Confidence is the Life of Business

And without it very little can be accomplished.

For the past few months we have all more or less lost confidence in our own ability, our neighbor and our country.

This condition can best be overcome by everybody going to work. Work harder than you ever did before, and keep it up, and everything will come out all right.

This bank has confidence in our business men and farmers, and to back our confidence up we are doing all we can to help. We know this country can do more in a shorter time than any country in the United States.

Let's all have this confidence, which is so necessary to the solution of the biggest problem to be solved that the world has ever experienced.

The High Cost of Living is the most dangerous thing in the world today. There is only one way to make a permanent reduction in the cost of living and that is to increase production. We cannot very well make our own clothes, but we can grow vegetables in our own back yard.

This bank will furnish FREE a collection of 8 varieties of the very best Garden Seed to the first 50 people who will call at this bank and register as a member of our Home Garden Club. We expect to offer handsome prizes for the best canned vegetables grown and packed from these Home Gardens. The supply is limited to 50, so call at once and get your seed.

COMPOSITIONS BY PUPILS OF THE SEVENTH GRADE

"Negroes in America."

The first appearance of the negro in the English Colonies of America was in 1619 when a cargo of negro slaves was landed at Jamestown.

The scarcity of labor, especially in the Southern States, created an increasing demand for negro slaves and by 1714 the number had increased to 58,850. The greater part of these were brought direct from Africa, although some were brought from the West Indies.

In 1790 the census found 757,208 negroes in the United States. In the next hundred years this population was increased tenfold.

Finally the importing of negroes was prohibited by the constitution, but a few were smuggled in until the civil war.

Since that time however, there has been a few imported from the West Indies, but not enough to increase the population much.

HOWARD YOUNG.

"William Penn."

William Penn was born in London in 1644. He was a celebrated English quaker and the founder of Pennsylvania. His father was Sir William Penn.

He was educated chiefly at Christ's Church, Oxford, where he became a quaker. Later he became a minister, wrote books, and published papers.

He was thrown out of his home twice by his father, but his mother asked and he was allowed to come back. His father tried to make him give up his work but he could not.

In 1708 he was thrown in Fleets Prison. Afterwards his friends procured his release, but not until his health had fatally impaired. Later he was stricken with paralysis and lingered in this condition until his death in 1718.

The works of Penn were published in five volumes in 1782. In 1825 they were published in three volumes and later in two volumes.

JOHN ABEL.

AT THE WISELMA.

"The River's End."

Marshall Neilan's first independent effort as a producer, "The River's End," will be seen at the Wilselma Theatre Monday and Tuesday nights, March 21 and 22. The story was written by James Oliver Curwood, distributed by First National Exhibitors' Circuit and includes such well-known stars as Lewis Stone, Marjorie Daw and Jane Novak in the cast.

The action of the play revolves around an outlaw, his impersonation of the officer who captured him and died, and his struggle to find peace and happiness at "The River's End." An extraordinary love interest is woven into the play by the mutual attraction of the masquerader and the sister of the man whose name he has assumed.

"The Poor Simp."

"The Poor Simp," Owen Moore's latest production, will be seen at the Wilselma Theatre Saturday, March 26. This is a corking good farce comedy, teeming with farcical and oft-times dramatic situations, and scintillating with comedy, suspense and all that goes to make a good screen story. There is considerable heart interest, and while the spectator may concur with the title and mentally repeat it after watching the leading character's actions, Owen Moore, as Melville Carruthers, arouses considerable sympathy by the predicament he finds himself in.

The many characterizations are most human and true to life, and the situations and climaxes are well worked up and developed.

Wilselma Theatre PROGRAM.

Monday, March 21, "The River's End," by J. Oliver Curwood.

Tuesday, March 22, Same as Monday.

Wednesday, March 24, "Husband Hunter," by Eileen Percy.

Thursday, March 25, Same as Wednesday's program.

Friday, March 25, "Ruth of the Rockies" serial, Comedy and Pathe News.

Saturday, March 26, "The Poor Simp," by Owen Moore.

We wish to announce to the public that on Mondays we have a big feature and we are going to show the same picture Monday and Tuesday in order that all may see it. Don't fail to see this program.

On Wednesday and Thursday we will also show the same picture. Remember that on Monday and Wednesday we will have big feature pictures and will show them two nights in order that all may see them.

SCHOOL NOTICE.

An election has been called by the school board, for the taxpayers of the Slaton Independent School District to vote on a local school tax of one dollar instead of the present tax of fifty cents on the hundred dollars valuation of property, to maintain the public schools.

If the election carries in favor of one dollar, the valuations of property will not have to be raised, as have been heretofore. It is for the people to decide the kind of school they want.

Respectfully,
SCHOOL BOARD.

Lubbock County Livestock Association Meeting.

Lubbock, March 12.—A called meeting of the Lubbock County Purebred Livestock Association was held here today with a good attendance. After disposing of the business for which the meeting was called the questions of a Duroc Futurity Club, a county poultry club, a Jersey Cattle Club, and co-operative shipping were discussed fully. Every one present was highly in favor of these proposed activities. The Futurity Show at the Panhandle and South Plains Fair next fall is now an assured thing, as the necessary number of herds were nominated to bring the show here. It was unanimously voted to organize a Jersey Cattle Club at the next regular meeting of the Association March 26, and a Poultry Club will be organized on the same date. Recognizing the many benefits to the farmer or small breeder to be derived from co-operative livestock shipping it was agreed to institute a campaign for this feature of the work in the near future.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION SATURDAY, APRIL 2

The School Board has ordered an election to be held Saturday, April 2, to elect three trustees. The terms of T. D. Johnston, J. V. Hollingsworth and T. J. Abel expire. Mr. Abel will not permit his name to be used as a candidate for re-election.

The following have been selected to make the race for these places: T. D. Johnston, J. V. Hollingsworth, J. W. Henry, W. W. Stone, J. I. Bradley, E. E. Wilson, C. F. Anderson, W. J. Anderson.

THE PREACHER.

The preacher deserves more chicken and gravy than he gets, more honor and respect than is accorded to him, more encouragement and love than comes to him and more distinction than usually crowns him.

Consider what he gives up when he enters the ministry. First, practically all hope of ever accumulating enough to guarantee him and his family comfort in old age. His profits accumulate in heaven, not on the earth. He dedicates himself to a life of self-denial, of rigid economy and of privation. He gives up all thought of a permanent home, and any little spot on earth to call his own, and there can dwell among his chosen friends. He puts his personal liberty in charge of the church, and at its command "moves on" every few years as the authorities direct.

For the sake of his faith and his church, he submits patiently to more annoyances, more petty distractions, than any business man would think of standing. He becomes gentle and yielding, not because he has every man's desire to exploit his individuality, but in order fittingly to adorn his sacred calling. His thoughts must always be of the need and the weaknesses and troubles of others.

He cannot live for himself, or family or his friends. His flock always be his first care—the poor, the sick, the weak and the ignorant. The prospect he always has would be called wretched, impossible by the majority of men. But he bravely on through the year, a target for the malice of the wicked, a venience for the unworthy, but ways ready to serve humanity without hope of any adequate reward on earth.

Give the preacher a square deal. He does more for others than any the rest of us would do wrapped as we are in our own selfish pleasures.

SCHOOL REPORT FOR SEVENTH MONTH

It is a pleasure to announce a kind co-operative attitude among our patrons, and it is a pleasure to serve you in your public schools with that spirit. Fearlessly we are doing our best to teach a good school, and if we rightly judge our patrons they are appreciative.

We are exceedingly glad to be able to announce that the school will continue for the full nine months. Right here we wish to approve of the noble sacrifice made by friends and patrons in their liberal contributions to run the school for the full term. I will state also that every teacher in your schools contributed to the fund. The women of the town responded nobly and did their part in soliciting and contributing.

WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITIES.

There has never been a time when the advantages of education and training for business were more more clearly demonstrated than now. Some firms are reducing their payroll, either in salary or in number of employees, to keep pace with the return to normal prices and the general retrenchment in the business world following the period of war inflation. Naturally, the first class of employees to be cut are the untrained workers. The high salaried executives, the trained men and women who hold the responsible positions, are the last to have their salaries reduced or to be left off the pay roll.

Ambitious young people want to be in the latter class, the employees who are most valuable to a firm, who draw the best salaries and are the last to be released in stringent times. You want to be a TRAINED WORKER. Will you devote years of hard labor at low pay to gaining your training through experience, or will you invest a few months time in acquiring the most thorough, practical and complete training that can be had in Bookkeeping, Stenography, Telegraphy, Cotton Classing, Business Administration and Finance, in the largest business training institution in America, the Tyler Commercial College? Such a business training not only insures you a good salary from the day you complete our course, but opens up to you the unlimited opportunities for promotion that can only be found in the business world. Every opening for a Bookkeeper, Stenographer, Telegraph Operator, Cotton Classifier, or Private Secretary is an opening for a position higher up if you make the most of it, and we will place you in a business office under big business men at a good salary as soon as you complete a course with us. Opportunity knocks but once at each man's door; can you afford to pass this one up?

The thoroughness of our courses is indisputably proven by our enrollment last year of 4485; no inferior school ever built up and held a large patronage. Business men recognize our students as capable, which is proven by the fact that they call on us every day for graduates to take positions in their offices; we have placed a hundred or more with each of several large concerns.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

A SCOUT LEADER'S PLEA

By Wilfred A. Peterson.
There's a heap o' tasks before us And it somehow sort o' seems That the men who make great nations Are the men who follow dreams.
We've been dreaming of world brotherhood,
Of universal peace,
And chaos would be certain
If the dreaming we should cease.

There's a dream somewhere within me
Of a nation strong and great;
Of a manhood good and noble,
With the pluck instead of "fate."
It's a dream of love in action, Men who'll lead the nations far,
With the Golden Rule before them As their leading, guiding star.

We cannot stop at dreaming,
We have got to form a plan.
For the boy of today, tomorrow Will be the Nation's man.
In our boyhood lies tomorrow.
In our boyhood lies our dreams.
Boys will be MEN if we'll help 'em It is up to us, it seems!

Oh, life is full of battles;
But the greatest one to me
Is to help our future manhood Better citizens to be.
Here's the secret we are searching,
Here's the mighty LIGHT we need,
HELP THE BOY UPGRADE TO MANHOOD.

BE A MAN, STEP UP AND LEAD!

SCOUTS AS FOREST GUIDES.

The plan for making scouts' agents in the conservation movement in the state of Pennsylvania, has met with more than the anticipated success.
At present more than 6,000 Pennsylvania boy scouts are enrolled as fore-est guides, the proud possessors of certificates of service signed by Gifford Pinchot, the state commissioner of forestry.

According to Solan L. Parkes, scout commissioner of Reading, chief forest guide and originator of the forest guide plan, the movement has two objects: one, the preservation and conservation of the forests and the bird and other wild life in them, and second, the development of good scouting, with a distinct new feature added in the responsibility for wild life and a greater interest in trees, birds and wild life generally which is strictly in line with the scout plan of outdoor life and interests. It is believed that the plan will be of great value where-ever it is tried. The scouts of Berks county, Pa., have saved, it is claimed, during the year, over one hundred thousand dollars' worth of forest growth from destruction by fire, and this is only one of the 67 counties which are benefited by this splendid movement.

DOUBLE EAGLE VETERAN SCOUT.

In Topeka, Kan., they are proud of William Menninger. William joined a troop of scouts as a tenderfoot in March, 1913. By July of the same year he was a first class scout, with his eye on merit badge achievement.
He qualified for 53 of the badges, thus making himself more than a "double eagle." He is one of the six veteran scouts of Topeka, an assistant scoutmaster, an expert examiner in bird study, a member of the special court of honor, has been an editor of the Topeka Boy Scouts Trail and served as assistant scout executive in the absence of the executive. At present he is studying medicine at Cornell.

SCOUTS, PROPERTY GUARDIANS

Boy scouts of Louisville, Ky., are enrolled in the local membership of "The Guardians of Property" and take a special pledge to safeguard property, especially at home, school or church.
The same boys are called upon to assist in handling crowds at parades, the verdict being that they are just as efficient as the police in this difficult job—some change from the old days when the small boy and the policeman used to be sworn enemies. "Cheese it the cop!" now reads "Glory be! A boy scout!"

HERE'S A BUSY SCOUT TROOP.

In its annual report Troop Sixteen of San Diego, Cal., says through its scoutmaster: "My troop assisted in extinguishing five fires; James Lanke-ley, first class, rescued a woman who

WHAT TO SERVE FOR DINNER.

A soup which is somewhat out of the ordinary and provides a nourishing dish for the bill of fare is:

Cauliflower and Tomato Soup.— Rub a head of cooked cauliflower
through a col-ander, mix with two cupfuls of sifted tomato,
add two cupfuls

of water in which the bones of a roast turkey have been cooked. Season with three teaspoonfuls of salt and one tablespoonful of pepper. Cook one tablespoonful of minced onion in three tablespoonfuls of fat until brown. Stir in four tablespoonfuls of flour and add the vegetable pulp and stock. Stir until boiling. Serve with rings of sweet green pepper as a garnish.

Mock Venison.—Hang a leg of mutton in a cool place as long as possible, while it keeps sweet. Then take off the skin and put the mutton into a dripping pan or kettle and pour over the following pickle: Take three heads of garlic or three sliced onions, one-half ounce of peppercorns, one-fourth ounce of allspice berries crushed, six bay leaves, a dozen sprigs of thyme and a dozen sprigs of parsley, all brought to a boil in three cupfuls of vinegar. This pickle should be rubbed into the meat, rubbing and turning for at least thirty minutes.
Allow the meat to remain in the pan, covering the top with thinly sliced onions until the next day, then repeat the rubbing and lay in the pan the other side up, covering with onions again. Continue this for four days, then wipe the meat dry and rub for half an hour in a pint of hot molasses.
Let the meat hang in a cool place until the next day, then wipe dry and roast the same as a leg of mutton.
Serve with melted currant jelly. This sounds like a good deal of work but it is worth it.

Date Bran Muffins.—Sift one cupful of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of sugar. Add one beaten egg to two cupfuls of bran and one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Beat thoroughly, add one-half cupful of dates cut in small bits, combine with the flour mixture and bake in muffin pans twenty-five minutes.

Rhubarb Soup.—Take six stalks of rhubarb, cut in small pieces. Add the rhubarb to one quart of veal stock, one small onion, two thin slices of bread and salt and pepper to taste.
Let the mixture boil, removing the scum as it rises. Simmer gently until the rhubarb is tender. Strain and serve with toasted bread.

Even in ordinary life the unselfish people are the happiest—those who work to make others happy and who forget themselves. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.—Mrs. Besant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The leather cushions of chairs and couches may be treated with ordinary tan or black shoe dressing, the cleanser and polishing wax. Rub it in with great care and scratches and stains will be removed, the leather preserved and made new looking.

The leftover pancakes broken in bits and added to scrambled eggs make a palatable dish and a saving on eggs.

Before roasting the leg of lamb place it in a kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of rice, salt, pepper and one onion, celery and parsley; add two quarts of water and simmer one hour.
Remove and roast as usual. The broth will make a delicious soup.

Use any bits of leftover paint to paint the inside and outside of the garbage can. It will keep it from rusting.

Hair brushes are good to clean the brushes in the carpet sweeper.
When rendering lard grind it through the sausage grinder and there will be much less waste. They will do this at small cost at the market if you request it.

Casters which drop out from furniture can be fixed by pouring in a little hot paraffin and inserting the caster while the paraffin is hot.

House ferns, if steamed by setting them in a pan of rather hot water once a week, will throw out new shoots very soon.

Old hair brushes may be renewed when soft by dipping the bristles into a strong solution of alum water.

DODSON STOPS SALE OF CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Taking Place of Dangerous, Sickening Chemical, Say Druggists

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.
"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults.
Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine, no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.

REALLY DESERVING OF PITY WAS WARDING OFF BAD LUCK

Those Who Allow Themselves to Get Into the Habit of Self-Excuse Are Unfortunate.

The tendency to self-excuse is typical of the conceited. They simply will not see themselves for what they are—persons who have a great deal to learn. And because they will not admit even to themselves that they need self-improvement they remain perpetually in need of it.

Are not persons thus conditioned more deserving of pity than of contempt? Even their monumental self-satisfaction should not make people laugh at them. Poor souls! Life to them is a game of blind man's buff, in which they are forever "it," forever groping wildly, but never grasping.

No truer words have been penned than Ruskin's, "Conceit may puff a man up, but not prop him up." And how sadly hard it is to convince the conceited that they are conceited, and thus save them from the painful penalties of conceit.—H. Addington Bruce in Chicago Daily News.

"Traffic gets held up in queer ways," said a cop at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue. "It was only just the other day that we had a blockade that tied things up for half an hour."

"I noticed a young woman pounding something against the curb. Looked funny to me, and I could not figure what it was. People passing by started to run, looked again and crowded around her. I headed for the middle of the bunch and saw she had busted open her package and was breaking a lot of mirrors on the sidewalk, one by one."

"What's all this about?" I asked.
"Oh, mister officer," she says, "I broke a mirror a while ago and if I don't break seven more right quick I'll have seven years bad luck. By rights they should be broken all at once, but I could only do it one at a

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN.
(Copyrighted by W. T. Foster.)

Washington, D. C. Mar. 29.—In a ceaseless round and in a half circle around the magnetic north pole, with more or less regularity, averaging 5.8 days, the master, or male mate, the positive of nature's pair, called the high, driving its other half, the negative, the receptive, or female, called the low—the two constituting the storm, comes into telegraphic view in the extreme northwest of North America. These two in one are nature's twins, born, live and die together. Should the impulse that produces them cease it would be as disastrous to Earth as a heart failure is to human life.

In early part of week centering on April 8 one of these weather makers will appear in Alaska, its warm wave crossing meridian 90 near April 8, its center passing eastward a little south of the Great Lakes and reaching the Atlantic near April 10. Storm wave will follow and cool wave bringing up the rear guard, these weather features being one or two days apart.

This will be an important storm, closing out the old crop-weather period of about 180 days and inaugurating the new of near the same length.
That change will determine the 1921 crops and I expect a fair average will result; an average that will be higher than that of 1922.

I regret that, in these general forecasts, it is impossible to give all the desired details. For that reason I have asked everyone to study the causes that I am publishing and thereby become able to assist in their own local forecasts. The valleys, ridges, mountains, rivers, have much influence on local weather and the place where the moisture is to be evaporated is the all important cause of the local good and bad crop-weather.

One serious error lies in the reader who overlooks the fact that these forecasts are not for inches of rain nor degrees of temperature, but are above or below normal, or general and monthly averages of each locality. The reader who does not know the temperature for his locality is too ignorant to understand anything about the weather. In order to understand it is not necessary for you to have any other help than your own sensation to tell you whether it is warmer or colder than the general average. In like manner you certainly should know the general average of rain.

Severe storms are very important, as they cause the rain, snow, frosts, cold, warm, etc. The storm mentioned in this bulletin will cause more rain and greater extreme of temperature than usual in sections where these have occurred during the past five months. But this is the last severe storm that will be controlled by the past weather period. Next severe storm, which will cross meridian 90 during the week centering on April 22, will be controlled by the new weather period which will bring better crop-weather to large sections of this continent.

NOTICE OF ELECTION TO DE-TERMINE STOCK LAW
ADOPTION.

Whereas, there was filed with the Clerk of the County Court of Lubbock County, Texas, on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1921, a petition addressed to the Commissioners' Court of said county asking and petitioning said court to order an election to be held in the whole of said county and throughout said county, at all the voting places therein, for the purpose of enabling the freeholders of such county, who are qualified voters therein,
to determine whether horses, mules, jacks, jennets and cattle shall be permitted to run at large in said Lubbock County, and Whereas, on the 15th day of March, A. D. 1921, the aforesaid petition was duly presented to the said court for its consideration and action thereon as therein petitioned, and the said court accepted the said petition and at once took the same under advisement, and after due consideration and careful investigation of said petition and the signers thereto the court is of the opinion and so finds that the said petition is in proper legal form, and that considerably more than one hundred of the persons whose names are signed to the petition are freeholders in said Lubbock

County and qualified voters therein under the constitution and laws of the State of Texas, and that not less than twelve freeholders from each justice precinct of said Lubbock County have signed the said petition for such election, and the court further finds the names of one hundred and eighty-eight citizens of said Lubbock County appear to have been signed to the said petition. And Whereas, by unanimous vote the court passed the following order:

Wherefore in pursuance of the said petition and as prayed for therein, it is ordered by the Commissioners' Court of Lubbock County, Texas, that there be held and is hereby ordered to be held in the whole of said Lubbock County, and throughout said county in all the voting places in said county regularly named according to law for general election purposes in the said county, an election for the purpose of enabling the freeholders of such county, who are qualified voters therein,
to determine whether horses, mules,
jacks, jennets and cattle, shall be permitted to run at large in said Lubbock County; that the said election shall be held on the thirtieth (30th) day of April, A. D. 1921, during the hours of said day fixed by law for holding general elections; that only freeholders in said county shall be permitted to vote at the said election; that the said election shall be held by the presiding officers of elections and election judges appointed by the commissioners' court in the various election precincts of said county for holding of general elections and shall appoint their own clerks to assist them in holding said election; that all votes cast in the said election shall be by ballot, and the voters desiring to prevent the animals designated above in this order from running at large shall place upon their ballots the words,
"For the Stock Law," and those in favor of allowing such animals to run at large shall place upon their ballots the words, "Against the Stock Law." That the officers holding said election shall make due return on all votes cast at their respective voting places for and against said proposition to the County Judge of said county on or before the tenth day after the holding of said election, and such county judge shall tabulate and count said returns and ascertain the results of said election in the manner and form provided by law.

Now, therefore, I, P. F. Brown,
County Judge of Lubbock County, Texas, in my official capacity as required by law, do hereby adopt the foregoing paragraphs as specifications of this order, and do hereby order an election to be held throughout Lubbock County, Texas, on the thirtieth (30th) day of April, A. D. 1921, at the usual voting places in the several election precincts in said county, for the purpose of enabling the freeholders of such county to determine whether horses, mules, jacks, jennets and cattle, shall be permitted to run at large in said county, and order that the polls for such election shall be opened at the usual voting places as above designated, and that said election shall be held and conducted and the returns thereof made in accordance with the laws regulating general elections, in so far as the same are applicable. The above copied order of the Commissioners' Court is here made a part of this order. Only freeholders in said county who are qualified voters in said county shall be permitted to vote at the said election.
This notice and order shall be published in such county for at least thirty days before the day of said election. All persons will hereby take notice of said election. Given under my official signature this 18th day of March, A. D. 1921.

County Judge of Lubbock County, Texas.

NOTED DAIRY EXPERT WILL SPEAK IN SLATON MONDAY NIGHT, APRIL 4, AT SCHOOL

J. W. Ridgway, of the Department of Dairy Development, of the Nissley Creamery Company of Fort Worth, and for ten years professor of Dairy Husbandry of the A. and M. College of Texas, will speak in the Slaton High School Auditorium at 8 o'clock Monday night, April 4. He will have a message of articular interest to the farmers, but everyone who can is urged to hear him. He is a very popular man and a fluent speaker.

The B. & B. Produce Company of Slaton, Harry C. Burrus, manager, represent the Nissley Creamery here, and if you are one of their patrons it will be of much benefit to hear this speaker as he will give you ideas that will enable you to get more for your cream production.

Remember the date, Monday night, April 4, at school building.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION SATURDAY, APRIL 2

An election will be held Saturday at the office of M. A. Pember to elect three members for the school board of Slaton independent district.

Judge Paul F. Murray has been selected to preside at the election and he has chosen the following assistants: Mrs. Cal Doherty, W. E. Olive, J. C. Stewart and J. S. McDonald.

Those who have been selected to make the race in this election are as follows: Mrs. J. S. Lanham, Mrs. R. L. Smith, J. V. Hollingsworth, J. S. Edwards, W. W. Stone, J. I. Bradley, E. E. Wilson, E. S. Brooks, C. F. Anderson, Charley White, A. M. Watson.

City Election Tuesday.

An election will be held Tuesday, April 5, to elect a mayor, city marshal and five aldermen for the ensuing year. Numerous caucuses and mass meetings have been held in an effort to select a ticket for mayor and aldermen, but without much result. It appears that many names will be on the ticket, and space forbids printing those that have already been selected for slaughter. There is a persistent rumor about town that a lady's name will be placed on the ticket for mayor, and should her friends decide to enter her in the running, it is very likely that she will be elected.

T. L. Reed Coming to the Front.

T. L. Reed, one of our best farmer friends, has been riding in a dilapidated old buggy, composed mostly of cultivator wheels and baling wire, and some of his friends have been wondering how long before he would get a new buggy. He has eased their pains now though and is riding in a brand new buggy of the 1921 model, with top, dashboard, side curtains and full equipment. It is rumored that he traded the family cow for it, but we do not vouch for this statement. At any rate he is now enjoying the pleasure of riding in a good buggy, and it does not take up any of the time usually devoted to his farm.

SPECIAL MASONIC SERVICES AT METHODIST CHURCH

The special Masonic services to have been held at the Methodist church Sunday evening, April 3, have been postponed on account of illness of a member on the program, but will be held at the this church Sunday evening, April 10th.

THE SLATON SLATONITE

A miscellaneous shower was given at the Ragsdale home Tuesday evening, honoring Mrs. Richard W. Ragsdale, a recent bride. The gifts consisted of many useful and pretty gifts. Those attending were: Mesdames Allan J. Payne, J. G. Levey, Chas. Marriott, George Marriott, Vaughan, C. Doherty, Darwin, W. H. McKirahan, A. L. Brannon; Misses Irene Levey, Ada Belle Darwin, Alline McDohald, Dorothy Levey.

Entre Nous Club.

The members of the Entre Nous Club will meet Saturday, April 2, at 3 p. m. with Miss Virginia Montague. The program follows:

Leader, Elizabeth Burton.
Roll call answered with quotation from Longfellow.
Longfellow's Youth, Maggie George.
Later Life, Iris Donald.
Poem, selected, Frances Adams.
The Grave of Mondamin, Josephine McHugh.
General discussion.

Lord's prayer uttered in concert.
Roll call answered with Scripture verse.
The Religious Interests of Our Community, J. L. Tunnell.
Moral Interests of Our Community, B. M. Holland.
Social Interests of Our Community, Mrs. S. H. Adams.
Song 633.
League benediction.

Mary Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Morgan, was hostess at an Easter egg hunt at the home of her parents Saturday afternoon. Quite a number of her friends were present and a good time is reported.

An Easter egg hunt was given Saturday afternoon by Chrystina Lynn at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Lynn, north of town. A large number were present, quite a few from Slaton, and a good time is reported.

An Easter egg hunt was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Brasfield Saturday honoring the Boy Scouts. A large number were present and a delightful time is reported.

Mesdames T. A. Worley and Amos entertained the children of the Methodist Sunday School between the ages of 7 and 10 with an Easter egg hunt on the church grounds Saturday afternoon, and it was a very enjoyable affair.

Miss Nora Davidson and Mrs. Forney Henry were hostesses to the girls and boys of their Sunday School classes at an Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Williams. Cream and cake were served and a good time was reported.

Weldon Montgomery entertained a number of the young folks at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe McDonald, Saturday afternoon. Both indoor and outdoor games were enjoyed. Appropriate Easter favors were given each guest. Refreshments of punch and cake were served.

Miss Cleffie Watson entertained her Sunday School class with an Easter egg hunt at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Watson, Sunday afternoon, honoring Alta Lois McCauley also with a handkerchief shower.

Miss Grayce Knox, teacher of the fifth grade in the public schools, honored her class with an entertainment at the home of her sister, Mrs. L. L. Stone, Saturday afternoon. An enjoyable affair is reported.

LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE ORGANIZED AT LUBBOCK

Lubbock, Mar. 30.—A Lubbock Law and Order League was formed at a special mass meeting called at the court house Monday night by the mayor, at the request of the citizens of the town. More than a hundred citizens were present and formed themselves into an organization to be known as the Lubbock Law and Order League, with W. K. Dickenson as chairman, for the purpose of running professional gamblers, shysters, street loafers and other undesirables out of the city.

Ninety per cent of the citizenship were surprised at the revelations made by the officers and men acquainted with the conditions. The program includes, in addition to the extermination of both undesirable men and women, as far as their presence is concerned at least, an enforcement of the traffic laws and the clearing of the young boys from the streets of the city at nights.

FOR SALE.

PICKED UP AROUND TOWN.

Pride of mothership
I've always heard
Is a great thing
But I don't believe That it is any greater Than pride of fatherhood Although I'm not arguing And anyway
When men get tired
Of discussing politics
And the results of prohibition
You can usually hear
Some mention made
About the wonderful things That their babies
Have said and done
And the other afternoon
At Teague's Confectionery
There were several of us Standing around as usual And R. J. Murray
Repeated a bright remark
That his young son
Had sprung on him
When he went home to dinner
And Joe Teague
Told of a stunt
That his young son
Had pulled off
A couple of days ago.
And Henry McGee
Who's a young father
Was standing there
And taking it all in Although he wasn't saying much
And one or two others Took up the conversation And repeated bright sayings That their youngsters
Had made from time to time And somebody turned to Henry And wanted to know What his baby had done so far And Henry said "Nothing" And everybody laughed
And it sort of made him mad
As though he thought That the others
Considered his baby
To be inferior
When it came to intelligence And he wouldn't stand for that
And he up and said:
"She isn't old enough
"To do any talking
"But let me tell you
"That I've never seen a baby
"That can breathe better "Than that young 'un of mine"
And sticking out his chest
He went on out
With the satisfaction
Of having held up
His end of the argument.

AT THE WILSELMA.

"The Highest Law."

Ralph Ince, who is starred in the new Selznick picture, "The Highest Law," which comes to the Wilselma Theatre Saturday, April 2, matinee and night, is said to have spent eight years studying the character of Abraham Lincoln. He began this study, so it is said, while he was a young actor doing "bits" in motion pictures. Because of his height, the director selected him to play a "Lincoln bit" and since that time he has read whole libraries of books on the subject.

"The Highest Law" tells the story of a young boy, Bobby Goodwin, on the verge of disgrace because he had run away to see his dying mother. The attempts of his fiancée to keep the situation from Mrs. Goodwin who believes her son to be a boy to be proud of, and the pathetic struggle of Bobby to keep the disgrace a secret from his mother, are said by the critics to constitute some of the most gripping scenes in the history of pictures.

This picture is being put on under auspices of the Slaton public schools, and they will receive a portion of the proceeds.

"Point of View."

Many persons can look at a beautiful landscape and see nothing but scrawny trees, a waste of blue sky and a patch of water that they know is wet and possibly, if one looked closely, dirty; while another sees in the same landscape all the wonders of the universe, the tender touches of the master of all artists and a glory of color and beauty that holds them spellbound. It is all a matter of viewpoint.

In the "Point of View," which will be shown at the Wilselma Theatre Saturday, April 9, starring Elaine Hammerstein, Marjory Thornecroft looks at life through glasses of false pride. The softer and finer things of life were overlooked in the effort to keep up a social front, until a rough Westerner tears the glasses from her eyes and shows her a new world alive with the flowers of love and happiness.

FRUIT IN LUBBOCK COUNTY DAMAGED BY RECENT FREEZE

The cold snap of Sunday and Monday nights killed more than half of the fruit in this section, according to the very best reports. There was no frost visible, but a high wind Sunday night was cold enough to make ice and kill the fruit.

The trees this year carried the heaviest promise of fruit in many years. The soil was full of moisture through the entire winter and spring, and due to the mild sunny weather, the trees were covered with a full bloom.

The grape crop is never hurt by frosts or cold snaps in this section, and is one of the principal fruits grown on the average farm. Grapes produce heavily here and are of a fine flavor. Their use is being rapidly extended from year to year, and bids fair to become a paying industry.

PHYLLIS BING.

Synopsis.—In the village of Bingville thirteen-year-old Robert Emmet Moran, crippled son of a poor widow, is known as the Shepherd of the Birds. His world is his mother and friends, his little room, the flower garden of Judge Crooker, and every flying thing he sees from his window. The painting of pictures is his enjoyment, and little Pauline Baker, small daughter of a neighbor, the object of his boyish affection. To him, J. Patterson Bing, the first citizen of Bingville, is the ideal of a really great man. The village becomes money mad, reflecting the great world in its state of unrest. The Bing family is a leader in the change. To them the village has become "provincial." The butcher and baker and candlestick-maker all raise their prices. Even Hiram Blenkinsop, the town drunkard, works hard for a month. The Old Spirit of Bingville is summarily fired. The first citizen builds an addition to his mansion.

CHAPTER TWO—Continued.

Israel Sneed, the plumber, was working with his men on a job at Millerton, but he took on the plumbing of the Bing house extension, at prices all precedent, to be done as fast as he could get to it on his rest day. The butcher and grocer had improved the opportunity to raise their prices, for Bing never questioned a price. He set the pace. Prices stuck to be put the peg. So, unwittingly, the millionaire had created conditions of life that were extremely difficult. Since prices had gone up the village of Bingville had been running at the heel. It had been at best in the main, a rather shiftless, inert community. The weather worn the paint off many houses and their owners had seen the need of repainting. Not until the rain came on the floor was the average intellect of Bingville roused to action on the roof. It must be said, however, that every one was busy, every day, except Hiram Blenkinsop, who often indulged in ante mortem snoring in the graveyard or went out to the river with his dog Christmas, his bottle and his fishing rod. The people were selling goods, or teaming, working in the two hotels or the machine shop or the electric light plant or the mill, or keeping the hay on the lawns, or building, or teaching in the schools. The gardens were very dependent on the spasmodic charity of schoolboys and old men. It will be seen that the work of the community had little effect on the supply of things necessary to life. Indeed, a general habit of extravagance had been growing in the village. People were not so careful of food, fuel or clothing as they had been.

It was a wet summer in Bingville. One day after the rains began, Professor Renfrew called at the house of the snuffy Snodgrass—the nouveau riche and opulent carpenter. He sat on the morning paper with a new gold ring on the third finger of his hand.

"My roof is leaking badly and it must be fixed at once," the professor announced.

"I'm sorry, I can't do a thing for you now," said Snodgrass. "I've got much to do, I don't know which to turn."

"But you're not working this rainy day are you?" the professor asked. "No, and I don't propose to work in the rain for anybody; if I did I'd fix my own roof. To tell you the truth, I have to work at all! I calculate I've got all the money I need. So, it rains, I intend to rest and get painted with my family."

Snodgrass was firm but in no way disagreeable about it. One of the half-dozen men who, in trouble, called on him for help, were inclined to resent his station of independence and his love to leisure, but really Mr. Snodgrass was well within his rights.

There was a more serious matter when Judge Crooker's plumbing leaked and his kitchen and cellar. Israel Sneed was in Millerton every day and was over time more or less. He had to put a hand on the judge's shoulder.

He was sorry but he couldn't do a horse of himself and even if he did the time was past when he could do it. Judge Crooker brought a plumber from Hazelmead, sixty dollars a motorcar, and had to pay fifty dollars for time, labor and materials. This mechanic declared there was too much pressure on him, a judgment of whose accuracy we have abundant proof in the history of the next week or so. Never had there been such a bursting of pipes and flooding of cellars. That little lake up in the hills which supplied the water of Bingville seemed to have got the common notion of moving into the village. A dozen cellars were turned into swimming pools. Modern improvements were going out of commission. A committee went to Hazelmead and after a week's pleading got a pair of young and inexperienced plumbers to come to Bingville.

"They must 'n' plugged 'em with gold," said Deacon Hosley, when the bill arrived.

New leaks were forthcoming, but Hiram Blenkinsop conceived the notion of stopping them with poultices of white lead and bandages of canvas bound with fine wire. They dripped and many of the pipes of Bingville looked as if they were suffering from sprained ankles and sore throats, but Hiram had prevented another deluge.

The price of coal had driven the people of Bingville back to the woods for fuel. The old wood stoves had been cleaned and set up in the sitting rooms and kitchens. The saving had been considerable. Now, so many men were putting in their time on the house and grounds of J. Patterson Bing and the new factory at Millerton that the local wood dealer found it impossible to get the help he needed. Not twenty-five per cent of the orders on his books could be filled.

Mr. Bing's house was finished in October. Then Snodgrass announced that he was going to take it easy, as became a man of his opulence. He had bought a farm and would only work three days a week at his trade. Sneed had also bought a farm and acquired a feeling of opulence. He was going to work when he felt like it. Before he tackled any leaking pipes he proposed to make a few leaks in the deer up in the Adirondacks. So the roofs and the plumbing had to wait.

Meanwhile, Bingville was in sore trouble. The ancient roof of its respectability had begun to leak. The beams and rafters in the house of its spirit were rotting away. Many of the inhabitants of the latter regarded the great J. Patterson Bing with a kind of awe—like that of the Shepherd of the Birds. He was the leading citizen. He had done things. When J. Patterson Bing decided that rest or fresh air was better for him than bad music and dull prayers and sermons, and that God was really not much concerned as to whether a man sat in a pew or a rocking chair or a motorcar on Sunday, he was, probably, quite right. Really, it was a matter much more important to Mr. Bing and his neighbors than to God. Indeed, it is not at all likely that the ruler of the universe was worrying much about them. But when J. Patterson Bing decided in favor of fun and fresh air, R. Purdy—druggist—made a like decision, and R. Purdy was a man of commanding influence in his own home. His daughters, Mabel and Gladys, and his son, Richard, Jr., would not have been surprised to see him elected President of the United States, some day, believing that the honor was only for the truly great. Soon Mrs. Purdy stood alone—a hopeless minority of one—in the household. By much pleading and nagging, she kept the children in the fold of the church for a time but, by and by, grew weary of the effort. She was converted by nervous exhaustion to the picnic Sunday. Her conscience worried her. She really felt sorry for God and made sundry remarks calculated to appease and comfort Him.

Now, all this would seem to have been in itself a matter of slight importance. But Orville Gates, the superintendent of the mill, and John Seaver, attorney at law, and Robert Brown, the grocer, and Pendleton Ames, who kept the book and stationery store, and William Ferguson, the clothier, and Darwin Sill, the butcher, and Snodgrass, the carpenter, and others had joined the picnic caravan led by the millionaire. These good people would not have admitted it, but the truth is J. Patterson Bing held them all in the hollow of his hand. Nobody outside his own family had any affection for him. Outwardly, he was as hard as nails. But he owned the bank and controlled credits and was an extravagant buyer. He had given freely for the improvement of the village and the neighboring city of Hazelmead. His family was the court circle of Bingville. Consciously or unconsciously, the best people imitated the Bings.

Judge Crooker was, one day, discussing with a friend the social conditions of Bingville. In regard to picnic

Sundays he made this remark: "George Meredith once wrote to his son that he would need the help of religion to get safely beyond the stormy passions of youth. It is very true!"

The historian was reminded of this saying by the undertow of the life currents in Bingville.

The dances in the Normal school and in the homes of the well-to-do were imitations of the great party at J. Patterson Bing's. The costumes of certain of the young ladies were, to quote a clause from the posters of the Messrs. Barnum and Bailey, still clinging to the billboard: "the most daring and amazing bareback performances in the history of the circus ring." Phyllis Bing, the unrivaled metropolitan performer, set the pace. It was distinctly too rapid for her followers. If one may say it kindly, she was as cold and heartless and beautiful in her act as a piece of bronze or Italian marble. She was not ashamed of herself. She did it so easily and gracefully and unconsciously and obligingly, so to speak, as if her license had never been questioned. It was not so with Vivian Mead and Frances Smith and Pauline Baker. They limped and struggled in their efforts to keep up. To begin with, the art of their modiste had been fussy, imitative and timid. It lacked the master touch. Their spirits were also improperly prepared for such publicity. They blushed and looked apologies and were visibly uncomfortable when they entered the dance hall.

On this point, Judge Crooker delivered a famous opinion. It was: "I feel sorry for those girls, but their mothers ought to be spanked!" There is evidence that this sentence of his was carried out in due time and in a most effectual manner. But the works of art which these mothers had put on exhibition at the Normal school sprang into overwhelming popularity with the young men and their cards were quickly filled. In half an hour, they had ceased to blush. Their eyes no longer spoke apologies. They were new women. Their initiation was complete. They had become, in the language of Judge Crooker, "perfect Phyllistines!"

The dancing tried to be as naughty as that remarkable Phyllistines pastime at the mansion of the Bings and succeeded well, if not handsomely. The modern dances and dress were now definitely established in Bingville.

Just before the holidays, the extension of the ample home of the millionaire was decorated, furnished and ready to be shown. Mrs. Bing and Phyllis, who had been having a fling in New York, came home for the holidays. John arrived the next day from the great Padelford school to be with the family through the winter recess. Mrs. Bing gave a tea to the ladies of Bingville. She wanted them to see the improvements and become aware of her good will. She had thought of an evening party, but there were many men in the village whom she didn't care to have in her house. So it became a tea.

The women talked of leaking roofs and water pipes and useless bathrooms and outrageous costs. Phyllis sat in the palm room with the village glads. It happened that they talked mainly about their fathers. Some had complained of paternal strictness.

"Men are terrible! They make so much trouble," said Frances Smith. "It seems as if they hated to see anybody have a good time."

"Mother and I do as we please and say nothing," said Phyllis. "We never tell father anything—men don't understand."

Some of the girls smiled and looked into one another's eyes.

There had been a curious undercurrent in the party. It did not break the surface of the stream until Mrs. Bing asked Mrs. Pendleton Ames, "Where is Pauline Baker?"

A silence fell upon the group around her.

Mrs. Ames leaned toward Mrs. Bing and whispered, "Haven't you heard the news?"

"No. I had to scold Susan Crowder and Martha Featherstraw as soon as I got here for neglecting their work and they've hardly spoken to me since. What is it?"

"Pauline Baker has run away with a strange young man," Mrs. Ames whispered.

Mrs. Bing threw up both hands, opened her mouth and looked toward the ceiling.

"You don't mean it!" she gasped.

"Don't tell father!"

CATFISH CLIMB SMOOTH WALL

Certain Species Equipped With a Peculiar Suction Apparatus That Makes Feat Really Easy.

An interesting account of the climbing catfish of Colombia (Arges marmoratus) was published a few years ago by R. D. O. Johnson. These fish can climb, by means of suction apparatus, not only up the steeply-inclined bed of mountain torrent, but even up a smooth, vertical surface. Mr. Johnson saw some of them climb a vertical distance of 18 feet in half an hour, up a wall of rock which trickled a thin film of water.

In connection with a recent publication of this article, G. K. Noble states that other species of fish are known to climb in the same manner. Several of these occur in the Himalaya. Nemachilus rupicola, and perhaps other species of mountain cyprinids, adhere to the rocks by means of their smooth ventral skin and enlarged lips. The silurid genera Pseudohemilus and Glyptosternum cling by means of a well-developed abdominal sucker.

The mountain torrents of the Himalaya form the nursery for many species of frogs. Their tadpoles, like the fish, have become adapted to their location; some cling by means of their lips and ventral musculature, while others possess a well-developed ventral sucker.—Scientific American.

Armenia First Christian Nation.

The Armenians are an Aryan race and probably emigrated from Europe into Asia Minor centuries before the Christian era. Their language belongs to the Indo-European group of languages. Their king was converted to Christianity as early as 301 A. D., and Armenia then became the first Christian nation of the world. The Armenian civilization has been established for centuries. The position of the country on the highway between Asia and Europe has subjected it to invasion and subjugation at various periods by the Assyrians, Medes, Greeks, Romans, Persians and Turks. From the Fourteenth century to the late war, the greatest part of Armenia was under Turkish rule. Their enmity to the Turks rises from their struggles as a nation to be free, which have frequently been accompanied by massacres of Armenians. America's interest arises from sympathy with an oppressed race that has for so long upheld Christian civilization in the Near East.

Served Him Right.

"The average American may have a nasal accent," said Myron T. Herlick, at a dinner in Cleveland, "but at least he doesn't ape the accent of the English. Is there anything so terrible as an American trying to put on English accent—trying to pretend that he's an English swell?"

"An American of this type got lost in the Strand one day, and he sauntered up to a bobbie and said:

"I say, me mahn, don't you know, is this the way to Westminster Abbey, what?"

"The bobbie gave him a scornful look.

"Ja, mein herr," he said curtly; 'ja.'"

A Tale of Blood

The blood is to the body what steam is to an engine. If the steam runs down, the engine slows up, and if your blood runs down, you slow up. Your food doesn't digest as it should, you don't feel rested in the morning and you are out of sorts generally. Over fifty years ago Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was put on sale in the drug stores to help people whose blood was in poor shape, and ever since then has been doing wonderful things for men and women all over this country. ## "Stomach Trouble of 30 Years Standing Relieved in a Week"

New Ulm woman writes that Ware's Black Powder gave prompt relief after other remedies failed.

"My mother had stomach trouble for over 30 years and used all kinds of medicines, but never got relief. Then I heard of Ware's Black Powder and got some. Mother took the medicine according to directions and in less than a week she was well."

So writes Paula Wotipka of New Ulm, Texas, on May 11th, 1920. And her mother's case is but one more link in the ever-growing chain of evidence which proves the power of Ware's Black Powder in the treatment of stomach and bowel troubles. Sold by druggists everywhere for 40 years. Not a purgative. Contains no harmful drugs. 50c and $1.20 the package. Send for Dr. Ware's booklet—free.

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago Illinois.

IN SPRING BLOUSE

Little Variation in Style of the Winsome Garment.

Materials Swerving From Heavy Satins, Brocades and Taffetas to Georgettes, Nets and Laces.

Spring blouses show less variation from the past season's offerings than any other branch of the feminine garment world, observes a New York fashion writer.

The main difference is in coloring and material, which is only the natural change from winter to summer wear.
Colors are very gay. Practically all the manufacturers are turning out vast quantities of porcelain blue, tangerine, honeydew and rattan models.

Materials are swerving from the heavy satins, brocades and taffetas of midwinter to the georgettes, nets and laces of early spring. Georgette combined with silk or tulle is much in evidence. The leading color combination is gray georgette, with coral or rose silk. Gray is the winning color in hats, shoes, hose and wrap trimmings, and it is for this reason that blouses favor it in dress models.

One house is showing a model of tie-back gray georgette with back and front panel of coral metallic silk. These panels are covered with an all-over pattern of black floss stitching. The sleeves are three-quarter length and have the loose, flowing peasant cuff.

The peasant influence, by the way, is strongly developed in spring blouses.

The Roumanian cut and coloring is especially emphasized. Peasant smocks made of linen, pongee, crash or muslin in natural color and embroidered with oriental blues and reds are a big seller for Southern resort wear right now.

The cross stitch is used for embroid-ering cotton blouses and the pattern is generally applied about the peplum, collarless neck, and down the front, where a large square or round design is placed.

The peasant cut is effected by the loose sleeves, loose armholes and pep-lum belted at the waist. The old-time flowing Russian overblouse is almost entirely supplanted by this belted effect. Either a belt of self material is used or a kid belt in contrasting color.

ROUND SKIRT. NEW FEATURE

The round skirt and smart trimming are features of this suit. Green or-gandie is introduced and affords a smart note of contrast.

FOR TOTS' SPRING CLOTHES

Embroidery Given Prominent Place in Decoration for Children's and Grownups' Garments.

"Wool embroidery is given a prominent place in spring clothes both for children and their older contemporaries.
In spite of the very long life of the fashion, women and dressmakers are as partial to it as ever.

Pongee makes a good background always for wool embroidery. And if the work takes too long, colored wool braids may be used as a substitute.
There is a very easy and effective design of triangles which suits well the trimming of a child's dress or coat of pongee. The wool, if it is heavy, like Germantown, is split. And the triangles are set with the one point turned down. Each side of the triangle is composed of just one stitch.

If more than one color is liked the needle may be threaded with the split strands in the two shades. A very large needle, which will slip easily through the material without a jerk and which can be threaded easily, also

LACE OVER ORANGE CHIFFON

Cream lace over orange chiffon; that's really all that was needed to make this frock a thing of beauty.
It is girdled with a lemon and orange chiffon scarf.

These narrow kid belts of white, tan, scarlet or brown are lavishly used on all blouses and are a big feature of dress georgette blouses, as well as the peasant cotton sorts.

Basque blouses are not returning to any extent in the spring lines. But the high choker collar which was a part of the basque is retained in many lingerie and silk models. It is quite the vogue to have a very high collar and very short sleeves, a la the grand opera gowns of this season.

Lingerie blouses are not very conspicuous, mainly because of the impossibility of getting this handwork done.
However, a few very select shops are displaying their priceless hand-made lenses, voiles and organzies. They are embossed with more cutwork, scalloping and solid embroidery than was considered good taste a few years ago, but the fortunate women who can afford them affect to find them very beautiful. Narrow colored ribbon sashes or girdles are run through hand-wrought eyelets and tie at the side.

Loose cotton sport blouses in a variety of gay colors, such as jade, emerald, topaz, canary, porcelain blue, rose and scarlet, are shown to be worn with the sleeveless ribbon or wool jackets.
Tans to match the jackets are upon the market.

Coq Feather.

The coq feather has come into its own with all of the later hats of original design, for when there is a droop to be attained nothing is going to do it more charmingly than these tall feathers. They are natural, they are died in vivid colors; they are dull black and shiny black, but always they take their independent paths away from their parent hats. One of the newer models from Paris has little bunches of these feathers jutting out at either side and falling over the ears or the hair that is used to cover those useful members of the anatomy. Another one has a long collection of coq feathers attached to the very top of a soft crown of a hat with a backward rolling brim.

makes this kind of work just half again as easy. With busy mothers this ought to stand for something.

FASHION HINTS FROM PARIS

Quite a good many new capes are trimmed with flat silk braid.

Black satin, cleverly embroidered with pretty seed pearls, serves to make a delightful afternoon hat. Over this is draped an embroidered mesh veil, held in place by two hatpins of jet.

Capes made of two fabrics of different colors will be very popular this spring. A pretty model is thus fashioned of two materials, the upper part being of tan tulle and the lower part of dark blue duvetyn. The lining is tan crepe de chine.

Gray caracul will trim many spring wraps. A beautiful model, characteristic of the coming mode, is a coat of green duvetyn cut on long and slender lines and belted only in the back. The collar and the turn-back cuffs are fashioned of soft gray caracul and a narrow piping of the fur outlines all the edges.
