Some wind damage reported...

Rain reports vary in county

A brief thunderstorm dropped various amounts of moisture over Scurry County Thursday evening with rain totals ranging from almost two inches in the China Grove area to .1 at the Snyder water plant.

Some high winds were reported during the storms as a mobile home in the McBeth Pecan addition lost its roof.

"I heard some tin whipping about and thought I had lost my roof," said Sylvia Spivey, who lives in the 1900 block of Garden Lane. "We didn't, but I noticed a mobile home in the next block had its roof blown off."

There was an inch of rain in her gauge, and she said even more fell.

"I don't think it was all measured as the wind was blowing real hard," said Mrs. Spivey.

Dorothy Adams, who lives in China Grove, said she did not know how high the winds were in the area, but did see a damaged telephone pole.

"It's leaning at about a 45-degree angle," said Mrs. Adams.

She added that she saw something Thursday night that she hadn't seen in a while.

"Water running down the ditches beside the roads," she said.

The National Weather Service in Midland had received a report of winds around 60 miles-per-hour, but that report could not be confirmed, said George Matthews of the NWS.

Matthews said the weather service did not issue any watches or warnings for Scurry County on Thursday.

The brief shower at the Scurry County rodeo area dampened the ground, but did not cause any delays, said rodeo announcer Ben Benavides.

"It brought a few smiles though," said the announcer who is here for his third rodeo.

"You could tell the farmers and ranchers in the audience. They just sat through the 30-minute shower while others were seeking shelter."

A veteran of 23 years in the rodeo business — nine announcing — Benavides said he has seen very few rodeos stopped because of the weather.

"If it becomes a safety factor, it will be stopped," said Benavides. "You have to remember, these competitors are professionals, just like football and baseball players. They will ride and rope just like they keep playing football."

Appraisal review board hears from 2 taxpayers

While some 25 people had indicated they would appear before the Scurry County Appraisal District Review Board to discuss property tax assessments, only two people actually met with the board this week.

"That's about normal," said Ray Peveler of the Scurry County Appraisal District. "We always have some no-shows, and some met with the appraisers here without actually addressing the board."

Peveler said Wayne Glass addressed the review board concerning mineral values on a lease at SACROC and a lease operated by Exxon.

Peveler said no changes were made in either case.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

O.G. "Speedy" Nieman, longtime friend and publisher of the Hereford Brand, is thinking seriously about retirement.

He's been thinking about it a long time. But Nieman didn't get his nickname for making abrupt moves. He's much the same way about his future.

Nieman, however, has made one decision. Some day he plans to donate his body to science fiction.

It was Nieman who said a waitress in Deaf Smith County wished she had adjusted her attitude more quickly — even in face of the hot and dry weather.

A young boy entered the ice cream shop and asked the waitress the cost of an ice cream sundae. The waitress told him they were 50 cents.

The kid pulled his hand out of his pocket and studied a number of coins. "How much is just plain ice cream?" he inquired.

With other customers waiting, the waitress became impatient. "Thirty-five cents," she responded in a huff.

The kid counted his coins again and announced that he would have the plain ice cream. She brought the dish of ice cream and quickly walked away.

The boy downed the small cup of ice cream, paid the cashier and went on his way. But when the waitress came to c.. ar the table, she swallowed hard at what she saw.

Placed neatly beside the empty dish were two nickles and five pennies — her tip.

As they stood hand-in-hand behind the anniversary table, about to cut the cake, the man announced tenderly:

"Madge, you're still my sweetheart. In fact, I've never had another sweetheart 'cause I've never found anyone as sweet and beautiful as you."

"Hank," she replied, "you're as big a liar as ever. And I believe you just the same."

Annual rodeo is underway; continues tonight, Saturday

It's 80 down and about 170 to go at the Scurry County Rodeo.

The first 80 of over 250 contestants opened the 63rd annual event Thursday night at the Scurry County Rodeo Arena, under threatening skies.

But through the drizzle, eight competitors were able to grab the lead in their events with 100 more contestants slated to ride tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The tightest battle ended being the last one, as two riders tied for the top spot in bull riding.

Mackey Elliott of Rising Star and Scott Mayfield of Amarillo posted scores of 72 to share first place in the event, heading into tonight.

The saddle bronc competition saw Dumas' Rance Bray ride to first place with a score of 73.

As for the timed events, the wet conditions certainly didn't seem to slow competitors.

Jodi Morris of Muleshoe set the pace in breakaway roping with a time of 3.0 seconds, while Stinnett's Monty Eakin tied down the No. 1 spot in calf roping with a time of 11.0 seconds.

In barrel racing, Post's Dena Kirkpatrick paced the competition, as she raced around the three barrels in a time of 17.275 seconds.

Tonight's 100 contestants will be divided among the performance and slack, which will follow. This year's stock is provided by T-N-T Rodeo Co. of Anson.

Once again, rodeo clown Dalton Stephens will be on hand to entertain the crowd, with Terry Sneed and Up the Creek performing at the nightly dance.

In addition to tonight's regular events, there wil also be a kids calf scramble, merchant steer saddling, wild cow milking and team steer mugging.

The rodeo will conclude Saturday night with the final performance and crowning of the Scurry County Rodeo Queen.

Texas murder suspect escapes from Denver

DENVER (AP) — A man arrested in Denver on a Texas murder warrant has walked out of the city jail, authorities say, after he apparently switched shirts and names with his brother.

"We consider it a planned escape," said Undersheriff John Simonet. "They switched some clothes. They look very much alike."

He was talking about the murder suspect, Steve Cabello, 24, who remained at large and is wanted for a 1993 drive-by shooting in San Antonio, and his 19-year-old brother, Efrain.

Both were arrested Tuesday afternoon when officers stopped their car in connection with a drug investigation, said Lt. John O'Dell. They were looking for Steve and knew he was wanted in Texas.

After running a check on Efrain Cabello, they discovered he was wanted on a Denver traffic warrant, so both brothers were taken to jail.

There, they apparently switched shirts, authorities allege, and Steve Cabello took his brother's place and was assigned a cell in the misdemeanor area. Efrain Cabello was sent to an area where felony suspects are held.

A relative posted a $300 bond for Efrain. Steve Cabello signed his brother's name and went free, authorities said.

Steve Cabello was released at 1:50 a.m. Wednesday, but authorities didn't learn of the switch until more than 15 hours later, when a detective came to interview him and discovered it was in fact Efrain who remained in custody.

Senate hikes Clinton food safety spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving closer to President Clinton's goal, the Senate voted Thursday to increase spending on the White House food safety initiative from $2.6 million to $68 million.

After an initially lukewarm response from the Republican-led Congress to his $101 million proposal, the president in recent weeks intensified lobbying efforts, including an appeal for more money during one of his recent radio addresses.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said the additional money would help improve food inspection, research, consumer education and outbreak tracking of the increasing number of illnesses and deaths caused by food contaminated by such microbes as E. coli and salmonella.

"Food safety is a priority for the American people — it should also be a priority for this Congress," Harkin said.

By a 66-33 vote, the Senate attached Harkin's amendment to the annual agriculture spending bill, which also funds the Food and Drug Administration. That measure will eventually have to be reconciled with the House version, which includes just $16.8 million of the president's request.

Sen. Thad Cochran, chairman of the Appropriations Committee panel on agriculture, said he would work "very hard" to sustain the Senate's spending level.

"It will reflect a genuine effort and a sizable investment ... in food safety activities," said Cochran, R-Miss.

Harkin had hoped to find enough money for the president's full request, but was able to identify budget offsets only for $68 million.

Carefree couple ask, what heat wave?

CAREFREE, Ariz. (AP) — It's 115 degrees. So what? David and Corazon Lawton don't mind, not after suffering through the winters that Detroit can dish out.

It turns out that the Lawtons aren't alone. There are plenty of people around here who can stand the heat.

"I've had my beard frozen and my breath freeze on my face," said Scott Smith, a Utah native who moved here six years ago and spent Thursday afternoon supervising a crew laying concrete.

"I'd much rather deal with the heat," he said with a hearty laugh. "It gets so cold in Utah you can't move; in the heat, you just slow down and drink lots of water.

"Besides, you have a great tan all year long."

The heat wave blamed for more than 50 deaths and millions of dollars in crop damage across the southern third of the country didn't let up Thursday. For an 11th straight day, temperatures climbed over 100 in north Texas. The heat wave has claimed at least 27 lives across the state and caused $1.5 billion in crop damage.

Elsewhere, at least 20 people have died in Louisiana, six in Oklahoma and one each in California and Arizona since mid-May because of the heat. At Fort Bragg, N.C., three soldiers on a 12-mile march were hospitalized Thursday for heat exhaustion. One was in critical condition.

The Southwest also was besieged by high temperatures that are expected to linger through the weekend. It was 120 degrees in Needles, Calif.; 126 in Bullhead City, tying an all-time high; 113 in Phoenix; and 116 in Las Vegas. In Palm Springs, Calif., the heat index, which factors in humidity, was 129.

"Terrible, terrible," Ron Miller, 40, of Allentown, Pa., said as he sunbathed next to a Last Vegas pool. "It was warm back East but not this bad."

Carefree's 2,300 residents soaked in 116 degrees of heat on Thursday and, true to the town's name, no one seemed to mind.

The Lawtons, lured by their daughter's vacation stories of Arizona, this week bought a house in this posh suburb about 20 miles north of Phoenix.

"Last winter, we were sitting with snow up to our armpits and I'm seeing 80- to 90-degree weather in Arizona," Lawton said. "We know what we're getting into and I'm not going to whine about the heat. This is better than gray skies, rain and 30-below weather."

Many of Carefree's newest residents hail from the East Coast, said Aubrey Dowling, who works at the town's Chamber of Commerce.

She said she spends her days handing out restaurant lists and information packets to new home owners eager to trade in nine months of wintertime nightmares for two months of Arizona's scorching summers.

Desert diehards warned that the dry heat of the Southwest isn't for everyone.

"We're acclimated to the heat," longtime resident Craig Deckard said. "But the people from up East, they're used to the humidity and not the intense heat."

Deckard said he battles the weather at his construction job by wearing a hard hat with a solar panel that runs a miniature fan pointed at his forehead.

Still, asked if he's ever thought of leaving, Deckard just smiled, shook his head and sauntered out into the scorching afternoon.

Senate OKs aid for farmers hit by disasters

WASHINGTON (AP) — While farmers from the northern Plains to North Carolina struggle with natural disasters as agricultural exports and crop prices plummet, Congress is taking steps for those growers trying to stay afloat.

The Senate approved $500 million in emergency aid Thursday as part of the $57.3 billion agriculture spending bill for fiscal 1999, which passed on a 97-2 vote. Strongly backed by President Clinton, it now heads into negotiations with the House.

"I think farmers can take some hope that help is on the way," said Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D. "The real question mark is the House of Representatives."

The House did not include such a disaster fund in its version of the spending bill. Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., planned an announcement later today of a new "farm crisis" proposal, but has not endorsed the $500 million plan.

Net farm income in 32 states is projected by the Agriculture Department to fall $5.2 billion this year from 1996. That year, Republicans won approval of their "Freedom to Farm" law, which gradually phases out subsidy payments that once smoothed out price valleys, permits farmers to plant the crops offering the best profits and substitutes crop insurance for federal disaster relief.

Income is dropping because of low prices for most crops and livestock, driven down by enormous worldwide supplies and an Asian financial crisis that is throttling America's most important agricultural export market.

Meantime, in states hit by drought, wildfires, hurricanes and recurrent wet weather that triggers disease, farmers have trouble getting crop insurance and financing to continue in business.

Farm debt in 1998 could reach $172 billion, the highest since the height of the farm crisis in 1985.

Things are particularly acute in the Dakotas, where wet weather has hampered planting and caused a wheat fungus known as scab that cuts deeply into yields. In North Dakota, some estimates project 2,000 out of 30,000 farmers will give up this year.

"The little house on the prairie is in danger of being auctioned off," said Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D.

Although many Democrats want to return to price supports that were scrapped two years ago, after losing a key subsidy vote this week they turned to the $500 million emergency aid package for farmers who have suffered significant income loss.

In a letter Thursday, Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said the program would pay supplemental crop insurance for farmers who received insurance payouts in at least three of the last five years. The payment would equal about 25 percent of those payouts and would help roughly 48,000 farmers nationwide.

In addition, payments would be made of about $40 an acre for each year productive land was under water and would aid livestock producers with feed supplies and reimbursement for animals lost due to severe weather.

Not every farmer is suffering. With yields increasing for most crops about 1.5 percent a year because of better hybrids and technology, even at lower prices many producers are doing well. In fact, while prices are down from 1996, they are about equal to the average from 1990 to 1994.

"The facts simply do not represent a crisis all across American agriculture," said Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

On the final Senate spending bill vote, only Republican Sens. Jon Kyl of Arizona and Rick Santorum of Pennsylvania voted no. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, did not vote.

In other action on the spending measure, the Senate:

— Approved on voice vote an amendment that would waive the statute of limitations for black farmers for discrimination claims against the Agriculture Department from 1981 to 1997. The House has included a similar measure in its spending bill.

— Rejected, by a vote of 50-49, an amendment increasing funding from $34 million to $100 million for the Food and Drug Administration's campaign to reduce teen-age smoking.

— Approved on voice vote an increase in money for in the president's food safety initiative from $2.6 million to $68 million. The House measure includes $16.8 million of the president's $101 million request.

More heat-related deaths noted

By The Associated Press

The unrelenting weather with its blistering temperatures is to blame for two more heat-related deaths in Dallas County and another two in Denton County, officials say.

The temperature at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport reached 104 degrees Thursday, marking the 11th straight day of temperatures at or above the century mark.

Dallas County officials reported that 80-year-old Fav Motley of Dallas and 90-year-old Annie Mae Worley of Lancaster are the latest victims of the fatal temperatures.

Denton County officials reported two heat-related deaths.

Autopsy results confirmed that Jack Edward Roper, a 76-year-old Roanoke man found dead Tuesday in his travel trailer, and 34-year-old construction worker Jose Francisco Deleon, who collapsed on the job July 3, were heat victims.

Tarrant County officials have not reported any confirmed heat-related deaths.

Dr. Alan Stockard, head of primary care sports medicine at the University of North Texas Health Science Center at Fort Worth, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram the earliest signs of heat exhaustion include muscle cramping and dizziness.

He said in severe cases people can stop sweating and lose consciousness. He said this could cause the body's cardiovascular system to shut down, which can be fatal.

Dallas County's heat hotline has received about 700 calls since it was established Tuesday after county health officials declared a state of emergency.

The hotline was started to help people in the Dallas-Fort Worth deal with the heat.

"If they need a box fan, we'll get a box fan to them," said Zach Thompson, Dallas County Health and Human Services spokesman. "If they're elderly and have a chronic disease, we'll see if we can get an air-conditioning unit for them."

The National Weather Service said the high temperatures in North Texas will continue into the weekend with scattered thunderstorms providing little relief.

More care is needed

By Phillip Alder

If you are suffering from a sense of deja vu, don't worry. This deal is remarkably similar to yesterday's. In that deal, we looked at the forcing defense. This occurs when declarer must ruff a side suit in his hand and in the process has his trumps reduced to fewer than those of an opponent, either immediately or eventually. This deal features the same theme, but the key defender, West, must be careful if he wishes to defeat the contract.

How should the play go in four spades?

West starts with three top hearts. After ruffing, South leads a trump. Yesterday, when the dummy had four hearts, West could win immediately with the spade ace and play a fourth heart, forcing declarer to death. Here, though, if West wins the fourth trick and leads another heart, declarer ruffs in the dummy and discards a minor-suit card from hand. He leads dummy's last trump, overtakes in his hand, draws all the missing trumps, and claims his contract.

The key point is that declarer can ruff in the dummy, preventing his trump length from being reduced below West's. Instead, West must duck this round of trumps and the next. At that point, if declarer plays another spade, West can win with the ace and lead a heart, which declarer must ruff with his last trump. He may cash four minor-suit winners, but West ruffs the next trick and cashes a heart for two down. To get out for one down, declarer must abandon trumps.

If you are trying to push declarer's trump length below yours, make sure he cannot take a ruff in the dummy, keeping his trump length unaffected.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Venal Caregiver of Elderly Man Took Far More Than She Gave

DEAR ABBY: Please remind your readers that elderly people who live alone can be vulnerable to "caregivers" who take over their lives — and bank accounts.

I attended the funeral of a neighbor I'll call "John" who was starved and neglected while his live-in "caregiver" took seven to 10 vacations a year. She was gone all day and many nights. She left him sandwiches and liquid nutritional supplements in place of meals, and phone numbers to call if he got sick.

Well, he did get sick, several times, but was too proud to call for help. During the last two months of his life, he was often confused. He died of congestive heart failure from a cold left untreated. The caregiver blamed his death on "fumes" from urine-soaked carpet because John's two elderly dogs weren't housebroken. The truth is, John was too sick to open the patio door, and the caregiver was never there to let the dogs out or clean the carpets.

John changed his will to make the caregiver the trustee and bought her a new car. She is allowed to live in his house until it is sold, and she is selling off the contents of the house. I know for a fact that John and his late wife wanted their sizable estate to go to their elderly brothers and sisters and the county humane society. Their estate is being plundered.

Regrettably, no one intervened on John's behalf. Too late, I learned that every state has an agency on aging and an ombudsman program that will investigate reports of neglect and mistreatment of the elderly.

Friends and neighbors of the elderly living alone must be proactive and contact family or the state if something "doesn't look right."

NEIGHBOR IN SARASOTA, FLA.

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Yours is a chilling letter. I hope it will spare similar heartbreak to other elderly who are living without benefit of family nearby.

Readers, if you suspect neglect or mistreatment of an elderly neighbor or friend, contact the adult protective services agency in your area. Anyone entrusted with the care of the aging should be carefully screened. The same agency should be able to assist you in locating properly trained and reliable caregivers.

DEAR ABBY: An old friend of ours mentioned that she was coming to town and needed a place to stay. We invited her to spend the night at our home. She and her husband own a buffalo ranch. She asked us if we would like to taste some buffalo sausage and we said, "Sure."

When she arrived, she was carrying a small package of frozen buffalo sausage and her recent wedding video. After a nice dinner and viewing the video, we gave her a wedding gift that we had recently purchased in Greece.

Now, here is the odd part: My wife and I had to leave the next morning for work. We left our guest a key to lock the door when she left. When we returned from work that evening, we noticed a note on our kitchen counter. We thought it would be a "thank you" for the previous evening. Instead, it was a bill for the buffalo sausage! There was no mention of our hospitality or the wedding gift.

Of course we will pay the bill, but enclosed with our check will be a bill for her night's lodging and dinner. Abby, what do you think?

BUFFALOED IN ST. PAUL

Bad weather finally hits at British Open

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Now, this is more like the British Open.

Cold rain, then high winds returned to the coast of the Irish Sea today, making life difficult for the players in the second round at Royal Birkdale.

Tiger Woods took the sole lead even before teeing off when John Huston three-putted the first hole for bogey.

Fred Couples, after starting the round a stroke behind Woods and Huston, faltered badly and was 5 over for the day and 1 over for the tournament. Loren Roberts, who began the day tied with Couples, was also 5 over for the day, while Davis Love III was even after losing three strokes.

The leaderboard did contain one surprise. Brian Watts, who plays on the Japanese PGA Tour and has missed the cut in three of his previous five Opens, was two strokes off the lead after a 1-under 69 to go with the 68 he shot Thursday.

Among the early finishers today were Masters champion Mark O'Meara, who shot a 68 to get to even par, and David Duval, who had a 71 and was 1 over.

"All day it was hard," Duval said. "I made some good saves, like everybody is doing. You have to right now."

John Daly didn't. He took a 10 on the 18th hole for a 78 that left him at 11 over and with virtually no chance of making the cut.

Woods, who grabbed a share of the opening-round lead with Huston at 65, had an afternoon tee time along with Nick Price, who began with a 66.

They might need an extra sweater. Players and fans bundled up in an assortment of colorful rain gear and head coverings — Spaniard Jose Maria Olazabal wore a wool hat pulled down low over his ears.

The wind cleared away the rain clouds and picked up strength as the day went on, sending wayward shots into the deep meadow rye lining the fairways and greens.

The conditions were in stark contrast to the opening round, when light breezes and warm weather greeted golfers expecting the normal wind and rain on the northwest coast of England.

One player who won't have to deal with the tough conditions is 1995 PGA champion Steve Elkington. The Australian withdrew from the Open today because of a pinched nerve in his neck. He shot a 5-over 75 on Thursday.

With Woods and Huston leading the way, Americans dominated the leaderboard in the opening round.

Players who make their living on the friendly courses of the PGA Tour were right at home on the smooth fairways and soft greens, and the scores showed it.

Bagby edges Lowrance on final hole, 1-up

Brooke Lowrance can attest to that.

Even through 17 holes in her afternoon match with Leilani Bagby, Lowrance was bested on the 18th hole, as Bagby grabbed a 1-up victory in the third round of the Women's Trans National Golf Championship.

Lowrance, an Ex-Lady Tiger linkster, had knocked off Stefanie Mitchell of Columbia, Mo., 4 and 2, in her morning match to advance into the third round.

For Bagby, a Santa Monica, Calif. golfer, it was her third consecutive 1-up victory.

Lowrance, an all-Big 12 tourney selection for Texas Tech, now focuses her attention on the World University Golf Championship. The Lady Raider senior was selected to represent the U.S. women's team at the August event in South Africa.

Orioles dump Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — Roberto Alomar was 4-for-6 with two doubles as the Baltimore Orioles extended their winning streak to a season-high eight games with a 9-3 victory over Texas on Thursday night.

Alomar is 20-for-38 against the Rangers this season. The second baseman has three four-hit games this season and 25 in his career.

The Orioles had 18 hits, one off their season high set Wednesday night in a 14-3 victory over the Rangers. Texas has lost five straight.

Texas' Juan Gonzalez, the major league RBI leader with 101, failed to drive in a run for the eighth straight game. He was 1-for-4.

Scott Erickson (10-7) limited Texas to three runs and eight hits in seven innings for his sixth victory in seven decisions. He struck out four and walked one.

Baltimore took a 4-1 lead in the third against Aaron Sele (12-6). Eric Davis and Surhoff hit RBI singles and Lenny Webster had a two-run double.

Tee times set for tournament

Pairings and tee times are set for the Golfers' Memorial Scramble at Snyder Country Club.

The tourney begins Saturday with a scramble format and will conclude Sunday with low ball.

Local riders set for finals

The finals are set for the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association.

But it took two rodeos in one weekend to do it.

Clayton Hirt posted a time of 2.934 seconds in 8-under breakway roping at Big Spring to claim the top spot.

Hadley Hirt took third in the 9-12 calf touching, while Russell Riggan did the same in the 16-19 tie down roping.

Contestants also competed at Colorado City over the weekend.

In C-City, Tyler Riggan notched the third spot in the 13-15 breakaway roping to lead all local riders.

All competitors who recorded at least one point throughout the year, and entered at least three rodeos, are eligible for the HPJRA Finals in Clovis N.M. JUly 21-16.

Snyder squad faces C-City in semifinals

SWEETWATER — Snyder's 10-year-old All-Stars still have shot at the tournament title.

They'll just have to take a different route to claim it.

Sweetwater hurler Kendal Carillo kept Snyder hitters off balance for most of the contest Thursday night, pitching his squad to a 4-1 semifinal victory.

Simpson crossed the plate with the game's first run, before Carillo settled down to strikeout the next three batters.

Williams, on the mound for Snyder, was matched his counterpart through the first four innings.

Heading into the top of the fifth, Williams and the Snyder defense had kept Sweetwater off the scoreboard and maintained the 1-0 lead.

But in the fifth, Sweetwater's bats came alive.

The tourney hosts slapped four hits and used two walks to post four runs, before Caleb Gutierrez came in to notch the third out.

Carillo, who faced no more than four batters in any inning after the first, continued his impressive performance in the fifth and sixth frames to preserve the victory.

Williams finished the night with a pair of singles, while Eric Martinez belted a triple in the third.

The winner of tonight's Snyder-Colorado City battle will meet Sweetwater in the title round at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. A loss by Sweetwater on Saturday would force an extra game to be played Monday night at 7:30.

10-YEAR-OLD ALL-STARS
at Sweetwater

Sweetwater	0	0	0	4	0	— 4 9 0
Snyder	1	0	0	0	0	— 1 6 0

Snyder leads 4-0...

Contest will resume tonight

With the lack of rain across the state, nobody was complaining about the moisture which fell Thursday night at Moffett Field — just the timing of it.

With Snyder Senior holding a 4-0 advantage over Abilene Southwest in a semifinal matchup, the rain began to fall.

The contest will resume tonight at 7 o'clock, with Snyder leading 4-0 in the bottom of the third innning.

Brandon McGuire will be back on the hill for Snyder, with Southwest at the plate. There was one runner on base and one out.

The winner of the contest will meet Abilene Senior in the finals.

Originally slated for tonight, the title tilt has been moved to Saturday at 5 p.m. Should a second game be neccessary to decide a champion, it would be played Saturday at 8 p.m.

GOP to tone down talk of Clinton's character

WASHINGTON (AP) — GOP leaders, fearing a voter backlash in the November elections could jeopardize the party's razor-thin majority in the House, have told Republican lawmakers to take a "calm position" on President Clinton's character.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., who once pledged to talk about White House lawbreaking in every speech, confirmed Thursday that he urged Republicans at a leadership meeting to cool the rhetoric.

"At the leadership meeting this week, I said, 'We should all adopt a calm position because the situation will be changing,'" Gingrich said in a brief interview.

The new advice is a sharp departure from Gingrich's comments at a fund-raising speech in April. He said then that the president and Democrats were responsible for "the most systematic, deliberate obstruction of justice, cover-up and effort to avoid the truth we have ever seen in American history."

"I will never again, as long as I am speaker, make a speech without commenting on this topic," he said.

But even as Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr gained judicial support for his demand that Secret Service agents testify before the Monica Lewinsky grand jury, other GOP leaders were joining Gingrich in advocating a calmer approach as the November elections approach and a possible report from Starr on his investigation nears.

Three sources at the leadership meeting, who insisted on anonymity, said Gingrich went further, specifying that Republicans must avoid making comments that would make the GOP appear to hold any impeachment proceedings for partisan reasons.

If Starr issues a report to Congress, Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde of Illinois would lead such proceedings should Starr's evidence be deemed sufficient to warrant them. Hyde long has believed that hyped rhetoric and calls for the president's impeachment would hurt the GOP's credibility.

"We have escalated charges and countercharges and criticism and evaluations of motives based on darned little hard evidence," Hyde said. "It confuses people. They believe it.

"So I say, the less bomb throwing the better, because we still have work to do."

Rep. John Boehner of Ohio, chairman of the House Republican Conference, said the political backlash of continuing harsh attacks on the president would be severe in an election with little margin for error.

Republicans now hold a 228-206 edge over Democrats, with one independent in the 435-member House.

"You've got an election coming up, you've already got an increasingly partisan atmosphere," Boehner said. "No American wants these (impeachment proceedings) to be partisan-driven. We can't give that impression."

"I don't know what the hell (Starr)'s going to say, and until we have those facts, I think it would be prudent to hold fire," Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston agreed. "We don't do ourselves a service by commenting on information we don't have."

The cooled-rhetoric strategy apparently is not extending beyond Capitol Hill. On Thursday Jim Nicholson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, issued a statement demanding that Clinton "pull the plug on the political soap opera" and testify before Starr's grand jury.

"If President Clinton has nothing to hide, he should have nothing to fear. He can save the nation this embarrassing and distracting melodrama by coming forward and telling us the facts 'sooner rather than later, more rather than less,' just like he promised," Nicholson said.

Religious broadcaster Pat Robertson said on his television show Thursday that a "philandering president ... can take his chances" if testimony from Secret Service agents might compel him to keep them at a distance.

2 years after crash, questions linger

NEW YORK (AP) — TWA still flies between New York and Paris every day, on what is now Flight 924 and part of the legacy of change that marks a fateful anniversary.

It's been two years to the day since TWA Flight 800 exploded off Long Island and plunged into the Atlantic Ocean in a shower of flames, killing all 230 people aboard. The lives of the victims' families were changed forever, but one thing remains constant: No one knows what caused the disaster.

The crash of the Paris-bound flight left its mark in tombstones from Verdun, France, where a family of five was buried, to Montoursville, Pa., home to 16 high school students who perished, along with a teacher and four chaperones.

Kathy and William Rogers said they planned to reminisce today about their daughter Kimberly Marie, who was 17 when she died along with the other French Club students from Montoursville High School who were on the jetliner when it went down.

Time hasn't stood still for anyone touched by the disaster.

The FBI has a new boss in its New York office. The Federal Aviation Administration is studying ways to make aircraft fuel tanks safer. TWA has spent $15 million on victim support programs.

Rogers and his wife find solace in their new baby girl, Kelsey Marie, born in March, an experience that's been a lesson in learning to love again after the wrenching pain of losing a child.

"We were in such an awful state after her death, and now we have the love to give again," Rogers told Newsday. "We discovered that you can give your love in equal doses."

TWA Flight 800 crashed July 17, 1996 at 8:32 p.m., 11 minutes after the Boeing 747 had taken off from Kennedy International Airport.

The FBI stepped out of the investigation late last year, saying it had no evidence that a criminal act — a bomb or missile — destroyed the plane. That left mechanical failure, a theory embraced by the National Transportation Safety Board.

In public hearings in December, the NTSB said it was sure there had been an explosion in the 747's center fuel tank, but that it did not know what triggered it.

Seven months later, the investigation goes on.

"It is most likely we won't be able to say what caused it," concedes NTSB Chairman James Hall. "We will continue until we find the cause or it becomes clear that we cannot."

The FAA has issued a string of directives on fuel tanks and wiring; it is studying fuel flammability, tank safety and aging aircraft.

Hall said he plans to spend the weekend at home in Tennessee, "but my thoughts will be in Long Island."

There, Flight 800 families will mark the anniversary with memorial services on the beach. Some will revisit the hangar at Calverton, where the jetliner's reconstructed shell stands.

It wasn't known whether the reunion would include former FBI Assistant Director James Kallstrom, who headed the TWA criminal probe and has since retired to work for a Delaware bank, or any of the 30 French families who lost loved ones. The Rogerses won't be there.

TWA, which lost 53 of its own employees, relatives and retirees, flew relatives free to last year's memorials but is not officially participating this year.

"You mourn, you do the best you can for the families, and then you move on," said spokesman Mark Abels.

Bombing suspect comfortable in woods

ANDREWS, N.C. (AP) — Take it from the outfitters: Bombing suspect Eric Rudolph might be fishing. Or hunting for bugs. He certainly knows how.

Anthony Guglielmo of Mountain South Outfitters in nearby Young Harris, Ga., said Rudolph is likely benefiting from the survival training he received while serving in the Army.

"He knows what kinds of bugs he can eat and different kinds of bark," Guglielmo said Thursday. "There's also crawfish in the streams, and I'd bet he's real good at fishing."

Nearly 200 officers are in and around Andrews, searching the rugged country in the western corner of North Carolina around the clock for Rudolph. It's been eight days since he took a pickup truck and six months' worth of supplies from a rural home — and then vanished again.

Rudolph, 31, is accused of bombing a Birmingham, Ala., abortion clinic on Jan. 29, killing an off-duty policeman and maiming a nurse. He's also wanted for questioning in three Atlanta-area bombings, including the 1996 Olympics blast that killed one person and injured more than 100.

The search area covers 30 square miles of densely vegetated hills, jagged ridges, cliffs, caves and slippery rocks. It is habitat for bears, wild boar and poisonous snakes.

Even though law enforcement officers are armed with helicopters equipped with infrared and heat-detecting gear, Rudolph may hold the advantage.

"He's been living in these mountains most of his life," said Steve Phlegar, an outfitting expert at the Nantahala Outdoor Center. "If he's got the right stuff he can be pretty sneaky."

Even the man in charge of tracking Rudolph down admitted it was an uphill battle. "He has specialized knowledge that makes him especially dangerous in the heavily wooded areas where we are looking," said Woody Enderson of the Southeast Bomb Task Force.

Outfitters say Rudolph likely is equipped with the latest lightweight equipment and tools, including a stove, water purification filters and wool and synthetic clothing.

"He's got all the water he could possibly want from springs," said Guglielmo. "He can strain it through a T-shirt and he probably has iodine tablets or a water filter."

Nature can do the rest. "There's lots of wild game in the woods that he can trap, like squirrels and rabbits," Phlegar said. "And there's tons of edible plants, a lot of spring plants."

Residents of this town some 20 miles from Georgia have watched the federal government's frustration with amusement. Some people say they sympathize with Rudolph.

"I've heard a lot of people say that if they knew where he was, they'd take him some food," said Sallie West Mayes, an Andrews native. "I would if I knew where he was ... I think they're wasting people's money setting up all this stuff. He could hide out in these mountains for years."

INS employee accused of smuggling aliens

SARITA (AP) — An immigration officer whose job included escorting illegal aliens out of the country has been arrested on charges of smuggling aliens into the country.

U.S. Border Patrol officers arrested Jose Luis Espericaeta, 47, on Tuesday night at the checkpoint near this South Texas town.

"There were about 15 aliens in his personal vehicle," said Letty Valadez Garza, spokeswoman for the Border Patrol's McAllen sector. "Some of them were on the seats, others were on the floor."

Agents became suspicous and began questioning the passengers and found they were illegal aliens, she said.

Espericaeta, who had been stationed for 10 years at the Border Patrol Station in Brownsville, is well known to agents at in Sarita, Ms. Garza said. he's now employed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Brownsville, but they recognized him immediately when he drove into the checkpoint area, she said.

"It is very disturbing when something like this happens," Ms. Garza said. "Alien smuggling is part of life down here, but when it is one of your own, it is very upsetting."

Espericaeta has been charged with bringing in illegal immigrants, transporting them and harboring them, Ms. Garza said.

All three are felony counts, punishable by five years in federal prison and a $20,000 fine for each immigrant smuggled, she said.

Espericaeta was jailed in Brownsville in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Christian to leave

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest forecast for Spencer Christian is change.

The "Good Morning America" weather forecaster announced he's leaving the ABC show after 12 years to handle weather at ABC's San Francisco affiliate, KGO-TV.

He'll stay on "Good Morning America" until he leaves in January.

"I am thrilled to start this new chapter in my life in this wonderful city," Christian said this week.

Three Flight 800 families will mark the anniversary with memorial services on the beach. Some will revisit the hangar at Calverton, where the jetliner's reconstructed shell stands.

It wasn't known whether the reunion would include former FBI Assistant Director James Kallstrom, who headed the TWA criminal probe and has since retired to work for a Delaware bank, or any of the 30 French families who lost loved ones. The Rogerses won't be there.

TWA, which lost 53 of its own employees, relatives and retirees, flew relatives free to last year's memorials but is not officially participating this year.

"You mourn, you do the best you can for the families, and then you move on," said spokesman Mark Abels.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

Is rapid pulse of concern?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 63-year-old woman in good health. For the past eight years, I have experienced a rapid pulse. Even when I relax and do nothing, my heart rate stays above 100 beats per minute.

My family physician is not concerned.

My husband also has a rapid pulse, for which his doctor prescribed beta-blockers. Should I take this medicine? I am considering changing doctors.

DEAR READER: Before doing that, again ask your own physician to address the problem. A rapid pulse (exceeding 100) is called tachycardia. It has many causes, including anemia, hyperthyroidism, heart problems, and a host of other medical conditions, all of which are relatively serious. You need further testing (such as blood analyses and cardiograms) to discover the cause of your tachycardia, which may indicate that you would benefit from therapy.

Don't take your husband's beta-blockers without a doctor's approval. If you raise the issue of your tachycardia with your physician and he is not inclined to take it seriously, then consider changing health care providers. But give him another chance first.

To give you related information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Heart Disease" and "Consumer Tips on Medicine." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: In simple terms, what are cryoglobulins?

DEAR READER: In the process of metabolism, the human body manufactures many proteins that can be measured in the blood. In some diseases, the body produces too much protein or proteins that are abnormal. Cryoglobulins are an example of the latter. These proteins turn to gel when the blood is cooled, leading to bruising and small vessel damage that can affect many tissues.

Diseases associated with cryoglobulins include multiple myeloma, macroglobulinemia, lupus and polyarteritis. Once the basic disease is treated, the level of cryoglobulins usually falls. Because cryoglobulins can severely affect health, their presence must be addressed, whether the condition is a primary disorder or simply a reflection of an underlying, associated disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 56-year-old husband is in good health but has noticed that his knee gives out on him from time to time. For the past six months, he has not been able to stand on that leg and has had trouble raising his foot. What could cause this?

DEAR READER: From your brief description, I believe that your husband may have a problem with the nerves in his leg. This could be a form of sciatica or a type of neuropathy (nerve damage) that is common in diabetics, or something more ominous, such as a stroke or multiple sclerosis.

He needs a full medical exam and, probably, a consultation with a neurologist. Because leg weakness and a foot drop could progress to cause a severe handicap, I urge your husband not to delay seeking medical attention.

House GOP eye election year tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican leaders are raising their sights for an election year tax cut, in the $1 trillion range for the next decade, at the same time they plan to set aside hundreds of billions more to preserve Social Security.

A recent Congressional Budget Office estimate of an enormous budget surplus "changes the chemistry. There's more desire to look at how we might prudently use part of the surplus for tax reduction," Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday.

President Clinton today reiterated his declaration from last winter, when he said he wanted to set aside the entire surplus to "save Social Security first." Since then, however, estimates of the surplus has risen from $655 billion over the coming decade to $1.55 trillion, increasing Republicans eagerness to reduce taxes.

"When he (Clinton) said, 'save Social Security,' the surplus was much smaller than it is now," Archer said.

Speaker Newt Gingrich told reporters on Thursday the GOP leadership is now considering a cut "at least twice the size" of the one that had been on the table previously.

Several other officials said that would put it in the range of $250 million over five years and nearly $1 trillion over 10 years.

Asked this morning about possible tax cuts, Clinton did not welcome the idea. "Before we've had the first year of a surplus, to be talking about spending hundreds of billions of dollars on a tax cut based on projected surpluses that may or may not materialize, before we have spent the first dollar to save Social Security ... I think is a mistake," Clinton said.

GM, UAW both try to shore up support

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers, facing the prospect that their battle over two parts plants could go on indefinitely, are each trying to shore up support.

The first of the two strikes in Flint entered its seventh week today. The strikes have idled about 179,000 workers at 25 assembly plants and more than 100 parts plants across the United States, Canada and Mexico. They have also cost the automaker more than $1.2 billion.

Plant-level talks resumed today.

"With the development of going to arbitration, the leadership wants to inform the local leaders what's going on and what it means, and to bolster their support," said John Stamm, a labor relations expert at Babson College near Boston.

The UAW also plans to convene an unusual meeting of about 300 local presidents and bargaining chairmen from around the nation in Flint on Monday to brief them on the strikes.
