LONG LOST PILOT REPORTED FOUND

Verdict in Brady Trial Seems Definitely Precluded

8 FREED IN OKLAHOMA LIQUOR RING

GOVERNMENT REOPENS ITS CASE TODAY

Additional Testimony Expected to Be Introduced

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Feb. 6.—The government today reopened its case in the Pottawaotomie county liquor conspiracy trial, after announcing it had rested late yesterday.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught granted permission for the government to introduce additional testimony on request of U. S. District Attorney Roy St. Lewis, who said he had obtained additional witnesses.

Charges were ordered dismissed against eight defendants today, bringing the list of defendants down to 18. Four of the defendants were Howard Jones, "Happy" White, Jess Hall and G. D. Hopps.

Meanwhile, the United Press learned from County Attorney Homer Bishop of Seminole county that W. O. Gordon, who resigned as assistant state attorney-general, after being named in the whisky bribe plot, was being guarded in his hotel room here by Seminole county officers.

Bishop filed a charge yesterday of conspiracy to accept bribes shortly before District Attorney Lewis filed a charge of extortion against the former state official. Homer Knappenberger, former Earlsboro mayor, had testified that he had paid Gordon $2,300 for "protection" during the state's investigation of the boom oil town's liquor traffic.

Two of the eight were released when the court sustained demurrers of defense counsel against government evidence. They were Hattie Thompson and W. W. Yoder. Judge Vaught held the evidence did not connect them with the alleged conspiracy.

Other defendants dismissed on recommendation of Lewis were Bill Hurst and Sherman Ivey.

The court over-ruled several dismissal motions.

The government recalled one witness today. She was Mattie Williams, mother of the 9-year-old girl who testified yesterday officers broke into her bank and robbed it to get the pay for the "whiskey line."

"In October, 1927," she testified, "Rube Sherrill and a man named Linbercher came to my house. I was sick and they tried to force me to pay off to prevent a shake down," she testified.

"I didn't pay them, but they broke into my kid's bank, took $5 and divided the money. We were saving that money so our girl could go to school in Shawnee."

ENTER WITHOUT PASSPORTS

Displaying an utter disregard for immigration laws, 1,000 pairs of Hungarian partridges recently arrived in the United States after a long trip by rail and water from Czechoslovakia. These birds, one of which is shown in the insert here, were shipped in especially designed crates to the Ohio Division of Conservation's game farm at Wellington. They are to be banded and distributed all over the state. They were purchased with hunter's license money.

No Clues Developed in Hunt for Bandits

A game of "Fox and Hounds" that had for its stage practically all the north end of Eastland county and sections of Stephens county had, after 24 hours of duration, today resulted in no new developments. Two bandits, representing the fox in this particular drama, appeared to have found safety while the officers, representing the hounds, were quite without any definite clues that might lead to the apprehension of the two highwaymen.

The game began early yesterday morning when an oil well crew of two men on a rig just south of Breckenridge and near the Cisco-Breckenridge highway, were forced to lie on the derrick floor for almost an hour in the chill while two bandits relieved them of $28 in cash and made off with a small coupe belonging to one of the drillers.

Car Goes in Ditch

Carelessness probably contributed to the next episode in the sequence, for the bandits drove their stolen car into the ditch near the junction of the Cisco-Breckenridge highway and the Eastland fork of that road a short while later. Unable to get the car back upon the highway one of the pair deserted his colors and fled to the broken country. No trace of his whereabouts were found by the officers.

His companion in crime, however, of a bolder nature, walked the short distance to the filling station operated by Mr. Foster at the fork of the highway and pointing a pistol at Mr. Foster demanded, in effect, his worldly goods or his life. Mr. Foster, disposed to surrender neither engaged the bandit in a physical argument which ended when the highwayman succeeded in clouting his victim over the head with the butt of his pistol and knocking his wouldbe victim unconscious. The bandit then returned to the stolen car again attemtping to get it out of the ditch.

A few minutes later, Mr. Foster, regaining consciousness, and suffering from two severe gashes on his head, secured his shotgun and made pursuit, calling his wife and daughter to attend the station.

Surprise Attack

In a surprise attack he took his assailant prisoner at the point of his shotgun, forcing him to march ahead to the home of a neighbor where Foster intended to seek assistance in bringing the prisoner to Cisco. But in a moment of lapsed vigilance the robber again got the upper hand, drawing a pistol and effecting his escape.

Eastland county officers, summoned to the scene of the episode, followed the foottrail of a man into the hills until nearly noon. But the trail, going ina northwesterly direction from the Foster station, ran blind and at noon the officers were forced to give up their pursuit.

G. W. Harris, proprietor of the store at Pleasant Grove near the Chestnut and Smith gasoline plant No. 10, suffered loss of practically the entire stock of his store Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, at the hands of one or more burglars who used a truck to remove their loot. Details of this robbery were not clear today.

Officers of the entire county are on the lookout for the men connected with these crimes as well as those responsible for the robbery of the Nimrod store recently.

MURDER IS VERDICT

AKRON, O., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Ruth Murray, federal narcotic informer who died early today in the city hospital here, was murdered, Coroner M. B. Crafts declared. The coroner said the woman's death had been caused by a fractured skull.

VICTIM OF KIDNAPERS BACK HOME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6 — Dazed from the abuse of kidnappers who held him nine days, Max Price, 62-year-old New Haven real estate operator and money-lender, was reunited with his family today after he had been released near Bridgeport.

Unable to talk coherently of his experiences, Price was assisted into his Kensington avenue home and placed in bed.

HUNG JURY SEEN AFTER LONG WAIT

No Word Comes From Panel as It Ponders Defendant's Fate

AUSTIN, Feb. 6. — A verdict in the case of John W. Brady, on trial for murder for the death of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, seemed to have been definitely precluded at noon today by the impregnable determination of two men believed to be "holding out."

Silent for the 41 hours since they were retired, not even asking a question or instructions, the 12 men patried the fate of the former appellate court judge on the third floor of the half-century old courthouse building today, while a curious crowd observed their gestures through unblinded windows from across the street.

Brady remained in his cell in the gloomy jail building, his wife beside him, never asking what the jury had reported or what progress had been made. There was no statement, no sign of anxiety or hope, from the attorneys on either side.

Moore in Chamber.

Judge J. D. Moore remained in his chamber across the hall. The district clerk went about his routine duties. Officers who waited on the court were busy doing something else. There was no expectancy of a verdict, but rather a question as to how long Judge Moore will hold the deadlocked men in confinement.

They debated far into last night, as they did the night before. The movement indicated efforts at persuasion of two men who frequently shook their heads negatively to the pleadings of the other 10.

The trial has been in progress now for 18 days. A week was used in jury selection, a week in testimony-taking, a day in argument, and the case went to the jury late Tuesday afternoon.

INCREASE IS REGISTERED BY BAPTISTS

Reports to the monthly business meeting of the First Baptist church Wednesday night showed a material increase in every department. Mrs. C. A. Farquhar read the report of the Woman's Missionary society which showed a total of 631 visits made in the interest of the church of which number 235 were made to the sick and 142 for the Sunday school. They distributed 141 garments to the poor and distributed 57 baskets of fruit.

The Sunday school report was read by E. J. Poe. The enrollment for the month was 584 with an average attendance of 325. The offering through the Sunday school was $614.29 which was an increase of more than 30 per cent over the same month last year. In the B. Y. P. U.'s progress was shown by an average attendance of 126 with an enrollment of 223.

The financial report was more encouraging than it has been for several months. The receipts were sufficient to take care of all current bills for January and to make substantial payments on past due accounts.

The meeting last night was well attended, there being 76 of the members and workers present. The Girl's auxiliary of the Missionary society led by Mattie Lee Kunkel gave a short playlet which was well received. The business meeting followed at the close of which the choir held its weekly rehearsal.

Grocer Shot to Death by Object of His Prayers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 6 — Broadway's praying grocer has been murdered.

For many years Henry Muehlenbeck has offered up a prayer for virtually every customer who has come into his store.

Faithful to the custom which has made him an eccentric in South Broadway, Muehlenbeck dropped to his knee behind the candy counter last night to invoke divine guidance for the man who had just bought a five-cent candy bar.

"Our Father——," the grocer began.

His prayer was cut short by a command to "stick 'em up."

Unable to believe the man he had prayed for would hold him up, Muehlenbeck started to run toward the rear of the store.

The man left at the counter fired one shot and the praying grocer fell dead.

INJUNCTION AGAINST THIS CITY ASKED

A petition asking that the United States district court grant a temporary injunction, restraining the mayor, the city commission and the city secretary of the city of Cisco from paying out any of the city's money on certain bonds of the city alleged to be invalid, was filed with Federal Deputy Clerk Ida M. James at Abilene yesterday. Hearing on the plea, an intervention in the suit of Blanchet, Bowman and Wood versus the City of Cisco for collection of bonds and warrants, has been set to come before Judge James C. Wilson at Fort Worth Monday.

The injunction plea was filed by Robert M. Herron, Jr., and R. H. Boon, of Cisco, through attorneys R. E. Grantham and P. D. Morriss, of Cisco.

Cisco bond issues aggregating $3,600,000 are held to be invalid in the petition and payment of city money on any of these is asked to be enjoined.

All parties in the original suit have been given notice of the hearing Monday. B. K. Blanchet, M. B. Bowman and G. C. Wood, all of Toledo, Ohio, filed suit September 25, 1929 ,for collection of Cisco water works bonds and warrants amounting to $17,371 and interest. H. L. Allen & Co., a firm claimed to be holding about $1,500,000 worth of Cisco's bonds, filed as intervenors in the suit. A petition was later entered asking the federal court to appoint a receiver of the city of Cisco. B. W. Patterson and Eugene Lankford, Cisco attorneys, represented a group of Cisco taxpayers as intervenors in opposing that plea.

Hearing on the Blanchet et al suit, together with the interventions, was called before Judge Wilson here on October 14, but the case was passed. Walter F. Schenck of Lubbock, attorney for the city of Cisco, said when the case was called in court that the city had in action plans for obtaining funds to meet past due obligations.

The plea of Herron and other tax payers asks that the mayor and commission of Cisco be enjoined from paying any city bonds, from issuing refunding bonds to pay outstanding bonds and from encumbering Lake Cisco, a municipal water project, for the purpose of paying outstanding bonds.

JOE NEWTON IS REMOVED TO EASTLAND

Will Face Charges of Theft Committed at Olden

Joe Newton, whom officers at Eastland say has a long police record, was placed in the Eastland county jail late Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Los Woods, who brought him to Eastland from Fort Worth where Newton and Cole Oglesby, who also has a police record, were arrested a few days ago by Fort Worth officers after Oglesby was shot by a policeman.

Newton, according to the officers, is 29 years old. He is charged by complaint filed with Justice of the Peace Jim Steele, here, with theft committed at Olden.

Cole Oglesby is a cousin of Ernest Oglesby, an escaped convict, who was arrested only a few weeks ago by officers at Paducah following his escape at Olden from the Sheriff of Snyder as the officer was transporting him from the state penitentiary to Snyder to stand trial in charges there. Cole Oglesby is also wanted at Abilene where he has been charged with the killing of R. H. Johnson of Abilene on August 27, 1928. Johnson and a woman companion were held up by two men on the highway and when Johnson resisted, he was shot and died soon afterwards.

Shot in Abdomen

Cole Oglesby was shot in the abdomen by Policeman Kennedy Fort Worth when the officer saw him attempting to shoot. Kennedy shot Oglesby with a gun he had just taken out of Oglesby and Newton's car when he halted them at a street crossing in Fort Worth. Oglesby's condition this morning, is reported to be critical. He was moved from a hospital to the hospital ward in the Tarrant county jail because officers of that county felt that pals of his and the Newton's might attempt to affect his release and thereby endanger the lives of officers guarding Oglesby and possibly others.

Sheriff Virge Foster this morning received a telegram from Mrs. Dollie Wall of Uvalda stating that she was Albert Oglesby's mother and inquiring as to his condition. Albert and Cole, officers say, are one and the same man.

A telegram from a woman in Uvalda addressed to Joe Newton in care of the Sheriff's office, asked Newton to advise her if she might come to see him.

O'Keefe Scores "Hoovercrats"

AUSTIN, Feb. 6—Pat O'Keefe of Dallas, sergent-at-arms at Democratic National conventions for the last 40 years, visited the state senate chamber today to see what was going on therein.

By reason of his political tenets, O'Keefe is what some call a "Brass Collar" Democrat. Nevertheless, Senator Thomas B. Love, utra dry and "Hoovercrat" leader, escorted him up to the presiding officer's desk and introduced him.

O'Keefe responded by scoring all "Hoovercrats" for bolting and expressing the hope that "Texas will elect a good Democrat for governor." Love is a candidate for the office.

It wasn't until Senator Joe Moore, president pro tem, of the senate interferred that O'Keefe's speech was halted.

ROTARIANS HEAR DENTON CLUB MEMBER

A classification talk by Jerome Headley, of the Denton Rotary club, who as a visitor was called upon for a "pinch-hitting" speech by President Bruce Boney, was the feature of the Cisco Rotary club's luncheon today noon.

Mr. Headley, who sells tires, gave the club one of its most interesting example of classification addresses, using the subject "Profitless Prosperity" in describing the effect of over-competition among tire manufactures. The tire industry, he said, was in the same position as the two youngsters marooned on the ice floe reported today to be drifting steadily them toward the Niagara Fa ey do not know where they going," he declared.

Tire cost today amounts to about one-eight to one-tenth what it did 10 years ago, he pointed out.

The Flag talk was made by George Fee, whose subject was Switzerland.

Other visitors present at the meeting were Superintendent N. S. Holland, of the Breckenridge public schools, a member of the Breckenridge Rotary club, and Emmett Powell, of Eastland, a member of the Lion club of that city and a son-in-law of Mr. Headley.

Bruce Boney, president of the Cisco club, was in charge of the program.

3 Boys Arrested for Chicken Theft

EASTLAND, Feb. 6 — Three Eastland county youths ranging from 15 to 18 years of age, were arrested yesterday by Sheriff Virge Foster and Deputy Sheriff Steele Hill on charges of theft of chickens.

Two of the boys were arrested at Cross Plains and the third at Pioneer. Chickens alleged to have been stolen by the three youths were taken from two residents at Pioneer. They were sold to a produce man at Cross Plains. Each of the boys face two charges of theft. Bond of $750 was set for each case.

Protest Against Location of Prison in Travis County Kept Out of Record

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — A petition of 79 Austin women, headed by the wife of Mayor P. W. McFadden, protesting against location of the proposed industrial prison in Travis county, was refused a place in the journal of the house of representatives today, after being presented to the body.

The petition was presented by Representative Giles of Travis county. Another member propcsed it be printed in the journal but withdrew the motion under storm of opposition.

A house vote on the proposed relocation is expected by Speaker Barron before night.

The senate spent the morning amending the Witt bill for prison relocation.

As now changed the bill proposes an industrial plant not nearer than 10 miles to Austin nor further away than 50 miles. The Darrington Harlem, Ramsey and Imperial farms are to be retained for farming and $500,000 improvements are to start on them as soon as building the new prison starts.

GIVE THE PEOPLE REAL REFORMS.

Lawmakers should give the people of Texas real reforms. They should reform the prison system which is the most worthless to be found as well as the most unworkable and costly having an existence in any American commonwealth.

They should reform the fee system, which in many instances and many ways is a system of legal piracy.

They should cancel the Travis county courthouse lease and permit the taxpayers of Travis county to build a new courthouse on their own property.

They should do justice to the men and women who support the schools of Texas as well as provide the necessary funds for that which has been known since the coming of James E. Ferguson as rural aid in ... school house districts.

There is no "little red school houses" in Texas and the phrase is taken from the vocabulary of many glib tongued politicians who are teachers and office seekers and whatnot.

KEEPING THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

For the edification of voting readers, regardless of political affiliation, this is a record to date:

In 1928 Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Florida landed in the Hoover column. Hoover Democrats joined hands with the Republicans in the commonwealth and smashed the solid South. In Alabama, Sen. J. T. Heflin did his level best to smash it, but Alabama remained a regular by a small majority. This is what happened in the year of '28.

In Old Virginia, the regular Democrats, led by Governor Harry Byrd nominated John Garland Pollard for governor, as well as nominees for the minor state offices. Bishop James Cannon and his lieutenants named a Hoover Democrat for governor and had the backing of Virginia Republicans and the federal administration. Pollard was swept into office and carried his ticket with him by a majority of 70,000, the largest ever rolled up in the history of the Old Dominion. In Kentucky, the regular Democrats retained their overwhelming majority in both houses of the legislature and in addition to the capture, of three Republican districts.

In North Carolina, Senator Francis M. Simmons will face at the June primary J. R. Bailey. Simmons, in point of service is the oldest member of the senate. Bailey is the regular, and ultra-pro, said to be strong in agricultural districts and the industrial centers with the organized wage-workers of the mills and factories. Now what will be the verdict of the old Tar Heel state in June?

In Alabama the state committee barred the name of Heflin from the official ballot, barred the name of Locke, who aspires to be governor, from the ballot, and invited the rank and filers who deserted in 1928 to return to the fold.

In Florida, a state law prohibits the placing of the name on the official ballot of any person who failed to support his regular party ticket at the preceding election.

He must do penance in the amen corner as a voter before he purges himself of his political sinning.

All the foregoing is printed for the edification or the education of the reader. Away down here in Texas the official action of the state committee in session a day in advance of Ground Hog day, is ancient history with the Brady trial nearing its close at the Travis county courthouse, and the lawmakers grinding for their lives under the big dome of the most superb capitol building to be found under the skies of the republic.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Gordon Brett, advertising manager of the Norwich (England) Daily Press, says:

That nearly 200,000 Americans visited Europe last year and a vast sum of money was spent during their stay. Still greater efforts need to be made by the various publicity associations in Great Britian if we are to get our fair share, which we are not getting at present.

There is going to be opened in New York an Information Bureau by Great Britain and it would be a good move on our part if we opened one in many other large cities in the United States.

I would like to see all the publicity associations in this country contribute to a common fund and embark on a big newspaper campaign in America, telling that country the hundred and one attractions Great Britain has to offer to the American visitor.

MOODY GRANTS NEW REPRIEVE FOR HOWARD

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — Governor Dan Moody today granted a new reprieve for Percy Howard under sentence of electrocution as the alleged slayer of N. V. Nixon in 1920.

A former reprieve would have expired Saturday.

W. S. Ham, also charged in connection with Nixon's death, is to go to trial at Abilene on Feb. 12. The former reprieve was given to await the outcome of Ham's trial, which was set for January, but postponed.

On the eve of Howard's proposed electrocution last November his divorced wife disclaimed testimony she had given against him at his trial in El Paso and Governor Moody granted a reprieve.

Her testimony contradicted an alibi claimed by Howard.

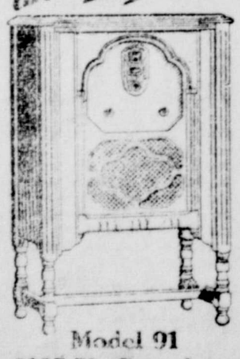

Nixon's body was found near Van Horn after he had left El Paso in a service car driven by Howard to inspect some land.

"Mediocrity Will Never Do for William" Said Father of Taft Sixty Years Ago

By HERBERT LITTLE,
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Out in Cincinnati 60 years ago, a father knit his brows over a report from the Woodbury high school. His son was fifth from the top of his class. He straightened up and addressed the family:

"Mediocrity will never do for William."

In the white house 25 years ago Theodore Roosevelt talked with his secretary of war, and urged him to accept the highest political honor the nation could offer, the presidency. "T. R." got this reply:

"It's good of you, Theodore, but I'd rather be a judge."

Mediocrity never did do for William Howard Taft.

The dynamic Roosevelt, however, over-ruled his friend "Will" and placed Taft in the presidency for one of the most disastrous administrations of Republican history.

When it was over he returned to his first love, the law, and carried on, as chief justice of the United States for eight and one-half years, a complete reorganization of the court's policies.

Taft spent nearly a half-century in public life. His career is more varied and amazing than of any other American. It covers most of the oceans and continents, and touched with effect nearly every aspect of government, industry, the humanities, in addition to law and politics. He blundered only in politics.

Descended From Pilgrims.

His family lines came direct from the Pilgrim Fathers. Through his father, Judge Alphonso Taft his ancestors go back six New England generations to Robert Taft, who settled in Mendon, Mass. On the side of his mother, Louise Torrey, the line goes back unbroken to William Torrey, who settled in Massachusetts in 1640. The Taft line is related with the long family descent of Edward Rawson, who was secretary of the Massachusetts Day colony.

As a boy, he participated in urchin gang wars, the boys of Auburn ridge, then on the outskirts of Cincinnati, warring with the gamins of "butcher town" and "tailor town" on both sides.

His father, although stern, was a guide and counselor. Will was the third of five brothers, and they all went to Yale. He was graduated in 1878, at the age of 21, as salutatorian second in scholarship among more than 100.

Back to Ohio.

When he went back to Ohio, he nearly became a newspaper man. He enrolled in the Cincinnati law school and worked as legal reporter on the Times-Star, owned by his brother Charles P. Taft. He did well on the "courts" and the "opposition" hired him. Murat Halstead gave him a job on the Commercial-Gazette. His determination to become a lawyer caused him to quit after a few months, and after being admitted to the bar he entered the law firm of his father, Taft and Lloyd, as a lawyer. He worked hard at law, and took some part in politics.

Taft was appointed assistant prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county.

President Arthur, seeking a way out of a financial fight in Ohio, appointed young Taft collector of internal revenue. It involved handling of millions of dollars and paid $4,500 a year. Taft resigned after 10 months to go back to law. It was the first of many resignations. Then he was called back into public service as assistant prosecutor. He fell in love with Helen Herron, beautiful daughter of President Hayes' former law partner, and they were married in 1886.

Taft attained his ambition and thought himself settled for life the next year, when Governor Foraker appointed him judge of the Cincinnati supreme court. He was 30.

After two years on the bench, he resigned to accept an appointment as solicitor-general of the United States, to represent the government before the supreme court as solicitor. He came to Washington at the age of 33 to accept a position which most solicitors-general do not attain until they are 45 or 50.

Most important to Taft, although he did not realize it then, was the acquaintance and friendship which sprang up between him and a young New Yorker, a civil service commissioner named Theodore Roosevelt.

SUSPECTS ARE ROUNDED UP IN MEXICO CITY

By JOHN R. MORRIS
United Press Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6 — Police made a determined roundup of revolutionary suspects today after President Pascual Ortiz Rubio had been shot by an assassin within 2 hours of his inauguration.

More than 20 suspects were reported in custody and the full resources of the government were concentrated against what was reported to have been a general plot of assassination.

The president, his jaw shattered by a bullet, rested at his home and his physicians said his recovery would be rapid. His wife, their niece and the presidential chauffeur, also wounded when the assassin fired on the president's car as it left the palace after the inauguration yesterday, were not seriously hurt and were reported in good condition.

The assailant, a young intellectual whose name was given as Daniel Flores, was held in the city garrison near the palace. Officials hammered at him ceaselessly during the night in an effort to break down his stubborn refusal to confess, and reveal whether his act was inspired by personal fanaticism, or was part of a more elaborate plot.

Natural Cause Is Ascribed in Death

ABBOTT, Feb. 6.—Death from natural causes was the verdict of J. C. Krenek, justice of the peace, in connection with the death of Frank Veselka, elderly farmer, whose headless body was found Wednesday on his farm by neighbors.

Approximately $500 in cash was found in a shirt pocket on the corpse.

Justice Krenek expressed the opinion that Veselka died of natural causes and that his body was attacked by dogs. It was necessary to stone several dogs to get them to leave the body, Krenek said.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Cisco and Scranton in Finals of County Cage Race

FIRST GAME TONIGHT AT HIGH SCHOOL

Rising Star and Nimrod Eliminated in Semi-Finals

The Cisco Loboes and Scranton high school quintet will battle it out for the county interscholastic League basket ball title in a series of two games, possibly three, tonight and tomorrow night, the third, in case it is necessary, to be played Saturday night.

These two teams advanced to the finals of the county race by eliminating their opponents in the semi-finals played at the Cisco high school gymnasium last night.

Scranton eliminated Nimrod, class C champions, by a score of 32 to 11. For the first quarter of this game the teams battled on even terms, first one team and then the other leading by one or two points margin. Q. Ingram, high point man and star player of the Nimrod squad went out of the game early in the second quarter on personal fouls and with him went whatever chance the Nimrod team had of winning the game. In spite of his retirement in the early stages of the contest Ingram was high point man for his team.

The Cisco-Rising Star game furnished faster action and an even more topheavy score. The count was 45 to 20, Rising Star scoring several field goals against the Pups who were sent in for the last five minutes of the game.

Score by quarters of the Scranton-Nimrod game was: 4 to 4, first quarter; 12 to 9, half; 21 to 9, third quarter; 32 to 11, game.

Score by quarters of the Cisco-Rising Star game was 16 to 2, first quarter; 24 to 8, half; 38 to 10, third quarter; 45 to 20, game.

Starting lineups for the games were:

Scranton—Baird and Purvis, forwards; Bailey, center; Horn and Speegle, guards.

Nimrod—Q. Ingram and Claude McBeth, forwards; C. Ingram, center; C. McBeth and McCorkle, guards.

Cisco—Whitehead and Yeager, forwards; Van Horn, center; Preston and Ray, guards.

Three Dead in Plane Crashes

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 6.—Two veteran pilots employed by local airplane building concerns and a youth were dead today as the result of plane crashes here and at Garden City, Kas.

Red Shannon, 38, test pilot for the Hiltin Aircraft company, fell 5,000 feet to his death two and one-half miles southeast of the Wichita municipal airport late yesterday while testing a rebuilt Hilton monoplane.

Shortly after word came from Garden City that Charles Gardener, demonstrator for a factory here, had crashed in a Sullivan cabin monoplane, killing himself and Guy Gardiner, 20, who was taken for a free ride.

Gardiner, who was not related to the pilot, was taken up as a favor when he left a delivery truck he was driving from his father's ice cream factory to inspect the new plane.

DEATH ENDS "IN-LAWS"

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 6 — Death is one "out" for the man who is suffering from too many "in-laws." This was established in district court here recently when Judge Frank L. Riley ruled that death dissolved all "in-law" relationships and that no "in-laws" of a dead man could lay claim to his property on the basis of relationship.

CARNERA SETS 63 SECONDS TO K. O. OWENS

NEWARK, Feb. 6.—Primo Carnera, huge Italian heavyweight will attempt to knockout Cowboy Bill Owens of Guthrie, Okla., in 63 seconds tonight and establish a unique prize-ring record.

If Carnera can stop Owens, a 230-pounder of doubtful pugilistic ability, in 63 seconds, he will have knocked out his first three American opponents in three minutes — the equivalent of one round.

Carnera knocked out big Boy Peterson of New Orleans in 70 seconds and then stopped Elzear Rioux of Canada in 47 seconds.

Unless Carnera's board of strategy elects to have the giant Venetian "carry" Owens for several rounds to avoid a repetition of the mild scandal growing out of Carnera's quick knockout of Rioux at Chicago tonight's match is expected to end in the first round as have the other two.

Owens, whose father was an Indian and his mother a mulatto, has no pretensions to pugilistic prowess. For this match, he is merely a substitute, having been selected after the original opponent, Jack de Have, was K. O.'d by Young Stribling in one round.

A capacity crowd of more than 5,000 will witness tonight's match at $5 tops. There is no betting as most of the spectators expect Owens to be stopped, but curiously enough want one look at the 270-pound Italian in any kind of a contest.

Baseball Schedule Is on League Program

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 6— Adoption of a western league baseball schedule of 154 games and the drafting of a schedule for the western association season of 1930 were on the program of the meeting of club executives here today.

Owners and representatives of eight western league clubs were expected to act upon the tentative schedule drawn by a committee which went into session yesterday. Adoption customarily is voted upon at a later meeting but all clubs are represented at the present gathering and final action was believed certain.

Discussion outside the committee room meanwhile turned to questions of a split season, night baseball and methods of winning larger attendance.

Barbuti Quitting Track Athletics

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6 — Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse collegian and American hero of the 1928 olympic games today announced his retirement — for this season at least — from track athletics.

The former Syracuse flyer competed in the sprint series of the annual Newark A. C. games here last night. He had little more than a prayer. He ran the full 50 yards of the first sprint event, but was left at the post in the 60-yard race when one of his starting blocks split squarely in the middle. He was a poor fifth in the 70-yard race.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Two seventeen-year-old kids, laughing happily and squeezing hands surpreptitiously skated their way to world's championship last night, while 15,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden applauded.

En Route to Begin Serving Sentence

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 6.—William C. Irving, former state law enforcement commissioner, was en route to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., today to begin an 18-month sentence for violation of the national prohibition law.

Irving was started for the penitentiary in custody of Marshall Hugh Patton late yesterday after he announced he had abandoned plans to appeal from his conviction.

Four other men convicted with Irving also abandoned plans to appeal. They will begin serving jail sentences immediately.

CIDER REPLACES WATER

OVIEDO, Province of Asturias, Spain, Feb. 6 — During the month of November 1929 the public fountains of the town of Sama de Langreo were contaminated with typhoid germs, and instead of water the 6,000 citizens drank apple cider. The total consumption of cider for that period was 200,000 liters.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

Men who would keep that trim, proper figure, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—Be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

BRITAIN IS READY TO CUT BATTLESHIPS

LONDON, Feb. 6 — Great Britain is willing, under agreement with other naval powers, to begin immediate scrapping of battleships down to 15 in accordance with the Washington treaty, the British spokesman announced today.

The spokesman said it would take two years for the British to complete the scrapping processes. He said that, if other powers were willing, Britain saw no reason to wait until 1936.

An official communique issued after the meeting said the "first committee made substantial progress today" although Italy renewed her general reservations regarding the necessity of first determining questions of ratios and total tonnages of the navies involved before proceeding to other questions.

The communique also said the committee made good progress towards classification of the various types of warships. It confirmed that an experts committee would be called upon to examine certain technical questions and to draft resolution to be submitted to the first committee.

So certain is Reyman that his "uppers" are not made of the precious yellow metal, that he has brought suit against C. N. Bucher, dentist, for recovery of $475.

Marvelous Work of New Konjola Medicine Told

Moore Drug Store To Introduce Advanced Remedy For First Time in Cisco

If you were told that one single medicine put hundreds of men and women back to work in Chicago, Philadelphia and other large cities after they had been idle for months with health troubles, it would sound

G. H. MOSBY

impossible, wouldn't it? And that countless people were completely relieved of rheumatism and neuritis, and that they were able to walk again, without cane or crutches, and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who had suffered with stomach and kidney troubles for years, that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicines upon medicine had failed — indeed, it seems impossible! Yet, it is all true, and the medicine that has done all these things is the new Konjola, which is being introduced, starting today at the Moore Drug Store, this city.

Whenever introduced, this Konjola is vastly different and more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than and previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

Rheumatism: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In the milder cases of this disease, Konjola relieves almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results to the neuritis victim that it does for the rheumatic sufferers.

Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowel Troubles: Nearly all forms of misery that arise from these unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers everywhere were surprised. It is the action of this medicine on the organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the system and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts on the important functionary organs of the body, namely: the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. So many diseases and long standing disorders of these organs were so completely conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in larger cities were able to give up taking medicine for time to come.

After the great accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what hundreds of sufferers in Cisco and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made to introduce Konpola for the first time at the Moore Drug Store, where this medicine will be sold and explained to the public daily.

F. B. Mathews, Government Trapper, Starts 1930 With 6 Wolves, 2 Bobcats, One Fox

F. B. Mathews, federal trapper for the Cisco section, has started his new year's campaign against predatory animals with a catch of six wolves, two bobcats and one fox. This record was made in spite of the fact that his traps were frozen under for 21 days and no work could be done for that period.

He declared that it is his intention of entirely clearing up this section of predatory animals before he quits.

For the benefit of the public generally Mr. Mathews declared that state law gives a government trapper authority to enter upon private lands, even against the wishes of owners, to trap for predatory animals, and that traps set by him on such land are protected by federal law.

The statutes quoted by him in respect to this authority are:

Section 8, chapter 96, acts of the legislature—"Any person working under the direction of the Bureau of Biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas or the Livestock Sanitary commission of Texas, shall be authorized to enter upon public or private lands within the state for the purpose of carrying on the work of exterminating of predatory animals and injurious rodents named in the act."

Federal Penal Code, section 47, he said, provides a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for five years or both for interferring with traps or captured animals or parts thereof that are caught in government traps the same being the property of the United States government.

Unpaid Policemen Only Protection of Chicago Against Flaming Gangland

By RAY BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — A few thousand unpaid policemen, with the plaints of their underfed children ringing in their ears, stood today between the city's millions and a gangland aflame with murder and bomb terrorism.

Seven gang killings, two racket shootings that may mean death for the victims and a series of destructive bombings have been crowded into one week of crime. Bandits and robbers have operated on a grand scale. Foot pads have waylaid many citizens on the streets.

The forces of law and order were mobilizing today to stamp out the onslaught of the underworld. Police heads and the state's attorney held their third conference in as many days, and orders went out to patrolmen to close up certain speakeasies and beer flats in and near the loop.

A drastic proposal to lock gunToters in insane asylums for life was voiced by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, known as the man who inaugurated the policy of inflicting maximum penalties on gangsters accused of carrying concealed weapons.

But the real burden of battling the outburst of lawlessness fell on the policemen, the infantry on the firing line in the war with the gangs. They raced from one murder to another, encountering in most cases the mask of silence peculiar to gangland.

Police Commissioner William Russell spoke the complaints of his men. "What can we do when gangsters who are mortally wounded will not name their assailants?" He asked. Gangsters cannot go into court with their differences so when one double crosses another a shooting usually follows.

Why People Abhor Fat

Not only because it blights beauty and vigor, but because informed people regard it as needless. They know that a chief cause is a gland weakness, easily corrected.

Modern physicians, the world over, now aim at that weakness. Their method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 22 years. The countless fat people who have grown slender now everywhere show what this method does. Perhaps your close friends can tell you.

If you are over-fat, you owe to yourself a test of Marmola. The reasons and formula are in every box. Every druggist supplies it—$1 a box. Starving is not necessary. Go start today.

Cisco Couple Are Married at Austin

Announcements have just been received of a marriage which came as quite a surprise to many Cisco people—that of Miss Sue Neely to Mr. John Carleton McAfee. The ceremony was performed in Austin on February 3.

Mr. McAfee, also of Cisco, is district manager of the Oil Belt Advertising company. Mr. and Mrs. McAfee will arrive the latter part of the week to make their home here.

Thanks Jury for Life Imprisonment

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 6 — Charles M. Curtis smiled repeatedly today as he paced his cell in the county jail here and told visitors of how he had thanked a jury late Wednesday for sentencing him to life imprisonment.

Curtis, along with John Watson and Joe Hershon, had faced a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of patrolman C. H. Dingman, Jr., more than a month ago. Hershon was sentenced to die.

Watson was buried some two weeks ago after drinking lye in his cell to escape trial.

"Thank you, gentlemen," Curtis said when the jury returned its verdict.

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Judith Cameron, typist in a New York publishing house, marries her employer, Arthur Knight. Knight is a widower with a daughter, Tony, and a son, Junior.

The girl ignores her stepmother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight overhears and compels Tony to apologize.

The girl spends much of her time with Mickey Mortimer, blase amusement seeker, whom she met in Paris. He is separated from his wife and deep in a flirtation with Tony. As days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and Judith.

Andy Craig, a young man Knight had helped through college, calls on Tony. He has been in love with her—rather hopelessly—for a long while. Craig comes to the house frequently and Tony, in a mood of spite, tries to convince her father the young man is carrying on an affair with Judith. When Knight denies this angrily Tony tricks Judith and Andy Craig into a luncheon engagement and brings her father upon the scene.

Knight tries to overcome his suspicions. Craig calls to see Tony. When Knight goes to announce his arrival Tony refuses to see the young man but makes her peace with her father. Knight promises Tony a trip to Miami with Judith, unaware that Mortimer has gone there.

Preparations for the trip begin immediately. Judith encounters Mrs. Franklin Monroe West who invites her and Arthur to dinner. When Knight refuses flatly to go, Judith says she'll keep the engagement without him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

For an instant Arthur Knight looked like a man who could not believe his hearing. He eyed Judith, waiting for her to continue the conversation.

Instead the young wife busied herself intently with the clasp of a string of beads. Apparently Judith was oblicious to her husband's concern.

Knight seemed about to speak, hesitated, then turned on his heel abruptly and left the room. The door shut behind him with a slam.

So Judith was determined to go to that silly West creature's dinner party! Arthur Knight sighed. He could not understand it. He was also unpleasantly aware that his manner had been rude.

Knowing that one has appeared at disadvantage never improves a situation. The man wandered downstairs frowning. He had been right about the thing! He had been right and here Judith was making him feel like an infernal Simon Legree.

"Oh, Father!"

"Yes—what is it?"

Tony was calling to him from her favorite corner of the divan. She wore the simple yellow dress Knight particularly liked. She sat with feet tucked up in a schoolgirl pose, her head thrown backward and a coaxing smile in the dark eyes.

"Come over and sit beside me!"

Without reply he came. Tony slipped one arm around her father's shoulders, pulled his head toward hers playfully and ran her fingers through his hair.

"Tired tonight?"

"Oh, I guess not. So—so! Your old father's loosing his pep, Tony. What've you been doing all day?"

"Father, you ARE tired! I wish you wouldn't work so hard."

He turned this aside with a laugh, was about to answer when suddenly a loud sneeze interrupted.

"Picked up a beastly cold somewhere," Knight apologized. "Guess that's what's the matter with me tonight."

"Darling, I'm so sorry! But you do work too hard and you stay in that horrid old office when you ought to be outside enjoying yourself with the rest of us. Listen, you must take a hot bath, and lots of medicine and liniment—"

He pushed her away in protest.

"Not a chance! Little sleep's all I need. Say—with all that stuff you'd murder me."

Tony giggled.

"Here," she said, "I've got something I want to show you. Remember this?"

The girl had reached for an object lying on the cofee table. She picked it up, handed it toward her father and waited.

It was a photograph made 10 or 12 years earlier. The gray photographic print was mounted upon a white card. In the group were a man, a woman and two children. The woman was seated with the boy and girl on either side of her. The man stood behind the wooden bench on which they sat.

No doubt about it. The man was Arthur Knight and the little girl in organdie must have been Tony.

"Well, well!" Knight exclaimed. "Yes, I certainly do remember this picture. Got one of 'em put away somewhere. Where'd you find it?"

"I was looking through my desk this afternoon, hunting some things I wanted to pack. It was in with a lot of other old stuff and I got it all out and looked through it. Why, I can remember that white dress just as well! The sash was pink and wasn't I proud of it—"

Her words broke as Judith Knight appeared in the doorway. Judith was not look particularly well. Her eyes were suspiciously red-rimmed.

Instantly Tony sprang to her feet.

"Look, Judith," she said sweetly. "Here's a picture I've been showing to Father. Iisn't it quaint? Would you ever recognize me? And that's Junior, of course, and Father and Mother. I remember Father bought us all ice cream sodas after we left the studio."

Judith took the faded card in her hand and studied it. She had never before seen a photograph of Arthur's former wife. She had wondered about that other woman, of course. Now a chilling, icy shivver crept down her spine.

"How—sweet!" said Judith uncertainly.

She could not raise her eyes from the picture. That woman sitting there, smiling so happily, was the bride Arthur Knight had first loved. She wore a gown which seemed curious now. One arm rested on each of her children. Yes, there was a marked similarity between her face and that of Arthur Junior's today. The boy was attired in a stiff white linen sailor suit.

All of them were smiling. All of them looked happy. A family picture!

Suddenly the photograph blurred before her. It was tantalizing to see Arthur—such a strange, youthful Arthur—smiling at her in that prideful way, lordfully exhibiting his family.

"Oh—oh, I'm so sorry!"

A large, round tear had fallen on the photograph. Judith dabbed at it hastily, trying to remove the mark. The circle had fallen directly upon the face of the first Mrs. Knight!

"Here—I'll take it," Tony told the other girl coolly. "I hope the mark isn't going to show."

Judith returned the photograph. "I hope not," she echoed weakly. Then she turned away from Tony and Arthur.

Harriet saved the situation by announcing that dinner was ready to be served.

Just how Tony Knight had become aware that relations between her father and stepmother were slightly strained is not so easy to explain. Nevertheless she had sensed the situation and cleverly she played upon it.

With actress instinct Tony Knight became for that evening the devoted, dutiful child. She deferred to her father constantly throughout the meal. She kept the conversation on the past, thereby forcing Judith to be solely a listener. She reminded Arthur Knight of incidents which set them both laughing but were mysteries to Judith.

Just when the older girl thought she could not tolerate the situation another moment, Tony apologized contritely.

"Oh, Judith," she said, "all this must be awfully dull for you!"

There was nothing the miserable young wife could do but smile and voice assurances that she was heartily enjoying the evening.

Knight should have noticed how affairs were heading. He did not.

After they had left the table and finished their coffee Tony suggested a game of cribbage. It had long been a favorite pastime with Arthur Knight. Judith did not play.

Her husband objected.

"Better make it bridge," he said. "Judith, we want you in on this."

"Oh, no. Please! Go ahead and play, you and Tony. Really I'd much rather not. I'm not at all in the mood for cards this evening and I'd much rather finish my chapter."

She picked up a volume she had been reading during the afternoon, leaving Knight and his daughter to their game.

The contest had not progressed far when Tony suddenly laid down her cards.

"Oh—I forgot! There's something I wanted to ask you, father. You know I sort of forgot and—well, I asked Andy to come around Thursday night."

"What's wrong with that?"

"Nothing, only it's our last evening at home, you know. After I said he could come I was sorry."

"But why?"

"Well, don't you think when Wednesday's the last night we'll be together for so long it would be nicer to spend it without any outsiders?"

Judith glanced up from her book.

"You say you asked Andy to come over?" she said. "You mean for the evening or dinner?"

"Oh, just for the evening. Only I'm sorry now that I did it."

"That's all right," Knight cut in. "Andy won't interfere. Send him home again if you don't want him here."

"Well—if you don't mind," said Tony. "I suppose it will be all right."

From swift scrutiny it appeared to Judith that Tony Knight was entirely serious. Judith could hardly believe her ears.

The uncomfortable evening came to a finish at last. Judith had brushed her hair for the night, dabbed cold cream on her cheeks, then dabbed it off again, and slipped a dainty orchid gown over her head when she suddenly sought her husband. Her eyes were downcast as she spoke.

"Arthur, I'm sorry—I mean I don't want to go to Mrs. West's dinner Wednesday after all. I'm sorry for what I said."

"Why, Judith!"

"I'll telephone her tomorrow and say it's impossible for us to attend."

Knight looked at her curiously.

"But if you really want to go—"

"No. That was just nonsense. Let's forget about it."

They kissed and the incident should have been ended. Unfortunately not five minutes afterward the name of Andy Craig popped into Knight's mind. Tony had said Andy was coming to spend the evening Wednesday. Judith had decided to remain at home.

Possibly had Arthur Knight not been a sick man (without knowing it) a relation between these two situations would not have occurred to him.

But Arthur Knight was feeling ill. He dismissed the headache and the sneezing as merely the disagreeable forerunners of a head cold. He twisted and turned in his bed and found that sleep would not come. Finally in the early morning hours he drifted into troubled slumber.

Morning came and Judith, the moment her eyes lit on her husband, became alarmed.

"Arthur," she said anxiously, "I believe you're feverish. Don't you think you'd better stay home and rest this morning?"

"Isn't anything. Just a cold. I'll feel better after I've had some coffee."

They dressed and went downstairs for breakfast. Judith noticed that her husband's eyelids looked heavy and that his face was flushed.

"Really," she repeated, "I don't think you should go to the office today, Arthur. Even a cold should be stopped at the very beginning. Let me call Miss Tupper and say you're staying home for the morning."

Knight shook his head.

"Wouldn't know what to do with myself," he insisted. "I hate sitting around—always feel worse. Anyhow, I tell you it's nothing but a cold. Give me another cup of coffee, will you?"

Judith poured the coffee. Later she saw him depart amid misgivings. Arthur Knight looked too ill to be setting off for a day in the city.

She was worried all mornnig. At 11 o'clock she telephoned and was told that Mr. Knight was in conference. Would she care to leave a message?

Judith said no. Perhaps, after all, Arthur had been right. If business was taking his mind from himself maybe he really did feel better in the office.

She and Tony had lunch together. There was one more final fitting of Tony's gold evening gown and Bert was instructed to have the car at the door at two o'clock. The younger girl had gone upstairs to dress but Judith was in the dining room talking with Mrs. Wheeler when they heard someone enter the house.

"I wonder—" said Judith.

She turned toward the hallway. Another moment and a stifled cry cut the air.

Capitol Notes

Marigold Rollins, first girl page in the Texas legislature, greatly admires the two women members of the house of representatives for whom she pages. They are Mrs. Laura Burleson Negley of San Antonio, daughter of former Postmaster General A. S. Burleson, and Mrs. Helen Moore of Texas City.

Mrs. Burleson inherits the political sagacity of her father. An apparently innocent resolution was presented for her signature, proposing that women prisoners be accorded the same privileges as men prisoners. This includes smoking. Mrs. Burleson declined to sign in that form. "Make your resolution read that men prisoners shall not be granted privileges not also granted women prisoners," she sugrested.

Sam Houston Allred of Corsicana, another new member, succeeding State Commander Ernest Cox of the American Legion, is a cousin of "Jimmie" Allred of Wichita Falls, who ran a good race for attorney general two years ago.

Bowd Farrar of Waxahachie is an old-timer come back to this session of the legislature. He served in the 39th and 40th legislatures. He succeeds Elwin Gerron, who served in earlier sessions of the 41st legislature, but has moved out of the district.

J. A. Riley of Marshall, succeessor to Ben Woodall, resigned, has a "life expectancy" of about 25 years, he figures. He is an insurance man and so that is his way of putting his age, which others would call 46.

SUNSET TRUCK LINE OWNER IS APPRECIATIVE

"Since Taking Orgatone I Have Gained Six Pounds and Feel Like a New Man," Says San Angelo Man.

Still another link is added to the long chain of evidence regarding the remarkable merits of Orgatone in the case of Mr. Walter Cowley, 801 Upton street, San Angelo, Texas, whose phenomenal health and strength by the use of the medicine was reported to an Orgatone representative.

"I have suffered for some time from what appeared to be a general run-down condition and nervousness. I had no appetite and hardly ate enough to keep me alive. I was so nervous I couldn't get any sound sleep and would get up in the mornings tired and lifeless without any energy. Gas formed on my stomach and caused shortness of breath which made be very miserable for hours afterwards. I had a very bad case of constipation and had frequent headaches. I had a dead liver, I was told, and so had pains in my back and always felt worn out and sluggish and just kept on going down hill.

"I had read and heard so much about what Orgatone was doing for others that I decided to see if it would help my case, and I will say that it has proven to be the right medicine in my case. No one could have a better appetite and I eat anything I want, and digest it perfectly. My nervousness has disappeared and I sleep fine every night, and I get up in the mornings full of life and energy. My kidneys and liver seem to be in good condition and my constipation is a thing of the past. In fact, my general health has improved and I have actually gained six pounds in weight. Orgatone has certainly helped me and I am glad to recommend it to my friends.

SERIES OF FARM NIGHT SCHOOLS TO BE HELD

12 MEETINGS OF FARMERS ARE PLANNED

Four Weeks Will Be Devoted to Get-Together Meetings

A series of night schools, aimed at the study of particular problems before the farmers of the communities represented, will be inaugurated Wednesday evening of next week to continue four consecutive weeks, it was announced today by E. H. Varnell, Cisco vocational agriculturist.

The first of this series will be held at Dan Horn Wednesday evening; the second at Nimrod Thursday evening and the third at Pleasant Hill Friday evening. This same schedule will be followed each week for four weeks, each of the three communities having four meetings to which are invited all farmers and older boys of the county.

The meetings will begin at 7:30 o'clock each evening.

The purpose of the night schools is to make a study of some of the agricultural problems of the communities, to exchange ideas for their solution or the advancement of the particular phase of the agricultural industry discussed and to foster a closer cooperation among the people of the rural sections for their mutual profit.

The schools, it is pointed out, are not in the nature of a lecture course but simply get-together meetings.

To be studied principally are: "Feeding of Livestock"; "Year Around Pasture"; "Developing Native Pecan Groves", and etc.

None the Worse for Raid of Bandits

CALDWELL, Feb. 6.—Guy E. Allen, electrician for a utilities concern, was none the worse today for his experience with two holdup men who bound him hand and foot and attempted to rob the company safe. Allen managed to ring the telephone with his mouth and disclosed his plight to the operator. Friends soon arrived and released him.

The holdup men failed in their attempt to open the safe and fled when friends of Allen drove up to the office. Allen sustained a minor bruise on the head when he was knocked to the floor by one of the holdup men but was otherwise unhurt.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

C. F. Redlich, Minneapolis, Minn., nationally famous Rupture Appliance Expert, will demonstrate without charge his unequalled method at the Daniels Hotel, Cisco, on Saturday, Feb. 15, from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Mr. C. F. Redlich says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrolable.

"IF YOU WANT TO HAVE IT DONE RIGHT—SEE REDLICH."

Doctor J. W. Seavor, for many years in charge of the Physical Education of the students of Yale College, has recorded 75 per cent cures with this system.

Mr. Redlich is internationally known and speaks English, German and Spanish.

GOLD FLOWS IN WICHITA FALLS SECTOR

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 6 —Business interests of the Wichita Falls district of Texas are looking forward to the year of 1930 with the greatest confidence. They see in the development of their many resources the most profitable year in their history, according to John Boswell, general manager of the local chamber of commerce.

Launching of a million-dollar corporation for testing of this section for deep oil has awakened the people to great possibilities that lie in the immediate future. This corporation was organized by home people, financed with home money and behind it is the entire citizenship of the district. There is a general belief that deep oil is present under a great portion of this section. Faith is now being expressed in finance, and the organization of this company is the result.

Prosperity for the new year does not depend alone on finding of deep oil. During the past year the district has increased its production nearly two million barrels. The total value of oil produced last year was over $53,000,000.

The beginning of the year saw a great revival in drillings all over the district, especially in Cooke, Jack, Wilbarger and Young counties. New wells are being brought in daily. New pools are being brought in and old producing areas are lieing extended and deeper oil-bearing sands are being located.

In agricultural development the year promises much. The establishment of large milk products plants in Wichita Falls by the Southwest Dairy Products company and the Carnation company promises to be a big aid in the development of the dairy industry in this section.

With the completion of two paved roads into this city from territory that is rich in dairy possibilities, and with a market for all the milk produced, there is reason for belief that the Wichita Falls area is to become the dairy center of North Texas. Especially is this possible with the turning of the irrigated section to dairy farming. The diversification of the farming areas and the planting of feed crops will make the production of milk not only profitable in itself, but it provides the very best means of building up the soil and increasing the yields per acre.

Increased activity in all lines of endeavor will naturally be felt in the building program. It is believed that work on the new federal building for Wichita Falls will be started this year and in every city in the district there is the same feeling of optimism existing.

SAYS! TANLAC WITHOUT EQUAL FOR STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLES

Nurse Gives Remarkable Endorsement

Tanlac may seem miraculous in its action to millions who ended stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as rheumatism, pains in the back, sides, joints and muscles from its use. Let the truth is every drop of Tanlac is a strong potent medicine while most other remedies are weak and ineffective. Mrs. B. Piccord, a nurse with many years' experience, is one who ought to know. She says, "In 10 years active nursing have found Tanlac without an equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles, and I can certainly promise people wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach troubles for years, could eat scarcely anything without suffering, never any appetite, always nervous and rundown, but as soon as I began Tanlac it started to build me right up. All stomach troubles were routed and never any pain, distress or gases since. Now I eat everything with perfect safety." Many "patent medicines" make glowing promises that may tempt you to buy them but remember Tanlac is a REAL medicine that backs its claims with a guarantee. Do not accept a substitute. We are making some very special low prices on feed now that should interest every man or woman who keep stock or chickens.

Our mill grinds your own feed products that you raise right in your own county and the money stays at home instead of being sent away to foreign mills and feed houses. This money circulates around Cisco and returns to you perhaps many times during the year.

Our feed is always fresh—Ground feed goes further, having more feed value per pound, because it is more easily assimilated in that condition.

The season for proper feeding of laying hens is here and a balanced ration will make them pay much better returns.

Baby chick time is also approaching and baby starters and scratch feeds will be needed.

The Gas Dispatcher's Office in Cold Weather is a Center of Action!

A "blue norther" swoops down with breath-taking suddenness. Gas demands jump two—five—ten times in a few hours—and tax the gas system's entire service facilities for days of bitter cold weather! The gas dispatcher's office—nerve center of the Lone Star gas system—springs into action!

At the gas dispatcher's command is a small army of telephone operators, compressor station attendants, field men, truck drivers, repair men—co-ordinated through 1,200 miles of private telephone wires, vibrating with rapid-fire directions.

Orders to step up the pressure in any or all of 25 compressor stations that the occasion may demand—to rush repair crews to emergency points on six great pipe lines totaling 3,500 miles in length—to turn in special reserve gas wells in 25 different fields and run all wide open—to have all pipe line men ready night or day to keep the gas pressure up at any cost!

Certainly a center of action—a center of service—that more than a million people may have gas continuously, regardless of weather hazards and unprecedented gas demands!

The decrease, says an announcement by the publishers, is largely accounted for in the weekly field, in which there was a decline of 404. Among the gains in other classifications is an increase of 35 daily newspapers.

LONG LOST PILOT REPORTED FOUND

Verdict in Brady Trial Seems Definitely Precluded

8 FREED IN OKLAHOMA LIQUOR RING

GOVERNMENT REOPENS ITS CASE TODAY

Additional Testimony Expected to Be Introduced

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Feb. 6.—The government today reopened its case in the Pottawaoomie county liquor conspiracy trial, after announcing it had rested late yesterday.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught granted permission for the government to introduce additional testimony on request of U. S. District Attorney Roy St. Lewis, who said he had obtained additional witnesses.

Charges were ordered dismissed against eight defendants today, bringing the list of defendants down to 18. Four of the defendants were Howard Jones, "Happy" White, Jess Hall and G. D. Hopps.

Meanwhile, the United Press learned from County Attorney Homer Bishop of Seminole county that W. O. Gordon, who resigned as assistant attorney-general, after [illegible] in the whisky bribe CALDWELL [illegible]ng guarded in his hotel [illegible] by Seminole county officers.

Bishop filed a charge yesterday of conspiracy to accept bribes shortly before District Attorney Lewis filed a charge of extortion against the former state official. Homer Knappenberger, former Earlsboro mayor, had testified that he had paid Gordon $2,300 for "protection" during the state's investigation of the boom oil town's liquor traffic.

Two of the eight were released when the court sustained demurrers of defense counsel against government evidence. They were Hattie Thompson and W. W. Yoder. Judge Vaught held the evidence did not connect them with the alleged conspiracy.

Other defendants dismissed on recommendation of Lewis were Bill Hurst and Sherman Ivey.

The court over-ruled several dismissal motions.

The government recalled one witness today. She was Mattie Williams, mother of the 9-year-old girl who testified yesterday officers broke into her bank and robbed it to get the pay for the "whiskey line."

"In October, 1927," she testified, "Rube Sherrill and a man named Linbercher came to my house. I was sick and they tried to force me to pay off to prevent a shake down," she testified.

"I didn't pay them, but they broke into my kid's bank, took $5 and divided the money. We were saving that money so our girl could go to school in Shawnee."

ENTER WITHOUT PASSPORTS

Displaying an utter disregard for immigration laws, 1,000 pairs of Hungarian partridges recently arrived in the United States after a long trip by rail and water from Czechoslovakia. These birds, one of which is shown in the insert here, were shipped in especially designed crates to the Ohio Division of Conservation's game farm at Wellington. They are to be banded and distributed all over the state. They were purchased with hunter's license money.

No Clues Developed in Hunt for Bandits

A game of "Fox and Hounds" that had for its stage practically all the north end of Eastland county and sections of Stephens county had, after 24 hours of duration, today resulted in no new developments. Two bandits, representing the fox in this particular drama, appeared to have found safety while the officers, representing the hounds, were quite without any definite clues that might lead to the apprehension of the two highwaymen.

The game began early yesterday morning when an oil well crew of two men on a rig just south of Breckenridge and near the Cisco-Breckenridge highway, were forced to lie on the derrick floor for almost an hour in the chill while two bandits relieved them of $28 in cash and made off with a small coupe belonging to one of the drillers.

Car Goes in Ditch

Carelessness probably contributed to the next episode in the sequence, for the bandits drove their stolen car into the ditch near the junction of the Cisco-Breckenridge highway and the Eastland fork of that road a short while later. Unable to get the car back upon the highway one of the pair deserted his colors and fled to the broken country. No trace of his whereabouts were found by the officers.

His companion in crime, however, of a bolder nature, walked the short distance to the filling station operated by Mr. Foster at the fork of the highway and pointing a pistol at Mr. Foster demanded, in effect, his worldly goods or his life. Mr. Foster, disposed to surrender neither engaged the bandit in a physical argument which ended when the highwayman succeeded in clouting his victim over the head with the butt of his pistol and knocking his wouldbe victim unconscious. The bandit then returned to the stolen car again attemtping to get it out of the ditch.

A few minutes later, Mr. Foster, regaining consciousness, and suffering from two severe gashes on his head, secured his shotgun and made pursuit, calling his wife and daughter to attend the station.

Surprise Attack

In a surprise attack he took his assailant prisoner at the point of his shotgun, forcing him to march ahead to the home of a neighbor where Foster intended to seek assistance in bringing the prisoner to Cisco. But in a moment of lapsed vigilance the robber again got the upper hand, drawing a pistol and effecting his escape.

Eastland county officers, summoned to the scene of the episode, followed the foottrail of a man into the hills until nearly noon. But the trail, going ina northwesterly direction from the Foster station, ran blind and at noon the officers were forced to give up their pursuit.

G. W. Harris, proprietor of the store at Pleasant Grove near the Chestnut and Smith gasoline plant No. 10, suffered loss of practically the entire stock of his store Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, at the hands of one or more burglars who used a truck to remove their loot. Details of this robbery were not clear today.

Officers of the entire county are on the lookout for the men connected with these crimes as well as those responsible for the robbery of the Nimrod store recently.

VICTIM OF KIDNAPERS BACK HOME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb 6 — Dazed from the abuse of kidnappers who held him nine days, Max Price, 62-year-old New Haven real estate operator and money-lender, was reunited with his family today after he had been released near Bridgeport.

Unable to talk coherently of his experiences, Price was assisted into his Kensington avenue home and placed in bed.

MURDER IS VERDICT

AKRON, O., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Ruth Murray, federal narcotic informer who died early today in the city hospital here, was murdered, Coroner M. B. Crafts declared. The coroner said the woman's death had been caused by a fractured skull.

HUNG JURY SEEN AFTER LONG WAIT

No Word Comes From Panel as It Ponders Defendant's Fate

AUSTIN, Feb. 6. — A verdict in the case of John W. Brady, on trial for murder for the death of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, seemed to have been definitely precluded at noon today by the impregnable determination of two men believed to be "holding out."

Silent for the 41 hours since they were retired, not even asking a question or instructions, the 12 men parried the fate of the former appellate court judge on the third floor of the half-century old courthouse building today, while a curious crowd observed their gestures through unblinded windows from across the street.

Brady remained in his cell in the gloomy jail building, his wife beside him, never asking what the jury had reported or what progress had been made. There was no statement, no sign of anxiety or hope, from the attorneys on either side.

Moore in Chamber.

Judge J. D. Moore remained in his chamber across the hall. The district clerk went about his routine duties. Officers who waited on the court were busy doing something else. There was no expectancy of a verdict, but rather a question as to how long Judge Moore will hold the deadlocked men in confinement.

They debated far into last night, as they did the night before. The movement indicated efforts at persuasion of two men who frequently shook their heads negatively to the pleadings of the other 10.

The trial has been in progress now for 18 days. A week was used in jury selection, a week in testimony-taking, a day in argument, and the case went to the jury late Tuesday afternoon.

INCREASE IS REGISTERED BY BAPTISTS

Reports to the monthly business meeting of the First Baptist church Wednesday night showed a material increase in every department. Mrs. C. A. Farquhar read the report of the Woman's Missionary society which showed a total of 631 visits made in the interest of the church of which number 235 were made to the sick and 142 for the Sunday school. They distributed 141 garments to the poor and distributed 57 baskets of fruit.

The Sunday school report was read by E. J. Poe. The enrollment for the month was 584 with an average attendance of 325. The offering through the Sunday school was $614.29 which was an increase of more than 30 per cent over the same month last year. In the B. Y. P. U.'s progress was shown by an average attendance of 126 with an enrollment of 223.

The financial report was more encouraging than it has been for several months. The receipts were sufficient to take care of all current bills for January and to make substantial payments on past due accounts.

The meeting last night was well attended, there being 76 of the members and workers present. The Girl's auxiliary of the Missionary society led by Mattie Lee Kinkel gave a short playlet which was well received. The business meeting followed at the close of which the choir held its weekly rehearsal.

Grocer Shot to Death by Object of His Prayers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 6 — Broadway's praying grocer has been murdered.

For many years Henry Muehlenbeck has offered up a prayer for virtually every customer who has come into his store.

Faithful to the custom which has made him an eccentric in South Broadway, Muehlenbeck dropped to his knee behind the candy counter last night to invoke divine guidance for the man who had just bought a five-cent candy bar.

"Our Father——," the grocer began.

His prayer was cut short by a command to "stick 'em up."

Unable to believe the man he had prayed for would hold him up, Muehlenbeck started to run toward the rear of the store.

The man left at the counter fired one shot and the praying grocer fell dead.

INJUNCTION AGAINST THIS CITY ASKED

A petition asking that the United States district court grant a temporary injunction, restraining the mayor, the city commission and the city secretary of the city of Cisco from paying out any of the city's money on certain bonds of the city alleged to be invalid, was filed with Federal Deputy Clerk Ida M. James at Abilene yesterday. Hearing on the plea, an intervention in the suit of Blanchet, Bowman and Wood versus the City of Cisco for collection of bonds and warrants, has been set to come before Judge James C. Wilson at Fort Worth Monday.

The injunction plea was filed by Robert M. Herron, Jr., and R. H. Boon, of Cisco, through attorneys R. E. Grantham and P. D. Morriss, of Cisco.

Cisco bond issues aggregating $3,600,000 are held to be invalid in the petition and payment of city money on any of these is asked to be enjoined.

All parties in the original suit have been given notice of the hearing Monday. B. K. Blanchet, M. B. Bowman and G. C. Wood, all of Toledo, Ohio, filed suit September 25, 1929 for collection of Cisco water works bonds and warrants amounting to $17,371 and interest. H. L. Allen & Co., a firm claimed to be holding about $1,500,000 worth of Cisco's bonds, filed as intervenors in the suit. A petition was later entered asking the federal court to appoint a receiver of the city of Cisco. B. W. Patterson and Eugene Lankford, Cisco attorneys, represented a group of Cisco taxpayers as intervenors in opposing that plea.

Hearing on the Blanchet et al suit, together with the interventions, was called before Judge Wilson here on October 14, but the case was passed. Walter F. Schenck of Lubbock, attorney for the city of Cisco, said when the case was called in court that the city had in action plans for obtaining funds to meet past due obligations.

The plea of Herron and other tax payers asks that the mayor and commission of Cisco be enjoined from paying any city bonds, from issuing refunding bonds to pay outstanding bonds and from encumbering Lake Cisco, a municipal water project, for the purpose of paying outstanding bonds.

JOE NEWTON IS REMOVED TO EASTLAND

Will Face Charges of Theft Committed at Olden

Joe Newton, whom officers at Eastland say has a long police record, was placed in the Eastland county jail late Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Los Woods, who brought him to Eastland from Fort Worth where Newton and Cole Oglesby, who also has a police record, were arrested a few days ago by Fort Worth officers after Oglesby was shot by a policeman.

Newton, according to the officers, is 29 years old. He is charged by complaint filed with Justice of the Peace Jim Steele, here, with theft committed at Olden.

Cole Oglesby is a cousin of Ernest Oglesby, an escaped convict, who was arrested only a few weeks ago by officers at Paducah following his escape at Olden from the Sheriff of Snyder as the officer was transporting him from the state penitentiary to Snyder to stand trial in charges there. Cole Oglesby is also wanted at Abilene where he has been charged with the killing of R. H. Johnson of Abilene on August 27, 1928. Johnson and a woman companion were held up by two men on the highway and when Johnson resisted, he was shot and died soon afterwards.

Shot in Abdomen

Cole Oglesby was shot in the abdomen by Policeman Kennedy Fort Worth when the officer saw him attempting to shoot. Kennedy shot Oglesby with a gun he had just taken out of Oglesby and Newton's car when he halted them at a street crossing in Fort Worth. Oglesby's condition this morning, is reported to be critical. He was moved from a hospital to the hospital ward in the Tarrant county jail because officers of that county felt that pals of his and the Newton's might attempt to affect his release and thereby endanger the lives of officers guarding Oglesby and possibly others.

Sheriff Virge Foster this morning received a telegram from Mrs. Dollie Wall of Uvalda stating that she was Albert Oglesby's mother and inquiring as to his condition. Albert and Cole, officers say, are one and the same man.

A telegram from a woman in Uvalda addressed to Joe Newton in care of the Sheriff's office, asked Newton to advise her if she might come to see him.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The condition of William Howard Taft remained unchanged today with his pulse satisfactory and no fever, though difficulty has developed in administering nourishment, his physicians said in a bulletin issued shortly before noon.

O'Keefe Scores "Hoovercrats"

AUSTIN, Feb. 6—Pat O'Keefe of Dallas, sergent-at-arms at Democratic National conventions for the last 40 years, visited the state senate chamber today to see what was going on therein.

By reason of his political tenets, O'Keefe is what some call a "Brass Collar" Democrat. Nevertheless, Senator Thomas B. Love, utra dry and "Hoovercrat" leader, escorted him up to the presiding officer's desk and introduced him.

O'Keefe responded by scoring all "Hoovercrats" for bolting and expressing the hope that "Texas will elect a good Democrat for governor." Love is a candidate for the office.

It wasn't until Senator Joe Moore, president pro tem. of the senate interferred that O'Keefe's speech was halted.

ROTARIANS HEAR DENTON CLUB MEMBER

A classification talk by Jerome Headley, of the Denton Rotary club, who as a visitor was called upon for a "pinch-hitting" speech by President Bruce Boney, was the feature of the Cisco Rotary club's luncheon today noon.

Mr. Headley, who sells tires, gave the club one of its most interesting example of classification addresses, using the subject "Profitless Prosperity" in describing the effect of over-competition among tire manufactures. The tire industry, he said, was in the same position as the two youngsters marooned on the ice floe reported yesterday to be drifting steadily with them toward the Niagara Falls. "They do not know where they are going," he declared.

Tire cost today amounts to about one-eight to one-tenth what it did 10 years ago, he pointed out.

The Flag talk was made by George Fee, whose subject was Switzerland.

Other visitors present at the meeting were Superintendent N. S. Holland, of the Breckenridge public schools, a member of the Breckenridge Rotary club, and Emmett Powell, of Eastland, a member of the Lion club of that city and a son-in-law of Mr. Headley.

Bruce Boney, president of the Cisco club, was in charge of the program.

3 Boys Arrested for Chicken Theft

EASTLAND, Feb. 6 — Three Eastland county youths ranging from 15 to 18 years of age, were arrested yesterday by Sheriff Virge Foster and Deputy Sheriff Steele Hill on charges of theft of chickens.

They were sold to a produce man at Cross Plains. Each of the boys face two charges of theft. Bond of $750 was set for each case.

Protest Against Location of Prison in Travis County Kept Out of Record

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — A petition of 79 Austin women, headed by the wife of Mayor P. W. McFadden, protesting against location of the proposed industrial prison in Travis county, was refused a place in the journal of the house of representatives today, after being presented to the body.

The petition was presented by Representative Giles of Travis county. Another member proposed it be printed in the journal but withdrew the motion under storm of opposition.

A house vote on the proposed relocation is expected by Speaker Barron before night.

The senate spent the morning amending the Witt bill for prison relocation.

As now changed the bill proposes an industrial plant not nearer than 10 miles to Austin nor further away than 50 miles. The Darrington Harlem, Ramsey and Imperial farms are to be retained for farming and $500,000 improvements are to start on them as soon as building the new prison starts.

GIVE THE PEOPLE REAL REFORMS.

Lawmakers should give the people of Texas real reforms. They should reform the prison system which is the most worthless to be found as well as the most unworkable and costly having an existence in any American commonwealth.

They should reform the fee system, which in many instances and many ways is a system of legal piracy.

They should cancel the Travis county courthouse lease and permit the taxpayers of Travis county to build a new courthouse on their own property.

They should do justice to the men and women who support the schools of Texas as well as provide the necessary funds for that which has been known since the coming of Mrs. E. Ferguson as rural aid in the little red school house districts.

There are no "little red school houses" in Texas and the phrase is taken from the vocabulary of many glib tongued politicians who are teachers and office seekers and whatnot.

KEEPING THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

For the edification of voting readers, regardless of political affiliation, this is a record to date:

In 1928 Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Florida landed in the Hoover column. Hoover Democrats joined hands with the Republicans in the commonwealth and smashed the solid South. In Alabama, Sen. J. T. Heflin did his level best to smash it, but Alabama remained a regular by a small majority. This is what happened in the year of '29.

In Old Virginia, the regular Democrats, led by Governor Harry Byrd, nominated John Garland Pollard for governor, as well as nominees for the minor state offices. Bishop James Cannon and his lieutenants named a Hoover Democrat for governor and had the backing of Virginia Republicans and the federal administration. Pollard was swept into office and carried his ticket with him by a majority of 70,000, the largest ever rolled up in the history of the Old Dominion. In Kentucky, the regular Democrats retained their overwhelming majority in both houses of the legislature and in addition to the capture of three Republican districts.

In North Carolina, Senator Francis M. Simmons will face at the June primary J. R. Bailey. Simmons, in point of service is the oldest member of the senate. Bailey is the regular, and ultra-pro, said to be strong in agricultural districts and the industrial centers with the organized wage-workers of the mills and factories. Now what will be the verdict of the old Tar Heel state in June?

In Alabama the state committee barred the name of Heflin from the official ballot, barred the name of Locke, who aspires to be governor, from the ballot, and invited the rank and filers who deserted in 1928 to return to the fold.

In Florida, a state law prohibits the placing of the name on the official ballot of any person who failed to support his regular party ticket in the preceding election.

He must do penance in the amen corner as a voter before he purges himself of his political sinning.

All the foregoing is printed for the edification or the education of the reader. Away down here in Texas the official action of the state committee in session a day in advance of Ground Hog day, is ancient history with the Brady trial nearing its close at the Travis county courthouse, and the lawmakers grinding for their lives under the big dome of the most superb capitol building to be found under the skies of the republic.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

Gordon Brett, advertising manager of the Norwich (England) Daily Press, says:

That nearly 200,000 Americans visited Europe last year and a vast sum of money was spent during their stay. Still greater efforts need to be made by the various publicity associations in Great Britian if we are to get our fair share, which we are not getting at present.

There is going to be opened in New York an Information Bureau by Great Britain and it would be a good move on our part if we opened one in many other large cities in the United States.

I would like to see all the publicity associations in this country contribute to a common fund and embark on a big newspaper campaign in America, telling that country the hundred and one attractions Great Britain has to offer to the American visitor.

MOODY GRANTS NEW REPRIEVE FOR HOWARD

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — Governor Dan Moody today granted a new reprieve for Percy Howard under sentence of electrocution as the alleged slayer of N. V. Nixon in 1920.

A former reprieve would have expired Saturday.

W. S. Ham, also charged in connection with Nixon's death, is to go to trial at Abilene on Feb. 12. The former reprieve was given to await the outcome of Ham's trial, which was set for January, but postponed.

On the eve of Howard's proposed electrocution last November his divorced wife disclaimed testimony she had given against him at his trial in El Paso and Governor Moody granted a reprieve.

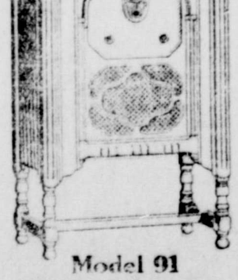

Her testimony contradicted an alibi claimed by Howard.

Nixon's body was found near Van Horn after he had left El Paso in a service car driven by Howard to inspect some land.

"Mediocrity Will Never Do for William" Said Father of Taft Sixty Years Ago

By HERBERT LITTLE,
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Out in Cincinnati 60 years ago, a father knit his brows over a report from the Woodbury high school. His son was fifth from the top of his class. He straightened up and addressed the family:

"Mediocrity will never do for William."

In the white house 25 years ago Theodore Roosevelt talked with his secretary of war, and urged him to accept the highest political honor the nation could offer, the presidency. "T. R." got this reply:

"It's good of you, Theodore, but I'd rather be a judge."

Mediocrity never did do for William Howard Taft.

The dynamic Roosevelt, however, over-ruled his friend "Will" and placed Taft in the presidency for one of the most disastrous administrations of Republican history.

When it was over he returned to his first love, the law, and carried on as chief justice of the United States for eight and one-half years a complete reorganization of the court's policies.

Taft spent nearly a half-century in public life. His career is more varied and amazing than of any other American. It covers most of the oceans and continents, and touched with effect nearly every aspect of government, industry, the humanities, in addition to law and politics. He blundered only in politics.

Descended From Pilgrims.

His family lines came direct from the Pilgrim Fathers. Through his father, Judge Alphonso Taft his ancestors go back six New England generations to Robert Taft, who settled in Mendon, Mass. On the side of his mother, Louise Torrey, the line goes back unbroken to William Torrey, who settled in Massachusetts in 1640. The Taft line is related with the long family descent of Edward Rawson, who was secretary of the Massachusetts Day colony.

As a boy, he participated in urchin gang wars, the boys of Auburn ridge, then on the outskirts of Cincinnati, warring with the gamins of "butcher town" and "tailor town" on both sides.

His father, although stern, was a guide and counselor. Will was the third of five brothers, and they all went to Yale. He was graduated in 1878, at the age of 21, as salutatorian second in scholarship among more than 100.

The football boys hailed his more than 200 pounds with pleasure, at "Bill"—his nickname changed again at Yale"—stuck to his books. His only athletic exploit was acting at anchor-man in a tug-of-war between classes. Taft's class won.

Back to Ohio.

When he went back to Ohio, he nearly became a newspaper man. He enrolled in the Cincinnati law school and worked as legal reporter on the Times-Star, owned by his brother Charles P. Taft. He did well on the "courts" and the "opposition" hired him. Murat Halstead gave him a job on the Commercial-Gazette. His determination to become a lawyer caused him to quit after a few months, and after being admitted to the bar he entered the law firm of his father, Taft and Lloyd, as a lawyer. He worked hard at law, and took some part in politics.

Taft was appointed assistant prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county.

President Arthur seeking a way out of a financial fight in Ohio, appointed young Taft collector of internal revenue. It involved handling of millions of dollars and paid $4,500 a year. Taft resigned after 10 months to go back to law. It was the first of many resignations. Then he was called back into public service as assistant prosecutor. He fell in love with Helen Herron, beautiful daughter of President Hayes' former law partner, and they were married in 1886.

Taft attained his ambition and thought himself settled for life the next year, when Governor Foraker appointed him judge of the Cincinnati supreme court. He was 30.

After two years on the bench, he resigned to accept appointment as solicitor-general of the United States, to represent the government before the supreme court as solicitor. He came to Washington at the age of 33 to accept a position which most solicitors-general do not attain until they are 45 or 50.

Most important to Taft, although he did not realize it then, was the acquaintance and friendship which sprang up between him and a young New Yorker, a civil service commissioner named Theodore Roosevelt.

SUSPECTS ARE ROUNDED UP IN MEXICO CITY

By JOHN R. MORRIS
United Press Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6 — Police made a determined roundup of revolutionary suspects today after President Pascual Ortiz Rubio had been shot by an assassin within 2 hours of his inauguration.

More than 20 suspects were reported in custody and the full resources of the government were concentrated against what was reported to have been a general plot of assassination.

The president, his jaw shattered by a bullet, rested at his home and his physicians said his recovery would be rapid. His wife, their niece and the presidential chauffeur, also wounded when the assassin fired on the president's car as it left the palace after the inauguration yesterday, were not seriously hurt and were reported in good condition.

The assailant, a young intellectual whose name was given as Daniel Flores, was held in the city garrison near the palace. Officials hammered at him ceaselessly during the night in an effort to break down his stubborn refusal to confess, and reveal whether his act was inspired by personal fanaticism, or was part of a more elaborate plot.

HOOVER SENDS HIS REGRETS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — President Hoover today sent a telegram to President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, expressing regret because of injuries suffered by him and Senora Rubio at the hands of an assassin yesterday, and congratulating them on their escape from more serious harm.

TEST OF "DRAGNET."

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6 —"Lese Majeste" — or something terrible. The much misused term "police dragnet" was brought out and used, once, twice, thrice here when Chief of Police William J. Quinn's overcoat was stolen while that august personage was attending a recent meeting of the San Francisco Safety committee.

Perryton—Texas-Louisiana Power company will add another big engine to plant.

POULTRY HEAD

Another agricultral body has started the year with a new "head man". It is the Poultry Science association in Washington, D. C., and H. L. Shrader, until recently with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has been elected president. Shrader has served as federal poultry specialist for some time and is familiar with the poultry industry all over the country.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

C. F. Redlich, Minneapolis, Minn., nationally famous Rupture Appli- ance Expert, will demonstrate with- out charge his unequalled method at the Daniels Hotel, Cisco, on Saturday, Feb. 15, from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Mr. C. F. Redlich says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no mat- ter what position the body as- sumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remark- ably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly ad- justed device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically ever- lasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which here- tofore were considered uncontrol- able.

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE IT DONE RIGHT—SEE REDLICH."

Doctor J. W. Seavor, for many years in charge of the Physical Ed- ucation of the students of Yale College, has recorded 75 per cent cures with this system.

Mr. Redlich is internationally known and speaks English, German and Spanish.

GOLD FLOWS IN WICHITA FALLS SECTOR

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 6 —Busi- ness interests of the Wichita Falls district of Texas are looking for- ward to the year of 1930 with the greatest confidence. They see in the development of their many re- sources the most profitable year in their history, according to John Boswell, general manager of the local chamber of commerce.

Launching of a million-dollar corporation for testing of this section for deep oil has awakened the people to great possibilities that lie in the immediate future. This corporation was organized by home people, financed with home money and behind it is the entire citizenship of the district. There is a general belief that deep oil is present under a great portion of this section. Faith is now being expressed in finance, and the organization of this com- pany is the result.

Prosperity for the new year does not depend alone on finding of deep oil. During the past year the district has increased its pro- duction nearly two million bar- rels. The total value of oil pro- duced last year was over $53,- 000,000.

The beginning of the year saw a great revival in drillings all over the district, especially in Cooke, Jack, Wilbarger and Young counties. New wells are being brought in daily. New pools are being brought in and old pro- ducing areas are lieing extended and deeper oil-bearing sands are being located.

In agricultural development the year promises much. The estab- lishment of large milk products plants in Wichita Falls by the Southwest Dairy Products com- pany and the Carnation company promises to be a big aid in the de- velopment of the dairy industry in this section.

With the completion of two paved roads into this city from territory that is rich in dairy pos- sibilities, and with a market for all the milk produced, there is reason for belief that the Wich- ita Falls area is to become the dairy center of North Texas. Es- pecially is this possible with the turning of the irrigated section to dairy farming. The diversification of the farming areas and the plant- ing of feed crops will make the pro- duction of milk not only profitable in itself, but it provides the very best means of building up the soil and increasing the yields per acre.

Increased activity in all lines of endeavor will naturally be felt in the building program. It is be- lieved that work on the new fed- eral building for Wichita Falls will be started this year and in every city in the district there is the same feeling of optimism ex- isting.

SAYS! TANLAC WITHOUT EQUAL FOR STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLES

Nurse Gives Remarkable Endorsement

Tanlac may seem miraculous in its action to millions who ended stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as rheumatism, pains in the back, sides, joints and muscles from its use but the truth is every drop of Tanlac is a strong potent medicine while most other remedies are weak and ineffective. Mrs. B. Piccord, a nurse with many years' experience, is one who ought to know. She says, "In 16 years active nursing have found Tanlac without an equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles, and I can certainly promise people wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach troubles for years, could eat scarcely anything without suffering, never any appetite, always nervous and rundown. But as soon as I began Tanlac it started to build me right up. All stomach troubles were routed and never any pain, distress or gases since. Now I eat everything with perfect safety." Many "patent medicine" make glowing promises that may tempt you to buy them but remember Tanlac is a REAL medicine that backs its claims with a guarantee. Do not accept a substitute. At all druggists.

FEED SPECIAL

We are making some very special low prices on feed now that should interest every man or woman who keep stock or chickens.

Our mill grinds your own feed products that you raise right in your own county and the money stays at home instead of being sent away to foreign mills and feed houses. This money circulates around Cisco and returns to you perhaps many times during the year.

Our feed is always fresh—Ground feed goes further, having more feed value per pound, because it is more easily assimilated in that condition.

The season for proper feeding of laying hens is here and a balanced ration will make them pay much better returns.

Baby chick time is also approaching and baby starters and scratch feeds will be needed.

Our Cash and Carry Policy Will Mean Much Cheaper Prices on All Products.

Come to See Us and Save the Difference.

The Gas Dispatcher's Office in Cold Weather is a Center of Action!

A "blue norther" swoops down with breath-taking suddenness. Gas demands jump two—five—ten times in a few hours—and tax the gas system's entire service facilities for days of bitter cold weather! The gas dispatcher's office—nerve center of the Lone Star gas system—springs into action!

At the gas dispatcher's command is a small army of telephone operators, compressor station attendants, field men, truck drivers, repair men—co-ordinated through 1,200 miles of private telephone wires, vibrating with rapid-fire directions.

Orders to step up the pressure in any or all of 25 compressor stations that the occasion may demand—to rush repair crews to emergency points on six great pipe lines totaling 3,500 miles in length—to turn in special reserve gas wells in 25 different fields and run all wide open—to have all pipe line men ready night or day to keep the gas pressure up at any cost!

Certainly a center of action—a center of service—that more than a million people may have gas continuously, regardless of weather hazards and unprecedented gas demands!

The decrease, says an announcement by the publishers, is largely accounted for in the weekly field, in which there was a decline of 404. Among the gains in other classifications is an increase of 35 daily newspapers.

The estimated total circulation of all daily newspapers in the United States and Canada is 44,110,094 a gain of 3, 935,094 over 1928.

Cisco and Scranton in Finals of County Cage Race

FIRST GAME TONIGHT AT HIGH SCHOOL

Rising Star and Nimrod Eliminated in Semi-Finals

The Cisco Loboes and Scranton high school quintet will battle it out for the county Interscholastic League basket ball title in a series of two games, possibly three, tonight and tomorrow night, the third, in case it is necessary, to be played Saturday night.

These two teams advanced to the finals of the county race by eliminating their opponents in the semi-finals played at the Cisco high school gymnasium last night.

Scranton eliminated Nimrod, class C champions, by a score of 32 to 11. For the first quarter of this game the teams battled on even terms, first one team and then the other leading by one or two points margin. Q. Ingram, high point man and star player of the Nimrod squad went out of the game early in the second quarter on personal fouls and with him went whatever chance the Nimrod team had of winning the game. In spite of his retirement in the early stages of the contest Ingram was high point man for his team.

The Cisco-Rising Star game furnished faster action and an even more topheavy score. The count was 45 to 20, Rising Star scoring several field goals against the Pups who were sent in for the last five minutes of the game.

Score by quarters of the Scranton-Nimrod game was: 4 to 4, first quarter; 12 to 9, half; 21 to 9, third quarter; 32 to 11, game.

Score by quarters of the Cisco-Rising Star game was 16 to 2, first quarter; 24 to 8, half; 38 to 10, third quarter; 45 to 20, game.

Starting lineups for the games were:

Scranton—Baird and Purvis, forwards; Bailey, center; Horn and Sneegle, guards.

Nimrod—Q. Ingram and Claude McBeth, forwards; C. Ingram, center; C. McBeth and McCorkle, guards.

Cisco—Whitehead and Yeager, forwards; Van Horn, center; Preston and Ray, guards.

Rising Star—R. Allen and Bailey, forwards; Lewis, center; Bowers and Morris, guards.

Three Dead in Plane Crashes

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 6.—Two veteran pilots employed by local airplane building concerns and a youth were dead today as the result of plane crashes here and at Garden City, Kas.

Red Shannon, 38, test pilot for the Hiltin Aircraft company, fell 5,000 feet to his death two and one-half miles southeast of the Wichita municipal airport late yesterday while testing a rebuilt Hilton monoplane.

Shortly after word came from Garden City that Charles Gardener, demonstrator for a factory here, had crashed in a Sullivan cabin monoplane, killing himself and Guy Gardiner, 20, who was taken for a free ride.

Gardiner, who was not related to the pilot, was taken up as a favor when he left a delivery truck he was driving from his father's ice cream factory to inspect the new plane.

DEATH ENDS "IN-LAWS"

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 6 — Death is one "out" for the man who is suffering from too many "in-laws." This was established in district court here recently when Judge Frank L. Riley ruled that death dissolved all "in-law" relationships and that no "in-laws" of a dead man could lay claim to his property on the basis of relationship.

CARNERA SETS 63 SECONDS TO K. O. OWENS

NEWARK, Feb. 6.—Primo Carnera, huge Italian heavyweight will attempt to knockout Cowboy Bill Owens of Guthrie, Okla., in 63 seconds tonight and establish a unique prize-ring record.

If Carnera can stop Owens, a 230-pounder of doubtful pugilistic ability, in 63 seconds, he will have knocked out his first three American opponents in three minutes — the equivalent of one round.

Carnera knocked out big Boy Peterson of New Orleans in 70 seconds and then stopped Elzear Rioux of Canada in 47 seconds.

Unless Carnera's board of strategy elects to have the giant Venetian "carry" Owens for several rounds to avoid a repetition of the mild scandal growing out of Carnera's quick knockout of Rioux at Chicago tonight's match is expected to end in the first round as have the other two.

Owens, whose father was an Indian and his mother a mulatto, has no pretensions to pugilistic prowess. For this match, he is merely a substitute, having been selected after the original opponent, Jack de Have, was K. O'd by Young Stribling in one round.

A capacity crowd of more than 5,000 will witness tonight's match at $5 tops. There is no betting as most of the spectators expect Owens to be stopped, but curiously enough want one look at the 270-pound Italian in any kind of a contest.

Baseball Schedule Is on League Program

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 6— Adoption of a western league baseball schedule of 154 games and the drafting of a schedule for the western association season of 1930 were on the program of the meeting of club executives here today.

Owners and representatives of eight western league clubs were expected to act upon the tentative schedule drawn by a committee which went into session yesterday. Adoption customarily is voted upon at a later meeting but all clubs are represented at the present gathering and final action was believed certain.

Discussion outside the committee room meanwhile turned to questions of a split season, night baseball and methods of winning larger attendance.

Barbuti Quitting Track Athletics

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6 — Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse collegian and American hero of the 1928 olympic games today announced his retirement — for this season at least — from track athletics.

The former Syracuse flyer competed in the sprint series of the annual Newark A. C. games here last night. He had little more than a prayer. He ran the full 50 yards of the first sprint event, but was left at the post in the 60-yard race when one of his starting blocks split squarely in the middle. He was a poor fifth in the 70-yard race.

Price's contract had two years to run, "and there has been no discussion of what action will be taken in the future," said Reynolds.

Irving was started for the penitentiary in custody of Marshall Hugh Patton late yesterday after he announced he had abandoned plans to appeal from his conviction.

Four other men convicted with Irving also abandoned plans to appeal. They will begin serving jail sentences immediately.

CIDER REPLACES WATER

OVIEDO, Province of Asturias, Spain, Feb. 6 — During the month of November 1929 the public fountains of the town of Sama de Langreo were contaminated with typhoid germs, and instead of water the 6,000 citizens drank apple cider. The total consumption of cider for that period was 209,000 liters.

BRITAIN IS READY TO CUT BATTLESHIPS

LONDON, Feb. 6 — Great Britain is willing, under agreement with other naval powers, to begin immediate scrapping of battleships down to 15 in accordance with the Washington treaty, the British spokesman announced today.

The spokesman said it would take two years for the British to complete the scrapping processes. He said that, if other powers were willing, Britain saw no reason to wait until 1936.

An official communique issued after the meeting said the "first committee made substantial progress today" although Italy renewed her general reservations regarding the necessity of first determining questions of ratios and total tonnages of the navies involved before proceeding to other questions.

The communique also said the committee made good progress towards classification of the various types of warships. It confirmed that an experts committee would be called upon to examine certain technical questions and to draft resolution to be submitted to the first committee.

Marvelous Work of New Konjola Medicine Told

Moore Drug Store To Introduce Advanced Remedy For First Time in Cisco

If you were told that one single medicine put hundreds of men and women back to work in Chicago, Philadelphia and other large cities after they had been idle for months with health troubles, it would sound

G. H. MOSBY

impossible, wouldn't it? And that countless people were completely relieved of rheumatism and neuritis, and that they were able to walk again, without cane or crutches, and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who had suffered with stomach and kidney troubles for years, that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicines upon medicine had failed — indeed, it seems impossible! Yet, it is all true, and the medicine that has done all these things is the new Konjola, which is being introduced, starting today at the Moore Drug Store, this city.

Whenever introduced, this Konjola is vastly different and more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than and previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

Rheumatism: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In the milder cases of this disease, Konjola relieves almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results to the neuritis victim that it does for the rheumatic sufferers.

Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowel Troubles: Nearly all forms of misery that arise from these unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers everywhere were surprised. It is the action of this medicine on the organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the system and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts on the important functionary organs of the body, namely: the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. So many diseases and long standing disorders of these organs were so completely conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in larger cities were able to give up taking medicine for time to come.

After the great accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what hundreds of sufferers in Cisco and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made to introduce Konjola for the first time at the Moore Drug Store, where this medicine will be sold and explained to the public daily.

F. B. Mathews, Government Trapper, Starts 1930 With 6 Wolves, 2 Bobcats, One Fox

F. B. Mathews, federal trapper for the Cisco section, has started his new year's campaign against predatory animals with a catch of six wolves, two bobcats and one fox. This record was made in spite of the fact that his traps were frozen under for 21 days and no work could be done for that period.

He declared that it is his intention of entirely clearing up this section of predatory animals before he quits.

For the benefit of the public generally Mr. Mathews declared that state law gives a government trapper authority to enter upon private lands, even against the wishes of owners, to trap for predatory animals, and that traps set by him on such land are protected by federal law.

The statutes quoted by him in respect to this authority are:

Section 8, chapter 96, acts of the legislature—"Any person working under the direction of the Bureau of Biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas or the Livestock Sanitary commission of Texas, shall be authorized to enter upon public or private lands within the state for the purpose of carrying on the work of exterminating of predatory animals and injurious rodents named in the act."

Federal Penal Code, section 47, he said, provides a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for five years or both for interferring with traps or captured animals or parts thereof that are caught in government traps the same being the property of the United States government.

Unpaid Policemen Only Protection of Chicago Against Flaming Gangland

By RAY BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — A few thousand unpaid policemen, with the plaints of their underfed children ringing in their ears, stood today between the city's millions and a gang-land armed with murder and bomb terrorism.

Seven gang killings, two racket shootings that may mean death for the victims and a series of destructive bombings have been crowded into one week of crime. Bandits and robbers have operated on a grand scale. Foot pads have waylaid many citizens on the streets.

The forces of law and order were mobilizing today to stamp out the onslaught of the underworld. Police heads and the state's attorney held their third conference in as many days, and orders went out to patrolmen to close up certain speakeasies and beer flats in and near the loop.

A drastic proposal to lock gun toters in insane asylums for life was voiced by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, known as the man who inaugurated the policy of inflicting maximum penalties on gangsters accused of carrying concealed weapons.

But the real burden of battling the outburst of lawlessness fell on the policemen, the infantry on the firing line in the war with the gangs. They raced from one murder to another, encountering in most cases the mask of silence peculiar to gangland.

Police Commissioner William Russell spoke the complaints of his men. "What can we do when gangsters who are mortally wounded will not name their assailants?" He asked. Gangsters cannot go into court with their differences so when one double crosses another a shooting usually follows.

Why People Abhor Fat

Not only because it blights beauty and vigor, but because informed people regard it as needless. They know that a chief cause is a gland weakness, easily corrected.

Modern physicians, the world over, now aim at that weakness. Their method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 22 years. The countless fat people who have grown slender now everywhere show what this method does. Perhaps your close friends can tell you.

If you are over-fat, you owe to yourself a test of Marmola. The reasons and formula are in every box. Every druggist supplies it—$1 a box. Starving is not necessary. Go start today.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 6 — Charles M. Curtis smiled repeatedly today as he paced his cell in the county jail here and told visitors of how he had thanked a jury late Wednesday for sentencing him to life imprisonment.

Watson was buried some two weeks ago after drinking lye in his cell to escape trial.

"Thank you, gentlemen," Curtis said when the jury returned its verdict.

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Judith Cameron, typist in a New York publishing house, marries her employer, Arthur Knight. Knight is a widower with a daughter, Tony, and a son, Junior.

The girl ignores her stepmother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight overhears and compels Tony to apologize.

The girl spends much of her time with Mickey Mortimer, blase amusement seeker, whom she met in Paris. He is separated from his wife and deep in a flirtation with Tony. As days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and Judith.

Andy Craig, a young man Knight had helped through college, calls on Tony. He has been in love with her—rather hopelessly—for a long while. Craig comes to the house frequently and Tony, in a mood of spite, tries to convince her father the young man is carrying on an affair with Judith. When Knight denies this angrily Tony tricks Judith and Andy Craig into a luncheon engagement and brings her father upon the scene.

Knight tries to overcome his suspicions. Craig calls to see Tony. When Knight goes to announce his arrival Tony refuses to see the young man but makes her peace with her father. Knight promises Tony a trip to Miami with Judith, unaware that Mortimer has gone there.

Preparations for the trip begin immediately. Judith encounters Mrs. Franklin Monroe West who invites her and Arthur to dinner. When Knight refuses flatly to go, Judith says she'll keep the engagement without him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

For an instant Arthur Knight looked like a man who could not believe his hearing. He eyed Judith, waiting for her to continue the conversation.

Instead the young wife busied herself intently with the clasp of a string of beads. Apparently Judith was oblicious to her husband's concern.

Knight seemed about to speak, hesitated, then turned on his heel abruptly and left the room. The door shut behind him with a slam.

So Judith was determined to go to that silly West creature's dinner party! Arthur Knight sighed. He could not understand it. He was also unpleasantly aware that his manner had been rude.

Knowing that one has appeared at disadvantage never improves a situation. The man wandered downstairs frowning. He had been right about the thing! He had been right and here Judith was making him feel like an infernal Simon Legree.

"Oh, Father!"

"Yes—what is it?"

Tony was calling to him from her favorite corner of the divan. She wore the simple yellow dress Knight particularly liked. She sat with feet tucked up in a schoolgirl pose, her head thrown backward and a coaxing smile in the dark eyes.

"Come over and sit beside me!"

Without reply he came. Tony slipped one arm around her father's shoulders, pulled his head toward hers playfully and ran her fingers through his hair.

"Tired tonight?"

"Oh, I guess not. So—so! Your old father's loosing his pep, Tony. What've you been doing all day?"

"Father, you ARE tired! I wish you wouldn't work so hard."

He turned this aside with a laugh, was about to answer when suddenly a loud sneeze interrupted.

"Picked up a beastly cold somewhere," Knight apologized. "Guess that's what's the matter with me tonight."

"Darling, I'm so sorry! But you do work too hard and you stay in that horrid old office when you ought to be outside enjoying yourself with the rest of us. Listen, you must take a hot bath, and lots of medicine and liniment—"

He pushed her away in protest.

"Not a chance! Little sleep's all I need. Say—with all that stuff you'd murder me."

Tony giggled.

"Here," she said, "I've got something I want to show you. Remember this?"

The girl had reached for an object lying on the cofee table. She picked it up, handed it toward her father and waited.

It was a photograph made 10 or 12 years earlier. The gray photographic print was mounted upon a white card. In the group were a man, a woman and two children. The woman was seated with the boy and girl on either side of her. The man stood behind the wooden bench on which they sat.

No doubt about it. The man was Arthur Knight and the little girl in organdie must have been Tony.

"Well, well!" Knight exclaimed. "Yes, I certainly do remember this picture. Got one of 'em put away somewhere. Where'd you find it?"

"I was looking through my desk this afternoon, hunting some things I wanted to pack. It was in with a lot of other old stuff and I got it all out and looked through it. Why, I can remember that white dress just as well! The sash was pink and wasn't I proud of it—"

Her words broke as Judith Knight appeared in the doorway. Judith was not look particularly well. Her eyes were suspiciously red-rimmed.

Instantly Tony sprang to her feet.

"Look, Judith," she said sweetly. "Here's a picture I've been showing to Father. Isn't it quaint? Would you ever recognize me? And that's Junior, of course, and Father and Mother. I remember Father bought us all ice cream sodas after we left the studio."

Judith took the faded card in her hand and studied it. She had never before seen a photograph of Arthur's former wife. She had wondered about that other woman, of course. Now a chilling, icy shiver crept down her spine.

"How—sweet!" said Judith uncertainly.

She could not raise her eyes from the picture. That woman sitting there, smiling so happily, was the bride Arthur Knight had first loved. She wore a gown which seemed curious now. One arm rested on each of her children. Yes, there was a marked similarity between her face and that of Arthur Junior's today. The boy was attired in a stiff white linen sailor suit.

All of them were smiling. All of them looked happy. A family picture!

Suddenly the photograph blurred before her. It was tantalizing to see Arthur—such a strange, youthful Arthur—smiling at her in that prideful way, lordfully exhibiting his family.

"Oh—oh, I'm so sorry!"

A large, round tear had fallen on the photograph. Judith dabbed at it hastily, trying to remove the mark. The circle had fallen directly upon the face of the first Mrs. Knight!

"Here—I'll take it," Tony told the other girl coolly. "I hope the mark isn't going to show."

Judith returned the photograph.

"I hope not," she echoed weakly. Then she turned away from Tony and Arthur.

Harriet saved the situation by announcing that dinner was ready to be served.

Just how Tony Knight had become aware that relations between her father and stepmother were slightly strained is not so easy to explain. Nevertheless she had sensed the situation and cleverly she played upon it.

With actress instinct Tony Knight became for that evening the devoted, dutiful child. She deferred to her father constantly throughout the meal. She kept the conversation on the past, thereby forcing Judith to be solely a listener. She reminded Arthur Knight of incidents which set them both laughing but were mysteries to Judith.

Just when the older girl thought she could not tolerate the situation another moment, Tony apologized contritely.

"Oh, Judith," she said, "all this must be awfully dull for you!"

There was nothing the miserable young wife could do but smile and voice assurances that she was heartily enjoying the evening.

Knight should have noticed how affairs were heading. He did not.

After they had left the table and finished their coffee Tony suggested a game of cribbage. It had long been a favorite pastime with Arthur Knight. Judith did not play.

Her husband objected.

"Better make it bridge," he said. "Judith, we want you in on this."

"Oh, no. Please! Go ahead and play, you and Tony. Really I'd much rather not. I'm not at all in the mood for cards this evening and I'd much rather finish my chapter."

She picked up a volume she had been reading during the afternoon, leaving Knight and his daughter to their game.

The contest had not progressed far when Tony suddenly laid down her cards.

"Oh—I forgot! There's something I wanted to ask you, father. You know I sort of forgot and—well, I asked Andy to come around Thursday night."

"What's wrong with that?"

"Nothing, only it's our last evening at home, you know. After I said he could come I was sorry."

"But why?"

"Well, don't you think when Wednesday's the last night we'll be together for so long it would be nicer to spend it without any outsiders?"

Judith glanced up from her book.

"You say you asked Andy to come over?" she said. "You mean for the evening or dinner?"

"Oh, just for the evening. Only I'm sorry now that I did it."

"That's all right," Knight cut in. "Andy won't interfere. Send him home again if you don't want him here."

"Well—if you don't mind," said Tony. "I suppose it will be all right."

From swift scrutiny it appeared to Judith that Tony Knight was entirely serious. Judith could hardly believe her ears.

The uncomfortable evening came to a finish at last. Judith had brushed her hair for the night, dabbed cold cream on her cheeks, then dabbed it off again, and slipped a dainty orchid gown over her head when she suddenly sought her husband. Her eyes were downcast as she spoke.

"Arthur, I'm sorry—I mean I don't want to go to Mrs. West's dinner Wednesday after all. I'm sorry for what I said."

"Why, Judith!"

"I'll telephone her tomorrow and say it's impossible for us to attend."

Knight looked at her curiously.

"But if you really want to go—"

"No. That was just nonsense. Let's forget about it."

They kissed and the incident should have been ended. Unfortunately not five minutes afterward the name of Andy Craig popped into Knight's mind. Tony had said Andy was coming to spend the evening Wednesday. Judith had decided to remain at home.

Possibly had Arthur Knight not been a sick man (without knowing it) a relation between these two situations would not have occurred to him.

But Arthur Knight was feeling ill. He dismissed the headache and the sneezing as merely the disagreeable forerunners of a head cold. He twisted and turned in his bed and found that sleep would not come. Finally in the early morning hours he drifted into troubled slumber.

Morning came and Judith, the moment her eyes lit on her husband, became alarmed.

"Arthur," she said anxiously, "I believe you're feverish. Don't you think you'd better stay here and rest this morning?"

"Isn't anything. Just a cold. I'll feel better after I've had some coffee."

They dressed and went downstairs for breakfast. Judith noticed that her husband's eyelids looked heavy and that his face was flushed.

"Really," she repeated, "I don't think you should go to the office today, Arthur. Even a cold should be stopped at the very beginning. Let me call Miss Tupper and say you're staying home for the morning."

Knight shook his head.

"Wouldn't know what to do with myself," he insisted. "I hate sitting around—always feel worse. Anyhow, I tell you it's nothing but a cold. Give me another cup of coffee, will you?"

Judith poured the coffee. Later she saw him depart amid misgivings. Arthur Knight looked too ill to be setting off for a day in the city.

She was worried all mornnig. At 11 o'clock she telephoned and was told that Mr. Knight was in conference. Would she care to leave a message?

Judith said no. Perhaps, after all, Arthur had been right. If business was taking his mind from himself maybe he really did feel better in the office.

She and Tony had lunch together. There was one more final fitting of Tony's gold evening gown and Bert was instructed to have the car at the door at two o'clock. The younger girl had gone upstairs to dress but Judith was in the dining room talking with Mrs. Wheeler when they heard someone enter the house.

"I wonder—" said Judith.

She turned toward the hallway. Another moment and a stifled cry cut the air.

Capitol Notes

Marigold Rollins, first girl page in the Texas legislature, greatly admires the two women members of the house of representatives for whom she pages. They are Mrs. Laura Burleson Negley of San Antonio, daughter of former Postmaster General A. S. Burleson, and Mrs. Helen Moore of Texas City.

Mrs. Burleson inherits the political sagacity of her father. An apparently innocent resolution was presented for her signature, proposing that women prisoners be accorded the same privileges as men prisoners. This includes smoking. Mrs. Burleson declined to sign in that form. "Make your resolution read that men prisoners shall not be granted privileges not also granted women prisoners," she suggested.

Arthur C. Johnson of Dalhart, new member of the legislature succeeding John White of Borger, resigned, makes the fourth Johnson in the body. Others are A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs, A. S. Johnson of Winona and W. E. Johnson of Snyder.

Sam Houston Allred of Corsicana, another new member, succeeding State Commander Ernest Cox of the American Legion, is a cousin of "Jimmie" Allred of Wichita Falls, who ran a good race for attorney general two years ago.

Bowd Farrar of Waxahachie is an old-timer come back to this session of the legislature. He served in the 39th and 40th legislatures. He succeeds Elwin Gerron, who served in earlier sessions of the 41st legislature, but has moved out of the district.

J. A. Riley of Marshall, succeessor to Ben Woodall, resigned, has a "life expectancy" of about 25 years, he figures. He is an insurance man and so that is his way of putting his age, which others would call 46.

It is the Shell Petroleum corporation's E. L. Fowler No. 1, and it is estimated to be making from 8,000 to 10,000 barrels daily. Storage tanks had already been set up and are receiving the oil.

The pay was struck at 2,760 feet. So far, not a dry hole has been drilled in the field. All of the eight wells drilled has been producers.

SUNSET TRUCK LINE OWNER IS APPRECIATIVE

"Since Taking Orgatone I Have Gained Six Pounds and Feel Like a New Man," Says San Angelo Man.

Still another link is added to the long chain of evidence regarding the remarkable merits of Orgatone in the case of Mr. Walter Cowley, 801 Upton street, San Angelo, Texas, whose phenomenal health and strength by the use of the medicine was reported to an Orgatone representative.

"I have suffered for some time from what appeared to be a general run-down condition and nervousness. I had no appetite and hardly ate enough to keep me alive. I was so nervous I couldn't get any sound sleep and would get up in the mornings tired and lifeless without any energy. Gas formed on my stomach and caused shortness of breath which made be very miserable for hours afterwards. I had a very bad case of constipation and had frequent headaches. I had a dead liver. I was told, and so had pains in my back and always felt worn out and sluggish and just kept on going down hill.

"I had read and heard so much about what Orgatone was doing for others that I decided to see if it would help my case, and I will say that it has proven to be the right medicine in my case. No one could have a better appetite and I eat anything I want and digest it perfectly. My nervousness has disappeared and I sleep fine every night, and I get up in the mornings full of life and energy. My kidneys and liver seem to be in good condition and my constipation is a thing of the past. In fact, my general health has improved and I have actually gained six pounds in weight. Orgatone has certainly helped me and I am glad to recommend it to my friends.
