COST PEGGED AT $12,800,000; WILL REQUIRE TWO YEARS TO BUILD

CRMWD To Seek Permit For New Lake

The Colorado River Municipal Water District will seek a permit for a new lake to impound half a million acre feet of water in Coke County above Robert Lee.

Directors of the district today authorized the filing of an amended application to cover a change from the original location in southern Mitchell County, and to include the construction of pollution control devices upstream.

Communities in 11 counties of the region will be asked to project their municipal and industrial water needs as a guide for final engineering. All are wholly or partly in the Colorado River shed and include Mitchell, Scurry, Ector, Midland, Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Sterling, Coke, Nolan and Rusk counties. Communities and agencies not previously requesting that their needs be taken in consideration for planning will be given an opportunity now.

Huge Project

So huge is the project, that when the permit is granted by the Texas Water Commission, two years will be required to complete construction of the massive earthen dam and its appurtenances.

Cost of the program could approach

$12,800,000. This will be financed privately with revenue bonds as have other stages of the CRMWD, now in its 13th year as the supplier of member cities, Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder, and other communities, industries and waterflood projects.

Engineers estimate that the proposed lake will impound as much as 488,000 acre feet at capacity. Diversion of 50,000 acre feet a year for area use is asked, or up to 70,000,000 gallons per day.

This is 2.4 times as great in capacity and yield as Lake J. B. Thomas, which now furnishes most of the CRMWD supply. Its 14,950 surface acres at peak would make it the largest body of water in West Texas. Its dam, stretching four miles across the river valley, and towering 132 feet at its highest point, would be one of the largest man-made structures in the region. It could call for compaction of 9,200,000 cubic yards of dirt. Protecting this would be a gated morning-glory service spillway which would control the discharge of the top 20 feet of the reservoir. There also is a natural emergency spillway, a mile wide, which would accommodate the lake were it ever to swell to twice its rated capacity.

Portions of State Highway 158 (Robert Lee-Sterling City) and FM 2034 (Water Valley-City Lee) will be inundated, as will one bridge. Two miles of FM 2034 will have to be rerouted as will six miles of State 158, which will enter Robert Lee on the south instead of the north as is now the case. Only the overwhelming advantages of the Robert Lee location as a long range water supply persuaded the engineers, Freese, Nichols and Endress, to recommend moving 18 miles downstream from the site originally studied just above the south Mitchell County line. While this created problems such as relocation of eight miles of highway and putting approximately two dozen oil wells in the dry, the safer foundations, the higher quality of water, the doubling of the average depth and yield over the upstream site was too much to turn down, directors said.

Charles B. Perry, Odessa, president, indicated that little time will be lost in submitting the application to amend the one filed in 1959 and under which the district was given a provisional permit in 1960.

Research

The intervening five years, as well as many thousands of dollars, have been spent in exhaustive research on how to abate and control salt water pollution in the river, and in determining the most practical plan from the standpoint of economics, water supply and engineering.

In addition, the district invested $2.

U. S. Fires Triple Shot Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Two sentry satellites and a "pygmy" satellite rocketed into great egg-shaped orbits today in a complex triple launching that could lead to U.S. development of a foolproof system to detect illicit nuclear explosions in space.

The trio of radiation-sensing packages rode into space atop a single powerful Atlas-Agena rocket which blazed brilliantly in the early morning darkness at 3:22 a.m. (EST).

The Air Force reported 20 minutes later that the 10-story-tall booster had drilled the three satellites into separate highly elliptical orbits.

VERY CLOSE

The exact path was not known immediately but early the payloads were very close to the intended course ranging from 120 to 63,000 miles above the earth.

All three space messengers were flashing clear radio signals to ground stations. It was the fourth time the United States had orbited three satellites with one rocket. The record is four in one shot set by another Atlas-Agena last year.

The pygmy satellite was injected into its pre-planned path shortly after the three satellites separated from the booster today.

Because of an intricate flight plan intended to station the Sentry satellites at the high point of the course, officials will not know until about 10:30 a.m. Sunday whether the launching is completely successful.

SCATTERED

Small rockets aboard the pair are to arrest them at widely scattered points 63,000 miles up—one about 18 hours after launching, the other about 37 hours later.

The Sentries, each weighing 493 pounds, are forerunners of a network of satellites that will peer electronically more than 200 million miles into space to discover if the Soviet Union or any other nation cheats on the partial nuclear test ban treaty by exploding a rocket-borne bomb far from earth.

The 4.5-pound pygmy, which rode along as a hitchhiker, was to aid the study by measuring electrons during wide-swinging

Soviet Offers Space Peace Use Summary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—For the first time the Soviet Union has given the U.N. Committee on Peaceful Uses of Outer Space a summary of Soviet accomplishments in space research, an informed source said today.

The source said the 30-page document was "extremely interesting," and an encouraging development for the 28-nation committee. The committee will meet at U.N. headquarters Oct. 26 to draft a report for the General Assembly opening Nov. 10.

Officials said knowledge of electron characteristics in the belts that extend 40,000 miles above the earth would be valuable in noting changes if a nuclear explosion occurred outside the atmosphere.

RADIATION CHART

In a similar manner, the two nuclear detection satellites were to draw a radiation chart of space, including what happens when their sensitive instruments are struck by surges of charged particles from a solar flare or cosmic ray shower. With this knowledge, operational satellites would be able quickly to differentiate between natural radiation and that created by a sneak nuclear burst.

Officials of the Atomic Energy Commission said the pair of Sentries could be used as a limited operational tool, just as two earlier satellites in the series have been utilized. The initial watchdog satellites were hurled into orbit last Oct. 13, just six days after the nuclear test ban treaty was signed by more than 100 nations, including the United States and Russia. France did not sign.

The treaty prohibits nuclear testing in the atmosphere, under water or in space, but does not forbid underground detonations.

The United States and other nations on the committee previously submitted information on their space research.

The last General Assembly approved by acclamation a program to promote international cooperation in exploration of outer space, including further exploration of the solar system. It also approved the establishment of legal guidelines on space activity.

In his last appearance before the United Nations, the late President John F. Kennedy proposed that the Soviet Union join the United States in a manned expedition to the moon. President Johnson repeated the proposal after Kennedy's death. The Russians expressed interest but said they wanted more time to study the matter.

Goldwater Defends Liberty Extremism

Lyndon Hails Rosy Outlook

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rosy outlook for the nation's economy was projected today from facts and figures reported from the White House, and President Johnson hailed "our strong and balanced economic expansion."

He commented after the Commerce Department reported Thursday a $10 billion rise in the annual rate of the gross national product for the April-June quarter over that for the preceding three months.

That came only a few hours after Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz visited the White House to report to Johnson that total non-arm employment and weekly factory earnings reached record high levels during June.

The announcements broke a self-imposed silence at the White House during most of the Republican national convention, and still contained no direct reference to Republican charges of "fiscal irresponsibility" against the Democrats.

"All I'm reporting is the facts. You interpret them," Wirtz told newsmen.

The Commerce Department made its own announcement of a record $618.5 billion yearly rate for the gross national product—the sum of all goods and services, government and private.

But Johnson was primed with a statement that "we fully expect the gains in the second half of the year to be even greater than the first."

It was the 14th straight quarter, dating back to early 1961 in which the figure has set a new high, and the figure was $100 billion higher than that during the 1960 recession.

Consumer expenditures accounted for $6 billion of the quarter's increase, a "smaller percentage than the $5.7 billion added by consumers to the first quarter's $9.8 billion advance. The quarterly gain bore out predictions made by administration economists in January. They forecast then a 1964 total of $623 billion. The figure last year was $583.9 billion.

Wirtz said non-farm employment hit a record high of 59.1 million in June, an increase of nearly 2 million from May, and record weekly overtime work of 3.2 hours boosted earnings to $103.50 per week, another new high.

Although unemployment rose to 5.3 per cent of the labor force in June, compared with 5.1 per cent in May, the Labor Department said this was considerably better than the 5.7 figure of June 1963.

New African Summit Meet Is Launched

CAIRO (AP)—Booming cannon salutes and ringing unity slogans ushered in another African summit conference today, but few delegates expected more than the usual denunciations of colonialism and talk of shortcuts to economic progress.

The second summit meeting of the fledgling Organization of African Unity brought together most of the dominant personalities in 34 independent African nations above and below the Sahara—the great divide between the Arab north and the Negro south.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic stayed until long after midnight at Cairo airport, greeting each chief of state or government head. An Egyptian army band blared the national anthems of the new countries, and crowds of students and workers applauded the arriving guests.

Officially, the conference hopes to further the cause of African unity, step up the fight for the liberation of Africa's remaining colonial territories, and end the white rule in South Africa and Southern Rhodesia. These have been recurring themes at meetings of the organization since its birth at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, 14 months ago.

President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo and Premier Moise Tshombe were absent.

Team Completed With Rep. Miller

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Launching his presidential campaign with the declaration that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice," Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater moved today to cement his control of the Republican party.

Goldwater told cheering, stamping, horn-blowing convention delegates as he accepted the GOP nomination in the Cow Palace Thursday night that "it is the cause of Republicanism to ensure that power remains in the hands of the people."

"The Good Lord raised up this mighty republic to be a home of the brave and to flourish as the land of the free—not to stagnate in the swampland of collectivism—not to cringe before the bullying of communism," he declared.

Clad in a dark business suit and wearing, as usual, his horn-rimmed glasses, Goldwater marched triumphantly into the glare on the podium after his unanimously elected running mate, Rep. William E. Miller of New York, had accepted the vice presidential nomination. Balloons cascaded down on the Arizona senator as pandemonium broke loose.

Miller, noted as a rough-and-tumble campaigner, played down his role with a short speech in which he said he was happy to be standing in the campaign at the side of "a man who more than any other I have ever known in American life speaks the truth to the people, courageously stands for principle, and devotes himself completely to keeping America free."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, who voted in the House for the civil rights bill which Goldwater opposed in the Senate, was expected to take some of the heat of this issue off the head of the ticket.

But Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a Negro leader, described Goldwater's nomination as "disastrous." He urged voters to deny support to any Republican candidate who "does not publicly disassociate himself from Sen. Goldwater and his philosophy."

In introducing Goldwater to the convention, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said there were some who said "the polls are against us, the Communists are against us, President Johnson is strong and the Republicans are weak."

Needy Brazilians Aided In Church Food Program

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Roman Catholics and Protestants have joined hands in a voluntary program that is getting American food to more than two million needy Brazilians.

The program, which gets its supplies from U.S. Food for Peace, is the biggest of its kind in the world.

It began three years ago with a handful of workers. Today, nearly 100,000 men and women, half of them on a part-time basis, contribute their time to this task. Many are retired businessmen and housewives.

The U.S. government supplies the food and transports it to Brazilian docks. But once there, the job becomes the responsibility of Brazilian men and women and organizations, headed by the Brazil Voluntary Agency. This allies the Catholic Relief Service, the Protestant Church World Service and Lutheran World Relief, all cooperating with Brazilian agencies.

Costs of the program in Brazil are almost totally paid by the Brazilian church organizations. The Brazilian government helps by giving duty-free entry to the food from America, providing some warehouses and some transportation.

But the firm backbone of the operation is the mass of men and women who volunteer their time.

Through them, food is distributed in cities such as Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, and more difficult, in many small towns and communities in the vast Brazilian interior.

The network now includes 12,000 Catholic distribution centers that reach two million persons and 3,300 Protestant centers that reach half a million.

'A CHILD OF LOVE'

Admits Status As Harding's Daughter

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—A Glendale housewife and mother of three has yielded up a secret kept for more than 20 years: She is the illegitimate daughter of Warren Gamaliel Harding, 29th president of the United States.

Mrs. Henry E. Blaessing, 46, speaking in a tired voice, said she is the late president's daughter by a mistress, Nan Britton.

"I've talked to so many reporters today," she said. "I haven't even had a chance to talk to my sons to find out what they think of all this."

LOVE LETTERS

News stories about recently discovered love letters from Harding to another mistress, Mrs. James Phillips of Marion, Ohio, referred to Nan Britton and to the "love child" Miss Britton said she bore out of wedlock.

The Los Angeles Herald Examiner found Mrs. Blaessing living in this suburban community. Miss Britton, now 67, lives in Evanston, Ill.

"We are very close," said

Mrs. Blaessing. "She's a wonderful person." Mrs. Blaessing, listed as Elizabeth Ann Christian on her birth certificate, was born Oct. 22, 1919, in Asbury Park, N.J. Harding, then a U.S. senator, was 53, married, childless and just one year away from the presidency.

In 1921 Elizabeth Ann was adopted in Chicago by her mother's sister, Elizabeth, and her husband, Scott Willis. They also live in Glendale now.

"I was the most logical one to adopt her," says Mrs. Willis. "I had no children, and that way we could keep her in the family. She thought we were her parents until her mother took her back when she was seven."

Mrs. Blaessing recalls: "My mother told me when I was very young that President Harding was my father. He died in 1923. I don't remember ever seeing him. I believe, though, that my mother sent my photographs of me and my mother quired about me." Mrs. Blaessing says knowledge of who her father was created no problems for her.

DIDN'T TELL. "I had a normal childhood," she says, "but then, I didn't go around telling people about it."

She continued: "I do recall that when she (her mother) spoke of President Harding she always talked of him in glowing terms. Mother wasn't bitter. All through the years she never spoke badly of him. It was all love, adoration and affection. She told me she loved him very much. She still does."

Mrs. Blaessing was married on Sept. 18, 1938, in Chicago. The Blaessings moved to California at the end of World War II and settled in Glendale three and a half years ago. Blaessing is manager of an office building. They have three sons, 17, 13 and 10.

Until Thursday, Mrs. Blaessing says, only her closest friends and a few members of the family have known of her parentage. Even her sons hadn't known.

Texans Gratified With Palace Role

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Texas Republicans appraised today their part in the Republican National Convention.

"Very gratifying," said Sen. John Tower, head of the 56-member delegation. "I believe the result of our work here will be of tremendous help to the Texas Republican party."

A large number of Texas delegates had a hand in convention activities—from the time Mrs. Ike Kampmann, San Antonio, handed a gavel to the temporary chairman until the Texans' tumultuous "viva-ole" cheer after Sen. Barry Goldwater's speech accepting the presidential nomination.

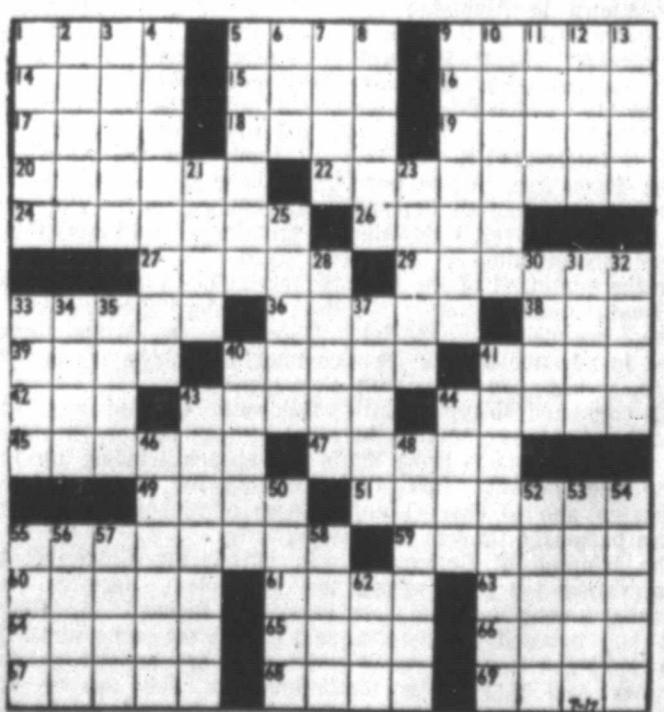

GOP record books may not mention the Texans as originators of the "viva-ole" cheer but it is unlikely that other delegates will forget it. On opening day a strong-lunged Texan shouted "viva" and the rest answered with a shout of "ole," pronounced "o-lay." Day after day convention participation in the cheer increased until the entire hall rocked with the yell Thursday.

The Texans still don't know how the yell started, except that some unknown delegate to a 1962 state convention in El Paso gave it, apparently after an en-

Puzzle of Thursday, July 16, Solved

Nominee Goldwater Still Runs Against Tides Of Easy Ways

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A friend once said of Barry Goldwater: "He does everything the hard way. In baseball he even batted crosshanded."

Politics didn't change Goldwater.

After his election to the Senate in 1952 it didn't take him long to raise the nation's blood pressure.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, said publicly: "Goldwater is the nation's No. 1 political fanatic, labor baiter and peddler of class hatred."

A high ranking military commander once said privately: "Barry Goldwater may be the only man who can lead this nation out of the mess in which it is trapped."

Before he had completed his first Senate term, Goldwater had become the recognized leader of the conservative cause.

SIX FEET

He is 6 feet, weighs an unchanging 185, has curly salt-and-pepper hair, a jutting jaw and an outdoorsman's tan.

He has expensive tastes, as proven by his home atop a hill overlooking Phoenix, equipped with electronic gadgets.

Next to his desk is a VHF radio that provides weather reports. He can press a button and a movie screen rolls down from the ceiling of the study. His lawn-sprinkling system is electronically operated and the sound of a miniature waterfall in his garden is piped over his hi-fi system. One bathroom is papered with snapshots taken by the senator.

How was this man created? The past holds some answers.

His grandfather, Michael Goldwasser, one of 22 children, escaped the horrors of the ghettos and oppressive anti-Semitic laws of his native Konin, Poland, in 1848.

His travels carried him to Paris, to England, to New York, and finally to the gold fields of California. He prospected the streams and the mountains until he opened a saloon, a venture that ultimately resulted in the Goldwater department store empire of Arizona.

Big Mike believed anyone could be a success in the United States if he had guts and a willingness to work.

TUBERCULOSIS

Barry Goldwater's mother came to Arizona from Illinois in 1909 at the age of 25 with a doctor's word still fresh in her mind: She had tuberculosis and only six months to live. At the age of 89, Josephine Goldwater watched her son nominated as Republican presidential candidate Wednesday night.

She often told her son: "Don't enter a race you can't win. If you lose don't tell me about it."

From the time Barry was a toddler, his mother took him with brother Bob and sister Carolyn to the U.S. Indian school some two miles from the old family home in Phoenix. They made the trip daily, in rain, wind or scorching Arizona heat. They went to see the flag ceremonies. Barry would stand at attention as Old Glory slid down the flagpole and hold that position until the last strains of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Barry's uncle Mike, a Democrat and a political conservative, schooled his nephew in the ways of politics. And he told him repeatedly that if a man's belief in an issue was firm and honest, he should stay with it no matter what the odds, nor how heavy the criticism.

From the grandfather, the uncle and mother came the shaping of an Arizona senator.

On an April morning in 1957, Goldwater refused a luncheon invitation from President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Goldwater was putting the final touches on a speech blasting the GOP administration when the President called with the invitation. Goldwater decided it wouldn't be fair to dine with the President, then blast him verbally on the Senate floor.

That day Goldwater said, "It is disillusioning to see the Republican party plunging headlong into the same dismal state experienced by the traditional democratic principles of Jefferson and Jackson during the days of the New Deal and Fair Deal.

"To hear a president tell us, as Mr. Eisenhower told the Washington Conference of the Advertising Council, that we must educate Americans to a need for federal aid to domestic schools, welfare, and health programs astounds me. Mr.

President, every item in the federal budget can, and must, be reduced."

From then, Barry Goldwater traveled his own route, a road of conservatism that steadily attracted new followers.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—For Tennessee Delegate Guilford Dudley, the Republican National Convention came at a high cost. Dudley told police that burglars took $14,000 worth of jewelry from his motel room. Said Dudley: "San Francisco is an expensive town to stay in."

San Francisco Chronicle columnist Herb Caen says that Chester G. Arthur, grandson of the 21st president of the United States, was kicked out of the Cow Palace by guards who believed his ticket was counterfeit. "You can't do this to me," Arthur said. But the guards did.

Now that the Republican convention is over, Mayor John F. Shelley of San Francisco, the Democrat who welcomed the delegates at the beginning of the week, no longer feels so hospitable. Addressing some leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Shelley said that as he watched the convention on television he thought he was "witnessing things I had read from Mein Kampf."

A press aide for Sen. Barry Goldwater says the senator's campaign committee raised more than $1 million in individual contributions since Jan. 1. Fred Mullen, the aide, said several of the contributions were in excess of $1,000, but for the most part they were small donations from some 300,000 individuals averaging about $3 each.

Sen. Barry Goldwater is expected to be back in his Washington office by Monday morning.

He probably will leave San Francisco Saturday for Phoenix and a short rest.

Before accepting the Republican presidential nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater spent two hours at the controls of a rented two-engine plane flying over California, including one pass over the Cow Palace.

His press secretary, Ed Nellor, said Thursday's jaunt was the third this week for the senator, who rented the plane at the San Mateo County Airport.

Ruby Mental Hearing Set

DALLAS (AP)—A hearing on Jack Ruby's mental condition will begin Aug. 6, probably before a six-man jury. Probate Judge F. W. Bartlett Jr. said Thursday.

The probate court hearing was set after attorneys for the 33-year-old condemned slayer presented an affidavit that he is "of unsound mind and mentally incompetent" to conduct his business affairs.

Dr. Sam Case Raises Hopes

DALLAS (AP)—The release of Dr. Sam Sheppard from an Ohio prison has bolstered hopes of Jack Ruby's lawyers.

Clayton Fowler of Dallas and Sol Dann of Detroit, two of the attorneys trying to save Ruby from the electric chair saw a parallel between his trial and the 1954 trial of Dr. Sheppard.

"The same points were involved," Fowler said. "We feel the federal court ruling in the Sheppard case definitely bolsters our position."

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said, however, he believes the ruling in the Sheppard case will have no effect on Ruby's fight for a new trial.

Dr. Sheppard was ordered freed by a judge who termed his conviction on a charge of murdering his wife "a mockery of justice."

Judge Carl A. Weinman said the trial judge should have transferred Dr. Sheppard's trial from the Cleveland area because newspaper accounts of Mrs. Sheppard's slaying and the investigation of it made impossible a fair trial for her husband there.

DEAR ABBY Call For Some Help

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me? I want to be a virgin when I get married, but it's getting harder every day. I shoplift for kicks (have never been caught) and I also smoke and drink when I can get it. People say I look like a tramp, and I guess I do. All this is because my father is trying to run my life. He won't let me out after 6 p.m. unless he knows where I'm going, who with and how long I'll be gone. Even when I tell him the truth, he says I'm lying. I'm sick of being watched like a criminal. I know I'm running with the wrong crowd but they are the only ones who understand me. I am overweight and my mother never lets me forget it. I break everything I touch because I'm so nervous. If you don't tell me where I can get some help soon, so help me, Abby, I'm going to find some high place to jump off of.

WANTS TO DIE AT 15

DEAR WANTS: Show a copy of this confession to your family doctor or pastor. If you can't communicate with your parents, take your misery to a trusted relative. That you recognize your shortcomings and WANT to get help means your struggle is half-won. To "jump" would be meaningless and a tragic waste of life.

DEAR ABBY: I have a son and a daughter. Both have been married many years. Several years ago I made an heirloom quilt. I could never make another one as my eyes are not good enough and there was much close work involved. I have been offered $100 for it many times, but have refused it. My daughter once said she would like to have it for her daughter, who is now a teen-aged girl. This girl is very unappreciative, and has never taken very good care of her things. My son asked me years ago if I would "will" it to him. He has a lovely wife who would take good care of it. I don't want to hurt my daughter's feelings, but I would rather see my son and his wife have it. What should I do?

PONDERING

DEAR PONDERING: Treat yourself to the pleasure of giving it to your son and his lovely wife while you are living.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that when a person is under an anesthetic he talks very plainly and usually says things

Police Boss Vows Probe In Gun Death Of Negro

NEW YORK (AP)—Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy promises a "thorough and impartial investigation" of the fatal shooting of a Negro youth by an off-duty white police lieutenant who said the youth came at him with a knife.

The killing Thursday in a Manhattan street near a public school touched off violence among 300 teen-agers, mostly Negro, and 75 steel-helmeted police.

"Come on, shoot another Nigger," shouted one of several weeping Negro girls.

The crowd taunted police and hurled school books, bottles, cans and stones. Patrolman Edward Seabrook, 35, the only Negro policeman there, was hit on the head by a can and was taken to a hospital.

The police and the crowd surged back and forth in East 78th Street for about an hour before the crowd was broken up.

The dead youth was 15-year-old James Powell, one of three Negroes Police Lt. Thomas Gilligan said he found chasing a building superintendent into an apartment building.

Police said the trouble began when the white building superintendent, cleaning the sidewalk with a hose, sprayed the three Negro youths, who then chased him into his building.

They said the three youths and the superintendent engaged in a heated argument and there reportedly were racial slurs.

Gilligan showed his badge, police said, and ordered the boys to stop banging garbage can lids and move on.

New Probes Of Smoking Hazards Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service has announced three new research projects into how cigarette smoke affects living tissue.

The studies involve areas in which the surgeon general's advisory committee on smoking and health indicated more information was needed. The committee said in a report last January that cigarette smoking was harmful to health.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry said Thursday that the National Cancer Institute had awarded more than $300,000 to support these studies:

TOBACCO

A $107,535 contract to New York University Medical Center to isolate and identify chemicals in tobacco extracts and smoke that may act as indirect cancer agents.

A $103,575 contract to Food and Drug Research Laboratories, New York, to investigate changes taking place in the windpipes of laboratory animals exposed to cigarette smoke.

A $104,446 contract to Hazleton Laboratories, Falls Church, Va., to help evaluate the relation of tobacco smoke, nickel dust and ozonized hydrocarbons to lung cancer in animals.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Space Agency says it is looking into two projects to assist astronauts on the moon: A mobile laboratory and a "lunar hopper" for short flights.

These are among 32 projects being studied for possible use after Apollo spacecraft land the first astronauts on the moon.

Parallel studies of the mobile moon laboratory, or Molab, have been ordered from the Boeing Co., Seattle, and the Bendix Corp., Ann Arbor, Mich., under contracts of $800,000 each.

SHIRTSLEEVES

The Molab would permit the men to work in shirtsleeves and would have an air-locked exit so moon explorers could go out in space suits and gather soil and rock samples. It would be landed on the moon by a modified version of the lunar excursion module, or Lem, a section of the Apollo which will be used to carry two astronauts from the mother ship to the moon surface.

Bell Aerosystems Co., Buffalo, N.Y., has a $199,333 contract to study the lunar hopper. In addition to short flights on the moon it could be used as an emergency vehicle to get back to the Lem if the Molab malfunctions.

Terrorist Trial Ends In Italy

MILAN, Italy (AP)—The trial of 91 persons charged with separatist terrorism in the Alto Adige area — South Tyrol — of northern Italy ended Thursday night with the conviction of 71 and the acquittal of 20.

The eight-month trial followed a summer of violence in 1961 blamed on German-speaking residents of the former Austrian area seeking greater autonomy. Italy won the area after World War I, but an Austrian nationalist movement has continued.

Those convicted were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 3 years to 23 years and 10 months.

KATHRYN (MRS. BING) CROSBY

Keep Svelte Figure During Motherhood

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Drive and determination are the two qualities that have helped Kathryn (Mrs. Bing) Crosby make so many of her dreams come true. When I first met Kathryn, she was a teen-ager struggling with an overweight problem, but now she wears a six or eight size dress and keeps her appetite well under control.

"My figure is better now after having the children than it was before," Kathryn told me. "I had a feast for a doctor," she laughed. "And thanks to his 1,000 calories a day diet, I wore a sheath out of the hospital. He tells all of his clients to bring the tightest dress you have and you'll find it fits if you've been a good girl and followed my instructions." During my pregnancies I managed with two meals a day — breakfast and a nice dinner with Bing—but to keep my mind off food during the day I kept busy. Almost to the end I worked in nurses training. (Kathryn is now a registered nurse.)

Kathryn believes in keeping her body in shape with exercise. She played tournament tennis before she was married, but now has transferred to golf.

"I like the way my muscles feel when I attend dancing class, but when I travel I exercise in my hotel room every day. This is my favorite exercise. If you don't have a lot of time, you can reach so many muscles this way. I do it to a lively count of four."

"Kneel on the floor with back straight and arms relaxed. Sit to the right and flip your knees to the opposite direction. Kneel again. Repeat many times going around in a circle. When you do this properly, your upper thighs, abdomen and your derriere are exercised."

"I have always admired beautiful clothes and when I couldn't afford to buy them, my aunt made them for me. There is a saying 'cheap is cheap' and I feel this applies to your wardrobe. One good dress will outlast so many inferior ones that a well-made dress of classic design is not an extravagance but a wise investment because it lasts so long."

"I think maturity comes with developing spiritual values. From an acceptance that what you get is not always what you want. A good anti-frustration philosophy is always to try to do your best and having a clearly defined idea of your duties and responsibilities. It is such a waste not to accept what you can't change."

Romantic Call Of The Desert

That is part of the reason why bathing beauties next year will cover themselves like sheiks, say designers who created the sandproof wardrobes here. At left is chalk striped Arabian eolite costume by Leo Narducci. A hooded robe with giant sleeves and side slits, center, is by Harbor Road while Don Poland designed the tri-tone striped burnoose with zippered patch pockets. All are made from a wrinkle-shedding fabric blending cotton and rayon.

They Silently Unfold Their Tents—And Wear Them

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The choicest chicks on the beach next year will be looking like sheiks, according to the predictions of sportswear designers here.

This news may surprise and disappoint girl-watchers who have been led to believe that pared down bathing suits were sure to result in some startling revelations in the future.

To be sure, lady sun worshippers are appearing more briefly along the surf than ever before, and will continue to do so. But designers insist that however briefly they appear in the future, they will appear only briefly—and then disappear under a mountain of cloth.

At any rate, several of the 25 designers asked to create some styles for use a year from now (for a fashion show here featuring a wrinkle-shedding fabric made of a new chemical fiber vycron) devoted their talents to tent-like robes into which these nearly bare ladies could retreat.

The sheiks never had it so chic. Just occasionally the robes were slitted down to where the wearer figures prominently. On other occasions she was serenely mysterious in a hood, voluminous sleeves, or legged culottes.

Always she was a bright spot on the desert sands in clashing stripes, clear pastels, or vibrant oranges and yellows.

There are many practical reasons why a bather should take to cover under a tent-like robe, says the prognosticating designers. She can wiggle out of or into her suit under one. She can dry herself. She can protect herself from cooling breezes.

With her robe she can call off the sun's rays when she has had enough. Moreover, her hood will hide her wet hair from the color-thirsty rays of Ole Sol. These are enough reasons to keep any sensible girl under cover.

That's the story, girl-watchers. Sorry.

is the price of personal peace too high?

How much of yourself would you invest in order to have personal happiness? By 'happiness' we mean the ability to face day-to-day conflict with less anxiety and more confidence.

Conflict, small or large, is an inherent part of human life. But the Christian has the spiritual support that others do not have . . . life's difficulties do not stagger him as they do the unbeliever.

The price of peace? Not too high for anyone. The follower of Jesus can tell you that his is a rewarding way of life — the life of truly personal peace.

We invite you, whether or not you are a Christian, to come to our services this Sunday and examine the time-tested, common-sense way to the better life, through the teachings of the Master.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Garment Has Extra Buttons

Dear Heloise:

With nine grandchildren to sew and mend for, buttons are always at a premium.

So now when I make a new garment I sew extra buttons to match the garment on the inside along a seam—and when needed they are there and ready to use.

—Mrs. Fenton Brubaker

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever ironed a freshly laundered blouse or shirt and found an underarm odor is still there?

I keep a bottle of vinegar in my utility room and before washing these items, I tip the bottle lightly under each sleeve of the garment, rub it, and presto, it removes any odor.

Then I wash as usual. I have used this method for many years and have found it will not damage any washable material. —Veta Minderman

Dear Veta:

Vinegar is also excellent when rinsing socks. After washing the socks and rinsing as usual, re-rinse in a basin of water to which has been added about one-third cup of vinegar. I usually let them sit a few minutes, then wring the socks and let them dry.

I do not rinse this vinegar water out. The odor of the vinegar will leave once the socks have dried. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

One of my most helpful household hints is to use hair spray to stop a stocking run or hole—instead of fingernail polish.

The spray washes out nicely when you are ready to mend the run. —Mrs. F. C.

Dear Heloise:

When I repair the cracks in our plaster walls, I mix the plaster with vinegar water instead of plain water. I use half water and half vinegar.

I find that vinegar keeps the plaster from setting quickly; it's soft like putty and I can push it into the cracks and smooth it to perfection. By dipping a paint brush in water and "painting" the repaired place, then using a trowel or spatula, I have a perfect surface.

Most of us who have plaster

Lad That Won U.S. Hearts Becomes Guerrilla Expert

MT. KATAHDIN, Maine (AP) — Twenty-five years ago today a 12-year-old Boy Scout from Rye, N.Y., disappeared near the fog-shrouded summit of Mt. Katahdin.

Nine days later, Donn Fendler stumbled out of the wilderness nearly naked, half starved, scratched, bruised and insect-bitten.

Fendler's stamina and cool-headedness won the nation's praise in 1939.

On that July 17, while hiking with his father, Donald, and twin brother, Ryan, Donn tried a short cut and became lost.

The largest-up to then—search party ever organized in New England spent day after day on the mountain's barren crags. At the end of a week hope was virtually gone. The boy had no food and was thinly clad.

REACHED SHORE
But on July 25, the exhausted Donn reached the shore of the Penobscot River's east branch 35 miles from the mountain. His faint cries were heard by Nelson McMoarn, who canoed across from his sporting camp.

To newsmen, Donn related his story: "When he realized he was lost, I shouted but got no reply. I tried to find north but couldn't. After that it was just a case of going on and looking for any trail or landmark that I might run across."

"I found an old burlap bag hanging to a tree and made myself a sleeping bag. I crawled into it each night and pulled my shirt over my head and in that way was able to have a good sleep."

SAW BEARS

"The nights were so dark and cold. I could hear the queerest noises. I thought a lot about bears. And then one day I saw two. I was scared and I guess they were as scared as I, because when I ran away they ran the other way."

Court Declines Rice Litigation

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has affirmed a lower court ruling that it lacks jurisdiction in a suit filed by S. B. Allen and some Texas rice farmers.

Allen and the other rice farmers charged that the county committee of the State Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) lacked authority to cancel their 1962 farm acreage allotments and marketing quotas.

The federal district court in South Texas ruled it lacked jurisdiction to hear the case. It based its ruling on the grounds that the farmers had not exhausted remedies available under the agricultural adjustment act of 1933.

There were no errors with this ruling, the appeals court said.

Are You One of Those Who Hasn't Visited TSO?

Perhaps you are. Maybe you've thought about TSO, but stopped right there. There are many reasons why you, and most people, should depend on the TSO Doctors of Optometry for professional eye care at reasonable cost. Ask anyone who now wears TSO glasses or contact lenses, about TSO. Or, for that matter, ask someone who has had their eyes examined at TSO and found out they didn't need glasses. We believe that you'll hear comments like this, "Very professional." "Excellent quality in my glasses." "The Doctor was very thorough." "Everybody was courteous." "I was surprised to find out I didn't need glasses." "I was surprised at the reasonable cost."

What we're saying is this. At TSO, you can be certain of a professional eye examination. It includes: a thorough study of the history of your eyes and visual symptoms; an examination of the internal eye for evidence of disease or defect such as glaucoma or cataract; an examination for visual abnormalities such as near or farsightedness, astigmatism or muscle imbalance. By having such an examination on an annual basis, you can help guard against eye disease, eyestrain and poor vision. This certainly should include all members of your family. What about cost? Very reasonable. Should glasses be needed, we can fit fine quality single vision glasses for as low as $14.85. Invisible bifocals for as low as $17.85. Prices include examination, lenses and frame. Micro-Sight contact lenses (incidentally, we've successfully fitted over 40,000 patients to date) are just $65 complete with examination and fittings. Bifocal contact lenses are also available at reasonable cost. Convenient credit at no additional cost. Guard against eye disease, eyestrain and poor vision. VISIT TSO SOON. CAN YOU THINK OF ANY REASON WHY YOU SHOULDN'T?

More Rains Seen In State

By The Associated Press

More scattered thundershowers were predicted for today, after welcome rains fell Thursday in the Panhandle and along the Gulf Coast.

Many spots hit hardest by the summer drought were ignored by the rains. Ranchers were putting out more feed for cattle as their rangelands withered and stock ponds dried up, and most crops except cotton were suffering.

The best rains fell in the eastern Panhandle, with .71 of an inch at Amarillo, .70 at Stratford, .47 at south Dumas, .36 at Borger and .33 at Dumas.

Firemen in Houston said they believed lightning in an electrical storm struck a 60-foot-high movie screen and caused its destruction by fire. Dist. Fire Chief G. E. Kettering said the top of the Hempstead drive-in was on fire when he arrived, during the storm.

The Weather Bureau said the Panhandle and upper coast were due for more thundershowers today and most sections of the state would get some rain through Saturday. No let-up was seen in the wilting temperatures, which reached 108 degrees Thursday at Presidio.

Early morning readings ranged from 83 at Del Rio to 71 at Lufkin.

Teachers' Pay

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Trustees of the San Antonio Independent School District have voted teachers a $50 annual increase plus increment hikes of $10. Salary ranges from bachelor's degree holders will now be $4,600 to $6,550, compared with last year's range of $4,440 to $6,450. The range for teachers with master's degrees will be $4,800 to $7,000.

CHRIST'S UNCHANGEABLE PLAN FOR HIS CHURCH

THE SAME IN DOCTRINE

Christ's unchangeable plan for His church requires and demands unchangeable doctrine. The doctrines taught in the early church were given by God through Christ, the Holy Spirit, and the apostles.

The doctrines were revealed and delivered once for all time (Jude 3). They were not optional. Submission to these doctrines equalled submission to the authority of almighty God. Jesus told His apostles: "He that heareth you heareth me; and he that rejecteth you rejecteth me; and he that rejecteth me rejecteth him that sent me" (Luke 10: 16).

Originally, God's doctrine or teaching was made known through the fathers, through Moses, through the Old Law, and through the prophets. Then in the fullness of time God's doctrine was revealed in its supreme, perfect, and complete form: Jesus Christ. In announcing that Christ was to be God's spokesman upon the earth, the Scriptures give this record: "While he was yet speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold, a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him" (Matthew 17:5).

Jesus knew that he would not be upon the earth forever, and in view of His departure he promised the apostles that they would receive the Holy Spirit, whom he described as a "Comforter" (John 14:16,17). Jesus promised the apostles that the Holy Spirit would be their Teacher, bringing to their remembrance "all things" that should be taught.

The apostles of Christ, through the unerring guidance of the Holy Spirit, continued to reveal the doctrine from God in accordance with the promise of Jesus. The early Christians continued "steadfastly" in the apostles' doctrine and none other inasmuch as they accepted the Lord's teaching that the apostles (and only the apostles) would be guided into "all the truth" (John 16:13).

Doctrines taught by Christ's church in the first century were not to be changed, modified, or revised in any form: "Whosoever goeth onward and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not God" (2 John 9).

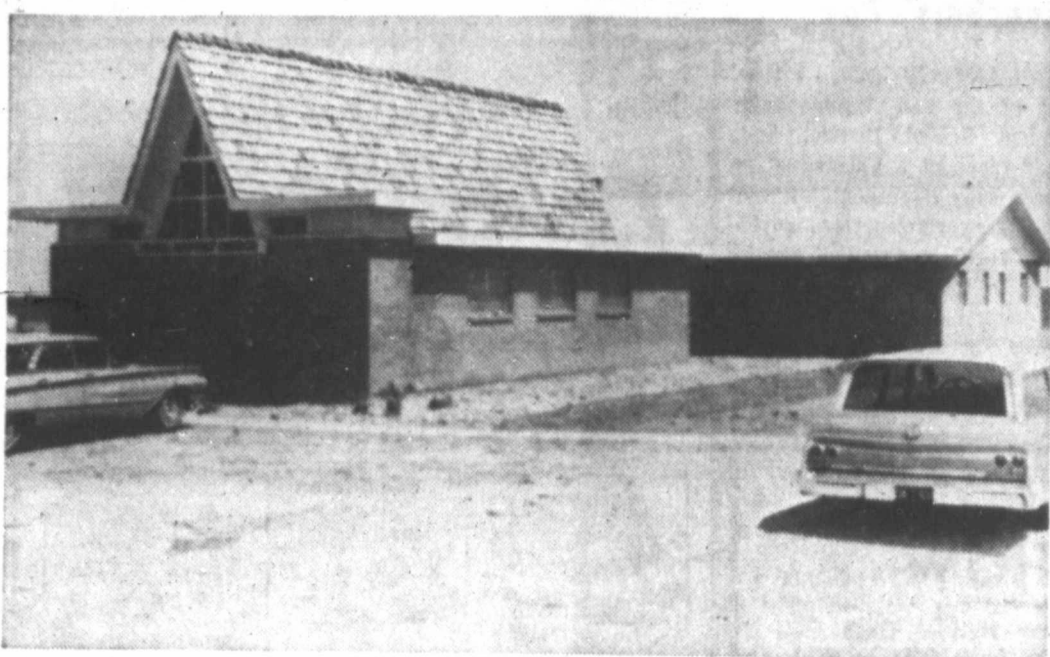

Christ's church today has no choice in the matter of doctrine. The church today must teach the same doctrine taught by Christ's church in the first century.

NEW BETHEL BAPTIST SANCTUARY
Church members will observe homecoming Sunday afternoon

Bethel Baptist Homecoming To Meet In New Sanctuary

The congregation of Bethel Baptist Church in the Gay Hill Community will come together Sunday for a homecoming, and will meet in a new sanctuary.

At the same time the 40th anniversary of the church will be observed, although the anniversary falls on July 31. Nineteen members organized the church July 31, 1924.

The Rev. Horace Whiteside, pastor, said all former members and friends are invited to attend services Sunday. Regular morning services will be at 11 a.m., dinner will be served and a fellowship period observed from 12 to 2 p.m.

Mrs. Hollis Puckett will review the history of the church, and said an interesting program had been arranged for the day.

The Rev. Darrell Robinson, former pastor, will be the speaker for the program, she said. "A special song will be sung by Sheryl Whiteside, daughter of the pastor, and the member coming from the greatest distance, and the oldest member, will be given special recognition."

When the former sanctuary was lost in a fire in 1962 the membership began making plans for a new building. They raised the money for materials, engaged the Faulk architectural firm of Amarillo to design the building, employed men to lay the concrete slab and do finishing work inside, and provided volunteer labor for most of the construction. Rev. Whiteside said everything was paid for as work progressed.

The new pews have not arrived and the baptistry, which will be installed later, is not in, but the Sunday meeting will be held in the sanctuary with chairs used instead of pews.

The contemporary design, with exposed beams of ash finish, provides seating for 100 members without crowding. The church now has approximately that number.

"Our Sunday School attendance has picked up considerably as work on the new building progressed," the pastor said. Evaporative cooling makes the building comfortable during the summer, and forced air heating, through the floor, is used during the winter.

The pulpit, of the same ash finish, will be installed later.

finish and material as the interior of the building, was constructed by a local man. The pulpit and communion table are built as one.

"We hope every member will invite friends and former members to the homecoming," Rev. Whiteside said. "We are trying to get a tent for extra shade for the dinner. It will be laid out in the educational building where the kitchen is handy, and then eaten where the individuals choose."

The Rev. Whiteside and members of the church were busy Wednesday landscaping the area around the new sanctuary. Plants native to the area were being set in a gravel-covered area on the sides and front of the new sanctuary.

Bethany Baptist Has New Pastor

The Rev. William Burleson, recently of Pine Bluff, Ark., is the new pastor of Bethany Baptist Church. He filled the pulpit at 2600 Clanton for the first time last Sunday. He and Mrs. Burleson and four children reside at 4112 Parkway.

Rev. Burleson, who lived at Pine Bluff for 10 years, was pastor of the Baptist Missionary Church there nine years. The Big Spring church is his second pastorate.

He reminds members that services at the church are: Sunday School at 9:45 a.m.; morning worship at 11 a.m.; BTC at 6:30 p.m., and Sunday evening worship at 7:30. Midweek services are held at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday.

Two of the children, Brenda Joyce Burleson, 12, and Billy Wayne Burleson, 9, will be in the Big Spring public schools in September. James Edward, 4, and John Dale Burleson, 2, are the youngest of six children. There are married and have homes of their own.

Rev. Burleson is a member of the Masonic Lodge in Pine Bluff.

"My work has prevented me taking membership in many civic organizations I would have enjoyed," the new pastor said, "but I want to be a part of Big Spring's community life while serving this congregation."

Faith's Challenge

There is something very special about a boy and his dog. The dog so obviously wants nothing more than to devote his life to his small master. He takes his boy on faith . . . and, inevitably, the boy lives up to it.

For faith creates a challenge. If someone believes something good of you, you find yourself eager to measure up to that standard.

God looks for the best in all of us. Regardless of what may have happened yesterday we are, today, welcome in His Church. He has faith in us. Should we have less than faith in Him?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Control Of Salt Pollution

750,000 in a pipeline which roughly parallels the Colorado River, partly because a contracting oil company agreed to take up to 1,000,000 gallons per day of salty water drawn from the normal low flow of the river.

When in 1958 the district expended about $3,600,000 to provide more adequate for peaking demands of cities which grew far faster than estimated, E. V. Spence, general manager, told the board that another major reservoir was imperative to the water security of the area. The original application was filed Aug. 4, 1959, being approved the following year with the understanding that the actual permit would not issue until the CRMWD showed that it could control salt water pollution which would make a lake impracticable in time.

Bans Disposal

In cooperation with other government agencies and private concerns, the district obtained an order banning the disposal of oilfield brines in upper Mitchell and southwestern Scurry counties. This was thought to be the major source of artificial pollution of the normal low flow of the river, which content sometimes was much saltier than sea water.

After 20 to 25 years, a substantial amount of the salt in the soil may be leached out, said Spence, but in the meantime the district plans to intercept the flow with low water structures. Brine will be drawn off and pumped into the pipeline or otherwise disposed of. The structures are so low that flood waters, relatively free of saline or other pollution, will flow over them and down to the new lake. At least two of these will be constructed in Mitchell and Scurry counties, and there could be more. As an additional protection on quality of water in the new lake, a pipe 10-foot in diameter will be put through the base of the dam in order that saltier water, which tends to stratify at the bottom of the lake, may be drained if necessary.

Another major problem encountered during the course of studies was the presence of layers of gypsum and anhydrite (compressed gypsum) at and near the Mitchell County site. To a much lesser degree this was present at the Coke site, and by extending the north flank of the dam and cutting a core trench in the channel, geologists and the engineers, Freese, Nichols and Endress, of Fort Worth, said there would be no danger of leakage. Under prolonged saturation and pressure, gypsum may melt, leaving an underground void where it was. Some reservoirs have thus had their contents mysteriously drain under or around their dams.

Halted Brine

The CRMWD noted in its application that it had been successful in a substantial reduction and the halting of further discharges in the watershed of brine and other wastes which cause pollution in the project area. The application also included an amendment adding recreational use in order that area people might make use of the lake, and also the right to use brackish water intercepted in the normal low flow.

In filing the amended application, the district does not waive any of the rights acquired under the previous presentation and application.

Scouts To Light Campfires On Mountain Rims Saturday

Lone Star District Boy Scouts will light campfires along the north rims of Scenic Mountain and South Mountain Saturday night, joining Scouts across the Object of the unique ceremony, the first such attempted by District Scouts, will be to call public attention to the commemoration of American Heritage Day. The campfire-lighting ceremonies are being repeated by Scouts around the nation and at the National Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa.

The idea of lighting the District Scouts' fires in commemoration of the day on the rims of the mountains was suggested by Joe Pickle.

Four bus-loads of Scouts from the Buffalo Trail Council will join some 50,000 other Scouts in the campfire ceremonies at Valley Forge. The area Scouts left Midland July 6 on the trip to the jamboree.

Some of the local troops will be conducting picnics and wieners roasts Saturday as they gather in the campfire area. The Saturday night ceremonies, according to Frosty Robison, chairman of the district's camping and activities committee. Some 22 area troops have been asked to participate in the program.

An additional campfire ceremony with Cub Scouts participating is planned at the Boy Scout camp grounds south of the city at 7:30 p.m. The program will include Pack 109 and visitors.

"We will sing patriotic songs and have a review of how we came by our freedoms and our liberty," Chuck Condray, Cubmaster, said. "It will be a refreshing talk on the things most of us now take for granted. The American Heritage Day is sponsored by Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge. The campfire-lighting ceremony is the theme for this year's observance of the day by Boy Scouts.

Members of the Lone Star District committee aiding in plans for the program are the Rev. James Puckett, J. C. Pickle, Don Robbins and Sam McComb.

Puppy Match Set Sunday

Local dog owners are urged to attend an unsanctioned "puppy match" at Birdwell Park Sunday, sponsored by the Big Spring Kennel Club.

Judging will begin at 1 p.m. and entries will be accepted until 15 minutes prior to the judging. There will be two classes — puppy sweepstakes and open. The entry fee is $1 per class. AKC pure bred dogs are recognized and acceptable, but papers are not necessary since this is not a sanctioned match. All dogs must be inoculated against distemper.

Invitations have been sent to American Kennel Clubs in several cities including Midland, Odessa, Abilene, San Angelo and Lubbock.

Women members of the Big Spring Kennel Club will serve sandwiches in the park.

Water Works Meeting Tuesday

A meeting of the Permian Basin Water and Sewage Works Association is planned for 6 p.m. Tuesday at Cosden Country Club, with the Big Spring chapter as host.

About 100 persons are expected to attend from some 25 counties in West Texas. Included in the program will be a demonstration of a fire hydrant setting device developed by Fred Overman, city water foreman. Overman has a patent pending on the device.

The organization includes counties from Ward County on the west to Hale County in the South Plains area.

Night's Lodging Becomes Costly

A night's lodging at a local motel turned out to be expensive for a young Odessan. He decided to save money, it seems, by driving away from the motel without paying his bill. He was apprehended in Odessa and brought back.

A charge of defrauding an innkeeper was filed in county court. He pleaded guilty. Judge Lee Porter levied a $25 fine against him, plus $28.55 costs. In addition, he had to pay the $7 he owed for the room. Total cost for one night's lodging—$60.85.

The defendant, identified as P. W. Trammell, 30, elected to dig up the cash and settle the bill rather than get a long parade of free nights in the Howard County jail.

Officer Attends Polygraph School

Officer Bob Broughton, Big Spring Police Department, left this morning for College Station, where he will enroll in a six-week polygraph school. He is the second patrolman on the local police force to be selected for this specialized training in detection. Walter Johnson is a recent graduate of the school. Broughton will be on half-pay while attending the school. He will pay his own tuition plus boarding costs. Tuition is $500, and board will be about $250, he estimated.

Sewage Plant Is Inspected

An inspection of the new city sewage plant was completed Thursday by Jim Tullis, resident inspector for the engineering firm of Forrest and Cotton, Dallas, which designed the plant.

The plant has not yet been formally accepted by the city. The inspection Thursday concerned some electrical problems and equipment not presently functioning properly, according to Public Works Director Ernest Lillard, who accompanied Tullis on the inspection. Also involved in the inspection was C. O. Shifflet, of the Shifflet Brothers contracting firm in Abilene which constructed the plant.

City acceptance of the plant would be only after all final inspections have been completed, according to Lillard. The plant was constructed at a cost of about $750,000. The original deadline for completion of construction was about a year and a half ago, according to Lillard.

Banks Named To TPA Committee

Police Chief Jay Banks was named to the legislative committee of the Texas Police Association today by Bob Miles, president, and chief of police at Austin.

Forrest Keene, chief of police at University Park, is chairman of the legislative committee. Other members, in addition to Banks, are R. R. Howerton, Fort Worth; Glen McLaughlin, Austin; Jim Sawyer and Charles Batchelor, both of Dallas; Marshall Rousseau, Harlingen; C. C. Benson, Dallas; Jess Cariker, Odessa; Roy Stone, Longview; Roy Lay, Corpus Christi; and Willie Bauer, Beaumont.

The committee studies laws affecting police and makes recommendations for new legislation to the association. Banks said the next meeting probably will be held in September.

Fire Truck To Get New Pump

The city has ordered a new pumping unit for a booster truck at the Central Fire Station.

Chief H. V. Crocker estimated the cost at over $600. He said the old unit has been used for about five years on an international truck, which serves as the city-county unit. This truck is sent to all fires outside the city limits, in addition to being used on occasion within the city.

The new pump will have a 200-gallon per minute pumping capacity, Crocker said. It was ordered from the Howe Co., Anderson, Ind.

Judge Studies Probation Case

Whether Ralph Plumlee, 49, of 700 Bell Street, goes to the penitentiary is up to Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court.

The judge, obviously irked at the defendant, told him in court today that "you had one chance—why should I give you a second?" However, the judge then took Plumlee's case under advisement.

Gil Jones, district attorney had filed a motion asking that the court revoke the three year probation sentence granted Plumlee on a conviction for worthless check repeater.

Since being given probation, the district attorney told the court, the defendant had written a large number of worthless checks. They were displayed in the hearing before the court.

Plumlee was recently apprehended in San Antonio and returned here to answer the probation violation complaint.

The judge ordered him back to jail until a decision is reached on his fate.

Bandit Grabs $2,000, Youth

WELLS, Tex. (AP) — A lone armed thief held up the First State Bank of Wells before noon today, took an employee hostage and fled with more than $2,000.

The man, about 24, took a pickup truck loaded with feed and equipped with a baby seat. His hostage was Robert Newland, 20, a bookkeeper.

Vice President R. M. Shumaker said the bandit approached him and asked for the president of the bank. Almost at once, he flashed a revolver and told Shumaker to sack up the money.

He also asked Shumaker who had a car, and the banker said he offered the man his car keys.

The robber chose instead a Chevrolet pickup truck belonging to Jack Stone, a vice president and cashier. Stone went with him to the car, but leaped out and escaped. The robber returned to the bank and took Newland hostage and fled down a farm road.

Shumaker estimated the loss but said his information was incomplete.

Wells is a small Cherokee County town 14 miles northwest of Lufkin.

Pay Study Meet Pends

Arrangements were pending this morning for a called meeting of the city commission at 7:30 p.m. at city hall concerning the proposed pay scale and job classification system for city employees.

The meeting tonight remained in a tentative status this morning.

After its presentation to the commission on July 1, the system has remained in the position of a proposal. No action was taken when it was presented, while the commission awaited comparisons of salary figures it directed City Manager Larry Crow to prepare. Crow forwarded the comparisons to the commission last week and then attempted to arrange a called meeting.

A meeting has been slow in coming due to several commissioners being out of the city on private business, according to Crow. At the regular session Tuesday night, commissioners tentatively agreed on a Friday night meeting.

The study was made by a management consulting firm. The proposed scale was set to attempt to provide pay boosts of 2 1/2 to 7 1/2 per cent for each city employee, according to the report.

Several city department heads expressed disapproval when the report was presented publicly at a commission meeting July 1. Commissioners discussed the report with a representative of the firm and then deferred action, pending further study.

Another Fire At Ice Company

Firemen answered the third call within a week to the Southern Ice and Cold Storage Co., 105 N. Johnson, about 8 p.m. Thursday. Only sawdust and scrap lumber burned. Firemen said the blaze apparently was caused by a welder's torch. The firm was damaged about $50,000 in a fire two years ago.

Thursday, firemen also extinguished a grass fire at First and Birdwell Lane, caused by burning trash, and a car fire at 1401 E. 6th, caused by a leaking carburetor. The grass fire was on a vacant lot. Only wiring was damaged in the car fire. Mrs. Lillard Read is owner of the vehicle.

A U.S. District Court judge granted Sheppard freedom on a habeas corpus motion. But the stay came after Sheppard's release on $10,000 bond.

The Ohio attorney general's office said the legal process probably would take several days. In the move to amend, there presumably would be a hearing, perhaps about the middle of next week, in the U.S. Sixth District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Meanwhile, the 40-year-old osteopath was enjoying what may be a brief respite from prison routine. Thursday night he swam in the motel pool, had meals served in his room and visited with relatives. He was reunited with a fiancée he did not know before entering prison just a few days short of nine years ago for the 1954 budgeon slaying of his wife, Marilyn.

United States marshals declined to pick up Sheppard — who is staying at a plush Columbus motel—without an arrest order.

Judge Lester L. Cecil of the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals declined to issue such an order. Cecil issued a stay order Thursday, about 24 hours after

Nicklaus' Tee Game Helped By House Guest

By JIM BECKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — You can't say that Gary Player isn't earning his keep over at Jack Nicklaus' house — and it's pretty steep keeping.

Player, who is Jack's house guest at the PGA golf tournament this week, paused between efforts to eat Nicklaus out of house and home, and gave his host a hint that straightened out his swing.

That's a little like adding an extra story to the Empire State building, or an extra steak on little Gary's plate.

But Jack says he can use all the help he can get this week. He's trying to defend his PGA championship before the home folk, and grab the last spot in the golf world series.

Meanwhile, Player, known as the South African locust, is setting a grocery bill record. Arnold Palmer is dropping over at night and trouncing Nicklaus at snooker, and baby-faced Bobby Nichols is leading after the first round of the PGA with a record 64.

Nichols' round, achieved with the aid of a $5 putter he found on the back shelf in the pro shop in Anchorage, Ky., was also a record for the revamped 6,851-yard Columbus Country Club course.

Nichols, who comes from Louisville, went to Texas on a football scholarship and wound up playing golf instead, was sharper with his bargain basement putter than Palmer was with the snooker stick.

He finished with a three stroke edge on Nicklaus, who had his best opening round in a major championship all year with a 67. Mike Souckach had 67.

Palmer had a menacing 68, along with five others, including former British Open champion Bob Charles, the New Zealand left-hander, Billy Casper and Don January.

Ben Hogan, the 51-year-old, two-time champion and all-time great had 70, even par, along with Player, and Tony Lema, the new British Open King, had 71. U.S. open champion Ken Venturi was at 72, not out of it but needing to get moving.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how the leaders scored Thursday in the opening round of the 44th PGA championship.

Drillers Down ABC, 8 To 2

Scoring two runs in each inning from the second through the fifth, the Duncan Drillers blasted ABC, 8 to 2, Thursday night in a High Junior League set-to at Teenage Park.

Yogi Anderson, third baseman, led the Duncan attack. He knocked a home run in the fourth with one mate aboard while there were two outs, stepping into the first pitch.

The Drillers shelled two ABC moundsmen for 10 hits. Jesse Zapata, centerfielder, and Roger Stallcup, pitcher, each collected two singles. Lonnie Clendenon, left fielder, and Woody Fowler, second sacker, rapped singles, and Jimmy Johnson, first baseman, slammed a double.

Stallcup issued only four hits to ABC batters. Never giving up the losers put together two of these hits — a single by Thomas, shortstop, and a double by Baker, catcher — in the final frame for one of their two runs.

The other score for ABC came in the top of the second on an error and a single by Mitchell, pitcher — first baseman. ABC scored the first and last runs of the game. In between, it was all Duncan.

Campbell Intends To Stay Active

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Speed demon Donald Campbell once said he would quit racing if he holds both the world auto and sea speed records.

Now that he has them both as the result of his 403.1 mile per hour auto record set Friday, the 43-year-old Briton apparently intends to keep racing.

His target is the speed of 407.4 m.p.h. set last Aug. 5 by American Craig Breedlove in a three-ton, three-wheeled jet-powered car on the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah. This is not an official auto record because of the jet power.

Campbell zoomed his 30-foot, 4,350-horsepower Bluebird to 403.1 m.p.h. twice in two runs over the dry salt bed of Lake Eyre in Southern Australia.

The speed eclipsed the record of 394.196 m.p.h. set by the late John Cobb on the Bonneville Salt Flats on Sept. 16, 1947 in a 2,869-horsepower Ralston Special.

Campbell said the condition of the track would determine when he would make another attempt in his $4 million car. Campbell set his sea record of 260.35 m.p.h. in 1959 with a jet-powered hydroplane.

Racing came naturally to Campbell. His father, the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, established many land and sea records.

Heavy Hum Of Hits Music To W. Alston

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers aren't staging any music appreciation nights for Manager Walter Alston, but he has to be enjoying that steady hum of hits.

The defending world champions, closing the gap on the National League leaders since the All-Star Game, continued their heavy hitting at St. Louis Thursday night by walloping the Cardinals 10-2 behind a 13-hit attack.

Ron Fairly again was the key to the attack, collecting his third homer in two nights plus a pair of singles and driving in four runs while the Dodgers finished the three-game set against the Cardinals with 30 runs and 39 hits.

Since the All-Star break, a period of nine games, the Dodgers have hit at an amazing .393 clip with Fairly showing the way at .412. More important, however, has been the awakening of defending batting champion Tommy Davis, finally starting to hit with regularity.

Davis, who hit .326 last season while winning the batting title for the second straight year, has hammered away at .342 since the All-Star Game and lifted his average to a modest, but respectable .288.

The over-all hitting surge has carried the Dodgers to the .500 level for only the third time this season, cut three games off their deficit and pulled them to within eight games of first place — the closest they've been to the top since June 22.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia and San Francisco again exchanged places in the battle for third place. The Phillies rode three hits by rally — starting Cookie Rojas to a 7-5 victory over Pittsburgh and a lead at four percentage over the Giants, Milwaukee's Hank Fischer stopped San Francisco on four hits, 6-0.

Third place Cincinnati also closed the gap in the tightening race, moving to within 1-3 games of the lead by downing Houston 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs crushed the New York Mets 11-1.

Fairly, who has hit only six homers all season, provided the Dodgers with the only runs they needed by slamming a three-run homer in a four-run, first-inning uprising. He wound up the St. Louis series with six hits and 10 runs batted in.

The victim of the Dodgers' first-inning surge was Ray Sadecki, the Cardinals' big winner who now is 10-7. Joe Moeller won it with Bob Miller's relief help.

The Phillies, winning only their second game in the last eight, scored two runs in the third inning after Rojas started things with a single and came back with three more in the fifth after Rojas smacked a leadoff double. Rojas also collected another single.

The Phillies went against the book in the eighth when Jack Baldschun, working in relief of Art Mahaffey, walked Jerry Lynch intentionally, filling the bases and putting the potential winning run on with two out. Baldschun got out of the jam by striking out Don Clendenon.

The Braves handed the Giants their third straight setback and added to their own streak by posting their eighth victory in the last 10 games and the 14th in 19 games.

Fischer brought his record to 7-5 and contributed to his own support with a two-run double. He didn't need it as Hank Aaron, Joe Torre and Dennis Menke homered off Gaylord Perry.

The Reds scored the clincher in the third inning, breaking a 2-2 tie, and then held off the Colts behind the relief pitching of Bob Purkey and Sam Ellis.

Jackson Is New Tularosa Coach

MONAHANS — Boone Jackson, head junior high coach at Monahans, recently resigned to accept the head coaching position at Tularosa, N. M.

Jackson has been coaching at Monahans for the past three years.

His son, Randy Jackson, a graduate of Monahans High School this past year, has accepted a football scholarship at Henderson Junior College in Athens. Randy lettered as a full-back on the gridiron and was a captain of the Lobo basketball team.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Friday, July 17, 1964 9-A

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Bobby Layne, the local bowling impresario who headquarters in Lubbock, says he'll have his Texas football all-stars stay in the air in their Aug. 1 game with the Pennsylvanians in Hershey, Pa.

That should come as good news to Albert Fierro, the local boy who will share quarterbacking duties on the Texas squad with P. D. Shabay, Graham's all-star, and Gary Roman, who led Corsicana to the Class AAA state crown last fall.

Fierro, Shabay and Roman together passed for 3,759 yards and 27 touchdowns last fall.

Layne reveals he'll use a prototype offense, which means he'll go for the home run or the bomb, if you prefer. Fierro excels at throwing the long ball. Layne will deploy a flanker back in his offense and one of the boys he'll use at that position is Abilene's Rusty Harris, who has given Big Spring fits the past two seasons with his speed.

Fierro is getting in shape for the game by throwing the ball as much as possible, by running each day and through hard physical labor. He's employed by a trucking concern here.

Al and the other Texans are due to gather in Hershey July 22 and begin two-day training sessions the next morning. The Hershey stadium seats 15,000 and the game is due to be a sell-out.

Ronnie Banks, a basketball regular at Big Spring High School last season, is working in a men's clothing store here this summer. He'll probably enroll at Texas Tech this fall.

Itasca (Tack) Dennis, probably the greatest football punter this town ever saw, is now the assistant fire chief for the city of Tulsa, Okla.

Dennis, a member of Big Spring's 1931 football team, had a bout with a malignancy a few years ago. After playing here one year, he performed for Tulsa University but was hamstrung by physical miseries much of his college career.

Dennis led the state in football scoring the only year he played here, beating out Corsicana's Bobby Wilson by seven points. Wilson was later an All-American at SMU.

Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, the well known touring golf pro, is now employed as professional at the swank Dorado Beach Golf Club in Puerto Rico, where he once caddied.

David Parks, the Texas Tech All-American who spent one summer working for Reed Roller Bit, didn't see much action in the recent all-star football game at Buffalo, N.Y., but it is understandable.

The West's offense was installed by John McKay, coach at USC, and Parks divided time at a flanker post with Hal Bedsole, who performed under McKay in Lubbock. Bedsole wound up playing about three-fourths of the time.

Local Legion In Lubbock For 2nd Game Of Series

Big Spring seeks to pull even in the District 19 American Legion baseball series with the Lubbock Red Ceks in Lubbock this evening. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Lubbock won the opening game here Wednesday, 5-2, scoring four unearned runs. Gary Hughes, the winning pitcher fanned 18 batters in the nine-inning struggle.

If a third game is needed to determine the winner, it will be played in Big Spring Saturday evening at 4:30 o'clock. Winner of the series plays Pampa in the playoffs toward the national title.

Bobby Griffin, a youthful left-hander who finished up on the mound for Big Spring Wednesday, will probably start for Chubbey Moser's team tonight Under Legion rules, he can hurl as many as seven innings.

Freddy Mears and Ricky Earle will be available for relief work on a make-him-for Big Spring. Lubbock is likely to start

Barber Slows Yankee Surge In American

By The Associated Press

To Hank Bauer, he might be "the disappointment," but to the New York Yankees he's the nemesis.

He—Sieve Barber — pitched and batted Baltimore back into first place in the American League Thursday night, leading the Orioles to a 6-1 triumph over the New York Yankees.

The victory pushed the Orioles one-half game and two percentage points ahead of the Yankees and further tightened the AL pennant race. Chicago, a 9-3 winner over Boston, stands in third place, only 1 1/2 games from first.

Manager Bauer, recently discussing his Orioles, labeled Barber the disappointment of the team this season. After all, he was 12-7 with a 2.78 earned run average at this time last year whereas he's 5-7 with a 3.95 ERA now.

That, however, is not the Barber the Yankees have seen this season. The 25-year-old left-hander has won only two games in seven starts the past month, but both have been against New York. He has allowed just one run in each contest.

His victory Thursday night came on a four-hitter and snapped the Yankees' six-game winning streak and the Orioles' four-game losing streak. Even more bitter for New York, though, was Barber's two-run homer in the fifth inning.

The hit wiped out a 1-0 Yankee lead and put Baltimore in front to stay.

In other AL games, Washington knocked off Minnesota 7-3 and Cleveland outslugged Kansas City 12-9 in 10 innings.

Barber's homer was his first of the season and fourth of his career. It came on the first pitch from Jim Bouton after the Yankee starter retired two batters following Sam Bowens' lead off double. Bowens later added a pair of singles, driving in a run.

The Yankees got only one hit after the fourth. Tom Tresh's second single in the sixth.

Giants Grab 4-2 Victory

The Giants struck for three runs in the third inning and hung on to flatten the Yanks, 4-2, in a Sophomore Baseball league victory here Thursday night.

A single by Thomas Ham and Tommy Ryan's triple highlighted the Giants' big inning.

Jerry Ryan yielded five hits in notching the mound win. Clayton McKinnon and Gregg Willis had two hits each for the losers.

The Yanks managed their two tallies in the fifth when Ray Meeks and Terry Wooten crossed the plate.

$171,000 IN CHECKS

Young Lad Finds Bank Alert To Hanky-Panky

FARWELL, Tex. (AP)—Bank tellers aren't known for their gullibility and Mrs. Nina Glasscock of the Security State Bank of Farwell is no exception.

Especially when a boy, 9, tries to cash a check for $1,182. When the youngster presented the apparently negotiable check to Mrs. Glasscock, she beckoned Vice President Bob Anderson to her cage.

The executive realized that the check was one of several that he had mailed the day before to an Amarillo bank clearing house.

The boy wouldn't say where he got the check, so Anderson escorted him to the sheriff's office in the Texas Panhandle town.

Sheriff Charles Lovelace also got the silent treatment so he made a search of the boy's pockets. He found a bundle of $140,000 worth of good checks.

The young bank patron admitted that he had gone to the post office Wednesday and reached through the parcel post slot. He came up with an envelope containing $171,000 worth of negotiable checks.

A magnanimous child, he gave $31,000 to playmates and kept the rest.

The sheriff went to the playground and retrieved the checks, which had been discarded in trash cans near the area.

Lovelace said no charges would be preferred.

"He's a real nice boy. He's never given us any trouble," the sheriff said.

South employed guile to win a contract today that could have been defeated as the cards actually lay. Altho his plan does not necessarily win our vote of approval, it points up the importance of psychology as one of the essential tools in declarer's kit.

West led the six of spades against three no trump and the trick was taken in the closed hand by the 10. Declarer could count six club tricks, the spade just won and the ace of diamonds. If the diamond finesse succeeded, his total would be increased to the required nine. There was a risk involved in taking the diamond finesse, however, for, if it lost and West was able to reach his partner with the ace of hearts, a spade lead thru South's king-jack would probably enable West to cash enough tricks to defeat the contract. Of course, if West had the ace of hearts there was nothing to fear, for South's spade holding would then be safe from attack.

Declarer saw a way to give himself an extra chance, however, if the cards were all wrong for him. He decided to use a bit of psychology. At trick two he cashed the ace of clubs from his hand. His next play was the queen of hearts. This was designed to give the appearance that he had a lone ace of clubs and was trying to drive out the ace of hearts in order to create an entry to dummy's long suit.

Perhaps South's methods were a bit blatant, but it was admittedly difficult for East to be sure of what was going on. He could hardly know, for example, that West's opening lead had dislodged declarer's only spade stopper and that that suit was now ready to run. At any rate, East ducked the queen of hearts after some "soul wracking," and South quickly ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Of course, if East had both the ace of hearts and the king of diamonds, then declarer would have exposed himself to an unnecessary risk, since the diamond finesse would have succeeded. In that case, however, we would have had no story to tell.

NALLEY-PICKLE'S NEW ROSEWOOD CHAPEL AND PARKING LOT
Chapel has Arkansas ledgestone trim on plywood and stucco finish

Nalley-Pickle Formally Opens New Chapel Here

Big Spring's new funeral home, which will be finished in time for the opening of the new chapel, will be formally opened at 906 Gregg Saturday and Sunday. The Rosewood Chapel, constructed by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home to seat 350 persons, including a family room for over-

The new chapel of contemporary design has Arkansas ledgestone trim on the exterior, with stucco and plywood walls. The laminated arch beams, 26 feet from floor to ridge, hold-4x6 decking under the shake roof.

Rosewood was chosen for the interior finish throughout, to give the chapel its name.

Gem-etite windows, with cathedral glass, provide a pleasant atmosphere of diffused lighting during the day hours. Pendant type church lighting fixtures, with rheostat control from the organ and choir room, provide necessary interior lighting. The lights may be turned up or down as desired.

A Hammond organ is concealed in a room to the left of the pulpit. A small choir may also be placed in the room. Vinyl cloth-covered windows, of the same color as the interior wall finish, may be opened to show the organist and choir if desired. Organ power is controlled by the minister from the pulpit, with a signal light on the control panel in the room, and is used when the windows are closed to tell the organist when music is desired.

A Rosewood flower bier, from the floor to the ceiling, is at the center front and left of the pulpit. An ash and Rosewood cross, seven feet, eight inches high, is mounted for a shadow effect on the bier panel. It is removable when necessary. Lighting comes from above for a long shadow effect.

Donald G. Bailey, architect, said entrances were arranged for all-weather protection. On the north front a double foyer provides entrance through two doors to keep out cold weather. Entrance from the south is through a single door. Families enter on the north side, directly into the family room. The funeral coach is housed at the rear of the chapel, and the casket may be taken out through concealed double doors in the wall.

All pews have foam-rubber cushions, and aisles are carpeted. The main floor is covered with vinyl asbestos tile. Twenty tons of refrigerated air keep the new chapel comfortable during the summer, and forced air provides perimeter heating in the winter.

Amplifiers may be controlled from the pulpit and the organ room.

The marble and rosewood pulpit is elevated, and carpeted to match the main floor.

Coy Nalley and J. C. Pickle, owners said the new chapel fulfills a long-time desire to provide complete and adequate facilities for funerals in Big Spring and area.

A paved parking area to the north of the new chapel has entrances from three streets to prevent congestion when a large number of cars are in a funeral procession.

The chapel was built by Jones Construction Co., Big Spring.

Stronger Plank On Oil Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats will be implored to include in their 1964 platform stronger language on issues affecting the domestic oil industry than that approved by the Republicans.

More forceful statements by the Democrats will be sought even though officials of the Independent Petroleum Association of America say they are not unhappy at the stand taken by the Republicans.

They said the platform adopted this week by the GOP in San Francisco was "substantially stronger" on matters relating to the domestic oil industry than in the party's 1960 document.

SIMILAR GROUP
William I. Powell, IPAA assistant general counsel, who appeared before the Republican platform committee and who will testify before the similar Democratic committee in Atlantic City next month, said he will urge adoption of provisions to cover such controversial subjects as oil imports, natural gas, percentage depletion allowances and military petroleum purchases.

Powell said he was pleased at the GOP's reference to "returning the consumer to the driver's seat as the chief regulator and chief beneficiary of a free economy, by resisting excessive concentration of power, whether public or private."

"This recognizes," Powell said, "what we have been urging the government to allow—that consumer, through supply and demand, determine the price of gas at the wellhead instead of having the price fixed by the Federal Power Commission at the wellhead."

Powell said the GOP platform statements are not as strong as he suggested. He said he proposed these planks, which he also will urge before the Democratic committee next month:

UNHEALTHY TRENDS
A pledge to seek legislative and administrative actions to reverse "unhealthy trends and to restore the domestic petroleum producing industry to the health and vigor so necessary in the over-all national interest."

Belief that in the national interest the military should divert its petroleum purchases whenever possible to sources within the United States.

Belief that it is in the public interest that Congress act to "relieve the natural gas producing industry from the increasing burdens of federal price controls."

Endorsement of the continuation of statutory percentage depletion and related provisions for the mineral industry.

Helbig Gives Accident Talk

Accident prevention is the moral responsibility of every person, Herb Helbig, county farm agent, told the Big Spring Kiwanis Club Thursday.

If everyone worked to avert mishaps with the realization that accidents are often caused by the carelessness of individuals, the shocking death and injury total from mishaps could be greatly reduced, he declared.

Helbig's address was the Kiwanis Club's observation of National Farm Safety Week which has been proclaimed next week by President Johnson.

Delaine Crawford, farm work committee chairman, was in charge of the program and introduced Helbig.

Helbig cited the many potential accident factors to be found on the farm and warned that the danger on the farm was not greater than the accident potentiality of the average home, business or plant.

He urged his listeners to seek out the obvious accident causes in their homes and on farms to eliminate them.

The club luncheon Thursday was marked by the reward to the Beatles, a ticket selling division of the club which won honors for its members by selling more rodeo barbecue tickets than any of the other divisions. The Beatles ate big steaks Thursday while the other Kiwanians munched on the regular luncheon club fare.

Government Beef Offers Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP)—The meat industry is reducing its offers to sell beef to the government under a purchase program to bolster cattle prices. Prices asked have increased in recent weeks.

The quantity offered the Agriculture Department this week was the lowest of any week except that of June 23 since buying began in March. It totaled 6.7 million pounds, of which 4.3 million were accepted. This brought total purchases since March to 140 million pounds, costing $30 million.

The beef is being donated to needy persons, schools and public institutions.

Expanding Funeral Home Was Launched Here In '38

back in February, 1938, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Nalley opened the Nalley Funeral Home, 611 Runnels, which they operated with the assistance of Bill Thomas.

Twenty-six years later the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home is operated by 11 persons, including the Nalleys and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pickle.

The business has grown consistently since 1938, and the Runnels Street leased location did not provide space for facilities. Nalley purchased the property at 906 Gregg Street and opened his funeral home there, adding one more assistant.

J. C. Pickle joined the Nalleys in 1946, continuing his schooling in Dallas to become a licensed mortician, until 1952. He then left for employment with a San Angelo funeral home until 1956, when he returned to Big Spring to become a partner with Nalley.

The facilities on Gregg Street have been enlarged as needed since acquisition in 1941. The porch and office building were added to the front of the building; the south part added along with the chapel, and then the ambulance and storage section were built. The last addition, long a dream of Nalley, has now been realized in the new Rosewood Chapel which will formally open Saturday.

Another feature launched by Nalley was the organization of the Nalley Burial Association in 1939. The business was converted in June, 1961 to the Nalley-Pickle Insurance Co. It is operated under the State Board of Insurance to provide funeral insurance.

The old chapel, which will seat about 200 persons, including the family room, is to be remodeled for state rooms and offices.

Now operating the funeral home are Mr. and Mrs. Nalley and Mr. and Mrs. Pickle; Ralph Emerson, licensed embalmer with them four years; Gerry Delatour, license embalmer four years; Roger Long, apprentice embalmer, six months; Marvin Cooper, ambulance driver 14 years; Larry Ratliff, ambulance driver six months; Richard Shaughnessy, ambulance driver one year; Bob Read, bookkeeper-accountant five years.

The men working in two shifts have apartments in the building for living quarters while on duty.

The rolling equipment now owned by Nalley-Pickle includes two fully equipped ambulances, two combination hearse-ambulances, and three family sedans. All employees are trained in first aid.

Jury Decides Builder Lying

DALLAS (AP)—Dr. Daniel Gevinson has been found guilty of lying to the Federal Housing Administration.

Federal Judge Sarah T. Hughes said she would pass sentence at a later date. Gevinson's lawyers gave notice of appeal.

Gevinson, a dentist and real estate developer who divides his time between Fort Worth, Miami, Fla., and Washington, D. C., was accused of making the false statements in connection with his development of the $10 million Dallas apartment project called 21 Turtle Creek Square.

Asst. U. S. Attorney B. H. Timmons Jr. said the 48-year-old Gevinson was a "fast talking, wheeler-dealer promoter."

Timmons and defense lawyer Charles Tessmer agreed in final arguments Thursday that the heart of the case lay in whom the jury should believe—Gevinson or Parker Folse Jr., the key government witness.

Gevinson was charged with submitting false subcontracting bids to the FHA so he could get large loans for construction.

'Conservatism' Gets Its Test

The Republican ticket emerges as no great surprise, and credit will have to be given to Senator Goldwater for having won his prize through sheer continuous effort.
The question is, what now? Newspaper columnists by the score, radio and television analysts in hordes now review the effects of the San Francisco convention, the party cleavage created there, and study their crystal balls to see how the Goldwater candidacy will fare against that of Lyndon Johnson.
The most definite thing to be said is something Goldwater has been pointing up all along: That the American people will have a clear choice. Regardless of what the word means, Senator Goldwater is "Mr. Conservative," and he will be up against a ticket that mostly travels the safe side of the road. There wasn't that sharp a choice in 1960, nor in the three or four national elections before that.

Nixon and Eisenhower and Dewey and Wilkie did not wave the same banners as does the Arizona senator. There's a segment of voters—and they have emerged strongly in the South, the Southwest and the West—that were lukewarm as to the positions of his predecessor candidates, but are fervent—some of them fanatical—in their following of Goldwater.
So candidate Goldwater, by all odds, should get the showdown he has asked for. This may be over-simplifying, but conservatism gets its test.

Remedying The Coin Shortage

Congress is seeking to find a way to remedy the shortage of coins. Apparently there are not enough coins circulating to do the necessary money work ordinarily performed by coins in day-by-day buying and selling.
Why the shortage? The answer is in a combination of circumstances. (1) Modern retailing requires more coins, what with so many vending machines, parking meters, retail sales taxes, and scattered shopping centers. (2) There is undoubtedly more hoarding of dimes, quarters, and halves than in a long time because the price of silver has gone up so much in the last three years, and some people no doubt think they can make a gain out of hoarding. (3) The coin-collecting hobby has attained unprecedented popularity, and collectors as well as dealers put away rolls of new coins expecting to profit. (4) The government must assume some of the blame for the shortage.
For years the government has done things to encourage the coin collecting hobby, as well as the stamp collecting hobby, because it was profitable to do so.

Also the government closed down the San Francisco mint in 1955, leaving only the Philadelphia and Denver mints to make needed coins. Finally, why was the Kennedy half-dollar ever struck? The late President's popularity the world over simply made commemorative pieces out of the coins, and millions of people are keeping them in this country and abroad. The two mints have devoted time and effort to making these coins without relieving the coin shortage. It would have been far better to have put Mr. Kennedy's likeness on a five-dollar bill or even on a one-dollar bill.
Congress is now considering a proposal which very probably will be coming. So much blame is being put on coin hoarders that it has been proposed to date all coins 1964 for several years. It is a good guess that there will be a mad scramble to collect and hoard all other dates, really creating a worse shortage of coins.
The answer seems to be to issue a paper half-dollar and expand capacity of mints to turn out coins.

Marquis Childs Wallace's Threat To Goldwater

SAN FRANCISCO—A few days before the embattled Republicans were to meet here Gov. William W. Scranton's poll taker, John Bucci, made a remarkable prediction. On the basis of a nationwide survey putting Sen. Barry Goldwater against President Johnson he predicted that in November Gov. George C. Wallace will get more electoral votes than Goldwater.
BUCCI, it should be said, is a poll taker with an extraordinary record in surveys conducted for members of the Kennedy family; Ray Bliss, Ohio's Republican state chairman, one of the ablest operators in the business; and other shrewd politicians who need to know. It was on the basis of Bucci's survey in January, 1962, that Edward Kennedy, the youngest brother of the late President, decided he could win a Senate seat in Massachusetts despite his youth and the "too many Kennedys" attack.
THEREFORE, his prediction must be taken seriously. And it has become evident since he arrived in San Francisco that Goldwater himself is deeply aware of the Wallace threat.
The Bucci survey shows that Wallace on the ballot as a Presidential candidate will carry Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and possibly two other Southern states. He has an outside chance to carry Maryland while in the May primary with the strong white backlash he got 43 per cent of the vote in the Democratic column.
IF THE SURVEY is borne out Wallace would have—omitting Maryland—in the neighborhood of 55 votes in the electoral college. This would fall far short of his avowed goal of preventing either of the two major candidates from getting a clear majority and thereby throwing the decision into the House of Representatives under the cumbersome machinery by which we choose our Presidents. But the Wallace total would cut deeply into Goldwater's Southern expectations.

shot out from under them. The initial concept, before November 22, was to put together a combination of Southern and Western states in a campaign aimed at John F. Kennedy and the intense hostility generated over civil rights and specifically by the Oxford, Mississippi, "occupation."
Before the assassination this battle plan made a certain amount of sense. In nearly three years in the White House grievances had accumulated and the rancorous quarrel with Congress over the Kennedy legislative program had built up political barriers.
BUT WITH the tragedy of Dallas the scene was completely transformed. A Southerner was in the White House. And while President Johnson is an unwavering advocate of civil rights he has kept his ancient friendships with Southern leaders on Capitol Hill. They would like to be regular Democrats if it is possible and still make sure they will not themselves be decapitated.
So long as Wallace has no more than a burr under the Democratic saddle in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland primaries he could be discounted. But as a Southern candidate for President in the South he stands squarely across Goldwater's path.
CIVIL RIGHTS to one side, Wallace and Goldwater share a deep distrust of the "Eastern establishment" and the power of mass communication concentrated in the East. His fierce resentment of the slights he feels he has suffered comes through in every Wallace talk. This would seem in itself to insure that he will not politely give way to Goldwater in the interest of a clear choice between Republicans and Democrats over the issues paramount in the South.

Billy Graham

I feel like a different person when I am in church on Sunday than when I am at work the rest of the week. Why is this?
There could be a number of reasons. It may be that you only associate Christianity with a building and with the act of public worship. Or, it could be that you look upon the Christian faith as an abstract matter, unrelated to daily life. Again it is possible that Christ has never become real to you in the sense that He is anxious to be our constant companion. There can well be some other reason but let us consider these. Attending church and worshipping God is a vital part of the Christian's life. There we engage in a very important part of our outward witness as believers. Also, we learn to enjoy the fellowship with other Christians which can bring rich blessings.
The writer of the letter to the Hebrew Christians admonished them not to forsake the assembling together for worship. Let me urge you to realize that being a Christian is a very real and practical matter. God is real in a church; He is also real in the office. In fact, if Christianity is something only relevant for Sunday and a church building it has little practical value. To be a Christian means that Christ is real to us all of the time. He lives in the hearts of all believers in the presence of the Holy Spirit.
Dear Dr. Molner: I know of a mother who insists that her 4-year-old son clean his plate. If he doesn't, she gets a strap and she threatens to spank him until he does. That seems brutal to me. What do you think?—MRS. M.D.
It's not only brutal, it's also senseless.
Being hungry is Nature's way of telling us that we ought to eat. Not being hungry is Nature's way of telling us we've had enough.
I have no objection whatever to the common (and common-sense) practice in many families of telling a child to eat his dinner before getting any dessert.
A child (and adults, too, for that matter) need a balance of protein, vegetables, calcium foods (milk being the main one) and fruits, especially citrus fruits or tomatoes or juice, to provide "building" materials for the body, plus vitamins, which regulate certain body processes.
Children don't need sweet stuff, except to provide energy—and if they aren't getting enough energy food, they keep on being hungry. Actually, it

James Marlow Coming Campaign Unique In 20th Century

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Republican party under conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater now begins a presidential campaign that is unique in the 20th century and will be remembered for generations.
The four-day convention that made Goldwater the party's candidate against the Democrats' President Johnson was full because his selection was a foregone conclusion. But the implications are profound.
This 1964 campaign will be vastly different from the kind the Republicans have waged for decades. Previous ones hardly did more than urge restraint on the expansion of federal power and programs.
But Goldwater wants to return to some aspects of the past. In his acceptance speech Thursday night he said "we must and we shall return to the proven ways—not only because they are old but because they are true."
For example: Although Democrats and Republicans agreed in the Employment Act of 1946 that the government has a responsibility for the general welfare, Goldwater has said it must withdraw from social welfare programs.
HE DID NOT necessarily budge from that position Thursday night when he said, "we must assure a society where which, while never abandoning the needy or forsaking the help less, nurtures incentives and opportunities for the creative and the productive."
And, as he has said before, he would diminish both the role

Hal Boyle A Raise For Paul Newman

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Newman, who can earn up to a million dollars in a single movie, got a $7.50-a-week raise on Broadway the other day.
"It brought my take-home pay to $103.50," said Paul, celebrating over a can of beer in his dressing room.
He and his wife, Joanne Woodward, are appearing in a limited engagement in a new comedy by James Costigan, "Banyan Want a Kiss."
THE PLAY was produced by the Actors Studio Theater, and Newman and Miss Woodward took their roles as a gesture of loyalty to the Actors Studio and the part it played in furthering their careers.
"We were fortunate we could take six months out of our lives to do this," said Paul.
The handsome, curly haired actor, who spent three years riding Navy torpedo planes as a radioman in World War II, seems to have taken the place of Clark Gable as a symbol of masculine virility to millions of feminine film goers.
AND PAUL has found that the price of being a Broadway matinee idol is that on matinee days the throng of fans waiting at the stage entrance keeps him a virtual prisoner in the theater until after the evening performance. He doesn't like mob scenes, or being pawed.
Opening his second can of beer, his ration between shows, Newman remarked:
"An actor feeds on the satisfaction that he has given people a creative experience."
PAUL, WHO is built as trimly as a college quarterback, feels that the public unconsciously tends to think his screen roles reflect his own personality.
"Many get the idea I'm humorous, just because I play such intense, hard-driving physical characters. But I'm no Rock of Gibraltar."
"To me life is full of terror. Life is terrifying to anyone who has a conscience."
"But the only way to live is to try to overcome your own fears, by doing what you're afraid of. Anything that frightens you ought to challenge you."

To Your Good Health Don't Force Children To Eat

Dear Dr. Molner: I know of a mother who insists that her 4-year-old son clean his plate. If he doesn't, she gets a strap and she threatens to spank him until he does. That seems brutal to me. What do you think?—MRS. M.D.
It's not only brutal, it's also senseless.
Being hungry is Nature's way of telling us that we ought to eat. Not being hungry is Nature's way of telling us we've had enough.
I have no objection whatever to the common (and common-sense) practice in many families of telling a child to eat his dinner before getting any dessert.
A child (and adults, too, for that matter) need a balance of protein, vegetables, calcium foods (milk being the main one) and fruits, especially citrus fruits or tomatoes or juice, to provide "building" materials for the body, plus vitamins, which regulate certain body processes.
Children don't need sweet stuff, except to provide energy—and if they aren't getting enough energy food, they keep on being hungry. Actually, it doesn't make too much difference, diet-wise, whether they get the energy from starches or from sugar, or from fats.
Sweet foods will kill the appetite. So that's a very good reason for having dessert last instead of first.
But forcing a child to eat a certain amount of food, when he doesn't feel hungry, is senseless. If he's hungry, he'll eat. And trying to force him to swallow food he doesn't want or need, boils down to trying to set yourself up as a better judge than Nature, in deciding how hungry he "ought to be."
Give him suitably balanced meals. Let him eat until he's full. If he experiments with filling up with candy or whatever between meals, and then refuses to eat his dinner, don't use the whip. Just cut off the between meal snacks. And let Nature take its course at dinner. It will. And Nature, having existed for a long, long time, will take care of things.
Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor says I have cysts on my ovaries. Could this be the reason I can't get pregnant?—MRS. J. L.
Yes, it could be.
Dear Dr. Molner: Does smoking cigarettes and drinking beer (not excessively) by a pregnant woman have any ill effects on her or her unborn child?—MRS. J. O. C.
Smoking, in some instances, is thought to have some effect on premature delivery. Beer adds extra calories and might cause excessive gain in weight, which is not desirable. Beer in moderate amounts, and if your weight is not excessive, will not harm the baby.
Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.
Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim Those Moments Of Glory

History is filled to the brim with unsung heroes. They come in all shapes and sizes, from every walk of life and from every race. Sometimes their spur-of-the-moment acts send one's admiration to soaring heights, and sometimes it takes weeks or even years for the impression of their deeds to become fully apparent.
Just grabbing a few instances, how many of you can remember the name of the obscure little man who broke the terrific tension of the 1962 Republican National Convention, when the forces of Robert Taft and Dwight Eisenhower were just short of victory and everyone's temper was worn past the frazzling point?
YOU REMEMBER, near the end of another long, sweltering and tedious roll call of states, the delegate from Puerto Rico, after his chairman had answered "three votes for so-and-so," who grabbed a microphone and spoke up in a thickly Spanish accented voice, "Meester Chairman, I demand a poll of the Puerto Rico delegation." There was a stunned silence. Chairman Joseph Martin, thinking his ears deceived him, asked the man to repeat himself—and he did.
THE CROWD sighed, thought about it, then came back to life. Here was a step-child of the United States, a tiny voice from the tiny island of Puerto Rico demanding a poll of three people. Laughter rolled through the convention hall. Martin gavelled order at last and the clerk polled the three Puerto Rican delegates. "Two votes yea, one vote nay" was the result. The obscure delegate had won his point.
But more important, the entire convention hall stood and cheered this man (I think a reporter described him as five feet, four inches tall) who had stood up and demanded his rights in the strange political arena of Big Brother United States.
and the power of the federal government. He said:
"We Republicans define government's role, where needed, at many levels, preferably the one closest to the people involved: Our towns and cities, then our counties and states, and only then the national government."
"THAT IS the ladder of liberty built by decentralized power. On it also we must have balance between branches of government on every level."
Never once in his speech did he say a word about what he thinks should be done on civil rights for Negroes although, because of his vote last month against the Johnson-sponsored civil rights bill, this will be a major and perhaps blazing issue of the campaign.
It is hard to believe this will not be one of the roughest campaigns in this century—perhaps the toughest.
AT THIS moment it is impossible to know how much appeal masses of voters, or even to liberal Republicans, although it seems clear he will need all the Republican support he can get.
In the past, at least back to 1940, the two parties have looked pretty much like twins, except for semantic hair-splitting on issues that looked more synthetic than real.
Thus for years voters have not been given a clear choice between liberal and highly conservative parties.
They'll get that chance this year.
JFK Memorials
The city of Palermo on Sicily renamed four streets, two squares and 20 local schools after the late President Kennedy.
Comet Antidote
In the early 20th Century a salesman marketed "comet pills," guaranteed to protect against the supposed poisons of Haley's Comet, due in 1910.

David Lawrence Goldwater Rides A New Tide

SAN FRANCISCO—Amateurism lost to professionalism. Inexperience was beaten by inexperience. Maturity triumphed over immaturity.
But even these ways of explaining the victory by Senator Goldwater over his opponents do not tell the whole story. For, as Shakespeare once wrote: "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." Indeed there is a tide running among the American people today which has escaped the eye of many of the pollsters. It has also been underestimated by many wishful thinkers in the press and in the ranks of so-called "liberalism" in America.
THE TIDE cannot just be called "conservatism." It is in the main a protest against the mistakes of those who do not yet see the distinction between true liberalism and radical liberalism or between a government based on a written Constitution and policy-making based on opportunistic interpretations of the Constitution which arbitrarily take away individual rights.
PROTESTS AGAINST such usurpations of power have hitherto been cavalierly brushed aside as "reactionary" or "extremist." But the people are not swayed by slogans or epithets. They are concerned about what affects their lives directly, and they don't like fiscal extravagance in the guise of humanitarianism or centralization of power in the name of "progress."
THE ARIZONA senator is courageous and outspoken. More delegates will go home from the convention with the idea that Mr. Goldwater can win the election in November than held any such belief before coming to San Francisco. For they see the arguments on current issues in terms of the public's reaction, and they sense a protest in the making which could win the election.

Holmes Alexander New Model Republican Party

SAN FRANCISCO — There was a Victorian sentimentality which said that a child brought forth in pain will be loved all the more for the anguish of his arrival — and some of us who have watched this Convention in its labors can believe it.
I am writing before the roll call but as a week's witness to the ordeal of indignation, terror, superstition and hatred which attended the delivery of Republicanism '64.
THE WORDS ARE not too strong to describe the anguish. The hope is not too high to express the fierce affection in which the hard-won victory for conservatism seems certain to be held, once it is won.
The indignant Eastern establishment went into spasms of fury as its candidate, Governor Scranton, held daily press conferences to recite polls and to cite thousands of messages which told of Republican demands for some candidate other than Barry Goldwater, while the delegates remained unbudgeable. The Arizona Senator, his temper barely under control, showed us his honest anger at the abuse he was forced to take from the frustrated rivals, and at the insinuations against his honor that came from delegates who questioned whether he could take and keep the presidential oath of office, if elected.
BUT OUT OF ALL this agonizing, both genuine and feigned, the Grand Old Party was reproducing itself in what must factually be called a new image. Goldwater described it best in his appearance before the platform committee. The States should have responsibilities, given them in the form of taxes to raise and taxes to spend. The free world's implacable enemy, communism, should be recognized as such, treated as such, denounced and defied as such, not aided with trade, not appeased with treaties and diplomatic soft-talk, not ignored as a "myth," not accepted upon its own fraudulent description as a rehabilitated criminal.
THIS SECTION of the Senator's speech, in which he chided his rivals with saying too little about communism and, by inference, too much about rightist extremism, was the keynote of up-to-date in the new party. What is the Cold War all about if not communism, leftism, anti-capitalism and anti-conservatism?
Finally, in that address, he made a "brotherhood" appeal to end discrimination, not by law, but by personal example. On these three counts alone — more State responsibility, more recognition of the enemy, voluntary fraternity among Americans — the Republican party could become a mid-sixty model, new in frankness and clear-sightedness, different from its tired and timid imitation of the Democrats.

Jail Graduation
LOUISVILLE (AP) — Three teachers who spent 72 hours in jail with their students returned later for their graduation exercises.
The ceremony was held at Jefferson County Jail, where 18 prisoners received certificates for completing courses in adult education.
The teachers — Elroy Cartwright, Willis Fischer and Gordon Hoskins — held two-hour classes three times a week, donating their time.
Flunked Out
BENTON, Ky. (AP) — When work started on Kentucky Dam, the Tennessee Valley Authority devised a series of questions to pick the best workmen for the project.
One applicant was thrown for a loss by the very first question: "What does hydrodynamics mean?"
The man thought for awhile then wrote this answer: "It means I don't get no job."

Swapping Chief Asset Of Boy Scouts At Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—long sixth national jamboree that started officially today on the green hills and valleys of historic Valley Forge.

It began when an aerial bomb exploded high in the sky to signal the raising of 1,800 flags as the 52,000 participating scouts and leaders stood at attention.

Joseph A. Brunton Jr., chief of the nation's 5 1/2 million scouts, looked over the city of 30,000 tents and said, "This represents what's good about America."

The trading tents were jammed with hundreds of boys from every state in the nation, and from many of the 44 foreign countries. They sat cross-legged on the grass floor or crowded around wooden tables.

They had cigar boxes, shoe boxes, paper bags, stuffed with neckerchiefs, shoulder patches, lapel patches, stuffed turtles, rattlesnake rattlers, oyster shells, rocks and metal rings.

The scouts have been rolling in here since Tuesday. With them came 60 carloads of baggage.

Everything reached its destination, a spokesman said, except one pair of tweezers.

Maj. John M. Bartlett Leaves For Korean Post

Maj. John M. Bartlett, formerly officer in charge of base operations and plans division at Webb AFB, is being reassigned to Suwan, Korea, as staff operations officer for the Republic of Korea Air Force.

He has been stationed at Webb AFB since September, 1962. His prior assignment was chief of the high altitude launch division and directorate of aerospace, Eglin AFB, Fla. His division at Eglin AFB conducted multiple stage rocket probes with the Honest John, Nike and Crees missiles up to 500 miles. The division also made experimental payloads, magnetometer measurements, ion density tests and escape capsule tests for the B-58 bomber.

During his tour of duty at Webb AFB, Maj. Bartlett attended pilot training school at Randolph AFB and disaster control school at Lowry AFB.

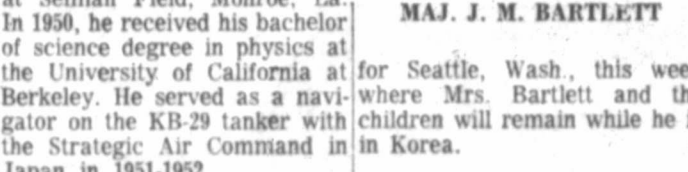

Maj. Bartlett has 17 years military duty. He entered the service in 1945 and was commissioned as a navigator in 1945 at Selman Field, Monroe, La. In 1950, he received his bachelor of science degree in physics at the University of California at Berkeley. He served as a navigator on the KB-29 tanker with the Strategic Air Command in Japan in 1951-1952.

After his return to the U.S. in 1952, he received pilot training at Bryan AFB, Texas. Winning his pilot's wings, he attended gunnery school at Laughlin AFB and Luke AFB, Ariz.

From 1954-1957, he was assigned as a pilot at Langley Field, Va., with the 405th Fighter Bomber Wing. In 1957 he attended the Air Force Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, where he majored in aeronautical engineering. He is a senior pilot.

Maj. Bartlett is married to the former Margaret Horvath, Pittsburgh, Pa., and they have three children: Peter, 11; Daniel, 8; and Laurie, 7.

He will leave with his family for Seattle, Wash., this week where Mrs. Bartlett and the children will remain while he is in Korea.

Texas Fair Show Broke

NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas Pavilion at the World's Fair has filed a bankruptcy petition in federal court.

Operators blamed the small crowds at its stage show, "From Broadway With Love," and its location in the entertainment section.

The petition, filed Thursday by Wynne-Compass Fair, Inc., listed assets at $4,887,515 and liabilities at $8,170,179. The company sought to continue operating while arranging to pay its debts.

The musical show received good notices, but drew small audiences. Other pavilions in the entertainment section of the fairgrounds also have complained that the area is not handy to reach.

Old Salt Works Plagues Albany

ALBANY, Tex. (AP) — A salt works which served soldiers of the Civil War has become a major headache to Albany residents.

Leakage from the old Ledbetter saltworks is entering Lake McCarty, from which Albany gets its water.

City Mgr. Liston Todd said evaporation during the current dry spell has also increased salinity of the lake.

"We're really hurting for fresh water — rain," he said.
