POLL TAXES ARE STILL UNDER PAR

Although the county's voting strength is over 2000, poll tax sales Wednesday night totaled only 638, Mrs. Margaret Weber, county tax assessor-collector said this morning. Sixteen 21-year-olds have asked for exemptions she said and stressed the fact that over age voters do not have to ask for these until they register at the polls. Her office will be open Saturday, January 27 until 5 p.m. and will remain open until midnight, January 31, for poll tax payments.

PILOT NEEDS CORRECT ADDRESS

Pilot subscribers are asked to call the Pilot office and give their correct addresses, in order that there will be no delay in delivery of their paper.

Since home delivery has been inaugurated in Rockport, it is necessary to have the correct street addresses on all mail for proper delivery.

If you do not have home delivery, but are receiving your mail through general delivery or in a box at the post office, the Pilot needs to know that as well, so that the proper address may be placed on the various papers.

Your prompt attention to this may save interrupted delivery of your paper.

Urban Renewal Discussed Wed.

If Aransas County builds a new school or the Navigation District enlarges boating facilities in Little Bay or repairs hurricane damage, Rockport can easily become eligible for hundreds of thousands of dollars of Federal urban renewal funds without any cost to the city. Gene Katchtik and Donald King, of the Federal Urban Renewal Office at Fort Worth, explained this

Wednesday night to a large audience in the city hall, including the mayor and most of the councilmen.

Or if Rockport extends streets, installs sewers, drains swamps or does other work that might affect the area being renewed, the money spent for these things can also be credited, at least in part, against the city's share of any urban renewal program.

Briefly, if the city should decide, after a referendum and planning, that urban renewal is desirable, and designate an area for this, the Federal government will provide funds for ¾ of the cost, and the city would be expected to bear the other fourth.

However, because most small cities have no money to do this, the representatives said, in practice they offer credits such as those outlined above, to defray their part, under a provision of the urban renewal law that allows this to be done. And these credits can apply to work done within three years before the actual beginning of the urban renewal pact between the government and the city, and no expenditure of city funds would be required.

However, it would cost owners of substandard houses within the urban renewal area enough money to bring these buildings up to standard which, in general, means installations of hot and cold running water, indoor toilets, and such other criteria as a board composed of local men had decided upon. If the owners couldn't meet this, then their homes would be subject to condemnation and sale, after the people had been relocated at the expense of the government.

In actual practice, such action would have to be taken against only a few people, King and Katchtik said, and the plan had worked well in a long list of towns in this area, including Port Isabel, which will receive $1,000,000 in Federal funds, using credits derived from recent construction of a school in that area to offset the city's share of the project.

At Los Fresnos, with a population of 1,112, they used credits from a $200,000 paving program that the city carried out to offset the municipality's share of an urban renewal program costing $300,000; Mercedes has renovated approximately ¾ of the city and regained its financial feet once more, although once bankrupt; Edinburg is receiving $2,000,000 in Federal funds, and has credits from a school to offset what would otherwise be the city's share of the project.

At Mission, the city fathers worked out a deal whereby credit from a drainage project in the county, which benefitted the area to be renewed, was used as an offsetting credit, although the work was done by the county, and was basically outside the area.

Mayor Herman Johnson, who introduced the speakers, told the assembly that the council, well aware of the many needs of the community which it had no money to meet, had been seeking some method of meeting these needs, and that the urban renewal plan was the one which apparently offered the most feasible approach.

Katchtik told the gathering that the Federal government would advance money for planning, after a referendum of the voters had given the council a mandate to explore the matter further.

This money would be spent by an urban renewal board appointed by the council, which would hire a permanent staff and such technical help as was needed to pre-

Gladys Wooden.

They were married January 16,
1912, at Anardarko, Oklahoma.
They have four living children, fourteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Having moved here from Oklahoma, the Kellys have made Rockport their home for the past thirty-five years.

Both are life-long members of the Methodist Church and have also been active members of the Oddfellow and Rebekah lodges, respectively, for many years.

Mr. Kelly served on the Rockport School Board for fourteen

It was during his tenure of office that consolidation of the district was achieved.

He owned and operated a successful grocery business here for thirty years, prior to his retirement.

HOPES STILL HIGH FOR COAST FISHING DESPITE BIG FREEZE

AUSTIN — Although thousands of pounds of edible fish were killed in the heavy freeze on the Texas coast within the past ten days, it is believed that prospects for spring and summer fishing will remain good. This is the optimistic report of Terrance R. Leary, coastal fisheries coordinator of the Game and Fish Commission.

Biologists are studying the fish loss along the Texas coast, and report that it was only a fraction of the 1951 kill, when thousands of tons of fish were destroyed as a result of prolonged freeze.

Apparently, the heaviest kill this year was in the Laguna Madre, from Three Islands south to Port Isabel, where the temperature dropped to 10 degrees, and much of the water was glazed over with ice. Fortunately, very low tides drove many fish to deeper and warmer waters before the cold hit the coastal region.

Many stunned fish were reported in other areas along the coastline, and many of them were taken by fishermen and converted to use rather than waste.

Leary says the kill did take a toll of trash fish, drum, and small trout; however, early reports indicate that losses were not as severe as might have been expected with prolonged, low temperatures.

Full extent of the freeze damage will not be known for several days yet, until frozen fish which may have gone to the bottom bloat and rise to the top, and are floated in to shore by wave action. In the meantime, biologists are continuing to study the coastline for additional information as to the freeze results.

URBAN RENEWAL

pare a plan for the area chosen. At the end of the planning period, if it was found not feasible to go ahead with the renewal, the city would not owe anything, although the planning money might amount to as much as $50,000.

If the plan was carried out, he said, the Federal government, in a city the size of Rockport, would absorb 3/4 of the cost directly, and the other 1/4 in the manner outlined above.

Mayor Herman Johnson pointed out that under this method, he felt that no tax raise or expenditure of city funds would be required.

Other Texas towns that either are using urban renewal funds or planning for their use include New Braunfels, Hearne, San Marcos, Pearsall, Crystal City, which will receive $1,500,000, San Antonio, Waco, and Lubbock King said.

The representatives of the urban renewal agency, along with Mike Von Zuben, State Health Department engineer, were here at the invitation of the Rockport City Council to explain the working of this government program and another, master planning for communities.

A master plan is one of the prerequisites for urban renewal, and Von Zuben explained the manner in which the cost of this could largely be obtained from the Federal government.

Cemetery Association Re-elects Officers

The annual meeting of the Rockport Cemetery Association was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. F. Jackson.

The organization noted with thanks the contribution of $500.00 from the Aransas County Commissioners, also extended a vote of thanks to John Klaeser for his services as grounds chairman.

The grounds report showed that trees and shrubs are now being trimmed.

The treasurer reminded members that dues are now in order.

In other business, James H. Sorenson, Jr., was named chairman of the auditing committee.

After hearing all annual reports, the following slate of officers was re-elected: Mrs. W. B. Allen, president; Mrs. Carolyn C. Hooper, 1st vice president; Mayor Herman Johnson, 2nd vice president; Judge John D. Wendell, 3rd vice president; Mrs. Mabel K. Bryant, 4th vice president; Mrs. Harry Mills, treasurer. Mrs. M. G. Taylor was elected secretary, succeeding Mrs. Travis Johnson.

Mrs. Allen appointed the following officers: Mrs. S. F. Jackson, parliamentarian; Mrs. Crompton Sowerbutts, chaplain; Mrs. Alma Ratliff, local membership chairman; Miss Genevieve Bracht, out of town membership chairman; Miss Mabel Bracht, memorials chairman.

SMITHS HONORED BY OPEN HOUSE

Mrs. Del McLain, Mrs. Wesley Morgan and Mrs. Cleo Smith, honored Mr. and Mrs. Gary Smith with an open house and house warming at their new home in West Terrace Subdivision Sunday afternoon from 2 til 6 o'clock.

The serving table was laid with a white crocheted cloth.

Cake square, punch and coffee were served to about 60 guests.

Roseate Spoonbill Story Told In National Geographic

The story of the roseate spoonbills is told in words and color in the National Geographic Magazine's February issue by Robert Porter Allen, who has been a visitor to Rockport many times during his research on the spoonbills and, later, on the whooping cranes.

Allen, in his article, says that there are six different species of spoonbills in the world, but only the one in this country is brightly colored. The others, natives of Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia, are chiefly white, with crests of long, stiff feathers growing from their necks.

But the American species, and the general plumage pattern of pinks and whites is set off by startling patches of carmine, saffron and royal yellow.

Essentially tropical birds, the roseate spoonbill range from the West Indies and Mexico southward to Argentina and Chile, but in the United States they nest only in southern Florida, Louisiana and Texas.

Texas spoonbills fly up the coast each spring from Mexico, and nest in April and May, mostly in Vingt'une Islands near Galveston and on the Second Chain of Islands in Mesquite Bay, near Rockport.

Allen points out the Texas birds reach the peak of their annual cycle, and their brightest colors, during the nesting season.

Mrs. Jack Hagar, nationally-known bird authority says that she has seen them many times during the springs and summers of the more than twenty years she has observed bird life in this area, and the sight of the big, pink adults is breath-taking.

Allen, in article, points out that the Texas birds have been under surveillance for many years. In 1931, a party from the Houston Outdoor Nature Club visited the Vingt'une Islands in Galveston Bay and found them nesting there among other wading birds.

Later that season, thoughtless visitors killed many of the pink birds and broke up their nests. To prevent a repetition of this occurrence, the Audubon Society has protected them since, and in 1960 these islands harbored the largest spoonbill colony in the United States—some six hundred pairs.

CRAB BOOKLET TELLS STORY OF INDUSTRY

Austin.—"Crabs of Texas," is the title of a new bulletin just published by the Game and Fish Commission for general distribution. The bulletin was prepared by Sandra Gail Pounds, with illustrations by the author. It is known as Bulletin 43, Series VII of the Marine Laboratory.

Other bulletins published by the Marine Laboratory cover "The Menhaden Fishery," "Shrimp Fishery," "Food and Game Fishes," "The Texas Shrimp Industry," and "The Texas Oyster Industry."

The crab bulletin is intended to enlighten fishermen and others of the sport and commercial value of the blue crab. It points out that something like 2 million pounds of blue crabs were harvested in a 12-month period in Texas, ending Aug. 31, 1960.

The bulletin includes a list of crabs found in Texas, gives their range and a full description of them, including detailed drawings. It tells how they are caught commercially and processed, to be one of the leading fishery industries along the Texas coast.

Rockport Booster Spends Busy Week

One of the most enthusiastic boosters that Rockport and Live Oak Peninsula has ever had is having a great day in Houston this week, as his company holds ground-breaking ceremonies for a new glass container plant that will cost in excess of $3,000,000.

John R. Nolan, manager of the Houston sales office of the Anchor-Hocking Glass Corporation, is a man of divided interests.

First and foremost has been his work, for over 30 years, as sales manager for the Anchor-Hocking Company, covering their southwestern market for glass containers, et al and molded caps, and sealing machines. His friends are legion, and his territory has extended all over the southwest, sometimes traveling thousands of miles in a week.

But does he settle down on weekends before the TV in his Houston home?

Don't you believe it!

John spends, practically every minute he can spare at his summer (and winter) cottage on Copano Bay, working among his plants, fishing, or watching the martins he has inducted to occupy John Nolan's Homes For Birds, an extra fancy avian apartment building he erected in a successful attempt to attract purple martins to nest.

Nor does he lose track of his business even then, for scores upon scores of his friends and customers have been guests at his place on Copano Bay, where, some years ago, he erected the now famous anchor monument, "to add interest to the peninsula."

Ground breaking ceremonies were held Wednesday on the new Houston plant, which will be located on a thirty-acre tract on Fidelity Street, one half mile south of the Market Street Road.

While ground-breaking ceremonies were held Wednesday, construction is well under way on a steel and concrete warehouse, which will contain 127,000 square feet of space.

Brown & Root, Inc., of Houston, is the contractor.

The new plant will occupy five acres, leaving a 25-acre area available for future expansion as needed.

Initial production at the Houston Anchor Hocking plant will involve flint glass containers in wide-mouth and narrow-neck styles for a wide range of products including foods, beverages and household chemicals.

The new plant will employ approximately 175 people at the beginning and more will be added as needed.

Silica, or glass sand, soda ash, limestone, natural gas, paper and other needed raw materials will be purchased in the Houston area.

The new Houston plant will be the 16th Anchor Hocking facility in the United States and Canada.

R. Brooks Brown, manager of the company's Atlantic office, will become sales manager of the Houston district, effective Feb. 1, according to Edward M. Lawrence, vice president of sales.

Nolan, manager of the Houston sales office at 1002 Washington Ave., will continue to serve the Southwestern market for Anchor Hocking glass containers, metal and molded closures and sealing machines.

WRITER SAYS PECCARY NOT TOO DANGEROUS

AUSTIN—The javelina or collared peccary is a potent but not necessarily a dangerous game animal for hunters, according to Dan Klepper, outdoors editor of the San Antonio Express-News, writing in the current issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine.

Klepper described the hunting of the javelinas west of San Antonio, with dogs and .22 rifles and pistols.

"The stories about javelinas 'treeing' hunters usually are nothing but exaggerations of the truth or incidents involving hunters thoroughly unfamiliar with the animals," Klepper says. "In most instances when these near-sighted pigs burst from cover in all directions, two or three invariably race toward the hunter, who doesn't realize that this is a natural occurrence."

Klepper also thinks that after the hunter has retold the story a few times it has been embellished quite a bit to make the javelina look much more dangerous than it really is.

Although the season is closed on javelina in many counties now, there are still some areas in the state where shooting the javelinas is permitted.

HUNT SUCCESS ON GAME AREAS 44.6 PERCENT

AUSTIN — Game management area hunting during the past season showed a 44.6 percent hunter success, according to figures just released by Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

There were 1,578 hunting on the five game management areas of the state. They harvested 704 deer for the season.

These were hunters who made application for permits to hunt on these management areas, for the removal of surplus game. There were 17,450 applications, 2,136 permits issued, and 1,578 hunters showing. Biologists had estimated a desired kill of 825 animals, with 704 finally reported. There were 355 bucks and 349 doe harvested.

Best hunter success was on the Engeling area in East Texas, where there was a 63.2 percent kill. On the Black Gap management area in far West Texas, there was a 54.3 percent hunter success; Kerr area 61.2 percent; Sierra Diablo 61 percent, while in the Angelina area there was a 19.5 percent hunter success.

"These were all controlled hunts, fitting into good management practices," Dr. Dodgen said. "Excellent cooperation was had with all the hunters on these areas where the no-cost hunting was provided. These hunts are set up each year to remove surplus game, to keep the sex ratio in proper balance, and to prevent overstocking of the range."

FRANK LANE NAMED CPL GENERAL AUDITOR

Frank R. Lane today was named general auditor of Central Power and Light Company at a meeting of the CPL board of directors in Corpus Christi. He succeeds Garnet Menger, who is retiring after more than 46 years of service with the utility company.

In his new position, Lane will be head of CPL's Home Office accounting department in Corpus Christi, and will be responsible for accounting operations in the 213 South Texas communities served by the company.

A native of Chicago, Lane has been assistant auditor for CPL for the past 12 years. He formerly worked as an accountant for the Middle West Service Company and the People's Gas Light and Coke Company, both of Chicago.

GAME ARRESTS SHOW INCREASE FOR NOVEMBER

AUSTIN — Violations by deer hunters accounted for the bulk of the work of game wardens during November, according to the monthly report just issued by J. E. Phillips, coordinator of law enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission.

Top on the list of violations was night hunting, with 45 arrests. There were 25 arrests for killing deer in closed season. Wardens also took other hunters on charges of illegal possession of doe deer, fawn and spikes.

Fines up to $400 were levied against several hunters by courts in different parts of the state. One "telephone fisherman" in South Texas was fined $200 for a fishing violation, $50 for hunting in a closed season, and $200 for possession of deer with evidence of sex removed.

In all, there were 297 arrests, with total fines and costs amounting to $12,452.44.

GET CARS INSPECTED EARLY

The Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., today urged motorists to secure their 1962 vehicle inspection stickers as soon as possible prior to the April 15 deadline.

After that date, vehicles not displaying the new inspection sticker will be operating in violation of the law and the operators of those vehicles will be subject to arrest, he said.

Garrison said approximately half of the inspection period has expired and only about one-fourth of the vehicles in the state have been inspected. Unless the number of inspections is increased appreciably soon, he added, long waiting lines will be forming at inspection stations as the April 15 deadline approaches.

"There are some 4,800 authorized stations in the state and they are ready and capable of handling the inspection of all vehicles without delay if owners of the uninspected vehicles do not wait until the last few days before the deadline, Garrison said.

He pointed out that vehicles inspected so far this year have fewer defects than have ever been noted heretofore. He said vehicle defects contributing to motor vehicle accidents in Texas it the lowest in the history of the state.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAX INCREASE EFFECTIVE JAN. 1

In 1961, employers will deduct three and one-eighth percent of wages for social security. Employers will pay a like amount. The rate for 1961 was three percent.

For wage and salary workers, the increase will amount to six dollars a year for those who earn as much as $4800, the maximum which is taxed and credited in a year, according to H. M. Cleveland, district manager of the Social Security Administration in Corpus Christi.

Self-employed persons will pay 4 1/2% on their net earnings for 1961. The rate for 1962 will be 4.7%. The social security tax for those who are in business for themselves is paid once a year with their income tax returns.

Last September, payments to elderly widows were increased by 10% Cleveland says. At the same time minimum payments to a worker who first becomes entitled to the benefits at age 65 or later were increased to $40 a month.

The changes in the retirement test effective for 1961 also added some cost to the program of retirement, disability, and survivors insurance for workers and their families. Under the provisions, some payments can be made to many over 65 year old workers who continue working.

No additional cost was incurred under the amendment which permits payments to men aged 62-64 since those payments are less than would be paid if they waited until they reach age 65 to apply.

In raising the social security tax, Congress gave evidence of their intent to keep social security on a sound financial basis. Cleveland says that the increase in the tax is expected to pay the cost of the increased benefits.

Persons who would like further information about any of the provisions of the Social Security Act should get in touch with the Social Security Administration, 530 South Water Street, Corpus Christi.
