for a wild 19 to 1 win for the league leaders. The Gassers touched Jimmy Parker for two hits, and both of these were turned in by Olin Harvey, Gasser shortstop. Connally held them hitless over a span of three innings and Randolph turned them back in the seventh frame.

Toad Graves and Riley Rawls led the attack with three base blows to their credit while Johnny McMahon turned in the filding feature of the game with his running catch of O'Neal's drive in the seventh. In the last frame the Panhandle outfielders played in the infield and McMahon raced back to take the short fly over his head while running at full speed with the ball.

Jimmy Parker working the first three inings for the Lonkhorns was airtight and seven strikeouts were registered to the youngster. In the second and third innings he fanned the three men that were retired.

Olin Harvey collected two hits and was safe on a nerror in the three times that he came to plate and he made good use of the time that he was on the bases by pilfering four bases, which included home for the only Gasser run.

A two-man triple steal was the method used by the Gassers to shove over their run. Harvey was ond base and Land was on first. Harvey made a sweeping dash for third base and had the bag pilfered clean when Land started for second. Toad Graves heaved to the mid station and Harvey caught everybody flat footed when he flashed across the pan before the ball could be returned to the plate.

The Panhandle had one big inning when they scored nine runs in the third inning. In this frame the whole team scored oe run each and they went out with three men left on the bases.

Fred Couper Jr. Meets Bonner

Finalists in Golf Trophy Tourney Chosen

Fred Couper Jr., will clash with J. H. S. Bonner this week over the Country club course for the chamuionship of the annual Joe Art trophy golftournament.

Couper won his way through the final round Sunday by a great victory over the adroit Roscoe Davis, 4 and 3. Bonner went into the final by semi-final default over Dudley Golding.

Newt Maer plays G. F. Reppy for the second flight championship. Maer beat W. E. Fitzgerald, 1 up and Reppy downed the hard-hitting Morris Norton, 3 and 2, in semi-final play.

W. U. McCutchen defaulted to Gose Waggoner in the third flight semi-finals. Waggoner will meet the winner of the C. O. Davis-Fred Elbert match. Davis and Elbert fought anoble 18-hole battle yesterday at the close of which they were all square. The men are to play off the tie early this week, Professional Bill Strachan said.

Fast Mat Card Here Tuesday

Hassan Vs. Yaqui Joe; Gorman Vs. Reed

Jack Gorman and Ali Hassen, both of whom are billed on the Ross stadium wrestling card Tuesday night, were forced to make a raid on the first aid kit and liniment department over the weekend. Gorman goes after Mike Reed in an honest-to-goodness grudge bout. Hassen tackles Yaqui Joe, the Indian. So Gorman and Hassen decided to give each other a gentle working-over by way of preparation for their matches. But they were gentle only at the start. Hardly had the grapplers got under way before one slapped the other a bit too hard. Then the other put on a wrist lock and slipped a little extra pressure to it. First thing either of them knew, they were going to it hammer and tongs. They fought each other furiously for the better part of an hour and 10 minutes, then shook hands and hunted up the liniment bottle.

Sunday, Gorman was sporting a heavily blood-shot optic when Hassen had bead-locked him wickedly. The Turk was carrying around a bulging right jaw where Gorman had retaliated with a head lock. Both were scratched up considerably.

HUNTER BEATS DOEG

NEW YORK, July 31. (AP)—Francis T. Hunter of New York defeated the sensational young Californian, John Doeg, today in the finals for the metropolitan turf court tennis championship. The score was 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Tex Rickard Appears King Papa In Chicago For Next Big Fight

By HARRY MACNAMARA
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 31.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, the world's greatest producer of what he is pleased to term "boxing conventions," appears to have conquered Chicago single-handed and without a struggle. He came here last Thursday and fortwith issued his now famous statement, towit:

"Chicago can have the fight if it wants it."

The statement, although somewhat short, had been carefully prepared with the idea in mind, of course, that it would give him an "out" if the necessity for that sort of thing presented itself.

Rickard came to Chicago fully expecting to encounter several obstacles that might playfully be referred to as fights against his plans to stage the "annual battle of the century—1927 edition" at Soldier field, September 15.

Few Utter Growls

There were few dissenting growls against the bout before and after his arrival. But "one by one they folded their tents and were lost in the wilderness," describes the present situation exactly. Rickard has not encountered any organized opposition to his plan.

There remains now only the formality of the South park board meeting tomorrow at which the r e n t a l of Soldier Memorial field or the battle will be sanctioned and another meeting which will see the Illinois state athetic commission put its seal of approval on the bout to make Rickard's formal announcement of the combat a safe and sane procedure.

Lull Before Storm

Today and Saturday constituted what might be termed the lull before the storm. George Getz, chairman of the mayor's civic activity committee, and the man in whose name the license to promote the show will be issued, was out of town.

So was Edward F. Kelly, president of the South park board, and John C. Righeimer, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission.

All three of these gentlemen who have and will play important parts in the "annual battle of the century, Chicago edition," will return to the city tomorrow.

After a few conferences "Tex" can come right out flat-footed and announce that "Chicago will get the fight" and state the reasons why which he has known for more than a month.

10-Round Decision

It might be well to mention the fact that Gene Tunney, the soldier champion, and Jack Dempsey, of whom you may have heard, will be the principals in "the annual battle of the century, Chicago edition." They will box 10 rounds to a judges' decision, and the title and a lot of money, perhaps more than two million, will be at stake.

SPORT a la CARTE

by ROY GROVE

Psychologists who talk about the "will to win" and the disciples of the eminent Frenchman, M. Coue, who believe that "every day in every way I am getting better and better," will point to Jack Sharkey, the Boston Lithuanian, and to Harry Cooper, the 24-year-old golf professional, as an examples of the wisdom of their creed.

Here are two head-liners in sport who work alike. Sharkey believes he is the greatest fighter in the world and says so. Cooper believes that he is the greatest golfer in the world and says so.

Men have told me that they do not like Sharkey. Others have told me that they do not like Cooper. They dislike Sharkey because he says he can whip anybody. They dislike Cooper for the same reason.

Recently I was discussing the matter with a veteran umpire.

"Sharkey is likely to lick Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. He's got enough confidence to do it," this veteran umpire told me.

Cooper is likely to beat the field of professional golfers for the same reason.

* * *

Their various statements sound like braggadocio. Statements like those of Sharkey and Cooper are not regarded as good form. They are in violation of social manners and they violate the code of sportsmanship, but I cannot get angry about the matter as many have done. I cannot even take exceptions to their remarks. Sharkey and Cooper are simply frank and honest. They do not mean to boast about their skill. They are stating an honest belief in a frank way. They are sincere in their expressions. I cannot criticize a man for being frank, honest and sincere.

If Sharkey would say:

"I don't think I can lick either Dempsey or Tunney. They're too good for me. I'll be lucky if I last six rounds with either. I'd like to be able to lick either of them but I know I can't even expect a draw or a near-draw."

Then I should say that he deserves criticism because Sharkey would be teling an untruth. He would be a hypocrite.

Or, if Cooper would say:

"I'm the luckiest golfer that ever lived. I've got to have all the breaks in the world to beat any of these good golfers."

Then I would think that he was open to criticism. He, too, would be a hypocrite.

* * *

After one of the world series between the New York Yankees and the New York Giants, Colonel Tillinghast Huston, then part owner of the Yankees, was found deep in gloom while the Giant Supporters were celebrating the victory of the McGraw team.

"What's the matter, Cap? Why so glum?" asked a friend.

"You don't expect me to have the laugh of my life tonight, do you?" asked Huston in reply. "Sure I'm glum. I'm all broken up about this series. I thought sure that we would win. I expected nothing else.

"I suppose I could stand around and smile and laugh and crack jokes and people would go out saying, 'That Hutson is a great sportsman; a fine loser.' Yes, they would say it. But if I stood around smiling and laughing and cracking jokes, I would be the world's biggest hypocrite tonight. I'm heart-broken and I'm making no bones about it.

"All my life I've heard about good losers and all my life I have tried to find them. I have found some mighty fine actors but I haven't found any good losers."

I like Sharkey and I like Cooper. They, like Colonel Huston, are not trying to be something else. They express their honest convictions.

SHIPPERS SPLIT WITH CATS.

BEAUMONT, July 31. (AP)—The Fort Worth Cats won and lost here today taking the first from the Exporters 6 to 1 in ten innings and dropping the second 7 to 3. In winning the aftermath Elmer Hansen maintained his position as the league's leading pitcher. Six runs in the sixth inning pulled him from behind a 2-1 lead set up when Joe Bonowitz hit a home run with two on. Moore's sacrifice fly after Bonowitz had singled gone to second when Odom dropped an assist at first and to third on Kibbie's sacrifice produced the deciding tally in the opener. Score:

ABILENE POLO TEAM ABSENT

Local Players Choose Up For Impromptu Tilt

Abilene poloists failed to show for their game with the Wichita Falls guardsmen Sunday, so the Wichita Falls civilian team and guardsmen chose up sides and put on a lively practice affair at Call field.

The Blue outfit copped the laurels in a bitterly-battled bout, 5 to 4, with the veteran Doc Fletcher riding a hard game for the victors. The teams lined up three players each, necessitating swift riding and snappy maneuvering that almost wore the noble horse athletes to a frazzle.

With such an open field, every man got a chance to flash brightly and knock off some sweet riding both defensively and offensively. The smooth-working Whyte teamed with the veteran Prendergast and the youthful star, Dick Goodman in the army Red. The riotous Mr. Robbins rode a laurel game with Fletcher and Colonel Wieler in the civilian Blue.

Robbins played his usually spectacular game. Wieler was there in a pinch practically all the way.

The lineups:

Blue		Red
Wieler	(1)	Prendergast
Robbins	(2)	Goodman
Fletcher	(3)	Whyte

Wichita Falls guardsmen plan shipping their ponies Monday morning to Camp Palacios, Texas national guard encampment, where the Red will tackle other guards teams in match games next week. Wieler, Fletcher, Prendergast and Goodman will carry the Wichita Falls colors.

450 Water Meters Put In Place For Walters

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., July 31.—Approximately 450 of the 600 water meters necessary to meter the city have been placed here, according to Huber L. Drumwright, commissioner of public property. The new meter rates will began September 1, at which time the flat rate in use during the past few years will be discountinued. The new rates will be $1.00 for the first thousand gallons used, and 50c for each succeeding thousand. The purpose of meter installation is to prevent water waste, and to establish rates that will be fair to all consumers.

HANK AN' ROSE AT MISSION

Two Brennans; Zal Frazell Are Headliners

By STEVE STEVENSON.

The two Brennans hooted their way into popularity in Wichita Falls.

They pulled the stunt Sunday night when the team, Jimmy Brennan and Hank Brennan, picked 'em up and put 'em down during the presentation of "The Bar Z Ranch" at the Mission theater. As dancers Jimmy and Hazel can give odds to the best of hoofers and then cop the blue ribbon.

Honey Hank Harris and Rose Harris gleaned all the laughs in the customers that were possible to glean. Both maintained their reputations as fun-makers gained during previous appearances in Wichita Falls.

Was Zoe Frazell in the show? We'll say she was. Zoe was there with all of her "blues" and when she sang, "A Woman Gets Tired of the Same Man All of the Time," and "Come Home Papa, Mamma's Got the Rent to Pay," Zoe didn't do "nuthin' else" but stop the show.

And Joyce Culbertson was there too. Joyce has showed 'em before that she can dance and she showed 'em" again Sunday night.

Hank and his quartet held the next to closing spot in the presentation. In addition to Hank, Tim Moore, Clarence (Fat) Haughton and Jimmy Brennan composed the quartet. And they all can warble to the satisfaction of every one concerned.

Former State Engineer Released On Bond

AUSTIN, July 31. (AP)—L. J. Nachtrab of Austin, state highway division engineer of this district during former Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's term was released late today on bonds totaling $5500 as security for 11 indictments returned against him Thursday charging forgery and passing of state highway warrants.

Each of the latter indictments called for $500 bond as did five charging forgery brought against him some time ago by the Travis county grand jury. Twelve persons are bond sureties.

The last batch of true bills charged Nachtrab with forging state checks for around $1100.

The grand jury will re-convene August 8, for further investigation of alleged "padded payrolls" of the 1926 highway department.

Childress to Conduct Amendments Election

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, July 31.—At the instigation of citizens of Childress county who during the last few weeks have shown interest in the Monday election on constitutional amendments, a general election throughout the county was ordered for Monday by County Judge W. B. Howard in a statement Sunday night. Previously the election for this county had been called off on account of the failure to post election notices.

Wales Attends Services In Historic Cathedral

By Universal Service.

QUEBEC, Que., July 31.—The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Stanley Baldwin attended services this morning at the Anglican Cathedral of the Holy Trinity. This is the oldest English cathedral in Quebec. The prince and party occupied the royal pew in the north of the gallery. The princes were dressed in sack suits and bowler hats. Only a few hundred persons gathered near the old iron palings of the church as the princes arrived for the service at 10 o'clock.

SPUDS SPLIT WITH SANTONE

Bears Come Back Strong In Night Cap

SAN ANTONIO, July 31.—After Milt Steengrafe had come to George Payne's rescue and saved the first game of a double-header, 6 to 4, the prospect champs found Dana Fillingim's spitter hard to hit in th seven-inning second game of 1 to 0.

The Spuds cracked the left-handed slants of Sep Good for their six runs early in the first game, then Good settled down and held them hitless in his last four innings on the hill while the locals strove vainly to bring the scores level. When it seemed they might succeed, Steengrafe came in and turned back the Bruins with ease and finesse.

Cobb Has Tough Break

Cobb lost a tough one in the second game, allowing but five hits to eight that his mates made off Fillingim. But Bob Harris, the Texas university rookie, singled through second in round four after Phipps had handcuffed Swenson with a wallop and advanced on a sacrifice and an infield out. The one-run that resulted was enough to decide the game. The Spuds threatened almost constantly but Fillingim and his mates were there in the clinches. In the third inning, Fitzgerald grounded to the pitcher with the bases full and an out at the plate resulted. Lamb's grounder to Harris ended that to deliver and two runners were left stranded. Ten Spudders died on bases.

In the first game, Benton opened the fun with adouble, but a twin killing temporarily halted the visitors. Jenkins singled to start the big second frame. Griffin scored him with a double and came home on Swenson's two-bagger. Two infield outs followed but Benton tripled, scoring Swenson and Turgeon laced on through short to bring in Benton.

Turgeon Goes Out

Turgeon went out stealing.

Two innings later, Swenson singled, Tobin walked, Payne sacrificed and Benton hit a sacrifice fly to score Swenson. Turgeon poked out a hit to count Tobin. Fitzgerald doubled but Lamb left both runners aboard by flying to Najo.

A single, a force out and Wirts first first of two triples gave the Bears a run in the fifth. Klein and Najo opened the busy ninth with doubles. Leslie fanned. But Wirts tripled and when Tim Grisenbeck, just signed as acatcher, came up to pinch hit and walloped a single, scoring Wirts, Payne was derricked. Flaskamper fouled Steengrafe's first pitch and Tobin captured the ball. Brown smacked one down to Benton, who fumbled momentarily but recovered quickly and threw the batter out to end the game. The teams will take a day off Monday and play off their postponement of early June on the last visit of the Spudders here as part of a double header on September 4.

BUFFS CAPTURE TWO

HOUSTON, July 31. (AP)—After spotting the Dixie champs to a two run lead in each encounter, the Buffs Sunday came through with smashing rallies to grab a twin bill from Dallas, 6-2, and 7-2. In the initial fracas, Ken Penner twirled his eighteenth triumph of the season. When Grabowski faltered in the third round of the second game Carleton went to the hillock and proceeded to show just how much stuff he can put on the old agate when he is right.

Father to Defend Accused Daughter

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31. (AP)—George F. Morse today declared he would spend as much of his $500,000 fortune as was necessary to defend his daughter, Miss Bessie Morse and her negro maid, Mamie Todd, who were indicted yesterday on charges of conspiring to take his life and those of three relatives. Morse, who furnished the $7,000 bail for his daughter, after her arrest on the charges last month today retained former Judge Freeman Woodbridge as counsel.

Cubs Gain Half Game On Loafing Pirates

CHICAGO, July 31. (AP)— Chicago gained half a lap on the league leading Pirates who were idle today by hammering both Pruett and Decatur hard to win the second game of the series 12 to 5, before a crowd of about 30,000. Pruett was knocked off the hill in the first inning and Decatur was peppered hard in the fifth and sixth. Hack Wilson smashed out his 19th homer of the season and scoring behind Scott in the sixth. Charley Root eased up toward the finish and had little difficulty turning in his 18th victory of the year. Score:

CUBS WIN COUPLE.

WACO, July 31. (AP)—The Waco Cubs broke their double header jinx here today by defeating the Shreveport Sports 9 to 6 and 6 to 4. In the first contest the Sports rapped Elliott hard but Kerr who relieved him held the visitors in check. Pratt for Waco and Taylor for the Sports were the slugging stars, the former getting four singles in five times up and Taylor duplicating including a home run with none on. Windle, Roy Moore and Hayworth also hit circuit drives. Windle's play at short featured the night-cap, robbing two visitors of hits and turning them into outs. Gill hit for the circuit with none on. Longhorns Rout Muny Gas Nine

Wild 19 to 1 Contest Put On Here Sunday

The Panhandle Longhorns hammered the slants of two Muny gassers slab artist Sunday afternoon at Katy park for a wild 19 to 1 win for the league leaders. The Gassers touched Jimmy Parker for two hits, and both of these were turned in by Olin Harvey, Gasser shortstop. Connally held them hitless over a span of three innings and Randolph turned them back in the seventh frame.

Toad Graves and Riley Rawls led the attack with three base blows to their credit while Johnny McMahon turned in the filding feature of the game with his running catch of O'Neal's drive in the seventh. In the last frame the Panhandle outfielders played in the infield and McMahon raced back to take the short fly over his head while running at full speed with the ball.

Jimmy Parker working the first three inings for the Lonkhorns was airtight and seven strikeouts were registered to the youngster. In the second and third innings he fanned the three men that were retired.

Olin Harvey collected two hits and was safe on a nerror in the three times that he came to plate and he made good use of the time that he was on the bases by pilfering four bases, which included home for the only Gasser run.

A two-man triple steal was the method used by the Gassers to shove over their run. Harvey was ond base and Land was on first. Harvey made a sweeping dash for third base and had the bag pilfered clean when Land started for second. Toad Graves heaved to the mid station and Harvey caught everybody flat footed when he flashed across the pan before the ball could be returned to the plate.

The Panhandle had one big inning when they scored nine runs in the third inning. In this frame the whole team scored oe run each and they went out with three men left on the bases.

Tex Rickard Appears King Papa In Chicago For Next Big Fight

By HARRY MACNAMARA
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 31.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, the world's greatest producer of what he is pleased to term "boxing conventions," appears to have conquered Chicago single-handed and without a struggle. He came here last Thursday and fortwith issued his now famous statement, towit:

"Chicago can have the fight if it wants it."

The statement, although somewhat short, had been carefully prepared with the idea in mind, of course, that it would give him an "out" if the necessity for that sort of thing presented itself.

Rickard came to Chicago fully expecting to encounter several obstacles that might playfully be referred to as fights against his plans to stage the "annual battle of the century—1927 edition" at Soldier field, September 15.

Few Utter Growls

There were few dissenting growls against the bout before and after his arrival. But "one by one they folded their tents and were lost in the wilderness," describes the present situation exactly. Rickard has not encountered any organized opposition to his plan.

There remains now only the formality of the South park board meeting tomorrow at which the r e n t a l of Soldier Memorial field or the battle will be sanctioned and another meeting which will see the Illinois state athetic commission put its seal of approval on the bout to make Rickard's formal announcement of the combat a safe and sane procedure.

Lull Before Storm

Today and Saturday constituted what might be termed the lull before the storm. George Getz, chairman of the mayor's civic activity committee, and the man in whose name the license to promote the show will be issued, was out of town.

So was Edward F. Kelly, president of the South park board, and John C. Righeimer, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission.

All three of these gentlemen who have and will play important parts in the "annual battle of the century, Chicago edition," will return to the city tomorrow.

After a few conferences "Tex" can come right out flat-footed and announce that "Chicago will get the fight" and state the reasons why which he has known for more than a month.

10-Round Decision

It might be well to mention the fact that Gene Tunney, the soldier champion, and Jack Dempsey, of whom you may have heard, will be the principals in "the annual battle of the century, Chicago edition." They will box 10 rounds to a judges' decision, and the title and a lot of money, perhaps more than two million, will be at stake.

Jack Gorman and Ali Hassen, both of whom are billed on the Ross stadium wrestling card Tuesday night, were forced to make a raid on the first aid kit and liniment department over the weekend. Gorman goes after Mike Reed in an honest-to-goodness grudge bout. Hassen tackles Yaqui Joe, the Indian. So Gorman and Hassen decided to give each other a gentle working-over by way of preparation for their matches. But they were gentle only at the start. Hardly had the grapplers got under way before one slapped the other a bit too hard. Then the other put on a wrist lock and slapped a little extra pressure to it. First thing either of them knew, they were going to it hammer and tongs. They fought each other furiously for the better part of an hour and 10 minutes, then shook hands and hunted up the liniment bottle.

Sunday, Gorman was sporting a heavily blood-shot optic when Hassen had bead-locked him wickedly. The Turk was carrying around a bulging right jaw where Gorman had retaliated with a head lock. Both were scratched up considerably.

HUNTER BEATS DOEG

NEW YORK, July 31. (AP)—Francis T. Hunter of New York defeated the sensational young Californian, John Doeg, today in the finals for the metropolitan turf court tennis championship. The score was 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

SPORT a la CARTE by ROY GROVE

Psychologists who talk about the "will to win" and the disciples of the eminent Frenchman, M. Coue, who believe that "every day in every way I am getting better and better," will point to Jack Sharkey, the Boston Lithuanian, and to Harry Cooper, the 24-year-old golf professional, as an examples of the wisdom of their creed.

Here are two head-liners in sport who work alike. Sharkey believes he is the greatest fighter in the world and says so. Cooper believes that he is the greatest golfer in the world and says so.

Men have told me that they do not like Sharkey. Others have told me that they do not like Cooper. They dislike Sharkey because he says he can whip anybody. They dislike Cooper for the same reason.

Recently I was discussing the matter with a veteran umpire.

"Sharkey is likely to lick Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. He's got enough confidence to do it," this veteran umpire told me.

Cooper is likely to beat the field of professional golfers for the same reason.

* * *

Their various statements sound like braggadocio. Statements like those of Sharkey and Cooper are not regarded as good form. They are in violation of social manners and they violate the code of sportsmanship, but I cannot get angry about the matter as many have done. I cannot even take exceptions to their remarks. Sharkey and Cooper are simply frank and honest. They do not mean to boast about their skill. They are stating an honest belief in a frank way. They are sincere in their expressions. I cannot criticize a man for being frank, honest and sincere.

If Sharkey would say:

"I don't think I can lick either Dempsey or Tunney. They're too good for me. I'll be lucky if I last six rounds with either. I'd like to be able to lick either of them but I know I can't even expect a draw or a near-draw."

Then I should say that he deserves criticism because Sharkey would be telling an untruth. He would be a hypocrite.

Or, if Cooper would say:

"I'm the luckiest golfer that ever lived. I've got to have all the breaks in the world to beat any of these good golfers."

Then I would think that he was open to criticism. He, too, would be a hypocrite.

* * *

After one of the world series between the New York Yankees and the New York Giants, Colonel Tillinghast Huston, then part owner of the Yankees, was found deep in gloom while the Giant Supporters were celebrating the victory of the McGraw team.

"What's the matter, Cap? Why so glum?" asked a friend.

"You don't expect me to have the laugh of my life tonight, do you?" asked Huston in reply. "Sure I'm glum. I'm all broken up about this series. I thought sure that we would win. I expected nothing else.

"I suppose I could stand around and smile and laugh and crack jokes and people would go out saying, 'That Hutson is a great sportsman; a fine loser.' Yes, they would say it. But if I stood around smiling and laughing and cracking jokes, I would be the world's biggest hypocrite tonight. I'm heartbroken and I'm making no bones about it.

"All my life I've heard about good losers and all my life I have tried to find them. I have found some mighty fine actors but I haven't found any good losers."

I like Sharkey and I like Cooper. They, like Colonel Huston, are not trying to be something else. They express their honest convictions.

SHIPPERS SPLIT WITH CATS.

BEAUMONT, July 31. (AP)—The Fort Worth Cats won and lost here today taking the first from the Exporters 6 to 1 in ten innings and dropping the second 7 to 3. In winning the aftermath Elmer Hansen maintained his position as the league's leading pitcher. Six runs in the sixth inning pulled him from behind a 3-1 lead set up when Joe Bonowitz hit a home run with two on. Moore's sacrifice fly after Bonowitz had singled gone to second when Odom dropped an assist at first and to third on Kibbie's sacrifice produced the deciding tally in the opener. Score:

ABILENE POLO TEAM ABSENT

Local Players Choose Up For Impromptu Tilt

Abilene poloists failed to show for their game with the Wichita Falls guardsmen Sunday, so the Wichita Falls civilian team and guardsmen chose up sides and put on a lively practice affair at Call field.

The Blue outfit copped the laurels in a bitterly-battled bout, 5 to 4, with the veteran Doc Fletcher riding a hard game for the victors. The teams lined up three players each, necessitating swift riding and snappy maneuvering that almost wore the noble horse athletes to a frazzle.

With such an open field, every man got a chance to flash brightly and knock off some sweet riding both defensively and offensively. The smooth-working Whyte teamed with the veteran Prendergast and the youthful star, Dick Goodman in the army Red. The riotous Mr. Robbins rode a laurel game with Fletcher and Colonel Wieler in the civilian Blue.

Robbins played his usually spectacular game. Wieler was there in a pinch practically all the way.

The lineups:

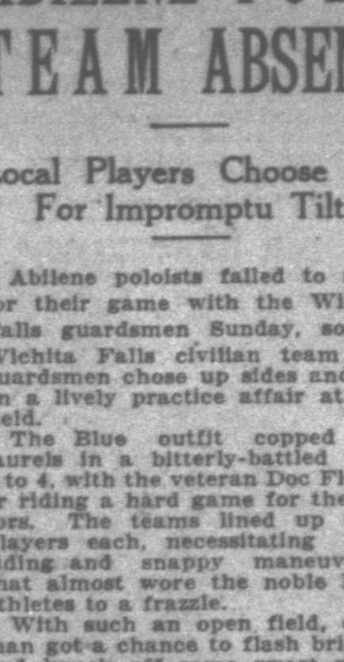

Blue		Red
Wieler	(1)	Prendergast
Robbins	(2)	Goodman
Fletcher	(3)	Whyte

Wichita Falls guardsmen plan shipping their ponies Monday morning to Camp Palacios, Texas national guard encampment, where the Red will tackle other guards teams in match games next week. Wieler, Fletcher, Prendergast and Goodman will carry the Wichita Falls colors.

450 Water Meters Put In Place For Walters

Special to The Record News.

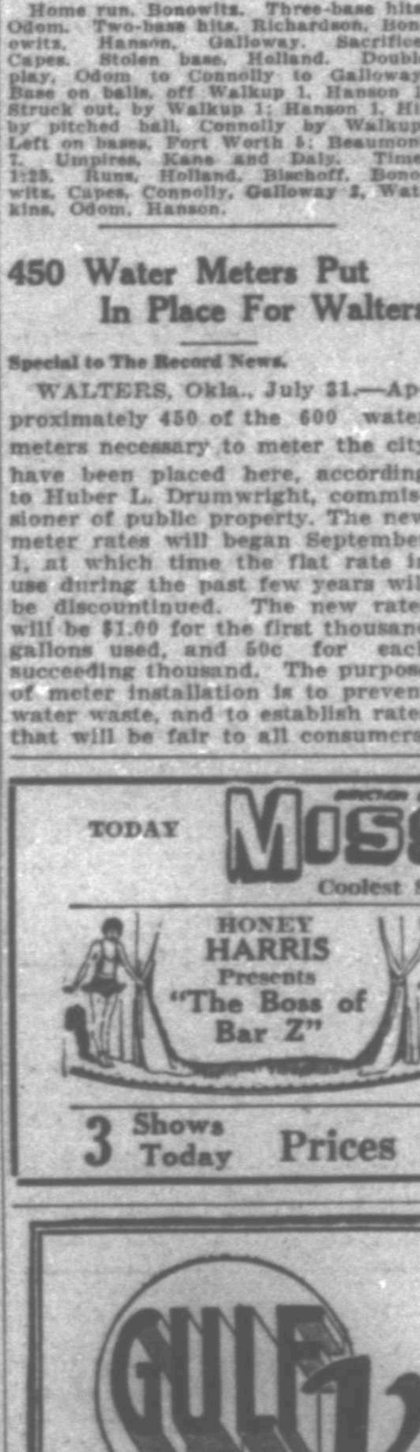

WALTERS, Okla., July 31.—Approximately 450 of the 600 water meters necessary to meter the city have been placed here, according to Huber L. Drumwright, commissioner of public property. The new meter rates will began September 1, at which time the flat rate in use during the past few years will be discountinued. The new rates will be $1.00 for the first thousand gallons used, and 50c for each succeeding thousand. The purpose of meter installation is to prevent water waste, and to establish rates that will be fair to all consumers.

HANK AN' ROSE AT MISSION

Two Brennans; Zal Frazell Are Headliners

By STEVE STEVENSON.

The two Brennans hooped their way into popularity in Wichita Falls.

They pulled the stunt Sunday night when the team, Jimmy Brennan and Hazel Brennan, picked 'em up an' put 'em down during the presentation of "The Bar Z Ranch" at the Mission theater. As dancers Jimmy and Hazel can give odds to the best of hoofers and then cop the blue ribbon.

Honey Hank Harris and Rose Harris gleaned all the laughs in the customers that were possible to glean. Both maintained their reputations as fun-makers gained during previous appearances in Wichita Falls.

Was Zoe Frazell in the show? We'll say she was. Zoe was there with all of her "blues" and when she sang, "A Woman Gets Tired of the Same Man All of the Time," and "Come Home Papa, Mamma's Got the Rent to Pay," Zoe didn't do "nuthin' else" but stop the show.

And Joyce Culbertson was there too. Joyce has showed 'em before that she can dance and she showed 'em" again Sunday night.

Hank and his quartet held the next to closing spot in the presentation. In addition to Hank, Tim Moore, Clarence (Fat) Haughton and Jimmy Brennan composed the quartet. And they all can warble to the satisfaction of every one concerned.

Former State Engineer Released On Bond

AUSTIN, July 31. (AP)—L. J. Nachtrab of Austin, state highway division engineer of this district during former Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's term was released late today on bonds totaling $5500 as security for 11 indictments returned against him Thursday charging forgery and passing of state highway warrants.

Each of the latter indictments called for $500 bond as did five charging forgery brought against him some time ago by the Travis county grand jury. Twelve persons are bond sureties.

The last batch of true bills charged Nachtrab with forgnig state checks for around $1100.

The grand jury will re-convene August 8, for further investigation of alleged "padded payrolls" of the 1926 highway department.

Childress to Conduct Amendments Election

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, July 31.—At the instigation of citizens of Childress county who during the last few weeks have shown interest in the Monday election on constitutional amendments, a general election throughout the county was ordered for Monday by County Judge W. B. Howard in a statement Sunday night. Previously the election for this county had been called off on account of the failure to post election notices.

Wales Attends Services In Historic Cathedral

By Universal Service.

QUEBEC, Que., July 31.—The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Stanley Baldwin attended services this morning at the Anglican Cathedral of the Holy Trinity. This is the oldest English cathedral in Quebec. The prince and party occupied the royal pew in the north of the gallery. The princes were dressed in sack suits and bowler hats. Only a few hundred persons gathered near the old iron palings of the church as the princes arrived for the service at 10 o'clock.

An Unexpected Meal.

A STREET filled with boiling porridge was the sequel to a fire in Johannesburg, South Africa. Firemen poured tons of water on quantities of crushed oats, which soon began to boil from the heat of the fire, burst the walls and poured into the streets. Natives made hearty meals of the product.

WHAT'S A GIRL TO DO?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

To Pet or to Stay at Home Seems to Be Her Choice

By Beatrice Fairfax

"BE good and you'll be lonesome," said Mark Twain, and some of my correspondents seemingly agree with him.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "A Modern Girl." "Since I was sixteen I have always believed that the girl who continually allows men to pet her, and does a little petting herself, never gains any respect from a real, worthwhile man and loses all respect for herself.

"As a result of that belief, and because I lost no time in telling a man what I thought of him, if he attempted any nonsense with me, I have very seldom been out more than once with the same man.

"I have spent many a lonely Saturday night and many very lonely Sunday evenings and holidays, including Christmas and New Year's, because I always try to impress boys with the fact that I care only for the better qualities in a man, and because I've always been sensible and intelligent.

"I am now twenty-six, and although I am still considered young and am good-looking, I have about given up all hope of ever meeting the Right Man. I don't even try any more. I read and go to college at night, and study and sew and try to forget that I ever wanted a home, husband and babies. The modern man does not care for my sort of girl for a wife. What kind of girl does he want anyway?"

"MODEKN GIRL."

"Lonesome Blue Eyes" has an equally sad story.

"I am a girl—a good girl if I have to say so myself," she writes. "I find it hard to get a real man.

"Yes, I go out a bit with men, but believe me, I have tough battles. They take me out once or twice, then they come no more. They have a nice evening, such as a theatre and a dance afterward, then they take me home, stop on the road, and because I'm not what they call a sport I have to get out and walk. Believe me, many nights I have walked.

"I'm a good sport in the line of fun. I dance and sing and can keep a party going. But because I have a little life in me they think I am a 'real game kid,' and when they get disappointed they insult me. When I tell them where they get off they only laugh at me.

"What is a girl to do? If you are not a 'sport,' they call you old fashioned. If you are a good sport, they don't want you, either. I'm beginning to think the good men are all gone. The girls who say 'Yes' have all the men. I'm not a man-hater. I'm just telling you how I feel."

Girls, I'm not going to waste time feeling sorry for you. And my sincere advice is—don't feel sorry for yourselves.

Frankly, you are both looking for the right kind of men as friends and the right man as sweetheart, fiance and husband. But are you going about this quest intelligently?

Are you going places where you are likely to meet men of high character and principles? Are you perfecting your own enchanting charm of appearance and manner as well as character in order to attract and win The Man?

In organizations and clubs devoted to character building you will be most likely to find the kind of men you wish to meet. Churches and young people's societies connected with churches, as well as organizations like the Y. W. C. A. and Y. W. H. A. are likely to bring you directly or indirectly in contact with the kind of young people who stand for ideals you admire.

Do you work actively with such organizations? When you meet quiet, plodding young men who are dependable and trustworthy do you cultivate their friendship? Or do you consider them slow, dumb dates? It may be worth your while to think over these questions honestly.

In seeking to make the right kind of friends, the only way to go about it is intelligently. Get rid of notions and feelings that interfere with your success. Go through yourself with a whisk-broom so that you may be mentally well-groomed.

Brush out self-pity. Make up your mind you are not going to be sorry for yourself, no matter what happens. Self-pity makes you weak and also offensive to others.

Second, away with fear. Why should you not win all you hold dear in life—friendship, love, success, happy marriage and children and home of your own? You have character, attractiveness, sweetness. You can make some good man as happy as he will make you.

Don't drift. Keep in mind that you wish friends and the attention of the right kind of man, love and marriage.

Accept the attentions of dependable men you can respect, even if they are a bit slow or shy. Give yourself a chance to care for them by establishing friendship.

Do not expect every casual friendship to deepen into love. It is not to be expected that every man who invites you out will find you so congenial that he will wish to see you again. It takes time to find the congenial life partner. Meantime, Are we downhearted? No!

Be ready for happiness when it comes and enjoy wholesome good times that come your way from day to day. Watch your personal appearance. Watch that tendency to abrupt disagreeable arguments. Keep dainty and winsome.

Remember, the right kind of man is looking for the right kind of girl as his trusted and loved wife and pal. Help him, by your winning charm, to find you.

DON'T PITY YOURSELF BECAUSE YOU HAVE IDEALS

HAPPINESS IS A MAGNET THAT WILL DRAW LOVE.

Giving Daughter the Same Chance You Give Son

By L. Lamar Matthews

SAID Mrs. Reid to Mrs. Vann: "Yes, sons love their mothers more than daughters do. They are much more thoughtful. If there's ever any little treat brought home to me, it is my son who brings it. If I ever get a kiss or a compliment at home it is always from my boy."

Mrs. Vann gave a soft little chuckle and said nothing. She lived next door to The Reids and she knew a great deal about the inner workings of that household.

"Margaret is so self-willed," continued Mrs. Reid. "She pays no attention to my opinion, and she is very selfish. And the way she talks to me—why, no one would suppose that I was her mother at all!"

"She seems to be a very helpful sort of girl," Mrs. Vann answered. "I noticed her setting the table and making the desserts and tidying up the house. Does William ever do anything about home?"

"Well, no. You see, William being a boy——" And her voice trailed off into silence.

"William isn't selfish, is he?" inquired Mrs. Vann—and her eyes twinkled.

"All young people are selfish," stated Mrs. Reid, as though that exonerated William; "but he is respectful and affectionate toward me."

Then Mrs. Vann's mouth took on a determined set.

"Now I'm going to tell you something, Mary Reid," she began. "I've known your children since they were babies, and I love them both. You are entirely too lenient and too indulgent and too generous toward them. But in return you expect nothing from William and much from Margaret. You let William lie in bed until noon, if he chooses. Then you fix his bath, find his clothes and serve him a hot breakfast. He smiles at you, whistles around the house, gives you a kiss and a pat on the back, and you feel repaid. I've never known you to encourage any such laziness in your daughter.

"If William is grumpy and silent you let him alone. When Margaret has a spell of the blues you hound her footsteps until you find out what is worrying her. Failing in that, you begin sticking pins in her wounds. She goes to pieces and gives you an impudent retort—which is very ugly of her, but also quite human."

Then she concluded:

"You are the fifth mother that I have heard make that same remark about sons loving their mothers more than daughters do. My mother said the same thing. The truth of the matter is that mothers stay off their sons' nerves and live on their daughters' bones."

Strange as it may seem, this is and has always been a much-discussed subject where mothers of grown children are gathered together.

A little more sympathy, a little less fault-finding, a little more tolerance and a little less resentment of her ways would save a lot of heartaches for mothers and a lot of "in-disposition" from daughters. Try it.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Jill Decides to Stay.

IN A BRIEF, terrible moment, Jill Hathaway's scorn and bitterness and resentment against Folly Duane and all she stood for turned to pity. She was ashamed when Folly went through an hour of hysterics, rolling on the bed, tearing at the covers, screaming and calling on Heaven to help her. It seemed horrible to Jill that any one as old as Folly should be so lacking in self-control. Disgusting—but pathetic, too.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

Vaguely, Jill remembered how quiet she had sat at the window, how silently she had stared out into the dark airshaft the night that MacNeil Shannon sent her away. . . . It wasn't nice, she felt, to scream and yell at any time. It was sickening to do so when you were making all this fuss over a man who didn't want you. But she couldn't tell Folly any of what was going on in her thoughts. She couldn't say:

"Well, you see, Sam Kerby doesn't care for you. And you're lucky to find it out before it's too late——"

She didn't quite know what she meant by "too late." She only knew that Folly's grief was terrible and that she couldn't leave her now. After an hour Folly sat up and blinked. Then she looked at Jill half sheepishly, and a slow smile came out on her lips.

"What's done can't be undone," she said.

"I'm glad you feel that way," Jill answered, awkwardly.

"I've gone through things like this before," Folly confessed, still too deep under the influence of her own hysterics to realize how much she was telling.

Jill was abashed at the frankness of the revelation. She looked around the room for something to do—something to take her mind off the embarrassing situation between her and Folly. She thought it wasn't modest to undress your mind like this and show somebody how it looked when it wasn't in its best clothes.

"But never as bad as this. Never as terrible," Folly went on, beginning to sniffle and whimper. "I love Sam Kerby. I gave him the best I had. I'd have gone back into the old torment for him—back into the old hell. I'd have dragged you in, too," she confessed.

"Let's not talk about it," Jill suggested, gently. "It's over."

"That's the worst of it," Folly began to sob. "It is over! He is going up to Maine for a month. With his wife. He says she behaved like a brick. He says she forgave him. He thinks that was noble of her. I know it was just plain spite. But he thinks it wonderful. He says he's going to make it all up to her. She's got him. What chance have I got against his wife if she wants to act noble?"

"None," Jill shuddered. "But she's his wife. I guess you ought to be glad she doesn't—get you into an ugly divorce scandal."

"Sure I ought to be glad," Folly said slowly. "If she did it might smash me for sure. Everything would come out. You wouldn't have much chance—poor kid, if it came out wrong. Well, it's over—for the present," she added under her breath.

She got to her feet and looked around dazedly. After a minute she seemed to come to herself. She spoke very solemnly:

"I'd like to get that dirty rat of a Bonnie for this. She did it because I wouldn't give Vivian away—"

"What?" Jill demanded excitedly, feeling once again that she was near—on the very brink—of finding out all about her own story.

Folly turned to her grimly. There was something of dignity in her voice.

"Listen and remember what I tell you," she said. "There are things a woman who was once a lady can't do. One of them is drag down a house of cards around the head of somebody who didn't help build it, who doesn't want to live in it, and who isn't hurting a soul and won't—as long as she's able to play fair to everybody but herself. What I know about Vivian Scarlett doesn't concern you. It concerns her—and me. And Bonnie can't drag it from me in order to play her crooked game with her loaded dice and land Roy. And you can't get it from me—for any reason at all. And I'm down and out. Is that clear?"

"Yes," Jill muttered.

"So you clear out of here. I've got about a hundred iron men. Maybe more. I'll give you half. You get out. And you go straight. Nothing else pays. Your mother was—a good woman—in her day. You owe her something. You owe yourself a lot more. I'll give you a letter to Morrie Shane, cloaks and suits. He'll give you a job modeling. Eighteen to start. More later. And you behave. You behave or I'll come along and—kill you. Do you hear?"

"Sure I hear," Jill said. "But I'm not quitting you now. Not now that Sam has. I'm going to take that letter to your Morrie Shane and I'm going to work. And we're going to—show them. Show them all!"

She went over and put her arms around Folly. To the end of her days she was to be grateful for that.

To Be Continued.

Two Simple Bathing Suits

DEAUVILLE and the Lido are keeping the dressmakers busy creating smart bathing suits. This is a particularly smart model. It is of pale green silk jersey with round motifs and bindings of white, while the wrap is carried out in white towelling strapped with bands of green. The model on the right will brave a northern climate, for it is made of pale blue wool jersey. There is a little white yacht embroidered on the left of the jumper, while at its hem and bordering the knickers is wool embroidery representing the waves of the sea.

SOME people, when they choose a dog, insist that it must be a creature of impressive mien and lengthy pedigree. An Airedale or a Collie pup, a Chow or Pekingese, their pet must be of ancient strain from kennels overseas. They will not have a common cur to follow at their heels, because they hold to own such beasts a lack of taste reveals. But as for me, I do not care if he be fine or not, just so the dog that shares my home looks like my old dog Spot. He was not graceful as to limb nor silken as to hair, no doubt the blood of many strains had met and mingled there; but, ah! he was a loyal friend who blessed my boyhood lot, so to this day each dog I own must look like my old dog Spot!

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

Fondness for Grapes—Need not suggest "home brew" but merely one of the most popular motifs in costume jewelry. Pendants, on silver chains forming necklaces and bracelets, are small bunches of imitation pearl grapes of cream or flesh tone. Other bunches of this "grape jewelry" form earrings, hat pins, or brooches.

A One-Sided Point of View—Is manifested by the fur treatments on the latest imported coats, which have one-side fur collars and single panels that are only placed at one side of the garment.

Depending Upon Draping—For their smartness, untrimmed evening gowns of satin, in white, black or delicate shades are sponsored for wear after sundown. A favorite model has the shirt fulness at the front, a jeweled clasp holding the drapery in place at a low waistline.

Where two-tiered skirts are featured, the lower tier is far narrower than the upper one.

Ships of Fancy—Come and go on our "sea of dreams," but a fancy little sailboat, done in steel beads and silk embroidery, is the actuality of the designer's dream of a novel and interesting motif to trim the front of the blouse of a sleeveless crepe satin sports frock. The skirt of this cunning sports model is deeply pleated and the neckline is a deep V.

Faille Ribbon Doesn't Fail—To make a very smart Summer unlined coat, when used, in broad, horizontal bands, to fashion the entire wrap. For the long, shawl collar and a strip down the front the ribbon is used vertically.

One and One Make One—Is the arithmetical explanation of the novelty sunshade that is made of two handkerchiefs. Usually one figured, or dotted, and one solid-tone large silk kerchief, placed so as to use all eight points, form the cover of the parasol which, when opened, is flat as the proverbial pancake. A straight, wooden handle, short and light, makes this little shade weigh but six ounces.

Floppy Flowers Haven't "Flopped" but continue to be the favorite type of chiffon blossom to grace the shoulder of the sheer Summer frock, whether that be of chiffon, georgette, lace, organdie or the sheerest voile. Many of these flowers have some petals long enough to reach the elbow.

Correct MANNERS

—By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman—

Don't Request Gifts.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

How should I word an invitation to a farewell party that I am going to give to a girl friend? I wish to indicate in the invitation that I wish to have the girls bring a little personal gift to the guest of honor. Is it necessary to state this in the invitation?

MRS. McG.

IT would be poor form for you to make such a request in an invitation. That would be making the reason for the party too obvious, and I urge you not to do it. The giving of gifts should be left to the discretion of guests.

Your invitation would be worded something like this:

Dear Mary:

I am asking a few friends to my home Friday evening, July the tenth, for a little bon voyage party to Clara Maris, who, as you know, sails for Europe very soon after that. Will you come? Please say you will, and please come in about eight o'clock.

Dearest wishes, and the anticipation of seeing you on the tenth.

Affectionately yours.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Cooking in Glass Dishes

By Hannah Wing.

HEAT regulators and temperature controls have done much to make oven cooking a more popular mode of food preparation. Fortunately, oven glassware was developed at about the same time as these devices so that a whole meal baked in the oven might come to the table in the same dishes in which it was prepared. This eliminated much extra washing of disagreeable pots and pans, and also made it possible to serve food in the most attractive form.

In oven glassware it is possible to obtain the proper dishes for serving all kinds of cooked foods for all kinds of meals. Individual ramekins make luncheon or supper dishes of leftovers more attractive than the original roast, which may itself be served on the glass platter, which is the lid of this new heat-retaining roaster. Casseroles of all kinds are available for vegetables, meat dishes and stews of baked puddings. Divided dishes make it possible to cook two kinds of food under one cover for the small family.

The heavy glass holds the heat and insures even baking of pies, breads, biscuits and muffins. Small roasts even may be cooked in the deep-covered bakers or in the larger platter-covered roaster of oven glass aluminum. One of the most attractive pieces of the glass ovenware is the platter, upon which baked fish or planked steak may be served without the annoyance of lifting the fish from the pan to a platter, with consequent damage to the appearance of the fish.

Food cooked in covered glassware has all the advantage of the French method of cooking, in which all the flavors are carefully kept in the food by means of felt pads and other more primitive arrangements to prevent flavors escaping from the pot. Incidentally, since ovenglass, once heated, retains the heat, less fuel is used and a cooler kitchen is certain.

Serving food in oven glassware makes it possible to heat the dishes to the proper state of piping hotness, without danger to fine chins or porcelain. The thickness of the glass helps to retain the heat in the food, and food is nearly as hot at the end of the meal as at the beginning

How You Can Deal with a Jumping Toothache

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

MOST of us have been afflicted at one time or another with the "jumping" variety of toothache, the one with a regular excruciating throb, and remember that it is a much worse variety than the ordinary dull one.

There is no need to advise the sufferer to go to the dentist—he will do that fast enough—but it is in the nature of the jumping toothache that it comes on in the middle of the night, when dentists are not easily to be had. The question is, then, what to do about it.

The mechanism of the jump is this: The nerve tissue of the tooth is inflamed, and is consequently full of blood, for the defenses of the body are all doing their utmost to keep it full and so combat the germs which are trying to obtain a foothold in the tooth—that is, a very sensitive tissue, inside a prison that will not stretch, is being swollen. But, added to this, there is a fresh supply of blood at a high pressure trying to get in every time the heart beats, and so at every beat there is a response by the tormented nerves — a "jump."

It tends to come on in the middle of the night. That is because when the head is level with the heart less effort is required to force the blood to the tooth, and consequently the pressure is greater. It is no good trying to go on sleeping under these conditions. The only thing to do is to sit up and try to forget it. Once the head is raised the throb is reduced to more bearable proportions. An aspirin or two may be permissible at a crisis of this kind, and may tide the victim over until he can get to his dentist.

Jumping toothache may attack children with healthy teeth. That is because there is a tooth called a "six-year-old" molar. It is the first double tooth to erupt. It appears as its name implies, during the sixth year of life. The mistake many people make, when their children cut it, is to think that it is a milk tooth which has been somewhat delayed and which will soon be pushed out by a permanent one.

Now this is a bad error, for it may induce a parent to neglect the tooth, wth disastrous results. The six-year-old molar is a permanent tooth and not only that but the most important of all the permanent teeth. If it is allowed to decay in its first four or five years it will have to come out. If it is lost, the whole series is thrown out of gear, for it comes first for the others to "dress by," and if they do not find it they tend to grow anyhow, and spoil not only the child's appearance but his health for a tooth out of place is generally an unhealthy tooth.

Occasionally, but not often, it happens that when the sixth-year molar is lost very early, the second and third molars move up to fill the gap, but this is a piece of luck that no one has any right to count on. Therefore watch your child for the sixth-year molar and give it extra care for all the rest depends on it.

But the point that I am driving at is that this "sixth year" molar, in going through all the foregoing mischief, causes inflammation which, just as similarly located inflammation in the adult, may cause jumping toothache. This symptom in children calls for prompt attention by the dentist.
