McIlhany Enters Race for 31st District Judge

State Representative Grainger McIlhany of Wheeler announced today that he will not be a candidate for re-election, but will seek instead the post of district judge of the 31st Judicial District, which will be vacated by the retirement of Judge Lewis M. Goodrich.

A member of the Texas Legislature for the past 18 years, McIlhany has become well known for his work as a long time member and former chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee. In 1963 he was selected by the TEXAS LAWMAN magazine as the outstanding member of the Texas Legislature. He also served as a member of the Governor's Committee to study the Sociopathic or criminal personality.

McIlhany has authored and supported many laws dealing with juvenile delinquency, traffic safety, tax equalization, narcotics control, livestock health, and improvements in the school system. He is also the House author of the present farm-to-market road law.

A native of Wheeler, McIlhany graduated from Wheeler High School and Tarleton State College. He received a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from The University of Texas before enrolling in law school there. After serving in the army throughout World War II, he returned to The University of Texas where he received his law degree in 1946, and was admitted to the practice of law as a member of the Texas Bar Association.

Married and the father of three children, McIlhany is assistant cubmaster of the Wheeler cubscout pack and teaches a church school class. He has been active in civic work and is a past president of the Wheeler Chamber of Commerce. McIlhany's candidacy is subject to the action of the Democratic primary, May 7.

AFS to Give Facts On Student Exchange

Pampa families interested in hosting a foreign student during the coming school year are invited to attend an informal get together tonight at the Lovett Memorial Library auditorium.

Mrs. Julian Key of the Pampa American Field Service Chapter which is sponsoring the get together, said that the families may obtain information on the non-profit organization's program by attending the meeting between 7 and 9 p.m.

For those unable to attend tonight, Mrs. Key said that information about the requirements and conditions involved in hosting a student may be obtained by contacting Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Chase Jr., of the AFS Homes and Student Family Adjustment committee, MO 5-5740, or Mrs. J. B. Veale Jr., chapter president, MO 5-5712.

The current school year's guest student is Riina Lagus of Uppsala, Sweden. She is living with Dr. and Mrs. Will Graham.

American Field Service serves as an open door to understanding and friendship, Mrs. Key said.

"It is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization that deals with a precious commodity — high school children," she added.

More Light Snow Forecast Today

That light, barely visible snow that has been around yesterday and today will continue until tomorrow noon, the weatherman said this forenoon, with little change in temperature.

The high in Pampa Monday was 28 and the low this morning 18. The mercury will just about duplicate those marks today and tonight, the weatherman said. He held out for a rise to just above the freezing mark Wednesday afternoon.

The snow has amounted to no more than a trace of precipitation in the past 24 hours. The possibility of measurable precipitation tonight and tomorrow is less than 10 per cent, the weather bureau said.

Meanwhile, streets and roads in the area are gradually returning to normal as the combination of work crews and traffic beats away the snow cover. Drivers should, nevertheless, remain cautious as there are patches of ice here and there, particularly on some of the

World Waits For Future Viet Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson, under conflicting pressures regarding the resumption of U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam, continued today to keep his own counsel on possible future strategy decisions.

Allied diplomats with access to high officials said they had the "impression" that a decision to undertake a major escalation of the conflict was not imminent. They spoke in terms of another 10 days.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was returning to Capitol Hill today to further explain the lengths to which the administration has gone in order to get North Viet Nam to the peace table.

His closed session with the House Foreign Affairs Committee followed one Monday with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, whose chairman urged that it be consulted by the President before he ends the lull.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said after the session that Rusk had made no promise to consult the panel as the chairman wished. Rusk said that such consultation was up to Johnson.

Fulbright's attitude reflected the uneasiness felt by a number of congressmen over the possible consequences of an irrevocable escalation of the war before the Communists have been given more time to ponder what their refusal to negotiate might bring.

On the other hand, Johnson had to consider the pleas of other lawmakers and top military officials here and in Saigon for a renewal of the aerial attacks.

Their contention was that continuation of the pause would cause deterioration of the anti-Communist position both militarily and psychologically.

Fulbright said Rusk had been caught in a "crossfire" between factions on the committee which have differing Viet Nam views.

"I have never seen an issue on which there has been such uncertainty," Fulbright told newsmen. "There were no such differences in the Korean War or in World War II. One reason is that this situation isn't very clear cut. It calls for very discriminating and subtle distinctions . . . it causes soul-searching."

'Great Scott'... Here's the Glass, Where's Water?

It was only a drink of water that Pampa Policeman Roger C. Scott wanted, but he got more glass than water when he slipped through a window at the police station yesterday.

Scotty was heading for a drinking fountain near the station door when his feet went out from under him on the wet floor. His knee, backed by 200-pounds-plus, smashed the window, temporarily converting the station to a deep freeze.

When he fell, Scotty put up a hand to protect himself and received a slight cut on the hand, his only injury, fortunately.

This morning, there was new glass in the window. . . .and a much more cautious patrolman.

Walter Rogers Files For Seventh Term

Congressman Walter Rogers of Pampa Monday filed for re-election from the 18th Congressional District with the clerks of the 30 counties in his district.

Rogers, who announced his intention to run for re-election in December has represented the 18th District since 1951.

WALTER ROGERS
. . . files for re-election

Rogers is the only person to file for the congressional seat at this time.

The 18th District was enlarged from 28 counties this past year with the addition of Parmer and Bailey Counties.

Rogers is a member of two important House of Representatives committees — the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

He is chairman of two subcommittees which exercise jurisdiction over U.S. energy resources. He chairs the Commerce Committee's subcommittee on Communications and Power and the Interior Committee's subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation.

Currently, Rogers is chairman of a special subcommittee which is investigating the cause and possible legislative solutions to the power blackouts on the East Coast and in the Southwest last Fall.

Recently, Rogers has gone on record as opposing a suggestion by President Johnson that the terms of Congressmen be extended from two to four years concurrent with that of the President. Johnson urged such a move in his State of the Union message earlier this month.

Rogers expressed his opposition because he feels that longer terms would not make the House as responsive to the wishes of constituents and would place the Congress more under the influence of the President.

One Out of Nine In Gray County In Public Employ

There are fewer people on public payrolls in Gray County, per 1,000 population, than in most communities in the United States.

This fact is brought out in revised figures, brought up to date on the basis of new, national data from the Department of Commerce and others.

Locally, it is now indicated, nearly one out of every 9 employed persons works for some branch of government.

Counted as public employes are all those who are employed in a civilian capacity by the Federal government, or by the states, counties, municipalities and other branches of government.

Their total has been rising at a surprising rate, especially at the state and local levels, according to the Census Bureau's governments division.

The biggest increase in employment in recent years has not been in the nation's factories or service industries, it is noted, but in state and local agencies.

Since 1960, about 1,350,000 persons have been added to their payrolls. At the Federal level, again surprisingly, the increase in the same period has been only about 150,000.

The number of people in Gray County who are now employed by public agencies is approximately 1,310.

This is well above the 1,124 who were in government jobs in the county in 1960, when a nationwide occupational survey was conducted by the Department of Commerce.

The figures for the local area show that, in terms of the working population, some 11.7 percent are in government employ.

This compares with an average of 13.6 percent in the United States as a whole and 13.9 percent in Texas.

The Census Bureau finds that "the increased number of jobs in state and local governments is the most remarkable — and the least noticed — feature of the current employment situa-

Crash of Transport Remains A Mystery

SAIGON (UPI) — Forty-seven U.S. servicemen, all from the Army, died today in the fiery crash of an Air Force C123 transport plane in the mountainous Central Highlands. It was one of the worst military air disasters of the war.

Cause of the crash was unkown, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The plane carried 43 members of the 1st Cavalry (Air Mobile) Division's 7th Regiment. Four U.S. Air Force crewmen aboard were attached to the 315th Air Commando Squadron.

The U.S. spokesman said the transport slammed into a jungled hillside five miles east of the 1st Cavalry headquarters and base camp at An Khe, 250 miles northeast of Saigon. The crash occurred just after takeoff above the Deo Mang Pass on Route 19, the strategic highway linking the highlands with the coast.

The GIs were being taken on a routine flight to a staging area in what the spokesman called "marginal" flying weather. Air Force and Army officials flew to the crash scene to begin an investigation.

The Viet Cong were disclosed to have used the biggest mortars in the Communist arsenal in the early morning attack today on the Da Nang airbase and nearby Marine installations which killed two Americans and two Vietnamese.

The Communists used 120mm mortars in the 40-minute attack. Eleven Americans and 11 Vietnamese were wounded in the barrage.

At least 21 rounds landed in Marine defensive positions south of Marble Mountain. Seven more crashed into a nearby area where 2,000 U.S. Navy Seabees were sleeping.

Until several weeks ago, the largest mortars known to be in the hands of the Viet Cong were of the 81mm type. Authorities said the Communists were trying to knock out the fuel dump at Da Nang, 375 miles north of Saigon, but failed. No planes were hit but four trucks, a mobile crane and an asphalt spreader were damaged.

A multi-battalion allied operation in the Song Da Rang Valley, 230 miles northeast of Saigon, resumed today after a four-day lull during the lunar New Year. A U.S. military spokesman said only light contact with the enemy was reported Monday night and today.

Elsewhere, Marines reported 19 clashes with the Viet Cong during routine patrols in the Chu Lai area 60 miles south of Da Nang. Three guerrillas were killed in one fight and 28 Viet Cong suspects were picked up in other actions.

A spokesman reported "light" casualties among Marine infantrymen near a tank which hit a mine today.

Commission OK's Bond Legislation On First Reading

Pampa's city commission today passed unanimously on first reading the ordinance calling for a $2,900,000 bond election on Tuesday, March 8.

The legislation provides for submitting five separate proposals to voters.

Pampans with poll tax receipts or exemptions will be permitted to vote "for" or "against" these five propositions:

No. 1. The issuance of bonds for the improvement of Alcock St. ($236,000).

No. 2. The issuance of bonds for improvements to Wilks, Brown and Frederic Sts. ($595,000).

No. 3. The issuance of bonds for improvements to S. Cuyler and Barnes Sts. ($369,000).

No. 4. The issuance of bonds for improving streets and thoroughfares throughout the city. ($950,000).

No. 5. The issuance of waterworks system tax bonds. ($750,000).

The bonds would be issued as general tax obligation bonds with a maximum maturity date of 30 years. Interest rates are not to exceed 6 per cent per annum.

The following polling places are listed in the ordinance: Ward 1, City Hall; Ward 2, North Fire Sub-Station, 321 E. 17th; Ward 3, Langley & Gray Cabinet Shop, 323 S. Starkweather, and Ward 4, South Fire Sub-Station, 1010 S. Barnes.

LISTEN, HOME FRONT

This Is Viet Nam: 'Americans in One Hell of a Fix'

THE LONG MUDDY LINE: "He is not a bit player in a comic opera conflict, not the trump in an international card game . . ."

NEW YORK — (NEA—There is a feeling in Viet Nam that the politicos and proletariat here still dismiss the conflict as a confrontation of diplomats rather than dogfaces, that it is a war not of warriors but of words.

Indeed, a GI can easily feel he's part of a political poker match as Viet Nam's curious casino draws countless office-holders who joy in visiting briefly and sometimes ignorantly playing the game.

Clad in khaki, they helicopter (at 250 tax dollars an hour) into a war zone, summon up weary troops from home districts, slap them on the back and ask if anyone has any problems?

Any problems?

Well, sir, first there are the Viet Cong. They're a problem. Then there are the insects big enough to carry a man away, the malaria and dysentery, the 14-15 hour workdays, the absence of women, booze and overtime pay.

One VIP learned of a problem recently when he asked a trooper:

"Anything bothering you here, son?"

"Yessir," the soldier replied.

"Well, what? We'll try to get it fixed up." The boy hesitated.

"What is it?" the visitor persisted. "I'll take care of it, boy."

"Well," the kid said, "I got this ingrown toenail, see, and . . ."

The GI was not being impertinent. In his own way he was trying to make the point that this is war. That it's not a game. That though the visitor will leave, the troopers won't. That it is dirty, rotten and serious.

This is the fact: It's war.

Feeling in Viet Nam is that most back-homers, including lawmakers, do not understand or accept this truth. That the bulk of America considers Southeast Asia with confusion and thus, if anything with mild contempt.

A soldier returning home from the front will find many people can't yet point Viet Nam out on a map, can't guess the number of weekly casualties there, can't figure out who the enemy is, and can't understand what it's all about except they guess freedom is involved.

"You think Viet Nam is bad?" a statesider will grin. "Brother,

Foreign Commentary

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

Notes From The Foreign News Cables:

Market Showdown:

French officials expect the Jan. 28-29 Common Market foreign ministers meeting at Luxembourg to be a make-or-break showdown. They say France is determined not to back down on rejection of majority voting and clipping the commission's wings. French officials are frankly pessimistic about prospects of agreement and say continued deadlock could kill the Common Market. Bonn reports say West Germany is expected to give in.

Carrier Prices:

Britain is dropping the idea of buying an aircraft carrier from the United States. Britain is short of aircraft carriers and it would be cheaper and faster to buy one than to build one. But the decision is not just prompted by British considerations. The United States apparently is no longer in the market for selling carriers in the light of the steadily raisng demands of the Viet Nam war.

Philippine Assistance:

The statement by Filipino Sen. Jose W. Diokno in Manila proposing technical assistance to North Viet Nam as well as South Viet Nam has made headlines and startled a number of persons in the firmly anti-Communist island. Most observers believe Diokno's statement was aimed at pushing the idea of an Asian mediator's block on Viet Nam to show the Philippines can be "liberal minded" about the hottest issue in the world.

Rival General:

A retired South Korean army general is being mentioned in Seoul as one of possible opponents against President Park Chung Hee in the presidential elections next year. He is Park Byung Kwon, who once served as defense minister following the 1961 military coup. He is popular among students, who regard him as anti-Park Chung Hee.

NATO Changes:

President Charles de Gaulle of France now seems to be in no hurry about presenting his demands for revision of the NATO command set up by 1969. A few weeks ago French officials were predicting they would be laid before other NATO countries in the first three months of this year. Now they say they will be made known "some time during 1966." No explanation is given for the delay.

Singapore Trade:

Singapore is not going ahead with its plans to resume limited barter with neighboring Indonesia. Leading political sources in Kuala Lumpur say Malaysia flatly warned Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew it might cut off rubber exports through Singapore. A top level team in Malaysia made a study and concluded it was perfectly feasible to ship direct from Malaysian ports. Such a move would badly depress Singapore which now handles all of Malaysia's rubber shipments.

Moroccan Trouble:

French officials look for President Charles de Gaulle to break relations with Morocco over the Ben Barka scandal. The French are convinced that Moroccan Interior Minister Gen. Mohammad Oufkir was the man who engineered the kidnaping and possible murder of leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka in Paris.

De Gaulle is said to believe King Hassan II may be covering up for Oufkir and if the Moroccans refuse to hand him over, a break may be forthcoming.

PILLAGED PROPERTY

FORT WORTH (UPI) —City officials Monday admitted they had goofed — but bad.

Raymond Crowder and his wife went to their rented house and found it was not there. They reported the missing house to police.

Police found that the city had hired a wrecking crew to tear it down. Except it was not the Crowder house that was to be leveled. A clerk gave the wrecking crew the wrong address.

Three Suspects Held Here in McLean Theft

Three young suspects from Michigan were being held in Gray County jail Tuesday in connection with the burglary past weekend of O. T. Rose's service station in McLean.

The three, Danny Lee Atkinson, 18; Sheldon Lee Myers, 22; and Syd V. Talmage, 18, were apprehended at Amarillo at 6:30 Monday evening by Amarillo city police.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said that about $21 was taken from a cigarette machine at the station and a .25 caliber pistol. When apprehended, Jordan said, the suspects were driving an automobile taken from McLean.

The three were to have a preliminary hearing today on burglary charges before Justice of the Peace G. L. Lunsford.

The trio, all from Jackson in southern Michigan, were returned to Pampa from Amarillo last night by Deputy Sheriff Jim Shelton of McLean and Texas Ranger Bill Baten of Pampa.

$125 in Leftovers, But No Invitation

Somebody held a beer party in David J. Sims car yesterday, but didn't invite him and left him holding a bill for an estimated $125 to $150 in repairs, he told police.

Sims, 1942 N. Dwight, said that he had parked his car yesterday afternoon in the Church of Christ parking lot near Pampa High School. When he returned to the car at 1:50 p.m. he found the evidence of the beer party and damage to the car.

The damages included a clumsy attempt to remove the radio, ripped out wiring, a torn down dome light and a rear radio speaker torn from its moorings.

New 1966 Officers Preside at First Insurance Meet

Methods through which Pampa insurance agencies can help to keep local insurance rates at low levels were discussed Monday in the monthly meeting of the Pampa Insurance Exchange.

The meeting, the first of 1966, was the first at which the group's new officers presided. The new officers include Warren Fatheree, of the Cree Agency, president; H. W. Waters, Waters Agency, vice president; and Lindy Houck, Joe Fischer Agency, secretary-treasurer.

The group, which meets the fourth Monday of each month for luncheon at the Pampa Hotel, formulated plans for its 1966 program. The discussion of how the agencies can help insurers to realize more benefits and lower rates through proper counselling came up during the planning session.

"We are interested in writing more real insurance, not just policies," Fatheree said.

● Commission

sioner Roy Kay, the commission went on record as favoring all five of the bond propositions and thanked members of the three citizens' advisory committees that recommended them.

An annual audit of city books by Nenstiel & Dogget of Pampa was accepted and authorization was given to pay the auditors $1,250 for their work.

Aubrey Steele, representing the Gray-Pampa Foundation, told commissioners the Foundation board had authorized a committee consisting of Hugh Burdette and Charles Cook to cooperate with the city manager and other city officials in beautifying that portion of the city park area immediately west of N. Hobart. They also were authorized to spend as much as $15,000 of Foundation funds for that purpose, including the right to use all or such part of the fund as they see fit for the purchase of a sprinkler system for the park.

The commission approved the award of contracts to low bidders for the purchase of four city trucks as follows: Culberson and Stowers Chevrolet, two ½-ton pickup trucks, $3,021.42; International Harvester Co., one 2½-ton truck, $7,312.13 and one 2-ton truck, $2,874.29. All four purchases involved tradeins.

Two Panhandle Counties Get Pay Raises

Two Panhandle counties Monday announced pay raises for county employes.

Hemphill County commissioners approved a 10 per cent salary increase for all county employes after an open hearing Monday. Five Randall County employes, four of them elected, also received pay hikes.

In Hemphill, the raises included $600 annually, more than the 10 per cent, for the sheriff, deputy sheriff and county clerk. The county judge will now receive $6,720, including pay of $4,620, $1,800 as county school superintendent, and $300 travel expense.

The Hemphill treasurer and attorney both will now receive $4,620 per year. Justices of the peace will get raises from $1,600 to $1,760 plus a $60 phone allowance per year.

In Randall County, the treasurer and two justices of the peace received hikes of $300 per year making their annual pay $6,000. The district clerk was raised $600 to $6,450 per year. The non-elected employe; at the county library, was given a pay hike from $1,200 to $1,500 annually.

New Girl Scout Officers Set For Installation

Election and installation of officers will highlight the annual dinner meeting of the Quivira Girl Scout Council at 7 p.m. in the First Methodist Church.

Mrs. J. R. Holloway, council president, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. Roland Allen of Borger will install the newly-elected officers of the 10-county Quivira Council.

Other program highlights include Rev. Harry Vanderpool, guest speaker; reports and announcements by Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, executive director; presentation of awards by Mrs. Bob Andis, board member; a program, "Our Senior Roundup Girls", by Mrs. Elmont Branigan; and films of the 1965 Roundup at Faragut, Idaho.

Chamber Directors To Meet Thursday

The monthly directors meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, which was postponed yesterday, has been reset for 10 a.m. Thursday in the Chamber Conference Room.

President Norman C. Henry reported that several interesting committee reports will be on the agenda.

Pampan Returns From Austin Meet

W. R. Milliron of Milliron Engineering Co., Inc., has returned from an Executive Board meeting of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers in Austin.

Milliron also attended sessions and discussions concerning professional engineers employed in industry, private practice, government, and education. The Pampan is a member of the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, affiliated with the National Society of Professional Engineers, and is serving his first term as the group's state representative.

Carubbi Speaks At Kiwanis Meet

A. J. Carubbi, state Jaycee president, addressed members of the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club at their meeting in Coronado Inn last night.

His topic was "Responsibility of Citizenship."

"The first thing to improve citizenship responsibility," Carubbi said, "is for man to improve himself."

Dr. T. J. Wright, club president, presided.

Geologist To Address PJHS Future Scientists

William H. Mathews, professor of geology at Lamar State College, will address the newly-formed Pampa Junior High Chapter 3512 of the Future Scientists of America.

Mathews will speak to club members at the group's regular meeting at 8 a.m. at Pampa Junior High School tomorrow. After presenting an hour-long assembly program, he will visit science classes during the day.

Mathews received both his B.A. and M.A. degrees in geology from Texas Christian. For the past 17 years he has been an oil company geologist, consultant to the Texas Education Agency and the Beaumont Schools, and a visiting professor at Sul Ross State College.

The professor's latest published work is the "Geologic Story of Palo Duro Canyon." He received the 1965 Neil Miner Award of the National Association of Geology Teachers.

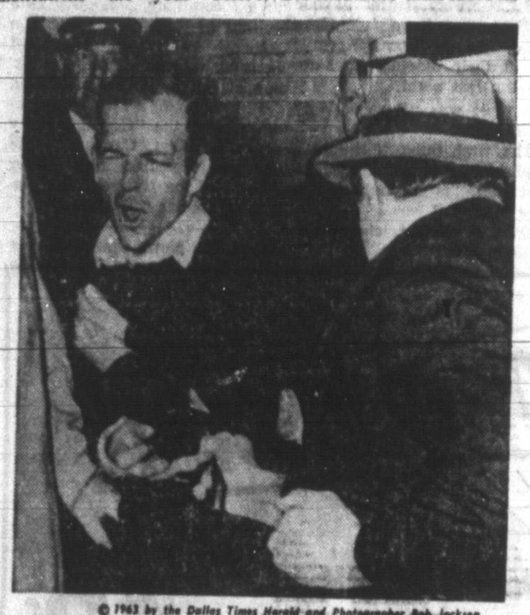
Anybody Can Buy A Gun

By TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
(First in a series)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — On Nov. 22, 1963, President John Kennedy was killed by a bullet fired from a mail-order rifle purchased by a mentally deranged man.

Last February the wife of a Falls Church, Va., school principal shot her four children to death before killing herself with a pistol. The woman, who had spent six months in two mental institutions the year before, bought the pistol that morning at a department store.



© 1963 by the Dallas Times Herald and Photographer Bob Jackson

A now-famous weapon was used by Jack Ruby to kill Lee Harvey Oswald who killed John Kennedy with a mail-order rifle.

In Baltimore — where a written statement from the police commissioner and a 15-day waiting period are necessary before a pistol can be purchased — a robber in mid-1964 took a taxi to suburban Essex where he bought a pistol. Four months later, a bullet from the gun killed a Baltimore policeman.

A San Mateo, Calif., electronics worker bought a rifle at a shopping center last October. The hours later, he used the weapon to kill his girl friend and himself.

These senseless tragedies occurred in part because anybody in the United States can buy a gun. There are no restrictions on the sale of rifles and shotguns anywhere. Only seven states require a permit to purchase a handgun.

Despite the emotional furies aroused by the assassination of President Kennedy, despite a national poll which showed eight out of 10 Americans favored stiffer firearms-registration requirements, despite a strong plea for a tough gun-control measure by President Johnson, Congress has twice failed to do anything about the easy availability of guns.

This is not due to a lack of opportunity. Altogether there have been 34 firearms - control measures introduced in the last 26 months.

The primary reason for this foot-dragging is the strong reaction of a small, but vocal, segment of the public hunters, gun collectors, firearms dealers and "patriotic" organizations.

Opponents to severe federal firearms legislation point out that any criminal who seeks weapons and ammunition can always find them. Even the most stringent law would not prevent this.

At the same time, they say, any law which tightens the availability of firearms would seriously curtail activities of dedicated hunters and marksmen who, after all, should have the right to pursue their particular hobby.

Spearhead of the gun lobby, one of the most powerful in Washington, is the National Rifle Association, an organization which, because of loopholes in the federal lobbying act, is not required to register as a lobby.

From a small group of New York National Guard officers, the NRA has grown in 94 years to a national organization with more than 700,000 members. It can mobilize roughly another half-million supporters in some 12,000 NRA-affiliated gun clubs and groups.

Focal point of the NRA effort over the past two years is the President's gun bill, introduced by Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn.

Thanks mainly to NRA tactics, this "hard line" measure has aroused the bitterest opposition since Franklin Roosevelt tried to pack the Supreme Court. Dodd's bill would:

—Ban all mail-order gun sales.

—Impose tougher record-keeping requirements on retail dealers to aid local police in keeping track of gun sales.

—Raise license fees.

—Ban the import of foreign military surplus weapons.

The NRA interprets these provisions as prohibiting "the interstate movement of all firearms to all persons other than federally licensed manufacturers and dealers."

Thousands of NRA members have interpreted this statement as saying that the bill would bar a Connecticut duck hunter from buying a shotgun in Colorado. This is misconception, Dodd says.

With statements such as the above, the NRA caused a virtual inundation of Congress by letter and wire.

Dodd says this campaign is the primary reason the bill has been stalled in his own Judiciary subcommittee for two years. He was unable to round up a quorum to act on the measure after hearings were completed last July. This year, Dodd vows, it will be different.

"I'm going to get a vote at long last," he says, "if I have to use every parliamentary trick in the book, and several that aren't."

Though the NRA is flatly opposed to the President's bill, it likes several others which have been introduced — including one which Dodd put in before the assassination of President Kenedy.

Says NRA Executive Vice President Franklin Orth:

"Obviously there are some abuses that we all agree need correcting."

Adds the NRA Executive Committee: "There can be good, forward - looking, federal legislation. It is not necessary to accept unreasonable restrictions."

But the NRA's idea of acceptable legislation does not block the easy availability of guns — the basic reason for having a firearms-control law.

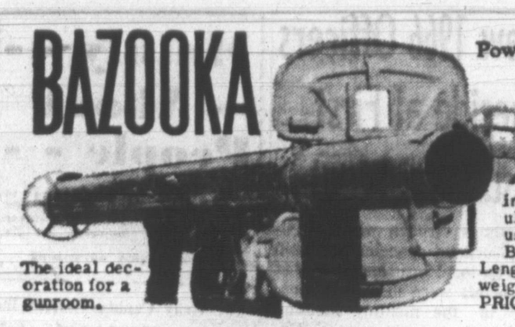
BAZOOKA

Powerful Portable Antitank Weapon



The ideal decoration for a gunroom.

ACHTUNG! Here is the acme of all German ordnance. The original Bazooka used by German troops to smash American British forces all-over Europe. We have these weapons in two varieties. One is the standard Wermacht model in regular olive drab color. The other is the camouflage color model used by fanatical SS Troops at the Battle of the Bulge. Both models are truly Germanic. Length of Bazooka is 64 1/2 inches and the weight (without shield) is 21 1/2 pounds.
PRICE, complete with shield.... $24.95

NEW YORK (UPI) —Thomson & McKinnon says implied caution at this critical market stage does not call for a flight to the storm cellars or, for that matter, a major shift to fixed return or other defensive securities.

The firm says the economy still is very much in the growth stage and there is no evidence to suggest a serious turning point.

The International Statistical Bureau Inc., says the market is at an important psychological level where caution will gain. However, the firm says, caution and profit-taking do not imply the end of an upward trend and the market may be experiencing a temporary breathing spell before reaching still higher levels.

Leslie M. Pollock of Reynolds & Co., says it has been his contention all along that the bull market has been caused primarily by increasing earnings and this still seems to be the case in an economy which is rapidly reaching the heated-up stage.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., introduced a resolution Monday requesting the President to declare April 9 of each year as Sir Winston Churchill day. The date marks the anniversary of the late British leader's honorary American citizenship.

PRESENTS AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Frank Chelf, D-Ky., Monday introduced President Johnson's proposed constitutional amendment to extend terms for House members from two to four years.

Chelf said he sponsored the administration measure even though it differed from his own proposal. Chelf had urged that half of the House run every two years for four-year terms, but Johnson proposed four-year terms all starting in presidential election years.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Joint Committee on the Organization of the Congress was created last year to study ways of reforming the legislative machinery.

At last report, it had interviewed 181 witnesses in hearings that filled 13 volumes totaling 2,063 pages. It had received scores of suggestions on how Congress might improve itself.

It had, however, reached only one decision. It had decided to recommend a one-year extension of the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress.

But don't get the wrong idea. I feel certain that the committee eventually will act with courage and determination. These things take time.

Comparable Bind

In some ways the problem is comparable to that facing the Joint Committee on Reducation of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures.

If this group becomes overly zealous it might conclude that the committee itself is a non-essential federal expenditure.

The reform committee likewise must exercise a certain amount of caution. If all of the proposals that have been laid before it were adopted, I fear there wouldn't be much of Congress left.

Among the more interesting reforms, in my judgment, was one advocated by Rep. Weston E. Vivian, D-Mich. It concerned a previous proposal that proceedings in the House and Senate be opened to national television.

"I suggest instead that we have a telephone channel available to every switchboard in the nation," Vivian said. "A person then could simply dial a telephone number to know just what is going on, to hear the proceedings live."

Wrong Numbers

He did not make clear whether the callers would be able to reverse the charges, but that isn't too important. The fun would be in the wrong numbers.

It could produce situations like these:

—A lady in Sacramento phones her hairdresser for an appointment, dials a wrong digit and gets a five-hour speech by Sen. Wayne Morse.

—A party in Omaha phones his brother-in-law in Chicago and is connected with the Senate during a quorum call.

"Let me speak to Sam," he says.

"Magnuson," calls the Senate clerk.

"No, no. I'm calling Sam. Sam Donahue."

"Mansfield," calls the clerk. And so on down the list.

—A horse player in Mobile calls his bookmaker for the results of the third race. "... Kennedy ... Kuchel ... Lausche ..." He hangs up and shoots self.

Quotes From The News

By United Press International

WASHINGTON —Rep. Frank T. Bow, R-Ohio, senior GOP member of the House Appropriations Committee, warning that he plans to direct an "economic task force" to trim government budget requests:

"Last year wasn't a good year for saving money. But now we think the climate has changed."

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D.-Fla., protesting the planned burial in Arlington National Cemetery of Robert G. Thompson, a world war II hero and former member of the American Communist Party:

"To have Arlington Cemetery ... bespoiled by the interment of a man dedicated to the overthrow of our beloved country is as painful a concept as I can imagine."

WASHINGTON —Sen. J. William Fullbright, D-Ark., commenting on the divergent views of his Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the proper policy to take towards resumption of bombing over North Viet Nam:

"I have never seen an issue on which there has been such uncertainty ... One reason is that this situation isn't very clear cut. It calls for very discriminating and subtle distinctions ... It causes soul-searching."

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —ABC-TV's long-running series of medical dramas, "Ben Casey," once the most-talked-about show on television, will be replaced in March.

Network officials finally said publicly on Monday what the video industry had long surmised, that Dr. Casey was at the end of the line.

In the latest national ratings released Monday, "Casey" finished 89th among 103 programs.

On March 28, "Casey" will be replaced by a one-hour series called "The Avengers," a lighthearted secret agent entry made in England and long popular there.

Actually, an ABC-TV press release says only that "The Avengers" will replace spring and summer reruns of "Ben Casey."

Failure Inadmissible

But this is merely because ABC-TV press releases seem unable to bear an admission that one of the network's shows has failed. One hardly ever reads in ABC-TV press releases about programs being canceled, only about new ones coming. You wonder where the old ones went.

At any rate, the network officials were perfectly willing to guarantee in conversation what the press release found somewhat indecent tome t on —failure, if you can call it that, of "Casey."

The same release also said that the Jimmy Dean musical series will be replaced in April.

The new program, starting April 8, will be a weekly one-hour drame called "Court-Martial," also made in England, and dealing with "two officer-lawyers working out of the judge advocate general's office in Europe during World War II." The stars are Bradford Dillman and Peter Graves.

Again, however, the curious press release merely notes that the Dean show will have its spring and summer reruns replaced. Again phone calls were required so that the network might explain exactly what it meant when it said what it said.

One network official, on the West Coast, said the series was pretty well dead.

Another network official, on the East Coast, said the series was still a candidate for ABC-TV's fall schedule.

Friendly Opponents

In "Court-Martial," to get down to some program specifics, Dillman and Graves, in their lawyer roles, usually oppose each other in trials but are "close friends who find the drama of war mainly outside the courtroom. To them investigation and detective work is (sic) as vital as cross-examination."

With "The Avengers" and "Court-Martial," Britain soon will have landed five one-hour series on American television, much to the chagrin of some Hollywood unions and craftsmen. CBS-TV already has "Secret Agent." ABC-TV currently has "The Baron," another secret agent offering. And NBC-TV soon will take over the syndicated show called "The Saint," which is in the same vein.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In comparatively well-stocked and relaxed Budapest, Hungary, not too long ago, a British buyer leaned back and told of his most recent trip to Red China.

"You have no idea," he said, "how they hate the United States.

"It's drummed into the smallest children. As an English - speaking businessman, I almost had to wear a flag on my jacket to prove I was not an American."

The businessman, a toybuyer whose trip had not been too successful, typified in his own way the thousands of well-manicured representatives of the West who stream into Red China in the interests of expanded trade.

Trading Trend

Even as the United States steadfastly has maintained its total ban on trade with Red China, its Western allies and Japan steadily have whittled down the agreed list of strategic goods banned for sale to the nation of 700 million people.

To U.S. protests that increased trade only builds up Red Chinese war potential, the allies reply that an increasingly prosperous Red China inevitably must become less aggressive and therefore less of a threat to world peace.

Within the last year, Red China's trade with the West jumped close to 20 per cent over 1964, most of it in far less frivolous items than toys.

It did not make Red China a major trading nation. The two-way trade, amounting to about $3.5 billion, came to less than drop in the bucket of the world total.

Nor did the Western traders make any great killing. The Chinese are shrewd bargainers.

In the forefront of U.S. allies increasing their Red China trade was Japan.

Vast Market

Despite the fact that the United States remains Japan's best customer, Japanese businessmen traditionally look toward China as a vast market and increasingly are pressing the government to remove restraints.

Last year, Japan's trade with the Red Chinese came to about $400 million, suggesting that eventually Japan may become Red China's major trading partner.

As the Soviet-Red Chinese rift has deepened, the Chinese have not let ideological reasons stand in the way of expanded world trade.

On generous credit terms she has purchased heavy freighters and trucks from France, oil pipes from Britain, seamless steel pipes from West Germany and whole plants from West Germany for an over-all total in the non-Communist world of about $2.5 billion.

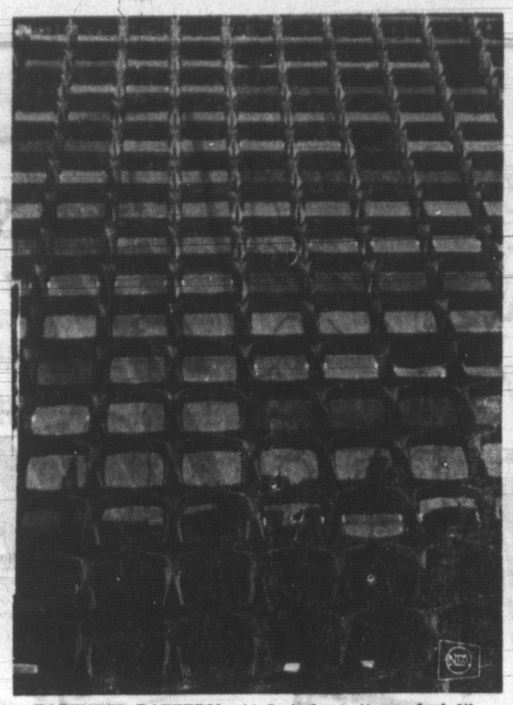
A modifying factor in Red China's expanding world trade will be her continuing need to import grains to feed her expanding population.

Most of this will come from Canada, Australia and Argentina.

Red China's pressing drive to recover from the disaster of the "great leap forward" in 1958 and to expand her industry and agriculture provide important reasons for her refusal so far to become involved in a war with the United States over Viet Nam.

None of the goals could be accomplished if the United States blockaded her ports and wrecked her cities.

In 1964, the United States launched an unmanned Saturn rocket which crash landed on the moon four days later.



PATENTED PATTERN—At first glance it may look like massed television sets, but it's actually the wall of a Belgian political party's headquarters in Brussels. Framed in concrete, the windows are in rubber strips similar to a car windshield. The unique design has been patented.

MRS. KENNEDY'S OFFICE

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson has included in his budget requests $50,000 to operate the New York office of Mrs. John F. Kennedy for one more year.

Congress is not required to maintain an office for the widow of the late President but presumably will continue to vote funds for her as long as she and Johnson desire. The former first lady found it necessary to maintain an office with three secretaries to handle the heavy volume of mail she receives.

PROTEST MADE

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., protested Monday against the planned burial at Arlington National Cemetery of Robert G. Thompson, a decorated World War HI veteran and one of 11 leaders of the American Communist Party convicted of conspiracy in 1949.

"To have Arlington Cemetery, a place hallowed by the graves of our nation's greatest heroes, bespoiled by the interment of a man dedicated to the overthrow of our beloved country is as painful a concept as I can imagine," Bennett told the House.

AIRLINES CUT FARES

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The nation's domestic airlines have agreed to cut fares if the government will let them retain jet surcharges in markets where jets are replacing propeller-driven planes.

Presidents of nine airlines and high-level representatives of two others were reported to have made the offer Monday at a meeting with Charles Murphy, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB).

Mother, Three Children Found Stabbed to Death

BALTIMORE (UPI) —The bodies of three children and their 23-year-old mother were found in their north Baltimore home today.

Police identified the mother as Mrs. Geraldine Taylor and said she apparently had been beaten to death. Her children; their throats slit and stab wounds in various parts of their bodies, were Jacqueline, 3; Curtis, 14 months, and Sandie 5.

The bodies were found in third-floor bedrooms. All wore night clothes.

The woman's stepfather, Bearnard Smith, 53, told police he went to Mrs. Taylor's home this morning after finding out she had not reported Sunday to a theater where she worked.

The stepfather found all the doors locked and received no response to persistent ringing of the doorbell, he said. He called police who broke open a rear door of the house and discovered the bodies.

The policemen found a blood-smeared, bone-handled hunting knife in one room.

Investigators said they had not been able to contact the woman's husband, James Taylor, 47.

Post Office to Distribute George Washington Stamp

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien yesterday made public the design of a new George Washington regular 5 cent stamp, according to Lynn Boyd.

It will be first issued February 22 at Washington, D. C. as the third in the "Prominent Americans" series of eighteen new regular stamps.

The stamp is based on a portrait by Rembrandt Peale as adapted by Bill Hyde, the San Francisco artist who also produced the Lincoln stamp design currently in use. It is an idealized portrait of the Father of His Country in military uniform, first painted in 1823 and duplicated by the artist 79 times.

The original, bought by Congress in 1832 for the sizeable fee of $2,000, hangs in the office of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Artist Hyde's working model was acquired by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C. in 1942, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Davison, of New York City.

The Peale portrait will replace the Washington 5 cent stamp based on a bust by French sculpter Jean Antoine Houdon that has been in use since Nov. 23, 1962.

It is a vertical stamp, measuring 0.75 by 0.87, with Washington facing the viewer's left. Vertical left in roman capitals is "United States." At the top, in the same type style, is "Washington." The denomination "five cents" appears upper right. The stamp will be printed in blue on the Cottrell presses and will be issued in panes of 100. Vignette was engraved by Charles A. Brooks and lettering was by William R. Burnell, of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. 20013. Postage stamps and personal checks will not be accepted in payment of the new issue. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers five cent Washington stamp." Orders for covers must not include requests for uncanceled stamps. Requests must be postmarked no later than February 22, 1966.

Rembrandt Peale (1778-1860) was a member of perhaps the most prolific family of artists this nation has produced. He was the son of an artist, two brothers were artists, as were his uncle and three cousins.

His father, Charles Willson Peale, painted in 1772 what is believed to be the first portrait of Washington. This was basis for the 1½-cent stamp, issued in 1932 as part of the Washington bicentennial series of 12 commemorative stamps.

Rembrandt Peale first painted Washington in 1795 when the aging President granted three sittings to the talented 17-year old artist.

Following Washington's death in 1799, Peale set out to paint an idealized, heroic portrait of the first president in the prime of life—a Washington he never knew. He was guided by portraits by Gilbert Stuart and John Trumbull.

Peale painted 16 portraits and while these found ready buyers, he felt that he was falling short of the mark. Finally in 1823 he decided to make one last attempt. He worked constantly for three months. The result was the celebrated "Porthole Portrait," so named because the portrait peers through an oval.

The portrait was exhibited in Europe and in principal American cities before being purchased by Congress in 1832. Peale painted 79 duplicate portraits, some in military uniform, some in civilian garb but with essentially the same features.

A native Pennsylvanian, Peale studied in London and Paris, then spent much of his life roving America.

He was born on Washington's birthday in 1777. His father died on Washington's birthday in 1827.

'Day of Prayer' Scheduled Feb. 25

NEW YORK (UPI) — The World Day of Prayer, held annually on the first Friday in Lent since 1887, will be Feb. 25 this year, reminds the National Council of Churches, which says its purpose is to "unite all Christians in a bond of prayer giving individuals an opportunity to share in a fellowship of prayer with others around the world and witness to their belief that prayer has the power to bring men's hearts into conformity with God's will."

The observance, says the Council, provides support for home and foreign missions and is carried out in more than 50,000 U.S. communities and about 125 countries around the world.

In 1965, Harry Stuhldreher of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen" football backfield died at the age of 63.

Dear Abby....

Marines From Tent 7 Want Quiet Homecoming

DEAR ABBY: You asked the troops in Viet Nam what kind of homecoming they would like. We, members of Tent 7, U. S. Marine Corps, H&MS-12, Chu Lai, would like to reply:

We just want to return home and find our parents, sweethearts and wives happy and healthy. We don't want any brass bands or welcome home banners. What we have seen and done here we'd like to forget, so give those of us who are lucky enough to make it home a quiet homecoming.

Very cordially yours,

Richard B. Ownes, Sgt., Orlando, Fla; Robert C. Packard, Pfc., Pittsburgh, Pa.; George Jones, Cpl., Mpls., Minn.; Ray D. Smith, Pfc., Portland, Ore.; Ray Richardson, Dothan, Ala.; Larry Little, Pfc., Wheelwright, Ky.; George Clouse, Cpl., Woodbridge, Va.; Howard Dyar, Mentor, O.; Charles T. Briggs, Marion Mass.

DEAR ABBY: There is this man where I work who is always talking about sex. No matter what is said, he turns it into something having to do with sex. He is married and has a grown family, and if it weren't for this one fault of his he would be a very nice person because he's intelligent, well-read and has a good sense of humor. But he spoils everything by dragging sex into every conversation. What is wrong with him, anyway?

REVOLTED

DEAR REVOLTED: I don't know. But you can bet it has something to do with sex. When a person constantly talks about sex, it's a fairly safe bet that he's doing all that he can about it—talking.

DEAR ABBY: How does one introduce his father's second wife? I just can't say, "Meet my stepmother."

This woman raised me since I was two years old. I have always called her "Aunt Mary." Now that I am married, when I introduce "Aunt Mary" to my friends, and it turns out she is my father's wife, it is all too ridiculous. Please help me with this awkward problem.

FEELING FOOLISH

DEAR FEELING: It's too bad the fairy tales have made "stepmother" a slur, because whether you can say it or not, that's exactly who your "Aunt Mary" is. Why don't you just call her "Mother"? If she raised you since you were two, even if you don't feel she is really your mother, I'll bet she feels that you are really her son.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please, please print this for me and for all the other mothers of sons who have this problem:

What happened to the good old days when boys chased girls? I am the mother of a 16-year-old son and I am bothered all day and sometimes up until 12 o'clock at night with girls calling my boy. When I say he is not home, they keep calling. Often when I answer, they hang up in my face. Boys don't like to be called by girls. I've seen my son drop at least four girls because they called him all the time. I have a 14-year-old daughter, and if I ever catch her calling a boy I'll tan her hide. I am almost angry anough to have our phone taken out. And I hope every girl in Highland Park, Illinois, who knows my son, reads this.

Mrs. Poole Gives Chapter Program

Xi Beta Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday evening in Lovett Memorial Library.

Meeting was called to order by Mrs. Jay Leath, president, who was elected to office of president after Mrs. Jim Meredith, former president, moved to Oklahoma.

All members repeated the Opening Ritual. A leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Jody Cook. Reports were given by the various committee chairmen.

The program was presented by Mrs. Hazel Poole, who told of her travels through Denmark, Sweden and Norway this past summer. Slides from each country were shown.

Mrs. Buck Buckingham was welcomed as a guest.

The meeting was adjourned by all members repeating the Closing Ritual.

Hostesses for the evening were Mmes. O. B. Bailey and Stanley Chittenden.

Members present were Mmes. Vernon Cawthon, Stanley Chittenden, O. V. Bailey, Ralph Esson, Joe Fischer, Ernest Fletcher, Dot Francis, Gerry Grayson, Leymond Hall, Jim Holcomb, Jay Leath, Bill Martin, Geo. Massie, Barney McMullen, Joe Pafford, John Plaster, Hazel Poole, Jack Vaughn, Norma Parker and Miss Norma Briden.

Enjoy the Striking New 'Jamaica Look'

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Jamaica, the beautiful island long familiar as a honeymoon and tourist paradise, is now emerging as a design center for clothes geared to casual living.

Just recently the first group of high-fashion Jamaican designs to be shown in the United States were introduced at an exclusive New York store. These fashions were so striking that they are now being purchased by major department stores and women's shops throughout the country.

The "Jamaica Look" has sunshiny, leisurely dash. Verdant and lush, the island spawns clothes in riotous colors, wild splashy patterns and way-out silhouettes.

This new look in resort clothes is for the woman who wants to be comfortably elegant and fresh looking in any sunny vacation setting — swimming, sun bathing, sailing, playing tennis or lunching on the terrace.

The need for sportswear (which in Jamaica may be worn day or evening) created for outdoor living inspired local couturiers to adapt traditional fabrics and themes to modern concepts. And what they have come up with is now considered to be a surefire hit here.

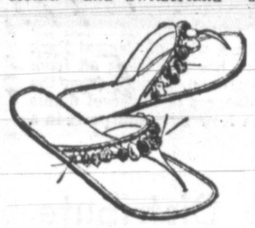
There are airy, open cutwork embroideries on linen and silk in patio pants, midriff tops and bikinis with brief jackets. These are outrageously cool and provocative but companion underpinnings keep them modest.

And if that's not enough there are dancing sandals of baubles and beads that suggest music all their own.

These are beautiful and exciting fashions and different from any resort clothes I have ever seen.

Just as Capri-produced pants that were distinctly "Capri," Rome palazzo costumes that fairly shouted "Roma" and Switzerland ski togs that you would know were Swiss even if you couldn't see the label, so is Jamaica producing leisure clothes distinctly Caribbean and easy in concept.

From all indications of their acceptance here in the States these will dot the scene at vacation spots where chic women like to look dramatic and colorful at their play.



BEADED SANDALS — Leather thong sandals from the Bootshop in Montego Bay come in white or hot Jamaican colors. Straps are outlined in fake crystal beads.

McDonald Circle Meets for Study

Sue McDonald Night Circle of Highland Baptist Church WMS met recently in the home of Mrs. H. E. Winegeart, 609 N. Sumner, for Bible study.

Mrs. J. D. Ellis read the Prayer Calendar for missionaries and led in the opening prayer.

The program was based on the biblical judges. Scripture text was taken from the books of Judges and Ruth. Mrs. C. R. Bridges, WMS Bible study chairman, presented the program with members participating.

Refreshments were served followed by a business session. Members discussed and agreed on expenses of the trip for the YWA to attend the House Party at Abilene in February. Other business was discussed and the closing prayer was led by Mrs. Bridges.

Those attending were Mmes. H. E. Winegeart, J. D. Ellis, Everett Cole, Fred Bridges, Ron Earnest, C. R. Bridges and Eunice Hunt.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 26

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New horizons of all kinds are dawning for you so that you will be shortly able to have some quite improved conditions, especially if you make a point to show others that you are interested in their welfare and let them be a part of the new course under which you would like to operate in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Now you are able to express yourself very well and state your true aims with those about. Get conditions as you want them to be. Make it a point to show others that you are devoted in a social way.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) — You are able to get the data you want by conversing at length with others quite confidentially. Use it wisely. Then be more altruistic — assist those who look to you for help. Be generous, kind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Dynamic allies, pals are now in the mood to assist you to gain your aims, provided they are absolutely on the ethical side. Labor diligently. Evening is fine for repaying any social debts.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — You are best able to show devotion to others by saying something very flattering about them to a bigwig who could be of help. Get into some plan that will improve your prestige. Advance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You can advance now through better ideas, new contacts, fine literature, etc. Get an early start making calls, etc. Get in touch with friends who can also introduce you to other persons of note.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Setting up a better system is necessary since you are getting busier and busier and could get confused with present one. Know what your mate expects of you. Do your utmost to please in every way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — By asking questions you know what your partners want most from you, so be sure to contact them. Be clever about it, though. Getting into new interests can also add to your abundance and happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There are so many tasks ahead of you that, if you don't get at them early and schedule your time properly, you will accomplish very little. Otherwise, they are done in record time. Use the clever ideas that occur to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You have every opportunity to get talents before the public and then get into amusements that are very cultural. Be sure to assist a younger person who comes to you for help. This could be only moral support.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You are able to handle fundamental affairs advantageously now, so be sure to rid yourself of whatever is obsolete or detrimental to your progress. Family wants your ideas. Be obliging.

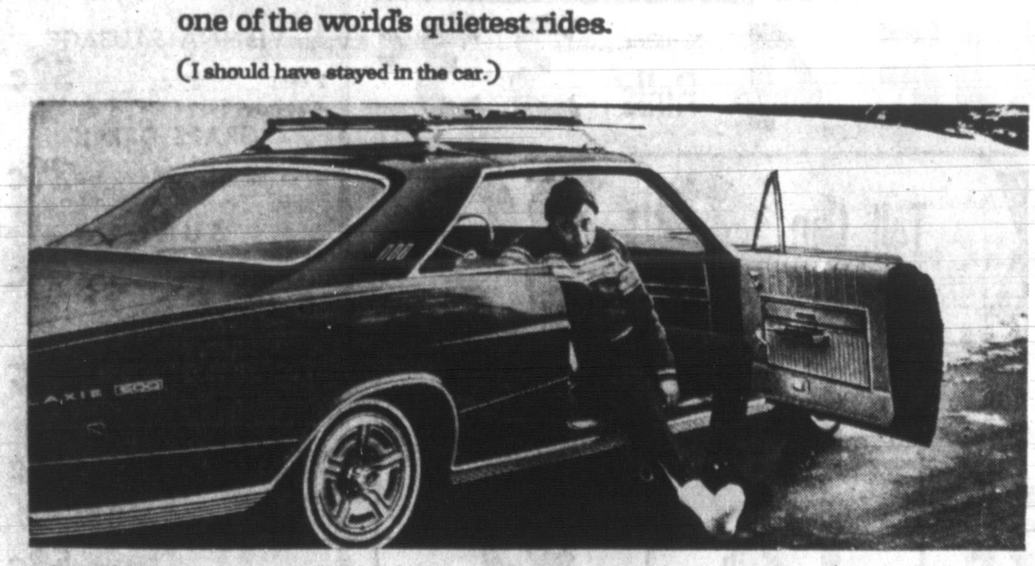
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You are mentally alert and can be very helpful in getting rid of problems, whether yours or those of others. Your ideas are also of value to others. Selling whatever you do not need is also wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Monetary affairs are vitally important for you to handle properly now. You have some excellent ideas how to do this. Get busy early and you put all in order quickly. Increase your abundance.

FORD 7-LITRE HARDTOP

When we go skiing, we go in style...in our '66 Ford. I choose the speed I want with the automatic speed control...select the music I want with the stereo tape player...and relax with one of the world's quietest rides.

(I should have stayed in the car.)



Ford sales are booming! One reason—engineering magic like this:

New stereo tape player option with easy-loading cartridges. ■ New station wagon Magic Doorgate—swings out like a door for people and down like a tailgate for cargo. ■ New automatic speed control option. ■ A ride so quiet that owners of European luxury cars—from a handcrafted Jaguar to a $14,000 Mercedes—have said, after a demonstration ride in a Ford XL or LTD, that it was even quieter than their custom-built cars. ■ Quiet-test a '66 Ford for yourself.

DIVERSIONARY DIALOGUE

OAKLND, Calif. (UPI) —A befuddled robber gave up Monday after encountering 74-year-old Alex McCall and 71-year-old Alfred Douvlas in an Oakland drugstore.

"Give me all your narcotics," the gun-toting bandit said.

"Alfred," McCall asked, "Where do we keep the narcotics?"

"Didn't you put them in there," Douglas answered, pointing to an empty cabinet.

"No, I distinctly remember you put them away." McCall said.

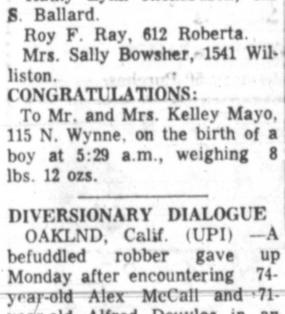
"I did not. You took charge of them," Douglas countered.

With this, the impatient robber shoved his gun in a pocket and stalked from the store.

SENSE OVER "PRINCIPLE"

LYNTON, England (UPI) — Mrs. June Stillman is burned up at her husband because he wouldn't let her go to jail. As she was being led away by jailers, her husband stood up in court, ignored her protests and paid the $14 parking fine she had refused to pay "on principle."

matter of fact



The origin of gin was medicinal. A 17th century Dutch professor of medicine produced it by accident by distilling spirits in the presence of the juniper berry. By 1792 Holland was producing 14 million gallons of gin, exporting 10 million gallons to England. The French name for the juniper berry was genievre, which the English eventually changed to gin.

Winning Hard On A Coach, Too

By ED FITE

DALLAS (UPI)—In the world of the team's publicist, Texas Western's basketball coach, Don Haskins, is "as nervous as a fireman with a busted hose."

That may be hard to picture about a man whose team is one of the nation's two undefeated major cage powers, is ranked No. 6 nationally and boasts the third stingiest defense in the country.

But, Haskins insists there is every reason to be skittish about the last half of the season which gets under way Thursday night with an invasion of Tempe, Ariz., to meet the Arizona State Sun Devils.

First, Hankins feels his El Paso-based Miners are bound to be rusty since they have not played a game since Jan. 6 because of the long term examination layoff.

Tempe Is Jinx

Second, Haskins has never coached a team to victory at Tempe. One-fifth of the losses Haskins' teams have compiled in a 92-25 won-los record have been suffered at Tempe, including three to the Sun Devils and two others in a tournament.

Third, Haskins isn't sure how his players will respond to foreign boards. Ten of the 12 victories have been on their home court. The other two were 88-42 and 86-49 triumphs over South Dakota and Nevada in a holiday tournament at Rock Island, Ill.

Thus, the Tempe game is just one of the frustrating dates that lie ahead for Haskins and his Miners. There are a half dozen others, several of which could prove real booby traps for his prospectors.

Texas Western plays at Colorado State Feb. 4, at tough New Mexico University Feb. 12, at fast - improving Pan American Feb. 19, at West Texas State Feb. 24, at New Mexico State March 2 and closes at Seattle March 5.

Not so Tough

The remainder of the home schedule doesn't appear nearly as scary. West Texas State goes to El Paso next Saturday, New Mexico State Feb. 1, Arizona Feb. 10, Arizona State Feb. 14 and Colorado State Feb. 26.

Duke Retains No. 1 Rating

NEW YORK (UPI) —Loyola (Ill.) and Cincinnati, who staged a memorable championship game in the NCAA tournament three years ago, are on their way back to the top of the college basketball world.

Cincinnati, which had fallen on lean times after that game, announced its return by vaulting into 10th place in the weekly United Press International Board of Coaches ratings Monday.

Loyola, which like Cincinnati had been virtually ignored in the pre-season ratings, continued its steady climb by advancing from ninth to seventh on the strength of a 12-1 record.

Cincinnati, the NCAA champion in both 1961 and 1962, was a heavy favorite over Loyola in the 1963 finals but was beaten 60-58 in overtime.

After a 17-9 season in 1963-64, the Bearcats suffered through 14-12 campaign last year and finished next to last in the Missouri Valley Conference which they once had dominated. Under new head coach Tay Baker, however, Cincinnati has rebounded. Foyola has done likewise after a disastrous 11-14 season last year.

Two Important Gains

Duke and Kentucky remained first and second in the ratings but two other schools made significant gains. Providence climbed from fourth to third and unbeaten Texas Western jumped two places to sixth.

Vanderbilt and St. Joseph's, an 82-72 loser to St. John's (N.Y.), ranked fourth and fifth, respectively.

Bradley, an 85-69 loser to Cincinnati, fell from sixth to eighth and Kansas, upset by Nebraska 83-75, also dropped two notches to ninth.

The ratings are based on games played through Saturday, Jan. 22.

Nebraska, the Big Eight conference leader after its victory over Kansas, ranked 13th; St. John's made the most of its upset of St. Joe's to rank 15th, and Tulsa, one of only two teams to beat Ccincinnati and the top team in the MVC, tied Dayton for 18th.

Regained Touch

Michigan, which has regained its touch in Big 10 competition, moved up to 11th, followed by Utah in 12th. UCLA, the defending NCAA champion which meets Loyola Friday night at Chicago Stadium, was 14th.

San Francisco and Brigham Young slipped to 16th and 17th, respectively, and Syracuse and Iowa rounded out the top 20 in a deadlock for the last position.

The top four teams, each of which has been out of action for at least a week, all return to the hardwood this week, Duke, idle since Jan. 15, runs into a tough opponent in North Carolina State Saturday while Kentucky, which received 322 points to 333 for Duke, meets Auburn Saturday after tangling with Louisiana State Monday night.

Providence swings back into action the same day versus Niagara and Vanderbilt hosts LSU, also on Saturday.

Five coaches from each of the seven geographical areas of the nation comprise the UPI Board. Each week they vote on the top 10 teams with points distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th.

NEW YORK (UPI) —The United Press International major college basketball ratings with first-place votes and won-lost records through games of Saturday, Jan. 22, in parentheses:

Team	Points
1. Duke (26) (14-1)	333
2. Kentucky (9) (12-0)	322
4. Vanderbilt (14-)	1852
3. Providence (12-1)	212
4. Vanderbilt (14-2)	185
5. St. Joseph's (13-3)	152
6. Texas Western (12-0)	117
7. Loyola (Ill.) (12-1)	100
8. Bradley (14-3)	81
9. Kansas (14-3)	79
10. Cincinnati (13-2)	55

Second 10—11, Michigan 53; 12, Utah 46; 13, Nebraska 36; 14, UCLA 29; 15, St. John's (NY) 18; 16, San Francisco 13; 17, Brigham Young 12; 18, (tie) Tulsa and Dayton 9; 20 (tie), Syracuse and Iowa 8.

Other teams receiving five or more points —New Mexico, North Carolina State, Davidson, Oklahoma City, Minnesota, Boston College.

Jones Wants Shot At Champion Clay

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) —Pardon Doug Jones for yawning whenever he hears Cassius Clay telling the whole world how he'll gladly fight anyone, any place or any time.

"What about me?" Jones inquires, acidly. "I haven't been waiting too long. Only three years."

Clay has been tossing a few hints around lately that he may be ready for a long delayed second meeting with the 28-year-old New York heavyweight, whom many still think beat him in their first fight at Madison Square Garden in March of 1963.

Jones won't believe the return is set, however, until he actually is back in the ring with Clay again. Jones has every right to be skeptical.

"I don't know whether Clay is responsible for it or not, but I feel I've been getting a runaround," Jones says. "If he really wants to feel he's the champ and if he wants to fight anyone, like he says, what's wrong with fighting me?

"He knows our last fight ended in a controversial decision and he knows a lotta people feel I won. So what's holding him back? Terrell? He's like myself. He's looking for a shot. Would you say he deserved it any more than me?"

Toughest Fight

Off the record, no. It is generally agreed that Jones gave Clay his toughest fight so far and while there are few, if any, who think Ernie Terrell has any chance of dethroning Muhammed Ali, there are a number who believe Jones is capable of doing so.

"At one time," Jones confesses, "I got so discouraged about this whole boxing business that I said to hell with it. Then I got to thinking that anything worthwhile in this lifetime generally comes the hard way."

Basically, Jones and Clay are completely contrasting types both inside and outside the ring.

Jones doesn't drive those fancy, high-powered cars Clay does, he walks. Jones doesn't show up at any social functions in a tuxedo because he doesn't own one. And he isn't much for any of that fancy Dan stuff once he puts on his working clothes, either.

"All I keep hearing is about Clay's speed," said Jones, shaking his head. "Anyone can look fast when he's running all the time. But this is supposed to be a boxing match, isn't it, not a foot race.

"He doesn't show me much as a fighter. He never knocked me down and if he's supposed to be a hard puncher I wouldn't know it because I made him miss a lot in our fight. I'd say my fight with him was the easiest I ever had since I turned pro eight years ago. I came out of that fight the same way I went in. Without a single mark."

Four Straight

Like Clay, Jones underwent hernia operation in 1964 and was out of action for nearly a year. He has had four bouts in the past four months and kayoed his opponent in each one of them, disposing of Prentice Snipes in two rounds, Cody Jones in four, Chip Johnson in three and Archie McBride in five.

Prior to those four kayoes, George Chuvalo stopped him in 11 rounds, marking the first time Jones ever failed to finish a fight.

"I got hit some low blows in that one," says Jones. "After I dropped to the canvas once, the referee stopped the fight although there was no call for him to do it."

Jones hasn't had much easy sledding in his career despite victories of such known fighters as Pete Rademacher, Bobo Oson and Zora Folley. The big pay days for him, his wife, Shirley, and his two little girls, Theresa and Diane, have been relatively few.

"I even tried working as a salesman selilng whisky," he says. "Fighting is what I do best, though. I hope Clay gives me a shot. If he doesn't, and I try to put that thought out of my mind, I guess I'll just have to keep on fighting."

Baseball Contract Signing On

By United Press International

The first question the American League champion Minnesota Twins want answered in spring training is whether Camilo Pascual is still "El Curvo."

"El Curov" is the name rival hitters pinned on the 32-year-old native of Havana, Cuba, because of his crackling, wide breaking curve ball.

After four straight seasons with between 15 and 21 victories and 202 and 221 strikeouts, Pascual was sidelined with a shoulder ailment for seven weeks in 1965 and finished with a 9-3 record.

The doctors seem to have taken care of Pascual's physical worries and club president Calvin Griffith should have taken care of his mental attitude Monday when he signed Camilo to a contract estimated at $44,000. That represented only a very fair $2,000 reduction from Pascual's top salary as a 20-game winner.

Bill Skowron, the Chicago White Sox' leading run producer with 78 runs batted in last season, agreed to terms along with Coach Tony Cuccinello, while the Chicago Cubs increased their satisfied list to 22 with the addition of sluggers Ernie Banks and Ron Santo.

Pitcher Jim O'Toole, who conceded a few weeks ago that he expected to take a cut in salary, agreed to an estimated $3,000 slash from the Cincinnati Reds, but former St. Louis Cardinal third baseman Ken Boyer was pleasantly surprised, and almost immediately reached for a pen, when the New York Mets offered him the same $62,000 he received in 1965.

Pampa Takes on Palo Duro Tonight

A heavy slate of basketball games were on top for Pampa and area basketball teams this afternoon and tonight.

In city high school competition the Pampa Shockers and Harvesters take on Palo Duro at Amarillo and both Junior Highs have games slated.

Lee Junior High hosts Borger Houston in ninth and eighth grade games, that started at 4 p.m. Lee seventh plays Thursday, hosting Perryton at 4 p.m.

Pampa Junior High plays at home against Phillips eighth and ninth grade teams and the PJH seventh grade plays on Friday at Dumas.

In area action tonight Lefors hosts unbeaten Briscoe in a twinbill. The Bronchos will be gunning for their 25th straight victory.

Elsewhere White Deer hosts Canadian in a conference tilt and McLean and Memphis get together at McLean for a league game.

Groom hosts Miami in boys and girls games and Wheeler plays at Mobeetie.

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Silvio Moser of Switzerland nosed out Jonathan Williams of Great Britain Sunday to win the first of three Formula Three races in the international motor car season with a time of 34 minutes, 33.7 seconds and an average speed of 84.34 miles per hour.

ONLY DODGE HAS V8 POWER IN A COMPACT TRUCK

Add to this such practical niceties as very big doors, very flat floors, a very big cargo space (213 cubic feet), and a very low price (right down with Ford's and Chevy's)—and you've got some very good reasons for putting some Dodge compact trucks on your payroll. (Choice of V8 or two husky Sixes.) Dodge toughness doesn't cost any more . . . why settle for less?

Job for Chamber of Commerce

Bringing cities up-to-date and ready to move ahead to meet the challenges of the future requires a "team" approach built on recognition of common purposes and the fact that nearly everyone can make contributions for the common good, Robert P. Gerholz, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said in Richmond, Ind., last week.

The biggest job for a chamber of commerce, he said, is to exercise leadership "to get the forces within a community working together; to keep the many local efforts in balance."

Noting that the Indiana city had attracted a lot of industry, although it has a shortage of skilled labor, Mr. Gerholz said that in areas where there is plenty of industry and a good supply of skilled workers, "the business leaders planned ahead, through their local chambers.

"They got programs launched for technical and vocational schools; they planned and worked with their school departments to organize training and retraining programs and helped to plan the curricula to be sure that the skills taught would match those required by the new industries. This is one way you keep your community development balanced."

He added, "Of course, there's a lot more to it than that. The needs of downtown, uptown and the suburbs must all be considered — not as separate units— but in relation to each other. All areas of community concern must be brought in to make a complete picture. Housing, shopping facilities, transportation, utilities, cultural and recreational centers are some of the essentials of community living."

This last comment reminded us of Pampa's lack of a cultural and community center, one of the city's greatest needs.

There isn't a single place in Pampa that can accomodate an event or convention larger than one in the relatively small size category.

Pampa Junior High auditorium, for instance, is the only place that can take care of a road show attraction. It seats only 1,100 persons. The stage will not accomodate a large production. Dressing room facilities are miserably inadequate. The accoustics are not too good.

While Mr. Gerholz was speaking, of course, about overall improvements in a community, we couldn't help but realize how his cultural and recreational reference applied to Pampa.

It is hoped that Chamber of Commerce officials and directors will place a Community Center program at the very top of their 1966 list as a No. 1 Project. Pampa needs to be stirred up in that direction.

Getting back to Mr. Gerholz' comments — while emphasizing a need for a community to plan realistically for future needs, the National Chamber president predicted that "our lives will be far different a few years from now."

To illustrate his point, he said that aerospace engineers have designed a rocket transport which they say can be in commercial service in 15 years and will be able to deliver 170 passengers and 18 tons of cargo anywhere on earth in 45 minutes.

"In a world like that, can you imagine people tolerating the kind of downtown traffic jams we have today?" Mr. Gerholz asked. "When a man can reach Singapore from Richmond in 45 minutes, will he be willing to spend an hour driving home from his office? You know he won't."

The key to a city's future lies in its people, he said. If they are properly led and inspired, they gain a new outlook, new confidence, a sense of pride and responsibility. Their neighborliness, ingenuity and energy crop out. Hidden local resources are developed, and suddenly, it's a different town altogether.

Mr. Gerholz said the National Chamber has a community development plan which "takes into account the needs and aspirations of people." He added, "It calls for a thorough survey of local needs and resources, for pulling together an effective, representative team of local leaders who will cooperate with local government and build top-to-bottom public support for an improvement program."

Cars Are Safer; Driving Is Not

The automobile industry has been the target for an increasing amount of criticism of late. Faced with the ghastly statistic of nearly 50,000 traffic deaths in 1965, it is only human nature to seek an obvious scapegoat to put the blame on.

But while there is undoubted ground for criticism and vast room for improvement, the auto makers have done a creditable job of improving the safety of motor vehicles over the years, if only because of the fortunate fact that safety and salability are not always mutually exclusive.

Highway User magazine gave manufacturers an opportunity to state their case in a recent issue.

Although cars no longer come with heavy, kick-proof fenders, what's underneath is much tougher than it used to be, the makers contend. Broken axles, for example, were once commonplace but are rare today.

Aside from increased durability, many other safety improvements have gone virtually unheralded, such as safety rim wheels, interlocking door latches, deep-dish steering wheels, padded dashes.

The latest item on 1966 cars is windshield glass twice as shatter-resistant as the old type.

It almost seems as if safety has to be slipped into car design unobtrusively or the public won't accept it. A prime example is the push-button shift located on the driver's side of the dash. People wouldn't buy it, referring to go on impaling themselves on the conventional lever.

Even legislation is not necessarily the answer. A Cornell University survey indicates that when seat belts were an optional item, 50 per cent of drivers were using them. Now that they are required on all new cars, only 25 per cent of the belts are in use.

One company has even received complaints that its buckles are uncomfortable to sit on.

The much more protective shoulder harness is presently optional on some makes but has met with little customer enthusiasm.

In another aspect of safety, car makers say they have been fighting for years for uniform nationwide vehicle inspection laws and traffic control devices. Some have been sponsoring high school driver education programs.

They point to a serious lack of information on the whys and wherefores of accidents. What percentage is caused by brake or other mechanical failure, for instance?

More data is also needed on the actual value of some items that are currently considered safety equipment but may not turn out to be worth their expense.

About the only hasty conclusion that can be drawn from the mangled traffic situation is that there is no one villain and no one solution. There are only approaches to solutions and finding which ones are best will require the talents and efforts of everyone involved with automobiles and highways — which includes just about all of us.

A thought for the day—Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Through our great good fortune, in our youths our hearts were touched wit'. fire."

RHODESIAN BARRIER TO REDS

With the United States bearing such heavy burdens in Southeast Asia, it is the height of folly for the Johnson administration to succumb to the blandishments of Britain's socialist government and support the airlift of oil to the African country of Zambia. Never was an airlift more unnecessary.

Nevertheless, the Johnson administration already has contracted with a civilian airline to ship oil to landlocked Zambia. All that will be produced by the airlift is a worsening of an already bad situation in Central Africa.

At the root of Zambia's need for oil is the British Labor government's foolish and dangerous attempt to embargo oil supplies for Rhodesia. The policy of the socialists isn't even fully supported in England. More than 100 British Conservative M.P.'s have protested the embargo. Understandably, as they are cut off from oil supplies, the Rhodesians have declined to ship oil to Zambia. What else could they do under the circumstances? One can hardly expect them to commit national suicide to please the Zambian fanatics.

If Britain allowed oil supplies to reach Rhodesia, the Rhodesians would resume oil shipments to Zambia. The American people would be saved a gigantic bill. But at the moment the Johnson administration is pulling the British chestnuts out of the fires.

Rhodesia was a savage wilderness when the first British settlers moved in. They and other immigrants have built up an orderly, progressive country and created conditions of prosperity, peace and community well-being that the original natives never would have established. Understandably, they do not want all their efforts to go down the drain. Because of their insistance on protection for civilized elements in the country, Rhodesians have been subjected to a bitterly unfair campaign of abuse. They have been called a police state, though they have done no more than prevent raids and riots planned outside the country. Peace prevails throughout the country, and Rhodesia could proceed with its normal development and commercial activities if the global pressure campaign were brought to an end.

One can be sure that if the existing civilized government of Rhodesia were driven from power, the successor regime would be friendly to the communists while demanding vast financial aid from the United States. This is precisely the situation in nearby Tanzania. That former British colony today is the center of communist agitation in East Africa, while it regularly calls on the United States for money. The biggest losers in Tanzania are the people themselves, who have lost a sensible, practical and just British administration and gained a set of dictatorial native rulers who are incapable of any activity other than agitation.

Rhodesia, on the other hand, isn't asking financial help from the United States. It simply wants to be self-reliant, sell its tobacco and other products and go about its legitimate business as a nation. Surely, Rhodesia is the kind of country that the United States should encourage, not attempt to crush. An independent Rhodesia is a barrier to the spread of communism in Central Africa. The people who are in charge of its governmental affairs are people who believe in free enterprise and Western-style freedon. They are prepared to help the black natives advance on a genuine basis, but they refuse to subject themselves to the king of tyrannical and irresponsible rule found elsewhere among the black African states.

The one-man, one-vote system in Africa has meant one-vote, one-time, leading to one-man rule of a country. Ghana, for example, is a real example of a police state and of African socialism. Yet Ghana receives financial aid from the United States, and is treated as a respectable member of the community of nations, whereas Rhodesia -- a truly worthy state -- is subjected to an embargo and other pressure tactics.

If the U.S. lends its power to the crippling of a civilized government in Central Africa, the American people will pay heavily in the future -- in money and perhaps even in lives.

Democratic National Committee $2.5 Million in Red And Leaders — With Congressmen to Elect —Ask Why

ROBERT ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Acting Democratic Treasurer Clifton Carter is glumly pondering a most disconcerting financial problem.

The Democratic National Committee is more than $2.5 million in the red.

That's what the long-time political lieutenant of President Johnson is telling Democratic congressional leaders seeking funds for colleagues facing tough election battles this year. According to Carter, the National Committee not only is broke but deeply in debt.

While not disputing this, the legislators are frankly baffled. They are unable to understand why an administration that scored a landslide victory and big majorities in both branches of Congress only a little more than a year ago should be in such dire financial plight. Usually under such circumstances, by this time the election deficit has been paid off and the till again well filled.

But that's Carter's sad tale, strongly supported by Marvin Watson. The two Texans are the President's chief political trouble-shooters.

Various accounts are afoot on the reason for this exceptional situation.

Some party leaders are attributing it largely to the President. They cite his cold-shouldering invitations to address fund-raising dinners and other gatherings, and his keeping Vice President Humphrey from doing so. Humphrey was set to make a swing around the country for this purpose last fall, but it was abruptly canceled at White House insistence — according to backstage word.

Carter and Watson, inferentially, are pointing the finger at former Treasurer Richard Maguire, the Kennedy holdover who resigned last month to join a big law firm with offices in Boston and Washington. They are indicating he spent too much and collected too little.

BUDGET BALANCING — The first thing they did after taking over was to slash the National Committee's staff more than half. Around 50 were lopped from the payroll.

This wholesale economy axing was followed by the elimination of a number of expensive activities, foremost among them the voter registration bureau. This was justified on the ground civil rights organizations and labor unions are adequately taking care of this function.

Carter is saying a full financial report will be made to the National Committee when it meets in Washington in March.

Barring a change in plans he will be formally elected National Treasurer.

National Chairman John Bailey will stay on until after this year's elections. He is little more than a figurehead, and has been for a long time. Carter and Watson are running the committee.

ON TENDERHOOKS — Bobby Baker, recently indicted by a Washington grand jury on charges of income tax evasion, grand larceny and fraud, is uneasily waiting for the "other shoe to drop."

A Baltimore grand jury has been investigating the former Senate Democratic secretary for more than a year. His much-publicized motel is in Maryland.

There is no indication if and when this grand jury will act. But it is known several score witnesses have been interrogated, some of them prominent officials.

ON THE FENCE — Attorney General Katzenbach is trying to persuade President Johnson to publicly come out against capital punishment.

The President hasn't flatly rejected taking such a stand. But neither is he ready to make such a declaration — ardently advocated by Katzenbach. It's one of the attorney general's pet beliefs.

He vigorously urged including such a statement in the President's State of the Union message.

But after consulting FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and congressional leaders, the President decided against it. They pointed out the proposal would conflict with a number of federal laws, notably the Lindbergh kidnapping act, which have the death penalty.

In the hope of eventually winning over the President, Katzenbach did succeed in adding a line to the short paragraph dealing with crime in the streets. As expanded the paragraph reads:

"I recommend that you meet the growing menace of crime in the streets by building up law enforcement, and by revitalizing the federal system from prevention to probation."

FLASHES: Dale Miller, Texas lobbyist and chairman of President Johnson's Inaugural Committee, is passing the word that he will soon issue his long-awaited report and it will show a small surplus. This is a big change from a month or so ago when the inside word was that more more the committee was $100,000 in the red. Miller isn't explaining how this transformation came about, but he is beamingly claiming it. . .Representative Paul Jones, D-Mo., is beginning the new session of Congress with a much-warranted appeal to his colleagues that is certain to go unheeded. Pointing out that publication of the Congressional Record last year cost around $3.5 million, due to immense verbosity, Jones urged "reasonableness and restraint." Said Jones, "The body of the Record has become the dumping ground for material once aptly described as 'trash, tripe and trivia'. . .While I deplore the great waste of public funds, I have an even greater interest in attempting to restore the accuracy and dignity which once prevailed in the pre-

CAPITOL EYE:

Americans Get Lessons In Patience

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — A high U.S. foreign affairs specialist questions whether Americans generally are insistent that we either achieve victory in Viet Nam this year or pull out altogether.

Some returning congressmen have reported that their soundings indicated growing voter impatience with the indecisive war situation and a wish to have one clear answer or the other.

The foreign affairs official believes this is an incomplete reading of voter attitudes today. In his view, the American people are steadily becoming more accustomed to "gray situations" which resist final solution.

In the past 15 years, Americans have been exposed to trouble—either successively or concurrently—in a long string of places. They include Korea, Viet Nam, Laos, the islands of Quemoy-Matsu, India - Pakistan, Rhodesia, Suez, Lebanon, Cyprus, Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

During this entire decade and a half, we have been continuously involved on the continent of Asia because of the back-to-back occurrence of the Korean and Vietnamese undertakings.

Against that severely pock-marked backdrop a new Gallup poll shows that 62 per cent of the American people expect the war in Viet Nam to last from two to five years or more.

There is nothing in that survey to suggest they relish the idea, but it is indeed possible that they are prepared to live with it.

This country already is "living with" a divided Germany, a Berlin separated by an ugly, frustrating wall, a divided Korea that keeps two U.S. divisions tied down, a NATO weakened and often thwarted by President Charles de Gualle, a Cuba under hostile Red management, a shaky Dominican Republic.

None of these situations is satisfactory. Each is merely tolerable—better than continuous dispute holding the threat of worse, better than any realistic, visible alternative.

Two other men in government underscore the foreign affairs man's argument. Neither one is in any way describable as defeatist. One, particularly, is a strong positivist, who spends a good deal of his time knocking down other people's negative assumptions about this troubled area.

Both nevertheless contend that, increasingly, this country is heading into an age when final solutions will escape its leaders, when the trick will be less to cast an answer in black and white than to devise "improvements" which make a prolication of worldwide distribution. . . .I hope that those who share my views that we should strive for accuracy, integrity and economy, and who are opposed to fraud and deception, will understand that these remarks are intended to be constructive, and will lend their cooperation in restoring accuracy and sanity to the Record."

PITY THE POOR TAX MAN (?)

Tipton (Ind.) Daily Tribune

For years the tax man and tax collector has presented what may be termed as "a bad image." They were looked upon as vultures . . . who took away money from the poor working man . . . and were even called infernal revenue men . . . referring to "you know who"!

Since they have been termed just this, they felt the image must be improved. . .and they have gone about it rather craftily! How? Well one way is by asking or shall we say forcing—some people (the self employed) to assess and collect for themselves. Then of course. . .the job of collecting from those who worked for somebody else was handed over to the guy they work for—quite simple! And since the employer in many cases has to hire still more people to figure out the taxes on everybody's wages, this meant still more wages and a bigger slice for the tax man. So that, "Virginia" . . .is how the federal tax man — increased the loot! But how about that image? Well — you see. . . .to most wage earners . . .the tax man is someone who takes their money away from them. So—since their employer is the man who works (without pay) for Uncle Sam. . .and takes the money from the envelope. . .he is the vulture!

And if, by following the rules . . .he sometimes takes too much from the pay. . .he doesn't give the money back—the revenoo'er does! How about that? How then can you hate the image that hands you money back sometimes? Even if you have to pay more. . .you might be told that the fault was in the sending by the boss. . .not by the taxman. . .for after all-he is your friend!

Hunt for Truth

BY H. L. HUNT

ANOTHER "GAP"

In the arena of political debate, we have heard of such so-called issues as "the missile gap" and "the technology gap." But recently concern was expressed about a new problem: the "travel gap."

According to the spokesman, officials are exploring the possibility of setting up a new federal tourist office, to promote domestic tourism in order to compete or offset foreign travel by American citizens.

The role of the proposed new office, he said, would be to foster wide use and application of federal programs in the domestic tourist field, and to assist states in the development of tourist legislation.

To justify federal involvement in such activity, the information officer said:

"For one thing, the swelling tide of American travel abroad and the gold drain has greatly alarmed the Secretary of the Treasury. He sees in Europe's travel industry a force which succeeds where Dr. Goldfinger failed —in slipping ingots away from Fort Knox."

He added that tourism, which our government helped rebuild in Europe as a post-war recovery measure, has become a "gold-gobbling monster."

It appears that the solution being proposed is to make citizens pay for the errors in judgment of bureaucrats and congressmen. It is they who are responsible for the gold drain, through years of legislation by which they have encouraged foreign aid, investment of American capital abroad to build factories in competition with American industry, and other foolish and disastrous programs. Meanwhile, they have fostered inflation which makes American prices too high for foreign markets: in fact, our prices are so high that foreign tourists can not afford a trip to the United States.

blem tolerable to live with.

They argue that not only have the American people already learned to accept such unrewarding but bearable outcomes, but that they have a considerable capacity to endure much more of the same. By this reasoning, a few more stalemates around the globe would not deeply trouble them. They would include Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, to returning congressmen and a good many other U.S. politicians, this kind of thinking paints too sophisticated a portrait of the American voter.

They still carry their well-thumbed charts showing him a lover of black-and-white solutions. They remember him continously as the late Gen. George C. Marshall once depicted him before a Senate committee: "The American regards as a stalemate any problem which arises in the morning and is not settled by afternoon."

One high Democratic strategist shares the current worries over the fuzzy aspect of the Vietnamese war: "I fear there is not a clear picture of decisive action."

It may well be that revised predictions suggesting political penalty to the Democrats for the war will be fulfilled in November. But it may prove equally true that voters who may choose to penalize the President's party will do so largely in blind reaction against mounting casualties, but without measurable hope of attaining anything more than a tolerable stalemate in one more critical area of the world.

Pull Up A Chair

Frank Markey

Don't train your son to be a janitor because automation will soon put him out of a job. The International Monetary Fund building in Washington, D.C., is the first edifice in the country in which a computer takes over the work of even janitors. The computer there handles 128 janitorial tasks including: turning off the lights and turning them on; checking building temperatures; regulating heat and air conditioning; ringing fire alarms; and even drawing up a detailed daily report for the head janitor. It does everything except feed the cat, and the firm that made the electronic monster says it will do that as soon as they perfect the electronic cat they are working on.

Today's smile: A high school chemistry teacher asked his class: "What do you know about nitrates?" One bright lad answered: "Well, the telephone company is always advertising that 'night rates' are cheaper than 'day rates.'"

Ted Williams, perhaps best known for his baseball triumphs, is fast becoming the world's championship fisherman. One of his latest angling feats was to land a 1,235-pound black marlin in icy waters off the coast of Peru. Now Ted is planning to go after the most ferocious of all forms of marine life, the tiger fish, found mainly off East Africa. It is said to be so vicious as to scare crocodiles and has teeth sharp enough to snap a copper hook. We're betting Williams will bring one back alive.

Thoughts while shaving: Things can't be too bad under the capitalistic system. A national magazine recently published there are now 90,000 U. S. millionaires, who own and control upwards of $250 billion. That's one list we'd like to persue just to see if we have any rich relatives. . . Just learned that General Casimir Pulaski, the Polish military hero of the American Revolution, has been well remembered in this country. Counties have been named for him in Illinois, Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana and Georgia. There are also cities and towns named for him in 15 states. And you can see statues of the gallant soldier in Manchester, N. H., Boston, Mass., Wyandotte, Mich., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Milwauke, Wis., and Savannah, Ga. We also learned by reading an ad the world's largest financial institution, the Chase Manhattan Bank, was named in honor of Salmon P. Chase, Lincoln's Secretary of the Treasury, who designed and promoted an orderly monetary system. Chase also got his picture on the $10,000 bill; the largest in circulation, but most people never see that picture. . . .Jules Verne never dreamed of it, but maybe Buck Rogers did. At any rate the day will soon arrive when man will be able to walk indefinitely in outer space. Just to prove it can happen a Gemini astronaut will take a 90-minute stroll sometime this year without using a space gun for propulsion. Next comes a longer hike on thin air. . . .The Buffalo (N. Y.) COURIER-EXPRESS reported in a story: "It was estimated that about 800,000 passengers were struck in subway trains." A conservative appraisal when you consider how many couldn't get on one during the strike.

Country Editor speaking: "Advertising and matrimony have much in common. Both make people live beyond their means."

Hollywood Report

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —"Get me Jack Lemmon!"

That's the inevitable cry of producers and directors with a sophisticated comedy script. If they can't get Lemmon they junk the idea or wait until he's available.

It's great for Lemmon, but murder on young movie comedians.

You think not? Name another funny actor who approaches him in the number of top-flight pictures released in recent years.

There aren't many around. Young Bobby Morse is available. So is Bill Bixby and Dick York, but they have become closely associated with television, as have Don Adams and Dick Van Dyke, who may yet make it on the big screen.

Hardest Pusher

But the guy who's bucking hardest of all is tall, lanky Jim Hutton, a veteran of 11 movies who is, perhaps, getting his greatest break right now opposite Cary Grant in "Walk, Don't Run."

Almost everybody goes to see Grant's pictures, and this time they'll also see young Mr. Hutton.

"This is the funniest and best movie I've ever been in," said Hutton during a lunch break. "I even come on the set when I'm not working, just to watch Cary Grant work. I've been taking a leaf or two from his book."

Hutton's coming role requires him to become a heel and toe walker in the Japanese Olympic Games.

A college athlete, Hutton had to learn the art of the Olympic walk, an event that draws howls of mirth from spectators. At the starting gun the athletes resemble a collection of guys with bunions jostling one another in pursuit of Jayne Mansfield.

"It took me six weeks to learn how to do the heel and toe with Jack Powell. He was in the Olympics twice and held a couple of world records," Hutton said.

Silly, But Painful

"It's the silliest-looking athletic event I ever saw. After the first workout I couldn't get out of bed the next morning. I was suffering from shin splints. Powell sadistically told me to get out to the beach and toe and heel it up. It worked, but it hurt.

"When we went to Tokyo on location I was instructed by the Japanese coach.

"One day I walked down the Ginza, Tokyo's Broadway, practicing the heel and toe and the people got out of my way like I belonged in a rubber room with no windows.

"But now I'm good enough at it to enter a track meet. I'm confident I could make a pretty good showing, but it should get a lot of laughs in the picture."

And that is precisely what the 6-foot, 4-inch actor seeks.

With luck and the right pictures, the day may not be far off when the moguls bellow: "Get me Jim Hutton!"

The octopus is timid and harmless unless provoked.

Government Blasts Virginia Poll Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI —The government today attacked Virginia's poll tax in a U.S. Supreme Court case it says also might strike down the voting levies in other Southern states.

Today's scheduled arguments before the court were in a suit iled originally by residents of filed originally by residents of Washington, D.C., suburbs who charged the tax in state elections discriminated unfairly against persons who were too poor to pay.

The challenge took on new emphasis with enactment of the 1965 Voting Rights Act to ensure Negroes the ballot, however. The Justice Department entered the case with a broad constitutional argument.

In its brief the department contended that any tax on which voting is conditioned "is constitutionally impermissible" because it limits a fundamental right.

"Such taxation is fully unnecessary to advance any legitimate state interest in fixing voting qualifications or otherwise regulating the electoral process," the department said.

Under provisions of the 1965 act, the department has already challenged poll taxes in the states which still have them—Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas. But Atty. Gen. Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach said today's case might settle the issue.

Poll taxes in national elections were outlawed in 1964 by the 24th Amendment to the Constitution, but the amendment carried no authority against the levies in state and local elections.

US TOURIST COMMITS SUICIDE

Chooses Death Rather Than Soviet Prison

MOSCOW (UPI) —Two U.S. officials witnessed an autopsy today on the body of American tourist Newcomb Mott whom the Russians claim killed himself rather than face four month is in a Soviet labor colony.

U.S. Embassy physician. Air Force Capt. James W. Bizzell, and embassy consular official William Shinn spent nearly four hours with Soviet medical experts as they examined the body of the 27-year-old Sheffield, Mass., textbook salesman.

Results of the examination were not disclosed immediately. U.S. officials have refused to accept the Soviet explanation of suicide until all facts in the case are known.

Shinn and Bizzell were the first Americans ever to attend an autopsy in the Soviet Union, and observers said Russia's decision to permit their attendance indicated Soviet embarrassment over Mott's death.

LAUNCH HEARINGS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators start hearings Tuesday on what the U. S. Coast Guard can do to assure safety aboard ships of foreign registry such as the ill-fated Yarmouth Castle.

Chairman Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., of a government operations subcommittee announced the inquiry. The Yarmouth Castle, a cruise ship flying the Panamanian flag, caught fire and sank off Nassau Nov. 15 with the loss of 90 lives.

PITTSBURGH —Prospects in the steel industry are for a 21-million ton quarter compared with the 18.5 million tons produced in the last quarter of 1965. However, Chairman T. F. Patton of Republic Steel said higher Social Security taxes and other expenses may have an erosive effect on the 1966 profits of steel companies.

WASHINGTON —The Supreme Court has barred Dean Foods Co. of Chicago from making any changes in the management or operation of Bowman Dairy Co. also of Chicago while the court decides whether or not to review a Federal Trade Commission plea for an injunction to block the $12 million merger.

ORLANDO, Fla. —Martin-Marietta Corp. has landed a $12 million contract to make an initial batch of Walleye glide bombs for the Navy. The Walleye program eventually could amount to contracts of $100 million or more over several years.

Senator Says US Can Increase Forces To 500,000 Without Raising Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said today President Johnson could increase U.S. forces in Viet Nam to 500,000 men without personal or corporate income tax increases.

Long, Democratic whip and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, made the statement in a nationwide television interview (Today—NBC).

"We can make it up to 500,000 men under the current set up," Long said. "I know for sure we can make it to 300,000 now, but we can go up to 500,000 if we have to."

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has given congressmen the impression that the United States could increase the total forces in Viet Nam from the current 190,000 to 400,000.
