Lobbyists, Lenders Assailed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard asked federal officials today to investigate "strong circumstantial evidence" of collusion among lenders to pressure the Texas Legislature into raising the usury ceiling.

Hubbard told a news conference he had sent letters to Patricia Harris, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and to U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell asking the probe.

"We do not have an eyewitness to collusion between the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Texas Mortgage Bankers Association, but we have strong circumstantial evidence," he said.

"And strong circumstantial evidence has convinced a lot of juries."

Hubbard said lobbyists pushing a Senate bill that would increase home mortgage interest rates from 10 to 12 percent had been "preaching doom and gloom" if the measure is not passed.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development announced two weeks ago that FHA and VA loans would carry 9.5 percent interest.

"And within days Fannie Mae (as the Federal National Mortgage Association is called) used that as an excuse to say it no longer would buy Texas mortgage loans," Hubbard said. "A day later, Texas mortgage bankers announced they would steer clear of FHA and VA loans in Texas ... Would a reasonable prudent person, using plain old common sense, suspect they did this by design just to get the usury ceiling up? I would say that is a reasonable conclusion."

The explosive issue of home mortgage interest rates is certain to complicate the Legislature's heavy work load. With only four weeks remaining in the 140-day regular session, the legislative pace must be speeded.

An indication of the Legislature's staggering work load before adjournment May 28 was the listing of 30 bills on the calendar of the Senate Econmic Develpment Committee for today.

Gov. Bill Clements apparently had shut off a proposal to raise mortgage rates from 10 to 12 per cent by stating he would veto the bill.

Interest was revived, however, when the Federal National Mortgage Association announced Thursday it will no longer buy mortgages in Texas that exceed the 10 per cent maximum. Mortgage bankers at a Houston convention unanimously urged Clements to reconsider his position.

Solons Block Draft, Pass Registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed renewal of a limited draft lost its first vote in Congress in a House subcommittee today, but proposed renewal of draft registration for young men was easily approved.

The House military personnel subcommittee rejected 5-4 a proposal by Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., to draft up to 200,000 young men a year into the Individual Ready Reserve.

But it approved by voice vote a proposal to require young men turning 18 years of age after Dec. 31, 1980, to register in case a draft is ever reinstituted for a war or other national emergency.

The subcommittee's proposal would register only young men, but it would require the president to report back recommendations on how the registration should be conducted and whether women should have to register as well.

The legislation also would require the president to report back to Congress whether he believes young men should be drafted into the Individual Ready Reserve.

In arguing for the limited draft, Montgomery said the reserves have only 200,000 of the 700,000 people they want.

"There is a need, and if there is a need, the time is to do it now," Montgomery said.

But several other members said that although they agree that some sort of draft might be needed in the future, it would not be realistic to try to get Congress to approve it now.

"People are just going to say we're silly: we're trying to bring back a peacetime draft when we don't need it," said Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md.

The votes came coincidentally just before a planned rally on the Capitol steps by draft opponents.

Although its numbers are small, the subcommittee's decision will influence its parent Armed Services Committee's recommendation, and that panel in turn will influence the full House's eventual decision.

The anti-draft rally was planned by the Committee Against Registration and the Draft, a coalition of 20 organizations, long before the subcommittee vote was scheduled.

Several subcommittee members who had decided to vote against Montgomery's limited draft proprosal said they think it may be necessary in the future — but not yet.

"I don't see that as much of a political reality, so I think it would be futile to vote for it," said Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich. "The fact of the matter is that I think the volunteer force is in trouble, and I do believe down the road there is going to be a need for a draft. But I'm prepared to wait a while."

Rep. Holt said no draft is necessary now and Congress should see first if draft registration will solve the Pentagon's manpower problems. "If we institute registration, maybe that will encourage more people to volunteer," she said.

Montgomery's bill, backed by Army Chief of Staff Bernard Rogers, would have drafted young men — not women — into the reserve units to be called first in a war.

In publicly urging the limited draft, Rogers told a Senate committee the individual ready reserve is 500,000 people short of its goal of 700,000.

Storms Lash South Texas

A-J News Services

While violent weather erupted deep in South Texas again early today, a lingering low level system continued the chance of showers and thunderstorms over the South Plains through Tuesday.

Although showers were gentle in West Texas, violent thunderstorms, tornadoes and hail battered portions of South Texas, causing considerable damage, while lightning killed two men in East Texas.

On the South Plains, in the pre-dawn hours today, light rain was reported falling in a stretch eastward from Morton to near Crosbyton. Included in the band of precipitation was Lubbock, which received a light sprinkling.

Chances for more precipitation to add to the generally light weekend totals were placed at 30 percent today, 40 percent tonight and 30 percent on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, in deep South Texas, where powerful thunderstorms and high winds late Sunday caused considerable property damage, the possibility of more precipitation was forecast again today.

At least two residents of Cameron County were injured and thousands of persons in Victoria County were without power as a result of severe thunderstorms that struck the deep coastal communities before moving eastward into the Gulf of Mexico.

The thunderstorms began in the lower Rio Grande Valley about midnight and rampaged for the next two hours, according to reports. Tornadoes reportedly struck in Rio Hondo and just northwest of Los Fresnos, damaging six or seven trailer homes and causing minor injuries to at least two persons.

Funnel clouds also were reportedly sighted in Brownsville and San Bernino, while Guadalupe, a small community south of Victoria, received winds gusting up to 75 mph.

Accompanying the high winds, golf-ball size hailstones pelted Harlingen and Rio Hondo.

"It was pretty bad," said Cameron County sheriff's deputy Joe Castillo this morning. "Most of the roads, the main highways and farm roads, are still under water."

Castillo said several persons remained without power early this morning in Harlingen, Los Fresnos and Brownsville. In Victoria County, which received the first onslaught of the storms, several thousand persons reportedly lost electrical service and a few buildings were damaged.

Across the state in East Texas, lightning from a thunderstorm killed two men on horseback as they herded cattle west of Conroe. They were identified as James Casey, 36, of Montgomery and James Davis, 28, of Conroe.

Heaviest rainfall activity during the 24-hour-period ending at 7 a.m. today was in South Texas, where Victoria received 2.39 inches; Brownsville, 2.02 inches; Pa-

Talmadge Calls Accuser 'Liar'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge launched a blistering counter-attack on the financial misconduct allegations against him today, saying three allegations were trivial and that the major charge was based on the word of a "liar, cheat and embezzler."

The emotional presentation by the veteran Georgia Democrat came as the Senate Ethics Committee opened its public hearing on allegations that Talmadge had violated Senate rules.

Talmadge presented his own opening argument after committee special counsel Carl Eardley opened the session by reciting the allegations against Talmadge and by discussing the witnesses to appear before the panel.

Talmadge said only one count against him was worthy of the committee's time. That is an allegation that he knew of a secret bank account set up by his former administrative assistant and that he profited from the more than $39,000 in campaign contributions and improperly drawn expense funds deposited in the account.

He said evidence would show that he neither knew of the account or that he profited from it. And he said his actions in ordering an audit of his affairs in June 1978, and in turning over evidence to the Justice Department, showed he could not have known of the account.

"These are steps that only a fool would take if he were aware ... that there was a hidden, phony bank account waiting to be found," Talmadge said. "Even my enemies don't claim that I am stupid."

The 22-year Senate veteran said his attorneys would present evidence that showed that his former administrative assistant, Daniel Minchew, needed funds at the time the secret account was in operation.

"You will have evidence that in one year alone, 1974, when most of the money was taken from Daniel Minchew's secret account, his obligations and expenditures exceeded his legitimate sources of

ID Project Needs Aid Of Citizens

Don't be surprised if someone rings your doorbell tomorrow — or at sometime during the next few months — asking you to help prevent crime in the Lubbock area by marking your valuable items.

However, be sure to ask for that person's card identifying him as a volunteer for the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council's Operation Identification, which will kick off its crime prevention program Tuesday.

Volunteers have been advised not to enter homes, but they will deliver electric marking devices and chemical pens, along with a list of where to mark valuable items, to homeowners.

Homeowners will be required to sign a receipt for the markers, which will be picked up one day later by the volunteers. There is no charge for the marking devices but you'll have to pay the LCCPC $8 if you lose them.

Homeowners should mark all valuables with their Texas driver's license number or Department of Public Safety ID number. Items, such as stamp collections, which the owner determines might be defaced by marking, should be serialized and recorded on an inventory sheet.

The chemical pens were designed to mark garments and the electric engravers for metal surfaces.

The council advises that homeowners shouldn't mark watches because the vibrations might cause damage to the mechanism. Items too small for marking, along with credit cards, should be serialized and placed on an inventory card. Mark items in a place that can be locatable by law enforcement agencies and not easily obliterated.

Schlesinger, Senators Clash On Rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today that the probability of gasoline rationing "is very, very low" and is not necessary in the present fuel situation.

He told the Senate Agriculture Committee's rural development subcommittee that rationing would be necessary "only under conditions of dire national emergency."

The only example Schlesinger gave of such an emergency was the blocking of the routes by which oil tankers sail from the Middle East.

Rationing "has an appeal in the abstract" but is difficult to administer and does mean hardships, he said. It "is a stringent measure which is intended for use only in the most severe shortage situation."

But he urged the senators to approve President Carter's proposed standby rationing plan, saying that changes could be made later to meet any valid criticisms.

Subcommittee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., called the plan "highly simplistic, lacking in focus or depth and ... highly biased against rural areas."

But Schlesinger rejected that assessment, saying "this plan is as equitable as can be achieved" for rural areas and the farmers who produce food and fiber "are fully protected."

The plan becomes law unless Congress rejects it by May 12. Congress still would have to approve if Carter decides to implement the plan.

Under it, ration coupons would be issued to owners of cars and other vehicles. Large trucks would receive larger-than-normal allotments and motorcycles less, but otherwise each vehicle used on highways would receive the same ration.

Farmers, however, would receive, for all their off-road vehicles, "the amounts necessary to maintain the national food and fiber goals approved by the president," he said.

Food processors and distributors, however, would be treated like any other businesses, he said.

From field to kitchen, the food chain consumes 16 to 21 percent of the fuel used in this country, according to government estimates. Farmers make up 5 percent of the population, while rural residents as a whole comprise 30 percent.

Schlesinger said that, despite Leahy's contentions, the amount of gasoline used per vehicle in rural areas is slightly lower than in urban and suburban areas because rural residents have more cars.

Because the rationing plan is geared to numbers of vehicles, rural areas automatically will have "a higher proportion of fuel available," he said.

Energy Department studies have found no connection between a state's gasoline consumption and the extent of its farming, Schlesinger said. Under a recent change in the plan, states with unusually high gasoline use would have extra allotments.

Fiedler Back At Podium

BOSTON (AP) — Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops in a new march based on his initials when the 84-year-old conducter opens his 50th season with the orchestra Tuesday night in a nationally televised concert.

FIEDLER

The new piece, "Cheers," was completed by composer Morton Gould last Wednesday, in time for Pops' rehearsals over the weekend.

The march is based on two notes in the musical scale, A and F, said the 65-year-old Gould.

"It's a tribute to Fiedler and the orchestra," he said. "He started to conduct my music when I was very, very young, maybe 40 years ago or more."

Fiedler, who briefly conducted "The Stars and Stripes Forever" at a special Boston Symphony Orchestra concert last month, will be making his first regular appearance in Boston since he underwent brain surgerv last December.

Fulbright Gives Carter High Marks

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Former Sen. J. William Fulbright, 74, who served as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 15 years, says he gives the Carter administration generally high marks for its foreign policy efforts.

FULBRIGHT

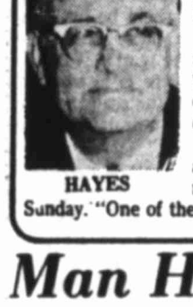

"Still, the game has to be played out in the Middle East. This is where he (Carter) has committed so much and so far has gotten very little," Fulbright said Sunday in an interview.

He said unless Carter gets a settlement reasonably satisfactory to most of the Arab world, the conflict "will just go on and on. It'll fester. And then we'll have serious trouble for a very long time."

On arms limitation, Fulbright, who lost in his 1974 re-election campaign to Dale Bumpers and now is with a Washington law firm, said he does not believe the Soviet Union has passed the United States, but he conceded that Russia has a larger conventional arsenal "because I think their situation requires it." He referred to the Soviet-China border clashes.

Hayes Considered For Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's more than a year until the 1980 elections, but the name-dropping already has begun, and one being dropped as a possible opponent to Sen. John Glenn is former Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes.

HAYES

Both Columbus daily newspapers speculated in their weekend editions that Hayes, 66, could be the Republicans' choice to take on Glenn, a Democrat, next year.

"Various GOP sources come up with a bundle of names of possible opponents for Glenn," The Dispatch said Sunday. "One of the more surprising names offered is that of Woody Hayes, ousted Ohio State (University) football coach."

The Citizen-Journal quoted state Republican Chairman Earl Barnes as saying: "I've had calls from fairly sophisticated people asking me what I think about Hayes.

"He did make an appearance at a Lincoln Day dinner in Marietta, and he made quite an impression down there."

Neither Hayes nor Glenn could be reached Sunday for comment.

Jesse Jackson Hospitalized

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH, has been admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital, complaining of weakness and fainting symptoms.

Frank Watkins, PUSH spokesman, quoted Jackson's physician, Dr. Andrew Thomas, as saying Jackson was suffering "from physical and emotional exhaustion."

Jackson entered the hospital Sunday.

Prof Poohs Poohs Perfection

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Professor Raymond K. Tucker freely admits he's encouraging mediocrity when he advises people to forget about trying to always do their best.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

"If we do the best we can under all circumstances, then we just won't get much done in life," Tucker contends. "Besides, our best isn't necessary."

Tucker says his anti-perfection formula, which calls for taking 10 percent or less of the time required to do a job perfectly, can be applied to any project.

To prove his point, he began testing his formula under a variety of circumstances at Bowling Green State and elsewhere.

In one experiment, he assigned students to compose and deliver a 10-minute speech. The students were divided into 10 groups and given different lengths of time to prepare and rehearse, ranging from one hour for group one to 10 hours for group 10.

Tucker said each speech was rated by three judges and the results were that the group with one hour was rated as highly as the group given 10 hours.

Motorists Can Use Tags To Fight Rising Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists alarmed about skyrocketing gasoline prices can use new black-and-yellow tags going up on service station pumps to minimize higher driving costs.

The new tags show the octane of the gasoline and thus provide a way for the motorist to avoid the common practice of buying a gasoline with an unnecessarily high octane and price.

"What we are talking about is perhaps a 2-or 3-cent reduction per gallon, which certainly won't offset every ... price increase," said Commissioner David Clanton of the Federal Trade Commission. "But it at least will help."

Octane rating is a measure of how well the gasoline will resist engine "knock," or uneven burning of gasoline. Persistent knocking eventually can damage an engine.

The FTC determined that many motorists, in an effort to avoid engine knock, waste money and put extra pollution into the air by buying gasoline that is higher in octane than needed.

"All of us have at least once bought a tank of high-test instead of regular with the feeling that 'I'll get something special for the more expensive kind,'" said Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon. "But what you get is more lead on the cylinder walls and sparkplugs that are worn out sooner."

The new octane labels have been required on gasoline pumps since April 1, but many gas stations still don't have them in place. The FTC has said enforcement — backed by fines of up to $10,000 a day — will begin June 1.

The proper octane for nearly all cars is between 87 and 95. Regular grades of gasoline generally go up to 91 with higher-priced gasoline going higher.

To find the proper octane, the FTC recommends "using your own ears" in a trial-and-error method. Motorists can go down one step at a time to the lowest octane number where no "knocking" is found.

"Buying gasoline with a higher octane than is necessary can result in consumers spending extra money unnecessarily and wasting energy resources, with no benefit to their cars," Clanton said.

The FTC commissioner said the trial-and-error method is easy and more reliable than following owner's manuals. For one thing, some of the manuals use different ways of measuring octane and, for another, octane requirements can change as a car gets older, he said.

By using the new octane labels and the trial method of finding the best number, "consumers can simultaneously save money, conserve energy and protect their cars against possible engine damage," Clanton said.

The FTC designed the octane labeling program under the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act signed by President Carter last June. The Department of Energy already had an octane-labeling regulation, but Congress found its enforcement was only sporadic and told the FTC to design a new and more effective program.

One difference in the FTC plan is adoption of a uniform national standard for determining octane so accurate comparisons can be made.

Gawkers Nonchalant About Slide Danger

MALIBU, Calif. — Nature's gnawing challenge — jarring earthquakes, raging brushfires, eroding surf and now, a slipping mountainside — seem to barely faze the Southern California life style.

Some call the cool attitude "California Mellow" — the inexplicable ability to gaze nonchalantly at a potential disaster while boasting of the state's scenic beauty and abundant sunshine.

Many have compared Southern Californians to a bowl of granola — fruits, nuts and flakes.

And the notion has gained momentum with the display of indifference by a half-dozen oceanfront homeowners and the thousands of sightseers who stand in the path of a Malibu mountain crumbling to the sea.

"They're crazy to stand there," a state geologist said. "The whole think could come down any minute. We just can't keep them out of here."

Pacific Coast Highway, the famous roadway that winds along California's jagged coast, was closed April 13 when boulders slammed to the pavement. Sophisticated eavesdropping equipment was planted in the mountain and geologists were convinced it was heading for the sea.

"It's an old mountain under stress and it wants to come down," a Caltrans official said.

Disaster warnings are clearly posted and signs nailed to the six $750,000-plus homes warn that entering the homes is a misdemeanor. But gawkers still sunbathe on the beach at the base of the mountain and homeowners remain inside.

Last week, residents were awakened in the middle of the night and told "a major slide was imminent." They refused to leave and the stubborn mountain stopped moving.

The more than 25,000 commuters north of the 500-footwide slide area are furious over the road closure. The detour through Malibu and Topanga canyons adds more than an hour to morning and evening trips to work.

The California Department of Transportation stood fast and said it was too dangerous to walk through the slide area, let alone drive past the moving mountain. "We're not going to have a funeral on the highway," the department's director, Adriana Gianturco, said.

The state's reaction to the crisis? Its own navy.

Today, a 41-passenger ferry boat began shuttling residents from Malibu Pier to Santa Monica Pier. But now officials have proposed reopening Pacific Coast Highway, maybe as soon as this week.

A week ago, transportation department officials said the highway might be closed permanently. Solutions ranged from a proposed ocean causeway to terracing the mountainside at a cost of $50 million.

But with movement now so slight, reopening the highlay seems to be the answer.

"If all conditions are met and everything is going perfectly, the highway may be partially opened for all traffic," department spokeswoman Enid Walker said.

For residents of the slide area, reopening the highway is the only answer.

"When I start hearing the traffic and the vibration of semis rolling by, it will be music to my ears," said 30-year resident Suzanne Vance, as she swept the pebbles from her doorstep then walked inside to prepare dinner.

Man Held After Standoff With Police

HOUSTON (UPI) — A 38-year-old man was held in lieu of bond at the Harris County Jail today on two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon following a 12-hour weekend standoff with police.

A $1,000 bond was set on one charge against Jerry Alan Becker while no bond had yet been set on the other, jail officials said today. Authorities also said Becker, an engineer, also would undergo psychiatric testing.

Becker barricaded himself in his townhouse, fired five shots from his home and then held off police for more than 12 hours before surrendering late Saturday. He was formally charged Sunday.

Becker, a hunter and gun collector described as "very formal" by his neighbors, had 15 high-powered rifles and a large quantity of ammunition in his house. Police said he did not fire any shots after the initial outburst. No injuries were reported and he held no hostages.

Becker talked to police and his parents on the telephone throughout the standoff. Investigators said Becker's wife had given birth to a daughter last week and was in St. Joseph's Hospital at the time of the shootings.

Juanita Levy, 48, a maid, was cleaning the home when the shooting began. She told police Becker shouted "I know you're down there" and then fired. As she ran from the house, Mrs. Levy said she heard four more shots.

FBI Cracks Fraud Ring

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — The FBI arrests of two men who tried to make $10 million selling a phony da Vinci has led to the demise of an international art fraud ring, an FBI spokesman said.

Special Agent Kenneth P. Walton said the two men were arrested Saturday while trying to sell a Champaign resident what they represented as a Leonardo da Vinci painting entitled "Disputa Jesu." Walton said the two had demanded 20 million Deutschmarks — equivalent to about $10 million — for the painting.

He said the suspects never showed the prospective buyer the painting but, instead, showed only a photograph of the artwork they said they would deliver upon payment.

Walton identified the suspects as Jon Kent Boran, 53, of Phoenix, Ariz., who currently is a resident of Zurich, Switzerland, and Guy Alfred Taylor, 31, San Diego, Calif. The two were charged with wire fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy. If convicted on all counts, they could face up to 15 years in prison and fines totaling $12,000.

Walton said the arrest culminated a two-month investigation and led to the execution of search warrants to uncover further ring activity. Walton said searches were ordered in Champaign, Charleston, Ill., Galt, Calif., San Diego and Junction City, Kan.

Lubbock Woman Reports Rape

A Lubbock woman said two men took turns raping her early this morning on the floor of a garage apartment.

The 18-year-old waitress said she was driving home from a club about 2 a.m. when the pair jumped into her car as she stopped at a stop sign on Avenue S.

The suspects were described as young white men, one with brown hair and the other with blond. She said one of the men was clad in a blue jean vest, jean pants, blue and white shirt and brown boots, while the other was wearing a red and white shirt, jeans and tennis shoes.

Reports indicate one of the alleged rapists forced his way behind the woman's steering wheel, then drove to the apartment in an alley near the downtown area.

The woman told police the driver pulled a gun and forced her to go into the apartment. She said each suspect sexually assaulted her once while his companion held her on the floor. She said that when the men left the room she ran out of the apartment and drove off.

Police learned of the incident when they stopped the woman on 39th Street for having expired license plates on her car. The waitress was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

In other activity, a 45-year-old Lubbock man said he and his wife were robbed of $260 cash about 11:30 p.m. Sunday in front of an East Broadway club.

Modesto Blanco of 3001 E. Broadway said a Mexican-American man and woman walked up to his car while it was parked at the nightspot in the 1800-block of Broadway, and that the man pulled a pistol and demanded money.

Blanco said he gave the gunman his money and wallet, and the bandit also snatched his wife's purse containing $200 cash. After taking the loot, the pair reportedly left the scene in a car.

Blanco said he followed the man and woman on Quirt Avenue, but lost the couple when they turned on Seventh or Eighth Street.

Earlier, a Lubbock man told police he was robbed outside the same club Saturday night by a Mexican-American couple.

Jose T. Armenta of 405 Teak Ave. said the pair approached him just after he got out of his. The man reportedly pressed a pistol to his ear while the woman removed his wallet, containing $166 cash.

A Lubbock woman told police she was shot at by a man who had come to her house about 1:30 a.m. today demanding to speak to one of her sons.

Maria R. Wheatherford, 42, of 309 E. Stanford St. said that after she refused a second time to let the man see her son, he became angered, threatened to kill her and pulled out a pistol. She said he fired a shot at her, but missed.

The woman said after she she closed the door in the man's face, she heard him clawing on her son's bedroom window. She said the man, described as a Mexican-American, finally got in to his car and drove west on Stanford.

In a reported aggravated assault, a 16-year-old Lubbock County female told officers she had been beaten by her boyfriend at a residence in the 1100-block of 46th Street about 4 a.m. Sunday.

Police, who were called to the residence, reportedly met a couple at the door who told them their son and his wife had been fighting but "everything is okay now," the couple reportedly told officers.

According to reports, the officers were walking to their cars when a young woman, with a bleeding nose and two black eyes, approached them from the side of the house and said she had been beaten by her 17-year-old boyfriend.

The woman told police she and her boyfriend had gone to a club, and then to his parents' house, where he began calling her names and hitting her.

A 42-year-old Lubbock man remained in county jail Sunday after being arrested in the parking lot of West Texas Hospital Saturday night.

Officers arrested the man for unlawfully carrying a weapon, disorderly conduct and attempted escape about 9:50 p.m.

When officers arrived at the hospital, a man told them that the suspect had threatened a woman in the hospital with a gun and that the suspect was sitting in a pickup truck in the parking lot.

Reports indicate officers approached the pickup, saw a gun in the man's hand and told him to raise his hands. However, reports show, the suspect reached for the floorboard instead. A policeman then opened the truck's door and grabbed the suspect, who began to struggle and strike the officer in the face. The man then was subdued and arrested.

In reported break-ins, Lynn Hubert Maddox of 4606 62nd St. reported that thieves had taken $5,000 worth of goods, including a stereo, guns and microwave oven, from his home sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and 6 p.m. Saturday.

Joe H. Davidson said someone broke into his garage at 2010 10th St. and carted off a 150-year-old quilt and antique furniture, valued together at $1,000, on or before Saturday.

James Lee White of 2410 21st St. complained that burglars made off with a stereo system and color TV, valued together at $900, sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

Glendel Ray Cummings of 4419 61st St. said someone removed a CB radio from his pickup truck sometime between 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. He estimated the CB's worth and damage to the truck at $505.

Mother Charged With Smuggling

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The long arm of the law reached into a cow's intestines Sunday, pulled out 10 pounds of marijuana and arrested a 46-year-old mother of six.

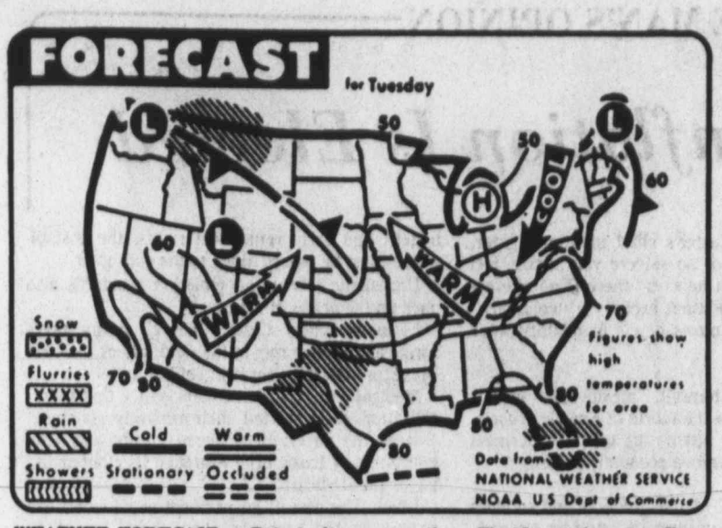

Mrs. Lourdes Toves was arrested at Guam International Airport where customs officials discovered marijuana concealed in a cow's intestines.

A spokesman for the customs department said Mrs. Toves told officers she had bought the intestines for home cooking.

She was arrested and later released after posting $10,000 surety bond, the spokesman said.

She faces a maximum 5-year jail sentence if found guilty of smuggling marijuana into this American territory.

Officials did not say where her flight originated.

Brothers Introduce Discrimination Bill

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — In what they believe is a first, Rhode Island state senatorial brothers Michael and James Flynn have introduced a bill that would prevent job discrimination based on age.

The "first" is not the idea of banning age discrimination, but the brotherly cooperation in introducing the bill.

Since the Flynns are thought to be the first brothers to serve together in the chamber, they would be the only ones to have had the opportunity to co-introduce legislation.

The Flynns' cooperation even crosses party lines. James is a Democrat, and Michael is one of the state senate's five Republicans.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

'Small' In Name Only

SMALL IS turning out to be big in air travel these days.

In the long run, one of the unexpected but possibly most promising consequences of last year's deregulation of the American airline industry has been the burgeoning of "mini" air services.

The newcomers, often one- or two-plane operations and initially serving only a few points, are rushing in to fill a void left by the massive rescheduling being undertaken by the major airlines.

Clamoring by smaller carriers for cramped if not inadequate quarters at Lubbock International Airport indicates that demand for specialized services exists if logistical difficulties ever can be unraveled.

WHEN CONGRESS and the CAB granted the airlines greater flexibility in routing flights and selecting cities served, critics feared many smaller communities would be abandoned as the major lines concentrated on the most lucrative markets.

They were right. "More than 75 smaller cities, by one recent count, have lost or have been notified of impending cancellation of scheduled service since last October," writes NEA syndicated columnist Don Graff.

"But paradoxically, many may end up better served than before."

While the traffic they generate is not sufficient to meet costs of service for the major carriers with their jumbo jets, Graff points out, it can be a real moneymaker for the small-plane, low-overhead operators.

Categorized as commuter lines, they provide both direct links among smaller cities and connections to points served by the big national and regional airlines.

BY CAB COUNT, more than 300 commuter lines are currently operating. Many have been formed during the past year, almost all are growing and the most promising territory is the West with its widely separated and expanding urban centers.

Southwest Airlines' request to fly into Lubbock initially was met with snickers if not open hostility. Eventually, however, it not only revolutionized the local air fare structure but exceeded its own great expectations.

In conclusion, the ultimate paradox. The fuel pinch—that has contributed to the major carriers' withdrawal from the small-city market and has just won them CAB approval of a 4 percent fare increase effective May 15—works in the commuter's favor.

The rising cost of operating automobiles over long distances makes small-plane service a comparatively inexpensive means of intercity travel.

It just goes to show how relative size can be when it comes to determining what makes a profitable business.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Inflation Is Elected

LOVE OF MONEY is the root of all evil. A 13 percent inflation rate is the government's way of uprooting us.

J.C. Chambers did a magnificent job in his tribute to the late Roy Bass at the unveiling of a bronze memorial bust of the former mayor Thursday night.

Inflation is not the only thing that's keeping ahead of the Joneses. Time got another hour ahead of them Sunday.

The silver linings on today's economic clouds all came straight out of the coins in our pockets.

School trustees say taxpayer-funded "field trips" to Europe, costing an estimated $1,500 per student, is a "legitimate educational expense."

My Neighbor Twice Removed says it's the first time in history that the offspring of a raping has been called legitimate.

INFLATION is a crime committed by the government in the name of "protecting the consumer" and of "showing concern for the disadvantaged in society."

Those "protected" and those "helped" wind up being the victims.

Take the 13 percent inflation rate now plaguing the country. It is the direct result of government budgeting, regulatory and monetary policies.

Yet, President Carter's chief inflation fighter, Alfred Kahn, sounds so sincere you almost feel sorry for him when he says "there is no alternative" to fighting inflation except (1) "voluntary" wage and price controls or (2) mandatory wage and price controls.

He is in error.

The President himself, meanwhile, inflicts grievous damage on the fabric of American society by irresponsibly attempting to make business the scapegoat for his own economic failures.

LOOK AT SOME of the products and services that are leading the upsurge in consumer prices:

Beef. A shortage is driving prices up. The shortage can be traced to government intervention in the market place which caused producers to cut back their herds and reduce the supply.

Natural gas. Shortages and suddenly spurting prices directly attributable to government wellhead price fixing a generation ago.

Oil. Supply cutoffs and price fixing by OPEC governments. Exacerbated by U.S. government price fixing which keeps nation dependent on foreign oil. Prices skyrocketing.

Coffee. Remember when its price doubled and tripled practically overnight? Again, government action. This by a cartel of exporting suppliers.

Autos. Federal labor laws heavily favor organized labor over industry in contract talks and strike benefits. Auto workers and steel workers are notorious for gouging out higher pay, fringe benefit and early retirement rights, the cost of which must be passed along to the consumer.

Unrealistic safety and emission standards also jack up the prices of new cars.

Lettuce. When Cesar Chavez' farmworkers strike and lettuce rots in the field, prices soar. He operates in part on government grants.

Medical care. Can it be coincidence that hospitalization costs started their runaway stampede just as the government began "protecting" the consumer by fixing prices through its clout as the payor for Medicare?

Taxes. The cost of government at all levels has soared as the taxpayers have been forced to "help" just about everybody who had a bloc of votes to barter. Taxes are a leading expense of the consumer, who on average works from Jan. 1 to May 2 just to pay his taxes.

INTEREST RATES. Deficit spending by the federal government has forced it to borrow up to $70 billion a year. You wonder why mortgage money is in short supply and only at rates exceeding 10 percent? Government, that's why.

The list could go on and on. While Carter and liberal Congressmen piously proclaim that they are "concerned" about inflation, they demagogue the issue by blaming business for an overheated economy that threatens our national survival.

The wedge that government puts between the seller and the consumer through high taxes, price fixing and regulatory mandates is the enemy—and that's the side the politicians are on.

Paul Scott:

Budget-Balancers On Tightrope

WASHINGTON—Senate supporters for a constitutional amendment mandating a balanced federal budget appear to be their own worst enemy—they haven't been able to get their act together.

Their most pressing problem is their lack of agreement on a single approach for achieving a balanced budget.

Surveys indicate there is a majority in the Senate for the principle of a federal balanced budget but the split over how to reach this goal has blocked passage of a constitutional amendment.

Four separate but widely differing constitutional amendments are now being pushed in the Senate making it impossible to obtain enough support for any one to win Senate approval this year.

BECAUSE OF the great popular appeal and the growing interest in the constitutional approach to balancing the federal budget, here is a run down on the major proposals and those pushing for their enactment.

Of the four major constitutional amendments, the most explicit and comprehensive is being pushed by Sens. John H. Heinz III, R-Pa., and Richard Stone, D-Fla.

Drafted by the National Tax Limitation Committee, the proposal links the growth rate of government expenditures with the growth rate in the nominal Gross National Product (GNP) of the previous calendar year.

Should the inflation rate be at or below three percent, government spending may grow at the same rate as had the GNP.

IF INFLATION exceeds three percent, the growth rate of government spending will be reduced by one-quarter of the difference between three percent and the actual rate of inflation.

An important feature of the amendment is that it requires that any surplus be used to reduce the public debt. It also contains a clause permitting the outlays limit to be changed by a three-quarters vote of each House, thus permitting Congress a way to meet national emergencies.

The Heinz-Stone amendment protects state and local governments by specifying that for the first six years after ratification federal grants must be continued at the same proportion as existed three years before ratification.

A more simple amendment is being proposed by Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind. This amendment requires that any concurrent resolution in which "total budget outlays" exceed the "recommended level of federal revenues" must be approved by two-thirds vote in each House.

By definition this "supermajority" approach offers Congress sufficient flexibility to deal with any emergency and is an answer to arguments that "balance budget" amendments would tie the government's hand in case of war or a serious recession.

An analysis of the amendment by the respected Heritage Foundation states that "the proposal is not intended to produce a strictly balanced budget but to make it more difficult for Congress to produce a deficit."

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., proposes a more painful approach to bring the federal budget into balance.

The conservative lawmaker has offered a constitutional amendment (S. J. Resolution 6) which would require the President to determine and Congress to enact a tax surcharge to make up any deficit. The amendment permits the surplus to be suspended through a three-quarters vote of each House.

Opponents of this amendment argue that the timing of the surcharge could retard economic growth and the uncertainty regarding taxes might impede the private sector of the economy.

Light Up Life-Style With New Phone Dial

YOU'VE SPLURGED on a new living room couch; are waiting for the new broadloom in your favorite design to go on sale so you can make it part of your spring home spruce-up; are saving money for a new refrigerator in yellow to match your kitchen.

Have you looked at your telephone?

American Telephone wants you to feel yours is out of fashion, to stimulate your fashion consciousness for new phones in a variety of new styles and an assortment of colors.

It's our traditional American way to create greater demand and more jobs via creating built-in-obsolescence.

But in addition to high-fashion style changes in phones, new services are in the pipelines or on the drawing boards.

(1) THE ADVANCED Mobile Phone System (AMPS), a mobile phone service that provides the same high quality service as phones in your home or office. With this system now on trial in Chicago, customers can call literally everywhere without the worry of busy phone channels or fading—a problem associated with the mobile phone of today.

AMPS eliminates the problems of congestion via use of a sophisticated transmission technique which will make it possible for all of us to own a mobile phone in the future.

(2) Solid state electronics are now at the nerve center of the Bell System communications network in the electronic switching (ESS) machines that help your calls get where they are supposed to go. You can now program your local switching office to forward calls to a neighbor's house or the hairdresser, etc.—and it can be done from your own home.

(3) CALL WAITING is a signal that you can arrange to have sound when you're on the line and another caller is trying to cut in.

(4) Three-way calling is a way in which you can program your phone to give you more service. With the push of a button, you can arrange conference calls to hold meetings on the phone.

(5) Speed calling is a fast way to dial frequently dialed numbers. You dial a one, two or three digit code instead of the usual seven or 10 digits. Each customer may have from eight to as many as 30 pre-selected phone numbers programmed into the ESS equipment. Cost of these services: an average of $2.25 per feature per month.

(6) Integrated circuitry is a method via which the phone company is offering its customers phones with solid state memories. These are Touch-A-Matic phones that store and dial numbers at the touch of a button. When you push the appropriate button, the phone dials the number in seconds.

It has a "last number dialed" button also in which any last number dialed is automatically recorded by the solid state memory. Typical cost for this phone: about $8.50 per month.

(7) PICTUREPHONE MEETING Service is a visual communications system. As of today, it links Picturephone Meeting Centers in six cities—New York, Washington, D.C., Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Atlanta—at costs ranging from $2.50 to $6.50 a minute.

(8) New this year in many communities will be the Bell System's directories with a customer guide.

It eventually will appear in all directories to help you choose the proper type of service, know the policy on deposits and payments, save money, and list important local emergency and Social Service phone numbers.

*If you move, take along your old phone directory, to save on directory assistance charges when you call back to your old area.

*Inquire about switching to measured service, now available in most metropolitan areas and expanding.

This service lets you pay only for the phone service you use, rather than paying a fixed rate for unlimited phone calls. It includes a limited number of outgoing calls with additional calls charged on a per-call basis.

* Place personal long distance calls in non-business hours. Take advantage of differences in time zones to save, for at 11 p.m. in New York it's only 8 p.m. in California.

* IF YOU HAVE a roommate, a phone usually is installed under one person's name who is responsible for paying the bill. If either roommate moves before the end of the month, the signer for the phone is responsible for the whole bill. Settle up before you split up.

* Hang up on obscene calls, call your service representative and ask for assistance. Don't permit a dialogue or try to identify the voice by conversing. It only encourages the caller.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Time For Action On ACTION

WASHINGTON—Just before it quit for the Easter recess, the House voted 276-116 to pull the Peace Corps out of the ACTION agency. The vote was the first step in a dismantling operation that ought to be energetically pursued.

If a contest were held to name the worst federal agency in town—the worst in terms of sheer maladministration—ACTION and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission would finish in something close to a dead heat.

But at least the ineptitude of the EEOC appears to be largely a consequence of plain, ordinary incompetence.

At Sam Brown's ACTION agency, the record suggests a deliberate, contemptuous disdain for Congress and for the taxpayers generally.

ACTION was created under former President Nixon as an umbrella to shelter various programs involving volunteer workers. The name is not an acronym; it doesn't stand for anything.

THE AGENCY'S budget is divided into two parts, one for busywork abroad, the other for boondoggling here at home.

The Peace Corps is scheduled for $100 million in the next fiscal year to cover training and supporting 6,000 volunteers in 65 countries.

On the domestic side, Brown has asked an increase from $119 million in the current fiscal year to $169.6 million in 1980, chiefly to finance Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) plus some other programs to spread the green in tough urban neighborhoods.

The Peace Corps, VISTA and the parent ACTION have enjoyed a charmed life on Capitol Hill. The Peace Corps, of course, was John F. Kennedy's baby, and it has remained the darling of congressional liberals.

EXCEPT WHEN some volunteer gets in serious trouble, the press tends to ignore the Corps. Both House and Senate smile benignly upon it.

There has been no hard-nosed, critical review by outside observers of the real cost effectiveness of the Peace Corps' program.

The startling vote to take the Corps away from Sam Brown provided a clear indication of increasing dissatisfaction with ACTION's activist director.

Brown came under fire a year ago for trying to foist a new urban program on Congress without adequate preparation.

Last November, he touched off an explosive controversy by firing the Peace Corps' director.

Late in December, staff investigators of the House Appropriations Committee put together a damning indictment of Brown's stewardship.

The vote to transfer the Peace Corps to a new international development agency—an agency that does not even exist—was a remarkable slap in the face.

Brown had it coming.

As such House critics as Robert Michel of Illinois and John Ashbrook of Ohio have disclosed, Brown has used the taxpayers' money to reward an incredible gaggle of activists, malcontents, rabble-rousers, labor organizers and old personal friends from his years on the ramparts of rebellion.

In the process, Brown has bent, circumvented or simply ignored rules having to do with competitive bidding, conflicts of interest and legislative intent.

But the problem is not merely the problem of an arrogant, brilliant ideologue up top.

THE CONTINUING problem, not to be resolved by a paper juggling of the Peace Corps, lies in the fundamental incongruity of government and volunteerism.

Government rests upon compulsion; there is nothing voluntary about it. When the paid professionals of ACTION lay their tender hands upon community volunteers, guiding and coordinating and financing their efforts, we wind up with an operation that is mostly sham.

Regulating volunteerism is like sharing a monopoly, or dividing sovereignty, or being a little bit pregnant. The concept embraces a contradiction.

I wouldn't stop with throwing out the Peace Corps. I'd throw out the whole works.

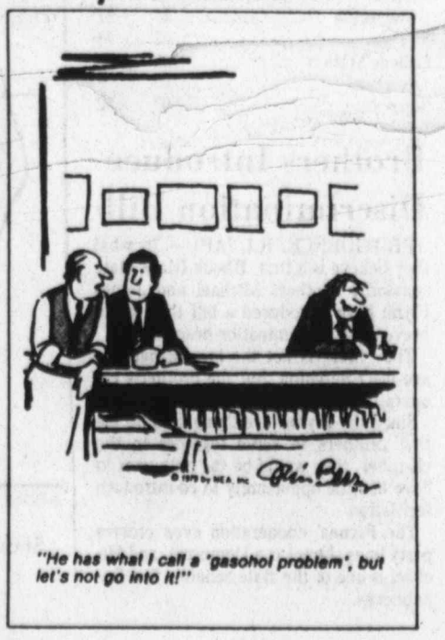

So They Say...

Fad: something that goes in one era and out the other.

Some men were talking about how poor they were as kids.

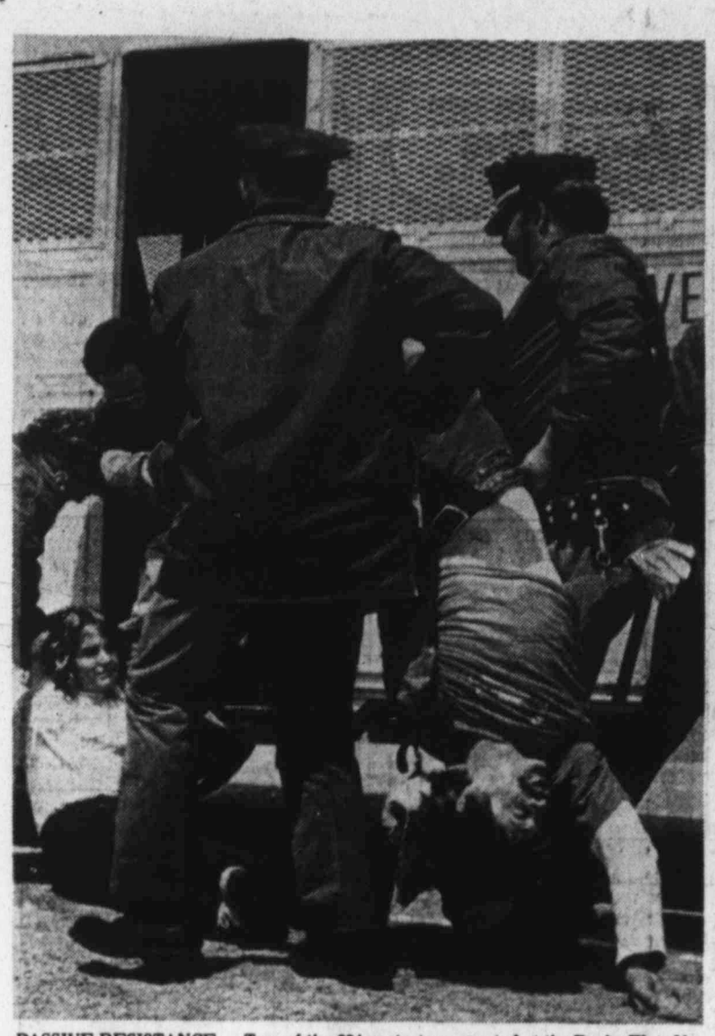

"We were so poor," said one, "I had to share my sandbox with the cat."

Rocky Flats Protesters Arrested

PASSIVE RESISTANCE — Two of the 284 protesters arrested at the Rocky Flats Nuclear Weapons Plant near Denver Sunday are helped to a bus by Rockwell International security guards and U.S. marshals. The demonstration echoed another one exactly one year ago, in opposition to the plant's continued operation. (AP Laserphoto)

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Volunteer attorneys circulated among anti-nuclear activists, offering advice and helping to keep order as more than 280 persons were arrested in a tightly-orchestrated protest at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant.

"It's kind of like a play. But that's cool. It helps keep things under control. I guess there's an art to getting arrested," plant spokesman Bernie Velasquez said.

At least 284 protesters, including former Pentagon analyst Daniel Ellsberg, were arrested Sunday in what organizers called a deliberate act of civil disobedience — blocking access to the plant, the nation's only producer of plutonium "triggers" for nuclear weapons.

The Rocky Flats confrontation, at the site where 10,000 had rallied peacefully the day before, climaxed a weekend of anti-nuclear demonstrations that spread from the mountains of Vermont and the Hudson River Valley in New York to a farm in Arkansas and a Navajo reservation in New Mexico.

They began on Saturday when Dr. Benjamin Spock, the pediatrician, released helium-filled balloons near a nuclear plant at Russellville, Ark., and told a crowd:

"A major nuclear plant accident would kill 45,000 persons immediately and tens of thousands of deaths would follow as cancer and leukemia took their toll over 30 years."

A crowd estimated by police at up to 5,000 gathered for a rally at Saugerties, N.Y., to hear folksinger Pete Seeger and others voice protest to plans to build some 30 nuclear plants along the Hudson River.

About 300 Indians and their anti-nuclear sympathizers camped out in the Cibola National Forest, about 30 miles from Grants, N.M., to dramatize their objections to uranium mining on Navajo and Pueblo lands.

Buses took the arrested Colorado demonstrators to a west Denver suburb south of Rocky Flats where a makeshift processing center was set up in a warehouse used by the U.S. Geological Survey to store rock samples.

The protesters, many of them laughing and calling to their friends, were photographed and then passed through an assembly-line operation that had the same coordinated precision that marked the protest itself. It took 10 minutes to process each protester.

They were charged with trespassing under the U.S. Atomic Energy Act of 1954, a misdemeanor carrying a maximum fine of $1,000. They were released and ordered to appear in U.S. District Court in Denver next month.

Many of the protesters spent weeks training in Denver to prepare for the demonstration at the plant, which is operated by Rockwell International Corp. under contract to the U.S. Department of Energy.

Ellsberg was arrested on a railroad spur leading to the plant, near the spot where he was arrested one year ago Sunday.

More than 200 persons were arrested during a seven-month period last year. Ellsberg and 11 others were given suspended sentences early this year after a mass trial on county trespassing charges.

About noon Sunday, more than 350 chanting protesters began walking toward Rocky Flats and split into three groups headed for the main gate on the plant's west side, the east gate and the railroad tracks.

At the west gate, more than 200 demonstrators lined up across from the gate, a line of Rockwell security guards in front of them.

On a signal by organizer Chris Moore, the protesters moved across the road in groups as a Rockwell spokesman said they would be arrested if they crossed a white line marking off federal property.

The protesters crossed the line and sat in the roadway in small groups. Security guards and federal marshals moved in immediately.

Some protesters apologized as they let their bodies go limp in the arms of guards. Some of the guards, complaining that they were getting tired, asked the demonstrators to walk to the buses.

"We've been dealing with each other for about a year and a half, so we know some of them," Rockwell spokesman Sam Thomas said.

On Saturday, about 10,000 persons assembled to sing, hear speeches, and demand that the plant be closed or converted to non-military use. Many seemed more interested in the entertainment. From the stage, a leader reminded the crowd — calling for "more, more" from the performers — that they were there for "a political rally."

Agency Preparing Legislation To Establish Clean-Up Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is preparing legislation to establish a $400 million annual "super-fund" to pay for emergency clean-ups of toxic dumps that pose an imminent hazard to public health, an agency spokesman said today.

The money will come from a special assessment on chemical, oil and heavy metal producers, and the legisation will be submitted to Congress next month, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater emphasized the "exact nature" of the assesment has not been determined and that the $400 million amount is "not firm" because the proposed legislation is still being reviewed by EPA and White House officials.

At the same time, EPA Deputy Administrator Barbara Blum told a conference in Denver that the agency is stepping up its toxic dump investigations and that "these investigations could result in as many as 50 prosecutions per year."

She commented after Associate Attorney General Michael J. Egan, speaking at the same gathering, said the EPA should hire tough new investigators and insulate them against "political finagling" to crack down on polluters who dump hazardous wastes.

Mrs. Blum told the meeting at the National Enforcement Investigations Center that the EPA hopes to investigate about 300 sites a year to determine the potemntial health hazard.

"In those cases where federal legal acton is impossible," she said, "we intend to provide legal and technical support to assist state and local governments for appropriate clean-up action."

Mrs. Blum estimated that "as many as 1,200 and 2,000 dump sites around the country may contain wastes that could develop into imminent health hazards."

She also released as status report on 135 dump sites containing toxic wastes.

"Data is being collected and evaluated at 44 sites for clean-up or litigation," she said, adding that "no hazard exists in nearly half of the sites."

Mrs. Blum declined to name the 44 sites, explaining "we cannot identify the specific cases under intensive investigation for legal reasons."

The EPA official announced that the agency is awarding a $4 million grant to the state of New York to help clean up the Love Canal chemical dump site near Niagara Falls.

"The federal funds will be matched by $4 million in state money to complete construction of a trench and tile chemical collection system for the remaining contaminated areas of the canal," she said.

Mrs. Blum said her agency will divert at least 50 staff members from regional and headquarters to join the 22 investigators and attorneys now working on hazardous waste disposal cases. And she said the EPA will ask for a $131 million supplemental budget appropriation to add 190 new people.

Speaking for the Justice Department, Egan said, "I have a hard time imagining anything more contemptible than an individual or organization that would deliberately dump poisonous materials without regard for human life and health.

NRC Officials Making Efforts To Halt Radiation Releases

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Authorities say efforts are being made to eliminate releases of radiation so engineers can start rehabilitating Three Mile Island now that the nuclear plant is safely shut down.

"We want releases to be as low, zero if possible," Karl Abraham, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Sunday. "We want the most dependable cooling system possible with the most barriers to releases of radiation. That's our game plan."

In an interview during the weekend, NRC official Richard Vollmer said tests showed a new cooling system initiated Friday was working as planned. The plan involves allowing water in the cooling system to circulate by natural convection rather than by a huge pump.

The NRC described the natural circulation plan as the equivalent of a cold shutdown of the plant and said it would serve as the nuclear power station's long-term cooling state.

Vollmer said the NRC would continue reviewing the system, but he didn't "foresee any problems." He said NRC scientists would watch to see if uranium fuel rods inside the core broke off in such a way as to block a natural circulation flow.

Saturday was the one-month anniversary of what the NRC describes as the worst accident in the history of the U.S. commercial atomic energy program.

Vollmer said he could not provide an exact timetable, but it is believed it will take as long as a month for the cooling system to be isolated to prevent the release of radiation.

"When that's done," Vollmer said, "we can walk away from it and just think about ultimate recovery of the plant."

NRC officials say they do not cnow how long it will take to effect complete recovery, which involves decontamination of plant facilities splashed with radioactive water during the March 28 accident and removal of the severely damaged uranium core.

Efforts to cool down the plant have been hampered for the last two weeks by releases of radioactive iodine, though officials said the amounts given off were not high enough to cause concern. Radioactive iodine has been known to cause thyroid cancer.

Officials believe the installation of charcoal filters in critical areas of the building may have solved the radioactive iodine problem.

The NRC said Sunday that tests taken a day earlier showed no trace of radioactive iodine in the farmland surrounding the plant. A small amount of radiation was monitored in the ventilation system.

Company President Puts Accusations On Record

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — For five years Kerr-McGee Corp. has unofficially contended Karen Silkwood was responsible for her radioactive contamination and now the energy conglomerate, which had maintained a no-comment stance since the 1974 incident, has put its allegation on record.

The first solid accusation came from Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. President Morgan Moore during testimony last week in trial on an $11.5 million federal lawsuit filed by Miss Silkwood's survivors.

Trial in the lawsuit filed by the woman's Nederland relatives, who contend the corporation's negligence caused the 28-year-old woman's contamination with radioactive plutonium a week before her death in a traffic accident, entered its ninth week today.

During questioning by Silkwood attorney Gerald Spence, Moore was asked if he believed Miss Silkwood, an employee at the plant north of Oklahoma City, contaminated her apartment.

"I believe she did," Moore responded.

However, the former plutonium plant manager said he could not prove his statement.

A few days after Kerr-McGee discovered Miss Silkwood and her apartment were contaminated, the woman died in a traffic accident while en route to a meeting with a union official and New York Times reporter. Witnesses have testified she was carrying evidence to support allegations of negligence against Kerr-McGee, but no documents were recovered from the wreckage of her car.

Attorneys for Kerr-McGee have based much of their defense around the fact that someone added plutonium to Miss Silkwood's urine samples, which she was submitting to the company for radiation testing.

Kerr-McGee argues Miss Silkwood removed plutonium from the plant, took it to her apartment and "spiked" the samples to embarrass the company during union bargaining sessions.

But Silkwood attorneys claim the spiing incident was engineered to frighten Miss Silkwood.

LCC Honors Professors For Service

Rodney Blackwood and Dr. Leon Crouch are the 1979 recipients of the F.W. Mattox Distinguished Teacher Awards at Lubbock Christian College.

The awards, named in honor of the college's founding president, were presented during Saturday's commencement exercises.

They are given each year to two faculty members in recognition of instructional excellence, dedicated service to students and unusual achievements toward the ideals of Lubbock Christian College. Selection is made by student ratings, evaluation by the Professional Growth Committee and the administration. The recepients receive a framed certificate and $100.

Blackwood, a Muleshoe native, is an LCC graduate. He received his associate of science degree from LCC in 1963 and his masters of science degree in agriculture from Texas Tech in 1965.

From 1967 until joining the LCC staff in 1971, Blackwood served in the Air Force as an air traffic controller. Before joining the service, he served as manager of the LCC farms from May 1965 until October 1967.

Currently associate professor of agriculture, Blackwood is a Ph.D. candidate at Texas Tech. He sponsors the Aggie Club, is a member of Broadway Church of Christ and teaches an adult class.

Dr. Crouch, an associate professor of Bible, published his first book, The Diet of Christ, this spring. A native of Sherman, Crouch received his B.S. Degree from West Texas State in January of 1956 and his M.A. in New Testament in August of 1961 from Harding Graduate School. He received his D. Min. from Luther Rice Seminary in 1977.

Crouch served in the U.S. Marine Corps from July 1948 until August 1951. After graduating from West Texas State, he served as minister of the Church of Christ in Minot, N.D., from Feb. 1956 until Sept, 1959, when he accepted the position of Minister of the Church of Christ in Lubbock, where he served until August of 1972. For four years he was head of the Bible Chair and the remainder of the time he served in England, where he attended the London Bible College.

Nina Tramel Realtors Provides Multiple Specialized Services

"Whether a newcomer or a longtime Lubbock resident, we believe one or more of the specialized services of Nina Tramel Realtors can be of distinct benefit to you."

Located at 3315 81st St., phone 793-4580, the firm's staff includes specialists in residential sales, custom building, speculative building, and investments (including rentals). Specialty of the firm likely could be pinpointed as custom building and listings of homes in the $35,000-and-up category in most residential areas of Lubbock.

Nina Tramel has 14 years experience in the residential real estate field in Lubbock, operating as a broker for the past five years. Her husband, Bob Tramel, is a homebuilder of note here, and the two work closely in providing appreciated services in the realty-homebuilding field.

Nina Tramel not only is most knowledgeable in real estate sales and development but also in home decorating.

Professional Approach

She is a member of the Lubbock Board of Realtors, the Texas Association of Realtors, the national board, and is a three-year appointee to the education committee on the state level. Last year she was one of the select number given the CRS (Certified Residential Specialist) award from the national association; she is said to be one of less than a handful so designated in Lubbock. She also is a member of the International Federation of Realtors and has completed the educational requirements for CRB (Certified Residential Broker). Such study and expertise has placed her as a real professional in the field, to the customers' benefit.

The Tramels are the kind of folks one appreciates. They have two daughters: Pam, a cheerleader at Christ the King High School, and Penne, attending Parsons Elementary School. The family attends Trinity Church and has a common hobby of tennis.

Attention is specifically directed to the custom and speculative home-building of the firm in the Meadows and Lake Ridge developments adjacent to 82nd Street and Slide Road in southwest Lubbock.

FHA, VA and conventional loans are available.

Sales associates of the Tramel firm keep up to date with trends, preferences and opportunities benefitting the Lubbock resident.

Bob Tramel has been most active in homebuilding here for about 12 years. He is a lifelong Lubbock resident and attended LCC, with Nina attending Texas Tech.

Others on the Nina Tramel Realtors staff include Betty Stephens, Joyce Jackson, Carolyn Cooper and Linda Sadler. Each specifically invites:

"Invest in tomorrow, today . . . in a new Tramel-built home!"

Beck's Warp 'n Weave Slates Early Spinning Workshop, Other Instruction

Beck's Warp 'n Weave, at 3021 34th St., phone 799-0151, has announced a Spinning Workshop for Beginners, conducted by Joan Holborn, to be held Saturday and Sunday, May 5-6.

This is just another of the special events at the shop that not only has a tremendous selection of yarns and supplies for fiber arts, but that prides in an instruction schedule "second to none".

The Spinning Workshop is for those interested in learning to spin or to re-learn lost skills. During the 10 hours (10 a.m. until noon, and 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. each announced day) the participant will learn to wash, card and spin wool on the drop spindle and the Ashford spinning wheel. Emphasis will be on learning to spin single-ply yarns from wool. Some exposure will be given to other fibers and top varying the yarn design. Included in the instruction will be fiber preparation, scouring, carding and care of spinning wheels.

Authority In Spinning

Joan Holborn, a Michigan native, has taught spinning, natural dyeing and weaving for three years in Roswell (N.M.) where she has been president of the Roswell Fibercraft Guild until she recently returned to Hobbs. She currently is working on a commission of several pieces of Eastern New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell.

Tom Beck of the Lubbock Warp 'n Weave firm has expressed keen satisfaction in being able to secure her for instruction here.

Advance registration is necessary for the workshop, with the full workshop fee being only $29.

Equipment will include a drop or hip (Navajo style) spindle, a spinning wheel, carders, wool fleeces or scoured roving, notebook, etc. Warp 'n Weave will provide spindles and carders and has five Ashford wheels for use during the workshop. However, one should bring her or his own spindles and wheels if available so that one can learn to adjust his equipment with the assistance of the workshop conductor.

Supplies will be available for a very modest fee at the shop.

Other Instruction

Warp 'n Weave also invites one to inquire regarding the full summer schedule of instruction that involves harness loom, beginning frame loom, advanced frame loom, tatting, basketry, cardweaving, Navajo weaving, rigid heddle, etc.

And as for stock . . . Warp 'n Weave has an incredible supply in weaving and related fields. Customers from throughout the Southwest have expressed amazement at the shop's large but selective offering.

New Products

Warp 'n Weave is now the Leclerc franchise dealer of weaving-related equipment. This long-established and well-known loom manufacturer provides sturdy and durable looms to 150-in. weaving widths, made in its Quebec, Canada factory.

The Lubbock shop also tells of new basketry materials on the way, including Abaca, Pandan, Rope Canton, Chinese Rush, Bac Bac and braided split bamboo. There are handbooks stocked, too, for this and other projects.

Owned and operated by Tom and Nancy Beck, the Warp 'n Weave shop really is "something special", with distinct appeal to beginner, advanced weaving enthusiast, or for just anyone who appreciates beautiful yarns and the other products brought to the area by Warp 'n Weave.

Tuftwick Explains Inflation-Fighting Opportunity On Inventory Merchandise

Here's a special message from Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock:

"With every shipment of carpet received and scheduled for delivery in the near future, the prices are higher. But there is good news, too:

"Tuftwick has an excellent inventory made available at the old prices! That's right; on carpeting received before the increases, we're keeping the price line and passing it on at savings one can appreciate."

"With such a policy and money-saving offer, it is plain that one should come in and select at Tuftwick at earliest date possible; choose while selection is good and at former prices."

(Wouldn't new carpeting be a most thoughtful Mother's Day remembrance . . . a gift that will give pleasure and comfort for years to come?)

"Longtime recognition of Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. as a headquarters for attractive pricing, utmost in value, and always a wide selection is a matter of general knowledge.

"But in appreciating Tuftwick for its inflation-fighting prices, have you realized that this big firm at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock includes the most elegant wool carpets, even custom made for your own situation, along with its wide choices in other materials and grades?"

Finest 100 per cent wool carpet from Philadelphia Carpets, even in custom colors, is available at Tuftwick . . . so "let us custom make your carpet" is no idle claim there.

'To Your Specifications'

"Seriously, if you can't find the color you need, as example, consider custom carpet manufactured especially for you, to your exact specifications!

"Imagine . . . the exact color or any imaginable color, from the softest, most delicate color of your favorite rose to the deep rich auburn shade of your Irish setter! The exact style, weight and texture . . . even the exact shape, seamless and to 25 ft. width and 60 ft. length, can be yours!

"And you can purchase only what you need. Philadelphia Carpets makes your carpet to fit each particular room, seamlessly when the room is within the above size specifications.

Carpets of imported wools assure elegant beauty and natural soil resistance. Consider Flambeau, Presentation or Supremacy from Philadelphia and Tuftwick, now; you can thus have as good a carpet as is available on the market."

Tuftwick prides in the wide selection of quality carpet kept in stock at its southwest Lubbock store.

The wide stock and the special order service is Tuftwick's contribution to helping you fix up the home for spring and summer (and all-year) enjoyment. It is Tuftwick's way of saying "the very best to you; we want to help in your home beautification and in your budget."

"Low prices are the rule at Tuftwick, with extraordinary savings posted whenever possible.

Easy terms are available, with no money down, and with up to 36 months to pay!

Attractive Display

"If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit."

First, there is a thrilling selection of patterns and materials.

Secondly, the prices and values simply cannot be beat.

Third reason for a trip to Tuftwick Carpet at Brownfield Highway and Slide Road could well be the most attractive display yet. Everything in the showroom has been conveniently displayed for easy viewing, comparison and selection. It is an attractive, inviting place in which to shop.

The basic reason for shopping Tuftwick has not changed, however, and that is the integrity and experience of a capable staff devoting all efforts to serve the customers' carpet needs as only possible with an experienced staff that "knows carpeting" and knows how to please in every transaction.

FOR CARPETING — Hal Taylor of Tuftwick Carpet calls attention to the wide availability and carpet range there, at the same time stressing savings on carpet in inventory before new round of price increases.

SEWING MACHINE SALES, RENTALS, SERVICES — Susan Skipper, owner of the ABC Sewing Center in Lubbock is pictured, along with serviceman Ronnie Smith, against a bank of quality machines. Newest White units are featured, together with other lines as outlined in the accompanying report.

ABC Sewing Center Providing Top-Line Products, Services

So very much could be said, and should be said, for the products and service advantages of ABC Sewing Center, 3104 34th St.!

In brief, however, the fact is that this home-owned and home-operated firm is thoroughly customer-oriented in its every department.

Established and actively operated by lifelong Lubbock resident, Susan Skipper, the ABC Sewing Center is factory authorized dealer for the famous White line, together with Necchi-Alco, Brother, Dressmaker and other sewing machines.

Susan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dennis, is a '66 graduate of Montery High School and is a '73 Texas Tech graduate. With some nine years experience in related businesses, she brings to ABC Sewing Center a thorough knowledge of area preferences and needs, together with product knowledge that is a very realistic assistance to the customer.

Services All Makes

The ABC Sewing Center buys, sell and trades, servicing all brands of machines, also maintaining a rental service.

Ronnie Smith, factory trained repairman, is on the staff and is widely known here in the field. Repairs for the Lubbock Independent School District machines are made at ABC.

Susan is especially enthused about the White line, a respected name in sewing machines for over 100 years. Each White is of durable all-metal construction.

One year free instruction is afforded with each machiune, new or reconditioned, purchased at the ABC Sewing Center.

Further Aids Cited

A five-year parts warranty and one-year service guarantee is effective on all reconditioned units.

Parsons cabinets are stocked, adaptable to all brands of machines.

Financing plans are available, together with Visa and Master Charge use.

The ABC Sewing Center is open six days a week: Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m., with Saturday closing at 4 p.m.

White Advantages Told

Twice-a-year free White seminars are conducted at the firm, with home economists from the White factory on hand to bring latest techniques, etc. (One is invited to check regarding the summer seminar.)

More about the White line:

The Model 710 flip-top open arm model with one-step button holer is especially recommended. It is stocked and available in portable or cabinet models at ABC.

This top-of-the-line unit is described as "the most versatile sewing machine for today's fabrics" by the White organization, and is the second in White's series of Flip-Top models with extension flaps to convert the sewing machine from a free arm to a flat bed sewing surface at a mere twist of a knob! And as for button holing, the user merely dials in the desired stitch and buttonhole length, presses the foot control, and the sewing machine does the rest automatically! This new model features 26 practical stretch and decorative stitches, including 16 forward and reverse moving patterns and the one-step buttonholer!

For full information on this and other great models, for a genuine welcome and appreciation of your inquiries, a visit to the ABC Sewing Center, 3104 34th St., phone 799-0372, is invited and recommended at earliest convenience.

Truckloads Arctic Circle Coolers Assure Availability At Lellem Welch

Truckloads of those great Arctic Circle evaporative air coolers are arriving with regularity at Lellem Welch, Inc.!

This means that there is a complete stock, not only of these new units but also of accessories at the big home-owned and home-operated Lellem Welch firm at 1401 Ave. J in Lubbock.

Actually Welch is one of the largest Arctic Circle dealers in this part of the state and consequently stands ready to help one enter the warmer season — now — in a manner to save money and to conserve energy.

"Let Lellem Welch, Inc. give you the facts regarding economical, effective evaporative cooling, supplying complete units or parts as desired."

Stocked are pumps, padding, belts, motors, dollies, shafts, blowers, grills, and sides for evaporative cooler repair or update.

Stocked are evaporative conditioner from the 2,000 cfm of 12,500 cfm, including roof, window and gable type coolers, even mobile home coolers are available.

Parts play a very important part, so Welch tries to shock as many different parts as possible for the many different types of coolers on the market.

Help is available from Welch for the do-it-yourselfer" who wishes to do the installation.

And for savings, the Welch firm points out added savings if units are purchased before the price increases of April 15.

Evaporative coolers offer the ideal solution to a variety of residential, commercial and industrial cooling needs, anywhere that affordable cooling will increase in comfort and improve work efficiency.

"Evaporative coolers from Lellem Welch Inc. keep you cool . . . without keeping you broke!"

As for maintenance and repairs on evaporative coolers: the home handyperson can easily handle an evaporative cooler's simple maintenance — and pocket the savings on costly service calls. An occasional cleaning and a simple pad change once or twice a year are usually all that is required. When "old faithful" requires repairs, a full line of parts is available at Lellem Welch Inc. right here in Lubbock, 1401 Ave. J.

Of course Welch stocks much more than evaporative air conditioning . . . such as Eljer plumbing fixtures, Payne heating, Bradley faucets, Aprilair humidifiers, Space Guard air cleaners, and more. But with the balmy days fast approaching, emphasis is rightly focused on serving today's needs of the public that has learned to appreciate and desire the advantages of evaporative cooling, the Arctic Circle way.

And remember . . . evaporative cooling offers significant environmental advantages, as well as cost savings.

"Isn't now the time to install Arctic Circle evaporative cooling or to repair your present evaporative cooler for summer efficiency, savings and enjoyment?"

"Lellem Welch Inc. is on the job to help you; may we have the opportunity."

Uni-Perms, regular $25, at $19.99; and

Hair cuts, regular $7, just $5.

New Services

Aside from the specials, 5-Point has other announcements that make a visit there more inviting:

Sculptured nails now are provided as a specialty, with Kim Jones, who has been schooled at the Birds of the Hands in Dallas, as specialist in this field. The sculptured nails are just $30, and nail tips are $20.

Pedicures by Judy McKnight are available, too.

Something else new: facials are available (with free corrective makeup).

A manicurist is on duty at all times.

Gift Certificates

Gift certificates are available and encouraged as a most practical and appreciated remembrance.

Redken products, including makeup, are utilized in the salon and are available retail.

Established for over 18 years, the shop in southwest Lubbock has gained an enviable following during these years. Two of the operators, Loveta Pritchard and Frances Sylvester, have been staffmembers for more than a dozen of these years.

Faye Butler, a 12-year Lubbock resident, has been owner since last April (for a year) and customer comments have been most favorable. The spacious shop has been redecorated as one of the customer considerations.

All operators at the 5-Point Beauty Salon are Jessie Lee graduates, and include Vicki Wheeler, Loveta Pritchard, Kim Jones, Judy McKnight and Francis Sylvester.

Ella Wese Bell is back with the salon as shampoo technician, customers will be glad to learn.

All beauty services are afforded, including haircuts for both women and men.

The salon is open Mondays through Saturdays, and early and late appointments can be arranged.

Call 975-4151 for appointment.

For traditional expert services, plus the new additions and the May Specials, acquaintance and early patronage is heartily encouraged at the 5-Point Beauty Salon, 5103 34th St.

Year-Around Lawn Program Afforded Locally By a-Perm-o-Green Method

A lot of people are glad . . .

That a-Perm-o-Green is now available, here!

"Yes, just as your friends and neighbors already may be enjoying the a-Perm-o-Green lawn program, this service can be utilized by you, too; conveniently and economically."

And now is the time to act, to get full details and start on the way to a beautiful, healthy lawn. The timing is right, the price is right, and the service is superb!

A Texas-based franchise operation, the local unit at 3210 34th St., phone 795-5296, is managed by Rod Krebbs, 25-year Lubbock resident. Rod is a '77 graduate at Texas Tech.

Seeing the need of the services uniquely afforded by a-Perm-o-Green, the local operation was initiated in September as a locally-owned business.

Program Defined

Highlight of the program's advantages include:

A-Perm-o-Green's lawn treatment program utlizes a liquid mixture of nutrients, insecticides, fungicides and weed control substances scientifically developed by agronomists who understand your lawn and what it needs.

"Consisting of a precisely timed series of four to five annual feedings professionally applied by highly trained personnel, the a-Perm-o-Green lawn program provides an economical, efficient and effective way for homeowners to enjoy vigorous, healthy lawns.

No Contract

No contract is involved, and a program can be terminated at any time, after any number of applications.

Satisfaction is guaranteed.

Free Estimate

Free analysis and estimates are featured. Simply call 795-5296.

The cost is based upon square footage of the yard or lot to be treated, and "we'll just bet this fee is much less than you would have imagined."

"All in all, with a-Perm-o-Green lawn program, getting a beautiful lawn won't cost you a pretty penny. In fact, the annual cost, on the average, is substantially less than the cost of the homeowner attempting to maintain his own lawn with dry fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and weed control. (And there is no investment for you in spreaders and other tools.)"

The a-Perm-o-Green representative, after measuring the size of your lawn, will give it a thorough analysis to determine its needs and problems. We at a-Perm-o-Green even take a close look and, if necessary, recommend changes in your mowing technique, and other factors that can affect a beautiful lawn.

Application of the a-Perm-o-Green lawn liquid fertilizer is advised at earliest possible date to get a head start on summer.

"May we explain our balanced program, our free estimates, our modest fee, our full qualifications, and all factors that can work toward a more beautiful lawn for you, our neighbor and good friend in Lubbock and area?

Business & Industrial Review

FROM WEST TEXAS CASH REGISTER — Electronic cash register automation is made easy for area businesses of all sizes by the quality Data Terminal Systems units and the long experience in the field marked by the folks of the home-owned dealership at 3124 34th St.

Data Terminal Systems Seen Right For All Business Needs

"If a good product is the consideration, if service is a factor, if a long record of achievement is a consideration . . . then we believe you will profit from knowing and patronizing West Texas Cash Register, authorized dealer for Data Terminal Systems."

Offices of the home-owned firm are maintained in Lubbock at 3124 34th St., phone 793-5333, and in Odessa.

Sales, service and supplies is the whole business of the company.

'Home Folks You Know'

O. D. Lee, owner, established the Lubbock firm over a year ago, and he and his associates mark over 85 years experience in the field with another company. Lee has been an area resident since back in '54 and he counts 23 years in the cash register business.

Curtis Fuller, Lubbock associate in charge of service, has 20 years history with one firm; and Bob Graham of Odessa and formerly of Lubbock counts 25 years; with Larry Hodges of Odessa chalking 15 years experience with the same company.

Electronic Cash Registers

Involved in strictly Data Terminal Systems sales, service and supplies, West Texas Cash Register prides in "an electronic cash register for every business need."

From a modest unit to the elaborate top-of-the-line models, Data Terminal Systems provides units suitable for approximately 85-90 per cent of all retail business control applications, with more than 100,000 units installed throughout the world (with a growing number right here in Lubbock).

The Lubbock firm not only keeps a good stock, but its sales involve maintenance inspection as part of each sale! Isn't this refreshing? Service contracts are available, of course.

New Models

Whether selection is the new Model 150, offering a tremendous amount of features in a low-end ECR, or the new stand-alone ECR/POS system aimed specifically at the general merchandise, discount, hardgoods/softgoods, apparel and specialty retailing industries, one can be sure of quality. The new advanced Model 515 enables retailers to enjoy benefits of electronic cash register automation and point-of-sale data reduction all in a single stand-alone terminal, without need for an expensive store-level computer!

Features Outlined

The unique microprocessor-based design of the 515 can be programmed in the field to suit individual retailing requirements with capabilities like alphabtic prompting, line by line, on a 20-character display for cashier lead-through; sales classification reporting direct from the register; complete alpha-numeric printing including five line validation; and fast easy-to-use features for layaway, charge account and gift certificate operation. And it is quickly "plug-upgradable" in the field to grow along with the retailer's business!

"Isn't it time you stepped up to Data Terminal Systems electronic cash registers and the qualified assistance of West Texas Cash Register, 3124 34th St., phone 793-5333?"

Rainbo Routeman's Retiring Prompts Reminiscences, Citation For Service

It is a special and well-earned salute that Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock this week extends a retiring and long-valued employee, Don 'Slugger' Slaton.

Slugger's May 1 retirement comes 29 years after commencing with the firm's predecessor in Lubbock.

And here's one for the record . . . Slugger was on the very same bread route for 25 of these years, serving "Route 2," the north side of Lubbock that at one time represented the main part of the city, Slaton recounts. In more recent years he has been serving office duties but still in the sales department.

Another record that should be inspirational to just about anyone: Slugger Slaton traveled over 700,000 miles without an accident while operating a bread truck.

As one of the four oldest (in tenure) employees of Rainbo Baking in Lubbock, Slugger remembers that when he started delivering bread, there were only five bread items involved; now there are over 400 in the Rainbo list.

"I have seen lots of improvements, all for the public's benefit, too, since I have been with Rainbo, and I want to say that this has been especially true since Harry Hoopes, manager of the firm here, has been on the job. He has given a 'know how' and leadership that is evident in the successful and smooth running operation of the company. And the folks I have worked with — they are great. I'll miss 'em. They have been like 'family.'

"I'll probably catch myself getting up in the morning ready to come down to the bakery," Slugger anticipates in listing some of the things he expects to encounter upon his retirement. "And I'll most likely answer 'Rainbo' when the phone rings at home."

Plans? Slugger presently is fixing up an antique car, and he also plans to do some fishing, hunting and traveling.

The Slaton family consists of Slugger, his wife, Mae Delle; a daughter, Mrs. Robert (Donna Drew) Cokerham of Lubbock; and a three-year-old granddaughter, Amy.

The Slatons belong to St. John's Methodist Church.

"We hate to lose good men, even upon retirement," Hoopes says in reference to Slaton's leaving, "but we are proud to have counted them on our staff these many years and wish the very best in new activities for Slugger Slaton; a valued member of the Rainbo family.

"After all, those good Rainbo products reflect the expertise and dedication of such men; it is Rainbo's way of doing business and assuring more and better products in a continuing process."

'Grand Opening Observance' Involves Specials At Guys & Gals Hairstyling

Guys & Gals Hairstyling, the "anytime appointments" salon at 2605 Canton Ave., is staging a Grand Opening!

Though very much in business for months under the present popular ownership and management, Grand Opening festivities and related specials have been arranged for today, April 30, through Saturday, May 5, as a gesture of appreciation of the trade accorded the firm and as a means of acquaintance with even more fine area people who appreciate the best in hairstyling.

During this week, a $2 reduction is given on most services of the salon, and there are free gifts for all customers!

In addition to the already-long hours of the salon, it will be open all day Wednesday this week.

As a new service, free ear piercing is now given upon purchase of earrings in stock, with a wide assortment available from $5.

Staff Introduced

Marjorie Flowers is owner of Guys & Gals, and Kelley Etherton is assistant manager. Beth Caffey, a Jessie Lee graduate and an operator who has long had an extremely good following in the city area where she still serves at Guys & Gals, and new staffmember Kim White, specializing in hair styling for both men and women, are on the job. It is emphasized that "anytime appointments" are available, with Sunday appointments on request.

Marjorie (Barrett) Flowers is providing a type establishment that gives full attention to "the things that count" in a hairstyling salon, and one is invited to come in during the Grand Opening and discover personally just how this is true.

Special prices are given senior citizens each Thursday.

Gals and guys are welcome anytime.

Normal long hours are Monday and Tuesday, 8 a.m. until 9 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursdays, 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.; Friday and Saturday 8 a.m. until ?!

A full line of Redken and KMS products is maintained for sale at the salon.

Not only hairstyling, but other beauty services are given expert attention at Guys & Gals, including manicures.

"We're at 2605 Canton Ave., remember, phone 793-9167, and we especially want to have a visit with you this week during our Grand Opening."

Business Dip Indicated By New Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to gauge the nation's economic outlook declined in March for the third consecutive month, providing new evidence the economy may be headed for a sharp slowdown and a possible recession.

The so-called composite index of leading indicators dropped 0.5 percent in March following declines of 0.4 percent in February and 0.3 percent in January.

A three-month decline in the index is considered an indication the economy is about to sink into a recession, although the measure is by no means foolproof.

The decline comes at a time when key economic policymakers are disagreeing over the economic outlook. Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, for one, believes the economy is slowing down, while Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal argues it is gathering steam.

Today's report by the Commerce Department appears to support the view the economy is slowing. The index now has declined in four of the past five months. By contrast, it declined 12 consecutive months during the 1974-75 recession.

The Commerce Department said a decline in cash and other liquid assets in March contributed most to the latest decline in the index. Also pushing the index downward were negative showings in the job layoff rate, investment activity, the money supply and new orders for consumer and business goods.

Partially offsetting those developments were gains in the average workweek, sales delivery performance, behavior of sensitive prices, stock prices and building permits.

Of the individual indicators that increased, a gain in building permits had the largest influence. There were 10 individual economic statistics counted for the March index. The index in March stood at 142.3 of the 1967 base period average of 100.

The economy has been giving off mixed signals in recent months, which has confused policymakers and resulted in public disagreement in the government about what policies to follow.

Blumenthal, who fears the pace of economic growth is too fast and will aggravate inflation, has been calling for new steps to slow the economy, including higher interest rates.

But Miller says the evidence shows the economy is slowing at an acceptable pace. He fears that new measures hastening the decline would push the nation into a serious recession later this year.

Although they haven't said so publicly, Carter administration officials appear to believe that a mild recession probably is desirable to help slow inflation and could be endured without causing an unacceptable degree of hardship for Americans.

The economy expanded at an annual rate of only 0.7 percent in the first quarter of the year, a rate near the recession level. A recession is said to occur when there is negative economic growth for two consecutive quarters.

However, the official outlook for the economy for 1979 still calls for overall economic growth of about 2.2 percent, down from 4 percent last year.

Lyle E. Gramley, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said he doesn't think the index points to a recession, because the decline is largely the result of people holding less cash than before.

Said Gramley in an interview: "The index has been saying for the the past five months that money balances are growing slowly, and that's not really terribly new information. It's related to the rather unusual situation with respect to financial markets. I'm not inclined to to attribute a great deal of significance to it."

Storms Pound Texas

lacios, 1.64 inches; San Antonio, 1.63 inches; and McAllen, 1.22 in ches.

Flash flood watches, which were issued for a large portion of South Texas late Sunday, were cancelled early today as the thunderstorms either moved farther east or dissipated into light rain.

In the South Plains region, where less violent weather prevailed late Sunday, the wettest communities during the same 24-hour reporting period were Morton, with .29 of an inch; Locketville, .27 of an inch; Muleshoe Refuge, .25 of an inch; Levelland, .23 of an inch; and Brownfield, .22 of an inch.

Lubbock received .04 of an inch of rain Sunday, giving the city 5.08 inches of precipitation in 1979 compared to 2.42 inches at the same date last year.

For the entire weekend period, several South Plains stations reported rainfall of about half an inch. Friona had .56, Dimmitt .47, Littlefield .44, Levelland .43 and Morton .42.

Lubbock's weekend total was .35.

Along with grayish skies, Lubbock temperature patterns are expected to remain cool, with the high this afternoon forecast in the mid 60s and Tuesday in the low 70s. The mercury tonight is expected to dip to the low 50s.

The South Plains extended forecast through Friday shows more scattered showers and thunderstorms after midweek. Mild temperatures, with highs in the 70s, are expected at midweek before a cooling trend to highs in the 60s takes hold again by Friday.

Elsewhere in the state today, considerable cloudiness was forecast, with temperatures expected to range from the upper 60s in northern portions of Texas to the mid-90s in the Big Bend region.

Talmadge Slaps At Accuser

income by more than $40,000." Talmadge claimed.

Talmadge also said evidence would show that his income in 1973 was over $70,000 and that in 1974, he had income of more than $80,000. In addition, his former wife had income in both years of more than $80,000 and his late son, Bobby, had income of more than $50,000 in each year, Talmadge said.

The senator said the critical question is "who was motivated to steal money, Daniel Minchew or Herman Talmadge."

And he said, "If I had intended to steal money, I would not have used an accomplice who could later implicate me. I would not have used a bank account and left a paper trail that could later be discovered.

"I would not have insisted, as Daniel Minchew claims I did, that money from a milk cooperative be put in that bank account at a time when the Watergate committee on which I served was scrutinizing the political contributions of that same milk cooperative," he added.

He characterized Minchew as a "liar, cheat and embezzler."

Talmadge dismissed the other allegations against him by contending they were trivial and that most were were the result of errors made by his staff in filling out expense forms.

He noted that he had acknowledged, in a stipulation filed with the committee today, that certain events relating to certain allegations had occurred.

And he said that on one allegation — that he owed gift taxes on stock given his wife — was "at most ... an argument between accountants. Even special counsel does not accuse me of willful tax evasion."

Baker Raises Fund For '80

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee announced today he has raised $215,000 for his presidential campaign and qualified for matching federal fund.

Baker also announced at a news conference that former New Hamphire Gov. Walter R. Peterson will be chairman of his campaign in the New Hampshire primary and Frederick W. Smith, founder of Federal Express Corp., will be his national finance chairman.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a Baker supporter, said most of the campaign money was raised in the last three weeks. Only $45,000 had been raised at the close of the first quarter reporting period for the Federal Election Commission.

WELCOME TO ISRAEL — Prime Minister Menachem Begin welcomes Russian Jewish immigrants Mark Dymshits, left, and Eduard Kuznetsov, center, at an emotional ceremony today at Ben-Gurion Airport near Tel Aviv. The men were freed by the Soviet Union last week, along with three others, in a swap for two convicted Soviet spies in the United States. They had served nine years in prison for attempting to flee from Russia. (AP Laserphoto)

Israel Welcomes Freed Russians

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Eduard Kuznetsov and Mark Dymshits arrived in Israel to a heroes' welcome today. They were the last of seven Soviet Jews freed by the Kremlin after nine years in prison for plotting to escape from the Soviet Union by hijacked airliner.

"Blessed be He who has sustained us and brought us to this day," said Prime Minister Menachem Begin, quoting a Jewish prayer celebrating joyous occasions.

Kuznetsov, 52, and Dymshits, 40, both pale and gaunt from their prison years but smiling broadly, arrived at Ben-Gurion Airport on a flight from New York. On Friday they and three other Russian dissidents were swapped in New York for two convicted Soviet spies.

The men were welcomed by an emotional crowd of relatives, friends and government officials led by Begin, himself a former prisoner in a Soviet labor camp.

"Thanks to your efforts we have arrived to be with you," said Dymshits. "I'm happy that after nine years I can join my country and my family in my homeland."

He added: "Hundreds of thousands more Jews want to leave the Soviet Union. There is still a struggle before us."

On Sunday, Begin also headed the crowd that greeted the five other Soviet Jewish prisoners, who were freed last Tuesday and arrived from Vienna with 82 other Soviet Jewish immigrants. They are Wolf Zalmanson, 39, Anatoli Altman, 36, Boris Penson, 33, Leib Khnokh, 35, and Hillel Butman, 46.

As in Sunday's airport welcome, Kuznetsov and Dymshits were met with tears and hugs from relatives, flowers presented by schoolchildren and the ceremonious awarding of Israeli citizenship cards to the new immigrants.

"As a veteran here, I welcome you," joked Zalmanson, one of the five who arrived Sunday. He said coming to Israel "is worth 10 years in prison, even 15," a reference to the terms Kuznetsov and Dymshits were supposed to serve.

As he did Sunday, Begin thanked President Carter for negotiating the release of Kuznetsov and Dymshits — the release of the other five was not formally a part of the swap for the spies. The Israeli leader said he spoke with Carter Saturday night and the president "promised to continue his efforts until all the prisoners of conscience are released and allowed to come back to Israel, the land of our forefathers."

Dymshits was met by his wife and two children, who arrived in Israel six years ago. His daughter Julia, 24, said she did not know what work her father would take up in Israel. "But that's not important now," she said. "What matters is he's here."

Kuznetsov, a professional translator, was reunited with his wife, Sylva Zalmanson, on Friday in New York. The couple has no children.

"But they will," said one member of the family with a big smile.

The seven were among 26 Jews sentenced for plotting to hijack a Soviet airliner in Leningrad in 1970 after they were refused exit visas to Israel. Kuznetsov and Dymshits were sentenced to death, but after worldwide protests the sentences were commuted to 15 years' imprisonment.

Three of the 26 — Alexei Murzhenko, Iosof Mendelevich and Yuri Fyodorov — are still imprisoned.

The best-known Jewish dissident imprisoned in the Soviet Union is Anatoly Shcharansky, whose trial and conviction on espionage charges last year was denounced by Carter and other foreign leaders. The U.S. government is reported negotiating for his release, and his wife, Avital, who was at the airport, told reporters, "with God's help, Anatoly's next."

Kuznetsov told an interviewer in New York the hijack plot failed because all the plotters were under close surveilance. Four had been in prison before and the others had applied to emigrate.

HI, NEIGHBOR! — An Arab waves a greeting as the Israeli freighter Ashdod enters the Suez Canal today at Suez City. The Ashdod is the first vessel flying the Israeli flag to travel the waterway in 25 years. The canal was opened to Israeli shipping under terms of the recently signed peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. (AP Laserphoto)

Suez Canal Opened To Israeli Ship

SUEZ CITY, Egypt (AP) — The first Israeli-flag ship ever allowed to pass through the Suez Canal entered the waterway today as Egyptians lining the bank welcomed it with shouts of "Salaam."

Crew members aboard the freighter returned the greeting with shouts of "Shalom." Sirens wailed and other ships blasted their foghorns.

"Salaam" is Arabic for peace and "Shalom" is the Hebrew equivalent.

The 4,500-ton Zim Shipping Co. freighter Ashdod entered the southern end of the 101-mile canal near Suez City and will end the 14-hour crossing at Port Said on the Mediterranean.

An Egyptian escort ship accompanied the Ashdod.

The Ashdod, with 22 men aboard, set out from the Israeli port of Eilat in the Gulf of Aqaba Saturday night. It entered Egyptian territorial waters Sunday morning, and in accordance with international maritime custom, hoisted the Egyptian flag as it steamed through the Gulf of Suez toward the canal entrance.

Canal officials and members of the Israeli crew toasted the historic voyage with champagne Sunday night.

The canal crossing marked a major development in the framework of peace being built between Israel and Egypt following the signing of their historic peace treaty last month. The last Israeli ship to try crossing the canal was seized by Egypt in 1954.

No ship flying the Israeli flag has ever passed through the canal, Israeli shipping officials said. But they said several Israeli-owned vessels whose ownership was hidden have passed through flying "convenience flags."

Non-Israeli vessels carrying cargo to and from Israel have been allowed through the canal since 1975 under terms of the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement treaty. That pact put both banks of the waterway into Egyptian hands for the first time since it was closed when Israeli occupied the Sinai Desert up to the eastern edge of the canal in the 1967 Mideast war.

In another sign of the unfolding peace, Israeli and Egyptian military negotiators held their first meeting Sunday at a United Nations outpost in the Sinai to discuss plans for Israel's pullout from the peninsula, which is being returned to Egypt under terms of the treaty.

Court Flexible On Mental Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court ruled today that an individual may be committed involuntarily to a mental institution without showing "beyond a reasonable doubt" that he is insane and a danger to himself and the community.

A Texas mental patient asked the court to adopt that standard, which normally is reserved for criminal cases and places the greatest burden on officials to prove their case.

At the same time, taking a middle ground, the high court rejected a standard used by the Texas Supreme Court which made it easier for state officials to commit a person for treatment of mental illness. The state court had held that the standard of proof should be a "preponderance of the evidence."

In an 8-0 decision, Chief Justice Warren Burger said an acceptable standard — a middle course — would be that involuntary incarceration be based on "clear and convincing evidence," or other similar approaches.

In considering the appeal of Frank O'Neal Addington, Burger said: "The subtleties and nuances of psychiatric diagnosis render certainties virtually beyond reach in most situations."

"Given the lack of certainty and the fallability of psychiatric diagnosis, there is a serious question as to whether a state could ever prove beyond a reasonable doubt that an individual is both mentally ill and likely to be dangerous."

The Supreme Court, dealing with an unusual personal appeal, today also ordered a lower court to restudy the case of a pentitentiary inmate serving a 25-year sentence.

The justices, voting 6-2, told the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to determine whether Herbert Wilkins Sr. of Philadelphia deserves a new opportunity to appeal to the Supreme Court his 1976 conviction for kidnapping and the interstate transportation of a female for immoral purposes.

Justices William H. Rehnquist and John Paul Stevens voted not to give Wilkins that opportunity. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. did not participate in the case.

In a crudely fashioned but obviously effective "appeal" to the Supreme Court, Wilkins had asked that he be allowed to challenge his conviction even though the time for filing such an appeal has long since passed.

Wilkins' conviction was upheld by the 3rd Circuit court in June 1977.

Under Supreme Court rules, Wilkins had 90 days from that date to appeal. No appeal was filed.

Wilkins' "appeal" filed recently did not challenge his conviction but focused, instead, on the reason he had not filed a timely appeal.

"The petitioner and his friends and family were led to believe (Wilkins' court-appointed lawyer) would file" the appeal for him, Wilkins told the justices.

Now an inmate at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., Wilkins blamed Philadelphia lawyer Rudolph S. Pallastrone for the failure to appeal. He said Pallastrone had told his wife, Mary Wilkins, that such an appeal had been filed.

Commenting on the case, U.S. Solicitor General Wade McCree said it might be appropriate to have the 3rd Circuit court reaffirm Wilkins' conviction and consider appointing a lawyer to help Wilkins mount a Supreme Court appeal.

That is what today's order to the 3rd Circuit suggests.

McCree said the government was assuming that Wilkins' claims about the appeal mixup were true because Pallastrone had failed to answer the government's inquiries.

McCree said Justice Department lawyers had tried to contact Pallastrone several times "but he has not returned our calls."

In other action today, the high court:

—Refused to reconsider the appeal of a Florida death row inmate, John A. Spenkelink, who now is likely to become only the second U.S. prisoner to be executed since 1967. The court also refused to hear the appeal of another convicted Florida murderer who challenged the constitutionality of that state's death penalty law.

—Struck down as unconstitutional a California property tax imposed on cargo containers owned by foreign shippers. The justices said only the federal government can regulate foreign commerce.

—Left intact the Laetrile smuggling conviction of Robert W. Bradford of California, who charged he was denied a fair trial when he was barred from presenting evidence purporting to show that the substance is beneficial to cancer patients.

—Turned down arguments by three Illinois coal miners that they suffered illegal wage losses after switching jobs to help ease the effects of black lung disease.

—Struck down rulings that forced Arkansas officials to accept grievances filed on behalf of highway department employees by their union.

Today's decision in the mental illness case left little hope that Addington will be freed until state officials decide to release him.

Burger said the reasonable doubt standard was restricted to criminal cases, where, he maintained, a mistaken conviction was more serious.

A mental patient is under constant review by doctors and "the concern of family and friends generally will provide continuous opportunities for an erroneous commitment to be corrected," said Burger.

"Moreover, it is not true that the release of a genuinely mentally ill person is no worse for the individual than the failure to convict the guilty," he said. "One who is suffering from a debilitating mental illness and in need of treatment is neither wholly at liberty nor free of stigma."

Addington had a history of temporary commitments to mental institutions when he was arrested in December 1975 on a misdemeanor charge of threatening his mother.

After a six-day jury trial, he was committed to Austin State Hospital on the ground there was "clear, unequivocal and convincing evidence" he was insane.

The Texas Supreme Court rejected his claim that the jury should have considered whether the proof of his insanity was beyond a reasonable doubt. The court based its decision on one of its own previous rulings that "a preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof was adequate in such cases.

Burger noted that the Texas court was the only one in the nation to endorse the idea that "a preponderance of the evidence" was sufficient for involuntary commitments. Burger said this standard would violate an individual's due process rights under the Constitution.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. did not take part in the decision for unexplained reasons.

Several Steel Haulers Decide To End Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some Teamster steel haulers returned to the road today after a month-long strike over a proposed contract and the right to vote on the pact.

A spot check by The Associated Press with several large steel carriers in the Pittsburgh area revealed that many drivers had decided to abandon the strike.

"Everything seems to be over. We haven't had any trouble overnight and nothing has been reported anywhere else," said a spokesman for McNicholas Transfer Co.

"We're moving here this morning," said an official of Lake Shore Motor Freight Lines.

Most affected steel companies said layoffs would continue until truck availability improves and stored steel can be moved out.

"We are starting to get some trucks," said a spokesman for U.S. Steel Corp., which furloughed employees at Youngstown, Ohio, and Vandergrift, Pa. "But I would expect layoffs to continue. We have to move the steel before we can get back to normal operation."

The dissident Teamsters for a Democratic Union called for a general return to work on Sunday following an end-the-strike vote by the largest steel-hauling local in the Teamsters union.

"Our committee's advocating that we not make a last ditch stand," an aide to TDU leader Ken Paff said in Detroit Sunday after the 1,600-member Local 800 voted here to return to work.

The vote came as support for the month-long strike waned in the East, where some non-striking union members had already resumed hauling general freight and steel.

The strike had kept many of the Teamsters' estimated 17,000 steel haulers idle since April 1, and forced the layoff of some 6,000 mill workers because steel shipments were bottled up.

Steel haulers in Youngstown, Ohio, were scheduled to vote on a possible return to work today, TDU said.

TDU, a union splinter group, had supplanted some elected union leaders as strike coordinator.

Members of steel-hauling Local 92 in Canton, Ohio, voted Sunday to end the strike if holdout companies signed the agreement and agreed to immediate pay for six days' retroactive sick pay negotiated in the proposed agreement.

"In Gary (Ind.) they'll be in full operation Monday. In Detroit, Cleveland, Canton (Ohio) and Erie (Pa.) they don't think they're going to be able to hold up past Monday," one spokesman said.

The Teamsters' 300,000 drivers ended a 10-day walkout April 10, but steel haulers defied a back-to-work order, demanding a separate vote on their provisions in the proposed master freight agreement.

But support for the strike dwindled as individual settlements were reached with the 50 members of the National Steel Carriers Association, lone holdout among four major employer bargaining groups.

Drivers were encouraged not to abandon their fight for separate voting rights, but to apply pressure within the union for a change in balloting rules.

Local 800 Secretary-Treasurer Charles Carelli said work would not resume immediately at about 10 Pittsburgh-area National Steel Carriers members who had not settled as of Sunday. But he predicted quick agreements once other trucks started rolling.

The proposd contract offers company drivers and owner-operators a flat percentage of the gross revenue on long-distance loads.

Applying current freight rates to the proposed contract, an owner-operator's earnings hauling a 50,000-pound load of steel from Pittsburgh to Chicago would rise from $460 to $521, Carelli said.

A union member driving a company truck on the same trip would earn $185 instead of $150, he said.

URW, Uniroyal Negotiators Meet Behind Closed Doors

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — United Rubber Workers officials met behind locked doors early today to discuss strategy in negotiations with Uniroyal Inc. Later, they were to begin a full-scale union policy session on the stalled talks with major rubber firms.

More than 130 union members gathered for the talks. No URW officials would comment publicly.

President Peter Bommarito called the union's 15-member Policy Committee and scores of other union officials to the meeting.

About 55,000 workers have continued work at the industry's Big Four plants since their contract ran out April 20.

A spokesman for Uniroyal, which drew Bommarito's ire for allegedly backing out on a tentative agreement reached April 18, charged that "what we have this year is a failure to communicate."

He called the confusion over the alleged agreement bizarre, and said, "I've never seen anything like this."

Bommarito has charged that Uniroyal's professional labor consultant, Leo Kramer, agreed that the firm would go along with a proposal that met most of the union's major demands.

The agreement reportedly was sealed with a handshake and Bommarito's initials. However, the agreement apparently was not signed by any company official.

It was reported that Bommarito then went to negotiators for the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and B.F. Goodrich in an effort to sell the deal. But a Goodrich negotiator telephoned Uniroyal to get more specific details and was told that that firm had not agreed to anything.

Bommarito issued a statement that a tentative agreement had been reached and called the Policy Committee together to act on it.

When the rubber companies denied that any agreement had been reached, Bommarito attacked Uniroyal, saying that firm had buckled to government pressure and reneged on the deal.

Sources said the "phantom" agreement would have given workers at Uniroyal, Goodrich, Firestone and the Goodyear Tire Rubber Co. a 40 percent increase over the old contract over a three-year period.

That far exceeds President Carter's anti-inflation guideline of maximum 7 percent annual pay increases.

Bommarito has said the union will never accept the 7 percent limits.

Prisoner Hurt In Jail Fight

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Terre Fleener, the former airline flight attendant imprisoned for 18 months by Israel, suffered a black eye and bruises in a jailhouse fight with another prisoner, U.S. official said Sunday.

As to reports that Israeli officials were holding up her release in order to avoid possible criticism because of her bruised face, one official said, "I would doubt this very much."

Miss Fleener, 24, of San Antonio has served 18 months of a 5-year sentence for conspiracy to aid a hostile organization. Her conviction was reportedly based on efforts to photograph military installations.

The official said the fight broke out in the women's jail in Ramle near Tel Aviv last week.

"It's the sort of thing that happens in a jail all the time," one U.S. official said. "The other one was a toughy off the streets."

"She's not a violent person. She never lifted her hand against anyone," said Felicia Langer, Miss Fleener's lawyer.

She declined to comment on the argument lest it damage her appeal to the Justice Ministry for executive clemency and deportation.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — For the past 43 years, Frank Waldron, a trucker, has logged 3.5 million miles behind the wheel — the equivalent of 140 times around the earth — and has not been involved in an accident. Waldron, 67, who now drives for a Dallas transportation company, was honored recently as the national driver of the year by the American Trucking Association Inc.

Wreck Victim Still Critical

One man remained in critical condition this morning at Methodist Hospital after being injured Sunday in a traffic accident southeast of Lubbock that claimed the life of a 49-year-old Lubbock County man.

Listed in critical condition early today was Roosevelt Benson, 42, of 9203 Boston Ave.

Elmer Earl Shanks was pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:40 p.m. mishap about a half mile outside of the city on U.S. 84 by Slaton Justice of the Peace Arvin Stafford.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Shanks was driving his car west on the highway and Benson, who was driving a pickup truck, was traveling east in the westbound lane of U.S. 84 when the two vehicles collided head-on.

Stafford was withholding a ruling on the death this morning, pending further investigating into the accident.

Services for Shanks were pending this morning with Henderson Funeral Directors.

City Police Searching For Murder Suspect

Murder charges have been filed against a 41-year-old Lubbock man, whom police were seeking early today in connection with the Saturday night shooting death of Curtis Robinson, 26, of 2405 Colgate St., Apt. A.

Named in the charges filed today was Jerry Dean Ingram of 2806 Juniper Ave., No. 2, the residence where Robinson reportedly was shot shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday. The suspect remained at large this morning.

Robinson died at 11 p.m. Saturday at West Texas Hospital, while undergoing surgery for a bullet wound in the spleen. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack ruled the death a homicide, the city's 11th of the year.

A witness told police that he, the victim and Ingram had been drinking beer at the suspect's house. He said he left to get more beer, and that when he returned Robinson and Ingram were arguing.

The witness told police he wrestled a knife away from Ingram. However, he said the suspect got a .22-caliber rifle and shot Robinson.

Police said they had recovered the rifle at nearby residence of a man who witnessed the shooting.

The Criminal District Attorney's office is recommending that Ingram be denied bond because of three prior criminal convictions.

Robinson's body was to be transferred today from Sedberry Funeral Home in Lubbock to Hudman Funeral Home in Post, where services were pending.

House Members Complete Work On Legislation

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House members last week completed work on their $20.3 billion, two-year state spending bill, sending it to the Senate for action on a final vote of 88-54.

The legislation includes 7 percent pay increases for state employees and public school teachers; a controversial prohibition against using state and federal funds for abortions was deleted; and, it is alleged the appropriations bill violates a spending limitation which House members approved earlier in the session.

Also during the 15th week of the session, House members finally okayed the proposed constitutional amendment allowing churches and non-profit organizations to conduct bingo games and raffles, free from the state's prohibition against gambling, on a 103-37 vote. That proposal now goes back to the Senate because the House added some stringent controls before the bingo could be legally conducted.

The proposed constitutional amendment, prohibiting a state income tax, did not fare so well. It failed again on a 99-38 vote, short of the required 100 to send the legislation to the Senate, and even Gov. Bill Clements, who endorsed the amendment, admits the issue may be dead for this legislative session.

Rep. Jim Rudd, Brownfield, voted for the appropriations bill, for the income tax amendment and against the bingo amendment.

Rep. Froy Salinas, Lubbock, voted against the appropriation bill, was shown as not voting on the income tax amendment and voted for the bingo amendment.

Rep. Nolan Robnett, Lubbock, voted for the appropriations bill and the two amendments.

Rep. Mike Ezzell, Snyder, voted for the appropriations bill, for the income tax amendment and against the bingo amendment.

Mayor Announces 'Spotlight Crime Of Week'

Rewards totaling $1,600 are being offered by "Crime Line, Inc." this week in connection with an aggravated robbery case, a business burglary, a house burglary and an elusive fugitive who has been indictedfor murder but who has since disappeared.

In the "Spotlight Crime of the Week" announced by Mayor Dirk West, a $500 reward is being offered in the aggravated robbery incident at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.W. Renfro, 4005 42nd St., at 7 p.m. on April 21.

A tall white male posing as "a partner to the district attorney" knocked on a of the home and said he was conducting a survey about crime in that area.

Mrs. Renfro answered the door and told the man she was ill and that her husband was asleep. The man pulled a gun, ordered her back into the house, wakened Renfro and ordered the couple to get face down on the floor.

He was carrying a large brown automatic when joined by a second intruder. Both donned masks.

The intruders seized Mrs. Renfro's jewelry and cash from Renfro's wallet. They ransacked the house and removed several other items, cash and a gun.

The couple was taken to the bathroom, where they were handcuffed to a sink drain with foreign handcuffs.

The intruders left in the couple's 1978 biege and maroon Buick (license RVK-898). The couple was not discovered until 3:35 p.m. the following day, when suspicions were aroused because they did not keep an appointment.

One suspect was described as a white male, 6-2 to 6-3, 180 pounds, with a beard, and an inch-long mustache. He was wearing a gray suit and black shoes.

During the robbery, the intruders also stepped on the hands of their victims in an attempt to get more money, which the couple did not have.

A reward of $500 is being offered for information leading to the arrest of Grace James, 48-year-old black woman indicted for murder in connection with the death of Robert Lee Johnson, who was shot March 17 in the 2800-block of Clovis Road. She disappared shortly after being indicted.

Six rifles, a shotgun, pistol, clothing and jewelry were taken March 31 in a burglary at 211 Redbud Dr. Intruders apparently entered the house through an east window. A steak knife was found in the back yard, apparently to ward off a large dog at the house. A month earlier, the occupant had surprised an intruder, who escaped. It is believed both burglaries were committed by the same person or persons. A $300 reward is offered.

• • •

A $300 reward is posted for information in the burglary of a business at 2519 Stanford St. Entry was gained by breaking a pane of glass on the north side. A stereo receiver, speaker, nail gun and four water mattress kits were loaded into a truck through a southside reddish-orange van or pickup truck.

Rewards totaling $5,700 now have been posted in the mayor's attack on crime.

Persons with information concerning these cases are urged to call the hotline, 741-1000, which is manned in the Lubbock Police Department from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. At other times, an automatic answering device is used.

GETTING READY — Eight-year-old Stephanie Radway gets an assist from dad, Steve Radway of 9224 Belton Ave., in preparing for the half-mile run in Sunday's Great Race. Local Runners' Efforts Aid Heart Association

Runners decked out in brightly colored warm-up clothes forgot drab skies and their nerves and pain once they took to the track during Sunday's Great Race.

Although the sun shone only briefly, contestants ranging in age from 3 to 63 enthusiastically cheered each other on during the half-mile, mile and two-and four-mile distances.

Some had been in practice a few weeks, others a few days in preparation for the events, but all the entrants ran their lungs out to help benefit the American Heart Association.

About 650 runners joined by about 1,000 spectators were at the event. The runners paid fees totaling about $1,800 to enter the races. The money will be given to the American Heart Association.

First up on the Municipal Coliseum parking lot track were the age 9-and-under entrants. Impatient children wearing T-shirts hanging down to their knees jostled and joked with each other before the starting gun blasted them on their way around what one young runner called "two parking lots."

Daniel Grusing finished first with a time of 3:02, while Robbie Sepeda came in second.

Young Grusing, a soccer player, had never run a similar race and, although very tired from the exercise, said it was fun and something he would like to do again.

Trailing behind the 9-and-under group were a half dozen 3-year-old toddlers, some of whom were led by encouraging fathers. Several decided to cry instead of run, but three-year-old Tye King stole the show when he announced he was going to "finish like the big guys," — and proceeded to do so.

With his entire family urging him on, Tye, wearing a knit cap and an "I Feel Better" T-shirt, went the whole way in his race, finishing with a big smile.

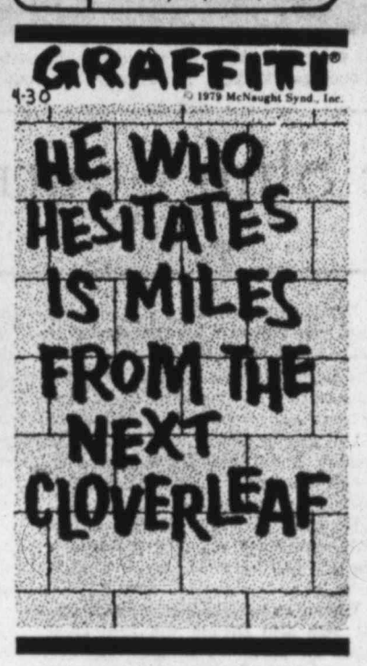

"He wouldn't let anyone hold his hand," his mother, Julie King of Wolfforth, said. "He never did stop."

Also competing in races were Tye's father, Jerry King in the open mile, his sister Kippi, 9, who ran in Tye's race, and big brother Jay, 14.

The 15-and-under runners got off to a bumbling start, with a couple of entrants being knocked out of the path.

Winners in the race were Craig Jackson, who finished first with 5:13, followed half a second behind by a very tired

Accident May Have Triggered Sniping

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — No one knows why Ira Attebury directed a lethal volley of sniper fire at an unsuspecting crowd of 5,000 parade watchers here. But relatives say the action may have been triggered by the haunting memory of a fatal accident eight years ago.

Two women were shot to death Friday and 55 others wounded or trampled in the panic that ensued after Attebury unleased a withering fusillade on the crowd gathered for the Battle of the Flowers parade.

Attebury, who would have been 65 on Sunday, battled police for 90 minutes before he took his own life.

Family members recalled a sullen man, disabled and emotionally twisted by an accident that killed two women in a small Ohio town. Attebury was pinned in the wreckage after his truck rammed a car that had run a red light, killing both occupants.

"Things have been different since that wreck," said his brother Howard, 66, of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

"I think his injuries caused him to be that way. He thought the police were after him all the time after that."

Police apparently were a primary target of Attebury's. Six officers were wounded when he opened fire from his camper Friday.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I think it's safe to say that I lusted after a food processor for two years.

I wanted it to give birth to my zucchini, respond to my push-button control and flash those whirling blades just for me.

Being practical, however, I had to justify it. I told my husband the children would make better grades in school if their carrots were sliced uniformly. I told him no one would need glasses if we got the lumps out of the white sauce. And once I got the hang of how to use all the blades, I could take in potatoes to slice for profit.

He bought it. Literally.

The first week I dedicated my life to chopping, slicing and grating. I had bags of sliced tomatoes, bags of chopped onions, bags of diced peppers, bags of soups, bags of mushrooms, bags of ground meat, bags of bread dough and if they ever made a pizza the size of the Astrodome, I had the grated cheese for it.

My refrigerator looked like pillow city.

One morning, my husband opened the refrigerator door and shut it quickly. "What's that blob in there?"

"What blob?"

"The one that is restless."

"It's pureed lettuce."

It was clearly time to move on to the next plateau: sauces. I had bags of mayonnaise, bags of hollandaise sauce and bags of white sauce. Maybe it was a coincidence, but in moving a bag of lemon sauce one day I was struck with the similarity to the pouch I was carrying on my hips.

By the time I got to the chapter on breads, cakes, and cookies, I began getting complaints from the family. My husband said to me one afternoon, "I don't know how to tell you this, but I have never trusted anything ground up. Somehow I always feel they are hiding something by giving it another form."

"What are you trying to say?"

"I am sick of sipping salads through a straw. I cannot eat another thing that is chopped, sliced, diced, liquefied, mashed or grated."

"Maybe we could have another baby?" I asked brightly.

"Well, maybe just a little more pureed lettuce," he said, extending his plate.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

For a spirited approach to diet-wise dining, try cooking with wine. Wine heightens flavor, accents herbs and spices, promotes tenderness and adds a touch of natural sweetness without sugar. In short, wine adds just about everything you would want a cooking ingredient to add, except excess calories. In fact, cooking with wine reduces the calories ... of the wine! When wine is cooked, the alcohol calories evaporate, leaving only the flavor and a few calories' worth of natural fruit sugar. The drier the wine, the less natural fruit sugar (and the fewer calories) remain.

Three ounces of a dry chablis have only four or five calories after cooking. The same amount of wine would contain 60 or 70 calories if you were to drink it.

Here are some tips for calorie-wise cooking with wine:

There are no hard-and-fast rules about what goes with what, but you're safest using hearty red wines with red meats, red sauces, and spicy combinations, while white wines go better with delicate dishes, seafood, poultry, egg and cheese dishes. You can't go wrong pairing meat, fish and poultry with the same type of wine you'd choose to drink with them.

For a delicate touch, don't add more than a tablespoon of wine per serving. In other words, if a dish serves four, don't add more than a quarter-cupful (4 tablespoons) of wine. You want the wine to accent the flavor rather than dominate it.

Use wine as a baste for roast meat or poultry. It will flavor the meat, and the fat-skimmed pan juices can be used to make a wine-spiked sauce or gravy.

Baste steaks, chops, chicken or fish with wine when you broil or barbecue them to add flavor and preserve moistness.

Wine is an ideal tenderizing marinade. Its high acid content will help break down the fibers of less-than-tender cuts of lean beef. Combine the wine with minced garlic, onion or dried herbs. Reserve the wine marinade and use it as a baste while the meat cooks. Use dry sherry wine seasoned with garlic and soy sauce as a marinade or baste for Oriental-style barbecued chicken, fish or lean beef flank steak.

Save leftover flat champagne to add to the cooking liquid for carrots.

Combine a tablespoon of dry white wine and a tablespoon of butter in a skillet and use it to saute a half-pound of fresh mushrooms.

But DON'T add wine to the cooking liquid for green vegetables. The acid content will turn the bright green color to olive drab.

Add white wine to homemade chicken-and-vegetable soup combinations. Spike hearty beef or tomato soups with red wine.

It's not necessary to use an expensive wine in cooking. There are many inexpensive well-flavored "jug" wines to choose from. On the other hand, a wine that's not drinkable doesn't improve with cooking.

Add a splash of red wine to homemade vinegar and oil salad dressings, replacing part of the oil. Because the wine isn't cooked, the alcohol calories remain, but wine is a lot less fattening than oil! The wine dilutes the sharpness of the vinegar.

You can cook with wine even if you have smallfry at your dining table — the alcohol evaporates; only the flavor seems intoxicating.

Spike slow-simmered stews and ragouts with wine; use it in place of part of the water or stock you would normally use. The flavor and fragrance will be spirited.

Add chianti, or any hearty red wine to spaghetti sauce, or any Italian-seasoned tomato sauce.

Turn hamburger into "hambourguignonne" by mixing in a few tablespoons of red burgundy and dried herbs before broiling.

For a sophisticated dessert, poach peaches or pears in any favorite wine. Or use sherry as a baste for baked apples. Soak raisins in white wine before adding them to fruit salad.

Cooking with wine adds few calories but lots of dash to diet dinners! For Beef Burgundy, Chicken in Wine, Veal Marsala and more, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET RECIPES WITH SPIRIT, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Walking Beats Running For Physical Ease

CHICAGO (AP) — The next big trend in physical fitness is already here. In 1979, Americans who haven't caught jogging fever are exercising and slimming down by walking.

That's the word from fitness expert Maurita Robarge, professor of physical education and kinesiology at the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse.

"Many Americans are rediscovering the pleasure of walking, and they're finding that walking is still one of the most natural, healthy forms of exercise," she says.

A brisk walk burns about 300 calories per hour. While you can jog off twice that amount, an hour spent driving a car burns only about 120 calories, she points out.

Walking helps the body's cardiovascular system transport blood and air more efficiently, which in turn increases the body's capacity for work and reduces blood pressure, she adds. Walking also tones muscles and promotes better posture, in much the same way jogging does.

But, walking is less stressful than jogging. "A big plus for walking as an exercise is the reduced pressure on feet and legs.

"Many times, the punishment a jogger's feet have to bear causes him to quit," Miss Robarge notes.

With each jogging step, she explains, the foot absorbs up to five times the body's weight — 650 pounds of gravity-induced pressure for a 125-pound woman — because the body is suspended in air between steps.

"In a walk, the body is never suspended, so it doesn't produce as much stress on feet when they hit the ground," she says.

To help exercise-minded Americans reap the benefits of walking, Miss Robarge, who is fitness consultant for Scholl, has developed a flexible, fitness-oriented walking program.

"A walking exercise program must include at least three days a week of 30-to 60-minute walks," she says, "plus 15 to 30 minutes a day of short, brisk steps while working or doing daily chores, for a total of about 15 miles per week."

Weight-conscious walkers, she says, can lose pounds without decreasing food intake: four hour-long walks per week, plus 15 minutes of daily short walks burn 3,500 calories, or one pound in two weeks.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK2 ♡AK743 ◇AK ♣532
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Admittedly, you have a very fine hand—and that's what you told partner with your jump shift. By bidding three no trump, partner has said that his spade suit is not rebiddable and that some of his values are in clubs. He also has denied three-card heart support. This hand is going nowhere, so pass before you get out of your depth.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ ♡A5 ◇10762 ♣QJ73
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♡	Dble.	2 ♡
2 ♠	3 ◇	?

What action do you take?

A.—You have only 14 points—not much more than you promised with your original takeout double. However, you do have a ruffing value, excellent trumps and from the auction we think you can expect to find partner with something in clubs. We would compete by bidding three spades, knowing it is a slight stretch.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J10 ♡A9843 ◇Q9765 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	5 ♠	Dble.	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—First ask yourself if partner's double could possibly be for takeout. What sort of hand could he have with spades good enough to jump to the four-level and yet have adequate support for the red suits to stand a possible four-card suit being bid at the five-level? Such a hand doesn't exist, so partner must have defensive values, perhaps tricks in clubs. Since your hand will contribute a trick or two, you can anticipate a useful penalty. Pass.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠85 ♡A84 ◇AKJ84 ♣J63
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—This is so easy it must have slipped in here by error. You have a balanced hand worth a full opening bid and partner has shown a balanced minimum opening bid. Slam is not possible, so bid what you expect to make—three no trump.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQJ96 ♡A5 ◇AKQ2 ♣10
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You can't expect much from partner—after first making a negative response, he could do no more than take a simple preference. Still, your hand is so strong that you must make at least one more move toward slam. Cue-bid four hearts.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K2 ♡KQ965 ◇64 ♣K763
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Your king of spades is a very important card, and it improves the value of your hand considerably. Certainly some sort of slam try is warranted. The general bid of five hearts might get partner to accept, but he could bid slam holding three aces, and if one of them isn't the ace of diamonds, you could be in trouble. We prefer a bid of four spades, to show your holding there, so that partner can judge what to do.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K2 ♡QJ5 ◇A1093 ♣AJ74
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—It's a close decision between a raise to three clubs and a bid of two no trump. We prefer the latter, not only because nine tricks at no trump should be easier to collect than eleven in clubs, but because your king of spades would be protected from the opening lead if you become declarer.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ97643 ♡Q107 ◇K2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	5 ♠	?

What action do you take?

A.—You have already described your hand with your jump to four spades. Now you owe partner the right of way. Pass. The enemy might have stepped out of bounds and partner could be in position to deliver a crushing penalty double. There is no way for you to judge what action is best.

Add Flair To Hamburger

NEW YORK (Special) — We once read of an Armenian cook who boasted that he knew 10,000 ways of preparing lamb. It seems as though Americans have found even more ideas for ground beef. There are, of course, unlimited ingredients that can be added to this versatile meat — stuffings, sauces, seasonings, crusty coatings and garnishes.

Here are two variations which feature flavor tricks from other lands: The oriental burgers, for which the recipe appears below, included chopped water chestnuts and a generous mixture of sliced scallions. The German-style burgers call for shredded raw potato and an equal amount of minced onion. Both burgers gain an appetizing aroma from a measure or two of the Worchestershire sauce which is an aged blend of a dozen or more flavoring ingredients itself — anchovies, tamarinds, red onions, wine vinegar, molasses and others, some of which remain the manufacturer's cherished secret.

Worchestershire sauce adds some moisture to chopped meat, but additional juices may be supplied by broth, wine, cream, tomato or mixed vegetable juices. Stir in chopped peanuts or soy bits, chopped olives or other vegetables such as shredded carrots or zucchini. Or, you can shape two very thin patties and spoon some of these extras in between the two layers.

For crustiness, turn the raw burgers in bread crumbs, crunchy cereal, chopped nuts, corn or potato chips. All of these add goodness to one of America's favorite foods — the really flavorful hamburger.

ORIENTAL BURGERS
1 lb. ground beef
¼ cup chopped water chestnuts
2 tbsps. thinly sliced scallions or green onion
1 tbsp. Worchestershire sauce
¼ tsp. salt

In a medium-sized bowl combine all ingredients. Mix gently but thoroughly. Shape meat mixture into 4 burgers. Arrange on a rack in a broiler pan. Place under a preheated hot broiler, 3 to 4-inches from heat source, until done as desired, 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Or, place burgers in a hot skillet with a small amount of oil. Cook over high heat until done as desired, 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Serve on toasted buns garnished with sliced scallions, if desired. Makes 4 portions. Approximate preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes

GERMAN-STYLE BURGERS
1 lb. ground beef
½ cup finely shredded raw potato
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. oil

In a medium-sized bowl combine all ingredients except oil. Shape meat mixture into 4 burgers, about 1-inch thick. In a large skillet heat oil. Cook burgers over low heat until done as desired, 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Or, arrange burgers on a rack in a broiler pan. Place under a preheated hot broiler, 3 to 4-inches from heat source, until done as desired, 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Yield: 4 portions. Approximate preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: What's my problem? My husband doesn't want me to talk to him. Gerhard asks me not to talk to him during mealtime because he's "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid I should try to talk to him while he's reading or watching TV!

Abby, this is very hard on me because I come from a large, talkative Jewish family and I love to talk. Gerhard is half Norwegian and half German. (Cold and bossy.)

He calls me from work every day to find out what was in the mail. Then I get to talk.

Please put this in your column. Gerhard never misses "Dear Abby," and it's the only way to tell him what I think.

Esther In Flatbush

Dear Esther: If this is the only way of telling Gerhard what you think, face it, Esther, your marriage is finished in English, "kaput" in German, "ferdig" in Norwegian and "in drerd" in Yiddish.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: What does a person do when a friend has lost a member of his family by suicide? It doesn't seem right to ignore the tragedy. Yet you can't write a note saying, "I was sorry to hear that your father shot himself." If I said, "shot himself accidentally," would that be better?

R.R. In S.F.

Dear R.R.: No. Just offer your condolences and don't mention the circumstances.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a first-class high-rise and pay high rent. We walk as lightly as possible so we don't disturb the tenants below us. We keep the volume on our TV low after 10 p.m., and ask our guests to keep the noise down out of consideration for our neighbors.

Last month a young couple moved in above us, and I've never heard such noisy people! And what sounds like stereo music goes continually — and very loud.

I complained to the manager, and she suggested I speak to them, so I went up and asked in a VERY nice way if they could be a little more quiet. They slammed the door in my face!

Since then, out of spite, they've been noisier than ever. I complained to the manager again. She said she was sorry but there was nothing she could do.

Our nerves are shot. We're not old grouches. We are reasonable people. What should we do? We have another two years to go on our lease.

Nowhere To Turn

Dear Nowhere: Assuming the apartment manager is not the owner, appeal to the owner of the building. If that doesn't bring results, hunt up another apartment. And about that lease — hunt up a lawyer.

First Lady Aware Of Influence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rosalynn Carter speaks softly but carries a big political wallop. "I have influence and I'm aware of it," she says.

She speaks forcefully for her husband's accomplishments as president in recognition of women — "Jimmy has quietly, methodically done more to elevate women to their rightful place in policy positions in this government than any other president in the history of our country."

She renews her support of the Equal Rights Amendment — it "must be ratified, and right now women at the state level are in the center of the action," a reference to pushing for state legislative action necessary for the passage.

"Right now, millions of Americans still need to be educated about the positive benefits of ERA — not only the men who feel threatened, but the women who insist that they are for women's rights and against ERA. We must inform them that ERA will ensure that both women and men are guaranteed choice in all areas of their lives. And that ERA will not require changes for those who do not want changes."

"I feel it is especially important to explain that women like me support the ERA. I am a relatively traditional person. I enjoy my roles as wife, mother, partner and businesswoman. ... I am not threatenend by ERA. I feel freed by it."

The first Lady expressed her strong views as keynote speaker Thursday at the annual Matrix awards luncheon of the New York Women in Communications, Inc. Six women in various fields of communication won the awards.

The awards went to Joan Lipton in advertising; Barbara Tuchman, author; Betty Furness, broadcasting; Marcia Ann Gillespie, magazines; Barbara Yuncker, newspapers; and Elaine R. Pitts, public relations.

An honorary award for work in discrimination law went to Harriet Rabb, professor of law at Columbia University.

Mrs. Carter had the audience — both men and women — applauding repeatedly. It was a packed house at the Imperial ballroom of the Sheraton Center, where fire regulations said occupancy by more than 1,300 was forbidden.

She drew laughs with her comment, "This is my second trip to New York City in a month ... I love New York. Jimmy was here yesterday (for the American Newspaper Publishers Association). Fritz (Vice-President Walter Mondale) is here today. And it's not even a campaign year."

Mrs. Carter cited many of the president's appointments of women to cabinet posts, assistant secretaries, and women ambassadors. A woman, she said, will be named to the National Institute of Building Sciences Commission and "soon we'll appoint a black male and an Hispanic woman" to the federal prison industries board of directors.

The First Lady bemoaned the dearth of women in the Congress and of women as federal judges. "But you should know that the Carter Administration expects to name a woman to at least eight of the federal judicial circles and to double the number of women on the federal district bench."

Mrs. Carter knows the wallop she has. "Consider my opportunities as first lady," she said.

"I can and do consult the finest minds in our country. I seek advice and I get it. I am never turned down.

"I can listen to and learn from world leaders. I can assist the needy who turn to me for support. I can contribute in national and international affairs, in my own way, in my own style.

"The president of the United States cares what I think.

"I find myself in the eye of history.

"I have influence and I'm aware of it.

"I want to assure you that I use my influence at home on behalf of women whenever I can. Now Jimmy and I try not to talk business after hours ... it's not any fun at night to sit down and talk problems ... but I have been known to, well, mention that he needs more women on the White House Staff, more women in department jobs, and a list of distinguished women just in case he finds himself looking for a woman Supreme Court Justice!"

"Spoon River Anthology," a musical, first appeared in New York in 1963. It was based on Edgar Lee Master's 1915 book.

Universe's Expansion Continuing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New evidence supports the idea that the universe will continue to expand forever and escape contraction to a "big crunch" billions of years from now.

Scientists analyzing X-ray images from the space agency's new orbiting X-ray observatory "Einstein" found no sign of the missing mass needed to provide a gravitational force to slow the universe's expansion and ultimately cause everything to fall back in on itself.

Astronomers generally believe galaxies are rushing apart as though they had been shot out of a "big bang" explosion 18 or 20 billion years ago. But whether the universe will continue to fly apart forever is an unanswered question.

Earlier satellite observations suggested the presence between the galaxies of hot, X-ray emitting gases which might provide the mass required to "close" the universe.

The National Aeronautical and Space Agency's High Energy Astronomical Observatory 2 launched last November gave astronomers their first opportunity to see if the background X-rays coming from deep in the universe were produced by such diffuse intergalactic gas.

Dr. Riccardo Giacconi of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., the scientist in charge of the X-ray telescope, pointed the instrument toward regions of the sky where no specific X-ray sources had been detected.

Instead of finding a blank X-ray glow, Giacconi told the spring meeting of the American Physical Society Thursday that the satellite found distinct X-ray sources, fainter and fainter to its limits of observation.

In one region, for example, where no X-ray source had been known to exist, he said the satellite's powerful X-ray telescope detected at least 10 sources of intensity 50 to 500 times fainter than previously known.

"We know that a lot of the background must be made up of discreet sources because we see them," he said at a news conference.

Dr. Harvey Tananbaum, also of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, said the satellite has discovered that numerous quasars produce X-rays. These star-like objects are deep in the universe and previously only three were known to be sources of X-rays.

Tanabaum said the distant quasars probably are the biggest contributor to the X-ray background.

Although there are many quasars and X-ray producing galaxies in the universe, the scientists said the total mass they represent is small compared to the hypothetical hot gas.

"Thus, the missing mass is either present in a form as yet undetected, or, as suggested by other clues, it does not exist and the universe is open and will continue to expand indefinitely."

Christopher Columbus was awarded a contract by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain to seek a passage to the east by sailing westward in 1492.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Monday, April 30, the 120th day of 1979 with 245 days to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

Queen Juliana of the Netherlands was born April 30, 1909.

On this day in history:

In 1803, the United States more than doubled its land area with the Louisiana Purchase. It obtained all French territory west of the Mississippi River for $15 million.

In 1945, the body of German dictator Adolf Hitler was found in a bunker in the ruins of Berlin. Also that day, Russian soldiers captured the Reichstag in Berlin, and raised the Communist flag over the Nazi capital.

In 1963, New Hampshire became the first state to legalize a state-run lottery since 1894 when a similar one ended in Louisiana.

In 1975, South Vietnam unconditionally surrendered to North Vietnam, the communists occupied Saigon and the Vietnam War was officially at an end.

A thought for the day:

Charles Dudley Darner, American man of letters, said, "Politics makes strange bedfellows."

ALMA, Ga. (AP) — High beef prices don't bother Wayne Lewis, who operates a food store here. He simply began offering his customers dressed raccoon instead. "It's delicious," he says. He's selling as many as 50 raccoons a day at 79 cents a pound to customers who come from as far away as Florida.

Ex-Teacher To Appeal Decision

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Like his oppressed Cajun forebearers who were exiled from Nova Scotia by the British more than 200 years ago, retired school teacher James Faulk faces hopeless odds in a push to have his Cajun French language text placed alongside standard French grammar books in Louisiana schools.

The fight virtually was lost Thursday when the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education upheld an advisory board recommendation that his phonetic guide not be accepted for use in state high school classes.

Faulk arrived too late to defend his book before the board made its decision during a morning session. The board delayed more than an hour waiting to hear from Faulk who did not arrive until nearly 5 p.m.

But Faulk refuses to give up. He said he will appeal the board decision to its Due Process Committee, his last chance.

Acting board chairman Pat Hunter said the book still was eligible for purchase for state libraries, but that was not enough for Faulk.

"I didn't write this book for it to gather dust on a library shelf," said Faulk, nearly blind from cataracts. "I wrote it to preserve our heritage."

The book, "Cajun French I," is the focus of a feud between promoters of standard French in Louisiana and those who want to preserve the mostly 17th century French language of the Cajuns.

Faulk said he was not trying to replace French books with his Cajun text. But he said Cajun students with the choice to study standard French or the language handed down by their families would take Cajun.

James Domengeaux, director of the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana, has denounced Faulk's work as a valueless fraud that would perpetuate a language he compared to "redneck English."

Cajun French is an unwritten language handed down from generation to generation in a region isolated from the rest of the state by swamps, rivers and bayous. Over the years it was embellished with English, Spanish and Indian words.

Faulk, who taught standard French in high school for 20 years, used a phonetic system to record the Cajun pronunciations so the words in the book have no visual resemblance to standard French. He spent six years developing the text.

Domengeaux said the phonetic text was "a meaningless bunch of chicken scratchings" that would teach students sounds understood only "by a goose or a donkey."

When Domengeaux learned the text had been recommended by a preliminary committee for use in foreign language studies, he went before the Textbook and Media Advisory Council and argued against its acceptance.

The council rejected the committee recommendation.

New Nightspot Sports Circus Atmosphere

NEW YORK (AP) — It has three floors for dancing and entertainment, fun house mirrors and flashing lights, even a Carousel and a bright-red fire engine. Its circus-like atmosphere is electric.

It is New York City's newest discotheque, the Electric Circus. Owners are banking on its carnival atmosphere to provide competition for an uptown rival, Studio 54.

The new nightspot, at the corner of 15th Street and Fifth Avenue, opened to an invitation-only crowd last week despite the opposition of neighbors, two prior false openings and the absence of a liquor license.

Even though details — such as the liquor license and what night the disco will be closed — are undecided, maitre d' Patrick McGovern, is optimistic.

"The right people will come," he said as he stood sentinel at the disco's entrance. He turned away some would-be revelers and said goodbyes to opening night guests.

McGovern allowed that some screening at the front door will ensure admission of "the right people." Studio 54's custom of picking patrons from a waiting line of would-be discomanes has forced Electric Circus "to be selective," he said.

Who will he allow to pay the $12 tariff for dancing from 11 p.m. until "whenever," six nights a week?

"I look for the groovy types. People who look like disco people, who look like they're going to have a good time, who'll keep the party going," McGovern said.

So far, according to McGovern, some 400 patrons have been put on the membership list.

King John of England signed the Magna Carta in 1215. It was the first detailed statement of feudal law.

Tilapia May Replace Channel Catfish

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Scientists are looking toward the tilapia — a Middle Eastern and North African fish strongly resembling the American bream in appearance and the bass in size — as a future valuable crop for fish farmers in the United States.

The fish, which weigh about three pounds at maturity, are an excellent source of protein and are widely accepted as a food source in tropical and subtropical regions of the world because of their flavor.

Researchers at Texas A&M's Agricultural Experiment Station indicate they might just replace the channel catfish as the primary crop of Texas fish farmers, if given the opportunity.

The researchers report raising of tilapia has considerable advantages over the raising of catfish. For instance, the fish:

—Grow rapidly on a vegetarian diet of microscopic plants.

—Tolerate poor water quality and even thrive in sewage-laden waters.

—Are not as susceptible to diseases and parasites as catfish.

The researchers also are looking toward tilapia as the answer to the problem of what to do with ponds and livestock tanks polluted with livestock wastes.

"A part of (the research into tilapia) seeks to use livestock wastes as a source of nutrients for the microscopic plants upon which the tilapia feed," said Dr. Robert Stickney, one of the station scientists.

"Intensive, large-scale livestock operations produce mountainous quantities of animal wastes," he said. "Many of the fly and odor problems are eliminated when these wastes are flushed into holding ponds called sewage lagoons."

When fish are introduced into such systems, only tilapia survive, according to the AES scientists, and they grow to be perfectly healthful, nutritious human food.

"Or they can be ground into fish meal and used as a feed supplement, thus recycling the energy," said Stickney.

The tilapia also team well with freshwater shrimp — another food source — in ponds. Since tilapia are plant eaters, they normally do not prey on the shrimp and the larger shrimp don't find the tilapia appetizing.

One of the primary advantages of tilapia over channel catfish, Stickney said, is catfish require expensive high-quality, prepared feeds. He said they also must be reared in water of higher quality than that needed by tilapia.

"The major drawback of tilapia in the United States is their inability to withstand temperatures below about 50 degrees," he said. "In most of Texas it will be necessary during winter to maintain brood stock indoors or in a warm water spring."

However, Stickney said, fish hatched during the spring will reach market size by the time water temperatures become limiting in the fall, so there is no need to overwinter large numbers of fish.

According to the scientists, tilapia are being marketed in small numbers in many parts of the Southern United States and there is a good chance the average consumer will be seeing the fish in neighborhood groceries within the next few years.

Former City Official Completes Jail Term

LAREDO (AP) — A former mayor of Laredo is a free man again. His seven months of spending weekends in jail are over.

J.C. Martin Jr. was released Sunday morning from the Webb County Jail and told he won't have to be back next Saturday. Or any Saturday afterward.

Martin originally was sentenced to four years in jail after he was convicted of mail fraud, in connection to charges he misused public funds of the City of Laredo.

But he paid back $200,000 he was accused of bilking the city out of, through use of city employees on his private property, and a federal judge imposed the unusual sentence of 30 weekends — 1,170 hours — in the Webb County Jail.

Through the week, under the sentence of U.S. District Judge Reyenaldo Garza of Brownsville, he was free to go about whatever activities he desired.

Immediately after his release, Martin said he is calm about a special grand jury probe that has been opened into possible misuse of public funds in Laredo.

"I think it would be best if everything came out into the open. (But) there are some people who would like to see our troubles continue."

Martin declined at the end of 1977 to seek re-election.

Last week, Attorney General Mark White announced he had assigned a special assistant attorney general to aid a Webb County grand jury investigation into possible misuse of funds.

White said Robert O. Smith was appointed at the request of the Webb County district attorney and grand jury.

Gov. Bill Clements — saying he understands the funds misuse case was reopened at the request of the city attorney over opposition from the district attorney — promised "100 percent" support of the investigation.

Jury Acquits Box Companies Of Price-Fixing Conspiracy

HOUSTON (AP) — Six persons and two companies charged with conspiring to fix prices throughout most of the nation's corrugated cardboard box industry have been acquitted by a federal jury.

Government attorneys labeled the three-month trial before U.S. District Judge John Singleton the largest criminal antitrust action ever prosecuted by the Justice Department in terms of business volume of the defendants.

The trial resulted from an 18-month investigation that culminated in two indictments last year of 14 box manufactuers and 26 present and former company executives.

Twelve companies and 18 individuals already had pleaded no contest in the case. Fines as high as $632,000 were assessed against the manufacturers by Singleton, and the officials also were fined and put on probation.

At the close of testimony in the most recent trial, charges against Lee F. Michael, general manager of Olinkraft Inc.'s plant in Owosso, Miss., were dismissed on the government's motion. Another person was granted a severance due to ill health before the start of the trial Jan. 24.

Acquitted last Friday were Continental Group Inc. of New York; The Mead Corp of Cincinnati; Mark Cassidy, general manager of the Weyerhauser Co. plant in Closter, N.J.; Peter J. Fluge, vice president and general manager of the forest products division of Owens-Illinois Inc. of Toledo; Frederick E. Huff, general manager of Weyerhauser's Baltimore plant.

Also acquitted were James K. Peterson, vice president and division general manager of Continental; William R. Winters, Owens-Illinois' northern division regional manager; and Numan H. Garrison, Weyerhauser's midwest regional manager in Dundee, Ill.

The felony charges against all but Garrison could have meant fines of $1 million against the companies and $100,000 against the individuals upon conviction. The individuals also could have been sentenced to three years in prison.

A conviction of Garrison on his misdemeanor charge could have brought a one-year prison term and a $50,000 fine.

Continental's attorney, W. Donald McSweeney of Chicago, said the government "really had no chance of proving a nationwide conspiracy as alleged" because of the local nature of the industry and the great diversification of products.

Fletcher Etheridge, representing Mead, said the government also failed to prove "any definite agreement on a particular transaction. There was no evidence of criminal intent."

Chief prosecutor Jack Williamson, a member of the Justice Department's antitrust division in Dallas, refused to comment because of what he called "fairly stringent" department policies against interviews.

The indictments alleged that a conspiracy to fix prices of corrugated containers and sheets sold east of the Rocky Mountains existed from 1960 to last year.

According to the indictments, the companies charged with felonies had total sales in 1974 of about $1.4 billion, while those charged with misdemeanors sold a total of about $800 million in goods.

Great Race Participants Raise Money For Heart Association

Lance Horton.

Jackson said he was ready for the race because he averages "probably about seven miles a day" running in school practices.

Assistant District Attorney Everett Seymour, running in the celebrity cup half-mile race by order of his boss, John T. Montford, finished first with a time of 2:27.

Seymour, who said he doesn't run regularly but is a tennis and handball player, credited his win to Montford who, he said, "came into the office Friday and said 'You are going to run Sunday at 3 p.m.'

"All I asked was how much," Seymour said. "He said, 'Oh, I think you can do a half mile.

Two women and two men placed in the open half-mile race, including Lance Tidwal in first with a time of 2:12.3 and Vann Tzenbach in second with a time of 2:13.0.

Sherry Peel ran the half mile in 3:41.8 "just for the enjoyment" to capture first, followed by Maylene West in 3:56:5.

Gary Schovajsa ran the open one mile in his blue co-op cap, capturing first place with a time of 4:53.8. Vic Reed took second place.

Schovajsa said the race was "a little painful," but he was happy with the win.

Patricia Gaston, 16, ran the mile in 7:30 to take the first place honor, followed by Chris Cantrell, who ran it in 7:30.2.

Miss Gaston said it was her first such race, but she plans to enter more, especially because she runs for her school track team.

What many considered the main event, the combined two-and four-mile race through the Texas Tech campus began under bleak, very cloudy skies.

The entrants visibly were nervous before the starting gun was sounded. They repeatedly shouted at officials to let them begin.

Gary Moss crossed the finish line first to take top honors in the two-mile race, with a time of 10:46. Second place went to Ron Shoe with a time of 11:00.

A surprised Cindy Beck was the first woman to make two miles in 12:56.5. Tracy Dockray was second, despite a bandaged arm sprained in a soccer game, with a 14:28.0 time.

In the four-mile competition, Cliff McCurdy was the first to clear the finish line in 20:8.3. Bill Brash was second with a time of 20:37.

The top women winners in the four-mile event were Alice Johnston, who placed first in 26:07, and Brenda Blackwell, who took second place honors with a time of 26:13.5.

Miss Johnston was "very happy with her win" and said she had "never really run this distance before."

"This was kind of a trial and error type thing for me," she said, adding that her friend signed her up Friday.

"I didn't really prepare for this at all," she said.

Crowd comments about the event were highly favorable, and many runners and spectators said they hoped a similar contest would be staged next year.

All first-and second-place winners were given trophies, while all who registered for an event took home a T-shirt.

The event was sponsored by The Avalanche-Journal, Oshman's Sporting Goods and Nike.

Woods Wins Runoff In Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — Woodie Woods, who unseated incumbent Mayor Hugh Parmer in a bitter mayoral runoff, has urged Fort Worth residents to put the conroversial campaign rhetoric behind them and work to make the city the "envy of the nation."

The challenger, who will take the reins of city government Tuesday, won a landside victory Saturday, garnering 59.89 percent of the vote.

Woods led Parmer by a scant 23 votes after the April 7 ballots were counted. However, the City Council decided in its canvass — with Parmer casting the deciding vote — that 30 legal write-in votes had been cast, denying Woods a clear majority and forcing a runoff.

Fort Worth voters turned out in record numbers Saturday to give Woods a victory margin of more than 10,000 votes. Woods had 32,525 votes to 21,825 for Parmer.

Whalers Rescued By Coast Guard

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — About 20 members of a blizzard-bound whaling party on the Bering Strait were rescued Sunday by the Coast Guard icebreaker Polar Sea, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The party's small aluminum boats had drifted as much as 15 miles apart in winds up to 49 knots, said spokesman Dave Cipra.

The whalers were from the village of Savoonga on St. Lawrence Island in the Bering Strait. The hunters radioed the village that they were stranded in the blizzard-tossed sea without food and warm clothing.

The Polar Sea responded to their call with two helicopters, which picked up the whalers and dropped emergency locators so the boats could be rounded up by the ship, Cipra said.

The Seattle-based cutter was in the area on an oceanographic mission, studying whales, Cipra said.

DISSIDENT GOES TO CHURCH — President Carter walks into Washington's First Baptist Church Sunday with Georgi P. Vins, one of five political prisoners released Friday from the Soviet Union. Vins Attend Services With Carter

By GERALD NADLER
United Press International

Five Soviet dissidents heaped with praise since they were exchanged for two Russian spies have gone their separate ways — one to Vermont to visit Alexander Solzhenitzyn and another to go to church with President Carter.

Carter, attending Baptist church services Sunday with Ukranian Baptist leader Georgi Vins and later teaching a Bible class, equated the dissidents' criticism of Russia with Americans' opposition to the Vietnam war.

Alexander Ginzburg, 42, best known of the five dissidents released Friday in exchange for two Soviet U.N. employees convicted of spying, spent Sunday night in the Tarrytown, N.Y., home of former dissident Pavel Litvinov.

"Solzhenitsyn and his wife have invited me and my family to come and stay with them and they said I should feel as if it were my own home," Ginzburg said before leaving New York. "And I have accepted their invitation.

Ginzburg spoke to reporters in a room filled with flowers sent by supporters. Pointing to two bouquets, he said, "One is from my Ukrainian friends, one from my Lithuanian friends, but none from my Russian friends."

Ukranian nationalist Valentin Moroz celebrated his 43rd birthday at an emotional rally in Philadelphia originally called to protest his imprisonment in Russia since 1970 for espousing separatist ideals.

"Glory to the Ukraine! Glory to Moroz," the hundreds of people at the rally shouted. Many wept, sang the national anthem and thrust bouquets at the Ukranian historian.

Only hours before, outside the U.N. Plaza Hotel in New York, Ukranian girls wearing national red-and-white costumes, thrist bouquets of red and pink roses at Moroz and carried banners, saying "We love you, Moroz."

Moroz planned to stay in New York until his family arrives from the Soviet Union. The Boston Globe said he was considering taking a teaching job at Harvard University.

Eduard Kuznetsov, 40, and Mark Dymshyts, 52, both Jewish activists, flew to Israel Sunday at 5 p.m. CDT after a busy day of emotional family reunions and an anti-Soviet rally at New York's U.N. Dag Hammarskjold Plaza.

Kuznetsov was reunited with his wife Sylva Zalmanson, who last saw her husband four years ago after she was released from a Soviet labor camp. Asked how she felt, she said: "It's as if those years never existed."

The Kuznetsovs and Dymshyts, who were convicted of an alleged plot to hijack a plane to Israel in 1970, later joined the New York rally by some 100,000 people demanding that Moscow allow Jews to emigrate and free Jewish prisoners.

"How many years I said to myself next year, 'Next year to Jerusalem. It's not next year. Today I'm flying there. Tomorrow I'll be there," Kuznetsov said.

In Washington, Carter told the First Baptist Church of Washington Sunday school class that Vin's outspoken criticism of the Soviet was "not treason" because "it is sinful to be silent in the face of injustice."

Carter, noting the U.S. public's criticism of the Vietnam war, said some people equate the words "My country, right or wrong" with patriotism.

"I doubt that God would approve of that statement," he said.

Presence Of Soviet Dissidents Makes Solidarity Day Special

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a rally 100,000 strong to express solidarity with Jews trapped in the Soviet Union, but the usually somber event was made different this year by the presence of two men.

The eighth annual "Solidarity Sunday" could have been renamed "Sunday of Joy" because on hand were Mark Dymshyts and Eduard S. Kuznetsov, two Soviet Jews who were part of the Friday's exchange of five Jewish dissidents for two Soviets convicted of spying on the United States.

Chanting and carrying stark black-and-white photographs of imprisoned Soviet dissidents, 100,000 people marched across Manhattan Sunday to Dag Hammarskjold Plaza near the United Nations to cheer the release of the five dissidents.

The largely Jewish crowd broke into song when Dymshyts and Kuznetsov stepped to the podium in the plaza near the United Nations.

"Your efforts have turned the trial against us to the trial against the Soviet Union," said Kuznetsov, who was joined at the podium by his wife, Silva Zalmanson, who has been living in Israel for four years.

"How many years I said to myself next year, next year to Jerusalem. It's not next year — today I'm flying there. Tomorrow I'll be there," he said.

"I'm struck as if by lightning," said Dymshyts of the immensity of the cheering crowd.

The demonstrators applauded wildly when Sen. Henry Jackson, co-author of the Jackson-Vanik Amendment to the Trade Act of 1972, stepped to the microphone.

"The law is clear — no credits and no most-favored nation status treatment to countries that deny their citizens the right and the opportunity to emigrate," said Jackson, D-Wash.

A number carried placards bearing the photos of other imprisoned Soviet dissidents such as Ida Nudel, Amner Avurov, Arkady Mai and Anatoly Scharansky.

Food Programs Serve Purpose According To Researchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research team that found Americans starving in rural backwaters and urban slums in the 1960s testified today that federal food programs have ended that "national shame."

Food stamps, school lunches and other measures "have with unusual precision demonstrably served the purposes for which they were designed, and that is a rare thing to be able to say about any governmental program," said Leslie Dunbar, director of the Field Foundation.

Dunbar and several foundation researchers delivered a new report on "Hunger in America" today to the Senate Agriculture nutrition subcommittee, headed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Much of the impetus for current federal food programs came from the foundation's original report in 1967.

The new report says hunger has not been erased and suggests that in terms of jobs, housing and medical attention, "the facts of life for Americans living in poverty remain as dark or darker than they were 10 years ago.

"But, in the area of food, there is a difference," it said.

Dunbar told the panel that federal efforts "have served the national interest by strenthening and making more healthy our people, perhaps averting brain damage among our children and most certainly making them more alert in their classrooms.

"They have ended the national shame of poverty conditions so gross that they horrified the public who saw them depicted over television and in news print" a decade ago, he said. "They have affirmed the human rights to life, health and freedom from hunger."

McGovern agreed that "of all the Great Society programs, the nation's feeding programs have been the most successful."

But he said that progress could be reversed by pressures within the Congress to cut back on food stamps, perhaps as much as 30 percent. The program now pays about 33 cents per meal to those who qualify.

"It is my hope that by highlighting the effectiveness and importance of the food stamp program, we will renew our commitment," McGovern said.

The report released today was based on surveys taken in 1977 by some of the same doctors — joined by new researchers — who compiled the material used in the 1967 study, which concluded that "hunger is a daily fact of life" for thousands of children.

The follow-up study found a markedly different situation.

"Our first and overwhelming impression is that there are far fewer grossly malnourished people in this country today than there were 10 years ago," the doctors wrote.

They said hungry children like those found in 1967 "are not to be seen in such numbers."

A summary accompanying the six teams' 1977 findings for the New York-based private research foundation, said, "The doctors' . .. findings suggest that food-aid programs may represent one of the unsung, yet most effective anti-poverty efforts of the last 15 years."

Hunger and infant death rates have declined, the doctors said, but no one yet knows whether anyone, poor or not, receives all the essential nutrients scientists recommend for healthy lives.

Activist Modifies Call For Boycott Of Meat

DETROIT (UPI) — Consumer activist Beverly Ribaudo, responding to pleas from cattlemen, has modified her earlier call for a nationwide meat boycott and now will aim for a partial cutback in consumption.

But Mrs. Ribaudo, the suburban St. Clair Shores housewife who organized nationwide boycotts against high-priced sugar and coffee, said Sunday consumers "reserve the right" to use the full-scale boycott weapon should the less stringent tactics prove unsuccessful in curbing soaring meat prices.

"I'm not backing down and stopping this. I'm still telling housewives to cut down on their meat purchases during the first two weeks of May," she said in an interview with UPI.

"The consumer is still going to be heard and the consumer is still going to rebel against high prices in the supermarket," she said.

Mrs. Ribaudo, who heads a consumer group called VIP, said she was deluged with telephone calls and visits from "petrified" representatives of cattle producers Friday after disclosing plans for a meat boycott May 1-15.

She said she was sympathetic to arguments that a complete sales cutoff could force many cattlemen out of business, possibly meaning much higher beef prices "a few years down the road."

Mrs. Ribaudo said flyers being sent to consumers in 25 states who took part in the earlier boycotts now would outline plans for a "meat price protest."

Trucks Expected To Arrive

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The first trucks carrying the bodies of Peoples Temple victims were to arrive here today after a five-day trip from Dover, Del., where the bodies had been taken after last fall's mass murder-suicides in Guyana.

No bodies were to be unloaded until Tuesday.

Eleven trucks are making the trip, with 503 bodies being brought to the Oakland Army Base mortuary here and 45 to Fort MacArthur near Los Angeles.

More than 230 bodes remain unidentified, more than five months after the Jonestown incident in which Peoples Temple founder Jim Jones persuaded or coerced his followers into killing themselves after Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four others were shot to death at the Port Kaituma airstrip

The unidentified bodies as well as any unclaimed ones will be buried at Evergreen Cemetery in east Oakland. They had been scheduled for burial at a cemetery in Marin County, north of San Francisco, but opposition from local residents forced the switch.

A San Francisco Superior Court in handling dissolution of Peoples Temple assests and Robert Fabian, the court-appointed receiver, is handling mass-burial plans.

Economist Sees More Inflation

Analysis

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Asked last year why he believed inflation would soar to the statistical mountaintops, an economist partcipating in a panel discussion answered, "Because it's here."

"Pardon me," asked a member of the audience. "Because it's here?"

"Yes,' he replied. "Because we have inflation, we'll have inflation. It discourages saving. It encourages spending. It entices people to borrow money for purchases that otherwise might be postponed."

"Explain" he was asked, and he replied:

"Why save at 5.25 percent when value declines at 9 percent?. Why not spend now and avoid higher prices later? Why not borrow to buy now when you're fairly certain of repaying in cheaper dollars?"

His explanation described the strategy aready employed by a good many Americans, and it continues to explain the dilemma involved in battling a monster that, for the moment, some people see as friendly.

DOES IT PAY TO SAVE? The explanation given — by the U.S. Savings Bond people, for example — is that of course it pays to save. They declare it in advertisements. They honor those who broadcast the message.

Annualized, the latest inflation rate is about 13 percent. Savings Bonds pay 6 percent. Arithmetic provides a negative answer. How can the Savings Bond people — or the savings bank people — say you are saving?

Asked this question, a Savings Bond spokesman replied: "But if you didn't save, you'd be that much farther behind." The spokesman conceded that a loss was involved, but insisted loss could be gain.

DOES IT PAY TO SPEND? It often does. It explains why people are "into" collectables. By exchanging paper or metal money for something more durable, they explain, they better retain their assets.

Prices of single-family houses, for example, have been rising at better than 10 percent for several years. That beats bank rates, and usually exceeds the rate of inflation too.

Those using the strategy must, however, be concerned with long range consequences too. Will those purchases continue to rise in value? Can they be reconverted to cash? Can the payments be maintained?

A big danger of collecting is to misunderstand the difference between wholesale and retail. When purchased, a retail price generally is paid. But when selling, the object generally changes hand at wholesale.

DOES IT PAY TO BORROW? Very often it does. The logic is clear when you consider that the domestic buying power of the dollar has been halved in just 11 years. The term is "paying back in cheaper dollars."

But there are other considerations. Did you really need the money? Was the purchase made from the borrowed money worthwhile? How high was the interest rate? Did the purchased object rise in value? Or did it fall?

Offsetting some of the negatives is an enormous positive: Interest paid is deductible on income taxes. Consider what this means to a person in a 50 percent tax bracket; his or her cost of borrowing is cut in half.

On the other hand, consider that the saver must pay income tax on the interest earned. Never mind that such earnings might be an illusion — that inflation might have wiped them out. You still pay.

The net consequence of these three strategies is to put even more inflationary pressure on the economic system. That people are playing such games is evident by the surprising strength of economic demand.

The economist had a point: Inflation, at least of the current type, breeds itself. Why does it persist? Because it's here.

Manager Plots Comeback Of Isaac Hayes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — His career marked by ups and downs, singer-composer Isaac Hayes is again headed for superstardom, says the man who is guiding the "Black Moses" of soul music back to the promised land.

"He's going to make a comeback. He'll be another superstar in less than two years," Wallace E. Johnson, Hayes' manager, said Thursday. "I think he could be the second Elvis Presley."

A co-founder of Holiday Inns Inc., Johnson, 77, is chairman of JM Management Co. Inc., with offices in Memphis, Dallas and California. The "M" in the company's name is Dr. Joe Mayes of Dallas.

Formed about six months ago, the company lists Hayes as its star client, although Johnson is reluctant to reveal the names of any other entertainers associated with his firm.

Since his agency took over Hayes' management, Johnson said, the singer has been booked in England, Switzerland and South Africa. Hayes currently is recording an album in Atlanta, he said.

Hayes, who began his professional recording career with the original Stax Records Inc. and was a disciple of the "Memphis Sound," gained international fame in 1971 for his soundtrack to the movie "Shaft." He won an Academy Award and a Grammy for his effort. Other music awards and several big-selling records followed.

Dubbed the "Black Moses" at the height of his career, Hayes in 1973 went into a self-imposed exile for 21 months. Financial difficulties, including an unsuccessful attempt at establishing his own record label, forced him and his wife to file for bankruptcy in 1976, listing debts of $6 million.

The couple's cars, clothes, furniture and an East Memphis home valued at $376,000 were sold to satisfy creditors, including the Internal Revenue Service.

"He was ripped off," Johnson said. "He has a heart as big as a mountain, but he was ripped off into bankruptcy."

Hayes moved to California after the bankruptcy and later to Atlanta, where he now lives.

"I have been trying to get him to come back to Memphis but he feels so humiliated and embarrassed that he doesn't feel comfortable," Johnson said.

reading or watching TV.

Since retiring from Holiday Inns four years ago, Johnson has led an international evangelistic effort, the Memphis-based "Here's Life" campaign.

He said he was asked to become Hayes' business manager when the entertainer went into bankruptcy but wasn't interested.

"Later, I met him in Atlanta and became convinced that he was the most talented songwriter and musician that the South has produced in a long time," Johnson said.

FUNDS FOR ALABAMA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama will receive $130,000 in federal funds to reclaim two abandoned strip mines and to stop the flow of sediment into Lake Lahusage in DeKalb County, the Interior Department has announced. Walter M. Heine, director of the department's Office of Surface Mining, said the problem poses "a threat to the public health, safety and welfare of some 150 residents near Mentone in the northeast part of the state.

Gannett Newspapers Win Public Service Award

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Gannett Rochester Newspapers have won the third Edward Willis Scripps Award for the most outstanding public service during 1978 in the cause of a free press.

The Scripps prize, a bronze plaque and $2,500, was one of five journalism awards presented by the Scripps-Howard Foundation at ceremonies today. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., who served as one of the judges of the Scripps' competition, presented the award and gave the keynote address on freedom of the press.

The Foundation received 799 entries in the various competitions, one of which included broadcasting, and $22,000 in prize money was distributed. Other awards presented were:

—Roy W. Howard Public Service Awards to The Philadelphia Inquirer for the second year in a row, and WBBM-TV, Chicago.

— Ernie Pyle Memorial Award for Human Interest Reporting to Frank Rossi, Columbia (Mo.) Daily Tribune.

—Walker Stone Award for Editorial Writing to John R. Alexander, Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News.

—Edward J. Meeman Conservation Award to John Hayes, The Oregon Statesman.

In the Scripps competition, the Gannett Rochester Newspapers were honored for their initiative in taking to court the issue of the exclusion of the press from a pretrial hearing; for reporting of that and subsequent events; and for analysis of the constitutional issues involving the First and Sixth amendments that the case presented.

"The steadiness and clarity of the papers' advocacy," said the judges, "give promise that the threat of pretrial restraint will be greatly reduced, and that the courts will come to see that the 'public' trial guaranteed by the Constitution is designed as much to safeguard the public as the defendant."

Scripps judges, besides Moynihan, were H.L. Stevenson, vice president and editor-in-chief, United Press International; Lou Boccardi, executive editor, The Associated Press; John Hughes, editor of the Christian Science Monitor and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; and Allen Neuharth, president and chief executive of Gannett, and president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Neuharth disqualified himself from voting for the final choice, which was unanimous in favor of the Gannett Rochester Newspapers.

The judges expressed admiration for The New York Times and Myron Farber in the case of Farber's refusal to reveal confidential sources to the court in a New Jersey murder trial, and also cited for special mention the entries of The Charleston (W.Va.) Gazette and the Middletown (N.Y.) Herald-Record.

The Scripps Award is named for the founder of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers and United Press, now United Press International.

The Philadephia Inquirer entry, which won the newspaper division of the Howard Public Service Awards and $2,500, was a series of articles by Jane Shoemaker, Thomas Ferrick Jr., and William Ecenbarger, exposing a variety of questionable practices by Pennsylvania legislators.

A second place award of $1,000 went to Cox Newspapers' Washington bureau for an "inventive investigation" of the safety of nuclear weapons sites, while special mention was given entries submitted by the Chicago Sun-Times; News-Press, Fort Myers, Fla., and The Sentinel Record, Hot Springs National Park, Ark.

The Howard Award for public service broadcasting, $2,500, was presented to WBBM-TV, Chicago, for "Agent Orange — Vietnam's Deadly Fog," a documentary about the thousands of veterans who may have been victims of the chemical known as Agent Orange that was sprayed to defoliate jungles and forests.

Runners-up awards of $1,000 went to WJLA-TV, Washington, D.C., for the documentary "A Race With Death," and WABE-FM, radio, Atlanta, for its documentary "The Eyewitness Who Wasn't."

The Pyle Award for human interest reporting, $1,000, won by Rossi, was for "compelling vignettes that turn common folks living ordinary existences into uncommon people living extra-ordinary lives."

A second prize of $500 went to Richard Ben Cramer, The Philadelphia Inquirer, for dispatches from the Mideast, which depicted the impact of the conflict on everyday human beings.

Alexander, who received the Stone Award and $1,000, was recognized for editorials which were of "consistently high quality in thought, argument, and expression ... and were calculated to persuade rather than to overpower."

George Neavoll, of The Wichita Eagle and Beacon, won second prize and $500 for editorials that were "distinguished by their forthright response to human rights issues."

In the Meeman competition for conservation reporting, Hayes won the grand prize, $2,500, for an extensively researched and highly readable series on radiation hazards, which not only focused on local issues, but provided the reader with a liberal education on the greater threats of hazardous materials confronting an industrial society.

Two first prizes of $1,000 went to Al McConagha, The Minneapolis Tribune (newspapers above 100,000 circulation) for skillful writing in a series on soil erosion, "The New Crisis on the Land," and to Elliot Jaspin and Gil Gaul, the Pottsville (Pa.) Republican (newspapers under 100,000 circulation) for their year-long investigation of mine owners who were alloled by incompetent public officials to liquidate a major mining company at great cost to the environment and the public.

Second prizes of $1,000 went to Steve Hannah and Carideo, The Milwaukee Journal, for their series on the health dangers to workers in pesticide storage facilities, and to Tom Alkire, Wilamette Week, Portland, Ore., for a series on the conflicting interests of opposing forces in the Oregon controversy over wilderness and logging management policies.

Special mentions were awarded Cornelia Carrier, New Orleans Times-Picayune; Sam C. Rawls, The Palm Beach Post; Edward Flattau, Artist and Writers Syndicate; and Florence P. Schaffhausen, The Daily Intelligencer, Doylestown, Pa.

The Howard Awards are named for Roy W. Howard, late editor of the New York World-Telegram & Sun and president of Scripps-Howard Newspapers and United Press. Ernie Pyle was the famous Scripps-Howard war correspondent and human interest columnist who was killed in World War II. Walker Stone was the late editor-in-chief of the Memphis Press-Scimitar and conservation editor of Scripps-Howard.

The journalism awards are part of the on-going programs of The Scripps-Howard Foundation which each year awards scholarships, fellowships and financial aid to college and university journalism programs and activities.

Matt Meyer and Jacques A. Caldwell, chairman of the board and president, respectively, of The Scripps-Howard Foundation, presided at the ceremonies, which took place at the Union League Club.

Card, Coin Trick Mystifies Friends

By SHARI LEWIS

The king has a hole cut in his stomach. (It's okay, 'cause this is just a king on a playing card.) You fold the card in half and try to push a half-dollar through the hole. The coin's obviously too big and won't go through. Now you try again. Slowly. Boldly. You slip the coin between the open flaps of the card, it appears at the hold and then your audience sees it go right through that little hole! Amazing? Yes, but only if you don't know how it's done.

What the audience can't see (even if they examine the card beforehand) is that you've made an almost invisable slit along the line at the top of the box surrounding the king. (Either end of that box can become the "top".)

Then, the second time you fold the card in half and slip the coin in between the flaps, you actually insert the card into that slit and let your fingers move it along under the card, until it appears in that hole. Slowly, pull the coin past the opening and it will look a though it is going right through that hole (even though the coin is really under the entire folded card).

Now show the second card to your audience, let them examine the coin, pocket the card and quickly change the subject!

Mushroom Hunters Find Possible Murder Victims

By United Press International

In a pair of coincidental but unrelated cases, mushroom hunters in Indiana and Illinois have found the skeletal remains of the bodies of possible murder victims.

Coroner Stanley Koscielski in South Bend, Ind., said the skeletal remains of Marie Shaw, 30, were found by a group of mushroom hunters near the South Bend Country Club three miles west of the city late Saturday. The body was identified Sunday.

A woman hunting mushrooms near Percy, Ill., Sunday found the scattered skeletal remains of what officials said probably was a young male. Foul play was suspected in the death.

Mushroom hunting is a widespread activity among many residents of the Upper Midwest this time of year.

Koscielski said tests would determine the cause of death of Mrs. Shaw, who was missing 19 months. He said identification of the decomposed body was made through dental records, clothing and jewelry found near the body.

Authorities said Mrs. Shaw was reported missing Sept. 11, 1977, by her husband, Willard Shaw. Shaw said there was evidence his wife had been abducted from their home.

Koscielski said he was not able to determine how Mrs. Shaw died, but he said the case was being treated as a homicide. He said other experts would examine the skeleton to determine if there was evidence of any puncture wound — a gunshot or stabbing.

A DAILY MESSAGE from

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 15:10B-21, The Living Bible

To further illustrate the point, He told them this story:

11 "A man had two sons.

12 When the younger told his father, 'I want my share of your estate now, instead of waiting until you die!' his father agreed to divide his wealth between his sons.

13 A few days later this younger son packed all his belongings and took a trip to a distant land, and there wasted all his money on parties and prostitutes.

14 About the time his money was gone, a great famine swept over the land, and he began to starve.

15 He persuaded a local farmer to hire him, and the farmer sent him out into the fields to feed pigs.

16 But even so, the boy became so hungry he gladly would have eaten the pods he was feeding the swine. And no one gave him anything.

17 When he finally came to his senses, he said to himself, 'At home even the hired men have food enough and to spare, and here I am, dying of hunger!

18 I will go home to my father and say, "Father, I have sinned against both heaven and you,

19 And am no longer worthy of being called your son. Please take me on as a hired man."'

20 So he returned home to his father. And while he was still a long distance away, his father saw him coming and was filled with loving pity and ran and embraced him and kissed him.

21 His son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and you, and am not worthy of being called your son. . .'

Washington Ignoring Mopeds

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Officials of nearly any industry in the United States will show off the scars of what they say is too much government interference. But leaders of the Moped Association of America contend that no matter how hard they try, they just can't seem to get Washington's attention.

That's too bad, the moped people say, because they have some meaningful contributions to make toward helping the nation conserve gasoline, and isn't that what President Carter is urging us all to do?

The association, which represents manufacturers and distributors of those two-wheel hybrids that are something between the bicycle and the motorcycle, has come up with statistics indicating that if every American who made a trip of less 10 miles alone in his or her car drove a moped instead, the country could save about 5 billion gallons of gas a year and give the President nearly a third of all the oil savings he envisioned for 1985.

Of course, that's not very likely, considering most Americans' love affair with the automobile — be it a gas-guzzler or a compact. But Serge Seguin, chairman of the association, says the least Washington could do is acknowledge the moped's potential contribution and include it high among the nation's fuel-saving possibilities.

To demonstrate its case, the association developed some figures out of government statistics showing that slightly more than half of all auto trips in the U.S. are made by a single motorist and nearly four out of five are less than 10 miles, well within a moped's range. Even eliminating trips during bad weather, Seguin says, the moped could replace more than 85 million miles of auto travel a year.

Since mopeds get an average of 130 miles to the gallon (compared to around 15 for the average auto), that could amount to a tremendous saving in gas, he points out. Mopeds, which travel at speeds of up to 30 miles an hour, cost from $300 to $700. Over the last 10 years, the number in use in the U.S. has increased more than tenfold of 650,000 (compared to some 25 million worldwide), and the industry expects U.S. sales this year to exceed 330,000, an increase of one-third over 1978's record total.

Last fall, Seguin marshalled all his facts into a comprehensive report and sent if off to the president and other key federal officials, arguing that the government should take a more active role in exploring the "moped alternative" and making the full usefulness of the moped known to the American people.

If anything, the moped people weren't thinking small. Their proposals included establishing specified moped lanes marked on streets, specific lanes separate from streets and special moped parking facilities. They also suggested that certain streets be reserved for exclusive moped use and, without a blush, even proposed a tax rebate for moped users.

They also pointed out how mopeds could help reduce traffic congestion and parking density, noting that a single automobile parking space could accommodate at least nine mopeds.

The vast saving in gasoline consumption would mean a huge reduction in oil imports and therefore would be a big help to the U.S. balance of payments problem — even though, the association concedes, nearly three out of four mopeds are imported.

In other word, like any good trade association report, the moped study combines some sound suggestions with a touch of pie-in-the-sky. At the least, though, the moped people thought they deserved some serious consideration from an administration grappling with the energy crisis. So far, they haven't gotten it, and that's the rub.

Seguin, who is president of Motobecane America Ltd., which distributes the French-made mopeds of that name, and M. Paul Zimmerman, the association's executive director, rankled at the lack of reaction to their proposals. They decided last month to follow their earlier letters with telegrams to an impressive list of Washington leaders.

"Response from government officials has ranged from non-existent to perfunctory," Zimmerman said. "We feel that insufficient attention has been given to a serious and patriotic suggestion designed to improve a deeping problem for the United States."

The pile of polite letters increased, but nobody was willing to enter into any meaningful discussions. Finally, an official in the office of the assistant secretary for Conservation and Solar Applications in the Department of Energy wrote to say that the agency was "advocating energy-efficient transportation alternatives, such as the moped, in one of our most widely distributed publications..."

As the moped association officials described it to us, they eagerly grasped the enclosed brochure and after poring through it found on page 25 a single word in a single sentence.

As one of 181 suggestions to improve the U.S. energy situation, the Department said: "Use public transportation, a motorcycle, a moped, or a bicycle, or walk to work."

CHEVY CITATION.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG
38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE CITY ESTIMATE 24
With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your-actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate."

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

PUBLIC NOTICE
The US Army Corps of Engineers has initiated several organizational and realignment studies aimed at identifying opportunities for improving the performance and management capability of its water resources (civil works) activities and military construction. As a part of this initiative, the Southwestern Division Engineer is conducting a specific study to assess the costs and benefits of possible realignment involving the Albuquerque, Little Rock, Fort Worth, and Tulsa Districts.
The Realignment Study will review workload requirements and investigate several realignment alternatives to determine the most efficient manner of accomplishing the workload within these district boundaries, consistent with the high quality of Corps work in the past.
The study will consist of an evaluation of the operational, budgetary, economic, environmental, community, and employee impacts associated with the final alternatives considered.
At this point we are considering the following alternatives in making this evaluation: (No district closures are being considered.)
a. To transfer the civil works design, construction, and real estate functions (in part or in total) from the Albuquerque to the Fort Worth District and from the Little Rock to the Tulsa District.
b. To consolidate military-real estate services in the Fort Worth and Tulsa Districts or centralize them in the Fort Worth District.
c. To change the Fort Worth, Albuquerque, Tulsa, and Little Rock Districts' internal boundaries to more closely align them with state boundaries and minimize the number of Southwestern Division districts in any given state, and the Galveston District boundary to eliminate two districts serving one city, i.e., Austin, Texas.
d. To change the Southwestern Division external boundaries to more closely align the boundary along state lines to minimize the number of divisions in a given state. This would include external boundaries of all Southwestern Division districts.
e. To transfer some civil works operating projects between Southwestern Division districts.
f. To establish a Corps of Engineers liaison office in some state capitol cities.
g. To transfer a portion of the military design and construction functions from the Fort Worth District to the Albuquerque District and or Little Rock District.
You are invited to submit your comments and suggestions on these alternatives. Your comments should be mailed to US Army Engineer Division, Southwestern, ATTN: SWDDC-RS, Main Tower Building, Room 730B, 1200 Main Street, Dallas, TX 75202, to be received by 7 May 1979. All comments will be given full consideration in reaching study conclusions and recommendations.

Former POW Teaches About Life In Prison

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Vice Admiral James Stockdale has been teaching the Book of Job from the Bible.

"The story of undeserved suffering — how people cope with it," says the former prisoner of war who suffered at the hands of his North Vietnamese captors for 2,714 days.

"Life is unfair, but that does not justify you in acting unfairly," says Stockdale. "What I mean is that you have to be a man, as Job was asked to be a man by his Lord, and stand up like a man when you are faced with undeserved hardship."

Stockdale, 55, blazed new trails with his philosophy classes during the past two trimesters at the U.S. Naval War College, where he was appointed president in October 1977.

He is leaving the Navy next fall after 36 years military service to become president of The Citadel, South Carolina's 137-year-old military college.

He says he will eventually transplant his teachings of philosophy to The Citadel as elective courses to "add flavor to an already very good, high quality educational pursuit based on traditional structure."

"I'm thrilled," he says. "You can bet I'll be a classroom teacher as well as president. The reason I accepted is because it allows me to establish myself in education as a profession with long-term tenure rather than just practicing when the military assignment rotation allows me to do so."

Stockdale was shot down on Sept. 9, 1965, and parachuted from his crippled A-4 jet into a crowd of angry North Vietnamese who beat him so badly that they tore his left leg at the knee, leaving it permanently stiff. He walks with a limp.

The philosophy that he learned as a Navy fighter pilot enrolled in a master's program at Stanford University's Hoover Institution from 1960 until 1962 kept him going during his 7½ years of captivity, half of the time in isolation, solitary confinement and leg irons.

He was awarded the Medal of Honor for resisting his captors.

The first week of his course, "Foundations of Moral Obligation," was devoted to stories of those in prison.

"The best, I think, by Koestler, 'Darkness at Noon,'" he says. "Not for the reason that anybody here is ever going to be in prison ... I'm not teaching them to be prisoners. But the prison, the intensity of prison life, seems to illuminate many things, the need for morality in the extortion environment. So I refer to it frequently in examples.

"There are usually extortion environments in prison where the jailer wants to manipulate you, wants to scare you, probably wants to hurt you. But most of all he wants you to feel guilt.

"Because it's there the soul starts to deteriorate. If he can get you on the downhill slope, he can put you where he wants you, put you in his pocket.

"It's not only there that happens. We're all in an extortion environment of some subtle sort all the time. Thus a man is well advised not to do anything he is ashamed of.

"Another thing I think that brings out in general, and it's illuminated there, is the dependence of one of us upon the other. You can't go it alone.

"If you're going to have any form of corporate activity, you can't give yourself the opportunity to opt in and out as you individually judge the merits of the case. If it's serious enterprise, to drop out is to betray."

Stockdale said he was "scared to death time and again" while a POW. "We were always scared," he says. "I would recite to myself liturgies of pep talk and memorized stuff on the way to interrogation because I knew I had a performance.

"I had to demonstrate commitment. It was genuine, but I could not give the idea that I was willing to, as they say, meet them halfway. You've got to look him (the interrogator) in the eyes and tell him to go to hell."

His course, he says, was designed to discourage people from thinking a predicament they're in allows them to bypass the rules. "Some of the fallouts, I hope, are for people through this study of the history of thought to cease to consider crises as unprecedented events which justify their making an exception to law or social norms.

"Another aspect is to give the courage to trust imagination, intuition and their spontaneity and instinct, which Emerson says is the essense of dreams.

"I think we've all been hit over the head with restrictive frames of reference, restrictive forms of procedures that paralyze the brain's normal capacity ...

"We cautiously kick our way within this little rationalistic discipline, this marginal line you might call it. And thus we're shy about using this wonderful instrument, our mind.

"Of course, I don't support anarchy, but I also believe bureaucracies have a great tendency to live on procedure. And pretty soon, if you let the habit grow, you find yourself locked in marginal lines of restrictive frames of reference that preclude you from really trying to handle the problem at hand with the full scope of your mental ability."

And does this philospher see philosophical lessons to be learned from the American involvement in Vietnam?

"Millions of them, I'm sure," he says. "You cannot finesse a war. War is cruelty and you cannot refine it, says Sherman. I like to quote Napolean who said sentiment rules the world. And any person who does not take that into account can never hope to lead. And we were being led by people who not only didn't understand sentiment but were contentious of it."

Gay Political Commitment Continues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city's gay community appears to have shaken off its grief but not its commitment to political activity following the death of Harvey Milk, the first homosexual elected to San Francisco's Board of Supervisors.

At the Midnight Sun, a gay bar on Castro Street, the Sunday afternoon revelry stopped when the disco music was turned off and a young man, standing on the stairs, began to speak in a loud, clear voice.

"Look, I know this might sound amusing, but I'm serious. The San Francisco Police Department, for the first time ever, is actively recruiting officers who are homosexual. Please take one of the leaflets and give me a call," he said.

Follow-Up

Outside the bar, two men unfurled a sign against a bank building across the street. It read simply: "Gay Rights March, Washington, D.C., October 14, 1979."

They were two small gestures, but highly symbolic ones, for San Francisco's large and politically active homosexual community, shaken following the deaths Nov. 27 of Milk, and Mayor George Moscone, a strong supporter of gay rights.

Opening arguments in the trial of former Supervisor Dan White, charged with the killings, are scheduled for later this week.

A consortium of gay rights groups is now working to fulfill a dream of Milk's — a massive march on Washington "to end all social, economic, legislative and judicial oppression" against homosexuals. Oct. 14 has been selected at the date for the march.

And the police department is actively seeking gay officers. The sheriff's department already has 12 openly gay deputies.

"Were quite satisfied with how the recruitment effort has gone," said Les Morgan, who is assisting the Civil Service Commission in the recruiting. He said 330 homosexuals have requested information.

But there are grumblings in the community, partly because Mayor Dianne Feinstein does not have the overwhelming popularity among homosexuals her late predecessor had.

Police Chief Charles Gain, who supports the gay recruiting drive, was heavily booed at a recent meeting of 200 gay businessmen when he defended as "proper" pending civil suits to shut down six gay theaters and bookstores as "public nuisances."

Police harrassment of gay bars and other establishments has been non-existent for several years in San Francisco. In the past four months, however, a half-dozen bars have been closed by the state liquor control board and now civil suits are threatening theaters and bookstores.

Bullets Bite Atlanta

By United Press International

The Washington Bullets, trying to become the first NBA team in a decade to win consecutive titles, got 13 of Elvin Hayes' season-high 39 points in the third quarter and 17 fourth-quarter points from Bob Dandridge to beat the Atlanta Hawks, 100-94, in the seventh game of their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

"They gave us all we wanted and the Bullets rose to the challenge," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "Now it starts all over."

Hayes scored one-third of his points in the third quarter, when the Bullets extended a 5250 halftime lead to 75-69 entering the final period. Then he yielded to his forward partner, Dandridge.

The 6-foot-6 forward was held to 12 over the first three quarters in Landover, Md. But in the last quarter, the 10-year veteran had 29 points and the Bullets had a new tomorrow.

"I like to be tough during the last four or five mi utes," Dandridge said. "That's the way our offense is set up. During the crucial situations, I'm able to control the tempo."

Dandridge personally rebuffed the Hawks every time they pulled within four points in the final period and it was his 11-foot jumper over John Drew with 38 seconds left that gave Washington a 97-91 lead, and sent President Carter, one of the 19,035 spectators at the Capital Centre, heading for the exits.

Hays also grabbed 15 rebounds while playing all 48 minutes.

Drew paced the Hawks with 29 points and guard Terry Furlow came off the bench to add 21.

In the other Eastern Conference semifinal series, Philadelphia beat San Antonio, 92-90, to force Game 7 Wednesday night in San Antonio.

Rookie guard Maurice Cheeks, who averaged only 8.4 points per game over the regular season, continued to be the scoring surprise of the series, pouring in seven points down the stretch — including the game-winning basket with 10 seconds remaining.

The Spurs had a seemingly comfortable 13-point lead early in the fourth quarter when the 76ers rallied behind Juius Erving, Darryl Dawkins and Cheeks under the urging of a wild Spectrum crowd of 18,276.

Philadelphia cut the deficit to three when Cheeks re-entered the game with 4:24 left. He immediately canned two jumpers to give Philadelphia its first lead of the second half, 85-84, with 3:03 remaining. The advantage then changed hands five times, with the Spurs gaining the upper hand at 90-89 on James Silas' jumper with 20 seconds left.

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham then set up a play for Erving during a timeout, but the All-Star forward was double-teamed and forced to pass to the 6-1 Cheeks, who went down the lane in traffic and put the ball in over 6-11 Coby Dietrick.

Snyder Tips Small Loop

Not only does Albert Lewis know all the names of the members on opposing teams in the district, but the Snyder baseball coach can also quote batting batting averages and pitching statistics.

Could Lewis' knowledge of the game be the reason that the Tigers won the first half of the 3-AAA baseball race and are currently leading the second half?

CITY PLAYER OF THE WEEK
Estacado's Manuel Escamilla: The Matador first baseman drove in six runs with a home run, triple and double as Estacado won two of three district 1-AAA games this week.

"No, I wouldn't say that," laughed Lewis. "There are only three teams in the district and we've been playing against the same kids for three years now."

Besides Snyder, Brownfield and Lamesa vie for the 3-AAA crown. Snyder won the first half title with a 4-2 mark and currently sports a spotless 2-0 record, one game better than Lamesa.

"All the teams in the district know exactly what each other is going to do," said Lewis. "For instance they all know that our team doesn't have a whole lot of offensive power. We don't score a lot of runs, so we depend on fundementals and pitching to win games."

According to Lewis, the Tigers offensive strategy is to get people on base and then bring them home any way they can.

"Richard Crayton is our leading base stealer," said Lewis. He has the green light anytime he gets on base and so far this season, Richard has been able to steal 21 bases. We'll hit and run, steal bases or just try and hit behind the runner."

And since everybody in the district knows that's how the Tigers score runs, how come it's successful?

"We've done a real good job on anticipating the pitch," said Lewis. "We like to steal on a curve ball, and so far we've stealing and hit and running at the right time."

Lewis believes there is more pressure on 3-AAA teams than clubs in other districts because of the lack of teams that compete.

"We play Brownfield and Lamesa six times," said the Tiger baseball coach. "We're facing a district contender everytime we step on the field."

So far, the pressure has not affected the Tigers' pitching staff.

Sid Everton (7-2, 2-0) is the first hurler Lewis calls upon out of the bullpen. However, the Snyder mentor feels he has three consistent throwers. Lewis' three-man pitching rotation also consists of Mitch Makey (5-3, 2-1) and Tony Degrate (4-2, 2-1).

"We've had a tendency in past seasons to blow big games," said Lewis. "However, this season we haven't had the opportunity. We jumped out early and stayed ahead to solve the problem."

Mackey and Everton also have helped their own pitching causes with the bat. Mackey is batting at a .452 clip while Everton is right behind at .444.

Wheeling And Dealing

IT'S A GOOD THING the Dallas Cowboys are well stocked with talent, because they are not likely to get any instant all-stars in the annual NFL draft of college grads Thursday and Friday. The 'Pokes will pick next to last in the draft, thanks to their Super Bowl season, so the blue-chippers all will be gone before they get a shot.

Unless, of course, Gil Brandt comes up with another surprise. Dallas' superscout and vice president for personnel development has pulled off some deals in the past that would put James Bond to shame. Just two years ago Gil, with the advice and consent of club President Tex Schramm and Coach Tom Landry, swapped a handful of high draft choices to Seattle for the rights to Tony Dorsett. That turned out to be one of the steals of the decade in the NFL.

Gil disappeared from his Dallas office for a few days last week, amid the usual cloud of mystery. Queries about his absence were met with frowns and absolute silence. It was most frustrating.

Knowing Gil, nothing would surprise me. He may have been in Moscow helping obtain the release of the Russian dissidents, or he may have been checking on a grid prospect at Black Hills State College in Spearfish, S.D. Gil also could have been discussing a big draft swap with Buffalo, Kansas City or Chicago.

Whatever his mission, there's no way to find out until he is ready to tell the world. Gil's security measures make the CIA agents look like a bunch of blabbermouths.

BARRING SOME MIRACLE by Brandt and Schramm, the Cowboys will pick 27th in the first and second rounds of the draft, use Seattle's choice in the third and then drop to 27th again in the fourth round.

Dallas will collect some debts in the fifth round, grabbing Chicago's and Seattle's picks in addition to its own regular spot.

To simplify things a bit, the Cowboys will get the 27th, 55th, 77th, 111th, 123rd, 131st and 139th players taken. Plus their regular choices in the final seven rounds of the draft, of course.

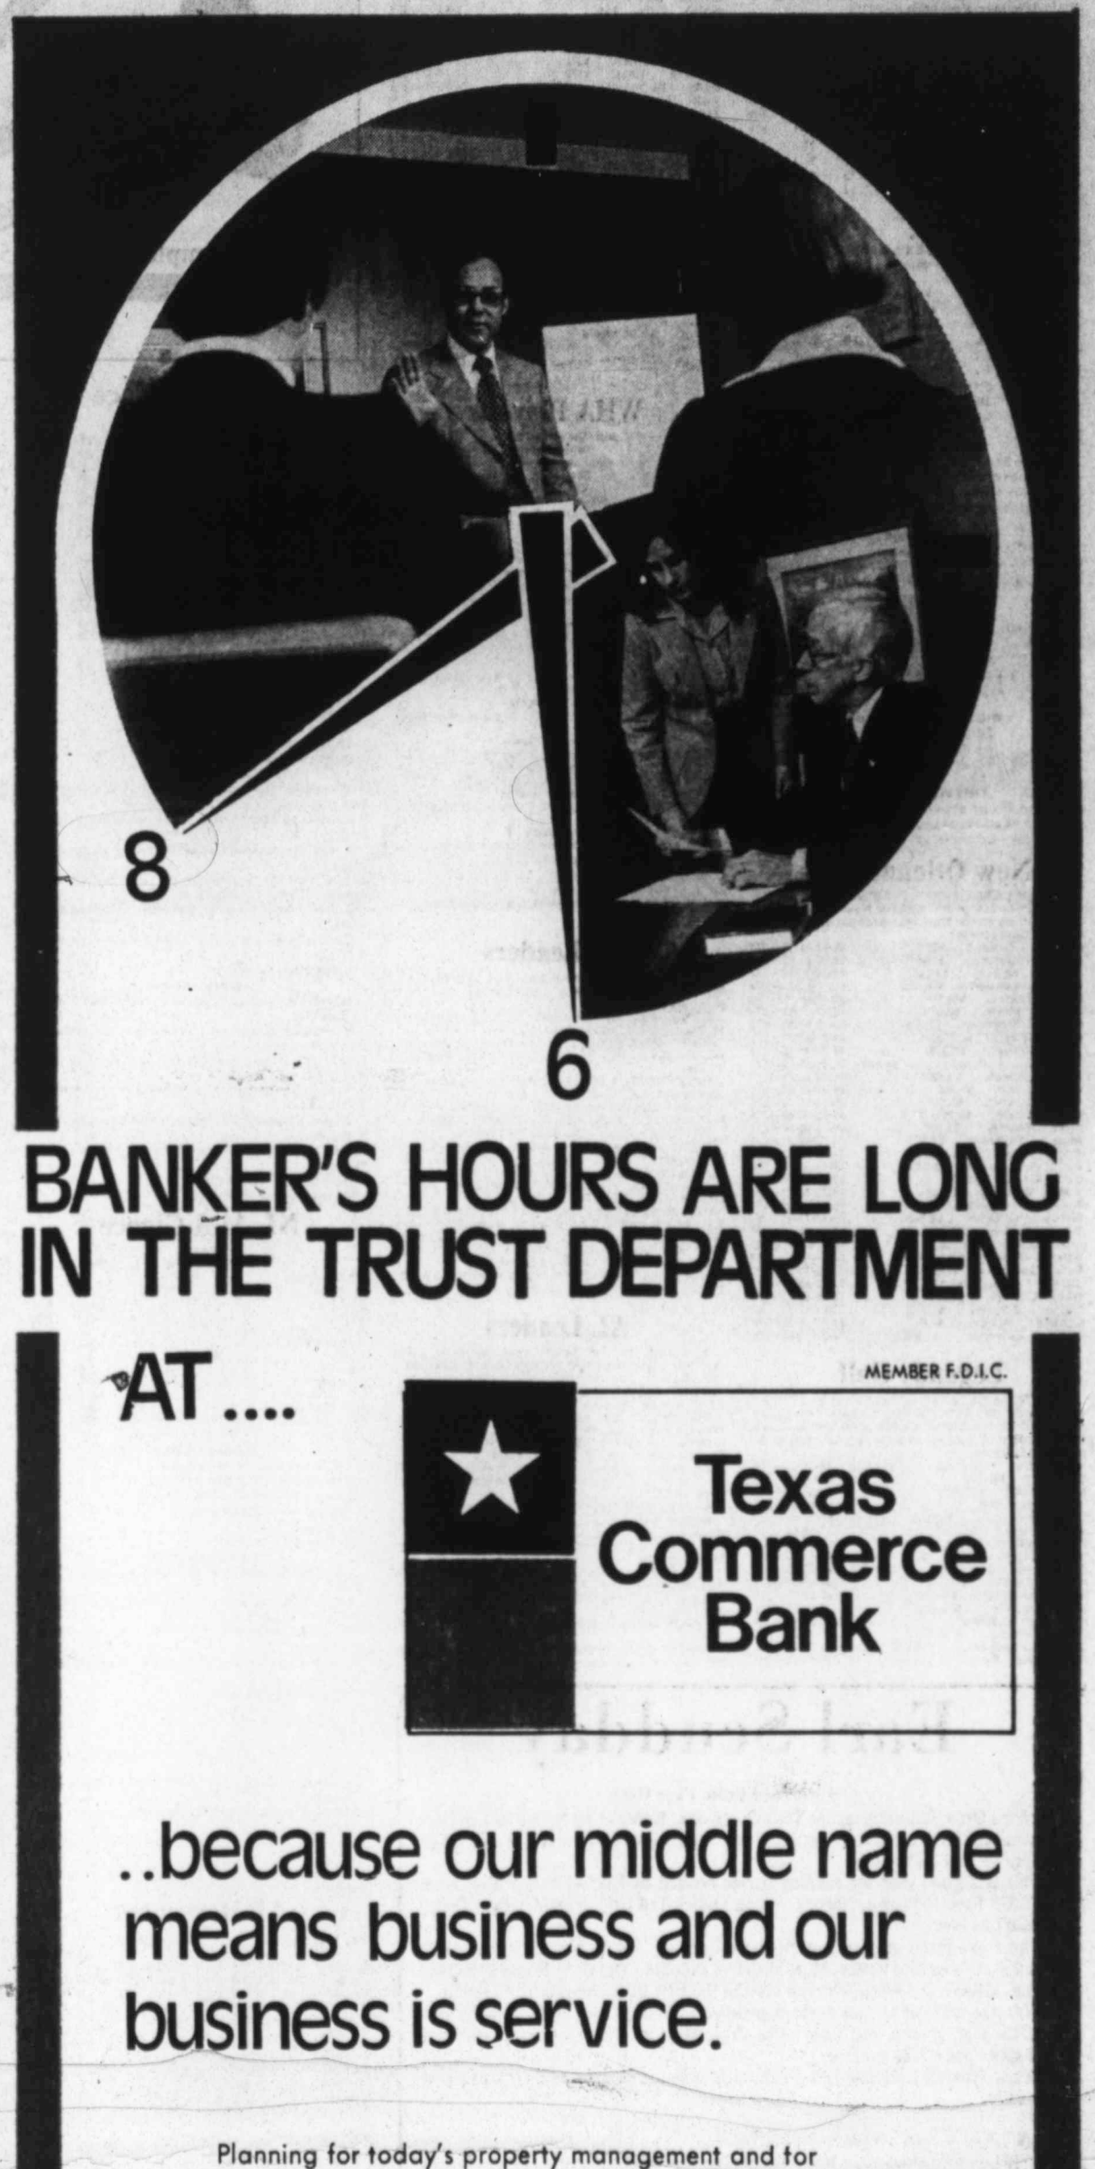

Since Dallas will get only one player out of the first 50 taken, and only three of the first 100, fans need not expect a lot of household names on the Cowboys' list of draftees. Their top two or three selections may have some claim to fame, but after that it is likely to be a scramble.

Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati and Kansas City should be the big winners in this draft, unless they trade away their rights. Chuck Knox has a great chance to rebuild battered Buffalo, with the first and fifth choices in the entire draft. The Bills got San Francisco's No. 1 for O.J. Simpson, remember?

Chicago gets the fourth and ninth players taken, Cincinnati has the rights to No. 3 and 12, and Kansas City gets No. 2. All of that is prime territory.

NFL INSIDERS THINK that Buffalo will go first for a defensive standout,

Yankees Bow To Mariners

By United Press International

The world-champion New York Yankees suffered their third straight one-run defeat at the hands of last-place Seattle, and in each game the Mariners rallied in the late innings to pull out a victory.

"We could have used (Rich) Gossage in a couple of situations in this series," said New York Manager Bob Lemon, after Seattle scored three runs with two outs in the ninth inning, off relievers Paul Mirabella, Ron Davis and Dick Tidrow Sunday, to post a 6-5 triumph. "He was the best reliever in our league last year. So it's obvious we need him."

Mariners' Manager Darrell Johnson said, "Our pinch hitters are batting .400 and we've certainly got good mileage out of them in this series. And Willie Horton's starting to look younger to me all the time."

In the ninth, Julio Cruz drew a one-out walk off loser Paul Mirabella, 0-2, and after Bobby Valentine struck out, Tom Paciorek singled. Joe Simpson was inserted as a pinch-runner and Leon Roberts walked, chasing Mirabella in favor of Davis. Horton greeted Davis' first pitch with a two-run single, sending Roberts to third. Horton moved up on the throw to the plate and after Ruppert Jones was walked intentionally, Tidrow came on and pinch hitter Bruce Bochte slammed his first delivery down the right-field line. Rafael Vasquez, 1-0, picked up the victory.

Thurman Munson's first homer of the year — a two-run shot — had snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and it appeared New York starter Tommy John would become the first five-game winner in the majors before the rally.

Twins 5, Tigers 3

Roy Smalley lifted his average to .394 with four hits, including his fourth homer of the year, and Mike Marshall registered his seventh save to lead Minnesota.

Indians 5, Royals 4

Toby Harrah's two-run double highlighted a four-run fifth inning and Rick Wise and Sid Monge combined on a six-hitter as Cleveland snapped a four-game losing streak and broke Kansas City's six-game win skein.

Rangers 10, White Sox 0

Dock Ellis and Jim Kern combined on a four-hitter and Buddy Bell, Bill Sample and Al Oliver each drove in two runs to spark Texas.

Orioles 13, A's 1

Baltimore blasted five homers — including three-run shots by Gary Roenicke and Ken Singleton in a 10-run, seventh-inning explosion — to give the Orioles 10 victories in the last 11 games.

Red Sox 2, Angels 0

Brewers 3-3, Blue Jays 0-5

Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hit shutout for his fourth victory to lead Milwaukee in the first game. Dave Lemanczyk, 2-0, allowed nine hits in the second game to pick up the decision.

BASEBALL MEETING

There will be an organizational meeting for this year's National Baseball Congress League Wednesday at Hodges Community Center, 42nd and University.

Braves Blow Big Lead To Cubs

By United Press International

The Atlanta Braves' Larry McWilliams took a two-hit shutout and a 5-0 lead into the top of the ninth inning and the Braves' fourth straight victory looked secure. But 10 minutes later the shutout, the game and ultimately the win were gone.

"We needed a game like that," said Chicago Manager Herman Franks, whose Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak by scoring six times with two out, capped by Bobby Murcer's three-run homer, in a 6-5 triumph over the stunned Braves.

McWilliams yielded a leadoff single to Dave Kingman and a walk to Steve Ontiveros, but then recorded two outs before Atlanta's lead started to melt. Ted Sizemore walked to load the bases, bringing on losing reliever Gene Garber, 1-3. Tim Blackwell lined a two-run single to right and pinch-hitter Larry Biittner made it 5-3 with another single. Steve Dillard pinch-ran for Biittner before Murcer slammed a 1-1 pitch over the right-field fence for his second homer of the year.

Lynn McGlothen, 1-1, pitched 4 1-3 innings for the victory and Bruce Sutter picked up his fifth save for the Cubs.

The Braves scored twice in the third on RBI doubles by Gary Matthews and Jeff Burroughs and added single runs in the sixth inning, on Jerry Royster's run-scoring single, and in the seventh, when Dale Murphy became the first major-league player this season to hit nine home runs.

Braves' Manager Bobby Cox could only shake his head and turn philosophical: "You're supposed to win games like that."

Mets 3-6, Dodgers 8-3

Lee Mazzilli smacked a pair of run-scoring singles and Joel Youngblood hit a home run to give New York a nightcap victory. In the opener, Dusty Baker drove in five runs and Gary Thomasson had three RBI to back pitcher Don Sutton, who picked up his 208th career victory, one shy of Don Drysdale's all-time Dodger record.

Pirates 10, Astros 5

Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell drove in three runs each to spark the Pirates past the Astros.

Expos 7, Giants 5

Gary Carter drove in four runs with two homers and Ellis Valentine hit a three-run pinchhit homer as Montreal handed San Francisco its seventh straight loss.

Phillies 4, Padres 3

Manny Trillo's single with none out in the bottom of the ninth capped a two-run rally and lifted Philadelphia past San Diego's ace reliever Rollie Fingers.

Reds 5, Cardinals 1

Paul Moskau, taking over in the third for an injured Tom Seaver, blanked St. Louis on two hits over the final 6 2-3 innings in pitching the Reds past the Cardinals.

Robin Rocks On Saturday Night

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Saturday night's the night I like.
Saturday night's all right for fighting.

Elton John made the song of the same title famous but Saturday night at the Reese AFB, Rockin' Robin Blake of Levelland brought it to life.

The matches in Hangar 82 at the base had practically been billed as the "Robin Blake Show" and Saturday night, young Blake lived up to his billing.

To put it bluntly, Blake was awesome.

In the third fight of the night between local Golden Gloves fighters and the Air Force National team, the 125-pound Blake literally mopped up the ring with his Air Force opponent.

Each fight had been scheduled for three, three-minute rounds but Blake cut his match short.

He was in command from the outset as he tangled with Alvin Dixon, a Georgia state Golden Gloves champion in 1978. Blake, who won the 1979 Texas GG title in the 125 class, never had any trouble with Dixon. But he had trouble controlling himself.

Coming out of clinch in the first round Blake caught an elbow from the Air Force fighter that opened a nasty gash over his left eye. Suddenly Blake went into a rage.

Twice in the first round he had Dixon out on his feet. But instead of delivering the finishing blow, Blake simply pushed the Air Force fighter down. The crowd booed, the referee warned Blake and the fight went on. As the bell ending the first round rang, Blake — who apparently didn't hear it — continued to pound Dixon.

Again the crowd booed. But Blake silenced them in the second round. Again and again he landed looping rights to Dixon's head. In a short time it was all over.

The Air Force fighter went to the floor, staggered to his feet and then fell back against the rope. He told the referee he could fight after receiving a standing 8-count. Quickly Blake moved in, this time he hit Dixon so hard that he fell to the canvas and rolled through the ropes.

Dixon tried to get up but by this time the Air Force coach had thrown in the towel — and the chair and the water bucket.

It was all over. And Blake, who has built up quite a reputation since winning the Texas GG crown and advancing to the semi-finals in the national meet, lived up to it.

Standing in a tiny, steamy dressing room in the hangar, Blake slowly buttoned his shirt and spoke about the fight. The transformation was amazing, from an absolute menace in the ring to just an ordainary high school junior dressed in jeans and a flannel shirt.

"Yeah, I got kind of mad," Blake said. "I apologize for that, but everybody gets mad now and then. He cut me you know, and nobody's ever cut me before. And he did it with his elbow. I know it was an accident but still....

"Wouldn't you get mad if somebody cut your eye."

And immediately Blake was talking about other things. Since his strong showing in the GG nationals, he has become one of the top amateur fighters in the country.

"I've got Germany to look forward to now," he said. "And I'm going to give it my best shot."

Blake will represent the United States national team when it meets the German nationals on May 18, in a bout that will be televised later on ABC. It will be Blake's first taste of international competition — and of Howard Cosell.

But Saturday at Reese, he was the only winner from the Lubbock area as the Air Force team captured six other bouts. Gilbert Castillo, who turned 16 just two weeks ago, tangled with Angel Toro in a three, one-minute round exhibition match and was also awarded the decision.

Since it was an exhibition match, the victory wasn't recorded.

Raymond Amalla, of the Lubbock Warriors, was the only fighter of the night who fought twice. Amalla lost both the fights, but both were close (he lost each on split decisions) and he was awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy at the conclusion of the night.

Amalla fought against Lonnie Rogers in the 147-pound class in his first fight and took a lot of punishment from the Air Force fighter but hung on to hurt Rogers in the latter stages of the fight. In the final bout of the evening he tangled with John Ellis to an almost even draw.

One of the best fights of the evening came early when Roddy Blake, Robin's older brother, met Richard Johnson. Both were bleeding profusely by the end of the first round but Johnson kept Blake against the ropes for most of the fight.

Johnson sent Blake stumbling with blows from the right hand in the third round and the fight was nearly called on a TKO but Blake hung on and finished the three rounds.

Jasper Colbert, an oil-field worker from Plainview, suffered a third round TKO from Victor Bernard in the heavyweight bout and Lee Mascarenas, from Aztec, N.M. was also TKO'd in the third round in the 156-pound bout.

In the bloodiest match of the evening, Air Force's Tony Huggins earned a decision over Charles Watson — a Reese fighter.

Not surprisingly the Outstanding Boxer award went to Rockin' Robin Blake.

Of course the crowd of around 2,500 on hand deserved some kind of award themselves. They were vocal in both their approval and disapproval of the fighters and when it was all over more than a couple came up to shake Robin Blakes' hand.

Robin Blake may not yet be an Olympic caliber fighter but Saturday night, in an airplane hanger at Reese, he showed that he may well be the best fighter to come out of west Texas in a long time.

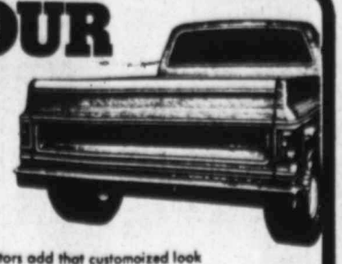

"He (Blake) is a good fighter," said Air Force coach Al Alaniz. "But I didn't like some of the things he did in the fight. He didn't have to do them, he would have won anyway— he was clearly the better fighter."

But, as Blake explained it, he just lost his temper. After all, it was Saturday night.

Expectations Depress Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost ground today, depressed by expectations of higher interest rates.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.16 at 852.48.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 7-4 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Steps taken by the Federal Reserve late last week in the money markets were taken as evidence that the Fed was seeking to tighten credit a bit further by encouraging money rates to rise.

The central bank's action came after weekly statistics last Thursday showed a sharp rise in the money supply.

Meanwhile, the government reported today that productivity declined at a 4.5 percent annual rate in the first quarter.

And the index of leading economic indicators dropped 0.5 percent in March, marking its third consecutive monthly decline. The index is designed to detect early warning signals of the future course of the economy.

American Telephone & Telegraph was one of the most active NYSE issues, down ⅜ at 58⅜. In response to a suit filed by MCI Communications Corp., the company said it hasn't violated any antitrust laws.

ABC To Present Prime-Time Screening Of Two Failed Series

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is a film festival of sorts on ABC tonight, a three-hour prime-time screening of failed television series. Good night to polish your bowling ball.

The first offering is a movie called "Beach Patrol," a sort of "Starsky and Hutch" and "Charlie's Angels" squeezed together and stuffed into a dune buggy. It's from Spelling-Goldberg Productions, the very folks who gave you "Starsky" and the "Angels."

"Beach Patrol" is about a group of cute beachy types who are cops on the beach. They ride around in nifty dune-buggies, with blaring red lights and insignias that read SGPD. Get it? Spelling-Goldberg Police Department.

Our wholesome frolickers (three guys and a pretty girl) spend their time running the Spelling-Goldberg gamut, dodging unlikely dangers, taking senseless risks and participating in endless chases. There is at least one redeeming factor — they do most of this in dune buggies, eliminating eardrum-piercing tire squeals.

There is much action here, some of which arises from the plot. The girl beach patroller, see, is really a hotshot undercover New York cop who's come to California to get away from a crime world meanie. This character (who does a fair impression of Marlon Brando), keeps sending hit men to get our pretty friend.

But in the end, the gallant beach kids prove what we should have known all along: You just don't mess with the Spelling-Goldberg Police Department.

The second half of ABC's little festival really isn't so bad, if you're in a silly mood. It's as corny as "Beach Patrol" — cornier, in fact — but it's done in the tongue-in-cheek spirit of the old "Kung Fu" series. In fact, "Samurai" is sort of a modern-day Kung Fu, except, of course, he's a Samurai.

Our hero is Lee Cantrell (Joe Penny), the wealthy, young assistant district attorney of San Francisco who moonlights as a sword-wielding, justice-for-all Samurai in his spare time. Of course, he first tries to fight evil by conventional means, but when justice gets tangled up in legal technicalities ... well, it's Samurai time.

The bad guy here is a rich developer, Charles Cioffi, who's a little off his nut. His dream is to save San Francisco from urban decay by tearing it down a neighborhood at a time, and rebuilding it to his own liking. When he runs into an old guy who doesn't feel like moving, he has his scientists develop an earthquake-making machine.

That'll run the old guy out, Cioffi figures.

But he wasn't counting on ... Samurai! Our hero, realizing he couldn't stop the nasty doings as a mere assistant DA, slips into his Samurai suit, swipes the earthquake machine and uses it on Cioffi's own elegant building. He shakes Cioffi out of the penthouse and into police hands, copping some incriminating files in the bargain.

There's lots of fortune-cookie wisdom to go along with the martial arts, but the ending was my favorite. After his heroics, Cantrell walks through a garden with his Samurai master and says:

"Master, perhaps the Samurai belongs to the past. Perhaps he has no place in our society..."

"Absurd!" responds the old master. Of course.

Sudden infant death syndrome, once called "crib death," strikes some 8,000 babies each year. It seldom affects infants under one month or over one year of age.

Backus Back At Studio For Filming Of Sequel

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jim Backus beetled his bushy brows, threw his arms lugubriously in a circle to encompass Hollywood General Studios and said, "I am overwhelmed by deja vu."

Backus walked into the movie studio for the first time back in 1952 to costar with Joan Davis in the old pioneer TV series, "I Married Joan." At that time the lot was known as Studio Center.

This month, 27 years later, Backus returned to the studio and the very same stage to star in the second two-hour sequel to "Gilligan's Island," the hit series which has become a cult epic in reruns.

"Gilligan's Island" is only one element in the actor's current experiences providing him with the eerie sensation of living his life over again.

Backus' rumpled face settled into mock despair.

"One of the first guys I knew in Hollywood was Sherwood Schwartz — Robin Hood's rabbi — who wrote for the old Alan Young radio show," Backus said. "I played Hubert Updyke III, the richest man in the world.

"That was 32 years ago! Sherwood wrote all the beautiful jokes for Updyke like Updyke giving his wife a string of pearls the size of watermelons. Asked how he got such big pearls, Updyke said, 'We use whips.'

"Anyway, Sherwood is producing this two-hour special, 'The Castaways On Gilligan's Island.'

"Our paths crossed in 1952 when Sherwood was a writer for 'I Married Joan.' At that time this was the hottest studio in television.

"All the stars were women. In addition to our show with Joan Davis, there was Lucille Ball in 'I Love Lucy,' Harriet Nelson in 'Ozzie and Harriet,' 'Private Secretary' with Ann Southern and 'Burns and Allen' with Gracie Allen.

"It was a matriarchy. Instead of a wall around the studio it had a girdle. I used to go home to my wife, Henny, with lipstick on my paycheck.

"The other day Sherwood and I were reminiscing like General Patton hearing the old battle cries. I can still hear myself saying, 'Hello, Joanie, I'm home' when I played Judge Stevens.

"As we stood there, George Burns came around the corner to say hello. He's had an office on the lot for 33 years. It was great seeing George again. He still calls me 'kid.' The Nelson kids grew up on the lot. If one of them had shown up carrying a ball bat, I would have flattened him with it.

"Talk about deja vu. George remembered Gracie and I had the same makeup man. Gracie had no eyebrows. Mine cover half my face. Gracie used to tell the guy, 'Put on my Jim Backuses.'

"In all those years I never got an Emmy. Maybe because I kept losing out to Gorgeous George, The Continental and Bishop Sheen. We had competition like 'All Star Bowling' and 'Celebrity Horseshoes.'

"Anyway, after 'I Married Joan' expired, Sherwood called me out of left field to play Thurston Howell III on 'Gilligan's Island.' He is really the son of Updyke, the same filthy rich character.

"Twelve years later Sherwood called about the first 'Gilligan' special which we did last season. He'd put me on hold for a dozen years.

"That's when I came right back to this same stage after 27 years. I immediately turned into an old man."

Backus said NBC managed to come up with a No. 1 rating with the "Gilligan's Island" special. If this second sequel succeeds, the show probably will return as a weekly half-hour sitcom next year with the original cast, excepting Tina Louise as Ginger.

The format calls for the motley former shipwreck victims to run a fancy hotel complex on the tropical isle.

Backus is none too sure about returning to the daily series grind.

"Working in a series stifles your life," he said. "And, when a series is over, it's like getting off heroin. I was once thinking of organizing Series Anonymous. Any actor contemplating a weekly show could call headquarters and we'd talk him out of it.

"I'm ambivalent about the prospects. You know, it's like watching your mother-in-law drive off a cliff in your new Cadillac.

"But I welcome the opportunity to play Howell again. I've defied the rules by playing funny rich guys. Most comedians come from a ghetto. They tell jokes about starving or the Jewish boy who falls in love with Irish girl or the old six-toa-bed jokes.

"I went against the rules about rich guys not being funny. I grew up in the suburbs in a WASP neighborhood. No hardship jokes for me. My six-to-a-bed jokes are recreational.

"And playing rich guys is fun. Who else keeps two Cadillacs in the garage, one for right turns and one for left turns?"

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 59-year-old man and have trouble with hemorrhoids. A specialist did a sigmoidoscope examination and checked me out in general. He said to soak my hemorrhoids and stay away from roughage and booze. Whenever I have a bowel movement it hurts and stings for while. I have been back to the doctor a couple of times and he said I'm to live with it. This doctor is a specialist in the field of rectal problems? Have you any suggestions?

DEAR READER — I think you have misunderstood what your doctor said or misinterpreted his meaning. If a age 59 you're too old for surgery, there are an awful lot of people having surgery who are too old for it. He either thinks your hemorrhoids are of such a nature that you don't require surgery at this time or you must have some rather serious health problems that are not mentioned in your letter.

Hemorrhoids are simply varicose veins of the rectum. The veins become over-stretched and dilated. Women are more prone to have them than men because of childbirth. The delivery of the baby's head creates so much pressure on the veins in this area that it often results in hemorroids.

That should be a good tip to you that any obstruction or mass in this area which presses on the veins can cause hemorroid to pop out. That's why anyone who first develops hemorroids should do exactly as you did and go see a doctor. It might not be simple hemorroids. There may be something above the hemorroids such as a mass or tumor that is causing the problem. The only way the question can be answered is with a direct examination.

Some doctors would not agree entirely with other comments in your letter. The pain that occurs with hemorroids during a bowel movement is often associated with hard stools. For this reason stool softeners are often helpful. Some of the bulk expanders work because they keep the stools soft. The water that's trapped in the undigested food residue keeps the material soft.

You need to devlop good bowel habits to avoid hard stools that cause problems and to avoid straining. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable and Spastic Colon and Constipation. It includes information you can use. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Most doctors woul agree that spices and alcohol are not good for people that have hemorrhoids. Incidentally, there are a number of minor office procedures which can be done for some types of hemorroids. These include such things as tying them off with rubber bands. On the surface that sounds a little wild but it's not and it works very well in some cases. The thing is the doctor has to select the type of case that he can do this type of procedure in. In very advanced cases of hemorroids, it won't work or if it does, the procedure becomes as extensive as a standard hemorroidectomy.

ROOF INSPECTION

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — After a storm, take a few moments to inspect your roof. Wind and rain can dislodge or tear off shingles, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., shingle manufacturer. Out-of-place shingles can allow water to seep under the roof, causing leaks. If the damage is caught in time, often only one shingle need be replaced. If not, the wood deck under the shingles may rot, causing damage to the roof.
