THE FARMER'S ADVISOR
Vol. 1 No. 1

By A. A. Temple

Hogs Are Profitable on the Farm

Lard type hogs are best for the average farmer to raise. The four best breeds are: Large Poland China, Hampshire, Berkshire and Duroc Jersey. These are very good breeders as well as heavy lard and pork producers.

Feed Surplus Grain to Hogs

There is more profit in feeding the surplus milk, corn and grain sorghums to hogs and then marketing the hogs than to sell the surplus grain and milk on the markets.

Green Pasture for Hogs

Protein is very high in young green feed, therefore it is all important to furnish hogs plenty green clover, alfalfa, rape, rye, peas, wheat, oats, etc. It also contains vitamins necessary for health and growth. Protein is a food required to build muscle tissue and energy.

Good Stock of Hogs is an Index to Large Profits

Pigs selected from large, healthy proven stock will usually produce the best profit, other things being equal. It is well then to consider the following factors in selecting your hogs: Well arched backs, deep body in chest and middle, straight legs and toes, uniformly broad from shoulders to hips, refined neck, head, nose, ears, jaws and broad jaws.

Rations for Hogs on the Farm

CORN. Corn with water is quite a good hog feed. It has been found that about 550 pounds of corn will produce 100 pounds of hog meat, or one bushel of corn will make 10 1/2 pounds gain.

Hogs gain more per pounds feed eaten than any other farm animal.

CORN AND SKIM MILK. Farmers having plenty of skim milk can feed hogs one part corn to eight parts skim milk and make a gain of 1 1/2 pounds daily per hog; or feed 185 pounds of corn to 1480 pounds of skim milk, which will make 100 pounds gain.

CORN AND TANKAGE. It has been found that corn and tankage make better gains than corn alone. It's more economical to add tankage. That is, if you add one pound of tankage it will be equal to five pounds of corn. In other words, one pound of tankage will add as much weight to the hog as five pounds corn added to ration. This shows that the corn must be balanced with a high protein content feed.

Corn and tankage make the most perfectly balanced feed if they are in the proportion of one part tankage to 13 parts corn.

CORN, TANKAGE AND SHORTS. A very well balanced ration may be made by mixing 15 pounds of corn, one pound tankage and five pounds of shorts. This mixture has proven to give a daily gain of 1 1/2 pounds per animal.

SUGGESTIONS VALUABLE IN POULTRY & EGG PRODUCTION

Culling Hens for Egg Production

The best time to cull hens out of the flock is from June to September. This should be done every two weeks because the poor producers quit laying first, and as they quit they may be discarded. However, in fair laying flocks August and September is a very good time since market fowls are advancing some by this time. Cull out the early molters. Hens won't lay while molting. Feed molting hens well and furnish plenty protein so they can grow new feathers and flesh. Hens that molt late in August and in September are usually good layers. At this time culling will aid you to keep only the very choice hens.

Points to Consider in Culling

All yellow skinned hens having yellow shanks and beaks lose their yellow color rapidly as they begin laying until the beak skin, vent and shanks are entirely bleached. They reach this condition after about two months laying. When they quit laying the yellow color gradually returns in the order it disappeared.

Any hen with a long crow head and beak is usually a cull.

If a hen measures less than the width of two fingers between the pelvic bones she should be culled out.

Cost and Profit

It costs about 75 cents to raise a pullet to laying age. A grown hen costs about 1/2 cent worth of feed per day or from 75 to 80 pounds of feed per year. On an average hen must lay over 70 eggs per year to pay for their upkeep. She must lay at least 120 eggs per year to be fairly profitable.

After a hen has laid two or three years her egg laying ability declines and she should be sold to make room for incoming pullets.

Cheap Rations for Laying Hens

A very good laying mash can be prepared by using five parts corn meal, five parts shorts, five parts bran, five parts ground oats and five parts meat scraps or cottonseed meal. Use about 1 1/2 pounds of salt to every three or four hundred pounds mash. For a scratch feed use one part cracked corn and one part oats, giving them 6 pounds morning and 6 pounds in evening per 100 birds daily.

Canning and Preserving Eggs

Eggs should be canned when eggs are plentiful, for that is the time when they are cheap. The purpose is to put eggs away when they are cheap and may be used in the winter when they are high in price. If you have plenty eggs now it would be well to can them yet, for in December they will no doubt be double their present price.

The glass water method, powder method: Buy a can of powdered glass at the drug store. Boil HARD one gallon of water and pour slowly into this boiling water the contents of the can, stirring continuously to prevent formation of lumps. Then add two more gallons of water and add the other gallon mixture to this, making a total of three gallons of boiling water containing the glass water. Put into a gallon jar and add eggs when cool. Keep it about 60 degrees F.

Geo. W. Briggs, secretary of the Pampa chamber of commerce, was in McLean Monday, and stated that his organization is in favor of a county agent, and asked McLean for help in the agitation before the commissioners to save the agent for next year.

Peggy's First Party

ELAIDE D. HUFF

PEGGY sped up the two stairs and down the long hall to her room. Once in her room she slipped off her coat and with a sigh opened the long suit box which had been carrying under her arm. She reverently she picked up the filmy bit of tulle and satin.

It was a darlinger than it did in the past. "Oh, how it and I don't seem too dumb. My first evening party. My first party tonor-

When Peggy went to bed she could not go to sleep. The end of the past few months had been trouping past her in a procession; the death of Rev. Walter Longmire, her small home town and constant in search of work and getting a position in the city. And to crown her misfortune, the death of her father, the junior partner, over to her that first day of her father when he was in Littleton Presbyterian col-had been the beginning of her life. Really the beginning of the ending until the other day he had casually asked her to marry tomorrow night.

Her friends are going to have a party Wednesday evening," he had said. They've been kind enough to give me. They're giving their privilege of asking any party close. It'll be a nice crowd and you'd enjoy it."

at least the moment arrived when Peggy's escort to call she laughed with sheer delight and went downstairs to meet him. He entered the DeRossett home and later they were greeted by D-Rossett whose beautiful hair and magnificent evening dress almost threw Peggy into a daze. Suddenly everyone seemed to be looking at Peggy. Jack, and out of the crowd of strange faces emerged one who will never forget.

Myndenning, this is my little Miss Longmire," said Jack.

"do you do?" said Mrs. Myndenning, looking at the girl who had just come. "You must be the girl I thought I knew everywhere. Where do you live?"

She flushed uncomfortably. She had never met her in Littleton, but neither she nor her escort had the answer for a tall, gawky man rushing up and put a proper hand on Jack's arm.

"do you do? I've been looking for you everywhere," she told him, turning her back on Peggy and ignoring her.

"said Mrs. Myndenning, "we felt that you rather owed Elizabeth consideration. . . . You Jack and Elizabeth are very close friends," Mrs. Myndenning said, turning to Peggy.

felt that way, too, until recently Jack explained comfortably. "We just like a big family together. I hope it will continue to be that way, but since Peggy and I are going to be married soon, I felt that I owed something to Elizabeth."

"aged!" gasped Mrs. Myndenning, white with rage.

"ome on, mother, do," said Elizabeth irritably. "Why shouldn't he be married if he wants to?"

few minutes later Peggy and Jack managed to make their escape undisturbed and were speeding away from the scene of mayhem.

That certainly was a strange first party," laughed Peggy as he slowed down and brought the car to a standstill.

PEGGY, will you forgive me for asking?" he asked. "It was a little premature, but I meant it, all right."

Then I'll forgive you if you meant it," said Peggy.

and for a long blissful moment they forgot Peggy's lovely frock that had not have been missed and the hateful Mrs. Myndenning.

BUNK ADVERTISING

Newspaper advertising isn't the only advertising, but it does get better results than any other form of advertising. It is a sound, legitimate method of calling attention to your service and your product. Tests the world or have proved its value.

While not wishing to appear in the role of a booster against other forms of advertising, the Texan does believe it owes to the business men of Dalhart an obligation to point out the fallacy of hoping to get results from every scheme, legitimate or illegitimate, that comes this way. Just about every kind of scheme in the world to extract money from the business men in the guise of advertising has been practiced here.

Some business men buy advertising judiciously. Others either because of pressure or without weighing the results against the expenditure, waste much money on advertising bunk. An appropriate use of money for advertising pays bigger dividends than most anything else in business. Wasting it on cheap novelties, passing schemes, direct by mail material and one thousand and one lures usually offered, is about the poorest investment that can be made.

The very cheapness of some of the schemes casts a reflection on the business that makes use of them.—Dalhart Texan.

DO IT IF YOU FEEL LIKE IT; IF YOU DON'T, DON'T

Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will. When first he comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him, before he goes out the want to kick him. In his infancy he is an angel, and in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up. If he is a poor man, he is a poor manager; if he is a rich man, he is dishonest; if he is a politician, you can't place him; if he goes to church, he is a hypocrite; if he stays at home, he is a sinner; if he offers assistance to the widows and orphans, he is a flirt; if he donates to foreign missions, he does it for show; if he doesn't, he is stingy. What can the poor man do?—Exchange.

TWO SCOTCHMEN

The usual Sunday morning collection was taken in church one morning, and the minister noticed a lot of dollar bills in the plate and two pennies. "Ah," said he facetiously, "I see there is a Scotchman present." Whereupon an old Scot arose from the back of the church and said, "Yes, sir, there are two of us."

To bound Texas requires four other states, 860 miles of international border and 370 miles of Gulf coast.

The 1929 Texas wheat crop is the biggest ever, with estimates ranging from 40 to 45 million bushels.

GIRL WORTH MARRYING

Once I was young but now I am old, but I have never seen a girl that was unfaithful to her mother that came to be worth a one-eyed button to her husband. It is the law of God; isn't exactly written in the Bible, but it is written large and awful in the many miserable lives of the many misfit homes. I am speaking for the boys now. If one of you chaps come across a girl with a face full of roses who says to you as she comes to the door: "I can't go for 30 minutes yet, for the dishes are not washed," you wait for that girl. You sit right down and wait for her, because if you don't, some other fellow may come along and carry her off, and right there you lose an angel. Wait for that girl and stick to her like a bur to a wooly dog.—Exchange.

"What are you putting 'personal' on that letter to Mr. Durand?"

"I want his wife to open it."

It is getting about time to advise early Christmas shopping.

The need of a county agent and home demonstrator is urgent in Gray county, and it is hoped that the county commissioners will let their action employing one for next year stand. We must encourage the agricultural possibilities of the county for permanent prosperity.

A worker for a more or less worth while cause was in town one day last week, and when the editor of this paper failed to sign on the dotted line, the solicitor asked that his business card be returned to him for future use. This strikes us as being the acme of economy.

Lawyers hold most of the larger offices in this state, and a lot of offices none but lawyers can hold, but there are many offices that a good business man could fill much more acceptably than a lawyer, and voters should welcome every opportunity to vote for business men.

McLean has every right to be proud of the showing made by the high school band at Amarillo. There are few towns our size that can boast of an fine an organization as the band. It is difficult sometimes for home folks to realize the benefits of the band, but expressions of others should convince us that we have a real asset in the band.

More and more the business men of McLean are coming to realize the need of a retail credit association. Such an organization is for the benefit of the honest debtor and against the crook, and no one could object to its provisions. It might be possible to combine this work with the chamber of commerce or city secretary, and is well worth considering.

Naturally, we expect to make better progress with a secretary for the chamber of commerce, but he must have the fullest co-operation from everyone to have the success we are looking for. No one man can accomplish much working alone, but with everyone in the community working for the same object, it will not take long to attain it. The day of individual effort in the life of a city is gone; we must look to organizations to get things done, and if we support the chamber of commerce with our time and money, we may confidently expect to make a success of our community undertakings.

The need for more sidewalks in the residential districts of town is vital, and more building should be done this fall before cold weather. It is to be hoped that the contractor will co-operate with the Lions Club committee in this work. It is understood that the city council will put in all crossings needed to make connected walks. Most every new house that is being erected is adding walks as a matter of finishing the property, and it should not be difficult to persuade other property owners to build walks, if a concerted movement can be had and walks connected up so that there will be a main line to the business district. Streets leading to the schools are especially in need of attention.

Midland has banned fake advertisements, and merchants co-operate to the extent that two "advertisers" who came to town last week left without getting a cent out of Midland merchants. It is estimated that the city saves from $10,000 to $15,000 a year by being hardboiled on the advertising peddlers. McLean is getting a little hardboiled along the same line, as is evidenced by merchants referring outside solicitors and beggars to the Lions Club advertising committee for endorsement. Unfortunately the committee does not have the power to help beggars and has consistently refused to pass on their cases. However, anyone can be sure that most outside beggars are professionals, and should govern themselves accordingly.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to express, as nearly as can be done, the deep appreciation and gratitude for the overwhelming evidence of kindness and sympathy extended to us in our bereavement and the great loss we have sustained. Harder indeed would have been our suffering but for the thoughtful attention of friends and loved ones of our departed daughter, and the kindness and affection shown, the consideration, the wonderful floral tributes, and all those unmentionable evidences of thoughtfulness, touching and sincere, are appreciated more than can ever be told. May God bless each and everyone of you.

CONTAGIOUS!

The editor of a Texas paper went to attend a party given by one of his neighbors, where just a few weeks before the home had been blessed with a new baby. The hostess met him at the door and after the usual salutation, he asked after the baby's health. The lady was hard of hearing and had a bad cold, and, thinking he was asking about herself, answered that although she usually had one every winter, this was the worst she ever had, it kept her awake at night a great deal, and at first confined her to her bed. Then noticing that the editor was acting very strangely, she said she could tell by his looks and actions that he was going to have one just like hers, and she asked him to come in out of the draft and sit down!

CARNIVAL GAMBLING

I may be stepping in where I have no business, but, folks, I want to call your attention to one thing. A whole flock of carnivals, circuses and shows are doing Dalhart the questionable honor of making a stop here this week and next. Do you know what the bank deposits will be this week and next? Believe it or not, the bank deposits when shows and carnivals are in town are just half what they were during a normal week. Every business in the city is affected by these nuisances.

Everyone has a right to spend his money as he sees fit, but it is hardly fair to a man or woman to gamble away a lot of money when they need it for other things, or when they have unpaid grocery bills. No one ever beat a carnival or show game. They aren't made that way. They leave but little money here. Frankly, I think some ordinance or law should be enforced compelling these shows, carnivals and circuses to move outside the city limits, even if a property owner or so loses the lease on a lot for a day or a week. If you cut Dalhart's bank deposits in half every week of the year this would indeed be a sorry old town.—Dalhart, Texan.

"Let's go for a drive now," she said coldly. "Eddy, you've got to take Marjory in front with you. I want Mr. Murdock to tell me all about the—the groceries. I think they are so fascinating."

"But I was prepared for you," objected Eddy. "I planned to give you a driving lesson."

It had long been Ginger's great desire to learn to drive, but now, with a sigh, she relinquished that beautiful dream to save her lovely Marjory from the machinations of this base pretender. Around the world—as a stoker, perhaps. Or working his way from port to port by the sale of vegetables.

Marjory slid into the front seat with Eddy Jackson. Ginger triumphantly drew Alexander Murdock in by her side, and immediately set herself to snubbing him. When occasionally, in sheer youth and good spirits, she forgot her annoyance and yielded to the pleasure of the hour, she consoled herself with the thought that at least she had saved Marjory for the future, and they parted at the parsonage two hours later merrily enough.

Three days passed before they had news from Chicago. It was not very encouraging. There was no improvement in Mr. Tolliver's condition. His eyes were still clouded in the misty fog. The doctors were pessimistic. By all means he should remain at hand for daily observation and treatment, for an operation if it came to that. But in the meantime absolute rest was imperative. He must have entire freedom from nervous strain, entire lack of worry and responsibility. Fresh air, good food, mild exercise, these were the tonics that by feeding the body would strengthen his sight. Particularly they warned that a shock of any nature whatsoever might precipitate total and permanent blindness.

In writing this sad news to her sisters, Miriam begged them to face it bravely, and to greet their father with their usual light good cheer.

"Be very cheerful," she begged, "oh, very. He doesn't say anything, but he looks so sad."

The girls at home went into immediate consultation. Ginger was first to give expression to her thoughts. Ginger was always first.

"There's just one thing about it," she said stoutly. "He's in for a good long slice of it, and we must have more money. You've got to let me go to work."

"What can you do, dear?" queried Helen mildly. It was Helen's mildness that so maddened Ginger. How could one expect to pull gloriously out of a crisis without fire and flame and flash? Helen was the sort to ask what one could do, when obviously one must do something!

"I don't care what," cried Ginger, passionately. "Anything. I'll scrub, or take in washing, or go on the stage, or anything."

Helen considered gravely. Helen was the sort to consider gravely in such a moment.

ions. She tried to mirror in her small piquant face unutterable depths of wisdom.

"She and I agree that it would be the worst thing that could happen."

"Eddy, do you not see how impossible it is for me to leave home when father needs me? Horace will understand. He will be glad to do his share in helping out."

"I am not thinking of Horace. I am thinking of your father. The doctors say he must have complete mental rest. Do you think he can be happy, and serenely quiet, when he knows that you are sacrificing your dearest aims and plans on his account? Will not every touch of your hand and sound of your voice be a reproach to him?"

"Oh, Eddy, I couldn't bear to go away and be happy by myself, with father and the girls—" Quick tears flooded her quiet eyes.

"Yes, I am sure, Helen, you would be happier to stay at home, and work, and sacrifice yourself. But your father's happiness is the thing that counts right now. Look at it this way, Helen. I think—and Ginger agrees with me—"

"Indeed I do," said Ginger stoutly. "We think you should go ahead as if this little setback amounts to nothing. Make light of it. Go on with your wedding. Helen, don't you see, that if you teach school you will be away, out of town, tied up with your work? But if you marry, you are right here at hand, ready to help. Your time will be your own. You can help Ginger, help your father, and he will not realize what you are doing for him. If necessary, you and Horace can come and stay in the parsonage part of the time. But don't add to your father's burden the knowledge that he is stealing a year of his daughter's happiness. I dare say he is sick at heart, this very moment, dreading to come home and have you tell him, sweetly, that your happiness has been burned on the altar of daughterly duty."

Helen studied him seriously. "You are a wise, wise boy," she said gently. "And I think you are right. I could help more, that is true, if I were here in Red Thrush. And I know it would grieve him bitterly to have us change our plans. I could come every day and help them."

"And they could call on me in a pinch—"

"But Ginger is a such a child. So much responsibility—"

"Responsibility never hurt anybody. You had it when you were young, and it did you no harm. And Ginger is not a child. She is growing up."

Ginger stood up with a bored hauteur. "Ellen is grown up now, if you ask me. And if you will excuse me, I shall go upstairs. I have some very important work to do."

NOW THE GASOLINE OF CONTROLLED VOLATILITY ADDS ETHYL

Today in ONE gasoline you can get ALL the famous Phillips 66 advantages—year-round easy starting, quick acceleration, power and mileage—plus the feature of "no-knock." Ethyl is a no-knock compound placed in gasoline—a few drops to a gallon. But don't overlook this: the quality of an Ethyl gasoline depends upon the qualities of the original gasoline to which it is added. Make sure the station pump says Phillips 66 Ethyl. Dispensed from sealed tanks to protect you against substitution.

With the Churches

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

D. H. Brynoff, Pastor
 Announcements for Sunday, Sept. 29:
 Sunday school at 10 a. m., preceded by fifteen minutes given to prayer in the pastor's study by the teachers and officers.
 Preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. P. Y. P. U's. at 7 p. m.

The plans are for us to bring our dinner to the church and then at the close of the morning service we shall have dinner together in the basement of the church. Here we shall enjoy a social hour together. After enjoying a social hour together we will secure some volunteers who will make a canvass for the church budget of those who have not volunteered their subscriptions. Many members have already given their pledges for this associational year. It is hoped that a large majority of the members will have done this by next Sunday. This will make the work light on the canvassing committee, and it also manifests a better spirit of co-operation on the part of the individual.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

W. Hickman, Pastor
 We are glad to report that our Sunday school is growing nicely. Last Sunday was the largest attendance in several weeks.

One interesting feature of the services last Sunday was a concert, was greatly enjoyed by all present. The blessing of the Lord was upon all the services, both morning and evening, and at the evening service six souls united with the church to help fight the battle against sin, making a total of eleven in the last two weeks.

We are planning to organize an orchestra of horns and stringed instruments, and extend a hearty invitation to any who wish to join in the music. Instruction will be given each Friday evening at eight o'clock. Come Friday evening and let us talk it over.

Remember the prayer meeting each Wednesday night, and services morning and evening each Sunday. Come and enjoy a feast of good things. You are a stranger but once.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

B. W. Wilkins, Pastor
 Our services at the usual hours next Sunday:
 Sunday school 10 a. m.
 Morning worship 11 a. m.
 Evening worship 7:30 p. m.
 We are expecting a great day. A Rally Day purpose is expected to be carried out through the Sunday school and preaching services.

BAPTIST W. M. U.

The Baptist W. M. U. met with Mrs. O. E. Lochridge Monday all day to quilt, and for pot luck dinner. One quilt was pieced and one quilted. Before our next dinner, which will be served at the church basement Sunday, the ladies will have enough dishes to supply a dining room.

Chairmen were elected for the east and west circles, namely Mrs. O. E. Lochridge and Mrs. John Allen Jr. Our plans have been partly made for the coming year in our mission studies. We are extending every woman of our town a hearty welcome to meet with us each Monday.

On next Monday we will observe the program intended for our week of prayer. In the afternoon the Al-anreed W. M. S. and the ladies of the north and east oil fields will be present. We expect to have a very interesting program and social time. We would be glad to have all our ladies present at that time.

There were 30 women, 6 men and 10 children present.
