Candidates defend letter, seek 'chance'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan, after facing the worst heckling of his campaign, is defending a 24-year-old letter he wrote criticizing John F. Kennedy, while challenger Walter Mondale concedes the Carter-Mondale administration didn't do enough for the embattled steel industry and asks for another chance.

Reagan remembered today the anniversary of the U.S. rescue-invasion of Grenada.

"One year ago, we liberated Grenada from Communist thugs that had taken that country over in a coup," Reagan said Tuesday in Seattle. "Do you know that my opponent called what we did a violation of international law that erodes our moral authority to criticize the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan?"

The president was flying back to Washington following a rally in Columbus, Ohio, ending a four-day campaign swing, and speaking to students who were brought home from Grenada by the military operation one year ago. Nineteen U.S. servicemen died in that operation.

Mondale, meanwhile, was campaigning in the Midwest, looking for farm votes in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Michigan.

Mondale on Tuesday dusted off a 24-year-old letter penned by "Ronnie Reagan" to then-Vice President Richard Nixon in the summer of 1960 in which Reagan compared the campaign proposals of John F. Kennedy to "big brother" government of Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler.

The letter was obtained from a National Archives branch in California.

The White House confirmed the letter was genuine, and Reagan said in Columbus: "Read it. You'll see there's nothing wrong with it."

For Mondale, the letter was a rejoinder to weeks of hearing the Republican president invoke a pantheon of late Democratic heroes, including Kennedy. He has accused Reagan of "political grave robbing" and said Reagan associates himself with "any Democrat who is dead."

"Any adult who tries to compare Jack Kennedy with the ideas of Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler is not going to improve with age," said Mondale. "That is the truth. Mr. Reagan will have to live with the truth."

At the time he wrote the letter, Reagan was the host of the TV show "Death Valley Days" and was a leader of the Democrats for Nixon organization. Nixon was the GOP nominee who lost that year to Kennedy.

On the West Coast before heading East, Reagan was invoking yet another Democrat, the late Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, D-Wash. He said in Seattle that as a senator, Mondale sided on defense issues with George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic standard bearer, not Jackson.

"So if you liked George McGovern's defense policies, you'll love my opponent's," Reagan said.

Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, was back in Washington after ending a campaign swing in Wisconsin. He said Reagan will ultimately "take the responsibility" for distribution of a CIA guerrilla warfare manual to rebel forces in Nicaragua.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was in California beginning a four-day West Coast tour after hitting at Bush for saying the GOP ticket has wrapped up this election.

"The arrogance of this administration astounds me," she said.

Mondale's Midwestern swing was aimed at winning back Democrats who have showed an inclination to back Reagan.

In economically depressed Youngstown, Ohio, Mondale said the local steel industry "suffered terribly under this administration and far too much under our administration, and I will admit it."

Mondale, who served as Jimmy Carter's vice president, said, "Let's forget about the past. Let's admit that none of us have done what is needed for this region. The question is who will be better for this region, me or Reagan."

In Chicago, Mondale appeared with the city's feuding Democratic leaders, Mayor Harold Washington and party chairman Eddie Vrdolyak for a show of unity.

Filipino armed forces chief on 'leave'

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines — Gen. Fabian C. Ver, chief of the Philippines' armed forces and a close friend of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, went on "temporary leave" today after a fact-finding board accused him of complicity in the assassination of Benigno Aquino.

Neither the majority nor minority reports of the Marcos-appointed board implicated the president in the killing, and this led to charges by Aquino's family and opposition figures of a cover-up.

The government news agency quoted a "saddened" Marcos as announcing Ver's departure shortly after the majority report by four of the five board members named Ver among 25 military men and one civilian who allegedly plotted the murder of Aquino.

The opposition leader was shot in the head while under military escort at Manila's main airport as he returned home on Aug. 21, 1983, from voluntary exile in the United States.

The four board members said they were "satisfied that the evidence proves the complicity" of Ver in what they called the "premeditated murder" of Aquino.

The board said it had received "overwhelming" evidence showing that the military's "elaborate plans ostensibly geared toward protecting the life of Sen. Aquino were in reality designed to camouflage the taking of that life."

Marcos said in a statement that he sent the majority report to judicial authorities for prosecution — in the same way he had handled the dissenting report of board chairwoman Corazon Agrava on Tuesday. Mrs. Agrava's report concluded Ver was not involved and accused air force Gen. Luther Custodio and six soldiers of plotting the murder.

The government said Ver, in a letter to Marcos, proclaimed his innocence and asked to be relieved until the "trial at the Sandiganbayan (a special civilian court) is finished."

"I never imagined in my wildest dreams that I would be implicated in the Aquino cases," said Ver, also requesting an immediate separate trial.

Justice Minister Estelito Mendoza said at a news conference that he expected those named in the majority report would be restricted to quarters.

Shortly after the majority report's release, a secretary for board member Luciano Salazar said Salazar and board member Dante Santos had been barred from leaving the country on a flight to Hong Kong, having been told they needed clearance from the presidential palace.

Cheaper food offset by sharp gasoline price hike

By SALLY JACOBSEN
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose a moderate 0.4 percent in September as gasoline prices rose at their steepest clip in 16 months but food prices dipped slightly, the government said today.

The new report showed a stark reversal in the summer-long trend of cheaper gasoline but rising food prices.

With only three months left in the year, consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of just 4.2 percent, close to the 3.8 percent posted for all of last year.

Today's Labor Department announcement of September price activity will trigger a cost-of-living increase for the nation's 36.1 million Social Security recipients and a refiguring of income tax brackets to account for inflation. Both changes will come in January.

Based on inflation over the last year, Social Security recipients will see their monthly checks rise 3.5 percent, which translates into an average of $15 for a typical single retiree and $26 for an average retired couple.

The Social Security increases will match last year's 3.5 percent cost-of-living adjustment, which was the smallest gain since benefits were first tied to the Consumer Price Index in 1975.

The government also will use today's price report to rejigger income tax brackets to ensure that taxpayers aren't pushed into a higher bracket merely because their wages kept pace with inflation.

That "indexing" adjustment will be the first since Congress adopted its across-the-board tax cut program in 1981.

The adjustment, also based on the pace of inflation over the last year, will translate into an extra $1 a week in take-home pay for a typical $25,000-a-year, one-earner couple with two children and $15 a week for a $250,000 family, according to calculations by the AP.

As for prices themselves, the Labor Department said September gasoline costs rose 1.1 percent, the sharpest gain since May 1983. The new increase followed three months of falling prices.

Even with last month's sharp advance, however, gasoline prices are 14.5 percent below their peak of March 1981.

Analysts said they expect the September gain to be temporary.

Indeed, the current chaos among oil-producing nations struggling to maintain common prices in the face of dwindling demand is expected to bring fresh declines.

As for food, the department said the 0.1 percent overall drop was in large part the result of declines in prices for beef, eggs and pork.

'Indexing' will result in small tax reduction for many Americans

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — A four-member family with income of $25,000 will get a $1-a-week tax cut next year because of the "indexing" change designed to squeeze inflation out of the federal tax system.

A single person earning $30,000 and claiming average deductions will realize a tax reduction of almost $2 week. The single earner with income of $200,000 is due a tax cut of about $8 week because of indexing.

Indexing, which was enacted in 1981, will go into effect on Jan. 1, increasing the standard deduction and personal exemption and widening the tax brackets by 4.1 percent to account for inflation. According to a Labor Department report released today, the Consumer Price Index rose 4.1 percent during the 12 months ending Sept. 30. The tax adjustments will be made each January, based on the inflation rate in the preceding October-through-September period.

Without indexing, anyone who received a cost-of-living raise next year that just matched the rate of inflation would end up with less disposable income because of the "progressive" nature of the tax system. As income rises, so does the percentage of earnings that is taxed away. Tax analysts say that unless the system is adjusted to account for inflation, a person who receives a 10 percent pay raise will pay 16 percent more in taxes.

Indexing will mean a tax cut of $47 in 1985 for a typical single taxpayer with average deductions and income of $20,000. The $40,000 single person will get a $150 tax cut.

A one-earner couple with two children and income of $20,000 will see a $38 tax cut in 1985 because of indexing. The family of four with $25,000 income — about the median, according to the government — will realize a $51 tax reduction.

Teen's homework assignment keeps those cards, letters coming

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Ask and ye shall receive, as 13-year-old Jimmy Olson has learned many times over.

Jimmy figures he's gotten 90 pounds of pamphlets, maps, pictures, books and letters since Oct. 3 when he asked readers of The San Francisco Chronicle for help with his homework.

The Chronicle printed his letter requesting information about the City by the Bay. Three days later, the envelopes started arriving.

"I got like two or three packets today. The big envelopes...books, maps, pamphlets, news clippings," Jimmy, an eighth-grader, said Tuesday.

He also received a visit from a new San Francisco friend, Barry Bloom, who had attended the same school, F.A. Junior High School in Newton.

"A lot of people have written that if I ever get out there, they'd show me around," said Jimmy. "I'm waiting for some plane tickets."

Connector failure caused outage downtown, TESCO report says

From Staff Reports

An electrical power outage Tuesday night in downtown Midland, which left some downtown buildings without power for more than an hour, was caused by a connector failure in a circuit, according to TESCO reports.

Gerald Gotcher of the Midland TESCO office said the failure in a connector on Tennessee St. between Big Spring and Colorado at 8:17 p.m. Tuesday affected many of the streetlights in North Midland and 15-20 downtown buildings.

By 8:45 p.m., the problem had been isolated to the downtown buildings, and by 9:25 p.m all the buildings' power had been restored, said Gotcher.

Texas couple killed in Manila hotel fire

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Eight people, including a Texas couple, were killed in a fire that destroyed a luxury resort hotel where about 200 American World War II veterans had gathered for a reunion, authorities said today.

Police in Baguio, 125 miles north of Manila, said four of the bodies found today in the Pines Hotel were charred beyond recognition and no immediate identification could be made.

Officials identified the other four victims as Hamilton and Cindy Cosnahan of Dallas, Filipino tourist guide Godofredo Latugan, and a tourist believed to be from South Korea.

The cause of the fire, which razed the wooden hotel after it broke out late Tuesday night, has not been determined.

Authorities said at least 19 of the 65 injured people were foreigners, including 13 Americans who were airlifted to nearby Clark Air Base for treatment. Helicopters from the base had been used to rescue people trapped on the hotel roof, they said.

Hotel sources said about 200 U.S. veterans were holding a "reunion for peace" conference at the Pines when the fire broke out.

The Americans were part of the group that participated last week in 40th anniversary celebrations of Allied forces landing on Leyte island in the central Philippines.

An intern at Baguio general hospital said the Cosnahans were pronounced dead of suffocation on arrival at the hospital.

Succession soothing Korean relations?

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — North Korea's new and conciliatory attitude toward South Korea is being viewed by U.S. officials as an attempt by the country's aging leader, Kim Il Sung, to lay the groundwork for his eventual succession.

One informed official, admitting he has been "startled" by North Korea's changed tone, said Kim seems eager to leave the best situation possible for the most likely potential successor, his son, Kim Jong Il.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, also said North Korea has been influenced by South Korea's growing economic superiority and the perception that the South would be able to repel any bid by the North to reunify the peninsula by force.

The South's principal assets are the 39,000-member U.S. military presence in the country and a superior air force that soon will be further upgraded with the addition of 36 F-16 jet fighter planes. On the economic side, North Korea recently defaulted on part of its foreign debt, one reflection of its generally stagnant economy.

At 73, the elder Kim has been in power for almost 40 years and is the world's longest ruling head of government. "Kim knows he's going to die eventually and he wants to get his ducks in a row to minimize the uncertainties once that happens," said one official.

In its most recent move to expand contacts with the South, North Korea agreed to the Seoul government's proposals for economic talks and suggested they begin on Nov. 15 in the truce village of Panmunjom.

It would be the first government-to-government contact between the two sides in four years. U.S. officials said it was significant that North Korea, in its letter accepting the proposal, departed from normal practice by addressing South Korean Deputy Prime Minister Shin Byung-hyon by his proper title.

The letter was sent just a few days after North Korea, in a move that shocked veteran Korea watchers here, provided relief assistance to flood victims in the South. It was the first time since the Korean War broke out 34 years ago that goods moved freely across the demarcation line that separates the two states.

Events on the peninsula have been a major concern to Washington for years because it is one of the few areas of the world where the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as China and Japan, all have major interests. For most of the postwar period, the two Koreas have been implacable enemies.

The United States has been encouraging a dialogue between Seoul and Pyongyang aimed at achieving a reduction of tensions and hopes that the current steps toward conciliation will lay the groundwork for such talks.

Any such process, the administration believes, should begin with modest confidence building measures, such as prior mutual notification of military exercises and the removal of armaments from the demilitarized zone.

A year ago, North-South relations had reached a low point after 17 South Koreans, including four Cabinet ministers, died in a terrorist attack in Burma while President Chun Doo Hwan was on a state visit. Chun, the target of the attack, escaped unharmed. Burmese investigators said the attack, which occurred just a day after the North had launched a peace initiative, was carried out by North Korean agents.

U.S. officials said Pyongyang's apparent strategy was to kill Chun and much of the South Korean government hierarchy. The North, according to the officials, felt that a weak government would have emerged in the South in the strife-torn aftermath, thus enabling the North to deal with its neighbor from a position of strength.

After this strategy backfired, the officials said, the North shifted its strategy toward accommodation. In addition to the cooperation in humanitarian relief last month, the two sides also have agreed to open a direct North-South telephone line for the first time.

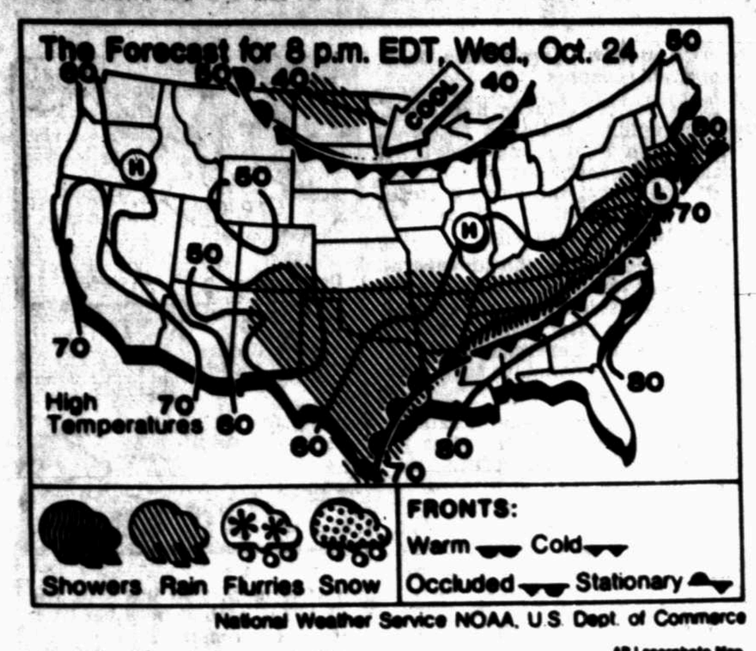
WEATHER SUMMARY



National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

Rain is forecast from the Southwest to the Northeast, in Montana and North Dakota, with showers from Mississippi into the mid-Atlantic States, according to the National Weather Service.

Rain showers continue throughout Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain continues throughout the Midland area and the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts a 50 percent chance of even more today with a few possible thunderstorms tonight decreasing to a 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms on Thursday.

Lows tonight are expected to be in the mid 40s warming to highs in the upper 50s Thursday. Winds from the southwest will be at five to 15 mph becoming northwesterly at five to 15 mph.

Tuesdays high of 48 was 42 degrees below the record high set in 1934. The low of 46 was 13 degrees above the record low set in 1960.

STATE

Fog reduced visibility to less than one-half mile along the upper Texas coast, including the Houston area, early today while forecasters warned of possible snow and freezing rain in the Guadalupe Mountains of West Texas.

Forecasters in Southeast Texas warned that visibility would likely drop to near zero before the fog lifted during the mid-morning.

A cold front remained stalled off the Texas coast, causing scattered showers and thunderstorms over northwestern sections of the Gulf of Mexico and creating overrunning conditions in Southeast Texas, including fog and drizzle.

Winds were mostly light, 5-10 mph, around the state early today except in the Panhandle where easterly winds were reported.

Other readings around the state included 43 at Amarillo, 51 at Longview and Dallas-Fort Worth, 53 at Waco, 54 at Austin, 55 at San Antonio, 59 at Corpus Christi, 60 at Brownsville, 50 at San Angelo, 43 at Lubbock and 47 at Midland.

Forecasts called for cloudy skies, cool temperatures, scattered showers and light rain statewide today. Highs were to be mostly in the 60s and lower 70s.

NATION

Snow returned to the mountains of Colorado and New Mexico today and much of the rest of the nation was under cloudy skies as more rain drenched flooded southern Louisiana.

In Delcambre, La., nearly 2,000 residents were urged to leave town because of high water, said Vermilion Parish Sheriff Ray LeMaira. About 50 people in New Iberia were moved to a National Guard armory.

Louisiana's bayou country had nearly 12 inches of rain Tuesday.

About 11.57 inches of rain had fallen by early today in Jeanerette, 11.02 inches in Butte la Rose, 9.4 inches in New Iberia and 8 inches in Abbeville.

Government in pre-election 'stall'

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — It happens every four years. Throughout the government, a "manana" attitude has set in. All sorts of projects, big and small, that normally would be percolating through the bureaucracy — from selling Conrail to rewriting the tax code — are on hold, awaiting the election.

For example:

— The government is considering changing the color of U.S. currency — blue for $5 bills, perhaps, or red for $10 notes — but any decision has been put off until after the election.

— Medicare is heading for big financial problems, sometime in the 1990s. Everybody agrees on that. But no work has been done on framing a solution. The issue has been put aside — until after the election.

— Martin Feldstein stepped down as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers on July 10. President Reagan isn't expected to select a successor — until after the election. Insiders say he didn't want to give Democrats in Congress a chance to turn confirmation hearings into a forum on problems still plaguing the economy, like high interest rates and big deficits.

— In March, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission approved new guidelines for selecting a site where radioactive wastes can be stored. The effect was to postpone narrowing the list of potential sites — until after the election.

— At this time of year, the government would normally be giving shape to a budget for the 1986 fiscal year that the president will submit to Congress in January. According to Edwin Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, the review of department and agency budget proposals by the director of OMB has been postponed.

"We don't plan to have any director's review until after the election," Dale says.

Is the election a factor?

"Well, you guess."

There's nothing especially unusual about any of this. It happens every election year, no matter which party is in the White House. There's just no point making decisions that might rile anyone up so close to an election.

But the effect is a government running in place.

Lots of things, from arms control to drafting a farm program for Congress to consider next year, just aren't getting finished.

Few officials, of course, openly acknowledge that there's been any politicization of the timetable.

One who did, in an interview in February, was William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. He said he would probably put off acting on some good ideas on revising pesticide laws until after the election.

"Given the politicization (of these issues), I am concerned about raising meritorious ideas for fear they'll be discussed in the heat of political battle," Ruckelshouse told a reporter. "Maybe we just ought to keep studying some issues."

Lee M. Thomas, an assistant administrator at EPA, asked Congress on Sept. 19 to postpone extending legislation expanding the "superfund" toxic wastes cleanup program until later.

"While we are committed to reauthorize superfund in a manner to build on the momentum already achieved, we believe it is premature to enact legislation this year," Thomas said.

On the campaign trail, Democrat Walter Mondale has been trying to make capital of the administration's tendency to defer controversial decisions.

In steel towns, for example, Mondale has seized on the administration's proposal to seek voluntary agreements with other steel countries to limit imports.

"What was the Reagan plan?" Mondale asked a union rally in Cleveland on Sept. 26. "Well, it's voluntary negotiations. We won't know the results of this plan until — guess what — after the elections."

The Democratic presidential candidate also charges that the administration has a "secret" plan to deal with taxes and the deficit, to be unveiled after the election.

In his State of the Union address in January, Reagan said he would conduct a study to come up with "a complete overhaul of our tax system to make it more fair and provide greater incentives for everyone to work, save and invest."

The results are due in December — after the election.

Asked why he was waiting until then to turn in the report, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan denied that politics had anything to do with it.

"It's because I couldn't possibly have enough time to accomplish it," he said. "They only gave me 10 months to do it and it should really take me a couple of years."

But back in April, Feldstein, in a memo, urged Reagan not to come out for an increase in the $1,000 personal exemption from federal income taxes. The memo acknowledged that the Treasury secretary's study was geared for post-election delivery.

"I think that it would be wrong to commit to any such major change in tax rules before you have considered the full range of options that the Treasury is developing for discussion with you after the election," Feldstein wrote the president.

Environmentalists, distrustful of the administration's intentions, say action has been postponed on a host of matters — acid rain, toxic waste dumps, coal leasing, safe drinking water, pesticides, offshore drilling.

"Clearly they're on hold until after the election," said Marion Edey of the League of Conservation Voters, the political arm of the environmental movement. "The Reagan administration has been trying to hold them off."

In foreign policy, too, the big questions await the election returns.

Arms control talks are stalemated, but Reagan national security adviser Robert McFarlane predicts a resumption next year and asserts that achieving major cutbacks in U.S.-Soviet nuclear stockpiles will be a "passionate preoccupation" of a second term if the president is re-elected.

Reagan blames the Soviets for the slowdown here. He says they are in "hibernation" and "hunkering down" after the deaths of Leonid Brezhnev and Yuri Andropov and the rise of Konstantin Chernenko.

Bob Sims, deputy White House press secretary, denies that the political timetable has affected the conduct of foreign policy.

"We've tried to maintain policy and carry it out without regard to election politics," he said. "It's the president's view that politics should stop at the water's edge.

"So we've tried to keep on doing foreign policy while the campaign was on and to keep them as separate as possible."

The proposed sale of Conrail, the government-owned freight railroad, is a classic case of put-it-off. Earlier this year, the Transportation Department gave every indication it wanted to find a buyer as soon as possible. Suddenly, work on the big sale slowed down.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole denies that politics had anything to do with the abrupt change of pace, but it occurred after several Republican senators wrote letters to the White House warning that a quick sale could expose the GOP to changes from Democrats of a "giveaway."

A sale also might have antagonized shippers who use Conrail — many of them in key states such as Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Another example is a study to change the feel and looks of currency. In a few years, photocopying machines will be so sophisticated that they could be used to counterfeit money. So there's thought being given to making bills different colors, or even multicolored, or to weaving metal threads through the paper.

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, learning of the plans a year ago, objected to any changes in U.S. currency, and suddenly officials clammed up.

Asked if the idea had been sidetracked until after the election, Robert J. Leuver, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said, "The election's irrelevant," but then added: "With an election, nobody has time to focus on the problem. Everybody's sort of worrying about the election right now, so it just isn't the appropriate time to focus on it."

Flooding threatens Louisiana

Associated Press

NEW IBERIA, La. — Storms blanketed sodden southern Louisiana today after the heaviest downpour in 20 years unleashed nearly 12 inches of rain in 24 hours, driving snakes into homes and causing widespread flooding that killed one person and forced the evacuation of thousands, authorities said.

"We're expecting heavy rains" throughout the day, Hugh Crowther, a forecaster at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today. "There will still be some showers and thundershowers for the next couple days."

Delcambre's nearly 2,000 residents were urged to leave town entirely, said Vermilion Parish Sheriff Ray LeMaira. About 50 people in New Iberia were moved to a National Guard armory after water and snakes invaded their homes.

"I was just thinking about getting my children out and nothing else," said Norma Curley, 42. "By the time we got out, the water was chest-deep and there were snakes all over the place."

The streetlights were at full power by 10:30 p.m and the damage was repaired by 11 p.m. Tuesday, said Gotcher, though lights blinked one time prior to 11 p.m. as TESCO technicians switched back to the main circuits.

Among the buildings affected were RepublicBank First National Midland, the Building of the Southwest, Midland Savings, the Metro Building, the Gulf Building and Ghils Towers.

TESCO had not determined why the connector malfunctioned, said Gotcher, noting they routinely are loosened over time. He said precautions were taken to catch the defective connectors before they caused a power outage, but testing does not always succeed.

Correction

Tommy Hubbard, 27, one of two crewmen killed in a mishap on a Cactus Drilling Corp. oil rig northwest of Midland late Saturday night, was a floorhand on the rig. He was identified incorrectly in Monday's Reporter-Telegram as the tool pusher. The tool pusher was Bill Hazelwood, 51.

Also killed in the accident was 31-year-old Donald Calvin Chadwick, the motorman who also was the lead tong man, according to a Cactus spokesman.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Hundreds of spacecraft trivia buffs have a sketch of a top-secret Navy satellite — because it appeared on a souvenir envelope selling for $1 at the Johnson Space Center gift shop for at least three years.

The souvenir, bearing a likeness of a satellite said to monitor Soviet ship movement, languished on the shelves for years until a published report this week revealed its classified nature.

The envelope, with a 13-cent stamp postmarked April 30, 1976, from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., shows a purple and blue sketch of the satellite called Project Whitecloud which was launched on that date.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials got the last one late Monday and delivered it to security officials, William Grimes, manager of exchange operations at Johnson Space Center, said Tuesday.

An article in this week's Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine revealed that the gift shop was selling the postal covers. The magazine said that the project was "so secret they are not supposed to use the Project Whitecloud name over the telephone."

After the article appeared Monday, an estimated 25 to 35 copies of the commemorative envelope sold quickly, gift center clerks said.

While space center officials said Tuesday that the project was declassified and scrapped in 1977, the project contractor and a Navy spokesman said that only the name, Project Whitecloud, was declassified, while the project remained top secret.

Grimes said his office called the Department of Defense, which learned from the Navy that the project was canceled and declassified in 1977.

But Lt. Peter Johnstone, a spokesman for the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, said only the name was declassified and that some unclassified photos of the project were released in 1975 and 1976.

"Even if I knew anything about the project I couldn't talk about it because it's classified, but I don't know anything so the question is moot," Johnstone said. He would not say if the program was continuing under another name.

The Denver-based contractor, Martin Marietta Corp., was "kind of stuck at this point," said spokesman Walt Cooper. "We're trying to find out, but basically I just can't talk about it. It is still a classified program."

Couple took out more insurance day before fire, agent testifies

RUSK, Texas (AP) — A man and woman charged with arson in a fire that destroyed more than $1 million in property earlier this year in Nacogdoches had taken out a second insurance policy the day before the fire, an insurance agent testified.

Buddy Castleberry of the Castleberry Insurance Agency told the jury in the first day of testimony Tuesday that Kathryn Wade had taken out a $30,000 insurance policy April 13 on the contents of the shop she owned jointly with her husband, Donald Wade.

The Wades are charged with arson stemming from the April 14 fire in downtown Nacogdoches that destroyed Colony Mall and adjacent buildings. The Wades' shop, Fantasies, was one of several shops inside the turn-of-the-century building that were destroyed.

George Barham of Barham Insurance Agency also testified Tuesday that the Wades held another $20,000 insurance policy with his firm at the time of the fire.

Price reforms affecting Chinese style of living

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

PEKING — The price reforms in China's new experiment with market socialism will affect every household in a nation where subsidies support prices on everything from coal to spinach.

"We must be extremely prudent," the Communist Party said in its revolutionary document of Oct. 20, in converting to a system in which prices reflect supply and demand, and production costs.

The Party Central Committee ruled out any "general and spiraling price rise" and pledged that real incomes will not fall behind.

While abandoning the Soviet-type system of state controls and heavy subsidies, the Chinese did not reveal when prices will rise and by how much.

When the country's foremost leader Deng Xiaoping launched his first major reform in 1979 — the household-based "agricultural responsibility system" which dismantled the nation's communes and restored private plots and incentives — he forthrightly boosted state purchase prices for farm goods by 22 percent in the first year.

The public sensitivity to urban reform is such that five years later, the state has kept many retail prices below rates paid farmers.

At state markets in Peking, summer vegetables such as spinach and cauliflower cost as little as 1 cent per pound, and only three times that for cabbage in winter.

Cheap staple foods are one of many subsidized benefits enjoyed by China's 200 million city dwellers, whose salaries are low but whose expenditures reflect only a fraction of real costs.

A typical Peking working couple with one child earns about $55 a month and lives in a two-room apartment.

Their subsidized rent costs $1.85 a month, electricity, gas and water about $2.80. Central heating is free.

A state-subsidized commuter bus ticket costs 55 cents a month. Medical care is provided free by the employee's work unit or "danwei," and many get free uniforms or a clothing allowance.

School tuition and books cost $3.70 a semester.

Grain and cooking oil are rationed, and fresh fish is a rarity. Pork costs 41 cents per pound and eggs about 75 cents a dozen.

Trial reforms indicate that workers will be encouraged to buy their apartments, while other subsidies may be lifted.

Zhu Fugen, an engineer with the State Planning Commission, said vegetable subsidies will change first. But he added: "We will proceed with the reform very slowly, very methodically."

He confirmed reports that some people had been taking cash out of the bank to buy goods at current prices. "But this is to be expected initially," he said.

Thanks to the bonus system in many factories, incomes are rising quickly while costs remain stable — the government says inflation averaged 2.7 percent annually in 1979-83.

This has led to record bank deposits, with China's 1 billion people stashing away an average $37 in savings each.

It also means some people have the cash for color televisions — even deluxe Japanese models costing $666 — washing machines, refrigerators and fashionable Western-style clothes.

Peking workers asked about the reforms said they expected pay raises to compensate for any price hikes ahead.

But the old burden of state subsidies continues to divert resources that could back China's modernization drive, which Deng hopes will quadruple national output by the year 2000.

Western economists estimate that subsidies total 40 to 50 percent of domestic spending.

In a newspaper article Oct. 2, Xu Ming, a counselor in the State Planning Commission, said subsidies amounted to $53.3 billion from 1979 to 1983. "The state is ... over-burdened by subsidies," he said.

Under the reforms, state planners will allow market forces to help set prices, influence output and identify demand.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Thanksgiving services to mark Grenada rescue

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Grenada will mark the first anniversary of the U.S.-led invasion of the Carribbean island with two ecumenical thanksgiving services on Thursday and the closing of major businesses.

The Rev. Cyril LaMontagne, vicar general of the Roman Catholic Church, said one service would be at the Catholic cathedral in St. George's, Grenada's capital, and the other in the Anglican Church in Grenville, the island's second largest town.

"It is most appropriate that Grenadians should thank God for his deliverance effected last October through our friends in the Caribbean and United States," the church official said.

Grenada's Chamber of Industry and Commerce said that all members had been asked to close Thursday and that the island's 10 largest firms already had agreed to do so.

The intervention came after Prime Minister Maurice Bishop was executed on Oct. 19, 1983, and a Peoples Revolutionary Army junta took control of the government.

U.S. envoy given letter

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The U.S. ambasssador to Nicaragua was called to the Foreign Ministry and given a sternly worded letter accusing the United States of inciting terrorism and interfering in the country's Nov. 4 elections.

The letter was addressed to Secretary of State George Shultz and delivered Tuesday to Ambassador Harry E. Bergold Jr. by Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto.

The letter referred to a "sociological manual of operations in guerrilla warfare," reportedly drawn up and distributed by the Central Intelligence Agaency to guerrillas trying to topple Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

The letter said the manual, whose existence was disclosed last week, "constitutes new material proof" of "political terrorism" perpetrated by the United States against Nicaragua.

The booklet described ways in which guerrillas could "neutralize" foes by use of "selective violence," create martyrs within their own ranks and disrupt government activities.

Salvadoran leader killed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The Salvadoran army's leading field commander and three other top officers were among 14 people killed when their helicopter crashed during an offensive against leftist rebels.

The guerrillas claimed they shot down the helicopter, but the military said the crash Tuesday "almost certainly" was caused by mechanical failure.

Among those killed was Lt. Col. Domingo Monterrosa, 42, widely considered the army's most effective combat commander. His death marks the worst single blow to the Salvadoran military leadership in the 5-year civil war.

Black townships 'swept'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police and soldiers ended a massive anti-riot sweep through four black townships near Johannesburg, and police said the townships were quiet today after security forces withdrew.

Police spokesman Lt. Henry Beck said in Pretoria, the capital, that a total of 358 persons were arrested Tuesday in Sebokeng, Evaton, Sharpeville and Boipatong, most all on relatively minor charges. They began appearing in courts Tuesday.

Beck said 7,000 police and soldiers began withdrawing Tuesday night after one of the largest domestic security operations in South African history. The forces had moved in before dawn to seal off parts of the townships, including an area of Sebokeng where they checked 120,000 residents and nearly 20,000 houses.

Four Lebanese missing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Four Lebanese employees of The Associated Press disappeared this morning, and it was believed they had been kidnapped.

AP Chief Middle East correspondent Terry Anderson said it was believed the men had been abducted or seized in mostly Moslem west Beirut, but it was not known by whom.

The four failed to appear at the AP office in west Beirut after one of them, driver Moheddine Habbal, left before 7 a.m. to pick up two of the others in Christian east Beirut and a third in west Beirut.

The AP notified police as well as the Shiite Moslem Amal militia and the Druse Progressive Socialist Party militia, the two irregular forces that control west Beirut. The militias promised to organize search operations, and the police sent out missing notices.

Israeli prices increased

JERUSALEM (AP) — The government has increased prices of gasoline and basic foods by 24 percent and plans to implement wage and price controls in a bid to reduce spending and curb the 494 percent annual inflation rate.

In a speech to Parliament summing up two days of debate on the state of the nation, Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Tuesday: "This country is stuck in a terrible crisis. No speech can solve this...only iron patience and hard work.... The country has no money."

The projected $2 billion reduction in government spending doubles the original planned reduction in this year's $23 billion budget.

The new prices reflect both a reduction of government subsidies and the devaluation of the Israeli shekel. Due to inflation, the shekel loses value daily in Israel and some goods, such as gasoline, must be purchased with foreign currency. The new shekel price is in line with the real value of the goods.

Refugees leave embassy

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A pregnant woman and her boyfriend have left their refuge in West Germany's embassy in Czechoslovakia and returned home to East Germany, a Bonn government spokeswoman said today.

The two had holed up in the Prague embassy along with some 150 other East Germans to pressure their government into granting them permission to emigrate to West Germany. The woman is in her eighth month of pregnancy.

The pair, whom Bonn authorities refused to identify, left the embassy Tuesday, said the spokeswoman, who asked that her own name not be published.

She refused to give further details or to say whether the two East Germans had been promised exit visas by their government.

TURNOVER?

When Dallas Smith took office as sheriff, annual officer turnover rate was 69%. Today officer turnover rate is 24%. Turnover rate for all employees of the agency is 20%.

Dallas Smith improved working conditions. Inefficient and incompetent employees were weeded out. Salaries were increased to attract and keep better qualified officers. Morale climbed.

Turnover was declining even though a number of good officers and secretaries were lost to higher paying companies during the recent boom years.

Turnover was greatly reduced due to good management of a proven professional.

Fierce Senate race pits Republicans against each other

By TOM RAUM

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the fiercest Senate races this year is not in any of the 50 states but in the Senate itself — the battle among Republicans to pick a successor to Howard H. Baker Jr. as Republican leader.

If Republicans retain their control of the Senate — as strategists on both sides now anticipate — then the job will be for majority leader, the position now held by Baker, who is retiring.

If Democrats win back control, then the GOP struggle would be for the post of minority leader.

Either way, it's a pitched battle, with five candidates and no apparent front runner.

Those seeking the support of their Republican colleagues are: Sens. Bob Dole of Kansas, Ted Stevens of Alaska, Richard Lugar of Indiana, James McClure of Idaho and Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico.

The Senate chamber is empty now. Members are all home campaigning for re-election or vacationing.

But the race among the five candidates for the loyalty of other Republicans goes on. It goes on by letter, by phone call and by personal contact. Each of the the five is seeking personal commitments for support.

The new GOP leader will be chosen by secret ballot on Nov. 28, in a vote among those who will be in the Senate next year — including any new members elected Nov. 6.

Most senators agree that the even-tempered Baker is a hard act to follow, and the contrast between him and Stevens, who has a reputation for being sharp-tongued, appears to be hurting the Alaskan, who now has the No. 2 post. Stevens has campaigned the longest and possibly the hardest for the job.

Meanwhile, Lugar's star seems to be rising — in part because of his role as chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, a panel that distributes funds and other forms of campaign help to GOP Senate candidates.

And this year, under Lugar's rule, the committee has given the maximum allowable by law to every single Senate candidate — instead of focusing the most money in key races as the Democrats have done.

This has surely not lost Lugar any friends, and he may be able to cash in on his political IOUs when the ballots for Senate leader are passed around.

Meanwhile, Dole, who is not up for re-election this year, has formed his own fund-raising effort to help pump money into the campaigns of GOP colleagues who are running.

All five, in fact, have been going out of their way this year to be helpful to colleagues.

Since the vote is by secret ballot, and because senators are so divided on the issue, it seems unlikely that anyone will drop out before the election. So suspense keeps building.

Pennsylvania town once center of buggy production

MIFFLINBURG, Pa. (AP) — Visiting this quiet Union County town is like traveling back in time to a simpler place — to small-town America, with a narrow but bustling main street, quiet neighborhoods, a few small industries and a proud past.

It's a place with a covered bridge warning travelers that if they are riding or driving "at any other gait than a walk or driving more than 15 head of cattle or carrying fire in any way are subject to a fine of $30."

Mifflinburg, one of the smaller towns in one of Pennsylvania's smallest counties, could be considered a keystone of the Keystone State. It is in Buffalo Valley, a central part of Pennsylvania.

At the turn of the century, Mifflinburg was the center of the state's buggy-making industry and was nicknamed the "buggy capital of Pennsylvania."

Mifflinburg was incorporated in 1827, a combination of Youngmanstown and Rotestown, and named after Thomas Mifflin, the state's first governor.

Through the first half of the 19th century, Mifflinburg's businesses included stores, shops and hotels. The town had foundries, a tannery, gun shop and tailors. In those days, transportation options here were simple — foot or horseback.

Between 1846-75, brothers Thomas, Jacob and John Gutelius each opened buggy shops. Later, the Hoover, Royer, Condon, Heiss and Mifflinburg Buggy Co. shops opened.

Eventually, the town had between 20 and 40 buggy-building shops, some so small that only a single buggy could be built at a time. Some shops specialized in building and painting the bodies, some in forging the axles and gears.

In the early years, the buggies were made from oak limbs that were worked into hubs and formed to hold hickory spokes. Later, iron axles were used. As buggy production increased, buggy makers marketed their products by showing them at agricultural fairs, political rallies, reunions and various exhibits. Mifflinburg buggies became status symbols.

"Mifflinburg probably built more buggies — light, horse-drawn vehicles — than any town its size in the United States during the period between 1870 and 1920," said Charles Snyder, Union County historian and member of the Mifflinburg Museum board.

"It wasn't patents or a monopoly upon raw materials that developed the industry, but rather high-quality vehicles and aggressive salesmanship."

In 1897, three businessmen formed the Mifflinburg Buggy Co. The firm employed 30 mechanics and produced 12 buggies daily.

Take 'high road'

After several weeks of mud-slinging, the two men competing for the right to represent the State of Texas in the U.S. Senate supposedly have agreed to clean up their campaign acts — provided they debate by Friday. Given the importance of the political race in question, that's a worthy compromise, but don't think you've seen the last of the dirty ads just yet.

It could be just another of those "campaign promises."

Don't misunderstand, please. We welcome political campaigns that are carried out in the highest sense of public responsibility. But in the heat of a rapidly approaching election with political stakes as attractive as the one being sought by U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, the Republican, and Texas Sen. Lloyd Doggett, the Democrat, we'd be willing to lay odds the campaigns will grow dirtier before they get cleaner.

The political advertisements (to use the term loosely) that finally convinced Gramm to challenge Doggett to halt public and on-camera criticism between the two weren't the best examples of how a campaign should be waged, to say the least. Doggett accepted the Gramm challenge, if the two politicians can debate by Friday. This proposed compromise certainly isn't a final solution, but it is, at least, a step in the right direction.

It isn't so much that fiercely fought campaigns are the problem; on the contrary, they tend to bring into the limelight issues that need to be fully explored. In that regard, they actually enhance the political process.

All too frequently, though, what results is not enlightened debate in which each candidate forcefully addresses public issues in a respectable and intelligent manner, but innuendo-planting, name-calling and finger-pointing that taints the political process and gives public service less than an admirable image.

Unsavory campaigning isn't restricted to statewide or national political offices either, evidenced by the sheriff's race here in Midland County. In that race, Sheriff Dallas Smith faces Gary Painter, the Republican opponent who won the nomination over Smith in May, and the Democratic nominee, Joe Carr. In that race, as in the Gramm-Doggett contest and others nationwide, as the election has drawn nearer, political restraint has been thrown out the window by some of those involved and the campaign has shown it.

We're all the poorer for such despicable campaigning. All it does is shift the focus away from the really important issues in the particular race, consume time that would better spent talking about the political philosophies and qualifications of the various candidates, amuse for awhile and then, in many cases, infuriate a segment of the voting population that takes the political system in this country seriously (and that demands more from those elected as their representatives), and stir hard feelings that may linger for months or years after the election.

The step taken by Gramm and Doggett could be an example for other politicians throughout the state and nation — if they only will follow through by laying off the mud and, corny as it sounds, taking the high road in the days remaining before the election.

Another View:

Sharing pain in Spain

A specter of austerity now haunts Western Europe, greatly shrinking the distance between Tories and Socialists. With measures as tough as any taken by Margaret Thatcher of Britain, Spain's Socialist prime minister, Felipe Gonzalez, is proving how much the global economic changes of the 1970s have altered politics in the 1980s.

With unemployment at 18.5 percent, Gonzalez has called on labor and industry to negotiate terms for easier dismissals and lower real wages over the next two years. Bowing to his government's popularity, half the unions have agreed. Radicals threaten defiance and strikes.

Gonzalez is trying to prepare Spain's long-sheltered industries for entry into the European Common Market. But in a broader sense, he is joining the Continental movement to regain competitiveness. It's a movement that is fast making traditional Social Democratic policies obsolete.

Socialists like Gonzalez and President Francois Mitterrand of France try to distinguish themselves from Mrs. Thatcher and other conservatives by packaging their austerity programs as "social contracts." They aim to offer new subsidies to dislocated workers in exchange for concessions on wages, work rules and job security.

These deals may well erode the Socialists' standing in working-class communities. But Gonzalez, like Mitterrand, has recognized that there are no happier alternatives in an economically integrated world. To persist now with postwar Socialist programs of stimulus, full employment and nationalization would be to invite inflation and capital flight, thus defeating the main objective.

Europe's Democratic Socialists are finding that they must seek new supporters in emerging economic sectors to replace the votes they will lose in irreversibly declining industries. Whether they can make that shift and still maintain a distinctive Socialist identity remains an open question.

JACK ANDERSON

CIA trying to cover firm's spying

WASHINGTON — The CIA is engaged in a desperate effort to cover the tracks that lead from the spy agency directly to a Honolulu-based investment company now under federal and state investigation.

Jack Anderson

The company has been accused of bilking investors of $22 million since 1979.

My associates Indy Badhwar and Dale Van Atta have been investigating the scandal. Sealed testimony charges that the CIA — with the knowledge of the Justice Department, which is now prosecuting the investment company's executives — "has been hiding persons and changing the identity of other persons" who could give embarrassing testimony in the upcoming trial.

The damage-control operation is aimed at limiting the CIA's liabilities — financial and political — that could come from its clandestine involvement with the investment firm of Bishop, Baldwin, Rewald, Dillingham & Wong. The company's assets were frozen last year, and it has been placed under trusteeship in response to a bankruptcy petition and investor complaints.

The firm's chief executive, Ronald Ray Rewald, was jailed on charges of fraud; he was unable to raise the $10 million bail — the highest ever set in Hawaii. Rewald claimed he was running BBRD&W for the CIA. The agency denied it. So Rewald responded with a 54-page affidavit and 95 supporting exhibits showing that the investment firm was a CIA front.

Rewald lays the blame for the company's difficulties solely on the CIA, which has now admitted to a "low-level" involvement with BBRD&W.

But confidential documents and interviews with sources make it clear that the CIA's involvement goes much deeper. Here is what I've learned so far:

— After I first broke the scandal last week, CIA officials were forced to confirm that the agency ran a covert surveillance operation aimed at foreign students at the Hawaiian branch of Brigham Young University. A CIA agent recruited Rewald's son, Jimmy, to become a student at the university, to tail Chinese students on campus and to pilfer their records. A subsidiary of BBRD&W paid for and ran young Rewald's operation.

— Intelligence sources have confirmed that at least six CIA agents worked for BBRD&W in some capacity. Several invested money in the firm. After it collapsed, the CIA ran an internal investigation that resulted in the dismissal of one agent and disciplinary action against others.

— Former CIA director Stansfield Turner knew about BBRD&W, and used the company's chauffeured limousine on at least one visit to Honolulu.

— The CIA admitted to a grand jury that it paid $3,000 for BBRD&W's telephone, telex and printing bills. It had to. The FBI has obtained copies of checks made out to Rewald by the CIA's onetime Honolulu station chief, Jack Kindschi, who became a BBRD&W director when he retired from the agency.

— A source close to Lt. Col. James "Bo" Gritz revealed that funds for his ill-starred covert operation to locate American prisoners-of-war in Laos were paid through BBRD&W. The firm's files also contain a letter from a former deputy director of the Defense Intelligence Agency that indicated Pentagon support for the Gritz mission.

— Jack Rardin, the CIA station chief who succeeded Kindschi, sent regular reports of his meetings with Rewald to headquarters in Langley, Va. Rewald secretly tape-recorded several of the meetings.

— According to testimony given to the FBI, a Justice Department prosecutor assigned to the case said "that the agency (CIA) would take whatever affirmative steps (necessary) to protect the identity of certain agents ... that the agency would kill to protect one particular agent."

— According to Rewald's court-sealed affidavit, BBRD&W was a crucial part of the CIA's Pacific and Far East operations. The investment company was used as a conduit for funds that went into covert action and arms transactions, and as a way-station for cash that foreign VIPs wanted to ship to the United States.

Footnote: Rewald, who is under court orders not to talk about the case, could not comment. Through our own sources, however, we have obtained more than 100 pages of his prison interviews with his attorney.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: Readers have expressed growing concern over the reliability of all the fancy weapons their tax dollars are buying. Now I have to report that even the Navy's "old reliable" missile, the Sidewinder, is having problems.

A significant number have been found to have faulty fins — which means they can't be controlled properly on their way to the target.

Over the past eight years, about half the Sidewinder fins have been produced by Genii Research Inc. of New York. Samples tested last December failed to meet Navy specifications, and now the Pentagon's Criminal Investigation Service and a grand jury are studying the matter.

EDWIN FEULNER

Back to basics to prevent terror

It was perhaps not unexpected that in the aftermath of the latest Arab kamikaze mission in Beirut there was much finger pointing in Washington.

Edwin Feulner

Who's to blame? President Reagan, on whose watch this and similar attacks have occurred? Secretary of State George Shultz, who told a national television audience that if heads have to roll, let it be his? The Ford and Carter administrations, which presided over a dramatic cutback in U.S. intelligence naked before the world, held the intelligence services up to ridicule, threatened to name names, slashed budgets, and handed Ford and Carter the knives? Does it even make a difference?

The sad fact is that the U.S. intelligence services are just a shadow of what they were a couple of decades ago. And like it or not, the best anti-terrorist weapon in the U.S. arsenal is knowing where and when the enemy intends to strike. You can't do that with U-2 spy planes.

According to terrorism expert Samuel T. Francis, advisor to U.S. Senator John East (R-NC) and author of The Soviet Strategy of Terror, the U.S. is long overdue in tackling the politically sensitive task of rebuilding its intelligence services.

Four years ago, Francis, then at The Heritage Foundation, laid out the problem and proposed remedial action in the best-selling guidebook Mandate for Leadership: Policy Management in a Conservative Administration. Though the book appeared on newsstands before President Reagan took his oath of office, many of the changes are still awaiting action.

Francis proposes modest amendments in both the Justice Department guidelines governing intelligence gathering, and in the Freedom of Information Act, which he says makes sensitive government information too readily available to friend and foe alike, inhibiting recruitment of effective informants in terrorism and organized crime cases.

He also endorses the James Bondish idea of striking at terrorists before they hit us.

A classified National Security Decision Directive, signed by President Reagan long before the latest terrorist incident, reportedly instructed twenty-six different government agencies to develop plans for countering terror. The presidential directive caused some controversy because it allegedly authorized "preemptive strikes" against terrorist groups.

Francis says there is no reason why the U.S. shouldn't enage in "low-risk, low-level covert action" against terrorists. The purpose of such action would be to disrupt the terrorist organizations: hampering their ability to carry out acts of violence.

Before such counter-terrorism tactics can be employed, however, the U.S. needs to put it house back in order, guaranteeing the men in the field reliable information and secrecy. In other words, the U.S. needs to get back to basics in the intelligence field.

"Preemption and retaliation can be effective counter-terrorist measures," Francis says, "but policy-makers and potential terrorists should know when and how they will be used if they are to be effective."

The debate, far away from the headlines, has been going on for several years. If any good comes from the latest Beirut bombing, it won't be that one side or the other gains political capital from the incident, it will be that U.S. policy-makers finally face up to a very troublesome problem whose only solution is not for the squeamish.

Edwin Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.

ART BUCHWALD

Almighty dollar too strong?

Every time I read the dollar is getting stronger I am filled with patriotic fervor and I'm proud to be an American.

Art Buchwald

Therefore I was very annoyed when my French friend Alain came to Washington for a banking conference. I was prepared to be kind to him and not brag. Instead I found him patronizing ME.

"I am sorry your dollar is doing so well against the French franc," he said.

"What do you mean you're sorry it's doing so well? Do you realize I can now iio 10 francs for the dollar?"

"I know you can, and it's all right with us, because now we can export all our snails to the United States and Americans can afford to buy them. But we can't afford to buy any American snails because they're too expensive. You people should have a $5 million trade deficit in snails alone by the end of the year. That's why I feel sorry for you."

"The reason the dollar is strong, Alain, is because the rest of the world has faith in it. Our tourists can go anywhere and just by flashing greenbacks foreign merchants will grovel on the floor."

"Yes, but while they're groveling, they're buying United States Treasury notes with dollars. The reason is that you people are paying higher interest rates for money than anyone else."

"What's wrong with that?"

"Nothing, except your budget is so out of whack you have to continually borrow money from all over the world to meet your $200 billion deficit. As long as you have large budget deficits people will stay in dollars. Your dollar may be strong but your economy is in a mess."

"How can we have a strong dollar and an economic mess at the same time?"

"It's good to have a solid currency, but not one that makes it impossible to compete in the world marketplace. Let us go back to our snails. Because the franc is so weak, the French can undercut the price of American snails. So while you people are buying French snails, American snail producers have to lay off their workers because they have no market for them. Every country with a weak currency is flooding the United States with their exports, and all you people can do with the dollar is borrow more of them to pay your debt."

"You're just saying that because you want us to go back to having a weak dollar against a strong French franc."

"Up to a point. But we don't want you people to go into a recession, or you won't be able to buy any French snails. Also, with a weak dollar we would start buying American snails again, and that would hurt the export of French snails."

"How would you suggest we weaken our dollar?"

"You can't weaken it now unless you start printing more dollars, and that would only lead to inflation. If the dollar became inflated everyone would get into something more comfortable, like gold or the Japanese yen. Then you wouldn't be able to sell any more loans to meet the interest on your debt, and you'd be worse off than Brazil and Argentina."

"Alain, here I was willing to commiserate with you about your weak franc, and all you're doing is gloating about our strong dollar. Well, iet me tell you something. I don't like French snails, and neither do most Americans."

"Okay, forget snails. How would you like to buy this French alligator tennis shirt for half the price you would have to pay for an American one?"

"I'll take all you've got."

"That's why I feel sorry for you."

CIA tries to call back Nicaragua manuals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA is trying to recall several thousand copies of its psychological warfare manual that advises Nicaraguan rebels in the "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" government officials.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a Senate Intelligence Committee member, said Tuesday that CIA officials had told him they had ordered a "full recall" of all versions of the book and were instructing rebels that its contents "should be ignored."

A committee source said CIA officials also mentioned the recall during a closed briefing on Monday. The source, who insisted on anonymity, said the agency was trying to recover several thousand printed copies of three versions of the manual.

Meanwhile, in Green Bay, Wis., Vice President George Bush said he expects the president ultimately to "take the responsibility" for the manual's distribution.

Bush, a former CIA director said, "I've never seen a man who ultimately will take responsibility for things like the president." He added that "neutralize" in the manual "could mean various things."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he did not know what was meant by the word "neutralize." Asked about the CIA briefing on the manual that appeared to conflict with Reagan's debate explanation, Speakes said, "We'll wait 'til our investigation is complete" before commenting further.

CIA officials have told members of Congress that some deletions were made from the original manual produced last October, but that all editions — including one approved at CIA headquarters — contained references to using violence to "neutralize" Nicaraguan government officials.

President Reagan had asserted during Sunday's presidential debate that pages dealing with assassination were removed. He added that 12 copies of the original with references to such violent acts "some way ... got out down there."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., an intelligence committee member, said the word "neutralize" is subject to various interpretations, but added that when read in context, "it could lead one to the conclusion that the president's policy (barring assassinations) was being or could possibly be breached."

"Neutralize" is not defined in the manual but references to "danger to other individuals in the area of the target" and to assessing likely replacements suggest that the goal is to remove the officials physically.

CIA spokeswoman Patti Volz continued to refuse any comment about the manual.

On Saturday, Edgar Chamorro, chief of propaganda for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, known by its Spanish initials FDN, said it is the "practice" of his Honduran-based group to execute captured government officials who are deemed "criminals" by the local population.

Chamorro's remarks were disavowed by other FDN officials Monday. FDN spokesman Bosco Matamoros said, "We always reject and condemn political assassination and terrorism."

Social Security checks to rise by 3.5 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security checks that go to 36.1 million Americans will rise 3.5 percent in January, the government said today. The average retiree will get an extra $15 a month; the average elderly couple $26.

It is the second consecutive year benefits will rise by 3.5 percent — the smallest since Social Security payments were linked to inflation in 1975.

The raises became official with the Labor Department's release of its Consumer Price Index for September. The rise in Social Security benefits will match the inflation rate from the third quarter of 1983 to the third quarter of this year.

Paying the extra benefits to the almost 1 in 6 Americans who receive the monthly checks — retired or disabled workers and their relatives — will cost Social Security's trust funds $6.1 billion in the year ahead.

Welfare checks for almost 4 million aged, blind or disabled poor people in the Supplemental Security Income program will go up by the same percentage at year's end, at a cost of $205 million.

Social Security spokesman James M. Brown said benefits will go up in January by:

—$15 a month to $449 for the average retired worker living alone.

—$26 a month to $776 for the average elderly couple.

—$25 a month to $728 for someone entitled to the maximum who retires this year at age 65.

—$33 a month to $988 for a mother with two children.

—$14 a month to $415 for an elderly widow.

—$16 a month to $473 for a disabled worker.

—$30 a month to $893 for a disabled worker and family.

The maximum SSI payment will rise by $11 for an individual to $325 and by $16 for a couple to $488. However, many also get Social Security and could wind up wih lower SSI benefits, because the welfare checks are reduced when their other income goes up.

Also, by law, Social Security rounds all benefit increases down to the nearest dollar, so most people wind up with slightly less than the full percentage increase.

This summer, Social Security's actuaries thought the CPI for Urban and Clerical Wage earners might fall below the 3 percent mark that triggers an automatic annual benefit hike. Congress, at President Reagan's urging, passed legislation to guarantee an increase regardless of the trigger.

But "a surge in interest mortgage costs during August eliminated any possibility" that the trigger would not be reached, economic forecaster Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University said.

And while the retired and disabled workers and their families who count on Social Security can look forward to bigger checks, workers who earn more than $37,800 a year can expect to pay more taxes in 1985. Brown said the so-called wage base — the maximum amount taxed — is expected to rise to an estimated $39,300.

Parkway part of library plans

ATLANTA (AP) — A 2.4-mile parkway challenged in two lawsuits by neighborhood preservationists always has been part of plans for a Jimmy Carter Presidential Library, the former president said.

Carter, who took no position on the road before its environmental review, said in a deposition released Tuesday in federal court that it was a "feasible approach that protected the quality of the neighborhoods."

U.S. Rep. Elliott Levitas said officials told him the $20 million parkway to the proposed library had little transportation value.

Opponents claim officials didn't do an adequate impact study or consider valid alternatives.

Victim has right to refuse surgery

STUART, Fla. (AP) — A 55-year-old breast cancer victim who stabbed herself in the abdomen "because she just couldn't take any more" has the right to refuse surgery for the wounds, a judge has ruled.

Naomi C. Schumann, who stabbed herself four times Sunday, was in stable condition today in Martin Memorial Hospital, a spokeswoman said. Hospital lawyers had asked Circuit Judge Dwight L. Geiger to order surgery.

Geiger refused to order surgery.

Lloyd Schumann said his wife decided three weeks ago to stop treatment, and that the stabbing "was something she had to do because she just couldn't take any more."

Request 'untrue and deceptive'

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Donation requests sent by tax-cut advocate Howard Jarvis in envelopes marked "Property Tax Statement 1984 — Do Not Destroy," were "untrue and deceptive," a judge ruled in barring the practice.

Marin County Superior Court Judge Richard Breiner said the printing on the envelope was "an attempt to get people to open it," and claims that donations to Jarvis' newest proposal would be tax deductible also were untrue.

A group called Public Advocates Inc. had challenged the mailings.

Jarvis attorney Darryl Wold said the order would not hurt the campaign because the mailings have been completed.

Doctors aid shark attack victim

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Doctors reconnected nerves and tendons and stitched a 9-inch gash in a woman's arm after she was attacked by a shark while swimming 20 feet offshore, the sixth attack in a month along Florida's Atlantic coast.

Sandra Fletcher, 23, was in fair condition Tuesday in Indian River Memorial Hospital, said spokesman Ed Trent. Ms. Fletcher was attacked Monday while body surfing with friends in waist-deep water.

Lifeguard Bruce Little said shark sightings are common at this time of year because "bait fish, like mullet, are migrating south now, and the sharks follow them."

Boa constrictor found in mailbox

MASSAPEQUA, N.Y. (AP) — It wasn't rain, nor snow, nor dark of night that caused the pause in mail delivery here. It was, authorities report, a five-foot boa constrictor.

The snake was discovered Tuesday inside a mailbox during an afternoon mail pickup, Nassau County police spokesman Officer William Burns said. The unidentified mailman was shaken but uninjured, and officials at the North Massapequa Post Office summoned police.

Burns said two officers removed the snake from the mailbox and it was taken to the Tackpasha Preserve in town.

Men reportedly aboard plane

By The Associated Press

A former Air Force physicist who "died suddenly" after telling coworkers he was doing "something exciting" and two men whose families said they died in Florida reportedly were among the four CIA employees killed last week when their plane slammed into a mountain in El Salvador.

The three men were buried Tuesday in separate services.

The New York Times and the Warren (Pa.) Times-Observer reported the pilot was 53-year-old Richard C. Spicer, who was buried in Warren, Pa.Friends said Spicer and his wife, Norma, had moved to Clayton, N.C., in August or September.

Milwaukee television station WTMJ-TV said another victim was Scott Van Lieshout, 28, who was buried in Cudahy, Wis.

The Fort Walton Beach (Fla.) Playground Daily News identified another victim as physicist Curtis Wood of Reston, Va. He was buried in College Park, Ga.

The Times quoted a funeral director as saying Spicer's wife reported he had died in southern Florida, but said unnamed U.S. officials confirmed he died in El Salvador while working for the CIA. The Times-Observer said friends identified Spicer as the pilot of the CIA plane.

The CIA has refused to identify any of the victims of the Oct. 19 crash and refused to confirm reports of the funerals. The government says the CIA plane crashed into a volcano last week while conducting surveillance for arms smuggling to Salvadoran rebels.

Kathy Pherson, chief of media relations for the CIA, said in a telephone interview that Van Lieshout was an "overt CIA employee," but that she could not provide any other information.

Details of Van Lieshout's death were not made public. His brother David said the family was told he died in a Miami car crash.

"This is the only morgue in Dade County. If he died in Dade County, I don't know how he got out of Dade County," said Medical Examiner's Forensic Investigator J. Burns. She said there were no records of anyone named Van Lieshout having died in the county recently.

"As far as we know, he died in a car crash in the Miami area and the body got shipped up Sunday," David Van Lieshout said.

Van Lieshout declined to speculate whether his brother had died in the El Salvador plane crash on Oct. 19, and said he could not confirm whether Scott had been in Central America."He was just an employee. My folks don't know much about what he did," he said.

EPA withdraws radioactivity standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terming the health risks "relatively trivial," the Environmental Protection Agency is scrapping proposed standards for radioactivity around atomic weapons plants, uranium mines and university research reactors.

Environmentalists called the agency's decision Tuesday to withdraw the regulations "unconscionable" and filed suit in the U.S. Court of Appeals here to overturn it.

The regulations would have covered releases of radioactive gases and minute particles from six phosphorous plants, about two dozen Energy Department atomic weapons plants and some 300 uranium mines and other non-power facilities licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The nation's 80 operating nuclear power plants were not part of the EPA proposal because they are covered by Nuclear Regulatory Commission regulations limiting public exposure to radioactivity.

Under a court order to make a final decision on the standards by Tuesday, EPA said it was withdrawing them because "current practice provides an ample margin of safety in protecting the public health."

EPA officials noted that those practices currently produce a total of less than six cancer deaths per year in the United States while cancer from all sources, including smoking, accounts for one of every six deaths in the country.

"It is unconscionable that the government has failed to carry out its duty to protect innocent Americans from known cancer risks over which people have no control."

— Attorney Robert Yuhnke
Environmental Defense Fund

"In our judgment these risks are relatively trivial," said Assistant EPA Administrator Joseph Cannon.

The Environmental Defense Fund called that judgment "the most dramatic example of the radical reversal of environmental policies" by the Reagan administration.

"It is unconscionable that the government has failed to carry out its duty to protect innocent Americans from known cancer risks over which people have no control," said Robert Yuhnke, an attorney for the group.

The Sierra Club and the Natural Resources Defense Council, two other environmental groups, said they would file similar suits. The Sierra Club said it also will ask the federal judge in California who set Tuesday's deadline, to hold EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus in contempt.

Ruling in 1982 on a Sierra Club lawsuit, U.S. District Court Judge William B. Orrick Jr. of San Francisco ordered EPA to "issue standards" by Oct. 23. Last month Orrick denied Ruckelshaus' plea for a 90-day extension and amended his original order to allow a finding that the risks "are insignificant."

While no studies have shown any direct link between the various facilities and cancer, EPA officials have used data from the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bomb attacks in World War II to calculate that radon from uranium mines is causing five cancer deaths a year in the United States.

For the Energy Department weapons facilities, the attributable cancer deaths are calculated at one every 50 years. The calculations for the phosphorous plants yield one attributable cancer death every 17 years.

Cannon said EPA still intends to regulate radon emissions from the uranium mines. The risks of getting cancer from them "may be as high as one in 100" for people living nearby, a level that he labeled as "clearly unacceptable."

But he said the standards that EPA proposed in April 1983, while reducing the risks to local populations 10-fold, would only have spread the pollution over a larger area.

While Cannon and other EPA officials agreed Tuesday that radioactivity is clearly a cause of cancer and birth mutations, they said the agency had been criticized by its own Scientific Advisory Board for overestimating the risks.

The National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements has set a standard of 200 millirems per year as a safe level, noting that the average annual dosage from natural background sources such as the sun is 100 millirems.

A millirem is a measure of absorbed radiation in living tissues. A chest X-ray is equivalent to between 20 and 30 millirems. And a coast-to-coast airplane flight will produce 3 to 5 millirems of additional exposure to an individual.

DILLARD'S WELCOMES THE AMERICAN EXPRESS® CARD

No question, it's Rick Sutcliffe

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe, who helped turn the Chicago Cubs from losers into winners in one season as his own career took a dramatic turn, was unanimously elected the National League's 1984 Cy Young Award winner, it was announced Tuesday.

He was the first unanimous selection since Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies won his second Cy Young award in 1977. Only Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson had been previous unanimous selections — Koufax in 1963, '65 and '66 and Gibson in 1968 and '70.

Sutcliffe, the big right-hander from Independence, Mo., left the Cleveland Indians on June 13 to join the Cubs, who had finished fifth in 1983. Sutcliffe won 14 in a row at the end of the season for a 16-1 record, leading the Cubs to the National League East Divsion title in the best of his six major league seasons.

In a news conference in Chicago, Sutcliffe singled out Cubs catcher Jody Davis for helping him make the transition from the American League back to the NL.

"I didn't know anything about the league when I came here," Sutcliffe said. "I'm a different pitcher now than when I left (Cleveland). It was so exciting being involved in a pennant race that being considered for the award never really came into my mind."

Sutcliffe said the five-game loss to San Diego in the National League playoffs was the only damper on his season. Sutcliffe was the loser in the fifth and deciding game.

"Individual awards are nice to look at and hang on the wall, but they're just that," Sutcliffe said. "Right now, it's still tough to swallow what happened in San Diego. We fell a little short, and I still can't feel totally happy.

"It was the most exciting summer of my entire life, but I'd gladly give this up to have been playing in a World Series," he said. "It still leaves one goal to be met.

The 28-year-old Sutcliffe was named No. 1 on all 24 ballots, cast by two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America from each NL city. That gave Sutcliffe 120 points to 45 for second-place Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets. Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals was third with 33½ votes, followed by Joaquin Andujar of the Cards with 12½, Rich Gossage of San Diego with 3 and Mario Soto of Cincinnati with 2.

NL Cy Young

Each balloter cast votes for three pitchers. A first-place vote was worth five points. Three points were given for a second-place vote and one for third.

Combined with his four victories before leaving Cleveland, Sutcliffe won 20 games this season for the first time in a troubled career that began in 1979 with the Los Angeles Dodgers. Sutcliffe won 17 games that year and was elected the NL Rookie of the Year.

Seldom used the next two seasons with Los Angeles, an unhappy Sutcliffe was traded to Cleveland on Dec. 9, 1981 along with Jack Perconte for Jorge Orta and minor leaguers Jack Fimple and Larry White. He was 14-8 with the Indians in 1982 when he led the American League with a 2.96 ERA, and 17-11 in '83.

Sutcliffe was 4-5 with the Indians this year before being traded. He attributed part of his early-season problems at Cleveland on a tooth infection that resulted in a drastic loss in weight. That problem was cleared up after some root canal work.

Sutcliffe filed for free agency last week, but he said he had asked his agent, Barry Axelrod, to give him some time "to more or less get my feet on the ground" before starting contract negotiations with the Cubs. He said negotiations probably would not begin until late this week or early next week.

Sutcliffe extended his winning streak to 15 games by winning the first game of the National League playoffs at Wrigley Field against San Diego. He worked seven innings and gave up two hits as he combined with Warren Brusstar on a 13-0 shutout. The streak ended, however, when he was beaten 6-3 by the Padres in the fifth and final game of the playoffs.

Sutcliffe had a 2.69 earned run average and 155 strikeouts in 150 1-3 innings. He was the third Cubs' pitcher to win the award, joining Ferguson Jenkins in 1971 and Sutter in 1977.

Gooden, a 19-year-old rookie, had a 17-9 record, 2.670 ERA and led the major leagues with 276 strikeouts in 218 innings' work.

"I would have liked to have won," Gooden said, "but I'm very, very satisfied with second place. It's been a real good year for me. Last year at this time, I wasn't even on the roster. Now, to finish second to someone like Sutcliffe with the year he had is quite an honor."

Sutter set a National League record and tied the major league mark with 45 saves. Andujar was the major league's only 20-game winner, going 20-14 with the Cardinals, and Gossage had 25 saves for the Padres.

Permian still No. 1

Midland Lee ranks No. 6

Associated Press

Odessa Permian in 5A, Bay City in 4A, Daingerfield in 3A, Pilot Point in 2A and Paradise in A held their No. 1 positions for another week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

There were only two losses among the 50 teams ranked in the five classes by a panel of Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Permian, Houston Madison and Plano remained 1-2-3 in 5A following impressive victories last week. Klein held onto No. 4 following a Saturday victory over Cypress Creek and Bryan was fifth after shutting out Copperas Cove.

Midland Lee, 6-1, was ranked No. 6, bouncing back from a loss to Odessa Permian two weeks ago to beat Big Spring last week. All of the teams in front of the Rebels sport 7-0-0 records.

LaPorte dropped from the rankings after a two-week stay, losing for former top 10 member Galveston Ball, 22-9. LaPorte, No. 9 last week, was replaced at No. 10 by Dallas Carter, 7-0 and Lewisville moved up to No. 9.

BAY CITY, the defending 4A champion, stretched its winning string to 22 games with a 49-7 thrashing of El Campo and received 20 of the 22 first place votes cast in the latest balloting.

Second ranked Gregory-Portland handed No. 10 Beeville its second straight loss with a 32-7 victory, dropping Beeville from the top 10 with a 4-2 record.

Austin Westlake, 7-0 and Cleburne, 6-0, tied for the vacant No. 10 rankings. Westlake blanked Georgetown 15-0 and Cleburne blasted perennial playoff contender Brownwood 30-3.

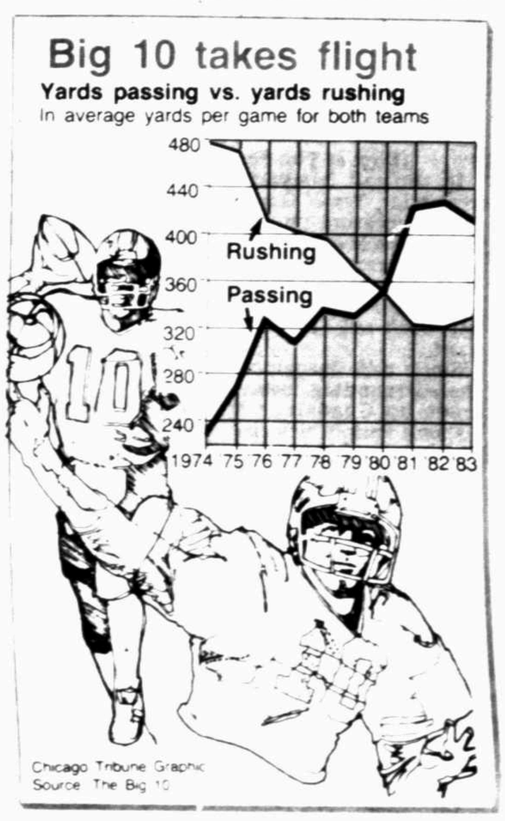
Daingerfield, also the defending state champion, beat Prairieland 67-0 and received a unanimous 22 first place votes over runner-up Littlefield, followed by Sweeny, Port Isabel and Kermit.

The top seven teams remained unchanged in 2A with Pilot Point holding a steady 203-165 point total over No. 2 East Bernard. Alto moved up to No. 8, trading places with Abernathy.

Valley View and Granger marked the only changes on the A list with Valley View moving up to fifth and Granger dropping to sixth.

Paradise, following a 42-0 victory over Godley, held the lead with 16 first place votes and a 206-183 point margin over second place Wink.

Other teams receiving consideration in the voting were: 5A, North Mesquite and Texarkana, 16 points each, San Antonio Clark 14, San Angelo Central, Plainview, 12 each; 4A, Lubbock Dunbar and Denison 10 each; 3A, Medina Valley 20; 2A, Liberty Hill, 18 and A, Aspermont, 12.



NCAA beaches Gators three years

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's embattled football program was slapped with a three-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tuesday, culminating a 22-month investigation that also cost former Coach Charley Pell his job.

The sanctions, returned a month after the Southeastern Conference school admitted to more than 70 of 107 alleged rules infractions, forbid the Gators from appearing in postseason games and on live television for three years and strip the institution of 20 scholarships over two years.

The NCAA told university officials they have 15 days to appeal the action and noted that the ban on postseason play would not take effect until after the NCAA Council had a chance to review the school's response.

The Council will not meet again until January 1985, meaning Florida would be eligible to accept a postseason bid this season if the school elected to appeal.

Alvin V. Alsobrook, vice president for university relations, said the NCAA also stipulated that one year of the sanctions could be suspended "upon the successful completion of the probation and fulfillment of the institutional remedial action."

Alsobrook released copies of a 16-page confidential report from the NCAA under Florida's sunshine law, which has permitted the media to gain access to thousands of pages of transcripts of witnesses interviewed during the probe that was initiated in December 1982.

Pell, acknowledging that "mistakes and errors" had been made, resigned Aug. 26 but asked to remain in his job until the end of the 1984 season.

University President Marshall Criser released the former coach of his duties on Sept. 16.

The Gators, who have fashioned a 5-1-1 record despite distractions created by the investigation and the mid-season firing of former Coach Charley Pell, are in the thick of the battle for their first SEC title ever and will meet Auburn in a crucial league showdown Nov. 3.

There has been speculation that Florida officials might elect to delay the sanctions if the team continues to win and maintains a shot at the crown as well as a berth in a major bowl game.

The NCAA's report said any appeal of the findings of its Committee on Infractions would not be considered until January 1985, meaning Florida would remain eligible in the interim to be considered for a postseason game following this season.

The Confidential Report recommends that the Gators' 1984, 1985 and 1986 football seasons end with the playing of their last regularly scheduled contest. It also says the team would not be eligible to appear on live television in 1985, 1986 and 1987.

During the 1985-86 and 1986-87 academic years, the Gators would be stripped of 20 scholarships, 10 each year.

Pell, who arrived at the Gainesville school in 1979 and engineered a remarkable turnaround in a struggling program, resigned Aug. 26, but asked to remain in his job until the end of the 1984 season. However, university President Marshall Criser relieved him of his duties on Sept. 16, and documents released later under the sunshine law showed the ex-coach had admitted a number of violations after earlier denying them to investigators.

The NCAA's Confidential Report indicated that "corrective and disciplinary actions" already taken by the university may win the school a reduction in the third year of probation.

Galen Hall, an assistant at Oklahoma for 18 seasons before coming to Florida as offensive coordinator this year, was named interim coach and has guided the team to a 4-0 record after a 1-1-1 start under Pell.

Florida, one of only two schools that has never won an SEC football title, is 2-0-1 in league play and will face Georgia and Kentucky in its pursuit for the crown after facing Auburn.

USFL in 'final death rattle'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The United States Football League's $440 million antitrust lawsuit against the National Football League marks the USFL's "final death rattle," says Miami Dolphins owner Joe Robbie.

Robbie, at the NFL owners meeting Tuesday, said the league would make a mistake if it "overreacted" to the lawsuit.

"We're being cited for violations of the antitrust laws even though the antitrust laws haven't been changed," said Robbie, a former trial lawyer.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the league would have top lawyers to battle the case in court.

"When your're talking about damages of that magnitude, it's a very serious matter," Rozelle said.

Although the owners discussed several topics at the closed-door meeting Tuesday, the only final action take was a decision to leave their annual college football draft in the early spring instead of moving it forward to compete more directly with the USFL, said league spokesman Joe Browne.

Fate decrees Odessa Permian

Mr. Fate lives in Odessa and eats black-burnt toast for breakfast every morning with a glass of white milk.

Mr. Fate says, "Odessa Permian will win the District 4-5A football championship every year. I will make sure of that."

But wait a minute, Fate. Didn't Lee beat those Mojo guys twice last year?

"Well, you do want to keep things exciting, but Permian did win the championship last season. Don't you remember? I had Cooper and Lee in the hip pocket all the time. I had to ruin a couple of buses to pull that one off, but it was worth it. This year I just took the worry out of being close. You don't think West Texas rain just happens?"

WELL, FATE, that sure seems like a nasty attitude, but it's getting to that point of the season where Midland is almost hoping you have things under control. We hate to think what a Permian loss to San Angelo would do to us all.

If the Bobcats were able to pull off the stunner, I hate to think what Fate has in store for the rest of the 4-5A schedule. That could very well mean a three-way tie for first place and a flip of the coin to decide the two playoff teams — and you know how Fate deals with Midland in coin flips.

Mr. Fate says, "Midland will not win coin flips. Just look at the facts. Didn't Midland have two chances to win a four-way flip off two years ago? Don't put your money down on any coin flips. I side with San Angelo on coin flips."

Midland Lee head football coach Jack Tayrien hasn't had much time lately to talk with Mr. Fate. Eagles, Bronchos and Bulldogs keep getting in the way. But he's not blind. He's pulling for Permian to win Friday against San Angelo.

SAYS TAYRIEN, "I think it might be best that Permian beats San Angelo because I would hate for the playoffs to rest on the flip of a coin. Still, if we don't take care of our own business, it won't matter much."

Meanwhile, Midland High coach Doug McCutchen must feel like looking down the barrell of a four-pronged shotgun. One of the barrells has already emptied into the Bulldog camp when San Angelo took a victory last Friday.

Now McCutchen's 'Dogs face Cooper, Permian and Lee in order. Wading through that thicket would be impossible for even Bambi. You can't talk playoff possibilities with a schedule like that. You can only play one week at a time and see if you can dodge a few bullets along the way.

Rumors persist that Midland AD Gil Bartosh has been fighting Mr. Fate, but they are only rumors and should be taken as such. However, word is that Bartosh made Tayrien and McCutchen flip coins before they were hired. After all, that's part of the job these days in football. Some are saying Bartosh holds coin flipping sessions once a week with his two coaches.

But rumors are rumors. We can't say that enough. You know how facts can become so easily distorted.

Maybe a coin flip won't be needed in 1984. There are still three games left for every team in the league. But we sure would like Mr. Fate to have his say for one more week at least.

IF PERMIAN is to fall in a district game, it would be much better next week against Midland High. But would Mr. Fate allow that kind of situation?

It's no Everest, but don't sell Guadalupe short

(First of Two Parts)

In the tall company of other mountains, Texas' Guadalupe Peak doesn't measure up. At 8,749 feet, the peak is less than 1/3 the height of Mt. Everest, less than half the size of Alaska's Mt. McKinley.

But as a weekend backpacking trip, don't sell Texas' highest point short.

Since 1966 Guadalupe Peak and the surrounding mountains have made up Guadalupe Mountains National Park, which rises from the plains 185 miles west of Midland. The park harbors a number of sights and sounds: the autumnal splendor of McKittrick and Dog canyons, howling winds, nonchalant mule deer, bear and elk, vicious thunderstorms, the sheer face of El Capitan and other exposed Permian Basin reefs.

But climbing Guadalupe Peak tops off a trip to the park. The trail begins at the Pine Springs campground, along with the heads of Devil's Hall, Tejas and El Capitan trails.

TIM AND Mark Lewis and I chose to traverse the trail three weeks ago, when fall weather snatched control from summer. We wanted to climb then because we expected autumn colors to brighten the trail, but as much as that, we preferred to gain 2,927 feet of elevation in 70-degree, rather than 90-degree temperatures. Less heat meant half a gallon less water, or four pounds, we didn't have to carry on the 4.2-mile walk.

We started up the trail with only the basics: dried food, water, sleeping bags , a tent. We packed light because none of us were in particularly good shape – Tim quit smoking one week earlier, Mark and I weighed too much, all of us had at least one bad wheel. But even with our frailties (and 30-pound packs), we felt we could reach the peak around 3 p.m. – about five hours.

Since we were in no hurry, Tim started westward on the slightly longer horses and hikers trail. The gradient on that trail was less steep than the hikers only trail, which gained 978 feet in its first mile. The horse trail was longer by 0.9 miles, but for someone who wheezes on steep stairs, I welcomed a longer look at the scenery.

Tim's pace in the first half mile was too fast, so I moved to the point and plodded along, the midmorning sun at my back. Hunter Peak (elevation 8,368 feet) and Bush Mountain (8,631 feet) protected us from northerly winds, but stiff breezes slashed through Pine Springs Canyon and dried our throats.

As well as needing the rest, we stopped to enjoy a solitary, bluish-green New Mexico agave hidden in rocks beside the trail. We paused beside a pink-skinned Texas madrone for a sip of water and an apple. We stood quietly as a mule deer doe crossed the trail and ducked into a stand of juniper.

AT THE junction of the hiker and horse trails, we passed a trio from Midland. Two boys, about 10 and 12, carried sleeping bags over their shoulders The father lugged a sleeping bag and two jugs of water. They looked tired, and 2.4 miles of the path nearly as steep as the hikers only trail lay ahead (They would later come down without seeing the peak).

The yard-wide trail cut back and forth on the north face of the ridge leading to Guadalupe Peak. Loose rocks littered it where hikers before us struggled.

Those rocks formed as part of the Capitan Reef, a 400-mile-long rim arund what used to be the Delaware Basin. In the heart-shaped Delaware Basin and other parts of the Permian Basin, uncountable numbers of microorganisms gave up their skeletons to form the reef. It appears on the surface only as the Guadalupe, Apache and Glass Mountains, but it actually runs underground from the park to Carlsbad, N.M., before plunging south to Fort Stockton, and then north again to Alpine and back to El Capitan.

It irritated me that 250-million-year-old animals tripped me as I walked on them, but I thought they didn't appreciate being tramped on -- fossils or not. Because of the clumps of fossils, Tim and I wore sturdy hiking boots, but Mark loped along with only running shoes.

Many day hikers sported the same shoes. Carrying no weight, several groups passed us on the way up. As we neared the Guadalupe Peak Campground about a mile away from the summit, more shorts-clad, T-shirt wearing hikers met us.

In either early fall or spring, ascending the peak scantily dressed is a no-no. While the average temperature in October range between 49 and 71 degrees, the temperatures have dropped as low as 25. Combined with winds which often reach 50 mph, unpredictable cold can be uncomfortable and dangerous.

Park Ranger J. Lujan says hypothermia and heat exhaustion are the park's two major dangers.

"It's easy to avoid them both," Lujan says. "Take a gallon of water per day, drink a lot, take etra wool clothing and a rain covering. With a first aid kit, that's about all you need."

But as well as the precautions, hikers need a few other things. Backcountry permits, registered with a ranger at the Frijole Information Center or at the Pine Springs campground, tell the park officials who's where and when to expect them. Overnight permits register who stays overnight at the different backcountry campgrounds.

Understandably, the rangers are firm about the free permits. If they meet hikers without permits on the trail, they'll ask them to return to visitor center. Period. "We like to know where everybody is," Lujan says, "for their own protection."

Lujan and other rangers protect the park as well. Open fires are not allowed – because of the fire dangers and because dead wood feeds other plants. As in other national parks, the rangers also insist that no plants, animals or minerals leave with visitors.

"You can't replace a rock that's been at the same site for thousands of years," Lujan says. "Flowers have a right to be left alone just like the animals. You can't imagine the impact a missing bush might have on erosion."

He adds that we will probably labor in the higher altitudes, but that we will survive. We wonder.

The second half of Guadalupe Peak Backpacking will appear next week.

4Hers host trap shoot

To raise funds for its programs, the Midland County 4H club will host a turkey shoot Saturday.

Charles Killinen, a 15-year-old shotgunner in the club, said proceeds from the trap shoot, to be held at the Midland Trap and Skeet Association range 1½ miles south of I20 on F.M. 1788, will pay for part of the entry fees and travel costs the shooters incur competing. In 1984, the junior club had a second place finish in the state trap shoot and a fourth in skeet, with an overall ranking of fourth.

Killinen said the shoot will be a missing out competition, conquerable to sudden death in football. If a shooter misses, he or she is out, unless the shooter decides to buy back into the round. Winners in each round win half of the entry fees and all the buy-back money. The fees per round are $3, and the buy-back charge will be around $1.50, Killinen said.

The shoot will be trap, beginning at 27 yards. The competition will start at 10a.m. and continue until dark.

Fight may save Aleutian goose

Rare bird almost extinct

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

ADAK, Alaska — A decade-long battle to keep the Aleutian subspecies of the Canada goose from going the way of the extinct passenger pigeon appears to be paying off.

Fred Zeillemaker, refuge manager for the Aleutian Islands Unit of the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge, said recently he expects the bird will be off the rare and endangered list in a couple of years.

"When we have 10 or more nesting pairs on four different islands, they will consider the species for delisting," Zeillemaker said. "There's about one island left for doing that."

There are 10 to 20 major subspecies of the Canada goose, of which the Aleutian is one.

ALEUTIAN CANADAS resemble their gray-black cousins except for size. The Aleutian goose is smaller. Each weighs four to six pounds and has a distinguishing white ring at the base of its neck.

The geese once nested throughout most of the Aleutian chain, a treeless chain of volcanic, stepping-stone islands that stretch 1,000 miles from the Alaska mainland into the North Pacific toward the Soviet Union. But the introduction of foxes on the islands decimated the ground-nesting birds.

The geese were placed on the rare and endangered species list and intensive, multi-agency efforts began in 1974 to restore the subspecies to a secure status.

"The species was down to 300 to 500 birds in the mid-1960s," Zeillemaker said. "They're up to about 4,000 birds now."

HE PREDICTS two things for bringing the birds back: removal of the blue phase of the Arctic fox from some of the islands and a hunting ban at the goose's California wintering grounds.

"The foxes were introduced by the Russians and then by the Americans," Zeillemaker said. "They farmed them, harvested them for their pelts. They'd take the foxes to an island and put them ashore where they'd let them reproduce and feed on the wildlife that was there. They came back every few years to harvest the animals.

"Once the industry went under, there was no attempt to take them off the land. Of about 200 islands in the Aleutian chain, foxes were on 90. That pretty much took care of the birds."

The geese, which once had nesting areas on all the islands from Amelia west, managed to make their last stand on tiny Buldir Island which was without a fox population, he said.

THE MULTI-agency recovery team that Zeillemaker heads has been able to reintroduce nesting birds from Buldir to Agattu and Alaid-Nizki Islands, as well as Amchitka in the central and western Aleutians, he said. That, however, was only after removing the foxes from the islands.

"We hope to get them established on Rat Island now," he said. "We took the last of the foxes off that island last summer. Once we get nesting groups going there, we'll move for delisting.

"You have to have a breeding population in four different areas so one single catastrophe can't wipe them out," Zeillemaker went on.

"The significance of all this is that man not only can wipe out a population — destroy a gene pool like the passenger pigeon — but man also can do something to bring a population back."

'Larson' umpire Pinelli, 89, dies

DALY CITY, Calif. (AP) — Former major league umpire Babe Pinelli, who worked home plate during Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series, has died at a convalescent home. He was 89.

Pinelli died Monday night at Villa Convalescent Center. He is survived by two sons, Ray and Roy Pinelli, a sister, Cora Luchetti, 13 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Born in 1895, Pinelli played eight years in the major leagues.

Information about your changing telephone service from Darlene Gifford, Manager-Community Relations

Making your bill easier to read

If you're like most folks, you've probably noticed there are more pages in your phone bill since the split-up of the Bell System.

That's because your bill now includes charges for several separate companies instead of just one like last year.

Right now, the bill you receive from Southwestern Bell Telephone includes our charges for local service and long distance within your service area. It may also include long distance charges from AT&T Communications and charges from AT&T Information Systems (for leased equipment).

Calls you place through other long distance companies may also be billed through Southwestern Bell Telephone if those companies choose to use our billing service. That makes it easier for you because you get one bill, and you write one check.

Solving the customer confusion

Still, this breakdown of charges by each individual company has caused some confusion. We know that, and we're doing our best to simplify your bill to reflect what you want.

Your bill first started getting a new look in January. At that time, we had numerous billing changes necessary to simply accomplish divestiture.

Starting in February, the company began conducting interviews with customers to find out what short-term changes and long-term changes were needed.

We've put your changes into place

Some of the changes you wanted and we adopted are:

- revising the bill summary page to include adjustments and charges for each company whose fees are included on the bill;
- removing "unpaid from last bill" from the summary page if the last bill was paid in-full;
- numbering pages consecutively to help you reassemble your bill after studying it; as well as others.

Further changes to simplify the bills will be put into place in the coming months.

Would you like more information about the changes on your bill? Call the Tele-Help toll-free number, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m.-8 p.m. — 1/800-325-2686 (please ask for "extension 84") and request the Tele-Help Booklet No. 2 ("A Guide to Your Phone Bill").

If you'd like the booklet in Spanish, please write: Southwestern Bell Telephone, Tele-Help; P.O. Box 225265; Dallas, TX 75215.

For your information, to date, we've distributed more than 700,000 Tele-Help booklets in Texas in an effort to clear up any confusion regarding our business after divestiture. We're pleased to help our customers get the answers they need.

As always, if you have any comments, I'd like to hear from you.

Which QB will Dallas face?

From Wire Reports

FOOTBALL—Mike Pagel's performance against Pittsburgh helped Indianapolis its third NFL game, it might not have won back his job as starting quarterback. Coach Frank Kush said the injury situation and a review of his quarterbacks' play in the 17-16 victory over the Steelers will determine who starts against Dallas Sunday. Pagel, the Colts' starter last season and the first seven games this year, was benched Sunday in favor of former Purdue All-America Mark Herrmann. But when Herrmann was forced out of the Pittsburgh game with a deep thigh bruise, Pagel came on to complete 13 of 17 passes for 178 yards and one touchdown...

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson, who strained an already injured ankle in last week's loss to Denver, will not practice with the team this week but is expected to play Sunday against the Miami...

Boston College-Penn State and Auburn-Florida will be carried at 2:50 p.m. on ABC-TV Saturday. ABC previously announced that it will televise the Notre Dame at LSU and Southern Methodist at Texas games Saturday...

Air Force, Army and Navy will be featured on ESPN telecasts Nov. 3 when the Flacons play Army at 6:30 p.m. anad Notre Dame meets Navy at 11 a.m...

TSN honors Chicago Cubs

BASEBALL—New York Yankee Don Mattingly and Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs, were named players of the year by The Sporting News. The Cubs' Jim Frey was chosen as the Major League Manager of the Year in a vote of his peers. Mattingly led the American League with a .343 batting average in 1984, the first Yankee to do so since Mickey Mantle in 1956. He had 207 hits, including 23 home runs and 44 doubles, and drove in 110 runs.Sandberg batted 314, had a NL league-high 114 runs, 36 doubles, 19 home runs, 19 triples and 84 RBI. The second baseman committed only six errors in 1984.

Willie Hernandez of Detroit was AL Pitcher of the Year after 32 saves and a 9-3 record. Rick Sutcliffe, Cubs, was NL pitcher for a 16-1 record with Chicago...

John D. Rigney, 69, former Chicago White Sox pitcher and a vice president of the team from 1955 to 1969, died Sunday. Rigney pitched and won the first night game in Comiskey Park on Aug. 14, 1939. He joined the White Sox in 1937 and was a star pitcher before World War II, winning 15 games in 1939 and again in 1940 and 13 in 1941. He had pitched for three years in the minor leagues before moving up to the White Sox, including stints at St. Paul, Des Moines and Dallas. One of his outstanding performances was an 11-inning shutout of the New York Yankees on June 20, 1940...

Oakland A's pitcher Ray Burris, one-time Midland Cub, wants the team to trade him because the club won't give him a long-term contract. The A's last week agreed to exercise an option on Burris' contract to pay him $500,000 for the upcoming season. Traded by Montreal Expos, Burris had a 13-10 record and an earned run average under 3.00 until the final month, when he finished at 3.15....

Mel Kowalchuk, GM of the PCL Edmonton Trappers, was approved as owner of the new Pioneer League franchise in Lethbridge, Alberta...

Kansas City reduced its coaching staff by one for the 1985 American League baseball season, naming Howie Bedell coordinator of player development in the minor league system. Bedell held that same job from 1981 to 1983 before becoming a coach with the Royals last year...

Jim Bibby, whose major league pitching career spanned 13 seasons and 111 victories, is minor league pitching coach for the New York Mets. Bibby will be assigned to one of the Mets' six farm teams at a later date. Bibby, a native of Franklinton, N.C., ended his major league career last season with the Texas Rangers, going 0-0 with a 4.41 ERA...

Robisch calls it quits

BASKETBALL—Kansas City center Dave Robisch retired after a 13-year pro career in the ABA and NBA. Robisch, an All-American at the University of Kansas, told Kings Coach Jack McKinney of his decision before practice. Robisch "just realized he wasn't as young as he used to be" and was not able to physically play basketball at as high a level as he would like...

WILLIAMSON—

Well, Fate, how about that? Could you perform your annual good job against San Angelo this week and take your vacation next week?

Fate says, while scratching his chin, "I don't know about that. The rules are set, you know. Let me think — if Permian beats San Angelo and loses to MHS and Lee beats..."

Forgive him. He's slow, but tested.

MSA to hold Fall League tournament

From Staff Reports

The Midland Softball Association will hold its Fall League championship tournament Saturday and Sunday at the Bill Williams complex in Hogan Park.

There will be divisions for Men, Women and Coed. Teams entering the men's and women's divisions will be limited to their fall league roster. Coed division entries may form their own teams. Divisions must consist of at least eight teams in order to complete the bracket.

A double-elimination format will be used with a consolation bracket.

Sponsor trophies will be awarded to the first four places and consolation winner. Individual awards will be given to first and second place finishers and an all-tournament team will be selected.

Entry fee is $90 and may be mailed to the Midland Softball Association, P.O. Box 2862, Midland. For information, contact MSA Tournament Director Freddie Ezell (694 5508) or MSA executive directer Chuck Swallow (683 8741).

Tech breakfast

Spike Dykes, former Midland Lee coach and now an assistant at Texas Tech, will be at the Executel Motel at Terminal 7:30 a.m. Friday for a Dutch Treat buffet breakfast for Red Raider football supporters.

Dykes, who led Midland Lee to the state 5A finals last season, will show a highlight film of last week's win over Rice and give a preview of this Saturday afternoon's game with Tulsa at Lubbock's Jones Stadium.

Walker, Temple win

Robert Walker took first in the Metroplex Invitational fencing tournament at Dallas in a field of 26. Orlando Temple was fourth the in a field of 18 in epeed.

In a meet at San Marcos, Robert Walker won the Ted Keck Open in foil.

The national qualifying point tournamnet in Dallas, Duel at Dallas is scheduled Nov. 9-10.It is one of four held during the year. Competitors with most points are selected for world cup teams for international competition.

Star Army back has inner drive

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Doug Black, who was once relegated to intramural football, is possessed by an inner drive that has earned him a full-time position in the Army backfield and one of the top 20 rushing performances in the nation.

"It comes from inside," said Army quarterback Nate Sassaman, who also is a member of Black's Company A-1. "You know they talk about 'Be All You Can Be,' make the most of what we have. It comes from a lot of inner desire to keep on going, to keep on plugging.

"He's definitely a fighter," Sassaman said, "and I'd go down anywhere with him."

The durable Black has carried the ball 147 times for 629 yards and a 104.8 yards per game average, 17th on the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division 1-A rushing list. He is averaging 4.3 yards per carry and has scored six touchdowns, including three against the University of Pennsylvania this past weekend.

The workhorse fullback paces an Army wishbone offense that is second in the nation in team rushing with 1,983 yards, 18 touchdowns and a 330.5 yards per game average.

Black will steer the Cadets, boasting a 4-1-1 mark following six straight losing seasons, against Syracuse, 3-4, on Saturday at the Carrier Dome.

Yes, Virginia, there are post-season bowl games

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The University of Virginia has never sent its football team to a bowl game. One reason is that it has rarely been considered for a postseason game. Another reason is that more than 30 years ago when the Cavaliers were good enough to get an offer, the university's officials refused to permit their team to go to a bowl.

Thus Virginia is much like Army, which has never played in a bowl game, although the Cadets have not been considered bowl material for many years. When the Cadets were good enough for a bowl, Army brass refused to allow postseason play.

These two are the only institutions that have been considered major college teams from the time of the first bowl game — the 1902 Rose Bowl — to the present and have not played in a major bowl game. Seven other current Division I-A schools which were not considered major teams in 1902 or were not even playing football then have not played in a major bowl game, according to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

MENTION a bowl game to George Welsh, the successful head coach at Virginia, and the former Navy quarterback shudders.

"We don't say that word," Welsh said Sunday. "We have too much else to think of. Let's not talk about those things."

But Virginia had another strong performance Saturday to beat a competitive Wake Forest team, 28-9, at Charlottesville, Va. Barry Word and Howard Petty, alternating tailbacks, rushed for 140 and 131 yards, respectively, and two touchdowns each for the Cavaliers.

This got Virginia to a 5-1-1 record, the best mark through seven games for a Cavalier team since 1951. That season Virginia had an 8-1 record and refused a bowl bid.

Maybe Welsh is justified in being cautious about bowl talk, although it is his nature to be reticent and not look beyond the upcoming opponent. Last year, in his second season at Virginia, Welsh's team got off to an unexpected start with four consecutive victories. But then the Cavaliers lost five of their last seven games for a 6-5 season mark. That was only the fourth winning season for Virginia since 1951. Needing only one victory in its remaining four games, Virginia will have its first consecutive winning seasons since 1951-52.

"WINNING LAST year helped recruiting last winter, for sure," Welsh said.

Considered by many persons to be one of the better coaches in college football, the 51-year-old Welsh had won more games at Navy, 55, plus three bowl games in nine seasons, than any other coach in the school's history. It came at a time when some felt he would fail.

This season, things did not look too bright for Virginia when Clemson trounced the Cavaliers in the opener Sept. 8.

"But the team has shown maturity in coming back from that pounding," Welsh said. "Most of our starters were on the team a year ago, and they have grown up after such things as the Clemson game."

Welsh was particularly happy with the defensive performance against Wake Forest, which had only one first down as Virginia moved to a 21-3 halftime lead.

"They had the ball seven straight times without making a first down," Welsh said. "Our first defensive unit has given up only four touchdowns in the last six weeks."

If Virginia keeps playing this way, Welsh may be forced to think of bowls in late November even though he did say, "I'm taking the winter off."

ONLY FOUR undefeated and untied major teams remain — Washington (7-0), Brigham Young (7-0), South Carolina (6-0) and Fullerton State (8-0).

South Carolina, an independent, rallied to defeat Notre Dame, 36-32, after having trailed by 26-14 in the third period. "I felt our chances were slim then," said Coach Joe Morrison of South Carolina.

Washington was limited to only 3 first downs and 109 total yards but parlayed a blocked punt by Tim Peoples for a third-quarter touchdown to beat Oregon, 17-10.

Midland Lee and Midland High had long nights Tuesday as each was forced into a third game in their District 4-5A volleyball matches.

The Rebels, after beating Odessa High in the first game by a 15-8 count, lost a 6-0 lead in the second and eventually fell 17-15, forcing a third and deciding game. It too was close, tied at 10, but the Rebels prevailed for a 15-11 victory.

At Odessa Permian, the Bulldogs were in three hard-fought games with the Panthers, winning the first 15-12, losing the second 15-11 and claiming the third by the narrowest of margins, 17-15.

For Lee, the victory over Odessa High was all-important considering that unbeaten San Angelo (33-0 overall and 13-0 in 4-5A play) rolled second place Abilene Cooper, 15-4, 15-8.

THE COOPER loss leaves the Rebels one game off the place for the second and final 4-5A playoff berth. However, to gain that berth, Lee would have to beat Midland High in the final game of the season Thursday night at MHS Gym — never an easy victory for either team — while hoping for Abilene High to knock off Cooper, something unlikely considering Abilene High's 1-12 record compared to Cooper's 9-4. Lee is in third at 8-5 while MHS is fourth at 7-6.

AT TIMES, The Rebels looked like they were going to make short work of the Bronchos. Donna Holmes served the Rebels to a 9-1 lead in the first game and Lee reached a 13-2 score before OHS could mount any kind of rally.

Volleyball

What momentum the Bronchos picked up in the first game carried over into the second, turning Lee's 6-0 advantage (again built during Holmes' service) into a 9-8 OHS lead. From that score until the Bronchos finally won, the two were tied four times before the final score was tallied.

The third game was a lot like the previous two. The Rebels jumped out to a 7-0 lead at the onset, only to have Odessa High rally to tie the game at eight and 10 before Lee could put it away.

"We played sporadic, the same way we practiced yesterday," said Lee coach Janice Baulch. "We had excellent serves at times, Donna did a great job serving, and Megan (Pace) and Tina (Swinney) had some excellent spikes."

Swinney was also playing a strong front-line defense, coming up with several blocked shots that were knocked back into the OHS court for winners.

"My serve was on and off at points in the game but everything else was pretty much on," said Swinney. "I want to commend Megan Pace. She hit everything. Pat Sanches did a good job of setting and Donna Holmes did real good serving. The whole team played excellent."

Baulch was impressed with the strides Odessa High has made this year. Even though the Bronchos are 3-10, they are playing better volleyball than in the past few years. With only two seniors on the team this year, the Bronchos look to be a team to look out for next year.

"They've really improved over last year," said Baulch. "They'll be a team people will have to contend with. They already are. They can't be taken lightly. They're impressive all the way around, both on junior varsity and varsity."

MIDLAND HIGH coach Sonja Pittman was happy to see her Bulldogs snap their two-game losing streak Tuesday night and is now looking forward to her team's season finale: Thursday's 7 p.m. game against Midland Lee.

"I was pleased to win it because we've been on a losing streak since we got off to a good district start," said Pittman. "It was a tough game against Permian.

"We wanted to win it, end the season on a good note. Now we can look forward to Lee. It will be the third time we've played each other. We won the first game and Lee the second. Playing a cross-town rival is always kind of neat. The only team we've lost two twice this year is San Angelo. We've had a split with every other team so far. We need to beat Lee if we want to keep that in tact."

Pittman commended "Nadine Hill for fantastic service," against the Panthers, adding, "which is great considering her serving isn't one of her strongest areas. She served a total of nine points in the third game and had seven in-a-row in the first."

IN JV action Tuesday night, Midland Lee dropped a two-game, 15-13, 15-4 decision to Odessa High while Midland High lost a heart-breaker to Permian, 15-12, 14-16, 14-16. The Lee and MHS JVs will play at 6 p.m. Thursday at MHS Gym, just before the varsity battle.

OU's Bradley questionable for Kansas

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Senior quarterback Danny Bradley, considered the main cog in the second-ranked Oklahoma Sooners' option offense, is questionable for Saturday's game against Kansas, Coach Barry Switzer said Tuesday.

Bradley sprained his ankle and tore ligaments in his throwing hand as he led the Sooners to a late score in a 12-10 victory Saturday against Iowa State.

"Right now, it's too early to tell," Switzer said. "He's very dramatic about it — one of those great limpers, with crutches and everything."

If Bradley is unable to play, freshman Troy Aikman — who hasn't taken a snap during a game this year — will start for the 5-0-1 Sooners in the Big Eight Conference matchup in Lawrence against Kansas.

Switzer said running back Earl Johnson, who rushed for 945 yards last year but has been hampered by a knee injury this season, won't play against the Jayhawks.

"We should never have played Earl against Iowa State," Switzer said. "He didn't play well, and he didn't look good. It's our fault for playing him."

Switzer said Johnson would be held out and rested for at least the Kansas game, "and maybe we'll get a half from him down the road."

Switzer also said freshman running back Patrick Collins injured his knee in practice Monday, "and I don't know if we'll have him back for the year."

Boomer Weels Japan's MVP

TOKYO (AP) — American Greg "Boomer" Wells of the Hankyu Braves became Wednesday the first foreign player in 20 years to win the Most Valuable Player award when sportswriters named him MVP of the Pacific League.

Sachio Kinugasa, whose Hiroshima Toyo Carp triumphed over Hankyu in this year's Japan Series, was named MVP in the Central League.

Wells, formerly in the Minnesota Twins organization, won the triple crown with a batting average of .355 with 37 home runs.

The Question Box

New York Times Service

QUESTION: With all the recent fuss over how long it's been since the Chicago Cubs won a pennant, isn't it true that Chicago's other team, the White Sox, went a longer time without appearing in a World Series?

Not anymore. After losing the tainted World Series in 1919, the White Sox did not win another American League pennant until 1959, when they lost a six-game Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers. Now the Cubs, who have not won a pennant since 1945, will have to at least match that 40-year time span.

Two other franchises — the St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia-Kansas City-Oakland Athletics — had longer gaps than the Cubs or the White Sox between World Series. The Browns, now the Baltimore Orioles, missed the first 41 Series before winning their only pennant in 1944. The Athletics won three straight pennants from 1929-31, then did not get into a World Series again for 41 years, winning three straight pennants as the Oakland A's from 1972-74.

QUESTION: Did the Washington Senators ever win a World Series? When was their last appearance in it?

The Senators won the World Series in seven games from the New York Giants in 1924, lost to Pittsburgh in seven games in the 1925 Series and lost to the Giants in five games in 1933. They never won another pennant before the franchise was shifted to Minnesota in 1961, but that team, the Twins, was in the 1965 World Series, losing to the Los Angeles Dodgers in seven games. The Twins also won American League Western Division titles in 1969 and 1970, but lost the pennant playoffs both times to Baltimore.

The expansion team that replaced the Senators in Washington in 1961, also called the Senators, never finished higher than fourth place in 11 years before becoming the Texas Rangers in 1972. The Rangers have never finished higher than second.

QUESTION: Since divisional play was instituted in 1969, has any team swept all three games of the league championship series and then won the World Series in four games?

Only the Cincinnati Reds of 1976, managed by Sparky Anderson. They eliminated the Philadelphia Phillies for the National League pennant and then swept the World Series from Billy Martin's Yankees. The team that was the next-closest to achieving the feat was the Baltimore team managed by Earl Weaver in 1970. The Orioles beat Minnesota in three straight for the American League pennant, then won the first three games of the Series from Cincinnati before losing the fourth one and winning the fifth for the title.

QUESTION: A pro football quarterback attempting to pass is tackled behind the line of scrimmage, but fumbles the ball forward past the line of scrimmage and it is recovered by his teammate. Is this a rare situation in which a quarterback is sacked but his team gains yardage on the play? What if the quarterback scrambled just beyond the line of scrimmage before being tackled? Is this also a sack with a gain?

A sack involves a defensive player tackling a quarterback behind the line of scrimmage to end a play, so there is no way a team can gain yardage on a play that involves a sack. In the first example, if the fumble is acknowledged by the officials, then there can be no sack credited to the defense because the play was not over when the passer was tackled and fumbled. If the sack is acknowledged, there can be no fumble, since the play was over before the ball was fumbled. When a quarterback is tackled past the scrimmage line, there is no sack credited because at that point the quarterback is considered a runner, and runners are tackled, not sacked.

QUESTION: In one of the games last season between the Giants and the Eagles, Max Runegar of Philadelphia punted 11 times. Was that a record for one game?

The 11-punt effort by Runegar in that 23-0 Giant victory has been accomplished many times in the National Football League. A total of 18 players have exceeded that number, with five players sharing the record of 14 punts in a game: Dick Nesbitt of the Chicago Cardinals, in a game against the Chicago Bears in 1933; Keith Molesworth of the Bears against Green Bay, also in 1933; Sammy Baugh of Washington against Philadelphia in 1939; Carl Kinscherf of the Giants against Detroit in 1943 (the last 0-0 game in the N.F.L.); and George Taliaferro of the New York Yankees against the Los Angeles Rams in 1951.

QUESTION: Since the 24-second clock became part of National Basketball Association games 30 years ago, what is the record for fewest field goals attempted by two teams in a game? How about the mark for one team and for a winning team?

Last Dec. 27 in Chicago, the Knicks and the Bulls totaled only 132 shots (67 by the Knicks), breaking the mark of 133 set in the 1954-55 season by the Minneapolis Lakers and the Milwaukee Hawks and matched later that season by the Philadelphia Warriors and Milwaukee. In achieving the 102-96 victory over the Knicks, Chicago made as many field goals (34) as free throws and attempted only 23 fewer free throws (42) than field goals. The Knicks made 32 of their 67 shots, including a 3-point attempt by Rory Sparrow, and 31 of 40 foul shots.

Neither team was close to the record for fewest shots in a game by one team, which is 55, established by the Fort Wayne Pistons in a 96-87 victory over the Milwaukee Hawks on Feb. 20, 1955 during the first season of the 24-second clock. The Pistons made 32 of their 55 field goal attempts.

Winn, Davis SWC Players

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston linebacker Bryant Winn occasionally needs help from fellow linebacker Robert Harper in reading defensive hand signals because of an astigmatism that requires glasses off the field.

"I don't have trouble seeing things like bodies on the field but sometimes I can't see Coach (Don) Todd's hand signals from the sidelines," Winn said. "If I can't see the call, then Robert helps me out."

Winn's eyesight may have been his only physical weakness against Southern Methodist last week. Winn recorded 17 tackles and led a defensive surge that shut down Southern Methodist, the nation's No. 12 total offensive team in a 29-20 Cougar victory.

Winn, a senior from Memphis, Tenn., earned Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week honors for his banner performance.

While Winn was helping wreck the Mustangs' hopes of an unbeaten season, Texas Christian's Kenneth Davis dipped, dashed and danced to 219 yards on 16 carries and two touchdowns, including an 82-yard run, the gain the AP's Offensive Player of the Week selection.

Winn's leadership qualities came out earlier this season following an embarrassing 30-28 loss to Louisville after the Cougars had taken a 28-7 lead in the third quarter.

"The defensive starters met after that game because it was embarrassing to let them score three touchdowns and beat us,' Winn said. "We had meetings in the dorm, in the cafeteria and in (captain Audrey) McMillian's room.

"We decided that we would not let that happen again."

It hasn't. The Cougars have not lost a game since, nailing three SWC foes for a 3-0 record going into Saturday's game against Arkansas in the Astrodome.

Davis, the nation's No. 2 rusher with a 143.5 per game average, joined Texas' Earl Campbell as the only runners in SWC history to have 200-yard plus games in the same season. Campbell had a pair in 1977.

TCU's Kenneth Davis gained 219 yards Saturday to earn SWC Offensive Player of the Week honors.

"It was the greatest performance I've ever seen by a running back and ole Wacker ain't a young man," Wacker said.

Don't look now, but USC's here

LOS ANGELES — Although Southern Cal's proud football tradition has tarnished in recent seasons, the 1984 Trojans may be quietly clawing their way back to prominence.

After a 1983 campaign in which they went 4-6-1 for the school's first losing football season in 22 years, the Trojans have rebounded under second-year coach Ted Tollner to post a 5-1 overall record and 4-0 Pacific-10 mark this year.

Southern Cal is ranked No. 20 this week after having dropped out of the poll following a 23-3 loss to Louisiana State in the third game of the season.

Like the strong Trojan squads of the 1960s and 1970s, this season's Southern Cal team features a fine defense, spearheaded by linebackers Duane Bickett and Jack Del Rio and nose guard Tony Colorito, a solid offensive line, and the running of tailback Fred Crutcher, the conference's No.2 rusher.

BUT SOUTHRNn Cal definitely hasn't been overpowering — three of its five victories were by three points or less.

"We're not a great football team," said Tollner. "We're just trying to win a conference football title. We keeping telling our players that there's not that much difference between teams . . . We don't have the explosive firepower to light up the scoreboard.

"We're getting better as a team, but we need to be ready each week. If we worry about ourselves and continue to improve, things like winning and getting to a bowl game will take care of themselves."

The Trojans last won a Pac-10 title five years ago and were on NCAA probation and ineligible for post-season play in 1982 and 1983. They currently hold a half-game edge over top-ranked Washington in the Pac-10 race.

"Being 4-0 in the conference halfway though the season isn't that big a deal," said Tollner, who got the head coaching job when John Robinson resigned before leaving the university for the Los Angeles Rams. "More important is just the fact that we're in the race."

Faust remains optimistic

Thinks Irish can turn it around

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust doesn't think his Irish will end up with a losing season despite a current 3-4 record and with such ranked powers as Louisiana State, Southern Cal and Penn State on the horizon.

And he already has his recruiting plans formulated for next year.

Asked if a losing season will affect his recruiting, Faust said "No," Tuesday in his weekly telephone interview.

"I'm not thinking of a losing season," said Faust. "We're still hoping for a winning season."

As for recruiting, Faust said, "We gave out a minimal amount of scholarships last year. We're going to give out 30 scholarships this year. We're in good shape at this point."

Before thinking of next year, Faust and his Irish are faced with snapping a three-game losing streak, and if they are successful they'll have to do it Saturday at Louisiana State.

The thought of playing Louisiana State brought back a sweet memory for the belabored Notre Dame coach.

"It was a happy day, wasn't it?" said Faust, recalling the last time Notre Dame faced the Tigers.

That was back in 1981, Faust's first year at Notre Dame and his first game. Notre Dame defeated Louisiana State 27-9, and the Irish immediately moved into first place in The Associated Press rankings.

But Notre Dame lost its next two games and finished with a 5-6 record. It marked Notre Dame's first losing season in 18 years.

Although Notre Dame faces the nation's seventh-ranked team in Louisiana State, Faust welcomes the challenge as a means of regaining lost stature and remains optimistic.

"We're looking forward to playing an excellent team," said Faust. "We've been fortunate on the road this year. If we can win at Louisiana State, we can win anywhere."

Faust's optimism was boosted by the way Notre Dame played against undefeated South Carolina last week despite suffering a 36-32 loss.

"We moved the ball well against a good defensive team," said Faust. "We're getting healthy, and there was a big improvement in our line play. We came off the ball. Our defense played well except for a few situations.

"We were not happy with the result but pleased with the progress the team made," said Faust. "There was a lot of intensity and enthusiasm. The players played their hearts out, and you can't ask for any more."

Two of Notre Dame's victories came on the road this year, at Michigan State and at Missouri, and Faust thinks Tiger Stadium in Baton Rouge "would be a great place for a great victory."

Asked if he thought Notre Dame was overrated this season, Faust said, "I think a team makes its move during a season, not before. You have to wait and see. We've been nicked a lot. We came through a lot of injuries, and you have to give the team credit.

"In one game, we had eight starters missing, and you can't perform like that," said Faust. "It's difficult. But we're getting healthy and getting back on track. We're all fighting this together. We have quality young men, and I believe they'll fight their way out of this."

Tulsa gets mean for Texas Tech

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The University of Tulsa football team took to the practice field Tuesday in what inside linebacker coach Pat Henderson called "one of the best practices we've had all year."

"The attitude on the team is at a high for the year," said Henderson.

Tulsa is coming off a 55-20 trouncing last week of Missouri Valley Conference rival Wichita State and is preparing for Saturday's game with Texas Tech.

"Last year Texas Tech may not have been as ready for Tulsa as they could have been. Maybe they underrated us," said Henderson. "But there is no way they will underrate the Tulsa program again. They will be ready and so will we."

Eva Gabor walks to Hollywood fame

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eva Gabor, who starred in the films "My Man Godfrey" and "Gigi" and the long-running TV series "Green Acres," has joined the ranks of those with stars on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

The gold-colored star bearing the actress' name was placed in the sidewalk Tuesday next to the star honoring director Frank Capra.

Miss Gabor, 63, a native of Budapest, Hungary, made her stage debut in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Happy Time," and went on to a film career that included "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and "Don't Go Near the Water."

"Green Acres," in which Miss Gabor starred with Eddie Albert, ran for six seasons on CBS. The actress also appeared in "The Eva Gabor Show" and "Almost Heaven" on television.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Martin, the on-again, off-again manager of the New York Yankees, has been acquitted of public drunkenness and disorderly conduct charges because an argument that led to his arrest did not occur in a public place.

Martin, now a scout for the Yankees, was arrested April 14 and spent four hours in jail before posting a $100 bond. Police in Corona del Mar were called to a home by neighbors complaining about a loud argument.

Officers found Martin, 55, "screaming and hollering at a female," said police traffic investigator Gary Bruton.

Orange County Municipal Court Judge Russell A. Bostrom ruled Tuesday that the alleged offense took place on a patio of a home rather than in a public place and found Martin innocent.

Werner

MARBURG, West Germany (AP) — Oskar Werner, the Austrian actor who starred in the film "Fahrenheit 451" and played the doomed ship's doctor in "Ship of Fools," died Tuesday of a heart attack. He was 61.

Werner's first film role was in 1948 in "Angel With a Trumpet." His work in international films included parts in "The Shoes of the Fisherman" and "The Voyage of the Damned." Werner also starred in the French film "Jules et Jim." He was nominated for an Academy Award in 1965 for "Ship of Fools."

NEW YORK (AP) — Julian Lennon, the older son of Beatle John Lennon, says he's glad Yoko Ono has made it difficult for him to get his father's mementos, because he "might go a little wild, if I had a bit of money."

"I think she's being very clever about that," Lennon said in an interview for broadcast Thursday on NBC News' "Today" show. "I think if anything was to come into my hands at my age, I mean this is what I'm thinking on her behalf, you know, I wouldn't work, like I would normally."

Lennon, 22, the son of the slain Beatle and his first wife, Cynthia, said that being given money is "one of the worst things that could happen to you...especially at a young age."

PARIS (AP) — American author William Styron, best known for "Sophie's Choice" and "The Confessions of Nat Turner," has been made a commander of Arts and Letters, one of France's highest honors awarded an artist.

"Vive La France, Vive L'Amerique and all good things," Styron, 59, of Roxbury, Conn., said when he received the award Tuesday.

"There has been a sort of cross-pollination between me and the French," he said later. "I feel particularly good here, and they seem to like me."

French Culture Minister Jack Lang praised Styron for fighting racism and intolerance and expressed French President Francois Mitterand's admiration for him as an author and a person.

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Jason Robards, Ellen Burstyn and Ben Vereen were among the stars and lesser known performers who wielded gold-colored shovels as ground was broken for a $3 million Actors' Fund nursing home.

"We all have a commitment to honor and cherish those...who contributed so immeasurably to the joys of civilized society," Martin E. Segal, chairman of the board of New York's Lincoln Center, said during the Tuesday ceremony.

The Actors' Fund has disbursed more than $25 million during its 102-year history, Munro said.

'Sesame Street' joins campaign to stop child abuse

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sesame Street" is joining the fight against child abuse this season — indirectly — by allowing some of the show's adults to finally believe that Big Bird's best friend, Mr. Snuffleupagus, is real and not imaginary.

For more than a decade, the award-winning public television series for pre-schoolers has used a running gag in which its mainstay Muppet, Big Bird, is the only cast member who comes into contact with the fuzzy elephant character, Mr. Snuffleupagus.

It was frustrating for Big Bird — and adults in the audience, for that matter — when the show's grownups repeatedly missed opportunities to see the cast's largest character. "That was the original joke," said executive producer Dulcy Singer. "But the audience always knew he was real."

The problem with that situation, Ms. Singer and head writer Norman Stiles now say, is that it may have created the message for children that adults would not believe them about serious matters. "It could have been keeping children from divulging things to their parents," Stiles said.

Specialists say one way of dealing with child abuse in both the preventive and therapeutic stages is for children to have complete confidence about talking to parents. At the same time, the parents must trust what the children are saying.

In the first episode of the new season, Nov. 19, Big Bird will say he's tired of assaults on his credibility. "I know the difference between real and imaginary. Why don't they believe me?" the character (played by Caroll Spinney) will say.

Three humans in the cast — Maria (Sonia Manzano), Gordon (Roscoe Orman) and Linda (Linda Bove) — will become believers. "Big Bird will no longer be alone," said Stiles.

But in the best cliffhanger tradition of Hollywood, the humans won't actually see Snuffleupagus. "Not this season," said Stiles.

"We hope this encourages children to go to their parents when they're touched by somebody, and teaches them that they will be believed," said Ms. Singer. "We also hope it teaches children to trust their own instincts."

The executive producer said broadcasting more direct lessons about child abuse might do more harm than good. "The problem is perfecting the message that is appropriate for 4-year-olds," she said.

Ms. Singer also worried that children might be watching without adults around to quiet their fears and put this serious issue into perspective. In contrast, Henry Winkler's home videocassette about child abuse is designed for parents and children to watch together.

Last season, "Sesame Street" discussed death after Will Lee, the actor who played Mr. Hooper in the series, died of a heart attack. Stiles calls the change in the perception of Mr. Snuffleupagus "the most significant thing this season."

But, like everything else on "Sesame Street," the new situation will have its lighter moments. Oscar the Grouch, the show's resident grump who lives in a garbage can, finally will meet Big Bird's big friend.

"Oscar will appreciate him," said Stiles, "because anybody that big must have an enormous amount of trash."

Actress honored by Jewish group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda received the Solidarity Award of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry for aid to economist Ida Nudel in her 10-year effort to emigrate from the Soviet Union to Israel.

The group said at a ceremony Monday night that Miss Fonda visited the 53-year-old economist in the Soviet Union in April and later presented her case to Soviet officials. The actress told the awards dinner that the case "has deeply touched my heart."

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

A dummy reversal is a simple but elegant way of scoring extra tricks. But you have to be careful about how you use your entries, or you might allow the opponents to score a ruff to defeat you.

Seven spades is an excellent contract, but not easy to reach. North bid optimistically to get there in quick time. He used Stayman to locate a 4-4 spade fit, then leaped to Blackwood. After all the aces were located, his six clubs was the Grand Slam Force, and South duly bid the grand slam since he had two of the top three trump honors.

West led a trump, and declarer could count 11 tricks. The obvious way to develop the two tricks needed to fulfill the contract was by ruffing and, because of the entry situation, a dummy reversal was the recommended way to achieve his goal.

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy, cashed the ace-king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond high as West sluffed a heart. He returned to the table with a trump and ruffed another diamond high. Unfortunately, on this trick West sluffed his remaining heart, and now declarer had no way to get to the board to draw West's trumps. When he tried to cross with a heart, West ruffed for down one.

West's discard of a heart on the third diamond should have alerted declarer to the danger. Instead of using a trump to return to dummy, he should have crossed with a heart while West still had one. Then he could ruff a diamond high as West discarded and still get back to the table with a trump to draw the remaining trumps and claim his slam.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, October 25, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Cover girl Cheryl Tiegs, Helen Reddy, actor Tony Franciosa, historian Henry Steele Commager and Minnie Pearl were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Montreal's Andy McGaffigan, Cardinals' Dave Von Ohlen, Texas' Danny Darwin and Seattle's Al Cowens. Be careful not to isolate yourself from those who will be really honest with you. Constructive criticism can save both time and money. Be flexible. The business picture is especially bright in November and January. Those in sales or the arts reap new rewards for past efforts. A financial situation improves after you make a tough decision. Loved ones applaud your self-discipline.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A business partnership has its ups and downs now. Curb a tendency to maintain the status quo at all costs. New ideas mean greater career success. Do not let stubbornness interfere with romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Influential person is impressed by your ability to produce when under pressure. Pursue your goals with vigor. A patient, understanding attitude will help you win the heart of a shy romantic partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You and your co-workers may not see eye-to-eye now. Long-term investments are favored over a quick gamble. Exercise greater tact when handling difficult people.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Curb a tendency to act overly possessive. Working with a younger person can be both trying and rewarding. A quiet evening at home holds more appeal than an expensive night on the town.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid all forms of gambling. Check a newcomer's reputation before agreeing to do business. Romance is exciting but may not last forever. Concentrate on nurturing your other relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial negotiations go splendidly. A new investment should prove highly profitable. Latch on to new ideas that will make routine tasks less tedious. Other people's views deserve careful consideration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get an early start today. Be direct when dealing with friends and close associates. Others are looking to see if you give credit where it is due. Define your personal goals. Loved one offers valuable insights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Marvelous luck comes to those in the performing arts. Fresh starts in business are also possible. Cooperation on the home front gives you new confidence for the future. A check arrives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look more closely into other people's reactions and views. The element of surprise helps you make new financial gains. Avoid wearing daring outfits around conservative individuals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A phone call or message brings the news you expected. The object of your affections may be playing games with you. Call a halt to this off-again, on-again relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your opinions may clash with those of an authority figure. Try not to be so set in your ways. A willingness to compromise is a sign of maturity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An excellent day to make collections, solicit help or shop for bargains. Exercise special care when traveling. A business associate could make idle promises. Trust your intuition and rely on your own efforts.

We don't think so. In the past so-called "normal lens" was far less expensive than lenses of other types especially zoom lenses. Now for only $79 more than the price of 50mm lens you can get 35-70 f2.8 macro zoom lens. We call this lens a "super normal" because it drastically increases the versatility of your 35mm camera you get 4 different lenses in one small package. Wide angles for scenery and groups, telephoto for sports and portraits plus the added bonus of macro for close-ups of flowers, etc. When you buy any of today's exceptional 35mm cameras match it with the Sigma 35-70 f2.8 "Super-Normal"

Odessa man sentenced in traffic death

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A 21-year-old Odessa man, who said he only remembers having one drink at an Odessa nightclub before a two-vehicle accident Aug. 18 that killed a 24-year-old Midlander, was sentenced Tuesday to five years at the Texas Department of Corrections and fined $5,000.

Kenneth Everett Baskett, who at the time of the accident was on probation for a driving while intoxicated conviction in April, pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in Judge Vann Culp's 238th District Court.

The eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated for about 30 minutes before returning the punishment, which could have resulted in another probated sentence. Under state law, however, anyone convicted of involuntary manslaughter and/or a felony DWI must serve at least 120 days in county jail when given a probated sentence.

"WE'RE REAL pleased," said Faye Higgins, mother of Joseph Higgins. He was killed on impact when Baskett, in a 1978 Chevrolet Nova traveling east in the westbound lane of State Highway 191, collided with Higgins' westbound 1984 Honda Civic about two miles west of Midland.

"We weren't out for blood or anything. We were out to make sure our Joseph did not die in vain. It's too late to help him but if we can help society, some other innocent person who could have been out there as our Joseph was..."

Higgins had just moved back to Midland after living in Dallas for six years. According to the victim's mother, Higgins and his father had returned home from Dallas shortly after midnight with Higgin's belongings. The University of Texas at Arlington graduate, who had studied architectural lighting, was employed with Lights Fantastic in Dallas before moving to Midland.

"He'd rented an apartment and was going to move in the next morning at 8 a.m. and look for a job on Monday," Mrs. Higgins testified. Her son, she said, was excited about being home and the three had "a family visit," before she and her husband went to bed. Her son showered and left to go visit a friend.

About three hours later, Mrs. Higgins said they were awakened by an officer at the door who told them their son had been killed in the accident.

BASKETT, DESCRIBED as "shy, bashful...with no friends to speak of" by his father Jerry, with whom he lived from February to just prior to the accident, was on probation for a DWI conviction he received April 25.

Although the elder Baskett said he knew of his son's DWI conviction, he testified, "I didn't know he had a problem with drinking until this DWI deal. He just got caught."

Baskett said contact with his son was "not very regular" because of his relationship with his ex-wife, who eventually moved to Odessa, Mo. The couple divorced when Kenneth was 3, he said, and at one point, he did not see his son for three years.

The defendant had lived with his father until he moved into an apartment in Odessa, where he was living at the time of the accident. After the accident, Baskett moved back in with his father, who testified his son had not had a drink since then.

Mary Helen Holt, the defendant's mother, said that Baskett, a "slow-learner" who had failed first grade and was placed in special education classes, had some friends, "but not a real close friend, not someone he could talk to."

During tearful testimony, Mrs. Holt said she had moved to Missouri to take her young children away from their father. Although she said the elder Baskett "wasn't a bad father," she said she took the children "because he hurt me and I wanted to hurt him."

WHEN ODESSA defense attorney John Hoestenbach asked her if she used her children as instruments against their father, Mrs. Holt said, "Not really. They were just my kids and I raised them."

Baskett cried during his mother's testimony.

During cross-examination by chief prosecutor Assistant District Attorney Jack Connors, Mrs. Holt was asked if she would want to trade places with the victim's mother.

"I know at the time if I'd lost him in the accident, I'd have lost him then instead of losing him when he goes through what he has to," she said.

Baskett, who walked to the stand on crutches, a reminder of the accident and his three-week hospitalization, said he had gone to the Doll's House, an Odessa topless bar, about 7 p.m. after cashing his paycheck the night of the accident.

His recollection of the evening was that of one Crown Royal and 7-Up and waking up in an ambulance, he said.

"ALL I REMEMBER is waking in and having one drink, but I guess I had to have had more than that to do what I did," testified the defendant, dressed in a striped sweater and dark slacks.

Baskett, who said he has not had a drink since the accident and does not plan to drink in the future, told Connors he was aware he was breaking stipulations of his probation, which required he stay away from disreputable places and people and avoid alcohol, "but I never thought about it."

"You never thought about the consequences, did you?" Connors asked.

"Yeah," Baskett replied.

The accident occurred a few days shy of Baskett's fourth month on probation.

His probation officer in Ector County, Sandra McDowell, testified she learned Baskett had violated terms of his probation through a phone call from an unidentified member of MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers). Ms. McDowell said neither Baskett nor members of his family ever notified her of the accident.

She had filed a motion to revoke his probation, she said.

According to testimony from DPS investigators, Baskett had a .17 blood alcohol content at the time of the accident. The legal level is .10.

Hilan Priddy, the investigating highway patrol trooper with the Department of Public Safety, testified reconstruction of the accident indicated Higgins was traveling at 59 mph while Baskett was driving at 109. No one, including the defendant, could determine how far he had been driving on the wrong side of the highway.

HOESTENBACH, WHO asked the jury to give Baskett probation, which would include treatment for alcoholism and the mandated 120 days in county jail, said the defendant has suffered from his "deadly mistake." The prosecution asked for a seven- to eight-year prison sentence.

"I'm willing to say to you, every last one of you has been reading about what's going on in the penitentiary," Hoestenbach said, referring to the recent publicity about prison violence. "We've already lost one life. We don't need to lose another."

But Assistant District Attorney Janet Copeland said a prison sentence would provide rehabilitation, deterrence and punishment, where a county jail sentence would not.

"In seven or eight years, he's going to walk out the door of the penitentiary a young man," she said. "He can get help if he wants it. The penitentiary is a place for rehabilitation if you want it. It's certainly a place for punishment and it's certainly a deterrent."

CITING BASKETT'S age, Ms. Copeland said, "He's a young man, 21, but, ladies and gentlemen, he's old enought to accept responsibility for his actions."

According to Connors, the verdict "was good for us, for our office. It's given us an indication as to what to do in the future with these cases, what the people in Midland County expect and what they'll tolerate."

Conflict erupts over grades

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Angry parents and school board members clashed Tuesday afternoon when the Midland Independent School District board of directors met for their second meeting of the month.

A new grading system giving any student earning below a 70 score a "D" was the key issue at the meeting. Board members presented a three-part study on the system which compared student grade flucuations for the past three years in Midland secondary schools against other Texas school districts. The study also showed college entrance requirements of several major universities and colleges across the nation.

The new system, approved June 26, was effective the beginning of the current school year and was in response to a new state law requiring Texas schools to redesign grading systems so that any grade below 70 is failing. Previously, any MISD secondary student would have had to earn 59 or lower to fail a course.

Duane Moore, assistant superintendent of MISD headed the committee that devised the new grading procedures.

"We discussed at length whether we should even have a 'D' grade. Other considerations were going to a 'plus and minus' system or to straight numerical grading but we decided against them," said Moore.

The grading system Moore and several board members came up with increased standards for students across the board. Previously, grade standards in the MISD were as follows: A — 90 to 100; B — 80 to 90; C — 70 to 79; D — 60 to 69 and F — 59 and below. The new standards are: A — 92 to 100; B — 83 to 91; C — 74 to 82; D — 70 to 73 and F — 69 and below.

Dissension arose between parents when the report presented by the board members revealed no real impact on grades. Data gathered by the MISD showed the number of each respective letter grade given in seconday schools had not changed during the first six weeks of this school year when compared with the same time period in 1983 and 1982.

The study also showed that Midland's secondary schools are comparable in standards to 27 other Texas school districts, while 17 have higher standards. College entrance requirements listed from 10 major universities and colleges revealed that the new standard, which in some cases has lowered grade point averages for students, consider class rank more important than GPA in accepting a student.

Meeting to be held on Gramm, Doggett ads

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Key personnel from the campaigns of Democrat Lloyd Doggett and Republican Phil Gramm were to hold a truce meeting this morning to determine which advertisements should be pulled.

Larry Neal with the Gramm campaign said late Tuesday afternoon the session was called to negotiate a "specific agreement on television, radio and newspaper ads, late mailings and speeches" after Doggett had publicly called for both sides to pull offending ads.

During a brief stop at Midland Regional Airport Tuesday, Doggett charged that Gramm had run offending ads from June through September. The Democrat also denied that one of his ads televised during the primary had been cited for violating an advertising code of ethics.

"In the last 10 days I've begun to run ads to reflect our basic differences. Yesterday, the Goliath cried 'ouch' and waved a white flag and asked that we talk positive. He couldn't take 10 days of it."

Arriving an hour late for the news conference at Chaparral Aviation, the Democratic contender for the Senate seat being vacated by John Tower said he had instructed his staff to remove "all ads which mention Goliath." Goliath is the name Doggett uses for Gramm while the Democrat calls himself David.

Doggett also asked that the two men sit down in an hour and a half debate "to speak positively about the campaign."

He suggested this debate be held "anywhere where we can be assured of the maximum number of viewers. But I've left it to Gramm to set the date, time and place."

In response, Gramm set no date, no time, no place, no debate.

In a press release the Republican stated, "I would remind my opponent that I initially accepted offers to debate five times including a debate in his home town of Austin or any city of his choosing in Texas. Mr. Doggett refused to participate in the first three debates, and we recently completed two debates that were telecast statewide."

Neal added, "He expects us to throw away the campaign schedule at the most crucial time of the campaign."

Neal said none of Gramm's ads had been pulled nor had any of Doggett's by Monday night.

Doggett denied that he has run a negative campaign. "I've been on the short side of Gramm's attacks all summer long. I think everything we've done has been positive."

Last week during a Midland appearance, Gramm said Doggett had been cited by the American Association of Advertising Agencies for an ad which violated the code of ethics. A story in the Aug. 2, 1984, issue of Advertising Age said the spot, telecast during the primary, showed an elderly man watching a TV commercial for one of Sen. Doggett's primary election opponents, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

Doggett said the editor of the publication and chairman of the board repudiated the report. "I was never cited. I never got any communication."

The Advertising Age story reported that John O'Toole from a member agency in Texas and chairman of the association, said he had notified Doggett by mail that he had received a complaint.

Other issues covered in the news conference included:

United Way OKs special grant

From Staff Reports

The United Way of Midland approved a special grant of up to $10,000 Tuesday to help the Community and Senior Services of Midland Inc. make up a $15,000 shortfall in its budget.

The grant approved by the United Way Board of Directors will fund the last six weeks of Community and Senior Services' 1984 budget. The agency's programs include Share-A-Meal, Midland Gold, Grocery Express, Postal Alert, Handyman Service, seminars, counseling and telephone reassurance.

The United Way approves special grants for non-member agencies which have special funding needs. Community and Senior Services used to be funded by the First Christian Church and several Midland banks, but since 1982 it's been independent and funded primarily through private donations and foundations.

The United Way board also approved a $10,000 grant to Community and Senior Services to cover start-up costs for a Visiting Nurses Association program which is to begin in January 1985.

The Visiting Nurses Organization is a group of registered nurses which provides a professional non-profit health care service to persons of all ages who have health problems requiring home care. The service is directed especially to low-income residents, as well as those whose insurance or medicare benefits have expired.

Services will be provided on a sliding fee scale, from 50 cents to $30 per hour. No one wil be denied the nursing service, which will be administered by Community and Senior Services until it's set up as a separate organization.

Odessans' arson trial to convene Dec. 3

Men to be tried for planning building's destruction

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The joint arson trial of Ector County Commissioner Willie Hammond Jr. and former Odessa City Councilman Keith Weddell is to begin Dec. 3 in federal court in Midland.

The two men are charged by indictment with planning the destruction of the O'Michael Building, a downtown Odessa office building, which was set afire on Nov. 25, 1981.

The government alleges that Weddell, 53, in July of 1980 had bought an interest in the building in speculating that a civic center would be built near the building. However, a bond issue proposing the center failed in a general election in December 1980.

From late 1980 until November 1981, tenants' rent failed to cover the building's operating expenses. And in May 1981, the insurance premiums on the building doubled.

Thereafter, Weddell and Hammond, 43, conspired with John Peterson to damage and destroy the building with an explosive device for the insurance money, the government claims.

Hammond is charged with paying Peterson, a convicted burglar, for arranging the burning of the building, which has since been refurbished and sold. The building now is known as Jackson Center.

The government is alleging that Peterson's brother, Lawrence "Cotton" Peterson, and L.C. Burditt set the building afire.

Both Hammond and Weddell were indicted for conspiring to burn the building and for inducing the arson. If convicted for conspiracy, each could be sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000. If convicted for abetting the offense, each could be imprisoned for 10 years and fined $10,000.

In addition, Hammond is charged with lying to a federal grand jury on two occasions by denying he had any dealings with John Peterson or any others on the burning of the O'Michael Building.

If convicted on both counts of perjury, Hammond could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $20,000.

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton is to preside over the Dec. 3 jury trial.

Hammond is to be defended by Odessa attorneys Warren Burnett and Elisa Vasquez. Weddell is to represented by Lubbock attorney Travis D. Shelton. Prosecutor is to be Assistant U.S. Attorney Ellen Byers of San Antonio.

While the joint trial is pending, Burnett and Shelton have petitioned the U.S. government to allow them to inspect and copy grand jury evidence in their preparation for the trial.

In addition, Burnett is asking for a preliminary hearing to determine if the government "possesses sufficient evidence to support a finding of conspiracy" between Hammond and the alleged co-conspirators.

Burnett is seeking a list of expert witnesses which the government plans to call to the trial, the "full arrest records and criminal convictions" of any prospective witness, and statements of any "promises, rewards and/or inducements of any kind made by the government" to witnesses and alleged co-conspirators.

Further, the defense is seeking accounts of criminal cases pending against each witness, any evidence which may impeach any witness, and whether or not the veracity of any government witness has been tested by a polygraph or other "veracity-probing examination."

In addition, the defense wants to know if any government witness has been hospitalized for drug abuse, alcoholism, psychiatric or emotional disorder.

Following an extensive investigation by the government, Hammond and Weddell were indicted in September. Each was released under a $50,000 bail.

Armadillo fighters better off leaving creatures alone

By THOM MARSHAL
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Armadillo fighting is a seasonal thing, much like kite flying in spring, except that kite fliers enjoy what they do and most armadillo fighters would prefer not to battle the little critters to protect their yards.

"I feel sorry for people that get them," said Agnes Johnson of Mesquite. "Anybody who has real nice grass, it'd be a shame." Ms. Johnson says she doesn't have much lawn for armadillos to damage but "they just come dig up all my flower beds."

And Ricky Sramek, Dallas County wildlife control specialist, says he gets calls about armadillos in late summer and early autumn every year.

Sramek says it's because armadillos like to eat cutworms. And when the untamed countryside has been baked hard and dry by the relentless summer sun, armadillos come to dig up the cutworms in homeowners' soft, watered lawns. And dig they do. Experts say they can tunnel at speeds up to 12 feet per hour.

Virginia Miles lives in Kessler Park, only five minutes from downtown Dallas, and yet she, too, often suffers from apparent armadillos. Apparent because she hasn't actually seen them at work.

But, she says, "I have some trenches in my yard. I stood out there and almost cried. One of them is 18 inches long and 4 to 6 inches wide and 6 inches deep. Another one is in two sections, but it takes up about as much space."

Like many homeowners, Ms. Miles takes pride in her lawn. Works at it.

"I've sat up nights watering it to keep it alive.

"And then along comes an armadillo in the dead of night and...What's a person to do?

Well, not much, actually, Sramek says.

"They're so dumb they are hard to trap. They may walk up to the back of the trap and smell the bait but not be smart enough to go around to the front of the trap."

So that doesn't work too well.

"If you live out in the country you can get them with your shotgun."

Municipalities, however, have strict laws about discharging firearms, so that's out.

"You can spotlight them and club them if you stay up that late."

Armadillos are nocturnal, and they may not come around where you're guarding until the wee hours.

Said Ms. Johnson, "I'm 65 years old, and I don't feel like going out there all night and trying to hit them with a shovel."

Can this be? Shoot them; club them; hit them with a shovel?

Amazing. This is the same nine-banded armadillo (Dasypus Novemcinctus) that is the loved and lauded official state mascot. He's proudly displayed on T-shirts and posters throughout Texas. He's come to mean something, symbolwise; like the Alamo means something; like Tom Landry means something. The armadillo stands for good times and rednecks and longnecks and country music and chili.

Texans weren't the first to elevate the armadillo to lore status. The creature is found frequently in folk art and handicrafts in Latin America. In Brazil, where there are 10 species of the creature, ranging in size from a tiny six inches up to a hefty 100 pounds, some natives believe the first humans came to earth when they fell through a big armadillo hole in the sky. Other tribes depict the armadillo as one of four animals that support the universe.

According to backwoods legends in central Brazil, if a stroller happens to see a six-banded armadillo with dirt on its back, a friend or relative will be dead when that person returns home. Some Brazilians believe a cure for rheumatism and arthritis can be made by combining rendered armadillo fat with sugarcane rum.

If that's a bit difficult to believe, think how much trouble Brazilians might have understanding this: In 1968, Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalog offered beribboned armadillos for sale. The ad read: "Armadillo, anyone? Imagine him burrowing quietly under the Christmas tree or at your side for afternoon walks. Shipped live with United States Armadillo Breeders Association registration papers, membership card and bumper sticker."

Since then a state law was passed making it illegal to sell a live armadillo.

Some people, especially those with claw-damaged lawns, would find it hard to believe there is an armadillo market. What kind of pet would it make — sleeping all day, stupid and no fur to stroke like a cat or dog?

But that's not why they became Texas' official mascot. It's because the armadillo is as much a part of the state's history as anything that can be imagined. He came here not long before independence was won from Mexico. John James Audubon said so. He claims to have spotted an armadillo in the 1850s in the Rio Grande Valley.

By 1895, there were sufficient numbers of them for Charles Apelt, a German immigrant, to start his company in Comfort, Texas. He made baskets and lamps out of armadillo shells, selling as many as 40,000 ardmadillos in a single year, according to some reports.

There is nothing unusual about the armadillo's invasion of Texas. It has been moving ever northward for the past 10,000 years. It reached the Yucatan Peninsula about 2,000 years ago. By the 16th century it had claimed all of Mexico. By the early part of this century it has migrated into Oklahoma and Louisiana and is now being seen in Kansas and Missouri.

In recent years it's been questioned whether it's smart to handle them without gloves, as many people do in armadillo races.

It's because medical researchers say armadillos carry and may transmit leprosy. Four men who contracted the disease had for several years caught, cleaned and eaten armadillos. Each of them had gotten cuts on his hands from handling armadillos. An open cut is an ideal way for the leprosy bacillus to spread, researchers say.

So, because there's a chance it isn't good to handle armadillos and because the average homeowner isn't likely to catch one anyway, it's best to simply leave them alone.

Which would be well and good, says Agnes Johnson, if they would leave her alone. She's afraid some of them will get up under her mobile home.

Sramek says exclusion is the preferable solution. Keep the critters out of the yard in the first place and then you don't have to worry about how to get rid of them. A good fence will do it. Or spraying the yard with an insecticide "will maybe get rid of the food supply."

Sculptor Hanbury's works to be exhibited at gallery

An exhibit of works by sculptor Una Hanbury of Santa Fe, N.M., will be on display from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Friday at the J.W. Parks Gallery, 1108 N. Big Spring St. Mrs. Hanbury will be present for the day.

Mrs. Hanbury, who spent her childhood in England and Italy in homes which also housed an assortment of animals, cannot remember a time when she didn't draw and model. At an early age, she studied in London with Frank Calderon, the distinguished animal artist.

Her animal portraits in content range from the Alaskan musk oxen to the legendary Pegasus. She is also known for her sculptures of happy children at play.

Her works appear in 450 private collections, including many in Midland. She has monuments in several countries such as Spain's Prado and in Yugoslavia. In the United States, her works are displayed at, among others, the National Portrait Gallery, the Smithsonian Institution and the Kennedy Center for Performing Arts.

Thirty-year-old home-style restaurant serves last supper

ANGLETON (AP) — A handful of "regulars" braved a heavy rain to commemorate the end of a 30-year tradition at Mac's Restaurant.

The unique little eatery, located in a small, near-paintless frame house at East Mulberry and Cedar streets, has long been a favorite of those who appreciate the finer points of "home style."

Diners who didn't know another soul in the room could feel like part of a large family at Mac's, which was the main charm of the place, second only to the food.

Visitors were seated at one of three large tables while plates of fried chicken, sausage and sauerkraut, biscuits, potatoes, okra, cake and numerous other items were brought from the kitchen and started on their rounds of the table.

As at family dinner, jokes would be made if the bowls and plates stayed too long at one chair.

Over the years, Mac's gained a reputation for fine food and atmosphere that never diminished, even when the original "Mama Mac" retired to care for the tiny bar next to the restaurant.

Regulars knew to watch out for the floors, which slanted at hideous angles due to settling in the foundation of the old house, and warned newcomers about the hazards of walking in the dimly-lit dining room.

They didn't mind that it was cooled only by a fan nearly as old as the building in the summer, or heated mainly by the kitchen in the winter.

And they kept coming when, as happened at the farewell party last week, rainwater streamed down the warped walls and pooled on the tile floor.

Some had come regularly for years, like Marvin and Nita Zhaicek, who were on hand to say goodbye.

The Zhaiceks, who own and operate a steakhouse in Liverpool, said they came to Mac's every single Friday. Often, they said, their cook came with them.

Why every Friday?

"It's chicken and dumplings day," he said.

Asked what they'd be doing on Fridays now, the Zhaiceks just shook their heads and looked glum.

But Leona Cole Hernandez, who has operated the restaurant since Mac's departure three years ago, said she just couldn't face another winter in the building.

"I'll miss it real bad, I sure will," Mrs. Hernandez said. "I've enjoyed feeding these people."

Mrs. Hernadez said customers who learned of her plans to close the restaurant had tried to talk her out of it.

"But there's just no way," she said, pointing to the inches-deep water on the floor.

"Look at this — my feet are sopping wet right now."

She hopes to open another restaurant in a better location sometime after the first of the year, Mrs. Hernandez said. In the meantime, she's going to rest.

Agreement ruled invalid without 'sinking fund'

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox has ruled an agreement in Sonora between the city and county to pay for electricity furnished volunteer firemen for their private use is invalid if no provision for a "sinking fund" to retire the debt has been made.

Mattox's ruling, in response to Sutton County Attorney J.W. Johnson, Jr., states the agreement "makes Sutton County precuniarily liable for an uncertain amount not within the power of the county to "limit" since the county is required to pay for one-half of the electricity used by the firemen.

Mattox noted his office was not provided a copy of the agreement, and added "our discussion is necessarily couched in general terms."

But he said Texas law provides that "no debt for any purpose shall ever be incurred in any manner by any city or county unless provision is made, at the time the debt is created, for levying and collecting a tax to pay the interest thereon and to provide a sinking fund for its retirement."

Odessan dies from gunshot wound

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 57-year-old black man died Tuesday morning after exchanging gunfire with another Odessa man in a vacant area of a lot at the corner of Tom Green and Pearl streets, according to police reports.

Lugene James, 57, who lived at 214 E. Murphy, died from one wound to the upper chest allegedly fired by a 48-year-old suspect, who was questioned, then released after the incident.

According to witnesses at the scene and the suspect, James approached a group of men huddled around a fire in a trash barrel Tuesday about 9:30 a.m., and after arguing with the suspect about cleaning up the area around the barrel, walked a short distance away before opening fire on the group.

Five or six shots were fired by the two men, according to witnesses, with one from the suspect hitting James. No charges have been filed, with the case to be referred to the Ector County grand jury for consideration.

Two small caliber handguns were taken from the scene by police, who were called to the scene after the shooting. Justice of the Peace Jimmie Harris pronounced James dead at 10:25 a.m. Tuesday and ordered an autopsy.

Parents, worried and angry that their children could wind up with a lower grade point average under the new system, made their way one by one to the speaker's podium to list their grievances.

"Grade point averages are important to colleges," said LaDonna Moore, a former teacher and mother of a high school student. "I called many universities and they said they had neither the time nor man hours to examine each application to look past the GPA at the student's achievements. Of course GPA is important."

Mrs. Moore and Ann Scott, also a former teacher, presented charts of how the new grading system is hurting students. The chart showed that the new procedure also changes class rank for some students.

Other parents were upset that students who are normally underachievers or who have learning problems, might fail under the new system.

Some parents, including a board member, disagreed that the new system was harmful.

"I believe in this higher system," said Charleen Rosebery. "I think we do the kids a great disservice by not giving them a better idea of how they will do in college. Many students who are making 90's in high school, wind up making C's in college. I just don't think it's fair to senior."

Board member, Fred M. Newman agreed.

"I would rather my child acquire good study skills, prepare for life and get a 'C', than slack off and earn a 'B' ", he said.

Joe Reed, another board member expressed similar sentiments.

"The old way was the comfortable way," he said. "The fact that kids feel uncomfortable about the new system is not all bad. In the past, 90 to 91 has been a comfortable resting place — they need a little more incentive."

One angry parent disagreed.

"Incentive must come from within the child," said Julie Conaway, "not the school board."

Parker Humes, president of the school board received applause from the audience when he voiced his concern over the new system. "Quite frankly," said Humes, "I have not been able to see how this (new system) helps the children."

The board, after hearing the parents and presenting summations, agreed to bring up the new system at the next meeting on Nov. 13.

"I don't foresee any change in votes," said Humes later. "The vote was 4 to 3 for the new system last time and I just don't think it will change."

Another controversy, the selling procedures of out-of-town football tickets, was brought up at the meeting. A public uproar occurred Oct. 12 when most tickets to an out-of-town Lee High School football game were sold to the booster clubs the day before tickets went on sale to the general public.

When a sell-out is expected, the sale of reserve tickets will begin on Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. to season ticket holders on a one for one basis. All remaining tickets will be sold starting Wednesday morning on a first-come, first-serve basis at the athletic ticket office with ticket limitations to be determined based on the capacity of the stadium. The anticipated sell-out will be advertised in the newspaper, the Sunday preceding the game.

The sale of reserve tickets for regular out-of-town games will begin during business hours to season ticket holders on a one for one basis. Tickets will be on sale Tuesday evening at respective high schools on a first-come, first-serve basis. All remaining tickets will be sold Wednesday through Friday noon on a first-come, first-serve basis at the athletic ticket office.

For in-town games, tickets will be on sale, Wednesday through Friday noon during business hours on a first-come, first-serve basis.

In unfinished business, Dr. Joseph Baressi, MISD superintendent, reported that enrollment figures had increased this year. The total number of students is 18,084 this year, up 400 from this time last year.

Jewelry, sterling silver taken in burglary

From Staff Reports

The burglary of a residence between Monday and Tuesday morning resulted in the loss of $66,000 worth of jewelry and sterling silver, according to police reports.

John Davis of 1610 N. N St. told police his wife discovered her jewelry was missing as she was getting ready to leave the house early Tuesday morning. The jewelry, worth $51,000 and kept in jewelry boxes in the master bedroom, was last seen at 11 a.m. Monday.

On inspection, the couple discovered a 16-piece set of sterling silver valued at $15,000, also was missing.

About 175 square yards of rose-colored carpet was reported stolen from a house under construction at 3405 Claremont. According to Cary Reeves, who reported the burglary, the carpet was valued at $2,700. Carpet padding also was taken sometime between Saturday and Tuesday.

Carpet also was reported stolen from a vacant house at 319 E. Estes. Thirty yards of carpet, valued at $450, and a $300 electric range were reported stolen by Greydon Hatfield. About $500 worth of damage was done to electrical outlets and a door, which was pried open with a screwdriver. Total loss was placed at $1,250.

Dora Frazier of 1319 E. Magnolia, reported a necklace and ring valued at $500 were taken from a jewelry box in a bathroom between 7:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday. There were no signs of forced entry.

A $350 car jack and two car ramps, valued at $20, were reported missing from a garage at 1504 Navajo. According to Elwood Anderson, who lives at the residence and uses his garage for his auto repair business, entry was gained by reaching inside a hole in the door and unlocking it.

A $250 cable television converter was reported stolen Tuesday by Earl Sebring from the back seat of a company car parked on the third floor of a garage at 300 N. Marienfeld.

Water board OKs amendment

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Development Board has approved amending an agreement with the Bureau of Reclamation to allow the negotiation of a consultant contract not to exceed $62,838 to analyze data for the development of a cloud-seeding project in West Texas.

In May, the state entered into an agreement with the Bureau of Reclamation to develop a cloud-seeding demonstration project, but an official with the Texas Department of Water Resources told the board additional analyses are needed to estimate relationships between cloud dimension and precipitation characteristics in the southern High Plains.

The amendment approved by the board Thursday provides for federal funding for the additional consultant work.

Doggett releases tape of conversation with Gramm

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — Attempts to declare a truce in the negative campaigning for the Texas U.S. Senate seat exploded in controversy after a phone conversation between Democrat Lloyd Doggett and Republican Phil Gramm.

Gramm said Doggett was "unethical" by making public a tape recording of their Tuesday evening conversation. A Doggett spokesman said Gramm hung up on Doggett during the call, which he said the Democrat made in good faith.

The charges were the latest in a two-day, long-distance exchange.

A spokesman for the Texas attorney general's office said there is no state law against recording a telephone call and no notification required that it is being recorded.

Gramm first proposed that both candidates campaign on their own records and not mention the other candidate. Doggett said he liked the idea, adding that he ordered his staff to immediately withdraw "negative" ads which mentioned Gramm.

But Doggett also asked for a third debate, a "full and free exchange," in which all charges made in both candidates' ads could be discussed.

After a day on the campaign trail Tuesday, Doggett telephoned Gramm during a nighttime television call-in show in Victoria.

According to a tape released by Doggett's staff, the Democrat told Gramm he had ordered ads withdrawn that mentioned Gramm and that he had instructed campaign workers "to just emphasize the positive aspects of my record...

"And I just want to check and see if y'all are doing the same thing," Doggett said.

But Gramm said Doggett continued to make the offer conditional upon Gramm's agreeing to another debate, adding in the conversation: "We've already had two debates, Lloyd. You've had your chance and you lost."

The telephone call came during the 30-minute talk show, but Gramm spoke with Doggett off the air.

Bill Collier, Doggett's press secretary, said the Democrat's campaign noted that "Gramm said he had not pulled down his negative ads...and that he is not going to pull down his negative ads and he is not going to meet Sen. Doggett in a factual discussion of the charges and countercharges that have been made in the last couple of weeks."

After the conversation, Gramm said Doggett's call was a "hot-dog kind of deal," and the Republican emphasized that he has no plans to meet Doggett again in a debate.

Gramm said Doggett turned down three proposals for debates in addition to one held last month in College Station and last week in Dallas.

Collier said that charge "is the same old stuff. Lloyd's accepted a dozen (invitations for) debates in the last few weeks that Phil Gramm didn't."

During their conversation, Gramm asked Doggett several times if his agreement to stop using Gramm's name was contingent on a third debate.

Collier said the phone call was not a campaign stunt. "The whole purpose of Lloyd's phoning was to try to get Mr. Gramm's response," Collier said.

After the Victoria call-in show, Gramm traveled to Austin. There, Gramm said he learned about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday that Doggett "surreptitiously taped our telephone conversation without notifying me that the telephone conservation was being taped and that (he has) released it to the media."

Gramm said that action "abused" his courtesy and was "another act of bad faith and unethical behavior."

He said because of Doggett's action it would be "impossible at this point to have any meaningful negotiations" for a positive campaign.

Gramm released a letter he had sent Doggett, in which he said:

"Although your call did not get through on the program, I extended you the courtesy of taking your call after the program ended. I had hoped we would have a meaningful discussion which would clear the way for setting the ground rules for a totally positive campaign."

Doggett's campaign manager, James Carville, said a meeting on the clean-campaign issue would be redundant to other efforts that have failed to produce a third debate. "We've done everything we already can," Carville said.

Collier said Gramm's letter "is the same old stuff. Lloyd's accepted a dozen debates in the last few weeks that Phil Gramm didn't.

"He is acting like it's Lloyd's fault we can't take the high road in the campaign. It was his (Gramm's) idea," Collier said.

Collier said the bottom line in the controversy was that Gramm wouldn't respond to Doggett's proposal for a moratorium on negative ads and a third debate.

Mauro says amended law threatens loan program for Texas veterans

AUSTIN (AP) — A state Democratic official says Republicans slipped in federal tax provisions that threaten Texas' unique loan programs for veterans to buy land and housing.

"By placing an ever-tightening vise on eligibility, the Reagan administration has chosen to eliminate more than one million Texas veterans from the housing program," said Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

Mauro said Tuesday the Tax Reform Act of 1984 "not only excludes our older veterans from World War II and Korea, but it also excludes our most recent veterans such as those who served in Grenada, Beirut and in the space program."

Mauro also told a news conference Congress had voted to halt by 1990 state loans to Texas veterans to buy land.

However, Mauro said Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Texas, and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, "are committed to working hard...and I feel real comfortable we'll be able" to avoid shutting down the land program.

That program, which loans up to $20,000 to veterans to buy a minimum of 10 acres, was established in 1949, and more than 85,000 veterans have borrowed money to buy land.

Mauro said since February 1983, more than 10,000 loans totaling a "little over" $200 million have been made to veterans to help buy homes. The housing program, he said, "has created over 20,000 new jobs in Texas and over $1 billion in economic activity."

Gary Mauro

The land and housing programs are based on the state loaning money from the sale of tax-exempt bonds, and Mauro said the new federal law prohibits the state from selling such bonds.

"We in Texas made the decision that we would not have a bonus program (for veterans), that we would have a self-sufficient, self-financing program for Texas veterans, and because we are the only state in the nation that is doing that, we are being penalized," the commissioner said.

The Texas Veterans Land Board last week accepted a bid from an investment syndicate headed by Citicorp Capital Markets Group of New York to underwrite an additional $250 million in bonds for veterans housing.

The net interest cost of the general obligation bond issue, the largest in Texas history, is 9.13 percent, and a veteran would have to pay 9.97 percent for a housing loan of up to $20,000.

Mauro said, however, the Tax Reform Act prevents him from loaning any of the new bond money to veterans who left the service before 1955 or entered service after 1977.

"We could use non-tax exempt bonds but then the rate would go from 9.97 to probably 14 or 15...and then, of course, that's not attractive," Mauro said.

He said Texas got "got caught up" in a federal move to halt the abuse of tax-exempt bonds.

Gov. Mark White

White slated to testify on voter registration drives

Committee probes use of state employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Mark White was scheduled to testify today before a congressional subcommittee investigating complaints about use of state employees in voter registration drives.

The hearing before the Government Operations Subcommittee on Manpower and Housing was called because Donald Devine, the head of the government's Office of Personnel Management, wrote to the governors of Texas, New York and Ohio last month, warning them that state employees are not to be used "for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election."

Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste had called Devine's letter a "thinly veiled threat that federal funds for Ohio would be cut off" if the state did not drop the voter registration program.

White has maintained that Texas state employees only help people fill out voter registration forms that are available in state office buildings. Republican Party officials had charged that prospective voters were being "coerced" into registering.

Texas' voter registration is nonpartisan, that is, a voter does not declare a party preference.

Officials from New York and Ohio were also slated to appear. Voter registration is non-partisan in Ohio. In New York, prospective voters are given the option of enrolling in a political party when they register.

White was also hoping to spend time today meeting with Secretary of Interior William Clark on a method of splitting offshore oil revenues, but Clark declined.

White and the governors of Alabama, Mississippi and Florida had written Clark asking for the meeting today, but Clark responded in a mailgram Tuesday that he would prefer that their staff people work out an "agenda" first.

Seven coastal states and the federal government are trying to work out a formula for splitting revenue from shared offshore oil leases. Congress decided in 1978 that the revenues should be shared but did not say how.

The revenues have gathered in an escrow fund which is now over $5 billion.

White met with Clark this summer, saying he thought the states and the federal government should split the revenues 50-50. Clark later countered with an offer to the states of one-sixth of the "bonus" lessors pay to get the leases.

That offer was rejected by governors of the affected states in a meeting in Austin last month.

Board will hear request to delay Barefoot's execution

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Board of Pardons and Paroles has scheduled an emergency hearing Thursday on a request to hold up for 60 days the execution of Thomas Barefoot, who is sentenced to die before sunrise Oct. 30 in the slaying of a Central Texas police officer.

Late last month State District Judge William Black of Belton set the execution date for Barefoot, his fifth since he was sentenced to die for the August 1978 shooting.

Barefoot, a former oilfield roughneck from New Iberia, La., came within 12 hours of execution in January 1983.

Doctor: There's 'no doubt' baby had been given overdose of drug

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An expert in the study of children's blood says there is no doubt four-week-old Rolando Santos was given a massive dose of heparin about the time former nurse Genene Jones reported he was bleeding profusely.

Dr. William Hathaway, professor of pediatrics at the University of Colorado school of medicine, said Tuesday he reviewed the medical files of the Santos baby.

The baby's blood, he said, "unquestionably" was contaminated with heparin that day.

The testimony came in the injury to a child trial of Ms. Jones, 34. The former licensed vocational nurse is accused of giving the Santos child an overdose of heparin, a blood-thinner that can cause excessive bleeding.

The alleged offense occurred Jan. 9, 1982, in the pediatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital. The infant had been hospitalized there for treatment of pneumonia.

Hathaway, who works in a laboratory that studies blood disorders, estimated the baby had 15,886 units of heparin in his bloodstream. A normal, safe dosage, he said, would be 125 units.

He also said the massive dose of heparin likely would totally metabolize in about five hours.

"Is there any way 15,886 units of heparin could be in Rolando Santos' body unless it was injected into his body?" prosecutor Nick Rothe asked.

"No, it would have to be injected because it can't be absorbed orally," Hathaway responded.

According to nursing notes made by Ms. Jones, the baby started bleeding about 4 p.m. Hathaway estimated "heparin must have been given around that time."

Hathaway's conclusion that the infant had been given a massive dose of heparin was confirmed by Dr. Murray Pollack, a pediatric intensive care specialist from Washington, D.C.

"The lab data show conclusively that he received heparin," Pollack testified.

The doctor said the use of protamine sulfate, an antidote for heparin, to stop the bleeding is a clear indicator the infant had heparin in his bloodstream.

Dr. Kenneth Copeland, the attending physician when the baby started bleeding heavily Jan. 9, testified earlier he administered a massive dosage of protamine sulfate to the Santos child. He testified the bleeding stopped almost immediately.

He also testified he ordered nurses to stop administering even small doses of the drug to the baby. Testimony indicated heparin had been used to keep an arterial line from scabbing over.

Pollack, who reviewed the baby's medical records during his entire hospital stay, recalled the infant suffered cardiac arrests twice and once lost 10 percent of his body weight through a loss of fluids.

"The peculiar thing was that most of the life-threatening episodes occurred while she (Ms. Jones) was on duty and that they were described in her handwriting," Pollack said, referring to the nurse's notes.

The baby recovered after a doctor ordered him moved to a general pediatric floor.

Ms. Jones could get 99 years if she is convicted in the trial, being heard by Judge Pat Priest in a non-jury proceeding.

She already is serving 99 years for the murder of a Kerrville baby with an injection of a muscle relaxant.

Formation of private militia violates state law, Mattox's office says

FORT WORTH (AP) — The state attorney general's office says an ex-Green Beret trying to form a private armed militia is in violation of state law.

"What we're sayng is that they're going to have trouble if they go through with this," Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox, told The Dallas Morning News Tuesday.

Robert Holloway, former commander of the disbanded 105th Texas State Guard Battalion who was relieved of his command in March, said the militia will be "capable of assuming any role, to include combat in defense of state or country."

Holloway, 36, an ex-Green Beret, said the National State Defense Force Association will be ready to be activated if the governor calls upon them for help during a war or other disaster.

State leaders told the newspaper that it was Holloway's refusal to return to the standard State Guard plain green uniforms — instead of continuing to use camouflage fatigues — that led to his removal this spring.

When the unit continued to train under Holloway, State Guard officials ordered it disbanded, saying the unit had become too independent of the state organization.

Robert Holloway

In September, Ret. Brig. Gen. Thomas N. Fuller, who was the State Guard's deputy commander, said the 105th was "just too gung-ho."

David Cottom, a spokesman for the Texas State Guard, said Holloway's new organization is no longer under the control of the state.

"This is totally a civilian venture," Cottom said. "Once he was dislodged, they're on their own."

Ms. Christopher said she didn't know what action the state would take, saying only that "we're studying the matter."

Holloway's attorney, Steven Swander said, "Obviously, if this is illegal, they won't do it. These are conservative men who want to serve their country. If I may say it, they're patriots.

"I see no harm or illegality in going out and training in the country, with unloaded guns, on private property."

Holloway, who said members will be required to furnish their own firearms, said private militias have set respectable precedents in U.S. history.

"The (American) Revolution was fought by militia," he said. "The War of 1812 was fought by militia.

"I'm neutral politically," Holloway said. "We are not survivalists... We're not a pack of weirdos or crazies. It's just a method of keeping the guys together."

Four members of Last Man Club survive

BEAUMONT (AP) — Almost 48 years ago, 150 members of a U.S. Army company that fought in France during World War I dubbed themselves the Last Man Club and bought a bottle of champagne to be drunk by the group's last survivor.

Today, only four of the club's members are living, and the prize champagne has been replaced by whiskey.

Frank Clarkson, 89, of Vidor, is one of four survivors of those veterans of Company B of the 143rd Infantry, 72nd Brigade of the 36th Division.

Clarkson said he kept the original champagne bottle, but replaced its contents with Scotch whisky years ago because he had heard champagne would go bad after a few decades.

"My driver's license is good until 1988 and I'm feeling pretty good," said Clarkson, a retired railroad ticket office manager.

Clarkson said he'll be at Beaumont's American Legion hall at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month again this year — the 66th anniversary of the Armistice that ended World War I.

"I'll have a pot of coffee ready for any veterans who want to join me," he said. "Maybe some of those boys from Vietnam will want to drop by."

The Last Man Club's president, Jess Slaughter, died Saturday at the age of 87. Slaughter was retired as manager of a trucking company terminal.

But three others still survive: John J. Kettl of Beaumont; Walter C. Simmons of Buchanan Dam, Texas; and Oscar Gainer of Hemet, Calif.

Board will hear arguments on insurance rates

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance will hear arguments today on conflicting recommendations for auto insurance rates for 1985.

The board's staff has recommended a 3.8 percent decrease in premiums while the industry wants an increase of 5.5 percent.

The 1985 rates will be effective Feb. 1.

Last Feb. 1, the board raised the statewide average rate by 3.7 percent, an increase of $88 million.

If the staff recommendation is accepted, there would be decreases in area rates ranging from $94 a year in the Laredo area for the average family car to a $2 decrease in the Lubbock area.

The only increases recommended by the staff were for $28 a year for Kaufman County and a $2 increase for Waller.

The staff report showed that Texas insurance companies reported substantial increased costs in writing bodily injury and uninsured ;motorists, but made a profit on fire, theft, comprehensive and collision policies.

The industry recommendation would range from decreases of $49 in Webb County and $48 in Liberty to a $68 increase in Kaufman County.

The industry request said the increase was needed because of a 3.8 percent increase in 1983 in automobile repair costs, a 6.4 percent increase in medical care charges, a 7.5 percent increase in physicians' services and a 9.3 percent increase in hospital room charges.

Judge approves penalty Two prison officials resign

ROSHARON (AP) — The warden and assistant warden of the Texas prison system's Darrington Unit have resigned, officials said.

Warden Willis M. Gilliam, 39, said he resigned because "there are better ways to make a living" than being a prison warden. Gilliam began his career as a prison guard at Huntsville in 1972.

Assistant Warden D.R. Stricklin also resigned his post and will become agriculture supervisor at the Retrieve Unit, Gilliam said.

Phil Guthrie, chief spokesman for the prison system, said the men who resigned were "not asked to do so. They're doing it voluntarily."

Flood damage surveyed

AUSTIN (AP) — State and local officials made a preliminary survey Tuesday of flood damage in San Patricio County, where up to 700 families were evacuated from their homes Friday night.

Robert Halverson, deputy coordinator of the Governor's Division of Emergency Management, was accompanied on the survey by representatives from the state welfare department and the cities of Sinton and Odem.

Trucker killed in California

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A tractor-trailer rig overturned on Highway 101, killing the driver, a Texas man, the California Highway Patrol reported Tuesday.

Tommy Gene Calverley, 28, of Ben Wheeler, Texas, was thrown to the pavement and killed instantly in the 10:25 p.m. crash Monday. His body was then struck by another vehicle and dragged 145 feet.

Clock Cake

1/4 cup strawberry preserves
1 package Betty Crocker Stir 'n Frost chocolate peanut butter chip cake mix with milk chocolate frosting
6 vanilla-type wafers
6 pieces candy corn, cut lengthwise into halves

Mash preserves in small bowl with fork to break up large pieces. Prepare cake mix as directed on package except—drizzle preserves over batter. Bake and cool as directed. (Cake will have craters from the preserves.)

Make dots of frosting with wooden pick on wafers to represent numbers of a clock. Brush cut edges of candy corn with water; place 2 halves, cut sides down, in center of vanilla wafers to represent hands of clock. Frost cake with remaining frosting. Press vanilla wafers evenly on cake. Cut cake into 6 pieces, each having a clock in center of piece. 6 servings.

Chocolate Chip Cheesecake with Raspberry Topping

1-1/2 cups finely crushed chocolate cookie crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
3 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
1 tub Betty Crocker Creamy Deluxe chocolate chip or chocolate chocolate chip ready-to-spread frosting
3 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla
Raspberry Topping (below)

Heat oven to 350°. Butter springform pan, 9x3 inches, or square pan, 9x9x2 inches. Mix crumbs and sugar; stir in margarine. Press in bottom and halfway up sides of pan. Bake 10 minutes; cool.

Heat oven to 300°. Beat cream cheese in large bowl until light and fluffy. Add frosting, eggs and vanilla; beat until smooth. Pour over crumb mixture. Bake until center is firm, about 1-1/4 hours (center may look slightly glossy). Refrigerate at least 3 hours. Loosen edge of cheesecake with knife before removing side of pan. Spoon Raspberry Topping over each serving. 12 to 16 servings.

Raspberry Topping: Mix 1 package (10 ounces) frozen raspberries, thawed, and 2 teaspoons cornstarch in small saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Stir in 1/3 cup red currant jelly until melted; cool.

Time For A Change From Daylight Savings Time

Remember to set back the clock one hour Saturday night, October 27. That's the only day this year that will have 25 hours.

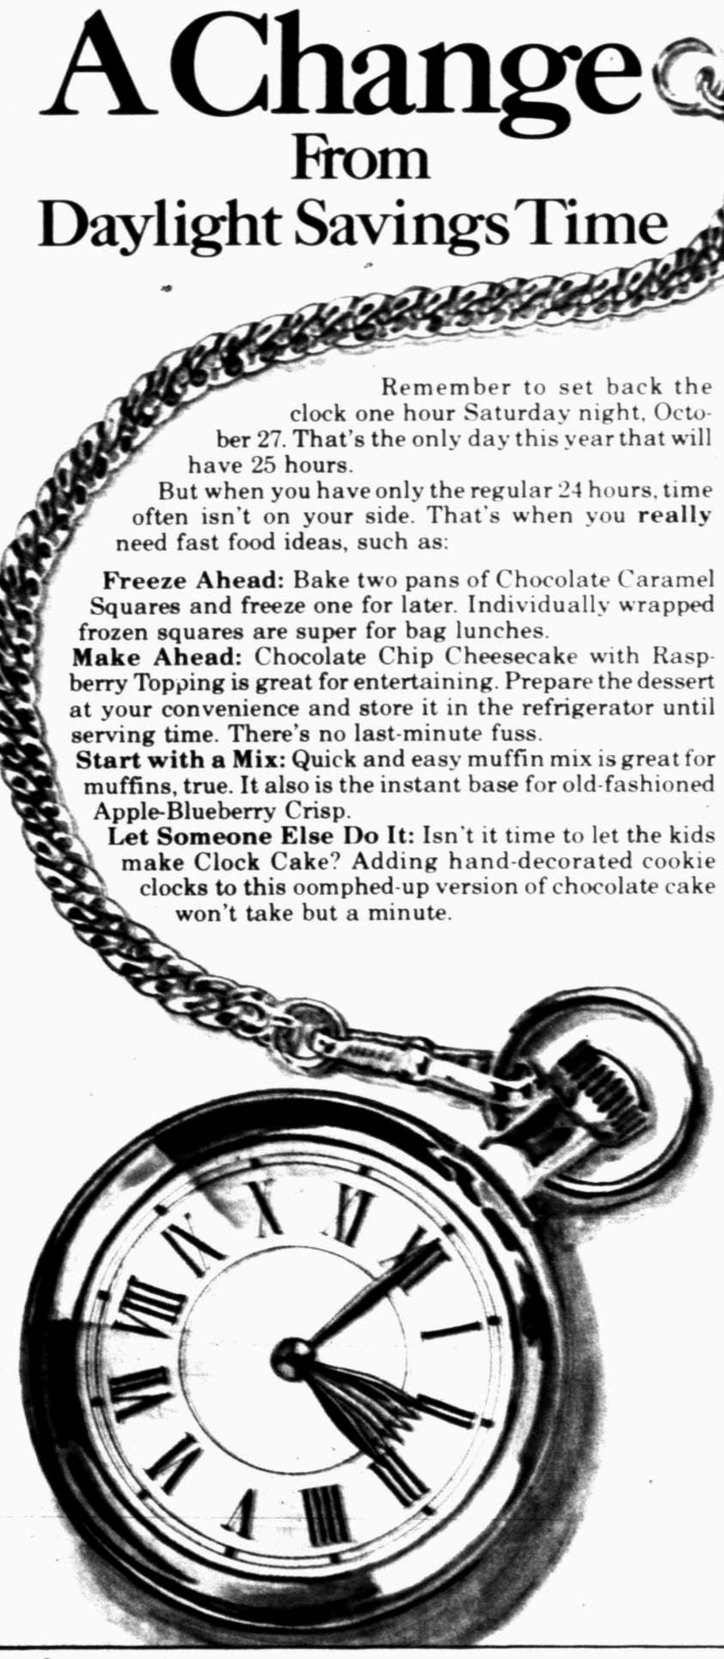
But when you have only the regular 24 hours, time often isn't on your side. That's when you really need fast food ideas, such as:

Freeze Ahead: Bake two pans of Chocolate Caramel Squares and freeze one for later. Individually wrapped frozen squares are super for bag lunches.

Make Ahead: Chocolate Chip Cheesecake with Raspberry Topping is great for entertaining. Prepare the dessert at your convenience and store it in the refrigerator until serving time. There's no last-minute fuss.

Start with a Mix: Quick and easy muffin mix is great for muffins, true. It also is the instant base for old-fashioned Apple-Blueberry Crisp.

Let Someone Else Do It: Isn't it time to let the kids make Clock Cake? Adding hand-decorated cookie clocks to this oomphed-up version of chocolate cake won't take but a minute.



Chocolate Caramel Squares

1 package Betty Crocker brownie supreme mix (with can of Chocolate Flavor Syrup)
1 4 cup plus 2 tablespoons water
1 egg
1 package (14 ounces) vanilla caramels
1 3 cup milk
1 4 cup margarine or butter, softened
1-2 3 cups powdered sugar
1 2 cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 350°. Grease bottom only of rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches. Measure 2 tablespoons Chocolate Flavor Syrup; reserve. Mix brownie mix, remaining syrup, water and egg with spoon just until mix is moistened. Spread in pan. Bake 27 to 30 minutes. (Do not overbake. Appearance or touch does not indicate when brownies are done.)

Heat caramels and milk in 2-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently, until smooth; remove from heat. Stir in margarine, powdered sugar and nuts; spread over brownies. Drizzle reserved Chocolate Flavor Syrup over caramel topping; swirl gently. Cool completely; cut into 1-1/2-inch squares. Refrigerate any remaining squares. 48 squares.

Apple-Blueberry Crisp

1 package Betty Crocker wild blueberry muffin mix
1 can (20 ounces) sliced apples, drained
1 2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 4 cup margarine or butter, softened
1 2 cup chopped nuts
Spicy Whipped Cream (below)

Heat oven to 350°. Drain blueberries; rinse. Mix blueberries, apples, sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Spoon into ungreased square pan, 9x9x2 inches. Mix muffin mix, margarine and nuts until crumbly; sprinkle over blueberry mixture. Bake until golden brown and blueberry mixture begins to bubble around edges, 30 to 40 minutes. Serve warm with Spicy Whipped Cream. 6 to 8 servings.

Spicy Whipped Cream

1 cup chilled whipping cream
3 tablespoons sugar
1 2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 4 teaspoon ground nutmeg

Beat all ingredients in chilled bowl until stiff.

Cow Belles not ding-a-lings

By MERLE ELLIS

When I was a kid growing up on a farm in Nebraska, a cowbell was about four inches across and hung from a leather strap around a cow's neck. They came in a variety of sizes and shapes. Some were round, some were more rectangular, some were the traditional bell shape. They usually were made of brass, some were plain and some were a little fancy. Not every cow wore a cowbell, only the lead cow, the one in the herd that had the most sense, the one the rest would follow. They were a big help to a farmer or rancher when it came time for fetchin' the cows at milking time.

I know some different Cow Belles now, but there are some similarities. Like cowbells, Cow Belles come in a variety of sizes and shapes; some are plain, some are fancy, some are even kind of brassy. Like the cowbells I knew as a kid, they, too, are a big help to the ranchers.

The American National Cow Belles is an organization of some 15,000 women in America devoted to the promotion of beef and to consumer education regarding its use. Most Cow Belles are the wives of cattle ranchers, not an easy thing to be. According to Mrs. J.B. Smith, President of the American National Cow Belles back in 1960; "A rancher's wife should look like a girl, act like a lady, think like a man and work like a horse." That pretty well describes the Cow Belles I know.

The organization was founded in 1939 when Mrs. Ralph (Mattie) Cowan of Arizona got 15 women together for the first meeting. According to the minutes of that meeting, the purpose of the organization was — and is — "to promote friendly and social relations among cattle people and to cooperate for the best interest of our industry, our community and our country."

Wyoming, in 1940, was the first state to organize a Cow Belle chapter. In 1952, when the American National Cow Belles, Inc., was formed, there were 15 states involved. Today, 39 states, virtually every state where there is any cattle production, has a state Cow Belles' organization.

For as long as I've been observing the meatscene in America, a whole lot more than just a few of the cattlemen in this country have had their heads too far up their Stetsons to see the need for any consumer education and promotion of their product. It was enough, most of the cattlemen were convinced, to produce the best beef in the world and just let it sell itself.

It has been the Cow Belles who have set up programs to bring agriculture into the classrooms of the country, an important educational link between the urban and rural communities in this time when a tiny 4 percent of the population raises the food for all of us. And many, too many, people know little about the food they eat except what they learn from TV commercials.

The Cow Belles also pass out consumer information and recipes at fairs and conventions. They do demonstrations to help teach people how to eat better for less money when they eat beef. They publish beef cook books to help consumers make better use of the product that they and their families produce, and they sponsor a variety of beef promotions. They do a great job!

The highlight of the Cow Belle activities each year is the National Beef Cooking Contest, sponsored in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board. It has been my pleasure to have been one of the judges each year since 1978. It's become one of the highlights of my year, as well.

This year, contestants from 48 states gathered in Albuquerque, N.M., for the 11th annual contest. The winner was Vicki Wadlington who lives with her husband and two children in Memphis, Tenn. She prepared a very simple and simply delicious Apple Glazed Beef Brisket to win $5000. Carrie Cox, a 73-year-young lady from Harrison, Ark., won the $2500 second prize with an imaginative ground beef dish, Herbed Beef — Layer Cake. And David Michael Rzepa, an alloy steel products salesman from Jackson, Mich., won the $1000 third prize with Beef Diablo — strips of spicy beef wrapped in flour tortillas.

Serve chicken-sausage dish for company meal

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Writer

COMPANY DINNER
Chicken, Sausage & Rice
Broccoli & Salad
Fruit & Macaroons

CHICKEN & SAUSAGE
4-pound chicken, cut up
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1 large (6 ounces) onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
1 large (6 ounces) green pepper, seeded and cut into rings
16-ounce can whole tomatoes in juice, undrained but broken up
1 pound sweet Italian sausage

Wash and dry chicken with paper towels. Mix salt and paprika and rub over skin sides of chicken. In a 13½ x 8¾ x 1¾-inch baking dish, stir together onion, green pepper and tomatoes. Add chicken, skin side up, in a single layer. Bake, uncovered, in a 400-degree oven until browned and tender — 1 hour. Remove chicken; strain vegetables and add to chicken; chill. Chill liquid (left after straining vegetables) separately in a bowl. Remove hardened fat from liquid and thicken with arrowroot, cornstarch or flour. Pour over chicken and vegetables and reheat. Meanwhile panfry sausage and garnish chicken with it. Makes 6 servings.

Oriental dinner made for two

Won Ton Soup
Oriental Chicken & Rice
Fruit & Tea

ORIENTAL CHICKEN
2 cups loosely packed shredded leaf lettuce
1 cup cooked chicken-breast strips (2 inches long and ⅓ inch wide), at room temperature
Hot or warm cooked rice
1⅓ tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 thin slices fresh gingerroot, finely chopped (1 teaspoon)
1 small green onion, finely chopped
Dried red pepper flakes to taste

Arrange lettuce in center of each of 2 dinner plates; top with chicken; surround with rice in the portion size you wish. In a small saucepan over moderately low heat whisk together oil, honey, soy sauce, gingerroot, green onion and pepper flakes until simmering — makes ⅓ cup. Pour this hot sauce over chicken and lettuce. Serve at once. Makes 2 servings.

Vineyards try again under new leadership

By DAN BERGER
Copley News Service

If the name Corbett Canyon Vineyards means nothing to you, don't feel bad. It's a winery that has the capacity to produce three-quarters of a million cases of wine per year, but before this year little of it was any good.

Now under the stewardship of wine maker Cary Gott, Corbett Canyon may be headed for big things. A series of new releases shows great promise.

But in the pre-Gott era, Corbett Canyon was known as Lawrence Winery, and it had a spectacular and controversial rapid run.

Lawrence Winery started in 1979. It was founded by wine maker Jim Lawrence and two San Joaquin Valley grape growers in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

And Lawrence started out aggressively, and with style.

The Spanish-style winery building was constructed so rapidly that Lawrence sent out press releases on the "world record" for winery construction.

Instead of simple press releases mailed out in plain envelopes, they were encased in plastic sheets, and copies of all the Lawrence wine labels were displayed proudly. In 1980, the first wine Lawrence released was shipped in wooden boxes, each of which converted into a wine rack.

Unfortunately, the wines lacked the quality of the other marketing plans. The first wines tasted as if the world-record carpenters who built the winery had had a hand in making them. Some of the wines were oxidized, some had sulfur and some used grapes grown in hot climates, which generally leads to lower quality wine.

Those comments were charitable. One wine in particular was a most curious offering. It was a non-vintage Chardonnay made in "Nouveau" style, to be consumed early. It had an ethyl acetate aroma and a taste of nail polish.

By late 1981, Lawrence and his partners sold the winery to Glenmore Distilleries Co. of Louisville, Ky., and the new owners looked around for a new wine maker and a new name.

By coincidence, Gott, a part owner of Montevina Winery near Sacramento, Calif., had a falling out with principal owner Walter H. Fields at about the same time. Glenmore hired him, and changed the name of the winery to Corbett Canyon — the name of the road adjacent to the winery.

The first releases under the Corbett Canyon name are white, red and rose table wines, a dry Chenin Blanc and a Pinot Noir Blanc.

'Fudgy' brownies traditional treat for autumn

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

MY BROWNIES

¼-pound stick butter, soft
1 cup sugar
⅛ cup Dutch-process cocoa
4 large egg whites
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup walnuts, coarsely chopped

In a medium bowl with an electric beater, beat together butter, sugar, cocoa, egg whites, flour and vanilla until smooth. Stir in walnuts. Turn into a buttered and floured 8-inch-square baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until top looks set — 30 minutes. Cool completely on a wire rack. The top will be slightly wrinkled. Cut these fudge-like brownies into squares.

DEAR ABBY

Girlfriend doesn't look like girl

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and so is my girlfriend. This summer she got her hair cut real short and started combing it like a boy. I didn't like it and told her so.

Last weekend I took her to a movie, and she wore a man's shirt and tie, a man's type jacket and trousers, and even a pair of wing-tip shoes. I felt embarrassed to be seen with her and refused to hold hands with her because I was afraid people would think we were a couple of homosexuals.

She got mad and said I was a real square. She said she was being fashionable — that the mannish look for women is "in." Is this true?

Am I weird to want my girlfriend to look like a girl? — BOB

DEAR BOB: You aren't weird — the fashion designers are. Your girlfriend has the right to dress the way she wants to dress. And you have the right to refuse to be seen in public with someone whose appearance you find embarrassing.

First the bad news: The mannish look for women is "in." Now for the good news: A lot of women aren't buying it.

DEAR ABBY: "Safe and Secure," who ignored a male driver who was trying to get her attention when they both stopped at a red light, could also be paranoid. The stranger might have been trying to alert her to a faulty taillight, a hanging muffler or perhaps a belt hanging out her door.

I know because I have been ignored for trying to communicate the same things. And by the way, not all men are ax murderers; I wish women would give us men half a chance before shutting us out. — INSULTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR INSULTED: You're 100 percent right. But I would rather mistake a good guy for an ax murderer than mistake an ax murderer for a good guy.

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend I had a date with a man I didn't know very well. (I had met him in a bar the night before and gave him my phone number.) He took me out for dinner so we could get better acquainted. He came on to me pretty strong, and there was something about him I didn't like (bad vibes).

When he took me home, I planned on saying goodnight at the door because I really didn't want this man in my apartment. (I live alone.) When I said goodnight, he asked if he could use my bathroom. What could I say? After he used the bathroom, he sat himself down in my living room and asked if I would make him a cup of coffee. I was beginning to get the idea, but didn't want to be rude. He sipped his coffee slowly, and kept looking at me in a way that made me uncomfortable. After the coffee, he made a grab for me. I pulled away from him, said I had to get up early for work, then I asked him to leave. I was trembling inside for fear I had a rapist on my hands. Thank God he didn't give me any trouble.

Please print this to let other women know that "May I use your bathroom?" is one way a man can get into a woman's apartment. Now I'm sorry I didn't say, "Sorry, find a gasoline station." — LUCKY IN DALLAS

DEAR LUCKY: Your first mistake was letting the man know where you lived before you got to know him better. You should have met him somewhere to get better acquainted, then taken a taxi home when the vibes were bad.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

New Zealand menu includes tasty dishes

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

I had never eaten a New Zealand dinner until recently, when that island nation exhibited the art of its Maori people at New York's Metropolitan Museum.

To launch the show, the sponsors gave a banquet at Maxwell's Plum Restaurant in New York. It was a sumptuous spread, featuring a cross section of New Zealand's finest dishes, from the island's lamb to the emerald green kiwifruit that is becoming so popular in America.

Other specialties included a kiwi clam chowder, South Sea mussels and smoked eel with a horseradish sauce. All this was washed down with some excellent New Zealand wines and an island beer.

With cocktails we had tiny lamb chops served cold with a garlic and ginger sauce. Also offered was a pate made from New Zealand venison. Both the native deer and the lamb are frozen for the export market, we were told.

For dessert, kiwifruit was the star, including dishes topped with whipped cream and tarts where the fruit was combined with custard and chocolate.

It has taken Americans some time to get used to kiwifruit, with its fuzzy brown outer covering. But once you slice through that, you discover the bright green interior and tiny black seeds that are also edible. This unusual fruit is not only a delicious dessert, but it makes a fine snack and a good accompaniment to meat dishes.

New Zealanders use their lamb in many ways, including stuffed loin and a mustard-dressed rack. They also feature a cold lamb tossed with pasta and yogurt and mint dressing. That chilled salad and the chops served with the drinks were the first cold lamb dishes I have ever eaten. I can live without either of them, but the hot dishes are great.

Here is a native recipe for stuffed lamb loins.

STUFFED LAMB LOINS

4 ounces bacon, chopped
1½ cups chopped onion
10 ounces frozen chopped kale
10 ounces frozen chopped spinach
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
4 loins lamb, trimmed
Beef stock

In skillet, saute bacon until almost crisp; add onion and cook until translucent. Add thawed and drained kale and spinach; cook 10 minutes over medium heat. Remove from heat; add cheese, eggs, salt and pepper, and mix well. Cool to room temperature. Flatten each loin slightly with mallet. Spread stuffing over 2 loins. Place remaining 2 loins over stuffing. Shape and tie to form 2 log-shaped rolls. Brown loins in hot butter on all sides. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 30 minutes or until meat is pink and stuffing heated through. Remove string and slice each roll into six 1-inch slices. Add beef stock to pan juices and pour over lamb. Serves 4 people, 3 slices each. Good with a chilled dry white wine.

Eggplant fried

Associated Press

BATTER-FRIED STUFFED EGGPLANT SLICES

1 teaspoon miniature dried shrimp, if available
2 tablespoons hot water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ pound ground lean pork
1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
Batter, recipe follows
Sauce, recipe follows
1 to 1¼ pound eggplant
2 cups corn oil

In a small bowl soak shrimp in hot water for 30 minutes; drain well; finely chop. In a small bowl stir together cornstarch and sugar; stir in soy sauce until smooth. Add shrimp, pork and green onion; mix well; cover and refrigerate.

Prepare Batter; let stand at room temperature.

Prepare Sauce; cover and let stand at room temperature.

Trim ends from eggplant; peel. Slice into sixteen ¼-inch-thick slices. Pair eggplant slices according to size. Put 1 to 2 tablespoons of the pork mixture on each of 8 of the eggplant slices; spread pork mixture almost to edges. Top with remaining eggplant slices. (If not frying at once, cover and refrigerate until ready to do so.)

Pour corn oil into an electric skillet. Heat to 365 degrees. With tongs, dip eggplant sandwiches, one at a time, into Batter until well-coated. Fry, a few at a time, turning once, until browned — 6 to 8 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Keep hot in a single layer in a warm oven. Can be kept hot up to 30 minutes or may be reheated in a preheated 450-degree oven for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve hot with reheated Sauce.

Makes 8 servings.

Batter: In a medium bowl whisk together ¾ cup all-purpose flour, ¼ cup cornstarch, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Gradually whisk in ¾ cup cold water and 2 tablespoons corn oil until smooth. Stir in 1 to 2 additional tablespoons cold water to make a smooth thick batter.

Sauce: In a small bowl stir together 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 tablespoon soy sauce and ⅛ teaspoon sugar until smooth. In a 1-quart saucepan, over medium heat, heat 1 teaspoon corn oil. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion and 1 small clove garlic (finely chopped). Stirring constantly, cook about ⅓ minute. Add 1 cup chicken bouillon or clear fat-free chicken broth. Restir cornstarch mixture and add. Stirring constantly, cook until boiling, clear and thickened. Set aside, covered, off heat. Makes 1 cup. Reheat before using.

Soft Tacos used for do-it-yourself Halloween entertaining

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

The soft tacos served at the Los Angeles County Fair are simple and make great fare for a do-it-yourself taco party for Halloween or during the holiday season.

SOFT TACOS

6 to 12 corn tortillas
Guacamole
Cooked roast pork, diced or shredded
Canned refried beans, heated
Chopped onions or green onions
Cilantro sprigs
Diced tomatoes
Shredded Cheddar cheese
Bottled or canned chile salsa
Sour cream, optional

Heat tortillas on lightly greased griddle or skillet until pliable. Place hot tortillas in napkin-lined basket or other container. Place guacamole, meat and refried beans in serving dishes next to tortillas. Arrange onions, cilantro, tomatoes, cheese, salsa and sour cream in separate bowls. Spread guacamole on tortillas first, then add meat and beans. Top with condiments as desired and fold tortilla around contents. Makes 6 servings.

Guacamole

1 ripe avocado
Dash lemon juice
1 tomato, peeled and chopped
1 small onion, minced
1 small clove garlic, minced
Dash salt
Dash chili powder

Mash avocado with lemon juice in small bowl. Add tomato, onion, garlic, salt and chili powder. Chill. Serve as spread for Soft Tacos.

Autumn season for apple harvest

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Autumn ushers in the main season for apple harvest in America — a time when we revel in the delights of this crisp fruit. We enjoy them fresh and in a host of salads, pies and other dishes.

Washington State accounts for close to 35 percent of all apples grown commercially in this country. Orchards in that Western state thrive on its volcanic soil, rich in minerals. And an ample water supply is available from rivers fed by melting snows from nearby mountains.

The famous Golden Delicious Apple appears in October in Washington, one month after its cousin, the Red Delicious. Both of these varieties are available on fruit stands all over the country until April.

The Red Delicious is mildly tart, but the Golden, with its pure sweetness, is my favorite.

The crisp texture of this apple makes it a natural for eating out of hand but it has many other uses — in cakes, salads, pies and breads.

Although it is a natural sweet, a medium-sized Delicious is only 80 calories. It is also low in sodium and contains important vitamins and minerals.

Apples go back about 3,000 years to Europe and Western Asia. It's estimated that there are at least 6,500 apple types today. The early settlers in America brought along apple seeds and soon had thriving orchards.

A champion of the apple in the early days was John Chapman, who journeyed across Ohio and Indiana seeding orchards as he went. he became famous as Johnny Appleseed.

Here's a recipe for an apple salad.

GOLDEN CHICKEN RICE SALAD

1 Golden Delicious medium apple, cored and diced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1⅓ cups cooked rice, cooled
4 ounces cooked chicken breast, cut into strips
⅓ cup fresh or frozen peas
2 tablespoons each of minced parsley and onion
Mustard dressing (see recipe below)
Lettuce, whatever type preferred
Red and Golden Delicious apple slices

Combine all ingredients, except lettuce and sliced apples. Chill thoroughly. Serve in lettuce-lined bowls or plates. Garnish with apple slices. Serves 3-4 people.

Mustard Dressing: Combine ⅓ cup mayonnaise, 2 teaspoons milk, ⅓ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon celery seed and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Makes about ⅓ cup.

Better-tasting ice cubes made

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — An important key to making better-tasting coffee, tea, formulated frozen citrus juices, soups and even ice cubes is to use bottled spring water, according to the home economists at this world famous spa.

Country Captain curried chicken cropping up again

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

A recipe for Country Captain — a lightly curried chicken dish — appeared in a cookbook published early in this country. Ever since, numerous versions of that rule have cropped up.

Here is the latest variation I have come upon, created at Hubert's, a delightful New York restaurant.

COUNTRY CAPTAIN A LA HUBERT'S

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 pounds chicken parts
1¼ teaspoons curry powder
2 cups diced tomatoes
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
Black pepper to taste
2 tablespoons finely chopped drained chutney
2 cups slivered (matchstick size) sweet red pepper
2 cups slivered (matchstick size) green pepper
2 tablespoons flour blended with ¼ cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons currants
¼ cup slivered almonds, toasted (see Note)
1 or 2 thinly sliced small scallions

In a large skillet, over moderate heat, heat oil; add chicken and brown on all sides. Push chicken to side of skillet.

Add curry powder to oil in skillet; stir until it darkens — about 10 seconds. Add tomatoes, water, salt, black pepper and chutney; bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, until chicken is almost tender — about 45 minutes.

Add red and green pepper; simmer, covered, until peppers are almost tender — about 3 minutes. Remove chicken to a serving platter and keep hot in a warm oven.

To skillet, add flour-wine mixture and currants; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened — about 3 minutes; pour over chicken. Serve over rice. Garnish with almonds and scallions.

Note: To toast the almonds, spread over bottom of an 11¼ by 7⅛ by 1⅛-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, stirring occasionally, until toasted — 5 to 7 minutes.

Spinach, linguine combined

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Writer

KATHY'S LINGUINE, SPINACH AND CHEESE

1 pound fresh spinach
4 egg yolks, beaten
⅛ teaspoon grated nutmeg
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
⅛ pound linguine
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Wash spinach, drain and chop very well. Puree in a blender with egg yolks, nutmeg and parsley. Add salt and pepper to taste. Bring salted water to a rapid boil in a large pot and add linguine. Cook al dente, 8 to 10 minutes, drain and transfer to a serving bowl. Add spinach sauce and cheese and toss. Add more ground pepper if you wish. Serves 6, at about 245 calories per serving.

Muffins prepared with prunes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Writer

PRUNE MUFFINS

¾ cup stirred all-purpose flour
1 cup stirred whole wheat flour
3 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teapoon salt
1 large egg
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons butter, melted
¾ cup pitted prunes, cut fine

On wax paper or in a small bowl, stir together flours, sugar, baking powder and salt. In a medium bowl, beat egg until foamy; add milk and butter and beat together. Add flour mixture and stir just until moistened. Sprinkle with prunes, stirring lightly as you do so. Fill buttered muffin-pan cups (each 2½ inches across top and 1 inch deep) two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 25 minutes. With a small spatula loosen edges and remove; serve hot. Makes 12.

Seedless grapes enhance marinated shrimp salad

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Since the 1950s, recipes for chicken salad to which grapes are added have abounded. Much less known is shrimp salad made with grapes.

I myself had never tasted the combination until recently, when I came on a recipe in which the shrimp and grapes are marinated, then served with lettuce, avocado and mayonnaise. Finely chopped scallion or fresh chives make a flavorful garnish. It's a recipe for two or three, but it can easily be doubled. My tasters liked it and so did I.

SHRIMP AND GRAPE SALAD

2 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
Salt and pepper to taste
¾ pound medium shrimp (cooked, shelled and deveined)
1 cup halved seedless green or red grapes
Lettuce
Avocado slices
Scallion or fresh chives, finely chopped
Mayonnaise, preferably homemade

In a 3- to 4-cup shallow bowl, whisk together oil, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper.

Cut each shrimp in half lengthwise; fold into oil-vinegar mixture with grapes. Cover tightly and refrigerate for about an hour.

At serving time, arrange lettuce on individual serving plates; add shrimp-grape mixture. Garnish with avocado and scallion. Pass mayonnaise.

Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Note: If you buy cooked shrimp, you will need 8 ounces.

'Cuisine naturelle' healthful gourmet fare

By ROSE DOSTI
Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

LONDON — Hark. Do you hear the trumpets? How about the rustle of the Royal Guard in salute? The chimes of Big Ben? Certainly you must have heard Henry VIII's tummy growling from his grave. The ghost of Mrs. Beaton, whose turn-of-the-century cookbooks chronicled the cuisine which made British cooking infamous, must be joyfully beating up a batter of bubble and squeak in celebration of Britain's newest culinary contribution: cuisine naturelle, an invention of master chef Anton Mosimann of the Dorchester Hotel in London.

Surprised? You should be. No one has talked much about the food in Britain since gin was invented. And that was ages ago.

So here is Mosimann, Swiss by birth, but French by culinary persuasion and training, announcing that he was about to unveil a new style of cuisine, dubbed cuisine naturelle, that does away with cream, butter and alcohol, and almost, but not quite, sugar and salt. A dramatic departure from the principles of classical French cooking of which butter, cream, alcohol, salt and sugar are the hallmarks.

"It's never been done before," Mosimann said. "I'm committed to beautiful food that is also healthful."

Mosimann makes it clear that his cuisine is not a therapy. "It's not a diet. It is a healthy, straightforward, simple cuisine. I just felt we needed to do something to get away from creams and heavy food present even in nouvelle cuisine," he said.

Truth to tell, Mosimann's healthful cuisine of low-fat, low-sodium and low-sugar is not new. The U.S. government has been telling Americans to cut down on salt, sugar and fat since 1978 when the Senate Committee on Nutrition came out with its dietary goals. Since then, numerous books and cookbooks have been written on the subject.

However, it is the way that Mosimann enacts the idea that is new.

Despite Mosimann's intermittent busman's holidays at celebrated establishments of nouvelle cuisine gurus, Paul Bocuse, Michel Guerard and the Troisgros brothers, as well as commitment to the classical culinary style he helped perpetuate as successor to The Dorchester's exacting master chef, Eugene Kaufeler, it was a stint at the Swiss Pavilion at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan, that unified Mosimann's thinking of culinary aesthetics and health.

"More than any other factor, Japan was the greatest inspiration for my cooking. It brought to consciousness the close relationship of art and health. I thought, 'That's the kind of cooking I would like to produce.' It's integrated cooking," he said.

Japanese influence moved him away from buttery sauces of the classical cuisine. It reaffirmed the benefits of steaming and poaching meat, fish and fowl in their own liquid. It introduced tofu, or soybean curd, as a versatile ingredient for salad dressings and purees. It inspired experimentation with yogurt and the low-fat fromage blanc, and cooking without alcohol.

"Why kill the taste of chicken with wine? I believe in natural flavors," Mosimann said, pouring coffee from a silver pot in his private dining room in The Dorchester kitchen.

"Why don't you come for the lunch? I'll show you what I mean," Mosimann said.

Our cuisine naturelle meal unveiled at lunch bore some resemblance to the previous evening's nouvelle cuisine menu surpris served by white-gloved waiters, if not in content, certainly in style. The major exception, of course, was that the entire meal was prepared without cream, butter or alcohol.

First course: a fish consomme. Almost as sparsely simple as a Japanese miso with a nouvelle-style garnish.

Floating in the flavorful, golden fish broth, free of fat, sugar and barely any salt, was a cube of turbot garnished with two singularly lovely cilantro leaves and an oyster on the half shell dolloped with black caviar.

The fish course, marinated Scottish salmon garnished with sprigs of dill. Not exactly salt-free (curing requires salt), but certainly simple. The dill marinade was produced by combining dill, coarsely ground pepper, a dash of sugar and just enough salt to safely cure the salmon for 24 hours.

One said, "I am having as an entree poached chicken with raw vegetables," one would hardly imagine what cuisine naturelle might devise. The chicken breast, a piece about five ounces in weight, as naked of skin as identity at first glance (it could have been any fowl, any pinkish fish for that matter), lay dead center on a large, oval platter.

Bake apples for low-calorie, low-fat taste treat

By KIT SNEDAKER
Hearst News Service

The only thing more American than apple pie is a baked apple. Baked apples are far more versatile than apple pie, and the fillings and accompaniments for baked apples are astonishing. They are easy to fix, delicious, high in fiber and low in fat and calories.

Apples didn't find their way to the New World until the 18th century. Then along came John Chapman, better known as Johnny Appleseed, who spent most of his life making sure apple orchards were here to stay by planting them everywhere in the newly-settled American wilderness.

The captain of a Hudson's Bay Company ship brought apple seeds to Washington state in 1825. The apple had been given him for luck at a farewell dinner in London and grew into one of that state's biggest crops.

HOLIDAY BAKED APPLES
(From "Louisiana Entertains.")
¾ cup raisins
1-½ cups white wine
8 cooking apples, cored
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
4 tablespoons sugar
1-½ teaspoons butter

Soak raisins in wine for ½ hour. Drain, reserving wine. Stuff apples with raisins. Sprinkle with lemon peel and sugar. Dot with butter and add wine. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

HONEY BAKED APPLES
(From "Gracious Goodness," compiled by The Junior League of Macon, Ga.
Makes four servings)
4 cooking apples, cored
¼ to ½ cup honey
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped almonds
4 to 6 teaspoons brown sugar

Peel top half of each apple and core. Mix honey, raisins, almonds and brown sugar together. Fill apples. Put filled apples in casserole filled ½-inch with water to prevent sticking. Bake at 300 degrees for 45 minutes or until caramelized.

BAKED APPLES
(Makes six servings)
6 medium-sized apples
3 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
6 small pieces lemon or orange peel
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon rose water

Pare and core the apples. Place apples in baking dish. Fill up each hole in the apples with ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and a small piece of lemon or orange peel.

Make a rich custard by cooking eggs and milk together slowly on low heat. Add two tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon flour. Stir to keep a smooth consistency. Add rose water. Beat and pour over apples. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Serve with thick cream.

SISTER REBECCA'S BAKED MAPLE APPLES
(Makes four to six servings)
6 firm tart apples
4 tablespoons shaved maple sugar
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup boiling water

Pare, quarter and core the apples. Place in an earthenware pie plate or other ovenproof dish which can come to the table. Mix the maple sugar, butter and boiling water and boil for five minutes. Pour this mixture over the apples. Place in a moderate 350-degree oven and bake until apples are soft, about 20 minutes. Baste occasionally with hot syrup. This makes a delicious dessert served with heavy cream. It may also be served in the baking dish with pork or fowl or duck or goose.

BAKED APPLES PORCUPINE
¾ cup shelled almonds
8 green apples
Powdered sugar
Cinnamon
4 tablespoons of butter
4 egg whites
8 level tablespoons of sugar
1 teaspoon of vanilla
Thin cream

First blanch ¾ cup of almonds and split them in two. Dry in a warm place. Peel and core eight green apples. Place them in a glass baking dish. Fill the cores with sugar in which you have mixed a little cinnamon. Dot with four tablespoons of butter and bake until tender, but don't let them fall apart. Pour off the excess juice, if any, and reduce it by boiling. Pour it over the apples again. Make a stiff meringue of the whites of four eggs and eight level tablespoons of sugar. Add one teaspoon of vanilla. Completely cover the apples with this and stick all the almonds into it. Sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar and place in a medium oven (350 degrees) for five minutes, then increase the heat. As soon as brown, serve with thin cream.

Treats have nutritious tricks

Copley News Service

Halloween is wonderful fun: deciding on a costume, dressing up, carving eerie faces on bright orange pumpkins.

But this last evening of October can be a little unnerving for nutrition-wise parents. You know that if you send your kids out on the trick-or-treat trail, they're not going to come home with anything even remotely resembling a nutritious "treat."

Instead, they'll have sugar — bags of it. You can hardly send your youngsters out with a note requesting that they only be given carrot sticks, nuts and apples. And while a few candy bars may not do any harm, the typical haul (as I remember from my early trick-or-treat days) amounted to several pounds of the stuff.

If you're wondering what to do about your child's treat consumption, a Halloween party might be just the answer. Have a good old-fashioned apple-bobbing, and bake up your own brand of goodies for your little goblins. Arrange for some appropriate games, and tell a spooky story or two.

Or you might consult with other vegetarian/health-wise parents and arrange for a round of trick-or-treating within your group.

These recipes will yield healthful homemade goodies for a Halloween get-together. Set out a large bowl of fruit juice punch, a jack-o'-lantern or two and on your best witch's hat. (Don't forget to practice your cackling.) Have a boo-tiful Halloween.

CHEWY COCONUT DROPS

¾ cup honey
¾ cup unsulfured molasses
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1 tbsp. cider vinegar
2 cups freshly grated coconut
2 tbsps. wheat germ
1 tsp. vanilla
Dash salt (optional)

In small saucepan, stir together honey, molasses, butter and vinegar. Simmer over low heat until mixture forms soft ball when dropped into cold water (240 F on candy thermometer). Remove from heat. Stir in coconut, wheat germ, vanilla and salt. While still warm, drop by teaspoonsful onto waxed paper and allow to cool.

Makes about 24 drops.

CAROB-OAT CONFECTIONS

¾ cup honey
⅓ cup milk
⅓ cup carob powder
⅓ cup butter or margarine
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. salt
2½ cups rolled oats
½ cup chopped, unsalted peanuts

In saucepan, stir together honey, milk, carob powder, butter, vanilla and slt. Bring to boil and stir constantly for 5 to 6 minutes. Remove from heat and add oats and peanuts. Stir to mix well. While still warm, drop by teaspoonsful onto waxed paper. Let cool.

Makes about 40.

PUMPKIN-RAISIN CUSTARD

4 eggs
5 tbsps. honey
3 cups hot milk
1 cup cooked pumpkin, mashed
2 tsps. grated lemon rind
One-third cup raisins, plumped
Butter
Dash nutmeg

Beat eggs in large bowl; stir in honey. Slowly pour in milk, continuing to eat. Add pumpkin and lemon rind, beating until smooth. To plump raisins, place in small bowl and cover with very hot water. Allow to stand 5 minutes. Drain well and add to pumpkin mixture, stirring to blend thoroughly. Butter 10 custard cups in large flat baking pan and pour hot water in pan around cups. Sprinkle custards with nutmeg. Place pan in 325 F oven and bake about 30 minutes, or until knife inserted in center of custard comes out clean. Serve chilled or at room temperature.

Serves 10.

Tarts topped with ice cream

Associated Press

TARTS

1 cup all-purpose flour
3 tbsps. confectioners' sugar
¼ tsp. salt
6 tbsps. butter
½ cup finely chopped nuts
3 tbsps. water
Ice cream and fruit sauce

Stir together flour, sugar and salt; cut in butter until size of small peas; work in nuts. Sprinkle water over mixture, a tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly with a fork after each addition. Shape dough into a ball. Divide into 8 equal portions and shape each into a ball. On a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out each ball to a 5-inch round. Shape over back of 3¼ by 1¼-inch tart pans; prick well with fork tines. Place tart pans on a cookie sheet and bake in a preheated 400-F. oven until lightly browned — 15 to 18 minutes. Allow to cool 5 minutes; remove from pans to wire racks to cool completely. At serving time, fill with ice cream and top with fruit sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Lunchboxes needn't be bland

Hearst News Service

Annie Gilbar knows what it's like to have a child whose favorite lunch menu consists of a tuna fish sandwich — just that, day after day after day.

"Lisa was a totally non-adventurous eater," she says of her 9-year-old daughter. "I couldn't take it anymore. I knew she was trading a lot of her lunch, and she needed other things to eat."

To the rescue came Gilbar's husband, who one day had the brainstorm of cutting food with a rabbit-shaped cookie cutter. It worked like a charm, and soon Lisa was eating all kinds of things.

That prompted Gilbar to think that her daughter wasn't alone in her picky-eater syndrome. In response, she wrote "The Lunch Box Book," a handy recipe, nutrition and menu guide to what to pack for school lunches.

Sandwiches, muffins, quick breads, fruits and even the dreaded vegetables are included. The recipes are recommended for 2-to-15-year-old children, and the portions can be increased or decreased to suit the child.

The book, which is shaped like a lunch box, also provides nutritional contents of the foods used in the recipes, sample menus and list of items that should be stocked in the pantry.

A well-stocked pantry, Gilbar says, is the first step toward nutritious lunches that don't have to be made in a panic at the last minute. Items like bacon, nuts, oranges, cucumbers or canned pumpkin are necessary ingredients.

Gilbar also wanted to make the dishes attractive. Sandwiches can be cut out with cookie cutters or made to look like jelly rolls; ham is wrapped around cucumber spears, and fruit is done kebab-style. Even giving a special name to something ordinary helps: she calls sliced raw zucchini "coins."

"I'm not a fanatic," she explains. "I don't give my kids tofu, but I don't give them Twinkies. either."

FRED'S CELERY CRUNCHES

1 tablespoon apricot jam
2 pieces of celery, each about 4 inches long
Slices of turkey, ham, corned beef, roast beef (It must be thinly sliced – slicing it yourself will not get it thin enough to roll.)
Toothpicks

Mix the cream cheese and jam in a bowl. Fill the celery pieces with the mixture; refrigerate the leftover mixture. Wrap each piece of celery with a slice of meat. Fasten the meat with a toothpick. (Sometimes the meat, when overlapped, will stick by itself.) Wrap tightly in foil or plastic wrap.

GABE'S CHICKEN SALAD TRIANGLES

2 cups cooked chicken, cubed
½ cup peeled apples, cubed
¼ cup onion, chopped
¼ cup dill pickles, chopped
⅓ cup mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Sourdough or whole wheat bread

Combine all the ingredients, except the bread, in a bowl and chill. When you are ready to make lunch, simply cut the crusts off the bread, spread with chicken salad, and cut into triangles. Refrigerate remaining salad.

Gingerbread baked

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Writer

COME FOR DESSERT
Gingerbread & Beverage

GINGERBREAD

1½ cups stirred all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
⅓ cup butter, at room temperature
⅓ cup sugar
1 large egg
½ cup molasses
⅝ cup boiling water
Whipped cream

Stir together flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and ginger. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg, then molasses. Add flour mixture; beat gently just until blended — mixture will be stiff. Gradually and gently beat in boiling water until smooth after each addition — batter will be thin. Pour into a greased and floured 8-inch-square baking pan. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 30 minutes. Let cool on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack. Serve hot with whipped cream that has been slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Multiple land use

Environmental engineers check the growth of new grass as cattle graze on reclaimed land at the Caballo coal mine near Gillette, Wyoming. A local rancher provided cattle to test the ability of the reclaimed land to withstand grazing pressures. Results of the test indicate the reclaimed area is more productive than natural prairie in the region.

PUC cuts second utility

AUSTIN (AP) — For the second time this month, the Public Utility Commission has ordered an electric rate decrease — this time hitting El Paso Electric Co. with a $16 million cut.

The company, which serves 158,000 customers in El Paso, Hudspeth and Culberson counties, wanted to raise rates by $36.3 million, including adding about $12 to average residential bills.

But Commissioner Peggy Rosson, who previously served on the El Paso city board that regulates utilities, won commission approval for her proposed cut. Her recommendation also calls for an audit of the company.

"The record in this case is so replete with questionable costs, evasions, conflicting testimony and self-serving statements that one cannot read it without concluding there are serious deficiencies in the quality of this company's management," Mrs. Rosson said Tuesday.

Earlier this month, the commission slapped Texas Utilities Electric Co. with a $9.8 million cut. The company, which plans to appeal to the courts, wanted a $304 million increase.

El Paso Electric lawyer David Wiggs said he was "disappointed" that Commissioners Phil Ricketts and Dennis Thomas agreed with Mrs. Rosson's recommendation.

Mrs. Rosson said she was "somewhat surprised" at attracting the other two votes.

Wiggs said, "We haven't had a rate increase in two years and now we have a rate decrease."

Company spokesman Scott Ehret said, "We're obviously disappointed. We're under a major construction program and are barely meeting our payments now."

PUC Hearing Examiner Shelia Bailey had recommended a $696,000 rate increase, but Mrs. Rosson won approval for about 20 changes in Ms. Bailey's report, including:

— Setting return on equity at 16.4 percent. The company wanted 17.5 percent, and the examiner recommended 17.3.

— Requesting an audit through the commission's utility evaluation division.

— Asking the commission staff to file a formal inquiry into the affiliate company transactions.

— Asking the commission's accounting division to audit company records to check for accuracy of numbers in the rate case.

Durable demands decrease

NEW YORK (AP) — A 4.3 percent drop in factory orders for durable goods in September, the steepest in five months, is a sign the economic expansion is slowing somewhat and likely will reverse this month, some analysts say.

The decline "is consistent with the fact that we are in a very serious slowdown," said Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, after the report's release Tuesday.

But Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, said he did not believe the September drop in orders was a sign that the slowdown was in danger of turning into a recession.

"I wouldn't overreact to these numbers and come to the conclusion that the economy is slowing down more sharply than expected," he said, predicting fourth-quarter growth would be in the 3 percent to 4 percent range.

"There is growth ahead, but it is not very impressive growth and it certainly isn't enough to keep unemployment from rising," said Evans.

The Reagan administration sought to downplay the report, blaming the plunge in orders on spot strikes against General Motors Corp. and a temporary drop in defense orders.

"A rebound of auto production, further modernization and expansion by business and the defense build-up should lift durable goods orders this month, signaling continued growth ahead," said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

Factory orders for durable goods — "big-ticket" items such as major appliances — fell by $4.4 billion in September to a total of $97.6 billion, the Commerce Department said..

The decline was the steepest since a 6.5 percent drop in April and it followed a tiny 0.3 percent August increase.

The government reported last week that overall economic growth from July through September fell to a 2.7 percent rate, less than one-third the 8.6 percent pace during the first half of the year.

Survey indicates no price increase for natural gas

WASHINGON, D.C.—A recently released survey reveals that new gas prices are declining and will continue to do so. New gas is natural gas that has been or will be decontrolled on Jan. 1, 1985, under the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978(NGPA).

This survey provides new evidence that price increases will not occur upon decontrol of new gas this winter, according to Frank L. Pitts, who commissioned the study.

"It confirms that market forces are operating to bring about renegotiation or adjustment of existing contracts and negotiations of new contracts at lower prices," stated Frank Pitts, head of Pitts Energy Group.

"Some members of Congress have been concerned that natural gas prices would rise rapidly after new gas decontrol," commented Pitts.

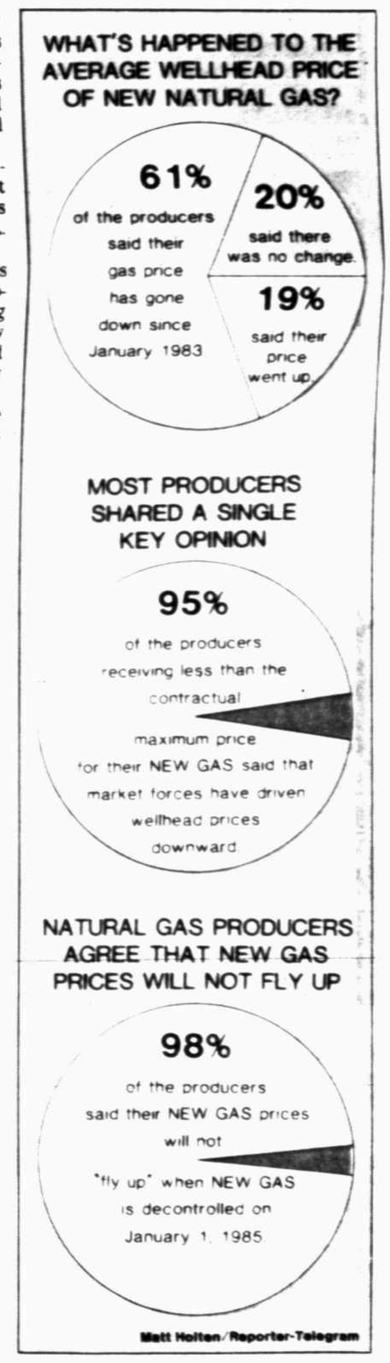
"Not only will there not be a 'fly-up' of 9-12 percent in new gas prices, as some have speculated, but this survey provides conclusive evidence that new gas prices are declining and will continue to do so," Pitts added.

A total of 982 producers responded to the survey administered by Control Data Corporation. Ninety-eight percent of the responding producers stated that there would be no increase in new gas prices at the wellhead after federal price controls expire on Jan. 1, 1985. Eighty-one percent of the responding producers stated that their new gas prices had declined or remained unchanged over the last 18 months. In addition, 71 percent of the respondents stated that they are not receiving the full contract price for their new gas.

The survey respondents produced 11.261 trillion cubic feet of natural gas during 1983, accounting for 70 percent of total U.S. natural gas production. "Because of the participation by large and small producers in responding to the survey and the proportion of total U.S. natural gas production represented, we have an extremely high level of confidence in the results of the survey and what this means to the American consumer," Pitts said.

Pitts went on to explain that natural gas production suffered during three decades of regulation in which prices were kept artificially low. Under the NGPA, prices were allowed to rise gradually to reflect actual costs of drilling and production.

"Today, however, market forces have caused decreases in new gas prices and an abundance of natural gas supply which spells good news for consumers. It is clear that consumers should realize the benefits of declining new gas prices without new legislation," Pitts said.



Canada strike costs GM $200 million

TORONTO (AP) — A strike by 36,000 General Motors Corp. workers in Canada, starting its second week today, hasn't affected profits yet, but GM said labor unrest in the United States and Germany cost it $200 million so far this year.

More than 18,000 workers at 13 U.S. plants in four states have been laid off because of the Canadian strike, and analysts say those ranks will swell and GM could lose as much as $150 million a week if it continues.

GM said Tuesday it earned $416.8 million in the third quarter, down 43 percent from $736.9 million in the year-ago period. The effects of the Canadian strike won't show up on the balance sheet until the fourth quarter.

"This thing has to start moving one way or the other in the next 24 or 48 hours, or we're not going anywhere," Robert White, UAW director for Canada, said Tuesday.

White said he is planning meetings this weekend to "prepare the GM membership and the rest of our union for what might have to be a long fight."

Also, UAW members at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. plants in Canada are being asked to pay higher dues to help support the GM strikers.

The last strike against General Motors in Canada, in 1970, lasted 94 days.

Formal bargaining sessions have been suspended while White and chief GM negotiator Rod Andrew search for a solution to the key dispute on wages.

General Motors has offered a package similar to the contract accepted by U.S. workers, with a 2.25 percent wage increase in the first year, followed by lump-sum payments in the second and third years.

Dollar slips in trading; Gold inches up

LONDON (AP) — The dollar slipped against key currencies in active early trading today amid indications the U.S. economic recovery is slowing and that U.S. interest rates will continue to fall. Gold prices inched up.

The dollar's decline followed its sharpest retreat in a month Tuesday. Currency dealers attributed that to the growing belief that interest rates will ease.

High interest rates sent the dollar surging to new highs in recent weeks.

The U.S. Commerce Department said Tuesday that factory orders for durable goods fell 4.3 percent in September, the biggest drop since April.

Another key U.S. economic indicator, the consumer price index for September, was scheduled to be announced later Tuesday amid market expectations of an increase of about 0.3 percent over August.

Analysts speculated that with U.S. economic growth braking and no signs of inflation climbing, the Federal Reserve Board may encourage lower interest rates.

Red China moves toward capitalist-style markets

New York Times News Service

PEKING — China has announced plans for sweeping changes in its urban economy that will introduce capitalist-style market forces and reduce government control.

The plans were incorporated in a major decision on the changes in China's economic structure that were adopted this week at a meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee.

The new measures will give greater independence to one million state-owned enterprises and make them compete to survive. In addition, the program will separate government functions from purely economic functions, which will be left to plant managers operating within guidelines. The decision will also mean that China will limit central planning, phase out extensive consumer subsidies and leave the prices of many products to be determined by supply and demand.

The document adopted Saturday also pledged to expand foreign trade, promote younger government technical experts, retire old managers in key industries next year and make increases in urban wages contingent on greater productivity.

A Chinese official familiar with the decision called it the most important since December 1978, when the Central Committee approved a new system of incentives for China's 800 million peasants in which those who produced more were rewarded. A sharp rise in agricultural output resulted and China's communes began to break up as individual households became the basic farming unit.

The official said the new measures, which will affect the other 200 million Chinese in cities, were designed to complete the economic transformation by doing for industry what the 1978 measures did successfully for agriculture.

Some Peking-based diplomats, who had anticipated many of the changes from hints in the Chinese press, thought they would accelerate China's repudiation of the rigid system of central planning and economic control borrowed by Mao Tsetung from the Soviet Union, though not communism itself.

"This is the first step in a very exciting direction," a Western diplomat said. "If they don't trip and fall, the Soviet model is dead in China."

China's leaders have tried to avoid the kind of abrupt lurches in policy that traumatized the Chinese under Chairman Mao. The document adopted Saturday emphasized that the changes would be gradually introduced under the supervision of the Cabinet.

"We must not try to accomplish the whole task at one time," it said.

But the decision also advised the party's 40 million members, the majority of whom joined under Chairman Mao, to get in step with the changes.

"All party comrades should stand in the forefront of the reform, which represents the trend of our times," it said.

The authors of the document took pains to allay fears among ordinary Chinese that the elimination of subsidies for basic necessities, housing and transportation, which by some estimates consume up to a quarter of the budget, would not lead to inflation or erode incomes. The document told officials to publicize that the readjustment of prices "will never bring about a general and spiraling price rise."

The document declared that China would still adhere to Communist principles, but it conceded that so far they had not worked very well in China.

"The profound changes that have taken place in the 35 years since the founding of the People's Republic are an initial demonstration of the superiority of the socialist system," it said. "But this superiority, it must be pointed out, has not been brought into full play."

The document went on to complain bluntly about government domination of economic enterprises, excessive and rigid central planning, a pricing system that ignored production costs, bureaucratic rivalries and lack of incentive among workers, who were seldom, if ever, dismissed for not doing their jobs.

"Expediting reform is a prerequisite for the growth of the urban economy," it said.

On moving toward free-market economics, the document said government departments would no longer directly manage state-run enterprises.

An enterprise should be encouraged, the document said, to plan its own production and marketing, set prices on its products "within the limits set by the state," use or remove its personnel "according to relevant regulations" and decide on wages and bonuses.

When is privacy legal?

By SCOTT WINOKUR
Hearst News Service

The family of a West Virginia woman whose husband died in a bridge disaster is depicted as living in squalor by the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The widow sues for invasion of privacy.

A San Francisco man blocks an attempt on former President Ford's life, and newspaper accounts of the incident reveal that he is openly gay. The man sues the San Francisco Chronicle, the Los Angeles Times and other papers for invasion of privacy.

The widow wins. The man loses.

As these and other examples illustrate, news organizations routinely test the limits of personal privacy while exercising First Amendment rights. Just as routinely, lawsuits follow. Results of the legal actions have been mixed, leaving journalists with no certain way of determining where a fair news report ends and an invasion of privacy begins.

"How far can the press go?" asks lawyer William Petrocelli, author of a book on personal privacy. "There apparently is a line, but no one is quite sure where it is."

In a 1975 case, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit offered this definition of the difference between acceptable and unacceptable reporting: "The line is to be drawn when the publicity ceases to be the giving of information to which the public is entitled, and becomes a morbid and sensational prying into private lives for its own sake."

Some people think news organizations cross this line. Earlier this year, newspaper readers and television viewers questioned the disclosure of victims' names in New Bedford, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., rape trials. In 1979, a Louis Harris poll showed that nearly a third of the public believed newspapers, magazines and television ask for "too much" personal information.

In contrast, some journalists, news-media lawyers and spokesmen for journalism groups have contended that, rather than invading privacy, news organizations today are victimized by privacy "safeguards" – laws and court decisions that have had chilling effects on free expression and the public's right to know. Additionally, news media defenders say that the major law granting reporters access to federal documents, the Freedom of Information Act of 1966, has been compromised by the federal Privacy Act of 1974, which exempts certain kinds of personal information from disclosure.

Exchange growth lead by oil trade

Staff reports

The New York Mercantile Exchange (NYMEX) which has experienced "explosive" growth lead by energy trading is expected to get another charge shortly when the Exchange will open an unleaded gasoline futures contract for trading on December 3, 1984.

The new contract, which was approved by the NYMEX Board of Governors last week, is expected to complement the other energy contracts on the Exchange which include: leaded gasoline, heating oil, and crude oil. Contract terms will be similar for those of leaded gasoline.

"Recent changes in the physical market for unleaded gasoline indicate that the time has come for this contract," said NYMEX Chairman, Michel D. White. "The use of lead in gasoline is declining rapidly. Tightening government restrictions on leaded gasoline and the growing number of vehicles in the U.S. fleet using unleaded gasoline are shifting trade interest and hedging needs to the unleaded product."

Marks also noted that the December 3, opening date for the unleaded gasoline contract will coincide with the NYMEX completion of a new rign on the Exchange trading floor, to allow unleaded and leaded gasoline to be traded in the same ring.

Lead by energy futures trading, volume on the Exchange hit 3,931,356 contracts on October 5, 1984 to surpass the 1983 record of 3,926,589 contracts traded.

Mob losing ground in rackets

EDITOR'S NOTE: With organized crime estimated to be an $84 billion industry this year, blacks, Colombians, motorcycle gangs and other groups are taking over traditional mob rackets such as gambling, narcotics and prostitution. They are also beating the old mob into lucrative new activities.

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For half a century this has been the mob's capital, the city where Al Capone was born and Albert Anastasia was gunned down in a barber's chair. It was home to Lucky Luciano, who organized the mob, Meyer Lansky, who financed it, and Joe Valachi, who exposed it.

But today organized crime's loosening grip on the underworld is charted by the map of ethnic New York: Colombians in Jackson Heights, Cubans on the Upper West Side, blacks in Harlem, Russians in Brighton Beach, Chinese in Chinatown.

The pattern extends across the nation with Arab heroin smugglers in Detroit, Vietnamese extortionists in Southern California and Japanese racketeers in Honolulu. There are prison gangs on the West Coast and motorcycle gangs in every state.

Hungry for their share of the nation's organized crime market, estimated this year by the President's Organized Crime Commission at $84 billion, some of these groups are taking over traditional mob rackets such as gambling, narcotics and prostitution, or beating the mob into lucrative new activities.

The most prosperous and violent are Colombian "cocaine cowboys," drug dealers with a reputation for killing anyone in their way, including relatives, women and children.

These racketeers are among the targets of Lt. Remo Franceschini, one of the police department's best-known experts on organized crime.

In his office, however, the scowling mug shots belong to men the Colombians have pushed off the front page: "Big Paul" Castellano, under indictment for racketeering; Philip "Rusty" Rastelli, on parole after six years in prison; Carmine "Snake" Persico, serving a five-year prison sentence.

Franceschini's detectives had the photo of only one Colombian, however: Alberto Bravo, a man the Drug Enforcement Administration says may be dead. The blurry photo was 10 years old — and showed only the back of his head.

Such is the older-style mob's dilemma: too much attention from the law and not enough respect from its rivals.

The mob is not a national army of hit men with a monopoly on organized crime, but rather a loose association of local entrepreneurs who rely far more on intimidation, corruption and mediation than on murder.

These criminal arts can no longer control the street, but they are easing the mob's lucrative move from the street corner and the social club to the board room and the country club. They trade on the mob's one unique, undiminished asset — its legend.

Forged in Prohibition bootlegging wars and nurtured by law enforcement neglect after World War II, the American Mafia is singular in name only. "The mob" is really about 25 mobs, called families, located in larger Northeastern and Midwestern cities.

Since 1957, when police raided a national meeting of mob leaders in Appalachin, N.Y., fragmented and misunderstood police intelligence has been used to depict the mob as a national, centrally directed organization, a sort of Sears, Roebuck & Co. of organized crime.

That legend has been exploited by politicians for votes, by police for funds and by gangsters for intimidation. But in dozens of interviews, investigators, prosecutors and researchers described the Mafia less like Sears than a Rotary club.

This mob varies so much from city to city that it defies generalization. Even the name changes, from "La Cosa Nostra" on the East Coast to "The Outfit" in Chicago to "The Arm" in Buffalo. In many areas with organized crime there is no Mafia at all.

Given the local nature of most mob enterprises, Appalachin-style national meetings are rare and unnecessary.

The FBI says the nation's Mafia families have about 1,700 "made" members, men of Italian descent who have taken oaths of silence and obedience and usually have done a special favor for the family, such as murder.

Each member, in turn, usually has several associates who also made their daily living from organized crime.

CHINA

On the separation of the functions of government departments and enterprises, which have become "appendages of administrative organs," the document said the old system produced "endless wrangling" and increased the problems of running businesses. Until now, state-run enterprises have been under the administrative authority of government ministries and agencies, making it hard for them to deal directly with other enterprises.

On central planning, the document said it would be reduced to apply only to major products directly affecting the national economy or people's livelihood, such as steel, coal, cement or fertilizer. Other more numerous products are to come under guidance planning or be left to the operation of market forces. The State Planning Commission recently reported that such a change would be put into operation next year.

The document said that "our national economic plans on the whole can only be rough and elastic" rather than detailed and binding, as in the past, because economic performance "cannot be achieved by relying only on administrative means and mandatory plans." To avoid disorder, it said, guidelines and some administrative control would be retained.

On the pricing system, which the document said was now irrational, it said the extent of fixed prices would be reduced and the range of floating prices would be increased. It said, "The prices of many commodities reflect neither their value nor the relation of supply to demand." It said changing the pricing system was the key to the entire new economic package.

The Central Committee document told plant managers to offset price increases in raw and semifinished materials by improving administration and operation insofar as possible rather than by raising prices. "It is absolutely impermissible for any unit or person to boost prices at will by taking advantage of the reform," it said.

On incentives, the document said urban enterprises should work out their own versions of the incentive system that made peasants work harder in the countryside but should not try to transplant the rural system mechanically. The decision called for each plant director to assume responsibility for his enterprise and to link wage increases and bonuses to higher productivity by the workers.

It also said that steps would be taken to raise salaries for "mental work" by technicians or white collar workers, who routinely earn less than factory workers.

On private enterprise, the document said diverse economic forms, including collectively and individually owned businesses, should be developed. It suggested that "some small state-owned enterprises can be leased to collectives or individuals, or run by them on a contract basis." This did not mean going back to capitalism, it said, because the enterprises would still be publicly owned.

On promoting younger people, the document said that lack of experience should not be used as an excuse to hold them back. The document said that "thousands upon thousands of young and middle-aged managerial personnel" should be promoted to replace older men who will retire when the leaders of key enterprises are changed next year.

The document said the changes were necessary to enable China to catch up with the technological revolution in the world.

It implicitly acknowledged that the changes might be resisted by party members who were happier with the old economic system. It said, "We should have faith in comrades who fall behind the developing situation for a time, confident that they will understand things better in the course of reform."

Such members were urged to overcome old habits of complacency and fear of change. The party is undergoing a consolidation, it said, that is meant to weed out those who are radical, corrupt or unwilling to accept the new policies.

Deng Xiaoping, the Chinese leader who has been behind both the rural and urban changes, told Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany during a visit this month that he regarded the newest changes as "a kind of revolution" for China.

The decision Saturday buttressed the leaders' claim that such changes are consistent with Marxism by selectively quoting from an injunction by Mao that "ideas of stagnation, pessimism, inertia and complacency are all wrong."

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Pecos County gets gas producers

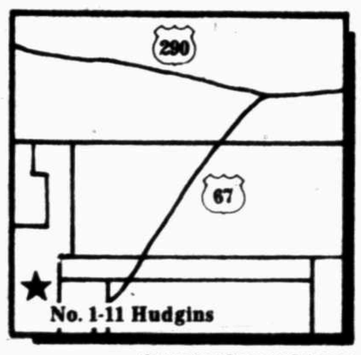
Staff Reports

Two strong gas producers have been finaled in Pecos County.

HNG OIL CO. tested the No. 1 Hudgins "11" in the Oates Southwest (Devonian) field for a calculated absolute open flow of 2,400 Mcfpd with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,255 psi. The well is flowing through perforations at 13,600 to 13,708 ft., which were acidized with 10,000 gallons of 10 percent MCA.

Total depth is 14,362 ft., plugged back to 14,273 ft. Casing is 4 1/2 inches set at 14,362 ft.

With a ground elevation of 3,440 ft., formation tops are Delaware, 4,070; Cherry Canyon, 4,560; Cherry Canyon Marker, 4,682; Bone Springs, 5,927; Wolfcamp, 7,570; Atoka, 12,200; Barnett, 12,965; Mississippian, 13,200; Woodford, 13,290; Devonian, 13,592; Fusselman, 13,760; and Montoya, 13,793 ft.



Matt Holton/Reporter-Telegram

Location is 2,384 ft. from north and 2,496 ft. from west lines of Section 11, Block 180, TCRR survey, 25 miles southwest of Fort Stockton.

TXO PRODUCTION CO. tested the No. 4 Wilson "K" in the Chenot Wolfcamp field for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,750 Mcfpd. The well is flowing from perforations at 5,367 to 5,383 ft., which were acidized with 250 gallons of 15 percent NeFe.

Total depth is 5,500 ft., plugged back to 5,414 ft. Casing is 4 1/2 inches set at 5,500 ft.

With a ground elevation of 3,046 ft., formation tops are Wolfcamp, 5,050; Wichita Albany, 4,200; Clearfork, 2,800; and San Andres, 1,905 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and 1,538 ft. from west lines of SF 13132, R.R. Ogden survey, 6 miles west of Girvin.

Gas strike tested in Loving County

A gas strike has been completed in Loving County.

SOHIO PETROLEUM CO. tested the wildcat No. 1 Left Hand for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,030 Mcfpd with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,400 psi. The well is flowing from perforations 14,934 to 14,952 ft., which were acidized with 12,000 gallons of 7.5 percent acid.

Total depth is 17,500 ft., plugged back to 15,200 ft. A 5 1/2 inch liner was set from 13,073 to 17,474 ft.

With a ground elevation of 3,202 ft., formation tops are Strawn, 14,808; Atoka, 15,494; and Morrow, 16,296 ft.

Location is 2,310 ft. from southeast and 1,320 ft. from northeast lines of Section 24, Block C-24, PSL survey, 23 miles south-southwest of Mentone.

Tamaron Oil tells plans to acquire Texas Western

DENVER (AP) — Tamaron Oil & Gas Inc., announced plans Monday to acquire off outstanding stock of Texas Western Inc., of Dallas, for about $1.2 million.

Texas Western has been operating under Chapter 11 protection of the federal Bankruptcy Court.

Texas Western owns and operates about 80 wells in north-central West Texas, which have produced in excess of 2 million barrels of oil and 750,000 MCF of natural gas.

The letter of intent signed by both companies said that Tamaron will acquire Texas Western with a combination of cash, stock and assumption of certain obligations.

1918

The first gasoline pipeline placed in operation, a 40-mile, three-inch line from Salt Creek to Casper, Wyo.

Texas Gulf Coast and Louisiana Oil and Producers Association meet to consider first serious oil strike.

Joan's jailhouse blues turn into greenbacks

ENTERTAINMENT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Collins' jailhouse blues are earning big Nielsen ratings points for ABC's "Dynasty," but not enough to pull the network out of third place behind CBS, which regained its lead, and NBC.

CBS was back in first place for the week ended Oct. 21, after NBC's triumph the week before on the strength of the movie "The Burning Bed" and the World Series. NBC fell to second place and ABC was third.

It was another non-normal week as the presidential debate Sunday took a 90-minute block out of one of the highest sets-in-use periods of the week. The audience estimate for the debate is not expected to be available for a week. The first debate, however, attracted an estimated 90 million viewers to the three commercial networks, according to ABC.

"Dynasty" edged out CBS' "Dallas" as the most-watched show of the week. It was the biggest ratings for "Dynasty" since its season premiere last year. The more trouble the rich Carringtons get into on "Dynasty," especially Miss Collins' naughty Alexis Carrington, the higher the ratings. Currently, Alexis, accused of murder, has swapped her Nolan Miller originals for prison gray. Her ex-husband, Blake Carrington, is facing financial ruin, his daughter Fallon is presumed dead and his grandchild has been kidnapped.

CBS was first with a network average of 16.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. NBC was second with 15.8 and ABC was third with 15.3. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

NBC was still in first place for the season-to-date. The ratings: NBC 17.5, CBS 16.9, ABC 15.2.

Every show in the Top 10 was a regular series. CBS had five shows, NBC three and ABC two.

Here are the Top 10: "Dynasty," ABC, first; "Dallas," CBS, second; "The A-Team," NBC, third; "Hotel," ABC, fourth; "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, fifth; "60 Minutes," CBS, sixth; "The Cosby Show," NBC, seventh; "Simon & Simon," CBS, eighth; "Newhart," CBS, ninth; and "Riptide," NBC, tenth.

Although it's still early in the season, it appears that NBC has broken out of the ratings cellar. NBC got a lock on Tuesday night at the end of last season with "The A-Team," "Riptide" and "Remington Steele," all of which made the Top 20 this week. Now, with Bill Cosby leading off, it has broken CBS' hold on Thursday night. Three NBC Thursday night shows, "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties" and "Cheers," made the Top 20.

The lowest-rated show of the week was NBC's new action-adventure series "Hot Pursuit." The five bottom shows in descending order: ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not," CBS' "Dreams," "CBS' "AfterMASH," CBS' "E.R.," and NBC's "Hot Pursuit."

"The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" led the evening news shows in the ratings. ABC was second and NBC was third. The ratings: CBS 12.3, ABC 10.7, NBC 10.2.

Here are the week's top shows:

1. "Dynasty," ABC, a rating of 26.1 or 22.1 million households.
2. "Dallas," CBS, 24.6 or 20.8 million.
3. "The A-Team," NBC, 24.3 or 20.6 million.

Actor relives his past in ABC's 'Wet Gold'

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When actor Burgess Meredith played a grizzled old beachcomber hunting for sunken treasure in the ABC movie "Wet Gold," he felt he was reliving the past.

Meredith stars with Brooke Shields, Tom Byrd and Brian Kerwin in the TV film, which ABC will telecast Sunday.

"It struck me as kind of coincidental," said Meredith. "When I arrived at Nassau in the Bahamas it was the same place where I'd gone in 1960 or '61 on an outlandish treasure hunt with Kevin McClory (later producer of the James Bond series) and author John Steinbeck. Steinbeck and I had become good friends when I did 'Of Mice and Men.'

"But more important than us, Kevin also persuaded Peter Gimbel, the famous professional diver, to join us. Gimbel is the man who recently brought up the safe of the Andrea Doria."

Meredith said they were hunting for silver ingots lost when a Spanish treasure ship sank near one of the islands in the Bahamas.

"We had a very amusing and enjoyable, but unproductive search for the silver," he said. "It was a nice adventure. We had several close calls with sharks."

Meredith said he found several parallels to his real-life adventure during the making of "Wet Gold."

"I play an old derelict, a beachcomber who was on the ship that sank," he said. "Brooke overhears me talking about it and believes me, which no one else did. She and two friends steal a boat to search for the gold. Everyone fights for Brooke and everyone fights for the gold.

"It's sort of like a wet 'Treasure of the Sierra Madre.' I'm going to see John Huston (writer and director of "Treasure of the Sierra Madre") and I'm going to tell him."

• • •

There's also a parallel between the heroine of the Operation Prime Time miniseries "A Woman of Substance" and producer Diane Baker's effort to bring it to the screen.

The six-hour miniseries, based on the book by Barbara Taylor Bradford, tells the story of how Emma Hart pulls herself up from poverty to become a wealthy international businesswoman. It will be shown on 90 stations belonging to OPT beginning this Saturday.

It stars Jenny Seagrove as young Emma and Deborah Kerr as Emma in later years. Barry Bostwick plays the man in her life.

Everyone was clamoring for the film rights to the novel, which sold 7 million copies. Miss Baker, with no studio behind her and with no commitment, wrote the author that she wanted to do it with "dignity and class."

The author's husband, Robert Bradford, who was handling the negotiations, wrote Miss Baker that he would not sell an option because he didn't want a studio to buy an option and then let the project sit on a shelf.

"So he said to me, 'Diane, if you want to do it, I won't sign any papers, but you've got my word I'll go along with it,'" she said.

This was before the Australian epic "The Thorn Birds" had been on and Miss Baker found the networks weren't interested in a book set in England. But, she finally got a four-hour commitment from OPT.

"I went back to Bradford and he said, 'OK, if you feel you have a deal, this is the price.' And it was a huge price! It was more than OPT could pay and I picked up the rest with a bank loan in England."

After that, Miss Baker and her secretary personally prepared separate contracts for each of the 90 stations that belong to OPT. It went into production on April 2 of this year and was completed on July 7. Miss Baker then supervised the editing and post-production. "I've just finished the transfer of the film to tape and I'm exhausted," she said.

Why was she willing to take such a risk?

"I was looking for something that wasn't going to put me out of business," said the fledgling producer. "When I read the book I said this is not just a potboiler. It's very classy."

'Teachers' earns high grades

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie patrons spent $3.4 million to make MGM-UA Entertainment Co.'s "Teachers" the most popular movie in the nation's theaters last weekend.

The high school comedy is in its fourth week of release.

"Places in the Heart" by Tri-Star Productions and "Thief of Hearts" by Paramount Pictures Corp. tied for second place with a weekend take of $3.1 million each.

"The Little Drummer Girl," the Warner Bros. movie with Diane Keaton starring as the title character from John LeCarre's thriller novel about international terrorism, took in $2.6 million in its first week of release.

It tied with Universal's "All of Me," also earning $2.6 million.

Can 'ghosts' be flushed out?

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Donna Owens is having trouble flushing out at least one problem in Government Center.

There are spooks in them thar pipes, and they keep flushing the toilets, she says.

"There are goblins in there," she said Monday.

Mrs. Owens said she has suspected transcendental toilet tampering for several weeks, ever since the fixture began flushing itself while she sat at her desk on the 22nd floor of the Government Center.

"The first time it happened it was really spooky. I thought, 'Oh no, there's someone in there,' but when I checked, it was empty," she said.

William Weimer, building manager, said the phantom is really a fluctuation in water pressure that also flushes the toilet in the office of City Manager David Boston.

Parliament votes to save embryos

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — More than 90 women, many of them Americans, have asked to be implanted with two frozen "orphan" embryos that state lawmakers voted not to destroy, officials said today.

The upper house of the Victoria state Parliament passed a special amendment Tuesday night to allow the adoption and implantation of the embryos, which are frozen in liquid nitrogen at Queen Victoria Medical Center.

Dozens of women have volunteered to adopt and carry the embryos if they can be successfully thawed.

"The vast majority are from the United States," medical center spokeswoman Netta Darling said. "Some of them have said these are American children and we don't like you having our children."

State officials said last month they would probably accept the recommendation of a scholarly committee to the destroy the embryos. The statement drew a storm of protest from right-to-life groups in Australia, the United States and elsewhere, and prompted Tuesday's vote by the legislature.

Margaret Tighe, president of the Right-to-Life Organization of Victoria, said state politicians bowed to a concerted campaign to save the embryos.

"We kept on putting the pressure on the politicians. At least the embryos will get a chance to live — but it's a very slim chance," she said.

The embryos were left in legal limbo after Mario and Elsa Rios were killed in a plane crash last year in Chile. The wealthy Los Angeles couple had been trying to have a test-tube baby at the pioneering Melbourne center.

State Attorney General Jim Kennan said the upper house tagged the special amendment on to a law governing test-tube baby programs in Victoria. The amendment means the embryos can be put up for adoption and every effort made to implant them in a surrogate mother, he said.

"It didn't seem unreasonable to allow them to be adopted," he told The Associated Press. "I'm quite happy with it."

Kennan said that if the embryos are adopted and survive it would be unlikely that the new parents would have any claim on the Rios' estate, valued at more than $1 million. The new parents would not be told identities of the embryos, and any children would be considered soley the offspring of the couple who adopted them.

But Kennan said scientists were pessimistic about the chances of the embryos surviving the thaw. The embryos were frozen at a time when the technique was not perfected, he said.

Mrs. Tighe agreed, but said every effort had to be made to save them.

"They've given the Rios embryos a chance to make a break for it," she said.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Tubal ligation doesn't usually affect mental state

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband and I are both employed, we have a standard of living that we want to keep, and we have two children who are close to entering their teens. We definitely do not want any more children. I have been thinking of having a tubal sterilization, but I've heard stories that it can affect a woman's mental condition. Is there anything to this? — Mrs. M.M., Camden, N.J.

Dear Mrs. M.: In the past there have been reports about the development of depression and other psychotic symptoms in women who underwent tubal sterilization; however, the results of a study conducted in England suggest that this reaction is not the rule.

The study involved more than a thousand women who had tubal sterilizations, and who were compared with almost 3,000 women whose husbands had had vasectomies.

There were no significant differenes between the two groups in relation to referrals for psychiatric treatment or the need for psychiatric hospitalization.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had heard that sometimes a woman who has rheumatoid arthritis feels better when she becomes pregnant. I had always thought that this was a myth, but a friend of mine says she read about it in your column. Is this true? And if it is, what is there about being pregnant that would make a person with rheumatoid arthritis feel better? And finally, what happens after the woman gives birth? — Christine, Davenport, Iowa.

Dear Christine: It is true that women with rheumatoid arthritis often feel better during pregnancy. One theory that has been advanced is that the body released a hormone (cortisol) that is similar to certain drugs (cortisone) that are used to treat the disease.

Unfortunately, the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis generally return after the woman gives birth.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know a lot of people, including myself, who have low back pain. In fact, I don't know many people who do not have it. Since it is so common, can I conclude from that that the condition is really not very serious? — Roger, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Dear Roger: The answer to your question depends on your definition of "serious." A physically active person who has to curtail his or her activities because of low back pain may consider the condition to be very serious.

In general, however, low back pain is a benign disease, although it does tend to recur. Occasionally, it may also be a symptom of a more serious illness.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter is nursing her baby, and she says that her doctor told her that she does not have to give the baby orange juice. I may be wrong, but if I remember correctly, I think I gave my children orange juice when I was nursing them. What is the usual recommendation today? — Mrs. L.A., South Bend, Ind.

Dear Mrs. A.: Orange juice is usually not recommended for infants who are being breast fed since most mother's milk contains a sufficient amount of ascorbic acid. There is also the possibility that orange juice might trigger an allergic reaction in infants. In addition, orange juice has a high sugar content, and this may not be desirable for a nursing infant.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I get an occasional case of heartburn. Is this something a person simply has to learn to live with, or can something be done about it? It happens once about every two weeks. — Lester, Lousiville, Ky.

Dear Lester: Someone who experiences severe and persistent heartburn should see a physician. If the condition is left untreated, the esophagus may become inflamed or ulcerated, and the consequent narrowing may serve as an obstruction to food passing through the gullet.

For mild heartburn, Dr. Walter J. Hogan, of the Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, suggests the following:

— Keep the stomach empty before going to bed; don't lie down after eating.

— If you must lie down, tilt the head of the bed so gravity helps the esophagus empty.

— Avoid tight clothing around the waist since this puts too much pressure on the stomach; losing weight will also reduce pressure on the stomach.

— Avoid foods such as citrus fruits and spices that aggravate the symptoms.

For Greta, Duluth, Minn.: Food allergies often appear in children before two years of age, and subside as the child grows older. Eggs or dairy products or both are common allergens in children.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies, but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Transplanted ovaries, tubes 'viable, intact,' doctor says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Reproductive organs transplanted from a woman to her identical twin sister are "viable and intact," and the recipient could become pregnant in about a year, said the surgeon who performed the first-ever operation.

Dr. Sherman Silber, who nine years ago performed the first vasectomy reversal using microsurgery, Tuesday night showed a videotape of the February transplant — which he said was the first of its kind — to the 70th Annual Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

The recipient had no fallopian tubes or ovaries, while the donor had been sterilized and wanted to have children again after her first husband died and she remarried.

The operation included microsurgery to reverse the sterilization in the donor and to transplant an ovary and fallopian tube to her twin sister, Silber said.

He noted that the procedure is currently available only to identical twins because of the great risk the body would otherwise reject the organs.

However, Silber said, he believes that safer methods of immunosuppression, the inactivation of natural antibodies that reject donated organs, "are likely to be on the horizon within the next 10 years."

While limited to "extreme cases," the transplant operation "is still of interest as an example of just how far you can go in microsurgery," said Silber, a reproductive microsurgeon at St. Luke's West Hospital in St. Louis.

Silber said the unidentified 28-year-old women were in business together in Oklahoma City.

The recipient began to produce the hormone estrogen several months after the operation, "which shows that the ovary and fallopian tube are viable and intact," he said.

Citing experience from testicle transplants, Silber predicted it will take another year before the recipient can become pregnant. An interruption of blood supply to the transplanted organs for a brief period during the operation delays full restoration of function, he said.

Can accused man with AIDS get fair jury trial?

NEW YORK (AP) — About half of the 150 prospective jurors in the murder trial of a man who has AIDS asked to be released from duty after officers wearing surgical masks and gloves escorted the defendant into court.

State Judge Arnold G. Fraiman on Tuesday excused those who did not wish to serve on the jury in the trial of Eddie Coaxum, 34, who is charged with the April 1983 stabbing death of 38-year-old Steven Hunt in a drug "shooting gallery."

Coaxum's first trial ended in a hung jury, and two months later, in June, he was diagnosed as having acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Before jury selection began, Health Commissioner David Sencer briefed potential panelists about the deadly disease, which destroys the body's defenses against infection and primarily strikes homosexual men.

Sencer told the jurors they had nothing to fear from Coaxum because AIDS is transmitted only by the intimate exchange of bodily fluids, during sexual relations or a blood transfusion, for example.

"I told them that AIDS was not transmitted through the air and that they did not have to be concerned about being in the same courtroom with the defendant," Sencer said Tuesday.

Coaxum's lawyer, Frank Gould, asked the judge to force the court officers to remove their gloves and masks, claiming that they would cause jurors to worry and hurt his client's case. The judge denied the request.

Reagan ignores one anniversary, celebrates another

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Reagan, who didn't mention the deaths of 241 American servicemen in Beirut on the terrorist bombing's first anniversary, is ending a four-day campaign trip today and celebrating another anniversary — the liberation of Grenada "from Communist thugs."

About 75 American medical students brought home from Grenada by U.S. forces were invited to the White House to mark the first anniversary of the U.S.-led military operation that turned the island over to a provisional government following the murder of its leftist prime minister.

Although the anniversary of the operation actually falls on Thursday, White House spokesman Robert Sims said the students could not arrange to be in Washington that day.

Reagan was scheduled to address Ohio broadcasters and a political rally at Ohio State University, then dine on campus with members of his college fraternity before flying home to Washington to be welcomed on the South Lawn of the White House by the students and representatives of the U.S. military forces that captured the island.

The president arrived in Columbus Tuesday night after campaigning in the Pacific Northwest, where he encountered the most disruptive heckling of his general election campaign.

Although Tuesday marked the anniversary of the terrorist bombing of U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, Reagan made no mention of the tragedy in either of his speeches, one at the University of Portland and the other at a rally in Seattle Center.

During what has become his standard attack on Mondale's foreign policy views, Reagan reminded his generally enthusiastic audience in Seattle:

"One year ago, we liberated Grenada from Communist thugs that had taken that country over in a coup. Do you know that my opponent called what we did a violation of international law that erodes our moral authority to criticize the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan?"

Reagan, who has encountered little vocal opposition during his carefully organized campaign rallies in recent weeks, was repeatedly interrupted by hecklers in Portland and spoke over the protests of a smaller band of demonstrators in Seattle.

Several of the hecklers were forcibly evicted from the audience, one by red-jacketed volunteer ushers and another by a local police officer.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes pointed to Mondale-Ferraro signs in the audience of about 4,000 in Portland and told reporters: "It's the opposition trying to come in and disrupt," although it was not clear to other observers that the hecklers were among the Mondale-Ferraro supporters.

Speakes denied the White House or Secret Service was involved in expelling the demonstrators.

In Portland, a man who blew a whistle and shouted "Get out of Central America" as Reagan spoke was carried out of the auditorium by ushers.

On the other side of the building, a woman holding a "Reagan Lies" sign began walking down the steps from the balcony and was forcibly escorted back by a man in a blue police uniform.

But as she stood on the steps with her sign aloft, Reagan supporters brandishing their own pro-Reagan signs tried to block her from the view of television cameras, and the audience applauded heartily.

Reagan occasionally has encountered a few scattered hecklers and sometimes some anti-Reagan demonstrators on the fringes of the crowd, but he rarely is interrupted and usually manages to silence any opposition with a few barbed quips that prompt his supporters to drown out the protesters.

Mondale attacks president on letter criticizing Kennedy

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale says a 1960 letter President Reagan wrote about John F. Kennedy shows what he really thinks of the Democratic president whose name Reagan often invokes in campaign speeches.

"The fact of it is that Ronald Reagan is trying to tell the American people that he was close to Jack Kennedy and his ideas," Mondale said Tuesday while disclosing the letter in which Reagan compares some of Kennedy's 1960 campaign proposals to ideas espoused by Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler.

"He did everything he could to defeat Jack Kennedy and elect Richard Nixon," Mondale said, citing the letter retrieved from government archives.

In the letter, handwritten to Nixon during the election campaign of 1960 and signed "Ronnie Reagan," the future president wrote this about part of Kennedy's campaign proposals:

"Under the tousled boyish haircut it is still old Karl Marx — first launched a century ago.

"THERE IS nothing new in the idea of a Govt. being Big Brother to us all. Hitler called his 'state socialism' and way before him it was 'benevolent monarchy.'"

The president often invokes Kennedy's name in his effort to convert wavering Democrats to his own candidacy. White House spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed that Reagan wrote the letter, but said he "was pleasantly surprised to find a difference between Kennedy the candidate and Kennedy the president."

Speakes also said Reagan was surprised by Kennedy's toughness during the Cuban missile crisis and by Kennedy's economic program.

But Mondale brushed the explanation aside. "Any adult who tried to compare John Kennedy with the ideas of Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler is not going to improve with age," he said.

Reagan "is in the wrong calling, he should have been a creative writer," Mondale added.

HE SAID THE LETTER is "the truth and Mr. Reagan will have to live with that truth..."

Copies of the three-page handwritten letter were distributed to reporters on Tuesday by Mondale's aides. These aides said they learned of its existence through a tip from a researcher working at the National Archives regional center in Los Angeles. Pursuing the tip, aides said they found the document among Nixon's pre-presidential papers.

Nixon lost the 1960 presidential campaign to Kennedy, but won the White House eight years later and went on to win a second term four years later.

In the three-page letter, Reagan also scorned the noisy, flag-waving floor demonstration typical of a national political convention as a "synthetic time waster" and counseled Richard M. Nixon that a conservative appeal was the way to the White House.

"Somehow the idea persists that someone should put an end to the traditional demonstrations which follow each nomination" at a political convention, wrote Reagan, whose own renomination at the GOP National Convention in Dallas in August set off the type of pre-planned, boisterous eruption on the conventioin floor that has become commonplace.

Reagan letter presented

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of a letter written in 1960 by Ronald Reagan to Vice President Richard Nixon, who was then seeking the presidency against Democrat John F. Kennedy:

Dear Mr. Vice President:

I know this is presumptuous of me but I'm passing on some thought after viewing the Convention here in L.A.

Somehow the idea persists that someone should put an end to the traditional demonstrations which follow each nomination. True they once had their place when their only purpose was to influence the delegates within the convention hall. Now however TV has opened a window into convention deliberations and the 'demonstration' is revealed as a synthetic time waster which only serves to betlittle us in what should be one of our finer moments. One has a feeling that general gratitude would be the reward for anyone who would once and for all declare the 'demonstration' abandoned.

Starting with the opening speech and continuing through all the speeches until Kennedy's acceptance speech I thought the Democrats could pick up some campaign money by selling the collection of addresses as 'Talks suitable for any patriotic occasion with platitudes and generalities guaranteed.' I do not include Kennedy's acceptance speech because beneath the generalities I heard a frightening call to arms. Unfortunately he is a powerful speaker with an appeal to the emotions. He leaves little doubt that his idea of the 'challenging new world' is one in which the Federal Government will grow bigger & do more and of course spend more. I know there must be some short sighted people in the Republican party who will advise that the Republicans should try to 'out liberal' him. In my opinion this would be fatal.

You were kind enough to invite me to comment on the 'talk' I had given and which you had read. That is why I'm speaking on this subject in more than thirty-eight states to audiences of Democrats & Republicans. Invariably the reaction is a standing ovation — not for me but for the views expressed. I am convinced that America is economically conservative and for that reason I think someone should force the Democrats to publish the 'retail price' for this great new war of 'public service' they promise. I don't pose as an infallible pundit but I have a strong feeling that the twenty million non voters in this country just might be conservatives who have cynically concluded the two parties offer no choice between them where fiscal stability is concerned. No Republican no matter how liberal is going to woo a Democratic vote but a Republican backing the give away trend might re-create some voters who have been staying home.

One last thought, — shouldn't someone tag Mr. Kennedy's bold new imaginative program with it's proper age? Under the tousled boyish hair cut it is still old Karl Marx — first launched a century ago. There is nothing new in the idea of a Government being Big Brother to us all. Hitler called his 'State Socialism' and way before him it was 'benevolent monarchy.'

I apologize for taking so much of your time but I have such a yearning to hear someone come before us and talk specifics instead of generalities. I'm sure the American people do not want the government paid services at 'any price' and if we collectively can't afford this & that' they'd like to know it before they buy and not after it is entrenched behind another immovable government bureau.

You will be very much in my prayers in the days ahead.

Sincerely
Ronnie Reagan

Labor support proving to be disappointment for Mondale

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The labor support that was so valuable to Walter F. Mondale in his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination is proving his biggest disappointment in his battle to upset President Reagan.

With less than two weeks to go to Election Day, national polls say Reagan is likely to do better among union households than he did in 1980 when he got better than 40 percent of the labor vote against Jimmy Carter.

The AFL-CIO disputes those surveys. Federation president Lane Kirkland is on a nine-state tour, meeting with local union leaders and trying to generate enthusiasm for a big labor push on Nov. 6.

Asked about two national surveys that show Mondale winning the union vote by a slender margin of 46 percent to 43 percent, Rex Hardesty, an AFL-CIO spokesman, said, "We don't believe it. Not at all."

Hardesty predicted that Mondale would get at least 65 percent of the union vote, the threshold Kirkland has said the Democratic nominee must reach to beat Reagan.

But hardly anyone outside the labor movement agrees with that prediction. Many people inside labor also doubt Mondale will come within 10 points of that goal.

Labor's strength is getting out the vote and that was a big help to Mondale in crucial primaries earlier this year. When Mondale was nearing federal spending limits for the primaries, it was labor that provided the organization he needed.

Labor is ready for another big push to get out the vote on Nov. 6, but a lot of that vote could go to Reagan.

"We have not done an equally good job of educating the members" on why they ought to support Mondale over Reagan, said Morton Bahr, a top official of the Communications Workers of America and the heir apparent to CWA president Glenn Watts.

Bahr said that one of the ironies within the labor movement is that many people in the rank and file give the unions credit for improving their standard of living but also believe Reagan is more likely than Mondale to protect their improved status.

When the AFL-CIO broke precedent and endorsed Mondale in October 1983 for the Democratic nomination, some politicians including a few of Mondale's rivals thought it would turn out to be a mixed blessing.

To the extent that it furthered the image of Mondale as a captive of special interests, that proved true. But in states like New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania, labor was a big factor in primary election victories that put Mondale out of the reach of Colorado Sen. Gary Hart.

Ferraro blitzs Reagan

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro is blitzing Ronald Reagan's home state of California telling voters the president has done nothing in four years to merit returning him to the White House for another term.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee arrived in California for her fifth visit of the campaign season on Tuesday and made appearances in San Diego and Santa Barbara. Today she was addressing rallies in Fresno, Oakland, Los Angeles and San Jose with more stops due Thursday.

On the beach at Santa Barbara, within sight of the Santa Ynez mountains where Reagan's ranch is located, Ms. Ferraro on Tuesday ticked off the essence of her campaign message this next to last week of the election.

"Make no mistake about it," she told a crowd of enthusiastic supporters. "We're in a fight for the heart and the soul of this country."

"People have had enough of greed and division. It's time for compassion and caring," she said.

"People have had enough of the arms race and the new cold war. It's time for arms control and a new commitment to peace.

"People have had enough of those who defile the earth we live on. It's time to make our air clean and our water pure.

"People have had enough of looking backwards. It's time to look to the future."

Democrats are devoting a lot of attention to California and its 47 electoral votes in the closing days of the campaign, despite Reagan's record of never having lost a contest in the state.

"We'll catch them (Republicans) by the end of the week — in California," said John Sasso, Ms. Ferraro's campaign manager.

The New York congresswoman is working hard to get women, young people, environmentalists and to the polls.

In Santa Barbara, she said, "If you care about this beach, it is just so magnificient, and if you care about this outstanding coastline, if you care about preserving this planet for our children and future generations, then please help us on Nov. 6."

She told students at San Diego State University on Tuesday, "According to the president, if you're homeless you like it that way. If you're hungry, eat cheese. And if you're out of a job, vote with your feet. Well I say let's votes with our hearts, take away his job and send him back to his ranch."

Later, at a news conference, she said she agreed with running mate Walter Mondale's assertion that Reagan proved in last Sunday's foreign policy debate that Reagan is "the president who cannot make a statement about a major issue without making a major mistake."

Harold Shull 682-7021

"Some people only live this way two weeks a year."

Welcome to vacation living all year long. Welcome to Saddle Club Apartments. Saddle Club isn't a resort-we just look like one. We offer you 2 sparkling swimming pools, 2 lighted tennis courts, 2 indoor racquetball courts, a universal gym, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, and wet and dry saunas.

Once inside a Saddle Club apartment home you can cozy up to a warm fireplace, relax on your own patio or balcony and enjoy the feeling of luxury living.

Rent beginning at $309. We're located only minutes from major businesses, recreation, fine restaurants and entertainment. We're probably only a few minutes away from where you work.

So if you feel like taking a vacation that never has to end, take a drive over to Saddle Club and let us show you how.
