'Stay with El Salvador,' Reagan urges nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan conceded Friday he sees no clear end to U.S. military assistance to the besieged government of El Salvador, but insisted "We have to stay with this." And he denied trying to "blackmail" Congress with his latest request for $110 million in aid to that nation.

At a nationally broadcast news conference, Reagan also lashed out at environmentalists and critics of Anne McGill Burford, who resigned under fire as chief of the Environmental Protection Agency, and assailed the nation's bankers for their intense lobbying to repeal tax withholding on interest and dividend income.

The president, departing from past legislative tactics, flatly declared he would veto a $3.7-billion jobs bill now being debated by the Senate if it carries the withholding repeal pushed by Republican Sen. Bob Kasten of Wisconsin. Reagan said the banking industry would "do a lot better to spend its time thinking about lowering interest rates" than lobbying against the withholding requirement that takes effect on July 1.

As for U.S. assistance to El Salvador, "I can't give you a date when things of that kind will end," Reagan told reporters.

"I hope that it will be a short time...but I also have to recognize, not be naive, that these people up there in the hills are not just discontented peasants who managed to get their hands on a military weapon. These are trained and highly equipped military forces, equipped and backed by outsiders by way mainly of Cuba through Nicaragua. So I think that we have to stay with this."

In a speech to an industry group Thursday, Reagan said he was asking Congress for an additional $110 million to help the Salvadoran regime put down a 40-month-old leftist insurrection.

He said the money was needed to train Salvadoran troops and that if it was not granted, it might be necessary to send more U.S. military advisers to El Salvador than the current self-imposed limit of 55.

Democrats on Congress denounced this as a pressure tactic, with Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., describing it as a form of blackmail.

Reagan, however, said,"There is no blackmail of any kind intended."

"I don't see why there is so much opposition to it," he said. "We have no intention of sending combat forces nor have we ever been asked for combat forces and no intention of ever sending the adviser teams into combat units or anything. We are talking about simply giving their military some of the fundamental training to enable them to do the job."

Turning to the ongoing dispute over the EPA, Reagan said environmental extremists won't be satisfied "until the White House looks like a bird's nest ... I sometimes suspect that the lobbyists for the environmental interests feel that they have to keep their constituents stirred up or they might not have jobs anymore."

As for Mrs. Burford, who stepped down Wednesday night, the president said he never would have asked for her resignation. Though his own White House staff had fueled calls for her departure, Reagan insisted that "In my book she had nothing to hide."

He acknowledged that some White House officials had pressured Mrs. Burford to leave, but "I still would like to find them out and identify them."

Mrs. Burford, he said, "is a far bigger person than those people who have been sniping at her and who have been going public with unfounded allegations, accusations and charges" The EPA is under investigation by seven congressional committees or subcommittees for alleged mismanagement.

Honduran radar station set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans to establish a radar station in Honduras to track small planes suspected of carrying arms from Nicaragua to El Salvador's leftist rebels, Pentagon officials said on Friday.

The disclosure came after senior defense officials reported that airborne arms traffic between Nicaragua and El Salvador has "picked up in recent months."

The new radar station, which would be manned by 50 to 52 U.S. Air Force personnel, probably will be described officially as intended for the safety of U.S. air traffic over Honduras. About 50 to 55 U.S. planes operate in Honduran air space in an average month, said Pentagon officials.

However, these officials made it plain that the new station's main purpose will be to monitor suspected airborne arms flights from Nicaragua across Honduras to El Salvador.

These officials, who insisted on remaining anonymous, noted that the radar equipment can "see" more than 240 miles and that this will enable it to survey much of Nicaragua's air space.

According to plans, the official said, the radar station will be installed on high ground about 25 miles southeast of Tegucigalpa and will cost about $5 million. The intention now is to operate it for about two years, they said.

Senior defense officials have reported that more arms shipments from Nicaragua have been shifted to small planes because the Honduran government has developed "a pretty good interdiction program" to slow down clandestine arms movements on the ground and by water across the Gulf of Fonseca.

Honduran patrols have been stopping trucks carrying arms from Nicaragua to El Salvador and both Honduran and Salvadoran patrol boats have impeded water traffic and arms from Nicaragua.

Presumably, information gathered by the new radar station on suspected arms-carrying planes will be relayed to the Salvadoran military, although this was not said specifically by the Pentagon officials.

The United States has been increasing aid to Honduras because of what the Pentagon's specialist on Central American affairs, Nestor Sanchez, has told Congress is a "major buildup by neighboring Nicaragua and the continued violation of Honduran borders and territory by the Sandinistas" ruling Nicaragua.

The establishment of the U.S. radar station would be in line with hopes expressed by senior U.S. military officials for greater cooperation between friendly Latin countries and the United States to deal with Marxist rebel movements.

In line with this goal, senior officers said in private interviews that they are anxious that other countries, possibly Honduras and Venezuela, agree to help train troops from El Salvador on their territory.

As they see it, U.S.-trained military officers and non-commissioned officers in Latin armies can teach valuable skills to the Salvadoran troops and that this would reduce the need for any additional U.S. trainers and advisers working inside El Salvador.

The United States so far has trained three battalions of Salvadoran infantry, one of them at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and their performance in the field against Salvadoran guerrillas has won the approval of American military specialists.

MMH gains approval for expansion project

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Despite an effort by Parkview Hospital to squash Midland Memorial Hospital's $15 million state-approved expansion, MMH officials say they will proceed with plans for the project.

MMH received approval Friday from the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin.

The THFC voted unanimously to approve MMH's certificate of need application for a 77-bed expansion, but denied a $17 million application for a new 110-bed hospital by American Medical Corporation, which owns Parkview. There is a 15-day waiting period before the THFC's decision is final.

According to Dick Liley, Parkview administrator, AMC will file a motion with the THFC for a re-hearing on its proposed full-service hospital which was to be built in northwest Midland.

"We firmly believe we will win in the end and a new hospital will be built," Liley said, referring to Doctors Hospital of the Permian Basin.

Ray Branson, MMH president, was out of town Friday when the decision was handed down. But, in a statement issued through Arlene Strickland, MMH public relations director, Branson said the hospital plans to build despite Parkview's proposed motion.

"It would be the hospital's (MMH) desire to proceed with developing the project at the earliest opportunity, regardless of any litigation that may be filed," Branson said in a prepared statement .

The THFC three-member commission was short one member Friday because Bolin Maffey's term recently ended, according to Carol Daniels, deputy executive of the THFC. However, Ms. Daniels said the missing member did not affect the vote. She added the THFC is awaiting senate approval for Gov. Mark White's appointment.

This is MMH's second victory and the second defeat for Parkview Hospital, which is owned by AMC. Previously, the two hospitals submitted applications to Austin for similar facilities offering drug and alcohol abuse services. Parkview also was denied on that application and has appealed the decision in Travis County Court.

According to Ms. Daniels, Parkview's attorney, Ace Pickens, attempted to amend the private hospital's application Wednesday.

"They really didn't submit anything concrete," Ms. Daniels said, explaining that Pickens filed a motion to reopen the hearing and "referred to their willingness to amend the application, deleting the (14) nursery and (10) obstetric beds."

...Something special

By HALLYE JORDAN

The roar of the crowd Friday was no different than that at any other sporting event held in a Texas high school stadium.

Blotches of balloon-colored T-shirts, designating team members of participating schools, brightened the bleachers.

Little faces, rising above determined little legs pumping steadily around the track, shined with perspiration as teammates from the stands shouted encouragement.

Several pompons of blue and gold crepe paper streamers lay limp and abandoned in a cardboard box in the stands, forgotten in the excitement of watching the action circling the green field.

The bright sun and clear skies brought warmth to the slightly chilly March morning. But the real glow came from the 150 handicapped children who took part in the fifth Special Olympics Field Day, sponsored by the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens and the Midland Independent School District.

Mingling in the stadium crowd, the youngsters proudly displayed the ribbons pinned on their chests.

"Mrs. Carter, I won a first," one said, eyes beseeching praise.

Midland County farmer files suit in sewage dispute

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A Midland County farmer who wants Odessa's sewage off of his farm land and out of his water has filed a $1,957,000 civil lawsuit against the city of Odessa.

The farmer, 29-year-old Lee Bell, claims that Odessa's sewage effluent flowing down Monahans Draw has ruined 80 acres of his farm land, has damaged the value of adjoining land and has polluted his water wells.

The suit's petition, filed this week in Midland's 142nd State District Court, claims that 80 acres of the farmer's 424-acre tract about five miles southeast of Midland and just east of Farm Road 715 and near County Road 1213 have been "completely ruined" for agricultural purposes by Odessa's industrial waste and sewage effluent.

"I PAID INFLATED prices for this land (in 1978)," Bell said Friday night, "and lost a fourth of my productive land. It's killing me. There's never been any water running down it (the draw) until 1980."

The land has been farmed for 50 years, he said, but "we're completely out of farming business."

"It's a man-made problem," Bell said. "Nobody wants a 424-acre tract of land with a 80-acre cesspool in the middle of it."

His attorney, Midland lawyer Reagan Legg, said Bell has "dug a channel through (his land) in trying to control" the draw's water but to no avail.

Odessa has a permit from the Texas Water Commission to dump its treated waste waters in Monahans Draw, which meanders eastwardly from Odessa, though Midland County and eventually links up with Midland Draw and blends into Mustang Draw and so on to the Colorado River.

The suit's petition has been served to Odessa city officials.

"We'll probably do some more exploratory work to see the nature of the (alleged) damages," Odessa City Manager John Harrison said Friday.

THE SUIT didn't startle Harrison.

"Over the years, people shouldn't be surprised with people filing lawsuits," Harrison said. "That's something that doesn't bother us. That's part of the routine. I'm sure Midland has the same."

Since the mid-1970s, Midland County has been countering Odessa's efforts and successes in daily dumping millions of gallons of effluent into the draw. So far, Midland County has not taken Odessa to court but has tried — unsuccessfully — to thwart Odessa's getting a Texas Water Commission permits to release the water down the draw.

The permit is coming up for renewal, and Midland County, like Bell, claims the effluent is polluting underground water. Rather than sue Odessa, Midland County commissioners again have opted "hopefully" to persuade the Texas Water Commission not to renew the permit, said Ted Kerr, a Midland lawyer hired by Midland County to dispute Odessa's argument for the permit.

LAST YEAR, the Commission ordered the city of Midland to devise means to dispose of its waste water by means other than letting it flow down Midland Drew and allegedly pollute underground fresh water zones.

Oil price, decontrol debates go on

Quotas hinder OPEC's talks

LONDON (AP) — Bitter wrangling over production quotas between Saudi Arabia and Iran emerged as a key stumbling block Friday in OPEC's drive to recapture control of the glutted world oil market.

Venezuela and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries also were understood to be locked in disagreements about how much of the overall OPEC sales they should get.

"I'm afraid until now we are still apart, far away from each other as far as the (production) quotas are concerned," said Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates.

Humberto Calderon Berti, the Venezuelan oil minister, reaffirmed that the 13 ministers had a "general understanding" to cut the $34 OPEC base price. He and other ministers refused to disclose the size of the price reduction, but delegation sources said the new price would be about $29.

It took OPEC more than a week to achieve that understanding on prices, and the production-sharing issue was considered even more divisive.

Iran and Saudi Arabia have been at loggerheads for months on the production issue, in part because of their intense political differences. The Iranians accuse the Saudis of engineering the current oil glut to serve the interests of the industrialized countries.

The Saudis' financial support of Iraq in the 2½-year-old Iran-Iraq war has deepened the hostility between OPEC's two biggest producers. For their part, the Saudis accuse the Iranians of secretly discounting the price of their oil in violation of OPEC agreements.

In the current round of discussions, Iran has demanded that it be given an equal share with Saudi Arabia, the cartel's biggest producer. Most members apparently supported the Saudi demand for a quota of 5.5 million barrels a day, up from its current sales of about 4 million.

But the Iranians continued to insist that the Saudis be limited to 3 million barrels daily.

State legislation would mandate punishment for diesel smugglers

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Bob Valles, D-El Paso, thinks diesel oil smugglers from Mexico should be punished but school districts could be exempted from paying taxes on diesel oil.

Valles said Friday he has one bill making it a felony to bring more than 200 gallons of diesel into Texas from Mexico during any month. The Texas Railroad Commission would be authorized to require that suspected smugglers must prove that a fuel shipment was legally brought into the state. Trucks used to smuggle diesel to evade state taxes could be impounded.

"As much as 100 million gallons of diesel fuel per year may be smuggled into the state, representing a loss of up to $6.5 million to the state treasury," he said.

Another Valles bill would exempt school buses from paying the state tax on diesel and other motor fuels.

New rules protect gas customers

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission on Friday adopted rules designed to protect sick customers who can't pay gas bills and to make sure new customers know their rights.

Under the new rules, a customer who is ill and is in danger of having gas cut off can provide the gas company with a statement from a physician and get a 20-day extension.

The customer has five days from the date the bill becomes delinquent to file the physician's statement with the company.

Gas companies also must provide new customers with brochures, in Spanish and English, that explain the customer's rights in billing disputes and under what circumstances service can be terminated.

Specter urges cost protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional approval of a bill decontrolling natural gas will be a "political impossibility" unless consumers are protected against price increases, Republican Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania said Friday.

"I have heard more complaints about the cost of natural gas than about any other single thing with the possible exception of the economy," Specter told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

"It's going to be a political impossibility to pass a bill which has decontrol in it" unless there is some protection for consumers, Specter said.

The panel has been holding hearings for three days on President Reagan's proposal to eliminate all natural gas price controls by 1986.

Prices have risen steeply since the current system was adopted by Congress five years ago. It lifts price controls on Jan. 1, 1985 from offshore gas and "new" gas discovered since April 1977. But it retains indefinitely controls on "old" gas found before then.

Consumer complaints have led to more than 20 bills in the House and seven more in the Senate, ranging from partial decontrol to reimposition of price limits that were already lifted.

Reagan says total decontrol will lead to lower price, a view endorsed Friday by several gas industry groups.

"The price of gas is a mess," Specter said, arguing that it "is mandatory that there be guarantees that the cost of natural gas will not go up."

But Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, the panel's chairman, responded that "it is impossible to guarantee that prices won't rise. Ultimately, prices will go up. We can only make a guarantee stick until the existing supply runs out."

Indiana Gov. Robert D. Orr, representing the National Governor's Association, agreed with Specter.

"Never have I as a public official received so much mail on a single subject," Orr said, noting that prices in his state have risen 40 percent to 50 percent in the past year.

California's coast cracking open

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SEBASTOPOL, Calif. — It's a geologist's dream and a homeowner's nightmare, a crack so massive it looks as if the earth, anguished by relentless rain, heaved and sighed and rent itself to swallow the offending sky.

"It's California," state geologist Tom Spittler said Friday as he walked away from the gaping, mud-filled rip in the ground's fabric. "Part of what makes the coastline so beautiful is all the landslides. It's ironic."

This is not the old joke about the West Coast sliding into the Pacific Ocean. This is a story about cracks — large, mile-long cracks — sinkholes, sliding mountainsides and grabens.

While these phenomena — both natural and manmade — are interesting to scientists and rubberneckers, they are also deadly serious. They can bring devastation as severe as the much-feared earthquakes.

—In January 1982 the earth moved above the Love Creek community in Santa Cruz County, burying 11 people, destroying seven luxury homes and virtually filling a valley.

—On Wednesday, a huge slice of mountainside rolled down onto the famed Coast Highway near Big Sur, isolating 500 people in Big Sur village. This massive shift of earth was estimated by engineers to be a quarter-mile long by 300 feet deep by 100 feet high — nearly 1.5 million cubic yards of dirt and rock sliding down one of the most scenic areas of the country. The California Highway Patrol said Friday the Coast Highway at Big Sur could be closed for months.

—On Thursday in Cantil, a Kern County farming town in Southern California, the earth moved and opened a mile-long crack, forcing two families to flee their partially collapsed homes. Geologists reported Friday that the crack, 15 to 20 feet deep and 6 inches to 50 feet wide, might be related to excessive well water pumping for irrigation.

THFC approves hospital's plan for $15 million, 77-bed expansion

This would have left the application with the equivalent of 60 existing medical/surgical beds, 34 new medical/surgical beds and six intensive care beds.

According to Branson, Midland's need for more hospital beds was the deciding factor in the THFC's decision.

"We have stated all along that the bed need analysis did not support both projects," Branson's written statement said. "Our expert bed need testimony has convinced the THFC that our projections of bed need were reasonably accurate.

"We did not testify against a replacement facility for Parkview, but rather that the application they submitted unnecessarily duplicated services currently provided at MMH which we were expanding through our application and which if duplicated could compromise not only cost, but quality."

Branson also stated that there will probably be a "flurry of activity involving the trustees and directors to finalize the activities that will lead up to construction.

"It will be the intent to begin construction at the earliest most reasonable opportunity — hopefully, within six months."

Branson stated if the governing boards opt for a general obligation bond issue to finance the project, "it would be reasonable to assume that bond issue should be planned to be held in 45 to 60 days."

MMH's expansion plans call for increasing the hospital's licensed bed capacity from 195 to 272 beds, which includes 40 medical/surgical beds and 37 post-partum beds. Also there will be a new labor and delivery area with six labor rooms, two birthing rooms, four delivery rooms, a four-bed recovery room and a nursery with a 32 bassinet capacity.

They were all winners — from those wearing the blue ribbons denoting first place to those decorated with the yellow, signifying participation.

The teachers, aides, parents and volunteers who waited for the tiny ones at the finish line with outstretched arms also won.

Satisfaction was etched in each effort.

As supporters lined the track, slapping participants on the back as they passed, students from previous races walked back to their seats, arms entwined around each other's necks in a spirit of congratulatory camaraderie.

Musical entertainment, provided by students of Lee Freshman High School, set the scene as balloons, contributed by Balloons & More, decorated the field.

Girl Scout Troop 394, under the direction of Jean Jones, gave the flag presentation and J.J. Rogers, an event competitor from Jane Long Elementary, led the Pledge of Allegiance. Deana Merritt, a competitor from Carver Occupational Development Lab, gave the Special Olympics Motto.

The first race was started by MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi.

Co-directors of the meet were Denise Wilcox and Amy Robnett, both Long Elementary teachers. Rick Ethridge served as announcer. MARC program director is Jean Ellison.

Midland County farmer files lawsuit in sewage dispute

"Midland found a better way," observed Kerr, who reasoned that Odessa could do likewise under the goading of the Commission. Midland's solution is to pipe the treated effluent east of the city, put the water in reservoirs and use it on agricultural crops — mainly cotton.

Meanwhile, Odessa's treated waste water has damaged Bell's acreage, the petition says.

Odessa's effluent flows from its two sewage treatment plants down the "otherwise...normally dry meandering draw," the petition says.

The salts, other minerals and chemicals in the water travel the 20-odd miles from Odessa and eastwardly to Bell's farm and other property. The water "also...stands as large pools."

Bell, who is charging Odessa with "trespass," 10 months ago — on May 20, 1982 — so notified the Odessa City Council, the petition notes.

DAMAGES ALLEGED by Bell include:

—Ruination of the 80 acres. For that alleged damage, Bell is seeking $192,000. The polluted waters dropped the "reasonable cash market value" of the land from $200,000 to $8,000.

—Damage to the remaining 344 acres and underground water supply. Market value of the acreage has dropped from $600,000 to $120,000, the petition says. Bell seeks $480,000 in compensation.

—Polluted waters. "...The effluent and salts...percolated into the earth, polluting the fresh water strata and causing pollution of the wells..."

—Residential development damaged. Bell alleges that a prospective buyer of part of his land declined "to go ahead with the deal" after waters "began to flood that land." Bell alleges $60,000 in damages.

—Flood control. Bell claims he had to abandon part of his land and invested about $25,000 in digging a "ditch" to control the flow of water from Monahans Draw.

—Farming operation inhibited. Bell contends his farming operations have been damaged by at least $500,000.

—Punitive damage. Bell seeks $700,000 in punitive damages.

More particularly, Bell charges that Odessa:

—Was negligent in allowing the effluent and salts to percolate into the subsurface of his land.

—Failed to adopt and use "any effective method" to dispose of the waste water and "to prevent pollution of the fresh water strata."

—Failed to purify effluents and other liquids "prior to discharging the same into Monahans Draw."

—Violated Texas statutes which "prohibit the pollution of underground water."

—Violated other statutes in "the illegal discharge of waters into Monahans Draw."

—Failed to construct "adequate facilities to dispose of the effluent."

Texas may face funding cuts in variety of federal programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas faces sizeable cuts in federal money for education, vocational training, food stamps and a variety of other programs under President Reagan's proposed 1984 budget, according a preliminary analysis released Friday.

In a draft report on the budget, the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations warned that Reagan's proposals "could have an extensive effect on funding of education programs in Texas" and would also "severely affect job retraining efforts in the state."

In his budget proposal, Reagan called for a spending "freeze" that would hold the overall increase in federal spending to 5.4 percent, the projected rate of inflation, in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

But included within that "freeze" were much larger hikes for some areas — such as defense, targeted for a 14 percent increase — and cuts in a broad range of others.

The cuts would cost Texas federal funds for a wide variety of programs, though money for transportation, water projects and certain welfare programs would increase, the analysis concluded.

According to the report:

—Proposed revisions in student aid programs could cost Texas up to $35.3 million in net assistance for post-secondary education, or a 20 percent reduction from the current fiscal year.

—Texas would lose $24 million in funds for vocational education, or a reduction of 44 percent from this year's level, under proposed reductions and revisions in funding for vocational and adult education.

—A proposed reduction in funds for bilingual education would also have "a severe effect on Texas," according to the report. It said that under the president's proposal, Texas would receive $11.4 million for bilingual eduction next year, a reduction of 2 percent from this year and 30 percent from 1982.

—The president's proposal to eliminate funding for the federal Economic Development Administration would cost Texas the $266,000 it will receive this year for publics works and development assistance.

—Texas would face a 4 percent reduction in federal money to enforce child support laws and an 8.4 percent cut in food stamp expenditures.

—Funding for the Women, Infants, and Children food supplement program would drop by about $300,000 in the state.

—Texas would see at least a $15.3 million reduction in the $44.6 million it will receive this year for providing energy assistance to low income familites.

—Funds for various social and community services, including day care, foster care, and employment and housing aid, would be reduced by $8.7 million.

Revisions and reductions in programs providing serices for the aged would cost Texas about $7.8 million of the $38.5 million it will receive for such services this year.

New PUC chairman joins in vote barring Mattox

AUSTIN (AP) — Asking utility companies for "a new spirit of fairness to Texas consumers," Alan Erwin was elected chairman of the beleaguered Public Utility Commission on Friday by a 3-0 vote.

Erwin said he would stay beyond his six-month term "by hook or by crook" to complete his pledge to make the PUC "one of the best respected regulatory bodies in the country."

An original member of the PUC, which was created in 1975, Erwin, 38, now serves as vice president of a Houston public relations firm. He had said he was "reluctant" to serve when Gov. Mark White appointed him to the PUC last month.

"As you know, I have a term that will last through August," Erwin said. "There is a great deal to accomplish. I will not leave until I know that goals I have set for the commission have been accomplished, whether it takes six months or six years."

He said he would stay "by hook or by crook, by appointment or whatever. My reluctance is behind me."

Erwin was nominated chairman of the three-member panel by El Paso housewife Peggy Rosson, who was appointed at the same time as Erwin. Friday's session was the two new commissioners' first official meeting of the full PUC.

Mrs. Rosson and Erwin were appointed after PUC members T.G. Smith and George Cowden quit in the midst of heavy criticism of the agency. Erwin's term expires in six months because he was named to replace Cowden, who had that much time remaining in his term.

Former chairman Moak Rollins hinted that he, too, would step down. He told reporters he "probably" would not serve out the 2½ years remaining in his term.

After Erwin's election as the panel's new chairman, Rollins swapped seats with him, saying, "I would be happy to move over and let you take this chair."

Erwin said he had talked with Rollins, a former professor who had defended PUC rate decisions as necessary to keep utility companies afloat, and said that Rollins was not "supportive" of moves to improve the agency's image.

The agency has been criticized as being too friendly to utility companies at the expense of consumers. Last December, the state Sunset Commission voted to disband the agency if changes could not be made in it.

In his acceptance speech, Erwin pledged to consumers "rates which are not one penny higher than necessary to assure continued good service."

To utility companies, he offered "assurances that Commissioner Rosson and I do not seek to punish or damage any of you. I also assure you that we will not tolerate inefficient management or arrogant disregard for consumers.

"I challenge you to a new spirit of fairness to the consumers of Texas," said Erwin.

The governor has has lawmakers to put priority status on measures he supports that would provide for election of utility commissioners and create an office of public counsel at the agency.

As their first official vote, Erwin and Rosson joined Rollins in turning down Attorney General Jim Mattox' request to represent consumers in General Telephone's rate case before the commission.

A hearing examiner ruled last month that allowing the attorney general to be a party to the rate case would create a conflict of interest, because in case of an appeal, he would be representing both consumers and the commission, a state agency.

Mattox appealed the hearing examiner's ruling to the full PUC.

President Reagan gestures during his Friday news conference. The Secret Service agent in the background is unidentified.

Reagan attacks Carter's record, defends Burford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan portrayed his environmental record Friday as better than Jimmy Carter's and said he doesn't know how those who forced EPA Administrator Anne McGill Burford from office can "look themselves in the mirror in the morning."

Reagan lashed out at his environmental critics, saying they had ignored his record as governor of California — and now as president — and held such extreme views that they won't "be happy until the White House looks like a bird's pest."

In his first comments since Mrs. Burford resigned, Reagan defended the former head of the Environmental Protection Agency as a person who had "nothing to hide."

"She is far more concerned with the national welfare and is a far bigger person than those people who have sniping at her and have been going public with unfounded allegations, accusations and charges," Reagan told a news conference.

The president said these critics, whom he did not name, were not attacking Mrs. Burford out of any concern for the environment or for uncovering wrongdoing.

"Frankly, I wonder how they manage to look at themselves in the mirror in the morning," he said.

Mrs. Burford resigned Wednesday, telling reporters later that she had done so because the allegations swirling around her were preventing the EPA from doing its job of protecting the environment.

A half-dozen congressional committees and the Justice Department are investigating charges of conflict of interest, mismanagement and political manipulation of the agency's $1.6 billion "superfund" hazardous waste cleanup fund.

At his Friday news conference, Reagan said public opinon polls showing a low reguard for the administration's environmental record only reflected misinformation put out by lobbyists for environmental organizations.

During his eight years as governor of California, Reagan said, the state was the "forerunner of the environmental movement," leading other states and the federal government in passing environmental laws.

Lower wages for youth requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the opposition of organized labor, President Reagan sent Congress legislation Friday to establish a lower minimum wage for youth in summer — $2.50 compared with the current $3.35 minimum — and to provide tax credits for businessmen who hire the hard-core unemployed.

At the same time, the president asked Congress to extend federal supplemental compensation, available to those who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits, for two million people from March 31 to Sept. 30.

Reagan, at a brief news conference, said the legislation was "very special to me and certainly deserves strong bipartisan support in the Congress."

Labor Secretary Ray Donovan told reporters at the White House that the bill would help 200,000 workers get jobs this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, and 500,000 next fiscal year.

Although organized labor is vehemently opposed to lowering the minimum wage for youth, Donovan said he intends to ask AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland to support the measure or at least "to get the volume of negativism turned down a bit because it's that important, I think."

AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty said "we're unalterably opposed to every detail" in the president's package. "We find no redeeming value in it."

Hardesty said the sub-minimum wage "is discriminatory." And the "voucher system simply transfers unemployment from one group to another."

He said it was "a misuse of unemployment compensation funds to dilute it for retraining" as Reagan proposed.

In addition, Hardesty said Reagan's proposal to extend federal compensation benefits only for those who were employed at least 30 weeks in the year before their unemployment "would push thousands of families off the rolls."

Several previous attempts to lower the minimum wage for young employees have been defeated by Congress after heavy lobbying from unions.

The Reagan administration sought last year to include a lower youth wage in enterprise zone legislation to lure jobs to depressed urban areas, but it was stripped from the bill after organized labor mounted an extensive lobbying campaign.

And in October 1977, the Senate rejected efforts to exempt youth under 20 from the minimum wage, or to set a wage floor 15 percent to 25 percent below the adult minimum.

That measure was backed by business and opposed by labor, which contended it was a plum for the fast-food industry. The same objections are being raised this time around.

"My concern is not whether McDonald makes money or Burger King makes money," Donovan told reporters at the White House. "My concern is to be given a tool by the Congress, long overdue in my opinion, to begin to attack this national tragedy."

The AFL-CIO already is lobbying against the new sub-minimum proposal, contending it would jeopardize the jobs of older workers, despite the administration's assertions to the contrary.

At its recent executive council meeting in Bal Harbour, Fla., the AFL-CIO leadership, in fact, called for an increase in the current $3.35 minimum wage, which has not changed since Jan. 1, 1981.

Donovan rejected contentions that workers under the age of 22 would receive less money for their work. "No job at $3.35 an hour is far worse than a job at $2.50," he said, maintaining it could create between 150,000 and 640,000 new jobs for youth.

The labor secretary also said safeguards were written into the legislation to penalize employers who try to substitute young workers at the lower wage for adults who command the higher minimum. And he said only 2 percent of adult workers earn the minimum wage.

"If they (employers) want to try it, they can try it," he said. "But I'm telling you ... to fool around trying to displace for 25 cents or 75 cents ... they're facing a $10,000 fine, six months in jail, double that pay and restitution of the employee."

The actual difference between the youth wage proposal and the current minimum wage if 85 cents an hour.

He also said the administration wants to limit the youth differential to summer months — May 1 to Sept. 30 — to further discourage any displacement of adults.

The civilian unemployment rate in February was 10.4 percent. For youth, the rate was 22.2 percent.

Reagan has said that half the unemployment rate is due to the nation's economic recession. The other half, he says, can be blamed on "structural" unemployment which his bill is designed to attack: youth who lack experience and training, workers displaced from declining industries, and long-term unemployed who don't have up-to-date job skills.

Donovan said the legislation, if passed by Congress, would cost about $3 billion.

Alcohol blamed

About half of America's 52,000 motor-vehicle deaths each year are alcohol-related.

Professors missing in Indonesia may have been robbed, murdered

Roy G. Huss

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two American college professors missing nearly two months in Indonesia are believed to have been robbed and murdered, and five young Indonesians have been arrested, the sister of one of the professors said Friday.

Jean Grazer said her husband telephoned her Friday morning from Sumatra, Indonesia, to tell her of the arrests and that he and local authorities believed James D. Allen — Mrs. Grazer's brother — and Roy G. Huss had been robbed and murdered.

However, she said no bodies had been recovered and authorities would not attempt to do so until after a day-long religious holiday.

John Caulfield of the U.S. State Department's consular affairs office in Washington D.C. confirmed on Friday that five arrests had been made by police from Medan, Sumatra, but he said no bodies had been found.

Jury ruling favors newspaper

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — A jury ruled Friday that the Albuquerque Journal did not libel attorney William Marchiondo, who had sued for $17 million after the newspaper published his photograph along with an article about the underworld.

The seven-woman, five-man state district court jury deliberated for three days before delivering the verdict. Ten jurors ruled for the Journal and two ruled for Marchiondo.

Marchiondo, 55, claimed he lost $11 million in law business and $6 million in damage to his reputation when the Journal published a picture of him playing cards alongside a 1977 article headlined, "Organized Crime Showing Interest in New Mexico."

Rowny denounces shakeup memo

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. negotiator Edward Rowny said Friday that an internal memorandum suggesting a shakeup of the troubled Arms Control and Disarmament Agency did not represent his views. He also said its publication "may have a negative impact upon our important work" in trying to curb the nuclear weapons race.

In a statement issued in London, Rowny said the "informal talking points" prepared for him did not represent his own views. In fact, Rowny said, he has "full confidence" in the delegation assisting him in the negotiations with the Soviet Union in Geneva, Switzerland.

Sailors restricted in urine switch

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four sailors on the missile frigate USS Roark have been punished for switching their urine samples with a medical corpsman during a random drug screening test, the Navy said.

Each of the sailors was restricted to the ship for 60 days, fined and reduced in rating by Cmdr. H.L. Webb, the Navy said Thursday.

New job sought for draft resister

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Probation officials overseeing Enten Eller's draft-resistance sentence are looking for a new place where he can work without pay for two years.

U.S. District Court Judge James Turk had ordered Eller to start work July 5 at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Salem, but on Thursday the judge rescinded the order on the recommendation of federal parole officials. The officials were concerned that continuing controversy about Eller would be unfair to him and VA administrators.

A Veterans Administration lawyer said Friday that if the judge hadn't rescinded the order, his agency would have opposed it.

Students leap from burning dorm

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — College students broke legs and ankles as they leaped from the windows of a University of Southern Colorado dormitory early Friday, chased by the flames of the building's fifth and worst arson fire in the last 10 days.

Thirty-three students were injured, three critically, by the fire on the women's floor of the university's only dormitory. Witnesses said the lawn outside the four-story Belmont Residence Hall was littered with victims waiting for ambulances.

"I heard screaming in the hall. I opened the door and saw flames and a bunch of smoke rush in," freshman Karen Davis said Friday from a hospital bed, adding that the alarm in her hall didn't go off. "I slammed the door, rolled the window open and jumped out."

Ms. Davis lived on the B wing of the second floor, the wing where all five fires had been set. All except Friday's were minor.

Although the fire was on the second floor, some students jumped from higher floors.

Second-floor residents met to discuss the arson Thursday night.

A Colorado State Patrolman looks over the remains of a dormitory room scarred by fire.

"We don't know if it's revenge or if someone's gone berserk," said Ms. Davis, admitted to St. Mary-Corwin Hospital for treatment of burns and smoke inhalation.

Twenty-eight students were admitted at two hospitals for treatment of burns, smoke inhalation and broken bones. The dormitory housed 500 people.

Mattresses were dragged outside to cushion the students as they jumped.

Fire Chief Robert Drake said that before the latest fire, his department had been called only about a fire Wednesday afternoon. He said inspectors were investigating, but no suspects had been taken into custody.

All four of the previous fires were set in a trash can in a closet on the B wing, one of three wings housing women students. The other fires had done only minor damage, but the students were frightened and on Thursday they decided to have the door to the closet locked at night.

Early Friday two fires were set — one in a bedroom on the wing and the other outside the locked door of the closet.

Flames from the two fires raced toward each other down a hallway, Drake said.

"The fire spread really quickly," said Marjorie Cortez, a junior. "People had to jump out of windows because they couldn't get out doors since the fire was in the hall."

It took firemen about 30 minutes to put out the fire.

"Upon our arrival, we had 10 to 15 young people laying around the lawn around the dormitory where they had jumped out of windows," said Jeff Anderson, assistant fire chief.

Grand jury indicts tax protester, five others

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A federal grand jury on Friday indicted fugitive tax protester Gordon Kahl and five other people in connection with the Feb. 13 slaying of two U.S. marshals at a roadblock near Medina, N.D.

U.S. Attorney Rodney S. Webb said the 11-count indictment was returned Friday morning in U.S. District Court in Fargo.

The indictment charged Kahl, 63, his son Yorie Kahl, 23, and Scott Faul, 29, with two counts of premeditated murder in the shooting deaths of U.S. Marshal Kenneth M. Muir and Deputy U.S. Marshal Robert S. Cheshire Jr.

Muir, with three of his deputy marshals and two police officers, was trying to serve an arrest warrant on the elder Kahl when the shooting occurred.

The grand jury also charged Vernon Alan Wegner, David Broer and Gordon Kahl's wife, Joan, with a series of other violations stemming from the shootout. These include assault, aiding and abetting, assault on federal officers and police officers performing their official duties, being accessories after the fact to murder, harboring and concealing, and conspiracy to impede the service of a federal arrest warrant on Gordon Kahl.

Kahl remains at large nearly a month after the 15-second gun battle, but four of the other defendants are in custody.

Newspaper surrenders Kahl letter

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — The Texarkana Gazette has turned over to the FBI a 16-page letter purportedly written by Gordon Kahl, wanted in connection with the shooting deaths of two federal marshals in North Dakota.

The letter claimed the marshals were shot in self defense in a shootout that began when the officers wounded Kahl's son, Don Kahl, 23. He was ordered Wednesday in Fargo, N.D., to stand trial on murder charges in the marshals' deaths.

The newspaper, which received the letter Wednesday, said it contained no return address but was postmarked Texarkana, which straddles the Texas-Arkansas border.

Authorities have said Kahl lived in Crane, Texas — more than 500 miles west of Texarkana — during the 1970s.

FBI agent Carrol Payne examined the letter in the Gazette office and said he would send it to the FBI laboratory for fingerprint analysis.

A Japanese YS-11 airliner lies broken apart near the end of the runway at Nakashibetsu, Japan, Friday after the plane attempted to land in a light snowstorm. Thirty-one people aboard the propeller-driven craft were reported hurt, four seriously.

Japanese airliner crashes in Hokkaido

TOKYO (AP) — A twin turbo-prop airliner attempting to land in a light snowstorm on Hokkaido Island crashed short of the runway and split in two Friday, injuring 31 people, police said. Four of the victims were reported injured seriously.

An airline spokesman said there were no foreigners on the plane.

Police said the Nihon Kinkyori Airways YS-11 plane slammed into a grove of trees about 300 feet short of the snow-covered runway at the Nakashibetsu airport on the east coast of Hokkaido, the northernmost of the main Japanese islands.

The plane skidded some 270 feet and its fuselage split from the impact, but it did not burn, police said. All 47 passengers and seven crew members escaped from the wreckage or were pulled out by rescue workers, police said.

A light snow was falling when the plane tried to land after a flight from Sapporo. Transport Ministry officials said that weather conditions were adequate for landing, but low clouds may have blocked Captain Shizuo Hara's view of the runway as he descended.

The 36-year-old pilot — one of the four people injured seriously — told airline officials before taking off that he would turn back if he felt landing conditions were unsafe, said airline spokesman Haruya Miura.

Captain Hara, who suffered hip and shoulder fractures, said he made one pass over the runway to determine whether it was safe to land and then tried to touch down, Miura said.

Witnesses interviewed on television said the plane descended at an unusually low level before it hit the stand of trees.

Rescue workers were able to use the gaping hole in the left side of the fuselage to carrry out those passengers unable to walk, Japanese news reports said.

French press speculates about death of agent

PARIS (AP) — The mystery surrounding the death of a top French secret agent grew with press speculation Friday about a false suicide report, a double agent, a Lebanese mistress and a Bulgarian spy ring linked to the attack on the pope.

Road workers found the body of 47-year-old Lt. Col. Bernard Nut, chief of espionage operations in southeastern France, face down in the snow near his car Feb. 15. The car was parked by the side of a little-traveled road about 45 miles north of Nice where Nut lived.

There was a single bullet wound in the head and his own .357-caliber Magnum, containing three bullets, was found about six feet from the body.

Authorities first reported that Nut had committed suicide. But on Wednesday, judicial officials in Nice opened a murder investigation.

Officials at France's General Service for Foreign Security have declined all comment on the case. The newspaper Le Matin said the spy agency was refusing to cooperate with local police in their murder investigation.

"It seems that Nut recently had been specializing in the fight against the infiltration of secret agents from the East into Italy," the newspaper said. "One thing is sure and that is Bernard Nut was working in Italy."

The mass circulation Le Parisien said, "The most probable hypothesis at this time is that Nut had a meeting with his assassin — a double agent of some importance who was in the service of the East and who Nut was preparing to accuse."

Le Parisien also said that Nut may have been "the source of information about the famous Bulgarian link in the May 13, 1981 attack against the pope."

The newspapers gave no sources for their theories. There have been repeated press reports in France and Italy that Nut was involved in the arrest of an Aeroflot Soviet airline official who has been accused of spying in Rome.

However, officials are not ruling out the possibility of a non-professional motive for Nut's assassination. Newspaper reports have said Nut, who was married and the father of three children, was romantically involved with the daughter of a Lebanese millionaire who owns a hotel in the Riviera resort of Cannes.

At the time of the killing officials said there were no signs of a struggle. Police found no suspicious footprints in the freshly fallen snow by Nut's body.

Walesa wants new forms of protest

GRUDZIADZ, Poland (AP) — Solidarity chief Lech Walesa, attending the trial of a union colleague in the northern Polish city of Grudziadz, called Friday for more "determined forms" of protest to counter political indictments of labor leaders.

His appeal came as workers at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, birthplace of the outlawed labor federation, demanded revival of the union and urged peaceful gatherings Sunday and Monday at a shipyard monument to mark the declaration of martial law Dec. 13, 1981. The main provisions of martial law were officially lifted a year later.

Walesa spoke to reporters as he left the second day of the trial against Anna Walentynowicz, an early Solidarity leader charged with inciting an occupation strike at the Lenin shipyard for two days after martial law was imposed. Authorities used tanks to enter the yard and suppress the strike.

"This trial is a political defeat for the authorities," Walesa said. He left the courthouse after five government witnesses testified they could not identify Mrs. Walentynowicz as the woman who allegedly made inflammatory speeches and attempted to requisition water cannon from the yard fire brigade to repulse attempts by security forces to enter the yard.

The presiding judge, angered by the testimony of the witnesses, who are shipyard workers, read aloud portions of the pre-trial investigation in which they said that Mrs. Walentynowicz made the speeches and asked for the water cannon.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa, right, is shown attending the trial of Anne Walentynowicz, a Solidarity member accused in connection with demonstrations in Gdansk, Poland.

The trial was adjourned until the end of the month.

Greeted by about 100 cheering supporters as he entered and left the courtroom, Walesa declared, "We have to stick together. We have to protest against such trials, but not by overthrowing the authorities. We don't want to overthrow the authorities. But we have to be more determined in our actions."

"Different forms" of protest are needed against a new wave of political trials of Solidarity figures, he said.

As part of what he described as a "stronger line," Walesa attended the Walentynowicz trial in Grudziadz, 59 miles south of his home in Gdansk, and on Thursday went to court proceedings in Elbiag, 40 miles east of Gdansk, where six men are charged with organizing a protest at a martial law internment camp over the denial of visiting rights to relatives.

His appearance at the trials, coupled with more militant statements to reporters, marked a shift from the cautious line he has pursued since his release from an 11-month martial law internment last November.

Walesa said he could "not go into" details about an interview with an American television crew Wednesday in which he said, "we will have to organize protests, hunger strikes and strikes."

Turkish ambassador dies in Belgrade after spending two days in coma

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Turkish Ambassador Galip Balkar, shot in the head and spine by two Armenian gunmen at a busy Belgrade intersection, died Friday after spending two days in a coma.

The state-run television report said the 47-year-old diplomat died about 5:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m. EST). His death was confirmed by the official TANJUG news agency and the Turkish Embassy.

Balkar died from massive brain injury, despite "the highest degree of intensive care and therapy," said surgeon Nikola Sekulovic.

Balkar had been in a deep coma since the shooting, which occurred Wednesday morning when his car was stopped for a red light at an intersection on Revolution Boulevard not far from the embassy.

He underwent a two-hour emergency operation at a neurosurgical clinic to remove a bullet from his brain and another that was lodged near the spine.The ambassador was placed on life-support systems following surgery.

Balkar's driver, also shot in the attack, was reported in stable condition at another Belgrade hospital. A retired, 59-year-old Yugoslav army officer who was shot by the fleeing gunmen remained in serious condition, officials said.

The Armenian attackers also fatally wounded a Yugoslav student who tried to prevent their escape.

Barbie transferred to prison

LYON, France (AP) — Police have transferred former Nazi Gestapo Chief Klaus Barbie from a local hospital back to St. Joseph Prison after successful emergency surgery, police sources said Friday.

Peruvian officials say strike work of 'extremist agitators'

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The government said Friday a one-day nationwide strike that turned violent, resulting in four deaths and scores of injuries, was the work of "extremist agitators" bent on subversion.

An official communique from the centrist government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry called Thursday's strike a failure. It also defended two paramilitary civil guards who fired submachine guns into a crowd of strikers stoning a bus, killing four people and wounding five.

The General Confederation of Peruvian Workers, which organized the strike stood by its claims of "total success" and said Lima and all major cities had been paralyzed in the walkout.

News accounts put the number of injured nationwide between 50 and 100 but said no deaths were reported outside the Peruvian capital.

The walkout and ensuing violence left Belaunde with his most serious labor crisis since he came to office in 1980.

The strike was called to protest the government's economic policies and to demand higher wages and better housing. It virtually halted public transport, shut down banking, oil, fishing and construction industries.

Maclean buried in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Donald Maclean, the British diplomat whose espionage for the Kremlin caused one of the West's worst spy scandals, was hailed as a "faithful son" of the Soviet Union at his funeral Friday.

Maclean, who fled Britain 32 years ago, died last Sunday at the age of 69, a member of the Communist Party and an honored Soviet citizen. He was one of four British spies recruited while at Cambridge University in the 1930s. Their defections and the revelation of their activities shook Britain's intelligence service in the 1950s and 1960s.

Maclean's simple, 10-minute funeral at the 16th century Donskoy Monastery was attended by about 120 people. It could not be determined whether any of Maclean's family were among the mourners. He was married to Melinda Marling, an American, who is believed to have returned to the United States in the 1970s. The whereabouts of their three children was not known.

A closed service was held early Friday at the Institute for World Economy and International Relations, where Maclean worked. His black coffin was then carried out to a blue and white bus for the short ride to the monastery.

Ukrainian builds 'flying saucer'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Ukrainian amateur designer has built a flying saucer that can be turned into a car in a matter of minutes, Tass reported Friday.

The Soviet news agency said the "flying vehicle" looks like "an upturned shallow dish" and has a diameter of 16 feet.

The vehicle's chassis has cart wheels, and its engine is behind the pilot's seat on a frame of pipes, supporting a "light and durable cupola of duraluminium over which special fabric is stretched," the report said.

Tass said the mini-plane can develop a speed of up to 72 mph, lift 220 pounds of cargo and "when needed, the cupola folds up within a matter of minutes and the flying vehicle is turned into a motorcar which can move along city streets," the news agency said.

In an emergency, the craft can freely parachute down "like an open umbrella." If the wheels are replaced by skis or floats, the vehicle can land on snow or water, Tass added.

Zimbabwe Prime Minister Robert Mugabe gestures wildly at newsmen during a press conference Friday at the media center for the non-aligned summit meeting, being held in New Delhi, India. Mugabe denies ordering the assassination of his rival Joshua Nkomo.

Non-aligned summit denounces Israel, U.S.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The non-aligned summit adopted a sweeping denunciation of Israel and the United States Friday, but deadlocked on the Iran-Iraq war and the site of the next meeting, conference officials reported.

The closing plenary session of the 7th summit was postponed to Saturday morning while the 100 delegations continued wrangling behind closed doors far into the night over their most intractable issue, the Iran-Iraq war.

The summit had little difficulty reaching agreement on a 4,000-word condemnation of Israel's "acts of repression...and genocide against the Palestinian people."

It called for an international war crimes tribunal to try Israel for "acts of genocide."

The demand for a tribunal and the explicit condemnation of U.S. backing for Israel went considerably beyond the declaration drafted for the summit by its chairman, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Mrs. Gandhi, trying to correct the leftist bias given to the non-aligned movement by its previous chairman, Cuba's Fidel Castro, tried to steer a middle course in her draft, but the numerous "revolutionary" regimes in the movement prevailed in imposing changes.

The movement, formally called the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries, has frequently condemned Israel and admitted the Palestine Liberation Organization as a full member eight years ago.

The non-aligned movement's latest denunciation was particularly strongly worded with regard to Israel's June 6 invasion of Lebanon and the September massacre of Palestinian refugees in the Sabra and Shatilla camps of west Beirut by Lebanese Christian militiamen.

> The text blamed Israel for the Beirut massacres and said the United States "violated its commitment to protect the Palestinian refugees."

The final draft condemned Israel for "acts of genocide" in Lebanon and other occupied territories and called on the international community to set up "a war crimes tribunal to try Israel under international law for crimes committed" in Arab lands since the establishment of the Jewish state in 1948, Indian spokesman Mani Shankar Aiyer told a news conference.

The text blamed Israel for the Beirut massacres and said the United States "violated its commitment to protect the Palestinian refugees" following the withdrawal of PLO forces from Israeli-encircled Beirut.

The declaration said the non-aligned countries "condemned support by the United States to the Israeli entity in all fields, especially in the military and political sphere, and...affirmed that this policy damaged the relations and interests which linked the non-aligned countries to the United States."

The United States also was explicitly condemned for helping Israel "continue the occupation of Arab territories" and for repeatedly using the American veto power in the U.N. Security Council in support of its "strategic alliance" with Israel.

Although the summit agreed on denouncing Israel and the United States, there was no consensus on ratifying the choice of the Iraqi capital, Baghdad, as the site for the next non-aligned summit to be held in 1986, conference sources said.

Zimbabwe says Nkomo's wife freed

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's government said Friday it freed the wife of opposition leader Joshua Nkomo and that it was pressing a diplomatic campaign to get him back from Botswana.

Nkomo's plans were unclear, but there was speculation he would fly to London shortly. Mugabe returns to Harare Saturday from New Delhi, and a spokesman said he "will make an important announcement when he arrives."

Nkomo's wife, Joanna, daughter Thandiwe, son Tulani and son-in-law John Ndhlovu were arrested following Nkomo's 350-mile escape Tuesday by Land Rover to Gaborone, capital of neighboring Botswana.

Home Affairs Minister Herbert Ushewokunze said Mrs. Nkomo was freed Thursday "on humanitarian grounds." The Nkomo children and Ndhlovu were still held, he said, and Nkomo aides said Nkomo's lawyer, Bruce Longhurst, also was detained.

Zimbabwe Information Minister Nathan Shamuyarira said in a statement: "We are taking up the question of Joshua Nkomo's entry and stay in Botswana and the issue of cross-border violations generally with the Botswana government through normal diplomatic channels."

Nkomo fled from his home in western Bulawayo after claiming that Mugabe ordered troops to kill him.

DNC changes its tune on Chicago

By LINDA BREAKSTONE
Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — Against the backdrop of the Democratic National Committee's earlier snub of black Chicago mayoral primary winner Harold Washington, the DNC is floating a new idea:

The notion that Chicago, previously a lesser contender, had its position strengthened vis-a-vis frontrunner San Francisco for the site of the July 16-20, 1984 Democratic presidential nominating convention.

Bob Neuman, DNC spokesman here, said, "San Francisco's still the leading city...but it would be a powerful statement to hold the convention in Chicago if Washington becomes mayor."

Chicago, a Democratic stronghold, holds partisan races for mayor, which means Washington, 61, though he knocked out Mayor Jane Byrne and Cook County State's Attorney Richard Daly in the primary a few weeks ago, now must take on the Republican nominee.

Republicans in Chicago see the race as the GOP's best shot in 50 years to elect a mayor, though their candidate — 61-year-old lawyer Bernard E. Epton — was relatively unknown only a few weeks before the primary.

Luckily for the DNC, the timing of the mayor's election is convenient.

"The decision of the Site Selection Committee (due April 21) follows the Chicago mayor (April 12) race by two weeks," said Neuman. "If the Republican wins that, the whole idea is off."

Neuman said the selection committee looks for two things: first, "good physical facilities," and second, "a political statement." He said if San Francisco and Chicago have insufficient facilities, New York is ready to take over for the third consecutive time.

San Francisco, Chicago, Detroit, Washington, D.C., and New York are seeking the honor — a hard-fought battle since the weeklong party brings with it untold amounts of money and commerce.

San Francisco is in the home state of DNC Chairman Charles Manatt and, more importantly, Republican President Ronald Reagan. It was considered the frontrunner because speculation persisted that Manatt wanted to embarrass the president. Manatt insists he is neutral.

But the DNC apparently owes Chicago mayoral candidate Washington an olive branch.

Midland High School seniors Kristy Elizabeth Sherman, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Sherman of 2306 W. Shandon, and Johnny Pannell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pannell of Greenwood, are recipients of Youth Merit Awards from the Midland Downtown Rotary Club. Miss Sherman is a member of JETS, National Honor Society, Spanish Club and band. She is a representative for the Youth Council at the First Baptist Church.Pannell is a member of the President's Cabinet, National Honor Society and Young Life. A two-year basketball letterman, he was named to the 1983 All-District Basketball Team.

GOP's Epton proves he's not a clown

CHICAGO (AP) — When the Republicans shopped for a mayoral nominee last fall, a clown and an out-of-work philosopher applied. Veteran lawmaker Bernard Epton got the nod instead — but to some it was still a laughing matter.

After all, it's been more than 50 years since a Republican sat in City Hall. There's not even a Republican in the City Council.

And when Epton, a 61-year-old GOP millionaire lawyer, accepted a draft, not many were eager to wager any money on a Republican victory in 1983. Not even the candidate.

"The Democratic machine is awesome and, if you are a betting man, I sure...wouldn't bet a lot of money on me," Epton said months ago.

Now, two weeks after the primaries, the odds have changed. So, too, has the mood in Chicago. Hardly anyone snickers when the GOP talks about putting one of their own in the mayor's chair.

The reason is U.S. Rep. Harold Washington's upset win in the bitter three-way Democratic primary.

WITH WASHINGTON one step away from being Chicago's first black mayor, speculation has increased that some white voters — in one of the most geographically segregated cities of the nation — may turn to Epton on April 12.

"Just as blacks flocked together to create a victory for Washington, whites will flock together to create an alternative," says John Hoellen, the GOP candidate in 1975.

Other Republicans — who represent about 20 percent of Chicago's registered voters — say it's the divided Democrats and a political machine without oil that's sparked new fire in Epton's campaign.

"Two-thirds of the people who voted...backed losers," says J. Robert Barr, Cook County Republican chairman.

Washington garnered 36 percent of the vote, which was divided along racial lines. Mayor Jane M. Byrne and State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, son of the late mayor, split almost all of the white vote.

"When you have almost two-thirds of the Democratic voters losing their candidate, there is a fertile field for my election," Epton says. "That means he (Washington) is not the people's choice."

EPTON SAYS he will appeal to "disenchanted Democrats." But it wasn't until Feb. 23, the day after the primary, that he began receiving the help to do that.

"There's a tremendous outpouring of support," Barr says.

Epton's campaign staff, which once included his daughter and a handful of others, is growing rapidly. So are contributions.

Several weeks before the primary, Epton raised $41,000 — $40,000 from himself or family members. Now, Barr's talking about a half-million-dollar campaign with $200,000 raised so far, says Epton campaign manager James Fletcher. Some money is still expected from the Republican National Committee.

Epton, who was virtually ignored by the power brokers at a recent Republican fund-raiser attended by President Reagan, is now being touted as the party's best mayoral hope in a generation.

An articulate, witty campaigner who can poke fun at himself, Epton takes the new media attention in stride.

"OH BOY, has it changed...the press has surrounded me," joked Epton, a balding, soft-spoken man with a salt-and-pepper beard. "I have difficulty even going to the washroom."

Though he has not yet presented issue papers on topics such as unemployment, crime and schools, he and Washington, who were legislative colleagues, have tried to downplay race as a campaign issue.

Washington says reporters are "playing with fire" dwelling on the issue.

Epton says he'll reject those who want to vote for him because he is white.

"I'll tell them to get lost," says Epton, a self-described liberal on social issues. "I don't want any part of them....I want people to vote for me because I am the most qualified candidate."

His qualifications include 14 years in the state Legislature, representing the city's multi-racial Hyde Park area. He specialized in insurance matters and his law firm handled insurance business, opening him up to charges of conflict of interest.

Unlike Washington, Epton says he will continue the patronage system. He also wants to attract more high technology industries to Chicago and says he will not raise taxes.

EPTON HAS NOT attacked his opponent although he says Washington's conviction for failing to file federal income taxes will be regarded by some "as inability to run this city properly."

Epton's brother, Saul, a retired judge, is more blunt. "One thing you cannot get away from is their records," he said. "One is sterling silver. The other (Washington's) is blemished."

But it was Saul Epton who discouraged his younger brother from entering the race last fall when a part-time professional clown and an unemployed philosophy teacher were among those answering the call for a GOP mayoral candidate.

The elder Epton says he told his brother, "I think you'll get a 10 on 10 for courage but Jane Byrne or Daley are sure to win."

Now he says, "Bernard was right in (saying) the two losers would not be happy with the winner."

That's what the Epton campaign is banking on now. Saul Epton says he's reordered campaign buttons — this time 100,000 — with a message for voters next month: "It won't hurt too much to say Republican."

Young fights investigations

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Coleman Young, a three-term veteran of Detroit's urban wost, has always been a fighter.

Ten years after his election as the city's first black mayor, he's still battling, this time resisting subpoenas from his City Council and condemning investigations of his water and sewer department.

Last month, six people — including Water and Sewerage Director Charles Beckham and Darralyn Bowers, a friend of the mayor and owner of Vista Disposal Inc. — were indicted for racketeering and bribery.

Although the mayor was not charged with any wrongdoing, the indictment said it was Young, "acting under his authority as administrator" of the city's water treatment plant, who awarded the contract in 1980 to Vista.

In another case, two grand juries and the City Council have been looking into the city's $5.9 million bus fuel contract with Magnum Oil Inc. and a $1 million loan of public funds to that company, approved by the mayor.

THE FUEL CONTRACT contained a de-escalator clause which would result in lower payments by the city if the cost of oil dropped. Magnum was given a one-year contract in 1981, and Young extended it through mid-1983. The mayor has admitted the city "screwed up" in not enforcing the clause, causing it to lose as much as $800,000 a year in overpayments, council members say.

The council wants to see all of the city's records on Magnum Oil. Young declined because the matter is under grand jury investigation.

But the mayor, who did surrender his tax records, has decried the investigations as racially motivated. Both Magnum and Vista are minority owned.

Young had refused in September 1982 to testify before a grand jury looking into a sludge hauling contract with Vista Disposal Inc.

He says he sees the investigations as "growing evidence of collusion between the FBI, the federal judiciary, the federal attorney and...the newspapers.

"The grand jury system calls for...secrecy to protect the witnesses and the potential defendants. That's been breached; that's been blown so far it isn't funny," the outspoken 65-year-old mayor said after the indictments.

U.S. ATTORNEY Leonard Gilman has declined to comment on the leaks.

In the sewage case, Beckham was accused of accepting $16,000 in exchange for steering a $5.6 million contract to Vista, a supposedly black-owned sludge hauling company fronting, prosecutors say, for two white-owned haulers.

Young said he never believed Vista was a front and contended the probe resulted from complaints by white contractors.

City Council President Erma Henderson sees "a tinge of racism" in the latest investigations, but says they are part of an effort to take control of the water and sewer system from the city and vest it in a regional authority — controlled by the mostly white suburbs.

Detroit, with a population of 1.2 million, is about 65 percent black. The water system serves more than 4.4 million people in southeastern Lower Michigan, about 20 percent of them black.

AP Laserphoto

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, shown in an undated file photo, always seems to be in a battle, and life at the top of the nation's sixth largest city has become more precarious in recent months.

"This is not something that just cropped up overnight," said Mrs. Henderson. "This is a well-planned venture."

THE RIFT BETWEEN the council and mayor, Mrs. Henderson and Councilman Mel Ravitz insist, is not racial. The council has a 5-4 black majority.

Young "doesn't provide us with information that we request legitimately, and are entitled to under the charter, and his department heads don't show," said Ravitz, a leader in the council's efforts to subpoena the city's Magnum Oil records.

Truman letters reveal impressions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Winston Churchill was "windy," Josef Stalin was "straightforward" and Dwight Eisenhower was "nice," in a newly released batch of the late President Harry Truman's letters.

Few people outside the Truman Library staff knew about the boxes of letters, newspaper articles, appointment books and other memorabilia found throughout the Truman home in Independence, one historian says.

"It's a very considerable amount of very frank and very personal material," said Robert Ferrell, who is writing a book based on the letters titled "Dear Bess." The book will be published this spring.

A large selection of handmade Oriental and Persian Rugs (new and old). Kerman-Kashan-Tabriz-Ardebil-Suk-Saruk. Oriental rugs and carpets have been produced for centuries and the rugs and carpets produced today are the same in almost every respect as those produced 500 years ago. The best known and most beautiful rugs come from Persia but there are also excellent pieces that come from China, Afghanistan, Turkey, Pakistan, India and Romania. There are other countries in Asia and Aftica who produce hand made rugs, but we do not have enough space here to enumerate all of them. All these rugs are made of wool. There are exceptions such as some of the Persian Qum that are made of pure pure silk.

One may ask why is a hand made oriental rug carpet the most prized and sought after of all floor coverings? The main reasons are:

1). An oriental rug, being entirely hand made, has a guaranteed durability. Even accidental damage can be repaired without decreasing the rug's value. This cannot be said of a machine made rug which, once damaged, loses it's value.

2). The decorative value of an oriental rug in undeniable. It greatly enhances a room and creates an immediate impression of friendly warmth on entering it.

3). Provided it is used with care, the value of an oriental rug increases year by year. It is a safe investment and can be turned into ready cash at any time.

It is sometimes believed that oriental rugs and carpets are very expensive items. This is not so. We have many fine pieces that sell at under $500.00

A Brief summary of our rugs and carpets, and their characteristics is as follows:

Persian: The finest pieces come from the towns such as Isfahan, Qum, Kashan, Tabriz and Kerman. In addition there are the nomadic rugs of coarser weave such as Humadan, Shiraz, Abadeh, Afshan and Belouch. We aslo have Kalims which have no pile, which come in colorful, geometric designs.

Chinese: The thickest pile of all carpets and rugs. They are very luxurious and come in embossed Aubusson, Floral and Peking designs.

Pakistan: Specialises in Bokhara and Afghan designs and in excellent copies of Persian design considerably less expensive than Persian rugs.

Afghan: In well known elephant foot designs in red and gold. Useful for offices and hallway. Other designs are also produced.

India: Mainly heavy pile produced with beautiful pastel on paste backgrounds in Floral, Aubusson or Chinese Peking designs.

Turkish: Made of wool, silk and artificial silk. Some rugs rival those of Persia in quality and design. Reasonably priced.

Romanian: Mainly copies of Persian designs, but we also have large carpets with the Aubusson design made in wool supplied from England. Extremely good value & very low prices.

Cowboys will ride into Library of Congress

An Analysis

By PAUL SUUSMAN
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — With ten-gallon hats tipped jauntily back, chaps flapping in the wind and spurs shooting off sunlight like a brace of six-guns, the American cowboy rides again in Washington this month.

If you listen closely, you can hear plaintive voices singing "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," and "Love Knot in My Lariat."

There's a herd of longhorns being watched over by a ranch hand. There's Buffalo Bill, in his flowing beard and buckskin suit. There's the singing cowboy, Gene Autrey, strumming his six-string. And there's former pro football player O.J. Simpson, wearing his Dingo cowboy boots.

O.J. Simpson?

No, visitors here needn't worry about getting hit by a stray bullet from a shootout at high noon on Pennsylvania Avenue. When this roundup at the Library of Congress is opened to the public on March 26, there will be no flesh and blood gunslingers or bronco busters to be found.

Instead, there will be paintings, photographs, posters, records, and assorted saddles, boots and sculptures evoking memories of the Old West in an exhibit called "The American Cowboy."

In addition to the authentic relics, many of which have been borrowed from collections in Texas, there will be evidence of how the spirit of cowpokes past lives on in American culture.

That's where the picture of O.J. comes in, along with the original Marlboro Man advertisement and posters of movie cowboys like Autrey, Gary Cooper and, of course, John Wayne.

The Duke, purists might be horrified to learn, is also represented by a larger-than-life modern sculpture that has him riding a green wooden horse dappled with pink polka dots.

That might be appropriate, however. Ingrid Maar, the library's curator of exhibits, said her goal is to show how real cowboy life differed from the tall tales that John Wayne acted out.

"Nothing about the work of the cowboy was really glamorous," she said. "It was hard, it was dirty, it was dusty and it was bloody. The weather was fierce. They were really working stiffs."

Nor was the cowboy the solitary figure that he is often portrayed as. "The cowboy as a loner is mainly a myth," said Maar, who added that most of the work was done in large teams, as herds of cattle were driven from the fertile Texas ranges to railroads in Abilene or Dodge City, Kan.

Even at the peak of the open-range era, in the 1860s and 1870s, being a cowboy was at best a part-time job. "Most of them didn't even own there own horses," Maar said. "And most of them didn't wear guns because they were too uncomfortable."

Dime novels, paintings by Western artists Frederic Remington and Charles Russell, and Buffalo Bill's traveling Wild West Show — all represented in the exhibit — are responsible for creating the image of the cowboy that later appeared in movies and in popular culture.

However, Maar said one popular conception is the real McCoy.

"The real, working cowboy is uniquely Texan," she said. First there were Mexican vacarro's who herded wild mustangs. When refrigerated railroad cars were invented in the 1840s, Texans found there was a huge market for beef.

But much as she would like to teach people about the working cowboy, Maar agrees that the sections of the exhibit portraying the myths and legends will draw the biggest crowds.

"The reality isn't all that interesting," she admits. "How we would like to be individual and free, the daring and the trick riding, the things that Buffalo Bill created, that's what we all like."

County employees compete to lose

FERGUS FALLS, Minn. (AP) — To help trim expenses for Otter Tail County government, the county board has come up with a plan to slim down government employees.

The five county commissioners recently approved a contest among county departments to see which employees can lose the most weight from April through July.

Each employee of the winning department will get a day of vacation and the employee who loses the most weight overall will be awarded a four-day weekend.

Bulldogs gain T of C finals

Carrasco slams grand shot to help beat Monterey

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland High moved into today's championship game of the ninth annual Tournament of Champions by posting an 8-7 come-from-behind extra-inning victory over Lubbock Monterey in afternoon play, and a 7-4 decision over Midland Lee in Friday night's final game.

Against the Rebels, Midland High came up with four no-hit shutout innings from starter Tim Davis while backing him up with a 6-0 lead before Lee could get on the scoreboard.

In the fifth inning, Lee managed to end the shutout when Davis misfired a pickoff attempt to first base, allowing Rebel catcher Sergio Ochoa to come home. Two innings later, after a Midland High insurance run in the top of the frame, Lee made it hot for Davis on the mound as they loaded the bases with none out and kept them full until pinch hitter Rob Walker hit a pop fly to shallow center field for the final out of the game.

LEFT FIELDER Steve Woodlee led the the seventh inning charge by tagging Davis for only the second time in the game with a hot single down the third base line. Sergio Ochoa followed with a single and Mike Mercurio a walk to load the bases. All three ended up coming home

Dennis Matta brought home Woodlee and Ochoa with a single into left and Ted Leps walked. Danny Smedley struck out (the 12th strike out for Davis) and Barry Blackwell walked to reload the bases. Walker's pop fly to James Pitts ended Lee's hopes of a comeback.

With Davis getting into trouble in the seventh, why did Coach Tim Whalen elect to leave him in the game?

"He's the best I've got. Him and Jose (Carrasco who pitched in Midland High's first game of the day) are the only ones I've got confidence in to throw strikes," he said.

At the plate, third baseman Judd Ryan and right fielder Mike Foulds held the hot bats for the Bulldogs. Both were two-for-three with Ryan's big hit being a triple. Sergio Ochoa went two-for-three for Lee.

On today's schedule, Midland High will take on the winner of the 11 a.m. game between Lee and Monterey at 5 p.m. for the tournament title. If the Bulldogs should lose that meeting, they will have to play a second title game. At 1:30 p.m., the loser of the Monterey-Lee game will play Amarillo Tascosa for third place.

IN EARLIER action, setting up the Tall City battle that moved Midland High into today's championship game, Midland High used a grand slam home run by Carrasco in the bottom of the seventh inning to help post a come-from-behind 8-7 eight inning victory over Lubbock Monterey. Midland Lee came up with a 12-strike out performance by Kerry Robertson to shutdown Amarillo Tascosa, 8-1.

Trailing 6-1 going into the bottom of the seventh, the Bulldogs found the secret to scoring runs — load the bases and let Carrasco knock one out of the park.

Pinch hitter Keith Clay began the Bulldog attack with a one-out single to center field and went to second when Chris Herbert walked. Both runners advanced when Judd Ryan reached safely on an error by Monterey second baseman Curtis Hogan and Carrasco took a full count pitch and put it over the left field fence, about 360 feet to cut the lead to 6-5.

"It couldn't have come at a better time," said Whalen. "He can hit the long ball but usually he's a singles-type hitter."

MHS center fielder Tim Davis followed with a single to left field and made it to second when left fielder Barry Joachim let the ball get away from him. Mike Foulds' single to right scored Davis to send the game into extra innings.

THE PLAINSMEN came out of the top of the frame with one run on an RBI single by third baseman Scott Smith that scored Joachim from third for a 7-6 lead but the Dawgs were hot and rallied a second time to gain the victory.

Herbert scored the winning run when, on bases loaded situation, Monterey forced out pinch hitter Mike Timlin at home. Going for the double play at first, Plainsman catcher Jimmy Simmons threw the ball into right field, allowing Herbert to score.

THE REBELS took a much easier route into Friday's winner's bracket game. Coach Ernie Johnson put Robertson on the mound and watched strike out 12 batters (twice mowing them down in order) while giving up only one walk and two hits in his 8-1 victory.

"He threw a real good ball game," said Lee head coach Ernie Johnson. "He's had two real good games in a row. He's been around the plate all the time."

Offensively, Ochoa led the five-hit Lee attack with a two-for-two performance including a double and RBI.

In the battle between the losers of the first two games, Lubbock Monterey ripped Amarillo Tascosa 12-5.

'Killer Frogs' stun Hogs

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Christian's "Killer Frogs" lived up to their nickname Friday night.

Texas Christian ended 11 years of frustration to shock sixth-ranked Arkansas 61-59 in overtime and advance to the finals of the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Classic against No. 1-rated Houston.

The Horned Frogs earned their cherished victory the hard way, coming from 11 points down to tie the game in regulation. Darrell Browder's two free throws with four seconds to play gave TCU its winning points.

"DON'T ASK me how it happened," said TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth. "We were just head when the gun went off. I suppose it was because we stayed after them all the way and never game up."

Then Killingsworth admitted "Truthfully, I thought it was all over when they were up by seven with two minutes left."

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said poor free throw shooting killed his Hogs.

"You can't win if you can't shoot free throws," Sutton said. "Darrell (Walker) missed the front end of the one and one twice and Willie Cutts missed once. Leroy Sutton made one free throw but missed another."

Sutton said his team got too loose when it went to the delay late in the game.

"We were ahead 51-40 and should have never let them off the hook," Sutton said. "We made some very careless mistakes. Darrell made a bad pass, and Alvin Robertson tried to dunk one when he should have laid it off the glass and Ricky Norton dribbled the ball out of bounds."

Sutton concluded "TCU deserved to win. They never quit. I'm not sure TCU will have anything left for Houston."

HOUSTON COACH Guy Lewis was among the stunned spectators.

"I'm shocked like everybody else," he said. "TCU is a great team but when they were 11 points down I had no idea they could pull it off."

TCU will meet top-ranked Houston in Saturday's high noon title showdown. The Cougars, led by Michael Young and Larry Micheaux, defeated Southern Methodist 75-59 in the other semifinal.

The Horned Frogs, who had lost to Arkansas 25 consecutive times, came from 11 points down to tie the game in regulation 52-all.

Doug Arnold scored TCU's last 10 points as Arkansas' Ricky Norton and Darrell Walker missed desperation shots at the buzzer.

BROWDER, WHO scored 22 points, hit a basket and four free throws in the overtime.

He was fouled by Walker with four seconds to play, and the SWC's best free throw shooter dropped both tosses into the basket.

Arkansas callled time out, but John Snively's 30-foot shot at the buzzer bounced harmlessly off the rim to trigger a wild celebration by TCU fans, who mobbed the team at midcourt as the crowd of 17,057 looked on in stunned amazement.

Center Joe Kleine, who scored 12 of his 19 points in the second half, was high for the Razorbacks, whose record dropped to 25-3. Their only other losses had come at the hands of Houston.

For TCU, now 21-9, it will be the Frogs' first appearance in the finals.

THE TOP-RANKED Houston Cougars slam-dunked their way past Southern Methodist in the other semifinal game to advance to the Southwest Conference basketball tournament final game for the third consecutive year.

Deadly jump shooting by forwards Michael Young and Larry Micheaux gave the Cougars a coasting 75-59 victory over the Mustangs.

Houston Coach Guy V. Lewis said: "I thought it was a tough win. We didn't play well. We'll have to play much better tomorrow."

Lewis gave praise to SMU, saying "I thought (Coach) Dave Bliss had 'em ready to play. SMU definitely deserves a National Invitational tournament bid."

Bliss was somewhat unhappy with the officiating in the first half.

"We don't need some of the calls. We need all of the calls to beat Houston,' Bliss said. "It was a typical Houston team, overpowering inside."

Houston had five dunks and six blocked shots against the Mustangs.

Arkansas' Darrell Walker (in white) looks a little disturbed after running into TCU's Dennis Nutt, but he was probably even more disturbed after TCU ended up with the victory.

Herschel is no sellout guarantee

By The Associated Press

In its season's second week, the United States Football League is discovering that Herschel Walker and the New Jersey Generals are not guaranteed sellouts at the gate.

The Generals attracted 34,002 for Walker's professional debut in their opener at Los Angeles last Sunday — lowest announced crowd for the new league's first week of games. This week New Jersey is at Philadelphia and through Friday, the Stars had sold only about 21,000 tickets for their home opener. That is well below sales reported by the other USFL teams for games this weekend.

Philadelphia expects a strong walkup sale for the game at Veterans Stadium and the club said it anticipated a crowd of 40,000 for the game in the 70,000-seat stadium.

Oakland has this week's other USFL home opener against Birmingham and the Invaders reported between 42,000 and 45,000 tickets sold by Friday. Oakland has a 25,000 season's sale, which means that about 17,000 more have been sold for this game. The Oakland Coliseum seats 53,482.

Tampa Bay, which drew 42,437 for its first game, thinks that will rise to 45,000 for Saturday's game against Michigan. The Bandits have a 32,000 season's sale and have been selling about 2,000 tickets daily this week. They had a walkup sale of 8,500 on game day last Sunday and think they can match that this week.

Denver drew 45,102 in the snow for its first game last Sunday, with 6,000 tickets sold to spur-of-the-moment walkup customers. The Gold, who have 35,000 season ticket holders, are looking for a similiar crowd for this Sunday's game against Boston. "We're at about 38,000 now," said spokesman Jim Van Someren. "Our walkup sale should be about the same, better if we don't get snow."

Los Angeles anticipates between 27,000 and 30,000 for its Monday night game against Washington. The Express has sold 23,000 season's tickets and had a walkup sale of between 10,000 and 11,000 for last week's opener against Walker and the Generals.

"Sunday afternoon would be more attractive," said spokesman Bob Rose. "Monday night games are a tradition in the NFL, but I think our crowd would be better if the game were being played on Sunday."

Phoenix, which had the USFL's largest opening day crowd — 45,167 — anticipates a drop to about 30,000 this week. The Wranglers were shut out 24-0 in their first game and that did not help ticket sales this week. The club has sold 17,000 season tickets.

Actually, Walker did not draw the smallest crowd among the USFL openers. Corrected figures released by the Birmingham Stallions showed a crowd of 30,305 for that team's Monday night game against Michigan, instead of the 38,352 previously announced. That was reminiscent of the old World Football League, where crowd figures were often found to be inaccurate.

"It was a human error made by the people with the stadium commission," said Doug Kelly, the USFL's coordinator of information. "It was an estimate and an estimate is not a crowd count. We are cognizant of the situation that occurred with the WFL and we want to avoid that situation. We want honest figures."

Maryland's Driesell under attack

ATLANTA (AP) — John B. Slaughter, chancellor at the University of Maryland, said Friday he has not yet looked into allegations that basketball Coach Lefty Driesell tried to intervene in a female student's complaint against one of his players.

Herman Veal, a starting forward on the team, has been placed on disciplinary probation and thus ruled ineligible until mid-December following a complaint by a female student who said Veal made sexual advances toward her last October. The woman said Driesell had called her three times last Saturday and pressured her to drop her complaint against Veal.

"The coach had every reason to try to protect his athlete," Slaughter said Friday afternoon in the Omni, where Maryland later played in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament. "I'm not sure what really happened (in the reported conversations) ... I really haven't concerned myself with Lefty on this matter ... I don't want to get involved with speculation of any kind."

The Baltimore News American said in an editorial Friday that Driesell should resign if the woman's allegations about the telephone calls were true. The Diamondback, the student newspaper at the university, said in an editorial Friday that Slaughter and Athletic Director Dick Dull should ask Driesell to submit a letter of resignation.

Asked Friday if he thought his job was in jeopardy, Driesell said, "Absolutely not. What have I done wrong?"

"I haven't pressured anyone," Driesell said.

When asked if he talked to the woman, Driesell said he had no comment.

"My integrity has stood up for a long time," Driesell said. "Ask anybody who has known me for the 14 years I've been at Maryland. I've never threatened anyone. I don't know how I even got in the middle of this thing."

Driesell said he could not comment specifically on the woman's allegations. "On the advice of Edward Bennett Williams (a Washington attorney)," Driesell said, "I am not going to comment on any of this. He has told me and he has told Herman not to say a word about the matter.

"I disagree wholeheartedly with doing it this way," Driesell said. "It needs to come out. I would rather talk about it. But Ed is smarter in these matters than I am, so I'm listening to him."

Virginia rips Duke, 109-66

Tar Heels down Clemson

By The Associated Press

College Basketball

ATLANTA — Othell Wilson scored 23 points, Craig Robinson added 19 and Ralph Sampson, plagued by foul trouble and playing less than half the game, had 18 as second-ranked Virginia trounced Duke 109-66 in an Atlantic Coast Conference tournament opening round game.

With just under six minutes remaining in the first half, Duke, finishing its season at 11-17, tied the score at 35, before the Cavaliers put together a 15-2 run just before intermission.

Sampson, the 7-foot-4 All-American, was tagged for two fouls in the first 24 seconds of the game and sat out more than three minutes before returning.

North Carolina 105, Clemson 79

ATLANTA — Michael Jordan and Matt Doherty each scored 28 points to power the fifth-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels to a 105-79 victory over Clemson Friday in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

North Carolina, playing without starting center Sam Perkins, who injured his right hip last Saturday, took a 40-35 halftime lead as Doherty scored 17 points and Jordan added 10 for the 25-6 Tar Heels.

NC State 71, Wake Forest 70

ATLANTA — Sophomore Lorenzo Charles hit a free throw with three seconds remaining to give North Carolina State a 71-70 victory over Wake Forest in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, joining fifth-ranked North Carolina in the semifinals.

North Carolina State, 18-10, meets North Carolina Saturday. The Tar Heels routed Clemson 105-79 in the opener as Michael Jordan and Matt Doherty each tossed in 28 points for the winners.

Missouri 69, Nebraska 63

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Steve Stipanovich and Jon Sundvold, the two-time all-conference seniors, combined for 43 points to spark the 12th-ranked Tigers past Nebraska 69-63 in the semifinals of the Big Eight basketball tournament.

Stipanovich had 26 points, including two free throws in the final six seconds that wrapped up the victory. Sundvold had 17 and Prince Bridges 14 for the Tigers, 26-6.

Missouri bolted to a 11-2 lead over the Huskers, who appeared nervous at the outset but regrouped to pull even 24-24 on a layup by Stan Cloudy. But Nebraska, 19-9, could never get the lead, trailing 31-27 at halftime and pulling within 37-36 with 17:04 remaining.

Memphis State 84, Florida State 74

CINCINNATI — Bobby Parks scored 33 points, including four key free throws, to lead 17th-ranked Memphis State to an 84-74 victory over Florida State in a first-round game of the Metro Conference basketball tournament.

Memphis State, 21-6 during the regular season, will play top-seeded Louisville today. Florida State ended its season with a 14-14 record.

Keith Lee added 18 points for the Tigers and Phillip Haynes had 16. Mitchell Wiggins, Granville Arnold and Michael Johnson scored 18 apiece for Florida State.

Alabama 69, Kentucky 64

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Ennis Whatley scored 21 points, including three free throws in the final 23 seconds, as Alabama overcame a 14-point first half deficit and upset No. 10 Kentucky 69-64 in a Southeastern Conference basketball tournament quarterfinal game.

Kentucky, the SEC regular season champion, appeared to have a commanding 37-23 lead with just over four minutes remaining in the first half before Whatley and freshman Buck Johnson triggered the Alabama comeback.

St. John's 91, Villanova 80

NEW YORK — Chris Mullin and Billy Goodwin broke loose in the second half and send No. 8 St. John's into the championship game of the Big East Conference basketball tournament with a 91-80 victory over No. 13 Villanova.

Mullin and Goodwin, who were held to a combined eight points in the first half when the Redmen trailed 39-29, led the St. John's comeback that sent Villanova to its sixth loss against 22 victories.

Mullin, a 6-foot-6 sophomore, finished with 29 points and Goodwin, a 6-5 senior, had 23 points.

Boston College 80, Syracuse 74

NEW YORK (AP) — No. 14 Boston College was an 80-74 winner over No. 20 Syracuse in the second game of the doubleheader that drew a capacity crowd of 19,591 at Madison Square Garden to move into the Big East finals against St. John's.

Michael Adams scored 25 points and Jay Murphy 23 for Boston College, which beat St. John's twice this season.

Boston College avenged losses to Syracuse by 17 and 20 points during the season.

NTSU 66, McNeese St. 60 (OT)

BEAUMONT, Texas — Senior forward Kenneth Lyons' 23 points and 11 rebounds led North Texas State to a 66-60 overtime victory over McNeese State and into the finals of the Southland Conference tournament.

North Texas is now 15-14 on the year and one victory away from the NCAA tourna ment berth.

Lyons had 19 points in regulation play and hit nine of 10 free throws. The Eagles led 35-24 at the half, but 16-13 McNeese came on in the second half behind forward Kenny Jimerson.

Baylor Women 62, Texas Tech 56

AUSTIN — Center Kelly Lyons scored 22 points to lead fifth-seeded Bayor to an upset 62-56 win over No. 3 Texas Tech Friday in the Southwest Conference women's basketball tournament.

Bradley gets false credits

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A former Amarillo (Junior) College player who was dismissed from the San Diego State basketball team at the start of the season has told the NCAA that he received credit for two courses in San Diego that he never attended.

David Bradley says the classes were offered at San Diego City College in the summer of 1980, and he got "C's" in both.

The resulting units allowed him to enter San Diego State that fall.

"I ain't never been to no City College," Bradley said. "I've never been to no class, I took no tests, nothing."

Bradley, 23, of Columbia, S.C., came to San Diego State after playing the 1979-80 season at Amarillo College.

But his academic work there left him five units short of qualifying for admission at San Diego State.

Bradley's allegation comes in the wake of an "informal inquiry" into the San Diego State basketball program by the NCAA.

According to Friday's editions of the San Diego Union, NCAA enorcement officer Mike Glazier was here last week, probing the status of Bradley and Aztec starter Eddie Morris, who took the same courses at City College.

Bradley claims he didn't even know he was registered at City College, a fact disputed by former Aztec assistant coach Ken Baker.

Chinese defector waits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Immigration officials delayed a decision Friday on Chinese defector Hu Na's diplomatically troublesome political asylum request and the 19-year-old tennis star went to Capitol Hill to lobby for support.

Miss Hu, emerging from seclusion and breaking her silence after eight months, and her attorney, Edward C.Y. Lau, met with five members of Congress in an effort to bring pressure on the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"We've had nothing but support from the congressmen we've spoken with, and the word from government officials is that the wheels are turning and we should get a decision next week," Lau said in a telephone interview from Washington.

Miss Hu and Lau say they don't want to make public her specific motives because they want to avoid embarrasing China and irritating U.S. officials.

"We want to make everything constructive," Lau said. "We don't want to go around blasting the government or the Chinese because we realize it is a very difficult case.

"It's very important that people understand that we don't want to do anything to harm relations between our country and China," Lau continued. "This is one woman's personal experience. She doesn't want to hurt anybody, and doesn't want to be seen as a political symbol."

If the United States approves the application, it risks further strains in relations with China. If Immigration rejects her asylum bid, it risks an inquiry by several congressmen and a certain challenge in court by Miss Hu's attorneys.

"If, in fact, the Chinese authorities have played a role in influencing either the decision to be made or the timing of it, the propriety of the conduct of our own government is suspect," Lau said before leaving San Francisco with Miss Hu on Thursday.

"We can only speculate that bilateral politics have become a substantial factor in this decision," Lau continued. "The U.S. government appears to be reluctant to make a decision which may harm relations with the PRC (People's Republic of China) as the PRC has threatened, or that both are concerned about the precedent that this case will set."

Before boarding the flight from San Francisco for her first visit to Washington, Miss Hu said she is trying to cooperate with the government.

"I have told everything to Immigration already but if there is something they don't understand, I will be glad to answer their questions," she said through a Mandarin-speaking interpreter.

Miss Hu, who had refused to talk in public since leaving her team at the 32-nation Federation Cup tournament in Santa Clara, Calif., on July 20, said she has been frustrated by her isolation and the uncertainty of her position.

She has been living comfortably with Chinese-American families in California, playing tennis indoors with a coach and taking English lessons. She also has become a video games buff.

Midland athletes earn track points

ODESSA — Midland Lee's unbeaten track team trails Odessa Permian by a 19-16 margin after three events Friday in the 34th annual West Texas Relays at Ratliff Stadium.

And the Tall City girls also got off to a good start with Midland High leading the team race in the girls' division with 22 points. Lee is second with 18 while Permian is third with 14.

El Paso Andress is tied with Lee's boys for second place with 16 points, but the point totals mean little with the brunt of action set for today. There are still 12 events to be finalized today in the 5A division.

The Lee boys failed to win an event in Friday's three completed events, but some career bests were turned in. Luther Johnson placed fourth in the long jump with a career best 22-5¼ while Mike Barton's 6-4 in the high jump was another personal best despite the fact if placed only fifth.

Issac Garnett lost for the first time this year in the shot put with a 53-2 effort for third place and Eric Cooper had a career best 52-0 for fourth.

Lee's 1600 meter relay team qualified for today's finals with a season best 3:21.5, but was not the fastest time. Lee also qualified in the sprint relay while Permian dropped the baton and failed to qualify.

Damon Polk qualified in both hurdle events while Johnson made it in the 300 hurdles. Walter Jones and Carlton Johnson both qualified for the 200 meters. Jones will also be in the 100 with Greg Woodberry. Mark Brackens will be in the 400 and Carl Piccolo will be in the mile and two-mile races. David Meyers and Eric Roberts qualified for the 800.

Things were pretty much on schedule for the Rebels, but with 15 teams in the field, points will be hard to come by and points should be spread out after today's finals, which begin at 12:30 p.m. today.

The only victory to come to Lee Friday was from Felicia Farias in the girls' high jump with a 5-2 effort. Lee's Brenda Havens' 16-11 in the long jump was good for second place.

Midland High got a second from Rochelle Gill in the high jump with a 5-1 while Penny Griffin was third with a 5-0. Griffin also placed third in the long jump with a 16-10½ while Sheila Christian was fifth with a 16-7½.

Unseeded netters help MHS, Lee

Unseeded players have been the big story for both the Midland Lee and Midland High tennis teams in the opening day of the Midland High School Tennis Invitational.

For Midland High, the girls' Class A singles has been a pleasant surprise as the Lady Bulldogs have captured three of the four semifinal berths, putting coach Pete Barzon in a unique situation.

"In all my years of coaching, I don't think that has ever happened to me," he said. "I was very very surprised. I was working the boys' division all day and didn't know what was going on with the girls. When we were finished, I went over to Lee to pick up the results and found out we had three girls in the semis. That's a tremendous accomplishment."

Jill Glebel, Shauna Fullen and Tammy Ehrlorg have each won two matches in advancing to the semifinals. Unfortunately either Glebel or Fullen will be eliminated as the two face each other today.

Elizabeth Yeager and Jenifer Reese playing in the girls' A singles are the only other Bulldogs left in the tournament. The unseeded doubles team will face the No. 1 ranked squad of Kelley McAfee and Paula Brigance of Permian in the semi-finals.

The Rebels have two doubles teams left in the Class B bracket. Krista Harvey and Lisa Fierro drew a first round bye then defeated Fort Stockton's Mooney-Urias to gain a berth in the semifinals. The quarterfinal match was a come-from-behind victory as Harvey-Fierro lost the first set 5-7 before railing 6-2, 6-2.

"If they can get by their next match, they could be facing the No. 2 seeds, Stacy McAfee and Shannon Sullivan of Permian in the finals," Lee coach Bobby Connell said. "They've beat McAfee and Shannon twice this year, in Odessa and San Angelo."

Rebels David Frazier and Tony Nunez took a straight set match from Big Spring's Bill Gladden and Bill Cortes, 6-2, 6-1, to make the semifinals.

"Like I said before the meet, Permian looks like the overall team winner," Barizon said. "Second place is between us (MHS), Odessa High and Amarillo High."

Today's semifinals and finals will begin at 8:30 a.m. with the boys' matches being played at the Midland High courts and the girls at Lee.

Mets continue to have spring woes

By The Associated Press

The New York Mets, shelled by two teams Thursday, took on one club on Friday — and were bombed again, 20-5 by the Chicago White Sox in exhibition baseball.

ON THURSDAY, the Mets began their spring season with split-squad games and were raked for seven homers in losses of 8-5 to Toronto and 13-6 to Detroit.

Mike Squires also homered for the White Sox, who nailed the Mets' pitchers for 19 hits, eight for extra bases.

Greg Brock and Felix Maldonado drove in three runs apiece for Los Angeles as the Dodgers scored three runs in the sixth inning and five in the seventh to beat Boston 10-4. Mark Fidrych, attempting a comeback with the Red Sox, limited the Dodgers to two hits and an unearned run over three innings.

A bases-loaded homer by Tim Teufel broke a sixth-inning tie and powered Minnesota to an 8-5 victory over Houston while Jeff Jones' two-run single in the third inning triggered a four-run burst that sent Cincinnati on the way to a 9-3 romp over Philadelphia.

Rich Bordi and three relievers limited California to seven hits as the Chicago Cubs silenced the Angels 6-0. Roy Howell drew a 10th-inning walk, was bunted to second and came home on Steve Lake's single as Milwaukee nosed out Cleveland 4-3.

IN TWO night games, Jay Howell and three New York Yankees relievers held Texas to one hit in beating the Rangers 6-0.

Atlanta's Rafael Ramirez drove in two runs and the Braves took advantage of the wildness of Baltimore starter Dennis Martinez to defeat the Orioles 6-1.

Nicolette's bogey golf still holds lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Mike Nicolette bogeyed four of his last six holes but — with a howling wind and biting cold playing havoc with the rest of the field — managed to expand his lead to three strokes Friday in the second round of the $350,000 Bay Hill Golf Classic.

Despite his troubles at the end, Nicolette nursed home a round of 72, 1-over par, and had a 36-hole total of 138, 4 under.

"It was very cold, very windy, a very difficult day to play golf," said Nicolette, a career struggler now in his fifth year of PGA Tour activity.

"Under the conditions, 72 was a very good score," he said.

It was something of an understatement. The temperatures were in the high 30s when the first players got off the tee in the early morning. It warmed only into the low 50s. The winds gusted to 40 mph. It was, by far, the worst weather conditions of the Tour season.

Scores soared to ridiculous proportions.

And Arnold Palmer, who serves as the host to this event, was victimized the most. Palmer, who made a 10 on the par-5 sixth hole, shot an 85, by three strokes the highest score of his 29-year Tour career. His previous highs had been a pair of 82s, when he was suffering from a hip ailment in the 1969 PGA championship, and in the 1957 Kansas City Open.

He hit two shots into the water on the sixth hole and eventually 3-putted for the 10.

But he signed for it. He signed his card and turned in the score. Rex Caldwell, three times a runner-up earlier this year, declined to sign for an 81 — which included 46 on the back nine — and was disqualified.

They were not alone in their difficulties on the 7,089-yard Bay Hill Club course. More than a dozen men in the strongest field of the year shot in the 80s. Masters champion Craig Stadler was among them. He had an 83. Only one subpar round, a 69 by Curtis Strange, was recorded all day.

"It was a test of patience, a matter of survival," said Bob Gilder, who, besides Nicolette, was the only man to break par for two days. He had a hard-earned 71 — which included one shot where he removed his shoes and climbed into near-freezing water — and a 141 total.

Rookie Donnie Hammond was next at 73-142. He was followed by Larry Nelson and Australian Greg Norman at 143. Each managed to match par 71.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson topped the group at 144, 2-over par but very much in title contention. Nicklaus had another 72, including a bogey-bogey finish. Watson shot 71.

U.S. pair sweeps world ice show

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) -The United States completed a double at the World Figure Skating Championships Friday night when 18-year-old Rosalynn Sumners of Edmonds, Wash., won the women's title, joining men's champion Scott Hamilton.

The silver and bronze medals went to Claudia Leistner of West Germany and Elena Vodoosova of the Soviet Union.

Sumners, the two-time U.S. champion, clinched her victory in the Helsinki Ice Stadium with eight first-place votes from the nine judges.The green-eyed blonde had led the competition right from the opening compulsory figures Tuesday. And even after being placed fourth in Wednesday's short program, she still held a narrow overall lead.

In the free skating, only one of her rivals, long-legged Katarina Witt of East Germany, came near to matching her marks. But Witt had made a bad start in the competition and could not climb higher than fourth place.

Sumners seized the opportunity in this event when her great rival, Elaine Zayak, the defending champion from Paramus, N.J., limped out of the championships with an ankle injury during the compulsory figures.

When Sumners went on the ice, the atmosphere was enough to unnerve any young skater.

Kristina Wegelius of Finland had skated just previously, and an excited partisan crowd of nearly 6,000 had roared for their local favorite.

Arizona changes quarterback

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — If at first you don't succeed, try changing quarterbacks.

That seems to be the philosophy of Arizona Wranglers Coach Doug Shively, who says he will start ex-Louisiana State standout Alan Risher in tonight's United States Football League game here against the Chicago Blitz.

Meanwhile, Michigan plays at Tampa Bay in tonight's other USFL game. Both the Panthers and Bandits won their season-opener last week. On Sunday, New Jersey is at Philadelphia, Boston plays at Denver and Birmingham is at Oakland with Washington at Los Angeles in a Monday night game.

"We weren't very proud of the way we played," said Shively. "(Right cornerback) Aaron Mitchell and (strong safety) Tommy Wilcox played well and that's about it. When you lose like we did, you have to go out and find solutions. That's what we're going to do."

Four free-agent punters were given tryouts here this week, including former National Football League veteran Rick Partridge.

The Wranglers failed to penetrate beyond Oakland's 17-yard line and Jim Asmus missed both of his field goal attempts, from 34 and 35 yards out. Asmus also punted seven times for a 30.4 average.

Weir sets NCAA mark

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Robert Weir of Southern Methodist won his second title in the 35-pound weight throw at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships Friday, giving the Mustangs a fast start toward their first team crown.

While Weir was setting a meet mark in the only final on Friday's opening day of competition, Texas-El Paso suffered a severe blow to its hopes of winning a fourth consecutive team championship and eighth in 10 years when two of its top distance runners were eliminated during qualifiers.

The massive, 6-foot-3, 255-pound Weir, winner of his first NCAA title as a freshman in 1981, regained the championship with a heave of 76 feet, 5¼ inches on his final attempt. The previous record was 73-7, by Weir two years ago.

His teammates, Richard Olsen and Anders Hoff, both of Norway, finished fifth and sixth, respectively, providing the Mustangs with 13 points. Scoring is on a 10-8-6-4-2-1 basis.

"We had hoped for 12 points and we got 13," said SMU Coach Ted McLaughlin.

Another Norwegian, sophomore Tore Johnsen of the University of Texas-El Paso, last year's weight-throw winner, finished second this time at 71-5½, and Coach Larry Heidebrecht said he was not surprised that his man was No. 2. He had figured Johnsen for second, behind Weir, but Heidebrecht was disappointed in losing two of his three entrants in the semifinals of the two-mile.

The elimination of Zakariah Barie from Tanzania and Sam Ngatia from Kenya appeared to wreck the Miners' chances of winning their fourth consecutive team title and eighth crown in 10 years.

"I thought Barie would do a lot better than that," said Heidebrecht.

Barie, the fastest qualifier among the total of 16 two-milers in the two heats of the semifinals, wound up fifth, missing the final by one spot. Ngatia, running in the same heat as Barie, was sixth.

The Miners' other two-miler, Gidamis Shahanga of Tanzania, won the other heat in 8 minutes, 42.66 seconds, the fastest time in either section.

"We needed big points from Barie," said Heidebrecht, "and I was hoping that Ngatia could get one or two points by finishing fifth or sixth (in Saturday's final)."

All of the running and throwing events were held in the Silverdome, except the weight throw, which was conducted at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. The remaining 28 finals — 15 for men, 13 for women — will be held Saturday.

The throwers used plastic indoor weights for the first time to protect Eastern's newly installed floor, and it took Weir a few throws to get adjusted.

"The handles (on the weights) we normally use are a lot wider," explained Weir, a junior from Birmingham, England. "These were closer. They made the grip different."

Weir, the 1982 Commonwealth Games hammer throw champion, was the leader after the first three throws, but Johnsen moved into first place on the fourth round.

Paschal pulls another upset

Sophomore Kenny Keller moves Bryan to finals

AUSTIN (AP) — Sophomore substitute Kenny Keller hit two free throws with eight seconds to play to assure Bryan of a 64-63 victory over San Antonio Sam Houston Friday in the Class 5A schoolboy state basketball tournament.

Keller's clutch free throws moved Bryan to Saturday's championship game against Fort Worth Paschal, a 53-48 upset victor over Houston Yates Friday behind senior guard George Davis' 18 points.

San Antonio Sam Houston tied Bryan at 53-all with 3:36 to play when senior forward David Moss connected on a driving move up the middle.

Bryan regained the lead 18 seconds later when Rod Bernstine muscled in a tough shot underneath. Bernstine's strong move gave the Vikings the lead for good, but the Cherokees pulled to within a point with 14 seconds to play when Moss tossed in a six-foot jumper. But Keller, a 6-5 sub who finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds, sealed the Bryan win with his two free throws moments later.

Sam Houston's Reggie Mackall zipped down the middle to hit a layup with two seconds to play, leaving the Cherokees on the short end of the final score.

Darrell Mitchell led Bryan with 16 points and Bernstine added 15 points and 13 rebounds. Moss was Sam Houston's scoring leader with 20 points.

In Class 2A action, Bartlett rode a wave of Gladewater Sabine fouls to beat the Cardinals 60-50, and Morton used a jump shot in the closing seconds to beat Coppell 82-81 in semifinal games.

Paschal, 30-7, moved to Saturday's 5A final against the winner of Friday night's Bryan-San Antonio Sam Houston semi-final game.

Yates, with 6-8 guard Ricky Winslow's 24 points, had a huge height advantage on the floor. But Yates shot a cool 37 percent from the field and trailed almost the entire game.

Yates pulled to within two points with 30 seconds to play when Winslow arched in a 22-foot jump shot to make the score 50-48. But with 17 seconds to play, Paschal's Vernon Coleman hit one of two free throws after Winslow fouled out of the game.

Yates hurried down the floor but Craven Holcombe missed a jump shot from the top of the key that could have brought the Lions within one point. Horace Taylor hit two free throws on the other end to give Paschal the 53-48 upset win.

Winslow was the game's leading rebounder with 13 as Yates finished the season 37-3. Yates outrebounded Paschal 43-29, but turned the ball over 23 times.

Morton's Travis Patton swished a 22-foot jumper with three seconds to play to preserve the win for the Indians, who led the entire game until Coppell's Brad Hatchel hit an 18-foot turnaround jumper with 10 seconds to go.

Coppell trailed 80-73 with 1:14 remaining, but ran off eight quick points to take the lead on Hatchel's shot.

Barry Adams led Morton with 23 points. Hatchel added 15. Donald Kuehler led Morton with 19, and his twin brother Ronald added 17.

Bartlett was led by Robert Williams' 15 points and great team quickness that more than counterbalanced Sabine's big height advantage.

All five Sabine starters fouled out, including 6-8, 240-pound Tony Stone, who had four first-half fouls and picked up his fifth with 5:42 to play in the third quarter. Stone, who averaged 20 points a game, had only two points.

Sabine's starting five included Stone, 6-7 David Grissom and 6-4 Mike Brittain, who led the Cardinals with 18 points.

Bartlett's tallest starter was 6-2 Leslie Scott. Greg Turner, 6-1, was the game's leading rebounder with 10 for Bartlett.

Sabine was whistled for 33 fouls, but Bartlett hit only 18 of 40 free throws. Bartlett was called for a dozen fouls.

Veteran Cardinal Coach Carl Allen, who led Sabine to state titles in 1980 and 1981, said it was the first time all five of his starters had fouled out.

"Never in my life," he said after the game as he asked directions to the referees' dressing room. "And I've been coaching for 20 years and I played for 15."

Nine-year-old Stephanie Garrett of Albany, Texas, is less than pleased that her lamb placed out of the money during judging at the San Angelo Rodeo and Stock Show. The show, a major event in West Texas, attracts thousands of visitors each year. The show runs through Sunday.

Horror-story writer started out with poetry

NEW YORK (AP) — One, and possibly the only, thing poetry and horror stories have in common is Peter Straub.

Straub, an amiable 39-year-old whose latest best-selling horror novel is "Floating Dragon," has published two books of poems.

"I used to be obsessed with poetry," Straub recalls, "and for a long time it was all I wrote. But, eventually, the desire to write poems faded away, and I turned to the novel.

"I'd always thought of myself as a novelist, even though there was absolutely no evidence to support that thought. But when I turned 26 I started hearing lines of dialogue in my head. My soul was pushing me toward novel writing. I was being invaded by fiction.

"So, I told myself, 'This is it, if I don't write a novel now, I will never do it.' I began writing 500 words a day, even though I had no notion what my book would be. But, by the end of four months the book had taken shape, I sent it to a publisher and it was accepted. Sort of amazing, my first novel accepted on my first submission."

The book was "Marriages," and is described by Straub as a "straightforward adultery novel that did not sell well."

Its failure to sell didn't discourage Straub because "I'd given myself three chances. I felt that if I published three novels and none of them really made it, then I would have had my three strikes, I would be out, and I would find something else to do — probably teach."

Straub, who had taught English at a school in his native Milwaukee, says he took a close look at the book scene, noted that horror was selling, and decided to try his hand at that.

He recalls with a smile that "as a kid I'd invented horror stories to scare my friends and I told some pretty good ones. So I wrote a horror novel called 'Julia,' and it sold pretty well as did my third book 'If You Could See Me Now.' I didn't have to worry anymore about money."

But the horror field really paid off for Straub with the publication of his next novel, "Ghost Story."

"It was my first best seller and it really transformed my life," he says. "It attracted money in amounts that seemed unimaginable."

All of his novels since — "Shadowland" and "Floating Dragon" — have been best sellers, and Straub thinks the reason readers are attracted to his books is that, "People want escape. That's why they turn to fantasy, science-fiction, and horror. It must be that reality has become so nasty that people want to escape it."

"It seems to me that when reality is like that, then a horror novel is almost fun. It isn't fun to be scared in reality, but it is fun to be scared in a harmless way.

Author writes about rage of the elderly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seymour Shubin is no ordinary kind of novelist. He spends most of his working days writing about medical problems and in his research stumbled on a horror story.

"There is crime going on in this country that we are ignoring and yet which most of us will one day fall victim to — the cold-hearted rejection of the elderly," he said.

"It is committed behind the closed doors of nursing homes, and other institutions, by doctors, nurses and their aides."

This "new type of crime" became the theme of Shubin's powerful novel of suspense and violence, "The Captain," recently published.

The main character is a retired detective captain dumped into a nursing home because his children didn't want him. Though enfeebled himself, and cranky, he becomes the unknown protector of the oppressed elderly residents, out of his old-time sense of justice, and soon begins executing some of the meanest tormentors of the aged.

Shubin said the novel portrays a devastating side of old age and America's insensitivity to a growing problem.

"If there is any single thing we can learn from China, it is respect for the elderly, because they have something that's impossible to refute — experience," said Shubin, a Philadelphia native whose newest novel comes 17 years after his first best seller, "Anyone's My Name."

"In this country, not only don't we respect the elderly, we discard them. Youth is preferred over experience as many persons in their 50s and 60s find after losing their jobs."

Shubin said he decided to write a fictional book after numerous interviews with geriatric psychiatrists and visits to nursing homes.

"One of the biggest things that struck me was the tremendous rage I saw in so many of the elderly," he said. "In some cases the rage was purely an organic deterioration, a person furious at himself that he can't remember things as well as he did.

"In other cases, it was rage at children for putting them there, at doctors and nurses for not listening to them, at the world in general. Many times they rage at their own loneliness, for loneliness is one of the biggest curses of the aged in a nursing home."

Shubin, once managing editor of Official Detective Stories Magazine, has concentrated the past two decades in writing articles on medical themes.

He said in his research he "observed how many alert, functioning elderly people are consigned to nursing homes" and blamed their children for contributing to their confusion and eventual confinement.

"One of the ways they do this is by having them live for short periods in first one of their homes and then the other," he said.

"Another problem confronting the aged is that their medical problems are often ignored or not taken seriously enough. Illnesses and ailments that anyone else would be treated for are frequently ignored, and they don't get the counseling and physical therapy that younger people get. When they complain of pain a doctor will say, 'What do you expect from a 70-year-old arm?' "

Shubin said when he began writing "The Captain" several years ago he didn't realize it would come out at a time when the elderly, and their mounting problems, are becoming page one news and subjects of television investigations.

"There is a tremendous rise in the incidence of crime commmited by the aged, predominantly shoplifting," he said. "But arrests for murder by the elderly has gone up 200 percent, and arrests for rape and larceny is 300 percent higher, and experts are blaming explosive family tensions, and also their feeling they are no longer bound to a society that left them adrift and has no place for them."

Man builds houses entirely of bottles

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Charlie Yelton spent five years building a house he never planned to live in.

And when he finished it, he built two more — all for no other reason than to have something to do.

What makes Yelton's houses special is that they are made of bottles, thousands of them. In the big house alone there are 11,987 pint, quart and half-gallon bottles in every imaginable shape, size and color.

Yelton keeps the extra-special bottles, those that had no place in the structure, inside the houses with the rest of his glass collection.

In 1970, Yelton found himself with plenty of time to kill. He was 63 at the time, and he had broken his leg while trying to level a house trailer on his land. His 25-year career with Cone Mills came to an end.

Then he remembered a house in Texas he'd seen years before on television, and he liked the idea.

Yelton spent the next four winters collecting and washing bottles. In the summers, he set them in concrete. The bottle house grew.

"I had an old tow sack that would hold seven quart bottles. It was a mile to the river, and I used to walk down there and fill up that sack and walk back with a cane. I reckon I made 900 trips," he said.

Farming and mill work hadn't prepared him for the work that was ahead, but somehow he managed to figure things out.

"I never built nothing in my life. All I had was a hammer and a saw," he said.

Colorful glass patterns grew and formed walls... Green 7-Up bottles surround the window frames he built, and a blue cross made from Phillips' Milk of Magnesia bottles adorns the front eave.

Green 7-Up bottles surround the window frames he built, and a blue cross made from Phillips' Milk of Magnesia bottles adorns the front eave.

The house was finished in 1975. By that time, Yelton was 66 and he still had time to kill, so he started on another house. He built a third house, a wishing well and flower beds out of bottles also.

Yelton said there are too many bottles to count in his complex.

Yelton said he is surprised at the number of visitors who come to see his houses. "I had no idea anybody would come." he said.

"I had eight cars here at one time — and buses. I guess the highest I've had here was 65 at one time."

Yelton winces when someone calls him an artist, but likes for people to visit and see his handiwork.

"It's prettiest when the moon's full and there's no leaves on the trees. It lightens up there just like daylight." he said.

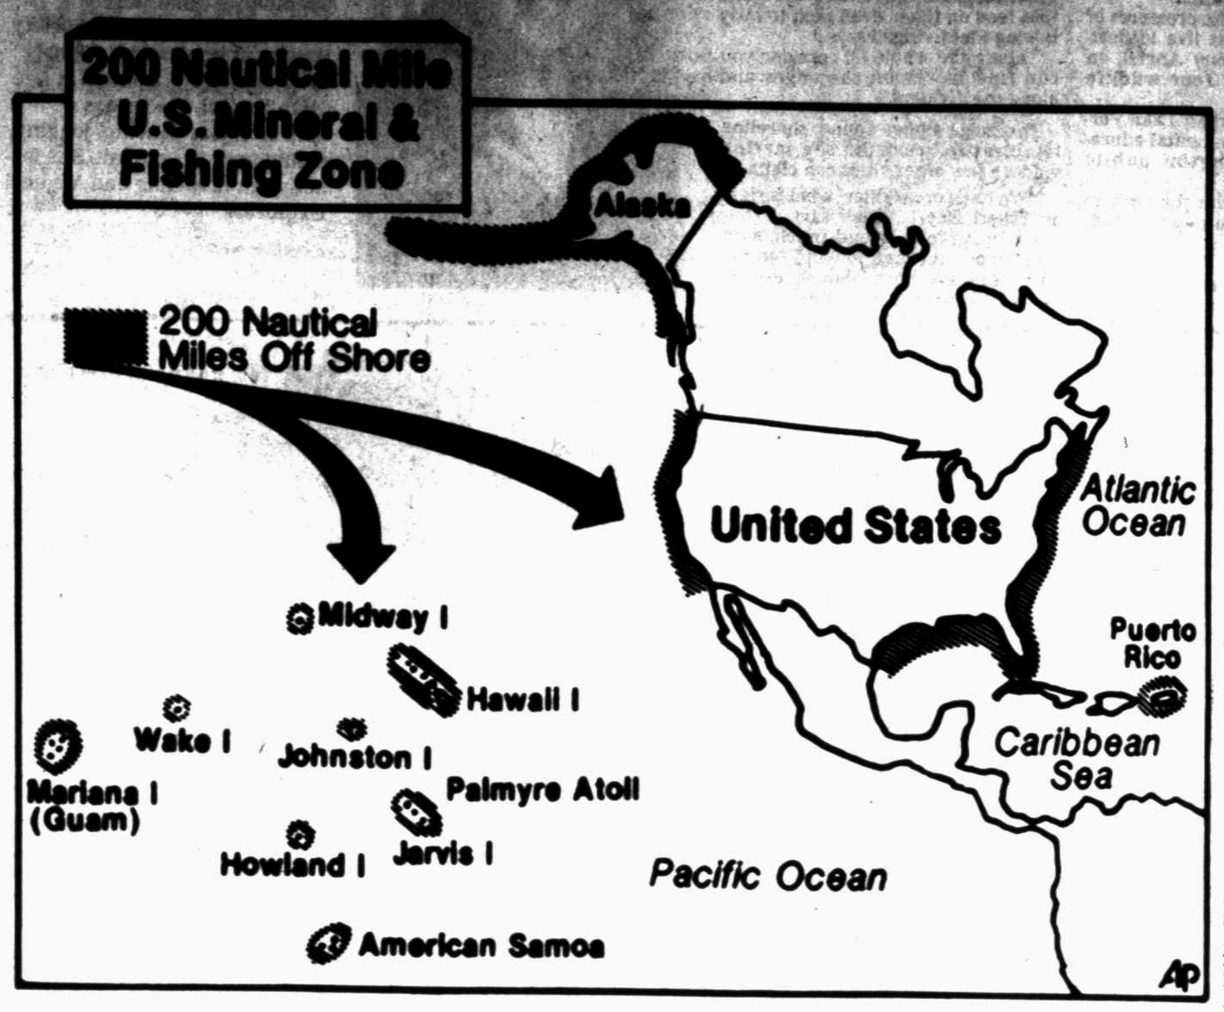
Reagan lays claim to mineral, fishing rights

Proclamation creates Exclusive Economic Zone



AP Laserphoto Map

This illustrates the new boundaries that President Reagan is claiming for sole U.S. mineral and fishing rights.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, underscoring U.S. opposition to the Law of the Sea Treaty, is laying claim to mineral and fishing rights inside a 200-mile zone bordering both U.S. coasts.

The administration's 200-mile claim also extends to waters around U.S.-controlled islands in the Pacific and Caribbean.

Reagan signed a proclamation creating an Exclusive Economic Zone, giving the United States the sole right to conduct mining and fishing operations in about four million square nautical miles of sea. A nautical mile is 6,076 feet, while a regular mile is 5,280 feet.

U.S. control would extend to production of energy from currents and winds.

U.S. officials said the creation of the zone would not affect the passage of ships or planes, the laying of cables or pipelines, or change existing policies on marine mammals, fisheries or the continental shelf.

THE PROCLAMATION took effect immediately and Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and Rep. John Breaux, D-La., introduced legislation in both houses of Congress to implement it.

A State Department official, who briefed reporters on the condition he not be identified by name, declared the economic zone is consistent with existing international law and also with the Law of the Sea Treaty.

The treaty, which the United States refused to sign last year, would set internationally recognized standards for navigation, marine research, fisheries, as well as for mining operations on the deep seabed.

U.S. officials said last July they did not believe the treaty would protect American interests, especially in the area of mineral rights.

The official said that the administration's objections to the treaty focused on how deep seabed mining in international waters would be conducted, an issue not addressed in the economic zone proclamation.

The U.S. position is that all nations have a right to conduct mining operations in international waters outside of the new U.S. economic zone.

SOME EXPERTS in the field say the Reagan administration is attempting to show by its action that a nation can control seabed and other resources outside of the treaty.

Some treaty signers have indicated they believe the terms of the declaration creating the economic zone are inconsistent with the treaty.

The U.S. official said there has been a "somewhat variable response from other countries although overall it is quite moderate."

Marlene Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Caldwell of 2403 E. California, has been nominated for the Lions Club District 2-A1 Queen Contest by the Tall City Lions Club. A junior at Midland High School, she will participate at the district convention in Brownwood Tuesday and Wednesday.

Bald eagles, hawks find home in 'wilds' of Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A bald eagle is seen in Seward Park. Red-tailed hawks prey on rodents on the Interstate 5 median strip. Killer whales swim past the waterfront.

These are some of the creatures of the wild kingdom that live in Seattle, says naturalist Tony Angell, an artist and author of four wildlife books.

Angell, 42, of suburban Lake Forest Park, is an environmental educator for the Washington public schools.

Bald eagles soar from the park to feed from Lake Washington, which forms the eastern boundary of the city.

"It's not unusual to see bald eagles over the lake now," Angell said in a recent interview. "They're out there fishing, and seen with some regularity."

Grassy freeway median strips are great for mice, moles and the birds that feed on them, even next to busy Boeing Field, Angell says.

"Along the whole I-5 corridor you can find hawks on the edges and along the dividers."

The large Puget Sound shoreline lets Seattle residents see marine wildlife few other cities can claim.

"We have orca (killer) whales right in Elliott Bay," Angell says. "They don't come in to spend much time. They move through looking for forage. They are here. The same goes for harbor seals and sea lions."

Celeste Elig, 16, has been nominated for Lions Club District 2-A1 Queen by the Morning Lions Club. The daughter of David and Grace Elig of 3306 W. Shandon, she is a member of Nike, Junior Engineering Technical Society, Junior Council and National Honor Society. A junior at Lee High School, she enjoys aerobics, jazz dancing, jogging, skiing and racquetball. She is active in modeling and Medical Explorers.

Dope thrives in Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa, long famous for its corn, may soon become infamous for another cash crop thriving in its fertile black soil — an "epidemic" bounty of high-grade marijuana hidden in part by a similar-looking local variety of hemp.

"I think that in a few years, it's going to be like California," said Richard Edwards, a Johnson County sheriff's detective. "It's not just a problem. It's an epidemic."

Sheriff's officials in southeast Iowa say they have seized several tons of marijuana in each of the past three years and believe it is only a small percentage of the crop grown in their counties and elsewhere in the state.

"If other counties aren't finding it, it's because they're not going after it," Edwards said. "I guess it's a problem of not enough money. I guess they're going after the speeders."

WHAT is uncovered is believed to be only 10 percent of the estimated crop, said Gerald Shanahan, director of the state Division of Criminal Investigation. Each ton is worth at least $1 million when broken down and sold on the street, he said.

Johnson County is one of several southeast Iowa counties where officials fear the vast acreage of corn and "Iowa Ditch," a wild-growing variety of pot too weak to smoke, have become natural covers for multimillion-dollar marijuana crops.

Moreover, Edwards said, the let's-mind-our-own-business nature of Iowans permits pot farmers to tend their crops virtually unbothered.

"You read about California and other states where they have to guard their crops against poaching competitors," said Edwards. "They're not worried about that here. It's a safe haven for them."

Edwards said a pound of marijuana sells for between $550-$600 on the streets of Iowa City, Johnson County's seat of government, and home of Iowa's largest university, the University of Iowa.

IN the dozens of arrests statewide for growing marijuana in the past few years, Shanahan said the average plot yielded a ton of pot.

Seeds from potent, "quality" marijuana such as types grown in Mexico, Thailand or Colombia grow pot of equal strength in Iowa soil, Edwards said.

In rural Washington County, population 20,141, Sheriff Yale Jarvis said he has made a half-dozen arrests during five years, but doubts the record reflects the extent of the problem.

"The growing of it has become a bigger problem for us than its use," Jarvis said. "It might scare the hell out of me if I really knew how much of a problem it was."

TWO years ago, Jarvis made his biggest single haul of marijuana when he and his men seized 1,200 pounds in the arrest of one grower.

Shanahan said he hopes to press into service the Iowa State Patrol's several planes in a stepped-up aerial enforcement drive this summer.

Cochise, actor share center stage at museum

WILLCOX, Ariz. (AP) — Two men — one living, one long dead — share the spotlight of a visitors' center and museum intended as a magnet to tourists.

One is Cochise, considered the greatest leader of the Apache Indians, for whom the center and the county in southeastern Arizona were named. The other is Rex Allen, a famed celluloid singing cowboy of the 1940s and '50s and also a native son.

They share center stage in this starkly dramatic white stuccoed, redwood-roofed concrete block structure nestled near Interstate 10 in southeastern Arizona.

Their accomplishments and achievements — Cochise's real ones etched in history books and in the mute memory of the nearby Dragoon and Chiricahua mountains, Allen's fictional feats immortalized in his movies, records and in comic books — share a common heritage, in the Old West.

Opened in 1972, the Cochise Visitors Center was the first such museum in the state, built with privately raised money. The city of Willcox and its Chamber of Commerce determined it was necessary to lure visitors to spend time in the community and travel further into Cochise County after construction of the interstate highway bypassed the city itself. The center attracts some 2,000 visitors a month, said Marylou Young, an employee.

The visitor first encounters Allen's memorabilia. There are posters from some of his movies, including "Colorado Sundown."

San Francisco woos Democrats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Golden Gate opened wide Friday as the city by the bay used balloons, bunting and $190,000 in accommodations to pitch itself as a site for the 1984 Democratic National Convention.

Many of the 58 members of the party's site selection committee said they were "very impressed" after a tour of the Moscone Convention Center, the underground hall where delegates would pick their presidential nominee.

"San Francisco is really knocking itself out for us," said 1984 convention chairwoman Rosalind Wyman. "I think our impression is that there isn't anything San Francisco wouldn't do."

The panel will survey the town through Sunday, scrutinizing security, rating hotel rooms, trying out transportation, reviewing restaurants and meeting the news media. Then it's on to the other possible convention sites: New York, Chicago, Detroit and Washington, D.C. The final choice is due April 21.

A dinner Thursday night raised $350,000 to help with convention costs, wherever it is held, and Ms. Wyman said that contribution will certainly count in favor of the city once described by John Steinbeck as "a golden handcuff with the key thrown away."

San Francisco convention bureau director George Kirkland guides Democratic National Committee member Rosalind Wyman on a tour of the city's facilities.

She also said the committee was impressed with Mayor Dianne Feinstein, "one of the stars of the Democratic Party," who faces a recall election next month and a re-election campaign in the fall. If the mayor survives those tests, her name could surface as a possible vice presidential candidate.

The mayor addressed the committee Friday, emphasizing the city's racial and ethnic mix, its active fishing fleet at Fisherman's Wharf and the extensive housing projects, some built with dollars from the Democratic administrations of the 1960s.

The convention hall is a six-acre chamber surrounded by 41 meeting rooms, a 30,000 square-foot ballroom and a fully equipped kitchen capable of feeding 6,000 people. The $126 million facility has been booked solid by conventions since its December 1981 opening.

"We believe this center is not only adequate, but really very fine," said Ms. Feinstein. "We really want this convention. We want it to be a stellar convention."

GOP ads capitalize on economy

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Trying to capitalize politically on recent good economic news, the Republican Party is spending $1 million to broadcast a television commercial that concedes President Reagan may have been "too doggone optimistic" but concludes that recovery is under way.

The Republican National Committee is planning to run the TV commercial in 45 markets for seven to 10 days starting on Monday, a party spokesman said Friday.

In the commercial, a woman, portrayed as standing in her home, says:

"Some of my friends think President Reagan was just too doggone optimistic. He figured he'd get the economy moving a lot faster than he's been able to do,

"But, you know, optimism isn't such a bad thing to have. Took a ton of it to get this country started.

"Besides the economy is starting to come around. Jobs are starting to pick up again. People are going back to work because President Reagan didn't go for a quick fix. Maybe, we can be a little more optimistic about the future."

Party spokesman William Greener III said he could not recall when the GOP ever had begun a political advertising campaign more than 19 months before an election.

He said the commercial was an effort to "reinforce" the positive news in recent economic reports.

In a meeting with reporters Friday, the president repeated his contention that "we are definitely on the mend."

The Commerce Department reported last week that the government's main economic forecasting guage shot upward 3.6 percent in January, the biggesst gain in 30 years.

Referring to the gain in the index of 10 economic indicators, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said, "There has never been a gain in the leading index this large in the past without an economic recovery."

And while the nation's unemployment rate was at 10.4 percent in February, that figure was below the December peak of 10.8 percent.

The new Republican commercial was made by the same firm that produced the "postman" ad in 1982 which was widely credited with helping the Republicans deal with Democratic charges that the president and his party were trying to cut back Social Security benefits.

That ad portrayed an elderly postman delivering Social Security checks that contained the benefit increase provided by law last July 1. The ad credited President Reagan with bringing about the cost of living increase.

Democrats responded that the claim was incorrect.

Senate rejects Democrats' recession relief package

Under threat of veto, leaders abandon quick passage effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected 53-34 on Friday a Democratic attempt to pump an additional $1.7 billion into a $3.8 billion package of new jobs and other recession relief.

But Senate leaders gave up pushing for quick passage of the emergency bill after President Reagan threatened to veto it unless it is spared from an unrelated amendment to repeal tax withholding on interest and dividend income.

The Democratic effort to boost the measure's pricetag even beyond the $4.9 billion version passed by the House lost on virtually a straight party-line vote. It would have given cities and states more funds for public service jobs than Reagan wants and added more money for emergency food and shelter and health care for the needy.

But Reagan's veto threat focused on an unrelated and heavily lobbied amendment to repeal tax withholding on income from dividends and interest.

The withholding battle has thrown the Senate into a bitter legislative gridlock, made all the more tense because of a Tuesday deadline for the bill's extension of national unemployment benefits.

Late Friday, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., abandoned efforts to get the measure through the chamber by the weekend. He adjourned the Senate until Monday, but not before it added $120 million to give 110,000 railroad workers an extra 10 weeks of unemployment benefits.

Administration officials and the Senate leadership were determined to use the weekend in an attempt to reverse the apparent tide in favor of the tax amendment.

But the chief sponsor of repeal, Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., said he is confident he will eventually force a vote on the issue some before Congress adjourns for an Easter recess later this month.

Actually, the jobs legislation carries an overall commitment of $8.7 billion — including an undisputed $5 billion in loan money which at least 30 states need to borrow from the federal treasury starting next week to pay unemployment benefits to millions of jobless workers.

In a televised news conference, Reagan said he would veto the recession-relief measure if it includes the heavily-lobbied amendment to rescind last year's changes in the tax law making interest and dividend income subject to the same kind of withholding as wages.

In the one of the strongest statements he has ever made against the business community, the president said the banking industry would "would do a lot better to spend its time thinking about lowering interest rates" than pushing for repeal of the withholding requirement onto the jobs bill.

Reagan said bankers had "distorted" and "obscured" the fact that the withholding change did not increase taxes, but sought to make sure that existing taxes got paid.

"I am deeply disturbed that the jobs bill will become a Christmas tree for special interest legislation," the president said.

William O'Connell, president of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the major lobbying organization for the savings and loan industry, said "The president's statement is unfortunate, but the league will continue to pursue this issue and we are confident a majority of both houses wants repeal."

Opponents of the repeal concede that Kasten has the votes to win in the Senate, even though his proposal is opposed by congressional leaders of both parties and Reagan.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, caught by surprise by Kasten's amendment, sought to separate the jobs measure from the withholding issue on procedural grounds, but even that tactic had to be put to an uncertain vote.

The fight threatened to force the Senate into an unusual weekend session.

Baker said he believes the heavy lobbying and a letter-writing campaign had backfired against the banking industry.

Supporters of the withholding law say it would bring in $5 billion in additional revenue.

Reagan hopes Social Security rescue plan will soon clear Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday the smooth sailing a bipartisan Social Security rescue plan has had on Capitol Hill makes him hopeful the legislation will be on his desk by the end of the month.

The measure cleared another hurdle late Thursday night when the Senate Finance Committee voted 18-1 to send a version of the package to the full Senate, where a vote is expected next week.

"Members of Congress have been working very responsibly in the past few weeks to reach agreement on a major Social Security bill," the president said at a news conference. "I'm hopeful that I'll have a bill on my desk before Easter," April 3.

The Senate committee's version closely resembles the $165 billion package approved by the House earlier this week.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the Finance Committee chairman, predicted the Senate would give the measure "fairly broad support."

House and Senate versions follow the recommendations of the National Commission on Social Security Reform to curb benefits, increase payroll taxes, impose a levy on a portion of the benefits going to more affluent retirees and make Social Security coverage mandatory for all new federal employees.

The Senate bill also would raise the retirement age from 65 in the next century.

The reform commission proposals, submitted to Congress in late January, carry the backing of Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and have been moving on a legislative fast track.

While the House bill would raise the retirement age by two years in the next century, the Senate committee decided instead to combine a benefit cut with increasing the retirement age gradually to 66 between 2000 and 2015. The move would have some effect on everyone born in 1938 or later.

All those retiring in the next century would be affected by a cut in initial pensions.

The House bill did not touch the payment to new retirees, but would raise the retirement age gradually from 65 to 67 by the year 2027.

The average retiree now gets a Social Security pension check equal to 42 percent of the final wage. The Senate committee would reduce that to 40 percent.

In addition, the Senate bill would phase out over five years restrictions on how much retirees aged 65 through 69 can earn without losing benefits, starting in 1990. And it would liberalize the benefit formula for mothers who dropped out of the work force to raise children.

The Senate panel also agreed on a Social Security "fail-safe" mechanism that would allow a reduction in cost-of-living increases in benefits as a last resort to keep the system solvent during economic emergencies.

Under the provision, those receiving more than $250 a month in benefits would be the first to have their cost-of-living increase reduced or eliminated when the Social Security trust funds fall below a 20 percent reserve. The plan could be in effect by Jan. 1, 1985.

The Reagan administration estimates that other provisions in the rescue package will keep the trust funds at or above a 20 percent reserve level during the rest of the decade.

Epton denies reports

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican mayoral nominee Bernard Epton on Friday denied reports that he had been asked to step off the ticket in favor of Democratic Mayor Jane M. Byrne, but he said the national GOP was "stupid enough" to devise such a plan.

Epton was responding to a televised report that the Republican National Committee had asked him to bow out in favor of Mrs. Byrne, defeated last month in a bitter three-way Democratic primary by Rep. Harold Washington.

"No one has ever discussed it with me and I don't think anyone has the temerity to do it," Epton said Friday. "I wouldn't consider stepping down to let anyone run. It's insulting for anyone to even suggest it."

Washington's victory in the Democratic primary against Mrs. Byrne and State's Attorney Richard M. Daley has given him a shot at becoming Chicago's first black mayor. But in this city with many segregated white ethnic neighborhoods it has also raised the possibility of a vote along racial lines.

Kirk Douglas temporarily boosts interest in Austin judicial system

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Federal courthouse offices emptied as clerks and attorneys crowded into a courtroom where actor Kirk Douglas was appearing as a witness in the trial of a movie lawsuit.

Kirk Douglas

"This is an interest in the Austin judicial system not previously shown," U.S. District Judge James Nowlin remarked Thursday.

Presidio Theaters, based in Austin, is suing Warner Bros. charging that the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act was violated by the movie distributor's practice of forcing a theater to bid on a movie sight unseen and to guarantee the distributor a profit.

Douglas, an independent film producer, said he was asked to testify by Jack Valenti, head of the Motion Picture Association of America.

"All my life I've gone by a very simple yardstick — my gut instinct," Douglas said. "If I feel an emotional response to a project, and am excited about it, I go with it."

He said "blind bidding" was necessary, and added that scheduling problems and technical delays frequently prevent distributors from showing theater owners finished films before they are bid.

During his visit, Douglas told workers in the U.S. marshal's office he would gladly replace their picture of John Wayne with one of his own.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former CIA agent John T. Downey, who was held captive in a Chinese prison camp for 20 years, says he will visit China in September with his wife, Audrey.

John Downey

"God knows how I'll feel the day I cross the border," said Downey, who was 22 when his plane was shot down in 1952.

Downey said he harbors no bad feelings toward China and is "very excited" about the trip.

"It's not going to be a nostalgic visit to the old prison or anything," he said. "The Chinese said they prefer to look forward than back and that suits me fine."

Downey said he recently received permission from China to spend three to four weeks there in September with his wife, who was born in Manchuria and later attended graduate school at Yale University.

Downey will celebrate the 10th anniversary of his release with a Saturday night dinner that will double as a fund-raiser to help pay off a $20,000 debt he incurred last year as an unsuccessful candidate in the Democratic Senate primary.

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Illinois Attorney General William Scott, released from prison last year after serving a term for income tax fraud, has been appointed to the board of a prison reform group.

William Scott

The John Howard Association announced the appointment on Thursday, and an employee, Don Jensen, said Scott has "a unique understanding of how the criminal justice system operates."

Jensen pointed out that Scott had been on both sides of the system, first serving as the state's top law officer and later being prosecuted and going to federal prison in California.

"He will be able to help those of us fortunate enough not to be put away," said James Zacharias, newly elected association president.

Zacharias said the board has 51 members, including judges, lawyers and social workers, who donate their services.

Scott was convicted three years ago of converting political campaign contributions to his personal use without paying income taxes on it.

He was released from prison at Pleasanton, Calif., last October after serving seven months of his year-and-a-day sentence.

DETROIT (AP) — Mark Goldman, a 27-year-old engineering student at Wayne State University, isn't put off by the tight job market.

The part-time waiter is offering his services for $100,000 a year in an advertisement he placed in the International Herald Tribune, which is published in Paris and circulated around the world.

Goldman says he is looking for employers who want an "aggressive American" who is seeking a post "anywhere in the world with annual salary of $100,000." Goldman, says the ad, speaks French and previously lived in Iran and Switzerland.

"Why would I ask for anything less than $100,000?" the Farmington Hills resident said this week.

Asked whether he would accept a lesser salary of $60,000 or so, Goldman said that "I'd have to ask my wife first. It's not easy to give up a great career like being a waiter."

Guardians protect children's rights

CLEVELAND (AP) — When a feuding husband and wife take their divorce battle into court, a child can get caught in a custody tug of war. But a precedent-setting project in Cleveland makes sure the bewildered child has an attorney too.

"A child over 12 years of age in a divorce proceeding has a right to make a selection as to which parent he or she wants to live with," said Steve Slive, a Cleveland lawyer. "Put yourself in that position. It would be a really hard choice.

"Both parents seem to want to influence the choice. That's when the kid seems to get toys or minibikes. Kids often seem torn up," he said. "I try to find out what's important to the child and what his or her feelings are. There might be cases where both parents are unfit."

Slive is one of 120 lawyers in Cuyahoga County who take special training to represent a child during disputes in Domestic Relations Court.

According to the American Bar Association, Cleveland had the first program in the nation for training lawyers as "guardians ad litem" — guardians for the suit — to defend a child's interests and for providing a procedure to make sure a child in need of such a lawyer would always get one.

The "Guardian Ad Litem" project was begun in 1981 and provides lawyers for children in both domestic-relations and juvenile cases. About 350 lawyers are in the juvenile part of the program.

"It's a landmark program," said Howard Davidson, director of the ABA's National Legal Resource Center for Child Advocacy and Protection in Washington, D.C. "It seems to me there can be an evolution in other states from the work being done in Cleveland."

A similar program has since been developed in Tucson, Ariz.

Ohio law requires that a temporary guardian be appointed to represent a child during certain situations that bring a child before a juvenile-court judge. There is no requirement the representative be a lawyer and no requirement for special training.

The Cuyahoga County Bar Association, with financial help from several foundations, began the program in juvenile court in early 1981. It expanded to the domestic-relations court in February 1982.

"Because guardians ad litem are looking out for the best interests of the children, they are not just looking at the legal interests," said Elsie Day, an attorney in charge of the program. "They also have to represent the health and human interests, so that requires some education of attorneys."

An attorney must attend a day-long seminar, held annually, as a prerequisite to becoming a guardian ad litem. The program follows up with optional seminars and a newsletter to attorneys in the program.

A panel of volunteer health and social service professionals serve as a free "resource bank" for the lawyers in the program.

Although Domestic Relations Judge Timothy M. Flanagan always has the option of whether to appoint a guardian ad litem in a custody case, he says he never hestitates to do so.

"I find it to be very beneficial," Flanagan said. "I think it's difficult to sit on the bench and hear both sides of a case and not be concerned that neither side is representing the best interests of the children. I've had several cases when neither parent was suitable for the child."

Flanagan said he recently came across a case involving a mother seeking custody of a child because of "violent criminal acts" by the father.

"I didn't have a problem in changing possession until I looked at the file and saw a previous change of custody from the mother to the father," Flanagan said. "I can't go into the home and meet with the people privately, so I appointed a guardian ad litem, and he was able to work it out. The father agreed to a visitation plan, and the mother ended up with custody."

NASA may choose new group of astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A proposal to select more astronauts is under consideration by the space agency and people who want to fly into orbit already are keeping the phone lines busy at the Johnson Space Center.

Officials said Friday no final decision has been made on whether a new group of astronauts will be selected, but the mere hint of it has been enough to trigger a flood of inquiries.

Teresa Gomez, a personnel staff assistant, said phone calls and letters have been coming to the space center near Houston from would-be astronauts of all ages and from throughout the U.S. and Canada.

George Abbey, director of flight operations and supervisor of the astronaut selection and training, said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is "seriously considering" reopening applications for the space corps.

There are currently 78 people, including eight women, in America's astronaut corps, but Abbey said the space shuttle is expected to be making up to two flights a month by 1987 and more astronauts may be needed.

Mrs. Gomez said NASA's next astronaut selection will be small, only about 10 to 15, and the agency already has a list of 2,000 who have applied.

If a selection is made, she said, those who are qualified will be notified to report to the space center in the fall.

The requirements are tough. For pilot-astronaut jobs, the candidates must have a science or engineering degree and at least 1,000 hours of flying experience in a high-performance jet. To be considered as a mission specialist-astronaut, candidates must have at least a bachelor's degree in engineering, biology, math or a physical science, along with three years experience in the one of those fields.

The next selection is expected to be half pilots and half mission specialists.

There are no age restrictions, but the average age in recent selections has been 33, with the youngest 28 and the oldest 38.

Height requirements are more relaxed than in the early days of the space program.

'Border Angel' wanted to be buried in yard of his Harlingen headquarters

HARLINGEN (AP) — Frank Ferree, a man who said he answered God's call by dedicating nearly half his life to helping the poor, wished to be buried in the yard of his Harlingen home, a funeral home owner said Friday.

Ferree, 88, who was revered throughout the Rio Grande Valley and Northern Mexico as the "Border Angel" for his charitable work with the region's needy, died Thursday in a Harlingen hospital.

His body was taken to his tiny rural area home, headquarters of the Volunteer Border Relief organzation he founded 40 years ago to serve the poor.

Buck Ashcraft, owner of Buck Ashcraft funeral home in Harlingen, said the body will remain at Ferree's home while arrangements are made with the city to have the body buried.

Border Relief workers, Ashcraft said, have asked the funeral be held in a large city-owned building to accommodate a crowd of about 3,000 people from Texas and Mexico expected for the funeral.

Those who knew and worked with Ferree during his 41-year tenure in the region said he gave the clothes off his back and shared the wilted produce and day-old bread he begged from merchants with thousands of sick and down-and-outers on both sides of the Rio Grande.

But Boyle believes people who didn't know Ferree will never understand his mission of mercy.

Mysteries

The words themselves are mysteries to him — black "squiggles" against the white page — but Daddy makes them sound very interesting.

Later he will begin to read for himself and a vast new world will be opened.

In it, however, other mysteries will appear — other things that seem as impossible as the black words against the white page. But gradually these will become clearer.

One of these mysteries is religion. Understanding God's message, learning the meaning of faith — these vital subjects take a particular kind of education and special study. It will take the remainder of his lifetime, and yet more, to fully understand the spiritual universe.

But this little boy is lucky. Although he doesn't know it yet, his parents will see to it that he gets this "education" in the right place — in their house of worship.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"OF COURSE I'LL HEAL YOU: BE HEALED"

One day in a certain village Jesus was visiting, there was a man with an advanced case of leprosy. When he saw Jesus he fell to the ground before Him, face downward in the dust, begging to be healed. "Sir," he said, "if you only will, You can clear me of every trace of my disease."

Jesus reached out and touched the man and said, "Of course I will. Be healed." And the leprosy left him instantly!

Then Jesus instructed him to go at once without telling anyone what had happened and be examined by the Jewish priest. "Offer the sacrifice Moses' law requires for lepers who are healed," He said. "This will prove to everyone that you are well."

Now the report of His power spread even faster and vast crowds came to hear Him preach and to be healed of their diseases.

But He often withdrew to the wilderness for prayer.

Seminary librarian values survivors

NEW YORK — Menachem Schmelzer holds a book the way some people hold a rare bottle of wine or a baby — with a delicate, sensual affection.

"Here," he bubbles to a visitor, "I want to show you something nice."

His long fingers reach for a 15th Century prayer book, hand-written in Florence, that later came into possession of the Rothschild banking family. Its pages, of exquisitely fine lettering, are illustrated in classic Renaissance style and richly illuminated by gold leaf. The connoisseur in Schmelzer glistens.

But beauty is not the only thing that stirs the soul of the librarian of the Jewish Theological Seminary, custodian of one of the greatest collections of Judaica in the world.

"Now this is what I call an ugly manuscript," Schmelzer says teasingly and pulls out a battered book of parchment pages containing biographies of Talmudic rabbis.

THE WRITING, done around 1200, is on deeply yellowed pages and is cluttered and clumsy. It has no esthetic appeal. What delights Schmelzer is this "ugly" book survived Kristallnacht, the "night of shattered glass," in November 1938, when Germans throughout their country went on a rampage and burned or demolished more than 170 synagogues and hundreds of Jewish-owned stores.

"This manuscript is a survivor," he says, "a real survivor. It survived from 1200 to 1938, and in 1938 it survived the Kristallnacht. It's a symbol of continuity, of how it survived the centuries and the tragedies."

There is lucid conviction to Schmelzer's voice, the conviction of experience. He is a double survivor. A Hungarian Jew, he was 10 when he and his family emerged from the Nazi concentration camps, one of the few families that endured intact. They settled here in 1956.

A DECADE LATER, Schmelzer found himself in another ordeal. The library of the Jewish Theological Seminary, the backbone of this academy of Jewish scholarship, burned. Schmelzer stood watching from across the street as the smoke poured out of the library's 12-story tower, not knowing how severe the damage would be.

"When we went in, it was terrible destruction. Especially to see Jewish books where we have tremendous cultural and emotional attachment."

RELIGION

The fire consumed 70,000 volumes in the stacks on the upper floors. As water from fire hoses seeped through the floors below, the remainder of the collection, 175,000 volumes, was damaged.

"Some of these were books that survived; it's such a tragedy that they should now be destroyed here. But it was a relief to know that the bulk of the collection survived, damaged but survived."

FORTUNATELY, the rare-book room, with its irreplaceable contents — medieval Talmuds and Passover haggadahs, gaudy 17th Century marriage documents, browning parchment fragments discovered in the ancient synagogue of Cairo, hand-written works by the great scholar Maimonides, a Torah scroll that was saved from the ravages of the Spanish Inquisition — went unharmed, an accident of its location in a separate part of the building.

Hundreds of volunteers pitched in to dry the water-damaged books, airing them out or putting paper towels between the pages.

Thousands of books were rebound, others microfilmed, and others replaced by fits. Now, Schmelzer says, "We are pretty much where we were if not better."

Among so many siblings in the rare-book room, Schmelzer has his favorites. He shows off a book of hand-lettered parchment where some of the pages seemed torn or moth-eaten. A closer look reveals the writing works its way around a hole, or comes right down to a curled edge. This was a poor man's book from the 13th Century made up of both full parchment pages and scraps. "If you are rich," Schmelzer says, "you can discard the edges. But if you are poor, every piece counts."

HE SHOWS a boxed collection of another batch of parchment scraps and tells their story. About 10 years ago, he says, an assistant librarian discovered a "squishy" binding in a book. The binding was opened and inside were found fragments of Talmud on parchment printed in Spain before the Inquisition. They had been hidden in the bindings of innocuous books because the Talmud was outlawed.

Schmelzer opens a brass case and picks out a thin volume. Inside is a single page of paper, an English decree from 1753, "to permit persons professing the Jewish religion" to be given rights of citizenship.

A small irony is next, a prayer book from Provence dated around 1400. The region, he explains, was then under the rule of the pope at Avignon and, because Jewish tradition requires a prayer for the welfare of the head of state, "there are prayers in here that are offered for the welfare of the pope."

HE PULLS out a tall tome, a 982-page prayer book. Each page has only a handful of actual prayer words, but they are surrounded by a sea of commentary. It was probably the communal prayer book of a synagogue in Central Europe in 1400, he says. Most of the community's Jews could not have afforded hand-written books, so they simply listened to the congregation's leader.

Christians in harmony about prayer

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Whether they are Protestant or Roman Catholic, whether their church services are simple or elaborate, Christians generally are in harmony when it comes to personal prayer.

They do a lot of it and largely in similar ways, times and attitudes.

These are among details brought out in an unusual cross-denominational survey of readers of 10 mainline denominational magazines, probing specifics about how they pray, when, where and what for.

Previous national studies have indicated that an overwhelming proportion of Americans, 89 percent of them, pray at times, even if not church members, making prayer by far the most prevelant of all religious activities.

For church members, it's even more so, about as much a part of everyday life as eating or sleeping, the new study indicates. All of them, 100 percent of the 1,491 respondents, do it, 92 percent daily, most of them several times daily.

The ordinarily private motives, manners and expectations brought to this most widespread religious process are pointed up in the study, which indicates close similarities about it among the mainline church people involved.

Whatever small variations showed up in prayer habits, these generally don't reflect denominational patterns, but rather personal preferences.

"Differences in our prayer practices do not follow denominational lines," writes church historian Martin Marty of the University of Chicago in summarizing the findings.

While collective prayer historically has been a key note in church life, the study indicates that church members nowadays overwhelmingly prefer to pray alone, 85 percent of them.

"We are in prayer life 'alone' and 'do-it-yourselvers'," Marty says, noting this may make churches nervous, but it may be "God's wonderful way of breaking open organizationalism...and subverting formalism."

The poll involved readers of these magazines and denominations:

U.S. Catholic (Roman Catholic), The Episcopalian (Episcopal), The Lutheran (Lutheran Church in America), The Disciple (Christian Church — Disciples of Christ), The Lutheran Standard (American Lutheran), The Messenger (Church of the Brethren), A.D. (United Presbyterian and United Church of Christ), The Church Herald (Reformed Church) and Presbyterian Survey (Presbyterian Church U.S.(Southern)).

Among the findings:

Evening is the favored time of prayer for 76 percent, but strong majorities also pray at mealtimes, at intervals in the day and in the morning. About half set specific times for it.

But very few pray while working on their jobs — only 6 percent.

'Mirage' tells story of improbable spy

NEW YORK (AP) — Espionage, a sleek fighter plane, treason and Middle Eastern politics are the ingredients of "Mirage," the story of an improbable spy named Frauenknecht.

"Mirage," an hour-long public TV production scheduled for broadcast Tuesday night, begins with a statement on the screen: "This is the story of a single act of espionage which changed the balance of power in the Middle East."

The British-made film from Granada TV is a dramatized "reconstruction" of how Alfred Frauenknecht, a Swiss engineer, passed plans for the French Mirage jet fighter plane to Israeli intelligence agents in 1967 and 1968.

The story is a fascinating one for its insights into the reality of espionage and the questions it raises — and leaves unanswered — about betrayal and human motives.

Viewers must remember, however, that "Mirage" is based on Frauenknecht's version of events.

"Mirage" tells the story this way:

Israeli agents approached Frauenknecht, who worked for a Swiss company that was making the French-designed Mirage, after the Six-Day War in the Middle East in 1967. France had just placed an arms embargo on Israel, at a time when the Israelis were looking for ways to repair damage that their previously purchased Mirage fighters had sustained in the war.

To strip down a Mirage and learn how to rebuild it from scratch would take six years. But if Frauenknecht agreed to pass the plans to Israel, the process could be cut to two years.

What follows is the story of how Frauenknecht, portrayed as spirited but slightly downtrodden by British actor Ian Holm, got more than 160,000 separate diagrams and plans out of the country by more or less putting everyone around him to work as unwitting spies.

While the story is interesting, "Mirage" is a rather staid production. The program often retains the tone of a plodding documentary, with flat acting and less than convincing characters and incidents.

In one scene after another, Frauenknecht and the Israeli agents talk aloud in bars about pulling off one of the century's biggest feats of espionage while snickering about having a big night on the town at the expense of the Israeli government.

In between are plenty of scenes of Frauenknecht driving around the countryside and loading and unloading various vehicles.

But the ease with which the plans were removed does underscore the fact that modern espionage can be most mundane. Unlike the characters of fiction, most spies are very ordinary people who act out of greed or weakness, and "Mirage" is a lot closer to reality than James Bond.

Chamberlain still attracted to television

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Richard Chamberlain, who first made his mark on the home screen as "Dr. Kildare," has never turned against television.

He not only confesses that he'd like to do a turn on "Dynasty," a show to which he's addicted, he was keen to play the key role, that of Father Ralph de Bricassart, passionate priest, in "The Thorn Birds," as ABC Novel for Television to air March 27 through 30.

David Wolper who with Stan Margulies produced the 10-hour drama based on Colleen McCullough's best-selling novel, says three movie directors wanted to bring "The Thorn Birds" to the screen as a theatrical release and thought of Robert Redford as a possible Father Ralph. However, after they failed to find a way to compress the complex story into a two- or three-part format, Wolper and Margulies took up its challenge as a television project and immediately decided Chamberlain would be perfect as the lusting churchman.

"Then," says Wolper, "we saw in the paper that Richard had read "the Thorn Birds" and had said that he'd like to play Father Ralph.

"That settled the casting, but it didn't affect his agent or the price when we began to negotiate."

ENTERTAINMENT

"The role of Ralph De Bricassart appealed to me," says Dick, "because of the complexity of his nature. He had three great irreconcilable loves:

"He loved God. I really believe his love for God was sincere.

"He loved the pageantry and the power of the church.

"And he loved Meggie as much as a man can love a woman."

Rachel Ward, a relatively inexperienced British actress, played Meggie after, according to Wolper, she read against Jane Seymour and showed a necessary vulnerability Seymour didn't evidence.

A weekly television magazine reported that her work was so bad in "The Thorn Birds" that Chamberlain in frustration dashed his hand against something and broke a bone.

Dick, horrified by the story, says he did break his hand but that Rachel wasn't to blame.

He'd done a difficult scene, one in which he'd been told by Jean Simmons that Meggie, the love of his life, had married another man.

Movie shows clips from worst films

Copley News Service

"It Came From Hollywood" is a new movie that shows clips from some of the worst films ever made.

Many of these low-budget features are now cult classics. Posters, lobby cards and other memorabilia from them are sought by collectors. Frequently, items from such movies are worth more than those from Academy Award-winning films of the same period.

The following is a sample of what some "bad" movie posters currently are selling for.

Half-sheet posters: "Enemy from Space," $30; "Earth Dies Screaming," $17; "The Fiend Who Walked the West," $22; "Frankenstein 1970," $15; "Godzilla Vs. The Thing," $20; "The Ghost of Dragstrip Hollow," $15; "Humanoids," $18; "Horror Hotel," $15; "The Invasion of Animal People," $15; "I Married a Monster from Outer Space," $40.

One-sheet posters: "Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas," $10; "Alligator People," $12; "Atom Age Vampire," $25; "The Astounding She Monster," $35; "Attack of the Jungle Women," $17; "The Blood of Dracula," $35; "Beast from 20,000 Fathoms," $110; "Creeping Flesh," $10; "Curse of the Undead," $20; "Destroy All Monsters," $12; "The Devil's Bride," $15; "The Electronic Monster," $18; "First Spaceship to Venus," $30; "The Green Slime," $20; "Godzilla on Monster Island," $15; "Killers from Space," $25; "Monster on Campus," $27; "Slime People," $12.

NOW YOU CAN SEE FOR YOURSELF WHAT EVERYONE'S BEEN TALKING ABOUT.

Beaver Island residents enjoy isolation

Islanders say there's no place like it

BEAVER ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — With a stiff winter wind blowing off Lake Michigan, the lighthouse on Beaver Island can't be seen through the falling snow. But when it's cold, there aren't many people looking.

Separated from the nearest mainland by 32 miles of water, about 350 full-time islanders enjoy their isolation.

"There's no place else as far as I'm concerned...no robbery, no rape, no murders," says Bill McDonough, 21, who helps run the general store his grandfather opened in 1933. "We refer to this as our own place — the rest is the United States."

Even an underwater cable that carried power to the island for a decade wasn't missed after it was accidentally severed in December. An old generating system keeps the island's power alive.

They don't really need the cable, and the weather won't allow its repair until spring.

With 58 square miles of land, mainly forest, Beaver is the largest island on Lake Michigan. Its village, St. James, is its activity center.

The winter's snowfall has been light in northern Lower Michigan this year, but on the island the weather has been more severe, and the county plow has been working.

"This is the time we like it best," says Archie LaFreniere, who has lived here all of his 70 years. "You got security and you don't have the pressure of people running over the top of you."

In the summer, campers, cottage owners and tourists ride a ferry from Charlevoix. But now, when the weather keeps boats off the water, the island is quiet. There's no one in sight during a midday walk down St. James' main street, which rings the frozen harbor.

Betty Welke, right, watches as her husband, Bill, unloads a tray of bread from the small plane that brougt it to Beaver Island, Mich., which has only 350 full-time residents. The isolation requires most of the islanders' staples to be flown in from the outside.

Between December and April, groceries, mail, medicine, machinery and anything else the island needs must be flown in. A charter air company makes the 15-minute trip twice a day.

But when weather grounds flights, winter visitors get anxious.

"All they want to know is 'When can we leave?,'" says an islander passing time in the Shamrock Tavern, sometimes the only place an outsider can buy a meal.

For local residents, the physical isolation is a buffer against mainlanders with "their city ideas," LaFreniere says.

Isolation was what James Jesse Strang was seeking when he led his Mormon followers here in 1847 after a disagreement with Mormon leader Brigham Young. Strang's community, which crowned him king, displaced the Irish fisherman who had homes on Beaver.

By 1856, when the red-bearded, polygamous king was assassinated by two disgruntled followers, his flock had grown to 2,000 people.

But Strang's followers were driven from the island shortly after his death, according to island historians. The Irish returned, and the community prospered from lumber and fishing operations.

By the turn of the century, the population climbed again to about 2,000. Protected from the Great Depression by an abundance of Lake Michigan whitefish, the settlement thrived until after World War II, when overfishing and the lamprey eel depleted the bounty.

Sons and daughters of third-generation islanders were forced to the mainland to find work, and by 1950 the population dwindled to about 500. By 1960 it was down to 150, but during the next 10 years, vacationers discovered the island and created a new economic base.

Residents who earn a living from the tourists in the summer become jacks-of-all-trades when cold weather arrives. There is a little lumbering, a saw mill, some beaver trapping, some construction work and even fishing when the ice permits.

Only a handful of farms are still being worked in the warm weather. "They ran the soil pretty well out," says LaFreniere, recalling that the island had 40 active farms when he was a boy.

"This is our unemployment season, but it's our play time," says Barbara Rakowski, 35, superintendent, principal and one of five full-time teachers at the 65-student Beaver Island Community School.

Islanders describe their economy as "recession-proof." Officials at the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix say welfare statistics support the claim.

Four households receive payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and four receive food stamps, according to Doug McCombs, a spokesman for the department.

"It's getting harder and harder for kids to stay here," said Tim McDonough, 26. His brother, Bill, was one of five graduates of the island school in 1979 — three of the others were his cousins and two of them have left.

But some transplanted mainlanders don't even want a taste of the world they left behind.

"They want a simpler life," said Ms. Rakowski, 35, an island convert. "There's a gentleness, a warmth, a greatness on this island you'll never find anywhere else."
