MORE WHEAT, IS LUBBOCK PROSPECT

FARMERS ALREADY PREPARING GROUND FOR GRAIN SAYS EATON

Lubbock county's wheat acreage for the coming year will be very greatly increased, is the prediction of David F. Eaton, county farm agent. Eaton stated yesterday that with the low prices of cotton and with continuing drought, farmers are turning to wheat. He estimates the yield of the county for this year to be more than 100,000 tons. He bases his prediction on the assumption that each acre will produce one ton of heads. The farmers will use most of the sorghums for feeding purposes, Eaton says, as the price is too low to pay them to try to market it. Of the 251,200 acres in cultivation in the county, grain sorghums occupy approximately 85,000 acres. King Cotton reigns with 150,000 acres designated for his kingdom.

Blames Cotton Surplus on Plair; Too Much Land Plowed Under Plant Sure Money Crop, Textile Man Advises, and Let South Live

The planting of the vast areas of the South Plains in cotton, when this fertile country would just as successfully support many other crops, is in his opinion directly responsible for the huge surplus and the consequent low price of the staple, G. H. Penland, president of the Waco Textile Mills, said yesterday. He expressed a hope that the farmers of this section would plant other and more certainly profitable crops and leave cotton to those sections of the state where it is, on account of the nature of the soil and the character of the climate, the best money-maker for the farmers.

"Cotton is not as profitable here," he said, "as other crops; and the very fact that the cotton is planted in such quantities, with the prospect of more land being plowed in it as the surplus of the plains, are not under the stress, has a depressing effect upon the cotton market, whether the cotton is ever gathered or not."

He remarked, with reference to the campaign to reduce cotton acreage "that the best thing to do is not to ask, 'we will reduce,' but to say 'now, let's everybody plant as much cotton as he can.' Then the farmers will say, 'Oh, if everybody else is going to plant cotton, I won't,' and the desired reduction will be automatic. As it is, farmers, thinking to profit by the other man's reduction in acreage, will plant as much as or more than before, and the situation will grow worse."

Court of Justice Not So Serious as Many Think, Veteran Newspaper Reporter Finds After Experience

If you happen to be one of those old-fashioned Americans with an idea that law is "dry," and that courts furnish only stern justice, rid yourself of that idea, for you are many moons behind the times.

He Has a Great Work

Yes, the lawyer has a great work. He can help you in time of trouble. He can see that you are given justice if you are called in to face trial.

Many Quiet Lawyers Successful

Some of our most successful lawyers do most of their work behind closed doors in their own offices. They are civil lawyers and are too busy to be working in a criminal court.

Court is Not Serious

When you walk into a court room you have a depressed feeling, but before you are there ten minutes you are laughing and shouting.

up this plan before long-winded lawyers were made, so it means very little at this time. For after the lawyers made their pathetic pleas—one claiming innocence and the other guilt and both equally as positive, the jury is so settled to think that they take the court's written instructions and remain to a silent place where they can enjoy a good smoke and discuss the matter. Finally they vote.

Often Quite Satisfactory

But that is quite satisfactory. He can so steel another calf and that will give his lawyer another job. And who wants to see a poor devil go to the penitentiary anyway?

County court there is not such formality, and in justice court there is still less, and by the time you get into police court all formality is gone.

80,000 WATCH YALE BEAT HARVARD 12 TO 7

MISSOURI UNIVERSITY DEDICATES STADIUM WITH VICTORY OVER KANSAS

TWO SPECTACULAR FIELD GOALS AFTER SENSATIONAL PASS FOR 30 YARD PUTS BLUE INTO LEAD

(By The Associated Press)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—Thrusting two mighty feet out of the shadow of threatening defeat, a bruised and battered Yale Blue team kicked its way to victory over Harvard before a throng of 80,000 in the New Haven bowl today, 12 to 7.

Two spectacular field goals by Jerry Wadsworth and Captain Tibby Bunnell focused the game for the Blue in the second half after a sensational 28 yard pass had unexpectedly put the Crimson out in front by a single point 7 to 6. Leaping into the fray, a minute man from the side lines who had sought over the cross in the fourth period from a point near the forty yard line.

Bunnell gives climax. It remained for Bunnell, however, to contribute a spectacular climax to the struggle. His drop kick was one of the longest of the season, the ball sailing over the cross in the fourth period from a point near the forty yard line.

For a time during the gripping struggle of the ancient rivals it appeared that Yale, in spite of a more alert and versatile attack, would fall short of victory. As it so often had done before in the first two periods, three times in the first three periods the Ell soldiers of the gridiron pushed in within scoring range, only to see the place kicks of the husky Strathairn travel wide of the uprights. But when Strathairn failed, two other sturdy warriors of the Blue succeeded, and under the clouds of their unerring toes, Yale dropped the curtain of triumph over four successive defeats in a glorious finish.

Harvard Team Erratic. Although the Crimson team's stunning touchdown by Slattery in the third period raised Crimson hopes of a victory over Yale for the first time since 1922, Harvard mistakes were too frequent and glaring to take any amount of encouragement. Blocked kicks and fumbled passes in the first part of the game, Harvard territory, Strathairn going over for Yale's touchdown in the second period after Bunnell had stopped a punt by Coody and sent it rolling toward the Crimson goal line.

Undeclared Teams to Meet Turkey Day in Dallas

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 20.—The only two undeclared teams in the conference will oppose each other on Thanksgiving day at the new Owenby stadium in Dallas when the T. C. U. Frogs and the S. M. U. Mustangs line up for battle. T. C. U. also has the added honor of a victory over the Oklahoma Aggies, first place team in the Missouri Valley.

The Mustangs have already won the Southwestern conference championship on consecutive years should they lose to T. C. U. But the Mustangs feel that it would be a hollow title unless they went through the season undefeated and for that reason will prepare for the Turkey day tilt as if it meant the championship. Everyone is in line shape with the exception of Corteseglia, who was injured in the battle with Chris Howard and Logan Ford, however, and he will be ready to go against the Frogs.

The game has been dedicated to three of the Mustangs whose football careers will come to a close with the Frogs game. The men to whom it is dedicated are Co-Captain Howard Wade, Chris Corteseglia and Logan Ford, each of whom is training hard to turn in their best game.

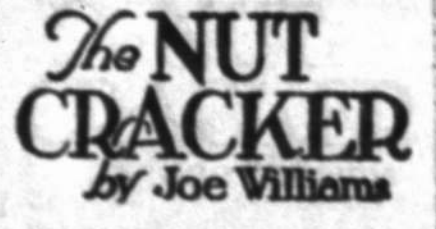

Wade at full, Corteseglia at half and Ford at center have been leading lights in the conference victory this year for the Mustangs. Their comrades say that they have played the game and played it hard and that the youngsters all the glory that has been heaped upon them by the S. M. U. supporters. The trio's teammates believe that Chris Howard and Logan Ford deserve a tribute and are determined to give it to them in the shape of a final victory.

Tickets for the game are selling rapidly in both Fort Worth and Dallas. It is Home Coming day for the S. M. U. Alumni and they will be on the Mustang hill by the hundreds. Many T. C. U. Alumni will attend the contest also. A crowd of twenty thousand people is expected.

"Better Than Grange"

LACK OF CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT FAILS TO DULL LUSTRE OF TILT FEATURING AGGIES AND LONGHORNS

(By The Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 20.—Football with all its colorful trimmings, will hold sway here Thursday, when the Texas University Longhorns and Texas Aggies renew their gridiron rivalry so rich in tradition.

The Thanksgiving Day tilt between the Orange and White and the Red and White will have no bearing on the championship of the Southwest Conference, as was usually the case a few years ago, but this fact does not faintly the luster of the attraction. The rivalry between these two schools is the oldest and the dearest in this section, and thousands of alumni of each school will pour into the Varsity Memorial Stadium here to watch the struggle which promises to be a glorious one in every respect.

Expect 40,000 Fans. L. Theo. Belmont, Texas university athletic director, estimated that 40,000 fans will see the battle. Close to 25,000 tickets already have been sold, and there is always a last hour rush. The game will mark the opening of the completed "horseshoe" of the stadium. Workmen now are laboring overtime to get ready the north section which will seat 12,000, and which is the "curve" of the horseshoe.

The contest between the rooting sections will be as keen as that between Coach "Doc" Stewart's Longhorns and Coach Denn N. Hibel's Aggies. Close to 4,000 students of Texas University will do their best to watch in vantage the thunder of 2,000 hand-clad cadets' yelling. The Aggies are known the country over for their splendid rooting.

Girls to Be Features. The outstanding feature from the point of mass publicity will be approximately 1,500 Texas university girls arrayed in white and carrying orange balloons. Should the Longhorns score a touchdown, the balloons will be hoisted into the air.

Couch Ray Morrison's prancing Ponies of Southern Methodist university eliminated both the Longhorns and the Aggies from the conference title chase. The Ponies, conference champions, defeated the Aggies, 9-7, and the Longhorns 21-17, both games at the Longhorns and Aggies, rank among the strongest in history of the schools despite their disappointing seasons.

A stirring offensive battle is anticipated. Coach Stewart and Hibel fashioned during offensives for the Ponies, and each team Turkey Day is expected to "shoot the works" from the offensive standpoint. The lines of the rival eleven play a shabbing type of football and reflect credit on Rothberg, the Aggie line coach and "Wild Bill" James, the line coach of the Longhorns.

Aggies Given Edge. The Aggie offensive built around the versatile Joel Hunt appears to have a slight edge on the Orange and White attack, but the fact the Longhorns will be playing on their home field, and will be striving to avenge the 28-9 licking handed them last year by the Aggie counterbalancing any superiority the Red and White may have on the offensive.

The Aggie chance of victory will be enhanced if Spratt, tackle who was injured in an early game, is able to get back in harness. There is a possibility that Spratt will start, though Coach Hibel is not counting too heavily on this possibility.

In Rufus King, the Longhorn anchor to have the best line anchor of either team, though "Bumming Rufus" will have a worthy rival in "Toby" Woodman, stocky Aggie player.

It is encouraging to note that the ardent football fans in the Big Three have taken to rooting the players. Maybe they are regular followers after all.

TIGERS CARRY FIGHT FROM START WITH NO SERIOUS JAWHAWK THREAT AS 25,000 SPECTATORS BRAVE COLD

Matadors Expected to Win Turkey Day Clash

The Matadors of the Tech have shown to quite an advantage in the last two games both of which were on their home grid. For this reason they are expected to make a good showing at Canyon on Turkey day when they encounter those determined Buffaloes. Even though the Scarlet will be on foreign soil it is expected that a special train of over five hundred will accompany the squad for this last game for this year, marking the descent of the curtain on the great season of football for the fall of 1926.

If the boys successfully ford this last barrier they will have equalled their first season record when only one game was lost. The only spot marking the present record is the T. C. U. defeat.

Meeting Expectations. If they turn the trick Thursday they will have more than come up to any possible early season expectations when a sure enough hard schedule lay just ahead, and will have brought honor to themselves and their school.

But, it is far from recorded that the game at Canyon will be won or lost. It is a question very much in the balance, for the Buffaloes have been pointed all season to this final game which is the climax of West Texas grid events for the year and they are doggedly determined that they shall have revenge for the defeat of a year ago Thanksgiving when the Matadors nudged them out by a score of 12-13 in Lubbock. A colorful game will be the natural result of those notes.

Tickets on Sale. Tickets for the game are on sale in Lubbock at the College and at the Lubbock Hotel Drug Co. for $1.00. These same tickets will cost $1.50 in Canyon if not bought before leaving Lubbock. Tickets for the special train at the extra low rate of $2.55 for the round trip are on sale at the college. The train will leave at 8 a. m. Thursday morning, Thanksgiving Day, and Tech is going to be in Canyon strong on that date.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, COLUMBIA Mo., Nov. 20(19)—Climaxing their 1926 gridiron season with a 15 to 9 victory over the Kansas Jayhawks, the University of Missouri Tigers formally dedicated their new memorial stadium here today in the annual homecoming day classic staged in a downfall of snow.

Approximately 25,000 spectators who braved the storm watched the Tigers average the 10 to 7 defeat which Kansas administered to them last year at Lawrence. Missouri carried the fight from the starting whistle and the Jayhawks at no time during the game seriously threatened to cross the Tiger goal line.

Aerial Attack Effective. Staging their greatest aerial attack of the season, the husky Tigers easily outclassed the often defeated Kansas in every department of the game except in punting where Tiger, star halfback of the Jayhawk aggregation, stood out prominently.

Missouri started the game exceptionally, crowding the Kansas down the field. The Jayhawk line stiffened, however, when the Tigers threatened to score early in the first period. Finding their offense checked, the Bengals attempted to score by the field goal route but Gann's try from the 22 yard line went wide of the goal posts.

Wichita Falls Is Ruled Out of League

WICHITA FALLS, Nov. 20. (P)—Wichita Falls High school, one of the three schools remaining in the district No. 1 University of Texas interscholastic league championship race, was ruled out Friday at a meeting of the district executive committee at Quanah, which ruled that the Coyotes had violated section 17, article 5 of the league code, which decrees that a football coach must be a full time employee of the school.

The protest arose over the assistance that Coach A. Y. (Bud) McCullum has received aid from his brother, Brown McCullum, in tutoring the team that is highly favored to win the championship of this district.

BOUT POSTPONED. PONCA CITY, Okla., Nov. 20. (P)—Postponement of the bout in which Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, was scheduled to appear here Friday, November 26, was announced today by promoters.

Stanford Win Over California Keeps Slate Clean

(By Associated Press)
BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 20.—Stanford university downed the University of California eleven here today by a score of 41 to 6, clinching the Pacific coast conference championship and remaining undefeated for the season.

Crushing the golden bear under a stunning offensive, Stanford rolled off a pair of touchdowns in the opening period, followed it with two more in the next quarter and ended a brilliant display of football in the final 15 minutes with as many more pointings over the line of its traditional rival.

California's single tally came in the second period after blocking a cardinal punt.

Thrilling runs by Hysand and the heady line plunging of Hagan, the star half back spotted Stanford for a lightning California eleven which added its conference season without a letdown and five defeats.

Kansas Aggies Fail in Rally Losing to Ames 3 to 2

(By Associated Press)
MEMORIAL STADIUM, MANHATTAN, Kans., Nov. 20.—The Kansas Aggies today in the fourth quarter came within four inches of what was to have been a thrilling last minute victory over the Ames eleven, only to have the crimson line stiffen and prevent a score. The game, the last of the season for the Aggies, ended 2 to 1 in favor of Ames, a decided upset in the dusk.

After the two teams had battled through three periods without scoring, Coe Ames captain, started things near the middle of the final quarter by hitting a long field goal giving his team a three point lead. A second later this same had dashed fifty yards to the without goal set to be called back because one of his teammates was outside on the play.

Opening a desperate offensive onslaught, the Aggie drove to the goal line only to be halted and Ames resorted to the strategy of downing the ball behind the goal line for an Aggie safety carrying two points, rather than risk a fumble and a possible without touchdown.

CHAMPAIN, Ill., Nov. 20 (P)—Ohio state overcame a thrilling 7 to 6 victory from Illinois in the final game of the Western Conference season today but the 35,000 adventurous spectators were given the thrill of their lives when in the last few seconds of play, Illinois came within an ace of taking the score.

ing and brilliant feature of the afternoon contest; it was a triple pass. Powell to Smith to Reynolds, for 45 yards. Reynolds received the ball and raced through a flock of Sandies and successfully eluded them all with excellent sidestepping and a remarkable broken field run.

Coming back after a fifteen minute recess, the Sandies unloaded a mighty offensive drive, and Bassett, who bore the brunt of the Sandie defense and offense machine, with the aid of Borden, crashed, ripped and tore huge holes in the Westerner defense and marched down from midfield to score early in the opening of the second half. Bassett kicked the goal for extra point. Even though a steady march brought them to striking distance, the Sandies found themselves up against an almost impenetrable defense wall and made the down before the counter only by inches.

Deadlock

Both clubs battled to a deadlock during the last period and neither was able to put over additional scoring as they clamored for possession of the goal to engage in the aerial attack. Risk after risk was taken by Bassett in this last period desperately endeavoring to put over a counter, for if a touchdown was made, the game would swing to the Amarillo grid performers and settle them to battle with the winners of the season half of section one of the Texas Interscholastic League.

Unlike Bassett, Powell, the cool headed general of the Westerners, led his club through a procedure of very conservative and safe plays in the last period, steadily wearing away the time until the final down would be called. However, in the last few minutes of the play, the Von Tungenen had a chance to score after Brothers received a thirty yard pass from Smith, which placed the ball on the Amarillo 20 yard line; at this turn of the game, Reynolds, speedy fullback, with remarkable broken field running ability, was sent in to kick the game ends, but as he ran on the field he greeted his team mates with expressions of gratitude which cost his club fifteen yards for talking. This ended the chances for another counter for the Lubbock crew.

Winning this encounter not only means much to the lads, but to the coaches as well. Coach Von Tungenen and Frnk presented to the lads, just prior to the beginning of the game, a football trophy which is to remain permanently in the Lubbock high school and each Westerner club that accomplishes a victory over both Amarillo and Plainview, will have their names engraved on the trophy. The Coaches scored a victory in that their club was the first to be engraved on the valued gift.

Woffarth Great On Defense
"Tufty" Woffarth was easily the most valued man on the Westerners had on defense. Playing his first game at backing up the line "Tufty" time and again smothered the charging Sandie backs and many times threw them back for no gain. He truly put up a fight of a veteran at backing the line up and on every instance the stucky built lad found muddling in the offense attacks of the Sandies. Bassett and Bishop played a great game against the Westerners. Bassett's drives on offense and Bishop's defensive game was indeed a characteristic feature of the Sandies showing with the Lubbock crew.

An excellent combination was shown this afternoon in the Westerner backfield. Led by Powell, who called an excellent game and whose generalship led the Westerners to a championship title, the Westerner backs, Smith, Reynolds, and Dollahite made up a smooth running and working machine.

No Checkee—No Washee!

HOWD' you like to spend a full game playing against this 230-pound Chink? Neither would we. The ferocious-looking fellow with all the avoidipolis is George "Tiny" Leong, star linebacker on the High School of Commerce team, San Francisco. Showing a play through "Tiny" is an assignment few teams care to tackle. He just brushes opponents aside and tosses the runner for a loss. With "Tiny" the laundry business is just a side line. When he says "No checkee—no washee," the customer never argues.

MOST SUCCESSFUL COURT SINCE THE DEATH OF DALTON, SAYS MULLICAN; HE DROPS 34 CASES WITH FAULTY RECORDS

Forty-five Billed by Grand Jury The October term of district court, which closed Friday evening, and officially went into history at 12 o'clock last night, has been termed by Judge Clark M. Mulligan as one of the most successful sessions "since the death of Parke N. Dalton." Many cases that have been on the docket for some time were disposed of, nearly two score criminal cases by the route of dismissal due to disappearance of search warrants, defective indictments and insufficient evidence.

A total of 34 criminal cases were dismissed from the docket, 18 of them due to disappearance of search warrants, 14 due to defective indictments and 2 due to insufficient evidence. Quite a number of other cases were dismissed because of defective indictments. Judge Clark M. Mulligan said, but were not released inasmuch as the grand jury which adjourned Saturday returned new indictments. Criminal cases dismissed for causes outlined above:

Cases Dismissed Search warrant missing: A. L. Hoffman (two cases); Emmet Nickel, (3 cases); P. E. Nickel, Red Ashcraft, Jack Atkins, George Nicholson, Fred Cobb, Wiley Ector, Don F. McCormis, W. T. Middleton, Fred Traver, H. O. Buck, Buford Abbott, J. L. Conlan and Richard Stone.

Defective indictments: H. G. Whitehead, Mrs. Annie (four cases); E. G. Winton, R. L. Tackness, Neal Whit, M. C. Boyd, John B. Dabney (two cases); J. H. Childers, J. W. Dillon and Claude Anderson.

Insufficient evidence: W. G. Myrick, and Richard Stone. Cases Filed Recently All these cases, with probably two exceptions, were filed in the interim between the death of Parke N. Dalton and assumption of the oath of office by L. A. Howard, under whose prosecution the state has carried on its criminal matters the past term. Judge Mulligan said. With four exceptions, all cases charged with violation of some phase of the prohibition law. These four were Richard Stone, criminal assault; Mrs. Annie Herndon, forgery; E. G. Winton, seduction; and R. L. Tackness, burglary by breaking.

"We have just closed the most successful term of the criminal court side of the district court since the death of Parke N. Dalton," Judge Mulligan said in commenting on the term. "It shows what a conscientious and cooperative effort can accomplish. Attorney Lauded

"As for L. A. Howard and Owen McWhorter, they have accomplished more in two weeks than has been accomplished in the whole period of time since Mr. Dalton died. A great service has been rendered the county, showing what study, work and harmony can do. The law has come back to Lubbock, and the criminal, for a time at least, is on the run."

SILLY BLOKE LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Prince of Wales is amused by a recent telegram from an American couple about to visit Europe. It read: "Mrs. — and I will be honored if you will dine with us on our visit to London next month. Name your company and your date." One of the prince's friends suggested that the sender might be related to the man who rushed up to the prince in New York saying, "Say, King, my name's King, too." His royal highness is quite unaware of the identity of his would-be hosts.

CROWNS COP NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Hyman Prussack was king of the pretzel benders. Over long years he had established his reputation as world's champion bender of the doughy delicacies. But when he received President William F. Reilly, he chose the wrong kind of a crown. The president told the judge Hyman had "crowned him" with a plate of corned beef and cabbage. Considering that it was Hyman's first offense and that the world needs good pretzels, the judge let Hyman off.

Alleged Derogatory Remark About Woman Costs Life of New Mexico Policeman
DEMING, New Mexico, Nov. 20 (AP)—Warrants charging Miss Joan Drake

Noonan was shot and killed early Friday after being called from the city

The motive for the murder was to redress an alleged derogatory remark said by Miss Drake to have been made concerning her by the dead officer.

Store Service

As we see it, means something more than the exchange of money for goods or the delivery of a full round dollar's worth of value for every dollar spent.
We believe that a store should be alert, keen to please and always ready with a pleasant answer. Please feel free to ask questions here—we want you!
While the variety in stocks should be wide, it should not be so simply for the purpose of making the broadness of the showing cover up the sin of omission of good values.
Since the customer always expects newness and novelty, these features will never be conspicuous—by their absence here.
A store should be willing to receive criticism in a friendly spirit because the little faults which others see we sometimes cannot see ourselves. We in this store are always learning—we do not think we "know it all."
We believe that the good will of the people is our strongest asset and because the character of the service rendered determines the amount of good will a store shall have, we try to round out this service by doing better today than yesterday and making tomorrow better than today.

With New Railroad Certain City Now Turns Its Eyes Toward Numerous Plans of Municipal Development

By A. B. SLAGLE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With the announcement here Friday of the coming of the Denver railroad, the project on which South Plains people have been working for about three years—another step in Lubbock's forward program—attention is now being turned to certain phases of city improvement and a beautification program that will be in keeping with such a situation.

Paramount possibly among such suggestions at this time is additional paving for which it is expected contracts will be asked in the near future, and some kind of concerted action for beautification of the parkways, in the center of certain streets on which paving is already down, notably Broadway and Avenue Q.

Plans Ahead Ready

Announcement was made from the office of the city engineer Saturday that plans and specifications for additional paving in residential sections have just about been completed, and that the city commission probably will take up the matter at the meeting the coming week. It is expected that contracts will be authorized at the session, which probably will be Thursday.

The plans call for extension of paving on Avenue L, now Texas Avenue, south from 14th to 19th, Avenue H north of the railroad crossing to the city limits, 12th St. west of Avenue Q to College Avenue, and possibly all of 19th St. from Avenue I to College Avenue.

City's Funds in Hand

The city is prepared to carry on its part of the program, or at least a major part of it, through a surplus left from the last program, and no additional bond issue is necessary at this time, it is said. Just two months of the contemplated program, however, can be handled by the city on present funds, will not be known until after completion of the plans, and estimates of cost. The bulk of the paving will be laid on natural base, according to present plans, which costs on an average of 19 to 25 per cent less than paving on concrete base, even though the concrete base is recognized as far more substantial and permanent.

The contract, however, probably will call for a five-year maintenance on all construction work, as is provided for on all pavement laid heretofore in the city. Avenue Q paving is on a natural base, and although an occasional weak spot is in evidence, the project as a whole is standing up as expected. Many property owners, though, counter to this with the assertion that they would rather pay the slight difference and get a grade of paving with concrete base that is known to stand up.

Plan Parkway Improvement

While this movement is under way, many interested citizens of the city, notably women club leaders, have mentioned a concerted drive for beautification of the parkways on Broadway and Avenue Q, including the planting of trees and shrubbery in the un paved strips through the center of the streets.

Such strips, in their opinion were left for two reasons, one of which was for economy, and the other—more important—for carrying on a program of beautification. The wide streets these ladies say, will easily permit the planting of trees and shrubbery in the center, adding much to the looks of the street and the city as a whole.

No concerted program has yet been outlined, according to information, but plans are under way to aid city officials in carrying out what was outlined as their plans when the paving was laid in the manner called for.

Big Ben Is Cracked Fraternity Learns

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Big Ben is cracked. Most all radio fans who have heard on their sets the clock strike the hours from the Westminster Tower, thought there was a flaw in the bell and this is confirmed by W. Houghton, of the Ancient College of Youths, England's oldest bell-ringing fraternity.

He says professional bell-ringers agree that Big Ben is so cracked "that you can stick your arm through the fracture."

NOT SO SURE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 20.—A. N. Napoleon was sure that Senator Butler would be re-elected this fall. He, after the election, he had to walk ten blocks in the business district in the day time, clad only in his pajamas, to pay a friend, but he had made with a Democrat friend.

Kerchoo!

Oh, what a cold! Napoleon, prize orang-outang of the Philadelphia zoo, is suffering from a bad one. Pennsylvania weather doesn't compare with that of the African jungle, he snuffles.

South Plains Now Sure Of Good Year

"The South Plains has been assured another good year," cried a Lubbock citizen Friday when he learned of the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to permit the building of another railroad into this city.

He figures he will go to Estelline, open a hamburger joint, and follow the boom right into Lubbock. By the time he reaches this city he feels that his joint will have grown into a modern 15-story hotel.

The drought in Colombia this year so greatly handicapped water transportation that prices of foodstuffs in the interior are soaring, and the government may be asked to alleviate conditions.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM DRAWS ATTENTION

NINE COUNTIES PLANNING SIMULTANEOUS VOTING ON BOND ISSUES

The construction program of permanent highways in this part of the state, relegated somewhat the past day or two by the talk of more railroads since announcement of the Denver permit Friday, is nevertheless receiving its share of consideration among some of the inhabitants of the Plains.

George Lister, engineer with the state department, now located in Floyd county, who was here Saturday said that exceptionally good progress is being made on a contemplated hard surface program on the Lea highway (state designation No. 28), from Vernon to Farwell in Texas.

Representatives Meet

Representatives of nine counties affected directly by the program met in Lockney last week, he said, following a series of former meetings, when plans were drawn up for the calling of an election, temporarily set for January 4, 1927. At this time, property owners in all nine counties, the lying due east and west between Vernon and Farwell, will vote simultaneously on bonds for the project.

The movement is considered one of the biggest concerted efforts ever put forth in the opinion of Mr. Lister, will have a great bearing on the future road building progress in this part of the state. The date for the election is yet only temporary, and may be changed if wise said.

Bond Issues Vary

Various affected counties will vote on bond issues of varying amounts, some of them to include in this issue other roads in the county, while in the more sparsely settled sections the highway project is the only one that will be submitted.

Farmer, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Hardeman, and Wilbarger counties are the ones directly affected by the project and citizens of these nine counties are very optimistic regarding the project, Mr. Lister said.

LARGEST PAN

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A new coal mine fan, the largest ever built, pumps 25 tons of air a minute. It will be operated at an altitude of 4400 feet above sea level in South Africa, and with engine and other equipment will cost $38,000. Powerful air control of this type prevents explosions and protects the health of workmen.

In at Last

South Dakota Democrats, after many long years, are "in" at last. They have elected a governor for the first time since 1898. He's W. J. Bulow (above) of Berea, S. D.

Two Fines Paid In To City Yesterday

One drunk was given a $15 fine in police court Saturday morning, and a woman paid $2 for driving over a stop signal. A negro will also pay off for a similar offense.

People who owe the city payments on back fines are slowly coming in paying them off.

UNDERGROUND FIRES

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Underground fires are often found in the neighborhood of coal mines. The other day a seam of smoldering coal eight yards underground was discovered at Sheffield. These fires are hard to put out. One which was found in a Scottish mine smoldered and burnt for years.

A firm in Melbourne, Australia, is seeking to have its printing done in America.

"Too Many Game Hogs," Chief Game Warden Here Charges in Opening Campaign to Enforce State Laws

"Too many game hogs," E. E. Wofford, district state game warden said yesterday in speaking of the present hunting season. "We've got a line on them, though, and intend to make each pay a penalty," he added. Wofford said that there was too much breaking of the big limit in the county and shooting game out of season. As his office is one of authority in this section, he intends to see that all violators of the game laws are punished.

He's In Earnest

Wofford is earnest in his appeal for observance of the game laws and states that the violators will not receive any leniency whatsoever. Some of the fines for violation of the laws run as high as $200 and can be assessed for each animal killed.

He states that there may be a few of the hunters who are not well enough versed on the laws. They should make a study of the fine points at least, he says. No hunting is allowed between one half hour after sunset and one half hour before sunrise, and Wofford states that a number of hunters in this section have violated this law. A fine of from $25 to $100 goes with all violations of this law.

Prairie Chickens Taboo

No prairie chickens may be killed now, the season only being for the first ten days of September. Wild ducks of all kinds may be shot until January 21. Quail season opened Nov. 16 and will close January 1. Wild bear and deer seasons are open until December 31.

The box limits, Wofford says, are what the hunters must watch. Only one bear is allowed in a season, and two buck deer, must have three points or more. Ducks may be killed as high as 25 per day and not more than fifty in one week. Geese can not be bagged at the rate of four per day.

Five prairie chickens in one day is the limit for these birds and quail have a limit of 12 a day and not more than 26 in one week. Only three turkey gobblers may be killed in a season, any number of sparrows, blackbirds, crows, buzzards, owls, hawks, woodpeckers and other small animals, and birds may be killed in any amount.

You cannot hunt from an automobile.

WOMAN SENATOR VISITS AT CANYON

CARTHAGE WOMAN MEMBER OF GOVERNING BODY OF NORMAL THERE

(Special To The Avalanche Journal)

CANYON, Nov. 20.—Miss Margie Neal, of Carthage, Texas, and senator-elect from the second district, has visited the West Texas State Teachers College during the past week. Miss Neal, who is the first woman ever to serve on the governing board of a co-educational state institution in Texas, has been coming to Canyon at intervals for six years.

While here she said, "The two greatest changes which I have observed in the Teachers College at Canyon are the greatly increased attendance and the great improvement in the student body of the College. Six years ago the young people in college seemed very immature, and most of them seemed to come from very poor homes. This reflects the change that has taken place in the great Panhandle territory from which these students come."

Miss Neal went on to say, "Everywhere I see the most remarkable evidences of the growth of this section. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in bringing much of this about. This organization has made West Texas known and interesting to every section of the United States. It will continue to do this, and to bring hundreds of valuable citizens to this new fertile country from the Old South, the North, and the East."

Miss Neal is greatly interested in educational problems, she declares that she has no hobby, and that although she is the first woman to sit in the Texas senate she refuses to go as the special representative of women; that she is the representative of the men, women and children of Texas, and not any group of them.

Rear view mirrors, similar to those for automobiles, have been perfected to hang on the front of women's hats so that the fair wearers may know what is going on behind their back.

Robert E. Lee's Niece Weds

Miss Mary Lee Leach, niece of General Robert E. Lee, has been married, in Chicago, to Robert Emmet Marwood, 24, youngest member of the Alabama state legislature. The two attended the state university in Alabama together. The picture, taken just after the ceremony, shows Mrs. Leach, the bride's sister (left), and the bride and groom.

of moving the new Friday afternoon with women in attendance with cutting up for our people with a knife. This salad is adaptable to any color scheme, she explained.

Shows New Dishes
The lesson Thursday afternoon on salad and dressings was devoted largely to making decorations for salads, with Mrs. Chitwood showing new methods of making flowers and other novelties. It is now very popular to make individual plates for parties or other occasions. The advantage of these decorations is that they may be made and stored for use when needed and they will keep indefinitely if properly stored, she explained.

When Miss Chitwood's lesson is finished, she explained the challenge of good cookery and said she would be glad to give a lesson on it in such a way as to retain the method shown and have a better look at the new dishes of the profession. She has in her kitchen a hand computer with which she can calculate the cost of any recipe and also the amount of ingredients, cutting and sale of food in Lubbock.

Mrs. Chitwood attempts to teach cooking in the United States annually, learning new cooking methods and principles which she brings to women throughout the country in her regular cooking schools. She changes her methods yearly, bringing more up-to-date and more economical methods to the housewives and demonstrating to them methods of decorating the table and preparing them that are good in both-colored dishes in the simpler class.

Recipes given by Mrs. Chitwood during the week are not being published at this time and she explained to her society at the first of the week that they must attend the school to get her recipes and those who came tonight, besides and husbands each afternoon of the week, thinking as one woman said, "What I didn't have time to cook, but I'll get other things cooking daily and a cooking school comes that way a year."

With miscellaneous featuring coming to the first afternoon, the school closed with the Dell Lee Cream concert under the direction of R. L. McNeill, singing, Pyrocks, vocal, and black walnut cream to all the women in attendance.

INDIA IRRIGATES

Federated Clubs

will be no misunderstanding about the federation and in the future those delegates. The division of music was given much attention throughout the sessions and an even greater interest is steadily being stimulated. Our own seventh district has the distinct honor of having a state chairman in the division of music, Mrs. I. D. Cole, of Amarillo.

There is no looking backward in the federation, what mistakes may have been made are expunged and the great organization faces steadily forward. As in previous conventions, part of the work of the delegate body was to make plans for the ensuing year; plans that in their wisdom and comprehensive group of the subjects to be handled, take the Texas federation on to greater achievements and greater heights in the year that has now begun.

Evolution of Coffee Roasting

THREE was a day when every batch did its own roasting and grinding of coffee. Figures 1 and 2 show early and the type of home roasters or "bangers" as they were called, which were brought to America on the Millennium. Mr. New Englander went to the Coffee Market and bought the green beans at a very low price compared with today. Because coffee was hard to get in the Colonies. She brought it home and roasted it as usual. Both No. 1 and No. 2 roasters were used in an open fireplace; the No. 1 was built and shaken over the fire; while No. 2, a different device was placed over the fire and the coffee stirred constantly to keep it from burning.

THIRTY-one years ago, the Wrights Green Company patented the Southwestern coffee roaster. White Swan Coffee was the development, a perfect blending of the world's best coffee delicately roasted right here in the Southwest so that it may reach every table with all its original quality and fragrance. These roasters, like most of them, were made in the big smokestacks. The coffee roasting plant, the type of roaster used in the United States, is the very best and most improved roaster from the House of John Brown & Sons.

Major Hoople Says All Men Are Grafters That Is If They Are Given Fair Opportunity

By MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

A grafter is a two-legged animal capable of wearing pants, smoking cigars and living off the earnings of those of his species who are unskilful enough to fall his victim. All grafters do not wear pants—a few have been known to wear skirts, but otherwise they look pretty masculine.

There is no way, that we know of, to describe grafters as a whole, so we will give a fair, moderate, well developed panoramic view. If by chance you should think the retouching crude—just keep quiet and remember you have company—the writer agrees with you.

Not A "Mule Skinner"
Generally the term of a grafter is a person who "skins" some other person out of money or valuable property. This is true, but there are many grafters who never had a dollar in their lives, so money isn't the only thing that brings about graft.

For instance, the old crook that hangs around the courthouse hoping to get on the jury as he can pick up a dollar for nothing is a grafter. He wants something for nothing, and he usually gets it.

Sad to say most Americans would just as soon catch the whooping cough as to be caught on the jury. Men who have anything worth while to do are too busy to hang round the courthouse looking for a snap. And lots of good men will lie like a trooper before they will accept jury service.

Well Prove It, By Gum
The above remark is not read like a lie, or at least like foolishness, but it is true, nevertheless. If you doubt our word go over to the courthouse next time court meets and spot those grafters for yourself. Every town and city has its quota of them.

There, there is a fellow who is so chicken-hearted he won't serve on the jury at all. He will disqualify himself in every case even if he has to lie. Anybody with the gumption of a road lizard can do this, for all that is necessary is to state that you have heard about the case and have formed an opinion.

Don't Take It Personally
Now we are not trying to get personal, but are going to speak in a general tone and manner. The cap is not for you, so keep it off of your head—it is for the other fellow.

We will begin with the lawyer. As a rule they are educated men, and many of them are our best citizens, but if we wanted to make a proficient grafter we would seriously consider the studying of law. A lawyer can be honest, but in our 17 years of court reporting we have found a few who were not. A lawyer that will take the case of a black-hearted criminal, defend him by besmirching the character of innocents, insist on misleading the jury for the purpose of blinding them as to the guilt of their client, is a grafter and is greater than the duck he represents. Our laws say a man must have a lawyer to see that he gets justice and advice during his trial, but too many times this lawyer insists on injustice—he asks for, and insists on an acquittal when he knows his client should go to the penitentiary or have his neck broken. A lawyer guilty of such is a grafter. He will hang on, delay trial, postpone his work, scare witnesses out of the country and raise thunder generally until he bleeds his victim to the last drop. Then he lets him drop with a thud that sounds like a sack of mail.

See Doctors, Too
Next to a few of the lawyers come a few of the doctors. He isn't any worse, though he finds his work less honorable—he gets to "graft" the sick and afflicted—people who are unable to fight for their rights. A doctor can be, and many times is, the community's best man. If he "shoots squares" with his patients he is the most loved man in all the country. He stands by your bed when you are ill, puts all the science he knows into practice while trying to alleviate your pains and restore you to health. He is the first one to shed a tear when your soul leaves the body and moves to the Great Beyond. He is a friend to suffering humanity and as such is subject to the respect of all. Yet, if he takes a notion he can be the most dangerous man in all the land.

The doctor can shoot you full of fluor pills, strap you down on an operating table and remove most all your working necessities and make you like it. He can charge you $50.00 for the job, and still make you like it, but if you were not in need of the operation and his "dose" he is a grafter to play upon your weakness. You probably need a dime's worth of 1-grain calomel tablets or a bottle of castor oil. You were not feeling well (sick you thought), and when he began taking a blood test, rubbing a stethoscope over your neck, and looking as wise as a tree full of young ones, it is natural that your heart would speed up a bit. Finally he looks at you with a kind of dazed-in-a-half-storm look and then sadly shakes his head.

Disease Is Understood
By this time you are really sick—you are prepared to hear the worst, and if he suggests that you should have your right ventricle removed and a Ford carburetor substituted in its stead you merely look him to direct you to the nearest hospital. As a matter of fact there is nothing wrong with you, other than "indigestion" and "back ache" and he knows it. But by the time you leave the hospital you will be entirely cured of this for a long time to come. Often it is permanent.

Very few doctors will do this kind of work, and when he is found out he is bounced out of the fraternity, but not until his victim has been blind.

Oh Them Prescriptions
A doctor will give you a prescription which reads about like this: Hydrag-Chlor, Mite, cr. V, Pluv, Julop Comp, at N. South-Bear, at X. Mite, Flat (Chl. No. 11. It's a perfectly good prescription and you have many times taken it, or a similar one. It beats butcher knives when it comes to getting results, and isn't half so dangerous. You got six little powder compound of the following: Calomel, five grains; Julop 20 grains; and a little sprinkling of Aru and Hammer soda. The doctor gets your quarter if he gives you a quarter dollar if he doesn't, and you're cured.

failure when he learned that his wife was attending a revival meeting. But when he is dead he is silent, and his wife—poor soul—insists on a Christian burial service. A minister is called and when he goes to take notes on this fellow's good deeds he learns that he served one term in the pen for catfish roasting, was indicted for making moonshine, had a teacher fired because he insisted on reading the Bible in the public school, and quit his lodge when he learned that the weekly dues had been called off on account of the said revival meeting.

He Has Tough Job
The headliner is up against a real proposition. He must look sad and say a few kind words, and he will find it difficult to tell the truth and not wound the widow. So he gently speaks of the good traits of the deceased, and makes it up to the public where he will spend eternity. If he even mentions heaven in connection with his subject he very easily comes under the head of grafter. What he should say is this: "Here is the body of John Doe. He died as he lived—hard worked, a sinner, if the Bible is true his soul is now in Hell, and nobody will miss him, but his widow, and she will forget him as soon as her black eye heals."

The merchant who tells you that you are buying an all-wool garment when he knows it is half cotton is a grafter. The butcher that will grind up half beef, mix it up with lard compound and all it pure pork sausage is double distilled grafter, but you can buy "pork sausage" that never heard of a hog.

Painless Dentist
A dentist that charges you for painless there are very few of this variety of a grafter. You can not have a tooth extracted and have to come back and more than you can have your leg jacked off. Novocaine, cocaine and other brands of pain will deaden the nerve for a time, but when it wears off you will have "pain" and "pain."

A stoolpillion is a grafter and is about the most worthless despised fellow in the community. He hasn't nerve enough to come out in the open, but plays on your confidence—gets you to violate the law and then catches on you. He helps the regular officer very little, and they never respect him. He is one of those atoms of humanity that should never have been.

Some Teachers Graft, Too
Teachers are often grafters—they draw salaries to teach when they know nothing to teach. They "cream" the state board, get a certificate, and then play on the ignorance of others. They should be going to school—not teaching.

Real estate dealers are sometimes grafters. If they sell you a lot in the "best section" of the city, and you later find that it is a kind of gulley filled with tin cans and only three blocks from city town you have a right to class him as a grafter. If he sells you a farm when he knows there is no water on it and never will be, he is a grafter. As one great fellow can dig all the way to China and the first water he strikes will be when he taps a fire plug in House-Long.

How About Chicken Salad?
A packer or market man who will sell you bull neck for venison is a grafter. Or someone it may be that he considers all his meat in the best class so long as he can take a hamper and cold chicken and block it up. But the world looks upon him as a grafter, too.

A dairyman who waters his milk is a grafter, and when he is caught he will pay for the folly. An insurance man has said for the benefit of city dairymen: "A cow is no way resembles a pump."

Newspapermen Sometimes Graft
And now take the newspaperman. We know from personal experience that there are grafters in the newspaper game—yes, really. The bird who will write a flattery story and file it off on the public to get from column over to the courthouse and getting a real story, is likewise a grafter and in the same class with the other grafts mentioned here. The honest advertising peddler who sells you an ad which will appear in the annual edition of the Post-Gazette when he knows you won't get a dime's worth of good out of it is a grafter, too, and in the opinion of honest newspaper men it may be should be put in the penitentiary, after the change in administration.

It would be possible for us to go on and on describing grafters. As a matter of fact it seems that most people are grafters if they find an opportunity. Deception is all they need. Give them a chance and you know how much they will do. So the practice is universal, maybe it is not a sin, so let's all be happy. The doctors are no worse than the lawyers, and the preachers are no worse than the doctors. And the teachers are as good as any other class. So why worry about the grafters? They all of us do not know how much about the other fellow's graft for if we did we would be the most unhappy people imaginable. As long as we know nothing about it we are happy—let's stay that way.

If You've Never Been Hungry You Are A Neophyte; Kid Days Easily Recalled

BY TOM CAUFIELD
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Ever been hungry? That means hungry; no food in either the external commissary departments, and no prospects of any. It's a real experience, and one which the doughboys used to say in France you wouldn't take a million dollars for having had, and couldn't give a dime to have again.

Certain Meals Stand Out

Regardless of what a man prefers, food certain meals will stand out in his memory as events. In some cases this is because of hunger; in some because of the sheer excitement of the food served; in some—well, company adds to meals.

An artilleryman in the A. E. F. down in the sandy pine country which borders the Bay of Biscay, walked a few miles into the French village of La Teste one day, fell on that army chow which is reputed, and rightly, to be the best food given any soldier in the world, but which nevertheless has a certain excitement and following the advice of a comrade who had preceded him into the village, sought a little vine-covered stone house on the outskirts of the place, and asked the black-eyed woman there for food.

She set before him a great piece of roast pork, a whole roasted yellow foot of turkey, and green vegetables with an oil dressing and what looked like twenty pounds of country butter, fresh and sweet. "Go to it, soldier," she said in French—which he didn't understand. He went to it looking without envy through a little back door into a flower-filled garden where other and better acquainted soldiers were dining, the whole later ascribed to be "the best cherry brandy ever made." The artilleryman at the table was busy with roast pork and black bread to bother about cherry brandy. He remembers that meal, which cost him two francs. He has forgotten what he ate in Paris, what he ate in New York, where two francs would buy a pot of better much less twenty pounds.

"The Lord Will Provide"

Two transients Friday morning in Asheville, North Carolina, spent their last nickel for four rolls. The next day was Saturday, and was the birthday of one of the transients, so he refused to look for the work which was apparently necessary before food would be available. "This is my lucky day," he said, and called every half hour at the general delivery window of the postoffice. In the last delivery, at 7 o'clock, he found a money order from his father's home—a birthday present. He and his fellow transient ate a meal which took the place of luncheon and dinner Friday, and breakfast and lunch Saturday. They ate it in a little brick stand at a counter behind which was a savoring zipper kitchen. They ate ham, turkey steak and pumpkin pie. Marie of Humboldt, in her excursion into the excursions of the Asheville cuisine, never could have tasted half the pleasure which one of those transients still remembers pleasure enhanced by the appetizing meals that still in memory issue from that corner kitchen.

A "Revising" Revises Rhyme

These came to mind for a meal once in Vicksburg with a rhyme. The rhyme described before hand what they were to eat, and they were hungry. The reader may never have eaten the rhymer's supper and the Italian who owned the cafe suggested that it be made the subject of a rhyme. It was, as follows:

"Revising rhymes,
Charming chunks of rhymes,
Officers' tales that rise like prayers
And beg you to taste of them!

She Shoots

Catherine DeNino, it, with a school girl figure and round, dark eyes suggesting softness and affection, symbolizes in her own life most of the social problems which have nagged people for centuries—the old perplexing, such as:

...the neighbors. A past that comes back haunting. How to safeguard a home? The question whether a woman should tell? The dreadful necessity to stop a malicious persecution?

Four years ago, says the experience-wise Catherine, one Luigi Pino brutally attacked her. He was 20. She had a baby, but it died. Then in July of last year, the girl was married to Pietro DeNino, a mechanic, and they went to live in Chicago. But Pino hated it and began writing letters to her husband. DeNino agreed her out of the house.

Well, Catherine, groping for a way out of her woes, came back to New York and killed the destroyer, she is calm as she waits for her courts to act.

"Whatever they do with me, I am glad I got," she says.

new system. Mr. White said that many customers are apparently greatly confused by the "buy" signal and the "sell" signal. The operator pings the market, and, regardless of whether or not the line is busy, he said, and if the line is busy, a dull buzz will follow. If the phone rings, the note will be much clearer, he said, and easily distinguishable from the "busy" tone.

"4" Dinner Planned For Actor's Officer

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Forthright will be the signal number at the dinner to be given here December 15 to Daniel Frohman in celebration of his 44 years as an officer of the Actors' Fund of America. It is planned to have 44 prominent and prominent actors and actresses at one table, each to represent a year of service, and 44 child artists at another table.

Prominent stage and screen folk and personage outside of the profession, including governors of several states, have notified Frohman that they will attend, and contribute $1,000 a plate toward the charity fund for the aged, sick and disabled people of the theater.

Immigrants have taken $7,200,000 into Palestine to invest mostly in land and building.

COLLEGE RULES ARE DISCUSSED

Tech Faculty, Citizens Talk Over Regulations For Students In City

Boys will be boys and girls will be girls, but some girls and boys are better than others. There are more than 1,000 youngsters attending the Tech Technical college here, and among them are a few whose conduct has been a source of worry not only to members of the faculty, their fellow students, local officers, but to the people of Lubbock generally.

Friday afternoon Chief T. E. May, of the Lubbock police department, and several prominent citizens of this city, were called in to attend a faculty meeting. Numerous questions were discussed and it is the hope of those who attended that good will eventually come from the meeting.

Certain students, especially boys, have been guilty of walking in the middle of street between the college and business district hoping to pick up a ride. Some drivers will pick them up, while others pass them by. Boys have been known to ask women to give them a ride and when they refused they filled the atmosphere with profanity. The "jay walking" habit has been a constant source of worry, but in the future members of the faculty will see to it that students use the sidewalks rather than the streets. Officers will help to enforce the rule.

Dances Worry, Too

Dances, too, have given instructors much worry. Students will attend a dance, stay up until the wee small hours of the morning and then go through their school work the following day half asleep. There are entirely too many dances and some of them are going to be taboos, and those that are attended by students must close not later than 11 o'clock. Students have been guilty of staying up at dances until after midnight and then riding or walking the streets for an hour or so longer. They often disturb the sleep and rest of other people, and those guilty of this in the future will be arrested and fined for disturbing the peace.

Officers do not wish to be too insistent or hard on the youngsters, but insist that they must have respect for the rights of others. The same attitude is taken by faculty members.

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 20.—Forty wives are enough for King Solomon, the chief of the Zulus. The king recently declared after marrying his 40th mate that this would be the last time. Solomon is a Christian and his wife also comes of a Christian family.

PHILLIPS TAKES NEW POSITION HERE

ACCEPTS EXECUTIVE POSITION WITH STATES TELEPHONE CO.; WHITE SUCCEEDS

H. D. Phillips, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company with headquarters here for the past five years, has resigned his position and has accepted the place of executive manager of the States Telephone company. It was officially announced here Saturday.

Mr. Phillips has a continuous service record with the Southwestern telephone company of over 21 years, and is probably one of the best known telephone men in this part of the state. He has already accepted his new duties.

Company Recently Organized

The States Telephone company, recently organized, has acquired about 25 exchanges with toll line connections, the majority of which are on the South Plains. Temporary offices have been established on the fourth floor of the Temple Billa building here. General offices will be maintained here with Mr. Phillips in charge.

Mr. White, who succeeds Mr. Phillips in the Southwestern exchange, came from Amarillo, where for three years he has been assistant to the district manager. He is an experienced telephone man, and very capable. Mr. Phillips said he is now located here with his family, and has assumed charge of the local exchange.

The exchange has recently moved to its new home here with a complete, modernly equipped office, containing the latest in telephone devices, including an automatic ringing system. The new home is on Broadway just across the street from the First Methodist church.

Here's What You Drink When You Call For Your Regular Portion Of Coffee

By E. F. SHEPHERD
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"Coffee."

The great beverage, which is used by more people in the United States than any other country in the world is something not many people give a thought as to where it comes from; how it is raised; what kind of a shrub it is grown upon; how it is gathered; what process it is put through before it is ready to be placed in your breakfast and dinner cups. In this is a brief history of the plant and the different channels through which it has to travel in order to be ready for consumption.

Coffee is the dried seed of a laurel-like evergreen shrub. Its native home is in Abyssinia or Arabia. It grows to its wild stages, but in cultivation it is the height of from six to thirty feet. It is named to a bush very little higher than a man's head. In cultivation, the trees are started in nurseries and are transplanted like fruit trees. In the single state of Sao Paulo, Brazil, there are 600 coffee trees, producing annually there is growing more than 700,000, about three-fourths of the world's coffee crop. Miles and miles of coffee trees stretch as far as the eye can see. The tree begins to bear when from two to three years old, and produces from three to five pounds of coffee each year for about twenty years.

Cultivation Methods Differ
Methods of cultivation do not seem to differ very materially from those used in raising cherries which, in fact, the ripe fruit resembles. The blossoms are something like the jasmine in form and scent and last only about three days. It is said the rich fragrance can be detected for several miles. When ripe, the fruit is red, and looks something like a cranberry. Under the outer skin is a sticky pulp which encloses the seeds or beans, and these beans are coated with a coarse husk called parchment, and under this is a very thin jacket known as the "silver skin."

Harvesting Method Shown
In harvesting, the ripe berries are shaken or stripped from the branches by hand and with the leaves and twigs, fall on cloths spread under the trees. Then they are separated from the leaves and twigs. Machines have been invented for removing the pulp green, thereby hurrying the crop to the market. One process used: After being washed clean, the berries are carried in water to the pulping machine, which crushes and loosens the pulp. The wet mass of beans and pulp then passes through a perforated revolving cylinder which separates the beans from the pulp. This is called the wet system. After passing into the fermentation basin, where any bit of pulp remaining is loosened and washed out, the beans are carried to the drying grounds. These are paved with brick or tile upon which the beans are spread.

Here constant watch and care are required, the beans being stirred to give uniform heat and ventilation, so that they do not dry too rapidly or too slowly. When dry, the beans are taken to the machine for cleaning and hulling. A blower carries off the dust; then in the hulling machine the beans pass between corrugated surfaces, where, by friction, the inner covering is loosened, and a second blower throws out the hulls and dust. The beans are then assorted by machinery according to size and weight, and from the last machine they fall into bags for shipment.

It is an interesting scene to be at the warehouses of the various coffee shipping ports and watch the coffee being weighed and made ready for loading on the steamers for shipment to Europe and the United States. It is said that at the docks of Santos, Brazil, there are miles of steamers, flying the flags of many nations, all waiting to be loaded with coffee.

Mocha coffee gets its name from an Arabian port that formerly exported coffee. Rio coffee is named from a Brazilian seaport. Java coffee is supposed to come from the Island of Java; Ceylon, Porto Rico, Cuba, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands have large plantations, or coffee orchards, as they are sometime called.

New York Big Port
The United States is the greatest coffee market in the world. New York receives more coffee than any other city in the world. Ground coffee, it is said, is sometime adulterated with carrot, parsnip, peas, lentils and other cheap ingredients. Some times artificial coffee beans are palmed off on the public. According to United States consular reports, there are in Asia, Africa and America, more than 49,000 coffee plantations, having approximately two billion coffee bearing trees. There are employed in this industry more than two million, two million, two hundred and twenty-five thousand men, women and children.

There was a time when every family did their own roasting, and grinding of coffee. There were several different kinds of roasting or "burning" as they were called, which were brought over to America on the Mayflower. You may easily remember when mother roasted coffee in the stove oven, how constantly it had to be watched to keep from burning. But this was cheerfully done because these folks somehow essential the freshness of coffee was to bring out the original aroma, taste and strength to the table. Today the very latest and most improved roasters are used and a large batch of coffee is roasted in from fifteen to forty-five minutes, according to the judgment of the expert in charge.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

"Let's eat," Bob grinned at Faith with that winning boyishness she loved so tenderly. "There's no use in sending back this delicious honey dew melon, sitting on the table, and not getting it out of here in any minute now. I'm sure you will function more brilliantly as amateur detectives after they've eaten."

Oddly enough, Faith found that she was keenly hungry. It was heavenly to eat delicate foods that she herself had not prepared.

"Tell me what you've been doing with yourself," he suggested eagerly. "Let Cherry wait a bit until after we've finished our luncheon. I have stacks of time—can take a couple of hours as easy as any."

She told him the most interesting details of the last three weeks—the interminable three weeks since she had seen him, since that dreadful scene over Cherry's attempt to force him into an engagement, as a means of escape from her impending marriage with Bob's uncle.

"Cherry has simply gone money-mad," she concluded. "Mr. Cluny has apparently given her carte blanche on charge accounts, and the house is simply stacked with her purchases. Frances Warren, Selma Pruitt and I are to be bridesmaids, and Joy, though she's a bit jerry for the role, is to be flower girl. Frances' little nephew, Ned Warren, is going to be ring bearer. Oh, it's going to be a very swank wedding—and I'm scared to death."

"You don't look it," he smiled back at her. "You look as if a high church Episcopalian wedding were a mere incident in the gay social whirl of your days. Uncle Ralph certainly tumbled over, didn't he? I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the black-eyed Lola hadn't tried the same thing—and failed. That would explain a lot wouldn't it? But we promised not to talk mystery until we've finished with our luncheon."

There was a raspberry puff, with tiny, nut-sprinkled cakes, for dessert, followed by a demi-tasse. Bob's eyes were very tender as he watched her eat with shy, keen enjoyment.

"I want to take you out often, Faith. You need a taste of gaiety. Too much kitchen police will take the starch out of any girl."

"Too—you haven't seemed especially eager the last three weeks," Faith could not help pointing out, though disgust with herself made her cheeks hot.

The red crept slowly up his own cheeks, but his eyes were steady and honest as they gazed into hers. "It wasn't that I didn't want to see you, dear. I think you know that. But—well, can you blame me—after that Saturday night at the Marlboro country club? After all, Mr. Cluny is my own uncle. It put me in a terribly embarrassing position. Cousin Alice came over to see me and gave me half Columbia, tried to make me admit that I cared for Cherry, and would marry her. Uncle Ralph had me out to his house for dinner, to let me ask her, as a favor to him, to let Cherry alone."

"For his own sake, and for hers, I couldn't tell him the truth about that night. I had to promise. I told him it wasn't Cherry that I—loved, that it was—you. He wouldn't believe me, asked me to stay away from Myrtle street until after the wedding and—well, dear, I agreed. Then Selma told me you were going to marry George after a while—"

"Oh, but that's not true!" Faith cried out in dismay. "He asked me again, but I told him I couldn't. Selma had no right—"

"Girls are funny things, aren't they dear?" he leaned across the table and took both her hands in his. "Chivalry forbids his saying that Selma, in a slightly more ladylike way, was using the same tactics to land him as had Cherry. But Faith understood and nodded, her fingers closing with a sudden, firm pressure about his.

"Don't say anything more—now!" she breathed. "I—didn't hunt you up to—scold you for neglecting me. We must do something to help Cherry. I'm afraid she'll have nervous prostration before the wedding if this thing keeps up."

"Tell you what," Bob withdrew his hands and beckoned for the waiter. "We'll go back and confront Miss Lola Gonzales with the proofs of her pretty little scheme, and see if we can't get to the bottom of this."

"Do you think any of the Cluny relatives is behind her, using her, because of her double motive for hating Cherry?"

"I'd hate like the devil to think so," Bob shook his head, but his mouth was sterner than she had ever seen

"I've talked with Alexander Cluny, Uncle Ralph's son, you know, and young Ralph came to see me, too. They're all frightfully upset about it, not only because of the money, but because they think it will be a disaster. He recovered himself quickly—a foolhardy marriage, doomed to failure, because of the difference in their ages and—"

"And in their social standing," Faith finished bravely. "Don't be afraid to call a spade a spade, dear. She dropped the last word, shyly, on a lower, more tender note. And she reflected that it was the first time in her life she had called any man "dear." Oh, dear Bob, darling Bob!

"There's talk among the Albrights and the Alexander Clunys of having Uncle Ralph adjudged mentally incompetent," Bob admitted soberly. "I don't think they can get very far with that line, though. The old boy's too popular as a big criminal lawyer—the most famous in the state, you know—and there's no doubt that he's capable of handling his own affairs. If every man who planned an unwise marriage could be jerked up in court and adjudged mentally incompetent, there wouldn't be many of us allowed to go free. Except me, of course."

He laughed a tender, exultant laugh, that made her heart beat wildly with joy.

When they reached his office, they found that Lola Gonzales had fled, leaving a note for Bob:

"Have been called home on account of the serious illness of my mother. I don't know when I can return. You had better get someone else in my place, L. Gonzales."

SHAW DEFENDS HIS ACTIONS IN PRIZE REFUSAL

SAYS WANTS PRESS TO THRESH MATTER OUT WITH PUBLIC

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Nov. 18.—"It's up to the Swedish academy," said George Bernard Shaw in a telephone interview with the Associated Press today, in which he was informed that his rejection yesterday of the Nobel literature award was interpreted in Stockholm as tantamount to rejection of the entire award.

"I'm not vociferous," the dramatic adder. "Let them do that—but I am certainly going to be a most interested front row spectator in the discussion which I hope will now develop around the question of giving prizes to writers."

Asked if he agreed with Sinclair Lewis, who refused the Pulitzer prize on the ground that prizes were bad for literature, Shaw snapped: "I don't agree with anything."

Wants Press Active
He said he wanted to see the whole subject thrashed out in the press. Also he was thankful for Lewis' action, because it had called his attention to the Pulitzer prize, which he had never heard of before. He would not say whether he was against the idea of offering awards, but felt sure a general discussion among the press and public would be most interesting.

The famous dramatist was in an excellent mood today—feeling especially, in fact, that he talked to his interviewers over the telephone from his Adelphi terrace flat over looking the Thames.

Shaw, it must be understood, hates telephones nearly as enthusiastically as Rudyard Kipling and Sir James Barrie, the latter of which has his telephone number registered in his butler's name.

All telephone calls to the Shaw home usually are answered by his housekeeper or secretary. Shaw does not care for interviews either, and to make certain there are no intruders, has an iron gate in front of the entrance to his flat.

Shaw Is Curious
That he is intensely curious, and was much more curious than usual this morning—so curious in fact that his secretary could not quite satisfy him after the interview had talked to her of the phone, saying he had an interesting dispatch from Stockholm. The secretary was told that the Stockholm message was of such interest to Shaw, but was not told what it was all about.

"It is a long dispatch," the secretary added.

"Yes, quite lengthy," she was told.

"Well, wait a moment. I will see what Mr. Shaw is doing."

That it took several days a voice thundered over the wire: "Landed Shaw speaking. What is it, anyway, that you have from Stockholm?"

WHY WASTE VALUABLE TIME
Have you ever thought seriously of the freedom from hot kitchen drudgery, the saving in time, and the economy in food and fuel which the electric range, with its automatic operation and its perfect scientific cooking, will bring to you? You get superior cooking, scientific and healthful, of pots and pans. Electric heat sweeps up dirt, soot, and smoke to stain stovetops and dirty up your kitchen. The electric timer and heat control afford a dependable, automatic operation that enables you to cook perfect meals without carefully watching the process. You don't even need to be in the kitchen if you don't want to. The upright, insulated oven—possible only with electric heat—prevents evaporation with its consequent shrinkage of food and loss of flavor and food value. Heat is stored up for cooking after the current is turned off. None escapes, and the kitchen stays cool and pleasant.

There are many of these stories in use in Lubbock—ask someone who uses one of them or call upon the Owen Electric Shop for a demonstration. You will find the installation and operation of an electric range most reasonable.

Lone Tax On Gas Is Seen By Official

By NEA Service
MADISON, Wis., Nov. 18.—A lone gasoline tax eventually will replace the variety of taxes motorists have to pay today, predicts Edmund Leviton, state treasurer of Wisconsin. His reasons for believing so are based on the experience of Wisconsin in collecting its motor tax.

It cost $125,000 to collect $1,000,000 in motor license fees in Wisconsin, Leviton points out as compared with only $25,000 to collect more than $2,500,000 in gas taxes.

"It is a more matter of simple arithmetic," he declares, "to see that we get to raise our gas tax a little we could collect the total amount necessary to pay your high way bills and the cost of collecting would not reach $1,000. We could collect over half a million dollars a year."

STORM DAMAGE IS "EXAGGERATED"

AUSTIN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Havanna, Cuba, has recovered from the cyclone which struck there October 26, and F. S. Simon of that city writes George Nalle of Austin that the damage was not so great as reported.

Simon, who was the host to Mr. and Mrs. George Nalle, and Miss Doreen Ferguson, son-in-law and daughter of Governor Martin A. Ferguson, when they were here three nearly two years ago.

"We, of course, cannot deny that the damage of the storm was quite heavy, especially in the surrounding country," Simon writes, adding that the reconstruction work was rapid and that Havana, since the storm visited us has picked up remarkably and in fact our city looks much better than before. People were not satisfied to replace just what was destroyed, but they made improvements at the same time.

In Havana proper, you can hardly see any sign of damage, everything having been replaced with remarkably speed and even the Prado and the parks are all in best condition. The electric light and power system, the water works, telephone and telegraph systems, and finally the railroads are all now in fine condition.

"Our women will go on in the same way as planned and Americans will find all the amusement and fun as in former years."

Texture Important In Drapery Choice

The matter of draperies often times becomes a problem in home furnishing. Mary Watson, of the American Home Bureau, offers some suggestions that may be useful to some of our Lubbock matrons. Her article follows:

It is one thing to talk about having draperies and another to know just what should be used for them and how they should be designed and hung. Many are the poor perplexed women who have had their homes redecorated or have built anew and who have bought brand new furniture, but who were forced to put off the selection of their draperies because they were absolutely "stumped." Several visits to the best drapery departments in town only served to bewilder them. And when they finally chose their fabrics they did so with fear and trepidation and in many cases later on became most dissatisfied. With the understanding of just a few principles of texture, color and design, these puzzled housewives would not have been so easily "stumped" when selecting their draperies.

Must Harmonize
The word texture may be a stumbling block for many people, who never before even gave an atom of thought to such a thing as the texture of fabrics they were about to select, but the best decorators consider texture to be almost as important as color, and indeed the two are quite dependent on each other. If you should happen to want pink draperies in your bedroom you could never find that color in heavy cotton rep, for the simple reason that the texture of cotton rep is not a logical texture for a dainty pink. Nor would you want heavy cotton rep draperies in your bedroom if you should happen to have taffeta bedspreads and a silk oriental rug on the floor. Even the experienced eye could detect the inharmonious difference between the smooth richness of taffeta and a silk oriental rug and the rough, more commonplace surface of cotton rep.

Texture of Woods
Going further into the subject, the home decorator has to watch the textures in other things than merely the fabrics used in a room. The texture of the wood employed in the furniture calls for certain corresponding textures in the draperies, upholstery and rugs. It is the finest, more developed in some of its lines, others that bids us to associate the somewhat rough open surface of oak with fabrics that are similarly vigorous and crude. On the other hand, more elegant furniture of the fine woods which are considered the choicest cabinet varieties could only be combined with materials whose textures suggest smoothness and delicacy as produced by such fabrics as damask, taffeta and broads.

When you are ready to take up the matter of draperies and furniture in the home call in and see the Rix Furniture and Undertaking company who are in a position to help you decide.

Dampness Is Problem Of Alaskan Trucker

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 20 (AP)—From the standpoint of Alaska fruit growers, the old saw reads: It isn't the cold, it's the dampness.

That is the conclusion of H. W. Alberts, director of demonstration farms for Alaska.

"The only thing standing in the way of successfully apple growing," he says, "is securing a region where the moisture conditions will permit the trees to harden. The cold is no barrier, but owing to the rapid growth during the long summer days, the wood does not have opportunity to harden, and, absorbing an excess of moisture, is subject to freezing."

"We expect to overcome this by a new stock and make apples and cherries part of Alaska's products." Alaska grows vegetables, which attain great size and are especially free from parasites, have a wide sale on the Pacific Coast.

One of the most important things to watch in any business is the insurance. The largest firms give careful attention to their insurance. Why should not the individual take the same precaution? ### Cedar Chest Offers Fur Insurance

Do you believe in insurance? If you don't, just let some insurance agent get hold of you for an hour or two, and he will paint a picture of how accident, destruction or even death to yourself will cause inevitable and unforgivable financial havoc to your loved ones, which could be entirely avoided by the right sort of insurance policy.

To a lesser degree, but just as consequential to the spending of the budget which covers household supplies and clothing is the insurance you should take against the ravages of moths which are seeking and searching year in and year out for hiding places clear back in the dark, snug folds of your expensive furs and woolen things and the blankets and coats not in use during the summer.

The moth-eaten and ruined fur coat which is entirely lost can't begin to compare with the loss of someone dear to you, but it is a heart-breaking idea just the same, and one against which there is no excuse for not insuring by means of a well-constructed cedar chest. And, again, when the first cool nights of autumn descend upon you, and you take the big, fluffy woolly blankets from the bedding chest, the shock is almost too much to bear when you find that moths have ridged them into a state of ruin.

The cedar chest is the insurance to take against moths and is surely a cheap enough means for the first cost in the last cost. No premiums to pay on this insurance, and years afterward you still have a handsome chest in full working order, housing all the precious woollens and furs that you want to protect. Right now, when summer is here, now is the time to see that moth protection is at its most efficient degree in your home hold, with at least one or two cedar chests. Clean things placed in the chest with its lid kept tightly closed are practically safe from the ambitious attempts of the young moth larvae to cut and gnaw their way through your own cherished possessions to make covering for themselves. The Lane cedar chest offers this safe protection for your garments. They are sold by the Rix Furniture and Undertaking company in all cities. This is the time to provide your home with garment protection and you will find every desirable feature in the Lane cedar chest.

Parisians Go In For Less Evening Dress

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—Before the war, full evening dress was proper at all opening night performances at Paris theatres, but the advent of uniforms got Frenchmen out of the habit of dressing in the evening.

Even now most of them will don swallowtails only when the presence of royalty or the President of the Republic is announced. The rest of the time the dinner jacket is the limit. The national Opera insists on full dress for its male patrons on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The other nights the dinner jacket is tolerated, and once in a while foreign American or British tourists are able to enter the French temple of music in ordinary street clothes, though not without suitable protest.

CAMPUS REBELS

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE JUDITH MARTIN is a teacher in Pendleton State University. Her two chief admirers are ERIC WATERS, school news, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor.

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN is resolved to make Judith drop her student friends and come into the faculty fold. She refuses to give up Eric.

MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, is jealous of Judith.

Judith befriends Mrs. Brown, when "KITTY" SMITH, town boat-leger, blackmails her with a story of her trip to the city to meet her lover.

Judith appeals to Eric to shut Shea up.

Spending the Christmas holidays alone in Myra's sorority house, Judith is terrified when Shea tries to force an entrance. She dashes in the air and drives him away.

A few days later, the body of Shea is found under his car in a creek just out of town. His pockets are full of letters.

Judith, remembering her shot, asks Eric whether there were any bullets hidden in Shea's pockets.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

Eric looked at her strangely. "No," he said. "There weren't any bullets. Why do you ask?"

Judith pulled herself together. "Someone said there was talk of his being wounded before the crash."

"Well," said Eric, "Mamma thinks something happened to make him go over the bank—something violent, I mean. He might have had a fight and in the scuffle turned the wheel suddenly."

"When do they think he died?" asked Judith.

"Mamma said it had been at least as long ago as Christmas. That's a funny thing. They've had emergency gangs working on that road day and night, ever since Christmas morning, so it couldn't have happened after then. And Shea was seen in town the day before."

Judith looked up at him. "Then that narrows it down to Christmas Eve, doesn't it?"

Eric nodded. "Apparently, but why worry your head about it?" He took her arm. "Judith, you're letting this get you down. Come on out with me and take a walk—or have a cup of coffee."

They went out of the building by the door nearest the Prairie Schooler. In a booth Judith relaxed for the first time in many hours. The waiter brought them steaming coffee and waffles.

Eric sat quietly watching her from across the little table. She saw that he was pale and unshaven. Under the overhead light the hollow spot on his forehead and sunken cheeks were prominent. He stretched a hand across to her. "Listen, Judy, if there's anything worrying you, won't you tell me? You look as though you could scarcely bear up another minute."

Judith squeezed his hand. "No," she said. "I'm all right now. Why worry me now? You've been cleared up. But it's nice of you to want to help me. Eric, the others have only harassed me."

His fingers tightened on hers. "I'd do anything for you, Judith. You know that. I'd be glad to kiss you even change my style of coffee if you wanted me to."

Judith laughed. "There it is—the old Eric, resuming every compliment with irony. But your coffee are all right. I don't want you to change them. All I want is understanding. You and I take in the same language. We're both of us intelligible."

"Yes, thank God!" said Eric, attacking his waffles.

"There's only one thing that would do me any good," said Judith, sipping her coffee.

Eric looked up.

"Thank for somebody to knock down Dean Timothy Brown and sit on him." She grinned at Eric.

"Nothing would give me more pleasure," remarked Eric. "I have a few scores of my own to settle with him. And even if I didn't, I should like to knock him down and sit on him—for the good of his soul."

Judith smiled. "I'm not concerned with his soul. But if for no other reason than his treatment of his wife, he needs it."

Eric nodded. "Not all the martyrs were burnt in Rome or staked to death in Spain," he said. "How many like that escape arrest in their coffee-tickets?"

"If I were his wife, he wouldn't be so," answered Judith. "But I think there was opinion in this coffee, I am so shrewd I can't hold my head up."

Eric rose to go. "Emotional strain,

It always brings extreme fatigue. But for no harm to her."

Judith looked at him. "You never did tell me where you were yesterday," she said.

Eric smiled faintly. "And that isn't all. I'm just going to tell you you're enough to think about, as it is."

A half hour later, Judith drew the blinds in her room and opened a window. Then she looked at "Don't Disturb" placed on her door and not into bed.

Not since the last presidential election had Pendleton seen such a crowd about the newspaper offices.

Fading on to help in the book shop that evening, Judith saw Wethered standing on the outskirts of the circle, watching the bulletins that appeared now and then on the blackboard.

"Come here, Judith," he called. "And I'll tell you what's going on. This is great news."

Judith went up to him. "Why was Shea's death so important?" she asked.

"There must be a hundred people standing here."

"Well," Will replied, "if you'll notice, most of them are those who now and then take the time when it is just to kiss the lips when they are ready."

"Will, how vulgar!"

"Not at all. Describes the case exactly. Everybody in this crowd has had his eyes at one time or another fixed on Shea, either in his capacity as boat-leger or blackmailer."

"All those who bought liquor from him are afraid the dean will prosecute them for it. If Shea's records show anything."

"And all those who don't drink are afraid their wives will divorce them if certain letters are found among Shea's prize collections."

Judith shivered. "What a monster he must have been."

"Drove a thriving trade in other people's sins, while enjoying his own," said Will. "An ideal existence."

"Stop being queer, Willish, and take up to the picture show," said Judith. "A man came out of the newspaper office and began to chalk a new bulletin."

"Dead man's letters may be deciphered, says expert working on mutilated documents."

"Come on, then," Will said, taking Judith's arm. "I've never written the old boy of any kind, but I'm sure the movie house was crowded and Judith and Will had to take seats in the last row. Judith settled down in the comforting darkness and leaned her head back to listen to the music. Wethered released into silence. When the lights flashed on, she saw nothing.

"Well," exclaimed Will, "that's the first time a young lady ever went to sleep on me."

They went down the main street toward the College Inn. It was dark, and a black wreath hung on the door. Wethered laughed. "More people are appearing that crowd than ever, minus a good man. And how the numbers will increase when they begin to give into Shea's blue books! I feel that I should send him a wreath myself. I'm so damn sorry he died without destroying his records."

Wethered looked at her white face and said no more. They walked toward the pumps. It was dark and quiet, with its embracing rows of shabby buildings.

"Will," said Judith, "were you ever in love?"

"My God!" exclaimed her companion. "Was I ever in love? The best I can say is, 'Was I ever out of it?' If that cut my heart open when I die, they'll find nothing but scars."

"All of which means that you have never been in love at all," commented Judith. "So I guess you can't help me. Why, what did you want?"

"I wanted advice. But no man with a heart full of scars is qualified to give it."

When An Airman Dropped In

Aviator Gerald Smith, of Seattle, dropped in on Senator and Mrs. R. F. Green of Victoria, B. C., the other day—and here's what his plane looked like afterward. It hit the breakfast room of the Green home, but fortunately the senator and his wife had just finished eating. Smith's ankle was broken.

Just one big scar now—that would be different."

"Well, now," said Wethered, obligingly, "if you throw me over, there'll be just one big scar, hitting out all the others!"

Judith laughed. "I'm too tired to be over Will. And I think I'm a little crazy. Or living in a nightmare. Let's hurry."

"You were probably going to ask me—Eric, do love with you?" said Will, judicially. "And to be perfectly frank, I should say yes."

They could hear newsmen on the streets beyond the confines of the quadrangle, crying something unintelligible.

The campus was a dark spot at present. "I hate to leave this calm and cozy," said Judith. "Life seems to surge up around it and better at its own will, without success."

"For crying out loud, Judith, you talk like a gravel-digger. Snap out of it."

They came out of the campus and turned into College road. Here, too, there was quiet, and most of the houses were dark.

The door of the Stedway house opened as they approached the porch, and Myra came running out with a paper in her hand. "Oh, Will," she cried, ignoring Judith. "I've been looking for you. Eric's been arrested—over the Shea murder. You've got to do something!"

"Eric is in a bad scrape this time, for a letter to him has been found in the dead man's pocket."

A railhead transportation system in which electric overhead cars similar to airplanes will supply local service, is being considered in Glasgow, Scotland.

STANDARD ABSTRACT COMPANY

There are many people who do not know the real importance of an abstract of title. In years gone by the possibility of a history to land title was not an easy matter and the abstract of titles were made after a long search through volumes of records. The reliability of the abstract was entirely up to the individual's carelessness. It is different today, the modern plant has a complete system of records from day to day, which are entered into specially designed record books and filed in fire-proof safes. An abstract means a complete history of every transaction on the property in question, dating from the time Title-Book county was organized. In fact they go back to the time the land was taken over by the state of Texas.

The Standard Abstract Company has a modern plant, with one of the most approved systems in abstracting. It is owned by George W. Brewer, who has been since 1912 connected with the largest concerns in the state, and Herbert Stubbs, who is also an experienced abstractor, well known in Galveston county.

They established this company in 1922 and have offices at 1216 Avenue 5. They are members of the Texas Abstractors Association which carries with it a membership in the American Title Association and they maintain one of the most modern plants in the state. The work done by the Standard Abstract Company is accurate, reliable and promptly done and any service rendered by them is sure to give real satisfaction.

A Page Of Special Interest To Farmers

Articles and Local News about South-Plains Farmers; Prepared by Welton Winn, Practical Farmer

Some Suggestions Worthy Of Careful Consideration By All C. Of C.

We are giving a circular letter sent out by the Chamber of Commerce of Wichita Falls, which we think is the best and most practical thing we have seen on the present cotton situation. These men have taken the right view of the present cotton situation and their advice and suggestions should be taken up by all other Chamber of Commerce over Texas and all other southern states. These gentlemen show how seriously the present prices hurt the farmer and they have no source of relief except by the combined operation and assistance of the parties mentioned in their letter.

This is no time to ask "Am I my brother's keeper?" but it should appear that all in every line of legitimate business should gladly give the full strength of what ever strength of influence they have to save not only the farmer but the entire country from loss now being inflicted on the country without even the remotest excuse being given, except that we have produced one or two million bales more cotton than was produced last year.

It is such a pity that the business interest, Chamber of Commerce and all Bankers do not wake up and see the great opportunity they have in saving this loss to the Southern people.

We have had this letter some time and the figures now will show a much greater loss than those available when the Wichita Chamber of Commerce made their figures. These gentlemen deserve much commendation for their letter and the freedom with which they express their willingness to help in solving this great marketing problem.

We have contended that it is too big for the farmer alone neither should they be left to cope with this great problem, but they should have the full co-operation of all the forces mentioned to assist them in solving the amount that is now being lost to the farmer, first and finally to all other business interests of the South. They are right and have intelligently mentioned the only key to the situation: hold the cotton, stop selling until a fair price is named and secured for this crop.

We ask all to read the letter carefully, it is the correct plan!

With the price of cotton dropping more than $20 per bale since the early part of September, the loss to the cotton farmers of America, based on the government's estimate of 36,000,000 bales, is in round numbers $720,000,000. The loss in Lubbock county alone, based on the same production as last year is $1,140,510. In Texas with an estimated yield of 4,500,000 bales the loss, without any further decline in the price, will be $90,000,000. These amounts in losses are almost unbelievable, yet the figures and calculations speak for themselves. The situation is likely to grow more serious unless there be a reversal of the present trend.

With these facts before them the directors of the chamber of commerce at Wichita Falls, Texas, recently passed a resolution in which they urge every farmer who possibly can do so to hold his cotton and to plan now to plant more grain and forage crops another year. Statistics show that one acre of grain in milo maize, sorghum, or kafir corn is worth as much as one acre of cotton as feed for hogs and cattle, provided of course the season is proper. With this in mind it is very likely that the grain acreage in this section of Texas will be greatly increased next year, and the cotton acreage materially reduced. It is shown that one bale of cotton may be held at a cost of approximately $4 for a six-month period where there are storage facilities. For instance, in Wichita Falls the insurance on a bale of cotton for a period of six months will be $1.21. The charge for handling that bale of cotton to and from storage point is 25 cents. Interest on a $50 loan for six months, the warehouse receipt being the collateral, is $1.50, and the charge for storage is one cent per day with the first fifteen days free, making a total cost for holding the cotton approximately $4 for six months. This cost means, if the price of cotton should advance within the next six months only one cent a bale, the farmer has lost nothing. The charges, of course, vary in different cities. The directors of the Wichita Falls organization are convinced if several million bales of the staple could be withdrawn from the market at this time in a short time the price of cotton would advance far more than one cent per pound.

On the other hand, with the price of the staple as low as it is the tenant farmer is the heaviest loser. He is paying $1.25 for gathering the staple, which is a cost of $1.75 per bale. He gives the land owner approximately the same amount out of each bale for rent, which leaves approximately the same. This is his pay for his planting seed, the time, trouble and worry of working his crop. Such a system, with the price of the staple as it is today, will bankrupt the cotton farmer and the South. For these reasons a bigger acreage in grain and other crops is being urged. Merchants are also being urged to take cotton in lieu of money for their accounts and the Buy-a-Bale Movement is given approval. Believing that a concerted effort on the part of all in this movement will take from the market many thousands, perhaps several million bales, the directors of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce are waging a most active campaign in the direction outlined.

POULTRY POINTS

Continuing instructions for culling: The skin over the abdomen and the abdomen itself must be soft and pliable and be lacking in thick, heavy flesh in that particular section of the bird. The skin of the good layer will feel soft, oily, loose and pliable in all parts of the body more so than in the poor layer.

If a hen of a yellow skin variety has been a good layer, the yellow pigment will be laid out of her legs, toes, beak and eye rings, because some has been used by her in coloring the yolk of the egg and the color in those sections of the hen will appear faded.

You will find that the good layer is rather lean behind the legs, has a short, stout beak, rather small feminine head with prominent bright eyes, she will have a large comb and wattle, a large full crop as a rule, and short ovaries due to her activity in scratching and working for food.

Under no circumstances would we breed from a male or a female that had extremely thick or very crooked pelvic bones. This defect is almost certain to be transmitted to the offspring and in most cases is a certain indication of a poor layer. No single one of these characteristics or points should be taken into consideration in several of these points. I would eliminate from your flock. Keep the following rules in mind when making your selection:

1. Market those which have been slow to feather or seem to lack vitality.
2. Keep the pullets which mature quickly and start laying first. Those which started laying when less than ten days old will be the best layer if they have the right care.
3. Keep the late moulters.
4. Keep the bird with rather large stump combs and wattles.
5. Hens with large pale vents, pale beaks and pale legs have been good layers as a rule.
6. The skin of the best layer should be rather loose, soft, oily and flabby on the abdomen and between the vent and the breast bone.
7. The pelvic bone must be thin, straight, flexible and wide apart. Remember these bones are found just above the point of the breast bone and just below the tail, one being located on each side of the abdomen.
8. Market the hens which are lanky, thin and which have a heavy, thick abdomen which hangs down below the point of the breast bone.
9. Keep the hoppers and heavy sets that go to bed late with full crops.
10. Birds that have long tomsils, show no signs of being workers are somewhat shriveled combs, and unprofitable.
11. If a bird meets the above requirements, it should have a broad back, a long, deep body, a prominent breast eye, be solidly built and in good flesh.
12. If a bird is not moulting and still has small dried-up combs, with a sort of whitish substance, or if a bird has thick or crooked pelvic bones, they are always money losers if your business is dependent upon egg production.

This method of culling applies principally to yearling hens and hens that are older. I do not apply this method in culling young pullets that have never laid an egg. A hen must reach maturity, obtain her normal shape and development and lay a few eggs before you can tell what she is going to be. The main points to consider in culling pullets are deformities, standard disqualifications, lack of vitality, slowness to feather and slowness of growth and development.

The male bird should show the same general characteristics which we have mentioned, with the exception, of course, that his head is masculine and the measurements of the pelvic bones and abdomen are not so great as in the female. We prefer to select males as straight-piled as far as possible, and with as great distance between the pelvic bones and the point of the breast bone, showing body breadth. His shoulders should be broad, his back straight, his breast wide and deep and his body long and broad and his legs straight and wide apart. Under all circumstances, would we use a male for breeding that had extremely thick or very crooked pelvic bones. Next week will appear the third and last installment of "Culling."

WHAT THE BANKERS COULD DO

If the bankers of the south—even of Texas—would meet and name a price this cotton crop should bring even if the price named should be no more than the price named by Mr. H. G. Hester, of the New Orleans cotton exchange, of 15c, then tell all to stop selling for less, they could stop this slaughter in price in less than 30 days. When they had named the price, then push the money they have in sight at the disposal of the farmers in a safe way, this plan would not in the least interfere with the business of the country and the south would be saved the loss of from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 without any warrant for such loss. What will the master of the banks be to this important question?

Perhaps you have been wondering why we haven't crowded into the county letter column for several weeks, but I believe that I am just about like the rest of us—the sight of so much worthless cotton has about shrunk us into insignificance. Yes, our fields are still white with the staple crop of the South, but we are rapidly getting it out when the weather permits. The word "picking" has become obsolete and instead we are pulling by hand, and by hand made machines.

John Pugh was in Lubbock Wednesday looking over some cotton pullers. He believes that they will do just as good work as by hand and the price would be just as good.

We have been having some real fine weather, but the sand storm and storm Wednesday will stop cotton picking for a while and allow our gin to get rid of the fifty bales seen around there every night.

Our school started up again on the 15th of this month and there has been a good attendance. A program will be rendered by the students on the afternoon of Friday, the 19th.

H. M. Williams was at a Lubbock gin Friday night. When questioned about the community news, he said all he had heard for two weeks was "Daddy, we've got another bale of bolls."

The busy season has not killed the R. Y. P. U. All of the officers and group leaders met at the home of Vada Sides last Wednesday to plan for the month's programs. You may be sure their plans will be of interest when unfolded. After the business meeting the ratio was tuned in and refreshments were served to Misses Hill, Cone, Ruth and Della McLean, Owsen, Willie and Irene Perry, and Mrs. Babanks, Messrs. Lemon, Daniel, Green, Trotter, Peel and Burgess.

J. A. Burgess has just about completed plans to build a rent house on the west side of his place. After over sixty years of active farming, he is about ready to let someone else do the work.

Robert Buchanan and family of Idaho were Canyon visitors Sunday.

Clara Griffin had as her visitor last Sunday her sister, Mrs. Stevens, of Southland.

F. P. Webb of Olan was a recent visitor in our community. He informed us of the death of his daughter, Una, some time ago. Her old friends remember her well and extend their sympathy to the deceased's parents.

Carrie Dalton and Bill Thomas of Hupp were Canyon visitors last week.

Mr. Baker, who has been visiting Mr. Goodnight, returned to his home in McCulloch county. He was looking for a place to rent.

We have been expecting it for some time, so boys save your nickels and dimes this week in order that you may get to eat supper with the prettiest girl in Canyon community or maybe Aunt. Yes, we are going to have a hot supper Friday night, November 19. Every one come and bring full pockets and boxes.

A box supper is to be given by teachers in the Canyon school at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening at the school house. A carnival is to be the feature of the evening and proceeds will be used in financing a program of improvement in the school. It was announced.

LARGER REGISTRATION

Car registration in New Orleans for the first six months in 1925 have shown a tremendous increase over the same period last year. Vehicle registration for the first eight months exceeds the total for the entire 1925 period in every classification except motorcycles.

What The Farmers Tell Us

The Best Report We Have Had

We met J. R. Melhoney on the streets Monday with a load of very fine vegetables which he was growing right here near Lubbock, and had been selling this class of produce all the year. He had a large supply of turnips of several varieties, any of which looked good to us. We were shown samples of other vegetables that were fine. Mr. Melhoney has two 10 acre tracts in track and tells us he has been selling from $19 to $25 per day all through the season and has good demand for all his truck all the time. We suggested that he was not disturbed over his cotton situation. He said not except that if the farmers were getting the worth of the cotton, all lines of business would feel the effects and would prosper together.

He grew some of the largest sweet potatoes we have heard of and he had 6 that weighed 45 pounds. The largest of the lot weighed 39 pounds.

Mr. Melhoney has 10 acres located over in the valley of the canyon northeast of the city and he thinks he will be able to grow celery successfully on that plot of land. He says he can grow almost anything here that will grow in the Rio Grande valley. The vegetables will not be as early but he thinks he will find means by which he can have many vegetables here much earlier than they have been placed on this market heretofore. He mentioned about all the vegetables that grow anywhere in Texas or elsewhere, and went on to say he had not given the truck business much thought until this season, that he had about the business but it is a fine business when properly studied and handled. He thinks he and others who are in the same business will soon be so they can not only supply this ever growing market, but will begin to look for other markets as so much of Texas fails to grow enough of such truck as is needed in many places in Texas. We are indeed glad to learn of these fine crops as they are accomplishing what we have often said we should, first of all, learn to feed ourselves. Great are the Plains of Texas.

OTHER PARTS OF THE COUNTRY HEARD FROM

Lon Greer, who lives in Lynn county, 13 miles southwest of Tahoka, was in the city Tuesday and when asked about the crop conditions in that county, said, "The cotton men are getting along slow most of them are snapping their cotton and some are selling it, that is they have made slides that are drawn right up the rows by horses, some with two horses, while some larger slides use four horses in gathering the cotton." He thinks this crop and its lowering prices together with the lack of labor for rightly gathering, will have a good effect on the farmers in the way of reducing the cotton acreage for next year.

He thinks there will likely be a 50 per cent reduction in acreage next year in his section of the country. He thinks they will plant much less cotton, and will give more attention to producing a better grade of cotton.

Mr. Greer said they have fine feed crops in his county and have much of it yet to hold, but have most of their feed saved. He does not think there will be any grain planted in his community this fall.

Mr. Bennie Bruckner, one of Woodrow's progressive farmers, was in last week and had some cotton; he set out to hold for higher prices. Young Mr. Bruckner said that the farmers in his community have most of their feed crops saved and had a fine lot of feed. He thinks they will reduce cotton acreage next year and try to grow a better staple of cotton. He thinks the abundant feed crop is a fine thing for the farmers and they can better afford to hold cotton than if they had to buy feed with some of their cotton money, as they have had to do in the past. Mr. Bruckner said he did not know of anyone who would sow grain this fall.

A REAL FARMER HEARD FROM

E. M. Cochran, who lives near Lubbock, was in the city Monday, and called around to see us. The farmers were rushing their cotton picking and will gather the crop as fast as they can secure the necessary help.

He said they are getting nervous and some are making slides and will gather the cotton that way, but quite a lot of them are still picking their cotton. He thinks this season will convince many farmers that they are growing too much cotton, the fall in price and the lack of sufficient help to properly gather the crop will help a good effect on encouraging them to reduce their acreage for another year. Mr. Cochran thinks when the farmers learn that they cannot properly cultivate the whole earth and reduce their acreage to the proper size and then really cultivate what they do try to work, they will be on the safe side of farming. He gave us a sketch of some of his crop for this year and confirmed what we have so often said on this page about deep breaking. He said he has 21 acres in corn this year that he broke the land 12 inches deep, and had 3 acres in kafir, the land was broke the same depth and this three acres of kafir will make or has made 2000 bundles of fine kafir and his 21 acres of corn made 225 bushels that is now housed and is there to show for itself.

He said he learned about deep breaking some years ago when the department at Washington sent him some good seed with the understanding that he follow their plan of cultivation. This he did and the deep breaking and shallow cultivation was the key to the successful results. He says where the land is properly broken there is very little need for much cultivation. He thinks much harm is done by the wrong kind of culti-acres and more cotton of a better grade on the acres they do work.

He thinks if all the interests that are dependent on cotton for business and prosperity would line up and name a fair price for this crop and then all stop selling until the price is paid that would settle the matter. It would not stop the business of the country at all as there is enough money in the country that can be advanced on the cotton crop to keep business moving right on and that the difference in the present price and what would under the plan be paid for the crop keep business going good all next year. He said the feed crop out in his community is only fairly good but enough made to meet all demands. Most or about all the feed crops are saved and all attention being given to the cotton crop. He said there was very little grain being sown, but he thinks the farmers are so busy with cotton they have little time to think of grain or anything else but cotton and the low prices being paid for the staple.

In all Poland there are only 2,500 taxis, but this is 70 more than were there a year ago.

ALBEN BARKLEY, KENTUCKIAN, PROVES YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE WEALTHY TO GET IN SENATE; HE DID IT IN FORD

By NEA Service

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—The Smiths and the Vares may spend with their hands their campaign funds of hundreds of thousands—

James A. Reed may delve for many weary days and months into the mystery of the high cost of politics—

They still may call the U. S. Senate the "millionaire's club"—

But the lad who, poor but honest, was born on a farm, had to work his way through college, and then had to rely solely on his own resources to carve his niche in the world still must be reckoned with.

This time he is Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky the other day elected Barkley to succeed Senator Richard P. Brent, administration standard and Republican nominee for another term.

A Janitor in His College Days

Barkley did in other grass country's democracy as equally busy and thrifty. The father, Mrs. Barkley and the three children.

Romantic from the very start in the story of Barkley's achievement.

His parents were humble folk not unlike the folk which give Abraham Lincoln to the world not many miles away.

His father, John Wilson Barkley, a tenant farmer, and it is his task to keep Alben and his seven brothers and sisters in grade school.

But Alben studied at home. Finally he managed to enter Martin college, in Clinton county, where he worked as a janitor to pay his tuition.

Later he studied for a year at Emory college, in Georgia.

After that he became a clerk in western Kentucky law offices.

He served a healthy portion of his earnings, and in 1902 entered the law school of the University of Virginia.

Not long after he "hung out his shingle" in Paducah, Kentucky, he ran for county attorney. He was elected.

Then he ran for judge of county court, and was elected.

Then he ran for Congress, and was elected.

To the Senate in Second-Hand Ford

Barkley sought six more terms in the House of Representatives—and got them.

Now he moves up into still more select political company.

As he was elected, Barkley was near his 59th birthday.

A second-hand Ford provided his campaign transportation. Barkley drove it himself.

He never missed an opportunity to visit a voter along the road—voters, many of them, who never before had seen a candidate for any office higher than county judge or sheriff.

Spiriting him on were his wife, who was Miss Dorothy Brewer of Paducah; their son, David Murrell Barkley and their two daughters, Dorothy Brewer and Marlan Frances.

Came election day, and to the eloquent, aspiring son of the obscure tenant farmer, Kentucky said: "You win!"

AUTO IS INVADING REALMS OF HORSE

BULLDOGGING OF STEERS AT RODEO IS LATEST CAR INNOVATION

The automobile has invaded another realm of the horse, the dangerous game of "bulldozing" steers which has been popular in the Lone Star state ever since the vast herds of cattle first roamed its pastures.

The stunt was successfully performed recently for the first time by a daring cowboy at the rodeo held at Banders, Texas.

Crouched on the running board of a Chevrolet touring car, she rode in pursuit of a wild Texas steer. A group of yelling cowboys mounted on horses joined in the chase. The driver of the Chevrolet deftly avoided a frenzied charge when the steer suddenly stood his ground and attempted to gore his pursuer.

The car then whirled in a swift circle and ran alongside the angling steer. The cowboy leaped from the running board to the animal's shoulders, locked one arm about its neck and threw him to the ground. She suffered no injury.

Veteran cowmen in Banders county, the heart of the western ranch country, declare that "bulldozing" from a car appears to be safer than when the rider is mounted on a horse.

So great has been the demand for Dutch coal recently that an average of twenty ships have been waiting for berths at the Rotterdam port to load the fuel for foreign countries.

Elbert Evans Is Back He Likes Home Now

Elbert Evans, who resides with his parents two and one-half miles north of Lubbock, is a wiser boy than he was a few days ago, and unless he has local officers badly fooled he will give his mother and teacher no more trouble.

Elbert is just 13 years old, but in his own estimation he was too large to go to school. One day this week he left home, and when he failed to return his mother inserted an advertisement in the Daily Journal and Morning Avalanche, asking officers and others to look for him. Friday night he was picked up by members of the police department, who immediately notified his mother.

Saturday when his mother came to town he was ready to go home, for town life is not what he had supposed it to be. He had no money to buy a bed so he had to get by without one. His few possessions were soon gone, and then he had no place to eat. From early Friday morning until almost noon Saturday he was without food.

Running away doesn't pay, he thinks, and school life is not as bad as that of a bum.

TESTIMONY OF GIRL IN "KING DAVID" CASE WILL "ROCK THE COUNTRY", SAYS PROSECUTOR BOOKWALTER

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP)—When Beate Woodworth takes the stand in court at the trial of King Benjamin Purnell, her story of what happened to young girls in the House of David colony here, will "rock the country," prosecutor George H. Bookwalter said tonight.

Marshaling of the combined legal forces of state and county already have begun, Bookwalter said he will prefer that the trial of the "King" be held during the February term of circuit court, which is the earliest possible time. Bookwalter added that he would "fight to the last ditch" any effort by House of David counsel to save Benjamin from trial because of state of his health. The "King" had to be carried into court yesterday when he was re-arrested on a new charge.

"Benjamin in my opinion is posing," said the prosecutor, "he is a consummate actor, and he isn't half as sick as the colony leaders make out."

Contrary to expectations, Purnell will not be brought to trial on the charges filed nearly four years ago by the Bainford sisters and which were the basis of a world wide search for the cult head and the posting of rewards totalling $4,000 for his capture. Instead, the "King's" accuser will be Beate Woodworth, young wife of a Benton Harbor musician, to whom she was married, according to her story, at the order of Purnell while the girl and Woodworth were members of the colony. It was a usual thing, Mrs. Woodworth said, for the "brother of the saviour," as Purnell described himself, to "marry off" young girls after they had submitted to the "blood purifying" rite, which the state charges were but a cloak for his illegal relations with them.

The Bainford sisters, both married and now out of the colony, told similar stories of the "rites" to which they said they and other young girls are forced to submit.

TOURIST FUNDS USED TO RESTORE POPES' PALACE

AVIGNON, France, Nov. 20 (AP)—Funds gleaned from tourists, mostly Americans, are making possible restoration of the historic palace of the popes here.

Built in the fourteenth century, the famous structure which has been the residence of several pontiffs, fell into decay during the nineteenth century when it was used as a military barracks.

Poverty of the municipal treasury had made it impossible to restore the palace until two years ago when a seasonal tax daily on tourists was instituted and soon between 40,000 and 50,000 francs was raised.

This money is being used to restore the noble edifice which stands on a lofty hill overlooking the Rhone valley.

BERLIN'S DIVORCE MILL WORKS AT DOUBLE TIME

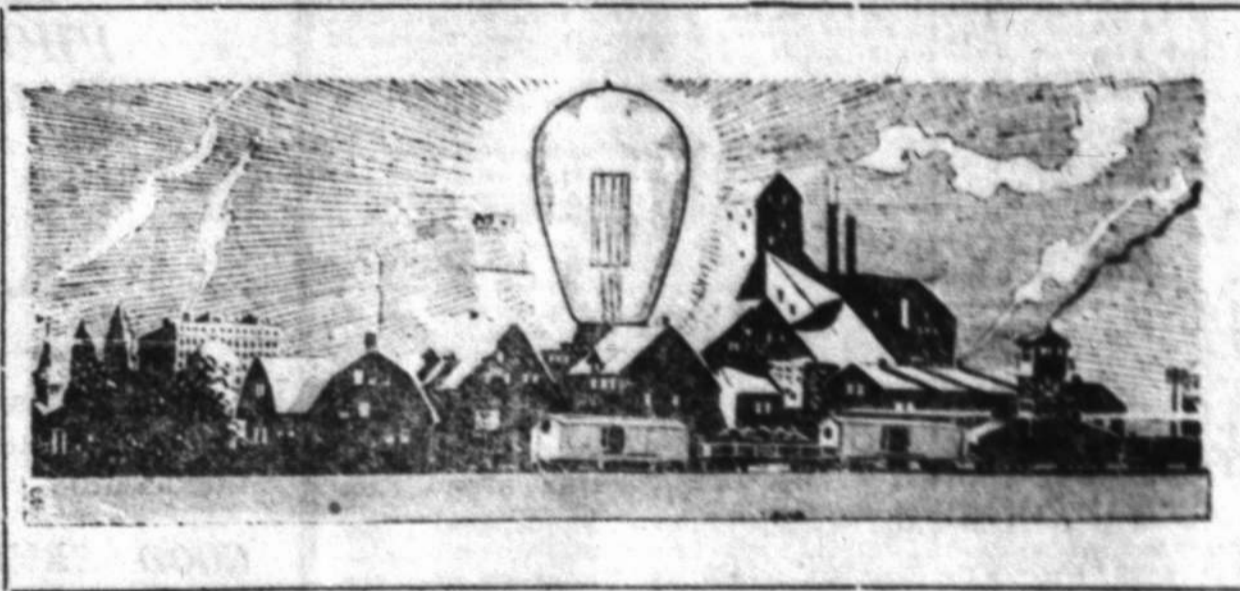

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (AP)—Berliners are rushing to the divorce courts with nearly twice the frequency they sought those tribunals before the war.

At the same time the number of marriages shows a slight falling off. Statistics reveal some 8,000 divorces in 1925 as against 4,000 in 1913, while marriages dropped from 26,000 in the year before the war to 25,100 last year.

MONTANA AUTO BUREAU OPERATED BY CONVICTS

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 20 (AP)—Montana's experiment in using prison labor to operate its automobile license bureau has apparently proven successful. With the peak of the year's business passed and 5000 more cars licensed than last year, the expense has been cut almost 50 per cent.

The bureau formerly was a part of the department of state.
