Superintendent says...

Drought, budget restraints reasons for golf course woes

By Bill McClellan
Managing Editor

Too little rain and too little money — that's the reason Western Texas College is receiving complaints that the golf course has taken a downward turn in recent times, according to the grounds supervisor.

"It honestly and truly is more weather related — more than anything else, even the budget," Bill Mitchell, WTC golf course and grounds supervisor told the board of trustees in a special session Monday night.

The agenda item, labeled as a "discussion of Mr. Bill Mitchell," was originally called as an executive session item. However, Mitchell informed administration that he wanted any discussion concerning him to be held in open session.

In a meeting that never drew angry remarks, Mitchell listened as seven people voiced comments about the course, and then tried to answer questions raised.

The comments ranged from a decline in esthetic appearance to spotty greens, a fence that needs work, divots not being repaired, dirty restrooms and shag balls being in the road.

Not all of the comments were negative. Athletic director and pro shop manager Milton Ham voiced support of Mitchell, as did college president Dr. Harry Krenek.

In his defense, Mitchell offered water quality reports, explained why the lack of rain was devastating to the course despite use of a sprinkler system, and pointed to budget restraints that limit what he and his crew can accomplish.

The effluent water used throughout the course comes from the city wastewater treatment plant, he told board members. With reports from A&L Testing Laboratories in hand, Mitchell explained how the levels of chlorides and bicarbonates greatly exceed the recommended amount.

He outlined how he has tried various remedies — some with minor success — to fight the problem of spotty greens.

"It's not like we haven't been doing anything, we have."

"People forget that we had this problem (with the greens) in 1988, although it wasn't quite as bad. So it's not anything new to us, it's just worse this time," said Mitchell.

"What cleared it up last time was two rains of about two inches each in a month. That's ultimately what is going to have to happen again."

In response to an earlier comment from board president Jay Kidd that the country club course looks good and spends no more money than the college, Mitchell said "Snyder Country Club doesn't use effluent, they don't use city water, they use well water. And it is infinitely better than ours."

Several at the meeting commented that the rail fence which borders much of the course is in need of repair. When it became his turn to speak, Mitchell answered their complaints.

"I've been here 16 years and that fence has been here 17. We've replaced rails and replaced poles. It's old, it's rotten in the ground. It needs to be replaced. I don't know what's going to happen this year, but for the fourth year running I've put that in the budget, and the three previous years it's been cut out."

Krenek defended Mitchell, reminding trustees that in previous years, he had informed the board in writing, that if administration was directed to cut the grounds budget "you will see a difference."

No picketing slated for local post office

While members of the National Association of Letter Carriers Union are planning informational picketing at a large number of post offices across the nation Wednesday, there are no plans for members of the union to picket the local post office.

"We won't picket at Snyder," said local union steward John Hosey. "Our union's main protest is aimed at Postmaster-General Marvin Runyan."

Hosey said the local union had a good working relationship with the management at the Snyder post office and added, "They, like the letter carriers, want to provide as much customer service as possible."

Hosey added that Runyan wanted to cut the number of employees at post offices nationwide and preaches cost-cutting measures. "Then he proposes a $1.5 million retirement bonus for himself."

RAINMAN - As part of his regular duties at the city's water treatment plant, Raymond Valadez Jr., checks the rain gauge following each measureable rainfall. Valadez, who has worked for the city for 10 years, measured .65 of an inch of rain follwing Monday's downpour around 5:30 p.m. Reports around the city ranged up to 1.1 inches. (SDN Staff Photo)

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A small town is where's there's no place to go where you shouldn't."

Think More Rain!

How quickly they forget!

Former Democratic State Sen. Steve Carriker and his wife, Kathy, were quoted in an article in last week's Dallas Morning News.

Focus of the article was the West Texas drought and its devastating impact on agriculture and small towns. The front-page story was accompanied with a picture of downtown Roby, the former senator's hometown.

The Dallas News incorrectly spelled the couple's name as Carricker.

Think More Rain!

It wasn't meant to be an editorial, but the statement was strong and was contained in the same issue of the Dallas newspaper.

It was a caption under the picture of a mother who had been called to the police station to pick-up her 16-year-old daughter for city curfew violation.

The mother's attire in itself made a statement, but her verbal comment opposing the juvenile curfew law was the loudest:

"We've got kids out there killing kids, and they want to arrest honor students," the mother complained.

Maybe they ought to arrest the mother.

Think More Rain!

The Democrats are trying to paint Bob Dole as dull. We like what one observer had to say: "He's a certified American war hero and a Congressional leader with impeccable credentials, and he's being forced into a personality remake so he can play a better political game."

It's ironic that polls indicate that Americans hate politicans and consistently rank them at the bottom of respected occupations in such areas as trustworthiness. Americans then demand a politician with a good TV image to run for office.

Hardly a citizen has failed to express his desire for a statesman instead of a politician. Some call it somebody with charisma.

In reality, American voters demand the kind of candidate we all profess to dislike. It's a small wonder we often get what we deserve.

Council OKs pact for plant engineer

Snyder City Council, meeting in a special noon session Monday, approved an engineering services agreement with Freese and Nichols and an application for a grant which would allow the police department to step up law enforcement activity during two holiday periods.

Council members also approved an ordinance relating to Lone Star Gas on second reading but tabled a decision to participate in the Texas Coalition of Cities for franchised utility issues.

The agreement with Freese & Nichols calls for that firm to provide an on-site engineer throughout the construction of the city's five million gallon per day water treatment plant. The cost is expected to be $249,000 and is included in Freese & Nichols' $650,000 total cost for engineering work related to the plant.

Groundbreaking is expected in mid-July with completion of the plant planned for July-August of 1997.

In other action Monday, the council approved application of a grant from the State of Texas to refund overtime costs for the Snyder Police Department during the Fourth of July holiday weekend and the Labor Day weekend.

Sgt. Trevlyn Pitner said said the $3,500 grant will be used to target speeders and those who do not wear seat belts. The grant has been pre-approved by the state, and will go into effect June 24, said Pitner.

With minor changes in the wording, the council approved on second reading an ordinance relating to a cost of service adjustment and a mainline extension adjustment for Lone Star Gas. The council had approved the ordinance June 11 on first reading.

At the recommendation of City Engineer Beverly Coots, the council tabled a resolution asking that the city participate in a coalition of other Texas cities in matters dealing with franchised utility issues. Mrs. Coots said she needed further time to research the matter.

Mayor David Holt presided. Council members present were Vernest Tippens, I.E. Martin, Ron Shaw, Dayton Robertson and Jerry Webb. Kenny Gambrell was absent.

Westerners get a coach

Western Texas College trustees, meeting Monday, approved the hiring of a women's basketball coach and discussed two items in executive session.

Trustees formally approved a search committee's recommendation to hire Anthony Portley as the women's basketball coach. Portley replaces Brenda Nichols, who resigned to accept a coaching position in Florida.

Portley was chosen from a finalist list of five candidates interviewed by the four-person committee. Most recently an assistant coach at Quincy University in Quincy, Ill., Portley has held positions at West Texas A&M University, Ranger Junior College and Big Spring High School, and is a graduate of Abilene Christian University.

No action was taken after an executive session held to update the board on a workers' compensation claim and acquisition of the Kmart building.

However, Dr. Harry Krenek, college president, said the board did direct administration to continue negotiations in regard to donation of the building.

Preliminary plans for the building are to use it at the college farm complex to construct a classroom/bunkhouse, additional storage or a covering for the arena. If WTC obtains the building, the materials would be placed in storage until funds become available to construct any of the above projects, or others, Krenek said.

All board members were present Monday.

Chamber approves 2 requests

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board of directors on Monday granted two requests for hotel/motel funds and accepted a motion to provide a shuttle bus for the upcoming Legends of Western Swing Music Festival.

The board approved a $2,500 request from the Scurry County Rodeo Association and granted the chamber the $1,000 it requested for reimbursement for music and arts necessary for last month's Cinco de Mayo festival.

Chamber manager Donna Fowler said the chamber's request is a legal one according to the guidelines book from the attorney general's office for the use of hotel/motel funds.

The request, which was originally for $1,400, was tabled at last month's meeting until all expenses were in.

Upon learning of the total expenses, the request was lowered to $1,000.

In other action, the board agreed to provide a shuttle bus to take visiting tourists from Scurry County Coliseum to town and back during the Legends of Western Swing Music Festival, scheduled July 26-29. A shuttle schedule is currently being planned.

Minutes and financials were reviewed and approved in other business. Pennzoil USA was named as business of the month.

Plans are still in the works for the upcoming Fourth of July celebration in Towle Park. Donations are appreciated to help defray the cost of the fireworks display, Fowler said.

.65 of an inch...

City receives some needed rain Monday

As far as Monday afternoon's showers are concerned, Snyder residents can consider themselves fortunate — more fortunate, at least, than other citizens of Scurry County.

The city received .65 of an inch of rainfall according to the water treatment plant, although some local residents recorded slightly more than an inch.

Elsewhere in the county, reports ranged from half an inch at Ira to "not a drop" east of Snyder. To the northwest, Fluvanna reported no rain, and to the southeast, Hermleigh received about three-tenths.

The rainfall brought the city's total for the year to 4.89 inches. More than half of that — 2.67 inches — has accumulated this month.

Lake J.B. Thomas received no rainfall, according to the Colorado River Municipal Water District. For the month, the lake has received 1.4 inches below the dam and 2.65 at the west end.

Monday's rain, which hit the city about 5:30 p.m., was accompanied by lightning, which caused some problems. Dispatchers at the Law Enforcement Center reported numerous false alarms and false 911 calls, particularly between 5:30 and 5:35.

According to the weather service, the county has a 20 percent chance of rain today and this evening before the weather clears off for a sunny Wednesday.

Fireworks not banned

ODESSA (AP) — Just before a vote that would have imposed strict conditions over where and how fireworks could be used over the Fourth of July holiday, Ector County Commissioners changed their minds.

Because of the drought and fire risk, commissioners were poised to pass some kind of fireworks ban, but in the end opted to limit government involvement in holiday activities.

Some counties are seeking restrictions on fireworks usage, but commissioners backed off after deciding restrictions would be difficult to enforce and would be unfair to private property owners.

Commissioners allowed Truckload Fireworks co-owner Ted Tuminowski to establish two "safe areas" in the county where residents can light their fireworks under controlled circumstances.

Truckload Fireworks, the area's largest distributor, has joined other Texas fireworks dealers in a voluntary ban on aerial fireworks. Tuminowski said no rockets or missiles will be sold regardless of how much rain falls between now and July 4.

"I'm just pleased with the commissioners' decision," Tuminowski said. "They were very fair."

Aerial fireworks are defined by state law as skyrockets with sticks, fins or rudders used for the purpose of achieving aerodynamic flight. Fireworks that shoot projectiles into the air, such as Roman candles, are not considered aerial fireworks.

Shuttle launch maybe postponed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A crew of seven astronauts arrived here Monday from Houston, primed for an extended science flight beginning Thursday aboard space shuttle Columbia.

But Florida's capricious summer thunderstorms and schedule pressures including the launch of a spy satellite may force a delay to July 5.

Filling the giant fuel tank Wednesday evening in what may be bad weather looks "a little bit dicey," said shuttle weather officer Ed Priselac.

He said liftoff may occur between 10:49 a.m. and 1:19 p.m. Thursday if the weather permits. The National Weather Service predicts cloudy skies and showers and thunderstorms for that day throughout Central Florida.

Some children got experimental vaccine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The government gave a group of mostly minority children experimental measles vaccinations without their parents' knowledge during a 1989 epidemic.

Federal health authorities admitted that almost 1,500 children, nearly all black and Hispanic, were given one of two vaccines — one of which was experimental.

One child died, but authorities attribute the 22-month-old boy's death to a bacterial infection.

A Department of Health and Human Services review concluded that the study's co-sponsors, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Kaiser Permanente of California, erred in not telling parents that one of the vaccines was experimental, the Los Angeles Times reported Monday.

Passengers coping with cancellations

ATLANTA (AP) — Kim Broeckling knew her ValuJet flight was to be one of the last to take off before the airline was grounded for safety concerns. She got on the plane anyway.

Once in the air Monday night, she and her two friends drank beer compliments of the airline and tried to keep laughing.

"We were all kind of joking around on the plane," said Ms. Broeckling, who arrived in Atlanta from Fort Walton Beach, Fla. "We were looking at our pretzels and our peanuts and saying, 'Even death row prisoners get a better last meal than this.'"

Atlanta-based ValuJet stopped operating at midnight after a federal inspection found serious deficiencies in the carrier's operations. The airline said it hopes to resume service in about 30 days.

A delayed flight from Detroit was one of the last ValuJet flights to land, touching down in Atlanta at 12:30 a.m. The plane had been scheduled to carry 48 passengers, but carried none, and the airline did not immediately offer an explanation.

Many of the passengers who put up with flight delays, cancellations and cutbacks since the May 11 crash of ValuJet Flight 592 in the Florida Everglades were angered by the latest inconvenience.

Work at home without the scams

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I am a mother of three small children and would like to supplement my income by working at home. Do you know of ANY reputable companies that I could contact? All I hear are horror stories of people who have been scammed by "work-at-home" ads and offers, and I can't afford to have that happen to me! — ADELE S., Coquille, Ore.

DEAR ADELE: After years of searching for a reputable resource for "work-at-home" product assembly information and opportunities, we have finally found one.

Ruth Howard of Arlington, Kan., was in the same position you are: She had three small children and wanted to earn some extra money by working at home.

"I started answering ads and sent for information many times," she writes, "only to have one disappointment after another. I could never get enough information and had to pay fees before I could see exactly what the companies wanted. After losing $45 to one company on a non-refundable fee, I finally just 'got mad.'"

She decided to become a "consumer activist" and personally investigated a number of "work-at-home" companies. She came up with an initial list of 17 trustworthy companies that she writes about in her booklet, "Dollars at Home Directory" and features on the accompanying video, "Working at Home With Ruth Howard."

When we spoke with Ruth on the telephone, she noted that the video is intended not only to inform but also to demonstrate exactly what these 17 companies require in terms of work skills.

Her booklet contains invaluable information on what kinds of companies to avoid, what you should look for in work agreements, sample inquiry letters and more. The booklet and video package cost $29.95, plus $4 shipping and handling.

Ruth has kindly offered to include (to our readers only) a year's free subscription to her quarterly publication, "The Work-at-Home Newsletter," which is ordinarily $19.95.

To order, send check or money order to "Dollars at Home Directory and Video," Michaels Resource Group, 208 Washington Ave., P.O. Box 248, Dept. 50, Vandergrift, PA 15690.

Write to "Ask Anne & Nan" at P.O. Box 240, Hartland, VT 05048. Questions of general interest will appear in the column. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies cannot be provided.

Aboriginal and trick dancing

Sunday morning, March 10, I took the scenic railway up into the rain forest. We went past many waterfalls in full flood, across 40 bridges and through 15 tunnels before pulling into Kuranda Station. The highlight of the trip to that picturesque village was the show at the Tjapukai Aboriginal Dance Theatre. What does an aborigine call a boomerang that won't come back?

I returned via the Skyrail, a gondola that runs high above the rain forest. This gave me a clear idea of how tall the trees grow.

In the evening, it was back to work teaching a lesson based on the Law of Total Tricks. This deal was included more for the card-play technique than as an example of the Law in action.

An aggressive South will cha-cha with a weak two-spade opening. And some of you might quickstep with a two-spade response, a weak jump shift in competition, with that South hand. Regardless, North has an easy entrechat to game.

West leads the heart four. East cashes two heart tricks before switching to the diamond 10.

Rather than rely on one club finesse working, the declarer should choreograph the contract via an elimination and endplay. After winning with dummy's diamond ace, continue with a diamond ruff, a spade to the dummy, a diamond ruff, a spade to the dummy and the final diamond ruff. Now play a club to the 10 (or queen). East wins but is endplayed. He must either lead a club into dummy's tenace or concede a ruff-and-discard.

A boomerang that won't come back is a stick.

Toni Braxton shares secrets on new album

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Toni Braxton tells a few secrets on her new album.

On her self-titled debut album three years ago, such songs as "Breathe Again" and "Seven Whole Days" portrayed Braxton as the victim of romance.

On "Secrets," which comes out Tuesday, Braxton bubbles with sexual attitude. One song, "You're Makin' Me High," is something of a rhapsody on desire and what a body might do about it.

"At first I was nervous about singing like that," Braxton, 28, said in Sunday's Los Angeles Times. "I'm very comfortable with my sexuality, but the lyrics in that song are so overt ..."

Braxton also joked about the long "bought" hair she wears in the video for the song: "You too can have this for $1,200."

It's a switch from her trademark close-cropped look.

Kiss is back

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — There's the ritual spitting of fake blood, the bass player's pointed tongue and the big, spiked boots: Kiss is back.

Gene Simmons, Ace Frehley, Paul Stanley, and Peter Criss held a reunion concert Saturday at Orange County's Irvine Meadows Amphitheatre — their first public performance together since 1983.

The legendary rock band performed 10 songs, including "Beth," which was featured in the movie "Beautiful Girls." The band even overcame a minor explosion when a cache of fireworks under the stage canopy briefly caught fire.

Kiss is scheduled to officially kick off its two-year world tour June 28 in Detroit.

LL Braves move into title game

ABILENE — The Snyder Little League Braves moved into the championship game of the District V Little League County Tournament here Monday with a 4-1 victory over the Breckenridge Cardinals.

The Braves will face Abilene Lone Star in the finals at 7:30 tonight at Logan Field. Lone Star advanced by whipping Abilene Dixie, 7-2.

Michael Pendleton picked up the win on the mound for the Braves by striking out seven, allowing one run on four hits and walking one.

Pendleton helped his own cause at the plate with two doubles and scored a run. Brandon McQuire smacked two triples and scored. Steve Ortegon also had a three bagger and scored a run.

Tyler Pollard singled and Zack Cain added a run.

The Braves got on the scoreboard first in the top half of the opening inning with a run. Snyder added one more in the fourth and two in the fifth.

NATIONAL QUALIFIERS—Stoni Riggan, left, and Tarra Bynum qualified to compete in the High School National Finals rodeo in Pueblo, Colo. in July after finishing in the top four in their events at the State High School rodeo held in Abilene last week. Riggan took first place in barrels while Bynum finished fourth in breakaway roping. Also shown is Texas, Riggan's horse she rode in barrels. (SDN Staff Photo by Brent Taylor)

Riggan, Bynum make High School Nationals

ABILENE — Stoni Riggan advanced to the National High School rodeo over the weekend by finishing first in the barrels at the State High School rodeo held here in the Taylor County Expo Center.

Riggan won the short-go Sunday with a time of 16.26.

For her effort, Riggan was awarded a saddle, buckle and a jacket.

The National High School rodeo will be July 14-22 in Pueblo, Colo.

Also qualifying for nationals from Snyder was Terra Bynum. Bynum was a fourth-place finisher in the breakaway. In the barrels and poles, Bynum finished in fifth place, good for first alternate to nationals.

Bynum qualified for the short-go in goat tying as well, but her goat got up for a no time.

Bynum was awarded a jacket for each short-go event in which she qualified in and received two buckles.

The top four places advance to the nationals.

After flashback to '84, Slaney makes it back to Olympics

ATLANTA (AP) — Mary Slaney was rounding a curve at Olympic Stadium when, all of a sudden, her knees began to buckle. Oh no, she must have been thinking. Not again.

The same thing happened 12 years earlier at the Los Angeles Games. Slaney became entangled with Zola Budd in the 3,000 meters, a collision that sent Slaney tumbling to the track and came to symbolize a career that plunged into a series of injuries and unfulfilled promise.

Monday night, trying to revive her career at age 37, Slaney's body lurched forward once again at the U.S. track and field trials as she attempted to qualify for the Olympic team in the women's 5,000 meters.

This time, though, she didn't fall.

"At the top of the turn, I was getting into my momentum and my foot got caught," Slaney said. "There was a little bit of a flashback, but I'm trying not to flash back very far."

Regaining her balance and showing a great finishing kick that belied her advancing years, Slaney rallied to finish second in the 5,000 and complete an improbable comeback by qualifying for her first Olympics since 1988.

Well, maybe she hasn't completed the comeback just yet.

"I'm really going to work hard over the next month," she told the fans who rose from their seats in the final few laps to urge her on. "I want to be in the medal hunt when I come back here for the Olympics."

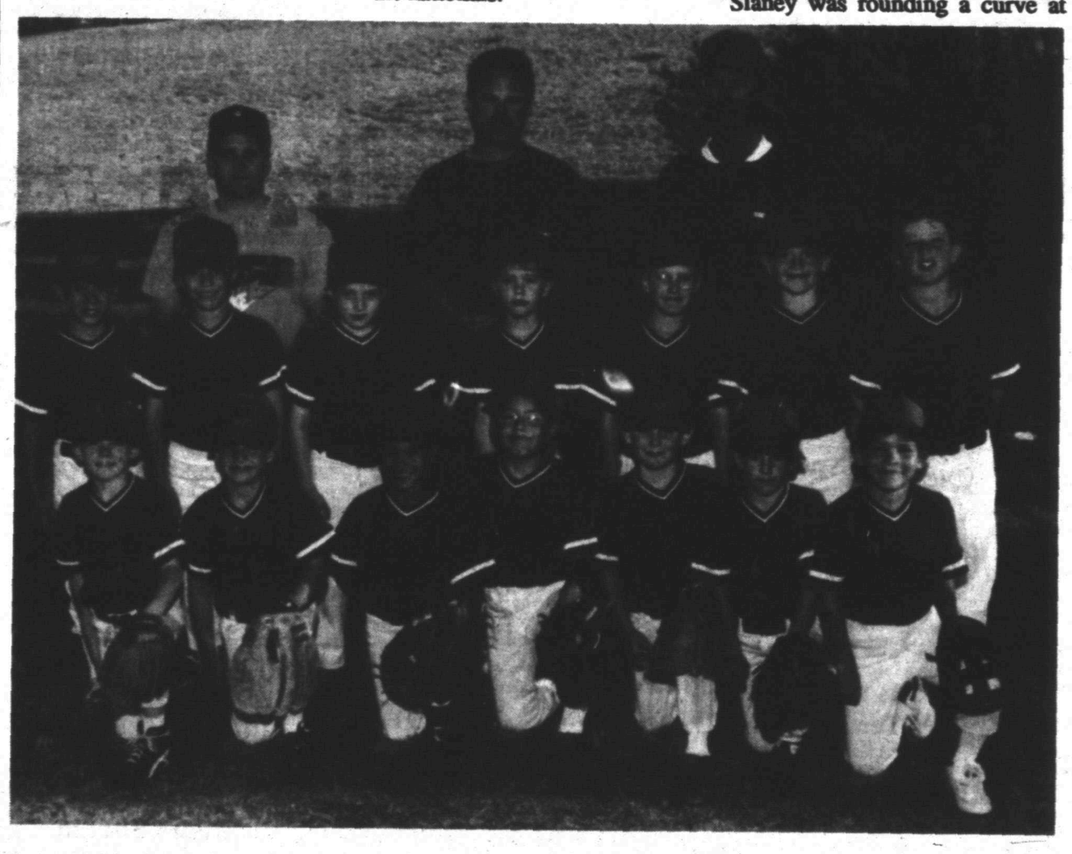

Maybe Slaney will be able to erase some of those bitter Olympic memories when she returns for the Atlanta Games. Despite her status as the greatest women's distance runner in American track history, she has never finished higher than eighth in the Olympics and remains tormented by her collision with Budd.

"In 1984, I didn't handle it very well, and I ended up on the track," she said. "I am getting better at handling contact, because I'm around people. I didn't have the opportunity to be around other runners before, because I was always leading."

With three laps to go, Slaney found herself laboring in fifth place, a position that would have been unthinkable in her prime. But she gritted her teeth, lengthened her strides and fought her way back into contention.

Amy Rudolph and Cheri Goddard were the first to fall behind as Slaney moved into third — good enough for a spot on the Olympic team. With just over a half-lap to go, after taking over second, her feet hooked up with Libbie Johnson's, but Slaney managed to remain upright.

Coming down the final stretch, she looked over both shoulders as if trying to ensure that no demons from the past were coming up on her heels.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Pavlik couldn't quite get used to the idea of a baseball game ending in a tie. For at least one spectator, though, it was nothing out of the ordinary.

A thunderstorm washed out Monday night's game between the Texas Rangers and Baltimore Orioles with the score 1-1 in the sixth inning. The game will be made up in its entirety, but the makeup will not be rescheduled until today.

After the game, the Orioles announced a doubleheader would be played today, but that plan was scrubbed after midnight.

Pavlik, the Rangers' starting pitcher, missed a chance to pick up his 10th victory of the season. The right-hander had a no-hitter through four innings, but a wild streak and a 10-foot single enabled the Orioles to pull into a 1-1 tie in the fifth.

One inning later, the rain came. After a delay of 1 hour, 17 minutes, umpires called it off.

"It's a weird feeling," Pavlik said. "I ain't never been involved in a tie ballgame since, I don't know, ever. This is something that goes with hockey or soccer."

Not in Japan, where tie games in baseball are commonplace. Sachio Kinugasa, the former world record holder for consecutive games played, was in attendance at Monday's game to help Orioles fans celebrate the return home of baseball's new career iron man, Cal Ripken.

Ripken and Kinugasa sat side-by-side during a late afternoon news conference, then exchanged jerseys in front of the pitcher's mound prior to Monday's game.

Kinugasa then toed the rubber and threw out the ceremonial first pitch to a crouching Ripken.

It was Ripken's 2,219th consecutive game played, an ongoing record. Kinugasa appeared in 2,215 straight games in Japan from 1970 to 1987, a mark Ripken surpassed Friday in Kansas City.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1996 Universal Press Syndicate

'Starter' showers often needed

DEAR ABBY: Every year after graduation, thousands of young adults begin new jobs and move into homes of their own. Although this is an exciting time for them, it also can be a difficult one as they struggle to furnish their new living quarters. Most are reduced to begging from relatives, "making do" with castoffs, or doing without.

Since people marry later now, bridal showers often are given for older persons who have good jobs and who already have acquired everything they need. Some couples even purchase and furnish homes and live together for months or years before they say "I do."

Young, never-employed brides who migrate straight from parents to husbands (the ones for whom bridal showers were designed) are rare today.

Isn't it time to add a new twist to the old tradition and give "starter" showers for single men and women who are setting up housekeeping for the first time? "Starting over" showers would benefit people who have lost everything in disasters, as well as people who have recently divorced.

What do you think, Abby?

MARILYN SWARTZ,
TACOMA, WASH.

DEAR MARILYN: When I first heard about showers for singles several years ago, I thought, "Here's an idea whose time has come!" It's a great idea — for all the reasons you stated.

DEAR ABBY: In all the years of faithfully reading your column, I have never felt compelled to write to you — until now.

After reading the poem titled "The Tone of Your Voice," I couldn't stop crying. For years, people have criticized me about my tone of voice. They say it is too sharp and full of hostility.

Abby, I fail to understand how this can be true because I honestly feel no anger or hostility.

My mother, husband and siblings all take offense at my tone of voice, which kills any hope of honest communication. Close friends have also told me that I am often misunderstood because of my tone of voice.

Please, please tell me how I can overcome this handicap. It is no fun being disliked and misunderstood. Thank you.

A MISUNDERSTOOD WOMAN

DEAR MISUNDERSTOOD: Find a speech therapist or voice teacher. With proper training, the tone of your voice can be changed.

DEAR ABBY: You printed several letters about children at weddings and the consequences of their (mis)behavior. While I agree with the concept that it is the bride's day, I thought maybe you would enjoy a lighter side to the problem.

Ten years ago, our oldest daughter was married in our backyard. The weather was perfect, the lawn and flowers looked beautiful, and we had 70 guests. One of our neighbors had hired a baby sitter to stay with her two young daughters with strict instructions not to let the girls outside until the reception had started.

As everyone stood to pray, the baby sitter quietly opened the back door and let the dog outside and quickly shut the door before the girls begged to go outside. For 30 seconds, everything was fine — then the dog saw the guests and commenced barking and howling throughout the entire prayer. As the preacher concluded, the baby sitter let the dog inside and everyone burst out laughing.

So, although everything was perfect and we had no disruptive children, we hadn't counted on the dog's blessing. We have it on the wedding video and it still makes us laugh every time we watch it.

Nerve damage is a pain in the leg

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 17-year-old girl with nerve damage to my right leg. I've suffered with lower back and right buttock pain for almost two years. A chiropractor can get me up and walking, but after a couple of weeks, I'm back to square one. On my last visit to him, he made one major adjustment that has left my leg blue and blotchy all the time. The circulation is impaired and my leg is cold. I miss a lot of school and need some help.

DEAR READER: Without examining you and reviewing your X-rays, I can't hazard a guess about the cause of your pain. But, clearly, you need a medical diagnosis. At the very least, you could have arthritis, a bone abnormality in your back or a herniated disc.

I urge you to address this issue with your family physician. It seems to me that the chiropractor has exhausted his resources; now you need an M.D. to diagnose and treat your ailment. Because your life is so disrupted, I wouldn't waste any time getting to the proper professional for X-rays and other diagnostic studies.

If you do, indeed, have a nerve or circulatory problem that has persisted uncorrected for two years, you are risking permanent damage/handicap. Start with your family doctor, who can refer you to appropriate specialists, if warranted.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had epilepsy for 33 years. Initially, it took some doing to adjust my medication. For the past 12 years, though, I've only had two seizures. My doctor took me off medication completely, and I had a seizure while out in public with no medication on hand. It was frightening! Can an epileptic ever live without constant medication?

DEAR READER: The cause of epilepsy is not known: Something stimulates inappropriate periodic discharges of electricity within the brain, leading to seizures.

Although some individuals outgrow epilepsy, in most cases the disorder is permanent and life-long use of anti-convulsant medicine, such as Dilantin, is necessary. You apparently fall into this category.

Of course, you should address this issue with your neurologist. Epilepsy is diagnosed (and monitored) by a brain-wave test (EEG). Perhaps the doctor can adjust the amount of your medicine so that you are taking a low maintenance dose. However, from your description, I suspect that you will require anti-convulsant medication for an indefinite period.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Epilepsy: The Falling Sickness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THOSE FBI FILES BEING AT THE WHITE HOUSE?

IN CASE YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT
"Blood Thinners"

Most lay folks refer to anticoagulants such as Coumadin as "blood thinners". But actually they don't thin anything. What they do is slow the time it takes the blood to clot by altering its chemistry. Coumadin, a potent popular anticoagulant, blocks the action of Vitamin K in the liver so that it can't make as many of the blood clotting proteins.

Besides acting as a clot blockers, Coumadin helps your body get rid of clots you may already have. It doesn't dissolve them, but helps keep existing clots from getting any bigger and gives your body natural declotting mechanisms an opportunity to work. This medication can and does radically lower your chances of a heart attack or stroke if used properly and correctly.

Many over the counter and prescription drugs severly effect the anticoagulant you may be taking. Acetaminophen, antibotics, aspirin, alcohol consumption, anticids, and birth control pills containing estrogen are just a few. Always work very closely with your doctor and/or pharmacist before mixing Coumadin with other substances. And did you know Carolyn Barbee will be 50 this week?

Pays overdue fines

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — It might take a while, but you can't say Phil Alden Robinson doesn't pay his dues.

The director of the hit movie "Field of Dreams" finally returned two library books he borrowed from his alma mater, Union College, in June 1970 — and he paid the fine, too.

"At ten cents a day, it comes to $1,900," Robinson said while giving the commencement speech at graduation Sunday. He also received an honorary doctorate.

Robinson, who graduated in 1971, told some 650 graduates to satisfy their own dreams as they head out into the world.

"You've had people all your life telling you what to do. Now finally, at last, it's your turn," he said.

FAA grounds ValuJet; official retiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — ValuJet halted operations today under pressure from the same government officials who declared the airline safe after a ValuJet plane crashed five weeks ago in the Florida Everglades.

The Federal Aviation Administration, accused of negligently failing to spot ValuJet's shortcomings earlier, was forcing its top safety official into retirement as part of a larger shakeup.

On Wall Street, ValuJet stock lost half of its value in the opening 30 minutes of trading, the first response by investors to the grounding. ValuJet plunged $5 a share with more than 4 million shares changing hands in the early going to stand at $5 a share on the Nasdaq Stock Market.

The agency planned to announce changes that include the retirement of Anthony J. Broderick, longtime associate administrator for regulation and certification.

Broderick's job, perhaps the most powerful in the agency, combines authority to certify airlines and aircraft and safe to fly and to regulate the operation of airlines. The certification and regulation aspects are considered likely to be separated after Broderick's departure.

FAA Administrator David Hinson, interviewed on morning television talk shows, declined comment on the reported shakeup.

But government sources speaking on condition of anonymity confirmed that agency officials told the White House in a meeting Monday that Broderick would leave. White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta and adviser George Stephanopoulos attended the meeting, at which the agency plans were approved.

Two sources familiar with the meeting said the decision for Broderick to depart had been made before the meeting and the White House officials were satisfied with the actions of Hinson and Transportation Secretary Federico Pena.

WTC golf course blues

Saying he would have to take some of the blame, Krenek said Mitchell's budget has been cut "probably more severely than every other budget presented to me...I think it is unfortunate for him to be called forward when we've been cutting his budget year after year after year."

"We are trying to operate as efficiently as we can...," said Mitchell. "If that's not the board's pleasure, I need to know. I've been told we need to try and do (spend) a little less and try to break even. I'll do it anyway you want to do it. I'll spend any amount of money you want me to spend."

"I feel hamstrung, with no money to do anything about it," he said.

But Krenek pointed out that the problem — lack of adequate funding — is not unique to the golf course grounds. "There aren't many good solutions. We could raise taxes, but I don't think that's what the board wants to do."

New trustee Drew Bullard said he needed more information in order to make an informed decision about the course. "I don't know how much the golf course costs us. I don't know where the money is coming from...I need a little more information," he said.

Figures mentioned in the meeting indicate that the course loses about $40,000 annually, made up with funds from student housing. Mitchell said he will compile more data for the board.

Mitchell explained that some of the other complaints — dirty restrooms, trash in the golf carts, paint peeling on the pro shop — don't come under the responsibilities of the grounds supervisor.

"We're not here to take you to task," Kidd told Mitchell, "people don't understand what we go through. It's tough on a college to run a golf course. We tried going to the city for help and the city laughed at us. We went to the county and the county laughed at us. I don't know why, but they're not interested in helping at all."

Almost every board member shared in the discussion, including Jack Greene Jr. After hearing Mitchell note that some maintenance equipment is 12 years or older, Greene cautioned, "If we don't start replacing it, it will literally put him out of business."

Among the others making comments were Ham, Wayne Monroney, Tommie Mills and Juan Hernandez.

All board members were present, to include Kidd, Greene, Bullard, Eddie Peterson, R.C. Patton, Carolyn Barbee and Lee Presswood.
