Smith Goes To Mat With Andrew Mellon In Economy 'Debate'

SECRETARY IS DUCKING ISSUE, NOMINEE AVERS

Cost of Operating Government Is Point Smith Stresses Most

SECRETARY IS QUOTED

Smith to Speak Tonight in Chicago as Final Western Bid

CHICAGO, Oct. 18. (AP)—Secretary Mellon was a target today for the verbal fire of Governor Smith, who accused the treasury department head of ducking the issue on the question of a reduction in the operating costs of the federal government.

The Democratic nominee said Mr. Mellon, in replying to his challenge to Republican claims of economy in government, had talked about tax reduction and remained silent on the question of a paring down of federal expenditures.

"Mr. Mellon entirely ducks the issue," he declared. "He leaves that important word out of his statement that he put over the radio and that was 'reduction,' in the cost of government. That was not brought about.

Omits "Reduction"

"There is a difference between his speech, his radio speech and this statement. He shifted his ground, because in his radio speech he said that the Democrats would not give the Republicans credit for reducing the expenditures of the government. I said no, because they were not reduced. But in this (Mr. Mellon's statement in reply) he just talks about tax reduction.

The nominee asked why Mr. Mellon did not "recite us a couple of big economies" instead of "taking a $20 one," and said he "conceded" the secretary a $14 saving by some American consul. He then said

Weeks to Address Mass Meeting On Colonization Plans Tonight

Farmers and Residents of City Urged to Attend Program for Development of Wichita Valley

Charles Weeks, California colonizer and agriculture expert, will address a mass meeting of citizens of Wichita Falls and vicinity on the subject "The Development of the Irrigated Valley" at the Memorial auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Friday night.

Mr. Weeks will use stereopticon slides to illustrate his lecture which will be made up chiefly of his plans for colonizing irrigated land and marketing the products from the farms in his colonies. The need in Wichita Falls and vicinity is cooperative marketing of products from dairy and poultry farms, according to J. T. Harrell, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce and head of the group of citizens and landowners who will negotiate with Mr. Weeks concerning Wichita county development.

Open Meeting

Mr. Harrell will preside at the mass meeting and will introduce the speaker. Announcement has been made that no admission price will be charged and that there will be no solicitation of funds at the meeting.

This will be the second trip to Wichita Falls which Mr. Weeks has

The Weeks' plan of poultry colonising is going to be considerably broadened in the Wichita valley. The price of land allows one to own 10 acres at about the cost of one California acre. A Texas acre, under irrigation, will produce as much feed as a California acre and at a less cost for we have an abundance of water at a very much less cost.

Dairy Development

With the poultry plan is to be included the development of the dairy business. Texas is destined to become the greatest dairy state in the nation. All the natural advantages that she enjoys makes it possible to produce milk at the very minimum price and with her large population that is constantly and rapidly growing, it is certain that it will be many years before the supply of milk that can be produced within our borders will ever catch up with the demand from our own state.

Along with the poultry development then, is to go the dairy business. The two lines of livestock work do not conflict at any point—in fact, they go together ideally.

Texas Woman and Two Children Die In Fire as Blaze Razes Farm Home

GREENVILLE, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—Mrs. P. Carter and her two children were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home in the Union Valley community, 12 miles south of here. The father, accompanied by the grandfather of the children, had left the home earlier in the day and did not know of the tragedy until friends found him this afternoon.

The Carter home is well back from a little used road in an isolated section and neighbors had no intimation of the disaster until flames were visable above the trees.

GLOOM WRAPS G. O. P. LEADERS AS DRIVE FAILS

Blue Atmosphere Takes Place of Arrogant Attitude

STRIFE IS INTERNAL

Even Mr. Hoover Causes Dissatisfaction With Sphinx Silence

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The gobs of gloom permeating the atmosphere in and about the Barr building, where the Republican national campaign headquarters are maintained, offer as much encouragement to Democrats in Washington as any other one thing. Either the Hoover-Curtis ticket is doomed to defeat in November or its supporters in the national headquarters think it will be and no amount of flamboyant press notices can belie that fact.

"You're getting all the breaks," is the plaintive wail which greets Democratic newspapermen when they inquire of friends employed at Republican headquarters as to "how things" are going. Those on the inside know that the Republican campaign has been a comedy of errors from start to finish. The only hope the "wise ones" have left is that the sheer weight of Republican numbers, coupled with religious bigotry in some sections, will be sufficient to pull their ticket through.

Curtis Was Right

"Curtis was right," said one of the "insiders," who for obvious reasons must remain nameless. "He said at Kansas City that the party couldn't afford to name a candidate for whom it would have to apologize throughout the campaign. That's exactly what we did and that is exactly what we have been doing ever since. The funny thing to me is that Curtis, who was wise enough to sense this situation, was fool enough to accept a place on the ticket. Of course it won't affect him so much for, even if he isn't elected in November, he'll still be senator from Kansas. Incidentally, you'll notice he did not think enough of his chances to be vice president to resign his seat in the senate."

This dissatisfaction with the Republican campaign program has been manifested from the first. It was revealed by one of the "higher ups" when Dr. Hubert Work, then secretary of interior, was named campaign maanger and Senator George Moses of New Hampshire remarked, "Well, in Dr. Work is looks like the opposition has at length found someone who can beat Hoover." Of course that was presumed to be a "wise crack" but it expressed the real sentiment of the senator and a large body of Republicans.

Mann's Selection

The next thing that occasioned criticism within the party was the selection of Col. Horace Mann, formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., to conduct the campaign in the southern states. Presumably this was done at the behest of C. H. Huston, vice chairman of the campaign committee and a former aide of Mr. Hoover in the department of commerce. However, it was a direct slap in the face of Representative J. Will Taylor, Republican national committeeman for Tennessee, a bitter foe of Huston's. It was resented by partisans of Taylor and, coupled with other factors, is one of the reasons prompting political dopesters for putting Tennessee in the Democratic column.

Mann's selection was followed immediately by the Ku Klux-anti-Saloon league drive against Governor

DEMO WOMEN ON TOUR TODAY

Delegation to Visit Burk, Electra, Iowa Park

Democratic women of Wichita Falls will extend their activities to other towns in the county Friday when a delegation will visit Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park in the interest of the Democratic nominees. Opportunity will also be given Democratic women of these towns to become members of the recently organized Wichita County Woman's Democratic league, it was announced.

Speakers Attend

The delegation of Democratic women will be accompanied by Ballard's concert band, and several speakers from the Democratic headquarters, including Tarlton Morrow, H. J. Bruce, E. R. Surles, Dan Boone, H. F. Weldon, J. B. Hatchitt, Edgar Scurry and others.

The schedule of the trip calls for the first stop at Burkburnett at 1 o'clock, with residents of the town, especially women, invited to attend the street program. Electra will be visited at 3 o'clock and Iowa Park at 5 o'clock.

Women of Wichita Falls were invited to make the trip, whether or not members of the league, in a statement Thursday by Mrs. G. B. Smedley, chairman. More than 25 automobiles of delegates have already been promised, it was stated. Transportation will be provided those who desire it, Mrs. Smedley said. The Wichita Falls delegation will assemble at Democratic headquarters at the Hamilton building at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning and will leave for Burkburnett at 12 noon.

Women Loyal to Party

"We feel sure a majority of the women of Wichita county are Democratic at heart, and are loyal to the principles and leaders of their party," said Mrs. Smedley.

"We hope to meet these women in our trip Friday and to have their support and assistance in the work of the Woman's Democratic league. We have found little indication that women as a whole are supporting the Republican nominee."

The league is sponsoring the Democratic rally here Monday night when Congressman Guinn Williams and Mrs. W. D. Moore of Denton will speak for the Democratic ticket.

MIDGET PLANE LONG OVERDUE IN LONDON GOAL

British Air Experts See Flight Attempt as Pure Folly

WIFE CONTINUES VIGIL

Sad Little Woman Keeps Up Hopes Despite Long Silence

LONDON, Oct. 18. (AP)—Flares burned tonight at Croydon airdrome with the slim hope that Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald, who started at noon yesterday on a transatlantic flight venture from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, might in some fashion have escaped the mysterious fate of other such fliers and complete his trip.

By ROBERT J. PREW

LONDON, Oct. 18. (US)—Foolhardiness in transatlantic flying has reached its extreme limit in Commander MacDonald's attempt to span the Atlantic ocean from Newfoundland to London in a midget air taxi with an open cockpit.

That is, so far as is publicly disclosed, the opinion of the British air experts in regard to MacDonald's hop-off from Newfoundland yesterday afternoon in his Gypsy-Moth plane. The English experts pay tribute to the flier's reckless courage which was displayed also in submarine work during the war. But they question whether he has the smallest chance of emerging from the venture with his life.

No Word Received

Up to 7 o'clock tonight, no word of any sort about the tiny plane had reached London since the take-off from Newfoundland 26 hours hours earlier. As far as the air ministry knows, conditions over the northern Atlantic were mainly favorable with a good following wind of about 25 miles an hour.

MacDonald seemed to have Lindbergh's luck in regard to the weather. The rain-bound west coast of Ireland had its usual drenching this morning, but conditions had improved considerably about the time the Moth was due. At a flying speed of 80 miles an hour, this was estimated at around 1 o'clock this afternoon.

His Wife Waits

Mrs. MacDonald, the flier's wife, a small brunette, waited beside the telephone all last night in the hope of getting word from her husband, and continued her vigil all day long today with he 5-year-old son Ian, at her side. In the afternoon, she donned a hat and fur coat and waited vainly for a call to Stag-lane airdome to be present for her husband's arrival. Her extreme anxiety was quiet obvious this evening.

"I can do nothing but hope," she said. "I have every confidence in my husband's courage and nerve. When he first mentioned to me the idea of flying that immense distance alone in a small plane, I told him I wasn't keen on it, but I didn't again express my disapproval.

May Have Landed

His naval friends, however, strongly endeavored to dissuade him."

Against all the tragic possibilities of the situation, however, the hope persists that MacDonald may have descended in some remote part of Ireland, or so altered his course as to enable him to make land elsewhere.

Rasmussen, district coast guard commander.

Two of the boats pushed their way through the blockade, established yesterday when reports reached the commander that 30 or 40 rum craft were lined up on the Canadian side of the river.

All of the captured boats carried liquor and ale, the commander said.

JURY SELECTED TO TRY DAVIS

Woody Davis Again to Talk Of Shook Deaths

EASTLAND, Texas, Oct. 18 (AP).—A jury selected after three special venires totaling 130 almost had been exhausted, the trial of Tom Davis, 17, for the murder of Lucian Shook last month near Leeray, was recessed just before dark today. Taking of testimony was to start at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Only three venfremen remained to be examined when the twelfth juror was obtained. Two days were consumed in the jury selection.

Writ Is Asked

A defense motion for a writ of habeas corpus filed today, asking Davis' release while talesmen were being summoned, was overruled by Judge Elvo Been after an hour's argument. Defense attorneys charged that Davis, held without bond since his arrest, was being held illegally.

While opposing counsul wrangled about jurors, attorneys for Clyde Thompson, given the death penalty by a jury here Tuesday for the murder of Lucian Shook, filed a motion for a new trial. Both Thompson and Tom Davis were indicted for the slayingr of Lucian and Leon Shook, but were tried only for the death of the former. In the event of Davis' acquittal on the present charge it was indicated the state would drop the indictment against him for the slaying of Leon Shook.

Brief Trial Seen

Testimony in the present trial was expected to be brief. Woodrow Wilson Davis, 12, brother of the defendant, who testified for the state in the trial of Thompson, will take the stand for the defense tomorrow. He testified previously that he and his brother watched from cover while Thompson shot and beat the Shook brothers to death.

Growing Use of Liquor by Children Deplored by Dallas Social Worker

DALLAS, Oct. 18 (AP).—Deploring the widespread use of intoxicating liquor by the young people of the country," Mrs. W. H. Carson, child welfare director of the Dallas County Humane society, declared today that "prohibition has operated to bring about the gravest social evil of modern times."

Although she offered no solution of the present condition, Mrs. Carson urged that all thinking people give attention to some method whereby it could be rectified.

"Liquor drinking among girls and boys in our schools and colleges has reached intolerable lengths," she said. "It is proving the ruination of young people.

"I know it would be equally disastrous to have a return of the open saloon, but prohibition, in my opinion, is responsible for the present drinking habits among girls and boys, in that drinking habits have shifted among classes

SANITY TEST DENIED

Warden Refuses Mercy in Last Conference With Attorneys

SAN QUENTIN STATE PRISON, Calif., Oct. 18. (UP)—Warden James Holohan of San Quentin prison late today refused to seek appointment of a sanity commission for William Edward Hickman and said that he would proceed with preparations for the execution at 10 a. m. Friday.

Jerome Walsh and Richard Cantillon, attorneys for Hickman, presented a petition for the commission to the warden.

After studying the petition and an affidavit accompanying it, Holohan informed them he was convinced Hickman is sane and that he would proceed with the hanging.

HICKMAN ASKS FOR PHONOGRAPH

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Oct. 18. (UP)—An iron nerve, apparently strangely soothed by the tunes of a little prison phonograph, sustained the stoicism of William Edward Hickman in his death cell tonight—probably his last on earth.

"The Fox," slayer of Marion Parker, who is scheduled to die on the gallows shortly after 10 a. m. Friday, is said by prison officials to be one of the coolest men who ever occupied the San Quentin death house.

Music for Solace

With every appeal for clemency denied, "the Fox" who kidnaped little Marion from a Los Angeles schoolhouse for ransom and hacked her to pieces when he feared capture, was resigned to his fate and has chosen music and religion for solace in his last hours.

His request for the phonograph, Warden Holohan said, was one of the strangest ever made by a man in the death cell.

Hickman's former companions in condemned row offered no objections to his request and willingly relinquished their phonograph. It was brought to the death cell and placed alongside a Bible and other religious books which "The Fox" has been reading for several hours each day.

Jerome Walsh and Richard Cantillon, attorneys for Hickman, arrived at San Quentin tonight to make a final effort for a sanity hearing for the condemned youth. They went immediately to the warden's office announcing they were ready to present a formal petition for a sanity hearing.

The attorneys had an affidavit by Dr. C. M. MacFall in which the latter expressed the opinion that Hickman is insane and suffering from dementia praecox.

Detailed Evidence

Dr. MacFall, a psychiatrist of the University of Virginia, examined Hickman 14 times while he was a prisoner in Los Angeles and in the

Sheppard Assails G. O. P. Record of Enforcement

Governor Smith is bound by the dry plank adopted at Houston while the Republicans were assailed because their party record of prohibition enforcement was more nearly nullification than any position assumed by Smith, the Texan charged.

'GREATEST CROWD' EXPECTED AT AUDITORIUM COOKING SCHOOL

KITCHEN QUEEN HERE MONDAY

Mrs. Chitwood 'Overjoyed' At New Quarters

Returning here for her fifth successive series of demonstrations, Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known culinary expert, will open The Record News and Daily Times Cooking school for women of Wichita Falls next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Memorial auditorium, it has been announced.

Well Known Here

Mrs. Chitwood scarcely needs an introduction to the housewives of Wichita Falls, having been for the last five years the guiding genius of what has become one of the largest cooking schools in northwest Texas. When the school was first organized here five years ago scarcely 150 members were enrolled, and meetings were held in the ballroom of the Kemp hotel. As she returned each year, it was found necessary to move the meeting place to one of local theaters. And finally, when the enrollment of the cooking school held last year reached 1,500, Mrs. Chitwood realized that for the 1928 school even larger quarters would be needed.

Mrs. Chitwood, in the city Thursday making plans for the school, was overjoyed when informed that The Record News and Daily Times had secured the Memorial auditorium for the school this year.

"It will be more of a pleasure now than it ever was before," Mrs. Chitwood said. "We'll fill the whole auditorium, and, with the facilities offered, results from the school this year should be doubled. I have looked over your auditorium, and I have never found a place which offered such comfort and such beauty."

Daily Meeting

Mrs Chitwood will give especially prepared lectures and demonstrations concerning every branch of the culinary art. There will be no discrimination shown in favor of the highly elaborate dishes, she said. Every form of cookery will come in for its share in the course.

The school will be in session each day through Thursday, between the hours of 2:30 and 4 p. m.

Mrs. Chitwood has just recently completed a successful school in Houston.

Culinary Expert Urges Greater Use of Fish in Family Menus

Editor's Note: Ida M. Chitwood, author of the article below, is one of the best known culinary experts in the country. She is to open the Record News and Daily Times Cooking school at the Memorial auditorium next Monday, offering to the housewife of Wichita Falls a series of lectures and cooking demonstrations lasting for four days. Special articles by Miss Chitwood dealing with various aspects of the culinary art will appear each day both in The Record News and Daily Times.

By IDA M. CHITWOOD

Have you ever wondered why fish has been called "brain food?" There is no actual foundation in fact for such a statement, but because most kinds of fish are low in energy producing materials (fats, carbo-hydrates) and rich in general health materials (fats, carbo-hydrates) and rich in general health materials (proteins and vitamins) they are considered good food for people who live sedentary lives. Fish is also easily digested, so persons who do not get sufficient exercise to digest more hearty foods, can readily take care of well cooked and temptingly served fish.

Wherever it can be had at low cost, fish should be used frequently to help furnish the protein requirements of the family. It may be a little more trouble to prepare and require a little more care than a lamb chop, still difference in price and the pleasing variety added to the menu makes it quite worth the extra effort.

Fish appears on the market fresh and preserved by freezing, canning, salting and smoking. One must be careful in selecting fish that it is perfectly fresh, as it decomposes readily.

If one is not fortunate enough to live in a locality where she can purchase fresh fish, storage fish is almost always available, and, if it has been properly preserved, is more reliable than "uncertain" fresh fish. Cold storage fish should never be purchased unless frozen solid and fully enclosed in a jacket of ice. When it comes home from the market, put it in a covered pan in the ice box and allow it to thaw gradually, but do not soak it in the water. Use it as soon as possible after it has thawed out. Salted and smoked fish are always available as are also good brands of canned fish.

The preparation and cooking of fish is simple and quickly accomplished, and if properly prepared at the market, it requires very little attention by the cook. Whole fish should be carefully washed in plenty of cold water, while sections such a fillets and slices should be wiped with a clean damp piece of cheese-cloth.

As most fish is deficient in fat, it should be cooked so that fat enters into its preparation in some way. In baking, bits of butter dotted over the top make it rich and tender; in broiling the pan rubbed with butter keeps the fish from sticking.

Fish as a source of tissue and bone building material is cheaper than meat. Substitute it once or twice a week for the ever-present roasts and stews.

When boiling white fish, add a little vinegar or lemon juice to the water to keep the flesh white and firm.

Narrow strips of muslin greased with fat and put across the bottom of the pan in which fish is to be baked, make it easy to remove the fish from the pan without breaking. The ends of the strips must extend beyond the fish.

In selecting fish remember that fresh fish should not give off an offensive odor; the eyes of frozen fish should be bulgy, bright and shiny; the flesh of fresh fish should be firm and the gills reddish in color.

When fish comes from the market, remove it from the paper, and if it has not been cleaned, clean it at once. Wash and salt it slightly and put it in a covered dish. Keep fish in a part of the refrigerator from which odors cannot be carried to other foods, and cook fish as soon as possible after it comes from the market.

Gloom Wraps G.O.P. Leaders

Smith in the south, with a Hymn of Hate being sung at every cross road. Republican leaders insisted there was no connection between these two facts but, since there was no ringing denunciation of bigotry on the part of their candidate, the denial was not believed. The activities of certain political preachers together with those of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, an assistant attorney general, confirmed a popular suspicion. When the Caldwell letter was disclosed the public chose to consider Mr. Hoover's show of indignation as a sort of plea of confession and avoidance. Now that a slump has come in the bigotry campaign the party that was credited with it suffers the reaction.

Hoover's Silence

However, there has been as much dissatisfaction within the party over the masterly silence maintained by Mr. Hoover as almost any other thing. At first Republican editors and speakers sought to give the impression that Mr. Hoover frankly and openly discussed the campaign issues. There was a perceptible cooling in their ardor after the Newark speech and what little remained suffered a chilling blight after the Elizabethton effort. The contrast with Governor Smith's method of campaigning was so marked as to make the comparison painful to the Republicans.

Within the campaign headquarters too there has been constant bickering. Every time a state leader brings in a bad report—and there has been quite a procession of these—some underling is declared to have suffered from official displeasure. Even the candidate himself, according to reports, has not been able to keep his even temper at all times and, if Washington gossip may be credited, those in authority were particularly unpleasant when long distance telephones begin bringing in reports of the great receptions accorded Governor Smith and his party on the recent southern trip. It was something like "Mudville" after the "mighty Casey" had "struck out."

Robinson Promises Tariff at Cheyenne

CHEYENE, Wyo., Oct. 18. (AP)—A tariff that will maintain legitimate business sand "high and just standards of wages" but at the same time strike at monopolies, was promised by Senator Joe T. Robinson tonight in the event of a Democratic victory.

San Quentin prison. The affidavit set forth detailed evidences of insanitay which the psychiatrist had found in Hickman.

The warden conferred with members of the California state prison board who met here Wednesday and indicated such a petition, if presented, would not be acted on.

One of Hickman's last requests was to see his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City. It was understood, however, that his mother had gone into seclusion in her home city and that she would not be advised of the hour of her son's death.

The youth said "good-bye" to his father, Thomas Hickman, before he was removed to the death house Wednesday night.

Mcintain Calm

The father was in tears after the final meeting with his boy, but young Hickman maintained the calm that has been with him throughout the long weeks since his arrest, the trial and his confinement in San Quentin prison.

Even the youth's appetite has remained with him. He called for breakfast this morning, eating two eggs, a piece of toast and a cup of coffee.

Following the meal he requested that a bouquet of flowers be sent to his cell and the warden granted the wish.

With the light of the moon shining through the prison cells to the enclosure of the path along death row, Hickman walked with a firm step from his former cell to the death house Wednesday night.

As "taps" was sounded, all the prisoners moved forward to the front of their cells to "see Eddie take his walk up back."

"Goodbie Eddie," and "goodbye Hickman," they called to him as he preceded Capt. James Carpenter of the prison guard down the balcony of the second tier of cells on the south side of the courtyard.

"Goodbye," Hickman replied, his voice showing not the slightest emotion.

Entering the death chamber, he retired to his cot and almost immediately fell into a sound sleep. He awoke at 2:45 a. m. and wrote two long letters. Completing his writing at 4 a. m., he returned to his cot and slept for two hours.

Suicide Precautions

Although guards and prison officials agree that Hickman's attitude shows no indications of a suicide intent, every precaution is being taken to defeat any such attempt. All article that might afford him an opportunity to harm himself have been removed from his cell.

"He seems to have a complete mastery of his mind," guards and officials said today.

Hickman's mind seems occupied with thoughts other than the gallows. He reads his Bible and prayer books, plays the phonograph and at times sits in thought. At no time has he shown the emotion or nervousness which a condemned man would be expected to display.

Hickman's body will be embalmed at the prison after the hanging Friday morning and will be buried in a cemetery at San Rafael, according to tentative plans arranged by his father.

Smith Answers Andrew Mellon

the Republicans spoke of a $2,000,000,000 saving and added:

"They have accounted for about $34 out of the two billion."

The nominee was asked if he had any comment on Mr. Mellon's reference to the fiscal affairs being a puzzle to him.

The Chinese Puzzle

"Yes," the governor shot back. "If it is a Chinese puzzle to me with my experience in diving into governmental figures running over a quarter of a century, what must it be to the fellow on the sidewalk who is entitled to know as much about the government as any one else? That is the answer to that. I frankly admit it is a Chinese puzzle. I do not conceal it. And he knows it is."

The governor said that between the years 1921 and 1928 not a single governmental department had shown a decrease in expenditures, and added that the Republican national committee's textbook "says the cost of government has gone up."

Further, the nominee went on, Mr. Mellon in 1925, when "there was no national campaign on," gave credit to Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, secretary of treasury under Wilson, for starting the tax reduction. He gave the credit to Glass, the governor added, "and in so many words said that he was carrying out the system inaugurated by his predecessor."

Quizzed On Marines

The Democratic candidate was asked if he would leave American marines in Nicaragua if he became president and the reply was:

"I do not know. That depends on ho wfar the government is committed." Mr. Smith also said before the campaign was over he proposed to discuss foreign relations, labor and reorganization of the vast machinery of the federal government.

CHICAGO TO HEAR SMITH TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 18 (US).—Chicago, the hub of the west, will be used as a sounding board by Governor Smith to carry his final appeal for support to this great section, largely upon which depends the triumph of his presidential campaign.

Locked in a room on the fifth floor of the Congress hotel, famous brown derby cast aside and with furrowed brow, the Democratic standard bearer today labored on the speech which may mark the turning point of his political fortunes.

Subject Is Secret

What the subject or subjects of this mighty effort to turn the tide in his direction will be still is a secret with the governor and his advisers. It is virtually certain, however, that the crowd in the 131st Regiment armory and the thousands of radio listeners tomorrow night will hear the governor again pour fuel on the burning issue of the west—farm relief.

For the one thing upon which all the Smith managers agree is that farm relief speeches and more farm relief speeches are his greatest salvation in the west. And without the electoral votes of several states in the granary of America, which are now in doubt, Governor Smith's cause is considered hopeless.

On Parade Today

While the armory hall is comparatively small and the local leaders insist that Governor Smith could fill Soldier field, seating 125,000, Chicago will have an opportunity to see the man in the brown derby. At noon tomorrow the governor will leave his hotel for a parade through the streets, which will take him as far north as Evanston and as far south as Hyde Park.

The parade will pass through the bustling Chicago loop at the noon hour and through the most densely populated sections of the city. It is estimated that at least half a million people will see the famous Smith smile and the brown derby.

Crowd Pleases Him

The governor knocked off work on his speech for half an hour to meet three-score of newspaper men. He was jubilant over the old-fashioned jamboree staged for him on his arrival here last night. "Wonderful" was the way he described it. He commented on the fact that the crowd stayed outside of his hotel burning bonfires until after midnight.

Told that the fuel of the bonfires was Chicago Tribunes, containing a cartoon conveying the idea that the crowds which met him were inspired by curiosity, the governor looked at the cartoon and remarked:

"What's wrong with this picture? I'll answer it. The look of delight on the elephant's face. That doesn't go."

Rheumatic Pains Yield to Capudine

Those who suffer from rheumatism will find that Capudine will greatly assist in the treatment by relieving the pain and reducing the fever and inflammation. Rheumatism is a serious disease and should have the attention of a good physician, but the patient should be made comfortable as suffering retards recovery. Capudine does not upset the stomach and contains no habit-forming drugs, yet it is more effective in relieving pain and high nerve strain. At all drug stores—30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

JAILER HELD IN POST SHOOTING

Prisoner Shot to Death After Wrangle

POST, Texas, Oct. 18 (INS)—John H. Ramsey, jailer at the Garza county jail here, was charged with murder today in connection with the shooting of E. L. Bracken, a prisoner, this morning. Bond of $7,500 was furnished.

Two prisoners testified at the inquest before County Judge H. G. Smith that Bracken cursed Ramsey and said he was coming out "to get him."

Bracken, who shot three times by Ramsey, was awaiting removal to the state penitentiary at Huntsville to serve a sentence imposed on him following his conviction on a charge of assault to kill in connection with the shooting of Dick Redding here last year.

Ramsey was attacked yesterday by a negro prisoner and knocked down twice by an iron bar which his attacker wielded.

GUARD'S HEALTH RAPIDLY IMPROVING

Texas Officer Had Suffered for Long Time With Stomach Trouble—Finds Relief in Use of Orgatone.

"Orgatone certainly has helped me," was about the first thing that Mr. W. M. Clark, county road guard of Grayson county, Texas, while talking with an Orgatone representative a few weeks ago.

"When a person has suffered a long time with stomach trouble," continued Mr. Clark, "and can not find relief, and then suddenly finds a preparation that gives him the relief to which he is entitled, I tell you he surely appreciates it. I had been bothered with headaches, and dizziness for a long time, and at times, I could hardly get my breath, and was afraid to eat what food I wanted and needed, for I knew I would suffer from it, and I hardly knew what to do. Someone asked me, finally why I did not use Orgatone and so I bought a bottle, and it helped me so much that I got another one and now I am able to eat anything I want without fear of that terrible bloated condition of my stomach.

"I never have those terrible headaches any more, and feel that my health is so greatly improved that I ought never have any trouble with my stomach again. I can sleep good now, and am not bothered with shortness of breath as I was before I commenced using Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Greenland Flyer Returns

HASSELL AND CRAMER HOME

Rockford, Ill., Hails Daring Aviators

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 18 (UP)—The entire city of Rockford turned out this afternoon and accorded a tumultuous and riotous welcome when Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, the Rockford-Stockholm fliers arrived "home."

The special train, carrying the noted flyers and 100 Rockford boosters from Chicago, arrived at 4 p. m., where 10,000 voices arose to cheer the men who left two months ago in an audacious attempt to span the oceans and arctic wastes to Sweden via Greenland.

Other thousands of men, women and children lined the curbs of the streets in the business district through which the flyers were paraded.

Hassell and Cramer were forced down in Greenland and abandoned the flight 200 miles from Mt. Evans, where they were to have refueled and continued for Sweden. But it was as if Rockford was greeting them for accomplishing their goal.

Two Flags Seen

At least the welcome could not have been more whole-heartedly enthusiastic. All business streets in the city were lined with American flags while the Swedish colors of yellow and blue floated in the breeze from above.

"Hello, chief," was Hassell's first greeting on alighting from the train as the crowd shouted "Hurrah." The flyer's greeting was for Chief of Police August E. Bargen of Rockford. Hassell was visibly affected by the enthusiastic welcome of his home people.

In a remark made shortly after arrival, he expressed himself as "ashamed" for not having accomplished the goal which the city had set for him and Cramer in their flight.

"Rockford has been good to me in giving me the opportunity of making such an attempt and is wonderful in her greeting in spite of the fact that I have failed this time," Hassell said.

Etes There Too

With Hassell and Cramer was Elmer Etes, Rockford airplane mechanic, who rescued the flyers in Greenland after they had been lost two weeks from the world.

The two flyers were guests at a banquet of the Blackhawk Boy Scout area. Later they and Etes were honored guests at a civic dinner at the Nelson hotel when the flyers received watches and other gifts and Etes was given a cash purse.

Never an Iron on My Hair

Wherever my theatrical engagements happen to take me I could have a marcel, but I never do. I prefer my own method—waving my hair with my Wave and Sheen.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

I always keep my hair clean by shampooing once a week. I apply Wave and Sheen with a comb. You can use a brush, or just your hands.

I dampen the hair with it—insert combs in the direction I wish the waves and forget it for about an hour. Some types of hair require more time, some less.

The result is a soft, lovely, undulating wave. Most people in my audiences think I have it marceled. Many ask whether it is a natural wave. It is not.

You can have this same sheen no matter what method you use to wave your hair. Get a bottle at any toilet counter for 75 cents. One trial will convince you as it has thousands of others.—Adv.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (US)—She was manicuring for a lady, and she was thinking deeply.

"Do you know," said she, "I once had a man customer who told me that if I would break him of biting his nails, he would give me a check for $100. He was engaged to be married, you know, and he said the girl wouldn't have him till he lost the habit, you know.

"Well, I broke him all right, and you know he never came back for manicures and never gave me the $100. Wasn't that tur-rible?"

"How did you break the habit?" asked the customer.

"Oh, that's easy," said the girl, shrugging her shoulders. "If you get them to take two manicures a week, they just don't bite their nails. I don't know why; it just works that way. Having the nails cared for breaks the habit. He came twice a week and the habit cured itself, you know."

"He was certainly unappreciative," said the customer, smiling.

"It wasn't the $100," said the girl. "It was the principle of the thing, you know."

"Of course. He must have been very close."

"I don't know," said the girl. "He gave me $1 tip every time and he came here twice a week regularly."

"How long did he come to get them?" asked the lady.

"More than a year," said the girl, who, whatever else she was, couldn't claim to be a mathematician.

The lady figured silently. Tips of $2 a week, for more than 52 weeks. She put her quarter tip on the table and walked out.

Women are spending important money for water lily face cream, actually made by beauty specialists from the flowers, mashed up and combined with other fragrant and effective ingredients.

"And if you would see what buys water lily cream," said a girl who sells it. "My word, I feel sorry for the water lilies! It does good, but you have to have something to start on, and it just makes me laugh to hear some of these old crows asking how long it will take to have a skin like a water lily. Boy!"

"Yeh, dispositions like a cactus and they want a face like a water lily," said the girl who sold perfumes. "Boy! They ought to eat the water lilies and see what it would do for their dispositions."

Mrs. Bella Frank identified the wrong man as her husband and got jailed.

The one who becomes the husband usually turns out to be the wrong man, so maybe a woman isn't so much to blame when she sees a wrong man and forgets for a moment that it isn't the wrong man she married. Anyway, all wrong men look alike to a woman who didn't get the right man.

The University of Chicago made a study of 46 mothers working nights, to find out how many hours' sleep they got, and they found that the hours of sleep ranged from one to four a night, with most of those mothers not sleeping at all on washing and ironing days.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Cherie has just told Dina that these are her newest Paris models, and while Dina is wondering at the extreme smallness of the boxes as containers of Paris costumes we'll note that Dina's dress is dull crepe with striking curved seamings and Cherie's is black velvet with fichu and vest of white georgette.

These are the French models because, it seems, all the Paris couturiers have gone into the jewelry business. The regular jewelers didn't design necklaces in the spirit of their frocks! Cherie is wearing a choker of flat green stone plaques centered with gold. Dina's is made of disks of rhinestones.

Here are some of the other designs by some of the famous couturiers of Paris. Some of them are of little silver or gold plaques, some are of metal rings, some are of clear stones—rhinestones, emeralds or ametnyst colored stones—some of them are imitation or genuine semi-precious stones — carnelain, onyx, jade. The one in the lower right hand corner is of pearl beads with jade colored ornaments. The necklace designed by Callot is of emerald and silver and crystal beads. The modernistic one in the upper left-hand corner is of frosted crystal. The modernistic vogue is notable in many of the cut and placing of the stones.

Mother Must Deal With Wife If She Wants Married Son's Affection

Almost Any Wife Can Make Her Husband Do Anything She Wishes, So It Is Up to Mother to Make Herself Agreeable, for the Only Way to Hold a Son After He Marries Is Through His Wife.

"I have settled the in-law problem satisfactorily by trying to put myself in my daughter-in-law's place and remembering how I felt when I was a young married woman," said a wise woman to me recently.

"My boy was a little chap when my husband died, so he is all that I have in the world and naturally I idolize him. We have always been very close together, friends and pals, and, of course, it has been a great wrench to me to give him up, and his going has left me lonely enough.

"But I never tried to keep him from marrying, because he is of a very affectionate and domestic temperament—essentially the family man type—and I knew that he would be far happier married than single. He was the sort of man who would need his own fireside, his own house to putter around, his own garden to tend, his woman, his little children climbing on his knees. No fate would have been worse for him than to be a lonely old bachelor living in a club, with no ties, no one to love or care for and no one to love or care for him.

"Of course, he was devoted to me, but the love a man gives his mother isn't the soul-satisfying kind that he gives to his wife and his children. He may be all in all to her, but she doesn't meet his need for companionship. Besides, my husband and I had been so happy together that I was not willing to deny my son the joy we had had in each other nor deprive him of knowing the rapture of parenthood.

"So I welcomed my daughter-in-law as a blessing that had been bestowed upon my son, something precious and wonderful that would enrich his life. I have not been jealous because he loves her better than he does me and puts her before me, because that is the visible proof that he had made the right choice in a mate and that his marriage is a success. For those marriages are failures in which the mother still holds the first place in her son's heart, where he turns to her for sympathy and understanding instead of to his wife.

"Then I faced the fact that so many mothers ignore, that when your son marries you have got to hold him through his wife or lose him. For if your daughter-in-law dislikes you she will alienate your son from you by a thousand subtle feminine devices on which you cannot perhaps put your finger but which will end by pushing you entirely out of his life.

"Almost any wife can make her husband believe anything she wishes him to. He may resent her criticisms of his mother, but he listens to them and comes to believe that mother is a nagging, interfering old woman. Anyway, a man hates a feminine row and the easiest way to keep the peace is not to let wife and mother come in contact, and so as the price of peace many a man rarely goes to see his mother and has her in his home as little as he can.

"I was determined that this shouldn't happen to me, so I courted my daughter-in-law as ardently as any lover ever wooed his mistress. As a result she is as devoted to me as an own daughter could be and is always begging me to come and live with them.

"But I have intelligence enough and love my son well enough not to endanger the peace of his home by accepting the invitation, for mother-in-law on a visit and mother-in-law as a permanent fixture in the house are two entirely different propositions. So I keep my own home, live my own life and have my own interests, and go to see them not too often. Nor do I stay too long.

"I think that it is especially important for every young couple to be alone during the first few years of their married life, because it is a time of adjustment.

"There are bound to be clashes of temperament and taste and opinion, but these are far easier to smooth over if there is no third party looking on and urging the man to be the head of the house or telling the woman not let any man run over her. Left alone the little flare-up would end in the bride bursting into tears and the man calling himself a brute, and they would kiss and make up and no harm would be done; but with mother backing up her darling child it's the first aid to divorce.

"Also, the presence of mother in the house breaks up the intimacy between husband and wife and prevents them from becoming just one, as they might do if they were alone. The little endearments are suppressed under her eyes, the confidence is not made and the time and mood for telling it passes, and so mother, quite without intending it, becomes a barrier between her child and the husband or wife.

No matter how wrong things seem in my son's house I offer neither criticism nor advice. My daughter-in-law is a slack housekeeper according to my idea and my son does not have food to eat like his mother cooked, but the way his wife runs his house suits him and that is all there is to it, so far as I am concerned.

"Moreover, I reflect that I have been on this housekeeping job for 30 years and she has been on it for three. Why should I expect her to have the skill that I possess? No doubt my mother-in-law was just as shocked at my housekeeping as I am at hers.

"I remember how cocky I was as a bride and how sure I was that I knew everything about running a house and how I resented any interference, and so I hold my tongue when I see food being wasted and dust under the beds and the best china being used every day.

"For, after all, the point of the whole thing is that I want my boy to be happy. I don't want him to be dissatisfied with his wife or to find fault with her, and so I try in every way to 'sell' her to him instead of pointing out her faults to him.

"And the result is, that we are all on the most delightful and harmonious terms, and instead of losing my son I have gained a daughter."

COLORADO FOR HEAVY TARIFF

Beet Raisers Zealously Seek Protection

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

DENVER, Oct. 18.—So far as Colorado's six electoral votes are concerned, Governor Smith made his protective tariff speech at Louisville not a minute too soon. Even so it may have come too late to save Colorado, where prosperity depends upon the highly protected beet sugar industry. Republicans have been making great headway circulating earlier tariff utterances of the Democratic nominee specifically attacking the beet sugar tariff.

Attacking the beet sugar tariff in Colorado is like praying for earthquakes in California or advocating more grasshoppers in Kansas. Colorado produces nearly half of the domestic crop of sugar and as a by-product a gigantic stock feeding industry has grown up because of the richness of the left-over beet pulp. The beet sugar section is the center of the largest sheep feeding activity in the world. Cheap Philippine sugar, which comes in duty free, is menacing the beet sugar industry and Colorado Republicans are emphatic in insisting there must be no tariff reduction now.

"Take sugar out of Colorado and Denver would lose 75,000 to 150,000 population," John R. Coen, Republican state chairman, told the United Press. Colorado doesn't manufacture a radio set or an automobile. It is not a manufacturing state. We depend on beet sugar and the stock raising which is a by-product because of the beet pulp.

Says Al Does Flip

"I don't think Smith's statements are going to get him anywhere. He did a flip-flop at Louisville but when we test him by his statements in the past how can you say he is anything except a political acrobat?

"When he was running for governor in 1924, he said at Stapleton, Staten Island, 'by the enactment at Washington of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill the Republican party delivered the goods to especially protected interests throughout the country. They have been particularly solicitious about a free and open delivery of the goods to the beet sugar growers.'"

Coen also said Smith, in a speech at Boston Oct. 7, 1924, said: "The long list of delegates to the Republican national convention of 1924 representing the big western beet sugar industry probably furnishes the reason why the president has not acted upon the recommendations of the tariff commission laid before him as far back as July 29 of this year."

Coen said since Colorado does not produce manufactured goods but buys entirely from the big industrial states, it is not unfair for the food consumers of those states to be slightly taxed to protect the sugar industry here. He said when Coolidge refused to lower the sugar tariff, he told some Colorado Republicans, "my Massachusetts friends cannot have free trade on what they buy and tariff on what they sell."

Hob-Goblin Picture

Democrats however declare Republicans are trying to frighten Colorado by picturing Governor Smith as a hob-goblin.

"The beet farmers of Colorado are not going to be fooled by statements from Republican headquarters," said George Collin, Democratic national committeeman. "When I saw Governor Smith in the East recently, he asked me all about conditions here and then he said: 'George, a man would be crazy to interfere with a tariff that would tear down a great interior industry.'"

Smith's visit here caused some misunderstanding as to his tariff attitude. One of his spokesmen was quoted as saying Smith favored beet sugar protection but later Governor Smith said this was unauthorized and the public here was left confused as to just where Smith stood.

Democrats are relying chiefly on the wet issue to pull Smith through. Denver elected a wet congressman some time back. But the chances are not any too optimistic.

Democratic Governor

The Democrats feel more confident of re-electing Governor Billy Adams, a curiously silent character, not unlike President Coolidge in his quiet way of letting nature take its course in public affairs. He has refused to campaign, but goes about his business in his shabby clothes. Colorado likes him—he was the only Democrat to be elected on the 1926 ticket. He has been in politics 42 years and never has been defeated. His family has been conspicuous in public affairs here.

Presidentially, the state went Democratic regularly with one exception from 1896 until 1920, when Harding carried it by nearly two to one. Coolidge also had a clear majority over the combined Davis and LaFollette vote in 1924.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and make a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

I press on toward the goal, unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ.—Phil. iii:14.

You may talk of the tyranny of Nero; but the real tyranny is the tyranny of your next door neighbor. Public opinion requires us to think other men's thoughts, to speak other men's words, to follow other men's habits. If we do not, no formal ban issues, but we are called "eccentric," there is a gentle murmur of "most unfortunate ideas," "singular young man," "well intentioned, I dare say, but unsafe, sir, quite unsafe."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Novelists and persons who are fond of sketching a bit, using a typewriter as a paint brush and the words of the English language as paint, always can find human originals at one of the most interesting oases of benevolence in all New York—the Seamen's Church Institute at 25 South Street. The place is full of "types"—youth and age, sturdy humanity and broken humanity; adventurers beyond belief some of them. Salts of the seven seas. Queer tales on their tongues.

Miss Eleanor Barnes, earnest worker for the Seamen's Institute and editor of its little magazine, the Lookout, took me through the big place. With a gesture or a lifted eyelid she indicated this one or that who didn't live by rote or think by rote—some salty personality.

There was Old Bill, for example. Old Bill had been coming to the institute for years. The fact that he went there meant that he was sober, but he wasn't always there, which meant that William had fallen off the water wagon. The chaplains understood that complete reform in the case of this ancient mariner was too much to hope for, but they had a shy at him anyway. They thought they might bring about a sort of general conformity with Mr. Volstead's ideas.

One of the chaplains talked generalities to Old Bill for awhile, then came to the point. He looked Bill straight in the eye and then asked in his calm, serious way: "Bill, do you drink?" Bill brightened visibly, leaned forward and lowered his voice to a whisper in the chaplain's ear: "Yes, sir, I do. Have you got anything?"

Shanghai Red has a reputation as a singer. When he is in port he is a generous fellow about performing for the Thursday night "stunts" the seamen boarders at the institute like to hold for their own amusement. He has a large repertory of songs but likes to have suggestions made. The other night as he stood on the stage waiting for somebody to pipe up a request one of the institution staff called out: "Red, sing 'em 'You're a Million Miles From Nowhere When You're One Little Mile From Home'."

Red shook his head no, then called back: "Aw, youse don't want that. Some of them guys back there ain't got no homes." Well, Red hadn't any either.

Pete, a well-known character, who drops into the institute every so often from somewhere or other, has just arrived at the end of a calamitous attempt to commit matrimony by mail. He spent twenty dollars on the experiment and it proved to be a total loss. It made Pete reminiscent. He said: "My brother married the first girl I ever had and he's been washin' dishes ever since. This makes twice I've been stuck." And then he added, philosophically:

"Three strikes and out!"

One of the institute's "regulars" was discussing a certain woman member of the staff the other day.

"She's an awfully good soul," he said enthusiastically, "but she's a tropical old maid!"

EIGHTY YEARS YOUNG

Grandma just cannot be still;
She's up when day begins;
She hobbies all around the house,
And does her "odds and ends."
And when we try to make her rest,
She says, with accent bold:
"You folks treat me like a child!
Must think I'm getting old!"

Now grandma's past the eighty mark;
Her health is not the best;
But she'll defy just anyone
Who tries to make her rest.
She's worked so long that I suppose
She'll work her dying day;
And so we let her labor on,
And have her childish way.

Why, when we mention rest to her,
She grows aloof and cold,
And tells us that we've got to stop
Insisting she is old!

—John Reif Elliott

"Dizzy Heights"

ONE THING that probably deters many people from taking flights in airplane or dirigible is the fear of great heights. The very numerous people who get dizzy when they look down from the top of a cliff or high building are, naturally, a bit shy at going up in an airship.

But Amelia Earhart, transatlantic flyer, says in the current Cosmopolitan that these people can forget their fears.

"Such dizziness is entirely lacking in a plane," she writes. "The person peering from the top of a high building is affected definitely by the physical contact between his body and the street 20 stories below. This contact, or support, creates in his mind the absolute feeling of height, carrying with it a horror of falling."

"In the case of the plane, the passenger no longer has any vertical solid connecting his body with the ground. Only atmosphere fills the space between the plane and the cornfields below. There is no measuring stick of altitude."

Loose Talk

A NEW JERSEY jury has decided that Mrs. Helen Baldwin, leading D. A. R. member from the town of Boonton, cannot collect any libel damages from the Rev. William H. Bridge.

Last winter Mrs. Baldwin wrote a letter to a local newspaper, fulminating against the red menace and declaring that John Haynes Holmes, Oswald Garrison Villard, Jane Addams and others were "playing the Communist game." The Rev. Bridge didn't like this and wrote a letter of protest against what he said were "lying imputations." Mrs. Baldwin promptly sued for $5,000 libel damages.

At the trial it developed that the lady didn't quite know what Communism is. Miss Addams and Messrs. Holmes and Villard are radicals, or liberals; but they have never preached Communism. They had preached pacifism; but the court ruled that "pacifism is not to be associated with Communism." So the lady lost.

This ought to help put an end to loose talking and thinking of that kind. Too many people cry "Communist" at those who differ with them.

A Lady of Another Age

AN 81-YEAR-OLD woman is dead in an obscure retreat near Copenhagen, and with her death went one of the last links that connects this age with an age that has passed.

She is the one-time Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, mother of the late Czar Nicholas and widow of Alexander III. She outlived the era into which she was born, and her last years have been empty and desolate.

The Russia of Marie's day must have seemed, to her circle, a fine place.

The czar was the "little father" of his people. He ruled by divine right, and he held unlimited authority. He and his family lived amid all the pomp and ceremony that a nation of uncounted millions of industrious people can furnish. Life in the imperial palace at Petrograd must have been very pleasant and inspiring.

To be sure, those in the palace occasionally caught the sound of murmurs of discontent, filtering up from below. There were shocking abuses in the land. But Nicholas, amiable and good-natured, realized his responsibilities as "little father." These abuses could not be remedied overnight. Slowly, step by step, they would be made right, the Russian people would be happy, and all would be well.

But people have a way of becoming impatient with slow reforms. They got impatient in Russia. Then there came the war, and a million or so of peasants, poorly equipped, betrayed by schemers in high places and sacrificed by bungling officialdom, were killed by the methodical, efficient Germans and Austrians. And at last there was a vast explosion, and unmanageable forces came welling and boiling up from the dark places below; the czar and czarina lost their lives, and the Dowager Empress Marie fled to Copenhagen to live another decade in lonely, amazed obscurity.

We often hear that it is a tragedy to be born before one's time. Probably it is. But it is infinitely worse to be born too late for one's time.

Marie was part of a medieval system in a day when that system had to go on the scrap heap. If she could have lived a century earlier, her last days would have been made as easy and pleasant as an empire could make them. There would have been court physicians, formal deputations of court ladies, messages of comfort from kings and princes, a palatial sick room in a great palace. Instead there is the loneliest of an exile who has seen all that was familiar and dear ground to bits.

It is tragic to be out of date. To be fixed and unchanging in a world that is eternally changing and developing is to court disaster. The twentieth century is a cruel place for all who try to live by the standards and watchwords of the nineteenth.

A TREAT FOR THE MOVIES

It seems from news reports that young Mr. Hickman is to be hanged after all for murdering an innocent school girl. A subscriber writes in as follows: "It really seems too bad that Hickman is to be hanged after all his newspaper publicity. What a wonderful movie contract he might get if only allowed to live!"

NEED FOR ENFORCEMENT DISPLAYED

A trip to Dallas convinced us that the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment has become a farce in the larger cities, and that Al Smith's recommendation of a revision in our prohibition laws should be considered. Our Republican administration has neglected to enforce these laws, and it is time that the Democrats should be given a chance to see what they can do. They certainly could do no worse!

INTOLERANT OF INTOLERANCE

Speaking of intolerance—and nobody will admit they are—a Jackson county citizen recently made the remark that he would not vote for Smith, would not vote for any man who did vote for or support Smith, wouldn't trade with a Smith supporter and didn't consider them decent citizens.

Another good citizen of this county overheard this remark who had not theretofore made up his mind how he was going to vote and he immediately expressed himself something like this: "Well, my five married children and my wife and I, that makes 12 votes, will stamp the rooster this year if that is the way some men look at this campaign."

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

INSTALLMENT XIX

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because the latter was connected with a self-defense killing out West and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mysteries. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by

Martin Lamont, Western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. John Ballinger, well known doctor. Then a mysterious lady,

Viola Gray, visits him and

Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by

Freddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the dying man's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds

Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner, and is discovered by Littleby who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes.

Trapped!

"Gone!" exclaimed Dean dully, again searching the room with an incredulous stare.

"How strange!" remarked Miss Lamont, coming up behind him. "He was here a moment ago, and this seems to be the only way out. Nobody can disappear like that."

Dean smiled mirthlessly at the paradoxical observation. Littleby's parting smile, illegible and yet sinister, was still tantalizing his imagination. Without a word he recrossed the little hall and repeated his attempt, but after a few efforts he was forced to admit that it was useless.

The girl scanned his anxious face in perplexity.

"There's a spring hidden in the woodwork up there that controls the mechanism of the door," he explained. "At least it did a while ago. Littleby must have done something to it when he stole in on us. Anyhow, it refused to work."

"Meaning that we are trapped?" suggested Miss Lamont.

"Meaning that we shall have to find another way out." Dean amended, leading her back through the hall into the large hexagonal room. For 20 minutes he searched unceasingly for a concealed opening, but without success.

At length he stood aside, surveying the imposing walls, with their faded decorations of a once gaudy hue, with a critical eye. It was a curious room in many respects, and it contrasted sharply with the ponderous sedateness and stuffy conventionality of the rest of the house.

"What I don't see," remarked Dean, "is how Littleby did the vanishing stunt so suddenly behind our backs."

"Neither do I." With now and then a little shudder in her glance, as if the sight awakened a series of horrors in her recollections, she surveyed the four walls of the room. "But I suppose anything can happen in this place."

It sounded significant, but Dean held back the question that came to his mind. Explanations could wait until a more appropriate time. For the present it gave him a gentle thrill to observe how confidently she accepted his companionship in this new predicament. Yet, only a little while ago, she had seemed firmly convinced that he was her father's murderer. The swift transitions of her mind, suggesting either a keen intuition or else a deep understanding of mysteries that to him were still unexplored fields, were at once astounding and fascinating.

"I wonder what Mr. Littleby intends to do with us," she remarked after he had made another unavailing attempt to find a way out.

"Keep us here, I suppose, until he has had time to consider the situation."

Dean spoke lightly, but Littleby's parting smile as it lingered in his imagination filled him with dark doubts. "You gave him quite a jolt when you accused him of murdering your father. But you were wrong there, Miss Lamont. Whatever other villainies he may be guilty of, he didn't do that. He was not more than seven or eight feet from me when the shot was fired."

"Are you sure you didn't make a mistake? Couldn't it have been somebody else than Mr. Littleby?"

"Not a chance of that. I recognized his voice distinctly. Not only that, but I saw his face clearly when he and Dr. Ballinger stepped away from the balcony. No, there isn't the slightest doubt on that point, and Dr. Ballinger will doubtless confirm what I say."

She pondered for a moment, then shook her head in a charmingly obstinate way. "Yet I feel he did it. I am almost as sure as if I had seen blood on his hands. It came to me all of a sudden, while we three were talking together. It was just like a flash, revealing everything."

"Everything?" echoed Dean absently, wondering if such a thing were possible. For a moment, his hand fumbled mechanically along the right side of his neck. "Well, in a sense you may be right. Littleby may have instigated the crime, but under the circumstances it would have been a physical impossibility for him to execute it in person."

Again she shook her head in a determined way, her blu eeyes brimming with a strange obsession.

"I can't help it. I just know that he did it himself. I stood quite close to him for a minute or so while we were talking together. I had the most dreadful sensation, but I can't quite explain it. It was just an overpowering feeling that I was standing in the presence of someone who had taken human life—with his own hands."

Dean regarded her in astonishment. The simple statement rang with a conviction that seemed to transcend all the arguments of logic and reason. Though he knew that the lawyer could not have murdered Lamont, for the moment he was gripped and swayed by the contagion of her firm belief.

"And that isn't all," she went on. "I felt that Mr. Littleby meant to kill me, too. I could feel it when he was looking at me. It lasted only a moment, while we held each other's eyes, but it was enough. He was afraid of me. He knew that I knew."

"That you knew what?"

A tremor passed over her, then her glance moved to the telephone. Her expression told him that the instrument was in some way connected with the answer she was framing in her mind, but to himself it suggested a more practical idea. It was just possible that Littleby had neglected to switch it off from outside connections. If so, it should not be difficult to summon help. He stepped to the rear of the room, put the receiver to his ear, but a dead and prolonged silence told him it had been a forlorn hope.

"That you knew what?" he repeated, anxious to divert her mind from their predicament.

For a little longer she remained in a rigid attitude of concentration, then shook her head despairingly. "It all seemed so clear a while ago, but now I seem to have lost it. When Littleby was here I saw everything in a flash, but now—" She lifted her big, clouded eyes to his face. "Strange, wasn't it, what you told us about finding father listening at the telephone? That's what started me thinking, though I wasn't really thinking at all. Not in the ordinary sense. I just felt thoughts rushing over me. Now everything is a blank again."

A frown crossed her face, wondrously appealing in its tragic pallor. For a few minutes not a sound was heard in the room. They were in a world of their own, bounded by walls that shut off all manifestations of outside life and that would prove impenetrable barriers against any shouts they might raise for help. Dean scanned them with a vindictive eye, vexed with himself for his helplessness. The girl was bearing up bravely, perhaps for the reason that her capacity for dread and suffering had been exhausted, but how would it be when the inevitable crisis came? Somehow he felt that it was not far off, that Littleby would soon show his hand.

He tried to shake off his misgivings, doubly distressing because the girl shared his plight. There was a fresh, quiet charm about her that stamped her as belonging in an atmosphere of sunshine and tranquility, with the friendly breezes of the prairies ruffing her hair and touching her cheeks with magical caresses.

She had been snatched away from all that, precipitated into a miasmic slough of dark and sinister intrigue.

For that matter, so had he. Only a few days ago he had been leading a humdrum life at Top O' The Hill, his days filled with the placid concerns of an ambitious and moderately successful young man. All that seemed ages remote now, separated from the present by a chasm seething with inscrutable mysteries. Events had come with a breathtaking rush, beginning with the preposterous article in the Era. After that the vivid little Miss Gray had flashed into his retreat on Top O' The Hill, bringing with her a premonitory tang of tragedy.

The rest had been a maddly dissonant medley of incongruities—his visit to the house on Hudson street, the grewsome relics in the room under the stairs, the accumulating evidence that seemed to substantiate Martin Lamont's astounding confession, his discovery of the fragments of glass crystal—an incident whose significance still eluded him—his visit with Lieutenant Shane to Lamont's bedside, terminating in a wildly grotesque scene. Freddie Mills' attempt on his life and the violent effect his subsequent appearance produced upon Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger, the haunting cries he had heard on the wire, the murder of Lamont, and, finally, the bewildering circumstances of his meeting with the dead man's daughter.

"What next?" he wondered, drawing a deep breath as the various episodes in the mystery flashed in shapeless fragments through his mind, provoking a speculation as to whether there was a connection thread running through the entire web of complexities, uniting the beginning and the end.

The Voice on the Wire

As if in answer to his question, a low buzzing was heard in the rear of the room. Instantly both turned in the direction whence the sound came. For a moment their eyes were fixed on the metal trimmings of the telephone. A gasp fell from the girl's lips, as if the buzzing had brought a slumbering horror to life. She sprang forward, but Dean held her back.

"I'll answer," he declared decisively. The buzzing, still continued, had a subtly disquieting sound, like a prelude to fresh horrors. "You remain here."

Paying no heed, she followed him as he crossed the room with brisk strides. In a moment he had picked up the telephone and removed the receiver.

"Hello." His voice was edged with ill-suppressed excitement.

"Oh, you, Dean?" The answering voice, provokingly calm, was Littleby's. "I rather thought you wouldn't permit Miss Lamont to answer. It is just as well. What I have to say is meant for you rather than her, though both of you are concerned. I am speaking from my bedroom."

"Well?" said Dean, with an uneasy glance over his shoulder at the girl who stood tense and palpitant behind him.

"I suppose," the lawyer went on, "you have discovered by this time that doors sometimes turn only one way."

"In that case it isn't necessary to point out to you that you will remain where you are until I deem it expedient to release you."

Dean did not answer. Littleby's voice sounded so clear over the wire that he feared the girl could hear every word.

"It is just as well," the lawyer continued, "that you understand the situation clearly. No matter how clever you may be, you will never find a way out. You can shout all you like; no one will hear you. The walls are proof against assault. Any attempt to extricate yourself will be quite useless. You will have to amuse yourselves as best you can. For instance, by searching the cracks in the floor for pieces of glass."

"Capital idea," said Dean.

"Or you might discuss the relative advantages and disadvantages of scars."

"Another excellent suggestion."

"Or you might try to solve the mystery of who murdered Lamont."

"You are improving, Littleby."

"Or figure out how I vanished so suddenly a while ago."

"This is getting better and better."

"Just one more suggestion. You and Miss Lamont might improve the time by exchanging views on the uncertainties of life."

"You are full of brilliant ideas tonight."

"And I give them to you gratis, Dean. That's more generous treatment than I accord my clients. I believe you will find the last topic I suggested, the one pertaining to the uncertainties of life, the most profitable one. Have you the time?"

"A quarter after three," said Dean after a glance at his watch.

"H'm. Two hours should be ample time for an exhaustive discussion of the subject. You may have until a quarter past five. I hope you and Miss Lamont will give the subject all the serious consideration it deserves. At a quarter past five you will receive an object lesson that will teach you in a most convincing way how very uncertain life is. Understand, Dean?"

A moment passed before Dean could answer. The speaker's tone, with its silken insinuation, left no room for doubt as to Littleby's intentions. A gasp sounding behind his back told him that Miss Lamont had not only heard the words, but grasped their significance as well.

"I understand," he said evenly enough. "You have been so generous with suggestions that I feel like reciprocating. Here is a problem that may interest you. What became of the watch that was broken in the house on Hudson street? If you think fast, you may solve it before Lieutenant Shane does."

With that he hung up and turned toward the girl. Her eyes were full of tragic comprehension, but a smile hovered unsteadily about her trembling lips.

"Why did you follow me?" he demanded in mock severity. "I told you to remain where you were."

"Littleby is going to kill us, isn't he? We only have two hours to live."

"Since you heard everything, there's no use denying that's his plan."

"Then don't scold me, Tommie. Let's not spend our last two hours quarreling. And I'm not going to call you Mr. Dean any longer. People who are going to die needn't be ceremonious. Anyhow, I've thought of you as Tommie for the last hour."

Dean wondered why a full-grown, practical-minded man should experience a thrill at such a little thing as being addressed by his first name.

"I didn't realize till just now how nice a common, garden variety of name could sound," he told her. "By the way, Shirley—"

"Lee for short," she interrupted. "Well, then, Lee, why do you suppose Littleby took the trouble to call me up and tell me what he intends to do?"

She did not answer, but her eyes flashed the question back at him.

"This is how I look at it," said Dean. "Something has gone wrong, and Littleby feels vindictive. His voice was full of snarls, though he tried to suppress them. Now, when a man like Littleby gives way like that to one of the baser passions, it's a sign that he's mighty near to his wit's end."

"But that doesn't make him any the less dangerous."

"Maybe not, but there is some satisfaction in knowing that your enemy is worried. A man who feels sure of himself doesn't snarl and bite."

"I believe you are right, but—" She paused as if hesitating to voice her misgivings. "What was that you said to him about a broken watch?"

Dean smiled vaguely. "To tell the truth, I hardly know myself what it meant. Just wanted to give Littleby something more to worry about. You heard me mention Lieutenant Shane? Shane's a friend of mine—or was until the other day. If my hint sinks in, Littleby will do some hard thinking."

"Yes, and then?"

"He may come to the conclusion that, with Shane exercising his wits over a couple of pieces of watch crystal, his difficulties will not be removed by the simple expedient of committing a double murder."

The girl thought for a few moments. "That's pretty deep, but I think I understand, Tommie, you are a genius."

Dean shook his head depreciatingly. There was only a very meager chance that Littleby would be impressed by the sly hint he had thrown out. As astute a man as the lawyer would soon perceive that his victim was but clutching at impossible straws.

"Oh, no," he said glumly. "A genius would do something. He wouldn't be content with exercising his conversational talents while the most wonderful woman in creation was in danger."

She hastened to his defense. "But you have done all that is possible. Since nothing more can be done, we might as well fiddle while Rome burns."

Dean eyed her in wonder. Her apparent vivacity in the face of dangers ahead and with her father lying dead in one of the rooms downstairs was almost as mystifying a thing as any of the riddles that had thronged the last few days. Shirley Lamont, with her amazing vagaries and her infinity of moods, was adding the crowning, human touch to it all. Then he saw the shadows that lurked behind the smiles on her lips and in her eyes, flickering blurs which told him that she was only dipping her tribulations in the soothing lotion of make-believe.

He was framing a reply, but an interruption came just then. The light went out with a suddenness that gave him a sharp premonitory thrill. And through the blackness inundating them like a swiftly tossing billow, came the girl's terrified cry.

New Vernon School To Have Cafeteria

VERNON, Oct. 18.—One of the features of the new $60,000 L. G. Hawkins school building, located on Yamparika street in Southwest Vernon will be a modern cafeteria.

This addition to the equipment of the building will be made possible through donations from lumber firms of this city and free labor of carpenters and contractors.

The cafeteria will be operated by the Parent-Teacher association of the school.

Opening of the new school, which was scheduled to be next Monday, may possibly be delayed, it was announced this morning. Details of seating and plumbing for the building might require more time than was originally planned by the contractors, it was said.

Thornton of Stephens county and his two deputies, Ray Hickey and Bud Deason, had their annual "pouring out" ceremonies here Wednesday when they destroyed 65 gallons of whisky and some 800 bottles of beer which had been collecting in the basement of the county courthouse for the last eight months.

Some eight or nine hours after the above was destroyed,

HEREFORD MEN PLAN DAIRY

Meeting Held to Discuss New Project

Special to The Record News

HEREFORD, Texas, Oct. 18.—The first definite steps towards locating dairying industrial plants in Deaf Smith county were taken on Tuesday night at a conference of interested citizens at the offices of the Hereford chamber of commerce.

The meeting was attended by local bankers and merchants as well as some of the leading dairymen of the vicinity.

After listening to further reports from S. O. Wilson, prominent dairyman just back from an extended dairy tour of the southern states, the gathering expressed itself unanimously in favor of the establishing of a creamery, with equipment for the making of sweet cream butter, as well as sour cream butter, and the possible installation of cheese making machinery was also discussed. Equipment for the handling of whole milk as well as the separated cream is very imperative in the development of the dairying industry in any section, according to Mr. Wilson and other speakers who have given the matter much study.

Bankers Favor Plan

G. A. F. Parker, pioneer banker, and H. R. Fritz, representing the First State Bank and Trust company, both expressed themselves as favoring the plan for building a creamery here, and the same opinion was voiced by the more than 20 leading citizens of the county, who had been called in for the conference.

The first step to be taken is the securing of the number of dairy cows in Deaf Smith and a complete census is to be taken under the direction of Roy Arnold, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and R. O. Dunkle, county agent. It is probable that many of the leading business men of Hereford will be called on to assist in this, and the census of the entire county be taken in one day, according to advices from those fostering the movement.

Deaf Smith county has around 500 dairy cows in the belief of dairy men, and this number, it is pointed out, will be sufficient to supply a large plant of whatever character is finally decided upon.

Among those indicating that they will be interested in the financing of the proposition are A. B. Schultz and Herman Schultz, pioneer dairymen of this section; Lester Calley, S. O. Wilson, G. W. Brumley and many others.

Committees will visit other creameries and plants now in operation as soon as the number of dairy cows are ascertained, and plans for the early beginning of actual work will be carried forward.

Atheist Denied Right to Testify In Arkansas Court, Will Appeal Fine

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 18 (UP).—Charles Smith, New York, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, Inc., said today he would appeal a $25 fine imposed yesterday on a charge of being a "public nuisance."

Smith was arrested here after he had established Arkansas headquarters to fight a proposed anti-evolution bill in the next legislature. He was charged with use of the "name of God or of Jesus Christ in obscene and objectionable manners."

Smith's request that he be permitted to testify in his own behalf was denied by Judge Harper Harb, on the ground that being an avowed atheist he was forbidden by the constitution to testify.

"Would it be hypocrisy for one who doesn't believe in God to take an oath?" Smith asked the court.

"I won't answer that. I don't have to," Judge Harb replied.

Smith said his attorneys would carry the case to the supreme court if necessary.

Spur Experiment Station To Study Cane Stalks

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 18.—A little over a decade ago the large grain sorghum crop of west Texas had no value on the commercial market; few dreamed that it had a potential feeding value comparable with corn.

The Spur experiment station conducted tests over a number of years in fattening lambs and calves on the sorghums and gave such widespread publicity to the results, which show the grain sorghums to be equal to corn in fattening value, that these west Texas crops are in demand throughout the country, and are bringing prices comparable with corn.

After determining the value of the grain the station this year is making a study of the value of the stalk, and methods of preparing the feed in order to secure the greatest and most economic gains on lambs and calves. Milo, migari, kafir, feterita and cane will be used in the test this fall and winter.

BIG DEMO GUNS ASKED IN TEXAS

Leaders Urge Addresses by Noted Speakers

DALLAS, Oct. 18. (UP)—Democratic headquarters here has urged its national headquarters to send one or two nationally prominent Democratic speakers to Texas before the close of the campaign, it was announced today.

They believe this necessary to offset Republican activity in certain quarters. Regular Democrats await with interest the speech here Monday night of Senator William E. Borah, Republican, Idaho, who will speak for Hoover.

The effect of his speech will have much to do with the nature of the Democratic campaign the closing weeks, it is expected. If Borah's speech adds to Hoover's strength, Texas Democrats probably will wage a strenuous speaking campaign up to the last moment.

'PUBLIC MIND' HERB'S SUBJECT

Nominee Talks to Group of Exporters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (AP)—Discussing the necessity for government cooperation with American industry in building up foreign trade, Herbert Hoover told a group of exporters today that it was of extreme importance that men whose eyes were fixed upon the country's future should get into "this campaign and see that the public mind is corrected."

While the Republican presidential candidate did not refer directly to any phase on the alleged "whispering campaign" in speaking to the members of the Hoover-Curtis national export committee, he assured them of his appreciation of their activity "because campaigns are filled with many issues and movements that have nothing to do fundamentally with the prosperity and progress of the country."

In addressing the visitors, among whom were officials of a score of prominent exporting firms, the nominee spoke of the strides taken by foreign trade in the past several years and asserted that he felt one primary factor in the stability of American business and continuation of employment was the expansion of foreign trade. In working toward this end, he explained that a basis of cooperation between government and industry had been resorted to instead of compulsion.

TRIAL REVEALS FAMILY FEUD

Karnes County Officials Are Witnesses

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18. (AP)—Fate's tangling of the destinies of the Halls and Tallys of Karnes county was revealed Thursday in the opening testimony in the trial here of Joe Talley on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Frank Hall on the steps of the Karnes county courthouse in June, 1925.

W. O. Murray, then district attorney for that district, revealed that the shooting took place a few minutes before the opening of a session of court at which Frank Hall was to appear to answer charges of having killed Sam Tally, brother of Joe Tally; that Joe Tally was under charges of having committed an assault to murder on Braxton Hall, son of Frank, and that Braxton Hall was under indictment charging him with assault to murder Joe Tally. Braxton Hall came to San Antonio as a witness only after being assured of his safety while here. He was under guard of two officers.

Saw Hall Shot

L. H. Reuser, Karnes county tax assessor, testified that he saw Frank Hall shot as he came along a walk toward the courthouse, but could not see who shot him. After being shot, Hall walked several feet to the courthouse steps and produced a pistol and turned to face the street, he said. Reuser stepped back into his office and from there saw Joe Tally near the south side of the courthouse and saw Braxton Hall fire a shot in that direction, he testified.

A statement that Hall had said he was going to kill Joe Tally featured the testimony of Henry Butler, defense witness, at the night session of the trial.

Butler declared Hall made this statement to him shortly after Hall had killed Sam Tally, Joe's brother.

Killing Described

Butler gave a detailed description of the killing of Sam Tally, which occurred about three or four weeks after he had induced Joe to leave the country to avoid further trouble with the Halls.

Sheriff J. F. Brown of Karnes City was the other defense witness. He testified he was inside the court house when the shooting occurred and that when he heard the first shot he thought it was the explosion of an automobile tire.

A few seconds later, he said, he saw Hall stumble on the steps of the court house and that he (Brown) immediately went out in front of the court house. He said that both Tally and Braxton Hall then were firing at each other.

Bailey Fined $25 In Jury's Verdict

Reducing the charge against Robert Bailey of Iowa Park from assault with intent to murder to aggravated assault, a jury in 30th district court recommended a fine of $25 Friday night. Bailey had been indicted on an assault to murder charge and his trial before Judge E. G. Thornton lasted almost all day Friday.

The jury returned its verdict about 9 o'clock Friday night.

The case grew out of the alleged stabbing of T. B. Teafateller, deputy constable at Iowa Park, on the night of June 14, last.

He has been the investigator of land questions for the United States commission on industrial relations and representative of United States food administration in Japan, Manchuria and Siberia. He represented the general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome. At present he is the secretary of the National Board of Farm Organizations, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation, and secretary and trustee of the American Institute of Cooperation.

Charles W. Holman

"I was using this favorite joke of mine recently," he told me, "to illustrate an argument in connection with farm relief.

"Pierre and Andre, two French-Canadians, were floating about in a rowboat on the lower Mississippi during the recent flood. One night they tied their boat to the limb of an almost submerged tree, and lay down in the bottom to catch a little sleep. During the night the boat broke loose and floated some miles downstream.

"Andre waked the next morning, and, not recognizing their surroundings, waked Pierre. 'Look, look,' he exclaimed, 'the boat she has drifted, and I don't think we are here already.'

"Andre straightened up, carefully regarded the country about, and replied: 'Yes, I think we are about six miles from here'."

BROWN DERBY

Childress Man Wears One Here---Predicts Al Smith Victory

The brown derby, not a horse race, but a campaign lid, arrived in Wichita Falls Thursday on top of B. Simmons of Childress.

Mr. Simmons' brown derby was reported by the county Democratic headquarters to have been the first one in the headquarters since it was opened.

Mrs. Simmons accompanied her husband on the trip here from Childress, and they said that while there is considerable Hoover strength in Childress county, there is no doubt but that Childress and Childress county will give Gov. Alfred E. Smith a big majority.

The Simmons took back to Childress a big supply of campaign material.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Oct. 18 (UP).—A Zionist Christian utopia where the teachings of Jesus will be practiced as well as extolled and where the golden rule will be practiced as well as preached, is the plan of the reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints revealed here today by Dr. Frederick M. Smith, president of the church.

Announcement of the church plans came about in the drawing up of final papers in the purchase of 11,000 acres of Ozark land south of Springfield, Mo., by the church, where will be started this venture in community building.

"The gathering unto Zion has come for the church, soon 100 years old, and that means that its members from all over the world will be moving to Missouri to live," Dr. Smith explained.

The plans for this utopia states that each man after he has provided himself a living in conformity with the community standards will contribute all of his surplus to the community.

Each man will be taxed everything above his living. The individual may hold title to his home and perhaps to some other minor properties, but the title to the community property will be in the hands of trustee groups. "No man can ever get rich, but he is assured of comfort as long as he lives," Dr. Smith says.

Dr. Smith believes that the plan is thoroughly practicable, because, he says, "religiou accomplishes what the law cannot." Already some 3,000 acres of land owned by Latter Day Saints in Jackson county have been pledged to the "stewardship" plan of operation.

Spur Citizens Attend Meeting at Peacock

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 18.—W. B. Lee, R. E. Dickson, Faust Collier and W. S. Patrick attended a meeting of the citizens of Peacock Tuesday evening. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and formulate plans for the further development of the livestock on the farms of many citizens who are becoming interested in diversifying and improving all their farm enterprises.

Col. R. L. 100 Towns Told of KGKO Naval Program

Postmasters in 100 surrounding towns Thursday were mailed notices of a "Know Your Navy" program to be broadcast over station KGKO the night of Oct. 27 under the direction of A. F. Clayton, local naval recruiting agent. Mr. Clayton asked the postmasters to display a copy of the program so that a large radio audience may get the program.

The program, which will be given from 7 o'clock until 8 o'clock, will include four talks on subjects relative to the navy, as follows: "Recruiting," A. F. Clayton; "Plea for a Greater Navy," E. T. Fairtrace Bans Night Parking in Alleys

"Don't park your automobiles in alleys at night any more than you would in the day if you don't want to pay the police magistrate for the privilege of doing so," said George D. Fairtrace, city manager, when informed Thursday that Dr. J. M. Farrell, city sanitary inspector, had been receiving complaints.

The announcement came after Dr. Farrell had announced the new system of collecting garbage in the business district at night is meeting with general approval.

"The work has been hindered somewhat by automobiles parked in alleys, but I don't imagine many people will continue to do that when they know it hinders city work," said Dr. Farrell.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, Oct. 21, 1928.

Sunday—Breakfast: Poached egg in milk on Melba toast, stewed apricots. Lunch: Baked squash, spinach, celery and ripe olives. Dinner: Roast chicken or veal with Melba toast dressing, baked eggplant, cooked celery, *salad of tomato-spinach-asparagus, ice cream.

Monday—Breakfast: Baked egg, genuine wholewheat bread and butter, stewed prunes. Lunch: Stewed corn, cooked string beans, shredded lettuce. Dinner: Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, cooked small carrots (buttered and sprinkled with chopped parsley), salad of raw celery and cold cooked string beans, baked apple.

Tuesday — Breakfast: Cottage cheese, Melba toast, applesauce. Lunch: Baked potato, cooked cucumbers, endive salad. Dinner: Baked mutton, cooked lettuce, cooked turnips and tops, salad of grated raw beets on lettuce, stewed figs.

Wednesday—Breakfast: Coddled egg, broiled ham, Melba toast, stewed raisins. Lunch: Macaroni (wholewheat product) seasoned only with butter, cooked oyster plant, raw celery. Dinner: Baked Belgian hare, cooked beet tops, squash, salad of shredded raw cabbage and parsley, apple whip.

Thursday — Breakfast: Wholewheat muffins and peanut butter, stewed pears. Lunch: Carrot loaf, cooked spinach, cooked celery. Dinner: Vegetable soup (with cream instead of meat base), roast pork, cooked string beans, combination salad of tomatoes, celery, parsley, carrots; stewed apricots.

Friday—Breakfast: French omelet, Melba toast, stewed prunes. Lunch: Cooked okra, cooked small parsnips, lettuce. Dinner: Baked white fish, baked eggplant, beet tops, salad of sliced tomatoes, pineapple gelatin (no cream).

Saturday — Breakfast: Ground wholewheat mush and milk (no sugar). Lunch: Cooked carrots and peas, stuffed celery. Dinner: Veal loaf, cooked beets, asparagus, McCoy salad, dish of cooked berries.

*Tomato - Spinach - Asparagus Salad: Select small firm tomatoes, trim out stem end and cut almost through into six or eight sections. Base must be left solid so tomato can be spread out like a flower. Place on a bed of crisp spinach, and heap center with chopped spinach leaves and parsley, standing an asparagus tip between each section. This last addition will please the children, for the asparagus looks like small candles. The final result is so colorful and attractive that even those children who must be "coaxed to eat vegetables," as some mothers write me about, will be eager for this salad if care is used to make it small, dainty and "party-like" in appearance. A dressing of peanut butter thinned with milk may be used if desired.

Vegetable soup: In making vegetable soup, when a meat base is desired, always use the same kind of meat that is used for the meal which follows. For instance, the Monday evening meal calls for Salisbury steak. Purchase an extra amount of ground beef and make a broth of it, adding the desired quality of the same vegetables which are also used at that meal, as carrots, parsley, celery and string beans. Keep your soup combination the same as your dinner combination.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Abdominal Binder for Baby

Question—L. V. P. asks: "Is it necessary to keep a band on the abdomen after the naval has healed and do you advise orange juice to be given a nursing baby or only when cow's milk is used?"

Answer—It is not usually necessary to keep a binder on a baby after the naval has healed unless the baby is having an attack of colic or severe crying that might result in a rupture. Orange juice should be added even to a nursing baby's diet, since the milk of many mothers is deficient. If the mother's diet is well balanced her milk will usually supply all that the baby requires, but even so the orange juice is a good measure of precaution. I suggest that you send for my article on the weaning and feeding of infants, enclosing a large self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Reducing Pills

Question—Anna asks: "Are ——— prescription tablets injurious? If not, would it be harmful to take four tablets a day? What is there in them to reduce one? If they are harmful, can you give a prescription not injurious to reduce one?"

Answer—I do not recommend patented medicinal preparations in this column, but can assure you that so far as I know there are no reducing pills which are harmless. Perhaps the least harmful ones are those which are only laxatives. The simple, safe plan is to reduce through diet and exercise.

The Itch

Question—M. G. asks: "Will you please state how to cure itch—not eczema, but just plain, old-fashioned itch? I know of people who have been trying for almost a year to get rid of it."

Answer—The true itch is caused by a microscopic insect which forms small burrows under the skin. If you had sent me your name and address on a large, stamped envelope, I would have mailed you my special article on this subject outlining the best methods of overcoming the trouble.

Largest Block of Votes Is Prize In Smith's Home State Campaign

By RUSSELL HATHAWAY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 1?. (AP)—New York, the home state of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, constitutes one of the most disputed battle-grounds of the national political campaign. Because of the rich prize of 45 votes in the electoral college, the greatest offered by any of the states, the New York contest is watched with keen interest from all parts of the country.

The situation in New York is unique in many respects. In this state, normally classed as Republican, Governor Smith has rolled up tremendous pluralities in the last 10 years, winning four out of five fights for the governorship. In 1920 he ran one million votes ahead of James W. Cox, the presidential nominee of his party, but was beaten for governor by less than 100,000 plurality in the Harding landslide.

Country is Republican

Analysis of election returns for the last decade shows that the Smith strength is greatest in the cities, with the country districts almost solidly Republican. Such municipalities as Rochester and Syracuse, recognized as Republican citadels, have given Smith majorities in some of his gubernatorial campaigns. In addition, there has always been the alignment between Democratic New York City and Republican up-state counties.

In the present campaign New York City, with nearly six million population, is receiving unusual attention from Republican campaign managers. In the hope of cutting down the customary Smith majority in the greater city, the Republicans have nominated for governor the only republican who was elected on the state ticket in 1926, Attorney General Albert Ottinger.

Mr. Ottinger is a resident of New York City and has a record of being an unusually successful vote getter in the metropolis. For lieutenant governor former State Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Brooklyn was named.

The party managers are counting up the combination of Mr. Ottinger's support in Manhattan and Lockwood's great personal popularity in Brooklyn to cut into the normal Democratic majority in those boroughs, taking it for granted that the ticket will receive the customary up-state majority.

The Democrats have drafted Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, as their gubernatorial candidate, with Col. Herbert H. Lehman, finance director of the Democratic national committee, for lieutenant governor. Mr. Roosevelt placed Governor Smith in nomination for president at the Democratic national convention of 1924 and 1928 and is popular both in New York City and up-state.

Both parties in nominating their state tickets chose the candidates they considered best able to aid the national slate.

Unknown Factors

There are several unknown factors in the national political situation in the state. Instead of a clean-cut fight between the presidential candidates of two political parties, the situation is complicated by the wet and dry issue, the religious issue and the question whether the voters known as "Al Smith Republicans" will support the governor for the presidency. The "Al Smith Republicans" are seldom identified individually, the term being applied to those voters who in the last eight or 10 years have split their tickets, voting for Smith for governor and most of the other Republican candidates.

New York will elect a member of the United States senate this fall. For this post the Democrats have renominated Dr. Royal S. Copeland, and the Republicans have selected Alanson B. Houghton, United States ambassador to the Court of St. James. Senator Copeland is personally known to thousands of voters, as during the six years he has been in the senate he has devoted much time making speeches and meeting the voters in every section of the state, thus building up a powerful personal organization. Mr. Houghton, formerly a member of congress, has long been prominent in the upper councils of his party.

NEGRO'S TRIAL IS TRANSFERED

Gainesville Attack Case Goes to Sherman

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Oct. 18 (INS).—District Judge Alvin C. Owsley today ordered a change of venue to Sherman in the case of Silas Jorman, 19-year-old negro, charged with criminal assault on Mrs. A. R. Hassenpflug Oct. 8. Judge Owsley said that he was satisfied the negro could not obtain a fair trial in either Cooke or Denton counties, both in his judicial district.

Judge Owsley was notified yesterday that the woman would not be able to testify for three weeks. The present term of court here expires this week.

Jorman was served with papers at Fort Worth. He declared his innocence of the crime.

Harmonica Shipments Flood 'Port' of Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 18 (UP).—More harmonicas or French harps have been imported from foreign countries to the port of Dallas during the last few months than in the remembrance of C. J. Geyer, deputy collector of customs in charge of the Dallas station.

Mr. Geyer attributes the unsurpassed number of harmonicas being received to an increased demand among men, especially in the rural districts, for these musical instruments created by the radio. Practically all of the French harps come from Germany.

Importations of foreign-made toys has dropped off materially, Mr. Geyer reported. American toy manufacturers are making better toys cheaper than the German makers, he has been informed by dealers.

Spur Farmers Buy Car Of Pure Bred Cattle

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 18.—E. L. Tanner, county agent of Dickens county, has just returned from a trip in north central Texas, where he has been buying some purebred dairy cattle for the farmers of the Spur country. This first car was secured in accordance with the county-wide campaign which was started two years ago by the chamber of commerce and the banks of Spur.

Farmers of Dickens county have thoroughly convinced themselves of the value of bull circles. The first crop of grade heifer calves sired by these bulls is just coming into milk, and their evident superiority over their dams has created keen desire on the part of the farmers to own a registered cow of equal breeding with the bulls. Other cars of purebred cows of the best breeding will be brought in as fast as proper blood lines can be located.

New York Republicans Hold Smith Responsible For City's Sewer Graft

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (INS)—The Republican organization in New York state today launched a campaign to place responsibility for the $16,000,000 Queens sewer scandal at the door of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Following the conviction yesterday in Long Island City of Maurice E. Connolly, resigned Borough president of Queens, and Frederick B. Seely, former chief of the Queens sewer bureau, Republican speakers dug into the seven years' history of alleged corruption and fraud of Queens borough sewer extension for campaign material in Governor Smith's greatest stronghold, metropolitan New York.

Ottinger Cites Case

Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican gubernatorial candidate, in opening his campaign upstate cited the Queens sewer-graft scandal in his indictment of Tammany hall rule in New York city.

A campaign pamphlet circulated by the Republican state committee declares that although Governor Smith's attention was directed to the irregularities of the Queens contracts by a special investigating committee of the state assembly as early as 1921, the inquiry which led to the indictment of Connolly and Seely, did not begin until December, 1927.

Excessive Prices Paid

Charges that Queens' officials paid three and four times as much for sewer pipe as other cities, were the nub of the public protest which forced the investigation by a special state commission.

Estimates of this "cut" between contractors and borough officials during the last eight years place the total at roughly $16,000,000,000. John M. Phillips, lock-joint pipe dealer of Queens, and a power in the Queens borough city hall, was indicted with Connolly and Seely last June. All three were named for conspiracy to defraud the city of New York. Phillips died suddenly 10 days later at Atlantic City.

Connolly was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary and fined $500. He immediately filed notice of appeal. Seely's sentence was deferred until Saturday.

William L. D'Ollier, a competing sewer contractor, whose grand jury testimony was the foundation of the prosecution case against the so-called "Connolly ring," was found dead in a Queens cemetery three weeks before the trial began, September 24. Four days after the trial got under way a grand jury which investigated D'Ollier's death returned a verdict of "murdered by a person or persons whose names are unknown."

Inquiry Hampered

Charging that obstacles were put in the path of the investigating committee "by the disappearance of important witnesses," the Republican campaign pamphlet places responsibility upon the New York city Democratic organization, recalling at the same time that Governor Smith received a majority of 43,000 in Queens in 1924 and increased his majority to 58,000 in 1926.

Republican state managers also charged openly that members of the Connolly group were participants in a Queens "harmony dinner" at the Biltmore hotel October 10, at which Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee, and M. William Ray, Democratic state chairman, attempted to smooth out factional differences for the presidential balloting November 6. Governor Smith was not at this meeting but it was held while he was in New York en route to the South last week, the Republican sewer researchers point out.

WICHITA FALLS AND RANGER GRID TEAMS SET FOR BATTLE

ELEVENS MEET AT BALL PARK

Junior Colleges Open Conference Schedule

RANGERS	Position	JR. COLLEGE

Pratt	Right Guard	Black
Britton	Right Tackle	Ramey
Johnson	Right End	Stephens
Hammett	Quarterback	Harvey
Berry	Right Half	McMillan
Taylor	Fullback	Mitchell

Wichita Falls and Ranger Junior colleges will furnish the football here this week for the edification of local grid fans. They are to clash this afternoon at Spudder park in the opening conference battle of the season for the Indians.

The Tribe faces a formidable foe. Ranger has made excellent showings in games to date this season. Wichita Falls has yet to score a win. In three games with prep elevens the Indians tied twice, with Vernon and Grandfield, Okla., and lost to Electra.

Coach E. A. Baggett's team is further crippled by the loss of Olin Dickey, star quarterback, kicker, passer and ball lugger, a real triple threat man, and Bill Habern, fighting guard. Dickey is out for the week on account of scholastic work and Habern sustained a fractured arm fighting a fire a few nights ago and probably is out for the season.

Despite those losses, the Indians are ready for a strenuous battle. The return of Tommy Hutcheson, a fast little halfback, helps their prospects to some extent. The team, that is, those who survived injuries and scholastic requirements, is in good condition.

The kickoff is at 3:30 o'clock.

Beck's Men Score 18 to 6 Win; Red Nichols Stars

Coach Beck's Reagan Junior High school gridders scored an 18 to 6 victory yesterday over the warriors of St. Joseph High school in a game at Wilson field.

The forward passing of Red Nichols was the game's features. He tossed and completed four passes for an average of 30 yards and completed a total of six out of eight flips.

Orin Smith was the most consistent ground gainer.

Touchdowns for Reagan were made by J. R. Davis and Tex Logan on forward passes and Cecil Raley on a line plunge. The Reagan lineup:

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The mystery man of the Zeppelin turned out to be Mr. Gilfallan of Switzerland.

Switzerland is the country in which all real estate comes to a point.

It is noted for its echoes, its mountains and its cheeses. Three difficult things to work into a national song.

He was very happy in Switzerland, chasing the Gilfallans from crag to crag. But the blimping lure snared Mr. Gilfallan, who paid $3,000 for the privilege of being the first Jonah in the flying whale.

Now read Mr. Gilfallan's log of the voyage. If complaints are food then Mr. Gilfallan is on no hunger strike.

Never again. Not for a million dollars.

Mr. Gilfallan means the Zepp and not the million.

We ran out of water and had to drink champagne.

That's tough on the Gilfallans.

The last two days all we had to scoff was caviar.

That's quite a change from Switzerland, where they put currants in snowballs and call 'em tomato surprises.

We wrote postcards which were put in mailbags and dropped overboard in the middle of the Atlantic.

Mr. Gilfallan doesn't know that every United States mail clerk is required to take swimming lessons.

We were not allowed to raise the windows.

He ought to be glad they didn't make him clean the windows—from the outside.

There was no room to exercise.

For Mr. Gilfallan's special benefit the next Zepp will have a diving board on the roof.

The cabins were small. We couldn't smoke. The food was canned.

If Mr. Gilfallan had known it was going to be that bad he should have taken his roller skates with him.

The Zepp stood on its head quite a few times.

Zepps are sensitive mechanisms, and it is quite possible that a passenger turned sour on its stomach.

EAST ELEVENS FACE BATTLES

Army, Dartmouth, Penn in Hard Games Saturday

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (UP)—The Army, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania—three of the East's most promising elevens—face hard tests on the gridiron this week.

Dartmouth and Pennsylvania have run rough shod over their opponents in their early season games, but the Army was forced to the limit to defeat S. M. U. in an intersectional game at West Point two weeks ago, 14 to 13.

After a lapse of 18 years, the Army and Harvard will renew football relations at Cambridge Saturday. Army, with its big veteran team, is favored to win but Harvard's cause is by no means futile.

Harvard Looks Good

Arnold Horween, ever patient with the shortcomings of the Harvard players, has assembled the best looking Crimson eleven in years. Captain Arthur French, Dave Guarnaccia, Wally Harper and Tommy Gilligan round out a capable, if not dangerous backfield.

Harvard's linemen have been called "big, but dumb," and criticised for their lack of football brains. If such is the case Army's football-wise forwards are apt to explode the first bombshell under Horween's hopes.

Harvard has never lost a football game to Army. That fact is accounted for by the more pertinent fact that Army has not played Harvard since 1910. Most every one else has been trampling the Crimson on the gridiron the past few years.

Columbia vs. Dartmouth

A good Columbia team will go north to Hanover, N. H., to give Dartmouth's high-powered scoring machine its first severe test. Jess Hawley apparently has developed another dazzling offensive team, but neglected his defense in the bargain.

Dartmouth, featuring Al Marsters and Freddy Breithut as its stars had rolled up 120 points in three games, but has been scored on three times by small teams. In Marsters and Breithut, Dartmouth has the happy combination of right and left halfbacks who are right and left halfbacks in more than name. Marsters at right halfback punts and passes with his right foot and right hand, respectively, and Breithut at left halfback punts and passes with his left foot and left hand, respectively.

Columbia has a good old fashioned defensive team and may give Dartmouth more trouble than expected.

Penn Plays Penn State

Penn State gave Pennsylvania its first setback last year, and down at Philadelphia Lou Young is working overtime to prevent a similar occurrence this Saturday at Franklin field.

Penn is favored, but Penn was favored last year and lost, 20 to 0. Bucknell beat Penn State last week, 6 to 0, but a year ago Bucknell beat Penn State, 13 to 7, the week before the Penn game.

Frederick Bearcats Play On Cordell Grid Today

FREDERICK, Oct. 18.—The Frederick Bearcats go to Cordell Friday to play a conference game with that strong aggregation. Cordell will endeavor to get revenge for the 39-0 defeat suffered at Frederick last fall. Coach Edward Solomon's lineup will probably be:

Phipps, P. Pritchard and Wilkes, ends; O. Williams, Murray Pritchard, Troy Smith and Sanderson, tackles; Burk and Cassidy, guards; Emmick center; Clark, quarterback; Dent Smith (captain), fullback; H. Williams, Davidson and Peters, halfbacks.

Carter Glass to Trail 'Ace' Borah in South

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Announcement that Senator Carter Glass of Virginia will take the political speaking trail of Senator Borah of Idaho, was made here today by J. Murray Hooker, chairman of the Virginia state Democratic committee.

Tentative plans call for addresses by Senator Glass at Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 29; at Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 30, and at Louisville, Ky., Oct. 31.

Wild Geese Seen Near Frederick by Hunters

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 18.—Starting with the drop in temperature Wednesday morning there has been considerable hunting in this locality. Glenn Thrush says he saw fully 100 wild geese and four wild ducks near Davidson that morning.

BIBLE SHIFTS AGGIE LINEUP

Sends Brother to Quarter in Charge of Backs

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Texas Aggie eleven to take the field Saturday against the Horned Frogs from Texas Christian university will contain two, and possibly more, new faces.

Disappointed at the showing of the Farmer team against Centenary, which broke a long Aggie winning streak with a 6 to 0 victory, Coach Bible has shifted R. R. Dorsey from quarter to half and his post probably will be filled by Hollis Bible, the coach's brother.

The younger Bible is a graduate from last year's freshman team and has proved himself an elusive ball carrier.

Tracy, another sophomore, is likely to start at one of the wing positions against the Belimen. He is one of the fastest men on the Aggie squad, is especially strong as a defensive [illegible] and has shown marked ability as a pass snatcher.

Having been given reports from Frank Anderson, Aggie assistant coach, that T. C. U. has developed its strongest offensive machine in the history of the school, Bible has left nothing undone in correcting weaknesses which cropped out last week. He has been paying particular attention to punting and a pass defense.

Rice Warriors Off for Dallas

Owls Determined to Fight Mustangs Tomorrow

HOUSTON, Oct. 18. (AP)—Determined to give the Southern Methodist university Mustangs a battle they will long remember, 32 Rice Owl gridmen left Thursday night for Dallas, where Saturday they will play their first Southwest conference contest of the 1928 season.

It is probable that Coaches Rothgeb, Daugherty and Schultz will use around 25 men in the fray against the Red and Blue, for Rice has a considerable number of capable warriors who will not be in the starting lineup.

The cross country team, which Saturday will race the S. M. U. harriers, is in the party.

Rice's showing depends on how the green forward wall stands up against the onslaught of the veteran Mustang forward wall.

Baylor Captain in Lineup Tomorrow

WACO, Oct. 18. (AP)—A streak of hope got in the camp of the Baylor Bears today with discovery that Captain Pete Jones, out for two weeks with a cold, would be in condition to enter the lineup against the Centenary Gentlemen at Shreveport Saturday.

With Jones' return, the varsity squad is in good condition and Coach Jennings celebrated the return of the Bruin leader by sending his charges against the Cubs in a long scrimmage session.

The Bears leave Waco Friday night for Shreveport. Jennings has indicated that Weir Washam will start against Centenary at the quarterback berth, replacing Jake Wilson. Washam was regular signal barker in 1926 and 1927 but gave way to the sophomore pivot man in early games this season. Washam has not started this season but has participated in every contest.

Frederick Junior Cats To Play Consolidated 11

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 18.—E. G. Ruper's Junior Bearcat football team will play the team from Consolidated No. 11, about 12 miles southeast of Frederick, either Friday of this week or next Friday. The Junior Bearcat's lineup:

Substitutes — "Chunky" Holden, John Jacob Banker, Marshal Akins, Frank Earp.

Pennsylvania Names Loughran as Champion

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18. (UP)—The next heavyweight champion must meet and defeat Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, light heavyweight champion, before he will be recognized as the titleholder by the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission, it was announced today.

Joe Smith, Loughran's manager, had asked the body to recognize his boxer as the heavyweight champion.

Quist Says Joie Ray Will Beat El Ouafi

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (UP)—Hugo Quist, adviser and trainer of Paavo Nurmi when the Finn toured the United States, believes Joie Ray's cleverness will enable him to defeat El Ouafi, the French Algerian winner of the Olympic marathon, in the marathon race at Madison Square garden Sunday night. Quist is now training Ray.

Yale Threatens to Build Shelter for Experts, and Excitement of Covering Games There Would End

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Well, well, here we are again, all covered with football.

I am very fond of football. I deem it one of the manlier pursuits, though I believe I once incurred some very keen glances from the football coachery of the land by arguing that professional football coaches should be required to go to work.

It was just an idea of mine. Nothing came of it. I mean to say, none of the football coaches went to work. They paid no attention whatever to my incendiary proposal, though I am informed that one or two countered by putting forward the quite preposterous suggestion that sporting writers also go to work.

I have dropped the argument. It seems to me that if both the coaches and the sporting writers all went to work, there would be too much work accomplished in this country. Furthermore, I have become acquainted with a number of coaches, and have come to the conclusion that my proposal partook in no small nature of mans' inhumanity to man. So let us just drop the subject.

I note with interest in the public prints that the Yale News has come out with a suggestion that steps be taken to provide shelter for the football writers up in the press stand of the Yale bowl. I have reason to believe that this suggestion originated with the young writers of the day, and it bears out my contention that the men of this generation are becoming effeminate.

They ain't what they used to be, that's certain. Boy, and old geezer, I have braved the wind and weather of that Yale press stand for nigh onto 17 y'ars, and I'll swan I never heard tell of any of the iron brigade of writers talking of shelter. In fact, I am pretty sure they will resent the suggestion as a reflection upon their manhood.

Gets a Little Moist

True, it gets a little moist at times up there in the press stand at New Haven, but the only complaints emanate from young squirts who are using portable typewriters, and find their train of thought interrupted when the typewriter starts floating around.

The hardy veterans, who work in the good old fashioned way with pencil and paper, pay no attention to the moisture until they find it blotting out their written words. Then they cast aside their implements and mumble in the right or left ear, as the case may be, of their telegraph operators, who have been known to catch the drift of the articulation, at that.

Full many a time and oft I have peered through the slanting rains of autumnal Connecticut at a line of my old and valued constituents munching at the lobes of operatorial ears, while the lads and lassies in the stands were singing, damply:

"Boola-boola
Boola-boola."

And all that sort of thing.

It is a privilege and a pleasure to work among men of that fibre. I have seen Mr. Wel Webb, the Bostonese, remove a rubber boot, empty a gallon of fluid on the head of a Yalensian spectator below, and then resume the boot without losing his syntax.

I have seen Mr. Will Hanna, of New York, treading water with one hand, and scribbling right along with the other. I have seen Mr. Grantland Rice paddling through the rivulets of a tortorous "lead" without missing a stroke.

Cold at Harvard

The press stand at Fair Harvard is also unsheltered but it is noted more for its cooling influence than for rain. Up there in the Harvard stand in the days when men were men, I have known it to get so cold that it would freeze the red likker in the precautionary bottles with which sagacious writers went fully hipped, and this was a very great hardship, indeed.

In these effete times, you see the young writers in the Harvard press stand clothed in the skins of raccoons, and other varmint, just like the collegians, but in the good old days a man with an alpaca coat, and a quart of fair rye felt guaranteed against the rigors of the coldest day, and the worst football that Harvard could offer.

So inured were our men to the frosts, I recall that one time when a delegation of New York, and other eastern football writers went out to Stagg field, in Chicago, to see Dartmouth play old Mr. Stagg's boys, and found a steam heated press stand, that seven souls succumbed to the high temperature. I believe this is the first time that the inadequacies of the reports of that game has ever been explained.

Anyone will tell you that the football stories compiled by the younger generation of writers of today lack that zip and zing of the old timers, and I attribute this entirely to the fact that the youngsters go to the games in heavy overcoats, wind breakers, ear tippets, foot warmers, flannel underwear, goloshes and mufflers, and with a very low grade of furniture polish.

I violate no confidence of the craft when I state that one young man once came to a football press stand carrying a gamp, or umbrella. I believe he has been excommunicated by the Football Writers' Association of America. It was a bad break, at that.

Yale Looks Good

Speaking of football, I am somehow looking for Yale to knock the spots off all and sundry opponents this season. I hereby nominate the young gentlemen of New Haven to win the championship of the East, if there is such a title, although that idea of sheltering the newspaper writers pertumbs me no little. Is it a sign that softening influences are creeping into Yale? I hope and trust that such is not the case.

Still, when a college commences getting solicitious about newspaper men there is something wrong. You may be sure they didn't get that at Yale from Mister Gene Tunney when he delivered his celebrated diatribe on Will Shakespeare, in the classic, so to speak, halls of old Eli. Mister Tunney wouldn't have advised sheltering the newspaper men. He would have warmly suggested letting 'em drown, if he had thought of it.

But nevertheless, and notwithstanding, Yale will boola-boola one and all to a whisper this year, unless I am sadly mistaken. My operatives inform me that the team is somewhat crippled. It will have to play students, as I understand it. But that's all right. They've got Johnny Garvey.

Yale is the sole survivor of the old Big Three that remains on speaking terms with one and all. Princeton doesn't speak to Harvard, and Harvard doesn't speak to Princeton, but both speak to Yale. I am hoping that this chasm will be bridged ere my son and heir, junior, goes to Princeton to play plenty of end, because I don't know how he'd feel about going through life without the privilege of speaking to a Harvard man.

LONGHORNS IN SECRET DRILLS

Texas to Be Ready for Invasion of Porkers

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (AP)—Secret practice has been invoked by Coach Littlefield at the Texas university football field, where elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of Arkansas university here Saturday.

A freshman team, composed of the largest huskies, members of the "slime" squad, is giving the varsity some trouble on line plays, calculated to anticipate what may be expected from the visiting Razorbacks.

The regulars are doing well with a passing game, which probably will have to be used against Arkansas line, averaging 200 pounds along the middle.

The absence of Steve Wray, center, from the game, does not help the Longhorn prospects any in repulsing the weighty Razorback wall. Otherwise, however, the squad is in fairly good shape.

Signal running, after today's scrimmage, will be worked on Friday at a light practice session.

Crack Nipponese Team to Play College Squads

OSAKA, Japan, Oct. 18. (UP)—The Osaka Mainichi baseball team will make a four months' tour of the United States next spring and a lengthy schedule with many college teams is now being arranged through their New York office. The Mainichi is one of the largest newspapers in Japan.

The members of the Mainichi team are the pick of the Japanese college stars and form one of the leading amateur nines in the Orient.

CLASS A TILTS ON PREP GRIDS

Coyotes at Electra; Plainview at Amarillo

Two class A championship games feature the schedule this week in district No. 1 of the State Interscholastic league. Electra and Amarillo gridirons will be scenes of the encounters, with Wichita Falls playing on the former field and Plainview scrapping on the Sandstorm's playground Saturday.

Amarillo is figured stronger than Plainview but the Wichita Falls and Electra affair looms as a toss-up. Both veteran elevens are expected to stage a thrilling battle tomorrow at Electra and the victor will be decided by a close score.

Other games involving elevens of district No. 1 or teams in the vicinity include Childress at Quanah, Archer City at Nocona, Chillicothe at Iowa Park, Bellevue at Olney, Lamesa at Tahoka, Crowell at Burkburnett.

4 Big Ten Games Carded This Week

Illinois Meets Indiana in Conference Opener

By REX R. GOAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 18. (UP)—Featured by the Illinois-Indiana clash at Urbana, the Big Ten football schedule will take on full steam next Saturday when eight teams will play conference games.

The Illini, champions of 1927, with several of last year's men in the lineup, will play its first conference game on their home grounds and Coach Bob Zuppke has hopes of upsetting the title aspirations of Pat Page, the Indiana mentor.

Page took a fighting squad to Ann Arbor last Saturday and the Hoosiers crossed Michigan's goal line for the first time in 28 years, giving the students at Bloomington some hopes of a championship.

Indiana High Hurdle

Page's crew of sophomore hopefuls must be reckoned with in the championship race and Zuppke is building up an aerial attack around Kenny Fields, by which he hopes to forward pass his way across the Hoosier goal line and get under way towards a second consecutive championship.

The campus chatter there seems to indicate that a defeat of Indiana means removal of the biggest obstacle in the way of another title.

Wisconsin, conquerors of Nortre Dame, will get their first conference test against Purdue at Lafayette. The Badgers are doped to come through victorious in view of their showing this season and the Boilermakers' defeat by Minnesota last Saturday at Minneapolis.

Chicago Plays Gophers

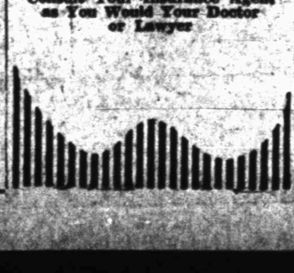

The Chicago Maroons, defeated by Iowa last Saturday, will journey to Minneapolis, taking along a bolstered line with which Coach Stagg hopes to hold off the Gopher plunges. The big Indian, McClain, of Iowa, ripped the Chicago line in such a manner last week that Stagg saw the necessity of getting strength in that section of his machine.

Michigan, all but out of the running through their loss to Indiana, will meet Ohio State on the latter's home gridiron. The Buckeyes have one conference victory to their credit, that with Northwestern.

Two non-conference games will be played by Big Ten teams Saturday. Iowa will meet Ripon college on home territory and Northwestern will be host to Kentucky at Evanston.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

TWO MANAGERS FIRED and one hired—and the end is not yet in sight. The mortality of big league pilots will be heavy this winter, it is indicated, with two pilots already deposed and others said to be due to get the axe. Hardly had the last catch of Babe Ruth been made in the world series than Stanley Harris relinquished the leadership of the Washington Senators. Walter Johnson succeeded the "boy manager." Next came the "resignation" of George Moriarty as skipper of the Detroit Tigers, which was not surprising news as the fall of the Jungalees this season was expected to mean Moriarty's retirement from that club.

◇ ◇ ◇

Moriarty seemed to have all essentials of a team leader. He was a star player and a captain of the Tigers before quitting active duty to umpire. As an arbiter he was one of the best. A man of intelligence and with years of experience in baseball, Moriarty's success at Detroit seemed assured. But he was no improvement over Ty Cobb and thus the Tigers will have a new boss.

◇ ◇ ◇

HARRIS HAS BEEN frequently mentioned as the probable new Tiger leader. Bucky showed qualities of leadership at Washington in winning two pennants and a world title and with President Clark Griffith of the Senators giving him the right to negotiate with any club for his services, his appointment as boss of the Tigers is expected. Donie Bush has been mentioned as the successor to Moriarty, but Bush has been retained by the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Harris seems to have the inside track on the job.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE BOSTON BRAVES apparently are willing to part with Rogers Hornsby and his $40,000 salary—for a price. The Braves want $200,000 and players, a tidy sum. However, the Chicago Cubs are expected to meet the high demands of the Boston club owner and Hornsby apparently is destined to play on the north side next summer. The Braves need rebuilding and cash and players will do them more good, probably, than Hornsby, great hitter that he is.

◇ ◇ ◇

In the event Hornsby goes to Chicago a new leader of course will have to be named for the Braves. And for the Pirates, if Bush should go to Detroit. Rumors following the world series indicated that Bill McKechnie might be supplanted as master mind of the St. Louis Cardinals, but nothing to lend belief there is something to those reports has been heard lately. Wilbert Robinson is said to be willing to drop the managership of the Brooklyn Dodgers to occupy only one of his dual roles, the presidency, and favors Max Carey as his successor. Lena Blackburne did well enough with the White Sox after taking the job in mid-season when Ray Schalk stepped out, under pressure. Lena may or may not be at the helm of the Sox next spring, depending on the whim of the capricious officials.

◇ ◇ ◇

JOHN M'GRAW will manage the Giants as long as he cares to, which means so long as he is able to hobble around and bawl out his players. Burt Shotten did as well as anybody could with his misfit Philly club and probably will be retained. Joe McCarthy is a fixture at Chicago and Jack Hendricks has signed a new contract with the Cincy Reds.

◇ ◇ ◇

CONNIE MACK, like McGraw with the Giants, is a heavy stockholder in the Athletics and will boss the A's until his lean figure shrinks to nothing from seeing the Yanks win pennants. Miller Huggins is a hero of New York. Bill Carrigan, despite an eighth-place club, goes back to lead the Boston Red Sox. Dan Howley finished third with the Browns, an achievement of such merit that he of course will stay with that club and Roger Peckinpaugh is holdover leader of the Cleveland Indians.

STOCK CARS IN CONTESTS HERE

Motorcycles Also to Race Saturday and Sunday

Interest is being displayed in the stock car races and the motorcycles derbies on the two-day motor racing card at the Texas-Oklahoma fair grounds oval here Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Several local riders of the two-wheeled mounts have signed entries to compete against professional drivers from Dallas, Tulsa, Waco, Kansas City and other points.

A 15-lap race of the motorcycles will be run both Saturday and Sunday. Riders already entered for these jaunts are Lyons and Meyers of Wichita Falls, Cathcart of Dallas, LaBude of Lawton, Okla., Prall of Tulsa, Smith of Kansas City and Lovejoy of Amarillo.

The stock car grinds scheduled for both days are creating considerable rivalry also and promise to cause as much excitement as the professional events. Enthusiasm over stock car racing events is coming to the front all over the country, according to Don C. Onley of Los Angeles, who will act as starter and referee of the local two-day program.

According to W. W. Bowen, an official of the two-day meet here, more than a dozen entries have signed for the 15-lap grinds in the stock car classes. Among these entries are Henry Williams of Wichita Falls, Matt Ward and Jess Davis of Duncan, Okla., Dave Dunciano of Kansas City and Paul Jones of Hydro, Okla.

The stock car events are open to all owners of stock machines of current models and information and entry blanks may be obtained from Don C. Onley or W. W. Bowen at the Kemp hotel. All wind resistance excepting the fenders may be removed and any change in carburation will be permitted. Aside from these exceptions the entries must be strictly stock.

Six professional events are the feature events of the two-day weekend racing card.

HOOVER HOLDS 'STRAW' MARGIN

'Digest' Poll Shows G. O. P. Well in Lead

Hoover is leading in six of the 10 states in the "Solid South" as more than 2,500,000 returns from all of the 48 states are reported in The Literary Digest's huge national presidential poll which is published today.

With the vote announced as not yet completed, Smith is carrying only Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, while Hoover has substantial margins over his rival in the Democratic strongholds of Florida, North Carolina, Texas and Virginia and sparing leads in Alabama and Arkansas, which leads The Literary Digest classes as doubtful.

The border states of Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Tennessee give the Republican candidate a comfortable plurality.

Ratio Same

Of the total of 2,529,997 votes returned in this fifth week's tabulation of the Literary Digest's poll, Hoover has 1,593,436 while Smith has 910,234. This gives a percentage of 63 for Hoover to 36 for Smith, which is almost the precise ratio of last week's returns.

Hoover at present shows a lead in this "straw poll" in several of the states that are generally considered dougtful, as in Wisconsin, where he is ahead by 31,351 to 21,847; in North Dakota, where he leads by 5,408 to 2,802; in Minnesota, where his ratio is 52,882 to 23,021; and in Montana, where he is polling 6,750 to Smith's 3,152.

The Republican candidate is leading in returns from all the eastern states from Maine to Delaware by ratios of 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 except in New York, where, though he has a substantial lead in the state as a whole, the New York city vote is strongly favorable to the Democratic side, showing Smith with 130,822 to Hoover's 93,974.

Demos For Hoover

An analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1924" offers the significant shift that for the first time since this "postcard election" was started Smith is polling more of his strength from voters who state that they voted Democratic in the last presidential election than those who have changed from the Republican ranks, although the difference is rather slight. Previously he has had in his column more 1924 Republicans than 1924 Democrats.

In the south Hoover is indicated as obtaining the better part of his support from Democratic sources in the states where he shows a lead.

In individual polls of Chicago and Philadelphia, where the entire registered electorate is being polled, the same as in New York city, Hoover shows an advantage of 93,286 to 67,646 in the Illinois metropolis and 68,495 to 47,810 in Philadelphia. Against this Smith is shown polling more of this strength from former Republicans than from previous Democratic voters in both of these cities.

"The poll establishes a new record this week," the Literary Digest states editorially, "with 2,529,997 votes recorded, as against somewhat less than 2,000,000 when the poll of 1924 had reached the present stage of development.

"With the present tabulation the returns may be considered for the first time fairly representative of the country as a whole. The division of the vote is slightly more favorable to Governor Smith than in the earlier tabulations.

"Fences" Break

"The wide-spread breaking down of political fences, noted throughout the previous reports, is even more evident in the present tabulation. It may be observed, however, that with fuller reports from the southern states, there is an increasing switch of Democrats to Hoover, along with Mr. Smith's increasing suffrage from former Republicans.

"For the first time in the poll, it will be noticed, Governor Smith draws more of his support from Democrats of 1924 than from Republicans of that year. He still has 334,931 of these 'switched' votes, as against 233,555 former Democrats who are now for Hoover.

"The shift of former Republicans, several authorities agree, means merely that Democrats who voted for Coolidge in 1924 are now returning to their home camp, but the fact remains, of course, that there has been a switch since 1924."

Dallas Auditorium Denied Those Who Wish to Overthrow Government

DALLAS, Oct. 18. (AP)—Neither comunnists, royalists, or any other group of persons seeking to overthrow the present government can use Dallas city property for their meetings if he has the say about it, Street Commissioner Arthur J. Reinhart said today.

Commissioner Reinhart made this statement after he had been advised that Richard Potts, self-styled "secretary general of the Royal League of America," had gotten permission to use the city auditorium for a mass meeting Sunday. The commissioner said that if Potts wanted to use the city hall for an open forum meeting, as had been understood, he "is welcome to it," but that a "soap box" is all persons who wish to overthrow the present government are entitled to.

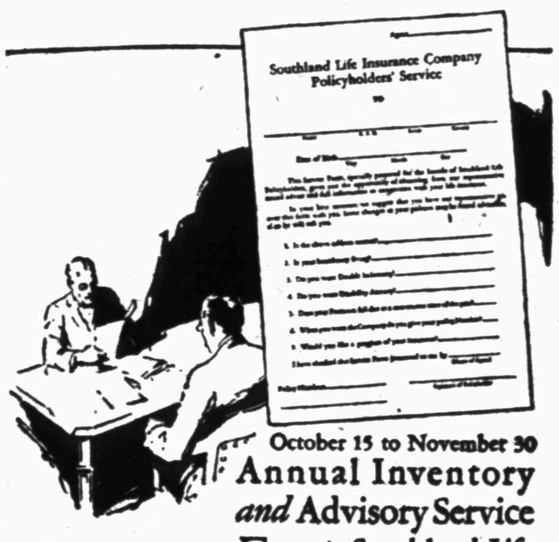

Commissioner Reinhart refused to let Benjamin Gitlow, communist's vice presidential candidate, use the city hall auditorium for an address Tuesday night after some organizations had protested.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flue

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

Mrs. A. M. Owens, of 1716 Taylor St., Rt. 5. Box 34, Little Rock, Ark., says: "I was so weak I couldn't walk across the floor. I had spent a fortune trying to get well and would be in my grave if it weren't for Tanlac. Now I eat and sleep fine and have gained 22 lbs."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

$5000 Loss in Iowa Park Fire

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Texas, Oct. 18.—Scarcely had Clyde Good moved into the City Limit Filling station, which yesterday was vacated by his brother, Raymond Good, than fire originating in the incubator house near the structure destroyed the whole building today. Loss was estimated at $5,000.

The building was insured for $3,500, it was said, but none of the contents, including about 100 gallons of gasoline which had been removed to the place today, was protected.

Good dashed to a neighbor's house to turn in the alarm as soon as he noticed the fire, but by the time aid had arrived a stiff west wind had carried the fire all over the building.

Colleen Moore will come to the Majestic theater Saturday with a strong supporting cast of comedians in "Oh Kay." It seems too bad that Colleen is not more often cast in pictures where she has a somewhat serious role, or at least a role where she may prove her real acting ability as well as her comedianship (not a bad word) as she did in "Lilac Time." Theatergoers found themselves, at least some of them did, liking Colleen Moore for the first time in that picture.

Colleen will turn sailor in the picture scheduled for Saturday. In the picture will also appear Alan Hale, who was lost to the medical profession when he suddenly decided—or, maybe it was decided for him, to appear in the movies.

If the crowds that daily file in and out of the Strand theater are any indication of attendance, it would appear that nearly everybody in the city has seen "Wings," the master production of the struggle of the skies during the world war.

And close upon the heels of "Wings" will come a still greater production, "King of Kings," a master story of the life of Christ, which has received endorsement from the clergy and the show people of the old and new worlds alike. "King of Kings" will open at the midnight matinee at the Strand theater Saturday night for a week's run. The production is a symphony of beauty and is the type of movie which has made the new art a permanent and necessary thing.

Score another one for Mary Pickford. Her voice was recently tested for Paramount talking pictures at the Paramount studio in Hollywood and pronounced "the finest screen voice yet recorded." Luck seems to follow Mary.

Bill Saling will open a program of songs, accordion selections and will be general accompanist and pipe organist at the Olympic theater starting with Sunday's program. Mr. Saling has been organist at the Capitol theaters in Oklahoma City and in Dallas as well as the Palace theater in San Antonio. He comes to Wichita Falls from Beaumont.

Joe Mullen will open a vaudeville bill at the Mission theater Saturday with "The Schemers." He will appear as a xylophone artist.

The Mission theater announces the opening of the vaudeville season Saturday. Mullen's Musical Maids will open with "The Schemers," and will play at the Mission for an indefinite period. The Sunday program will be a complete change. Joe Mullen plays the xylophone and is featured in a variety of capacities in the program during his stay in the city.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 18. (Sp)—Although the peak of the cotton season is not yet reached, indications point out that by the latter part of the month the full rush of the cotton season will be on. The eight gins of the town report that up to Saturday, Oct. 12, a total of 8,405 bales of cotton had been ginned.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (AP)—A further advance to approximately the 20-cent level was checked by realizing and southern selling in the cotton market here today and after selling up to $19.93 early, December contracts declined to $19.70, closing at that figure. The disposition to take profits on long cotton after an advance of about 140 points from recent low prices was promoted by reports of improving weather in the South, but the final tone of the market was steady at the net declines of 8 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 8 points on all months except July which was one point lower. Considerable realizing and hedge selling was reported, but it was taken at about the initial figures and the market soon turned upward on a continuation of the recent buying movement.

October sold up to 20.03 and March to 19.86, or about 8 to 12 points net higher, but at thees prices offerings increased. An idea that the advance of the past 10 days had been over-rapid and that the higher price might bring out increased southern offerings were supposed to be reflected by realizing, while there was also further hedging on the afternoon decline. October sold off to 19.82 and March to 19.60, and the market closed at the lowest prices of the day. The detailed weather reports showed frost at one station in the Oklahoma district with generally low temperatures, and some of the local traders who make a study of weather conditions thought there might be frost at some points in the southwest tonight. There was no mention of frost in the official forecast, however, and weather conditions otherwise were considered more favorable for picking and marketing.

Private cables reported further covering and trade calling in Liverpool with an improved demand for cotton cloth from Egypt and the near East. Exports today, 128,659, making 1,740,388 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,882. U. S. port stock, 1,631,212.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18 (AP).—After rallying sharply from an opening decline and making new highs for the present movement, the cotton market today weakened again in late trading under hedging and realizing on fears of large ginnings for the last period. December contracts traded down from 19.35c to 19.10c and closed at the latter figure, or 15 points down for the day. The general market closed steady at net losses of 13 to 15 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady, but the market opened easy at net declines of 13 to 15 points. The weakness was attributed to the failure of frost to materialize in the belt. At this setback, January contracts traded at 19.11c and March 19.00c.

When the early offerings were absorbed, however, good trade and speculative buying developed, probably promoted by the heavy exports from Galveston of 106,191 bales. Shorts also covered rather freely and around noon December traded at 19.35,c January 19.34c and March 19.26c, or 23 to 26 points up from the lows and 10 to 13 points over yesterday's close.

During the afternoon prices gradually worked lower under realizing and hedging as well as liquidation by longs who evidently feared rather full ginnings for the period ending Oct. 15. January traded off to a new low at 19.09c and closed at that figure or 15 points net lower for the day. Other positions closed at the low points made at the opening.

Receipts 65,548 bales, for week 483,108 bales, for month 3,044,259 bales, last year 3,009,496 bales. Exports 128,659 bales for week 358,440 bales, for year 1,704,852 bales, last year 1,649,737 bales. Stocks 1,636,484 bales, last year 2,082,387 bales. Stock on shipboard 147,612 bales, last year 122,474 bales. Spot sales 89,308 bales, last year 56,920 bales.

Trade Volume Reaches 4,500,000 Shares on Wild Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (US)—Wild outburst of trading was experienced on the stock exchange this afternoon, as continued pool operations in selected issues attracted an increasing public interest. Montgomery Ward scored the most sensational advance, but Studebaker, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Loose Wiles and others rushed forward in a big tunrover and registered new high prices for the move. Trading volume reached over 4,500,000 shrares with the increased activity of the afternoon putting the tape more than 45 minutes late at the close.

Easing in the call money rate to 6½ per cent from renewal of 7 per cent enhanced bullish enthusiasm somewhat despite calling of $10,000,000 loans in connection with the treasury's operations. Railroads were in better demand with Kansas City Southern the outstanding feature. Oil shares remained in rather narrow price range, but displayed a good undertone while the metal group remained strong with Nickel adding to its climb in new high territory.

Bulls Aid Studebaker

Studebaker's outstanding strength resulted from concentrated bullish operations for the strongest interests in the market. They have long regarded the stock as being out of line with other motors and, according to report, made final arrangements for their operation during the morning. It did not take long for the effect to be felt for there have been many traders waiting only for real leadership to follow a move in the stock.

Coincident with the activity it was learned that the new models have met an even more enthusiastic reception than officials expected, so that earnings this year will establish a new high record. Estimates based on the result of operations so far this year and orders already booked point to net income of at least $10 a share for the full 12 months.

Oil Men Meet

Meetings of the heads of leading oil companies at 26 Broadway continued as the stocks of these companies were quietly absorbed. Cutten and other big factors in the market for the oil shares, it is stated, are not looking to immediate events, but are taking a position for many months, so are in no hurry getting their stocks, although keeping scale orders in all the time. Tidewater Associated was helped by report that earnings this quarter would exceed the favorable showing for the three months ended Sept. 30.

There was added interest to Tidewater Oil also following report that it had enjoyed similar improvement to that shown by Tidewater Associated. Leaders of the metal industry are rumored to be working on merger plans in which the names of Anaconda, Greene Cananea are large companies mentioned, along with those of less well-known companies in connection with which recent buying of Carnegie Metals is mentioned.

Superior Oil Active

Sensational spurt of Montgomery Ward was further evidence of the technical corner as those who bought many months ago hold to their positions due to faith in future of the chain of retail distributing agencies. Kansas City Southern, it is expected, will make special distribution as a result of cash from sale of Cotton Belt stock and indefinite postponement of Loree's southwestern merger plan.

Loose-Wiles' renewed prominence came coincident with report that plans were being discussed for putting the company into the General Baking organization. Further accumulation for the account of Cutten interests was the explanation for advance in Simmons. Superior Oil was more active as announcement was made of bringing in of wells, proving up another portion of its property.

New Loan Record

Increase of $74,507,000 in brokers' loans to a new high record of $4,664,390,000 is somewhat larger than had been expected, and may put some damper on speculative enthusiasm for the opening of trading tomorrow at least. Those most active on the bull side, when talked with after the loan figures were issued, however, evidenced no great uneasiness.

They seem sure that no drastic steps will be taken by the money powers until after election, so go ahead with aggressive activity in their selected favorites. Their main complaint is the lateness of the ticker, for they correctly feel that if transactions were recorded in pace with trading they would attract a larger following. It will be a year, however, before the market can keep up with trading volume such as witnessed this afternoon.

Further advance in the German mark again featured a firm and quiet foreign exchange market, in which sterling held to narrow price range. Wheat was sold down on reports of big shipments from the Argentine influencing irregularity in other grains. Cotton quieted, but remained somewhat soft, with professionals continuing their pressure.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19 (AP). (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Hog prices at most points around the 11-market circuit sagged to new low levels for the season; trade was slow and values unevenly 10 to 35c lower; Chicago had a top of $10.00, while the best mark at St. Louis was $9.90; total offerings were around 83,000, an increase of 18,500 over last Thursday and 11,000 more than a year ago.

Generally steady prices prevailed in the fat lamb market on early rounds, but closing trade at Chicago was dull at 15c to 25c lower figures. Choice native lambs in Chicago topped at $13.75, while St. Joseph scored $13.50 on rangers. Fat clipped lambs netted $12.50; the supply approximated 81,700, as compared with 89,522 a week ago and 79,258 a year ago.

Comparatively light receipts around the loop created a better feeling on killing classes and steady prices were maintained.

The decline this week on stocker and feeder steers has stimulated demand and considerable interest has been showed the last few days on stockers and lightweight feeders. All indications point to a broad week-end clearance, several loads of choice medium weight steers and yearlings at Chicago cleared at $17.25; aggregate receipts were estimated at 29,400; a shortage of 4,000 from a week ago and a decrease of 13,500 from the same day last year.

STOCKHOLM, (UP)—Unemployment is on a steady decline in Sweden. Latest government figures, just released, show that the number of people out of work who applied for aid in July was 9,500 as compared to 11,169 in June, or a decrease of about 14.9 per cent.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (UP).—Corn again today displayed its inherent strength in the face of weakness in wheat, and closed with a good gain, while wheat dragged lower.

At the end wheat was off ⅛ to ⅝c, corn was up ½ to 1c, oats were ⅛ to ¼c higher, rye was ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher.

Sentiment was bearish on all grains, but the market—especially in corn—administered a rebuke to most short sellers. Although wheat sagged lower in a sluggish trade it did not seem to me to act in a way that would fill a bear with confidence, to say nothing of enthusiasm.

Wheat may not be a good purchase, but, in my opinion, it is a hazardous short sale and will continue to be a hazardous short sale until after election day. The short may think he is getting away with his operation and build up a profit on paper, but the market looks to me as if it might turn sharply upward at some point near the present level and have shorts struggling to cover without a loss.

A cautious trader will perhaps keep out of the wheat market until next month. In that way he may dodge a lot of grief if wheat is going to sell down into the depths, as bears insist is probable, there will be plenty of time to sell it within the next three months.

Corn was very strong today. Former bulls are generally out of their holdings and hoping for a break to let them reinstate their lines. Bears are active and the market seems pretty well sold out in spite of its advance during the last three days.

Tomorrow corn may not be a good purchase on bulges, but it is no short sale in my opinion. I reiterate what I said some days ago: December corn acts as if it could easily sell at 90 cents and perhaps much higher.

Traders who coppered this opinion when expressed some time ago when corn was about the present level or slightly lower may have profited temporarily on the setback last week. But unless they covered their short corn they may wake up to find that they gloated prematurely in ridiculing the idea that December corn could sell at 90c.

State Claims Area in Banks Proper

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (INS)—A misunderstanding seems to exist as to the extent of the state's claim in the pending suit of the state against C. W. Bradford et al, involving the river bed area of the north fork of the Red river, through Wheeler county and the greater part of Gray county, it was stated here today by C. W. Trueheart, assistant attorney general.

"The area claimed by the state is that lying between the inner cut banks, same being generally defined by the gravel area on one side and the vegetation area on the other," Trueheart said.

"This information is intended for the benefit of those who might have supposed the area claimed more extensive," the state's lawyer added. "The exact location of the line at any particular point may be had from Arthur K. Stiles, who can be reached at Pampa."

In this year the H. F. Watson company and the Continental Roofing Manufacturing company were acquired. It has English and Canadian subsidiaries.

The concern makes prepared shingles, roofing felts, pipe coverings, insulating materials, floor coverings, building and sheating papers and waterproofing products as its plants in Bound Brook, N. J.; Joliet, Ill; Erie, Pa.; Chicago, Baltimore and Mobile. It has branches and selling agencies elsewhere.

Exponents of Oil Tariff For Smith

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 18.—Two vigorous advocates of a tariff on oil are L. B. Jackson of Tulsa and W. A. Wise of Sapulpa, independent producers and who operate as Jackson & Wise in the Mid-Continent. Mr. Wise is a Republican, but plans to support Smith and Robinson, because of their progressive views on the tariff and other business measures.

Mr. Wise has dug up a letter that he received Oct. 6, 1927, from the federal oil conservation board, and signed by E. S. Rochester, its secretary, that definitely set forth the views of the commission, made up of Hubert Work, present chairman of the Republican national committee; Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war; Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of navy, and Herbert Hoover, then secretary of commerce, and now the Republican candidate for the presidency. The letter speaks for itself:

Letter Quoted

"I am rather of the opinion that your suggestion advocating a tariff on oil imported from foreign countries, as a measure of relief to the existing oil situation in this country, should not be subscribed to at this time by this board.

"The primary object of the federal oil conservation board is, of course, to conserve our American oil. All foreign oil imported into this country reduces the use of our domestic oil to that extent. A tariff on foreign oil might tend to increase very slightly the price of American oil, but it is not the province of this board, nor its intention, to take any action which would tend to increase the price of oil and its products to the American people. As you know, of course, the oil imported from foreign countries goes largely to such ports as Baltimore, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, remote from our American fields, and therefore does not enter seriously into direct competition with production in California, Wyoming, Oklahoma, Kentucky, etc.

Not Good Policy

"For the moment at least I am of the opinion that it would be not good policy on the part of this board to advocate the measures you suggest.

"In the meantime, however, Secretary Work would be very glad to have the benefit of any suggestion which may from time to time occur to you, as he feels that this board can be guided intelligently only through the counsel and advice of men who understand all phases of our national petroleum problems."

Mr. Wise declares that Mr. Hoover has never committed himself for a tariff, or any other protection for the American oil men, while Mr. Smith has done so and promises to revive the tariff commission and have it recommend protective measures for any commodity suffering from the same products from foreign lands.

HOT WORDS IN RAIL BATTLE

Lawyer and Dallas Traffic Man at Odds

AUSTIN, Oct. 18. (AP)—A flareback to the dispue over the position of A. L. Reed, traffic manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, in the Houston-Galveston freight rate equalization case, provoked hot words and verbal recriminations before the state railroad commission's hearing today.

Reed and John H. Crooker, Houston attorney, had another joust after the Dallas man asked permission to read into the record a Houston Post-Dispatch editorial which he claimed reflected on the ethics of his position. In the forepart of the hearing some days ago, Reed said under examination of Crooker that he (Reed) had been retained as counsel for Galveston in other rate cases, and Crooker questioned Reed's action in placing Dallas' support behind Galveston, without mentioning having been counsel for Galveston.

Chairman Clarence E. Gilmore of the commission sustained Crooker's objection to having the editorial put in the record, and Reed declared the ruling "unjust."

They are on the road for the Marland Oil company, and dropped in at the Hoover office to talk politics for a while.

The present management of the Texas-Louisiana Power company will continue to operate and manage the corporation and also will manage and operate the General Water Works and Electric corporation, said Barrett, formerly president of the Texas-Louisiana, who has become chairman of the boards, both of that company and of the General Water Works and Electric corporation.

Headquarters and general offices of both companies will be in Fort Worth.

Star of Follies Tops Vaudeville

(By The Record News Critic)

Ethel Davis, formerly of the Greenwich Village Follies, proved the real star of the new Interstate vaudeville bill which opened Thursday at the Majestic theater. Miss Davis featured a clever skit of song chatter, and pleased the crowd with a variety of subjects in her program. Earle Browne, at the piano, gave the star excellent support.

"Side Kicks," a group of sidelights into the lives of American soldiers stationed in France, placed second in the favor of the audience, judging from the applause. Ray Vaughn, with his dancing feet and flying fingers, also ranked high with his jazzy reportoire of song hits on his xylophone.

"Tell Tales" with its foursome of rather modern actors gave plenty of joy to advocates of the newest jokes and novelty dancing. Al Walton, Ethel Byron, Jane West and Ethel Finch made up in the cast. "The Whip Woman," with Estelle Taylor as the star, proved a fair screen offering.

'Side Kicks' Takes Generous Share of Applause

It gives a diversification of work that will keep up the interest of all the family. It adds little to the labor and much to the income. At Wichita Falls we have a market for milk that is stable. The demand is such that it will never be satisfied. The time will never again come when there will be a surplus of milk and its consequent fluctuations of price. In times past, many farmers have had to waste milk because there was not a market for it at certain times of the year. Now there is a good market at profitable prices for every gallon that can or ever will be produced in this county.

Great Market

Ten acres, ten cows and ten hundred chickens. With the right kind of a family on such a tract, and with good cows and good hens, this could be made a business that would pay handsome returns in cash and that would increase in value to an extent almost unbelievable. With the fertilization that would be possible from 10 cows and 1000 hens the fertility of the soil, could be built up to the point where the yields of the farm would be almost unbelievable.

With a ten-acre farm properly planned it would be easily possible to produce the roughage for the cows and green feed for the hens. With good cows of high production, there would be a good profit even if all the concentrates had to be purchased, for under the cooperative plan of handling feed, it could be bought at the minimum price. It might be even possible to produce some of the grain, for after a few years of fertilization this soil will produce an enormous tonnage of feeds. Texas soils are naturally fertile, but continuous cropping without returning any plant food has impoverished it, but it will be as good or better than ever after a few years of the cow and hen program.

This ten-acre program can be expanded to 20 or 40 acres if it is desired. Under this plan of intensive development, 40 acres should be the limit for one family. Irrigation farming should be an intensive system of farming. It is not the number of acres that is cultivated that determines the success or failure, but rather the cultivation of one acre so that it will do the work of two. One acre properly farmed is better than four indifferently farmed. The fewer the acres, the less the investment and the expense of operating. Ten acres well farmed is wortm more than 40 poorly farmed.

Charles Weeks of the Weeks Community farms, will discuss the possibilities of combining cows and chickens on a small farm at the auditorium Friday night. It will be an illustrated lecture and will show in pictures what has actually been done along these lines. There will be no charge for admission and no effort made toward the financing of the plan of development as this is all being taken care of through other means. The meeting is just to show the public what is going to be done and get the interest of the public aroused to the possibilities that we have at our doors.

BALLOTS HERE FOR ELECTION

16,000 Copies Provided for Wichita County

Sixteen thousand copies of the official ballot for use in the November general election in Wichita county have been received by Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, who has started distribution of ballots for absentee voting. The ballots will be distributed among 39 voting precincts in the county.

Absentee voting will continue up th three days before the election, Miss Hall said Thursday, however requests by mail from persons out of the city can be considered only up to 10 days before the election.

The official ballot is rather large, measuring 16 inches in width by 26 inches in length, with candidates to be voted upon in four columns. A fifth column is left blank for any party or nominee names.

Manager Talks at Rotary Luncheon

The Wichita Falls city council has cooperated and made it comparatively easy for the city manager to perform his duties, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager of Wichita Falls. Mr. Fairtrace made this and other statements at the Thursday luncheon meeting of the Rotary club in the Kemp hotel.

"It is the duty of the city manager to run the city government and not to run the affairs of the people," said the city manager in discussing "The Technique of City Management."

Dr. S. S. McKenney introduced George Kellar who sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. played the piano accompaniment. Leslie Stringer introduced the guests and Honey Boy and Sassafras, KGKO comedy artists, gave several numbers.

Hundreds are planning now to attend every one of Mrs. Chitwood's series of lectures and practical demonstrations on the subject of COOKERY and HOME ECONOMICS.

Mrs. Chitwood needs no introduction to the housewives of Wichita Falls. The school conducted by her for the past five years has grown in attendance and popularity until the present year is expected to set a record in cooking school attendance in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Chitwood is one of the most popular cooking school lecturers in America today. She can be easily heard and understood as she uses plain language, simple words and non-technical terms.
