Parade This Morning To Launch Varied Mexican Fiesta Events

THE CELEBRATION of Mexican heritage continues in Lubbock today at 10 a.m. with the 1979 Mexican Fiesta parade.

About 60 float entries, along with Ronald McDonald and Lubbock dignitaries, will gather at Fair Park to begin the parade, which will proceed along Broadway to the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The top three entries in non-profit, commercial, military and band categories will receive trophies. All parade participants will receive fiesta ribbons.

Activities will continue from noon to midnight today at the Civic Center where about 75 food and game booths are set up. At 1 p.m. the Lubbock Folklorica Ballet will perform in the center's Exhibition Hall.

Classical guitar, disco and aerobic dancing will begin at 5 p.m. The Guadalupe Dancers and the Matachines, who perform Indian rituals, will perform at 7 p.m., along with Almeta Speakers, who has won three Emmy awards for her singing and piano talents on her own public television program in California.

In the Banquet Hall, Jimmy Edwards will perform from 7 to 10 p.m., followed by Lorenzo Sedeno will give his address, "Cry for Independence," at 11 p.m.

The three-day event will conclude Sunday. At 2 p.m. in the Exhibit Hall activities will include Plainview's Folklorica Dancers, the Guadalupe Dancers from Lubbock and the Matachines. A free public dance will be held at 8 p.m.

Another dance will be held from 3 to 10 p.m. in the Banquet Hall with music furnished by the Tequila Band.

Raul Sanchez, treasurer of the Fiesta Committee, said most activities in the Exhibit Hall are free, but fees will be charged for events in the Banquet Hall.

Contract Agreement Averts Auto Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. reached tentative agreement on a new contract Friday night, both sides announced, paving the way for a settlement without a strike for the first time in 15 years.

The agreement came about 2½ hours before a strike deadline that would have idled about 95,350 GM workers, and followed a round-the-clock bargaining session that began about 27 hours earlier.

The new contract covers 780,000 Big Three autoworkers, 460,000 of them at GM. The union had threatened to strike 46 of GM's 130 installations, including plants making the No. 1 automaker's most popular cars.

"Substantial Increases"

GM said the new three-year agreement provided "substantial increases" in wages, improved pensions, and more time off. Both the union and GM said they would withhold details of the wage and time off provisions until Tuesday.

GM Vice President George B. Morris Jr., the chief negotiation, said of the settlement: "The country needed a shot of confidence. I don't know if this is of that magnitude, but in our own little way it should serve to encourage people."

The UAW said the union's General Motors Council — officers of the 151 GM locals — would review the tentative agreement Tuesday and local unions would schedule ratification votes after Sept. 22.

Both Hail Settlement

The union statement said: "It is an excellent settlement," adding the agreement will provide protection of pensions against inflation, the key issue in the talks since bargaining began July 16.

GM said, "The fact that a settlement was reached without a strike is a credit to both parties and averts a situation which could have had a serious impact on our employees, the corporation and the national economy."

At a briefing, the UAW said the pension provisions of the contract call for two pension increases in the first year of the pact, and increases three times annually in the second and third years.

A worker who will reture in the next year under the industry's "30 and out" option would have received $700 a month under the old contract until Social Security began at age 62. Under the new contract, the worker would receive $800 a month after ratification, and as much as $915 monthly in the final year of the pact.

The final figure represents an increase of 31 percent or 9.3 percent per year over the old pension benefits.

For a worker who retired in 1974, at age 65, now receiving $390 a month, the pension payments would rise to $498.50 monthly, an increase of 28 percent or 8.5 percent a year during the contract's three years.

Details of the wage and time off provisions were not made public. But UAW President Douglas A. Fraser indicated the union had been unable to achieve any improvement in the traditional wage increase formula in effect during previous contracts.

Of the time off, Fraser said only that it was more than 19 company-scheduled days over the life of the contract. Autoworkers got 12 such scheduled days off in the last three years.

Fraser said he did not know if the settlement was within the Carter administration's wage and benefit guidelines, saying: "If I did, I wouldn't tell you."

Morris, too, said he did not know if the contract would violate the guidelines, saying, "that's not my problem,

Grand Jury Returns Lesser Indictment In Student Slaying

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ONE LUBBOCK man's succesful appeal against the death penalty in 1978 ironically may have saved another Lubbockite from being indicted Friday on a capital murder charge.

A 1978 appeals court decision, based on an earlier Lubbock County case, saved the alleged slayer of a Texas Tech graduate student from being indicted by a Lubbock County grand jury on a capital murder charge carrying a potential death sentence.

The grand jury instead indicted Maurice Eugene Dancy, 19, for the lesser charge of murder in the beating death of Claude Ventry Bridges last month.

Dancy, 19, was arrested Aug. 22 after the 31-year-old Bridges was found dead in his 2824 23rd St. home two days earlier.

Dancy, who lived only a block from Bridges at 2826 24th St., was charged with murder, but Criminal District Attorney John Montford said the possibility of a capital murder indictment would be presented to the grand jury because Dancy allegedly killed Bridges while burglarizing the university student's home.

Police said it appeared that Bridges had been asleep when awakened by the burglar.

However, last year's ruling by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in a case with similar facts resulted in the higher court ordering a retrial for a man convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death.

That March 1, 1978, ruling was based on a Lubbock County jury's decision to convict Don Louie Warren of capital murder and sentence him to death in connection with the slaying of Victor Wayne Tucker.

Warren, who was 25 at the time, confessed at his trial that he shot Tucker during a burglary on Jan. 3, 1975.

"The facts of the (Warren) case reflect a criminal act of violence, but it was not a calculated act ..." the opinion by presiding Judge John Onion said.

The state's highest criminal court also noted that Warren did not have a past criminal record sufficient to warrant the death penalty, and courthouse officials said the same situation is true in Dancy's case.

Warren was retried on a murder charge in early February this year and was assessed a 55-year prison term. It was one of the first major criminal cases tried by Montford's office, with the district attorney leading the prosecution's case.

Dancy also was indicted by the grand jury on a separate burglary charge, involving a break-in at another home in Bridges's neighborhood the day before the doctoral student's body was discovered by one of his professors.

Aid Vowed To Hurricane Area

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The stunned communities of the Gulf Coast got a little encouragement from the White House on Friday but it will be a long time before life returns to normal in the 100-mile-wide swath of wreckage left by Hurricane Frederic.

President Carter helicoptered over the coastal regions of Mississippi, Alabama and Florida and promised government help "with the taxpayers' money."

But no early relief was in sight for the homeless and tens of thousands of others without electricity. Food was scarce, and the death toll from the storm that tore through here early Thursday rose to at least eight, with two others missing and presumed dead.

Damage was expected to soar into the hundreds of millions of dollars, but officials still were not making estimates.

In the port city of Mobile, where authorities had imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew, at least 64 people were arrested for looting overnight as National Guardsmen reinforced local police who had orders to "shoot to kill" if necessary.

There also were reports of scattered looting in severely-damaged Pascagoula, Miss., and the governor warned, "The first person we find looting, I want that person placed under the jail and never let out."

Another 36 were arrested for violating the curfew, said Mobile police Sgt. R.D. Roy. "Most of these were running the streets," he said.

More than 50 juveniles and 14 adults were arrested on looting charges, mostly for stealing television sets, clothes, beer and soft drinks. Dozens of other looters eluded police on the blackened streets, Roy said.

The number of storm-related deaths rose to eight late Thursday when an explosion killed two people in the picturesque fishing village of Bayou La Batre, southwest of Mobile. Police said they apparently were trying to use kerosene to light a fire for light or cooking purposes in a storm-wrecked house.

Carter flew into the Mobile airport at midmorning aboard Air Force One and was joined by Alabama Gov. Fob James, Florida Gov. Bob Graham and Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch for an aerial inspection. A convoy of three helicopters took them aloft.

"We are in it together," Carter said after landing at Mobile's Bates field. "The whole nation cares."

Carter said an estimated 500,000 people were evacuated in a four-state coastal region. He said mobile homes were being brought in to shelter the homeless temporarily.

The president, who cut red tape earlier to make immediate aid available to 30 coastal counties, praised the governors for the successful evacuations, saying their "quick action" prevented extensive loss of life.

Meanwhile, Frederic — now labeled a tropical depression — whirled into the Great Lakes region, still delivering torrential rains and some tornadoes over a widespread region.

Power remained a major problem in the Mobile area. Power outages caused by falling lines and flattened transmission towers caused food spoilage, made gasoline pumps inoperable and aggravated police efforts to control looting.

Alabama Power Co. spokesman Bruce Gilliland said 175,000 customers remained without power Friday afternoon — 95,000 in the Mobile area. Power had been restored to more than 125,000 persons, he said. About 107,000 telephone customers were without service in the area.

Power company spokesman Neal Wade said it would take "several weeks" to restore full service, calling the storm the "worst natural disaster we've ever faced."

In Pascagoula, a shipbuilding city of 47,000 about 30 miles to the west, the situation was much the same. About 60,000 customers of Mississippi Power Company were without power in the county and officials said it may be up to 10 days before it is restored.

Lines at the local ice plant stretched four to five blocks long Friday, with customers rationed to 50 pounds each. The water was turned back on Friday, but Pascagoula officials asked residents to avoid bathing and unnecessary flushing of toilets.

Ronnie Delmas, 42, a descendant of the early French settlers of Pascagoula, returned home late Thursday and was

Help Of Minorities Sought By Montford

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CRIMINAL District Attorney John Montford agreed Friday to meet with church leaders representing Lubbock's Mexican-American and black communities to encourage minority support in the prosecution of cases.

The suggestion to meet with the church leaders came from the Human Relations Commission during a meeting Friday with Montford in attendance. Montford asked for help in persuading minority residents to offer information about criminal acts the might witness to enable his office to prosecute more effectively.

Montford said he came to the HRC previously with the problem of a lack of cooperation from witnesses and added, "I see no improvement."

He said he has seen police offense reports where there "were over 30 people" present at the scene of a homicide and "each one was in the restroom."

Montford said if he prosecutes criminals of all races with equal vigor heexpects cooperation from all citizens in assisting in the prosecution.

He said that in order to secure witnesses he can place them under material witness bonds, but said, "That hardly seems fair." He said that action would place an "onerous economic burden" on most people because they could not afford such a bond. "I don't think that's the solution," said Montford.

The district attorney said he thought many witnesses do not volunteer information because of fear of retaliation by the person or family of the person being prosecuted. He noted that retaliation charges and charges of interference with prosecution can be filed against those who threaten witnesses.

Several members of the HRC said they thought minorities were reluctant to volunteer information about crimes because minorities believe that district attorney prosecution is chiefly aimed at blacks and Mexican-Americans.

Members said they believe the media generally publicizes only crimes committed by minorites and district attorney action directed against minorities. Commission member Gilbert Flores said media reports "give the impression we (minorities) are being used as an example to

Nixon Resumes Trip To China

HONOLULU (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon left Hawaii for Hong Kong by commercial jet Friday after a two-day rest stop on his way to China.

Nixon plans to go on to Peking, where he will meet with Chinese leaders during a 10-day visit.

The former president spent most of his time on the island of Kauai, where he was a guest of Althalie Clarke at her estate.

The Nixon party went sightseeing Thursday at Kauai's Waimea Canyon and Kalalau Lookout. There, up to 100 Japanese and American tourists flocked around the former president, asking to be photographed with him.

Cool, Damp Weather Invades West Texas

SOUTH PLAINS residents will wake to cloudy skies and intermittent rain this morning, but conditions should clear somewhat by kickoff time at Jones Stadium.

The season's first chilly spell, which blew in this weekend, should put a nip in the air as the Red Raiders battle the University of New Mexico Lobos.

Temperatures will fall into the mid-60s by the end of the game, according to the National Weather Service.

Today's highest temperature is expected to be near 70, but the mercury will plunge into the lower 50s tonight. A 20 percent chance of rain exists today in the Lubbock area.

Northerly winds swept cooler air into Texas Friday and touched off thundershowers in the Panhandle and portions of the South Plains. Lubbock received only trace amounts of moisture.

At noon Friday, temperature ranges across the western half of the state showed a difference of 32 degrees. Those readings included 48 at Amarillo, 60 in Lubbock and 80 in El Paso.

An upper air disturbance helped produce widespread cloudiness and scattered showers across the Texas Panhandle-South Plains region and into much of eastern New Mexico.

Forecasters say the high pressure system will remain in the area through Sunday. Generally fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail throughout the weekend.

Although the South Plains may receive some scattered showers this morning, the amounts are expected to be less than a quarter-inch in most cases.

The area forecast calls for winds to be southeasterly at 5-10 mph today and light and variable through Sunday.

The remainder of the state will see fair to partly cloudy skies with cool nights and warm afternoons through Sunday.

Elsewhere in the nation, shower activity today will extend from Florida across eastern Georgia and into the eastern Carolinas.

A cold front is expected today in Michigan and Minnesota, but temperatures in the 100s can be expected in the desert Southwest.

Indigent Care Discussion Sparks Controversy

The possibility that Lubbock could apply for federal funds to provide health care for the city's medically indigent sparked controversy among Board of Health members at Friday's meeting.

Stressing her own neutrality, Health Department Director Dr. Marjorie Orr described a Health, Education and Welfare grant which would provide preventive and early illness care for persons who could afford to buy food, clothing and shelter, but little else.

"We get calls at the Health Department all the time, and there's nothing we can do about them," said Dr. orr, noting a person must require hospitalization before he or she qualifies for medical aid in Lubbock County.

Dr. Orr acknowledged private clinics in the city, such as the First Baptist Church's Sick Baby Clinic and the Presbyterian Clinic "do a great job, but there is much more to be done," in treating sick poor people.

She cited the example of an east Dallas clinic funded by the grant, which has been able to reduce the teenage pregnancy rate in the area, in addition to treatin pre-emergency illness.

The government money, which would be awarded on a population/need basis, could be used for staff, laboratories, in-home health serivces, rent, and remodeling of existing buildings, Dr. Orr said.

She said she believed Lubbock would qualify for the yet-undetermined funds on the basis of high infant mortality rates in east Lubbock and the Arnett-Benson area.

"I hope this would be our last resort," commented Board President Dr. Ray Santos, calling the idea of using federal money a step on the road to nationalized health insurance.

Currently the only federal funds included in the Health Department budget are processed through the state, according to Dr. Orr.

Santos continued, "private physicians in Lubbock have always taken care of the indigent without regard to race, color or creed."

Board member Sellie Shine disagreed saying "give me a list of doctors who will treat the indigent!" She also said she believes such a grant would prove cost effective to Lubbock, "if we can treat people before they become a medical emergency."

No action was taken on the "touchy subject" during the meeting, but Santos said the board would present the idea of a federal grant to the county medical society and the Texas Tech School of Medicine "because we would need their cooperation in the matter."

In other business, Dr. Orr told the board she will make an application to the Department of Human Resources to provide services for patients covered under HEW's Title XIX and and XX guidelines.

"This is one way we can do more without costing the local taxpayers more," she said.

Dr. Orr also reported a joint contract between the city and state health departments for improved child health has moved a step closer to final approval.

The contract, which would provide Lubbock County with some $100,000 per year over the next five years "hopefully will be placed on the city council adgenda for approval." Dr. Orr said she anticipates funding for the project to begin Nov. 1.

The money will be used for county outreach facilities, newborn and family planning services.

"With these funds we will have the staff to follow up on our maternity clinic patients after they deliver," said Dr. Orr.

She cited statistics which indicate post natal home visits to maternity clinic patients have significantly decreased infant mortality in Lubbock in the past.

City Attorney Don Vandiver was present to report little progress has been made in Lubbock's legal dispute with the state health department regarding enforcement of the city health ordinance.

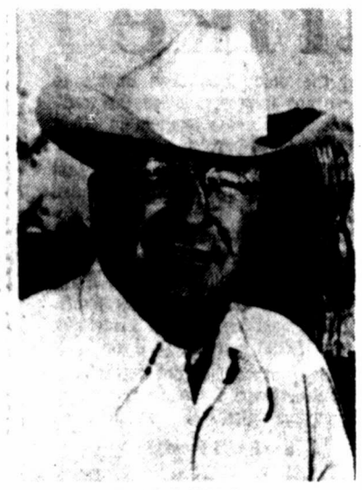

"Our last letter was from Hal Nelson (of TDH's legal division) August 30, saying he wanted to schedule a meeting with us sometime in the next two weeks," said Vandiver.

More conclusively he reported in response to a query by Dr. Orr, that the emergency measure passed by city council Thursday, would go into effect immediately. The measure includes food processing businesses with those currently under health department jurisdiction.

ELMER KELTON

Western Writer Sets Speaking Date At LCC

Elmer Kelton, a Western novelist from San Angelo, will speak on the Lubbock Christian College campus at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Kelton, born on the Scharbauer Cattle Company Five Wells Ranch in Andrews County in 1926, will speak about his novels to Dr. Aubrey Green's Honors Seminar in Southwestern Culture.

The general public is invited at no cost to attend the two-hour seminar to be held in the Sue Stevens Reading Room of the Betty Hancock Campus Center.

Kelton spent his boyhood on the McElroy Ranch in Crane and Upton counties,where his father was foreman and eventually manager over a 36-year period.

After serving as an infantryman in Europe during World War II, Kelton received a B.A. degree in journalism from the University of Texas. He has served as associate editor of West Texas Livestock Weekly in San Angelo since 1968.

Previously, he spent 15 years as agriculture writer and editor for the San Angelo Standard Times. He began his agriculture journalism career in 1948, the same year his first fiction story was published.

He has kept both careers in parallel since that time. He was president of the Western Writers of America in 1962-63 and was a director of that organization for five years.

The latest of his 25 novels, The Good Old Boys, was published by Doubleday in 1978 and also appeared in condensed form in Reader's Digest Condensed Books.

The Wolf and the Buffalo has been accepted by Doubleday for publication in 1980.

Three Kelton novels have won the Western Writers of America Spur Award. They are Buffalo Wagons, Ballantine Books, 1957; The Day the Cowboys Quit, Doubleday, 1971; and The Time it Never Rained, Doubleday, 1974.

Kelton is the only novelist to win the Western Heritage Award from the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City twice. The Time it Never Rained and The Good Old Boys each won the award.

Kelton's appearance on the LCC campus is made possible by the Center for Business and Economic Education.

GAO Says U.S. Oil Squeeze, Import Cutoff Produced Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusual drop in U.S. oil production last winter about the time imports from Iran were cut off helped trigger last spring's U.S. crude oil shortage, congressional investigators contend.

In a report to Congress, the General Accounting Office said the major oil companies didn't create the shortage, but may have aggravated it.

The GAO, an investigatory branch of Congress, said U.S. domestic oil production unaccountably fell last winter — from 8.83 million barrels daily in October 1978 to 8.46 million in January.

This decline in domestic production, together with the three-month cutoff lines of last spring and early summer and tight supplies of diesel fuel and home heating oil.

This drop in U.S. production decreased supplies by an average of 200,000 barrels a day below what normally would be expected, the GAO said in the report issued Thursday. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

The agency said the Iranian shutdown and other events caused an overall reduction of 600,000 to 700,000 barrels a day in U.S. crude supplies from the average daily supply in 1978.

An independent investigation by The Associated Press earlier this summer found similar evidence of a surprising drop in domestic production during the time of the Iranian oil shutdown.

The GAO said it was puzzled by the U.S. production drop, which it said came at the worst possible time — when additional production was badly needed to offset the loss of Iranian supplies.

"Although production normally falls during this period because winter weather hampers oil field operations, this year's decline appears unusually large," the GAO said.

It said oil companies attributed the decline to bad weather and operational problems in oil fields.

"Although GAO agrees that these were factors, it believes that by no means do they fully explain the large nationwide drop in production," the report said.

Spokesmen for both the American Petroleum Institute and the Department of Energy said Friday they were reviewing the report and would issue their reaction later in the day.

Jim Bishop, Energy Department spokesman, said the department had given a somewhat detailed response to the GAO itself, "but they didn't use it" in the report.

The Energy Department was blamed by the study for failing to cope adequately with the Iranian shortage or even being prepared for another similar supply disruption.

Senator Proposes Boosting Gasoline Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., Friday proposed boosting the federal gasoline tax by 50 cents a gallon over four years to force energy conservation.

Johnston, a key member of the Senate Energy Committee, proposed rebating the tax revenues directly to the states, which he said could then reduce their sales, property and income taxes.

"Thus, while Americans will pay more at the pump they'll pay less at corner stores and lunch counters," he said in a floor speech outlining his proposal.

The Louisiana Democrat conceded his plan "may not be palatable to Congress or to the American people."

Under his proposal, the current 4-cent-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline and diesel would rise by 10 cents on Jan. 1, 1980, and increase an additional dime a gallon until it reaches 54 cents on Jan. 1, 1984.

Time To 'Cut Bait' Can Wait

CAPITOL HILL ought to be renamed Cravenheart Crest in recognition of congressional proclivity for grabbing the shears whenever fish-or-cut-bait time arrives on the tough ones.

They're at it again, this time over the great balance the budget issue which prompted so much repentent rhetoric a few months ago when the sting of the 1978 elections was still sharp and calls for a constitutional amendment still clarion.

By the end of this month, both the House and the Senate must decide whether to stand by their previous resolve to achieve a balanced budget within the next two years or abandon the effort in favor of that comfortable old political shoe, deficits-as-usual.

SEN. EDMUND Muskie, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, is waging a commendable if lonely battle to drain some of the red ink from the federal budget in FY 80, which begins Oct. 1, rather than adding to it.

Muskie pressure to pare by $4 billion various spending proposals already approved in order to keep the 1980 deficit below this year's $29.9 billion has met with, shall we say, vigorous opposition.

In both the House and Senate, the spending committees are coming up with all sorts of excuses about the rigidity of the budget resolution, the change in economic circumstances and the worthiness of the projects they so cheerfully approved.

WHAT IT ALL boils down to, of course, is simple political cowardice. Spending money is easy, a fine way to win friends and influence votes.

But cutting the budget takes guts, oops, intestinal fortitude, and a willingness to offend the beneficiaries of particular federal programs that are put to the knife.

Since the political heat for a balanced budget has subsided temporarily, Congress apparently figures no one will care if the federal deficit once again starts climbing.

"What's $4 billion here or there?" one House staffer asked rhetorically. "No matter what we do, the deficit will go up because of inflation...So why pick fights?"

WHY, INDEED? Even Muskie and his Budget Committee colleagues concede that a recession could drive the deficit above the $23 billion Congress projected last spring.

But $28 billion is still less than this year's deficit, and it is a movement in the right direction. The deficit has been shrinking, little by little, every year since FY 1976 and a deliberate decision to reverse that trend surely ought not be made.

Congress took heed of American sentiment that federal deficits are a prime cause of inflation in adopting its first (non-binding) FY 80 budget. But now that the deadline is here for the second, and binding, version, all of a sudden nobody wants to play Scrooge.

AN EDITORIAL:

Draft Gives House Cold Feet

CONGRESS BLUNDERED its way to another potentially dangerous decision when the House of Representatives rejected an attempt to put the machinery for a military draft back into place.

The measure would have required all draft-age men to register beginning Jan. 2, 1981. Speaking for President Carter, an administration opponent said "It is not necessary to impose this burden on our nation and its youth."

Remember, he was talking about just registering for the draft, not actually being drafted.

PACIFIST CARTER, on the same day the draft issue was being defeated, tripled—to $2.4 billion—the amount of money he wants to give people to help pay their utility bills.

This short-changing of national security while pouring unending billions of dollars into welfare programs has characterized administration and Congressional attitudes for most of the last decade.

When the House rejected the draft registration measure Wednesday, House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill said, "I think that will be the end of it. The President...doesn't feel there's an emergency and he doesn't see a need for it."

The question to which the House of Representatives should have addressed itself, however, is not whether there is a current emergency but whether there's any likelihood whatsoever of a future emergency.

We would bet our first subsidy check on it.

IT IS FAR BETTER to be prepared for an emergency that never comes than to be unprepared for one that does, a simple truth that this liberal Congress can't seem to grasp.

By its 252-163 rejection of the standby draft, the House rebuffed sponsor G.V. Montgomery's reminder that study after study has shown registration is needed.

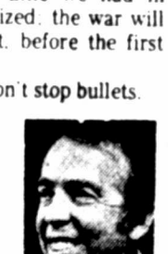

The all-volunteer armed forces we have today find it difficult to recruit enough qualified personnel even to maintain a semblance of peacetime readiness.

If we have a real need for combat troops any time before draft machinery is in place, we won't have the lead time we had in World War II to get mobilized, the war will be over, and probably lost, before the first draftee hits boot camp.

Utility subsidy checks won't stop bullets.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Doors Barred To Public In 'Open' White House

WASHINGTON—Further developments on the Kama River truck plant in the Soviet Union suggest the Carter administration is sitting atop a national scandal of immense proportions.

Despite sporadic administration denials, there is mounting evidence that the gigantic Kama River plant, built for the Communists with hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of U.S. technology, is being used for military purposes.

A witness from the CIA and a high-ranking official of the Export Administration Office have both testified that diesel engines from the plant have been diverted to military uses.

In addition, congressional investigators have questioned whether the IBM 370 computer associated with the plant can be effectively safeguarded from military diversion.

EVIDENCE ASSEMBLED on the Hill indicates an enormous amount of computer time cannot be accounted for, and that procedures for checking against diversion are totally inadequate.

These points are highlights of the continuing debate about the transfer of American goods and technology to the Soviets, and whether items being traded are used to strengthen Moscow's war machine.

There is increasing concern that the U.S. government, in the rush to advance "detente" and East-West trade, has permitted the transfer of militarily useful technology to the USSR, without effective safeguards for American interests.

Confronted by accusations on this score, the Carter administration has gone into a classic cover-up. It has issued a series of contradictory denials, claimed the "national interest" as justification for secrecy, and cracked down on the dissenting official who went against the official line.

MOREOVER, A representative of the administration has given testimony on these issues which, in one key particular at least, is in jarring conflict with the available record.

The dissident catching heat from Commerce Department higher-ups is Lawrence J. Brady, former acting director of the Export Administration Office.

Shortly after he contradicted official statements that safeguards against military use of our technology were adequate, he was rebuked by Commerce officialdom—beginning with Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps—and relieved of his post as acting director.

AS KREPS PUT it in a letter to Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., "there was no 'diversion' in connection with the Kama River truck plant," because "a diversion occurs only when civilian-use restrictions pertaining to a license are violated."

This point was amplified by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Frank A. Weil in testimony before the House.

"There have been suggestions," Weil said, "that in the course of the U.S. licensing process, the Soviets or the U.S. licensees represented to our government that the trucks and engines produced at the Kama River factory would be used solely for civilian purposes. This was not the case."

THE RECORD, however, says otherwise. Thus one export license application filed Dec. 12, 1971, describes the end use of the commodities in question as "manufacture of heavy-duty trucks for civilian use—Kama River truck plant."

Another, dated Nov. 1971, likewise states the object as "the manufacture of heavy-duty trucks for civilian use—Kama River truck plant." Yet another (Sept. 23, 1971) states the purpose as "manufacture of commercial vehicles."

Unfortunately, the public is prevented from knowing which American firms represented the purpose of the Kama River deal as "civilian use," since Commerce has claimed disclosure of such data would run counter to the "national interest"!

"BACK TO WRESTLING WITH THE GREAT ISSUES"

GEORGE WILL:

Weak Inherit Dearth

BRUSSELS, Belgium—When Belgians boast that their nation is at "the crossroads of Europe," they are putting a brave face on a fact that frequently has been tiresome.

Because it is the headquarters for the European Community bureaucracy, Brussels thinks of itself as "the capital of Europe."

But the most salient fact about Europe today is that it finds tolerable, even desirable, a condition that hitherto seemed barely possible: economic might combined with political and military impotence.

This was much on the minds of some people who attended a recent conference organized here by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies, a conference marking NATO's 30th anniversary.

In 1949 the Soviet Union appealed as a model society to a significant number of Western Europeans. The suppression of East Germany (1953), Hungary (1956) and Czechoslovakia (1968), and above all the pen of Alexander Solzhenitsyn have changed that appeal.

But while the West has been winning the competition of ideas, it has been forfeiting the arms race.

It is true, but not especially comforting, that the Soviet Union remains an essentially backward society, exporting raw materials and importing technology, failing in every field of competition except the military field.

NEITHER IS it comforting, although it is true, to say that there are no material reasons, only political reasons, why the West is losing only in a field where it cannot afford to lose, and is losing to a nation that is, as Raymond Aron says, "the most spectacular failure in history," a nation that fears, and cannot even feed, its people.

As Walter Laqueur writes, only in Spain, Portugal and Greece, and then only when regimes were changing, have issues other than domestic economic questions been paramount.

Today, it is said, there is a new European sobriety about the Soviet threat. And people note that NATO is a contentious subject only in Greece, Turkey and Spain.

BUT THAT may be because NATO is not yet doing the difficult things that must be done, particularly regarding theater nuclear forces, in order to redress the imbalance in Europe.

In 1949 Soviet power was conventional and continental. The Soviet threat was confined to NATO's central front. The Soviet navy was competent only for coastal protection.

Today the Soviet threat is global, and the threat to NATO is especially great on the flanks, particularly on the disintegrating southern flank.

Some of NATO's vital interests lie outside NATO's geographical perimeter, in, for example, the Persian Gulf. A war involving NATO could begin beyond NATO's perimeter and a NATO war probably would be a world war.

THERE IS among European leaders perfunctory talk about the importance of the Third World, but the talk sounds especially idle when accompanied by an unwillingness to take the political risk of even talking about extending NATO's military concerns beyond the European continent.

It is said, phlegmatically, that the recent history of Europe is a story of calamities that didn't happen, such as the victory of the Left that did not occur in the 1978 elections in France.

But there is more to be said, and Raymond Aron, Europe's most distinguished public philosopher, has said it.

"Decadent" is the word Aron applies, with a mixture of censure and affection, to "the Western rump of Europe" which "has become one of the world's three or four centers of industrial prosperity but which is incapable of defending itself."

IF THE FUTURE belongs, as some have said, not to "the warriors" but to "the producers," the producers of cars and wheat and poetry, then the future is ours. But what if the future belongs, as the past so often belonged, to the warriors?

Aron asks: "Is it not virtu, in Machiavelli's sense, the capacity for collective action and historic vitality, that now, as always, remains the ultimate cause of the fortune of nations and of their rise and fall?"

Of the Western nations' failure to prevent the fall of Constantinople in 1453, Gibbon wrote: "By some, the danger was considered as imaginary, by others as inevitable." The threat to Europe today is neither.

ANDREW TULLY:

All Out Of Tune

(Repeated by Request)

WASHINGTON—Once, after vainly trying to hum one of The Beatles' songs, I concluded that the trouble with that bunch et al is that they can't write music.

Accordingly, I clasped to my heart a New York Times interview with E.Y. (Hip) Yarburg, who wrote "April In Paris," "Brother, Can You Spare A Dime" and the lyrics for "The Wizard Of Oz" and "Finian's Rainbow" over a 50-year span crammed with craftsmanship.

As might be expected, Yarburg put his finger on it. Today's shrieks, bellows and whimpers that pass for songs are "convulsions of paroxysms, the words are ragged and tough and demeaning. The songs of the kids today are not joyous. They're grim."

A SONG THAT pleads with a lover to "Hit me again—slap me down" may be masochistic-chic, but it's fun. Sophisticated? Nuts.

Today's so-called composers aren't in a class with Cole Porter and his "Thou witty, thou swell, thou gay." (Today, of course, one approaches the word "gay" with caution.)

Were I a millionaire, I'd give Yarburg half my loot for mourning the demise of the old-timer's "craftsmanship and fine skill...It's easy to write looseleaf, without form.

It's hard to have architecture...Today, even when there is no melody, the sound engineer can give you enough vibrations to make a song a hit."

INDEED, TODAY'S songs could not have survived past a walkup loft in Greenwich Village had electronics not been invented. Try singing or playing one without mike, amplifier and screeching band.

Perhaps it should have been noted earlier that Yarburg is not a Union League Club reactionary. He is still a Socialist, as he was when he startled the country in 1947 with "Finian's Rainbow," then considered a radical attack on American society.

In short, he is not bitter. He "welcomes" today's "revolution." He just wishes the rebels could write music.

A neighbor and friend, member of the prosaic National Transportation Safety Board, collects records of song hits of the Twenties, Thirties and early Forties. "They're happy," Will Haley explains. "They're relaxing. They make my whole being dance. They're joyous, they're not afraid to be hopeful."

AND SHOULDN'T all that be one of the functions of music? Some of the minor oldies were sad—"Say It Isn't So," "It's The Talk Of The Town"—but they were never mean nor nasty nor frightful.

"Porgy And Bess" asks for the listener's compassion, but it is merry, too. (I almost said gay.) Wagner's stuff is often brooding, but magnificently thunderous.

The alleged musical comedy, "Hair," had a few bars that qualified as melody, but I can't remember them. On the other hand, eight will get you five that 100 years from now people will still be singing Cole Porter's "You're The Tops," and "It's Delovely."

Alas, with Hip Yarburg I must sing sadly: "Where are the minstrels, gimmick free? / Alas, in Nashville, Tennessee / Twanging their cliche hearts away / Whining out ditties with nasal spray."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Fame On Bad Boy

DALLAS—It has come to this:

I've learned to live with a lousy backhand. I can even compensate for my non-existent overhead smash. But I can't handle all that and Ilie Nastase, too.

Clearly, one of us has to go.

And after the disgraceful performance he put on at the U.S. Open last week, I vote for Nastase.

I'm a bad player, but he's a BAD player. And he's giving tennis a rotten name.

Never mind that all of us hackers would give a year's supply of tennis socks to hit a ball the way he can; there's more to the game than a sizzling cross-court forehand.

THERE'S ALSO a code of conduct that sets it apart from the gouge 'em in the eye tactics of football or ice hockey or prizefighting.

Tennis is a game of courtesy, admittedly an old-fashioned approach to most sports competition, but one that every club pro works hard to instill in even his beginners' clinics.

A player with real class doesn't whine over a bad line call, he doesn't spout obscenities at referees, and he doesn't resort to obscene gestures when he's losing.

Nastase has no class. He's been proving that for years and he should have been barred from the tour many four-letter words ago, no matter how many tickets he sells.

LAST WEEK'S temper tantrum, when he almost caused a riot in the opening rounds of the tournament, was only the latest in an endless display of unsportsmanlike conduct.

The aging ex-champion worked himself into a snit over the fact that he was getting beaten by John McEnroe, a mere 20-year-old. Finally, with defeat only a few games away, he simply refused to continue play.

Appeals from the umpire, the referee, the tournament director, and even from McEnroe, brought only sneers from Nastase.

And so, after repeated warnings, umpire Frank Hammond did the correct thing: He disqualified Nastase and awarded the match to McEnroe.

That should have been it. But higher authorities turned chicken, overruled Hammond's decision, and replaced him with referee Mike Blanchard.

IN THE END, no amount of obscene gestures could save Nastase. McEnroe blasted him off the court.

Nasty lost another attempt to win the Open title, but tennis lost even more. It lost some of the dignity that, until recently, has always distinguished it from other sports.

For more than a hundred years, it has been a game played by ladies and gentlemen. Capital L, capital G.

And, if you don't count Gussie Moran's lace-trimmed-panties trick in the '40s, proper court decorum was synonymous with tennis through the '60s.

Then along came Nastase, followed by Jimmy Connors, followed, in some part, by John McEnroe.

THEIR ANTICS on the court, their four-letter epithets and their one-finger gestures appealed to a new breed of fans. Because, about this time, tennis exploded into a major sport.

Prize money moved into the big time—and the "groupies" moved into the stands. They think Nasty and Jimmy and Johnny are "cute" when they blow their cool and they crowd into front-row boxes, hoping to be insulted by their idols. They are rarely disappointed.

This fact is not lost on the younger players coming along. They watch McEnroe (who was influenced by Connors, who was influenced by Nastase) and they figure the quickest way to parlay a sizzling serve into the million-dollar brackets is to let it all hang out. Temper tantrums, snarls, sneers, the whole bit.

TO BE FAIR, not all champions act like barroom boors. Bjorn Borg, who's tops in the world today (and who can beat Nastase or Connors with one backhand tied behind him) never loses his stoic control on court.

Neither does Arthur Ashe, nor Chris Evert, nor Evonne Goolagong nor Tracy Austin, to name only a few top players.

But they are often upstaged by the Nastase and Connors types who encourage the fans to boo linesmen and toss beer cans onto the court. And who can blame the youngsters for thinking good manners are not important any more, that a "bad-boy" image is the name of the game now?

Ironically, the same day Open officials allowed Nastase to play out his match, soccer star Carlos Alberto was suspended for the rest of the season for insulting and spitting at a linesman.

The difference here is that soccer has an official commissioner who can make a ruling like that—and make it stick. The time has come for pro tennis to get one, too.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. HAS ANYBODY ever been born without fingerprints?

A. Four generations of one family in Philadelphia reportedly had no ridges on their fingertips and toes, so left no identifiable prints on what they touched. But these are the only cases in the medical records, it's said.

The printless members included a man, his two sons and one daughter, seven of nine grandsons and four of nine granddaughters, and one of two great grandsons. This disclosure was made by a physician, not a lawman. They all went straight.

Q. I know there have been a lot of switch hitters in major league baseball, but has there ever been a switch pitcher?

A. Not a one.

Q. What do they mean in England when they say, "I'll have a punt."

A. I'll have a go at it, whatever it might be.

Q. Do hummingbirds like saccharin?

A. No, sir, they won't bother with it. Likewise, bees don't take to it.

34th U.N. General Assembly Session To Convene Tuesday

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The 34th session of the U.N. General Assembly convenes Tuesday to tackle a long list of the world's ills, including recurring political problems of the Mideast and southern Africa, and newer ones like the plight of the Indochinese boat people.

A ceremony admitting the Caribbean island nation of Saint Lucia, a former British colony, as the world body's 152nd member is scheduled to be among the early items on the agenda. Immediate disagreement is expected concerning which of the warring factions in Cambodia will be seated, how to deal with the Palestinian problem in the Mideast and the status of war-torn southern Africa.

Another key issue deals with the hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese refugees and what Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has called their "appalling tide of human suffering." Waldheim sponsored a meeting on the boat people in Geneva earlier this year. The assembly is expected to discuss further measures for resettling the refugees in Western countries.

Pope John Paul II is scheduled to address the assembly on Oct. 2 in the first papal appearance at the United Nations since Pope Paul VI's precedent-setting visit 14 years ago.

Outgoing U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young most likely will be on hand at the opening as head of the U.S. delegation. Young, who resigned in a flap concerning his meeting with the U.N. observer from the Palestine Liberation Organization, has promised to stay on pending expected swift action by the Senate to confirm the appointment of his deputy, Donald McHenry, as the new ambassador. Both are black.

In an annual report issued in advance of the meeting, Waldheim said last year's General Assembly was characterized by a lack of progress which he found "distinctly disappointing."

"The past year has been full of uncertainty, tension and conflict," he said. "The international scene has never been more complex." He called for statesmanship to break the stalemate and solve world problems.

Waldheim expressed concern about what he said was a lack of broad support for the United Nations. This creates "the ever-present possibility that we shall be confronted, for a variety of expected and unexpected reasons, with a dramatic threat to international peace and security which the United Nations in its present stage of development, may not be able to deal with," Waldheim warned.

Much public criticism of the United Nations points to the fact that developing nations — some of them, like Saint Lucia, mini-states — hold a controlling majority in the assembly and respond to the pressures of powerful Arab, African and Asian blocs.

The U.N. delegates will gather in the large, domed General Assembly hall remodeled over the summer to accommodate additional members. The United Nations had 51 members when it started in 1945 and less than 60 when it moved into its present quarters.

A political struggle between warring Cambodian factions and their Soviet and Chinese sponsors was expected early in the session. The rival regimes of Pol Pot, who has Chinese backing, and Heng Samrin, supported by the Soviet Union and Vietnam, have announced they will both to seek accreditation by the credentials committee.

Israelis May Build U.S. Warplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Friday the Pentagon is "willing to consider" Israeli proposals to build U.S. warplanes in Israel's factories.

But Brown gave no hint on how he was leaning on the question.

The U.S. defense secretary said teams of U.S. and Israeli experts will explore technical and other issues, including what kind of planes the Israelis might build, before the United States makes a policy decision.

He indicated such a decision is at least six to eight weeks away.

Brown and Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman met with reporters after more than three hours of talks in Brown's Pentagon office.

Weizman said his meetings with Brown, which began Thursday night, focused primarily on "the more distant future quality of the Israeli forces," especially its Air Force.

Weizman said that "we haven't taken a decision on what we want" in the way of a new type of airplane for the future.

He added that "you can't pick them like apples and oranges."

The Israelis are known to be interested in a land-based version of the Navy's twin-engine F-18 fighter plane — a version which is now only in prototype form. A major difficulty here is that U.S. forces have indicated no interest in building the F-18 for themselves, and President Carter's arms sales policies bar development of any new aircraft solely for foreign use.

The Israelis also are understood to be interested in co-producing the present version of the Navy's F-18A, which is both an air combat fighter and a ground attack plane, as well as the Air Force's F-16 air combat fighter.

Several days ago, the Israeli government gave the State Department a memo proposing a nearly doubling of U.S. military and economic aid funding in fiscal year 1981 to a total of $3.45 billion. About $1.85 billion of this would be in military arms aid.

Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron stressed that Israel needs the additional money, beyond the 1980 aid levels, because of rising weapons and oil costs as part of worldwide inflation.

Witness Denounced As Liar By Cullen Davis' Attorneys

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH (AP) — Attorneys for millionaire defendant Cullen Davis ended seven stormy days of cross-examination Friday and denounced the state's key witness as a liar.

"Even when he says he's lying, you can't believe him," lead defense lawyer Richard Haynes told newsmen as U.S. marshals escorted David McCrory from the courtroom.

"If McCrory came in and said today was Friday, I'd check my calendar."

Haynes and his colleagues insisted that McCrory's credibility was in shambles after two weeks of often tumultuous testimony in Davis' murder-for-hire trial.

"When you destroy McCrory, you effectively put a dent in the state's tapes," declared defense lawyer Steve Sumner. "And we destroyed McCrory."

"Wishful thinking," snapped chief prosecutor Jack Strickland. "The state's tapes stand on their own."

"McCrory fared much, much worse in Houston and eight people were convinced of Mr. Davis' guilt. Let's just wait and see on this one."

A Houston jury last January deliberated six days after an earlier trial and deadlocked 8-4 in favor of conviction. This trial began July 30.

Davis, 45, the Fort Worth industrialist czar, is accused of plotting the summertime 1978 contract murder of his divorce judge and more than a dozen others.

The dark-haired defendant claims he was duped by McCrory into making a series of incriminating tape recordings that lie at the heart of the state's case.

Davis was the "patsy" the defense contends, in a bizarre conspiracy orchestrated by the defendant's ex-wife Priscilla to enhance her multimillion-dollar divorce settlement.

McCrory's testimony revolved largely around four crtical day in August 1978 that ended bloodlessly outside a West Side restaurant with Davis' arrest.

The burly friend-turned-informant testified that Davis ordered him to hire a gunman to kill divorce Judge Joe Eidson and paid him $25,000 when he thought the judge was dead.

Prosecutors mounted their case around two taped face-to-face discussions and three television conversations between the accused and the accuser and also produced the alleged blood money.

"The tapes can stand by themselves," said Strickland, conceding that McCrory's testimony was peppered with inconsistencies and his demeanor less than endearing to the jury.

"But, seriously, David's testimony overall was sound...his testimony in regard to the events of Aug. 16-20 was extremely strong. There would be no purpose at all to redirect on that."

Strickland, admittedly "stunned" when Haynes abruptly ended his cross-examination, huddled briefly with co-counsel John Bankston and decided not to take McCrory back for re-direct questioning.

"They ended on a low note and much of what was done to David was inconsequential," Strickland said.

Bankston said the "bottom line" of Haynes' questioning was "just an effort to put McCrory on trial and let Cullen slip into the shadows."

McCrory, after leaving the stand, said:

"Now I expect Haynes to call a lot of paid witnesses that will get up there and say a bunch of lies...and if it happens, a bunch of people are going to jail for perjury."

Carter Announces U.N. Delegation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Friday the members of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

The delegation will be headed by Donald F. McHenry, who replaces Andrew Young as the United States ambassador to the United Nations.

Late Penalty Against Builder Reduced

Levelland School Board voted 4-3 for a reduced liquidated damage penalty against A.C. Lewis Construction Co. of Lubbock from $76,000 to $50,000.

The construction company was 5 1/2 months late in completing the new Levelland High School, making it necessary for students to attend classes in an incomplete building in the fall of 1978.

School board President Robert Pearce broke a 3-3 tie on reducing the penalty.

The situation was set up after board members J.R. Stanley, Dr. Paul Dunn and Travis Spears voted for the penalty reduction and Roseabeth Kauffman, Bob O'Dell and Eddie Courtney voted against.

Jim Lewis, son of general contractor A.C. Lewis, listed a number of reasons why the late penalty should be disregarded.

The reasons he listed were the general brick contractor, Swarford Masonry Co., went out of business during construction, which resulted in additional expenses for work by Lewis: strikes; walkouts; material delivery delays; labor shortages; storm damage. A.C. Lewis, bondsman J.C. Abney said this is a severe penalty for a company that has never been penalized in 30 years.

During the lengthy discussion on the matter, Dr. Paul Dunn questioned Abney as to why he was present at the meeting. Abney said he was appearing as a friend of Lewis.

During this exchange it was also learned Lewis was involved in four other construction jobs at the time the new high school was being built.

Levelland school system is paying Lewis $3.3 million for the building.

A comparatively small sum of $8,300 will be deducted for utilities used by Lewis and charged to the school system during construction.

Trustees also requested more information about school insurance with Insurbational.

Several persons present for the meeting and board members expressed concern over the confusion with a number of people who have paid premiums on insurance policies but had claims and had trouble receiving the money.

Supt. Bill Vardeman defended the insurance company on every count, but admitted there had been some confusion.

School board member Pearce requested and received board approval to eliminate selling pencils from vending machines that have professional sports teams printed on them.

He pointed out that they had received a number of reports that people were spending their lunch money for pencils and playing various games with them.

The board ordered that the school system sell only standard type pencils in the vending machines.

DA's Request Denied By Woodward

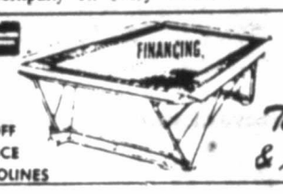

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward Friday denied a request by Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis that attempted to prevent a state grand jury from convening.

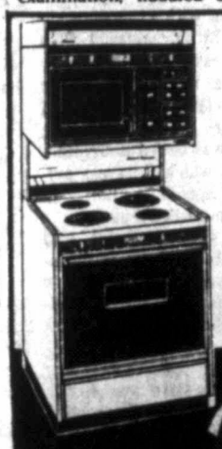

Curtis said he believes the district court grand jury in his home town of Amarillo will return additional indictments against him "in retaliation for his past lawful actions as a public servant" and filed the suit in federal court here hoping to prevent jurors from meeting.

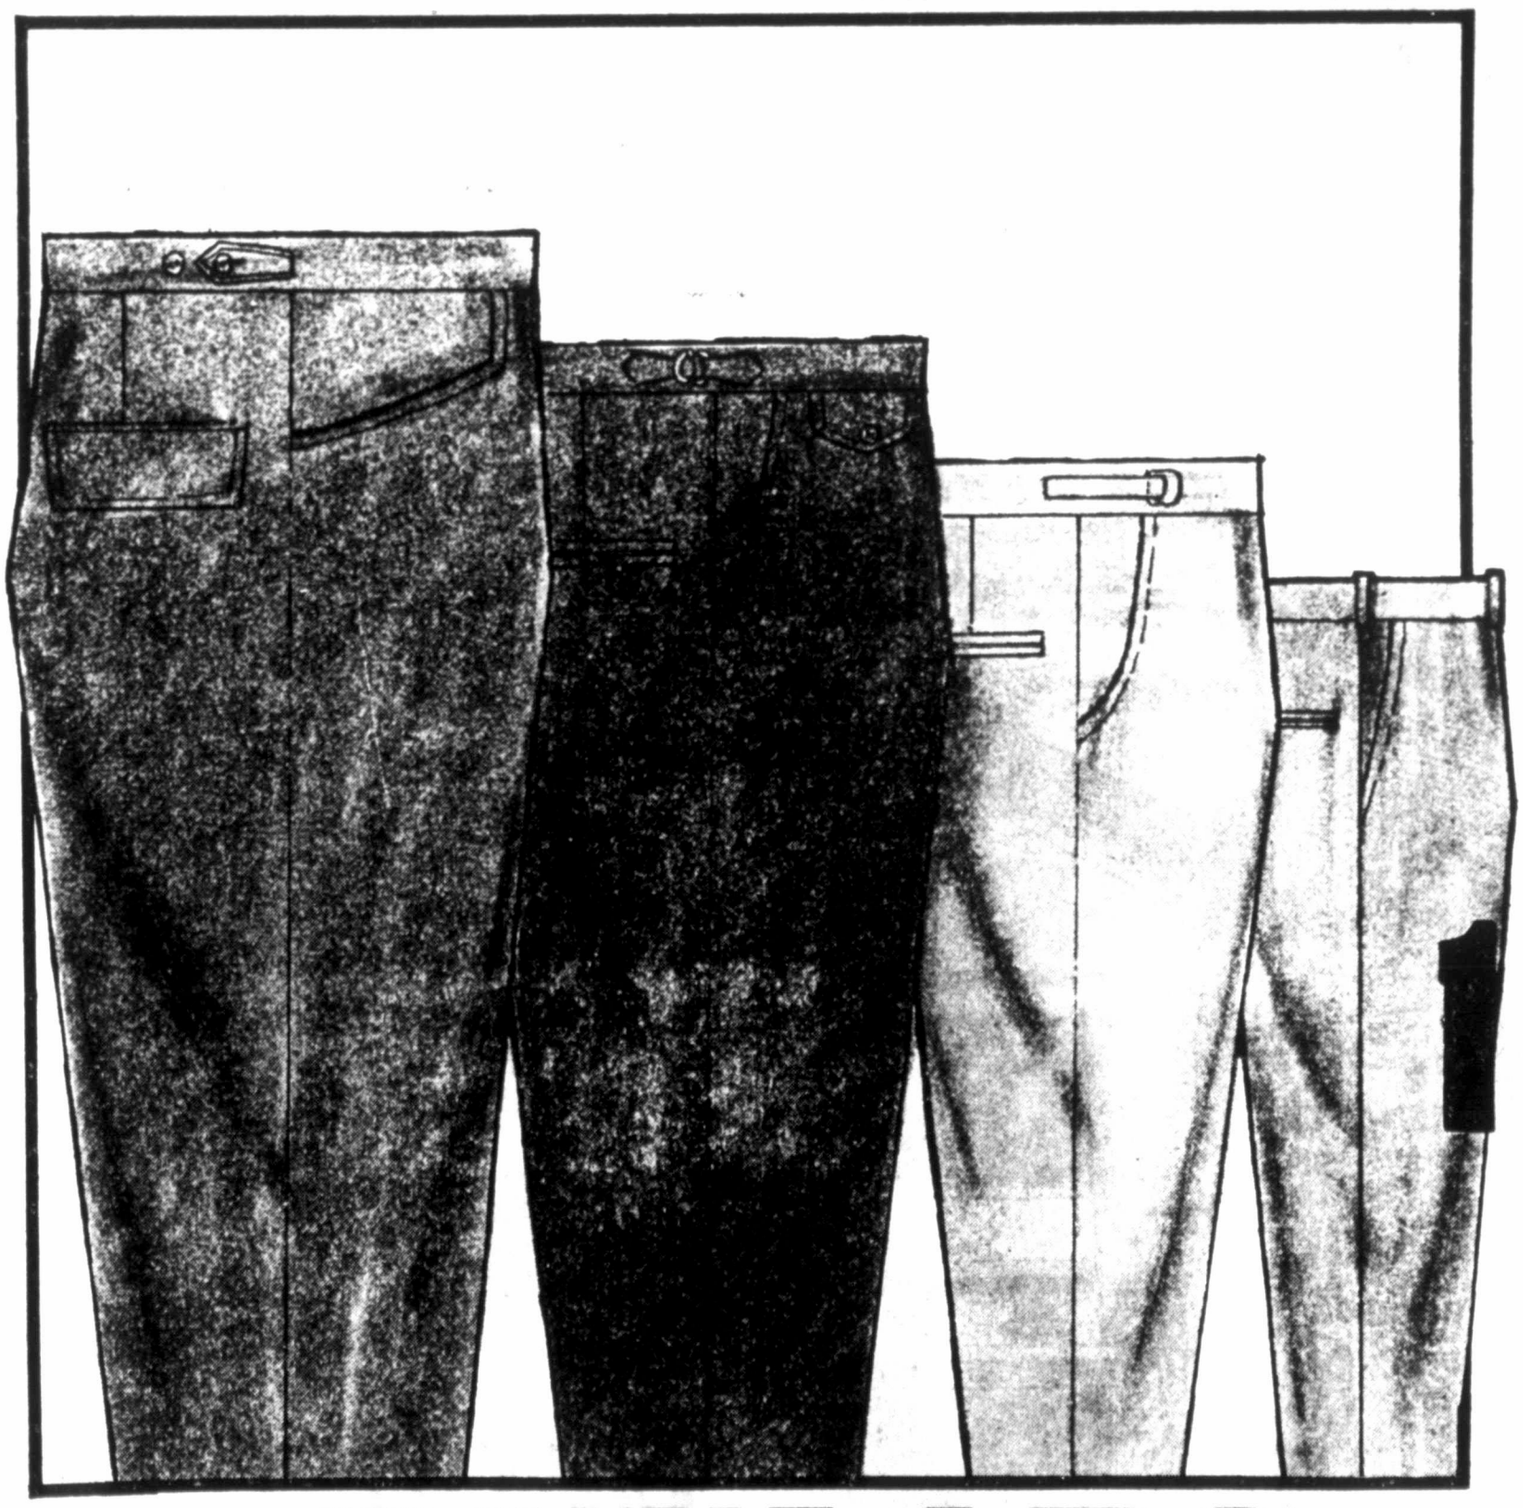

Curtis' suit named as defendants 47th District Judge H. Bryan Poff Jr., Jerry Huff, executive editor of the Amarillo Globe-News and a member of the grand jury, and Robert Rudd, foreman of the grand jury.

Cost Of Arctic, Ocean Fuels Said High

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The Arctic and the depths of the oceans hold vast, untapped oil and gas reserves, but the price of exploiting them will be high, experts said Friday as the 10th World Petroleum Congress drew to a close.

The congress, which drew delegates from more than 70 nations, also concluded with a call for greater efforts to conserve oil and gas supplies.

"The Permanent Council urges consumers of energy and petroleum products to redouble their efforts for the conservation of dwindling resources," WPC President Wilhelm von Ilsemann, head of Shell's West German subsidiry, told he closing session of the week-long conference. He also called for "special recognition" of the need to expand petroleum production.

G.R. Harrison, senior vice president of Canada's Dome Petroleum Ltd., said in a paper distributed among the 4,500 delegates that oil and gas reserves north of the Arctic Circle could match those of the Middle East.

These include huge gas and oil fields in Soviet Siberia and lesser reservoirs in the Beaufort Sea off Canada and Alaska, he wrote.

In a technical seminar, C.B. Corley of Exxon Corp. said experience in drilling off Thailand, Surinam and elsewhere proved that "deep water is not so hostile if you disregard high cost."

He said drilling operations in water depths greater than 600 feet were costing between $110,000 and $150,000 a day, almost twice as much as those in shallow water.

The oil industry maintains that the use of high technology operations required to extract oil and gas from difficult areas will mean higher prices at the gasoline pump in the future.

The congress meets every four years to exchange technical information on the oil and gas industry. The next session will take place in 1983 in London.

During the final sessions, papers were delivered on drilling in hostile environments, industrial safety, evaluating reservoirs and other subjects.

Harrison's paper said Dome Petroleum hopes to begin exploratory drilling for oil and gas through the polar icecap in five years, with production to start three years later.

Drilling farther south, where the ocean is not permanently frozen, could begin in about two years, he wrote.

"The strategic importance of the Arctic has been enhanced by the prospect of its having oil and gas in quantities that may rival the Middle East," he wrote.

Other experts at the congress questioned whether any undiscovered oil and gas reservoirs could equal those of the Mideast, but agreed only half the world's total supply has yet been tapped.

About half the known reserves lie in the Mideast.

Corley said deepwater drilling "has proved wells can be drilled safely and efficiently up to depths of 1,500 meters (5,000 feet). And I believe in the future we will go much deeper."

He cited the expense in developing drilling ships, computers to operate the systems and underwater television cameras to help find and recover lost equipment.

General Revenue Fund Has Surplus

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas's general revenue fund ended fiscal 1979 with a $620.4 million surplus despite the devastating effect of the gasoline crisis on motor fuel tax income.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's staff reported on the fiscal year that closed Aug. 31 to the House Ways and Means Committee on Friday.

The 4 percent automobile sales tax and the five cents per gallon motor fuels tax were "impacted very dramatically" by this summer's gasoline shortage, said Bill Allaway, the comptroller's chief revenue estimator.

He produced figures showing revenue from the gasoline tax during June through August were $23.1 million less than they were for the same three months of 1978.

The August drop-off was particularly large, from $48.2 million in August 1978 to $38.5 million in August 1979 — a decline of $9.7 million or 20.1 percent.

For the entire 1979 fiscal year, motor fuel taxes produced $489.5 million in revenue, or $20.8 million less than Bullock had forecast as recently as May.

Most motor fuel taxes are dedicated to highway construction and repair, and the decline could result in a shifting of general taxes to the highway fund to make up the difference.

While motor fuel tax revenues declined in each summer month, income from the motor vehicle tax dropped in June and July, then rebounded in August to equal the take of August 1978, Allaway said.

"As soon as the gas came back, they (consumers) seemed to have forgotten about it just as they did two or three years ago," Allaway said in reference to consumer reaction to the disappearance of gas lines in August.

Allaway also said the country now is in a recession, and "the major impact of this recession will occur in fiscal 1980," which began on Sept. 1.

The comptroller's view of the economy is gloomier now than it was in May, according to Allaway's testimony.

Where Bullock predicted in May that growth in the gross national product would drop to 0.3 percent in 1980, he now believes the GNP will decline by 0.9 percent.

By the same token, he predicted a 7.6 percent inflation rate for fiscal 1980 in May but now believes it will hit 10 percent, then slip to 7.8 percent in fiscal 1981.

Allaway said the changes in the economic forecast do not, however, point to any substantial change in Bullock's revenue estimates for 1980 and 1981.

Eyeglass Advertising Regulation Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eyeglass advertising became the focal point Friday of a legal controversy over whether federal agencies can overrule state laws.

Representatives of 16 states and groups of optometrists and physicians made oral arguments to the U.S. Court of Appeals in their challenge to a Federal Trade Commission regulation on price advertising of eyeglasses. The regulation has been in effect for more than a year.

The FTC rule declared illegal state laws against advertising of eyeglasses and contact lenses, saying the laws were unfair to consumers and resulted in higher prices. The FTC said then that laws in more than 40 states were affected and professional groups were responsible for additional prohibitions on the ads.

Edward Grobert, representing the American Optometric Association, said the case involves the question of "whether the commission has the power to overrule valid state laws." He contended that any commission regulation is invalid if it contradicts an existing state law.

Some legal observers have predicted the case eventually will reach the Supreme Court because it raises important questions of relations between the federal and state governments.

"We are dealing with an area traditionally regulated by the states. Unless the Congress expressly says otherwise, the commission does not have the power to pre-empt state laws," Grobert told the three-judge panel.

The regulation was issued under enabling legislation in which Congress neither gave the FTC specific authority to overrule state laws nor ruled it out.

FTC Attorney Terry Latanich said the commission acted only after its investigation found eyeglass prices 25 to 40 percent higher in states where price advertising was not allowed than in states that permitted it.

"The commission wasn't sweeping aside in a blanket way state laws. It was defining a specific unfair trade practice and doing something to prevent it," Latanich said.

He told the judges that when Congress delegates an authority to federal regulators, that automatically allows the agency to overrule state laws.

The decision by Judges Carl McGowan, Patricia Wald and John Penn will be announced later.

Susan Dasher, Texas assistant attorney general, told the three-judge panel, "We object strongly to the existence of a super-legislature sitting over the states. The states are being deprived of the opportunity to regulate in the area of consumer protection."

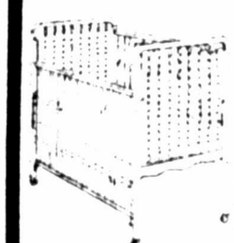

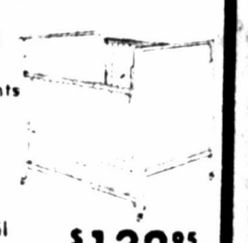

Also involved in the case are Indiana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wyoming, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Mississippi, North Dakota, Maine, South Dakota, Vermont, Colorado and New York's state university board.

Newton Minow, representing the American Medical Association, said "the fault is with Congress" for not making clear whether the FTC can overrule state laws in deciding what is an unfair trade practice.

PARADE REST — A stubborn mount and a big hat were just two of the problems facing six-year-old Eric Erskine during a big horse parade opening the 45th annual Clay County Pioneer Rodeo and Reunion Thursday afternoon at Henrietta, Texas, but the feisty youngster didn't let the setbacks keep him from having a good time. Rodeo action continues through Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

Delegation Takes Options To Rock Island

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of Carter administration officials flew to Chicago on Friday in hopes of getting the strike-bound Rock Island railroad running again so mounting stockpiles of farm products in the Midwest can be moved to market.

The delegation planned to meet privately late in the day with a federal judge who is overseeing the financially ailing railroad's reorganization in an attempt to work out arrangements that will allow the carrier to resume operations, said William Loftus, a transportation department official.

Representatives of the labor and transportation departments, National Mediation Board and Interstate Commerce Commission scheduled a meeting in the chambers of U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr.

The railroad, which has been shut for 18 days by the strike, is being reorganized under federal bankruptcy laws.

The officials were dispatched to Chicago a day after top administration officials met at the White House to draw up options for ending the work stoppage and for restoring service along the Rock Island's 13-state, 7,000-mile system.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who attended the White House meeting, said Friday that a separate strike that has shut down port grain elevators at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., was not discussed at Thursday's meeting because a settlement appeared imminent.

He said "it can be debated" whether the strike has had any significant impact on the harvests and U.S. exports.

"I don't think that the cost to the general public and farmers so far has been ... disastrous, but it can get there," Bergland said, adding:

"If this thing were to drag on all fall, it would have a catastrophic effect, primarily because we're dealing with a booming export demand. If business wasn't so good, it wouldn't matter."

A report on the Rock Island situation used by Bergland at the White House meeting said the strike impact "is beginning to be felt in both the domestic and export markets" for grain.

For example, it said, as of Sept. 10 "a large cooperative in Iowa has 11 100-car unit trains loaded but sitting idle" and that a 25-car unit train (one that carries a single commodity) was loaded Aug. 9. It has moved a total of 30 miles since then."

Among the options discussed, Bergland said, was the possibility of approving what the Transportation Department calls "directed service" under which another railroad would temporarily take over Rock Island's operation.

Another possibility is the infusion of federal money to help Rock Island meet its payroll and other expenses. One option included an arrangement in which shippers would voluntarily pre-pay for Rock Island service, thus providing it a cash flow, Bergland said.

"It was obvious (at the White House meeting) a simple back-to-work order would do no good because the company couldn't meet its payroll," he said.

"There was general agreement that the matter had gone on about as far as it could go, that normal collective bargaining processes were not going to work."

No consensus emerged in discussing the options available to President Carter, Bergland said.

"We did not attempt to rank them in order of desirability," he said. "The only thing that was ruled out was further delay. That was absolutely ruled out."

Non-Aligned Nations Criticize U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)— After assessing the recently concluded summit of non-aligned nations in Cuba, U.S. officials have concluded that the United States did not do well — but could have done worse.

The final declaration approved by the conference fell far short of what Cuba and its allies had been proposing in terms of anti-U.S. content.

Nonetheless, the document was laced with criticisms of U.S. global policies. It suggested that the Carter administration's concerted efforts to bolster relations with the Third World have had little impact, U.S. officials conceded.

The officials expressed particular disappointment over the document's strident attack on U.S. policies in the Middle East and Southern Africa, two prime areas of administration peace initiatives.

Copies of the document, containing more than 400 policy declarations on global economic and political issues, were obtained by the administration on Wednesday, and officials, asking not to be quoted by name, discussed their impressions in a series of interviews.

One aspect of the conference that attracted attention here was the extent to which Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro apparently tried to use Cuba's role as conference host to gain political advantage.

On more than one occasion, Cuba sought to proclaim a consensus existed when in fact none did, according to U.S. officials and conference delegates. Cuba also was accused of manipulating the speakers' lists to allow its allies to speak during the daytime while its opponents often had to settle for post-midnight appearances.

In addition, representatives of the pro-Soviet regime in Cambodia were given accommodations at a downtown hotel during the conference, while the deposed pro-Chinese Cambodian regime, still recognized by the United Nations, was assigned to a villa 40 miles from Havana.

As host for the conference, Cuba earned the right to preside over the 95-member movement, representing two-thirds of the nations of the world, until the next summit, set for Iraq in 1982.

Castro has promised to reflect the collective sentiment of the movement during his stewardship.

Murder Charges Dropped Against Woman

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Murder charges have been dismissed against a woman who said she shot her husband while he slept after threatening to kill her.

The Sacramento County district attorney's office agreed Thursday to drop the charges against Judith Durst, 36, a nurse and mother of six children, for lack of sufficient evidence.

Officers said the body of Richard Durst, 40, was found in the bed of their home June 12. A gun was also on the bed.

Mrs. Durst said her husband had threatened to kill her previously, and had told her during a quarrel that night that if she tried to leave he would kill her. She said he went to bed with a loaded gun.

"She had no choice," said her lawyer, Assistant Public Defender Betty Rocker. "She was in fear of her life. She said he was asleep and that was the only time she could defend herself.

"There was no way that woman could get six chidren and herself out of the house without him waking up."

American Bank Uses Formula For Determining Prime Rate

By The Associated Press

The prime rate is important because banks use it as the basis for setting interest rates on loans to businesses. But how is the prime rate set?

One bank, Citibank in New York, uses a formula based on interest rates that affect the cost of funds the bank acquires. Citibank, the second-largest commercial bank in the nation, traditionally announces its prime rate every Friday morning.

To use the formula, Citibank takes the average interest rate during the most recent three weeks of 90-day negotiable certificates of deposit in the secondary market and adds 1½ percentage points. These certificates, which come in minimum denominations of $100,000, comprise one of several types of securities that provide a significant portion of funds banks acquire in what is called the "money market."

There is no such place as the money market, which is a name used to describe dealings in these securities after they have been issued. Citibank picked the rates on 90-day certificates as being representative of money market rates generally and, by extension, the cost of acquiring funds.

Other top American banks don't use precise formulas, but convene groups of managers and executives to consider the money market rates, or cost of funds. Officers at several of these banks said they pay particular attention to the federal funds rate, which is the interest charged on overnight loans of excess reserves between banks. Federal funds are another important source of lendable money for banks.

Most banks, then, depend on managers to decide when rates on commercial-industrial loans have to rise to cover the costs of acquiring funds. These banks also take into consideration the current demand for loans from businesses. If demand is weak, they may decide not to boost the prime.

Banks Adopt 13 Percent Lending Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's major banks Friday unanimously adopted an unprecedented 13 percent prime lending rate, reflecting continued strong demand from businesses for credit and higher costs of funds banks acquire for lending.

The prime is the base lending rate for loans to businesses. The biggest, most credit-worthy corporations borrow at the prime rate. Smaller businesses, or large ones with less solid financial standings, borrow at rates pegged a certain number of percentage points above the prime.

The move to the 13 percent rate began Thursday, when Chase Manhattan Bank of New York raised its prime rate from 12¾ percent to 13 percent. Chase, the nation's third-largest bank ranked by deposits, announced its decision Wednesday, only three business days after posting a 12¾ percent rate.

Citibank, the nation's second-largest bank, announced Friday it was immediately boosting its prime by half a percentage point to 13 percent. The New York-based bank traditionally announces its prime rate on Fridays, calculating the number with a formula based on the interest rates it must pay to acquire funds.

The nation's largest bank, San Francisco-based Bank of America, went to 13 percent Friday, only a week after posting a 12¾ percent rate.

Fourth-ranked Manufacturers Hanover Trust, which alone with Citibank had held to a 12½ percent rate all week, also went to 13 percent.

The rest of the nation's top banks followed suit by the end of the day.

The rising prime rates reflect strong demand from businesses for loans as well as recent moves by the Federal Reserve Board to drive up the cost of funds banks acquire.

The Fed, by soaking up excess reserves in the Federal Reserve System, has driven the rate for federal funds to about 11½ percent. Federal funds are excess reserves banks lend one another overnight.

Fed actions also have driven up interest rates in the so-called money market, a name used to describe dealings in large-denomination securities that are a major source of funds for big banks.

The Federal Reserve, which sets and implements the nation's monetary policy, has been pushing up interest rates in an attempt to slow the rapid growth of the nation's basic money supply. Too rapid a growth in the stock of money is believed to contribute to inflation, currently running at an annual rate of about 13 percent, by putting into circulation more dollars than the economy's production of goods and services can absorb.

By raising interest rates, the Fed hopes to discourage borrowers, reducing the amount of credit being extended and monetary growth. As long as demand for commercial-industrial loans is strong, as bank officials say it is, businesses will borrow and pass their higher costs of borrowing along to consumers in the form of higher prices.

The prime rate is not directly linked to interest rates for consumer-installment loans, but the prime is considered to be an indicator of trends in interest rates generally.

IBM Requests Anti-Trust Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for International Business Machines Corp. and the Justice Department said Friday they are willing to discuss a settlement of the government's 10-year-old antitrust suit against the computer giant.

Thomas H. Barr, IBM's lead counsel, notified the U.S. Court of Appeals that he will seek a meeting with Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to discuss a negotiated settlement.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Terrence Adamson said the government is willing to discuss a settlement anytime.

"The Justice Department in negotiating a consent decree would seek to obtain that relief which it could reasonably be expected to achieve at trial," Adamson said.

The department's antitrust division has been working on proposals for relief for a year, Adamson said, adding the proposals could provide a basis for settlement.

The government is trying to prove IBM was monopolizing the general computer industry. It seeks to have the corporation split into independent units.

Conservation Tips Result In Big Energy Bill

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — East Baton Rouge got a $703,000 jolt when it asked Gulf States Utilities for some tips on energy conservation.

As part of the research, consumption was checked and it was discovered the city-parish — which operates like a county government in other states — had been "underbilled" for two years.

The error apparently occurred when the number "10" was used as meter constant in determining usage and cost, rather than the number 100, public works director Ray Burgess said Thursday.

Gulf States Utilities vice president Calvin J. Hebert said that error was compounded by a mistake in recording of the reading. The last digit of the meter, which should have been rounded off to the nearest whole number, was dropped altogether.

"It hit us square in the face," said Mayor-President Woody Dumas. "I don't see how we can pay the whole thing at once. Maybe they'll let us pay it over the next couple of years."

The city-parish, which encompasses about 250,000 residents, is negotiating with the utility to see if it will have to pay the total amount.

"I think they have a definite responsibility in this themselves," Burgess said.

Hebert said the situation was unfortunate, but called it "an honest error."

Real Tut Treasure Safe At Home In Egypt

CAIRO (UPI) — "King Tut's traveling treasure is just a drop in the bucket," said the director of the Egyptian Museum.

Such a dismissal may sound a bit nonchalant to the hundreds of thousands of museum goers who have waited in line for a glimpse of the 55-piece exhibition now touring the United States. But Director Mohammed Mohsen was not exaggerating.

His Egyptian Museum holds more than 100,000 artifacts of the pharoahs, including 27 royal mummies and one mummified crocodile.

Its most dazzling collection comes from the famous tomb of Tutankhamun — more than 2,500 pieces.

The museum's upstairs rooms overflow with the golden and alabaster treasures of the Boy King. Everything needed for the after-life is here — beds, chairs, saddles, games sets, wheat seeds, jewelry, chariots, boats, even an umbrella.

"Here are the treasures of a young man who ruled for nine years," Mohsen said on a tour of King Tut's real treasure.

"Can you imagine what we would have found if we had discovered the tomb of Ramses untouched?" The tomb of Ramses II, who reigned for 67 years, was looted in antiquity, as were the unimaginably rich tombs of every ancient Egyptian pharoah but one.

Tutankhamun's sepulchre was discovered in 1922, 3,300 years after burial, by British archaeologist Howard Carter. Today only King Tut's blackened mummy, resting in a pink granite sarcophagus, remains in the royal tomb in the necropolis at Thebes, near present-day Luxor.

The small traveling exhibition, like the few Tutankhamun pieces in museums throughout Europe and the United States, actually is just the tip of the pyramid.

The contents of King Tut's fantastically crammed tomb in the Cairo museum form a collection that defies description.

Its sheer quantity and the breath-taking beauty of its items must be seen to be believed. But seeing it properly can be a problem.

Tutankhamun's collection is stuffed into three cramped rooms, jammed and seemingly disorganized. The museum has added a few light bulbs since it was built in 1903, but it relies heavily on natural light. Glass cases displaying King Tut's most precious relics are unlit and should be seen at high noon, when bright sun streams through skylights and windows.

Some items are identified briefly in English, French and Arabic, but many labels are only in Arabic. Good guidebooks in French, English and German, however, are on sale in the museum.

Most famous of the Tutankhamun objects shown here are the gold sarcophagus and the royal throne. Yet it is the hundreds of large and small pieces of delicately carved woods and inlaid stones which complete the picture of ancient Egyptian life, religion and art.

Two life-size wooden guards flank the entry to the Tut display, blackened clones of the young pharaoh. Both seem to be walking, dressed in bronze sandals and gold-leafed kilts, each holding a mace in the right hand and a staff in the left. The cobra, symbol of royalty, rises from the headdress.

Perhaps the most colorful piece of the collection is the king's throne, a small wooden chair covered with gold and decorated with inlaid silver, semi-precious stones and glass.

Its arms, in the shape of two crowned snakes, protect the engraved name of the king. On the back panel is a plaque showing Tutankhamun and his queen, Ankhesenpaaten. She holds a vase of perfume and rests her other hand lovingly on her husband's shoulder. He sits casually in a chair under the rays of the sun god.

The pharoah was given three large gold-leafed beds for slumber in the after-life, each supported by deities to protect Tut as he slept. One bed depicts the goddess Hathor, known later as Aphrodite, the Egyptian goddess of the sky. She is shown in two slender carvings of her most usual visible form — a cow. The sun god rests between her horns.

The most precious item on display is the solid gold coffin which held Tutankhamun's mummy. Weighing 245 pounds, it is inlaid with semi-precious stones and glass.

When the sarcophagus was opened, the splendid funerary mask, now on display in the United States, was found covering the head of the mummy.

Income from the traveling exhibition — it is in San Francisco through Sept. 30, then moves to Toronto — will go to Egypt's antiquities department, which will decide whether the Cairo Museum gets a share. Mohsen hopes the Tut treasures some day can be displayed as glamorously as in the show that drew millions abroad.

Hurricane Forecast Developed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Measuring certain temperature and wind speed changes around hurricanes could improve predicting whether the giant storms will change course and in what direction they will turn, according to a newly released study.

One of the biggest weaknesses in hurricane forecasting is trying to determine if the storms will change course, when and which way — as demonstrated recently when Hurricane David ricocheted its way up the East Coast.

Colorado State University scientists said Friday that re-examination of the turning motions of past hurricanes suggests that direction changes depend upon large-scale wind flow differences surrounding the storms.

According to their experimental model, these wind flows surround a hurricane at distances 300 miles to 600 miles away and at heights ranging from half a mile to eight miles, the scientists reported to the National Science Foundation, which supports their research.

William M. Gray, an atmospheric scientist, said his group found that when a hurricane is about to veer to the left, upper level winds are significantly stronger than those at lower levels in the direction in which the storm is moving.

And conversely, when winds in front of the storm are stronger at lower levels than in upper regions, the hurricane is likely to turn to the right.

Straight-moving hurricanes do not show such wind speed changes with height, Gray said.

The wind speed differences between lower and upper levels — from about 2,600 feet to 42,000 feet — are caused by temperature differences in the storm area, he added.

These wind and temperature changes occur 24 hours to 36 hours before hurricanes change course, a time lag that is valuable and crucial for forecasting, Gray said.

The 17-month study, which has been submitted to a scientific journal, examined the turning motions of hurricanes that occurred from 1961 to 1977 in the western Atlantic, the West Indies and the Caribbean Sea.

The scientists said new types of space satellites will provide the necessary wind and temperature information through special sensors and cloud-tracking features.

The enormous costs of preparing coastal areas for hurricane strikes add to the importance of better forecasting, Gray said.

Ford Closes Plants Because Of Backlog

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it will suspend operations Monday at plants in Atlanta, St. Louis, Mahwah, N.J. and two locations in Ohio because of dealer backlogs of unsold vehicles.

A Ford spokesman said Thursday the layoffs involve some 1,350 workers in Atlanta, 2,700 in St. Louis, 4,900 in Mahwah and 3,800 in plants at Lorain and Avon Lake, Ohio. The Mahwah plant will close for two weeks and the rest for one week.

Smog Continues To Blanket Southern California Region

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern Californians drove to work Friday under a veil of eye-stinging brown smog that obscured the area's mountains and turned the sun reddish-brown in the eighth day of the worst air pollution in a quarter century.

Residents, buffeted by another flurry of second-stage smog warnings, were again implored to curtail travel and remain inside.

And officials said there was no relief in sight.

Contributing to the problem was a 3-week-old strike against the Rapid Transit District that has forced 600,000 bus riders to turn to cars for transportation and a 2,800-acre brush fire on Mount Wilson north of the city.

The fir, in its third day, was sending clouds of brown smoke and soot over the area.

Hospitals geared up for more patients with heart problems, sore throats, coughs, runny noses and eyes and other smog-related complaints.

There were no reports of death attributed to the "hazardous" smog levels — the most serious tag the Air Quality Management District can apply to air conditions — but hospitals in the hard-hit San Fernando and San Gabriel valleys reported increased respiratory and heart complaints.

Queen of the Valley Hosptal in West Covina reported a 30 percent to 50 percent increase in respiratory-heart patients.

Smog irritates lung and bronchial tissue, said Alice Mulder, spokeswoman for Arcadia Methodist Hospital. "The resulting difficulty in breathing places a strain on the heart."

Because of the smog, the Pasadena school district announced Friday that a high school football game scheduled for Saturday afternoon would be played instead at 9 a.m. Football practices were canceled Friday in the school district.

Meanwhile, air quality control officers handed out 41 citations for violations of air quality standards Thursday during a rash of second-stage alerts, and they were in the field again Friday.

"Compliance has been excellent," said agency spokesman Jim Birakos, adding that the 41 citations spread among the 272 businesses checked Thursday were mainly for traffic abatement violations.

He said there had been only two violations of emission standards for stationary sources — such as power and chemical plants — all week, and both came on Tuesday.

In a second-stage alert, businesses with 100 or more employees are required by law to reduce employee travel by 65 percent and industry is required to reduce stationary emissions by 20 percent by conversion to non-polluting fuels and importation of power.

Solar Energy On Way To Australian Town

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — The residents of White Cliffs, a bush hamlet where the sun shines 14 hours a day and temperatures hit 113 Fahrenheit, are happy that someone is going to do something with the weather.

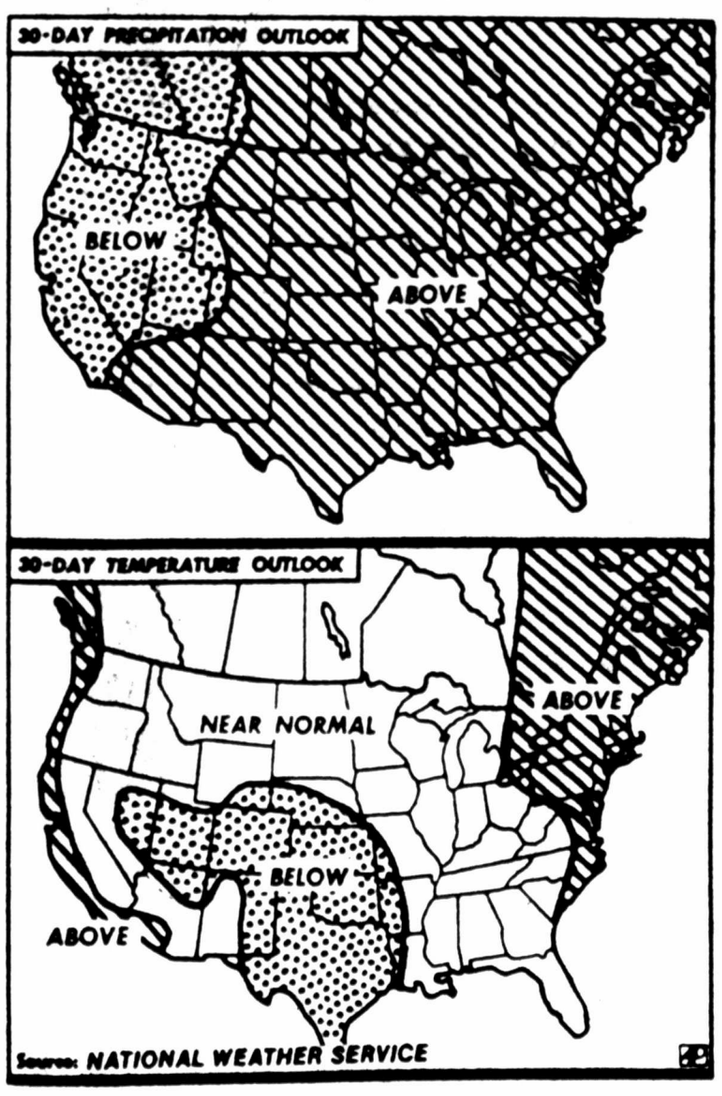

The town, about 665 miles northwest of Sydney, is destined to become the world's first solar energy town.

With an official population of 45 — but with nearer 300 actual residents — the heat-seared township, about 85 miles down a dirt road from Broken Hill in New South Wales, is prepared to switch from diesel, kerosene and wind-blown energy to solar power.

Half of White Cliffs' residents live underground in 111 dugouts to escape the sun and the accompanying furnace-like heat. On the surface are 13 houses, a school, hospital and hotel.

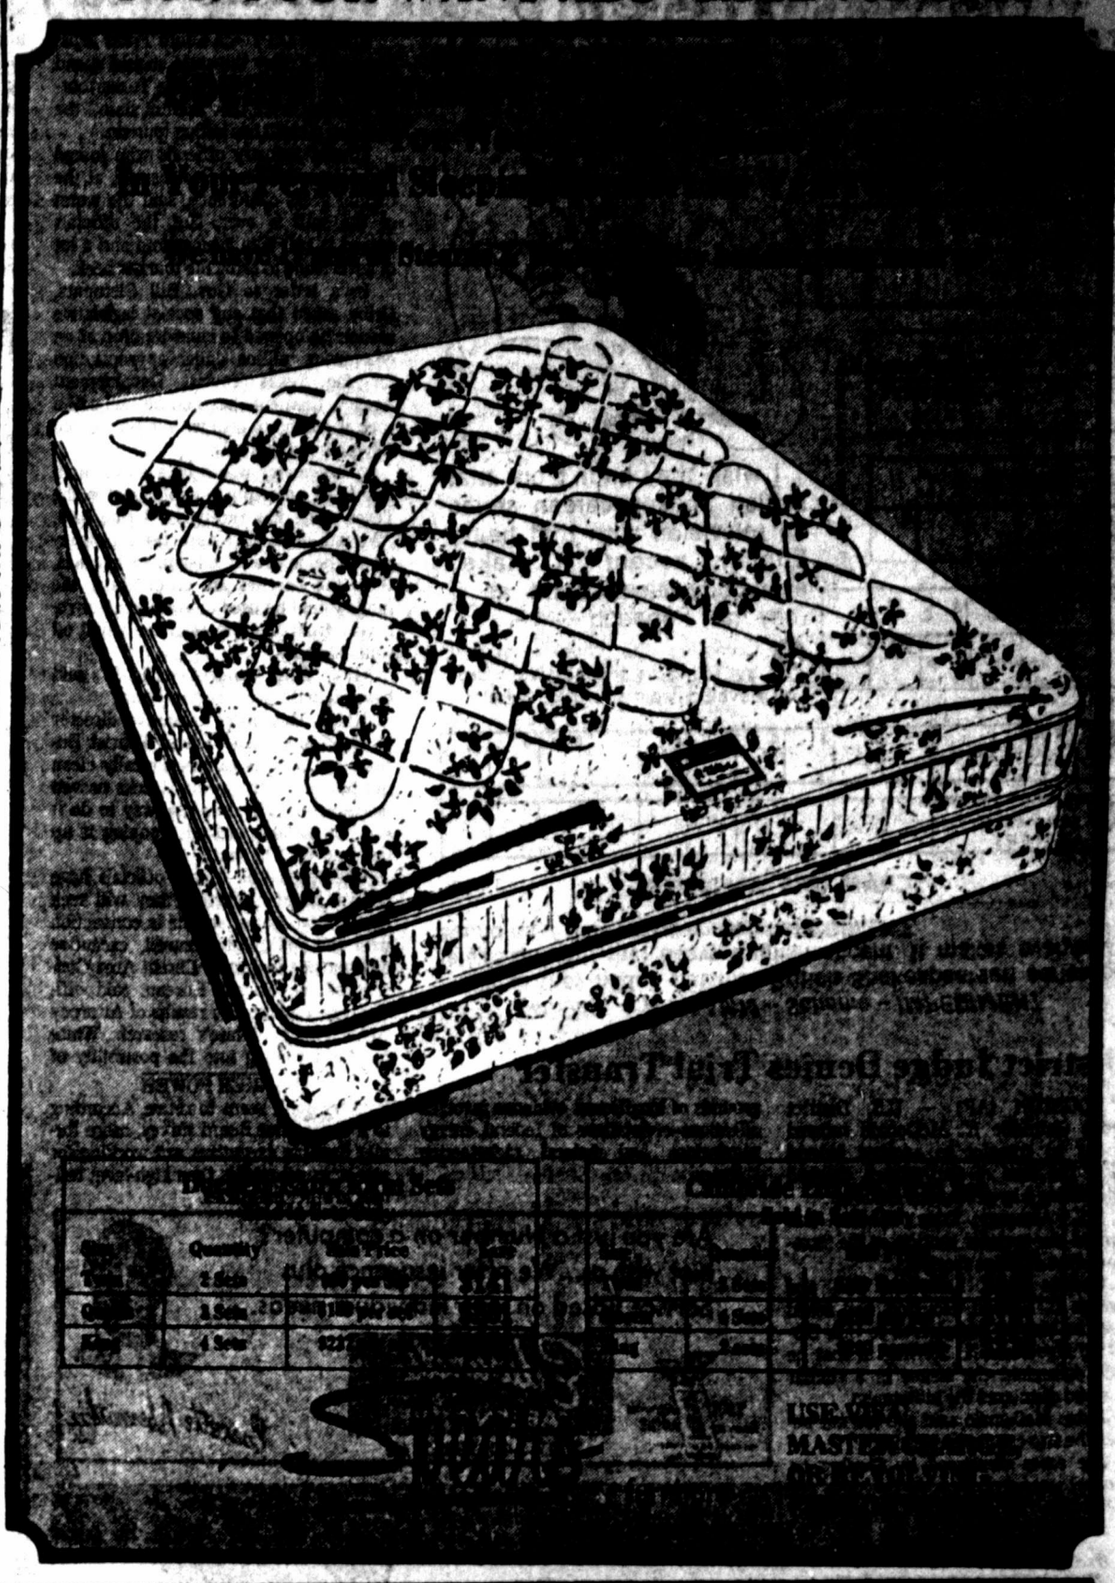

"Solar power is just what we've been praying for," said Tot, who lives with another widow named Edie. (Neither claims to have a second name.)

"You've got no idea what a bugbear it is depending on a generator. We might even get television to go with it (solar power)," said Tot.

Texas May Spend $1 Million On Oil Mess

AUSTIN (AP) — A South Texas legislator said Friday the state should spend a million dollars to help the Texas tourist industry erase the "mental stain" the Mexican oil spill has left on tourists.

Tourist industry officials who joined Rep Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, at the Capital press conference, said the worst of the spill is over. But the officials agreed it will take a long time and a lot of advertising to bring the tourists back.

In a letter to Gov. Bill Clements, Uribe asked that any special legislative session be opened to consideration of an emergency million dollar appropriation for the Texas Tourist Development Agency. Clements has said he will call a special session to deal with initiative and referendum proposals.

"This money would be used to counteract the unfortunate publicity that the Texas coast has received," Uribe said. "We will need extra advertising to overcome the image of oil-stained beaches. Once the beaches are clean again, the funds would be used to announce our recovery from the effects of the worst oil spill in history."

Gulf Coast tourist officials said beaches in the area are now clean.

Ralph Thompson, executive director of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau, said efforts to mechanically clean the beaches with vacuum trucks proved inadequate. "The only real way to do it was the tedious task of scooping it up with shovels," he said.

Thompson said tourist officials have not yet decided whether they will seek legal action against anyone in connection with the spill. Bob Conwell, executive director of the Corpus Christi Area Convention and Tourist Bureau, said officials are awaiting the results of Attorney General Mark White's research. White has been looking into the possibility of litigation.

The oil has been drifting toward Texas beaches since a Mexican well blew out on June 3. The well has not yet been capped. But Conwell said he was told by Coast Guard officials that the northward flow of the oil has been stopped by the seasonal change in Gulf currents.

"The worst of the situation is now over," Conwell said at the press conference. Thompson added, "We're optimistic we're not going to get any more oil."

Conwell proposed a public relations campaign to convince tourists they are "not apt to get gummed up in Mexican oil if they venture out to the Texas coast."

Thompson said the industry may try to reap some benefit from negative publicity about the spill. He suggested a campaign stating: "Remember us? We've been in the news lately. We're still here and we're better than ever."

The South Padre Island Tourist Bureau now plans to proceed with its $60,000 fall and winter ad campaign, Thompson said. That campaign, aimed at midwesterners and Canadians, will not mention the oil spill. Thompson said the campaign is meant for winter visitors who are looking for warm weather — not clean beaches.

The bureau is also planning a SunDial— a toll-free telephone number that will give tourists updates on the beach conditions.

Bankers don't seem to retire. According to a Conference Board survey, more former banking executives are working for pay or as volunteers than high-level retirees in other industries.

Roloff Home Reopens With New Name

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff once again is running an unlicensed home for girls.

About 50 of the girls who left his Rebekah Home this summer returned Thursday in a tearful reunion with Roloff and several hundred of his supporters.

"That's their home," Roloff said of the facility the girls left in June. "They're going to sleep in their home. We believe we're doing what's right."

Roloff was forced to close the home and turn out the 180 girls after a confrontation with state officials who wanted to inspect the homes. Roloff has refused to bow to state licensing rules and claims it would violate the doctrine of church-state separation.

The evangelist claims the home is under direction of the People's Baptist Church, instead of the Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises, Inc. As a church facility, he said, it is exempt from state licensing.

State Department of Human Resources personnel are monitoring the situation, Attorney General Mark White said in a telephone interview.

White said from El Paso that he needed to examine the situation closely before any action possibly would be ordered.

The "prisoners of war," as Roloff dubbed the girls, left early Wednesday on a bus from Culloden, Ga., after a "summer of sadness" as one girl put it.

The other girls who left after the home was closed are scattered across the country, Roloff said.

"I knew all along we would be back. On the bus we were singing, praying and praising the Lord," said one girl during a banquet Thursday night.

Roloff said he plans to expand the Rebekah Home gradually, adding, "I could take in 500 girls just in the next few days" if he wanted to.

Nueces County Attorney Mike Westergren said Roloff's restructuring of the home, church and evangelical operation is meaningless.

"If he is doing conduct which falls within the meaning of a 24-hour care of children," he should be required to get a license, Westergren said.

Roloff estimated about $5 million worth of property has been shifted from the evangelistic enterprise to the church.

"We're doing what we believe is the right thing to do," he said. "We believe the church is free to take care of widows and children."

He emphasized he has made no deals with state officials and he said the homes will not be licensed.

"We will meet it as it comes up," he said of possible state inspection attempts.

District Judge Denies Trial Transfer

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gabrielle K. McDonald refused Friday to transfer to another federal judge the case of two oilmen charged with selling a by-product as crude oil.

U.S. Attorney Tony Canales had termed the transfer motion as the "rankest" type of judge shopping.

Charles Goss, Lafayette, La., and George C. Benson, Houston, had asked that the case be transferred to U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling in that he had researched the issues in a similar case and dismissed the indictment.

Judge McDonald said she did not believe the two cases were similar.

The cases dismissed by Sterling on grounds of insufficient evidence involved alleations ofviolations of federal energy regulations and federal racketeering statutes.

Hospital Has Funds To Last Through October

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Money owed to Health Sciences Center Hospital by patients who haven't paid their bills is still rising, amounting to $9.2 million at the end of August.

But all the news isn't bad.

Despite earlier predictions that the hospital might run out of cash by early fall, the management firm hired to run the hospital during its crisis period is predicting it will make it through September and October after all.

Members of the Lubbock County Hospital District Finacne Committee met Friday, spending three and one-half hour poring over the hospital's financial situation. Committee members were told the present $9.2 million accounts receivable figure, as well as that $5.7 million of that is owed by uninsured and out-of-county patients.

Finance director Tom Kearney said that problems with out-of-county patients who cannot pay their bills continue, even though the board has recently publicized that non-paying patients from outside Lubbock County will not be admitted unless they are emergencies.

And about 43 percent of patients who are admitted to Health Sciences still cannot or will not pay their bills, Kearney said after the meeting, contributing to the growing amount in accounts receivable.

Finance committee chairman C. Wayne Smith reported several months ago that available funds would dry up by late August if the hospital continued to operate at its then current rate of loss. That projection was made without taking into consideration any cost containment measures or alternate sources of revenue.

Kearney reported that the hospital collected $307,000 this month as of Sept. 12 — another improvement over past collection figures.

Brookwood Management Services was hired to help straighten out the problems since that projection was first made. The hospital's cash flow has been improving steadily since the group took over Aug. 1 and the hospital billed for services amounting to $1.8 million during their first month.

Brookwood's Kearney told committee members that the cash situations would remain close through September and October, but that available cash should start to climb again in November and December.

December should be the first month to reflect efforts by recently hired collection agency to clear up the backlog of unpaid bills, Kearney said. If that prediction holds true, accounts receivable should decrease and available cash should increase.

In other business, committee members started the process of choosing a firm to audit the hospital's accounts. The emphasis was on speed, with committee members agreeing that the audit needs to be available for examination as soon as possible.

The group agreed to invite three local firms and two nationally-known firms to make presentations for the project. Committee members warned against spending too much for the audit in light of the hospital's cash situation — but Smith added that he has seen businesses declare bankruptcy as the result of too little auditing.

Possible EMS Takeover Discussed

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The owner of Aid Ambulance appeared before the county hospital district's administrative committee Friday afternoon to discuss a possible takeover of the district's Emergency Medical Services.

But owner David Ehler still maintains that EMS is a valuable service as it is current run, and that he will only consider taking over the operation to protect his own company's non-emergency ambulance transfer service.

"I think they're really after us," Ehler told reporters after his hour-long session with the committee. Committee chairman Don McInturff has said the group still is only considering the possibility of turning over EMS to a private firm, but Ehler thinks hospital district officials may be too eager to discard responsibility for the service.

Ehler said that after examining some of the EMS files he's not sure they are in as bad financial shape as has been publicized. The problem with EMS, he said, may be that charges are being collected but turned over to Health Sciences Center Hospital's general fund.

Hospital district officials have said several times that they don't really know how much money EMS has collected or what is their percentage of bad debts.

"Why don't we know those figures?" Ehler asked. He said that information needs to be determined before the hospital district plans to turn over EMS to anybody.

"EMS itself is just fine," Ehler said, adding "It's the billing system. Forget all the assumptions."

McInturff said after the meeting that hospital district staff members are running a check on EMS collections and expect to have the statistics ready in about 10 days. He also said that acting EMS director Doak Enabnit had told him that EMS is not in as serious financial shape as board members believe.

Board members also are considering a bid to take over EMS from Medical Services Inc., a private ambulance firm out of Eugene, Ore. The firm has been given a contract to run Amarillo's emergency ambulance service and the group has been negotiating with Fort Worth for a similar arrangement.

Medical Services Inc. is expected to mail a formal proposal for a takeover to board members sometime next week. That proposal is expected to contain a dollar figure to be contributed to the operation yearly by the hospital district to cover the cost of indigent care.

If Ehler decides to submit a bid for the operation, he will turn in a formal proposal by the end of next week. If submitted, the bid will be for the same level of service currently provided by EMS, Ehler said.

In other business, the administrative committee went over existing hospital district insurance policies, hoping to reduce coverage in some cases to contain costs. The committee will sumarize their recommendations on the policies when the Lubbock County Hospital District Board of Managers meets in regular session Monday at 1:30 p.m.

The Grass Everyone's Talking About DIXIE
ELITE OVERSEEDING MIXTURE
A BEAUTIFUL GREEN LAWN FOR ALL SEASONS
The STORY BEHIND "DIXIE GREEN"
Seven years ago, Dianne & I began looking for a grass that we could overseed our Bermuda with to have a green lawn in the winter. We were tired of having a dormant turf for 5 months out of the year. After all these years of tyring different grasses, we finally heard about & tried the "Dixie Green" After going through one full year in our yard, Dianne and I knew we could recommend "Dixie Green" grass 100%. A beautiful emerald green grass that has almost caused accidents in front of our home. Our lawn has looked like a golf green for the past 2 winters and blended beautifully with the Tex-Turf 10 Bermuda.
Jimmy Foy — Landscape Architect
4502 -80th St., Lubbock
HOW DO I PLANT "DIXIE GREEN"
1. Overseed an existing Bermuda Lawn
a. Scalp, or mow existing lawn or bermuda as low as possible, and pick up the clippings.
b. Apply "Dixie Green" seed with a cyclone or drop type spreader at a rate of 2-4 pounds per 100 sq. ft.
c. Apply fertilizer (Zipp 16-8-8, Fertilome w/iron, or Pax Winterizer, note: DO NOT USE ANY WEED & FEED FERTILIZERS!
d. Water & keep damp for approximately 10 days. Do not allow water to puddle or run.
2. New Yard, Bare Areas Caused by Shade, or No Existing Turf.
a. Rototill soil to a depth of 1½"-2" in order to loosen soil. (Note: some new yards, that have just been prepared by the builder have enough loose soil on top that no tilling is needed.)
b. Rake until a good level seed bed is prepared.
c. Sow, seed, fertilzer, and water as above.
NOTE: The Dixie Green is not meant to take the place of Tex-Turf 10 or any other Bermuda, however, since it is getting too late to have coverage with Bermuda, the "Dixie Green" will give a beautiful lawn this fall & winter, then Bermuda may be sprigged into "Dixie Green" next spring.
3. Mowing?
"Dixie Green" should not require mowing for the period from Dec. 1st through March 1st, unless there is an extended period of unseasonably warm weather.

GRAIN CONSPIRATOR FINED

NEW ORELANS (AP) — Giovanni Rametta, a former grain company executive, has been fined $10,000 and placed on four years probation for conspiring to steal grain worth $90,000. Rametta, a central figure in the New Orleans area grain scandals of the early 1970s, had allegedly fled the country and was living in Europe until he surrendered recently to FBI agents. He pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge under a plea bargaining arrangement and was sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Lansing Mitchell.

A 22-year-old secretary told Lubbock police someone took $1,000 in cash from a metal box in her closet at her 19th Street residence.

Riki Lewis, of 5233 19th St., reported that $500 in cash, $480 in traveler's checks, one roll of dimes, one roll of pennies and an undetermined amount of loose change, was taken from her house some time between noon Wednesday and 10:30 a.m. Friday. She told police that she counted the money Wednesday and noticed $80 was missing from the cash box.

Five persons were taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital early this morning after being injured in two separate fights, one in front of a Lubbock club and other in the 300-block of Avenue W.

In one of the incidents, Bobby McGee, 43, of 313 Ave. V was found lying against a curb on Avenue W about 2:15 a.m. today and was taken to HSCH, where he was treated and released.

Police were told McGee was beaten by a group of white men who began following him and a friend in a light-colored Opel on Brownfield Highway.

The friend said the suspects, numbering about seven, started following them in a car and were yelling at them. He said he drove to another friend's house in the 300-block of Avenue W and went inside to get help when the assailants allegedly pulled McGee out of his car and began kicking him.

The friend called for an ambulance after coming out of the house and finding the suspects gone and McGee lying next to the curb.

Four persons were injured by a knife-wielding man in front of a 19th Street club at about the same time McGee was being assaulted.

Glenda Hill, 20, of 4702 Fourth St., Chris Powers of 5006 53rd St., Apt. 57, Jerry Cunningham, 18, of Route 4, Box 193, Lubbock, and another person, identity unknown, sustained cuts in front of the club during an altercation.

A HSCH spokesman said the victims apparently were treated and released because they were not in the intensive care unit and she could find no record of their being admitted.

Dennis R. Lewis, 22, of Carlsbad, N.M., who was with the victims, told police they had left the club when three white men allegedly tried to run over them in a car. Lewis said his group made a gesture at the men in the car, prompting the suspects to jump out of the vehicle and begin beating Lewis' companions.

Lewis said he attempted to help his friends when one of the suspects displayed a knife, held it to his throat and asked him, "You don't want to get mixed up in this do you?" Lewis reportedly backed off and the armed suspect turned the knife on the four other victims.

The suspects were described as between 18 and 25, going by the first names of Randy, Gene and Jessie.

Police arrested two 16-year-old males shortly before midnight Thursday for allegedly pointing a pistol at a romantic couple stopped at a red light at Sixth Street and University Avenue.

An officer saw the suspects' car and the couple's vehicle at the intersection and then saw one of the cars speed off, according to reports. The officer said he stopped the speeding vehicle in the 2200-block of Fourth Street and was questioning the two juveniles when Mark Monte, 18, of 6107 Lynnhaven Drive and his girlfriend drove up and said the boys had pointed a weapon at them at the intersection.

Monte said he and his girlfriend were kissing at the stop light when the suspects drove up and the driver yelled something at them. Monte said when he told the suspects to mind their own business, the young driver pointed a pistol at them.

Angry San Angeloans Debate Closure Data

SAN ANGELO(UPI) — The turnout of an estimated 700 angry residents Friday forced officials to move an Air Force-hosted hearing on the proposed closure of Goodfellow Air Force Base to a larger facility.

The 10 a.m. hearing was moved from the 150-capacity Central National Bank meeting room to the commodious 1,330-seat city auditorium.

Members of the city's "Goodfellow Air Force Base Blitz Committee," organized to fight closure of the base, citing the potentially damaging effects to the community of more than 70,000.

But an Air Force representative offered a slide presentation and figure-filled explanation of his own illustrating the national benefits to be derived from closure.

Assistant City Manager Stephen Brown drew applause and laughter with his rejoinder to the officials from Washington, D.C., Tyndall AFB, Fla., and Randolph AFB, Texas.

"It may be that the good Lord is trying to tell you something. It's a bright and beautiful day here, and the sun is shining bright over Goodfellow and San Angelo. And that's not the way it is at Corry Station in Florida or at Keesler AFB in Mississippi," Brown said with a smile. The reference was to damage caused both Gulf Coast installations by Thursday's Hurricane Frederic that raked the area.

One Air Force official estimated that damage to Keesler Air Force Base would amount to at least $4 million damage.

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was formed in 1923.

LCC Student 'Critical' Following Accident

A Lubbock Christian College sophomore remained in critical condition Friday evening at Methodist Hospital from injuries suffered when he and another LCC student were struck by a car Thursday night.

Randy Wayne Phillips, 19, of 8013 Dover Ave. received head injuries and a chipped pelvis when he and Richard Glen Russell, 18, of No. 160 Johnson Hall, LCC campus, were stuck by a westbound car as they ran northeast across the intersection of 26th Street and Dover Avenue about 9:20 p.m. Thursday.

Russell was treated and released from Methodist Hospital.

The driver of the car, Lori Dianne King, 20, another LCC student, was uninjured in the mishap.

Phillips, an offensive lineman for LCC's first season football team, was knocked 50 feet from the intersection, police reports indicate.

Witnesses said the accident happened as the two men, who are members of Toma Dachi, an LCC social organization, were leaving a house at 5500 26th St. after instructing club pledges about pledge week activities.

Cardinal Studies Polish

O FIAICH JOHN PAUL II

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Cardinal Tomas O Fiaich, Roman Catholic primate of Ireland, is taking a crash course in Polish so he can greet Pope John Paul II in his native language when he arrives here on a three-day visit at the end of the month.

Church officials disclosed that the cardinal is being helped by a group of Polish-born priests studying in the Irish Republic.

A specially made two-acre carpet, made in neighboring Northern Ireland, arrived Thursday. It will be placed in Dublin's Phoenix Park, where the pope will say Mass on Sept. 29.

A government official said all sporting events that day, including a major meet at the Curragh race course, were canceled as a mark of respect for the papal visitor.

La Lanne Plans Barge Tow

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Physical fitness buff Jack La Lanne says he will celebrate his 65th birthday by swiming a mile in shackles, with 65 boats containing 6,500 pounds of wood pulp in tow.

La Lanne said Thursday that he will attempt the feat on Oct. 15 at Lake Hakone, near Mount Fuji in Japan. He turns 65 on Sept. 26 but did not say why the swim will not take place on that date.

In 1976, La Lanne towed 13 boats through the San Diego harbor. The year before he swam from Marin County to San Francisco, shackled and towing a one-ton boat.

Earlier, he swam from Alcatraz Island to San Francisco, through the waters of San Francisco Bay.

Disco May Get Fed Money

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A federal official thinks it's a "very unusual request" but has agreed to relay a Pittsfield group's application for a federally financed disco club.

The non-alcoholic disco has been proposed as a way to deter 17-to 20-year-olds from making a dangerous drive over mountains to New York state, where the drinking age is two years lower than Massachusetts limit of 20.

David Jameson, of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, held a public hearing Thursday on the request by the Berkshire Union of Community Organizations.

Jameson was told that even if one life was saved, the money would be worth it. Said Jameson: "I am impressed with what I've heard."

Candidate May Be 'None'

Knox, a Winnsboro timberman, asked the secretary of state's office Thursday to list his name as "None of the Above" on the Oct. 27 primary ballot.

"This would give the people a true choice," said Knox, one of nine candidates for governor. "People should have the right to reject candidates, too."

But the secretary of state's office said Friday that the election code probably wouldn't permit such a listing.

Cook Remembers 'Jimmy'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The last time Ozzie Mencey King saw Jimmy Carter, the president was a 9-year-old schoolboy in Plains, Ga.

"I clapped and clapped when I saw Jimmy this morning," the 63-year-old retired cook said Wednesday after hearing President Carter address a regional health care conference at the Hartford Civic Center.

"I never thought he'd become president of the United States. It's just too hard to believe," said Mrs. King of Hartford, who said she worked for about a year as a cook for the Earl Carter family when she was 17.

Dogs Biting Politicians

SEATTLE (AP) — Man's best friends in Seattle are putting the bite on local politicians.

A candiate for tax assessor got nipped. So did a couple of guys running for the City Council. And they can't kick back.

"You aren't going to get their vote if you kick their dogs," said Hank McGuire, a candidate for King County assessor, who said he has alrkeady been bitten once while knocking on doors seeking votes.

"There was this little tiny one on a tiny chain," McGuire said. "I was afraid I would step on it, when it glommed onto my shoe and I had to shake it loose."

Vote For Kennedy, If...

NEW YORK (AP) — Lillian Carter says she would vote for Edward Kennedy for president if he should win the Democratic nomination over her son.

President Carter's mother, during a visit to New York City on Thursday, said the Massacushetts senator would get her vote "if he is decent and kind as he's always been" and did not get the nomination by way of personal attacks against her son.

But Miss Lillian said that's all just speculation, pointing out that Kennedy has not yet announced his candidacy.

"I wish he wouldn't run. I'd hate to see him get beat," Mrs. Carter said of the Massachusetts politician. "I like the Kennedys."

She also said she had no regrets about her comment last week that if Kennedy ran for president she hoped nothing would happen to him. Two of Kennedy's brothers were assassinated.

Mrs. Carter said she mentioned it out of motherly concern and that reporters covering that event "had to pick out something, so they took it out of the clear blue sky."

"I worked for John and Bobby (Kennedy) both," she said. "I adore them, and I like Ted and I think the first thought that comes into any mother's mind is I hope to goodness nothing happens to any of the rest."

"It was an inadvertent speech, but I couldn't take it back," she said.

Nixon Admits 'Disaster'

NIXON

NEW YORK (AP) — In one of the strongest statements he has made on the subject, former President Richard M. Nixon says history "will justifiably record" that his handling of Watergate was "an unmitigated disaster."

The admission is contained in a new introduction to his 1962 book "Six Crises," which is to be re-issued next month. Nixon called Watergate, which happened after he wrote the book, "the longest lasting (ordeal) and by far the most grueling of all."

"History will justifiably record that my handling of the Watergate crisis was an unmitigated disaster," Nixon writes. "After going through the six crises described in this volume, I failed to apply the lessons of the past to the problems of the present and the future."

Utah Eyes State Fossil

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The allosaurus may join the sego lily, blue spruce and the California gull in the hearts of Utah residents.

Utah already has an official flower, tree and bird. What it doesn't have is a state fossil, but Utah Historical Society is out to change that.

The society is conducting a poll to see which of the fossils commonly found in Utah is dearest in the hearts of the public.

Allosaurus, a 40-foot dangerous reptile from the Jurassic Age, is one nominee. Others suggested by the society include arctodus, a giant bear that lived 12,000 years ago and may have stood 12 feet tall, and camelops, a camel that lived in Salt Lake and Millard counties 14,000 years ago.

Inn Takes 'Revenge'

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP) — After a wait of more than 200 years, the King George II Inn has taken its "revenge."

According to legend, the inn was fired on by the cannons of John Paul Jones' first ship during the Revolutionary War.

On Thursday, the inn fired back with a borrowed cannon, at the Providence, a replica of Jones' ship — the first U.S. naval vessel — when it sailed up the Delaware River for a two-day visit near this historic Bucks County community.

Thursday's blank volley was part of a friendly welcome for the 110-foot-long sloop, which carries 3,470 square feet of sail.

The ship "fired" back three times.

Inmate Turns 103

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — On his 103rd birthday, John Davis cut the cake and praised the Lord and accepted kisses behind bars. He's the oldest prison inmate in South Carolina and perhaps anywhere.

A group of beauticians, who have helped "Uncle John" celebrate his birthday for years, was on hand for the party Thursday at a minimum security center where the spry inmate has lived since the early 1970s.

The 30 young women, students at Columbia's Waverly School of Beauty, filed past Davis, giving him small cash gifts and singing his special request — "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Several planted kisses on his bald head.

"If you have faith in the man upstairs, then you'll always be taken care of," said Davis.

He has been in prison for most of the past 57 years. He was sentenced to a life term in 1922 after he was convicted of burglary, an offense that at the time could have carried the death penalty.

FIRST WORK DAY FATAL

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 35-year-old construction worker, his first day on the job and his birthday as well, was killed instantly when a pulley at Bethlehem Steel's Sparrows Point plant fell 60 feet and struck him on the head, authorities said. John E. Zimnawoda of Pasadena was helping with the construction of a new coke oven at the plant when the accident occurred Thursday. Zimnawoda, father of two, was the national dart throwing champion in 1978 and represented the United States in world competition in England.

Strikers Freed, Return To School

Eleven leaders of a week-long teachers strike in Anchorage, Alaska, returned to school from their prison cells Friday to prepare for the opening of classes for 38,000 students.

Meanwhile, teachers in a second Illinois school district faced wholesale firings for remaining on the picket line in defiance of a warning from their school board.

Across the nation, strikes by 40,455 teachers continued to disrupt classes for 820,940 students in 12 states — Alabama, California, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Washington.

Anchorage teachers agreed to end their walkout after the 11 strike leaders were released from jail Thursday by order of Superior Court Judge Victor Carlson. He had ordered them jailed Wednesday for failing to halt the strike by 1,450 of the district's 1,900 teachers.

The Anchorage Education Association agreed with school officials to resume contract negotiations until Oct. 1 and to return to the schools for in-service training Friday in preparation of the opening of classes Monday.

In Illinois 148 of the 158 teachers in the Chicago suburb of Elmwood Park remained on the picket lines at a high school and three elementary schools despite the threat of dismissals. The strike started Aug. 28 in a dispute over wages and has delayed the start of classes for 2,700 students.

"We expect that our jobs will be vacated," said Kathy Lamkey, chief union negotiatior as the board met Friday to decide whether to order the firings.

On Thursday, 85 of the 110 teachers in the Robinson, Ill., school district were fired by the school board for defying a back-to-work court order issued two days earlier.

In Michigan, state mediator Robert B. Blackwell said he believed the 5-day-old strike by 12,000 Detroit teachers could be resolved "sometime this weekend." The teachers are seeking contract changes providing for cost-of-living increases and their strike has kept 180,000 students away from classes.

Michigan has been hit hardest by this year's round of teacher strikes. The state has 19,770 teachers on strike in 20 districts, affecting 342,640 students.

A tentative contract settlement was announced in Eugene, Ore., following all-night bargaining. The 1,200 teachers scheduled a meeting for Friday to decide whether to end their 9-day-old walkout and resume classes for the district's 19,000 students.

Fall Of Bridge Traps Woman

HAVERHILL, N.H. (AP) — A covered footbridge spanning the Connecticut River between New Hampshire and Vermont collapsed in a rainstorm Friday night, trapping at least one person, police said.

A dispatcher for the Grafton County Sheriff's office said a "small army" of rescue workers went to the bridge, pulling a woman from the splintered remains of the 113-year-old span.

The woman, who was not identified, was taken to a hospital with minor injuries, the dispatcher said. No other injuries were reported.

County officials said the people on the 396-foot bridge at the time of the collapse were practicing for a wedding. The injured woman was not the bride, the sheriff's office said.

The rainstorm was spawned by the remnants of Hurricane Frederic, which brought heavy rains and high winds to parts of the Midwest and Northeast on Friday.

Eight persons were on the bridge when it fell in a severe storm at about 7 p.m., said the sheriff's dispatcher, who asked not to be identified.

Winds of up to 50 mph were recorded in Vermont at the time of the collapse.

In early August, the state dedicated Bedell Bridge State Park following restoration of the footbridge, said George Gilman, commissioner of the state Department of Resources and Economic Development.

New Hampshire had originally proposed the pedestrian bridge be removed, but a private group raised enough funds to restore the wooden span.

Recession Termed 'Halfway Through'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Friday he thinks the current recession is half over, but predicted that unemployment will rise above 7 percent next year, higher than the Carter administration had forecast previously.

The likelihood that unemployment will keep rising was underlined in a report that showed the nation's industrial output plummeted 1.1 percent in August, the first decline since April.

Production declined in most industries during the month, including household goods and autos, where output was down 15 percent to an annual rate of 7.5 million vehicles. Declining production leads to job layoffs.

6 Percent Jobless

Unemployment stood at 6 percent of the labor force in August, and the administration previously had said it would rise no higher than 6.9 percent by the end of next year.

While the difference between 6.9 percent and 7 percent isn't great — about 100,000 jobs — Miller's estimate shows the administration has started to retreat from its more optimistic projection. He said he didn't know how much above 7 percent the jobless rate would go.

A 7 percent jobless rate means 7 million people would be out of work. An unofficial internal administration foreast says unemployment could reach 8.2 percent in 1980, which would mean more than 8 million people would be out of work.

Peak 9 Percent

The peak unemployment rate during the last recession in 1974-1975, which was the worst downturn since the depression, was 9 percent.

In separate remarks to reporters and to a group of businessmen, Miller repeated earlier statements that he believes the nation is in a recession. He said it started in the second quarter of this year, when the nation's gross national product declined at an annual rate of 2.4 percent.

But he said he thinks the recession will be mild, and will last only a few more months. "I believe we are halfway through it," he said.

Because the recession is expected to be mild, Miller said he opposes a tax reduction to help bring it to a quick end.

"Fiscal Austerity"

"I do not see conditions now to justify departing from our commitment for a fiscal austerity," he said. "At the moment, it would be inappropriate to consider a tax cut."

Miller also all but ruled out the possibility that Carter can achieve his goal of submitting a realistic balanced budget for fiscal 1981. He said the recession will result in lower tax receipts at the same time that spending increases for such things as unemployment insurance and welfare benefits.

In answer to a question, Miller said he continues to oppose mandatory wage and price controls, declaring they "will not happen in his administration."

Gradual Reduction

Miller said the only way inflation can be contained is to follow policies to reduce it gradually by between one-half percentage point to a full percentage point a year.

Asked if Carter could be re-elected in a period of recession and high inflation, Miller said Carter will not try to seek short-term solutions, which he said would wreck the economy, in order to get elected.

"A president who runs on false promises wil be nothing but a demagogue," he said. "This president will run on substance."

Although Miller says the nation is in a recession, and most economists agree, the authoritative determination of whether a recession has actually begun will be made by the National Bureau of Economic Research, an economic research organization based in Cambridge, Mass.

The bureau's business cycle dating committee met on July 26 to consider whether a recession was occurring, but decided it was too early to say. It will meet again on Oct. 25.

In its report on August industrial output, the Federal Reserve Board said production of consumer durable goods, or goods lasting at least three years, was down 5.4 percent in August, the third straight month of decline. The decline in auto and truck output was a major cause, but production of household goods, such as carpeting, furniture and appliances, was also down.

One governemnt economist thought the decline in output contained a bit of good news along with the bad.

"Acting now to avert an unmanageable buildup of goods on the shelf will avoid the need for even larger production cutbacks and layoffs later," said Albert Cox, deputy chief economist for the Commerce Department.

Industrial Production Plunges; Household Goods, Autos Slump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's industrial output plunged 1.1 percent in August — the first drop since April — as production of autos and household goods slumped sharply, the government said Friday.

The falloff in virtually every industrial sector reflects the nation's slide into a recession and could presage future layoffs, but some economists saw a bit of good news behind the figures.

"Acting now to avert an unmanageable buildup of goods on the shelf will avoid the need for even larger production cutbacks and layoffs later," William Cox, deputy chief economist at the Commerce Department.

"There's no way to avoid layoffs, but production cutbacks now in response to sluggish consumer demand may mean a more orderly recession," added Robert Gough, an economist for Data Resources Inc., the Cambridge, Mass., forecasting firm.

While agreeing with that assessement, Michael Evans of the Washington-based Evans Economics, stressed the bad news. "This is tangible proof we can't sugar coat the recession. It's going to be worse than many people think."

He said the slumping industrial production "clinches" his prediction that overall economic growth in the third quarter will be "down substantially."

Inventories have been building up at worrisome levels, increasing another 1.9 percent in July, the Commerce Department reported earlier this week.

Retail sales, meanwhile, have remained sluggish for months. And unemployment has increased from 5.7 percent to 6 percent.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Friday that output of long-lasting consumer goods plummeted 5.4 percent in August, following 1.7 and 1.2 percent declines in July and June, respectively.

Auto and van production fell about 15 percent as carmakers sold off huge inventories of 1979 models with discount programs to dealers and rebates directly to consumers.

"Auto assemblies, at a 7.5 million unit annual rate in August, are tentatively scheduled to increase in September," the board said. "But assemblies are expected to remain well below the annual rate of 8.9 million units in the first half of the year."

The board reported that production of other durable goods, including carpeting, furniture and appliances also plunged.

"Production declines were relatively uniform; they were everywhere last month," Cox said. The sharp drop in automaking, he added, is being felt now in other industries that rely heavily on Detroit.

August's performance left the overall index of industrial production at 150.9 percent of the 1967 average, compared with 152.6 percent in July.

Non-durable goods output slipped 0.7 percent, the largest decrease since April. Business equipment production fell 0.8 percent, the first decline since April.

The production of basic materials used by industry slumped 1 percent while intermediate products declined 0.2 percent, the board said.

August's overall production decline compares unfavorably with July's 0.1 percent increase. The last time output fell overall was in April.

Huge Loss Felt On Gulf Coast

shocked at what he saw in the city where he has lived all his life under many a storm.

"There's so much devastation words can't describe it," said Delmas, one of the 15,000 employees of heavily-damaged Ingalls Shipyard. "I'd say 98 percent of the homes are damaged. We lost all those old live oaks, 125 and 150 years old. It's just unbelievable."

At University Medical Center, a spokesman reported a "continuous" stream of people seeking treatment for injuries — most from being "hit by things" such as falling limbs while attempting cleanup.

Thousands of people were still isolated from their homes because of damage or fallen trees on roadways. Civil Defense officials urged evacuees not to attempt reaching their homes unless they felt certain the houses were habitable.

One of two ice houses in the area managed to get a supply of ice from New Orleans. Nearly 200 people were lined up to buy ice when the curfew time came at 7 p.m. Police ordered them to go home. Some refused.

"We invited them to step into the paddy wagon," said a policeman who did not want to be identified. "Nobody stayed."

Riflemen Fire Into Crowd

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Sharpshooters fired from atop a police building into a crowd of about 1,000 anti-government demonstrators in a downtown square Friday. Hospital officials reported two persons killed and at least 30 wounded.

Witnesses said some of the left-wing demonstrators drew pistols and shot back at the riflemen on the roof of the Transit Police Building.

Among the wounded was Kathy Barber, a correspondent for ABC News who was struck in the left wrist by a bullet fragment. She was flown out of El Salvador on a chartered flight later in the day to Miami, Fla., where she was reported in satisfactory condition.

The bloody clash came on the eve of the 138th anniversary of this small Central American country's independence from Spanish rule.

President Carlos Humberto Romero's military-backed government canceled independence day ceremonies that had been scheduled today and the president held an emergency meeting with Cabinet ministers and police officials. Authorities declined comment on the street battle.

Demonstrators overturned and set afire about two dozen vehicles, including a van rented by the CBS news team here and seven buses. A pall of smoke hung over the area around Cuscatlan Park, where the rally had been held. Streets were littered with abandoned yellow and red banners of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, whch called the demonstration to demand that Romero resign.

Even though today's official ceremonies were called off, security forces prepared for more violence, with three large left-wing groups including the bloc calling for demonstrations.

fight crime in Lubbock."

Commission member Joan Ervin said that publicizing the positive aspect of Montford's work "is a good opportunity for us (HRC) to get involved."

She suggested that Montford meet with minorities through the cooperation of church leaders from both black and Mexican-American communities. She added that the HRC ought to have full representation at the meeting, to be arranged by new HRC director Carolyn Lanier.

In other business, members re-elected Theron Cole as HRC chairman and elected Bill Crouch as vice chairman and Ida Alfaro as secretary.

after almost five full days of considering cases, did return a capital murder indictment against Alvis Ray Sanders, 29, of 513 Ave. C.

Sanders, originally charged with murder, was arrested for the throat-slashing death of Paul Raymond Benton, 74, after police received a tip from anonymous callers to Crime Line Inc.

Police theorize Benton was killed Aug. 20 after his 2311 Eighth St. residence was burglarized and he was robbed.

Seven other murder indictments also were among the 131 true bills handed down Friday afternoon by the panel.

Fred Everline, 61, of 513 Ave. C, was indicted for murder in the Aug. 17 shooting death of his neighbor, Marcus "L.K." Holmes Holmes, 59, of 510 Ave. C, died from a .22-caliber bullet wound in the chest.

Jerald Salazar Andrade, 23, of 2410 N. Paris Ave., was indicted for murder in connection with the shooting death of 23-year-old Robert Flores Prado. Prado, of 2513 Amherst Ave., suffered a .22-caliber gunshot wound to the upper left shoulder during an incident in the 2400 block of Clovis Road early Aug. 19.

A murder indictment was returned against Lawrence Victor McLin Jr., accused of shooting Billy Joe Scott, 23, of 3009 E. Third St., outside of a Parkway Drive bar on Aug. 25. McLin, 31, of 2605 E. Bates St., was arrested the day after the shooting.

In connection with the Sept. 1 shooting death of a former Lubbock police officer outside an Avenue Q bar, Warren August Mack was indicted for murder. Mack, 35, of 907 Adrian, allegedly shot 36-year-old Jerry Wayne Plunkett after the two men had argued earlier in the evening inside the club.

Armando Flores Trevino, 21, of Carlisle was indicted for the Sept. 3 murder of Joe Salas Garcia, 24, also of Carlisle. Garcia was shot twice as he was standing in the driveway of a Carlisle residence.

Nathaniel McDade, 25, of 1515 Ave. C, Apt. 34, also was indicted for murder in connection with the Sept. 8 shooting death of Lee Arthur Welch, 37, of 2204 Cedar Ave. When police arrived at 400 17th St. they found Welch, who first was identified as Arthur Lee Jones by a social security card he was carrying, lying on the ground with a bullet wound above his left eye.

The final murder indictment handed down by the panel was against 26-year-old Davey Roland Burks, accused of shooting to death his father, Chester D. Burks, 63, of 1122 96th St., on Sept. 9. The younger Burks, of Route 9, Box 101, Lubbock, was arrested shortly after sheriff's deputies arrived at the elder Burks's home, where the shooting occurred.

Also Friday, the grand jury indicted two Lubbockites for the Sept. 3 aggravated robbery of an 802 Ave. Q convenience store. Valton Donnell Lewis, 22, of 311 51st St., and Cecilia Munoz Richardson, 25, of 2220 Second Place, were charged with the offense after authorities identified them from "Crime Eye" camera pictures taken during the holdup.

Lewis was arrested just two days after he was formally charged when police received a tip from a Crime Line Inc. caller telling authorities of the alleged bandit's whereabouts. Mrs. Richardson voluntarily surrendered to police the day after Lewis's arrest.

The grand jury refused to indict, or no-billed, Maria Rodriques, 23, of 2710 Bates St., charged with theft; C.D. Neel Jr., 19, of Route 9, Box 54, Lubbock, charged with failure to stop and render aid; and Juan Ortiz Jr., 18, of Littlefield, charged with burglary of a vehicle.

Cases against two El Paso men charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle, Fred Perez Medina, 19, and Martin James Chadwick, 20, were dismissed by the grand jury at the request of the complaining witness.

Cases passed by the panel for future consideration include an aggravated assault charge against Armando Ybarra, 18, of 2615 First Place; an attempted murder charge filed against Rudy Garcia, age and address unavailable; and an aggravated robbery charge against Alexander Perry, 23, of 1806-B 20th St.

GRAND JURY INDICTMENTS

thank God."

The GM vice president seemed to indicate the company won further restrictions on absenteeism. "I hope we'll be able to improve the attendance of our employees," he said.

A statement early Friday by a UAW spokesman that the two sides had not made much progress overnight contrasted with the general optimism that prevailed Thursday.

But company spokesmen at midday said the negotiators had not slept since the marathon session began at 6 p.m. Thursday — as Fraser had said they might "if the momentum isn't there." For the third meal in a row, the negotiators ate lunch Friday in the bargaining rooms.

The spokesmen for both sides asked not to be identified.

On pensions, the union had sought protection against inflation for members already retired. It dropped an early demand to tie pensions to wages of active workers.

The union's unprecedented strike strategy against General Motors, this year's target, called for shutting 13 of 26 car and truck assembly plants, 32 of 43 parts warehouses and a locomotive factory.

Some 95,350 of GM's 460,000 UAW members would strike, affecting half of planned 1980 car production, including the more popular models.

Talmadge 'Denounced'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee voted unanimously on Friday to denounce Sen. Herman E. Talmadge for financial misconduct and said its findings would be turned over to the Justice Department for possible federal prosecution.

The committee ended a 14-month investigation by issuing a statement which said the Georgia Democrat's conduct was "reprehensible."

Further, the panel's six members said, Talmadge was guilty of "gross neglect of his duty to faithfully and carefully administer the affairs of his office."

The committee found that Talmadge's actions in handling government funds "is reprehensible and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute and is hereby denounced."

Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculuture Committee and one of the Senate's most influential members, said he considered the committee's decision to be a "personal victory."

The senator found comfort in the fact that the committee rejected by a 5-1 vote a proposal that he be censured.

"I think that vindicates me completely of whether I knew of these errors in my office," he said.

"I am guilty of no intentional wrongdoing," he said, declaring he is confident of winning re-election to a fifth Senate term.

He conceded negligence, however, in overseeing "certain aspects of my office."

The Talmadge case will now go to the full Senate, which must decide whether to accept the committee's recommendation for Talmadge's penalty, which includes no loss of seniority or privilege.

Seven senators have either been censured or condemned by the Senate. The most recent was Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., who was censured in 1967 for various financial misconduct charges.

Talmadge is currently running a vigorous campaign for re-election to his fifth Senate term.

Specifically, the committee found that Talmadge:

—Failed to report more than $10,000 in campaign contributions that were deposited in a secret bank account established by Daniel Minchew, his chief aide from 1971 to 1974.

Minchew testified under oath that the account was established with Talmadge's agreement as a means of providing him with personal expense funds. In all some $39,000 was funneled through the account in 1973 and 1974.

—Made false claims for Senate expense totalling $43,435.

Talmadge, 66, has repaid the Senate for some of the funds, blaming staff error for the over-reimbursements. But the committee said he would have to repay the Senate an additional $12,894, which was also deposited in the secret bank account.

Talmadge indicated he might refuse to repay the $12,894, contending it was all embezzled by Minchew.

The committee said Talmadge "knew or should have known," about the existence of the secret account and the deposits of campaign contributions and Senate expense funds.

—Filed false campaign spending reports for his 1974 re-election campaign.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., the committee chairman, said a vote proposing that Talmadge be censured for his actions was defeated 5-1.

Censure, defined in the American Heritage Dictionary as "severe criticism," is generally understood to be the most severe penalty the committee could have recommended.

The dictionary defines denounce as "to condemn openly; censure, especially as evil."

Stevenson said he would contact Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to discuss turning over evidence amassed by the committee's lengthy investigation of Talmadge's finances.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., the committee's vice chairman, said, "The evidence of certain facts before the committee, if true, would constitute violations of law."

At issue during three months of hearings into the allegations was whether Talmadge knew of his staff's mishandling of his finances.

Schmitt said he believes committee investigators had shown there was "clear and convincing evidence ... that there was knowledge."

At a news conference, Stevenson was asked if the Democrats in the Senate should strip Talmadge of his seniority and posts as agriculture committee chairman and No. 2 ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee.

"I personally would not favor such a course of action," he said.

The committee said it found insufficient evidence to sustain two lesser charges made against Talmadge.

Dropped were allegations that the senator failed to pay gift taxes on property he gave his former wife Betty and that he failed to report a multimillion-dollar real estate deal to the Senate.

Minchew, the senator's chief accuser, pleaded guilty July 30 to a single federal charge of making false claims for Senate expenses.

He has testified freely against the senator, but it is not known if the same grand jury which investigated Minchew is also considering an indictment of Talmadge.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

FBI Admits Harassing Actress In 1970

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI admitted Friday that in 1970 it spread gossip that actress Jean Seberg, who committed suicide recently, had become pregnant by a member of the Black Panther Party.

The bureau released an internal memorandum which showed that it had sought to discredit Miss Seberg because she supported the Black Nationalist cause.

"It is felt that the possible publication of Seberg's plight could cause her embarrassment and serve to cheapen her image with the general public," the memorandum said.

Her husband at the time, Romain Gary, a French diplomat and author, charged this week that the FBI had destroyed Miss Seberg's life by disseminating the rumor about her pregnancy.

The information about Miss Seberg was distributed by the FBI as part of its counter-intelligence program known as Cointelpro.

In acknowledging the bureau's action, FBI Director William H. Webster asserted Friday that "the days when the FBI used derogatory information to combat advocates of unpopular causes have long since passed. We are out of that business forever."

He said the FBI conducts investigations now only when there have been charges of criminal conduct.

Government documents show that in the memo, dated April 27, 1970, the Los Angeles office of the FBI asked bureau headquarters in Washington for permission "to publicize the pregnancy of Jean Seberg, well-known movie actress ... by advising Hollywood gossip columnists in the Los Angeles area of the situation."

The references to a supposed member of the Black Panther Party who fathered the child were deleted, as was the name of the FBI informant who initially provided the tip to the FBI office in San Francisco.

The Los Angeles office of the FBI suggested that the best way to get the story out would be to have a fictitious person send a note to Hollywood columnists about Miss Seberg. The proposed note would read as follows:

"I was just thinking about you and remembered I still owe you a favor. So I was in Paris last week and ran into Jean Seberg who was heavy with baby. I thought she and Romain had gotten together again but she confided the child belonged to (blank space) of the Black Panthers. The dear girl is getting around."

On May 6, 1970, the FBI, then under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, responded that the idea was a good one.

"But to protect the sensitive source of information from possible compromise and to insure the success of your plan, Bureau feels it would be better to wait approximately two additional months until Seberg's pregnancy would be obvious to everyone," the memo cautioned.

It noted that "Jean Seberg has been a financial supporter of the BPP (Black Panther Party) and should be neutralized. The current pregnancy by (blank space) while still married affords an opportunity for such effort."

On May 19, 1970, the Los Angeles Times published an article by Hollywood gossip columnist Joyce Haber, which referred to an anonymous "Miss A," an international movie star who supported the "Black Revolution" and who "is expecting ... Papa's said to be a rather prominent Black Panther."

The Haber article provided a number of details that matched Miss Seberg's personal and professional life.

Gary, the actress' former husband, charged this week that "Jean Seberg was destroyed by the FBI" because of publication of the rumor. He said that in 1970, while they were in the process of getting a divorce, she read the article.

In an interview earlier this year, Miss Seberg said she was seven months pregnant when she read the article and the shock was so great that it caused her to go into labor immediately and the child was dead at birth.

Gary said that as a result she "became psychotic" and "every year on the anniversary of this stillbirth she has tried to take hr own life."

Gary said he always believed the child was his and he said the child was white.

Miss Seberg's body was found last Saturday night in her car near the Paris apartment he had been sharing with an Algerian actor. She had been missing for nine days and had left a suicide note for her 16-year-old son, Diego.

The cause of death was diagnosed as an overdose of barbiturates that a doctor had prescribed for psychiatric problems.

Miss Seberg was buried in Paris' Montparnasse Cemetery on Friday.

JEAN SEBERG...FBI admits to spreading rumor

About 200 persons, including Gary and two other former husbands of the actress, were present for the funeral service.

Ex-Husband Says Miss Seberg Ruined By FBI

PARIS (AP) — Actress Jean Seberg was buried in a Paris cemetery Friday, a suicide whose self-destructive depression the family blamed on an FBI subterfuge of almost a decade ago.

About 200 persons — friends, relatives, fans and the curious — gathered around the polished-wood casket, wreathed in lilies, daisies and yellow roses, for the service in Montparnasse Cemetery. Among the mourners were her three former husbands, her teen-age son, French actor Jean-Paul Belmondo and Algerian actor Ahmed Hasmi, with whom Miss Seberg had been living before her death.

In Washington Friday, the FBI admitted that in 1970 its agents planted a rumor in a gossip column saying the American film star had become pregnant by a member of the Black Panther Party. The story was put out to "cheapen her image" and thereby "neutralize" her as a financial supporter of the black militants, according to FBI documents.

Miss Seberg said in an interview earlier this year that the shock of reading the story caused her to go into labor immediately, although she was only seven months' pregnant, and to give birth to a stillborn child.

Her second husband, author-diplomat Romain Gary, says the episode made her psychotic, and that she tried to commit suicide every year on the Aug. 25 anniversary of the stillbirth.

The 40-year-old Miss Seberg was found dead of an apparent overdose of barbiturates last Saturday night in her parked automobile here.

Friday's funeral service began with the reading, in English, of a poem she wrote when she was 18: "I went through the woods for a walk in the rain ... and as I walked my soul was freed from pain..."

A priest read prayers and funeral rites in French, then the casket was lowered into the tomb. Friends and family members stepped forward to place pink roses on the coffin.

"The two roses I placed on (her) grave are for her mother and father, who were too upset to come," said Dennis Berry, an American film director who was her third husband.

Miss Seberg, born in Marshalltown, Iowa, the daughter of a pharmacist and a schoolteacher, began her film career in 1956 with the lead role in "Joan of Arc." The following year she starred in "Bonjour Tristesse," and in 1958 married French lawyer Francois Moreuil and moved permanently to France. Her later films included "Breathless," in which she starred with Belmondo.

Experiences in psychiatric institutions after 1970 provided material for her two books, "Blue Jean," an essay on schizophrenia, and "How to Escape Oneself," which gives advice to people considering suicide.

ASSAILANT PLEADS NO CONTEST

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 18-year-old man accused shooting actor Chuck Connors' son has pleaded no contest in Superior Court. Alfred W. Humphrey of Los Angeles entered the plea Wednesday to charges of armed robbery, using a firearm while committing a crime and inflicting great bodily injury. He will be sentenced Oct. 10. Jeffrey Connors, 26, shot March 29, has since recovered.

Doctor Certain About Presley's Heart Problems

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A Shelby County medical examiner said Friday that he had not changed his mind about Elvis Presley's death despite allegations that the entertainer died of a drug overdose.

"In our judgment the death was due to heart problems," Dr. Jerry T. Francisco said Friday as he answered questions about allegations made Thursday night on the ABC-TV program "20-20."

During the program, correspondent Geraldo Rivera accused Francisco of participating in a coverup of Presley's addiction to legally prescribed drugs.

Rivera interviewed some of Presley's associates who said the singer was a heavy user of depressants, painkillers, mood elevators and sedatives in the months before his death at the age of 42 in 1977.

Two pathologists and a toxicologist who were shown post-mortem laboratory reports on Presley said the entertainer's death resulted from drug abuse and not from a heart problem.

"There was no coverup that I know of," Francisco said. "I have my own reputation to be concerned about, rather than someone else's. If we (in the medical examiner's office) don't have credibility, we have no reason for being."

The dispute over what caused Presley's death was renewed Tuesday when the state Board of Medical Examiners accused Presley's personal physician, Dr. George Nichopoulos, of indiscriminately prescribing drugs for the entertainer and 15 others.

The state board has the authority to revoke Nichopoulos' medical license after a hearing which has yet to be scheduled.

Late Thursday, the office of District Attorney General Hugh Stanton said it was looking into the medical board's accusation.

Stanton said the Metro Narcotics Squad in Memphis is also participating in the probe. The medical board's charges are civil in nature, but Stanton's office could bring criminal charges as a result of its investigation.

Nichopoulos, who has refused to discuss the charges, was under police guard Friday. Police Director E. W. Chapman said the physician had received telephone calls threatening his life. He said the protection was available to any public figure.

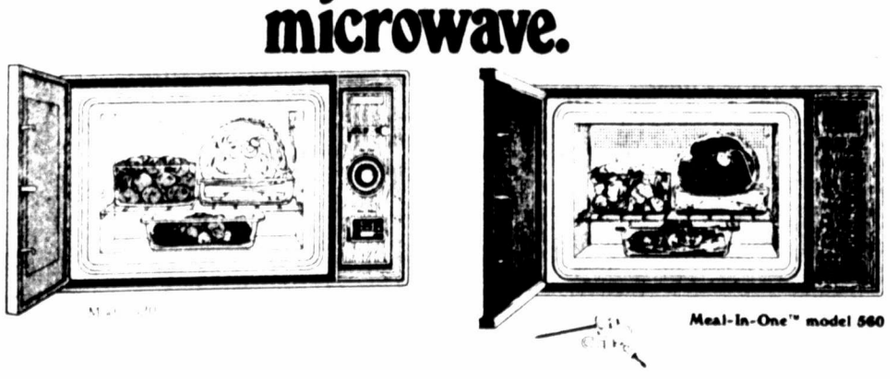

Nichopoulos was seen leaving his midtown office building Thursday in the company of two plainclothes policemen.

Mystery Shrouds Reappearnance Of MSU Student

DALLAS (AP) — An Ohio couple tearfully embraced their 16-year-old son Friday, reunited after his mysterious disappearance a month ago from the Michigan State University campus.

William Dear, a Dallas private investigator who searched for James Dallas Egbert III and who serves as family spokesman, said he turned the boy over to the family early Friday.

"It was an emotional situation and I'm glad it see it come to a happy conclusion," Dear said. "I wish the boy and his family the best. They were tickled to death to get him back and that's where it should end." He said he would not disclose the boy's whereabouts the past month and would have nothing more to say on the case.

There was speculation the family, from Dayton, Ohio, stayed in the Dallas area Friday. Dr. Melvin Gross, a relative, lives in the Dallas suburb of Irving. He would only say that young Egbert was safe and that no public statements would be made.

Dear called a news conference Thursday night at his elaborate home in DeSoto, south of Dallas, to announce that Egbert had been found and was under a doctor's care. The student was in good physical condition except for minor cuts on his chin and elbow, Dear said.

The case broke after three disjointed and emotional telephone calls in the predawn hours Thursday, he said, adding he did not know why the boy called him instead of his parents.

"The boy's been through a tremendous ordeal," Dear told reporters Thursday night. "As far as his mental condition, that's up to a doctor to determine.

"We agree this is the most bizarre case we've ever been involved with," the flamboyant detective noted.

Egbert, of Dayton, Ohio, disappeared Aug. 15 but it was not until six days later that he was officially reported missing because he had once before left the MSU campus for two weeks with no one knowing his whereabouts.

Egbert is a computer science student with an IQ measured at 145, considered to be well above average intelligence.

Dear said he entered the case Aug. 20 but had not developed any solid leads to Egbert's whereabouts until the Thursday morning phone calls.

There had been speculation that Egbert's disappearance was connected with the acting out of an intellectual game called "Dungeons and Dragons" in the underground steam tunnels of the MSU campus. MSU police had said they had been told that a group of students had used the tunnels before.

There was also a suicide note found, along with a map, in the boy's dorm room. The note said Egbert wished to be cremated "should my body be found."

However, neither authorities nor his family were ever convinced Egbert wrote the note.

Dear also would not say if the boy had been held against his will at any time. He did say there would be no charges filed by him or the family against anyone, and that there are no criminal statutes that would apply to the situation.

"When I picked up the boy that ended it," Dear said.

Egbert probably was hiding near the MSU campus most of the time he was gone, a police officer investigating the strange case said Friday in East Lansing, Mich.

"We believe there was no foul play involved," campus police Capt. Ferman Badgley said. "He (Egbert) was hiding or being hidden, not held." He added that police are continuing to investigate the case.

"He wanted to put himself through this," Badgley said. "I think it deals with his family."

Badgley said he was told by Dear that Egbert was "in a bad state. He's going to need some care for a while."

CRACKLIN' GOOD SHOW — Forks of lightning crackle around Kitt Peak National Observatory, Ariz. Each year such awesome bolts from the heavens probably cause 200 deaths and kindle 10,000 to 15,000 forest fires throughout the nation. Some scientists believe that cosmic rays originating far beyond earth's atmosphere trigger strokes of lightning. (NEA Photo by Gary Ladd)

Meteorologist, Ranger Warn: 'Lightning Deadly Serious'

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — Lightning packs a powerful wallop. It can deliver 100 million volts and temperatures five times hotter than the sun's surface.

It's no wonder then that the dramatic strokes that etch the skies can sometimes play havoc on earth. Lightning probably kills at least 200 people a year in the United States, double the number usually reported.

"For some unexplained reason, the number of recorded lightning deaths has been steadily declining since the 1940s, when an average of 300 a year were listed," said H. Michael Mogil, an emergency warnings meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

Experts believe lightning fatalities often go unrecorded because unlike major disaster such as floods or tornadoes, the bolts kill people by ones, twos, and threes.

Lucky, indeed, are those who survive a hair-raising encounter with a bolt from the heavens. Retired Park Service Ranger Roy C. Sullivan has lived through seven direct hits.

The human lightning rod recalled that on one occasion: "There was a gentle rain, but no thunder until suddenly one big clap — the loudest thing I've ever heard. Fire was bouncing around the ranger station, and when my ears stopped ringing I heard a sizzling noise. It was my hair on fire."

Asked if there was ever any warning before lightning struck, Sullivan answered, "Well, you can tell, but it's too late. You can smell sulfur in the air, and then your hair will stand up on end, and then it's going to get you. You don't have time to do anything."

When the lightning is touched off, the air becomes suddenly heated, and it expands with an explosive sound — thunder.

But what ignites nature's fireworks? Dr. James W. Follin, Jr., a theoretical physicist at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, believes that cosmic rays trigger lightning strokes.

Traveling through space at nearly the speed of light, cosmic rays are charged particles of ultrahigh energy that bombard earth from every direction. These primary cosmic rays interact with the atmosphere at about 100,000 feet, generating secondary particles.

Dr. Follin says that as the secondary particles pass through a thunderhead they knock electrons free from oxygen and nitrogen atoms in a process called ionization.

Accelerated by the electric field already existing within the cloud, these free electrons form an electrical discharge, moving negative charges to the base of the cloud to trigger a stroke of lightning.

Folks Want To Kill Man — Legally, Of Course

By TOM TIEDE

STARKE, Fla. (NEA) — There are quite a few people in this state who would like to kill Howard Douglas. He has been found guilty of forcing a man to perform sexually with a woman, then beating and shooting that man. He's been sentenced to death and may be the next person executed in the country.

TOM TIEDE

So it is that the people who would like to kill him are now seeking leave. Several newspapers and officials here have received letters from citizens who say they would be willing to throw the switch on the electric chair. They are in fact applying for employment: the job of executioner.

As it happens, the applicants are presumptuous. Florida already has an official executioner (actually it has two of them, one backup). Still, many of the letters will be filed for future reference. With 134 people now under sentence of death, the state may need to buttress its electrocution staff.

Authorities say it's not a happy matter this, selecting hangmen as they would any other clerk in the bureaucracy. But the law says it must be done. Florida is the last state to have held an execution (John Spenkelink in May), and Gov. Robert Graham says more will follow. The position, therefore, must not go vacant.

And there is always a chance of a sudden vacancy. The executioner's work is not steady (the Spenkelink execution was the first in a decade), and the pay is poor ($150 an event). Also, though the names of the executioners are kept secret, job holders may quit at any time for fear of being found out.

Interestingly, the fear of identification is the reason civilians are today chosen to dispatch condemned persons in Florida's prisons. Earlier in the century, county sheriffs carried out death sentences. They lobbied for a change when threats to their safety escalated in the late 1930s.

In 1941, the Florida legislature created the position of public (but secret) executioner. And they invited people to apply by mail. Robert McLendon, a security officer at Florida State Prison for more than 30 years, says the job applicants have always beeen an assorted and penculiar lot.

McLendon says some people apply because they are broke and need a payday. Others are inquisitive products of decades of death row movies. McLendon recalls one female applicant, a mother of four, who was rejected when it was suspected she had hopes of electrocuting her troublesome husband.

The applicants are of course carefully screened. Nobody is considered who has a criminal past, for one thing. Nor is the executioner allowed to have any association with state government, the prison system or municipal law enforcement. He must be of good character and moderate habits.

This isn't to say the state wants princes. On the contrary, it usually picks the nondescript. McLendon says the first executioner was a merchant from Tampa. "He was fascinated by the electronics. He dogged the electrician's every step. And as I remember it he was quite an elderly fellow."

Whatever the executioner's age, or interest, Florida takes extraordinary precautions to protect his identity and person. The reason is obvious. McLendon says an attorney once offered him $1,000 to reveal the name of an executioner. "I think someones was looking for revenge."

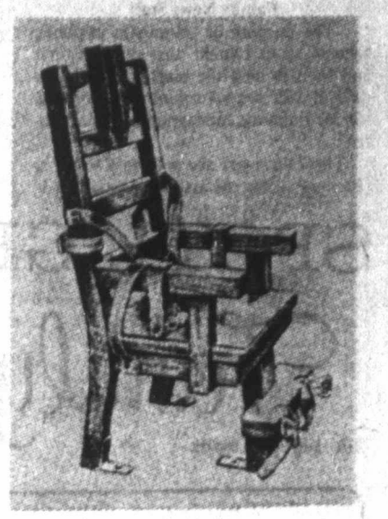

To prevent such things, executioners conduct their business in a decidedly surreptious fashion. They are brought to their missions at FSP, near Starke, in the wee hours of the morning, and are quickly taken to a room where they change into a black robe, black hood and black gloves.

This then is what the condemned and the witnesses see in the death house: a truly opaque figure who could be from the Middle Ages. Not even his shoes are visible under the costume. There is one other masked person in the room: The individual to be killed also wears a dark hood.

On duty, the executioner's job is relatively simple. In days past, he had to regulate voltage and pull switches at precise moments; now McLendon says the FSP electrocution system is fully automatic. Even execution, apparently, has been upgraded by the time.

The activating elements are contained in a booth. The prisoner is tied to a chair made with the wood from a north Florida oak tree. The current — 2,250 volts — is transmitted through a death cap, a metal bowl containing a wet sponge. If all goes well, the condemned die in two minutes.

And, inevitably, thing do go well. Bob McLendon, who has officiated at 114 electrocutions, says he knows of no public executioner who lost his nerve or made a delaying error. "When these people are told to carry out an execution, it is carried out."

That can't be a comforting thought for Howard Douglas.

Corporate Giants Seek To Patent Life Forms

EDITOR'S NOTE: The continuing debate over genetic engineering, or the creation of new life-forms in the laboratory, has reached a crucial legal crossroads: Can those new life-forms be patented by private companies? Since the fledgling industry is expected to grow to vast proportions, the economic, legal and social implications are immense. The U.S. Supreme Court is now in the thick of the controvery.)

By TED HOWARD
(c)Pacific News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Are living things patentable?

That question, which only a decade ago would have seemed almost laughable, is now pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Court's decision is expected to have profound economic and social implications because a growing number of private corporations already have patents pending for living organisms created in the laboratories through genetic engineering.

The court battle pits the U.S. Solicitor General, who is representing the federal Patents and Trademarks Office (PTO), against two corporate giants engaged in genetic engineering, General Electric and Upjohn.

A lower court, the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, has already ruled in favor of granting exclusive ownership rights to GE and Upjohn for micro-organisms created by company reasearch scientists.

If the Supreme Court upholds the lower court ruling, Upjohn will soon be the proud corporate parent of a one-celled creature that produces the antibiotic lincomycin. General Electric will receive a patent on a "bug" that consumes petroleum for nourishment.

In ruling that living things are patentable, the lower court argued that there is no justification for excluding an "invention" from the patent laws merely "becauser it is 'alive.'"

"From the standpoint of construing the patent statutes," the judges ruled, "we do not see . . . any sound reason for making the distinction . . . between the living and the dead."

The government, which has appealed the ruling, argues that because "the number of living things is vast," a decision in favor of life-forms patents "opens an enormous range of subject

Oil Might Be Converted Into Food

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Although the day of the "barrel burger" is not at hand, an East German scientist says oil and natural gas can be used to make artificial proteins to fight world hunger.

Research into synthesizing food protein from petroleum has been going on for decades, Manfred Ringpfeil of the East German Academy of Sciences reported in a paper at the 10th World Petroleum Congress here.

And, he said, the Soviet Union has shown continued interest in converting oil into food supplements. He said many scientists in other countries are skeptical about the value of such synthetic protein, mostly because of the cost involved and the uncertainty of future petroleum supplies.

The process involves separating n-parrafin, a substance similar to kerosene, from petroleum, then adding a bacteria culture. In the n-parrafin medium, the bacteria multiply like yeast, yielding a large number of new bacteria, containing a high level of protein.

Other petroleum byproducts, such as ethanol and methanol, may be used instead of n-parrafins.

The East German scientist noted that the opposite concept, conversion of edible plants and organic material into fuel such as gasohol has become feasible as oil prices have soared.

Ringpfeil said the Soviet Union has plants that sythesize food proteins from oil to be used mostly for animal feed, and he said similar work is underway in Romania, East Germany and Great Britain.

"The world population is increasing at a higher rate than is agricultural production," Ringpfeil said. "Microbial production of feed and foodstuffs could contribute to closing the widening gap between food supply and demand."

Although it might not sound tasty-tempting, petroleum-extracted proteins could also be used to feed humans, he said, expecially in underdeveloped areas short of conventional food.

"From a medico-biological point of view, standards to be satisfied concerning the use of microbial protein for human nutrition have been established," Ringpfeil said.

But he acknowledged that "this point of view contrasts with opinions sometimes presented by the layman." And he said many scientists also are skeptical about using petroleum to make food.

He said oil-produced protein has not caught on because the products made from them so far don't taste good.

For synthetic food products to be accepted as food supplements, "they must be combined with other edible materials to obtain foodstuffs that are in keeping with the customs and eating habits prevailing in those regions," Ringpfeil said.

Union Appeals Court Ruling On Oil Cartel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers union has served notice it will appeal a federal judge's decision to throw out an antitrust suit against the Organization of Petrolum Exporting Countries.

The union filed it notice of appeal Wednesday. U.S. District Jude A. Andrew Hauk ruled Aug. 22 that member nations of the international oil cartel are not subject to U.S. antitrust laws. He had previously dismissed OPEC as a defendant.

POTHOLE SUIT DELIBERATED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Pittsburgh attorney asked a Common Pleas Court judge to dismiss a suit he filed on behalf of all Allegheny County residents whose vehicles sustained pothole damage last winter. The suit, aimed at a host of local paving companies, had become unmanageable, attorney Alan Frank told Judge Joseph Del Sole on Thursday. He said he had gotten many complaints by phone, but only 86 had submitted their names and problems in writing.

Comprised Of All Ages, Lubbock School Volunteers Offer Special Attention, Care To Many Students

By JACQUE HUTCHINS
Family News Staff

"The purpose of volunteers in public schools is to benefit the children first and then to help the teacher," said Linda Kinman, school volunteers coordinator for Lubbock Independent School District.

The volunteers are not there to act as teachers — but to assist the teachers in their quest to make the educational system as rewarding as possible for the students.

"Last year we had 290 volunteers devoting 14,522 hours of their time to 13 elementary schools," said Mrs. Kinman. "This is not counting the different community groups that also lend their services."

The only strict criteria for qualification as a volunteer is to "love and care for children" says Mrs. Kinman. There are no age or educational limitations. In fact, senior citizens are encouraged to volunteer.

A special program called the "Rocking Chair Set" has been developed. The role of the volunteers in that program is to simply tell the students what it was like to live through some of the history the children are studying today. Mrs. Kinman feels these volunteers can project a grandparent image which is so important for children — especially if they live far from their own.

"Sometimes it is important just to be there. It can be very terrifying for a sick child to sit in the nurses' office. If we can just give them a hug and stay with them till mother arrives — well, that can make a lot of difference to the child," said Mrs. Kinman.

It has been learned through the volunteer program that the more parents become involved with helping out at school the more the children become involved with learning.

"There are so many things a parent can do. Just an hour a week can help. And it's good for the parent, it makes them feel good too," said Mrs. Kinman.

Beverly Ledoux is a parent who volunteered last year and has recently started her position as chairman for Bayless Elementary School Volenteers. Her job is to match up the volunteers interests with that of the teachers.

The volunteers' main area of concern is the reading program. They may work in small groups or on an individual level with the students. Positions as math tutors are also available as well as various clerical jobs, classroom assistant positions and jobs involving arts and crafts.

Mrs. Kinman feels the role of tutor is very important for children who have come from other school systems who might need individual attention to catch up with the rest of the class. And the tutor may also be used as a challenging aid for the advanced student.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: My daughter has a problem involving the adrenal gland, called "Conn's disease." She has been hospitalized for tests, but the doctors cannot find what is causing the abnormal action of the gland. Can you discuss this ailment? — R.V.F.

This is high blood pressure due to excessive production of a substance called "aldosterone" by the adrenal glands. Aldosterone is a hormone that regulates salt and water balance in the blood. The result of overproduction is a loss of potassium and an excess retention of sodium. This causes increased blood plasma volume and the resulting high blood pressure. The potassium lack causes the characteristic muscle weakness and headaches.

One cause of the aldosterone overproduction can be a tumor of the gland. If that is the case, surgery to remove it is done. But there are certain factors that may produce the same symptoms. Birth control pill or heavy diuretic pill (water pill) use may lead to the blood imbalance. This kind of high blood pressure problem is sometimes found in persons who have a fondness for licorice, and who eat large amounts of it. Licorice contains a substance similar to aldosterone.

In some cases, drugs can be used to counteract the over-production of aldosterone. In the majority of patients the condition can be corrected, once the cause is found.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Three months ago I had an x-ray for my stomach. When the results came back I noticed it said I had a fibroid tumor of the uterus. My doctor never said a word about it. He explained all the other results, but I never got an answer about the fibroid tumor. What is a fibroid tumor? How serious is it? I'm concerned. — M.S.

I don't think you need worry about it. Fibroid tumors are the most common growths of the female genital tract. As the name implies, they are growth of muscle and other tissue. They are benign. Such growths are frequently noted when x-rays of the stomach are made. They appear as little dense areas on the film, and there may be some calcium present.

Your doctor probably noted this fibroid in previous regular pelvic examinations, saw no need to mention it to you and doesn't feel it requires removal or treatment. Fibroids are watched because they can become quite large. On the other hand, fibroids can occur in large numbers and be quite small.

The fibroid very likely had nothing to do with your need for stomach x-rays.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son has a fungus infection on his nails. His doctor has been treating him for over a year with a tape. He puts it on in the evening. Every week he gets a shot and treatment at the office. It is a slow process, but it is improving. He drinks quite a bit of beer. Would this have anything to do with fungus growth? — R.A.

Fungal infections of the nails are most difficult to treat and do take a long time to clear up. The nail grows slowly. Medicine has to get to the healthy part of the nail, the bed, which lies rather deep under the skin. Then this new healthy portion must grow out to the tip before the fungus is cured.

I cannot tell what kind of tape or injections you refer to, so you'd best ask his doctor about any restrictions. Normally, beer will not hurt — unless the fungus dislikes your son's brand. You'll find a sensible discussion of nails in the booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems." Other readers may order a copy by mailing 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When my children have colds I always encourage them to blow their noses. Also, if the cold is in the chest and they cough I encourage them to spit up the mucus. Recently, I heard that it is alright to swallow this mucus, that it would be digested. I can't buy this. It seems that if they swallow the mucus it will just keep coming up. Can you comment? — K.H.

The mucus that is swallowed passes into the stomach and not back into the lungs or tubes leading to the lungs, where it is made. Any of the germs that commonly cause respiratory infections will be destroyed by the acid juices in the stomach. Swallowing mucus is safe and will not cause more mucus to be produced.

Did you know that 80 percent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? The booklet "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help" describes the causes and treatment of stroke. For a copy write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 35 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

GOOD DAY!

Here's another hint in our series for handicapped readers that might help those of you who care for bedridden patients.

A dear lady, who signed her letter, "Althea," wrote and told me how she shampoos the hair of a person confined to a bed.

First of all, the supplies needed are enough towels to make a neck roll, a large piece of plastic, such as an opened garbage bag, a towel to lay under the neck and a couple of towels to dry the hair.

Also a small container to fit under the neck (such as a kidney-shaped basin or small sauce pan), one for warm water, a cup shampoo and a larger container to hold the used rinse water.

With the patient lying on his back, using towels, make a neck roll to support the head after removing the pillow.

Place a large piece of plastic over the neck roll and under the patient's neck to keep the roll dry. Let the plastic extend up over the head of the bed.

Lay a bath towel lengthwise on top of the plastic, under the head, in a loose roll next to the covered roll to absorb drips.

Place the small pan comfortably under the neck and wet the hair, using the cup to pour small amounts. Work in the shampoo. Rinse, using the cup. Empty the small basin often into the larger container provided. Repeat as needed.

Squeeze the hair as dry as possible. Remove the basin and wet towel. Towel the hair dry and wrap turban fashion with the second dry towel. Style as desired and allow to completely dry.

Replace the pillow.

She adds, "This way, the shampooing can be done quickly, easily, comfortably and with no mess. It's soothing to the individual, in addition to keeping the hair shining clean."

Our heartfelt thanks goes out to Althea for letting us in on this easier way of making life a little more comfortable for someone we love and care for.

Hugs to you all. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If I want to wash something the next time I run the washing machine, but don't want to put the item in the clothes hamper at the time, I write the name of the item on a sheet of paper and put the paper in the hamper.

Next wash day, I remember to wash that particular thing when I see my note. — New Orleans Reader

DEAR HELOISE:

I just made the most fantastic discovery!

Recently my daughter became sick during the night. At two o'clock in the morning I was faced with a colossal mess.

After removing all the bedding I saw that the mattress was soiled and, of course, had an offensive odor. Being too tired by then to scrub it down, I just got that marvelous ol' box of baking soda.

I sprinkled the whole area liberally, including the pillows. The next afternoon, I swept up the soda with the vacuum and it had literally absorbed every trace of odor and stain.

What a boon this would be to mothers whose children wet the bed! — Karen Weimer

Baking soda to the rescue again! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For many years I have meant to send you this hint for something we found very useful.

When our children were growing up we had quite a few picture puzzles, all the same size.

We found it much less frustrating to do them after we made a frame to work them in, consisting of a piece of picture matting with a hole the size of the finished puzzle mounted on a piece of heavy cardboard.

This way, it was very easy to get the outside edges done first and then fill in the middle.

It also made it convenient to move the puzzle if you needed access to the table it was being worked on. — Mrs. S.W. Peterson

DATING PROCESS

Open dating is the sometimes mandatory (often voluntary) inclusion of a date on milk containers to indicate when they should be withdrawn from retail sale. Also known as the "pull-date" or "sell-by-date," it is set to allow additional storage life in the consumer's home. The product will remain fresh and be usable for a few days after the date on the container.

YMCA Indian Guides Set Organizational Meetings

Tribal organizational meetings will be held for all first-, second-and third-grade boys in Lubbock schools interested in participating in YMCA Indian Guides. Three community-wide organizational meetings will be held. The first will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Rush Elementary, 15th Street and Utica Avenue. Parsons Elementary, 2811 58th St., will be the location of the second meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Stewart Elementary, 46th Street and Utica Avenue, will host a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Fathers and sons attending these meetings will be formed into neighborhood tribes. Fathers and sons who cannot attend one of these meetings may join a tribe in their neighborhood by calling the YMCA office at 762-0588, leaving their name and address and telephone number. They will be contacted by a tribal chief in a few days following the organization of a new tribe.

YMCA Indian Guides is one of the largest boy programs in America. Fathers and their six-to nine-year-old sons all across the nation enroll each fall in the program. The father and son (or sons) participate in a creative fellowship program in the form of tribes of six to eight families. The tribes are organized Indian fashion and use the Indian motif and Indian lore as background. Companionship and fellowship of the father and son is based on the ancient relationship of an Indian father and son.

The tribes assume Indian names, each father and son taking an Indian name and the tribal ceremonies and crafts are often based on ancient Indian practices. Indian costumes are often made and worn and campout ceremonies contain rather elaborate Indian ritual.

The individual tribes meet in the family homes twice a month and relate themselves to the YMCA by joining a Nation and a Longhouse which meet at the YMCA once a month. Two outdoor campouts, a Thanksgiving Feast, a Skillarama display and demonstration, a Racer Derby and a family Game Day are six special Longhouse events held each year.

Any father in the community who wants to spend creative time with his son is invited to join the Indian Guides program. You and your son will become "Pals Forever" and you both will enjoy the experience.

The first big event of the year will be the Fall Campout and Induction Ceremony, Oct. 27-28 in Lake Mackenzie State Park near Silverton.

MISCELLANY

The Techsan Garden Club will hold a "get acquainted" brunch Saturday at 10 a.m. in the home of Sunshine Blackwell, 6220 Louisville Dr.

W.B. Atkins Junior High School PTA will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Atkins auditorium, 5401 Ave. U. The parents will meet their children's teachers during this meeting.

A senior citizen volunteer from India has both the capability and time to give classes in Hindu religion, and the political and physical geography of India at the high school level in Lubbock. Interested schools may contact Satya Sharma at 793-3583.

The Camp Fire Council of Lubbock will hold an organizational meeting at Williams Elementary at 7 p.m. Monday for those students attending Williams, Wester, Winfrey, Posey, Ella Iles, Stewart and Maedgen. A meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Rush Elementary for those students attending Rush, Hardwick, Bowie, Stubbs, Wolfforth, Tubbs, Jackson, Mahon, Lubbock Christian School and Reese Elementary. For more information call the Camp Fire office, 765-6394.

Funds To Help Energy Planners

COLLEGE STATION — Energy initiatives aimed at helping small towns and rural areas cope with future energy problems through 1981 were recently announced by President Carter.

Federal funds totaling $300 million will help renovate 100 small — scale hydroelectric projects across the country, says Jack L. Jones with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The projects would generate about 300 megawatts of power. Eight federal agencies are involved in this Department of Energy program.

Nearly $11 million will enable construction of 100 small gasohol (alcohol used for transportation fuel) plants, adds the community development specialist.

The Department of Energy and the Economic Development Administration will allocate $1.25 million in grants to help about 20 economic development districts. The districts will plan integrated economic development and energy programs, giving special attention to alternative sources of energy, such as hydropower and wood — fired power generators, notes Jones.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about the wife who complained that her husband (they had been married 22 years) could not remember his phone number, his age or address. When they went shopping he had to ask her what size shoe he wore, same for shirts and socks. He couldn't tie a bow and had never written a check even though they had had a joint account for 20 years. (He didn't know how.)

The wife was disgusted and wanted to know what you thought of such stupidity. Ann, your response was extremely perceptive. You said it might be something other than stupidity — perhaps an organic problem. You suggested that he be tested.

The symptoms she described are identical with senile dementia. There are approximately one and one-half million cases in the United States, 500,000 of them serious. Nearly 100,000 people die from it annually, yet it rarely appears on a death certificate.

Only recently have researchers begun to explore the disturbances in brain chemistry correlated with senile dementia. The results are very promising.

Please continue to urge readers who see these symptoms in parents or mates to insist on a neurological examination. It would be lifesaving. — B.G.E.

Dear B.G.E.: Thank you for the "alert." The next letter on the same subject may be of interest, although it is apparent that the husband under attack has another kind of problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Why do you always protect the men? You suggested there might be something organically wrong when the wife said her husband couldn't tie a bow, couldn't remember his shoe size, shirt size or where he parked his car.

I say, "Applesauce!" My husband knows how to unscrew the top of a tube of toothpaste, turn on a light, open a drawer and find his socks and shorts, but he never learned how to put the top back on, turn a light off or close a drawer.

The man has spent a fortune on yard equipment because when he finishes using a mower or a shrub clipper he leaves it outside and someone walks off with it. For years I tried to break him of his sloppy habits but it was utterly useless. Finally I made up my mind that he was a hopeless case. It was a lot easier on my nervous system to accept him as he is and do things for him — which is what's been going on for a good many years. You know whose fault this is, don't you? Please say it so I won't have to. — I Am Betty.

Dear Betty: OK, I'll say it for you, his mother!

Dear Ann Landers: I am a man in my 40s with a somewhat personal problem. I like to wear shorts to the beach but my legs look like an ape's. I don't have any hair on my chest or back and very little on my arms. I've seen people nudge one another and laugh. Youngsters have come right out and asked how come I have such hairy legs. Other men must have this problem. How do they cope with it? Is shaving or a hair remover the answer? — Tallahassee

Dear Tal: Since you have no hair on your arms or chest, you would probably be less conspicuous if you removed the ape-like growth from your legs. I say go ahead and do it.

The bidding in the box is taken direct from the Sommerville book. The two-spade response was reasonably correct 50 years ago. South's three hearts and North's four hearts were also normal. Then came the fireworks!

South decided that he would be sure to make the heart slam provided he could stop a diamond lead. So he bid five diamonds! North just bid five hearts. He had run out of constructive bids when he jumped to two spades.

Confident that he had stopped a diamond lead, South went on to the slam in spite of North's sign-off and West dutifully opened his fourth-best club whereupon South had no trouble making all 13 tricks.

That diamond bid by South was a bit of deceptive bidding that was popular in the early days of contract and is still in use today although this particular five-diamond call should have acted like a red rag to a bull and produced a diamond lead from West even if he did not hold the ace. We will discuss various fancy attacking bids next week.

Hat Sales Doubled In Last Five Years

By The Associated Press

They blamed John Kennedy, the U.S. Army and long hair styles.But now the makers of men's hats are finding something to cheer about as sales set records and producers strain to meet the demand.

Hat sales in the United States entered a long decline efter World War II, touching bottom about five years ago. But since then sales have been on the rise, thanks largely to western hats and sports caps.

"Our industry's volume has more than doubled in the last five years," said Sol Bernstein, the president of Miller Brothers Hats, who sees his own company's sales rising 12 percent this year.

The Headware Institute of American, a trade group, says sales of men's hats and caps will top $825 million this year, up from $700 million last year and from $300 million in 1974.

That's a record only because of inflation. As a quick glance will show, many fewer men wear hats now than in the 1930s. "Back in the good old days, the Depression ... That's when everyone wore hats," said John Secrest, vice president of John B. Stetson Hat Co.

As the hat industry sees it, the problems began when soldiers returned from World War II and were tired of wearing Army caps. They accelerated when John Kennedy was inaugurated bare-headed and reached a peak when long hair became prevalent in the late 1960s.

"You just didn't look quite right with a hat on top of all that bushy hair," said Lory Roston, the Headwar Institute's executive director.

"The old people wore hats and they died and the hat business died with them," said Jean S. Goodson, the president of International Hat Co. of St. Louis. "Now young people have cut off their hair and gotten interested in headware again." Goodson says his company's sales are up 15 percent this year.

It is an article of faith in the hat business that prominent people determine styles. Just as Kennedy is blamed for a decline in hat wear, Telly Savalas is credited with helping the resurgence by wearing hats as the television detective "Kojak" and Diane Keaton is praised for persuading women to wear men's hats by doing so in the movie "Annie Hall." One style of hat is known as a "Rex Harrison" because the actor wore such a hat in "My Fair Lady."

The first section of the business to pick up was "Western hats," which have moved off the range and into cities. Various industry leaders praised Lyndon Johnson and Marlboro cigarette ads for starting that trend.

Western hat sales have continued to be strong, joined by a variety of sports styles, such as golf hats, baseball caps and similar caps worn by fans and emblazoned with a team emblem. Many companies, particularly manufacturers of agricultural equipment, distribute baseball-style caps with their corporate symbol as a form of advertising.

And traditional mens' hats have begun to come back in the last two years, although such hats are a long way from being the standard apparel item they once were.

Some industry officials say hat companies damaged themselves by competing in styles. "One manufacturer would show large brims, the other small brims," said Bernstein. "The dealer would have both and the customer would be confused."

Now that problem is solved by industry meetings. "We come to a common agreement that if brims are to be turned down, everyone should show brims turned down," Bernstein said. Most makers are showing such hats this year.

Imports from Taiwan and Korea have virtually taken over some segments of the sports cap business, but otherwise the industry has largely escaped foreign competition. "Percentage-wise, its infinitesimal," Bernstein said of the imports' market share.

Most people in the hat industry remember the bad days, but they tend to believe the good days are here to stay.

"We've got the young man into it," said Secrest, whose Stetson company expects to sell 720,000 hats this year, twice the level of its worst year. "The hat business will keep going up for the next 20 years."

HATS ARE HERE TO STAY — After a decline that lasted from the end of World War II until about five years ago, hat sales are on the rise again, thanks largely to western hats and sports caps. (AP Laserphoto)

BASIC NECESSITIES

Eight percent of all Americans spend 70 percent of their incomes on four basic necessities — food, housing, health care and energy, reports Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

Study Shows Aspirin Helpful For Heart Attack Protection

BOSTON (AP) — A daily dose of half a standard-size aspirin tablet will prevent blood clots and may protect people from heart attacks, researchers say.

The latest in a series of studies on the benefits of aspirin does not conclusively prove that the ubiquitous household medicine prevents heart attacks.

But Dr. Herschel R. Harter,who direced the study, said the circumstantia evidence is trong enough that "since I did the study, I take my half an aspirin every morning. That and jogging, I hope, will keep me alive for awhile."

The study shows that a small sliver of aspirin will prevent blood platelet cells from sticking together and forming clots in the bloodstream. Such clots can contribute to heart attacks.

The study, published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine, was conducted at Washington University Medical School in St. Louis. Unlike earlier investigations of the effects of aspirin on the blood, this one used only tiny bits of the medicine.

A blood clot — what doctors call thrombosis — is a serious, sometimes fatal complication when people are bedridden in hospitals. They occur frequently in kidney patients whose blood vessels have been damaged during dialysis.

In the study, 19 dialysis patients took aspirin, and six of them, or 32 percent, developed blood clots. Of 25 patients who took an inactive substitute, 18 — or 72 percent — developed clots.

"There's strong evidence, albeit indirect, showing that if you put people on aspirin, you can prevent coronary thrombosis," Harter said in an interview.

"The initial event of a heart attack is platelets hooking together," he said. "If we were able to inhibit the platelets, they shouldn't hook together, and we shouldn't have that."

However, he added that a long-term study with thousands of patients would be necessary to prove that aspirin prevents heart attacks.

Golfers Teed Off At Roaming Buffalo

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — They gave him a home, but still the buffalo roamed. And when the animal's owners called the police to report their pet missing, police treated it as a prank.

All of which explains why a buffalo was discovered Wednesday, not on a range, but on the Trosper Park golf course.

One of the golfers walked in and asked me how much the buffalo had to pay to get on the 10th green," said Jonya Christensen, the pro shop manager.

Animal control officers, riding in golf carts and a pickup, tried to corral the buffalo.

Patrolman David Cornelius said the buffalo romped into the woods near a creek each time the animal control officers approached. They finally shot it with tranquilizer darts.

"I think it was a mistake because he went down in that creek area and they had to drag him out," Cornelius said. "It was hilarious."

Department Seeking Project Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department says it will ask Congress to provide money for two demonstration projects for converting high-sulfur coal into clean-burning fuels.

The two demonstration plants, at Newman, Ky., and Morgantown, W.Va., would convert 6,000 tons of coal to the equivalent of 20,000 barrels of oil a day. The process involves mixing powdered coal with hydrogen at high pressures and temperatures in a liquid solvent derived from coal. Sulfur and other residues can then be removed, and the resulting liquid and solid fuels can be burned with less pollution.

Baseball Bat Killing Blamed On Television

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — A prosecutor says a young Elmhurst man convicted of killing his mother with a baseball bat and pushing her from a 12-story hotel window had developed an unrealistic notion of murder from watching television.

A Circuit Court jury of 10 women and two men found Robert Nelson, 23, guilty of murdering his 52-year-old mother. The jury deliberated four hours before reaching a verdict on Wednesday night.

Sntencing as set for Nov. 13. Nelson could be sentenced to life in prison. Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Knight said.

Police said they found a bloody bat on a hotel stairwell and the hotel room decorated with streamers and snacks. Authorities later said the mother was decorating the room for a party being given to celebrate Nelson's engagement.

Officers said they found a note in Nelson's wallet that said "Break Glass" and "Bring Mom's sacrifice bunt."

Witnesses outside the hotel testified they heard the glass shatter above them and saw Mrs. Nelson being lowered from the window before she fell 12 flights.

At the end of the month-long trial, Knight said in closing arguments that Nelson had acquired an unrealistic notion of what it is like to commit murder from watching TV.

"TV gets the best of us all," said Knight. "People get hit and they don't really bleed.

Math Remains Irksome Hurdle For Many American Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rising number of students get stumped trying to solve math problems, despite the nation's back-to-basics movement in recent years, test results show.

Some educators contend the emphasis on basics may be robbing youngsters of the ability to think through more complex problems.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress tested 71,000 students age 9, 13 and 17 in math last year and found their performance was down from 1973, when the same age groups were tested.

At age 9, overall performance dropped from 38 percent correct to 37 percent; at age 13, from 53 to 51 percent, and at age 17, from 52 to 48 percent, according to reports released Thursday.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare underwrites the tests, which are conducted periodically in most major subjects. They are administered through the Education Commission of the States, a nonprofit group in Denver.

A panel of experts who reviewed the results for the testers said the emphasis on the basics in recent years has been too narrow.

"Often, drill on computation has replaced attention to problem-solving," said James W. Wilson, a math education professor at the University of Georgia. "But it is not enough to assume that if students can do the arithmetic, they can automatically solve problems."

Wilson charged that the "basics" textbooks "provide few opportunities for problem-solving and when they do, the problems are often of such a level that students don't have to figure out the problem's meaning to solve it."

Math questions posed in sentence form are particularly hard for students, the survey found.

One-third of the 9-year-olds and 84 percent of the 13-year-olds could solve a multiplication problem when given just the figures. But when it was asked as a word problem, only 20 percent of the 9-year-olds and 77 percent of the 13-year-olds got it right.

A simple fraction problem — "What does two-thirds of 9 equal?" — was beyond many of the students. At ages 9, 13 and 17, correct answers were given by 13, 49 and 73 percent, down from 18, 56 and 81 percent respectively.

Only 5 percent of the 17-year-olds could figure out the cost per kilowatt hour of electricity from a bill for $9.09 that showed 606 kilowatt hours had been consumed. Twelve percent knew the answer (1.5 cents) in 1973.

Students know more these days about metrics. Nearly two-thirds of the 13-year-olds knew that a kilometer was the longest measure in a list of metric units, only 37 percent got that right in 1973.

Black students moved closer to national performance levels in the two younger age groups. Black 9-year-olds, who trailed by 15 points in 1973, were 10 points behind in 1978. Black 13-year-olds moved from 21 to 18 points behind. Black 17-year-olds remained 17 points behind the national average.

Sept. 16 — Alfred Noyes (1880-1958), the British poet whose most notable work is the epic trilogy "The Torch Bearers," which took as its theme scientific progress through the ages.

Sept. 17 — Roddy McDowell (1928-), the actor who as a child star in the 1940s appeared in such films as "How Green Was My Valley," "My Friend Flicka" and "Lassie Come Home." He has since starred in numerous television dramas and films, including "Planet of the Apes."

Sept. 18 — Greta Garbo (1905-), the Swedish actress who withdrew from the entertainment field at the peak of her career in 1941. Her films include "Anna Christie," "Grand Hotel," "Anna Karenina," "Camille" and "Ninotchka."

Sept. 19 — Paul Williams (1940-), the singer and composer who has made numerous television and concert appearances. His songs include "We've Only Just Begun," "Rainy Days and Mondays," "An Old-Fashioned Love Song" and "Let Me Be the One."

Sept. 20 — Sophia Loren (1934-), the Italian film actress who won an Academy Award in 1961 for her performance in "Two Women." Her other films include "Boy on a Dolphin," "Houseboat," "Marriage Italian Style" and "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Sept. 21 — H.G. Wells (1866-1946), the novelist, sociologist and popular historian. His books include "The Time Machine," "The Invisible Man," "The War of the Worlds" and "The Outline of History."

Sept. 22 — John Houseman (1902-), the producer, director and actor who helped Orson Welles found the Mercury Theater in the 1930s. He has produced many Hollywood films, but is best known as the star of the film and, in 1978, the television series, "The Paper Chase."

Women Entering Sports Once Thought For Men

By the EDITORS
Of Psychology Today

In schools and colleges this fall, and outside them as well, thousands of women will be joining in sports that once were considered "unladylike." Yet many people worry about the trend: will sports "masculinize" females?

They may indeed give women some personality traits that previously have been associated with men, according to the hints contained in recent studies compiled by Joanna Bunker Rohrbaugh, a psychologist at the Harvard Medical School. Such a change could be a good thing, Rohrbaugh concludes. The traits involve psychological strength and confidence that are quite appropriate for women.

Rohrbaugh is the author of a book, "Women: Psychology's Puzzle," that will be published this fall.

Sports are not likely to masculinize women's bodies, however. For example, Rohrbaugh cites studies done by others that compared 275 college undergraduate who were not athletes with 328 college women who were. The athletes either participated in the 1972 Women's Intercollegiate Championships, in a variety of sports, or in the 1972 Olympic tryouts in gymnastics

Rohrbaugh calls the differences "hardly dramatic." The women athletes were one inch taller than the nonathletes, on the average, and three pounds heavier.

"Nor is there any truth to the so-called 'muscle myth,'" Rohrbaugh says. "When women engage in organized swimming, or even in weight-lifting programs, the major changes in body composition involve decreases in subcutaneous fat. No matter how often a woman lifts weights, she won't look like a scaled-down Arnold Schmarzenegger."

When it comes to feelings, however, sports seem to make a difference. The same study that compared female college athletes and nonathletes also asked the two groups how they felt about their energy levels, appetites and health, as well as about 18 different body parts or aspects of physical appearance. The researchers, sociologists Eldon Snyder and Joseph Kivlin, found that the athletes rated their bodies much more positively than the nonathletes.

Repeating the survey with 556 high school girls, Snyder found that athletes again had more positive images of their bodies than nonathletes. "Perhaps most dramatic of all," Rohrbaugh points out, "the high school athletes actually rated themselves as equally or even more 'feminine' than the non-athletic students."

To be sure, the female athletes may have felt positively about themselves even before getting involved in athletics. Whatever is behind it, Rohrbaugh cites two studies showing that the connection involves more than just "body image."

In one, students at a variety of Southern colleges who had participated in high school sports before they arrived on campus scored higher on tests of self-confidence. In the other survey, female college athletes seemed more sure of themselves.

"Compared with nonathletic college women," Rohrbaugh says, "the athletes were less dependent on the opinions of others, held more growth enhancing values, were more flexible in applying those values, were more sensitive to their own needs and feelings, were more apt to see people as essentially good, and were able to see the opposites and contradictions in life as meaningfully related to each other."

Thus," Rohrbaugh adds, "the female athletes were more self-actualized — surer of themselves, their world, and of their ability to relate meaningfully to that world."

Athletics is not the only kind of activity that can build confidence, of course. Rohrbaugh says high school musicians have also shown higher than average levels of self-satisfaction.

But if athletics do build confidence for women, Rohrbaugh wonders, "who's to say what will happen as more and more women begin to feel the strength of their bodies and hence, the courage of their convictions?"

Grave Digger Respectful Of His Clients

By TOM TIEDE

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (NEA) — Say something good about America? All right: Howard Wallace. He is a gray haired member of the often faceless but always fascinating population of good citizens on whose character rests the national weal. Howard Wallace. He digs graves for a living.

And what graves!

Others in the interment industry have long ago turned to machines for excavation. Wallace continues to use a pick and shovel. He isn't interested in holes, he says, but final resting places. He cuts perpetual homes in the earth, and insists the departed occupants deserve no less.

He begins the work at sunup by carefully removing strips of sod from inside a form on the grass. When he gets to the dirt itself he lays part of it aside in a box, and removes the rest from the vicinity. He soils nothing but his hands; the dead should sleep in a garden, he says.

They should also sleep in dignity. So, in respect, when Wallace starts digging he refuses to stop — even for water — until the resting place is complete. This means he digs steadily for eight hours or more, shovel after shovel; he's just 5 feet tall, by the way, and weighs 110 pounds.

Wallace says the strain is no bother. "I've been workin' ever since I can remember." And that goes back a bit — to the days, actually, when black people in Virginia were emerging from slavery. Many of Wallace's people had been in shackles, and so he is no stranger to endurance.

"Oh yes," he says, "the slaves worked and worked. My kin picked peanuts in the hot Virginia sun." For that they got their keep. And at Christmas they got something extra from the slave owner. "You know what it was? A capful of peanuts, one capful, for each family on the plantation."

Once freed, the Wallace family settled here between the York and James rivers. In that period Wallace worked for his father, for 10 cents a day. They carried freight on Chesapeake Bay, mostly, until the father was killed in a storm at sea. Then Wallace went to work for the railroads.

He still holds on to a railroad hat, which he wears over vanishing whispers of hair. He coveralls are also those of a trainman, and a size or two larger than he requires. He wears plain workshirts, buttoned at the collar and sleeves. This, he says, is his gravedigging uniform.

Wallace dug his first grave shortly before World War I, "for a few dollars." Today he gets $50 each, usually from Williamsburg's Memorial Park. The park managers say grave-digging machines would cut up the cemetery's landscape, thus Howard Wallace is employed to dig them with his hands.

HOWARD WALLACE...Still uses pick and shovel to dig graves

Wallace has dug more than 700 graves here. And many more than this in other cemeteries in the region. He also digs wells, and septic tanks, and ditches and foundations. Colleagues say he should have retired years ago, but he continues to work every day of the week except the Sabbath.

Indeed, Wallace has few interests save hard labor. He doesn't watch television, he doesn't even have a phone, and his wife, Katharine, has passed on. "So I work, I dig," he says. "The Lord gave me a horn and tole me to blow, he gave me legs and told me to go. I don't like sittin' idle."

Besides, Wallace says he has a good time in the graves. After years at the cemetery he believes he is surrounded by neighbors. Sometimes he sings hymns for the sleeping population, and other times he talks with it. He's not embarrassed to say he believes in ghosts: "They are my friends."

Occasionally, Wallace says the friends visit him. His late father came once, to look after an ailing cow, and his wife came twice. The wife's first visit was for conversation only, but the second time she told Wallace where she'd hidden a cache of family mementos and sundry other valuables.

This then is one reason why Wallace is so careful with his graves. He never knows who's goin to come back and call on him. The people he buries may be deceased, he admits, but they can't be forgotten: "They still have rights. They still belong. So I want to make sure they are satisfied."

Even if the departed could not come back to complain, Wallace says he'd do his best for each of them. "I can't go on workin' forever," he resons. "Someday I'll have to stop too, and they'll be diggin' a place for me. Then I'll be seein' all these people again — in the by and by."

Not soon, he hopes, grinning.

But someday.

Chromosome Mixup Can Cause Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — The discovery that a scrambled chromosome can cause a form of cancer may be the first step in the development of tests that will allow doctors to spot the seeds of the disease in the unborn, scientists say.

At Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, doctors discovered that a specific, inherited mixup in genetic material was causing one family to have an unusually high incidence of kidney cancer.

Doctors have known that some, and possibly all, kinds of cancer can be inherited. But this is the first time that they have ever been able to find the exact genetic mistake that allows the disease to pass from parent to child.

In this case, the doctors are able to use a test called amniocentesis to disclose before birth which offspring of the family are likely to grow up to have kidney cancer.

The results of the research were published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. Dr. Robert S. Brown headed the researchers.

Inheritance of kidney cancer is rare, and Brown said the genetic accident they discovered may affect only one family. However, the possibility exists that doctors may someday be able to use similar techniques to find the seeds of other kinds of cancer in the unborn.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Alfred G. Knudson Jr. of Fox Chase Cancer Center in Philadelphia wrote: "If it is true that there are 100 or so cancers and that each occurs in both hereditary and non-heriditary form, then genetic studies of those rare families with inherited cancers could ultimately lead to a catalogue of the 100 or so cancer genes in men. Theoretically, all persons at high genetic risk of cancer could be identified, even in fetal life."

In this way, parents could decide to terminate a pregnancy if it appeared the unborn baby had a high risk of growing up to have cancer.

Researchers are not sure what proportion of cancers are caused by heredity and which are touched off by environmental factors, such as smoking.

In the family studied, kidney cancer developed in five men and five women over three generations. The researchers were able to study genetic material from eight of them and found that all had the same genetic mistake. Members of this family have a 50-50 chance of being born with the mixed-up chromosomes.

All humans have 23 pairs of chromosomes, strings of genes that control physical development. In the people in this family, one chromosome from the third pair was switched with one from the eighth pair.

People with this abnormality stand an 87 percent chance of developing cancer of the kidney by age 59, they said. Ordinarily, about one person in a thousand gets kidney cancer by this age.

Travel Agent Held For Grand Larceny

NEW YORK (AP) — A 28-year-old travel agent has been charged with pocketing more than $1.5 million in ticket sales from three airlines in a scheme that took advantage of a built-in time lag in ticket-accounting procedures, authorities say.

Chaim Einhorn, who was indicted on 12 counts of grand larceny Thursday, apparently flew out of the country and his whereabouts were unknown, said Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold.

No Effects Expected From Solar Flare

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A solar flare that released more energy than thousands of hydrogen bombs was reported Friday by scientists of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The scientists said the flare erupted at 3:56 a.m. EDT Friday and could be the forerunner of more powerful solar flares. The flare occurred in the same region around the edge of the sun that produced major solar flares last month.

Patrick S. McIntosh, a solar forecaster, said the flare itself was not visible from Earth, but material hurled into space was detected by ground observatories. The flare is not expected to produce a magnetic storm on Earth, he said.

HEROIN SEIZED

BOSTON (AP) — Federal officials say 2.2 pounds of heroin, with a street value of more than $2 million, has been seized at Logan International Airport.Customs agents and state police arrested truck driver James Pratt, 28, of Essex, and charged him with conspiracy to imprt the drug. U.S. Magistrate Lawrence Cohen scheduled a hearing for Sept. 21 and Pratt was being held in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Ethnic Chinese Allowed Back To Island Homes

BEIHAI, China (AP) — Thousands of ethnic Chinese who were told by Vietnamese officals to leave an island near Haiphong have returned to their homeland.

In March 1978 the 7,000 ethnic Chinese on Po Wan Island were told to leave within a month or be moved to a new "economic zone" where they would be forced to work on farms.

Most of the refugees are now temporarily housed in grass huts in this fishing village on the Gulf of Tonin, about 170 miles from Haiphong.

Unlike other refugees from Vietnam, these refugees used their fishing boats to make the three — to four — day voyage around the gulf to a port where Chinese they were forced welcomed them.

The refugees said they were forced to leave most of their possessions behind and were harassed by Vietnamese military patrol boats on their trip across the gulf.

PHILIPPINE MARTIAL LAW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is "disappointed" in the decision of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos to extend martial law, the State Department said Friday. But Marcos' decision will not affect military cooperation agreements that will send the Philippines $500 million in weapons in the next five years, said spokesman Hodding Carter. But he also said that martial law has contributed to the suspension of democratic forms of government and the abrogation of human rights since Marcos invoked it almost seven years ago.

'Not Quittin' Time Yet For Old Trailblazers

By JOY ASCHENBACH
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The 33 men who moved through the remote Daniel Boone National Forest in eastern Kentucky, clearing a 254-mile-long hilly trail with axes and brush hooks, were not early frontiersmen or modern construction workers. They were senior citizens — ages 55 to 76.

Like old Daniel Boones, they spent three years on and off in the woods, cutting underbrush, digging out paths in side slopes, removing fallen trees, and putting up trail markers — a white diamond with a turtle on top.

They called the path through the 660,000-acre forest "Sheltowee Trace." Sheltowee, the Shawnee Indian word for "big turtle," was the name given Daniel Boone when he was adopted into the tribe during the 1760s when he roamed through this part of Kentucky.

Many who worked on the trail as part of the federal Senior Community Service Employment Program were retired loggers, coal miners, farmers, and foresters. The U.S. Forest Service, one of eight federal agencies participating in the senior citizen program, employs about 3,300 older persons in national forests in 40 states.

"It's almost like the pioneers again," Bob Strosnider, who supervised the recently completed Sheltowee project, said. "The older people take a great deal of pride in the work they do. They are experienced and dependable."

"Sometimes we had to walk a couple of miles into the woods just to get work," 71-year-old Willie Dunn, of McKee, Ky., explained. "It was pretty hard. We'd dig down to make a trail and then dig out places to drain off the water so what we did wouldn't wash away."

A retired forester, Dunn and the others had to pass a physical before being sent into the hilly — in some places rugged — forest. There was the potential for outdoor accidents — falling branches, tripping in tangled underbrush, and snake bites — but none occurred.

The senior citizens were assisted by members of the Young Adult Conservation Corps (ages 16 to 23) and the Youth Conservation Corps (ages 15 to 18). The older workers had no trouble keeping up, according to Charles Crail of the Forest Service. "In fact we could hardly get them to stop working," he said.

Besides clearing new trails in forests in many parts of the country, the senior citizens also help spruce up existing ones. In the 1-million-acre George Washington National Forest in Virginia's Blue Ridge, they do everything from checking signs along the trails and replacing damaged posts and markers, to putting redwood stain on picnic tables and benches and picking up debris.

"They help with the upkeep of the forest and make the place look like it's being cared for," Robert Grace, who supervises the 51 older workers in the GW forest, explained. "They are our support system for hand labor — a lot of which would never get done without them."

Throughout the country the senior citizens who work in the Forest Service's Senior Conservation Employment Program are generally doing work for which there are no other funds or employees.

The older people, who must be over 55 and economically disadvantaged, each work a maximum of 1,300 hours a year (about 25 hours a week) for at least the minimum wage, averaging about $3.10 an hour.

One of the major senior citizen projects in the five-year-old program, involving 30 persons, including a couple of husband-wife teams — was the construction of a large picnic pavilion and hike trail in a national forest in North Carolina.

With 188 million acres of national forests in the country, it appears unlikely that the Forest Service will run out of jobs for the increasing older population. "This gives me something to do," Willie Dunn said. "It's not quittin' time yet."

Books 'Speaking Out' To Readers

By JOY ASCHENBACH
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — Talking Books, the Library of Congress program that has been reading to the blind for 45 years, is now telling all — saying aloud things that people just didn't talk about before.

Reflecting the liberated times, the talking books — cassette and disc recordings of classic and current literature — are speaking more openly, frankly, and freely. So much so that the program's large-type, mail-order catalog now comes with warnings added to the brief summaries for certain books, noting "violence" or "strong language" or "explicit descriptions of sex."

The talking books are only voicing what others have written, and since the early 1970s there have been more and more explicit books on the market, explained Frank Kurt Cylke, director of the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, which runs the program.

Three years ago the Talking Book Topics catalog started carrying the notation about descriptive language because of complaints from shocked users. They "just didn't want to read (hear) that kind of stuff," Cylke said. Most of the 600,000 users are more than 65 years old.

The Talking Books program includes all kinds of books — from religious to risque — because it in effect operates as "a public library" for the blind and, Cylke said, should provide its users with the range of topics any public library offers.

There is no editing and no censorship; once a book is selected for the program, it is recorded from cover to cover. "We of course don't do hard-core pornography," Cylke commented.

Books like "Delta of Venus: Erotica" by Anais Nin, which was listed in a recent catalog and is one of the most explicit ever recorded, passed the selection test, Cylke explained, because it received widespread and good reviews from book critics in respected publications and is considered "part of the literature of our times."

Keeping up with the '70s, the program also has offered its "readers" such works as: "The Managerial Woman," "Metropolitan Life," and "Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Energy...But Were Too Weak to Ask."

Cylke's staff decides what books to produce, based on popular demand and literary merit. General guidelines on subject areas are set at a once-a-year meeting of librarians and "readers" at the Library of Congress. Books are equally divided between fiction and non-fiction, and retrospective and current topics.

A total of about 26,000 book titles and 70 magazines — from Good Housekeeping on disc to Playboy in braille — are available through the program. Favorite works are best-selling fiction, mysteries, biographies, Gothic romances, science fiction, and cookbooks.

About 2,000 new titles are added eacy year, most of them on casette tapes, with a smaller number produced on discs and in braille book form. "Far more people read with their ears than with their fingers," Cylke explained. Of the 600,000 users, 90 percent of whom are blind or visually handicapped, approximately 20,000 (less than 5 percent) read braille.

NEWS POLL — This chart shows the results of a question asked on an AP-NBC News poll taken Monday and Tuesday on Soviet combat troops in Cuba and the SALT II pact. (AP Laserphoto)

American Distrust Of Russia Rising, Says Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — By a three to one margin, Americans want the U.S. Senate to delay voting on the SALT II treaty until Soviet combat troops are pulled out of Cuba, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The public's distrust of the Soviets, which was already strong, has been heightened by the revelation that 3,000 Soviet combat troops are now in Cuba.

There is still a substantial lack of knowledge about the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, with more than half of those interviewed Monday and Tuesday saying they still do not know enough about the pact to have an opinion about it.

Those who do have an opinion on SALT II are evenly split on the pact, which would place new limits on both United States and Soviet strategic nuclear weapons.

Earlier this month, it was revealed that U.S. intelligence had uncovered evidence of the presence of a 3,000-man Soviet combat brigade in Cuba. Eight out of 10 Americans said they had recently heard or read about those Soviet combat troops being stationed in Cuba, the poll found.

Of those who had heard, 66 percent said they want the Senate to delay ratification of the SALT II treaty until the Soviet troops are out of Cuba.

Twenty-two percent oppose a delay in Senate action and 12 percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

On the SALT II treaty itself, the public remains uncertain.

Fifty-four percent of those interviewed said they did not know enough to have an opinion on the pact.

Twenty percent of the public said they favor the treaty, and 23 percent oppose it. Three percent were not sure. Because of the sampling error present in this and every poll, that finding can only be called an even split of opinion.

Attitudes on SALT II are only somewhat related to whether or not the respondent said Senate action on it should be delayed.

Those who oppose the treaty favor a delay in action by an 82-13 margin. But those who back the pact also back a delay in ratification because of the Soviet troop issue, by a 59-35 edge.

Even those who said they have no opinion on the treaty itself supported a delay in ratification by 61-20.

In the U.S. Senate — which is now holding hearings on the SALT II pact — several senators reacted to the news of Soviet combat troops in Cuba by linking the treaty to the troop issue, a linkage opposed by the Carter administration.

It now appears that Senate action on the pact will be delayed, at least for several weeks, because of the Soviet troop controversy.

Past AP-NBC News polls have found substantial distrust of the Soviet Union. With the troops controversy, that distrust has grown.

Seventy-one percent of those interviewed said they do not trust the Russians to abide by agreements made with the United States. That is seven points higher than the finding of the March AP-NBC News poll.

Only 21 percent said the Soviet can be trusted to live up to agreements and 8 percent were not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

Questions Asked By AP-NBC News Poll:

Here are some of the questions asked on the AP-NBC News poll:

At the present time, the United States and the Soviet Union are close to reaching agreement on a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, usually called SALT II. Have you already heard or read enough about it to have an opinion? (If yes) Do you favor or oppose this new SALT agreement?

2. For the past few years, the United States and Russia have had a policy of trying to reach agreements which will relax tensions between them. Do you think the Russians can be trusted to live up to such agreements or don't you think so?

3. Have you heard or read anything recent about Soviet combat troops being stationed in Cuba?

4. Do you think the Senate should delay action on the ratification of the SALT II Treaty until these Soviet troops are removed from Cuba or don't you think so?

Expenses For Pope's Visit Questioned

NEW YORK (AP) — Feelings about Pope John Paul II's upcoming visit to the United States have gone beyond religious considerations. Some people are questioning how much the pope's visit will cost and who will pick up the tab.

Thus far, the cities involved — New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Chicago and Washington, D.C. — expect to spend about $5.2 million. And as of now, it is estimated that local archdioceses will spend around $2 million.

But the final cost to taxpayers for extra police, fire and sanitation crews and special facilites hasn't yet been calculated. It could be considerable.

Chicago, for example, is mustering at least 3,000 police officers — the biggest detail for a visitor in that midwestern city's history. And Iowa is calling about 1,000 to 1,500 members of the National Guard to assist local and state police.

The initial outcry against using public funds for the pope's journey came from the American Civil Liberties Union and Protestant groups in Boston and Philadelphia where there are plans to build platforms to be used in religious services. This rekindled arguments regarding the separation of church and state.

"Is it appropriate to spend public tax dollars, public tax money for a religious service on the Boston Common?" asked Dr. Kenneth Claus, a United Church of Christ minister. "He deserves security and all of the dignity that is afforded a head of state. My problem simply goes to public support of religious services."

Boston is spending $150,000 to construct a platform to be used for the pope's outdoor Mass on Boston Common. Mayor Kevin H. White, a Catholic, as are all nine members of the City Council, says using the city's money for this facility is not unconstitutional or improper.

But Philadelphia's branch of the ACLU says using public funds to construct a platform and altar for the pope's Mass there was an "egregious violation" of the constitution's separation of church and state. The civil liberties organization plans to sue if Mayor Frank Rizzo, who is Catholic, insists on using the city's money.

City officials say $775,000 in public funds will be spent for the pope's visit to Philadelphia. This includes costs for the 27-foot-high platform and police overtime. The local archdiocese has not yet given a figure for what it expects to spend.

Boston estimates $700,000 will be spent there, including $150,000 for overtime for 2,000 police officers, rental of 12,250 trash cans and purchase of 80 miles of rope for crowd control.

The Boston Archdiocese has not yet released what its costs will be. A special fund has been set up to accept donations and a special collection will be taken up next Sunday in Boston churches.

New York officials say about $2 million will be spent for overtime and other police costs.

The Pope will be appearing at Yankee Stadium, and the use of that facility could cost from $80,000 to $160,000. Shea Stadium, where he'll also visit, runs from $30,000 to $70,000, and Madison Square Garden will rent for $60,000 for the Pope's 30-minute visit there.

The bill for Madison Square Garden will be passed on to the Archdiocese of New York. It has not yet been determined who will assume the other costs.

In Iowa, the state is assuming responsibility for the pope's visit to Des Moines and neighboring towns. "We don't yet know how much it will cost," said Joseph Grubbs, administrative assistant to Gov. Robert Ray.

The state will have to pay for transporting, housing and feeding the National Guard. The local archdiocese has a $1.5 million budget, Gubbs said and will use it for construction of an altar and platform and use of a helicopter.

City officials in Washington, D.C., expect to spend about $1.5 million, most of it for police overtime. The archdiocese there plans to spend about $400,000, which includes construction of a stage and altar and the planting of about 5,000 chrysanthemums for the pope's mass on the Mall.

Cardinal William Baum has asked parishes to help by requesting donations of $5 per Catholic family.

"We are treating this as a special event," he said. "We are not taking money away from our budget which we established for the year. Nobody is going to suffer."

The Chicago Archdiocese is picking up the tab for everything except extra police, traffic and park personnel. It expects to spend about $100,000, which includes $30,000 for a 16-foot high altar.

First Deputy Superintendent James Riordan of the Chicago police hasn't estimated how much the department will spend for the 3,000 or more officers called. "That's because we can't tell where the line will be drawn between daily and overtime costs until we have a more complete itinerary," he said.

Methodists Announce Clergy, Lay Delegates To Conference

United Methodist Church clergy and lay delegates to the General Conference of the Northwest Texas Conference have been announced by the Lubbock office.

Clergy delegates will be the Rev. Ted Dotts, senior minister of St. John's United Methodist Church of Lubbock; Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, now senior minister of the First UMC of Midland and a former pastor of St. John's in Lubbock; Dr. Clifford E. Trotter, senior minister of Polk Street UMC of Amarillo and Dr. R. L. Kirk senior minister of First UMC of Plainview.

Laymen who will represent the Northwest Texas Conference are Jim B. Waterfield of Canadian, who will head the local delegation; Jere M. Lawrence of Sweetwater; Ray Orson of Lamesa; and Robert W. Baumgardner of Brownfield.

Each annual conference of the United Methodist Church elects an equal number of clergy and lay delegates to represent their constituents at the national meeting at its session prior to the quadrennial meeting of the General Conference of the church.

The General Conference will be held April 15-25, 1980, in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Kansas Professor Will Lead Services

Dr. Morris Ashcraft, professor of Christian Theology at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City, Mo., will preach at all three services of worship at First Baptist Church Sunday. Hours for worship are 8:15 and 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Ashcraft was graduated from Ouachita Baptist University, Arkadelphia, Ark., and received a Bachelor of Divinity and a doctor of philosophy degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. He has also done advanced study at Union Theological Seminary of New York, at the University of Zurich in Switzerland and the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

Before joining the faculty of the Kansas City seminary in 1959, Ashcraft taught at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and Furman University.

He is a member of the American Academy of Religion, Society of Biblical Literature, American Schools of Oriental Research and the Association of Baptist Professors of Religion.

Dr. and Mrs. Ashcraft are parents of two children.

Guest Speaker Scheduled At City Church

The Rev. David J. Torgerson, National Representative for the Assemblies of God Sunday School Department, will be guest speaker at the Lighthouse Assembly of God, 2002 N. Ash, Sunday, at 6:30 p.m., according to John Murdoch, pastor.

A member of the Assemblies of God national Sunday school staff in Springfield, Mo., the Rev. Torgerson travels extensively for the department in Christian Education conventions, conferences, seminars and workers training courses.

In addition to his field ministry, Torgerson serves the Sunday School Department as Administration Specialist.

A native of North Dakota, Torgerson began his ministry there as a teenager, speaking at youth meetings. He later expanded his ministry to evangelism, radio, and a pastoral ministry. He has served congregations in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Evangelist To Speak At Area Cities

A Shreveport, La., evangelist will speak on drug abuse and crime prevention next week at several area cities.

The Rev. Jerry Golden, accompanied by pianist Jeremiah Ginsberg, will speak at 10:15 a.m. Monday at Lamesa Middle School and at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Brownfield Middle School.

Golden will speak at 9 a.m. Wednesday at Meadow High School, at 1:45 p.m. Wednesday at Union School, at 10:15 a.m. Thursday at Lamesa High School and at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Welch High School.

He will preach in a revival Sept. 23 to 29 at the First Foursquare Church in Brownfield and Sept. 30 at the First Foursquare Church in Lubbock.

St. John's To Offer Film Programs

St. John's United Methodist Church will offer a series of Sunday evening programs based on the films in the New Media Bible prpject. The series will begin Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Garden Room of the church, according to an announcement by Dr. H. Doyle Ragle, coordinator of t the presentations.

The New Media Bible, produced by the Genesis Project of New York, presents the first twenty-two chapter of the book of Genesis and the first two chapters of the Gospel Accoding to St. Luke in part one.

The project has been described by John Heyman, executive officer of the Genesis Project as "the first attempt to provide a faithful translation of the text of the entire Bible into the medium of our day without elaboration or distortion."

NATIONAL DIABETES WEEK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter on Friday designated the week of Oct. 8 as National Diabetes Week, saying the disease affects the lives of 10 million Americans.

Silver Close Behind Gold As Prices Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of silver has been following gold to record highs as demand from industries and speculators continues to outrun available supplies and as concern over the economic outlook sends investors rushing to precious metals.

Silver prices have been rising steadily since 1964, when the United States and several other countries dropped the use of silver to back their currencies. But the value of the metal has doubled in the past year — and the spiral shows few signs of slackening.

The price has climbed from around $6 an ounce a year ago to around $12 today as the price of gold bullion pushes toward the $350-an-ounce mark. Silver and gold commonly are sold by the troy ounce, a unit of weight equivalent to about 1.1 ounces of avoirdupois weight.

On Friday, silver for delivery in September jumped 70 cents to $13.35 an ounce on New York's Commodity Exchange Inc. and gained 62 cents to $13.32 on the Chicago Board of Trade.

"It's a speculative binge," analyst Harold J. Drake of the U.S. Bureau of Mines said Friday.

"Anything made out of silver is in incredible demand now. It's the most we've ever seen," said George Parola, manager of the numismatic division of the currency and coin dealer Deak-Perera.

The rush to silver has driven up the price of some consumer products including photographic film, the most important user of silver. But jewelry prices have not been affected as much because "silver accounts for just a small part of the price of a particular item," said Robert Dietz, a spokesman for the Zale Corp. jewelry chain.

Because of the time it takes to produce jewelry, "the bullion price increases that were put in six to eight months ago might just be showing up now" at the retail level, he said.

While gold is used in industry, silver is a far more important industrial commodity. The world's industries use 250 million troy ounces of silver a year, but silver mines are producing only 150 million ounces. And recycling efforts have not closed the gap.

Eastman Kodak Co., which uses 50 million ounces of silver annually, earlier this year increased prices on film used by consumers by 6 percent. Next week it will raise prices on medical and dental X-ray films by 6.2 percent.

The latest boost is "primarily due to the high cost of silver," said spokesman Henry Kaska. Asked if Kodak planned to raise prices on consumer films again, Kaska said, "I can't speculate on that, but obviously you're going to try to adjust for the increased price of raw materials."

Kodak obtains 30 percent of its silver from recycling operations. "We even save the pieces we punch out of 35-millimeter film," Kaska said. They're much too valuable to throw away."

But Drake said that in general, there had not been a rush by industry to devise new silver recycling systems. There also "really aren't any new mines," although "there's probably quite a bit of interest in reopening old, abandoned properties," he said.

Kentucky Evangelist To Lead City Revival

Marshall Patton, an evangelist from Louisville, Ky., will be the speaker at a series of gospel services at the Caprock Church of Christ, 5201 University Ave., beginning Sunday and continuing through Friday.

He will be speaking Sunday at 9:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m., and each evening during the week at 7:30 p.m.

Baptists To Host Leadership Seminar

The Lubbock Baptist Association will host a regional Brotherhood leadership Seminar today at the Association Center.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Individual conferences will begin at 8 a.m. and continue through the day with a break for lunch which will be served at the center.

General sessions will be held on the topics, "Purpose in Administration of Brotherhood Work," and "How to Involve Men and Boys."

Leaders for the meeting will be Alvin Fleming, Ricky Stark, Doyle Holmes, and Dudley Bristow.

Evangelist To Speak At Gospel Series

Ron Ball, an evangelist from Lexington, Ky., will be a leader for revival services which begin Sunday at the Oakwood United Methodist Church.

He will preach Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services. Other services will include breakfast meetings at 6:45 a.m. and evening services at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

IRS Sues Cosmetic King For Fraud

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The federal government has sued former cosmetics king Glenn W. Turner in an effort to confiscate some of his Florida property to collect more than $1 million in income taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service claims in a lawsuit filed earlier this week that the flamboyant entrepreneur concocted a scheme to defraud the government and his creditors by transferring a $1.2 million mortgage on the undeveloped property.

Turner's nationwide empire of cosmetics and motivational courses collapsed in the early 1970s. He was subsequently sued by hundreds of angry employees and associates who claim they had been cheated

Recent Court Decisions Alarm Church Groups

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A note of alarm has hit U.S. church officials over some recent court decisions, one of which they say threatens the long-time operational systems of Christian denominations.

It would, if allowed to stand, "unconstitutionally mandate the demise of religious denominations as they now exist," says a Baptist brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court.

Similar apprehensions have been expressed in a brief filed by the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

They are challenging a California Court of Appeals decision that the entire United Methodist Church can be sued and held liable in a $400 million suit involving some regionally sponsored retirement homes.

Because of a decision in another case by the U.S. Supreme Court, the United Presbyterian Church may call an unprecedented special meeting of the denomination's national governing assembly.

Such quick, church-wide action may be necessary "to avoid widespread confusion in the church and harm to its peace and unity," says G. Daniel Little, head of a 45-member executive council.

It is to decide at a meeting in Port Chester, N.Y., this weekend whether to call a special general assembly — the first in the church's history — to amend its constitution to protect its property.

Consideration of such a step arose over a Supreme Court decision last July that allows state courts to decide church property ownership disputes on the basis of purely secular law when a denomination's official documents are not explicit about it.

Most major Protestant bodies — Presbyterian, Lutheran, Episcopal and Methodist — have interlocking organizational systems, sometimes loosely defined, by which buildings of local congregations can't be taken out of the denomination by a passing majority vote.

The idea is that a church building often represents the money and work of many generations, and that no momentary, dissident majority should be able to override their intent and pull property out of its historic denominational fold.

In Roman Catholicism, local diocesan property is held in the name of successive bishops for the whole church. In most Protestant bodies, other than those such as Baptists with specifically autonomous congregations, the principle is that local property is held in trust for the whole denominational cause.

But that tradition was put in question after a 164-to-90 majority of the Vineville Presbyterian Church of Macon, Ga., voted to quit the Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern) and affiliate with another group. Although regional church units held the minority retained the property, Georgia courts ruled that under secular law the majority owned the property.

The U.S. Supreme Court agreed by a narrow 5-to-4 decision the issue could be resolved on secular legal terms, unless the denominational system specified the property was part of the whole church.

The decision, in effect, reversed a position of the high court dating back to 1871 when it ruled that civil courts must give way to church tribunals in such cases.

The decision "casts grave doubts upon the 'implied trust' theory" under which both United Presbyterian and southern Presbyterian bodies have operated, says William P. Thompson, chief United Presbyterian administrator.

In the West Coast case, the California court held the whole United Methodist Church can be held responsible in the damage suit brought by 162 former residents of the bankrupt Pacific Retirement Homes, regionally church sponsored but over which the denomination has no control.

Samuel W. Witwer, church counsel, says the decision endangers systems of most major church bodies, subjecting them to penalties for a local unity's activities beyond denominational jurisdiction.

Symbol of YESTERDAY

What varied stories this ancient span could reveal if only it were capable — exciting tales of the Civil War . . . of enchanting lovers' trysts beneath its tall arched roof. And, gloomy stories, too, like the despondent old man who snuffed out his life by plunging from its edge into the swift waters of the creek below.

Yes, this weatherbeaten structure has survived the years. It has endured. And, God willing, it will stand for perhaps another generation — a unique symbol of yesterday.

The Church and this sturdy bridge have a great deal in common. The Church has withstood the test of time because nothing has yet been discovered to supplant the profound peace and serenity it supplies. The Church will endure for all time — after the picturesque old covered bridge is only a memory.

Stock Market Shows Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market chalked up a broad gain Friday, still showing no adverse effects from the upward march of interest rates.

Brokers said the rally might have drawn some of its impetus from hopes that a General Motors strike could be averted.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 8.37 to 895.10, for its best daily showing since it picked up 9.13 points on Aug. 15.

The average finished the week with a net gain of 4.95.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 41.98 million shares, against 35.24 million Thursday.

Early Surfer Still Rides Waves At 72

By DOUG WILLIAMS

EUREKA, Calif. (NEA) — John Health "Doc" Ball has finally decided to make a few concessions to his "old age."

That doesn't mean the 72-year-old retired dentist has slowed down. It just means that he usually substitutes a skateboard for a surfboard when he's in the mood for some fun.

"I started skateboarding when I got fed up with riding in the cold water," says Doc, who admits that he just can't keep as warm as he used to.

"A guy's got to do something to keep his reflexes or you've had it. I didn't realize how easy it was until I started mixing it up with some kids down in Southern Cal."

Doc still surfs without fail on his birthday every Jan. 25. Sometimes he gets the urge to go out a few more times each year.

But those times are few and far between compared with his younger days in Southern California when surfing and surf photography were his passions.

Doc began surfing in 1929. Six years later he was a founding member of the Palos Verdes Surfing Club, the first mainland club to organize and hold together.

In the early '30s, Doc saw some surfing pictures and decided to see what he could do with a camera. By that time he had graduated from dental school. He traded some bridgework for his first camera, a graflex.

Over the next couple of decades, Doc shot thousands of pictures with his boxed waterproof camera, many of which were published in books, magazines and newspapers throughout the United States, Australia and Europe.

In addition, Doc published his own book on Pacific-coast surfing in 1946. Titled "California Surfriders," the book is to be reprinted by Mountain and Sea Publishers of Los Angeles.

Doc has lost his dark wavy hair. But he is still energetic, trim and bubbling with enthusiasm when the conversation turns to the early days of surfing.

"We used to do regular safaris with the club," he recalls. "In 1928, we went to Santa Cruz (now a popular California surfing spot) and there was nobody surfing there except us. But I remember going through during the war and they had already organized a club of their won."

IN AMERICA

He adds, "Now surfing's just grown all out of reason."

Besides Santa Cruz, the spots Doc surfed were legendary, a regular Beach Boys' odyssey — Hermosa Beach, San Onofre, Palos Verdes, Corona Del Mar, Malibu, San Clemente.

Doc can still recall a moment from an early morning at San Onofre years ago.

"You could get some great long rides at San Onofre," he says. "There were these three breaks and one day I beat all three of them. By that time, I was screaming so loud I woke everybody up on the beach. Within five minutes, the water was full of boards."

One of Doc's fondest memories involves Hawaii's Duke Kahanamoku, the Olympic champion swimmer who became one of the most fabled surfers ever.

"I met Kahanamoku for the first time in 1922," he says. "He came over to put on a show for a pool dedication. And, oh, to see him swim. His whole chest would rise out of the water he was so powerful. He just left Buddy Smith, the Pacific Coast champ, in the dust."

Doc admits that there have been some changes since the days when he would set off in his Model A "surfing wagon" with 125-pound wooden and copper-inlaid boards as long as 10½ feet and hand paddles that surfers wore to catch their rides.

"We used to kid each other," he says. "We'd say, 'I wonder what we'll look like in our old age?' because we used to carry those boards on our backs to the water. They were so heavy you could hear your bones crunch."

Since the 1930s, boards have changed, going through phases of hollow woods, balsa wood and fiberglass.

"NEW" FUEL — Millions of people are turning to an old friend, wood, as a new source of home heating fuel. And the demand for wood has boosted the price more than 60 percent in some areas. Corporate Giants Seek Patent Rights For Living Organisms

According to the PTO, Congress never intended for the patent statute to apply to "living organisms — life itself."

The statute reads, in part: "Whomever invents or discovers a new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor."

Upjohn's patent attorney, John Kekich, anticipates a ruling favorable to the company. "If you can come up with new or different forms of life and they can be used in a manufacturing process," he told a reporter, "I think they could at least make a claim they fall in the statutory limits."

Some attorneys and scientists who have followed the genetic engineering debate in recent years have even raised the question of whether human life itself may one day be patentable.

That possibility aside, a Supreme Court ruling favorable to the companies would lay the legal foundation for a vast new industry based on new life forms. Fortune magazine has predicted that genetic engineering will soon become a "multi-billion dollar" enterprise.

Some industry analysts believe that genetic technologies will become the leading growth industry in the United States in the 1980s and beyond. What computers and electronics were to the 1960s and 1970s, they contend, the creation of new life forms may be to the immediate future.

The key to this budding industry is a technique called recombinant DNA. It allows researchers to splice together genes from unrelated species, literally creating novel forms of life.

These unique micro-organisms, in turn, can be used as "cellular factories" to inexpensively churn out large quantities of chemicals that have never before been produced biologically. Some commercial and industrial products, manufactured through gene splicing and other genetic technologies, already loom on the horizon. They include:

•The oil eater. Dr. Ananda K. Chakrabarty of General Electric has redesigned a Pseudomonas microorganism to give it the capacity to consume hydrocarbons, such as petroleum. GE hopes to use its "bug" in conjunction with oil companies to clean up tanker spills and slicks.

•Synthetic insulin. Several companies are experimenting with producing insulin in cell cultures. Already, synthetic human insulin has been effectively grown. Other medical possibilities include the production of simple proteins, vaccines, anti-viral compounds and antibodies.

•Industrial enzymes. Oil companies are seeking to manufacture life forms which can break down industrial waste and extract oil from shale to make synfuels.

•Food production: attempts are underway to redesign plants so that they could acquire nitrogen from the air, rather than requiring fertilizers. Other possibilities include manufacturing cheap, nutritious foodstuffs from microorganisms, and the cloning (asexual reproduction) of cattle and domestic livestock.

Of the latter, Dr. Clement L. Markett, a Yale cloning researcher, notes: "I could wipe out all of Yale's deficits with the valuable bulls raised from the embryos I could produce in one weekend."

•Gene therapy. The logical conclusion in genetic engineering research is perfecting a method to alter the chromosomes and heredity of human beings. This is true genetic engineering, redesigning humans to "improve" them biologically.

Dr. Bert W. O'Malley of Baylor University believes we stand on the threshold of making "possible replacement of abnormal genes — the kind that cause genetic diseases — with genes that have been manipulated or 'corrected.'"

All of these applications raise serious questions, however.

How save is the industrial production of recombinant DNA? Recent scientific evidence suggests that some new life forms can escape from the laboratory and survive, and thrive, in the outside environment. What would be the health and ecological implications of such an accident?

Also, researchers will have to grow cell cultures in alrge volumes. Because of the quantities involved, a mistake in the laboratory could prove fatal to a large segment of the population.

Critics of the industrial application of the technology point out that, just as with a serious nuclear power accident, a genetic biohazard may be an irreversible occurrence.

Such questions notwithstanding, Chemical and Engineering News, a trade publication, describes the current momentum in the field: "Like distant thunder that is drawing ever closer, recombinant DNA technology, gene splicing, is moving inexorably toward practical application."

People Turning To Firewood For Fuel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Millions of people will be chopping, sawing and burning their way through the coming winter. And the demand for firewood has boosted the price.

The use of wood as a supplement or alternative to regular heating fuels has become more and more popular as the cost of oil and natural gas has gone up.

Andy Shapiro of the Wood Energy Institute, a trade group based in Camden, Maine, said that in key wood-burning states across northern parts of the United States, up to 50 percent of the residents are "using wood to some extent for space heating."

About one-fifth of these people, he said, are using wood as their primary heating fuel.

Lester A. DeCoster, New England Regional Manager of the American Forest Institute, said New England residents alone are expected to use almost twice as much firewood this winter as they did last. "It's really increasing," he said. "After all, you can't drill an oil well in your back yard, but you can always get a little wood."

Shapiro said a national survey, commissioned by the institute, showed "a very strong movement toward use of wood." But he said that using wood as a major source of heat is practical only in suburban and rural areas with an abundant supply of firewood. Half the people who are burning wood harvest their own fuel, he added.

Prices for firewood bought from a dealer vary from place to place. But no matter where you live, you will pay more than you did last year. DeCoster said prices in Maine, for example, have risen by from 30 percent to 60 percent in the last year.

You can save money by buying early, Shapiro said, for example, that in the Maine town where he lives, a cord of wood, bought early in the summer for delivery now, cost $45. Today, the same cord costs $65.

Shapiro said that as the weather gets colder, the price of a cord of wood will "definitely go over $100." He also predicted that the supply of dry wood will run out in most parts of the country by the middle of October. After that, he said, consumers will be forced to buy recently cut wood that has too much moisture to burn efficiently.

A cord of wood is a pile of logs stacked four feet high, four feet deep and eight feet wide; each log usually is four feet long. A face cord is also four feet high and eight feet wide, but the logs are shorter. A two-foot face cord, for example, would have two-foot logs.

Shapiro warned consumers to watch out for unscrupulous dealers who charge for a full cord and deliver only a face cord.

Note: Smaller logs, split and ready for the stove or fireplace, generally cost more; you pay less if you chop or saw them yourself.

The trend toward wood has caused sales of wood-burning stoves — officially called "closed-combustion chamber appliances" — to soar, since they are much more efficient than fireplaces which let much of the heat from the fire go up the chimney.

Shapiro said that annual sales of the stoves have gone from 150,000 before the 1973 Arab oil embargo to over one million today.

The most efficient stoves have an airtight combustion chamberwith an djustable or thermostatically controlled draft and an energy efficiency rating of about 60 percent.

Prices for wood-burning stoves generally start at about $250 and go up to $800, Shapiro said, with cost depending on construction, materials and size.

Two relatively new wood-burning appliances are the fireplace insert, costing from $250 to $650 and designed to fit into a fireplace, and the furnace add-on which can be connected to an existing heating system to make use of the ducts, thermostats, etc. to distribute heat.

The furnace add-ons cost from $650 to $1,500, Shapiro said. Note: If you connect a wood-burning device to your furnace, you can use either the add-on or the regular furnace. You cannot burn two fuels at once.

It is difficult to make exact comparisons between the cost of wood and other fuels. How much heat you actually get depends in part on the efficiency of your furnace, stove, etc. As a general rule, however, Shapiro said a cord of hardwood can provide the same amount of heat as 150 gallons of oil.

If you decide to heat with wood, be prepared for hard work. "Wood is a heavy, laborious and rather dirty resource," Shapiro said.

Shortages Prove Rewarding For Stove Manufacturers

RANDOLPH, Vt. (AP) — Duncan Syme, Roger Smith and other manufacturers of wood-burning stoves are reaping benefits from public worry over prices and possible shortages of home heating oil.

Syme, a partner in a 4-year-old cast-iron stove manufacturing company in rural Randolph, and Smith, an owner of a year-old company in Claremont, N.H., are part of the rebirth of one of the nation's oldest industries.

"All this talk about the energy crisis is like a million dollars in advertising for our industry. We can't make them fast enough. We can't get them to the stores fast enough," Syme said.

Once a sleepy, 250-year-old industry dominated by large companies in the South, the 1973 oil embargo and the back-to-nature movement pushed stoves into a $1 billion retail business nationally, according to figures compiled for the Department of Energy.

Even President Carter recetly acceped six of them from across the country for use in the White House and Camp David.

The stoves are airtight, many burn the gases from the wood to increase efficiency, many will heat a home all night and some have responded to the tightening supply of wood by offering the option of burning coal.

Stove companies range from backyard assembly plants to giant factories, and retailers report they are backlogged as much as 10 weeks trying to fill orders in the Northeast, the Midwest and the West.

Syme, who tried his hand as an architect, sculptor and lobster boat builder, said he started Vermont Casting Co. in 1975 after becoming impatient with the stoves then available to heat his Vermont farmhouse. He designed and built one himself.

He said most of the company's profits have gone to finance a foundry where scrap iron is melted and poured into sand molds to make stove parts.

In Claremont, Smith, who manufactured small parts for machines, now spends almost all his time overseeing his burgeoning new company, Garrison Stove Works. He recently opened a West Coast factory.

"If I could get enough good people to work, I could have three shifts and we might get caught up," Smith said.

Isobutyl Nitrite May Be Lethal To Some

By Associated Press

It's a cheap drug and, in most states, it's legal. Users claim it's a harmless high. But when Jesse Wilson died this summer, the coroner said isobutyl nitrite — the disco drug — killed him.

Wilson's death in Washington on July 25 has sparked angry new debate over the hazards of butyl nitrite and isobutyl nitrite, twin sister chemicals sold in drug and sex paraphernalia shops nationwide.

From 1973 to 1978, some 15 million bottles of the chemicals were sold. They are marketed for an average of about $6 as "room odorizers" or "liquid incense," but most customers are buying a high.

When butyl or isobutyl nitrite vapors are inhaled, a brief but intense light-headed feeling follows that, users claim, intensifies discotheque music and heightens sexual pleasure.

"It's an incredible rush," said a New Orleans user who asked that his name not be used. "A whiff or two sends a real shock wave through your body."

Butyl and isobutyl nitrite first hit the head shops in 1969, after amyl nitrite was made a prescription drug. Amyl nitrite is used to treat some heart ailments, but thrill seekers liked the high that came with the fumes.

When amyl nitrite was restricted, entrepreneurs saw a market for a similar, but legal chemical. About 12 makers tapped the multi-million dollar demand with products like "Rush" and "Locker Room" made from isobutyl and butyl nitrite.

Doctors say the products work like this: Inhaling the chemicals relaxes "smooth muscles" like the heart and causes a slight drop in blood pressure — the source of the light-headed feeling. If used with alcohol, the blood pressure drop is intensified "slightly," according to W. Jay Freezer of Pacific Western Distributing Corp., maker of "Rush."

Today's FOCUS

The death of 30-year-old Jesse Wilson in Washington is the single fatality traced to butyl or isobutyl nitrite abuse. But, instead of inhaling vapors, Wilson drank an unknown amount of isobutyl nitrite, said Dr. Douglas Dixon of the Washington medical examiner's office.

Based on his autopsy, Dixon concluded that Wilson's death was "irrefutably due to isobutyl nitrite poisoning."

Wayne Pines, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, reacted by announcing that the FDA would study the safety of the two chemicals. But if the FDA wants to regulate them, he said, its hands may be legally tied since they are not sold as drugs.

At the Drug Abuse Warning Network of the National Institute of Drug Abuse, Nick Kozel said Wilson's death provoked a study of emergency room and coroner's records in key cities.

"Medical examiners reported no other cases of people who died," he said. "However, from January 1976 to April 1979 there were 24 mentions of butyl nitrite in emergency rooms by people with drug-related complaints."

The number of times butyl nitrite is cited in emergency rooms by ailing drug abusers is rising: It was mentioned once in 1976, five times in 1977, nine times in 1978 and, during the first four months of this year, nine times.

Freezer, of Pacific Western, said in a telephone interview from San Francisco that the new concern about the safety of butyl and isobutyl nitrite is unmerited.

"There is no evidence to confirm the cause of death in the Washington incident," he said. "Our medical committee says there's no evidence to suggest that he could die from drinking it."

Nonetheless, Freezer advises against drinking it.

Freezer cited a study sponsored by Pharmex, a major nitrite producer. A panel of doctors concluded that the worst thing likely to happen to those who inhale too much butyl or isobutyl nitrite is that they'll faint. Some users also get headaches.

Alarmed by the chemicals' popularity, several states have tried — with mixed success — to halt or restrict sales.

In 1977, Connecticut banned certain butyl nitrite products, but isobutyl nitrite products like "Rush" are still sold in the state.

The California Department of Health Services filed suit in 1977 to halt over-the-counter sale of "Rush" because, said department spokesman Pete Weisser, "we argued that it causes a dramatic drop in blood pressure and could cause death."

The case was settled on July 31 when Pacific Western agreed not to advertise "Rush" as a drug, to label it "Not for sale to minors," and to refuse to sell "Rush" to retailers who sold it to minors.

Last year, Georgia put butyl nitrite on its list of prescription drugs, said health department spokesman Nick Taylor.

Suit Against Petition Signers Said Premature

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Whether the City of Lubbock properly requested a court ruling on the legality of tax limitation charter amendments before their submission to voters or whether it should have waited until after an election was held was the major point of contention in a one-hour hearing this morning in 140th District Court.

City attorneys filed suit in July for a declaratory judgment against 10 signers of tax limitation petitions circulated by the Lubbock Property Owners Association after the petitions calling for an election on three charter amendments were submitted to the City Council.

Rather than calling an election, the council voted to ask the court to determine whether it legally could call the election in light of certain provisions in state law and the state constitution.

However, defendants' attorney Warren Goss contended no conflict can exist with state law unless the amendments are submitted to voters and approved, so the city's suit for a declaratory judgment is premature.

District Judge William Shaver told attorneys the question of whether the city's suit is proper at this time under declaratory judgment statutes "is not a simple question and not one that rhetoric is going to solve."

"We have enough problems with legislation after it is passed," Shaver said, adding he is "very hesitant" to have the court enter the legislative process prematurely.

Shaver instructed the attorneys to submit briefs on the point by Wednesday and promised a ruling on the question at a continuation of the hearing next Friday at 9 a.m.

If he rules the case should not proceed as an action for a declaratory judgment, Shaver said the issues raised by the city's suit would be decided under a suit for a writ of mandamus filed by the defendants to force the city to call an election on the proposed amendments.

With the courtroom packed with members of the Lubbock Property Owners Association, Goss said the court would "be forced to rule on an issue which is nonexistent at this time" under the suit for a declaratory judgment.

"In effect, what our position is," Goss said, "is the court at this point does not have jurisdiction."

But City Attorney John Ross argued the declaratory judgment suit is proper now to "determine the legal relationship between the City of Lubbock and the petitions at the time the petitions were submitted and validated."

The court also should determine what is the duty of the city in light of constitutional provisions and state laws which Ross contends are in direct conflict with the tax limitations which would be imposed by the amendments proposed by the LPOA.

If the amendments were approved by voters, Ross said the council would be faced with "putting into effect an illegal tax rate which could be challenged."

In addition, he said state law prohibits city charters from containing provisions which conflict with state law or the constitution.

"This is the only procedure we can take to prevent that from happening," Ross said. "This is the last point at which we can keep this out of the charter."

However, Shaver asked whether the city could file the same suit for a declaratory judgment in the event the amendments were approved.

Ross acknowledged that option was open to the city, but said "it is better to settle the matter now" to keep the city from being forced to spend "$20,000 of the taxpayers money" on an election.

However, Goss argued requesting the court decision at this point in the initiative and referendum process is like asking "the court to stop the Texas Legislature from enacting a law."

"Only after the law is enacted would the court act," he said.

Goss said the real question to be settled in the suit is "do the citizens of Lubbock have a right in the legislative process?"

"It's the simplest constitutional question there is," he said.

Neurosurgery Professor Tarbox Series Speaker

Dr. Blaine Nashold, Jr., professor of neurosurgery at Duke University Medical Center, Durham, North Carolina, will be the first speaker for the 1979-80 Tarbox Distinguished Neuroscientist Lecture Series at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Nashold will discuss "Neuroprosthesis: Past, Present and Future" at noon Friday in Room 5B148A of the Health Sciences Center. The meeting is open to the public. Brown bag lunches may be brought to the lecture.

"Neuroprosthetics is concerned with artificially assisting functions of the nervous system by measures such as implanting electrodes in various system by stimulate visual centers, help hearing or to aid paralysis victims in controlling bladder functions.

Nashold was trained in the neurological sciences at McGill University, Montreal, Canada, and at the Montreal Neurological Institute. He holds the bachelor's degree from Indiana University, master's degrees from McGill and from Ohio State University, and the M.D. from the University of Louisville.

He served internships at Montreal General Hospital and the Queen Mary Hospital and residencies at the Montreal Neurological Institute and North Carolina Baptist Hospital. He was a senior fellow in neuroanatomy at the neurological institute.

Nashold has served on the faculties of McGill University, Bowman Gray School of Medicine and Duke University Medical Center.

The Tarbox Parkinson's Disease Institute at Texas Tech sponsors the Tarbox Distinguished Neuroscientist Lecture Series. The series brings distinguished scientists to the Health Sciences Center to discuss their research and clinical activities related to the central a multidisciplinary committee of clinical and basic science faculty members.

The Tarbox Parkinson's Disease Institute supports interdisciplinary research, educational and clinical programs associated with Parkinson's Disease and related neurological disorders. The institute is named in honor of Elmer L. Tarbox, former state representative from Lubbock and a victim of Parkinson's Disease.

Two JPs Voice Disapproval Over Smith's Hike In Salary

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack said Friday he will follow JP Charles Smith, who won a $3,500 raise before a county grievance committee this week, in the grievance procedure if county commissioners don't give him the same salary as Smith.

Smith, Precinct 1, Place 2 justice of the peace, was increased to $18,700 for 1980, and Blalack has been allocated $12,720 in the still-developing budget.

Blalack also said he will ask for another secretary and the same $40 extra per month for a secretary to be designated office manager that Smith and Precinct 6 JP Wayne LeCroy were awarded earlier this month.

"I think it's deplorable that a justice of the peace has to resort to going before a grievance committee to get a salary increase," Blalack said.

"I had thought about doing it before Smith did. If they don't take a good look at the situation and see what the people think, of course I will have to."

Blalack has been a Lubbock County JP for three years.

Another full-time JP, Arvin Stafford of Slaton, filed a letter protesting his 1980 salary this week and asking for $13,800 next year instead of the 8-percent raise to $12,720 scheduled for him now.

Stafford said Friday he was undecided on what course to take now and will wait to see what action the commissioners take in their next regular scheduled meeting Sept. 24.

However, he said he would be satisfied with a 1980 salary of $13,800.

A public hearing on the proposed 1980 county budget is also scheduled for Sept. 24.

Jury Not Able To Make Decision On Punishment

After five hours of deliberations Thursday night, a 140th District Court jury declared it was unable to decide on what punishment to assess 19-year-old Ernesto Pina.

Thursday afternoon the panel took just 26 minutes to find the Slaton man guilty of possessing 5.65 grams of 10 percent heroin on March 9. But the panel could not decide whether to assess Pina a prison term or give him a probated sentence.

Testimony indicated that when Lubbock Drug Enforcement Administration agents and Slaton police arrived at a Slaton residence, Pina was in the backyard and ran to the fence near the alley where he tossed a bag containing the narcotic.

Defense counsel Byron Chappell called several of the officers to the stand in an attempt to disprove the testimony of the two agents who said they watched Pina throw away the bag. However, the witnesses called by Chappell said that because they were entering and exiting the house throughout the search, they had no way of knowing exactly what the other officers saw.

Chappell asked the jury to return a probated sentence for Pina, who has no previous felony convictions.

Prosecutors Hollis Browning and Jim Bob Darnell argued for a prison term of 12-to-15 years to be assessed by the panel.

Long Beach Tour 'Copter Crashes; Five Persons Die

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Five persons were killed Friday when a tour helicopter went out of control and crashed in Long Beach Harbor about 200 yards from the berthed liner Queen Mary, police said.

The dead, whose bodies were recovered from the wreckage, were identified as four adults, including the pilot, and a child. There were no survivors.

The helicopter ride, known as the "Queen Mary Fun Flight," takes off from the parking lot of the Queen Mary. The liner has been berthed here for several years and is open to the public.

Long Beach police Officer Steve McAndrew was near the Queen Mary when he heard the copter's engine sound change suddenly.

"It was at a 90-degree angle, like in a sharp turn. Then it inverted and finally turned upside down before it headed nose down into the water," he said.

"It broke up and the fuselage went nose down into the water and the tail went up and it sank about 15 to 20 seconds later," said McAndrew, who was at a nearby restaurant.

He said two nearby boats quickly went to the crash site, but the copter was already under water.

The craft was operated by Pacific Offshore Helicopter Co., which said the pilot's identity was being withheld pending notification of his family. The other names were not immediately known.

Outspoken Legislator Symposium Speaker

Clay Smothers, a member of the Texas Legislature known for his outspoken, often controversial stand on a variety of timely issues, will be the first speaker in Lubbock Christian College's Freshman Symposium this fall.

Rep. Smothers, a conservative, will speak on the LCC campus Monday at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the C. L. Kay Christian Development Center Auditorium. The public is invited to attend at no charge.

Since being elected to the Texas House in 1976 — and honored that same year as Freshman of the Year — Rep. Smothers has:

•Been successful in his attempt to pass a right to work resolution and equally successful in killing a bill to establish a state park in Houston's ghetto area.

•Introduced legislation to recall Texas ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Smothers graduated from St. Paul High School in Malakoff at the age of 14 and enrolled in Prairie View A&M College. He served in the U.S. Army from 1953-56 and returned to Prairie View in 1956 to complete a bachelor of science in physical education with a minor in voice.

He graduated from Prairie View in 1959 and taught school briefly.

He also has worked with Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago Commission on Youth Welfare where he infiltrated street gangs and was supervisor of job development for the Opportunities Industrialization Center in Dallas.

Smothers now is administrator of St. Paul Industrial Training School in Malakoff. St. Paul is a non-profit, non-government funded institution for disadvantaged children.

Smothers was on campus Dec. 7 to introduce General George S. Keegan, who was principal speaker at the dedication of the Mabee Student Life Building.

Carter Gets Suggestions From Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has been told by four women athletes to vigorously enforce laws ensuring equal opportunities for girls and women in schools and colleges across the nation.

"We wanted to show him that there is grass roots support for equal opportunity," said Donna de Varona, an Olympic gold medal winner who is now a network sportscaster. "We showed him we were a team. He understands the issue."

Olympic hurdler Lacey O'Neal, golfer Carol Mann, race driver Janet Guthrie and Miss de Varona, representing the Wowen's Spors Foundation, met briefly with Carter and slightly longer with HEW secretary Patricia Roberts Harris.

"President Carter said he's in favor of women in sports," said Miss O'Neal. "As far as Title IX, he wouldn't give us a straight forward comment, he said, until he talks with Pat Harris."

Professor Appointed To Management Chair

David S. Kidwell, formerly a faculty member of the Krannert Graduate School of Management at Purdue University, has been appointed to the I. Wylie and Elizabeth Briscoe Chair of Bank Management at Texas Tech University.

The Briscoe Chair is the first in bank management to be established at a public university in Texas.

During the past five years, Kidwell, 39, twice received the Alumni Foundation Outstanding Undergraduate Teaching Award for classes in corporate finance and financial institutions. He achieved national prominence in financial and banking circles for his research in municipal bond financing.

The Briscoe Chair is one of the most heavily endowed positions in banking management in U.S. business schools. It was created in early 1978 by a $500,000 gift from I. Wylie Briscoe, a retired executive of Anderson, Clayton and Company. Briscoe is an active director of Lubbock's American State Bank which he helped found 31 years ago.

Kidwell received a Master of Business Administration degree with an emphasis in finance and accounting from California State University at San Francisco in 1970. He then joined Coopers and Lybrand as a management consultant.

Under National Science Foundation grants totaling more than $750,000, Kidwell, who helped establish the Southwest School of Municipal Finance in 1977 at Texas Tech, has participated in extensive research into effects of public regulation on consumer financial services.

Kidwell's primary goal will continue to be research in banking. Another goal will be development of contact with banking communities in the Southwest, and a third "to continue the fine banking school Texas Tech has."

Tech Ready For Lobos

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

It's been a good week of practice for the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

The players appear to be physically and mentally ready to go. The coaches seem pleased with their preparation and appear confident. Now, it's game time.

The Red Raiders, thwarted in their first attempt at victory in 1979, will be gunning to even their record at 1-1 tonight when they host perennial foe University of New Mexico.

"We've had a couple good days of practice," Tech mentor Rex Dockery said Friday. "Our players are ready. Like I said before, it's going to be a tough football game. It could be a wild one."

The National Weather Service is calling for mostly fair skies with temperatures in the lower 70s at kickoff, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Jones Stadium.

The mercury is expected to drop to the low 60s by the end of the contest and southeasterly winds from 10 to 15 miles an hour are predicted throughout the game.

Tech put up a strong fight against the University of Southern California a week ago in Jones Stadium, but the top-ranked Trojans pounded out a 21-7 victory.

New Mexico hasn't tasted defeat yet this season. The Lobos opened their campaign two weeks ago with a surprising 34-0 triumph over Louisiana Tech. Last week, the Wolfpack made it two in a row by sinking its teeth into the Oregon State Beavers 35-16.

Tech holds a commanding 20-2-2 record in its series with the Lobos, including the last four victories. The last time New Mexico triumphed in the rivalry was in 1971 when the Rudy Feldman-coached Lobos pulled a 13-10 upset here. The two squads tied 21-21 in 1974.

When Tech and New Mexico get together, a display of offensive firepower is usually in order. Last season's 36-23 Tech win in Albuquerque was a perfect example.

Red Raider fullback James Hadnot rambled for 268 yards rushing. Teammate Phil Weatherall had 98 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown burst. Quarterback Ron Reeves ran for a pair of touchdowns and tossed a 42-yard scoring pass to Godfrey Turner.

New Mexico quarterback Brad Wright sparked a late Lobo comeback. Wright, a sophomore a year ago, hit 29 of 49 passes for an incredible 452 yards and three touchdown passes.

When the smoke had cleared, the two teams had amassed more than 1,100 yards in offense. Tech rolled up 537 yards and the Wolfpack had gained even more — 579 yards!

Hadnot and Reeves are back in the saddle for Tech this season and Wright is again UNM's guiding light, so more offensive fireworks may be in store.

Wright is currently the nation's 11th-leading passer with 139 points. (The NCAA rates college quarterbacks with a newly devised point system.) The 6-2, 200-pound junior from Midland has passed for 263 yards and three touchdowns in two games. He has also run for three touchdowns.

"Our players know New Mexico is a good football team," Dockery said earlier this week. "They know they are improved from last season. Heck, they al-

Plainsmen Blank Raiders 5-0

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

James Odom took a chapter out of Bobby Moegle's baseball book and went to the bullpen to win this one. No bull.

It appeared the high school football game between Monterey and Wichita Falls Rider was about to end in a naught-to-naught tie. For, the entire wind-blown, chilly afternoon at Lowrey Field, the duo had engaged in a pitcher's duel. No runs, no hits and nobody was left on base after three complete quarters of play.

But as the clock was yawning down, Odom called on sophomore Darron White, who'd spent most of the afternoon practicing his field-goal kicking on hapless Coke cups laying on the sideline. The barefoot boy responded by booting a 40-yard field goal with 5:41 left in the contest, thus leading the Plainsmen to their second win of the season, a baseball-score like 5-0 victory over the Raiders.

"He'd been making them all week," explained Odom. "I wasn't really worried. I knew he could make it. He'd hit one from a 47 yards in practice."

So when the Plainsmen moved within the 30-yard line, Odom was ready to call on White. There was no hesitation, no second guessing on Odom's part either.

Monterey had started what would be the game-winning drive on the RHS 44. It appeared the Plainsmen were about to score the game's first TD when halfback Willie Johnson scooted to the seven. But a holding penalty wiped out the big gain and the ball was moved back to the RHS 33. After a 10-yard dash by Johnson, the Plainsmen faced a fourth-and-five on the 23. The soccer-style kicker was then brought on to do his duty. The ball — placed squarely on the 30 — cleared the cross bar in the right corner with just a little umph to spare.

The three points proved to be all the Plainsmen needed. But that's not all they got. On Rider's first play after the MHS kickoff, Mac Tatum teamed up with Kelly Grammer and Dale Pinkston to sack RHS quarterback John Duke in the end zone for a safety. That put Monterey up by five with 5:21 remaining. And any football coach will tell you 5-0 isn't a comfortable lead. No way.

But Duke and Co. thought they'd give Odom and Co. something to rattle their teeth about.

Aided by a pass interference penalty and a pair of long Duke passes — one of 20 yards to Ken Montgomery and the other of 25 yards to Noel Spraggins — the Raiders marched from their own 20 to the Monterey 28 with time running out. However, on second-and-three from that point, Kent Potts intercepted a poorly thrown Duke pass, thwarting any comeback thoughts the Raiders had entertained. After that, all the Plainsmen did was run out the clock.

"I thought our defense played a heck of a game," commented Odom. "They had something to do (with that shutout)."

The Monterey D held Rider to only 119 total yards, 43 on the ground and 76 through the air. Troy Williams led all Rider ballcarriers with only 26 yards on 11 carries.

Meanwhile, Monterey, paced by Johnson's 139 yards on 31 carries, rolled up 185 yards totally. Only 22 of that came through the air as quarterback Kent Potts connected only two-of-six passes for the day.

For the second week, Monterey was again plagued with turnovers and penalties. The Plainsmen lost three fumbles — all by Johnson — and were flagged five times for 75 yards. Rider turned the ball over two times, once on a fumble and the other when Potts intercepted Duke late in the game.

Odom commented, following the game, that "this was a key win for us. Last year we lost to them 17-0 and after that we had our problems."

Major League Roundup

Rivers Belts Two In Ranger Victory

By the Associated Press

Mickey Rivers pounded two homers and three singles to lead Texas' 15-hit assault against Minnesota, and the Rangers outlasted the Twins 5-3 in a free-swinging affair.

Rivers hit solo homers in the first and sixth innings and picked up singles in the second, fourth and eighth. He scored three runs and stole a base.

Minnesota starter Dave Goltz, 14-11, lasted only one-third of an inning as he surrendered four hits and four runs.

Ferguson Jenkins, 14-13, was touched for solo home runs by Danny Goodwin in the sixth and Rob Wilfong and Ken Landreaux in the eighth. Jenkins has now surrendered a career-high 38 home runs this season. Left-hander Sparky Lyle came on in the eighth inning to stop the Twins and register his 12th save.

Rivers' homers gave him eight for the year, and he has hit five homers since being traded from the New York Yankees.

The loss was Minnesota's ninth in 11 games with Texas this year.

Mariners 7, Royals 5

Leon Roberts clubbed a grand slam home run and Willie Horton drove across two runs, powering the Seattle Mariners to a 7-5 victory over the faltering Kansas City Royals.

Roberts doubled home a run in Seattle's two-run first inning, then in the third slammed a bases-loaded 1-0 pitch from Larry Gura deep into the left field bleachers.

Floyd Bannister, 9-14, checked the Royals on five hits and two runs until he was relieved starting the seventh by Byron McLaughlin.

Gura's record slipped to 11-11 as the Royals, the three-time defending American League West champs, suffered their fifth loss in nine games.

George Brett hit a two-run home run in the Kansas City third, giving him a club record 333 total bases. The Royals added three more runs in the seventh off McLaughlin.

Julio Cruz doubled to start the Seattle third, then Ruppert Jones drew a walk and Horton was walked intentionally to load the bases for Roberts.

Cruz walked leading off the Seattle first, stole second and scored on Horton's single. Roberts then doubled off the bullpen in left field to give the Mariners a 2-0 lead.

Willie Wilson singled and stole second in the Kansas City third, his 70th stolen base of the year, making him only the eighth player in American League history to accomplish the feat.

Brett's home run was a high towering shot that crashed into a car in the Kansas City bullpen and shattered the sunroof.

Horton's single in the seventh scored Jones with the Mariners' seventh run.

McLaughlin got into immediate trouble in the Kansas City seventh, walking leadoff hitter Pete LaCock and serving up a single to Frank White. One out later, Wilson singled home LaCock, then Hal McRae doubled into the right field corner to make it 7-5. McLaughlin escaped by getting Brett on a pop fly and striking out Amos Otis. The Mariner reliever coasted through the final two innings to gain his 14th save.

Orioles 5, Red Sox 3

Ken Singleton hit his 34th home run while driving in three runs, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Singleton, batting .372 against the Red Sox this season, hit a solo homer in the third to tie the score 2-2, and his two-run, bases-loaded single highlighted a three-run rally in the fifth.

Eddie Murray followed with an RBI double to make it 5-2, finishing Boston starter Bob Stanley, 15-10. The other Baltimore run scored in the first on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Pat Kelly.

Steve Stone, 11-7, settled down after facing 12 batters in the first two innings and won for the eighth time in his last 10 decisions.

Rick Burleson singled and Ted Sizemore doubled to open the Boston first, and they eventually scored on a groundout by Fred Lynn and a sacrifice fly by Carl Yastrzemski. Stone fanned Lynn in the second with the bases loaded.

The Red Sox added a run in the eighth off reliever Don Stanhouse, who earned his 19th save for Baltimore. With one out, Jim Rice doubled and Bob Watson followed with a run-scoring single.

After allowing the single by Watson, the first batter he faced, Stanhouse fanned Butch Hobson and retired Dwight Evans on a bouncer to the mound.

In his last eight appearances, Stanhouse has recorded one victory and six saves. Of his 19 saves, good for third-place in the American League, six have been in support of Stone.

Stone has an 8-1 record at home this season with a 1.98 earned run average, as compared with a 3-6 mark and a 6.61 ERA on the road.

Singleton increased his RBI total to 108, and in 14 games this month he has hit .422.

Stanley had a four-game winning streak snapped as he tried for a career high of 16 victories. He has been credited with four of the last six victories by Boston.

A's 8, White Sox 3

Wayne Gross' pinch grand-slam homer capped a six-run rally in the eighth inning and powered the Oakland A's to an 8-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The A's went into the eighth trailing 3-2 but took the lead on a pair of walks, a sacrifice and a two-run single by Jeff Newman. Mitchell Page drew a walk off reliever Ed Farmer to fill the bases before Gross hammered his 13th homer.

The A's took the lead in the first inning on a double by Rickey Henderson and a single by Dave Revering. They made it 2-0 in the third when Henderson reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Jim Essian.

The Sox tied it in the fifth on singles by Chet Lemon and Jim Morrison, a sacrifice and a two-run single by Greg Pryor. Chicago went ahead in the sixth on Claudell Washington's 12th homer.

Brian Kingman, 7-5, was the winner and Farmer, 4-7, took the loss.

Kingman allowed the White Sox their first hit with two out in the second, when Morrison singled sharply to center. Kingman struck out Mike Colbern to end the inning.

He retired seven in a row before Lemon beat out an infield single to launch the tying rally in the fifth.

Sox starter Ross Baumgarten, who had control trouble during the 7 1-3 innings he pitched, walked Rob Picciolo to open the Oakland third. Henderson forced Picciolo, who proceeded to steal second and third. Henderson scored on Essian's sacrifice fly.

Henderson also walked to open the eighth and Dwayne Murphy bunted him to second. Essian reached third safely when Pryor threw badly to third as Essian got a fielder's choice and took second on Pryor's throw.

Revering was given an intentional walk to load the bases, but Newman crossed up the strategy by putting a single in right center, scoring Henderson and Essian to put the A's ahead 4-3. Mike Edwards popped out, but Page walked to fill the bases again, setting the stage for Gross' grand slam homer.

Kingman went the distance for the fifth time this season and posted nine strikouts and walking only two and allowing eight hits.

Blue Jays 4, Indians 3

Rick Cerone tripled home two runs in the sixth inning to give the Toronto Blue Jays a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Dave Stieb, 7-6, scattered 10 hits for the victory. He struck out three and walked three.

Toronto scored twice in the first inning off Rick Wise, 15-8, on run-scoring doubles by Bob Bailor and Tony Solaita.

Cleveland got a run back in the third on an RBI single by Andre Thornton and took a 3-2 lead in the fourth on Jim Norris' run-scoring double and Mike Hargrove's sacrifice fly.

John Mayberry started the Toronto sixth with a walk and advanced to third on J.J. Cannon's single. Wise struck out Al Woods, but Cerone lashed a hit that got by left fielder Hargrove in the power alley for a triple.

Wise struck out five and walked one.

Cleveland got the tying run to second base in the ninth when Hargrove doubled with one out. But Stieb got Rick Manning to fly to center and Toby Harrah to ground out to end the game.

Wise got off to a shaky start, giving up Alfredo Griffin's leadoff single and Bailor's run-scoring double. One out later, Solaita doubled down the right field line scoring Bailor.

Stieb had an equally rough start in the third. Hargrove drew a one-out walk, and Manning singled to advance Hargrove to third. Right fielder Bailor threw out Manning when the Cleveland center fielder tried to take second base on the hit. Harrah then walked and Thornton's single to left scored Hargrove.

Cleveland took the lead in the fourth when Ron Hassey and Norris hit consecutive doubles for one run. A single by Tom Veryzer advanced Norris to third and Hargrove's sacrifice fly gave the Indians a 3-2 lead.

Angels 8, Brewers 7

Rod Carew's ninth-inning sacrifice fly drove in Bobby Grich and lifted the California Angels to an 8-7 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl in the seventh inning.

Grich singled off Brewers' reliever Bill Castro, 3-1, took second on a sacrifice by Rick Miller, went to third on a wild pitch and came home on Carew's fly to center field.

Dave LaRoche, 7-10, came on in relief in the bottom of the eighth to pick up the win.

The fisticuffs started after Brewers hurler Lary Sorensen threw a couple of pitches close to Dan Ford. Ford charged the mound, and both benches cleared. Several punches were thrown, and after order was restored, both Ford and Sorensen were ejected.

Milwaukee scored four runs in the eighth to tie the score 7-7. Ben Oglivie singled and scored the first run when Robin Yount doubled. Jim Gantner walked and Charlie Moore followed with an RBI single.

Paul Molitor drove in Gantner with a single and Moore came home on a sacrifice fly by Cecil Cooper.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead in the first when Don Baylor singled home Carney Lansford. Grich scored the Angels second run on a Bert Campaneris single in the second.

Yount doubled, scoring Oglivie in the Brewers second and Buck Martinez drove in Sixto Lezcano and Yount with a single making the score 3-2 Milwaukee. California tied it 3-3 in the third on a walk to Lansford and a triple by Ford. They took a 4-3 lead in the fifth when Tom Donahue singled home Ford.

California scored three times in the top of the eighth on a single by Grich, a walk to Campaneris, a single by Carew, a double by Lansford and a sacrifice fly by Baylor.

Cubs 2, Phillies 0

Center fielder Jerry Martin belted a two-run homer with two out in the top of the 10th to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Larry Buttner opened the inning with a single off reliever Ron Reed, 10-8, and stole second while Steve Ontiveros was striking out.

After Barry Foote was retired on a great play by shortstop Larry Bowa, Martin hit his 18th homer of the season and his seventh against the Phillies. He also has 16 RBI against his former team.

The victory broke a four-game losing streak for Chicago.

The Cubs had threatened in the top of the ninth. Ivan DeJesus singled down the right field line and went to third when right fielder Bake McBride misplayed the ball. However, starter Dickie Noles retired Scot Thompson on a short fly to center and got Dave Kingman on a grounder to first.

Cards, Expos Postponed

Heavy rain forced postponement of the doubleheader between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Montreal Expos.

The games will be made up as part of doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's twinbill is scheduled to start at 3:35 p.m. and Sunday's at 12:35 p.m.

Cain Death Linked To Rare Syndrome

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — A syndrome labeled extremely rare was identified Thursday as the cause of St. Louis Cardinal tight end J.V. Cain's sudden death on the National Football League team's practice field July 22.

A clinical pathologist, Dr. James Ruggles, said the athlete's death was essentially a heart attack.

However, said Ruggles, it differed from conventional manifestations in that the lack of oxygen for Cain stemmed from a congenital condition.

The 28-year-old dead athlete's heart had formed muscular tissue over both the anterior and rear portions of blood vessels in the ventricular portion of his heart.

Baylor, Texas A&M In Life-Death Struggle

AP Sports Writer

It's just the Southwest Conference football opener for both teams but Baylor Coach Grant Teaff figures it's life or death in the league race.

The Texas Aggies come to Waco tonight.

Teaff said, "You could say it's for the conference title. One loss in this league, especially this early, and you are a step outside the door. One more loss and they usually slam that door in your face. But if you can win and get off on the right foot you are in good shape."

The Aggies, stunned 18-17 by Brigham Young last Saturday, were three-point favorites over the Bears, who downed Lamar 20-7.

Teaff added, "This is one of those classic, heated collegiate rivalries. No matter what's happened before, you can expect both teams to give it their best and all. I still think this is a fine Texas A&M football team, no matter if they lost their opener.

"Curtis Dickey and Mike Mosley score me to death and their defense has long been something to keep coaches awake at night."

In another big SWC game, Southern Methodist takes its horde of bluechip freshmen to Fort Worth in a head-on clash of "Mustang Mania" and "Frog Fever."

SMU, which beat Rice 35-17 last week, was a whopping 18-point pick over the Horned Frogs, who are playing their first game of the season.

"SMU's running game is the best since Ron Meyer has been there," said TCU Coach F.A. Dry, taking note of freshmen backs Eric Dickerson, Craig James, Charles Wagoner and Lott McIlhenny.

The other games are non-conference affairs.

Texas Tech was a 16-point pick over New Mexico at Lubbock. Arkansas was a 21-point choice over Colorado State at Little Rock. Houston was a 10-point pick over Florida in the Astrodome, and Tulane was a 10-point favorite over Rice in Rice Stadium.

Meyer said he wasn't sure what to expect from TCU.

"This is like a whole new season for us because TCU hasn't played a game yet and we really don't know that much about them," said Meyer. "Since it is their opener anything could happen."

SMU goes into the game ranked No. 20 in the nation, highest Mustang ranking in The Associated Press poll since 1973.

BULLS SIGN BOERWINKLE

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls have announced that veteran center Tom Boerwinkle has been signed to a contract for the 1979 NBA season.

Raiders Gunning For First Win

most came back and beat us last year.

"Our players realize that this is not going to be an easy football game and that they are going to have to work hard and be prepared if they expect to win. They know what could happen."

New Mexico head man Bill Mondt has also had his words of praise for Tech and Hadnot.

"Any team which can stay within 14 points of USC — and I realize that USC scored the final touchdown with just over a minute left — has got to be an extremely talented team," Mondt said. "We've got somehow stop Hadnot this year, but I know if we key on him the Tech coaches may just fake to him and give it to someone else.

"This will be by far be our toughest test."

The Raiders picked up 225 yards total offense against the Trojans last Saturday, and Reeves and Hadnot were responsible for most all of those yards.

Reeves rushed 16 times for 43 yards and one touchdown. He also had 80 yards passing on four completions in 13 tries. Hadnot carried the football 24 times and ended the evening with 94 tough yards.

Tech's outstanding kicking game was also evident last week against USC. Senior placekicker Bill Adams did not attempt any field goals, but his kickoffs carried out of the Trojan end zone, halting any returns.

Sophomore Maury Buford kept the Red Raiders in the game in the first half with his clutch punting. Buford hit punts of 59, 34, 55, 38, 43, 58 and 55 yards for an average of 48.9 yards per kick. That average leads the nation's punters.

The Red Raiders will be missing at least two starters tonight. Sophomore cornerback Alan Swann is out of the contest with a reinjured right knee and sophomore running back Mark Olbert is sidelined with a back problem.

Senior strong safety Larry Flowers remains questionable with a badly sprained ankle. The Red Raiders have also lost the services of junior offensive tackle Robert Caughlin, who had to undergo back surgery this week.

Tonight's matchup promises to be a great football battle. The Lobos are going for their third straight win to begin a season, something they haven't done since 1962.

Tech is looking for that sometimes elusive first win.

WTS, ENMU Play Tonight

West Texas State University will play McNeese State at 7:30 tonight in Lake Charles, La., while Eastern New Mexico University visits NAIA defending national champion San Angelo State, also at 7:30 tonight.

The Buffaloes, 1-1, were edged 10-6 by Texas-Arlington last week, while McNeese State, 2-0, has defeated Tulsa 6-3, and Southeast Louisiana 10-7, in its two games.

The McNeese defense has permitted an average of only 167 yards per game total-offense.

San Angelo, which shut out ENMU 42-0 last season, brings a 16-game winning streak into this contest. San Angelo is currently ranked No. 1 in the nation in NAIA standings.

ENMU, which blasted New Mexico Highlands 50-0 in its season-opener last week, has been made a 38-point underdog to San Angelo.

Chaparrals Host Mexican Team Today

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Lubbock Christian College, having as much trouble finding a homesite as in winning football games or locating opponents, will try again on all three fronts this afternoon.

Twice the Chaparrals have played, twice they've lost, and both times they've been in different playing arenas. Both games have been against U.S. teams, however.

But today the Chaps will go against a Mexican team from the Universidad Regio Montana of Monterrey in quest of their first football decision.

Game time is 2 p.m., and the contest will be played at Coronado High School. Although it is the first time the Chaparrals have played there, the field will be home for two more games after today.

In the opener the Chaps dropped a 35-6 decision to McMurry at Lowrey Field. Last Saturday, the Chaparrals were on the road, absorbing a 47-0 thumping in Alpine, compliments of Sul Ross State.

In hopes of snapping the losing streak, LCC coach Jerry Don Sanders has realigned his offensive structure and altered his offensive gameplan.

On the field, the Chaparrals will start Kent Allison, a 165-pound freshman from LCHS, at quarterback. The two running back spots will be the same twosome of Ted Thornton and Marvil Wiley which opened against McMurry.

However, Sanders indicated that he would use six running backs today, for experience purposes as well as to see if one can come up with a hot hand.

The Chaparrals have found it difficult to move on the ground, coming up 18 yards in the red after two games.

Wiley, a sophomore from Crosbyton, is the leading rusher with 35 yards in the two games. Thornton is next on the list but has managed just 10 yards.

"We've cut back on our running plays to about eight or ten," said Sanders. "Maybe this way we can get better execution from them instead of having to think about so many plays.

"We're going to try to throw, too. Kent looked good doing some things in the Sul Ross game."

Allison has completed five of 14 passes for 75 yards from them. Expected to back him up will be Curtis Dean, who has hit five of 14 for 128 steps. It was his 76-yarder to split end Joe Green which gave the Chaparrals their only TD against McMurry.

Green, one of two seniors on the squad, has caught six passes fof 129 yards. Tight end Kevin Whittenberg has five catches for 41 yards.

LCC will be without the services of reserve offensive lineman Randy Phillips, who was seriously injured when struck by a car Thursday night. "We don't know much about this (Regio Montana) team," Sanders remarked. "You just have to prepare as best you can."

In fact, Sanders didn't know until Wednesday which team — if any — would be coming from Mexico. Originally, the schedule had called for the University of Saltillo to play the Chaparrals.

"Checking their roster, they're not very large," said Sanders. "Their largest guy is only about 210 pounds. So we should have a little advantage there."

LCC officials said that the Regio Montana gridders are roughly the equivalent of a strong junior college team in the United States. Regio Montana went to the Mexico playoffs a year ago with basically the same team.

The game comes during Mexican Independence festivities in Lubbock, and as a result, LCC officials announced that Mexican-Americans wishing to attend the contest will be admitted for half regular prices, which are $4 for adults and $2 for students.

While the Chaparrals are playing here, a full slate of games is on tap in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Sul Ross will play at Tarleton and Austin College, which upset defending champion Tarleton last week, will visit Trinity in conference games. McMurry will host Panhandle (Okla.) State in a nonconference game.

Walter-Baker Matchup Third In Series

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Spectators sometime get so wrapped up in the game itself, they tend to forget that the game of football is more than two opposing sides banging head-first into each other.

On every down, there are 11 individual wars taking place on the gridiron. And the outcome of those personal skirmishes weighs heavily on the final outcome of the big battle itself.

There will be several key individual matchups tonight when the Texas Tech Red Raiders take the field against the University of New Mexico Lobos. One of the most physical and important confrontations tonight will be between Tech offensive tackle Ken Walter and New Mexico defensive end Charlie Baker.

When the Red Raiders and Lobos renew th..r long and storied rivalry at 7:30 p.m. in Jones Stadium, Walter and Baker will renew a classic personal battle that has been going on for three seasons.

Both players are seniors, so this battle will be their last — at least as collegiate football players.

"He always seems to play a great game against us," Walter said of his 6-2, 218-pound opponent. "Charlie has great strength and outstanding quickness. He uses that quickness to get around blockers and stop a lot of people in their own backfield."

Baker has been compared to former Lobo All-American defensive end Robin Cole, who now starts at linebacker for the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers. The Texas native, who played his high school football at Odessa Ector, was the third leading tackler for UNM last season with 124 stops and was named an honorable mention all-WAC selection. He also had 12 sacks.

"Charlie Baker is an excellent athlete who always seems to have a good game against us," Red Raider head coach Rex Dockery said. "I don't know how we let him get out of Texas."

Walter, a 6-4, 238-pound from Corsicana, also relies on his quickness to win those personal encounters every week.

"I'll have to depend on my quickness to stay in front of Charlie and slow him down," Walter commented. "We've had some big battles before and I'm sure this one will be no different."

Spectators at tonight's game will also be able to see a couple 300-pounders in action.

Freshman Gabriel Rivera (6-3, 300) is Tech's second-team noseguard behind junior Hans Bischof. Rivera is expected to see quite a bit of playing time after his successful debut against Southern Cal last Saturday.

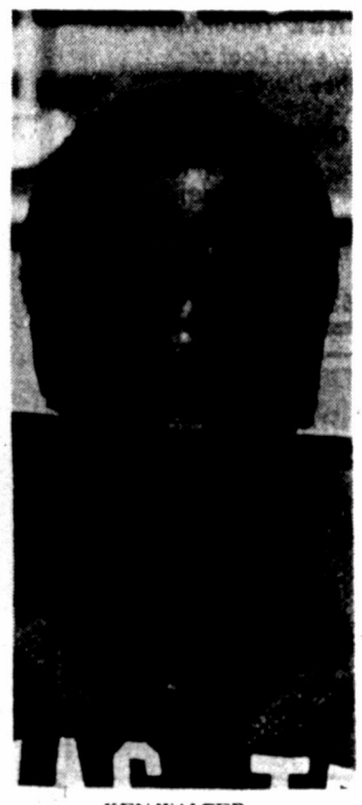

Rivera, or Senor Sack as he has come to be known, recorded five unassisted tackles against the Trojans. Rivera brought the Tech crowd to its feet several times by chasing USC quarterback Paul McDonald from one sideline to the other.

It's possible Rivera could run into New Mexico's 300-pounder — junior offensive tackle Frank Giddens, a 6-7, two-year letterman from Carlsbad, N.M.

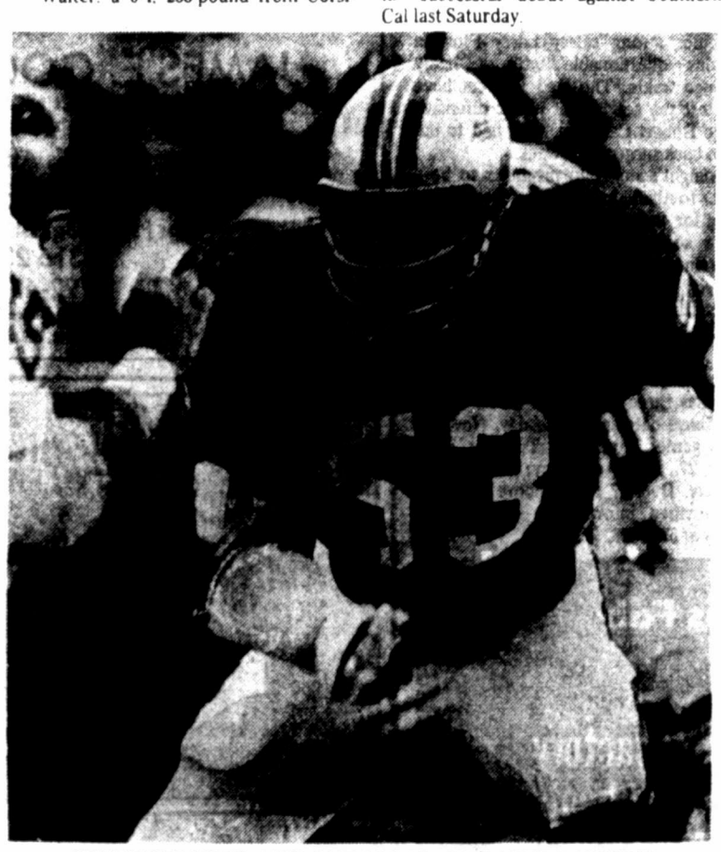

It's unlikely that these two baby bulls will ever line up head-to-head, but if they do — the resulting battle could make King Kong and Godzilla envious.

Another battle to watch will be between Tech's senior fullback James Hadnot and New Mexico's middle linebacker Mike Forest, a pair of all-conference performers in 1978.

Hadnot ripped the UNM defense for 268 rushing yards during last year's 36-23 Tech victory and Forrest will be the man counted on to halt Hadnot's charges up the middle of the field.

Rose Not Ready To Manage Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose might be willing to manage the Philadelphia Phillies, but the Phillies' general manager says Rose belongs on the playing field for now, according to the Philadelphia Daily News.

"I don't think I'd want Pete Rose managing at this stage of his career," general manager Paul Owens was quoted as saying before the Phillies 2-1 victory over the Mets in New York Thursday night.

Rose had been quoted earlier this week in the New York Post as saying he would be interested if offered the Phillies' managing job.

"I think he still has too much ahead of him," said Owens of the 38-year-old Rose, who signed a four-year, multi-million dollar contract with the Phillies as a free agent on the lam from Cincinnati last fall.

Rose, who went 4-for-5 Thursday night, is batting .321 and needs 21 hits to reach 200 for the 10th time.

"I do think he's got future managing potential," said Owens of his hustling first baseman.

"I was general manager and manager for half a year in '72 and it's darn tough," said Owens. "Not that it's impossible for the right type of guy. But I'd have to say that managing today's teams is at least twice as tough as it used to be."

Certainly for the Phillies that's true.

After being touted as a sure thing to capture their fourth straight Eastern Division title this season, the Phillies find themselves fighting with the Chicago Cubs for fourth place.

Dallas Green, the Phillies farm director, has taken over the National League club's reins for the remainder of the season since Danny Ozark was fired in Atlanta Aug. 31.

Westerners Dealt 32-0 Shutout By Matadors

By CHUCK MCDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

And now ladies and gentlemen, for your viewing pleasure, the Estacado Matadors will give an exhibition in "how to run the football."

Assiting the Matadors will be the Lubbock High Westerners.

It was 14-0 after the first quarter, 20-0 at the half and finally 32-zippo when the final gun sounded as the Estacado Matadors blitzed Lubbock High Friday night at Lowrey Field.

And the Matadors did put on a show. Any way you look at it, the game was just an old-fashioned whipping. Estacado rolled up 350 yards of offense (all on the ground) to 95 for Lubbock High. And most of the the Army Salinas-coached Lubbock High yardage came in the final minutes against Estacado second teamers.

Consider this, Estacado used seven ballcarriers to run the ball 53 times for that 350 yards. That comes out to over 6 1/2 yards a carry. No wonder the Matadors piled up 23 first downs.

Estacado coach Louis Kelley was surprised at the relative ease with which the Mats troucned their cross-town rivals though.

"We really weren't emotionally ready to play tonight," he said after the game, "but I really thought that Lubbock would play better than they did."

The Westerners never got a chance to show their stuff though as Estacado scored on its first possesion and never looked back.

Tailback Kelvin White burst 24-yards for the first EHS score with 6:45 remaining in the first quarter to culminate a 52-yard drive. White's extra point attempt went wide but that didn't really matter.

Quarterback Jerry Gray squeezed into the end zone from six-yards out with two seconds remaining in the first period to cap a 48-yard drive. Gray then passed to tight end James Rose for the two point conversion to make it 14-0 and open the floodgates.

"When we got those two quick scores," said Kelley, "that might have knocked their (Lubbock's) wind out."

Things didn't get any better for Lubbock in the second half. The Westerners watched helplessly as the Mats continued to roll up the big yardage — and the Mats did it without White, who left with a minor injury in the second quarter.

Still, the junior finished as the games leading rusher with 87 yards on only 11 carries.

"He (White) is something else," said Kelley. "He's going to be a good one if he doesn't get hurt."

Even without White in the lineup, the Estacado offense continued to roll. Alvin Davis had a big night carrying the ball 14 times for 86 yards. George Irvin was next with 54 yards on 12 carries and wingback Preston Davis had 51 yards on only five carries.

To put it simply, the Matadors looked like they were holding a clinic.

The last two scores for EHS game on a four-yard Gray carry and then a one-yard Irvin run. It was the second touchdown of the night for both Matadors.

"All the kids did a good job," said a smiling Kelley. "It was a little hard for us to get up for this game after our big win last week (against Plainview).

"That's two down," added the coach, "and eight to go."

And if the Matadors continue to roll like they did Friday, they may wind up playing more than just 10 games.

Kermit Posts 7-0 Win Over Mustangs

DENVER CITY (Special) — Kermit quarterback David Fullbright turned a busted pass play into a 30-yard touchdown run late in the fourth period to give the Yellowjackets a 7-0 victory over the Denver City Mustangs.

The Mustangs had their chances, once in the second quarter when quarterback David Mulligan connected on a 28-yard pass play to splitback Daniel Castillo, but they were penalized, and an ensuing field-goal attempt missed the mark.

Then, in the fourth quarter, the Mustangs' Joe Galvan recovered a Yellowjacket fumble on the Kermit 27-yard line, but Mulligan threw two incomplete passes to end the drive and give the Yellowjackets their second victory against no defeats.

The Mustangs are now 1-1 for the season.

Whitefaces Hold Off Palo Duro 10-6

HEREFORD (Special) — The hometown Whitefaces jumped out to a 10-0 lead and never relinquished it here Friday, defeating the Palo Duro Dons 10-6 in the second game of the season for both teams.

Hereford dominated the first quarter with a 76-yard drive that consumed more than ten minutes and ended when senior running back Joe Walker scored from 2 yards out. Scott Daniels tacked on the extra point to give the Whitefaces a 7-0 lead at the half.

The Whitefaces scored again in the third stanza on a 35-yard field goal by Daniels. That score followed a nine-play drive that covered 45 yards from the Hereford 37 to the Don 18.

But Hereford thwarted the Palo Duro PAT and held the Dons scoreless in the final period to take the 4-point win.

Fort Stockton Rips Visiting Bucks, 20-0

FORT STOCKTON (Special) — Fort Stockton rans its season record to 2-0 here Friday night by blanking Alpine 20-0.

The John Blocker-coached Panthers totally dominated the visiting Bucks, gaining 369 yards rushing, compared to only 50 yards for Alpine.

Quarterback Robbie Roberson started the scoring for FSHS in the first period by bulling over from 5 yards out.

Then in the third period, fullback Brad Jackson scored on a 5-yard jaunt. This time, the Panthers were successfull on the PAT try as Roberson hit tight end Rafe Ward for 2 points, putting the Panthers up 14-0 at the time.

Stockton's Ray Gordon led all ball carriers with 120 yards. Jackson also had more than 100 on the ground for the Panthers.

Penalties proved to be Fort Stockton's biggest nemesis. The Panthers were flagged seven times for 80 yards. In fact, a series of penalties after a 50-yard burst by Gordon in the second period took the Panthers completely out of scoring position.

Missed PAT Drops Monahans

SNYDER (Special) — Joel Faulkenberry hit end Timmy Macon with a 16-yard scoring pass with 19 seconds left in the game Friday night to cut Snyder's lead to 14-13.

Now for the rest of the story...

On the PAT attempt runningback Jimmy Rollins was held short of the goal line and the Loboes' bid for a startling comeback win over the Tigers was thwarted.

After a scoreless first period, Snyder fullback Robert Rodriquez scored from the two to put SHS up 7-0 at halftime, following Sam Willis' PAT kick. The drive took seven plays and covered 33 yards.

Monahans bounded back in the third period to tie the contest 7-7 after a one-yard dash by fullback Marvin Hogan with 5:18 left in the perio.d Hogan also kicked the extra point.

Then in the fourth stanza, quarterback Mike Roemisch scored on a six-yard burt. Willis kicked the extra point, putting Snyder up 14-7 with 1:49 left in the period.

Despite the close score, Snyder seemed to have control of the game. The Tigers picked up 18 first downs and had 308 yards total offense. The Loboes, meanwhile, had 13 first downs and 197 yards offense.

In all Snyder was insides Monahans' 25-yard line on five difference occassions but did not score.

Jayton Nudges Chiefs 14-9

JAYTON (Special) — Despite a scoring threat by the Crosbyton Chiefs from the two-yard line with less than two minutes to go, the Jayton Jaybirds held on to win, 14-9.

Crosbyton scored first halfway through the first quarter when left halfback Lavance Coppadege scored from seven yards out. The extra point kick by Allen Adams was good, and the Chiefs led 7-0.

Jayton came back in the second quarter when fullback Joe McMeans ran one yard for a touchdown. The Jaybirds tried for the two-point conversion but failed.

Jayton scored again halfway through the third quarter when McMeans ran the ball in for a touchdown from the three-yard line. That touchdown was set up by a 29-yard pass from quarterback Patrick Parker to McMean, which put the ball on the Chiefs one-yard line. The Jaybirds lost two yards before McMean finally scored.

The score then was 14-7, Jayton, after the Jaybirds' quarterback ran for the two-point conversion.

With less then two minutes left in the fourth quarter, Crosbyton moved the ball down to the Jaybird's two-yard line. But after Jayton held the Chiefs, and were backed up to their own goal line, they took an intentional safety, making the score 14-9.

Southland Revival Turned Back 25-20

PATTON SPRINGS (Special) — Southland came up with a little bit too late in its six-man football contest with Patton Springs here Friday night.

The Eagles scored all of their 20 points in the fourth period, but by that time PSHS had already rolled to a 25-0 lead. The game ended with the Rangers on top 25-20.

Patton Springs continued to roll in the third period as Baxter again scored on runs of 35 yards. The first came with 6:18 left in the period, the second at the 3:13 mark.

Southland finally got on the board in the fourth period but by that time it was too late.

Frenship Trips Spearman 21-0

WOLFFORTH (Special) — Johnny Johnson scored on runs of 15 and 3 yards to lead Frenship to a 21-0 win here Friday night over Spearman.

The first Johnson score came in the second period and capped a 54-yard drive. The PAT attempt, however, failed. Johnson also later scored in the third period from the 3. A Steve Bradford PAT kick was good, putting the Tigers up 21-0.

A 20-yard scoring pass from quarterback Pat Gaston to split end Dennis Kirk was sandwiched in between the two Johnson scores. The Kirk TD came in the second period and capped an 82-yard scoring march. Sandy Guerrero added the PAT on a short blast up the middle.

Frenship, under the direction of head coach John Parchman, totally dominated the Lynx. The Tigers rolled up 20 first downs and 383 total yards. Spearman had only five first downs and 72 yards total offense.

Gaston, the FHS quarterback, was the offensive leader, rushing for 123 of the team's 363 yards.

Losing Streak Ends At 19 For Steers

The win by the Steers snapped a 19-game losing streak that dated back to the 1977 season.

Evans's score came in the third period.

Loop Longhorns Blitz WHA 57-8

LOOP (Special) — The Loop Longhorns bolted to a 26-0 first quarter lead and went on to crush Western Hills Baptist Academy 57-8 here Friday.

Alan Freeman and Darran Ancinec paced the 'Horns, scoring 6 touchdowns between them. Freeman opend both the first and third quarters with scoring bursts of 25 yards, while Ancinec, the game's leading rusher, scored on runs of 5, 7, 5 and 55 yards.

Ropesville Blitzes Past Wilson 27-0

ROPESVILLE (Special) — The Ropes Eagles held the visiting Wilson Mustangs to a scoreless tie for the first half here Friday night, but the visitors broke out of the corral in the third and fourth quarter and took a 27-0 win.

Wilson quarterback John Cox put the football into the end zone in the third quarter for a 6-0 lead, and then, in the fourth quarter, passed to Mitch Bartley on a 15-yard pass play for another TD.

Grady Nudges Ira In 14

GRADY (Special) — Running back Ronald Chee scored four touchdowns for the Grady High School Wildcats Friday as the beat the Ira High School Bulldogs 25-14 in six-man football.

In the first quarter, Chee scored on runs of 65, 63 and 42 yards. Larry Key ran for the extra point after the second touchdown by Chee, but the other two extra point attempts failed.

Ira scored when Wade Peason ran back the kickoff for the second half 80 yards. The extra point try by Keith Bryant was good for two points, and the score was 25-8.

Tatum Whips Coyotes 13-0

TATUM N.M. (Special) — The Tatum Coyotes got touchdowns runs from quarterback Ronnie Richards and Wesley Jones to defeat the Carrizozo Grizzlies 13-0 Friday night in a New Mexico schoolboy battle.

The win leaves Tatum with a 2-0 mark. It was the season opener for the Grizzlies.

The first THS score came in the second period on a two-yard dash by Richards. The conversion attempt failed.

New Home Hangs On To Defeat Coyotes

GAIL (Special) — New Home pulled to a 13-0 lead and hung on to defeat Borden County 13-12 here Friday in a battle of Class B teams. The loss was the 12th in a row for Borden County, and their second of the year, while New Home stands 2-0 for the season.

After a scoreless first half, New Home tallied in the third period when Nicky McClintock blocked a Borden County punt and ran it in 12 yards for a score. Nicky Keith added the conversion.

Seminole Pops Cubs For Second Win Of Year

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

BROWNFIELD — Maybe it was the icy wind that blew throughout the game or maybe it was that old black magic, but whatever it was, Seminole, the Avalanche-Journal's top-rated team in Class AA, upset Brownfield 15-7 here Friday night.

Brownfield, of Class AAA, had plenty of chances to turn the tide but every time it tried, Seminole kept the Cubs at bay.

Leading 7-0 after a three-play, 76-yard drive capped by Ricky Greene's 42-yard scoring sprint, the Indians were rocked on their heels by the Brownfield attack.

But somehow they regained their balance each time, usually thanks to Brownfield mistakes.

For example, after the Cubs recovered a fumbled punt for a first down at the Seminole 28, they were slapped with a 15-yard clipping penalty, moving them out of distance.

No problem — Brownfield quarterback Kelly Reid hit Jimmy Martinez on a fly pattern good for 26 yards and a first down at the Indian 14.

But the voodoo struck again. Running back Charles Burse lost 2 yards on first down, then Reid fumbled the ball to lose 9 yards on second. On third down, the quarterback thought he had found paydirt. He had a receiver open in the end zone and hit him in the stomach with the ball.

Unfortunately it bounced away. And a 43-yard field goal attempt was short.

At the start of the second quarter, Brownfield defensive back David Swaringen intercepted a Seminole pass and apparently fell in the end zone for a touchback. But the officials spotted the ball on the 1-yard line. After gaining 5 yards on two plays, Brownfield lost 4 on third down and had to punt from its 2.

The Indians stacked the line of scrimmage for an all-out rush and it worked. Kregg Key burst through to block the kick over the back line of the end zone for a safety.

The Cubs finally ended their frustration in the fourth quarter. After a fumble receovery gave them a first down on their 47, Reid hit Kevin Billings for a 23-yard pass completion. A 15-yard unnecessary roughness penalty against Seminole moved the ball to the Indian 15.

On first down, Gilbert Franco took a sweep outside and danced past the diving hands of defenders to the end zone. Mark Dobson's extra point kick was good, and with 6:05 left, Brownfield had closed the gap to 9-7.

But at that point, Seminole put on its best sustained drive of the night, moving 68 yards for the clinching score. Greene, who gained 126 yards on the night, was the main force, accounting for 35 yards on that drive.

Hill scored the clinching touchdown on a 4-yard drive with 88 seconds left.

Brownfield still had a shot. Reid scrambled for 10 yards and a first down to spot the ball at the Cub 45.

But Seminole's 165-pound defensive end Gregg McCullough put together back-to-back sacks, totalling 17 yards to end the threat.

Wildcats Blank Buffs

CLOVIS, N.M. (Special) — The powerhouse Clovis Wildcats overcame a soggy turf and a stingy Albuquerque Cibola defense to defeat the Cougars 6-0 and notch their 12th straight victory here Friday.

The Wildcats got their winning tally with only one minute left in the contest, when Phil Lopez replaced starting quarterback Kyle Gentry. On his first play, Lopez lofted a 63-yard pass to Craig Bernard, who fell at the Cougar 1-yard line. Fullback J.R. Houston bulled over on the next play, and the Wildcat victory was safe.

Rain threatened the contest until only an hour before game time and the slippery conditions hampered both sides. Clovis lost the ball five times, yet the Wildcats sacked Cibola's quarterbacks five times during the game.

Eagles Fall 18-7 To Owls

Despite the 164-yard rushing performance by fullback Steve Sikes, the Lubbock Christian High Eagles could not overcome a fired-up Silverton Owls squad and fell to their guests 18-7 Friday night at Lena Stephens Field.

Sikes, who carried teh ball 19 times, put the Eagles ontop of the Owls early in the second quarter 7-6 after rambling 73 yards on a draw play. Eddie Crouch added the extra point.

Prior to the run, however, Silverton had held a 6-0 lead after tailabck Bobby McPherson scored from the one-yard line on an off-tackle dive. The try for two points failed.

The teams went into the halftime lockertom with SHS on top 7-6.

Then in the second half, the Owls caught fire. First, McPherson scored from the one to give SHS a 12-7 lead. The score came after SHS recovered a fumble on the Eagle 17.

McPherson, like Sikes, had a banner night. The Silverton star carried the ball 185 yards on 32 carries. But most important, he had the three touchdowns.

Both teams now stand at 1-1 for the year.

Lubbock Christian picked up 12 first downs and 206 yards on the ground. Silverton, meanwhile, had five first and 213 yards on the ground.

Silverton quaterback Mark Brannon ended the night by hitting two-of-three passes for 41 yards.

Roby Picks Up First Victory

ROBY (Special) — The Roby High School Lions notched their first win of the season Friday when they downed the Hawley High School Bearcats, 19-12.

Neither team could score in the first quarter as both were plagued by fumbles and penalties.

Roby's first score came about halfway in the second quarter when end Greg Jennings recovered a Hawley fumble in the end zone. The extra point kick missed, and the Lions led 6-0.

New Deal Stops Plains 13-0

NEW DEAL (Special) — New Deal's Lions took a sweet Homecoming Victory here Friday night, stopping the Plains Cowboys, 13-0, on the strength of quarterback Keith Venable's TD passing and halfback Tony Howell's bruising ground attack.

Venable launched his first TD pass from the 8-yard line after New Deal had recovered a fumble at the Plains 32 yard line. Split end Russell Nichols took it in for the TD, and Jim McIntire, offensive tackle, booted the PAT, for a 7-0 second quarter lead.

In the fourth quarter, Venable fired a strike to Howell for a 35-yard TD play, and although the PAT was blocked, the 13 points stood up for the win.

Howell picked up 133 yards on 23 carries for the winners, in addition to his 35-yard TD pass reception. Billy Thiel added another 78 yards on 14 tries for New Deal.

Longhorns, Friona Battle To Draw

LOCKNEY (Special)— The Lockney Longhorns scored eight unanswered fourth quarter points Friday night to pull out a tie with the Friona Chieftans, 14-14.

Chieftan halfback Rod Hubbard scored first on a 3-yard run in the third quarter and Mark Montoya's extra point was good.

Lockney answered on a 60-yard run by Curtis Ford. It was Friona's turn again as Hubbard scored from 5 yards out.

Eagles Victorious In Last Quarter

ABILENE (Special) — After a scoreless first half, the Abilene High School Eagles broke loose for a touchdown and field goal in the third quarter to beat Austin High School Maroons, 10-0.

The Eagles' touchdown came with 7:58 left in the third quarter when fullback Willie Roberts ran the ball in from the 10 yard line. Randy Williams kicked the extra point, and also kicked a 30-yard field goal for the Eagles with 2:30 left in the third quarter.

Shallowater Nips Hart

HART (Special) — Quarterback Neal Luck and halfback Rodney Jackson shared the honors here Friday night, pushing the visiting Shallowater over the Hart Longhorns 14-12 for its second straight win.

Luck passed to Jackson on a 45-yard TD play to knot the score at 6-6 in the second quarter, and Luck plunged into the end zone from a yard out to tie the score in the fourth quarter.

Hart had moved ahead on the strength of a 15-yard pass play from quarterback Derek Rich to Chad Black with 2 minutes left in the first stanza. Hart again moved into the lead in the third quarter 12-6, Lorenzo Valenzuela supplying the final 15 yards, with 1:05 left in the third quarter. Both kicks failed.

Hale Center Downs Kress

Robert Smith started the scoring for the Owls on a 9-yard run. Trinidad Pardon booted the extra point, giving HCHS a 7-0 lead.

Tailback Gordon Compton put the Owls up 13-0 on a 3-yard blast in the second period, but this time, Pardon missed the PAT attempt.

Kress managed to cut the Hale Center lead to 13-6 after halfback Eddy Johnson scored on a 53-yard run. The PAT attempt failed, however.

The Owls tacked on two more scores, both in the fourth period, to ice the contest. Tight end Terry James latched onto a 10-yard pass from quarterback Freddy Palacious and Compton added the 2 points.

Idalou Shuts Out Petersburg 19-0

PETERSBURG (Special) — The Idalou Wildcats shut out the hometown Buffaloes 19-0 Friday night to claim their second victory of the 1979 season.

Paced by running backs Gary Smith and Ruben Reyes, who rushed for 104 and 110 yards, respectively, the Wildcats completely controlled the nondistrict game.

Smith scored in the second quarter on a 10-yard run, which was closely followed by a 6-yard plunge by Reyes as Idalou jumped to a 13-0 halftime lead.

One-Yard TD Run Dooms Cooper High

LORENZO (Special) — Lorenzo's Hornets edged Lubbock Cooper here Friday night on the strength of a one-yard TD run by quarterback Bobby Brown which stood up for a 6-0 victory.

Lorenzo now stands 1-1, as does Lubbock Cooper.

Brown gained 86 yards on 22 carries to lead the Hornet charge, while David Minor picked up 24 yards for the night. Scott Egert carried the ball 17 times for 72 yards for Lubbock Cooper.

Lorenzo led in first downs, 9-7, in yards rushing, 146-133, while Lubbock Cooper had the edge in passing with 4-8 for 32 yards to 2-10 for 19 yards for the winners.

Butler-Led Midland Lee Drubs EP Austin 51-13

MIDLAND (Special) — The powerful Midland Lee Rebels popped El Paso Austin here Friday night 51-13 with quarterback Gary Butler passing for a pair of TDs and running for another to lead the way.

Tailback Steve Waldron roared 46 yards with the winners' initial TD, Butler fired a strike to Wade Cartwright for the second on a 64-yard play, and, on the ensuing kickoff, Austin's Polo Miranda raced 90 yards to the Lee end zone for a 17-7 first-quarter score.

Miranda set sail again the second quarter, this time for 81 yards, to narrow the count to 17-13, before Cartwright's interception and return set up the winners at the Austin 10-yard stripe. Butler punched it over to stretch the margin to 24-13, and the race was on.

Fullback Mark Thompson ended a 47-yard drive with a 1-yard TD run, Butler fired to Larry Linne (who converted PATs for the winners) for 32 yards and another TD, Thompson crunched over again from a yard out, and Eugene Merritt marched the final 4 yards for a final TD.

It was then 51-13.

Killeen Mauls San Angelo 49-7

KILLEEN (Special) — John Walker rambled for 175 yards on 14 carries and scored one touchdown to lead the Killeen Kangaroos to an easy 49-7 win over San Angelo Central Friday night.

The win left the 'Roos with a perfect 2-0 mark for the season, while Central dropped to 0-2.

Fred Nichols started the scoring onslaught for KHS early in the first quarter when he dashed in from 5 yards out. Don Hewett then kicked his first of two extra points. Walker later rambled 44 yards for the second KHS score in the period.

Killeen added three more TDs in the second period on a 47-yard interception return by Willie Skinner, a 2-yard run by Nichols and a 6-yard dash by George Leito.

A 21-yard pass from Kel Crane to Paul Hayes on the final play of the game proved to be Central's only score. Ken Fields added the extra point.

FG After Time Expires Lifts Muleshoe Over Floydada 9-7

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

MULESHOE — Time had run out, literally, but not figureatively, for the Muleshoe Mules Friday night.

The scoreboard indicated no time remaining and Floydada having the best of a 7-6 score was not being as favorable to the Mules cause as the rulebook, which insists that a football game not conclude on a penalty.

Muleshoe's senior Sam Whalin proceeded to kick the 25-yard field goal — field position courtesy of a pass interference call and 33 yard penalty against Flovdada at the final gun — that produced a 9 to 7 escape hatch for the Mules.

"Sam is one of our leaders and we thought we'd give him the chance," said Muleshoe Coach Mike Wartes, even though victor Victor Leal, not Whalin normally is the Mule place-kicker. "Sam's our captain and all-South Plains linebacker. He's awful good under pressure and I'm glad I went to him at the time.

"I feel extremely fortunate to win," Wartes added. "I was hoping to get a break in a close game; hoping something good would happen and it did."

Little else went well for Muleshoe in the second half, just as Floydada had played lethargically in the first half. The Mules, however, were recipients of additional good luck early in the in the fourth quarter when a Floydada touchdown pass was nullified by a procedure penalty. This balanced the books because a Muleshoe first quarter touchdown pass also was nullified by penalty.

Andrews Whips Golden Tors

ANDREWS (Special) — All-state candidate Van Pearcy scored twice here Friday night to help lead the Andrews Mustangs to an easy 30-win over Lamesa.

Andrews is now 2-0, Lamesa 0-2 for the year.

Andrews got two points in the first period when it was able to score a safety.

Then in the second period, quarterback Keith Brooks hit end Randy Jarvis on a 13-yard strike. Van Eisenbach hit the extra point, upping AHS' lead to 9-0. Later in the same period, Pearcy scored his first TD, this one from the one. Eisenbach added the PAT.

Andrews continued to roll in the second half. First Marty Keesee scored on a reverse play from 44-yards out. Again the kick by Eisenbach was good.

Andrews dominated play, rolling to 16 first downs, 208 yards rushing and 90 yards passing. Lamesa picked up only four first downs, 53 yards on the ground and 26 yards passing.

Lamessa was held to a minus three yards rushing in the second half.

Steers Snap Losing Streak

The short dash proved to be all the Steers needed to defeat the Hobbs Eagles here Friday night as Big Spring recorded a 7-0 victory.

The win by the Steers snapped a 19-game losing streak that dated back to the 1977 season. Evans's score came in the third period.

Valley Drops Ralls With 12-0 Decision

RALLS (Special) — Valley took a 12-0 win over the Ralls Jackrabbits here Friday night on an interception return and a 1-yard TD run.

Ralls led in first downs 10-9 and in passing yardage 119-24, but the difference was Valley's 184-54-yard edge in rushing.

Motley Co. Stuns Rochester

MATADOR (Special) — Rochester running back Chad Glower returned a Motely County punt 75 yards for a touchdown in the final quarter here Friday to break open a tight game and pave the way for a 22-6 Rochester win.

Until Glower made his scintillating run, Motley County and Rochester were deadlocked at 6-6.

Earth Stings Hornets 32-12

EARTH (Special) — The Springlake Earth Wolverines scored 13 unanswered points in the fourth quarter to fly by the Sudan Hornets 32-12.

Springlake Earth got the first score in the first period on a 1-yard dive-by Raymon Olvera with 4:47 left.

Wolverines' halfback Ricky Smith scored again in the second quarter on a 6-yard run with 8:51 to go. Sudan halfback Victor King answered with a 2-yard run and trailed at the half, 12-6.

The Wolverines scored first in the second half on an 8-yard run by halfback Louis De Grate with 7:57 left in the third period. Sudan scored on a 47-yard pass interception by safety Victor King.

Slaton Romps Over Dimmitt

DIMMITT (Special) — The visiting Slaton Tigers remain undefeated in District 5AAA action Friday night with a 35-10 romp over the Dimmitt Bobcats.

Slaton scored twice in tha first period, once on a 1-yard run by halfback Lance Bownds and the second on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Kevin Johnston to halfback Charles Phenix.

Dimmitt fullback Jimmy Stawar score for the Bobcats in the second period on a 5-yard run. Stewart again scored when they recovered a bad snap from canter on the Slaton 4-yard line.

Eagles Utilize TD, Field Goal In Win

TULIA (Special) — After three quarters of scoreless football Friday, the Canyon Eagles exploded in the fourth quarter to score two touchdowns and beat the Tulia High School Hornets, 14-0.

Canyon's first touchdown came after the Hornets fumbled in their end of the field. Quarterback David Harbin threw a 27-yard pass to end Gary Fletcher, and the extra point kick by Monte Johnson was good.

Canyon scored again after the Hornets again fumbled the ball away. Quarterback Harbin ran the ball in from the 11-yard line and Johnson's extra point kick was good again.

Spur Catches Dragons 14-12

PADUCAH (Special) — The Spur Bulldogs came from behind Friday to beat the Paducah Dragons 14-12.

Paducah scored early in the first quarter on a 1-yard run by quarterback Mitchell Porter. The extra point kick missed, and the Dragons lead at halftime 6-0.

Spur came back in the third quarter to score when quarterback Mike Tagle ran the ball in from the 11-yard line. Tagle also kicked the extra point, to put the Bulldogs ahead 7-6.

Spur scored again early in the fourth quarter on tailback Harold Johnson's 10-yard run. The kick for the extra point by Tagle was good, and the Bulldogs were ahead 14-6.

Tahoka JV Stomps Monterey Sophs 30-6

After dropping its first match to Cleburne, 11-15, 9-15, Dunbar defeated Fort Stockton, 16-14, 13-15, 15-10 to remain in contention for the consolation finals.

Dunbar will play Abilene Cooper at 10 a.m. today. The tournament's consolation finals begin at 5 p.m. today, followed by the championship at 7 p.m.

Elks Romp To Easy Win Over Guthrie

The undefeated Elks, who went to the state finals last year, rambled to a 38-point lead at the half and never looked back. Brothers Stan and Jamie Johnson accounted for most of the Elks' 447 total yards and between them scored six of Cotton Center's ten TDs.

Dawson Wins 23-0 Over Whiteface

WHITEFACE (Special) — It was cold and damp here Friday afternoon. And that was the outlook in the Whiteface locker room as the Antelopes dropped a 23-0 decision to Dawson here.

The weather wasn't much better, either.

In the second stanza, Hunter hit end Joel Bennett with a 32-yard strike. Wade Bennett, who connected on the PAT boot, lifted Dawson to a 14-0 halftime lead.

Forsan Demoralizes Garden City 46-12

GARDEN CITY — Forsan held Garden City scoreless through the first three periods and went on to racked up an easy 46-12 six-man football win here Friday night.

The Buffaloes got 21 poitns in the first half. Quarterback Ernie Strickland hit halfback D.F. Stanley with a 7-yard scoring toss. In the second period, Stanley scored from the seven and Strickland hit end Brent Nichols with a 24-yard strike.

Transportation Biggest Problem For Grain Men

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — Ask almost any grain man what his biggest problem is this year and he probably will answer, "transportation."

While this really isn't anything new, the degree of the problem seems to get worse.

Yet, ironically, this country is moving more grain this year than in any other year in history. The United States probably will move more grain in the year ahead.

But moving this grain is a big job and a headache for many people in the grain trade, from farmer to consumer around the world.

While the transportation problem has a myriad of facets running a gamut that includes anything from abandoned rail lines to bridges on country roads that won't take a big truckload of corn or wheat, the basic difficulty is just not enough facilities to handle all the freight needed to be hauled, when the haulers want it moved.

The problem is not confined to America. In fact, the United States seems to be coping with the situation better than other big exporting nations.

Canada and Australia both apparently have reached a limit, temporarily at least, on how much they can export. The Soviet Union appears to have a limit on how much it can unload and transport to consumers within its country.

The explanation for this worldwide transportation problem comes from numbers that are more easily understood than the many ideas offered as a solution. The numbers relate to the amount of grain moving in world trade.

World trade in grain — that is, the moving of grain from one country to another — has just about doubled in the last 10 years.

Other figures show that the United States is accounting for a bigger and bigger share of the world's grain trade. Part of this is explained by the fact Canada and Australia haven't been able to boost their shares. They both have plenty of wheat to sell, but haven't been able to get any more to their ports. The Canadian Wheat Board minister recently revealed his country lost the sales of 4 million tons of grain (about 148 million bushels) in the last year because of transportation deficiencies.

Incidentally, a group of 25 Australian farmers and their wives recently visited the Kansas City Board of Trade. They said that because of erratic farm yields in Australia, it wasn't economicaly feasible to build up either storage or transportation facilities to cope with peak years. The peaks just don't come often enough, they said. This last year, Australia had its biggest wheat crop in history at 18 million metric tons. It is looking forward to a "good" crop of something like 13 to 15 million metric tons this year.

When organized groups visit the Kansas City Board of Trade to observe and study the grain marketing process, it is explained to them that the U.S. system has been developed for America which moves more grain than any other country in the world. America moves more grain domestically than any other country because of a system in which some farmers grow grains while others (the big cattle and hog feeding operations and the huge poultry plants) feed it. But most of all, the United States moves more grain because it exports more than all the rest of the world put together. This refers to all grains.

Usually, the U.S. share of world trade is just over half, but in the year ahead, this proportion, according to current U.S. Department of Agriculture projections, will take a big jump to almost 60 percent.

Here are the pertinent figures:

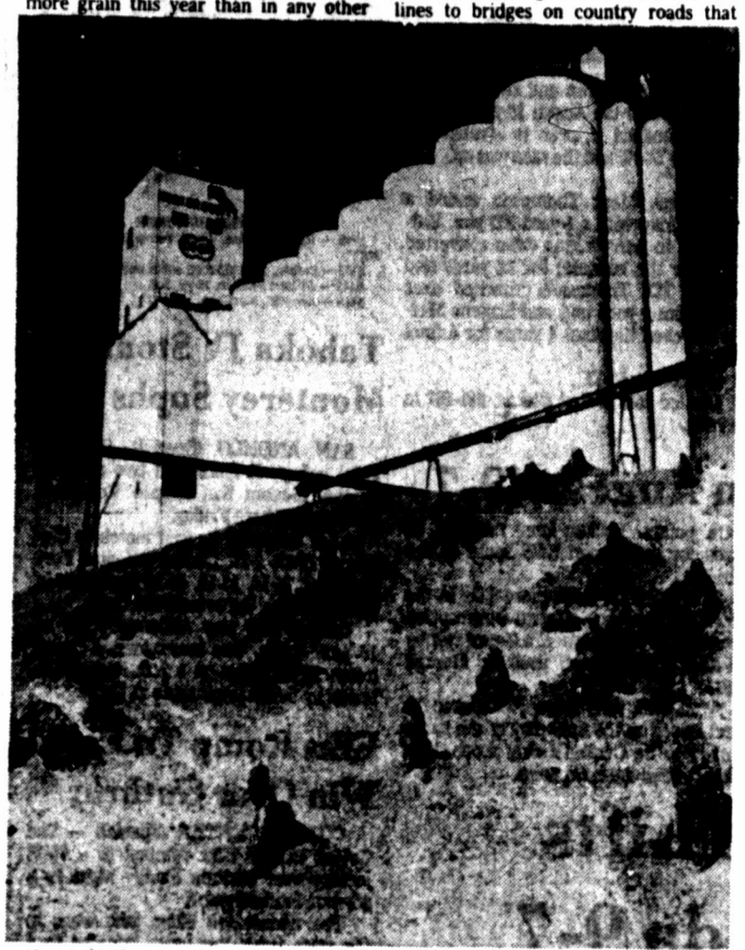

In 1975-76, the world total on grain exports, wheat and coarse grains, was 143.1 million metric tons out of which the United States accounted for 78 million metric tons or 54.5 percent. The next year, 1976-77, the United States accounted for 52.6 percent of the world's total trade of 145.7 million metric tons. In 1977-78, world trade in grains had grown to 156.7 million metric tons while the U.S. share was 53.4 percent; in 1978-79, world trade had escalated to 160.3 million metric tons while the U.S. share moved up to 55.1 percent. For the current year, from July 1, 1979 to June 30, 1980, world trade is projected at 177.3 million metric tons with the United States expected to account for 105.7 million metric tons or 59.6 percent.

Different grains have different weights to the bushel but these figures indicate that this year the United States will be shipping a billion bushels more than just five years ago.

That certainly helps to explain the transportation problem. Maybe it doesn't help to recall that there was a car shortage five years ago, too.

It is sort of human nature for the grain trade to commiserate with itself over the transportation shortage, but the cotton, lumber, fertilizer and coal people among others have been suffering too.

Hurt the most by the rail car shortage apparently are the small country elevators.

WHEAT SCULPTURE — A large pile of wheat, part of Oklahoma's bumper crop, is piled on the ground outside a Hooker elevator because of a shortage of rail cars. The little mounds on top of the grain are created when water seeps into the piles and evaporates, leaving the grain stuck together. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has estimated the 1979 winter wheat crop in Texas at 138 million bushels, up from 54 million the previous year. This would make Texas the nation's No. 3 wheat state. Production in Oklahoma, second only to 402.8 million bushels in Kansas, has been estimated by USDA at 216.6 million bushels. (AP Laserphoto)

Houston Banks Change Name To Farm Credit Banks Of Texas

The Farm Credit Banks of Houston have undergone a name change.

The banks are now the Farm Credit Banks of Texas. The name change is a first in the Farm Credit System's history.

At its recent meeting in Washington, D.C., the Federal Farm Credit Board approved the name change.

The word "Texas" will be used in the future rather than "Houston" in reference to the Tenth District Farm Credit System entities. Entities include the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, the Bank for Cooperatives, the Federal Land Bank, Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations.

The Tenth District Farm Credit Board, policy-making body for the banks and associations, had been seeking a name change for some time, according to Jack H. Barton, Credit Bank president and chairman of the FCB's Presidents Committee.

Request for the name change was made to better identify the territory the agricultural financial institutions serve, rather than the city location. The three banks and the district have carried the "of Houston" since their organization in 1923.

The Tenth District is the only one of 12 Farm Credit Districts in the nation which serves one state. The district was established as such primarily because of Texas' unique homesteald laws.

The Farm Credit Banks of Texas are member-banks of the nation cooperative Farm Credit System. Last year the system provided more than $47 billion in loan funds to agricultural producers and harvesters.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

THIS WEEK'S GOVERNMENT ESTIMATE of a record 1979 U. S. corn crop may rekindle attempts by the National Corn Growers Association to get the Carter administration to offer 20 million metric tons of corn to the Soviets under the fourth year of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. grains agreement.

The corn production estimate, at 7.27 billion bushels, was based on crop conditions as of Sept. 1. But there have been two weeks of good weather since then, NCGA legislative vice president Bob Mullins pointed out.

Mullins said the U. S. Department of Agriculture's September crop estimate has been low in seven of the last 10 years. He said NCGA officials will be in contact with the USDA prior to the regularly scheduled U.S.-U.S.S.R. consultation to reiterate their position on the corn offer.

Howard Hjort, the USDA's chief economist, said no decision on the matter will be made until the Oct. 3-4 consultations with the Soviets. He said the decision on how much grain the United States would offer the Soviets would depend on the mutual U.S.-U.S.S.R. supply-demand situation.

HJORT DOWNPLAYED THE ROLE POLITICAL factors, such as the Soviet troop presence in Cuba, might have on the outcome of the consultations. He did not, however, rule out the possibility that such factors might play some role in the joint consultations, since they involve matters of overall U. S. policy.

Meanwhile, the big crop estimate has spurred speculation that thit might force some reconsideration within the administration on the question of a set-aside on 1980 feed grains.

However, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, meeting with reporters, said that "it is almost certain there will be no set-aside of any importance." He said a final decision on the 1980 feed grain program is expected soon after the next crop report, due Oct. 12.

Bergland said the USDA may seek some requirement to keep plantings by farmers within their normal cropland acreage to proect fragile lands.

"We do not want to encourage (farmers) to abandon sound conservation practices," he said. "We are worried about soil erosion."

The USDA already has announced there will be no 1980-crop wheat set-aside.

ON THE GRAIN MARKETING FRONT, traders and cash dealers Friday reported heavy farmer selling Thursday of corn and wheat, both soft and hard, and moderately heavy selling of soybeans.

Grain futures at Chicago dropped Friday, following Thursday's limit advances, mainly because of the heavy selling of grains and soybeans in the country.

Although observers noted significant amounts of new-crop corn and soybean sales, they said most of the selling was out of old-crop stocks as farmers took advantage of the price bulge to clear storage ahead of the approaching harvest.

"Farmers have been waiting for this," one dealer said. "A lot of them didn't expect to see these prices before the harvest."

Many traders also saw the selling as simply a reaction to the price rises, rather than an indication of bearish feelings about the markets.

Noting that the limit advances took soybeans up 30 cents, corn up 10 cents and wheat up 20 cents, one trader expressed no surprise over the increased movement and hedge selling Friday morning.

"It was pure logic the farmer would sell something," he said.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED 7 TO 18 POINTS lower in the two nearbys Friday as heavy trade buying near the close lifted prices from afternoon losses of about 50 to 60 points following a sell recommendation by a large commission house.

Floor brokers said residual effects of the USDA crop production estimates, construed as bearish by the market, and the apparently minimal damage to fields by wind and rain from Hurricane Frederic also had provided for some weakness in prices early in the day.

Speculator and local selling to square accounts before the weekend also added to the downward price movement, they said. Doubts in some quarters as to whether the USDA crop estimate can be achieved without exceptional weather were somewhat supportive as the session progressed.

Volume was estimated at a heavy 12,550 lots.

U. S. COTTON EXPORT SALES during the week ended Sept. 2 totaled 27,600 running bales for the current marketing year, the USDA reported this week. No sales were registered for the next marketing year.

China took 8,900 bales during the week for current marketing year delivery, increasing the total Chinese commitment for U. S. cotton to 465,500 bales for 1979-80.

Principal buyers during the week included Hong Kong at 4,800 bales and the European Economic Community at 5,700 bales. Japan decreased its commitment for U. S. cotton by 1,000 bales.

The week's exports were 90,700 bales, with 9 percent going to Europe and 84 percent to Asia.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures fell Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade on forecasts of favorable weekend weather for crops and a pickup in country cash sales of grain.

Futures prices rebounded from the sharp price gains of Thursday as traders reassessed the supply-demand picture. The price increases, however, had encouraged farmer selling. Some hedge-type commercial selling appeared on the futures market Friday as a result.

Most weather forecasts seemed to portend a warming trend in important corn and soybean-growing areas, erasing talk earlier in the week about possible frost damage this weekend in northern areas of the corn and soybean belt.

Analysts said the Agriculture Department's reduction Wednesday in its estimate of Soviet grain production this year, and its smaller-than-expected estimate of the U.S. soybean crop, were likely to portend little effect on total U.S. grain exports this year or on the availability of grain supplies next year.

The only contracts to finish higher were soybean oil for nearby delivery, which rose on talk of possible big export business with Iran or India. Talk of severe crop problems in India circulated on the floor.

At the close, soybeans were 11½ to 17¼ cents lower, September $7.16; wheat was 3¼ to 9 cents lower, September $4.37; corn was 4¼ to 6 cents lower, September $2.76¼; and oats were ½ to 1½ cents lower, September $1.43¼.

Cattle Futures End Unchanged Friday

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed unchanged to 90 points lower led by October at the day's low Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 25,653 lots. The market weakened after an early gain of 35.

The action seemed to be primarily evening up ahead of the weekend and the cattle on feed report. There was also profit taking after Thursday's limit level advance. The commission house with a cash hogs connection was an aggressive seller.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 105 to 105¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to weak with the best top $70 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 120,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals on Monday are expected to total 17,000 head.

Chicago Mercantile Exchange floor traders' immediate comments on the cattle on feed report were neutral to positive. Most figures were as expected except marketings which fell four percent under the average.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture said cattle and calves on feed in the seven major states on Sept. 1 were 13 percent less than a year earlier, 6,837,000 head. The number placed on feed during August was 1,342,000 head, or 24 percent less than one year ago and the number marketed during August stood at 1,626,000 head, three percent less than one year earlier.

In Texas, 1,640,000 head were on feed as opposed to 1,900,000 a year ago on Sept. 1. About 340,000 head were placed on feed in Texas and 385,000 head were marketed.

Feeder cattle futures closed 70 lower to 25 higher on 2,504 cars. April was off the most at the day's low with only September higher after climbing 55.

As in cattle futures, trade here was mostly evening up ahead of the weekend and the cattle on feed report. There was also profit taking after Thursday's gains.

Deliveries total 102 thus far. About 1,200 head are expected on Monday at the major markets.

Hog futures closed 100 to 150 lower led by October at the limit decline. Volume was 7,988 contracts. The market was lower except for an early gain of 30 in August.

Prices gave ground on continued heavy slaughter and increased hog runs along with lower prices. Scattered scale-down buying was traced to firmness in most pork trade.

Wholesale hams were up ½ to 2 at 70 to 72½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $40.50 per hundredweight, at Joliet. Kill was 332,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 31,500 head on Monday.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 155 to 200 lower led by February through May at the limit decline. Sales totaled 6,829 cars. The market was lower except for a brief gain of 17 in February.

There was further profit taking after Thursday's rise to the highest since May. Heavy hog runs and kill coupled with easiness in cash hogs more than offset firmer tone to cash bellies.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1 at 32 to 41 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

CBS Pins Ratings Hopes On TV Supplement

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS is trying a new way of attracting prime-time viewers with a 16-page, full-color newspaper supplement promoting its fall lineup of programs. The supplement will be included in 135 papers across the country Sunday.

"It's an exciting new use of newspaper advertising for us," said Steve Sohmer, a vice president for advertising and promotion for CBS Entertainment, and the man behind the project. "No network has ever had anything like it."

Sohmer said CBS hopes to reach more than 75 million potential viewers with CBS begins its fall season Monday night a solid runnerup in the ratings to ABC, with some hope of cutting into ABC's lead in the coming months.

Sohmer said the supplement is part of a pre-season advertising campaign that has included the usual on-air promotion and ads in TV Guide, newspapers and newspapers' television booklets, and radio announcements.

The Sunday supplement features a cover picture of the stars of CBS's Friday night comedy, "The Dukes of Hazzard," as well as stories and pictures on the network's other prime-time programs and personalities.

Sohmer said local affiliates were given the opportunity to buy inside space in the supplement, and for taking that option the stations would have their logos printed on the cover.

"More than half of the stations in a position to do that took the opportunity," he said.

The supplement contains some advertising, but Sohmer said CBS's intent there was to cover, at least partially, the production and distribution costs. CBS pays newspapers for carrying the supplement.

"There's no profit for CBS," he said. "It was not done for profit, but for promoting our fall programs."

Sohmer would not say how much the project cost CBS, but noted, "So far, it appears a successful effort, and I think we seriously must consider producing one or more of these in the next year."

If CBS had sold enough advertising to cover its costs, that would mean that it had, in effect, achieved unprecedented national promotion for its programs without cost to itself. But Sohmer would not discuss the financial details.

The CBS executive said the network planned extensive research to determine the effects of the supplement.

Production of the supplement by Alco-Gravure Inc. of North Hollywood, Calif., began Aug. 2, and Sohmer said "the largest single matter of concern in preparing the editorial material in advance is changes in the schedule."

"We were lucky in that all the programs shown to affiliates in the spring are still on the schedule, though there have been some time changes," he said. "We deal with that with the normal disclaimer. 'Check local listings. ...' We would have to do that anyway, because all stations don't carry programs at the same time."

Sohmer said CBS offered affiliates an on-air promo showing a newsboy sitting on a pile of papers reading the supplement. The TV ad began, Sohmer said, "'We apologize if your paper's late,' or words to that effect."

Might newspapers object to the suggestion of delayed delivery? "Not if they see the promo," Sohmer said. "It's not a serious thing, and it doesn't come off that way."

TV Guests Listed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here are the guests scheduled to be interviwed Sunday:

•Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program.

Pooch Ferry Big Success In London

LONDON (UPI) — So your poor dog is cooped up inside all day and can't get out? A British firm has the answer: a chauffeur-driven luxury car to ferry poochy to the park and around town in the comfort of a fur-lined back seat complete with silver water and food bowls.

All for a mere $11 an hour, plus a mileage fee.

The service, begun by Britannia Cars of Mayfair only two weeks ago, has proved such a booming success that more than 50 yapping clients already are signed up and the director plans to lay on a Rolls Royce in addition to the present "Doggy Daimler."

Fiona Kendall-Lane, the company's managing director and proprietor, has outfitted the back seat of the $66,000 silver Daimler with everything closest to a doggy's heart: silver food and water bowls, fur rugs and soft cushions, cuddly toys and taped music. At the moment, she says, Elvis Presley seems to be the canine favorite.

With a chauffeur in full-dress uniform and hat at the wheel, the dog usually is driven to Hyde Park for an outing, then often takes the same tour around London operated by the firm for its human clients. The exact destination depends on the owner's wishes.

Even an out of town vacation for the pooch is possible. One woman, reports Mrs. KendallLane, se t her poodle, Gloria, by limousine more than 200 miles to visit the dog's sister near the Scottish border.

Unfortunately, the two poodles failed to hit it off and began fighting on their first trip out together in the limo. Sadder but wiser, Gloria returned with a bill for just over $5,940, including tax, for her owner.

Littlefield Registers 28-14 Verdict Over Lobos

By RANDALL PERRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

LEVELLAND — It is not always wise to pick on somebody smaller than you.

Ask the Levelland Lobos, because they should know.

After the Lobos took a 14-3 lead early in the second quarter and played as though they were going to run away with the game, Littlefield exploded for three toughdowns in less than eight minutes to take a 21-14 lead on their way to the easy vistory.

The Littlefield attack was led by junior quarterback Eddie Gregory. The lanky left-hander who looks like a future Ken Stabler, the all-pro quarterback for the Oakland Raiders, completed 10 of 18 passes for 142 yards.

To complement his passing, five Wildcat running backs totaled 202 yards,led by 165-pound fullback Rex Freeman.

It was an explosive ballgame with the two teams totaling 647 yards of offense.

Levelland came right back to drive 68 yards for a touchdown. The eight-play drive was culminated on a 14-yard run by 185-pound fullback Gary Dockery. Keith Wade kicked the extra point.

Levelland scored again early in the second quarter on a 9-yard run by Dockery. The score was set up on a 54-yard reverse by split end John Alexander. Wade kicked the extra point.

Littlefield came right back on their next position and drove 67 yards in four plays with Freeman scoring on a 35-yard run. The extra point kick was no good.

Littlefield scored less than a minute later after Brad Burgess recovered a Lobo fumble at the Levelland 14. Three plays later, Freeman spun in from 4 yards out to put Littlefield ahead to stay 15-14.

Littlefield's third touchdown in less than eight minutes was set up on a 9-yard Levelland punt. Starting from their own 44, the Wildcats drove 56 yards in seven plays with halfback Ruben Torres scoring on a 17-yard run.

The pass for 2 points was incomplete, leaving the score 21-14 as the first half drew to a close.

The only score of the second half came on a 1-yard quarterback sneak by Gregory. The score came on the tenth play of a 48-yard drive.

Big plays in the drive were a 12-yard run by Michael Williams and another 12-yarder by Torres. Also, Gregory hit Burgess on a 17-yard pass during the drive.

The vistory allowed Littlefield to keep a gold-plated bear trap which the two teams have been fighting over for more than two decades. Littlefield won last year's contest 14-13.

The loss overshadowed two good performances by a pair of Lobo running backs. Todd Hester carried 11 times for 102 yards while Dockery rushed 21 for 75 yards.

The victory upped Littlefield's record to 2-0 while Levelland's record dropped to 1-1.

Texico Trips Trojans

TEXICO, N.M. (Special) — Texico tailback Herbert Gibbs rushed for 170 yards on 27 carries to lift the Wolverines over the Christ The King Trojans Friday night, 21-14.

Texico got on the board in the first quarter on a 40-yard pass from quarterback James Hadley to wide receiver Shawn Perkins. The Trojans answered with a 68-yard touchdown run by running back Steve David, who also kicked the extra point.

The Wolverine's Hadley scored in the second period on a 4-yard keeper and Bihbs, who hd phanoenal 224 yards rushing last week, glloped for 80 yards to score in the third quarter.

The Trojans got on the board once in the fourth period on a 12-yard romp by David, but it was one score short as the Wolverines got revenge for their loss to the Trojans last year.

David's statistics for the night included 15 carries for 122 yards.

Klondike Comeback Halts Eagles 16-6

KLONDIKE (Special) — O'Donnell's Eagles stretched a single, third-quarter TD into a lead which lasted until 9:05 remained in the game, but Klondike's Cougars finally overpowered the visitors with a pair of sustained TD drives and took a 16-6 win here Friday night.

Klondike struck with a field goal in the first quarter on a 29-yard field goal by James Martin, and Klondike led at the half, 3-0.

In the third quarter, O'Donnell mounted a 37-yard TD drive capped by a 4-yard run by halfback Gilbert Morales, for a 6-3 Eagle lead.

With 9:05 left in the game, Klondike capped a 74-yard drive with an 11-yard TD run by tailback Lonnie Ferguson, and, again, with just 28 seconds remaining in the game, Ferguson went across from 2 yards out after a 59-yard drive to seal the win for the Cougars.

Klondike, of District 3-B, now stands 2-0, O'Donnell, of 1-A, now stands 0-2. Martin, Ferguson, and end Randy Holcomb were defensive standouts for the winners.

Lubbock FCA To Hold Rally

The Lubbock chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes will hold a fall kickoff rally Sunday, from 2 until 4 p.m. at Chapman Field House.

All junior high school and high school huddles and sponsors are invited to attend.

Antelopes Win Rain Contest

Despite heavy rains during the first half and lighter precipitation in the second, both teams lost only one fumble.

The Antelopes' first score came with 8:23 left in the first quarter, when quarterback Tony Heath threw a 55-yard bomb to receiver Dean McGuire. The extra point kick by Willie Betts was good, and Abernathy lead 7-0.

Abernathy scored again with 11:57 left in the second quarter, when running back Ken Sanders scored on a 3-yard run. The kick for the extra point missed, and the score at halftime was 13-0.

The Antelopes' final score came with 1:42 left in the third quarter. Running back Roger Linsdsey scored on a 3-yard run and the kick by Betts was good.

Abernathy has a season record of 1-0-1, and Olton is 1-1.

Kickoff Return Sends Pampa To 28-7 Win

DUMAS (Special) — The Pampa Harvesters upped their young football season record to 2-0 Friday night by whipping the Dumas Demons 28-7.

Although the two teams were tied 7-7 at halftime, Pampa broke the game open when it ran the second-half kickoff all the way back for a touchdown.

Dumas' only touchdown came when quarterback Michael Mowrey threw a 25-yard scoring strike to wingback Jody Presser.

Pokes Given Nod To Upend Payton-Led Bears

The National Football League record for the most points allowed in a regular-season game is 72, by the New York Giants against Washington in 1966.

With that in mind, we present the defensive unit of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Last week it permitted the usually low-scoring Buffalo Bills to roll up 51 points. This week's opponent: the New England Patriots, who piled up 56 points last Sunday.

Several words come to mind — carnage, slaughter, massacre...

Oh, it may not be all that bad. Then again, you never know.

Last week's 8-5 mark put the record at 16-11, .593. This week:

NEW ENGLAND 38, CINCINNATI 17: Asking Steve Grogan to throw five more touchdown passes is a bit much. Four will do.

WASHINGTON 24, N.Y. GIANTS 16 (Monday night): Any similarity between this and the 72-41 thriller 13 years ago is purely coincidental.

N.Y. JETS 21, DETROIT 20: Maybe the Jets will have some luck facing a team without a starting quarterback. Maybe not.

TAMPA BAY 23, GREEN BAY 10: The Upset Special. The Pack hasn't been overwhelming and we still like the Bucs' defense.

PITTSBURGH 30, ST. LOUIS 13: The Steelers will stop Ottis Anderson and just about everything else the Cardinals have got.

CLEVELAND 28, BALTIMORE 17: Bert Jones may not mind being on the bench when he sees what the Browns' pass rush does to Greg Landry.

HOUSTON 28, KANSAS CITY 10: The Oilers will show Chiefs rookie quarterback Steve Fuller how tough life can be.

LOS ANGELES 28, SAN FRANCISCO 9: O.J. will get a warm reception, but the Rams will make it too hot for him.

NEW ORLEANS 24, PHILADELPHIA 21: It'd be the other way around with a healthy Ron Jaworski.

DALLAS 24, CHICAGO 14: Walter Payton will get the yards, but not the points.

SEATTLE 21, OAKLAND 17: It's time the Seahawks stopped coughing up the ball.

DENVER 13, ATLANTA 10: The Broncos' defense offsets the lack of offense.

Maverick Coach Hoping For Runaway

By United Press International

When Bud Elliott returned to coaching this year following his heart attack, doctors told him when he should avoid stress as much as possible.

"So now, if the game is all tied up," said Elliott, coach at Texas-Arlington, "I'll just turn my back or close my eyes."

Elliott's Mavericks figure to be in for some stress this tonight when they meet the North Texas State Mean Green.

But even though the Mavericks will be underdogs, Elliott's team has already shown it is a cut above some of his others. After all, the Mavericks won their opener last week against West Texas State.

It was the first time Texas-Arlington has won its season opener in the six years Elliott has been there.

"We trailed during the second half, but at no point in the ball game did our players show any doubt that we could win," Elliott said. "Maybe we have matured to the point of thinking of ourselves as a winner. And that is progress."

The Mean Green-Mavericks affair is one of the highlights on the Texas collegiate front this weekend, but in the Lone Star Conference the defending champion will be in action for the first time.

Angelo State, which a year ago won the NAIA national title, opens at home against Eastern New Mexico. Abilene Christian, winners of two straight, will go on the road to Northwestern Oklahoma in another key Lone Star game.

Elsewhere around the league S.F. Austin will visit Northwestern Louisiana. Texas A&I will be at home against East Centraol Oklahoma, Sam Houston will visit Nicholls State and Howard Payne hosts Texas Lutheran.

Fighting Irish, Michigan Renew Rivalry

By The Associated Press

It was Nov. 23, 1887, when a school in South Bend, Ind., which was founded in 1842 by a priest of a French missionary order known as the Congregation of the Holy Cross fielded its first football team.

The University of Notr Dame du Lac lost that game to the University of Michigan 8-0 and is next two contests, also against Michigan on April 20-21, 1888, produced two more setbacks by scores of 24-6 and 10-4.

Obviously, Michigan doesn't play a prominent part in Notre Dame's football legend. Michigan holds a 10-2 advantage, including last year's 28-14 triumph, and game No. 13 is on tap today when the sixth-ranked Michigan Wolverines entertain the ninth-ranked Fighting Irish at Ann Arbor.

Michigan is favored by a touchdown or so but the outlook isn't all bleak for Notre Dame. For one thing, the Irish have compiled a 20-1-2 record in opening games played away from home. That one loss came in 1956 at Southern Methodist, 19-13.

In addition, the 1979 campaign marks the 10th and 20th anniversaries of a pair of victories over Michigan for Dan Devine-coached teams. In 1959, Devine's Missouri team beat the Wolverines in Michigan Stadium 20-15 by scoring on the final play of the game. Ten years later, Devine coached Missouri to a 40-17 rout that marks Michigan's last regular-season loss toa team from outside the Big Ten Conference.

Today's game is Notre Dame's opener while Michigan played a week ago, thumping Northwestern 49-7. Besides the Irish, six other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty will get under way this weekend — third-ranked Oklahoma at home against Iowa, Rutgers at No. 7 Penn State, Utah State at No. 8 Nebraska, Wake Forest at No. 12 Georgia, Kansas at No. 16 Pittsburgh and Colorado State vs. No. 17 Arkansas in a night game at Little Rock.

Elsewhere, top-rated Southern California visits Oregon State, fifth-ranked Purdue is at UCLA under the lights, Oregon at No. 10 Michigan State, No. 11 Missouri at Illinois, Florida at No. 13 Houston at night, Utah at No. 14 Washington, No. 15 Ohio State at Minnesota, Arizona State at No. 18 Florida State in a night game at Tampa, Virginia at No. 19 North Carolina State and No. 20 Southern Methodist at Texas Christian for a night contest. Second-ranked Alabama and No. 4 Texas are idle.

Notre Dame is hopeful for a quicker getaway than last year, when the Irish lost to Missouri and Michigan and then had to struggle to beat Purdue, Michigan State and Pitt. The only problem is the schedule, which sends them against Michigan, Purdue and Michigan State, three of the Big Ten's top teams, right off the bat.

"It's time to play somebody," says Devine. "I'm getting edgy."

If the Irish had waited much longer they might not have any players left. Fullback Pete Buchanan was lost for the season with a broken ankle and a number of important defensive linemen haven't recovered from injuries. The front four will include three sophomores.

"Injuries have been a little bit of a problem for us on defense, but there's not much we can do about it," says Devine. "People like (cornerback Dave) Waymer and (strong safety Steve) Cichy haven't had much time on the field, but we're hopeful they'll be okay when the bell rings. It looks like we'll have six sophomores starting on defense alone, though, so it'll be a young group out there much of the time."

Just the opposite of Michigan's defense, which features a pair of superb tackles in Curtis Greer and Dale Keitz, linebacker Ron Simpkins, who needs eight tackles to become the Wolverines' all-time leader, and an experienced secondary.

"We did what we had to last week and now we have to defeat Notre Dame," says Coach Bo Schembechler. "There's nothing I can really add to this game that you don't already know."

Today marks the 1979 debut of Oklahoma halfback Billy Sims, last year's Heisman Trophy winner. Although the Sooners are heavily favored to beat Iowa, Coach Barry Switzer is steaming because the Hawkeyes wouldn't send him their film of last week's opener, a 30-26 loss to Indiana.

"They say we don't have anything to give them," says Switzer.
