Board. Mrs. Faulkenberry will act as appraisal supervisor.

The Floyd County Central Appraisal Board Saturday hired a county personal property appraisal supervisor and three appraisers.

Sheila Faulkenberry, E.J. Kinslow, Andy Ford and Ruth Noland met with the central board. After discussing farm personal property with each prospective appraiser, the members elected Mrs. Faulkenberry as supervisor. The other three were hired as appraisers with the approval of the board.

In the early stages of the appraisal, Kinslow will cover the South Plains area, Mrs. Ford the Lockney area and Mrs. Faulkenberry and Mrs. Noland will begin work in the south portion of the county.

The appraisers will begin contacting county residents the beginning of next week, with completion of the project anticipated in two and a half months. By law, the appraisal must be completed by June 1, but board members were optimistic that it could be completed much sooner than that. They noted that it was important to finish before the heavy planting season begins, when arranging to meet farmers would be more difficult.

In a called meeting on Monday, the board members set up guidelines for the tax personnel to use in making their appraisal of farm property.

For taxing purposes, automobiles and pickup trucks will be listed on the tax rolls for seven years. All other farm equipment will be listed for 10 years. Equipment that is 10 years old or more will be combined under a single price.

Cattle and horses weighing 400 pounds or more on Jan. 1, 1980 will be listed and classified under age headings of one year through six years and seven years and up.

Hogs and sheep tentatively will be calculated by the actual number on the farm on Jan. 1.

Central Board members noted that although the four appraisers would be listing personal property, the term "personal" was misleading. For the purposes of the new appraisers, personal property mostly would be items like boats, automobiles, mobile homes and such. All furnishings in homes and "intangibles" like jewelry and bank accounts would not be listed for taxation.

"We're using the same terminology but with different definitions," commented one board member.

The board members also assured taxpayers that there would be no overlapping appraisals, that each item would be appraised only once.

Jim McMorris, of McMorris and Co., will meet with the new appraisers early next week to train them in appraisal procedures and to specify what each appraisal group will assess.

The tax appraisal being undertaken is part of continuing implementation of legislation coming from Senate Bill 621. The bill received an 85 percent approval vote in the 1979 constitutional amendment election.

The three agencies handling appraisals in Floyd County are McMorris, of Hereford, working business and real estate; the four appraisers hired Saturday, doing the county personal property; and Latham and Stults, of Dallas, assessing the utilities.

FNB stockholders elect directors

The stockholders of the First National Bank of Floydada Friday held their annual meeting in the bank building. An estimated nine persons attended the yearly meeting, according to Tom Farris, president of the bank.

The stockholders re-elected four members of the board of directors and added one new member. Kinder Farris, Tom Farris, Fred Zimmerman Jr. and C.J. Payne retained their seats, while Joe H. Cluck received approval as a new member.

Clay Henry retired from the board of directors effective Friday's meeting.

Caprock directors discuss contract

The Caprock Hospital district's board of directors will meet in regular session Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in the hospital library.

As the main item of business, the board members will discuss their tax consultant contract with a representative of McMorris and Co., of Hereford.

Following the contract discussions, the directors will take up any other business put before the board.

FISD mailing ag-value applications this week

The Floydada Independent School District this week mailed an estimated 750 applications for agriculture valuation to Floyd County farmers, according to Tommy Cathy, tax assessor for the school district.

When completed and returned, Cathy said Tuesday, the applications will allow appraisers to value farm land on its agricultural productivity rather than on its market value. In order to be approved, the applications must be returned to the school district office at 208 S. Main St. in Floydada by April 30.

As long as farmers complete the applications by the deadline and answered all the questions correctly, approval of the applications will be almost assured.

"If the application is timely and completed correctly, I see no reason why one would be turned down," Cathy said. However, he noted, failure to apply for agriculture valuation of farmland would automatically place the land on the market value rolls.

Cathy estimate that valuation on approved agricultural land could be as much as 35 percent less than valuation on the same land not approved.

Anyone who does not receive an application in the mail may pick one up at the school office, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

In reviewing the application, Cathy gave the Hesperian an outline of how to fill out the forms correctly.

Question one, identification of the landowner, is self-explanatory, he said. On the second and third sections, regarding the legal description of the land and the total acreage, Cathy said that information could be taken from the abstract of the land.

In the fourth section, dealing with the uses to which the land was put in the past seven years, Cathy suggested listing the years beginning with the 1979 season and working backward. Landowners, he said, could benefit by consulting with their renters for this information.

Regarding question six, whether the land is within the corporate limits of a city or town, Cathy said that land which lay partially within the city limits would probably be considered completely rural.

To be approved, Cathy said, all applications must be signed. The renter could sign the form if the land is being leased, he noted.

Jan. 31 is deadline for paying school district taxes

Penalties and interest on delinquent taxes will be assessed beginning Feb. 1, 1980, Cathy said.

Correction

Molly Stringer is the nurse supervisor of surgery at Caprock Hospital, not the supervisor of nurses as was reported in Sunday's Hesperian.

In Wilma Colston's recipe for sugared peanuts featured in Sunday's issue, after the phrase "stir in sugar and water; return to oven," the line "bake 45 minutes, stirring occasionally; stir in cocoa and milk" should be inserted.

THOMAS WARREN

Thomas Warren announces for commissioner

Thomas Warren Tuesday morning became the first candidate to file for the commissioner seat for county precinct three.

Warren, 55, is a farmer in the Liberty Community. He is seeking the position currently held by commissioner Grigsby "Doodle" Milton.

A native of Floyd County, Warren has lived all his life in the same precinct. He graduated from Floydada High School.

Warren was a member of the Floydada Independent School District board of trustees from 1966 until 1977. He also served as a county election precinct candidacy for commissioner.

Warren and his wife, Marie, attend the First Baptist Church of Floydada. The couple have two sons, Ed and Don, who farm with their parents, and two daughters, Joyce Owens, a licensed vocational nurse at Caprock Hospital and wife of city employee Jimmy Owens, and Elaine Stout, of Muleshoe.

HONEYMOON MISHAP — Randy and Joni Rathel escaped serious injury Wednesday when their car was in collision with a one-ton pickup truck which reportedly pulled into their lane while passing on a hill near Colorado City. The couple, who had been married three hours earlier, was taken by ambulance to Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City. They were released from the hospital Thursday afternoon and are at home in San Marcos, where Rathel is a student at Southwest Texas State University.

BEEN READING QUITE A LOT LATELY about one of Pakistan's top honchos calling Smilin' Jimmy's $400 million giveaway offer "peanuts."

Despite a possibly unfortunate choice of words, considering Mr. Carter's former profession, (somewhat akin to using the phrase "mere money" in a conversation with a loan shark) the president has chosen to reaffirm his largesse and called upon our allies to sweeten the pot.

And why Pakistan?

Why, to stop a Russian advance into the oilfields of the Middle East, of course. (Never mind that the oilfields are in the other direction.)

But, heck fire, we could do just as good a job with the $400 million right here in Floyd County to stop those pesky Russkies. And nobody around here is going to call that kind of dough-re-mi "peanuts."

What if the Communists tried a sneak attack on the food-and-fiber fields of Mid-America?

Why, there'd be millions for plowed-field tank traps (which as almost everyone must know are nearly impassable in wet weather or dry), millions more for top-notch highways for rushing reinforcements to the front, and even more millions for hospitals to care for those wounded in the battle to safeguard the heart of the continent.

There'd be a veritable armada of tractors and crop strippers denying the soviet spearhead access to our land's bounty, harvesting furiously even as the armored columns approach.

Residents would have the money, courtesy of the war effort, to buttress their homes against the Red assault. Foliage concealment, pit traps (disguised as swimming pools) and bullet-resistant (not to mention weather-resistant) mini-fortresses would spring up on every lot.

Yes, indeed, Mr. President. Give those 400 million peanuts to us instead of to those unappreciative Pakistanis. We'll give Comrade Ivan a shellacking he won't soon forget.

Floyd Philosopher thinks he has hit on a way to produce farm fuel forever without oil

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on White River thinks he has solved the farm fuel problem. If you see a flaw in his idea, let us know.

Dear editor: One reason the massive production of gasohol hasn't taken place — aside from the fact big oil companies aren't interested in every farmer having what amounts to an oil well in his backyard and bourbon makers aren't interested in increasing the number of stills in the country — is that some government expert figured out a few years ago that it takes more energy to make alcohol out of grain than the alcohol itself yields. And a lot of people believed him.

It's a good thing that expert wasn't operating 50 years ago or he would have proved that it takes more grain to feed a mule than the mule can produce pulling a plow, thus making farming mathematically impossible.

Now it's true you've got to have some heat to turn grain into alcohol, just as it's been proven you can run a tractor or a car on pure alcohol if you make some changes in the carburetor, or the windshield wiper, I forget which. However, what the experts never thought of after you extract the alcohol from grain you've still got a lot of molasses left over, and that's worth money.

Yeah, the experts say, you're going to have to buy a lot of high-priced butane or other fuel to generate the heat to turn grain into alcohol.

All right, say you figure out 15 acres of grain to produce alcohol. All you need to operate your still is you plant an extra 15 acres. Our first batch, and then store the alcohol from that extra 15 acres in your boiler for the second batch, on, eliminating the need for butane. You'd then have a self-perpetuating fuel supply, if you do your own labor and can remember isn't fit to drink.

There may be a hole in this idea but I can't see it. It looks to me it'd make two-bits.

Why women earn less than men...

Why do women earn less than men? Women's salaries have outstripped men's salaries by 10 percent since 1961. This is an important issue for women, since the work out of financial necessity, says Cindy Wilentz, a family life education specialist. Many factors contribute to the earnings gap between men and women, and though changes have been made, the gap is still needed to earnings gap," she says.

Understanding some of the reasons for the gap may encourage efforts to close it, she says. There are a few factors responsible for the earnings

With increasing number of women in the work force, many women are accepting low-paying jobs. Many women are employed in traditionally low-paying occupations, such as clerical work or elementary and secondary education — compared to men who are more often employed in managerial, administrative and professional occupations.

3) Although many women receive the same amount of education as men, differences are seen in the kinds of education, career counseling and job training that women receive which tend to direct them toward traditionally low-salaried employment.

4) More men work paid-over time hours than women, so they receive added income.

5) Men tend to have a longer less-disrupted work experience than women since many women interrupt their careers to bear children.

6) Women tend to have careers with few future prospects for advancement and significant salary increases.

7) Women tend to be less mobile in career selection compared to men.

Media Center
First Baptist Church Floydada

BY BETH PRATT

Included in the maintenance-remodeling project at First Baptist Church is the moving of the media center to larger quarters.

The area behind the chapel that was formerly a parlor will house the media center. In addition to giving more space, the area should prove more convenient for those using audio-visuals during the Sunday School hour.

The materials preparation center will be combined with the media center workroom in the space that is presently the youth director's office. Bobbie Miller, youth-music director, will be moving to the room presently occupied by the media center, thus placing all of the offices in the same area.

We believe this move will prove to be more convenient for those of you using the media center during the week as it will be just across the hall from the main office.

"Mature Living" is a magazine geared especially to older adults. There are articles about food, medicine, travel and gardening each month. There is a page of plans for weekday activities for senior adult clubs. If you are a senior adult and have not seen this magazine, stop by the media center and check out a copy. We think you will want to read it every month.

One of the outstanding speakers at the evangelism conference in Fort Worth last week was Dr. E.V. Hill, pastor of Mount Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Los Angeles. This black preacher from the Watts area found a warm, enthusiastic appreciation from the largely white audience. The report reminded me of a beautiful new book in the media center entitled A Road to Reconciliation. The outstanding photographic-journalistic account follows the lives of four blacks and two whites, who through God's power are forging communication and understanding across racial lines.

Food price increases continue to moderate

Continuing a pattern of moderating food price increases, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for food increased 0.5 percent in November, according to the Monthly Food Price Review for November issued jointly today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

The small November increase follows a 0.8 percent rise in October and represents a continued trend of moderate increases over the past 6 months when retail food prices rose only 2.5 percent. This rate is lower than that for most other consumer goods and represents a reversal of a pattern in early 1979 when food prices were rising faster than other consumer prices.

Recent price increases are mostly due to rising prices of imported foods and fish products.

In contrast to the CPI, the Producer Price Index (PPI) for finished consumer foods increased 2.6 percent in November, the largest monthly increase since 1974.

The monthly report also noted that food marketing costs increased 0.7 percent in November, the lowest monthly rate of increase since February 1979. The higher costs were attributed to increased packaging costs, fuel prices and wage rates.

WINTER FIRE SAFETY TIPS FOR THE HOME

Room Heating

Space heaters and heating stoves are used throughout the nation to increase the warmth in rooms. They do the job, but can be dangerous. To use them safely:

*Never use fuel burning appliances without proper vents to the outside. Burning fuel (kerosene, coal, or propane, for example) produces deadly fumes.

*Be sure your heater is in good working condition. All room heaters need frequent checkups and cleaning. A dirty or neglected heater is a critical fire hazard.

*Use ONLY the PROPER fuel for each heater. NEVER INTRODUCE FUEL INTO A UNIT NOT DESIGNED FOR THAT FUEL.

*NEVER quicken a fire with kerosene or gasoline.

*Keep gasoline, or other flammable liquids stored OUTSIDE of the home AT ALL TIMES.

*Maintain adequate clearance in all directions around space heaters and heating stoves. (Surrounding surfaces should not become too hot to hold your bare hand on.)

*Use a screen around stoves or space heaters which have open flames. Give the heater adequate clearance from walls and combustibles, such as a clothes rack, curtains, beds or other furniture.

*If you use an electric heater, be sure your house wiring is adequate. Avoid overloading the circuit. Avoid overloading extension cords.

*Avoid using electric space heaters in bathrooms, and certainly do not touch one when you're wet.

*When refueling an oil unit, avoid over-filling it. If cold oil is used, it will expand as it warms up inside your home and may cause burner flooding; this could cause flare-ups. And don't fill your heater while it is burning.

*Keep young children away from space heaters—particularly when they are wearing nightgowns which can be sucked in by a draft created by the heater and ignited.

*If you are using an approved, UL labeled space heater or heating stove in your bedroom, turn off your heater or turn it low before going to bed. When using a fuel burning heater in the bedroom, open the window. Ventilation prevents suffocation that can be caused by a heater consuming oxygen.

*Use ONLY safety listed equipment. If you choose an oil heater, look for the UL label; a gas appliance, the AGA or UL label; or an electric heater, the U label.

Get coleus ready now for spring color foliage

Coleus, a decorative plant grown for its colorful foliage, is one of the leading ornamentals today, enjoyed in garden beds and borders as much as it is indoors as a pot plant, window boxes and hanging baskets.

Until recently, however, the only king of coleus offered by seedsmen was the Rainbow type, which was produced in Japan, now there are the carefree kinds, with beautiful, vividly colored oak-leaf shapes; the Dragon series, which features bright, crested leaves; the Saber series, which has masses of slender frilled leaves; and many others.

One important feature of the Saber coleus varieties is that the lance-like foliage is closely spaced on dwarf, compact plants that require no pinching back to remain that way — a consideration when plants are used in borders or other mass plantings.

Home gardeners who use coleus freely as bedding plants will find it more economical to start their own from seeds or cuttings. Another reason for growing your own, however, and that is that some of the newer varieties may be difficult to obtain as commercially grown transplants at garden centers in spring, although the seeds are generally available.

Sow the seeds in pot or flats containing a good, sterile commercial mixture, or prepare your own mix using one part each of soil, peat moss, and perlite. The seeds are so tiny that they need only be firmed into the top of the mixture. Moreover, the seeds need exposure to light to germinate. Provide a temperature range of 65 to 75 degrees, and keep the soil mixture evenly moist.

SEPARATE PLANTS
When the seedlings become large enough to handle, shift them to separate pots so they will have ample room to develop. If you use peat pots, you can plant them "pot and all" when they go outdoors, saving time and avoiding the risk of plant damage. Until that time, the seedlings will need good sunlight and close attention to their needs.

Propagating coleus from stem cuttings is another way to multiply your supply of plants. Almost everyone pots up a few attractive garden specimens in fall to grow as house plants and these make a good source for your cuttings.

Cuttings root quickly in a glass of water or by inserting them into a container of moist horticultural vermiculite or fine sand. Give them good light, but avoid direct sunlight. Pick the stems cuttings of 3 to 5 inches long from which all leaves from the lower portions of the stems have been removed.

AN OPEN LETTER TO FELLOW TEXANS

The firemen of Texas are asking for your help. A little more than two years ago, the firemen of Texas held the Grand opening and dedication of the Fire Museum of Texas. The museum is dedicated to the preservation of the history and heritage of the fire service in Texas and to the teaching and education of the public in the ways of fire safety and fire prevention. Movies depicting fire prevention and safety are shown to all visitors on the half hour.

We have a wonderful collection of fire apparatus on display, spanning over 100 years of fire service, along with other fire related equipment, photographs, uniforms and memorabilia. There is also an exciting fire truck ride for everyone to enjoy. All this and much more is awaiting you when you visit the Fire Museum.

There is also a very large mortgage that we are attempting to pay off, which amounts to $520,000.00.

We are appealing to the citizens of Texas to help us by joining the "Fire Museum $10.00 Club." If enough citizens would contribute just $10.00, the firemen could eliminate the mortgage and move ahead with plans to improve and expand our fire prevention and safety programs.

The purposes and goals of the Fire Museum are many, besides providing a place to preserve history and as a memorial to the many men and women who have given their lives for their fellowman, the ultimate goal is to reduce the loss of life and property caused by fires.

All donations to the Fire Museum are tax deductible under I.R.S. #501-C-3.

If you will include your name and address with a donation of $10.00 or more, we will send you a pass which will entitle you and your family to a free visit to the Fire Museum.

We are located just off I-30 at the Beltline Road exit. Our mailing address is: Fire Museum of Texas, 702 Safari Blvd. Grand Prairie, Texas 75050.

For further information, call 214/263-1042.

Thank you for your help.

Sincerely,
The Fire Museum

Ladies of the City Park church of Christ hosted the monthly birthday party at the rest home on Thursday, January 17, with all honorees being present and seated at the "honor" table.

Seated with Mr. Cates, as his special guest, was his son W.B.; and with Mrs. Childs were her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Neely Richardson.

The table was covered with a special birthday cloth, a gift to the home by an employee, Margie Williams, and centered with an arrangement of silk roses in assorted colors. Each place was marked with a special birthday card. The Hesperian photographer came for the "picture taking" after which a poem was read and the party was well underway.

All joined in singing the birthday song. A delicious and beautiful birthday cake with pineapple and cream icing was served and complemented by a very tasty orange fruit juice punch.

The next party will be Thursday, February 14, 2:30 p.m. You are invited to attend, especially if you have relatives or friends being honored.

County officials to deal with "challenge of the '80's"

Challenges facing county government in the 1980s will be the theme of the 22nd annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference here Feb. 5-7.

Key county and state government officials will be on hand to address such issues as energy and transportation for the '80s, points out John Gilmartin, county officials program specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. More than 600 county officials from throughout Texas are expected to attend.

Gov. Bill Clements will deliver the keynote address at the conference Thursday morning, Feb. 7, at 9 o'clock. Other featured speakers will include Attorney General

Mark White and Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace, who will both speak the morning of Feb. 6, and Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown, who will conclude the Thursday morning session.

Extension Director Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel will deliver the welcome address at the first general session on Wednesday, Feb. 6.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. the first day at the Ramada Inn, with concurrent sessions for county judges and commissioners beginning at 2 p.m. The judges session will deal with Texas commitment hearings while the session for commissioners will concern weed and brush control on county road rights-of-way. Among discussions during general sessions of the conference will be state property taxes, rural land values, rural fire districts and revenue sharing.

The conference is conducted annually by the Extension Service in cooperation with the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas. Current president of the association is McLennan County Commissioner Roy Nail.

Because of its many educational institutions, Nashville, Tenn., has been nicknamed "the Athens of the South."
