OPEC: Surplus bigger than during recession

By Collin Eaton
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — Crude and petroleum-product stocks in rich economies this year have surged past levels last seen during a financial crisis in early 2009 — the latest grim milestone for a global oversupply that doesn't appear to be fading yet, OPEC says.

For the oil market, the first nine months of the year have seemed like a slow-motion repeat of the huge build in inventories that occurred six years ago amid a worldwide recession, which drained oil demand and left crude stocks with an overhang of 180 million barrels above the five-year average in the group of generally wealthier nations called the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

This year, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said in its monthly oil-market report that the overhang of those same inventories has risen to 205 million barrels, plus another 80 million-barrel increase in non-OECD countries.

In other words, the world has packed on 1 million barrels a day in crude stocks. Daily supplies from OPEC and outside the Saudi-led cartel rose to 2.5 million barrels, far outpacing this year's 1.6 million barrels in global demand growth.

The two episodes — this year's crude build and the one in 2009 — were the only times in the last decade when crude shot past 150 million barrels above the five-year average.

"In both cases, crude oil prices dropped to multi-year lows," OPEC said.

But OPEC believes that lower oil prices have started to bring up global demand as China, India and other countries have piled crude into their strategic reserves.

That, a cold winter and the slowdown in oil production outside the cartel could "help alleviate the current overhang and support a recovery of crude oil prices in the coming months," OPEC said.

DA Clingman will not seek re-election

From staff reports

Midland County District Attorney Teresa J. Clingman announced Friday in a press release that she will not seek re-election for a third term.

Clingman was appointed by Gov. Rick Perry in August 2007 and has since been returned to the office for two four-year terms. She had previously been a prosecutor with the city of Midland, the Midland County Attorney's Office and the Midland County District Attorney's office, where she was first assistant to former district attorney, Al Schorre.

Clingman, in the press release, thanked the community for allowing her to serve as a prosecutor for almost 30 years.

"It has been my honor to serve the citizens of Midland and to seek justice for victims of crime," Clingman said in the press release. Reflecting on her service as Midland County district attorney, Clingman added, "I have always believed that I should not hold the office for more than two elected terms. With the help of a fine staff, we have accomplished the goals that I had set for the office when I came into it. We have reduced the time it takes to get cases into the office and reviewed. We have worked to take the office into a digital format and to do away with paper files. And, I have cut my operating budget significantly in the last two budgets as a result. But, first and foremost, my administration has maintained a reputation of being ethical, firm and fair."

Clingman will leave office at the end of her current term, which will expire on Dec. 31, 2016.

County: Bland was despondent over not meeting bail

By Michael Graczyk
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Sandra Bland, the black woman found dead in a Texas county jail this summer, killed herself because she was despondent over her relatives' refusal to quickly bail her out, attorneys for Waller County argue in a federal court motion to dismiss a wrongful death lawsuit.

An attorney for Bland's family responded on Friday that blaming relatives for her death was "completely unnecessary and inaccurate."

"That's a gratuitous insult, pouring salt into the wound of an already devastated family," said Larry Rogers Jr., a lawyer for Geneva Reed-Veal, Bland's mother.

Bland, 28, from the Chicago area, was pulled over July 10 by a white Texas state trooper for making an improper lane change. When the traffic stop became a confrontation, she was arrested for assault and jailed in Waller County, about 50 miles northwest of Houston.

Unable to meet the roughly $500 bond requirement, she was found dead in jail three days later.

Bland's arrest and death came amid heightened national scrutiny of police and their dealings with black suspects, especially those who have been killed by officers or die in police custody.

> "Ultimately, Bland's decision to commit suicide was hers alone, after she denied any suicidal intentions to jail personnel, and after her friends and family refused to bail her out of jail."
> Larry Simmons, attorney for the county and two of its jailers

"Ultimately, Bland's decision to commit suicide was hers alone, after she denied any suicidal intentions to jail personnel, and after her friends and family refused to bail her out of jail," Larry Simmons, the attorney for the Southeast Texas county and two of its jailers, said in a court petition. The county and jailers were sued by the Bland family.

Rogers said the family didn't ignore her pleas for help. He said they were trying to figure out how to "get her out of jail in a situation where it's happening over a weekend, they're not familiar with the procedures and processes, they're over a thousand miles away."

A medical examiner concluded that she used a plastic trash bag in the jail cell to hang herself. Members of her family have questioned whether she would have taken her own life. The family also says she was assaulted by a trooper during the arrest and the county failed to keep her safe and secure in jail.

The county said in its court filing this week that Bland was provided a phone to make free calls but a local friend didn't respond and at least one of her sisters "advised she would not bail Bland out of jail."

The friend has said he didn't see a voicemail message from her until it was too late.

"It is apparent now that Bland's inability to secure her release from jail — and her family and friends' refusal to bail her out of jail — led her to commit suicide," Simmons said.

Tom Rhodes, another attorney for Bland's mother, added that the request for dismissal of the case was "premature" because lawyers haven't been able to take any depositions from people involved.

Besides the county and two jailers, other defendants in the suit are the trooper, Brian Encinia, and the Texas Department of Public Safety. The Texas Attorney General's office also has asked U.S. District Judge David Hittner to dismiss the lawsuit.

A hearing in the case before Hittner is set for next month.

Blue Bell to return to Midland on Dec. 14

- Ice cream company to also return to Odessa; return will take place in increments

From staff reports

Blue Bell ice cream is set to return to Midland stores on Dec. 14.

The company said it expects its product to be in most major Midland retail locations on that date. The United Family, which owns the Albertsons Market and Market Street stores in Midland and Odessa, and Wal-Mart have confirmed they expect to stock Blue Bell on that date.

Midland and Odessa are part of Phase III of Blue Bell's return to stores following its shut down this summer after listeria was found in its products. This third of five phases includes the remainder of Texas as well as central and southern Alabama and is Blue Bell's largest phase yet.

For now, Blue Bell is producing five flavors of ice cream in the half-gallon and pint sizes: Buttered Pecan, Cookies 'n Cream, Dutch Chocolate, Homemade Vanilla and The Great Divide. More flavors will be added in the future. Twelve-pack Homemade Vanilla Cups and 12-pack Homemade Vanilla and Dutch Chocolate Cups also will be available in stores.

Blue Bell will also bring back 215 of its furloughed employees as part of the rollout.

Attempts to reach H-E-B for this story were unsuccessful.

Crude prices sank even though OPEC said its crude production fell sharply by 256,000 barrels a day to an average 31.38 million barrels a day in October, as surging production in Iraq slowed.

Several western oil producers in the third quarter told analysts that Iraq has asked them to slow investments in the oil patch while the government diverts funds to fight terrorists.

Last month, Iraq's crude production fell 195,000 barrels a day. And production declined in Saudi Arabia, as well, falling 72,000 barrels a day.

The majority of OPEC's monthly forecasts remained the same as the previous month's report, with OPEC predicting global demand growth will reach 1.25 million barrels a day next year and non-OPEC supplies will shrink by 130,000 barrels a day.

TERROR STRIKES IN PARIS

120 dead in multiple Paris attacks

By Lori Hinnant and Greg Keller
Associated Press

PARIS — A series of attacks targeting young concert-goers, soccer fans and Parisians enjoying a Friday night out at popular nightspots killed at least 120 people in the deadliest violence to strike France since World War II. President Francois Hollande condemned it as terrorism and pledged that France would stand firm against its foes.

The worst carnage was at a concert hall hosting an American rock band, where scores of people were held hostage and attackers ended the standoff by detonating explosive belts. Police who stormed the building encountered a bloody scene of horror inside.

When the attacks were over, eight attackers were dead — seven of them in suicide explosions, one killed by security forces in the music venue. Paris prosecutor's spokeswoman Agnes Thibault-Lecuivre told The Associated Press.

She could not exclude the possibility that some attackers might still be at large. Authorities are searching for possible accomplices.

The death toll was at least 120 people at six sites, including the national stadium and a circle of popular nightspots, Thibault-Lecuivre said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the attacks. Jihadists on Twitter immediately praised them and criticized France's military operations against Islamic State extremists. Witnesses in the concert hall described hearing attackers say "Allahu Akbar."

Hollande declared a state of emergency and announced that he was closing the country's borders, although officials later said they were just re-imposing border checks that had been removed after Europe created its free-travel zone in the 1980s.

Metro lines shut down and streets emptied on the mild fall evening as fear spread through the city, still aching from the horrors of the Charlie Hebdo attack just 10 months ago.

The attack unfolded with and three suicide bombings outside the national stadium during a soccer match between the French and German national teams, Thibault-Lecuivre said.

Within minutes, according to Paris police chief Michel Cadot, another group of attackers sprayed cafes outside the concert hall with machine gunfire, then stormed inside and opened fire on the panicked audience. As police closed in, three detonated explosive belts, killing themselves.

Another attacker detonated a suicide bomb on Boulevard Voltaire, near the music hall, the prosecutor's office said.

Hollande, who had to be evacuated from the stadium when the bombs went off outside, later vowed that the nation would stand firm and united: "A determined France, a united France, a France that joins together and a France that will not allow itself to be staggered even if today, there is infinite emotion faced with this disaster, this tragedy, which is an abomination, because it is barbarism."

In addition to the deaths at the concert hall, dozens were killed in an attack on a restaurant in the 10th arrondissement and several other establishments crowded on a Friday night, police said. Authorities said at least three people died when the bombs went off outside the soccer stadium.

All of the officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to be publicly named in the quickly moving investigation.

"This is a terrible ordeal that again assails us," Hollande said in a nationally televised address. "We know where it comes from, who these criminals are, who these terrorists are."

U.S. President Barack Obama, speaking to reporters in Washington, decried an "attack on all humanity," calling the Paris violence an "outrageous attempt to terrorize innocent civilians" and vowing to do whatever it takes to help bring the perpetrators to justice.

Two explosions were heard outside the Stade de France stadium north of Paris during a France-Germany exhibition soccer game. A police union official, Gregory Goupil of the Alliance Police Nationale, whose region includes the area of the stadium, said there were two suicide attacks and a bombing that killed at least three people near two entrances and a McDonalds.

The blasts penetrated the sounds of cheering fans, according to an Associated Press reporter in the stadium. Sirens were immediately heard, and a helicopter was circling overhead.

France has heightened security measures ahead of a major global climate conference that starts in two weeks, out of fear of violent protests and potential terrorist attacks. Hollande canceled a planned trip to this weekend's G-20 summit in Turkey, which was to focus in large part on growing fears of terrorism carried out by Islamic extremists.

Emilio Macchio, from Ravenna, Italy, was at Le Carillon restaurant, one of the restaurants targeted, having a beer on the sidewalk, when the shooting started. He said he didn't see any gunmen or victims, but hid behind a corner, then ran away.

"It sounded like fireworks," he said.

France has been on edge since January, when Islamic extremists attacked the satirical newspaper Charlie Hebdo, which had run cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad, and a kosher grocery. Twenty people died, including the three attackers. The Charlie Hebdo attackers claimed links to extremists in Yemen, while the kosher market attacker claimed ties to the Islamic State group.

This time, they targeted young people enjoying a rock concert and ordinary city residents enjoying a Friday night out.

One of the targeted restaurants, Le Carillon, is in the same general neighborhood as the Charlie Hebdo offices, as is the Bataclan, among the best-known venues in eastern Paris, near the trendy Oberkampf area known for a vibrant nightlife. The California-based band Eagles of Death Metal was scheduled to play there Friday night.

Among the first physicians to respond to the wounded Friday was Patrick Pelloux, an emergency room doctor and former Charlie Hebdo writer who was among the first to enter the offices Jan. 7 to find his friends and colleagues dead.

The country has seen several smaller-scale attacks or attempts since, including an incident on a high-speed train in August in which American travelers thwarted an attempted attack by a heavily armed man.

France's military is bombing Islamic State targets in Syria and Iraq and fighting extremists in Africa, and extremist groups have frequently threatened France in the past.

French authorities are particularly concerned about the threat from hundreds of French Islamic radicals who have travelled to Syria and returned home with skills to stage violence.

Though it was unclear who was responsible for Friday night's violence, the Islamic State is "clearly the name at the top of everyone's list," said Brian Michael Jenkins, a terrorism expert and senior adviser to the president of the Washington-based RAND Corporation.

Jenkins said the tactic used — "multiple attackers in coordinated attacks at multiple locations" — echoed recommendations published in the extremist group's online magazine, Dabbiq, over the summer.

"The big question on everyone's mind is, were these attackers, if they turn out to be connected to one of the groups in Syria, were they homegrown terrorists or were they returning fighters from having served with the Islamic State group, Jenkins said. "That will be a huge question."

Reaction from around the world to Paris attacks

PARIS — World leaders are reacting to the deadliest violence to strike France since World War II. Some of their views:

President Barack Obama

Obama is calling the attacks on Paris "outrageous attempt to terrorize innocent civilians" and is vowing to do whatever it takes to help bring the perpetrators to justice.

Speaking to reporters at the White House, Obama said he would not speculate about who was responsible.

He called the attacks a "heartbreaking situation" and an "attack on all of humanity."

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry

Kerry is describing the attacks in Paris as "heinous, evil" and "vile," calling them "an assault on our common humanity."

Kerry said the U.S. embassy in Paris is "making every effort to account for the welfare of American citizens in the city."

He said the U.S. stands ready "to provide whatever support the French government may require."

German Chancellor Angela Merkel

Merkel said she is "deeply shaken by the news and pictures that are reaching us from Paris."

The German leader issued a statement saying her thoughts were with the victims "of the apparent terrorist attack."

British Prime Minister David Cameron

Cameron said he is "shocked" by the Paris attacks and violence.

Cameron said on Twitter: "Our thoughts and prayers are with the French people. We will do whatever we can to help."

U.S. Defense Secretary Ash Carter

Carter is calling the attacks in Paris "an assault on our common human dignity."

The Pentagon chief said "the United States stands with the people of France and its vibrant, multicultural democracy."

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau

"Our hearts and thoughts and prayers go out to our French cousins in this dark and terrible time," Trudeau said.

He said Canada has offered "all of our help and support to the government of France."

U.S. Attorney General Loretta Lynch

Lynch said the U.S. stands "in solidarity with France, as it has stood with us so often in the past."

"This is a devastating attack on our shared values and we at the Department of Justice will do everything within our power to assist and work in partnership with our French law enforcement colleagues," she said in a statement.

Demands at Missouri similar to 1969's, but this time, action

By Jim Salter and Jim Suhr
Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The criticism was blunt: Blacks at the University of Missouri are harassed and threatened, the university has too few African-American faculty members, the administration doesn't seem to care, and all of that needs to change.

A list of grievances issued this month by a student group is strikingly similar to those from 1969. This time, though, it appears the university is listening.

Recent racist incidents, and the perceived lack of response by administrators, led to protests, a student hunger strike and a threatened boycott by the football team. It culminated Monday in the resignations of University of Missouri System President Tim Wolfe and Columbia campus Chancellor R. Bowen Loftin.

The interim president appointed Thursday, Michael Middleton, made it clear that he hears the concerns. Unsurprising, since Middleton, 68, was a founder of Missouri's Legion of Black Collegians who issued that set of demands 46 years ago.

"It is clear to me the first step is to devote attention to addressing those demands," Middleton said at his introductory news conference. "It is imperative to hear from all students and do everything we can to make them comfortable and safe in our community."

In fact, the university has already addressed several of the eight points on the list. Chief among them was the removal of Wolfe, but other moves have followed.

One day after the resignations, a veteran associate law school dean, Chuck Henson, who is black, was named to the new position of interim vice chancellor for inclusion, diversity and equity. The university's governing board also pledged more support for those who experience discrimination and said diversity and inclusion training will become mandatory for faculty, staff and students. On Friday, Gov. Jay Nixon named Yvonne Sparks to the Board of Curators, the second black member of the nine-person panel.

Associated Press

A member of the black student protest group Concerned Student 1950 gestures while addressing a crowd Nov. 9 following the announcement that University of Missouri System President Tim Wolfe would resign, at the university in Columbia, Mo. The bullet points are blunt and direct: Blacks at the University of Missouri are harassed and threatened, the university has too few African-American faculty members, administration doesn't seem to care, and all of that needs to change. A set of demands addressing those concerns is strikingly similar to demands made in 1969. But this time, it appears the university is listening.

The university also hired the lobbying firm of Andy Blunt, who is Sen. Roy Blunt's son and campaign manager, to represent it in Jefferson City, agreeing to pay $10,000 per month in a contract signed Monday.

Many students are hopeful, but want to see more action.

"Really it just comes down to holding these people accountable," said Shelbey Parnell, an organizer of Concerned Student 1950, the group that issued the demands. "They're saying a lot of these things in the moment."

Many of the issues cited nearly five decades ago persist. The 1969 document cited physical threats by whites against blacks, with frequent threats made to what was then known as the Black Culture House. This week, the university's black culture center reported a threat, and its sign was spray-painted by vandals.

The 1969 list expressed concern about the "nonchalant attitude on the part of the university," saying it made it "a haven for comprehensive institutionalized racist and political repression." Those feelings were echoed by many protesters this week.

Meanwhile, the university's low percentage of black faculty and staff remains a point of contention.

The 1969 document noted that just 19 of Missouri's 1,600 faculty members (1.8 percent) were black. The percentage today is just 3.25 percent of full-time faculty. About 7 percent of staff members are black.

The 2015 demands call for increasing the percentage of black faculty and staff to 10 percent by the 2017-18 school year.

Getting there will be tough, but not impossible, said Leslie Fenwick, dean of the education school at historically black Howard University in Washington, D.C. — though she noted that few traditionally white colleges and universities have reached that level.

"I think it requires, more than anything, a will and a compulsion, an acknowledgement that something is deeply wrong in 2015," Fenwick said. "We're almost two decades into a new millennium, and the concerns these young people have harken all of us back 40 to 50 years."

The University of Missouri's student population is 7 percent black in a state that is about 12 percent African-American. Data provided by the Missouri Department of Higher Education shows that four public universities in the state have higher percentages of black students. Two of those are part of the four-campus University of Missouri System — Missouri-St. Louis (14 percent black) and Missouri-Kansas City (12 percent black). The other two are historically black universities — Harris Stowe State University in St. Louis (83 percent), and Lincoln University in Jefferson City (35 percent).

About 71 percent of white students at Missouri's Columbia campus graduate within six years, compared to about 55 percent of black students.

Fenwick said it is "very disturbing" that the Columbia campus is so lacking in diversity.

Black leaders seek answers in police custody death case

By Alanna Durkin
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Black leaders in Virginia want the state's attorney general to take over the investigation into the death of a man who was shocked repeatedly by police with stun guns, saying they are frustrated no decision has been made about whether to charge the officers.

Leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People from across the state will gather Saturday to call on Attorney General Mark Herring to step in for Halifax County Commonwealth's Attorney Tracy Quackenbush Martin, who has been reviewing the death of 46-year-old Linwood R. Lambert Jr. for two years.

"We want to know why it is taking so long for the commonwealth attorney to move forward on this," said Kevin Chandler, president of the local NAACP branch and pastor in South Boston, a town of about 8,000 in southern Virginia.

A spokesman for Herring said that criminal cases are the generally the exclusive responsibility of local prosecutors and the attorney general doesn't have the authority to take over a case. But he said his office has reached out to Virginia State Conference NAACP leadership to see how they can help address their concerns.

"The video of the encounter is very troubling, and the matter clearly deserves a thorough, deliberate investigation and a prompt and just resolution," spokesman Michael Kelly said in an email.

The NAACP leaders are also seeking an immediate dismissal of the officers, Chandler said.

Videos of the officers shocking Lambert, who was black, were released this week and have renewed interest in the case. Lambert's family filed $25 million lawsuit against the police department and three officers in April.

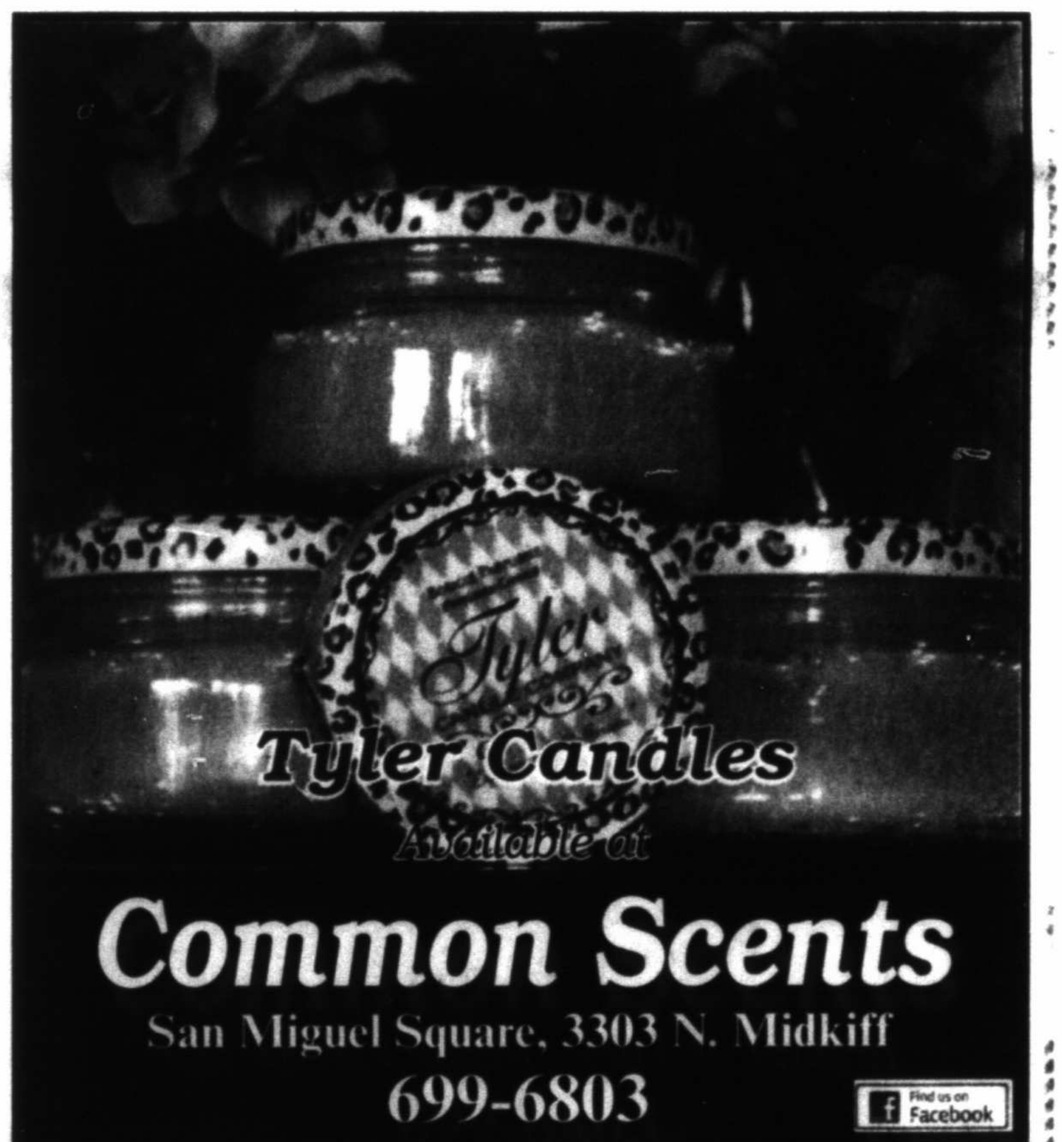
The videos show three South Boston police officers using stun guns on Lambert multiple times after they took him into custody and brought him to a hospital for a mental health evaluation. He ran from the officers at the hospital, and instead of taking him to the ER, they took Lambert to jail.

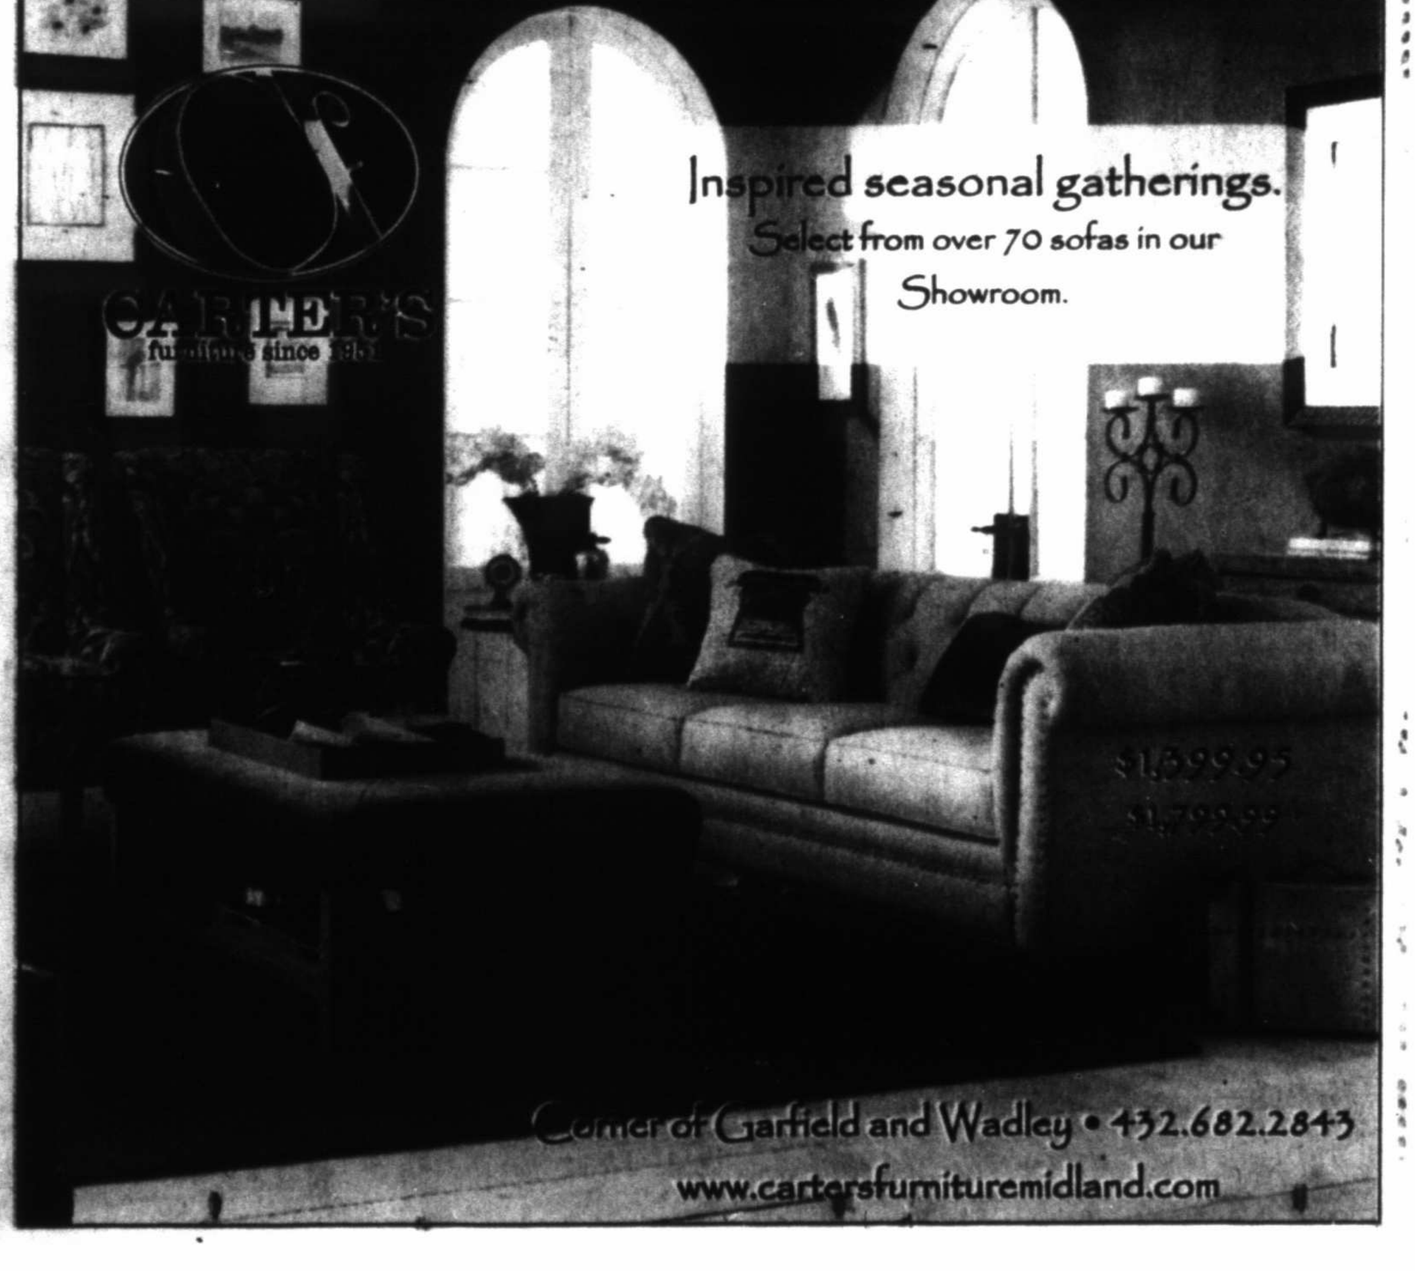
An ambulance later brought him back to the same hospital, where he was pronounced dead. An autopsy report said that Lambert died of "acute cocaine intoxication."

An attorney for the officers has not responded to multiple requests for comment from The Associated Press. The department has said in court documents that the use force was necessary because Lambert had become violent, kicking out a window of the patrol car and running away.

Virginia State Police investigated in 2013 and turned the results over to Martin, who said Thursday that she will take as much time as is necessary to reach the correct decision.

Steven Benjamin, a former president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, said the investigation is taking unusually long, but that it's possible that the prosecutor is hoping that the lawsuit will produce additional information.





Debate cast guide: Live from Des Moines, it's Saturday night

By Connie Cass
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Democrats' debate lineup is down to a tidy trio, now that two other presidential candidates have quit the race.

That should make it easier to keep the debaters straight: the woman, the socialist and ... who's that other guy? Oh yeah, former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley.

The new math gives O'Malley, barely registering in polls so far, better odds of getting noticed Saturday night in this second go-round for Democrats.

A guide to the personalities taking the stage in Des Moines, Iowa, for the CBS broadcast:

Associated Press

Hillary Rodham Clinton

Key features:
Nearly everybody recognizes her. She's the only candidate who's lived in the White House already, as first lady.

A quick sketch:
■ Daughter of a fabric store owner and a homemaker living in the Chicago suburbs.
■ Met her future husband and future president, Bill Clinton, at Yale Law School.
■ After serving as first lady of Arkansas and then of the country, elected to Senate from New York.
■ Early Democratic front-runner in 2008, lost presidential nomination to Barack Obama.
■ Both praised and criticized in four years as Obama's secretary of state.

Also of note:
Clinton has kept her front-runner status despite congressional investigations into her use of a private email server as secretary of state and the fatal attack on the U.S. diplomatic post in Benghazi, Libya, on her watch. She's also faced questions about big donations from foreigners accepted by the Clinton family's charitable foundation.

Might Clinton be for you?
Perhaps yes, if you prefer a Democrat who has a more aggressive foreign policy than Obama.
Perhaps no, if you want a president who comes into office untarnished by congressional probes.

Some other distinguishing issues:
■ make public universities affordable and community colleges tuition-free.
■ tighten gun laws by expanding background checks and allowing lawsuits against gun manufacturers.
■ opposes an Obama initiative that she once supported: the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade deal.

In a nutshell:
Establishment. Early favorite. Second-timer.

Bernie Sanders

Key features:
He's an independent senator from Vermont who calls himself a Scandinavian-style democratic socialist.

A quick sketch:
■ Son of a Polish immigrant father; raised in Brooklyn with the accent to prove it.
■ A student civil rights activist at the University of Chicago in the 1960s.
■ Unseated the Democratic mayor of Burlington, Vermont, by 10 votes in 1981.
■ Elected to U.S. House in 1990; Congress' longest-serving independent.
■ Early and vocal opponent of the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq in 2003.

Also of note:
Sanders is running for the Democratic nomination, but he's never been a Democrat. He represented an anti-war third party in four unsuccessful races for office in Vermont in the 1970s. He was elected Burlington mayor as an independent. He caucuses with Democrats in the Senate, but he's called both the Democratic and Republican parties tools of the wealthy.

Might Sanders be for you?
Perhaps yes, if you want a president to tackle income inequality as "the great moral issue of our time."
Perhaps no, if you want government to get smaller, not bigger.

Some other distinguishing issues:
■ Create a "Medicare for all" single-payer universal health care program.
■ Raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour.
■ Make tuition free at public colleges and universities.

In a nutshell:
Democratic socialist. Populist. Politically independent.

Martin O'Malley

Key features:
He's a former Maryland governor who champions data-driven leadership — and sings, too.

A quick sketch:
■ Father was a suburban D.C. lawyer; mother's been a congressional staffer for nearly three decades.
■ Met his wife while they were University of Maryland law students.
■ Elected Baltimore mayor at age 36, he took a statistics-heavy approach to reducing crime..
■ During two terms as governor, ending in January, he signed laws legalizing gay marriage, repealing the death penalty.
■ The longtime frontman of a Celtic rock band, he sometimes sings and plays guitar at campaign events.

Also of note:
One of the achievements O'Malley boasts about — dramatically reducing Baltimore's high crime rate as mayor — is getting new scrutiny in a time of national "Black Lives Matter" protests. Critics contend that O'Malley's zero-tolerance anti-crime policies fostered a culture of harassment and abuse of black citizens that they blame for the death of Freddie Gray while in Baltimore police custody in April.

Might O'Malley be for you?
Perhaps yes, if you want to shield people in the country illegally from deportation until immigration law is overhauled.
Perhaps no, if you dislike his history of raising taxes.

Some other distinguishing issues:
■ Increase Social Security benefits for seniors by raising payroll taxes on high earners.
■ Toughen gun laws, including requiring a background check with fingerprints for every gun sale.
■ Tighten banking rules and break up big banks to end potential for bailouts.

In a nutshell:
Policy wonk. Liberal. Young voter strategy.

Ted Cruz immigration plan to suspend high-skilled visas

By Steve Peoples and Alicia A. Caldwell
Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — Republican presidential candidate Ted Cruz on Friday vowed to suspend a program that gives work visas to highly skilled immigrants, reversing his position on the program as part of an aggressive immigration plan designed to appeal to the GOP's most conservative wing.

Cruz, the son of a Cuban immigrant, wants to dramatically increase deportations, add hundreds of miles to the wall on the Mexican border and reverse every immigration order signed by President Barack Obama — including one that defers enforcement for many children of immigrants in the country illegally.

"A steady flow of illegal immigrants coming in, driving down wages, impacts the wages of just about every person here," Cruz told hundreds of cheering supporters gathered in an Orlando megachurch Friday afternoon. Aside from the economic impact of illegal immigration, Cruz warned that a porous southern border makes the nation vulnerable to Islamic State fighters and deadly diseases like Ebola.

The first-term Texas senator would also triple the number of border patrol agents, increase aerial surveillance around the border and finish a biometric tracking system for immigrants entering the country legally. Cruz's campaign did not detail the cost of his proposals when asked.

The release comes as he intensifies his play for the GOP's most conservative voters, a group that has so far favored businessman Donald Trump and retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson. The outsider candidates have a huge lead in the race with voting set to begin in less than three months.

The issue also allows Cruz to distinguish himself from pragmatic-minded Republican rivals such as Jeb Bush and Marco Rubio, two Florida-based candidates who support a pathway to citizenship for immigrants in the country illegally.

Without naming them, Cruz said each of his Republican opponents in Tuesday's debate "composed an epic poem in support of amnesty, explaining how compassionate and loving it is."

"There is nothing compassionate about a politician saying, 'I'm so compassionate I'm willing to give away your job,'" Cruz charged.

Cruz's position on high-skilled visas represents a complete about-face on one of his long-held immigration stances.

During the Senate immigration debate two years ago, the Texas senator was an outspoken advocate for increasing legal immigration, particularly for highly skilled immigrants. He called legal immigration "a pillar of our nation's heritage and strength" and introduced amendments to double the cap on legal immigration and increase the number of high-skilled immigrant visas by 500 percent.

On Friday, he promised to suspend the H1-B program for 180 days to investigate — and prosecute — potential abuse. He said he changed his position after learning that some companies, including nearby Disney World, might be abusing the program.

Such visas are largely used for high-tech firms and so-called STEM — science, technology, engineering and math — jobs. Many Republican lawmakers have complained that U.S. companies use the visa program to hire foreign workers at lower wages than a U.S. citizen would be entitled to.

Cruz's plan doesn't explicitly say what he would do with the estimated 11 million immigrants living in the U.S. illegally.

His plan would, however, sharply increase enforcement and roll back moves by the Obama administration to defer action in some cases.

He said a Cruz administration would end the "catch-and-release" program that currently doesn't immediately deport all immigrants caught crossing the border illegally. He would also immediately identify and deport immigrants convicted of crimes.

Cruz announced his immigration plan ahead of a possible Senate vote next week on an immigration bill he's been pushing to boost penalties for immigrants who illegally re-enter the country after getting deported. The bill, Kate's Law, is named for a woman shot in San Francisco by an immigrant in the country illegally.

Senate Democratic aides said they'd been alerted by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell's office of possible floor action on the legislation as early as next week, though McConnell's spokesman said no decisions on timing had been made.

While Cruz laughed off Rubio's suggestion from a day earlier that the two senators hold similar stances on immigration, Rubio didn't back down on Friday.

The Florida senator argued that Cruz, like him, supported a legal status for those in the country illegally. Rubio would go farther and allow citizenship, but either position is dismissed as "amnesty" by immigration hard-liners.

"The point I was making is I'm surprised by his criticism given that fact that his record on immigration, quite frankly, is not substantially different than mine," Rubio said.

Associated Press

BOSTON — A Massachusetts agency is letting a woman who belongs to the Church of the Flying Spaghetti Monster wear a colander on her head in her driver's license photo after she cited her religious beliefs.

Lowell resident Lindsay Miller said Friday that she "absolutely loves the history and the story" of Pastafarians, whose website says has existed in secrecy for hundreds of years and entered the mainstream in 2005.

Miller said wearing the spaghetti strainer allows her to express her beliefs like other religions are allowed to do.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles said policy does not permit head coverings or hats on license photos, but exceptions are made for religious reasons.

Lawyer Patty DeJuneas calls Pastafarianism a "secular religion that uses parody to make its point."

Associated Press

Lindsay Miller of Lowell, Mass., wears a spaghetti strainer to reflect her religious beliefs while holding her temporary driver's license that also bears a photo of her wearing the colander Thursday. Miller said she "absolutely loves the history and the story" of pastafarians, who are part of the Church of the Flying Spaghetti Monster.

BLAZING PAST THE LIONS

Trinity crushes Sugar Land Logos to open playoffs

Behind a 35-point second quarter explosion, the Trinity football team only needed one half to thrash Sugar Land Logos Prep by mercy rule, 51-6 in a TAPPS 3A Division I six-man bi-district playoff game, Friday at Coombes Field.

With the victory, the Chargers (9-2) advanced to the area round, where they'll face Austin Hill County (9-1) next Friday in Sanderson.

Senior quarterback Vincent Baiano keyed the second quarter charge for Trinity. He completed 16 of his 23 passes on the night for 250 yards and four touchdowns through the air. He also accounted for a 10-yard score on the ground.

The Chargers' defense was also stifling, as it held the Lions to just 93 total yards of offense and four first downs in the win.

After somewhat of a slow start to open the game, the Charger offense came alive with several downfield passes that went for big gains and stretched the Lions defense thin.

Baiano said he knew his team was ready to take over the game.

"Everyone came together and I think we were ready to get this first win," said Baiano, who won his first career playoff game as a quarterback. "We have a bigger mission to accomplish now and we've just got to keep on going."

Trinity opened the game's scoring on a 28-yard touchdown run early in the first by sophomore running back Treydan Seay, taking an 8-0 lead on the ensuing kick. Two possessions later, Baiano hit senior receiver Peter Rodenko for a 63-yard strike down the home sideline, giving Trinity a 16-0 advantage.

The two connected seven times for 159 yards on the night.

Trinity head coach Antwan Alexander said he was impressed with his quarterback's patience. It's a trait he's shown all season long at the helm of the Chargers' offense.

"That's one thing about Vince, his vision to see the field is tremendous," Alexander said. "His ball placement, his accuracy, his touch — he's patient. He allows the defense to go where it's going to go and he knows exactly where we need to go."

Three of Baiano's four touchdown passes came in the second half.

Senior receiver Peyton Harrington added 61 yards and a pair of touchdowns on five receptions from Baiano.

Note: Lions sophomore Samuel Starr, who was hit hard by a Trinity blocker on a kickoff play midway through the first quarter, had to be carried off on a stretcher to a nearby ambulance. There was no word of his condition after the game.

Poor start dooms Rangers in loss against Perryton

By Oscar LeRoy

Perryton	14
Greenwood	9

MULESHOE — The Greenwood football team had trouble shaking off a bad start and it ended up costing the Rangers in their Class 4A Division II bi-district playoff game against Perryton.

A miscue on special teams, a safety and Greenwood's inability to make plays consistently on offense ended the Rangers' season in a 14-9 loss to Perryton on a chilly Friday night at Benny Douglas Stadium.

Bell

With the loss, Greenwood ends its season at 6-5. Perryton improved to 6-5 and moves on to the area round where it will play Anna, who won 50-16 over Dallas Madison, at a time and date to be determined.

"I'm proud of our kids that hung in there, hung in there," Perryton coach David Flowers said. "We made mistakes we don't normally make. It's the first time they had been in the playoffs and we made some silly mistakes. But the kids overcame, everybody overcame, didn't panic or anything. I'm really proud of our players."

Things went sour for Greenwood early.

After the Greenwood defense forced Perryton to punt on the opening series, the Rangers had trouble fielding the punt and they had to start their first series from their own 2-yard line. Two plays later, the Rangers fumbled the ball but recovered it in the end zone for a safety to give Perryton a 2-0 advantage less than two minutes into the game.

The ensuing kickoff gave Perryton the ball at midfield and it capitalized again when Hadley Allred (202 yards passing) found Trent Ottinger for a 6-yard touchdown pass and an 8-0 lead midway through the first quarter. On that drive, Greenwood thought it had held Perryton to a field goal, but Perryton's Jace Newcomb threw a 13-yard first down pass to Colton Juarez on a trick play to keep the drive alive.

Bulldogs can't hang with Martin, lose big

By Christopher Hadorn

Warriors	76
Bulldogs	18

ARLINGTON — Midland High faced a tall order in its bi-district playoff rematch with District 4-6A champion Arlington Martin on Friday.

The Warriors were one of the renowned programs in Region I, producing blue chip talent such as Texas A&M defensive end Myles Garrett in recent years.

On Friday night, the Bulldogs discovered for the second straight year how fast and physical Martin was.

Riding a one-sided first half, the Warriors sailed to a 76-18 victory over Midland High in the Class 6A Division I bi-district playoff at Maverick Stadium.

The Bulldogs' season ended at 4-7, while Martin (9-2) advanced to play Amarillo High in the area round next week.

On Martin's first possession of the game, the MHS defense appeared to hold the Warriors to a field goal attempt with a fourth-and-goal situation at the 4-yard line.

However, Martin faked a field goal attempt with a direct snap to holder Myles Kelley and the junior ran towards the line of scrimmage, leaped up in the air and tossed a 4-yard touchdown pass to Jimmy Nelson III.

From that point on, the Warriors were in control as they raced out to a 42-0 halftime lead.

Martin held Midland High to only one first down before halftime, and ended with a 456-207 advantage in total offensive yardage.

"I am very impressed with how they play, how fast they play, how physical

MCS grad Rasure signs with Texas A&M-Corpus Christi

Left-handed pitcher Korey Rasure, a Midland native and a graduate of Midland Christian, has signed to play baseball with Texas A&M-Corpus Christi of the NCAA Division I Southland Conference next fall.

Rasure, who will enter his sophomore year at Cisco Junior College this spring, made 15 appearances and struck out 14 batters last season as a freshman with the Wranglers.

His efforts on the mound helped lead the Wranglers to a 39-17 overall record and a third-place finish in conference play.

Rasure will have two years of eligibility remaining once he joins the Islanders.

"Korey is a tall, lean and loose left-handed pitcher with a great off-speed pitches to complement his fastball," said Islanders recruiting coordinator Brett Gips. "I project that Korey will be a weekend starter at this level."

RANGERS

From 1B

It was that kind of night for the Rangers.

"There are some things we didn't execute at the beginning and tried to keep from getting frustrated and (the Rangers) got a little frustrated there at the beginning," Greenwood coach Shad Hanna said. "I think it gave Perryton the momentum. But my hat's off to Perryton. I think they've got a good football team and they will probably be playing for a couple of weeks."

Greenwood's defense continued to play great but the offense couldn't take advantage as it turned the ball over on downs three times, twice inside the red zone.

Hanna said that shaky start for his team had a lingering effect.

"I think it was hard for us to shake it off," he said. "I think we did some good stuff too. I thought we did some great things running the ball. With their blitz, I think it helped us with our passing game. We just got to get better with our passing game."

Greenwood ended up with a nice balance with 150 yards rushing — led by Stace Bell's 132 yards on 17 carries — and had 156 yards through the air.

The only problem was that the Rangers couldn't get enough big plays when it mattered, especially from the passing game.

"They did a good job of stopping us a little bit," Hanna said. "We did a good job of moving the ball but then we kind of sputtered in the red zone."

Added Flowers: "Our defense came up big for us. Bend but don't break, right?"

Greenwood cut it to 14-9 with 4:45 left in the game on a Justice Thompson 1-yard run.

But Perryton got some key first downs on its final drive to run out the clock on the game and the Rangers' season.

Arlington Lamar 39 Abilene High 33

ARLINGTON — Drven Cantly returned an Oscar Hernandez kickoff 93 yards with three seconds remaining as Arlington Lamar (9-2) edged Abilene High in 6A Division II Bidistrict action.

Early on Abilene used turnovers and punts to climb out to a 14-0 lead. For the rest of the game Abilene relied on the rushing attack of Abram Smith and his 126 yards on the ground, but the Lamar defense proved to be difficult to crack and allowed Smith zero rushing touchdowns.

A Smith 90 yard kickoff return ended a 25-3 Lamar run and allowed Abilene High to climb back into the game in the third quarter.

Abilene High ends the season at 7-4. Smith ends the season having accumulated 3,016 rushing yards headed into his senior season, good for fourth on Abilene's all-time rushing leader list.

MHS

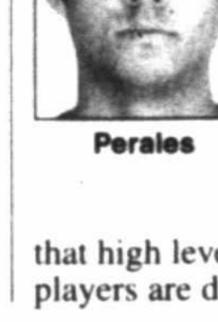
they play, how emotional they played and how much their players put into it," MHS head coach Craig Yenzer said. "We have to get to a point where we match that kind of effort. Again, that falls on me. We got to figure out what it's going to take for us to play at that high level. I know our players are disappointed, our coaching staff is disappointed."

Anuszkiewicz



Perales

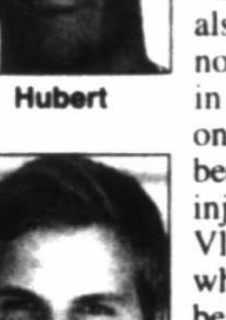
Martin didn't have any 100-yard rushers, but as a team it combined to amass 279 yards on the ground on 34 attempts.

Bulldogs quarterback Jackson Anuszkiewicz left the game in the second quarter because of an injury, which forced MHS to turn to three different quarterbacks in the first half alone.

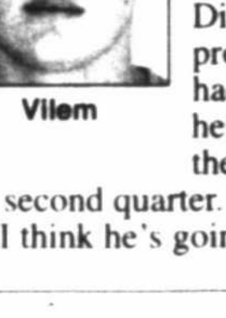
In the second half, third-string quarterback Ryan Perales directed three touchdown drives, which included a 64-yard deep bomb to Brooks Betcher. Perales hadn't thrown a pass all season.

"I was very pleased with his effort," Yenzer said. "I thought we had some guys step up and do a good job. We are trying to get our guys to grow offensively. We're very, very young. I was pleased at times with our effort in the second half offensively."

In addition to Anuszkiewicz, running back Ricky Hubert and defensive end Traver Vliem also did not play in the second half because of injuries. Vliem, who is being recruited by Division I programs, had to be helped off the field in the second quarter.



Hubert



Vliem

"I think he's going to be OK," Yenzer said. "He's probably lucky. It's kind of a lower leg type deal. I think he's going to be all right. We hope he is. We don't know the extent of that right now."

Mayor: F1 can't look to Austin for US Grand Prix bailout

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — The mayor of Austin said Friday that Formula One officials can't look to the Texas capital city for a bailout of the financially struggling United States Grand Prix.

Mayor Steve Adler had suggested earlier in the week the city could explore options to aid the host track Circuit of the Americas, but then closed the door on a cash infusion from the city.

Adler said the state of Texas should stand by any previous agreement with track officials, who say the deal includes a promise of at least $25 million per year for 10 years from the state's Major Events Trust Fund to pay Formula One for the right to hold the race.

Gov. Greg Abbott's office confirmed this week it was cutting about $6 million from that total.

The U.S. Grand Prix still gets about $19.5 million from the trust fund and nearly $23 million total in public money.

"Austin benefits from having Formula One here and the State needs to abide by its agreement. And while we want to be supportive, Formula One cannot look to Austin for a bailout," Adler said in a statement.

But a 2010 letter to Formula One chief Bernie Ecclestone and signed by former Gov. Rick Perry, former Comptroller Susan Combs and former race promoter Tavo Hellmund, warns that if tax revenues fall short, the state could pay less than $25 million.

Any shortage to pay the sanction fee would have to be covered by the race promoter, according to the letter obtained By The Associated Press.

Circuit of the Americas officials did not respond to requests for comment. Track officials and Ecclestone have said the funding reduction could threaten the future of the Austin race after just four years.

Perry and Combs are no longer in office, and the trust fund was moved this year to Abbott's office. Abbott's office changed how it calculates payments after a state auditor's report in September criticized the previous formula as too generous.

The $300 million Circuit of the Americas was built with private money for the purpose of hosting the U.S. Grand Prix. Track officials have said the event has pumped "hundreds of millions" of dollars into the Austin and Texas economies since 2012 and applied for state funding under the same formula as Super Bowls, NCAA basketball tournaments and other events.

"We're hopeful F1 will continue to race here," track officials said earlier this week.

Ferrari driver Sebastian Vettel of Germany pulls out of the pits during a practice session for the Formula One U.S. Grand Prix auto race at Circuit of the Americas in Austin on Oct. 24. Gov. Greg Abbott's office said Wednesday it is cutting nearly $6 million in funding for the event, raising questions about the race's future just four years after Formula One put what many saw as a permanent footprint on American soil. Officials at the Circuit of the Americas, a $300 million track built specifically to host the race, have said they already took a major financial hit this year when storms nearly wiped out two days of the race weekend in October.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

BLUE JACKETS 2
PENGUINS 1

PITTSBURGH — The puck settled at Patric Hornqvist's feet and the Pittsburgh Penguins forward knew his stick would be no help so he turned his skate and let physics do the rest.

The referees weren't fooled, waving off Hornqvist's attempt at a game-tying goal the second it crossed the line on Friday night against the Columbus Blue Jackets.

"I just tried to get the momentum going and I stepped on the puck and it looks like I kicked it in," Hornqvist said. "Right call by the ref."

Considering how much the Penguins struggled to get anything by Sergei Bobrovsky and the improving Blue Jackets, it was worth a try. Bobrovsky stopped 28 shots and narrowly missed his 12th career shutout as Columbus held on for a 2-1 win.

Scott Hartnell scored his team-leading eighth goal for Columbus, which improved to 5-5 under John Tortorella. Brandon Saad picked up his sixth with a power-play goal in the second period that gave the Blue Jackets a commanding two-goal lead.

"We thought we had good stuff all night, we won a lot of battles, checked well," Tortorella said. "It was just one of those games, not a lot of goal scoring, but we found a way."

Marc-Andre Fleury made 26 saves for the Penguins but Pittsburgh went 0 for 6 on the power play. The Penguins are now 7 for 54 (13 percent) with the man advantage on the season, near the bottom of the NHL. Not exactly what Pittsburgh had in mind when it acquired Phil Kessel to pair with stars Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin.

"We've shown at different times we're capable of doing that but with the group that we have, it should kind of flow a little bit better than it has," Crosby said.

Hornqvist deflected a shot from the point past Bobrovsky with 52 seconds remaining to spoil the goalie's shutout bid. Hornqvist appeared to tie it with 13 seconds left but it was waved immediately and the call was upheld on review.

FLAMES 3
CAPITALS 2 OT

WASHINGTON — Sean Monahan scored his second goal of the game 1:40 into overtime to give the Calgary Flames a 3-2 win over the Washington Capitals on Friday night.

Michael Frolik also scored for Calgary and Karri Ramo stopped 34 shots.

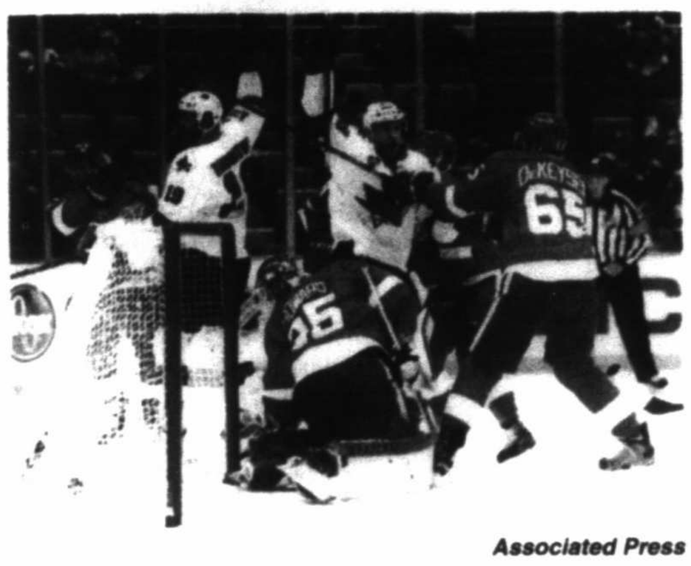
Michael Latta and Jay Beagle had the goals for Washington, and Phillipp Grubauer finished with 26 saves.

In overtime, Monahan took a pass from TJ Brodie and beat Grubauer from right in front. Washington coach Barry Trotz challenged the goal, claiming that Monahan was offside, but the goal was quickly confirmed.

Monahan has six goals this season, including four in the last four games.

The Flames, which lost two straight entered the game with the worst record in the Western Conference.

Alex Ovechkin again failed in his attempt to pass Sergei Fedorov for most goals by a Russian-born NHL player.



Associated Press

San Jose Sharks' right wing Melker Karlsson (68) celebrates his goal against the Detroit Red Wings in the first period Friday in Detroit.

Since scoring his 483rd career goal on Nov. 7 to tie Fedorov, Ovechkin has gone scoreless in three straight games.

Monahan's first goal came at 1:28 of the third period. His shot flew past Grubauer's right shoulder, and gave the Flames a 2-0 lead.

Latta's first goal of the season and just his second in 78 career goals got Washington on the scoreboard with 5:41 gone in the period. It was his first goal since Nov. 15, 2013.

Beagle tied it with just under five minutes to play when he tapped the puck past Ramo from in front.

Frolik's shot from the slot on a spin move away from the Capitals' Jason Chimera gave Calgary a 1-0 lead at 7:35 of the first period. It was his fourth goal of the season. The other three came on Oct. 31 at Edmonton.

SHARKS 3
RED WINGS 2

DETROIT — Joe Pavelski scored his ninth goal of the season, Martin Jones made 26 saves and the San Jose Sharks beat the Detroit Red Wings 3-2 on Friday night.

Melker Karlsson and Matt Nieto also scored for the Sharks, who improved to 7-1 in Detroit since the 2010-11 season.

Tomas Tatar and Teemu Pulkkinen scored for the Red Wings, and Jimmy Howard finished with 11 saves.

Pavel Datsyuk made his season debut for Detroit after missing the first 15 games due to off-season ankle surgery. He received a standing ovation when coming onto the ice for his first shift.

The game was played with "enhanced security measures" in place at Joe Louis Arena because of the Paris attacks, according to the Red Wings.

The Red Wings took a quick lead, with Tatar taking a pass from Dylan Larkin and flicking a wrist shot past Jones at 3:13.

However, San Jose tied it about 4 1/2 minutes later. Howard missed a poke check on Joe Thornton, allowing him to circle behind the net and set up Karlsson for his first goal of the season.

The Sharks took a 2-1 lead with 2:08 left in the opening period, as Howard stopped Nieto's wrap-around attempt, but Nieto knocked home the rebound.

The Sharks made it 3-1 with their 10th shot of the game at 10:23 of the second, as Paul Martin's slap shot from the point was deflected past Howard by Pavelski. Datsyuk had a great chance late in the period, but Jones stopped him at point-blank range.

Tatar beat Jones for the second time early in the third period, only to see his shot bounce off the goal post. The Red Wings cut the deficit to 3-2 on a fluky goal at 18:08, as Pulkkinen's shot from the point was heading wide until it banked off Justin Braun's leg and past Jones.

Rasmus, Wieters, Anderson accept qualifying offers

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Houston outfielder Colby Rasmus, Baltimore catcher Matt Wieters and Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Brett Anderson became the first three players to accept qualifying offers from their teams rather than remain free agents.

The trio, who agreed to the $15.8 million, one-year contracts Friday, were among 20 players given the offers Nov. 6. Another in the group, Toronto pitcher Marco Estrada, agreed to a $26 million, two-year contract that was announced just before the 5 p.m. EST deadline to accept qualifying offers.

None of the 34 qualifying offers was accepted in the first three years of baseball's current collective bargaining agreement. The qualifying offer salary is determined by the average of the highest 125 contracts in the major leagues.

Among those who turned down the offer this year were second baseman Daniel Murphy (Mets) and right-hander Ian Kennedy (Padres). When a player fails to accept a qualifying offer and signs a big league contract elsewhere before June's amateur draft, his former team gets an additional high selection as compensation. The signing club loses a top pick.

Baltimore Orioles' Matt Wieters high-fives teammates after hitting a two-run home run in the eighth inning of the second baseball game of a doubleheader against the Toronto Blue Jays in Baltimore Sept. 30. Wieters has accepted the Orioles' $15.8 million qualifying offer, saying his decision was based primarily on his comfort level with the team. In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Wieters said Friday, "For a one-year deal, there's no place more comfortable than playing baseball for the Orioles."

The 29-year-old Rasmus hit .238 with a career-high 25 homers and 61 RBIs in his first season with the Astros. He had seven homers over 27 at-bats in his last nine games, including four in six postseason games.

"I'm just happy to be an Astro. It would have been nice obviously to have a long-term deal and whatnot, but I feel that it worked out pretty good," Rasmus said during a conference call. "It was in my heart and my wife's heart to go to Houston."

Wieters played in 75 games last season after elbow ligament replacement surgery in 2014. He batted .267 with eight homers and 25 RBIs.

"For a one-year deal, there's no place more comfortable than playing baseball for the Orioles," the 29-year-old said.

Asked whether his family tried to talk him out of accepting, Wieters said, "They know that I'm stubborn. When I make a decision, that's it."

Anderson, a 27-year-old lefthander, was 10-9 with a 3.69 ERA.

Estrada gets a $1 million signing bonus payable by Jan. 29 and salaries of $11 million next year and $14 million in 2017. The 32-year-old right-hander 13-8 with a 3.13 ERA, setting career bests for wins, ERA and opponents' batting average. He was 2-1 with a 2.33 ERA in the playoffs, Toronto's first postseason appearance since 1993.

"We obviously identified Marco as a priority to bring back after the season he had," Blue Jays interim general manager Tony LaCava said during a conference call. "He was a big part of our success. We think that he can maintain that level of performance, maybe not to the level that he did this year, but certainly someone we can count on going forward who can help us defend the AL East title."

Romo's return near as Cowboys try to end skid without him

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

IRVING — Tony Romo, scout team quarterback.

That's the best the Dallas star could do the past two weeks in his return from a broken left collarbone, so he was still watching while the Cowboys' losing streak grew to six games without him, the team's longest in the same season in 26 years.

Naturally, there's a bit of anticipation for his likely start next week at Miami, even if that means peeking past Sunday's visit to Tampa Bay (3-5). But there are limits to that eagerness for the Cowboys (2-6).

"You can't sit and wait on Romo," defensive lineman Jeremy Mincey said. "He's not Jesus, you know? You can't sit and wait on him because there's some games we could've easily won without him being there. So it's our fault."

Matt Cassel and Brandon Weeden are both 0-3 trying to replace Romo, and Cassel will get likely the last chance to break that drought in what could be his final start for Dallas after coming over in a trade with Buffalo following the injury to Romo in a Week 2 win at Philadelphia.

Cassel has filled in for a franchise quarterback before, but not as something of a lame-duck starter. The job was his for the final 15 games in New England in 2008, when the Patriots finished 11-5 and missed the playoffs on a tiebreaker after Tom Brady went down with a season-ending knee injury in the opener.

"You knew that Tom wasn't coming back for the year, and we've known that Tony was going to come back at some point," said Cassel, who struggled in the first two starts but is coming off his best outing, despite an interception that played a key role in Philadelphia's overtime win last weekend.

"But at the same time, you do what you can with the time that you get."

Since Cassel obviously still needed first-team work in practice, most of Romo's time in game simulations in practice was with the scout team. He was doing that as early as last week, the first week he was eligible to practice while still on the injured list with a designation for return.

Dallas Mavericks forward Dirk Nowitzki (41), of Germany, is defended by Los Angeles Lakers forward Kobe Bryant during the first half of an NBA basketball game Friday in Dallas.

DALLAS — Zaza Pachulia notched his sixth double-double in nine games and the Dallas Mavericks beat the Lakers 90-82 on Friday night for Los Angeles' fourth straight loss.

Kobe Bryant returned to action after missing the Lakers' two previous games with a tight back. He hit his first three shots and finished with 19 points while playing a season-high 32:25.

Dallas extended its record winning streak in the series between the teams to nine.

Pachulia led the Mavs with season highs of 18 points and 16 rebounds. He was acquired last summer after free agent DeAndre Jordan decided to stay with the Los Angeles Clippers.

Jordan Clarkson led the Lakers with 21 points and was 3 of 5 on 3-point shots.

Deron Williams had 13 points for Dallas.

The Lakers built a 19-9 lead midway through the first quarter, but the Mavericks responded with nine straight points and a 14-3 run to take their first lead of the game with 2:49 left. Dallas never trailed again.

Los Angeles shot 28.6 percent in the second quarter, falling behind 48-40 at halftime. In the third quarter, the Lakers committed six turnovers and converted five field goals.

The Mavericks led by as many as 10 in the third quarter. But the Lakers pulled within 71-70 with 8 minutes left in the fourth. With a chant of "Let's go Lakers!" building, Los Angeles had a chance to take the lead. But Lou Williams missed a jumper, and Wesley Matthews followed at the other end with a 3-pointer.

The Mavericks came off a season-high 55.3 percent shooting game in their win over the Clippers on Wednesday night. They shot 36.6 percent compared to the Lakers' season-low 33.0.

Dirk Nowitzki, Dallas' leading scorer going into the game averaging 18.9 points, was held to nine on 4-for-13 shooting.

The Lakers' Julius Randle, who grew up in suburban Plano, Texas, played his first NBA game in Dallas and scored six points, shooting 2 for 9.

The Trail Blazers lost their fourth straight and haven't won since a 115-96 victory over Memphis on Nov. 5.

NO. 22 NORTH CAROLINA

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Candance Brown made a layup with 1.2 seconds left and Gardner-Webb rallied to shock No. 22 North Carolina 66-65 on Friday in the opener for both teams.

Gardner-Webb trailed by 15 points entering the fourth quarter.

Kiera Currie's 3-pointer with 6:12 to play capped a 16-2 run to open the fourth quarter, but the Bulldogs didn't take a lead until Currie's jumper at the 3:05 mark. The teams traded the lead several times, with the Tar Heels, who had not lost an opener since falling to Buffalo in 2000, going up 65-64 on Jamie Cherry's 3-pointer with 8 seconds left.

The Bulldogs, who had never beaten a ranked team before, called a timeout with 7 seconds to go and — per the new rules implemented this season along with the change to four quarters instead of two halves — were allowed to inbound the ball in the front court.

That's when the Gamecocks' height in the 6-foot-4 Coates and 6-foot-5 Wilson took control. The duo scored the Gamecocks' last 16 points and Coates twice blocked Shayla Cooper's close-in shots with Ohio State still in contention the final 2 minutes.

No. 4 Baylor goes for 3rd straight win over No. 12 Oklahoma

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

WACO — Spencer Drango was standing on the Baylor sideline during his redshirt season four years ago when the Bears finally beat Oklahoma for the first time.

"We were going nuts. It kind of solidified and just kind of spoke that we can beat them," said Drango, now a senior All-America left tackle. "And if we can beat them, we can beat anyone. ... They were the powerhouse back in the day. Now, it's shifted a little bit."

Now the fourth-ranked Bears (8-0, 5-0 Big 12, No. 6 CFP) are trying to become the first team ever to beat a Bob Stoops-coached Oklahoma team three consecutive times and join the Sooners as the only teams to win three Big 12 titles in a row.

But the No. 12 Sooners (8-1, 5-1, No. 15 CFP) have a four-game winning streak since losing their last game south of the Red River, scoring at least 50 points every week since that 24-17 loss to the Longhorns at the State Fair of Texas.

Win out in this regular season-ending stretch against Baylor, No. 13 TCU and No. 5 Oklahoma State, and the Sooners will claim their first Big 12 title since 2012. That would end their longest conference title drought in Stoops' 17 seasons and put them in position for a possible playoff spot.

"I'm just worried about one big game. That's right now. That's how it's been for the last — every week," Stoops said. "The way we've been playing, you have to feel confident."

For all the critics of the Bears' weak schedule so far, they have the same remaining games as Oklahoma. They play at Oklahoma State and TCU, plus their regular season home finale against Texas.

"You don't have big games unless you take care of games prior to big games," Baylor coach Art Briles said. "So fortunately our team, I think, has been fairly consistent throughout the season with their play, with their attitude and with our results, which leads into big games."

A few things to watch when Baylor looks to extend its FBS-best 20-game home winning streak:

Bake and Jarrett

Former Texas Tech walk-on Baker Mayfield, the junior in his first season as Oklahoma's quarterback, has thrown for 2,812 yards with 28 touchdowns and only four interceptions. He has at least three TDs in seven games. Baylor true freshman Jarrett Stidham threw for 419 yards and three TDs last week in a win at Kansas State, his first start replacing injured Seth Russell.

Running backs Samaje Perine and Joe Mixon have combined for 200 yards rushing per game with 11 rushing TDs in Oklahoma's

West Virginia, Texas try to move closer to bowl contention

By John Raby
Associated Press

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Running back Johnathan Gray would like nothing but pleasant memories of Texas' upcoming trip to West Virginia.

The last time the Longhorns came to Morgantown in November 2013, Gray tore an Achilles tendon in an overtime win over the Mountaineers and missed the rest of the season. Texas lost two of its three final regular-season games and coach Mack Brown was out of a job.

Gray returned for 2014 and was a big part of the Longhorns' victory over the Mountaineers in Austin rushing for 101 yards and three touchdowns.

But overall, the player who set a national high school career record for touchdowns hasn't met lofty expectations in college. Before his injury, Gray rushed for 780 yards in 2013, which remains his best season.

Now a senior and part of a running back tandem with 241-pound sophomore D'Onta Foreman along with a pair of mobile quarterbacks, Gray is hoping to help Texas (4-5, 3-3 Big 12) get that elusive first true road win and move closer to qualifying for a bowl game today at West Virginia (4-4, 1-4).

"It means a lot," Gray said of returning to Morgantown. "That's the game of football. So you've just got to move on and help your teammates out in any way possible. ... I get another chance to go out there and do that, and that's what I plan on doing."

Texas has won three of its last four games, beating winless Kansas 59-20 at home last week. Now, the Longhorns are making a 1,400-mile trek to take on a West Virginia team with its own ups-and-downs. The Mountaineers started the season 3-0 before losing to four ranked teams in

Red Raiders need to show more toughness to earn bowl bid

oleroy@mrt.com

Texas Tech hosts Kansas State today in the final home game of the season.

Could it be the best chance the Red Raiders have in getting that sixth win to become bowl eligible?

We'll find out today when the Red Raiders (5-5, 2-5 in Big 12) host the Wildcats (3-5, 0-5) at 2:30 p.m. at Jones AT&T Stadium. The game will be televised on Fox Sports 1.

It could be assumed that the Red Raiders have a chance at beating a Texas team that sometimes borderlines on being bi-polar on Thanksgiving night. But considering that Tech has not fared well in Big 12 road games, and the fact that they haven't won in Austin since 1997, today's game could be considered a must win.

While Kansas State has had its own struggles this season, especially with injuries, Wildcats coach Bill Snyder has a way of getting the best out of his team.

Under Snyder, the Wildcats have shown toughness despite not always being the most talented team in the Big 12.

That is an area in which the Red Raiders still have a lot of room to grow.

Texas Tech had its chances at West Virginia, but dumb penalties and costly drops by the wide receivers cost the Red Raiders in a 31-26 loss.

Tech coach Kliff Kingsbury said his team hung in there but never made the push it needed to make. He added that, for whatever reason, what the team has been doing in practice is sometimes not translating into games.

"I think a lot of it is nerves, I guess, being fearful of failing," Kingsbury said. "It's just winning streak.

Serving his time

Baylor passing game coordinator Jeff Lebby will not be in the pressbox for the first half. He is serving a one-half suspension for being on the sideline during an Oklahoma game earlier this season when the Bears were off and he was in Oklahoma for a wedding. The Big 12 issued a public reprimand and accepted the school's self-imposed penalty.

Beating the best

Baylor is 8-0 at home against Top 25 teams since the start of the 2011 season, including two wins over Oklahoma. The Sooners won the first 20 meetings in the series until a game-winning pass by Robert Griffin III in the 2011 game that pretty much clinched the quarterback the Heisman Trophy. The Bears have won three of the last four meetings.

Big numbers

Oklahoma has outscored its last four opponents by an average margin of 45.5 points and outgained them by 364 total yards. Baylor is the nation's top offense with 665.6 yards and 57 points a game, though the Bears over their past four games have won only by an average margin of 27 points.

TEXAS

From 1C

October.

Against Texas, quarterback Skyler Howard wants to limit West Virginia's frequent offensive mistakes, including his own. Howard is completing 43 percent of his passes with eight interceptions in five conference games.

"Initially, I thought that this would be the game that you would circle," Howard said. "But, really, it's about us right now — West Virginia against West Virginia on offense, at least. In these games, we have kind of shot ourselves in the foot, whether it's missed opportunities or penalties. I think we shoot ourselves in the foot a lot."

Texas coach Charlie Strong is worried about West Virginia's offense, too. The Mountaineers piled up 300 rushing yards in a 31-26 win over Texas Tech last week.

"In order for us to win this game, we've got to go stop the run," Strong said.

Some other things to watch for when West Virginia hosts Texas on today:

Bowl hopes

Both teams need two wins to qualify for a bowl. After West Virginia, the Longhorns host Texas Tech on Thanksgiving and end the regular season at undefeated Baylor. WVU also plays Kansas and Kansas State on the road, sandwiched around a home game with Iowa State.

Texas QBs

Texas redshirt freshman Jerrod Heard threw for 201 yards and a score against Kansas, while former starter Tyrone Swoopes, used primarily in short-yardage situations, had four TD runs and a scoring pass. But Texas managed just 204 total yards in a 24-0 loss the week before to Iowa State.

Road woes

Texas has been outscored 112-10 in three losses in true road games. The Longhorns beat Oklahoma on a neutral field in Dallas.

Strong's return

Strong was Louisville's head coach in 2011 when the Cardinals beat West Virginia in Morgantown when both teams were in the Big East. "When we get there, it's all about us just locking in and getting focused," Strong said. "It's a really tough environment."

TOP 25 CAPSULES

NO. 1 CLEMSON (9-0) AT SYRACUSE (3-6), 2:30 P.M. (ABC, ESPN2)

Line: Clemson by 26 1/2.

Series Record: Clemson leads 2-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Clemson has clinched a share of the ACC's Atlantic Division title and a berth in the ACC championship as it strives for a berth in college football's final four. The Tigers can become the outright Atlantic champion with a win over Syracuse. The Orange has lost six straight, the longest skid in coach Scott Shafer's three years as head coach. An upset would be an invaluable boost for the future.

NO. 2 OHIO STATE (9-0, 5-0 BIG TEN, NO. 3 CFP) AT ILLINOIS (5-4, 2-3), 11 A.M. (ABC)

Line Ohio State by 15 1/2.

Series Record: Ohio State leads 67-30-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

A loss to an unranked Illinois team would jeopardize the Buckeyes' playoff hopes and leave them in a tie with one or both of the teams behind them in the East, Michigan State and Michigan. With three games to play Illinois is one win away from a bowl game in a season in which its coach and athletic director were fired. Getting there could help interim coach Bill Cubit ern the job on a permanent basis.

NO. 3 ALABAMA (8-1, 5-1 SEC) AT NO. 20 MISSISSIPPI STATE (7-2, 3-2), 2:30 P.M. (CBS)

Line: Alabama by 7½.

Series Record: Alabama leads 78-13-3.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Alabama is trying to tighten its grip on first place in the SEC's Western Division with a victory in Starkville. Mississippi State could turn the race into a mess with a win and vastly improve its outside chance at capturing the title.

NO. 12 OKLAHOMA (8-1, 5-1 BIG 12, NO. 12 CFP) AT NO. 4 BAYLOR (8-0, 5-0, NO. 6 CFP), 7 P.M. (ABC)

Line: Baylor by 2 1/2.

Series Record: Oklahoma leads 21-3.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Baylor's FBS-best 20-game home winning streak and Oklahoma's chance to stay in contention for its first Big 12 title in three seasons and possibly a playoff spot. The Bears are the two-time defending Big 12 champions, and beat Oklahoma by lopsided margins in both of those seasons. No Bob Stoops-coached Sooners team has lost to the same Big 12 team three consecutive times.

KEY MATCHUP

LT Spencer Drango and Baylor's offense line vs. LB Eric Striker and the Oklahoma pass rush. The Sooners are second nationally with 3.8 sacks per game. Striker has 7 1/2 sacks, and end Charles Tapper has five sacks the last two weeks, after only three his previous 20 games. Baylor has allowed only nine sacks, but freshman QB Jarrett Stidham was sacked three times by Kansas state in his first start last week.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma: RBs Samaje Perine and Joe Mixon have combined to average 200 yards rushing in the Sooners' four-game winning streak, with 11 rushing touchdowns in that span.

Baylor: RB Shock Linwood has 1,046 yards rushing, and is only the second Baylor back with multiple 1,000-yard seasons. The junior is only 486 yards shy of the school's career rushing record, and needs only two more touchdowns to match the career mark of 35 rushing scores.

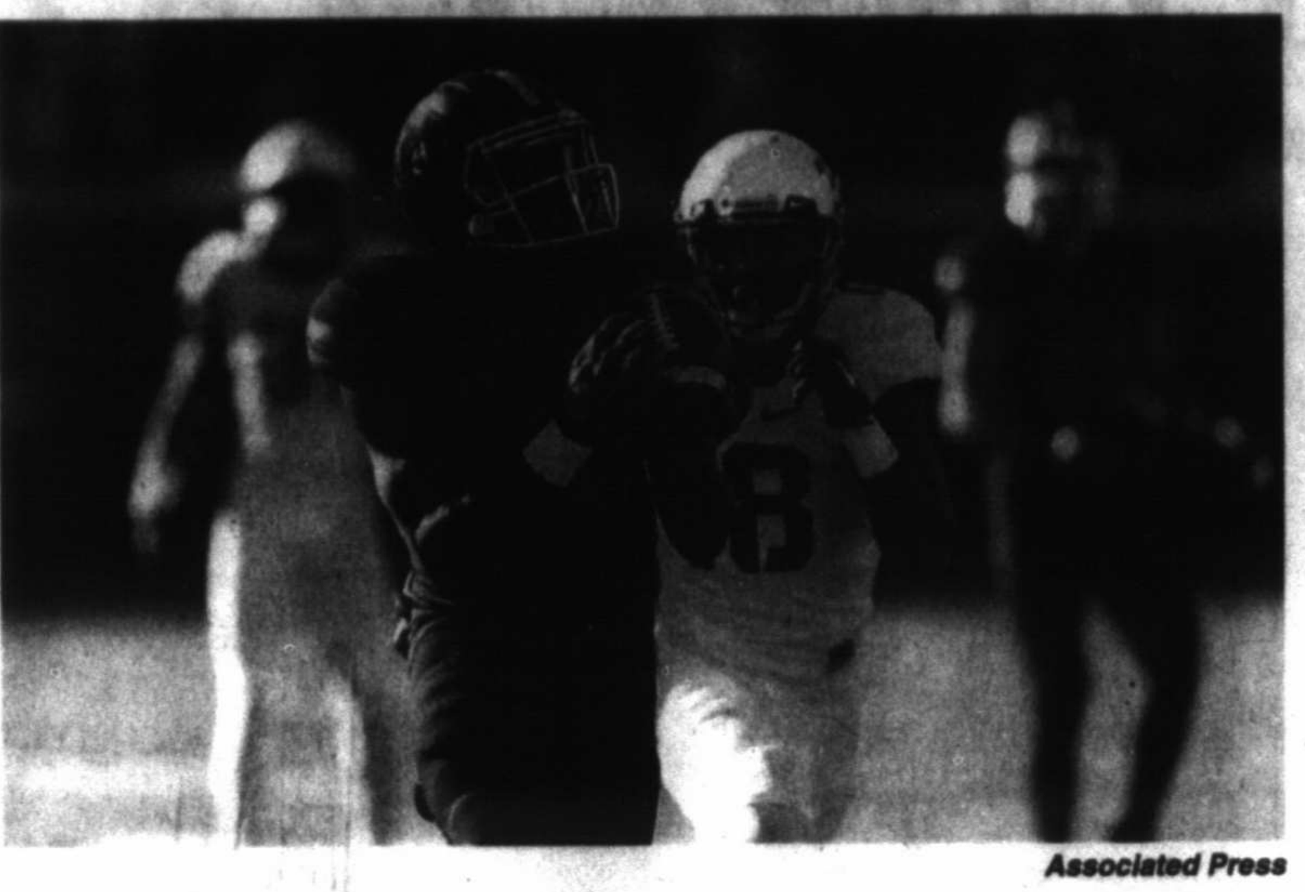
NO. 5 OKLAHOMA STATE (9-0, 6-0 BIG 12) AT IOWA STATE (3-6, 2-4), 2:30 P.M. (ESPN)

Line: Oklahoma State by 14.

Series Record: Oklahoma State leads 28-18-3

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Oklahoma State controls its own destiny in the Big 12 race, and this is its last road game before Baylor and Oklahoma visit Stillwater. Iowa State can prove that its brutal schedule is the biggest reason why it's 3-6 with an upset over the Cowboys.



Associated Press

Oklahoma State wide receiver James Washington (28) catches a pass in front of TCU safety Nick Orr (18) and carries it in for a touchdown in the first quarter in Stillwater, Okla., Saturday.

WAKE FOREST (3-6) AT NO. 6 NOTRE DAME (8-1), 2:30 P.M. (NBC)

Line: Notre Dame by 26 1/2.

Series Record: Notre Dame leads 2-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

The Fighting Irish are fourth in the College Football Playoff selection committee rankings and need to keep winning to stay in contention. The Demon Deacons need to beat the Irish, top-ranked Clemson and Duke to avoid a seventh straight losing season.

OREGON (6-3, 4-2 PAC-12) AT NO. 7 STANFORD (8-1, 7-0, NO. 7 CFP), 6:30 P.M. (FOX)

Line: Stanford by 9 1/2.

Series Record: Stanford leads 46-31-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

The Cardinal can clinch the Pac-12 North title and remain in contention for a spot in the College Football Playoff. The Ducks need to win their final three games and hope for Stanford to lose at home to California next week to win the North.

MINNESOTA (4-5, 1-4 BIG TEN) AT NO. 8 IOWA (9-0, 5-0, NO. 5 CFP), 7 P.M. (BTN)

Line: Iowa by 12.

Series Record: Minnesota leads 62-44-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

The first 10-0 start in school history for Iowa, which would also move the Hawkeyes within one win of the West title with a victory. Minnesota would pull within a game of bowl eligibility if it can pull off the upset. There's also a 98-pound bronze pig named Floyd of Rosedale that'll go home with the winner.

ARKANSAS (5-4, 3-2 SEC) AT NO. 9 LSU (7-1, 4-1), 6:15 P.M. (ESPN)

Line: LSU by 7½.

Series Record: LSU leads 37-21-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

LSU can still win the SEC West crown if it wins out and if Alabama drops one of its final two league games, so the Tigers must keep winning to keep pressure on the Crimson Tide. Arkansas can become bowl eligible and follow up a dramatic win at Ole Miss with a victory in Death Valley.

NO. 10 UTAH (8-1, 5-1 PAC-12, NO. 10 CFP) AT ARIZONA (5-5, 2-5), 9 P.M., (FS1)

Line: Utah by 4 ½.

Series: Utah leads 20-18-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Utah's front-runner status in Pac-12 South. The Utes have a one-game lead over UCLA and USC. USC holds the tiebreaker after handing Utah its only loss thus far. The Utes are home against UCLA next week, and then finish off at home against Colorado.

NO. 11 FLORIDA (8-1, 6-1 SEC, NO. 11 CFP) AT SOUTH CAROLINA (3-6, 1-6), NOON EST (ESPN)

Line: Florida by 8.

Series Record: Florida leads 24-8-3

WHAT'S AT STAKE

It's a chance for Florida to continue its comeback season under first-year coach Jim McElwain. The Gators have locked up the SEC East and can sweep its divisional foes by defeating the Gamecocks. South Carolina is looking to see its steady improvement under interim coach Shawn Elliott pay off with a victory.

Kansas (0-9, 0-6 Big 12) at No. 13 TCU (8-1, 5-1, No. 15 CFP), 11 a.m. (FS1)

Line: TCU by 45 1/2.

Series Record: TCU leads 19-8-4

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Coming off its first loss and with its playoff hopes severely damaged, TCU needs to bounce back with the expected victory to remain in contention for a share of the Big 12 title and another appearance in one of the New Year's six games. Kansas has three more chances to avoid being the first Power Five conference team since Washington in 2008 to go winless.

KEY MATCHUP

All the youngsters on both sides. Kansas is rebuilding this season with first-year coach David Beaty, using 39 first-time players this season — the only FBS team with more than TCU's 37. The Jayhawks have used 33 first-time starters, matching Central Florida for the most. TCU, still contending for another Big 12 title, is next with 24.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Kansas: Freshman QB Ryan Willis has thrown a touchdown in five consecutive games. But the Jayhawks' third starting quarterback this season has also been sacked 18 times and thrown six interceptions in that stretch.

TCU: Aaron Green is on pace to be TCU's first 1,000-yard rusher in five seasons. The senior running back has 796 yards and nine touchdowns this season, averaging 5.3 yards per carry.

MARYLAND (2-7, 0-5 BIG TEN) AT NO. 14 MICHIGAN STATE (8-1, 4-1, CFP NO. 13), 11 A.M. (ESPN2)

Line: Michigan State by 15.

Series Record: Michigan State leads 5-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

After a last-second loss at Nebraska, the Spartans are still hoping to win the Big Ten and potentially make the College Football Playoff, but they have no more margin for error. Maryland has only one victory over an FBS team this season.

NO. 15 MICHIGAN (7-2, 4-1, NO. 14 CFP) AT INDIANA (4-5, 0-5), 2:30 P.M. (ABC)

Line: Michigan by 13 ½.

Series Record: Michigan leads 54-9.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Michigan's Big Ten title hopes got a big boost last week when rival Michigan State lost at Nebraska. To keep their hopes alive, the Wolverines cannot afford to drop the ball — at Indiana or anywhere else. This is Indiana's fourth ranked opponent in six games and it's still looking to pull off an upset.

NO. 25 MEMPHIS (8-1, 4-1 AMERICAN, CFP NO. 21) AT NO. 16 HOUSTON (9-0, 5-0, CFP NO. 24), 6 P.M. (ESPN2)

Line: Houston by 7.

Series Record: Houston leads 14-9.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Both teams are in the hunt for a conference championship and a berth as the Group of Five representative in a New Year's Day bowl game.

KEY MATCHUP

Houston defense vs. Memphis offense. The Tigers have scored the most points per game in the American Athletic Conference (44.8), while rushing for nearly 195 yards and throwing for just over 352 yards per game. The Tigers have scored less than 30 points only twice this season, including last week's 45-20 loss to Navy. Houston's defense has allowed 18.7 points a game this season, while giving up just under 100 yards on the ground and 268 yards through the air. Houston leads the nation with a plus-16 turnover differential, with 25 takeaways.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE (6-3, 2-3 ACC) AT NO. 19 FLORIDA STATE (7-2, 5-2 ACC, NO. 16 CFP) 12:30 P.M. (ACC NETWORK)

Line: Florida State by 10.

Series Record: Florida State 24-11.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Florida State won't be headed to the ACC Championship Game for the first time in four years after last week's 23-13 loss to Clemson, but it still has a shot at one of the New Year's Six bowl games after remaining 16th in the latest College Football Playoff poll. North Carolina State is bowl eligible for the second straight season after winning two of its last three games.

WASHINGTON STATE (6-3, 4-2 PAC-12) AT NO. 18 UCLA (7-2, 4-2), 9:45 P.M. (ESPN)

Line: UCLA by 10.

Series Record: UCLA leads 40-18-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Both schools are headed to bowls after successful starts to the season. The Bruins are in the driver's seat in the Pac-12 South race after three straight victories, and with games still to come against Utah and USC. Washington State is looking for its third straight impressive road victory.

NO. 21 TEMPLE (8-1, 5-0 AMERICAN, NO. 22 CFP) AT SOUTH FLORIDA (5-4, 3-2), 6 P.M. (CBS SPORTS)

Line: Temple by 3.

Series Record: Temple leads 1-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Temple can clinch American Athletic Conference Eastern Division title. The Owls are unbeaten on the road (5-0) and have been ranked in the Top 25 four consecutive weeks, the longest stretch in school history. South Florida has won four of five and need one more victory to become bowl eligible for the first time since 2010. The Bulls haven't defeated a ranked opponent since 2011.

SMU (1-8, 0-5 AAC) AT NO. 22 NAVY (7-1, 5-0 AAC), 2:30 P.M. (CBSSN)

Line: Navy by 21 ½.

Series Record: Navy leads 9-7.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Navy needs a victory to remain unbeaten in the American Athletic Conference and stay on course to play in the league title game. The Midshipmen are tied with Houston atop the AAC West.

KEY MATCHUP

Navy's triple-option against SMU's defense. With QB Keenan Reynolds leading the way, Navy has rushed for 2,612 yards and averaged 5.5 yards per carry. Five players have run for at least 200 yards, led by Reynolds with 907 and FB Chris Swain with 704. SMU ranks 121st in the nation against the run, allowing 259.6 yards per game.

RUTGERS (3-5, 1-4 BIG TEN) AT NO. 16 MICHIGAN (6-2, 3-1), 2:30 P.M. (BTN)

Line: Michigan by 21½

Series record: Rutgers leads 1-0

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Michigan must win to keep its hopes of finishing in at least a tie for first in its division. Rutgers needs a victory to improve its chances of earning a fifth straight bowl bid and of coach Kyle Flood keeping his job.

PURDUE (2-7, 1-4 BIG TEN) AT NO. 24 NORTHWESTERN (7-2, 3-2, NO. 18 CFP) 11 A.M. (BIG TEN NETWORK)

Line: Northwestern by 16

Series Record: Purdue leads, 50-28-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Northwestern's momentum. The Wildcats have it after back-to-back blowout losses at Michigan (38-0) and home against Iowa (40-10). Northwestern responded by winning 30-28 at Nebraska and beating Penn State 23-21 at Ryan Field to move back into the Top 25.

LEROY

something we have to get better at and play ourselves out of it.

"That team was a tough team, and they took it to us, and that's, as a coach, as a player, you've got to look at that film and say, hey, we have to be tougher than we were."

The Red Raiders probably also need to be smarter.

Two personal foul penalties late in the game by senior defensive leaders Branden Jackson and Micah Awe helped the Mountaineers ice the game.

While it's something he would rather not see, Tech defensive coordinator David Gibbs took responsibility.

"You can understand freshmen making mistakes and I'm OK with younger guys who aren't as experienced," Gibbs said. "But to me in those situations, veteran guys (have) got to do what's best for the team, what's best for the defense. That's selfishness, which comes from the top, in my opinion."

Awe, the senior linebacker, also took responsibility and said he'll learn from his mistake.

"We've got to move on from that, and we have the next game, Kansas State, a very good team coming in," he said. "We've got to beat them."

It will be interesting to see if the Red Raiders have truly moved on and if they show that toughness that they lack at times.

My pick: Texas Tech 35, Kansas State 27.

After a week's absence, here are my latest Big 12 power rankings:

1. Baylor (8-0, 5-0): Jarrett Stidham had a solid first start for the Bears against Kansas State, but now he and BU face their biggest test of the year when Oklahoma comes to town.

2. Oklahoma State (9-0, 6-0): The Cowboys didn't look that impressive, but they're starting to pick up steam when it matters.

3. Oklahoma (8-1, 5-1): Since being embarrassed against Texas, the Sooners have embarrassed their last four opponents. Now they get a chance to knock off the top team in the Big 12 in Waco.

4. TCU (8-1, 5-1): The Horned Frogs took their lumps against OSU as Trevone Boykin had his worst game of the year and star wide receiver Josh Doctson suffered a wrist injury that could hamper him the rest of the year. At least they have Kansas this week.

5. West Virginia (4-4, 1-4): After the top four, the rest of the teams and slots are interchangeable. The Mountaineers look just slightly above mediocre heading into this week's home game against Texas.

6. Texas Tech (5-5, 2-5): The Red Raiders have lost three straight, but they return home to face Kansas State and a shot at being bowl eligible.

7. Kansas State (3-5, 0-5): The Wildcats gave Baylor a scare last week, but they always play tough in Manhattan. They're still on a five-game losing streak and face desperate Texas Tech on the road.

8. Texas (4-5, 3-3): The Longhorns beat up on poor Kansas last week (59-20), but now they go on the road to face West Virginia, and that might not bode well. UT has been outscored 112-10 in road games.

9. Iowa State (3-6, 2-4): After beating Texas, the Cyclones came back down to earth with a 52-16 beating by OU. They now host one of the hottest teams in the league in Oklahoma State.

10. Kansas (0-9, 0-6): They Jayhawks face a ticked-off TCU squad in Fort Worth. You might want to turn away.

Daughter wants to withdraw from dad's battle with booze

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and live with my parents. My dad is an alcoholic who has finally figured out that he has had a problem for years. When I was in sixth grade, he left me once in the middle of the night (Mom was out of town) to go out drinking. Ever since that night, I have felt so much pain. I feel like I'm not important — or why else would he leave me?

He thinks it's OK to talk to me about what he does and how much he regrets it. I love him, but I don't want to hear about how he got drunk the night before or anything like that! It has added a lot of stress to my life. I get all A's in school and I'm in accelerated classes, but recently it has become really hard to concentrate with all of this going on at home. What should I do? — STRESSED TEEN IN WASHINGTON

DEAR STRESSED TEEN: Tell your mother exactly what you have told me. Your father appears to be trying to use you as his therapist to assuage his guilt about his drinking. Not only is this unfair to you, it is also not a solution to his problem. He should be talking about those things in a substance abuse meeting, not to his teenager.

Alateen is a support group for children of alcoholics. It would be helpful for you to go online and find the location of the nearest one. The website is www.al-anon.alateen.org, or you can call 888-425-2666. The group was formed for young people just like you, and you will find it not only informative, but also very helpful.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a partner in a small law firm. One of the secretaries has gotten into the habit of texting him somewhat inappropriate pictures. One of them was of a "willy warmer" for a penis. I know she thinks it's funny and harmless, but it bothered me. I think it was unprofessional and went beyond the boundaries of an employee relationship. If I mention it to my husband, he will know I looked at his phone messages, and I don't want him to think I don't trust him. Am I making too much of this? — THE MRS., SOMEWHERE IN THE USA

DEAR MRS.: I don't think so. I agree that what the secretary did was unprofessional and inappropriate. As an attorney, your husband already knows that kind of communication could leave the company vulnerable in the future. You wouldn't have felt the need to check his cellphone if your woman's intuition wasn't telling you that you needed to, so get to the bottom of it now, before it escalates.

DEAR ABBY: I secretly married a man 14 years ago. No one knew about it. We lost contact for several years, but now we are talking again. I'd like to spend the rest of my life with him.

He's happy living where he is right now, but if we did get back together, people would assume I just let a man move in with me. I don't usually care what people say about me, but this is a small town.

If Mr. Wonderful gives me another chance, how should I handle this? And how should I introduce him to people? — KIND OF MARRIED IN KENTUCKY

DEAR KIND OF MARRIED: There is nothing to be embarrassed about. If you never divorced, introduce him as your husband, of course. It's the truth. If you are questioned, all you need to say is, "We were married, became estranged, and now we're back together."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 14, 2015:

This year you often stumble into fun scenarios that you don't want say "no" to. Most likely, you will join right in. You know when enough is enough, and you will step back at the appropriate times. You might get uptight about your spending, but you could have difficulty reining it in. If you are single, meeting people is a snap. Choosing the right person is another issue. If you are attached, the two of you love to have a good time. The problem is that you tend to get caught up in frivolous spending. Be careful! CAPRICORN can be too serious at times.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ You can't seem to get into anything that doesn't involve some fun. Your inclination to party can no longer be suppressed. Wherever you are, you will enjoy an excursion that is a little different. Be a pioneer and bring friends along to join in. Tonight: Take a stand, if need be.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Deal with others directly. Understand what is going on with a loved one. Encourage this person to let down his or her hair and join you. You can't help but have a good time with this individual. Friends will knock on your door and want to join you, too. Tonight: Try a new spot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Friends will seek you out for feedback. You'll move right in and offer solutions. Don't have expectations — just enjoy where everyone is coming from. Your ability to make friends emerges. Others become very comfortable around you. Tonight: Time with a special person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ You might feel as if you have a lot to do. However, your self-discipline could float right out the window if you decide to kick back. Make the most of the moment, as you'll run into like-minded individuals. Don't fight the inevitable. Tonight: Reach out to someone at a distance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You could have a sense of direction that surprises you as well as others. Be aware of how much is going on around you, and encourage others to let their hair down. A sense of inspiration comes from a friend who cares a lot about you. Tonight: You could go till the wee hours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Tension remains high, but you'll find the perfect outlet. Enjoying those around you seems to eliminate present stress. Don't be surprised if you find yourself involved in a group discussion about what is ailing each person. Tonight: Tease a loved one, and help him or her relax.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Keep talks flowing. You might not know which way to go, but don't feel as though you must make a decision right now. Just hang out in your present position. Your ability to let go will kick in, especially after swapping some jokes. Tonight: Move the action to your place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ You might feel uptight about your budget. Suddenly, you could realize that you are in a special place where you don't have to worry about these matters. Choose to enjoy those around you. Later in the day, communication will flourish. Tonight: Hang out at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You'll delight in the moment. Though you don't often let go and party these days, today will be different. Somehow, a serious demeanor just isn't there. Others might be delighted by what they see. The old you has returned for a little while. Tonight: Make it your treat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ You have a lot going on behind the scenes. You might not want to share with everyone how naughty you can be. By evening, your smile will give others an indication as to why you were not available. Let their imaginations run wild. Tonight: You are the center of attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Friends seem to surround you and encourage the loss of self-discipline. You were already in party mode when you saw everyone else kicking back. Acknowledge and embrace this wild side of your personality. Be more spontaneous! Tonight: Not to be found.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ All eyes turn to you, as others are looking for suggestions and ideas for what they should do. Once they run into you or speak to you, there will be no more questions. You know when to let your hair down and have a good time. Tonight: At a favorite place with favorite people.

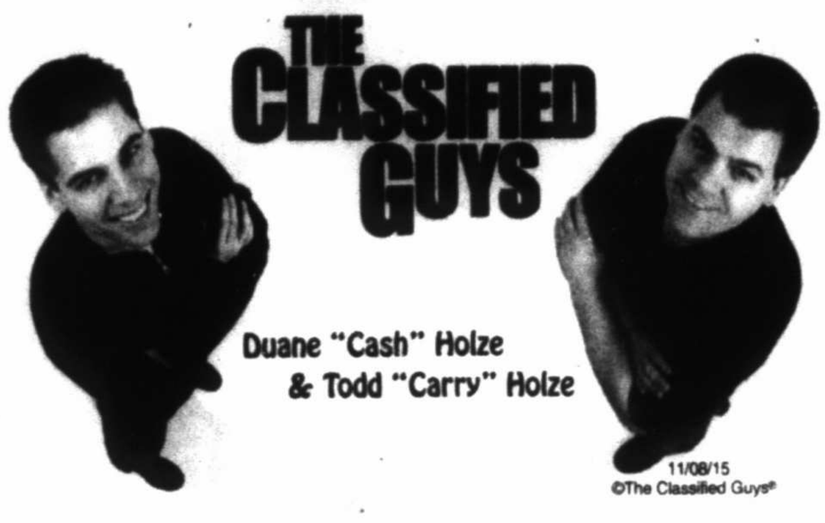
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys,
So I'm watching The Price Is Right one day and one of the bikini babes brings out the cutest kitten from a local animal shelter. For some reason this inspires me to adopt a cat. Within days I rescued a new feline friend from a shelter I saw advertising in the newspaper. At first everything was fine. I'd let the cat out occasionally to run the neighborhood. Then I noticed he would wait by the door to go outside. After a few weeks, he wasn't even coming home at night. It turns out he liked the neighbors better so he moved in there. Do cats really just move out with no sense of loyalty?

Cash: Unfortunately, cats may not be as faithful as The Price Is Right fans. Did you know the show is the longest running game show in North American television history?

Carry: However, "faithful" is not the word we would use to describe your cat. It sounds like the two of you just didn't bond very well, especially if your cat has chosen another family.

Cash: Unlike dogs, who seem to live for us, cats tend to have a much more independent nature, although many people swear by the close-knit bond they have with their feline friends.

Carry: It's difficult to know exactly why your cat chose to take up residence with the neighbor. But it is apparent that your cat found it to be a more rewarding environment.

Cash: He could have received more attention, better food or more treats. Maybe your neighbors allowed him on the sofa, or let him snuggle under the covers at night.

Carry: Who knows, your cat may have been feeling frisky and enjoyed the company of a female companion at the neighbor's house.

Cash: The only true way to know is to talk with your neighbors about their new housemate. They may be able to offer some insight into your cat's behavior.

Carry: You could ask them to discourage the cat from visiting and hope that he comes back home. But in our opinion, if your neighbors and the cat are happy, it's probably just time to let him go and adopt another friend.

Cash: There are plenty of kittens available at the animal shelter that would love a new home with you.

Carry: And if you still miss your cat, you can always ask your neighbors if you can cat-sit when they go on vacation!

Fast Facts

Small Step for Catkind

Every so often there is one cat that stands out above the rest. And if you had ever met an orange tabby named Jake from Ontario, Canada, you'd remember him. Adopted from a local animal shelter, Jake made his way into the Guinness Book of World Records for having twenty-eight toes! He has seven toes on each foot, complete with claws and pads. Now that's a cat that leaves his pawprint in history.

More Morris

Many of us may remember Morris from the 9-Lives commercials. He's often considered the "Clark Gable of Cats". Weighing in at fifteen pounds, Morris was rescued from a shelter by an employee of an advertising agency and transformed into a superstar. His first appearance was in 1968 for a 9-Lives commercial, but he also went on to star in two movies. Morris passed away in 1975, but he still managed to author several books such as "Morris, the Intimate Biography" and "The Morris Approach, an insiders guide to pet care."

Fined

I love my cat but often feel bad that he's cooped up inside all day. So on the weekend, I let him outside to explore the neighborhood.

One day he got into trouble by getting into the neighbor's house. At first, it didn't seem like a big deal. Then, a few months later my neighbor called to tell me that my cat was the proud father of eight kittens.

Now whenever I let my cat outside, he runs to the neighbor's door hoping to get in.

The other day I realized it was getting on my neighbor's nerves. While I was outside, he opened his door, smiled and hung a sign that read, "No Littering".
