BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin—Intensive preparations for a bitterly fought campaign between Ernest O. Thompson, railroad commissioner, and William McCraw, attorney general, for the office of Governor of Texas were under way here this week, following clarification of the confused situation which resulted from Gov. Allred's silence as to his intentions in regard to seeking a third term. Declaring that he did not "want or intend" to dictate his successor, the Governor renounced the third term proposal in a radio speech which reviewed the accomplishments of his terms, and was lacking completely in the bitterness which characterized his recent exchanges with McCraw. He declared his intention of practicing law in Austin when his term expires, but Allred backers here declare the "deal" for a Federal judgeship for the governor is still "on," and they still believe he will get the $10,000 a year life-time Federal post before Congress adjourns.

Allred's withdrawal, predicted in this column, since 10 days after he sent up his "trial balloon" last fall, resulted from a conviction that he could win only by an almost super-human effort, and the belief that his entrance into the battle would almost certainly divide the anti-McCraw strength, and elect the attorney general, whom he has bitterly opposed.

THOMPSON FORCES READY

The forces backing Ernest Thompson have been held closely in check during the last few weeks by the canny Colonel's advisors, permitting the McCraw candidacy to gain large headway. Thompson always has been a believer in a short, intensive campaign, instead of a long-drawn-out effort, as resulting in a much better timed "peak"; while McCraw's technique has been the opposite—a campaign that has been carried on almost continuously since his second election as Attorney General. A runoff between the two red-headed candidates is regarded as certain by most observers here, and a campaign that will be a "sizzling" exhibition. Both are splendid campaigners, and both have public records that will be subject to discussion. Poll tax payments this year, while not breaking any record, show 1,133,704 Texans paid poll taxes, which, with an estimate 15 percent additional exemptions, brings the total potential vote to 1,300,000—only 3 1/2 percent below the 1936 voting strength in a presidential election year. State headquarters for both candidates will probably be located in Austin, with regional offices in various sections of the State. Myron Blaylock, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, will assume active charge of Thompson's setup, while McCraw has indicated he will manage his own campaign, with some help already being given by Carl Estes, of Longview, picturesque East Texas newspaper publisher.

NEXT LEGISLATURE

Both gubernatorial candidates have indicated endorsement of the economy in government sentiment which has gained such wide headway in Texas this year, as a swingback from the "more taxes" slogan which characterized every session of the Legislature during the two Allred administrations. Indications, gathered from a study by this correspondent of the published platforms of candidates for the House of Representatives throughout the State are that the 46th Legislature will be much more conservative in tone than the 45th, and that taxation is going to prove very unpopular. Two years ago, there was at least one candidate in almost every Representative district advocating "pensions for everybody over 65," and promising to tax natural resources, or some other line of business or industry, to pay the bill. The futility of the State attempting to raise

Father Of Local Woman Buried Sun.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at Stanton for L. P. Jones, father of Mrs. G. A. Hutchins. Mr. Jones died Saturday afternoon about two o'clock following a brief illness. If he had lived until July 5 he would have been 86 years of age.

Mr. Jones moved to Stanton with his family from Pyron in 1905 and had been a resident there since that time.

Mr. Jones is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nancy Jones, and six daughters and three sons. The sons are W. C. Jones, Houston, Paul and Calvin Jones, Stanton. The daughters are Mrs. Stewart, El Paso, Mrs. C. C. Coffee, Big Spring, Mrs. G. A. Hutchins, Lorraine, Mrs. Willingham, Pampa, Mrs. Franklin, Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Boone, Stanton.

DEADLINE NEAR FOR AUTO REGISTRATIONS

The time for registration of automobiles is drawing near. Next Thursday, March 31, is the last day on which automobiles that have been in operation can be registered without penalty.

Doris Narrell and Iris Riden of Hardin-Simmons at Abilene spent the week end here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Narrell and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Riden.

$50,000,000 or $60,000,000 a year to pension people whether in need or not, apparently has sunk in on a lot of taxpayers during the last two years, as the pensions problem has been aired in debate, and "pensions for everybody" candidates are as scarce as hen's teeth this year. Most of the legislative candidates are seeking to climb upon the "economy in government" bandwagon, manned by the gubernatorial candidates, while others are talking generalities such as "full time representation for this district," "abolition of useless bureaus and commissions," "aid for better rural schools," and similar nice-sounding phrases.

ISSUES FORTHCOMING

Of course, the issues in the gubernatorial race will be made by the candidates, and their platforms should be out within another week or two. The most of the attention of the voters, naturally, will be concentrated upon the fiery individuals who seek the highest post—but actually, the Governor of Texas enjoys little power to formulate legislation. It is the boys in the House of Representatives and the State Senate, who get mighty little attention, during campaigns, and whose views the voters take mightily little trouble to find out about, who chart the course of the Ship of State, to a very large degree.

GRAVES ATTACKED

The Court of Criminal Appeals, when it hands down its decision in the matter of the eligibility of Harry N. Graves, of Georgetown, to serve as a judge on that court, which was submitted after argument last week, is expected by best-informed lawyers here, to rule Graves appointment constitutional. The question hinges on whether the former Williamson Co. representative, who voted to increase the pay of the judges, is barred from appointment under a Constitutional provision. Insiders here say Governor Allred informally consulted Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals before he made the appointment, and received informal opinions from them that it would be upheld. Austin lawyers have expressed admiration for the outstanding fairness of Graves' opinions, since he took his seat on the bench, particularly in liquor cases. Graves was a crusading prohibitionist and a dry throughout his service in the Legislature, but his political convictions, the lawyers say, have apparently had no bearing upon his judicial findings.

Lorraine Debaters Win County Meet

Both the girls and boys teams of debaters from Lorraine High School won the debate tournament in connection with the county Interscholastic League meet held at Colorado Monday and Tuesday nights of this week. The boys defeated Westbrook, Colorado, and Roscoe, and the girls defeated Colorado and Roscoe. Westbrook did not enter a girls team.

The girls team is composed of Doris Glass and Iona Callahan. The boys team is J. W. and Melvin King.

Other phases of the county meet will be held Friday and Saturday at Colorado.

LOCAL BOY REPORTS FOR SPRING FOOTBALL TRAINING

W. F. James, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. James of Lorraine a freshman in Abilene Christian College and veteran member of last fall's football team, reported for spring training at A. C. C. About 45 have reported and more expected to check out later.

Due to the return of 21 players from last fall's squad, the outlook, says Coach A. B. Morris, are the brightest for several years. Eleven of these lettermen are freshmen, six are sophomores, and the remaining four are juniors.

The Abilene Christian College football team is a member of the Texas Conference composed of nine central Texas college teams.

TECHNICOLOR FILM SET IN SOUTH SEAS

The most successful color film that has yet reached the screen is the first Technicolor sea story, "Ebb Tide," which opens Sunday at the Rialto Theatre. There has been no setting so far which shows itself so perfectly adapted to Technicolor photography as the South Seas locale of this story by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne. The lush tropical vegetation, the bright blue of Pacific skies, and the water shading of the South Pacific all needed to be filmed in color, and in "Ebb Tide" all their beauty is recorded to the best possible advantage. The result is a film of unique beauty.

The cast of "Ebb Tide" is headed by Oscar Homolka, Frances Farmer, Ray Milland, Lloyd Nolan and Barry Fitzgerald.

"Ebb Tide" tells the story of four strangely assorted lives that are entangled on a little South Sea island as a result of a death outside the group; and are separated at last by violence and murder in a forsaken trading post run by a sadistic madman.

Homolka, a broken sea captain Milland, an expatriate Englishman, and Fitzgerald, a conniving Cockney, all go aboard the schooner "Golden State" when her captain dies at sea. Frances Farmer is the daughter of the dead captain, who is aboard the ship when Homolka decides to steal the boat and cargo. Milland protests, but is overruled by his companions. The ship is almost in a storm before the quartet lands at a little island where Lloyd Nolan holds sway. Nolan attempts to keep Miss Farmer on the island, and kills Homolka and Fitzgerald when they attempt to rob him. Milland overpowers the maniac, and puts to sea again with Miss Farmer, planning to start a new life for the two of them.

Oscar Homolka, whose first fame in this country came from his appearance in two English-made pictures, "Rhodes" and "A Woman Alone," makes his American debut in "Ebb Tide" under the auspicious circumstances, for the film proves to be an example of Stevenson's best sea yarns, as well as being pictorially beautiful.

The film was directed by James Hogan.

Mrs. Paris Yarbrough, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in the Young Hospital at Roscoe last week, was brought to her home here Saturday.

Gymnasium-Auditorium Bonds To Be Voted On Saturday

Voters of the Lorraine Independent School District will have an opportunity Saturday to approve or disapprove the issuance of $10,000.00 in bonds by the district for the purpose of building a gymnasium-auditorium.

If the bonds are voted the board of trustees is ready to apply for WPA funds in the sum of approximately $14,000.00 to supplement the local funds in erection of the building.

Plans of the building call for two class rooms and a stage as well as bleacher and locker space. When not in use as a gymnasium the building can be quickly converted into an auditorium that will seat comfortably 1500 to 2000 people. Should the bond issue carry present plans of the board call for the division of the present auditorium into about four class rooms which will give the school six additional class rooms.

Only property tax paying voters may vote in the election Saturday. That does not mean that the property must be real estate. If you pay taxes on a stock of goods in a store, on an automobile (not license fee), or any kind of personal property you may vote.

If a man is qualified to vote in the election his wife is also qualified if she has a poll tax. Single persons must own property in their own name.

FAITHFUL WORKERS CLASS TO HOLD RALLY

The Faithful Workers Sunday School class, Roy Edwards teacher, and the Lorraine P. T. A. will sponsor a political rally at the high school auditorium on Friday night, April 1.

The Glad Girls Sunday School class met with Mrs. J. C. Hall, Jr. Thursday night, March 17. The devotional was given by Mrs. Hubert Thomas, which was followed by prayer.

The first and second chapters of the book of Isaiah was studied by the class. During the social hour there was a contest regarding the lessons we have studied this quarter. Dell Johnson, being the winner, received the prize. Mrs. Hubert Thomas was the next contest winner and was presented a prize given by the class, tea towel and aprons. Several games were played.

The hostess served delicious ice cream and cake. Those present were Mrs. Kenneth Butler, Mrs. Hubert Thomas, Mrs. John Horton, Mrs. Garland Carey, Dell Johnson, Lois Lucas, Velda McDearmon and Effie Carwile. Guests were Mrs. Woodrow Pratt and Mrs. Stanton Hutchins.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Kenneth Butler. We will study the third and fourth chapters of Isaiah. We urge every member of the class to be present for these meetings are really worth while.

LUMP-SUM PAYMENTS

The Social Security Board is now making lump-sum payments to wage earners in covered employments who have reached age 65, or to the estates or relatives of such workers who died before that age. The amount in each case represents 3 1/2 per cent of total wages, as defined in the Social Security Act, received by such worker after 1936, and before he reaches age 65 or dies. Applications for these lump sums should be directed to the Social Security Board, 412 Rust Building, San Angelo, Texas.

Mrs. R. H. Phillips visited her son Elgy Phillips and family at Cheyenne, and her mother, Mrs. M. J. Smith, at Comanche last week.

NEW CHARTERS GRANTED IN TEXAS

Austin, Texas, March 21—Data compiled by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research from records of the Secretary of State show a total of 120 new charters was granted during February, a decline of 13.7 per cent from the preceding month and of 7.7 per cent from the corresponding month last year. Capitalization totaled $1,804,000, a drop of 20.4 per cent from the preceding month and of 15.5 per cent from February last year.

The decline from both comparable periods was the result entirely of fewer charters granted to out-of-State firms, the Bureau's report said.

NEW AUTO SALES INCREASE IN TEXAS

Austin, Texas, March 21—Reports to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research from sixteen representative Texas counties for February show total sales of 3,993 new automobiles, a decrease of 6.8 per cent from the month before and a drop of 22.3 per cent from February last year. Aggregate sales during the first two months were 8,279 cars, a decline of 22.2 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

"The two highest price groups made the best relative showing," the Bureau's report said. "Sales in the highest price group were 75.4 per cent above those in January, but 8.5 per cent below February last year; while sales in the price group just below the highest were 1.6 per cent below those of January but were 36.2 per cent above those of February last year."

DUPLICATE NUMBERS

Workers who lose their social security account number cards should not apply for a new number. They should request a duplicate card, bearing the same number as the lost card, which is obtained from the Social Security Board, 412 Rust Building, San Angelo, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Bennett attended the funeral of Mrs. Hutchins' father at Stanton Sunday.

School Band To Get New Uniforms

Members of the Lorraine High School Band were measured Monday for new uniforms. The new uniforms will be a coat and trousers with a Sam Brown Belt and cap.

When the Lorraine band goes to the contest at San Angelo in April it will be as well dressed as any of them and will present an appearance in keeping with the standing of the school. A well dressed band carries more weight with the judges than you might think.

TARTT AND THURSTON ADDING NEW PARTS

They will have in stock both new and used parts at their place of business and will be able to supply any need for automobile parts. Read their advertisement in this issue.

Happenings at the Baptist Church

M. H. Godfrey, Pastor
Well, we are happy to report that last Sunday was another good day. Fine appreciative congregations at both services, and the Sunday School and B. T. U. was well attended.

Twenty-one of our people attended the district meeting at Snyder last Thursday, the largest number from any of the churches in the district. Then last Sunday afternoon at the pep rally for the study course at Buford we tied Colorado in attendance.

The study course in our church is going over in a great way. Bro. Russell Dennis, a young pastor and student in Howard Payne College at Brownwood, is leading us and he is doing well. We had 52 present Monday night and we look for 75 before the week ends.

At the close of this study course we hope to have four unions in our church with an average of 75 in attendance. Will you help us in this work? We hope so.

We want you to know that you are welcome at our church, and if you come you will not have to wait, we use every second of the time for the Lord. The Sunday School meets at 10 A. M. Sunday, Paul Stewart Supt.; preaching at 11; B. T. U. at 7 P. M. I hope to give full setup of officers next week for the B. T. U. Preaching service will begin at 7:45 and I hope you come. Remember that everybody is somebody at the Baptist Church.

METHODIST CHURCH

Another fine Sunday. We feel sure we would have been able to report an increase in Sunday School if all had been on time. Some came in after reports were sent in. We want to count you next Sunday.

A hearty response to both services was encouraging to the pastor. We desire that every service shall help someone to feel that "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

We shall expect you to be with us next Sunday. At the morning hour the pastor will speak more especially to the young life of today. Sunday School 9:45 A. M.; Preaching 11 A. M. and 7:45 P. M.; Young people 7 P. M.; Prayer meeting Wednesday 7:30 P. M.; Choir practice Thursday 7:30 P. M.

J. A. Scoggins, Pastor.
Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Day made a business trip to Colorado Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Anna Bess Wilkerson will leave the last of the week for Lubbock to buy new merchandise for her shop.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Among his companions in barnstorming, Glenn L. Martin was known as "The Dude," although his carefully tailored flying suits were always black, including their elaborate braid trimmings.

His somewhat mortuary get-up and behavior gave an impression of great conservatism, and it is not surprising that he got backing from the bankers when other aviators failed.

A few months ago, he said his Glenn L. Martin company, of Baltimore, making planes, had a backlog of $15,500,000.

He told the house naval affairs committee there should be a 100 per cent increase in air armaments, that foreign nations are spending ten times as much as the United States. He would build a 250,000-pound bomber, carrying 30 men and a 4,000-pound bomb load 11,000 miles.

In 1912, this writer saw him put an inflated inner tube around his neck, strap a compass on his leg and take off to sea, at Avalon bay, Los Angeles, in a flying laundry wagon on which he had rigged a single wooden pontoon. He was bound for Catalina island, 20 miles away. It looked like suicide.

He not only made it, but picked up again at Catalina and finished the round trip, blanking Blériot, whose flight over the British channel was a one-way excursion. He had made the plane in an abandoned church.

The flight got him world attention. Then he staged a plane coyote hunt, dropped a ball into a catcher's mitt and a bouquet into the arms of a beauty contest queen.

This air extravaganza did not last long. In 1913, he built and sold two model TT war planes to the army, and has been building fighting craft ever since, with the exception of trans-Pacific Clippers.

He grew up in Mackburg, Iowa, built a pusher plane in his backyard and flew it in 1908. He is fifty-two.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, in his seersucker suit and his rumpled hat, frequently looked as if he had been sleeping under a bridge, especially in the midst of a hard campaign.

His son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., is fussy about his dress, severely and fastidiously groomed, with a jaunty little moustache and a nice collection of malacca sticks, sports clothes, and varied haberdashery.

He is in the news now as he becomes collector of customs at the port of Los Angeles, his first recognition by the California Democracy, in whose vineyard he has labored for years.

When his father laid down his staff and scrip at Dayton, Tenn., he picked from the legacy only two things—free silver and anti-evolution. He is quite unmoved by oratory, speaking with calm, legalistic precision, with no gift for the resounding or oracular.

He has made spirited forays against this or that, notably Upton Sinclair's "Epic" heresy of 1934, but with no such impassioned fervor as that which inspired his father. But, when occasion offers, he puts in a word for silver, or against evolution.

After the Dayton trial and his father's death, he made a knightly vow that his lance always should be leveled against this ignoble theory of man's origin. But nobody seems to be bringing that up now. The argument is shifting to where man is going.

He attended the University of Nebraska three years, studied law at Georgetown university, went to Arizona on account of his wife's health, and practiced law, first in Arizona and then in Los Angeles. He is fifty years old.

Origin of Word Assassin
The word assassin originated in Persia in the Eleventh century. It derives from hashish, the intoxicating Indian drug which at that time was used by notorious murderers under one Hasan-i-Sabbah to work themselves into the high state of ruthlessness required for their crimes. As a tactic in attacking vested authority assassination is as old as man. It is notably the most ubiquitous and immediate of dangers to autocratic government, as has been proved by the violent deaths of a high percentage of dictators from Julius Caesar to those of modern times.

WE MUST ARM FOR PEACE

Secretary Hull States America's Foreign Policy . . . Flays World Anarchy and the Rule of Force

This picture, made in an Austrian border town and transmitted by radio photo, shows a contingent of Hitler's troops marching toward Vienna after being landed from airplanes in the country that has now been made a state of the German reich.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Armed Peace; No Alliances

AMERICA must pursue its quest for world peace, but must follow a policy of arming for protection of its rights against "international lawlessness."

So declared Secretary of State Cordell Hull in an exposition of America's foreign policy and a discussion of all aspects of the world situation. He spoke at the National Press club in Washington and his address was broadcast over the land and to other nations by radio.

In brief, he set forth a policy of peace, no alliances, collaboration with peaceful nations, military preparedness, and opposition to the "seclusionist" viewpoint.

"It is my considered judgment that, in the present state of world affairs, to do less than is now proposed would lay our country open to unpredictable hazards," he said, referring to the naval expansion program.

"The momentous question," he said, "is whether the doctrine of force shall become enthroned once more and bring in its wake, inexorably, international anarchy and a relapse into barbarism."

Hull expressed "our deep concern over the rising tide of lawlessness, the growing disregard of treaties, the increasing reversion to the use of force, and the numerous other ominous tendencies which are emerging in the sphere of international relations."

His speech abounded with such sharp phrases as "methods of violence," "another dark night of international anarchy," "rule of force," "violators of international decency," "medieval chaos" and "blind extremism."

He did not refer to any nation by name, but his implication with regard to legal recognition of Austria's absorption by Germany and Japan's expansion in China was clear when he said:

"The catastrophic developments of recent years, the startling events of the past weeks, offer a tragic demonstration of how quickly the contagious scourge of treaty-breaking and armed violence spreads from one region to another."

The secretary came out strongly for an adequate armed force for this country:

"In a world in which the rule of force has not as yet been firmly and surely supplanted by the rule of law, it is the manifest duty of a great nation to maintain armed forces adequate for its national defense."

"No policy would prove more disastrous than for an important nation to fail to arm adequately when international lawlessness is on the rampage."

In the Far East crisis, Hull said, the United States has "consistently collaborated with other peace-seeking nations."

"But there is not a trace of alliance or involvement of any sort." He disclaimed "the slightest intention to entertain any such notion as the use of American armed forces for 'policing the world.'"

He specifically opposed the proposal the United States retire from the Far East.

The triumph of the "seclusionist viewpoint," he said, "would inevitably carry the whole world back to the conditions of medieval chaos, conditions toward which some parts of both the eastern and the western worlds are already moving."

Mars in the Ascendant

WAR clouds over Europe were growing dense and alarm increased throughout the world. Securities experienced sharp breaks on the exchanges in America, London, Paris and elsewhere because of the disquieting reports. Cabinets and diplomats everywhere were trying desperately to find a way to peace. The danger seemed to involve at the moment chiefly Czechoslovakia, the civil war in Spain and the renewed quarrel between Poland and Lithuania.

Maxim Litvinoff, wise commissar for foreign affairs of Soviet Russia, put forth an invitation to the great powers other than Germany, Italy and Japan to confer on joint action aimed at "checking further development of aggression and eliminating increased danger of a new world massacre." The United States was asked to participate in this action.

France and Russia formally notified Czechoslovakia that they would give that nation armed support against any aggressive action by Germany. Great Britain, while not going so far as this, warned Hitler that it expected him to observe the assurances he had given that he would not attack the Czechs.

Dispatches from Warsaw said more than 100,000 of Russia's paratrooper soldiers had been mobilized and were ready to be flown to Czechoslovakia in case of emergency. Several Russian and French generals hastened to Prague to confer with the Czech military chiefs.

Nazi leaders of the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia boldly warned the Czech parliament that the country had better yield to Hitler, and this demand was strengthened when other large groups of Germans in that country decided to merge with the Sudeten party.

France stood ready to pour troops and armament into Spain to aid the loyalists because of reports that Germany and Italy were sending large reinforcements to Franco, whose insurgent forces were pressing rapidly on toward the east coast. Madrid had sent word to Paris that the government could not hold out much longer unless it received help. France called on Britain to join her in an effort to bring about an armistice in Spain during which all foreign troops could be withdrawn, and the British ambassador to Rome was instructed to tell Mussolini that unless he called home his "volunteers" in Spain, Britain would be unable to restrain France from sending troops and munitions across the Pyrenees border to aid the loyalists. The British government has promised naval help to France to keep open her communications in the Mediterranean if she becomes involved with Italy, but the British will keep out of Spain.

Lithuania Alarmed
LITHUANIA and Poland have been in an unofficial state of war for 18 years because of Poland's seizure of Vilna, and a trifling border incident has brought them near to open conflict. Warsaw was on the point of sending an ultimatum to Kaunas, but delayed this on appeal from France and Britain.

The Lith also were afraid that Germany, taking advantage of the general ferment in Europe, would undertake to recover the once German city of Memel, which also is coveted by Poland.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses CARBOHYDRATES and FATS

Foods That Provide Motive Power For the Body Machinery ★ ★

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 38th St., New York

THE human body might be compared to a framework filled with machinery. It takes food to build the framework, food to run the machinery and food to keep it working efficiently and this food must be of the proper type.

Last week, I discussed the body building proteins and explained how to distinguish between those which build and repair body tissue, and those that are adequate for maintenance, but not for growth. It is equally important that you should learn something of the fuel foods which are necessary to fire the body engine and furnish motive power to propel the body machinery.

and do not utilize their potential energy in muscular effort, they will be stored—as fat—usually in most inconvenient locations! On the other hand, an excess of any food is a detriment. Therefore the goal should be enough, but not too much, of all necessary foods.

Since both carbohydrates and fats are energy foods, one might expect them to play an interchangeable role in the diet. To a certain extent, they do, although fat, being more concentrated, provides two and one-fourth times as much fuel value as an equal weight of carbohydrate.

But because of the variation in the way these materials are handled by the body, it is generally considered that health is best served when 40 to 50 per cent of the total energy value of foods is provided in the form of carbohydrate and 30 to 35 per cent in the form of fats.

Fuel Foods Keep Us Alive
The body could not function in the absence of fuel foods any more than a machine could run without power, or a car without gas. Every breath requires an expenditure of energy, and so does every movement—from the beating of the heart to the winking of an eye. Even in repose, the body machinery is kept functioning only by an ever-present supply of fuel. For, as long as life continues—even when you are lying perfectly still—you need fuel to carry on the internal work of the body.

Activity Demands Energy Foods
Every type of daily activity, including work and exercise, requires additional fuel. If you walk slowly, you expend twice as much energy as when you sit still. And when you walk fast, you may use four, five or six times as much energy.

The chief fuel, or energy producing foods, are the carbohydrates—that is, the starches and sugars; and fats. Protein also has some fuel value, but its primary function is to build and repair tissue.

Carbohydrates are quick burning. They might be compared to the flare of a match in a dark room, which gives bright light for an instant, but is soon extinguished. Fat, on the other hand, burns slowly, like a lamp whose wick is turned low.

Danger of Inadequate Fuel Supply
Recently there has been a tendency to minimize the importance of the fats and carbohydrates, due to the craze for dieting. Some of the results of disregarding the absolute necessity for these foods are extreme irritability, and a greater susceptibility to fatigue, nervous diseases, tuberculosis and other infections.

Too Much Fuel Causes Overweight
It is true, however, that an excess of fuel foods will tend to produce overweight. For if we assimilate them, life, in its higher forms, is impossible. The noted Arctic explorer, Stefansson, found that he could exist satisfactorily on an all-meat diet, provided he ate liberally of fat. On a diet of all lean meat, he became violently ill within a week.

Besides furnishing concentrated energy values, fats help to create the fatty tissue which cushions the nerves and abdominal organs, and forms the pleasing contours of face and figure.

Because it leaves the stomach more slowly than proteins and carbohydrates, fat retards the digestion of these food groups somewhat, and thus gives staying power to a meal. At the same time it promotes the flow of pancreatic juice and bile, thus helping in the assimilation of other foods. Foods rich in fat include butter, cheese, egg yolk, cooking fats and oils, margarine, olives, pastry, peanut butter, most nuts except chestnuts and lichi nuts, various kinds of sausage and fried foods.

Anger Destroys Fat Reserves
Experiments have demonstrated why nervous, irritable individuals are usually thin, while those with a serene temperament often accumulate weight. It has been proven that anger and fright increase the amount of fat in the blood and remove a corresponding amount of fat from its usual storage place beneath the skin. A fit of anger may take off more fat than an hour's exercise, or two or three days of enforced diet. Thus the person who allows himself to become upset continually withdraws the fat reserve from his body. Such persons could profit, perhaps, by taking more of the fat-forming foods.

But whether the members of your family are good natured, or irritable, young or old, they need a constant supply of fuel foods—at every meal, every day. Fuel foods produce energy—and energy is the motive power of life and work, and thought.

Carbohydrates Are Quickest Fuel
Carbohydrates, which originate chiefly in plant life, are readily converted into heat and muscle energy. Foods rich in carbohydrates include bread, potatoes, macaroni, rice, cooked and ready-to-eat cereals, peanuts, dried and preserved fruits, sugars and syrup.

Sugar furnishes heat more quickly and more abundantly than any other food. But it has a tendency to dull the appetite and is also apt to cause fermentation. Therefore, a large measure of our heat and energy is best secured from starchy foods such as bread, cereals, macaroni and potatoes.

Quick energy can also be obtained from the easily digested sugars of fresh and dried fruits, such as prunes, apricots, raisins and fully ripened bananas.

Here is an interesting and important point which is frequently overlooked in unscientific reducing diets. Fat requires carbohydrates for its proper utilization by the body. That is why women who try to reduce without following a scientifically planned diet frequently become seriously ill as a result of cutting down on carbohydrates while overlooking the fats contained in milk, butter, and other foods.

Relation of Fat To Health
Fats are so necessary to the body economy that it is no exaggeration to say that without fat,

TIPS to Gardeners
Vegetable Pests
THERE are two major classifications of insect pests—sucking and chewing.

Chewing insects, such as beetles, leave telltale holes in leaves. They are best controlled, according to Harold N. Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Institute, by dusting or spraying plants with arsenicals (poisons with arsenate of lead as a base.)

These arsenicals are known as stomach poisons, for they must be eaten by the insects. Plants attacked by chewing insects include cucumber, squash, other vine crops, mustard, tomato, pepper.

Sucking insects, such as aphids or plant lice, can be detected in small groups on the under surface of the leaves. Control by dusting or spraying nicotine sulphate or pyrethrum directly on the insects. Plants attacked by sucking insects include peas, pepper, cabbage, and crops grown for greens.

Make certain what type pest you are fighting. Buy properly prepared poisons; follow directions.

Your Food Is Your Fate
THE third of the series of articles entitled "What to Eat and Why," written by C. Houston Goudiss, the eminent food authority, author and radio lecturer, appears in this issue.

In these articles Mr. Goudiss tells how you can be strong, beautiful, wise and rear healthy children by combining the right food materials in the diet. He points out the vast influence which food wields over one's life.

The housewife and mother who desires to know what foods will benefit her family the most will do well to read these articles week by week and make a scrapbook of them for ready reference.

Home-Wrecking Qualities of Poor Furniture Polish
How often a houseful of fine furniture and handsome woodwork is spoiled by the use of a poor furniture polish! There are many polishes on the market today—some fair, some good, others excellent for luster and long life of the finish. The best is non-grainy, because made with a fine, light-oil base! In time, furniture and woodwork can be ruined by the persistent application of a cheap, poor polish! Such polish will contain kerosene, harsh abrasives and harmful acids—destructive elements, that are unseen and unsuspected! The housewife may use one of these polishes, feeling that she is economically keeping her furniture polished—but this is poorest economy, if she values her furniture (and what housewife does not?). The furniture in a home constitutes the largest part of the furnishings—and will show up like "sore thumbs" when dried out, cracked or checked. This is just what occurs, when other than a reputable oil polish is used! Too, a quality oil polish is less expensive! Less is used at one time—for it's undiluted. The resultant glow is deeper, richer, more lasting! Best of all, the finish of the furniture and woodwork is properly "fed" and kept in prime condition! So beware of harsh, "bargain" polishes—through them, the furniture suffers!

WHEN YOU CLEAN HOUSE USE O-CEDAR—THE POLISH THAT CLEANS AND PRESERVES YOUR FURNITURE

More women use O-Cedar Polish than any other kind—for furniture, woodwork and floors. IT CLEANS and POLISHES.

WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE'S

To Ride the River With

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER I

(In the old Western parlance the commendation, "He's a man to ride the river with," was the highest possible praise. It meant that one could be trusted in all emergencies.)

Sun rays were streaming through the mesquite when Ruth rode out of the arroyo. In the light of morning the dust in the air from the desert sand, finer than powdered sugar, gave the atmosphere a faint rose color.

Ruth Chiswick drew a deep breath, almost a sigh. The desert could show its teeth grimly, but it could be poignantly lovely too. This was her country. It held her by a thousand ties, yet she was beginning to be afraid of the ruthlessness that struck at life so savagely. All plant and animal life had its sting. Nothing survived without a struggle. Always the desert fought to destroy.

Ruth was greatly worried. She had gone such a little way in life, was so inexperienced. At the parting of the ways, she did not know what to do. Her problems were two, though they merged into one. That her father lived in constant danger from the lawless rustlers of Tall Holt she knew. He took no precautions. Instead of biding his time until he could crush them he blundered and threatened. Some day he would be dry-gulched from the brush.

Though at times there was stormy conflict between father and daughter, the tie which bound them together was very close. To Ruth the peril in which he stood had become an obsession. She must save him at any cost, and she believed she had found the way to do it. That fat slug Sherman Howard was the leader of the outlaws, yet kept within the law himself, as far as she knew. If he gave the word for his men to keep their hands off L. C. stock the rustlers would obey him. No longer would there be cause of strife between these light-fingered riders and Lee Chiswick.

And Sherman Howard had a son who was no fat slug but a dark handsome youth with a merry laugh. Ruth liked Lou Howard very much. He was wild, of course. She did not know him well, and there had been moments when there had flashed out evidence of moral callousness. So it had seemed, but always afterward his warm smile had banished doubts. He had given her to understand that she was the one woman with influence enough to keep him straight, and she was young enough to be attracted by the thought of snatching so good-looking a brand from the burning. There was something romantic about clandestine meetings with the son of the enemy of her house.

She had flirted with a lot of boys in an innocent way, but she did not know anything about love—unless the emotion she felt for Lou Howard came under that category. At times a strange feeling flooded her, almost religious in its intensity, that she had been appointed to save her father by marrying this young man. Lou was in her mind a great deal. She was not sure about him.

The last time they had met he had kissed her. Indignantly she had pushed him away, but afterward—thinking of that ardent embrace alone in her room—she knew her indignation had been a fraud. She had been chary of favors to boys. None of them had ever kissed her like that, with a fire which had stirred in her reluctant response.

A young man rode out of the mesquite and flung up a hand in greeting. She watched him as he cantered forward, flung himself from the saddle, and strode to meet her. A queer little thrill ran through her, and after it a tremor of fear. He was essentially a stranger, as many men are to the girls who marry them, yet it was likely he was going to be the most important person in her life.

"I was afraid you wouldn't come," he said, and kissed her hand.

Ruth took it away, embarrassed. Hand-kissing on the frontier was something alien. "I said I would be here," she reminded him.

"So you did." He looked at her eagerly, boyishly. "Is it going to be yes?"

She nodded. "I think so." He reached up to help her from the horse, but she shook her head. "No, I can't stay but a minute."

"You can rest your saddle that minute, can't you, honey?" The girl knew what he wanted, to take her in his arms and make love to her. She discovered that she did not want him to do that—not yet, at least. Until she knew him better she did not want to be kissed, not with urgent passion.

"No. I slipped away, and I have to get back. They'll miss me." She asked, abruptly, a wave of color in her cheeks. "Are you sure you still want me?"

"Of course I do." He frowned up at her, irritated. He had ridden 30 miles to meet her and she held him at arm's length. "But get down and let us talk, Ruth. If we're going to get married—" "I don't know you, and you don't know me," she interrupted.

"Course I know you," he denied. "You're the prettiest girl in the county. I know all about you, and you know about me. I'm wild about you. What's the sense in sitting up there like—the Queen of Sheba?"

Very likely he was right. Ruth had been brought up in a houseful of men without the guidance of a mother. She slipped from the saddle and stood beside him.

He took her in his arms and she submitted, withholding herself. Presently she drew back from his embrace. That he was dissatisfied with her lack of response she knew. "Be patient with me—at first," she begged. "I'm worried, Lou."

"Some hot on the desert," the storekeeper suggested.

don't know whether what we are going to do is right. I—I—I'm scared."

Promises poured out of him. He would make her happy. He would reconcile their fathers. There would no longer be war on the range. Forgetting all the other girls, he would make her the best husband in the territory. All she had to do was to trust him and he would fix it. She must not worry.

Yet she did worry, even as they made the arrangements for the elopement. The weight was still in her breast as she rode back up the arroyo. The sun was hot in the copper sky. From the far canyons the mist had vanished. Harsh and forbidding stretched the grim desert, all its sharp teeth showing.

Into Tall Holt, near the close of a hot day, rode a man on a long-barreled roan.

The rider dismounted at a store which carried on the false front a sign, "Yell Sanger, General Merchandise." He dropped the reins at a hitchrack and looked up and down the street to orient himself. Through the hazy amber light of late afternoon he saw Tall Holt drowse in a coma of sunshine. A man was crossing the street from one saloon to another. Otherwise the place appeared to be deserted, except for half a dozen cow-ponies drooping at the hitchrack of Curt Dubbs' Golden Nugget, saloon and gambling-house.

Four saloons, a blacksmith shop, another general store, a Chinese restaurant, a shoemaker's cubby hole, and a public corral were checked off by the stranger. Lei-surely he turned and walked with trailing spurs into Sanger's store.

In addition to Sanger, who was a bald-headed little fellow with black gimlet eyes, two cowboys were in the place. They were lounging against a counter. Conversation ceased at the entrance of the newcomer. All three gazed at him. They saw a crook-nosed man of middle size with a leathery brown face in which were set light gray eyes, from the corners of which radiated many tiny wrinkles. He might be thirty years old, perhaps a year or two less. His movements had a kind of rippling ease and he carried himself with an assurance almost insolent. When he took off his dusty hat he showed a thick head of hair burnt sorrel by a thousand untempered suns. He wore shiny leathers and high-heeled boots, an open vest, no coat. A gun hung low on his thigh, well forward. A tough hombre, it could be guessed, able to take care of himself in any emergency.

From a throat caked with alkali dust the traveler said hoarsely, "Tomato airtight."

Sanger slashed open a can with a hatchet.

"Some hot on the desert," the storekeeper suggested.

The crook-nosed man drank the juice from the can, then fished out a tomato. "Some," he assented. "I got to thinkin' if Tall Holt was any farther off it must be near somewhere."

Experimentally, one of the cowboys murmured, "You come quite a ways?"

The crook-nosed man looked at him. Apparently this did not call for an answer. "Yes, sir, hot and dry," he drawled, after shifting his gaze to Sanger.

"That's right," the second cowboy agreed. He was a long-legged man with a lank lower jaw.

"Sure is," his companion said. "Well, I'll be moseyin', Mile High."

"Yo tambien, Sid," the tall man concurred promptly, unwinding to his full height. "I'll take a plug of Horse-Shoe, Sanger."

He followed Sid from the building.

"Town kinda quiet," the stranger said.

"Liable to liven up later," Sanger told him.

From where he sat on a counter the man with the sorrel-top could see the two cowboys looking at his horse. Words drifted to him.

"Double cinch—Texas man," Mile High hazarded.

"Yep. No tenderfoot." Sid rolled a cigarette.

"Not none. Plenty tough." The tall man said something more, in a low voice.

Sid laughed, harshly. "I wouldn't know."

They bowlegged across the road to the Golden Nugget.

"Tall Holt takes notice of a stranger," the newcomer mentioned dryly.

Sanger did not answer. His small black eyes were taking in with a vast surprise two people who had come into the store.

"Evening, Miss Chiswick—Lou," he greeted them.

The man he had called Lou drew the storekeeper aside for a whispered conference. He was wearing new corduroys, fancy top-boots, an expensive sombrero, and a purple silk shirt around the neck of which was tied loosely a polka-dot bandanna. On his dark, handsome face there was just now a sulky look. In one keen glance the crook-nosed man sized him up as a showy, raffish fellow with no bottom.

The girl held a greater interest. She had, he guessed, an exciting personality. In her dark, stormy eyes was the threat of passion.

A snatch of the low-voiced conversation came to the stranger.

"... have Spicer meet us at Ma Presnell's boarding-house and do the job ... want to get to Tough Nut before night."

Gretna Green business, of course. Bad medicine for the girl. Probably she was an undisciplined little devil, but she was too fine of grain for the man with whom she was eloping. Sardonic Crook-nose added a stipulation. Very likely he was letting her glamorous, troubled beauty sway his judgment.

"Are you expecting to spend the day here?" she asked her companion, and her voice had in it the singing sting of a small whiplash.

"I'm fixing things up with Sanger, Ruth," the young man answered irritably. "Can't do it any faster."

The girl did not reply. She brushed back impatiently a tendril that had escaped from the soft waves of dark hair disordered by her long ride.

A fusillade of shots came from the street. The three men moved swiftly to the door. A rider was galloping down the dusty road, revolver in hand, waving a hat in the air.

"Hi-yi! Whoopee! Git outta the way of Wild Jim Pender," he yelled.

"Pender on a drunk again," Sanger said. "He's a terror when he has tanglefoot aboard."

"He's headin' back down the street ... Lordie, he's comin' in!"

"Hunt cover, Ruth," her young man shouted, and vaulted over a counter. "Back here. Quick."

An arm of the stranger went round the waist of the girl, swept her up the store, and flung her down behind some sacks of potatoes.

The drunken man drove his horse into the store. "Lo, Sanger, you old son-of-a-vinegaroon, where are you? I want cartridges—pronto."

Window Washer's Job Is Risky; Worker Can Clean Ten to Fifteen in an Hour

All skyscraper windows aren't "architect's nightmares," and not all window washing is done in sub-freezing weather. Usually the cleaner climbs out on a reasonably wide sill with a rubber squeegee and a wet chamolai, snaps his safety belt hooks into the little steel rings the builders put in the window frames for that purpose, and in a few quick swipes is ready to climb back inside and begin all over on the next one.

To hold his job, says a writer in the Washington Star, a window cleaner must keep moving. A good worker can average 10 windows an hour, or 80 a day; the topnotchers even wash 15 windows every hour! For this risking his life, he may receive from $36 to $45 for a 40-hour week where union wages prevail, and his average age of usefulness in the business runs from about twenty-two to forty.

Dangerous? Yes, though most window cleaners seldom think of that—or they probably wouldn't be window cleaners! Their employers pay as much as a dollar a day to insure each worker's life, and it is the insurance company which does everything humanly possible to make the cleaner's calling a safer one. Inspectors regularly test the metal rings into which the safety belt hooks are fastened. These rust away in old buildings and result in more falls than any other cause.

Sometimes a near-tragedy in a window cleaner's life turns out to be funny. One worker recently got his name in the papers when his safety belt gave way on a third-story window and he fell to the ground without suffering a scratch. He got up, brushed off his clothes, stopped at the office for a new belt and climbed out to finish the window.

A hero? He'd be the last one to think so. To a window cleaner, taking hazardous risks is all in the day's work.

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Why Not Fix Those Sagging Springs?

SPRINGS in furniture seldom break. The twine that holds them does break and webbing wears out throwing the springs out of position.

To set the springs you will need a ball of twine and a needle such as used by the upholsterer, enough webbing to replace the old, tacks 3/4-inch long with large heads, a block of wood for stretching the webbing, a tack hammer and a tack lifter. Remove the cover from the seat carefully so that it may either be used again or serve as a pattern. Most of the padding may also be used. Observe how each layer of material is fastened in place, so that you may put it back the same way.

Remove the springs and all old tacks. Tack the first strip of webbing to one edge of the bottom of the frame, letting the end extend 1/2 inch beyond the edge, then fold the end over the first tacks and tack again as at A. Draw the webbing across the frame using the block of wood as a lever to stretch webbing taut as at B. When all the strips have been stretched and tacked across the frame one way, stretch strips of webbing across the other way weaving these over and under the first ones as at C. Now, sew the bottom of each spring to the webbing with the upholsterer's twine and curved needle as shown in this diagram.

Next, turn the frame right side up, drive tacks part way in along the edges; then tie the springs across each way with upholsterer's twine as shown in diagram C. The twine is tied to the tacks and to each spring and regulates the height of the springs—the outside edges usually being lower than the center to make a rounded top. When the springs are regulated evenly, drive the tacks in; then replace burlap or muslin coverings and padding.

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—fast work; nervous, all played out.

VOTE FOR THE BONDS

Saturday of this week the voters of the Loraine Independent School district will have an opportunity to vote for or against $10,000 in bonds with which to match Federal funds to build a combination gymnasium-auditorium.

There are many reasons why the voters of the district should approve this bond issue. In the first place conditions in the school are crowded. When the gymnasium-auditorium is completed four to six new class rooms will be available for use of students. The need for a gymnasium-auditorium has been apparent to many for years. With a gym a well rounded program of physical education will be available to all students, and the need for an auditorium is apparent to all of us every time we go to the school house for any kind of program.
The addition of a gymnasium-auditorium and the new class rooms will be an added attraction for students from other schools to come to Loraine. Unless we do provide the room the Loraine district will in all probability lose those students.

There is talk that outlying school districts are making plans to transfer their entire school, and in some instances probably consolidate, to some other school district because it is becoming harder and harder to operate rural schools due to state restrictions. We want our district to be ready to receive these other districts when they are ready to come.
We want these school districts to know that Loraine is building for the future.

The Loraine school must continue to progress. The operation of three school buses has added quite a number of students to the Loraine school. These students bring to our district the state apportionment, which at present is $22 per pupil; high school students bring an additional $18 per pupil from the state for transportation. In other words each high school pupil transferred to Loraine and brought in by bus brings this district $40 from the state.

We should make room for all high school pupils who wish to come here. If any rural district wishes to send its pupils here we should be ready to receive them.
If any district wishes to consolidate with Loraine we should be ready to receive it. As long as rural schools can operate efficiently they should be maintained but when it comes to the point that such operation cannot be maintained then the Loraine district should be ready to cooperate in any way possible.

Lets vote those bonds next Saturday and keep the Loraine school progressing.

MILK PLANT NEEDED

Loraine needs a milk plant and we believe it would be easily obtained. Since the cotton reduction program will be in operation this year, and probably for years to come. Farmers of this community will have to turn to something else to grow on their land. Most farmers will plant feed but feed when harvested and sold in the head or bundle is not a sure money crop.

If every farm had from one to six or more good milch cows to feed their surplus feed and a market for the milk a feed crop would be a paying proposition.
A milk plant would furnish the market for the milk.

We believe the proposition deserves a thorough investigation by business men and farmers of the community.

The editor was full of mistakes last week. Of course we always make plenty of them but last week seemed to be worse than usual. In the H. E. Thomas Grocery advertisement we made the mistake of putting Crisco at 3 pounds for 29 cents when the price should have been 59 cents.
Hubert, of course, could not afford to sell Crisco at the advertised price. It was our error.
Other errors appeared in other ads as well as news items and we hope our readers will overlook them.

Every few days we run into somebody who asks: "Why don't Loraine do this or that?" The only answer we can give is the fact that Loraine does not have an active chamber of commerce or any civic organization to handle such matters and consequently have to be left undone.

We cannot understand why Loraine business men should be so nearsighted that they cannot see the benefit derived from a civic organization. Surely they are as intelligent as business men in other towns where they do have a civic organization.

Leisure for you!

...and better
cooked meals
at less cost with today's gas range

Until you actually use today's gas range you'll never know how easy and sure cooking can be, not to mention the hours one cuts from kitchen time.

There's an automatic temperature control that assures perfect baking and roasting whether you are in the kitchen or out of the house. Tight insulation holds oven heat constant... helps the oven to heat faster... saves gas... and keeps the kitchen cooler. Simmer burners provide a highly flexible heat that can be controlled to the exact temperature required for any boiling or frying job.

Of course, there are many other features to make your kitchen work easier and add hours of new leisure every day.
And the best way to know these features is to get a first-hand look at the new ranges. They are as beautiful as they are efficient and are sold on the easiest kind of terms.

The Judge
 Pray, find no fault with the man who limps or stumbles along the road; unless you have worn the shoes he wears, or struggled beneath his load. There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt, though hidden away from view, or the burden he bears, placed on your back, might cause you to stumble, too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down today, unless you have felt the blow that caused his fall, or felt the same that only the fallen know. You may be strong, but still the blows that were his, if dealt to you in the same way at the same time, might cause you to stagger, too.

Don't be too harsh with the man who duns, or pelt him with words or stones, unless you are sure yes, doubly sure that you have not sinned of your own. For you know, perhaps, if the temper's voice should whisper as soft to you as it did to him when he went astray, 'twould cause you to falter, too.—Speakers Library.

TENNIS TRYOUTS

The county tennis tryouts were held in Colorado Friday and Saturday of last week.

Nina Groom won first place in High School Senior girls' singles. Those winning their first match were: June Graham in Grammar school boys' singles; Sidney Meek and Gene Baird in High School Junior Boys' doubles; Marvlyn Martin and Lorraine McCollum in High School Junior Girls' doubles; Will Albright and Bob James in High School Senior Boys' doubles; and Christine Thomas in High School Junior Girls' singles.

Don't Miss The League Meet

Friday March 25, school will be dismissed for the annual Inter-scholastic League held at Colorado. Beginning at 9 o'clock all literary events, with the exception of debates, will be held. The track events are scheduled for Friday night. Entries from Colorado, Roscoe, Westbrook, Buford, and Loraine are competing in the contests.

This meet affords a good opportunity for developing talent of all kinds in the student body, and the good clean competition naturally adds space to the work and pep-up the enthusiasm of all. The students from dear old L. H. S. are going to Colorado Friday and put forth their very best efforts to win the County Meet this year and they hope to have a great number of boosters there helping them. We failed to win first place last year but we hope to bring home the honor this year.

Junior Party

Doris Meadows gave a party last Saturday night for the Juniors. Everyone reported a nice time. Interesting games were played and punch and cookies were served to the following: Margaret Jarratt, Iona Callahan, Gvindola Mearse, Roy G. Edwards, Truett Butler, J. W. King, Kenneth Hoover, and Mrs. H. G. Ison.

Sophomore News

The Sophomores have been busy this six weeks coloring birds in Biology class. Some out of that class have joined the Audubon Bird Society.

Some of the Sophomores have entered the Inter-scholastic League Work. I think some of our tennis players have been beaten but at any rate we hope that Loraine will be in the lead this coming Friday at County Meet.

Clerk in bookstore: "This book will do half of your work for you."

Doris Glass: "Fine. I'll take two."

Girl Scouts Have Wener Roast

Twenty Girl Scouts with their Captain, Miss Ruby Lee, hiked out to Wayside Park, Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. When we reached the park, some thought we never would, we built a camp fire and roasted weiners and marshmallows and all enjoyed a picnic lunch. Following the supper the scouts met in a regular troop meeting, to attend to their business. This was followed by the patrol meetings.

The girl scouts proved to be a little tenderfooted when they decided to ride home instead of hiking, but that was only because they had had sufficient entertainment for one day.

The troop was organized about two weeks ago, composed of girls from the fifth grade up. The troops divided into three patrols with Betty Johnson, Lois Glass, and Wanda Smith at the head of them. At present there are twenty three scouts who meet regularly, every Thursday afternoon.

Senior News

The Seniors got a great thrill out of measuring for their caps and gowns Monday. The smallest girl is 5 feet 3 inches tall and the tallest boy is 6 feet 3 1/2 inches.

We sent off the order for our invitations last week and as soon as inter-scholastic League is over we plan to devote a great deal of our time to the Senior Play. The play and characters haven't been chosen yet but this will probably be done in a short time. Our plans this year are to get everything that is possible over with before the last few weeks of school so we can devote our entire time and attention to studies.

Fifth Grade News

The Fifth grade are decorating their room with pottery. Some of us are making canoes, and some are making Indian baskets of clay which we have found. Some of the girls in our room have finished their corn cob dolls, and others are working hard to finish theirs.

To Policyholders and Stockholders of the Southland Life Insurance Company and the Insuring Public of the Southwest

One of the most important financial transactions in the history of the Legal Reserve Life Insurance business in Texas was consummated in Dallas March 8, set by law as the annual meeting date for life insurance companies. At that time a greater, bigger, and stronger life insurance company to better serve the Mighty Empire of the Southwest was created and destined to make more secure the futures and lives of uncounted thousands.

At that time a new and greater Southland Life Insurance Company was born with the consolidation of the business in force of two of Texas' most progressive Life Insurance Companies... a proposition previously that day given unanimous approval by the Stockholders and Board of Directors of the Gulf States Life Insurance Company and its Executive Committee and by Stockholders and Directors of The Southland Life Insurance Company. During its twenty-nine years of faithful service to the insuring public, The Southland Life Insurance Company had built up a total of insurance in force of $118,433,196 and the Gulf States Life Insurance Company, during a ten-year brilliant career, had on its books a total of $65,197,422 insurance in force—making a total of $183,630,618—contracts guaranteed by total assets of $28,506,067.96, according to their reports of December 31, 1937. Since their inception, these companies paid beneficiaries and policyholders in excess of $35,000,000.

A meeting of the Stockholders of the newly-constituted Southland Life Insurance Company was held and a new Board of Directors elected. These Directors immediately placed responsibility for management of the greater Southland Life Insurance Company in the hands of the following Executive Committee: John W. Carpenter, A. Morgan

Duke, Harry L. Seay, Sr., Homer R. Mitchell, John E. Owens, B. A. Donnelly, Lewis T. Carpenter, W. C. McCord, and Dr. Hall Shannon.

We, as members of that Executive Committee, and as active officers of the enlarged Southland Life Insurance Company, deeply and sincerely recognize the great trust and obligation placed upon us and, without hesitation or reservation, accept our responsibilities with the promise to you, whom we represent, that it shall be fulfilled to the very ends of our respective abilities.

Still further, we are most happy to give you every assurance that, with the consolidation of the companies, which is proceeding apace and already has witnessed consolidation, two of the greatest agency forces in Texas, the Southland Life will forge steadily ahead to its appointed place as one of the greatest service institutions in America.

The Board of Insurance Commissioners of the State of Texas unanimously has given full and unqualified approval of the consolidation and of the formation of the new and greater institution to better serve you. Gratefully we express our sincere appreciation to policyholders, stockholders, our splendid agency force, and the insuring public of the Southwest for expressions already given by them and their unswerving loyalty to their company and bespeak for this newer and greater Southland Life Insurance Company your confidence, respect and patronage and have requested the newly-elected President, Mr. A. Morgan Duke, to communicate this message to you over his signature.

Yours very sincerely,
 (Signed) A. MORGAN DUKE,
 President.

We, the Directors and Officers of The Southland Life Insurance Company, gladly and without reservation pledge stockholders, policyholders, agents, and employees of The Southland Life Insurance Company our utmost devotion, co-operation, and effort to the upbuilding of our company to its rightful place among the great life insurance companies of the United States.

All it usually costs to relieve the misery of a cold today is 3¢ to 5¢—relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly.

The Bayer method of relief is the way many doctors now approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

Speaking of Sports Former Greats Will Coach in International

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

OLD faces will be seen in new places when the International league opens its 1938 season. Names that made sports headlines a decade ago in the baseball big show will be on the team rosters.

You'll recognize a good many diamond heroes of yesteryear among the managers and coaches. Restoration of an old league rule permitting each manager to enlist a coach has opened jobs for some. Vacancies in the managerial ranks have spelled opportunity for others.

There's Jim Bottomley, for instance, who will manage the Syracuse team. A standout when he played first for the St. Louis Cardinals in the world's championship days of the twenties, he finished his major league career as a coach for the St. Louis Browns. Now he's getting his chance as a manager. Bottomley has signed old Hank Severid as coach.

Vets Get Chance

Over at Newark, Johnny Neun, old-time Boston Red Sox first baseman, is getting his managerial try-out. He succeeds Oscar Vitt, who moved up to the job of piloting the Cleveland Indians after producing a pennant winner. Neun will be aided by Benny Bengough. Travis Jackson's first assistant at Jersey City will be Alex Gaston. Steve O'Neill will have George Uhle with him at Buffalo.

The International league, holder of the "little world's championship" and the next step down the flight from the majors, symbolizes the way up or the way back for baseball people. It's the way up for flashy young players speeding toward the American or National league. It's the way back for old-time major leaguers.

Old names revive memories. When you think of Benny Bengough, you recall the Yankee stadium and the late Miller Huggins. Benny was a handy man behind the plate on the Yankees' mighty machine of 1926-'27 and '28.

Then there's Hank Severid, a name synonymous with the greatest team the St. Louis Browns ever produced, that of 1922. He was the battery mate of Urban Shocker.

Immortals of '22

The pair not only made history in St. Louis that year, along with George Sisler, Ken Williams, Baby Doll Jacobson, Wally Gerber and others, but they were reunited with the Yankees of 1926 and worked in the world series.

Steve O'Neill and Travis Jackson bring to mind old baseball history. When O'Neill, one of the all-time greats among catchers, was forced to resign from his manager's post for the Cleveland Indians last year, he caught on with Buffalo, not only as manager, but business manager as well. When Travis Jackson's legs went back on him the year before last, the Giants placed him with their farm at Jersey City.

Both O'Neill and Jackson will have old teammates with them. Once he was secure as business manager, Steve signed Uhle as his assistant. The pair have been buddies for years. When Uhle came up from the Cleveland sandlots to the Indians in 1919, O'Neill was an established catcher on the team.

Jackson will have Freddie Lindstrom with him as a player at Jersey City. A veteran in point of baseball service, but relatively young in years, Lindstrom was a buddy of Jackson's on the Giants when John McGraw was manager.

Toughest Sports Job

TAKE it from a man who has refereed almost 5,000 prize fights in the past 12 years—Art Donovan of New York—the toughest official job in any sport is that of third man in the ring.

Umpiring a ball game, officiating on the gridiron or being an arbiter in a basketball or tennis championship is a soft touch compared with refereeing a contest in the squared circle in Mr. Donovan's opinion.

"In any other sport," he says, "the fans never have any doubt about the result because the score tells the story. But in a fight there is no score and every fan no matter where he is sitting thinks his eyesight, judgment, knowledge of boxing and experience are keener than those of the man in the ring with the fighters."

"No two people look at a fight in the same way. Suppose some Fancy Dan lands six light taps that wouldn't muss a baby's hair on the other fellow's face and the other fellow—a rough, tough guy—lands a terrific right hook under the heart. How would you score the result? In my book the fellow who does the most damage is the fellow who wins."

"What I mean is that a man like Jack Dempsey might almost kill an opponent with three solid punches. He might take a dozen feather duster taps just to get a chance to land one solid wallop and with that punch he'd do more damage than he'd receive from a hundred jabs."

Dodgers' Renaissance

ON THE strength of the high priced purchase of First Baseman Dolph Camilli from the Phillies recently, Larry McPhail may yet make something out of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The acquisition of a left-hand pull-hitter like Camilli who should be a "natural" for the Ebbets Field right field target may rouse the daffiness boys to a new and amazing habit of winning some ball games. But the most astonishing thing about the whole transaction is the fact that the Dodgers are said to have parted with $60,000 in cash to get Camilli—an unheard of sum in Flatbush history.

Whether McPhail made a wise move or not will be apparent in the turnstiles after the season gets well under way. The factional battle in the Brooklyn management disgusted the fans and made them stay away. Now with McPhail making gestures of reconstruction, the fans may be lured back again.

Brooklyn has always been one of the best franchises in the major leagues. The fans are rabid and loyal. They do not demand a pennant winner. They want a fighting ball club. They also like a club that can go out and twist the noses of Bill Terry's Giants once in a while. If they get that they'll be more than satisfied.

MacPhail will try to give them that even if he does make a mistake or two.

Here and There—

JOE GORDON, the young man the Yankees have stationed at second base to replace Tony Lazzeri, has no doubts about his fielding ability. He says he doesn't know how well he'll hit, but believes he'll field the position acceptably.

Tommy Henrich, rookie outfielder of the Yanks, collected $30,000 for his 1937 services. He pocketed a $20,000 bonus for signing with Ruppert, received a contract estimated to pay between $5,000 and $6,000 for the 1937 season and got a cut of $5,836 from the World's series.

Approximately $2,000,000 in prizes have been paid in ABC tournaments. . . . Bill Clemensen, Pittsburgh's rookie pitcher, is a cousin of Larry Doyle, former Giant second baseman. . . . Barney Ross is a billiard enthusiast and a better than average cue wielder. . . . Jim Tipton, Alabama guard, will be graduated from the school of aeronautical engineering in June and contemplates a career in the flying corps. . . . The Yankees' scouting system is said to cost Jake Ruppert $100,000 a year. . . . Although his father was a wealthy merchant, George Munger, Pennsylvania's new football coach, worked his way through the university doing odd jobs.

CORRECTING WRONG IDEAS OF RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Mark 7:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—At Dinner-Time.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Is Real Religion?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Counts with God?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sidestepping Responsibilities.

The never-ending struggle of Christianity is to keep the simple gospel of the grace of God in Christ Jesus free to operate in all its glory and power, unencumbered by the traditions and formulas of men. It has been my privilege to read a recent book by a brilliant young man who, while serving as a professor of philosophy in a large university, is also versed in the related fields of theology, psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy. He has had first-hand experience in dealing with the problems of men and women. With this background of both study and experience he gives it as his absolute conviction that we must get "back to the original simplicity of the Christian gospel." He suggests that we need to "dust off the additions and superstructures" that have been added since Christ came to seek and to save the lost.

Our lesson for today finds Jesus meeting that very issue with the traditionalists of His day.

I. Washed Hands and Unwashed Hands (vv. 1-6).

In the process of interpreting the law of Moses and applying it to the affairs of daily life the religious authorities of Israel had developed a mass of intricate and onerous rules which had literally buried the law itself and had substituted ritualistic formalism for spiritual life. So fond had the scribes and the Pharisees become of these traditions that they became bold enough to declare that they were far superior to the law itself.

Their attack on Jesus because His disciples ate with unwashed hands did not refer to the proper cleansing of one's hands before eating, but to the ceremonial washings which were said to be necessary if one had accidentally touched a Gentile, or something that a Gentile had touched in the market place.

Jesus skillfully and fully disposes of that question by reminding the objectors that they were serving God with their lips only, but their hearts were far from Him. Washed hands are not a thing to be commended, and Jesus says nothing about that point. When the washing of hands becomes of more importance than the cleansing of the heart, however, the soul is in real danger.

II. Traditions of Man Versus the Commandment of God (vv. 7-13).

Here is the heart of the entire matter, for while we may not always be aware of it the fact is that our anxiety to maintain human tradition which is contrary to the law and Spirit of God is fundamentally for the purpose of evading our full and true responsibility.

The Jew who was so avaricious that he did not wish to support his aged and needy parents could entirely evade that God-given responsibility by declaring that his property was "Corban," dedicated to God. Thereafter no matter how great was the need of his parents they could receive nothing. The execution of this oath was carried out to such a fine point that a son who had declared his property to be "Corban" could visit a sick father or mother for only a brief period lest he might stay long enough to perform some duties of a nurse and so contribute to his parents by saving them some expense.

Thus do men even in our day make "the word of God of none effect" (v. 13), through their traditions. No right minded person objects to the worthy traditions of worship and service which are such a precious heritage of the Christian church. Rightfully apprehended and properly used they are both desirable and helpful. But we must never permit the grace and power of God in Jesus Christ "to be brought under the trammels of human teachers or the arrangements of human office-bearers. The first movement toward the mastery of the soul by tradition is the movement of that soul away from immediate, direct, first-hand fellowship with God" (Morgan).

The crying need of our day, as it was of the time when Jesus was on earth, is that we should clear away hindering encumbrances.

Goodness
The general goodness which is nourished in noble hearts, makes every one think that strength of virtue to be in another whereof they find assured foundation in themselves.—Sir P. Sidney.

Simplicity of Religion
Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

New Slenderizing Dresses

IF YOU'RE in the size-34-and-up class, here are three brand new fashions designed especially for you! Everyone of them is extremely smart and everyone is designed to give added charm and dignity to full figures. They are easy to make. The patterns are carefully planned to help beginners, and each is accompanied by a detailed sew chart. So start in tomorrow, and have at least two of them ready for Easter.

Princess House Dress.

It's a sure way to start the day right, having a dress as becoming and pretty as this one to put on first thing in the morning. It takes a woman with some plumpness to do justice to that fitted, long line. Made up in printed percale, gingham or chambray, with rows of ricrac braid, this dress will be so successful that you'll use the pattern time and again.

Graceful Afternoon Frock.

An especially charming style for luncheons, bridge parties and club meetings. The full sleeves make your arms look small, and are very graceful in themselves. Gathers at the shoulders create necessary bust fullness. Make this dress for now in silk print or chiffon. Later on, in voile or summer sheer it will be your coolest dress.

Dress With Lengthening Panels.

The plain neckline, the slim waist, snuggled in by gathers, the long panel, front and back, are all beautifully slimming in effect. All in all, this dress is so smart that it's certain to be one of your favorites. This design adapts itself to so many materials—silk crepe, small-figured silk print and, later on, linen.

The Patterns.

1485 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material, with 3½ yards of braid for trimming.

1233 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 36 requires 5½ yards of 39-inch material.

1482 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44. Size 34 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material, with short sleeves. With long sleeves, 4½ yards.

Spring-Summer Pattern Book.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Pattern Book which is now ready. It contains 109 attractive, practical and becoming designs. The Barbara Bell patterns are well planned, accurately cut and easy to follow. Each pattern includes a sew-chart which enables even a beginner to cut and make her own clothes.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Our readers should always remember that our community merchants cannot afford to advertise a bargain unless it is a real bargain. They do advertise bargains and such advertising means money saving to the people of the community.

"SNUGGLES DOWN IN THE PAPER —SMOKES TASTY AND COOL"

says Jimmy Bateman, praising this fast-rolling, mellow "makin's" tobacco . . .

THERE'S NO TIME in a busy newspaper pressroom to fool around with slow-rolling "makin's" tobacco that spills all over. Pressmen want to twirl their "makin's" smokes fast—but trim and neat, too. And their smokes have got to be full-bodied and tasty, yet mild! Bob Etter, Jimmy Bateman, and Joe Brown check on this as they roll up Prince Albert "makin's" cigarettes. P. A.'s the favorite, all right. (That's what pipe-smokers say too!)
