JAPAN DENIES PROPOSED THREE POWER TREATY

ADVICE ASKED IN BUILDING OF CAPITAL SHIPS

HOPES FOR REOPENING OF DECISIONS AT WASHINGTON LOST

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 27.—As far as Japan is concerned there is no idea of proposing any security treaty. Viscount Ishii told the newspaper men tonight when asked if there were any truth in the reports that an English-Japanese-American pact was being projected.

Gibson's Actions Closely Watched

GENEVA, June 27 (AP)—With British hopes of reopening the Washington treaty decisions dashed by the absence of any fresh instructions permitting the American delegation to discuss the size of capital ships and cruisers, interest centers on what H. H. Gibson and his conferees will do in the way of assuring some future examination of that question.

Presumably the Americans are disposed to put something into the terms of the projected treaty to be framed here that will more or less bind them to a discussion of the sizes of warships at the second Washington conference in 1931 without, however, committing themselves in any way as to what their attitude will be at that time.

Leaders Hold to Plan This matter will be the subject of negotiation, but meanwhile the British leaders have given no intimation to the Americans that they have definitely abandoned their attempts to reopen Washington treaty problems at the present meeting.

According to some reports they would like to exact a promise from the Americans to refrain, pending the 1931 conference, from building any 35,000 ton battleships, of which the British already possess two, the Nelson and Rodney. It is stated that the Americans undoubtedly

SHALLOW POOL IS REVEALED IN MULLICAN TEST

REPORTED SALE TO TEX THORNTON IS SAID PREMATURE

With fifty feet of oil standing in the Mullican oil and gas test well 35 miles due north of Lubbock, representatives of leading oil companies of the United States located in this city are confident that Lubbock and the South Plains are to realize the benefits of a shallow pool.

Oil from the Mullican-Kenans well tested 37.8 in the chemistry laboratory of Texas Tech, and chemists say a certain percentage must be allowed for depreciation between the well and the city.

Sale Reported Premature The well is located 13 miles west of Hale Center in block B of section 21.

Announcement in the Amarillo paper Sunday to the effect that Tex Thornton has purchased the interests of the Eagle King Drilling company in the Mullican oil well and lease on 115 acres surrounding it for a reported price of $50,000 is at least premature, Judge Clark M. Mullican, part owner of the land has attracted oil interests, said today. Judge Mullican reports that leasing activities and purchases are expected to take spirited form within the next few days.

WALL STREET DRAWS BLAME

OBREGON SAYS ROME AND U. S. CAPITAL CAUSE TROUBLE

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—"Rome and Wall Street" are held by General Obregon, who has announced his candidacy for president to be the headquarters of the enemies of the Mexican government. He makes the charge in a statement outlining his platform on the various questions, both internal and external, with which the country must deal.

To Facilitate Investments General Obregon, emphasizing the distinction between what he referred to as "home" American capital and the capital of Wall Street, which he said ought to promote crises and conflicts in and with Mexico, pledged himself to facilitate investments in Mexico by all honest American capital willing to help in developing the country. He warned that he would not countenance investments by "imperialist Wall Street capital."

As for their alleged question, observers see a clear indication that if General Obregon comes into power, he will not deviate from the stand of President Calles, it is contended by these observers that Obregon's demand that the clergy absolutely respect the regulations of the Mexican government is no different from the demands of Calles.

HUBBERS TROUNCE LAMESA IN SLUGGING BEE SUNDAY 13 TO 4

TERRY ALLOWS ONLY SIX HITS TO WIN EASILY

LOBOS ERRATIC AND HUBBER STICKMEN GO ON RAMPAGE

The Lubbock Hubbers defeated the Lobos of Lamesa in a free hitting battle with a count of 13 to 4 yesterday afternoon at the Merrill Park. Twelve hits were collected by the home team from the offerings of Rose, ace right hander of the Lobo pack; while Terry, racy blonde-headed right hander of the homebreds allowed but six scattered bingles for the exhibition.

The visiting party played in hard luck for the entire afternoon. Pete Peterson, youthful short fielder for the Lobos had a hard day fielding in the short field for the visitors. The lad was charging too fast and throwing the ball before he had it in hand on it. Peterson was shifted from third to short stop and the chance had much to do with his ill fielding. Peterson is capable of putting up a jam up game, as he has played good baseball with the Texas Tech Mustangs. But Peterson was not the only player to have a bad afternoon as several bad marks were chalked against several of his team mates.

Tuba Nicholas, like Peterson, had a pretty bad afternoon with three errors in his credit. But Nicholas cracked out the acute to reduce his fielding with two singles for three trips. Tupper Ripley, flash of the Mustangs, held the crowd to great interest yesterday with a perfect exhibition. Ripley hit three for four with two of his hits for extra bases, and covered the right garden with the style of a veteran. Once Ripley charged in fast to grab a shoe string catch that every one had given up to be for a bingle.

Terry Alas Hits Hard
Terry, aside from pitching a creditable game, was a terror with the stick yesterday. In his four trips to the plate he busted out three bingles one being for three bags.

The Hubbers will spend the week-end in Amarillo meeting the Mustangs of that city in a two game affair in the third and fourth of July. The Mustangs have a fast nine and entertain the fans of the north plains with baseball while the Western League team is on the road.

Mlle. Simone de la Chaume Is Newest Golf Sensation

Mlle. de la Chaume

BY JIMMY POWERS
NEW YORK, June 27.—They call his bright-eyed young French school girl the "Suzanne Lenglen of the Links," but that title is not strictly fair either to her beauty or her game.

Mlle. Simone Thon de la Chaume is the newest and most sensational of all the feminine golf stars. She captured the women's British open from a large and talented field and has drawn from four open Glenna Collet, prediction of being the "coming international ladies' golf champion."

In Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, France produced the outstanding woman tennis player of all time. That we shall ever see her equal is doubted, for as more expert puts it, Suzanne combines the flame of genius with a steadiness that is inhuman.

According to Glenna, it now appears that the land of the golden lily is to give us the greatest feminine golfer as well. True she did not have to compete against the invincible Joyce Kiewit in winning the British title and the robust Cecil Leitch was stymied by lightning. But Simone's achievement was none the less a notable one.

In 1926 she won the British girls' title, beating some remarkable juniors. Simone has a style that is remorselessly consistent. She centers her drives beautifully. She covers the pin on an unreasonable percentage of her approaches. But by the very nature of the game, golf is more variable than tennis.

It isn't possible for the student to attain the automatic precision of a Lenglen. Tennis is restricted to a space no larger than a putting green, while all outdoors serves as golf's battleground. Under the circumstances, Simone never will match Suzanne's sustained march of triumphs and she isn't fair to compare the kid with Pyle's star trouper. As for beauty—well, we'll risk a date with the flashing-eyed Simone any day.

She was less successful in the second game of the double bill, being batted from the box as the Browns won 7 to 3. Eddy Weaver, traded this year to the Red Sox, turned on his former team mates at Washington and slugged out a homer, double and single, but the Carrigan clan lost out by 8 to 7. Walter Johnson went down as the winning pitcher although he was relieved in the fifth.

Pitted against the runner-up clubs in red hot duels, the leaders of both major leagues today were hauling out all their hitting know-how to hold the fort. Lou Gehrig's 22nd home run helped the Yankees take the second half of a double header from their challengers, the Athletics, 7 to 3, after losing the first game 4 to 2. Babe Ruth was out of the lineup with an injured knee and Gehrig's slam carried him to within striking distance of the Big Bam's homer total of 24.

Pirates Trounce Cards
In the other headline battle of the day, the Pirates loosed a terrific batting barrage that riddled the Cardinals 9 to 3. While the Yankees still had a long lead on the American league field, the Pirates needed the victory as they had but a slim half game advantage over the Cardinals.

Chicago's two clubs, which have fallen back almost simultaneously from second to third rank, met mingled fortunes. After beating the Pirates Saturday, the Cubs fell victims to the last place Reds, when Luque pitching marked the 3 to 7 decision for the White Sox over the Tigers.

Robins Beat Giants
John McGraw's weak hurling staff, although strengthened recently by trade, was no match for Dazzy Vance and the Giants fell before the Robins 7 to 1. Uncle Bobbie's men threatening to pass them in the standings.

George Uhle of the Indians, like Vance, was invincible and bested Stewart of the Browns in a 2 to 1 pitcher's battle at Cleveland. Buck

DATES SET FOR ANNUAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT HERE

OVER 50 EXPECTED TO PARTICIPATE DURING WEST TEXAS MEET

The largest number of amateur tennis players that have ever gathered in West Texas are expected here July 8 and 9 for the annual tournament of the West Texas Tennis association.

Frazier McCrummen, member of the champion doubles team that won the last contest is to be director of the tournament and has announced that entries are in order. Entries will be taken up to 9 o'clock Friday morning, July 8, but the director is anxious that the players send the entries in immediately in order that necessary details may be looked after.

Over 50 Expected
Over fifty players are expected, McCrummen stated today. The West Texas Tennis association was organized in 1923 when Amarillo won the initial contest. Annual tournaments have been held in Lubbock each year since with the exception of last summer.

Waco won the 1924 meet and Ray Mowery and Frazier McCrummen of Lubbock were victorious in 1925. Silver loving cups for the doubles team and the singles champions are awarded each year.

This year's contest has prospects of being the best in the history of the association. McCrummen stated recently. A good number of Tech students have announced their intention of coming here to Lubbock for the contest and the same number of older tennis shays from towns over West Texas are expected.

Tournament to Be Fast
A number of entries are already in which insure a fast tournament. Wilson McRichard of Shilton, winner of the singles honors at the Texas Technological college, the Great Plains meet at Canyon and an invitation meet at Amarillo this spring is entered in the singles.

He and Ross McDonald, Lubbock lad who copped the doubles honors at the Tech and at Canyon will enter that contest. Mowery and McCrummen, holders of the doubles cup are entered and will defend their title. Smith of Waco holds the singles cup and is expected back this year.

Tilden Advances To Semi-Finals By Brugnon Win

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27. William T. Tilden, American star, entered the singles semi-finals of the Wimbledon lawn tennis championships today by defeating the French star, Jacques Brugnon, in a long drawn out match which was twice interrupted by rain. The score was 6-3, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

The third set, taken by Brugnon, was the first Tilden has lost during the present tournament and he was hard pressed to win the fourth and the match. Brugnon, playing inspired tennis during the last two sets, made winning points on some of Tilden's fits, services which were so severe that it hardly seemed possible the Frenchman could get his racket on the ball.

First To Advance
By the victory, Tilden was the first player to reach the semi-finals of the men's singles.

Betty Nuthall and Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfrey entered the quarter-finals of the women's doubles by defeating Mrs. Randolph Lyett and Miss Evelyn Collier in straight sets at 6-3, 6-2.

Helen Wills and Elizabeth Ryan, paired in the women's doubles, reached the third round by defeating the Misses B. C. Covell and G. R. Steery, 6-2, 6-3.

Suggestion

This has been characterized as the age of tolerance. Tolerance implies an open mind, the absence of blind bigotry, possession of the power to reason, and a willingness to hear both sides to every question before forming one's own conclusion. It follows, therefore, that modern society, being more tolerant of the opinions and manners of others, should be more open to suggestion.

Everybody has heard of the power of suggestion and everybody has seen it demonstrated through the medium of political reform, advertising and slang catch phrases. A specious slogan can win acclaim for a creed or cause previously un- readily rejected and obviously fallacious. Then the catch phrase there is no more effective camouflage for the spurious.

Suggestion plays a most important part in business. Advertising, show windows and show cases owe their origin and usefulness to the power of suggestion. Contrary to a popular impression, the merchant astute and displays his wares to create a desire for possession among those who see them and it is through suggestion that that desire is created.

But for suggestion the manufacturers of patent medicines which "cure all ills and ailments" would be bankrupt, and by the same token, the motorist would be satisfied with his own car, the weaker sex would not have such a weak- chinging style, and children would stop crying for everything they don't have. Everything appears to be a part of a universal conspiracy to influence humanity by suggestion.

Conservation

President Cleveland, from his Black Hills abode can look about him in almost any direction and obtain the best kind of evidence proving that scientific forest management, which should be carried on to a much greater extent, pays big dividends. President Cleveland was responsible for the creation of the 1,000,000 and more acres of national forest in the Black Hills. The creation almost caused Cleveland's impeachment, but every one of the yellow pines in the area today is a monument to his farsightedness. Soon after the government took over the area, the first scientifically managed lumber sale was conducted under United States foresters. Today, all this land that was then cut over, is almost ready for another sale of timber. It is on this principle of repeated crops that the forests are administered. They will thus always be perpetual reservoirs of timber products.

Immediate farm relief, which the president will tackle with prairie farmers, is a pressing problem, beyond all doubt, but just as important for the future is wise conservation. If the president does no more all summer than see how well forest conservation in the Black Hills has paid in the last thirty years, his voyage of discovery into the Dakotas will not have been in vain.

Unsung Heroes

The terrible death in Butler, Pa., of two drivers of a nitro-glycerine wagon whose cargo exploded, blowing the men to atoms, is but another chapter in the lives of one of the bravest set of men in the world—a set of men whose daily deeds of heroism have gone all too long un- sung—the "shooters" of oil and gas wells. Recruits to the well-shooters ranks have been men practically without a sense of fear and without nerves. Nitro-glycerine, the explosive "soup," they have handled in their daily trade, is one of the most powerful known and one of the most treacherous to handle. Hundreds of them have lost their lives in spots so remote that their names have not been ranked at its true value. They have risked life daily that every day folk might have cheaper gasoline, cheaper natural gas for their kitchen stoves. For poets sighing for inspiration,

THE PLAINSMAN

Bathrooms are the cause of more accidents than any other piece of furniture in the home, a life insurance company insists. The Plainsman knows a lot of people who apparently will never be in much danger of getting hurt around the house.

There is a plan under way now to call a special election and vote bonds for hard surface roads in Lubbock county. Lubbock voters will be asked if they do not believe that an additional 33 cents per hundred dollars valuation would be a good investment in hard surface highways.

Over 22 sacks of mail, containing more than 50,000 letters have been sent to Captain—big yard, Colonel—Charles A. Lindbergh. Some of those mutts who wrote the letters are the same ones who never write to their home-folks, leaving mother, sister and dad to wonder where they are and worry over their safety. The Plainsman sympathizes with Colonel Lindbergh. That young man has proven himself to be more of a hero since his epochal flight than during it. He has allowed millions of people to stare at him just like they would at a two-headed calf. He has been a good sport, and has gone darn near everywhere anybody wanted him to go. He has kissed gray-haired mothers and has shaken hands with countless thrill-seekers. Now he is home and has to at least glance over all that mail that these yaps have written him when they might have put their time to better use. What price glory?

Boulder, Colorado, in order to assure a future water supply, has purchased the Arapaho glacier. Maybe the city dads are figuring on serving ice water to the customers. The United States weather bureau was established in 1870. Officials are still hoping to guess right some day.

WASHINGTON LETTER

PREACHER, GERTIE'S GARTER, LINDY AND COOLIDGES AT MOVIE CHURCH

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Where President Coolidge goes to church probably is his own business, but the character of the spiritual guidance he receives surely should be of interest to his people.

The Coolidges of a Sunday go to hear the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce. With the Lindberghs had to sit through Sunday services with the Coolidges, it was noticeable that the Rev. Dr. Pierce can heavily to platitudes rather than any strong, forceful ideas of his own.

The theme of the Pierce sermon was that a person's character is always revealed by his speech. The sermon was sprinkled with such startling epigrams as "What is so wonderful as a little child?" and "No word is quite so sweet in all our vocabulary as da-da or ma-ma."

It is perhaps to the clerk's credit, however, that he indulged in no sticky sentimentality over the distinguished guests.

The services of the First Congressional church, of which Pierce is the shepherd, have been held in the Metropolitan movie theater since the church building was condemned as unsafe.

It is most distressing that the theater regularly to cover up their advertising posters on the facade of the theater or in the lobby. When the Lindberghs went to church with the Coolidges, for instance, the theater had just opened for a week of Marie Prevost in "Getting Gertie's Garter." Whether anyone entered on this particular Sabbath on the assumption that "Getting Gertie's Garter" was the sermon subject is not definitely known. The title was all over the place.

At any rate, the lobby was full of lithographs ballyhooing Gertie's Garter. A colored photo of Marie Prevost, in a sheer shimmy, with Marie's legs and much else exposed, was displayed prominently to the distinguished worshippers as they entered and left, although two huge lithographs showing even more, on the outside, had been tactfully covered with American flags.

Many people came to see Lindbergh, who apparently had never been in church before, but they knew how to act in a theater—and they acted that way. It's an informal place, this temporary church of Dr. Pierce's, with smoking rooms and spacious, comfortable lounge well patronized on this occasion.

As the services proceeded, the balcony crowd—or much of it—moved down to the rail to see Lindbergh below, much as a prizefighter crowd sometimes stampedes for the front seats. Cops were busy trying to make these "worshippers" keep moving. Some went out and some returned to their turn-up chairs.

As the Rev. Dr. Pierce drew to the end of his sermon, scores left for the door as does a movie audience at the first clench in a fade-out. Many of them joined the crowd outside, perhaps knowing that cops were on the mezzanine to hold them from the lobby until Lindberghs and Coolidges had passed out.

We wonder if that crime conference in the east the other day got down to brass knucks.

GOOD ADVICE

The nation's main air line should run from Texas by way of St. Louis to New York. One line should go south into Central Texas and the other should go west to El Paso and Los Angeles.

Who says so? The shock-headed Charles A. Lindbergh. He said so the other evening at St. Louis, when he addressed the members of the Texas good-will tour headed by Governor Moody.

Texas already has one of the principal air mail lines, and orders have been issued to extend it from Dallas to San Antonio and Laredo. It is only a matter of time until another branch will be sent out from Dallas to the westward to El Paso and the Pacific coast.

That means Abilene and the other towns along the Texas & Pacific will be on an air mail route.

A California arial corporation is planning a passenger line across Texas to the Pacific coast. That, too, will include stops along the T. & P.

Fortunately, Abilene has an airport, and it is being improved right along in this fast-moving age an airport is becoming a civic necessity. Colonel Lindbergh declared airports are now the nation's greatest need.

Regular passenger air lines are only a little way off in the future, the shepherd, have been accepted as the regular thing. Pretty soon you can write your California friends and have their letter delivered in 18 hours or so. A little later on you can board a passenger liner and step off at San Diego in a third of the time now required by rail.

Colonel Lindbergh advises Texas to get on its toes and take advantage of the opportunities being offered to it. It is excellent advice.—Abilene Reporter.

BARBS

ARE THERE ANY BULL MOOSE IN THEM THAR' HILLS?

President Coolidge rides 64 miles to and from his office in Rapid City where he transacts business until mid-afternoon. After his vacation he can go back to Washington and take a well earned rest. The state game warden is going to show the president where he can find elk. Some of their wives wish they could be as certain about the Elk as the game warden. The president can watch the mountain goats near the game lodge playing tag of evenings. No novelty for the president. He has seen almost every kind of a game you could think of in Congress. Maybe Cal will bag a bobcat or two in the mountains, but if he can bring a G. O. P. maverick in for breakfast that will be real game.

Well that total eclipse came about 3 o'clock in the morning, so college students didn't have to go out of their way to see it.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING and down BROADWAY

NEW YORK, June 27.—Manhattan snapshots—Nassau street—Namer back in "ye good old times" after William, Prince of Nassau who became king of England. And now dedicated to the feet of millions plodding through the steel and concrete canyons of the business world. Ticker tape blazers loose streamers from the windows, and busy men dash in and out of doorways.

Yet once there lived in a Nassau street a certain Mary Rogers who, somewhere around 1842, sold cigars in a store on Broadway. She was very beautiful, the story goes, and men would stop to flirt and try to make engagements. Not ordinary men, either. They had names like Washington Irving, Edgar Allan Poe, James Gordon Bennett and James Fenimore Cooper. One day her mutilated body was found in the river off Hoboken. It had been floating for several days. The mystery was never solved.

But it appeared to the morbid imagination of Poe and there came out of Nassau street that classic horror tale, "The Mystery of Marie Roget."

On the site of Mary Rogers' shop—No. 126—a huge building rises and stenographers stream in and out, hurrying to lunch. What would happen if you asked any of them if they had ever heard of Marie Rogers?

The first white resident of the street, Manhattan history says, was a pie woman. Where she peddled her wares today an aged pretzel woman broods over her little stock in trade.

And just around the corner lived Captain Kidd. But they don't have to dig for buried treasure in this belt. In a single day the tickers tell of sums exchanged that make Kidd treasure seem like small change.

Everywhere you turn there is still some suggestion of Lindbergh. Smart Fifth avenue shops show men's scarfs with little airplanes flying across the corners. Women's stockings show clocks that end in tiny silk monoplane. Sand-wich men have dropped their boards and taken to selling buttons and imitation gold emblems. In Broadway, hucksters sell toy monoplane that fly across strings or run along when wound up. In the belts where the new subways are being built, the kids have invented a game. The purpose is to get from one side of the ditch to the other, this symbolizing an Atlantic hop, without being stopped by other youngsters. It's a variation on tag, made to order for the occasion. Riding along the elevated photographs of Lindy peer from thousands of window panes. Tin Pan Alley rushes airplane songs from the piano as fast as they can be ground out. Even George M. Cohan has done one. Planes bang them from the little Broadway shops and vaudeville teams struggle for some line that will get a hand. It's as good as waving the flag. Cheap entertainers recite maudlin verses to winning music and, should Lindy ever hear them, I fear his stomach would turn.

And so it goes. GILBERT SWAN.

Brick Structures Built At Lockney

LOCKNEY, June 27.—Two business buildings of brick construction, involving a total expenditure of approximately $18,000 have been started in Lockney.

One of these buildings is a two-story structure, 30x100 feet, to be built on the main street of Lockney, the upper story to be used for offices, while the lower floor will house a mercantile establishment.

The other, a filling station, said to be one of the most modern in this section, also being built on the main street of Lockney.

Jungle Breath

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARRBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBENTARA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave the next day. He and Nunnally return that evening to reward D'Albentara and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Albentara's half breed foreman.

Returning, they hear a man's cries and dash into a clearing in the woods to rescue an Indian from torture at the hands of two ruffians. Vilak is stabbed in the wrist in the encounter.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII
Vilak felt the Indian's pulse. "No. Don't worry. He'll be all right in a minute." He brought some water from a nearby pool and dashed it on his forehead. "Amazing what these jungle people can stand."

In a moment the aborigine's eyes opened again. He looked about him wonderingly, then pulled himself to a sitting posture and indicated that he wished to rise. Vilak shook his head. But the Indian, notwithstanding the tremendous pain the effort must have cost him, rose to his feet an instant, then dropped to a violent series of prostrations, alternately beating his cheek with the flat of his hands, then rubbing his forehead against the tip of Vilak's boot.

He continued these movements for five minutes, grunting frenziedly all the while. In spite of Vilak's attempts to check him. Then he stopped to check him. Then he looked up at his savior with a smile obviously intended to be radiant, but which his animal-like filed teeth made only bizarre. This done, still smiling, he sat upon the ground, curiously examining with his finger the thick mud around his feet.

In a few moments Vilak though impeded by his wound, had fashioned a rude crutch from a small tree limb, and demonstrating to the Indian how it should be used, put it under his arm.

"We'll take him back to his camp," Vilak said as they moved off in the direction of the road. "Don't say anything about this to Elise. I've tried to frighten her enough when I thought it would accomplish anything, but now that she's agreed to go, there's no use of increasing her worries. Frankly, once I get her out of here I don't intend to let her back. Wherever things are going to end, God only knows. Will you please not look constantly at my hand and shake your little pellet of a head so guiltily? It isn't your fault I tell you, that my hand was hurt."

The old man took off his thick glasses and wiped them jerkily. "They might have killed you—never—I'll never do it again—never—Er—Why did they torture him so?" "Just carrying the wounded Indian and actually lifting him when they reached bad places in the path, they came to the road again. They had not walked far when they perceived three men coming toward them. As they neared they saw that the newcomers were three other Indians from the railroad camp. By the way they combed all the dark places along the roadside, it was easy to see that they were searching for their comrade. They received the lost one with excited grunts; the wounded man himself pointed to Vilak and began a rapid, guttural declamation. Vilak and the old man walked toward Elise's friends.

Elise, as usual came forward to meet them. She caught sight of the bandage about Vilak's hand; her thin lips quivered. "You're hurt," she said quietly. "Badly?" "He laughed. "A little cut in my hand. A test tube broke when I was working with it. Nanny has accidents like that every day in his laboratory."

"I don't believe it." Her voice was low but determined. "You were hurt on account of me?" "I'm sorry if my word means nothing to you," he replied. "Nanny can testify whether I am telling the truth. He was there when it happened. Don't give me credit for being heroic, when I was merely being careless. Look and see for yourself, then." He unwound the bandage and bared the wound. The tiny cut did indeed look as if it might have been made by broken glass.

"All right, I'll believe you," she murmured, bright once more. "But it's a nasty wound, just the same. Sure there aren't any pieces inside it?" "Positive." "At least let me put a proper looking bandage on it. That one you have is terribly amateurish. I have to have something to keep me in practice or I'll completely forget that I trained for war work."

"Good, if it makes you feel superior." She departed and returned with some boric acid and a bandage. These she deftly applied to his hand. "I must keep you in good repair, my esteemed and criminological cousin," she said haughtily. "You're quite valuable to me, even necessary at the moment."

"Valuable or not," he retorted, "the thing in which I'm interested is whether you're getting ready to leave Thursday with Tinky."

"I'll have everything ready by noon tomorrow. After that there'll be nothing to do but to wait two days for the boat," she motioned toward the tiny boat which could be glimpsed in a dark room inside.

"I've moved Tinky where I can watch him all the time. At night I keep him in my room, and I'm going to take Hannah out of the kitchen and let her take care of him in the day-time for the few moments that I can't be with him. Hannah was my nurse when I was a child and I know she'd let herself get killed before she'd let anything happen to him."

They talked a few moments longer, then Elise retired for the night. The old man, weary and exhausted, followed her example. Vilak, left alone, read for half an hour, strode outside the house and listened intently to the myriad sounds coming from the jungle; the cry of a deer stalked to its death by the sleek noiseless stepping jaguar; the call of a sleepy toucan roused from its rest by the visit of some nightly invader; the baying of one of the town dogs gone to the primitive hunt for its kill.

He was making his customary round of the house and was trying all the doors and windows to see that they were locked—though the precaution seemed futile for the slight material of which they were constructed made them little of a barrier—when he heard a footstep. He looked in the direction of the sound and in a moment saw Schwartz, the fat German foreman, approaching. His eyes glanced furtively at Vilak over their puffy tearbags. "Good evening, Mr. Schwartz," Vilak said politely.

"Good evening, Herr Davis." The foreman's words came in short, staccato jerks. "Everything all right on the farmstead?" "All right, I think. You try der doors and windows, Herr Davis."

"Yes, Mr. Schwartz." The veins in the German's face glowed as Vilak struck a match to light his cigaret. "Dot is vot I come to do also. I am afraid somebody, somedimes maybe comes to bodder her in der night. Some dimes when she closes der house doors, she is not careful, Fraulein Marberry. And ven we have no guns here dot is not nice. Nicht wahr Herr Davis?" He grinned.

"Oh, you're right. Absolutely." "But now dot you are here I vill not worry longer. Goot night, Herr Davis."

"Good night, Mr. Schwartz." The German walked off in the direction from which he had come. Vilak watched his fat body roll past a tree and disappear in the darkness, then took a few more puffs of his cigaret and returned to his house. Undressing, he put his pistol on a table where it would be within instantaneous reach, then crawled into bed. The night passed without incident.

Early in the morning, before the other had awakened, he hurried down the deserted road to his house, put on the clothes he wore as a barber being careful to conceal the wound on his hand by wearing a coat longer than usual and walked to the town.

After an hour spent in collecting a few articles in the barber shop he sought out the lax, gaudily dressed proprietor of the hotel, and striking his heart forcibly with his hand, explained to that listless individual that he had been seized with a bad fever during the night and was leaving that morning for the mountains of Aylos where the elevation was higher and the climate more conducive to recovery. He might be back in a week, he declared he might be back in a month; perhaps he might never come back. Perhaps he might even die in the mountains.

The proprietor drowsily expressed a polite wish that "use might not be the case and with pleasure accepted the month's rent for the barber shop which Vilak put in his hand. Having thus interred barber Riggs for as long a time as he wished, Vilak returned to the tiny establishment of which he had been the head and sole employe for several months, and was making final preparations for his departure, when he noticed knots of natives gathering in the street, talking loudly and gesticulating in the excited fashion that he knew meant something had happened in the town.

Hurrying out, he strode up to one of the villagers a barefoot old man with a long beard and a huge poncote shaken hat of straw which rested insecurely on his hairless head. "What's the matter, Julios?" he demanded.

Mandy's screams caused Jack to race back like a streak through the empty rooms, Thor following him. He found his mother trying to soothe the frightened negro, with Benton, the chauffeur, standing near. "I merely came up behind her and asked her what was happening here," said Benton sourly. "Fo' de Lawd, he grabs mah arm!" gulped Mandy. "I reckons it sho' am de ghost."

The dog growled at the chauffeur once more, showing his teeth. Jack ordered the animal away, fearing he would attack the man. "Ugly brute!" muttered Benton.

When Benton heard what Jack had discovered, he looked skeptical. "You must be mistaken," he said. "I'm not," replied the boy. "but how did he get in?"

Jack went back into the vacant rooms, recovered the lamp, which he had instinctively put down, and continued his investigations. Benton had declined to enter the place. The footprints finally led Jack to a ground-floor door at the rear of the house. The door was unfastened. As Jack stepped forth, a man abruptly shot out of the stable, astride the boy's calico broncho. (To Be Continued)

CLUB LEADERS AT HOME FROM CAPITAL TRIP

LUBBOCK COUNTY BOY ONE OF THE FOUR REPRESENTATIVES

I. J. Thornton, of Posey community, 4-H Club winner of a free trip to the leadership conference held in Washington, D. C., returned from the national meeting of 192 club boys and girls yesterday afternoon. Accompanying young Thornton to the capital city as representatives of the lone star state, were Homer Sheffield of Harris county, Ruth Elmer of Jefferson county, and Fontilla Johnson of Van Zandt county. These constitute the 4-H club members who were awarded the free trip to the national conference by virtue of their work in the state-wide leadership contest conducted several weeks ago.

Hear Prominent Men
W. M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, C. W. Warburton, United States director of extension, and Dr. C. E. Smith, chief in the office of co-operative extension work, were present and are now playing to the boys and girls.

Crowded into the 8-day visit in Washington, were lectures, boat excursions, educational tours, luncheons as guests of prominent organizations, and myriad forms of evening entertainments.

Young Thornton will address the 4-H club boys and girls of Lubbock county, relating his experiences of the trip as a stimulant to greater interest in the work of the county organization.

"Kempy" Playing To Big Crowds In U. S. Metropolis

The fact that the play chosen for the Little Theatre production Tuesday night at the Lindsey Theatre has been returned to the stage in New York recently and is now playing to capacity houses nightly gives one some idea of the class of amusement that is in store for theatergoers of Lubbock, when "Kempy" is presented. Little Theatre enthusiasts said today.

Few three act productions have as much comedy crowded throughout the many varied situations. Coupled with this there are touching moments when you are tempted to almost weep with "Ruth." These things have had much to do with the popularity the greatest show-going city in the world has accorded "Kempy."

In the cast as the play will be given here are some of the most happily chosen characters. The cast is so well balanced that it is almost impossible to choose any one of them for special mention. H. H. Halseell as "Pa" as well as Miss Verena Wilson as "Kate" are almost professional in the way they carry their parts while Gaylord Hankins in the title role of "Kempy" is sure to be a decided hit.

was burned to death and the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nichols is not expected to live as a result of a gasoline explosion here Sunday.

Corn Jumps Seven Cents After Report

CHICAGO, June 27 (AP).—Corn prices jumped almost seven cents a bushel today, and closed at virtually the top figures reached. Predictions were current of possible disaster to the corn crop and the government reported that production of pigs was 3 1/2 per cent greater than last year.

AIR LINE

"There are too many inexperienced fliers who purchase obsolete machines for commercial purposes. Every transportation line is using precautionary measures to equip the service with reliable machines and efficient pilots.

"Along this line I want to remind you that the government, or individual corporations, is not employing rookie pilots. Those who endanger air travel in the manner mentioned are operating individually.

"I feel much safer in an airplane than in an automobile."

Asked as to the possible expense of organizing the first line, Mr. Cole says, "Ten men with an investment of $250 each can bring the first plane to Lubbock. With $2,500 a ship can be purchased which can make 125 miles an hour, 800 miles without stop, with three-passenger capacity and room for 200 pounds of baggage. Such a plane can be operated at an expense of 10 cents a mile.

While a student of Pittsburgh University Mr. Cole enlisted in British air service in 1916. He was released in 1917.

ARMS PARLEY

will return a negative answer to such a suggestion, if it is officially advanced.

Perpetual Peace Pact
Mr. Gibson has not yet been approached by Viscount Saito concerning the reported project for a perpetual peace pact between Japan and the United States, but it is understood that any suggestions from the Japanese along this line will receive earnest consideration from the American delegation.

It is recognized that if Viscount Saito were able to return to Tokyo with a peace pact in his pocket, he would perhaps be less insistent upon demanding a higher ratio for Japan in auxiliary war craft than was fixed for the larger warships at Washington.

The impression prevails that the Japanese are disposed to go more than half way in eradicating the feeling created in Japan by violation of the gentlemen's agreement and the subsequent refusal of the American congress to permit any quota immigration of Japanese into the United States.

Immigration Problem
In some quarters, the conviction prevails that a treaty outlawing war between the two nations might later point a way to solution of the immigration problem, which is known to have wounded the Japanese national dignity.

A British correspondent interested in obtaining the American opinion on the cruiser question, asked Gordon today whether the United States needed many cruisers as a protection against run runners. The chairman of the delegation answered: "I think run runners dealt with by a different kind craft."

Washington Treaty
Alluding to the British attempt to reopen the Washington treaty, Mr. Gibson declared it would be a great mistake for the powers to have the Washington edifice tumbled about their ears in an endeavor to make what would certainly be a lopsided rearrangement, since both France and Italy were not participating actively in the present conference.

Arrangements were made today to have the French "informant" at the Italian "observer" present at all committee meetings, thus eliminating any possible impression of their part that they are being shut out of the tripartite negotiations.

Lubbock Merchants are Honorable; Lubbock Buyers are Intelligent

We deem it a privilege to uphold the honor and integrity of our associate merchants in this City. We do not believe you will find a fairer or more honorable bunch of men anywhere.

We feel it an equal privilege to praise the character and intelligence of the people—the buyers—who patronize Lubbock stores.

In a recent advertisement in this newspaper, through subtle inference, the honor and integrity of Lubbock merchants was questioned; the intelligence of thousands of people was insulted.

To say, even it be only intimation, that Lubbock merchants holding sales actually raise prices for them contrary to their own published statements that prices were lowered, without naming specifically just which merchants do that, is to assault the character and honor and question the integrity of every Lubbock merchant holding sales. We feel it an honor to defend, publicly, the good name of our competitors and other Lubbock merchants and resent any intimation that questions their honor.

Furthermore, to assure the patrons of Lubbock stores that such instances do not occur, GROLLMAN'S OFFERS $100 IN CASH FOR PROOF OF ANY SUCH ACT ON THE PART OF ANY MERCHANT OF LUBBOCK WHEN SUCH ACT WAS WILFUL AND NOT AN INSTANCE OF AN HONEST MISTAKE!

As one of Lubbock's merchants we deem it a duty to publicly defend our associates of this City whenever we feel their character and honor has been questioned. We shall ever be ready to do this.

And to imply that illegitimate, dishonest sales are held, and as nearly all Lubbock sales are successful, is to question the intelligence of buyers. We do not believe you will find a higher class of people anywhere, people with more buying wisdom, than those of this section. We resent any intimation that questions the intelligence of our thousands of patrons and that of our other good competitors.

We offer no criticism on the policy any store pursues as long as that policy does not question our honor and that of our competitors, as well as the intelligence of Lubbock's patrons. Our policy may not be perfect—we know it is honorable. Our policy may not be the best—we know it is sincere. We feel that other merchants of Lubbock are just as honorable and sincere as we.

Grollman's policy was made known to thousands when the store was first established in 1916—long before many other good stores now operating here were known. We feel that when any store in Lubbock announces a sale it will be genuine. A successful sale is a real value-giving event the importance of which is reflected by the public's response.

We want Lubbock merchants' good-will, want to see all prosper in proportion to their services. Now is a good time for harmony and co-operation.

Now for a week of extra-values. Grollman's store offers them during our Clearance Sale. Other good stores in Lubbock offers them. Choose the one that offers you the most. That's all that we ask.

Thanks,
C. H. GROLLMAN

Texas Booters Are Entertained In Boston Today

BOSTON, June 27 (AP).—Governor Fuller today laid aside consideration of the famous Sacco-Vanzetti murder case with which he recently has constantly been occupied, to greet Governor Dan Moody and 125 men composing the good will delegation from Texas which is touring the east.

The visit to the state house and the call upon the governor were the high spots of the day. The forenoon was taken up largely with a sight seeing trip about Boston after a welcome at the city hall tendered by Acting Mayor John A. Bierferman in the absence of Mayor Nichols. Visits to the chamber of commerce and to historic spots and other places of interest followed.

Tonight the delegation is to entertain at dinner by Stone and Webster, widely known owners of public utilities over the country.
