Strauss Will Head Talks On Palestine

Carter Names Texan To Top Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Tuesday that administration trouble-shooter Robert S. Strauss will be his "working partner" representing the United States in continuing Mideast peace talks.

Carter told reporters that Strauss is being named an ambassador at large and will play "a special and unique role" as head of the American delegation at next month's scheduled Egyptian-Israeli talks on autonomy for the Palestinians.

Strauss, a 61-year-old Texan, has served the administration as a special counsel to the president on inflation and more recently as special trade ambassador. He has concluded negotiations on new international trade agreements for the United States.

Sadat, Begin Approve

Carter said he had consulted by telephone with both Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachim Begin, and that "their response was positive and enthusiastic" to Strauss' new assignment.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said "there is nobody that I know of who is better qualified" to guide the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations toward a settlement of the complex issues remaining unresolved after the signing of their peace treaty here March 26.

Carter said Strauss would carry much of the negotiating burden for the United States, thus easing the workload that the president himself and Vance have borne during the months of talks that led up to the peace treaty signing.

"Most Difficult" Task

Strauss said he suspects the task facing him will be "the most complex and the most difficult" of his adult life, but said it "offers the greatest rewards."

Strauss, who is Jewish, was asked by a reporter if his religion would be an obstacle.

"I never considered my own religious origin as an obstacle to anything," he snapped.

Strauss indicated that despite his involvement in the Palestinian talks next month, he would not assume full responsibilities for Mideast negotiations until late summer. Meanwhile, Strauss said, he will remain in Washington to seek congressional ratification of the new trade accords.

Negotiations between Egypt and Israel over the future status of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank are scheduled to begin next month, but Strauss said the talks initially will be between lower-level deputies.

"Lot Of Learning"

"I have a lot of learning to do," said Strauss, indicating that he will undergo an intense period of briefing before taking over fully as special Mideast ambassador.

Strauss' selection as "super-ambassador" came as a surprise. The list of candidates had been headed by former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton and McGeorge Bundy, former head of the National Security Council in the Kennedy administration.

He played a major role in the painfully detailed negotiations involving the United States and 22 other nations that resulted this month in a comprehensive agreement designed to liberalize world trade over the next decade.

Carter's decision to appoint a special Mideast negotiator was based on the deep U.S. involvement in that troubled area. Vance, Ambassador Alfred A. Atherton Jr., and others have made negotiating trips to the region.

The president himself took over the negotiations that resulted in the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty late last month. Carter has said he spent more time on the Middle East than any other foreign policy issue.

Atherton, who has been serving as a roving ambassador, is expected to be named to succeed Hermann Eilts as U.S. ambassador to Egypt.

Earlier Tuesday, the administration expressed regret that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait severed relations with Egypt, but described the two as moderate Arab states still interested in a peaceful settlement with Israel.

The administration issued a statement suggesting pointedly that only through negotiations, will the Arabs be able to win territory from Israel and establish Palestinian self-rule.

"We continue to hope the nations with which we are talking will come to accept what we believe is self-evident," said the statement read by State Department spokesman Hodding Carter.

"We are going to continue our dialogue with Saudi Arabia, with Kuwait, with other Arab nations, in an effort to fully explain the benefits of the approach which Egypt so far has had the courage to pursue," he said.

The diplomatic break followed a virtually unanimous decision by the Arab world to discredit Egypt for signing a peace treaty on March 26 with Israel. Saudi Arabia and Kuwait also voted to apply economic sanctions against Egypt but have not taken that step.

Rent-A-Goat Service Gets Rid Of Weeds

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Harold Norris admits it won't replace lawnmowers. But he says his rent-a-goat service is an excellent way to get at those hard-to-reach weeds.

"After a year of heavy rain, the canyons around San Diego have sprouted some dense underbrush," Norris said. "You can either cut the brush by hand and haul it out. Or you can send in a team of goats."

Norris, an accountant, launched the company last Friday by taking out a classified ad in a San Diego newspaper. He said he received more than 20 calls the first day.

"A pair of goats will eat up all the weeds in a 100-foot by 100-foot area in two weeks, and afterwards there's nothing to haul away because the goat droppings make great fertilizer," he said.

Most of his customers so far have been owners of steep canyon acreage who want to keep underbrush cut to reduce the fire hazard. Norris doesn't expect a rush on the service from suburbanites.

"Some people complain when you stake a goat on a front lawn," he said, "and then there's these zoning ordinances."

Norris said he fell into the goat business purely by accident two years ago. He had done some consulting work for a nonprofit organization trying to help Indians on reservations become more self-sufficient by raising goats on land not suitable for cattle.

The corporation folded, he said, and eventually paid part of the money it still owed him in goats — 100 of them.

Rental rates are $7.50 for one goat per week or $11 for two. "And you can rent to own," Norris added.

Training Program's Continuance Urged

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A FEDERALLY-funded job training program should continue under joint sponsorship in at least three South Plains counties, officials from Lubbock, Hale and Garza counties agreed Tuesday.

The officials also agreed the manpower consortium formed by the sponsoring governments should continue to contract with the South Plains Association of Governments to administer the Comprehensive Education and Training Act programs, despite controversy over SPAG's handling of the programs.

The county officials met at the Garden and Arts Center at the invitation of the City of Lubbock to discuss the future of the South Plains Manpower Consortium, which presently includes the City of Lubbock and Lubbock, Hale and Garza counties.

However, Tuesday's action by the county officials is contingent on action by the Lubbock City Council Thursday to continue the city's participation in the two-year-old consortium.

Juanita Forbes, director of the local CETA program, told those attending the meeting that they had the option of forming a consortium to continue as "prime sponsor" of the CETA program or allowing the Texas Department of Community Affairs to administer the program.

The TDCA would take a certain portion of the funds allocated for the counties to cover administrative costs, and contract with a local agency to provide the job training and placement, she said.

Monetary Advantages Cited

The monetary advantage to forming a consortium varies from county to county, Mrs. Forbes said, adding Garza County's CETA allocation jumped almost 50 percent when it joined the consortium.

The counties in a consortium receive a 10 percent bonus for banding together and save about 4.5 percent in administrative costs charged by the TDCA.

In addition to the economic advantages to continuing the consortium, Lubbock Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg said the consortium members would "have the local ability to set priorities on how money will be spent and the ability to monitor the funds a little more closely."

Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw said there is no way to know "what direction the program would go" if the TDCA began administering the program.

However, he said local officials "wouldn't be responsible for monitoring" the CETA program if it were administered by the TDCA and "wouldn't be worrying with it so much."

Counties Make Decisions

Hale and Garza County officials already had decided to continue in the consortium prior to Tuesday's meeting, and Lubbock County Commissioners made their decision during the discussion.

However, Lynn County Judge Melvin Burks said he didn't know yet what decision that county's commissioners will make regarding the consortium. Currently, the South Plains Community Action Agency in Levelland provides the CETA services to Lynn and other South Plains counties not in the consortium.

Although no decision was needed until May 15 on which agency should administer the CETA program during the coming year, the county representatives opted for SPAG, despite recent allegations of sloppy management of the program.

Some of those problems may be solved through a written contract between SPAG and the consortium defining SPAG's responsibilities, Blagg said.

Glenda Robinson, acting executive director of SPAG, also suggested defining the role of each consortium member in the contract.

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1978 makes federal assistance available for the operation of vocational and employment assistance programs to meet the employment needs of economically disadvantaged, unemployed or underemployed persons.

Little Rain Packed By Area Clouds

AFTERNOON thunderstorms that dropped scanty amounts of rain in isolated areas south and east of Lubbock Tuesday dissipated quickly, and forecasters don't expect them to return today.

By 6:30 p.m., storm clouds that had gathered about 2:30 p.m. near Childress, Matador and elsewhere in Dickens County had scattered, leaving behind little precipitation.

The National Weather Service forecasts no significant rainfall in the South Plains area through Thursday.

There will be an abundant amount of wind, however, as a low pressure trough that developed near New Mexico Tuesday drifts into the Lubbock vicinity. Accompanying it will be westerly winds blowing steadily from 15 to 25 mph, occasionally gusting higher. Wind warnings on area lakes are posted.

The same trough caused winds gusting to 40 mph in Amarillo Tuesday.

Much of West Texas suffered from strong winds Tuesday. At 3 p.m. (MST), west winds near the Guadalupe Pass were gusting to above 50 mph, prompting the National Weather Service to warn motorists to slow their vehicles and use extreme caution in the area.

Accompanying strong winds and sunny skies today in Lubbock will be an afternoon high in the mid 80s, slightly cooler than Tuesday's 90-degree reading. The slow cooling trend will continue tonight, with a low near 50, and a high Thursday of only 75 degrees.

The extended outlook is for clear to partly cloudy skies Friday through the weekend, with warm days and mild nights.

Highs will be in the 80s, with lows in the 50s.

The high temperature in the state was at Wink, which recorded 93 degrees, and the lowest high was 78 at Texarkana.

Co-Worker Takes Stand In Embezzlement Trial

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CLOVIS, N.M. — Testimony in the embezzlement trial of a former Texico, N.M., city clerk continued through late Tuesday.

A co-worker of Mrs. Clara Wiehl, accused of embezzling city funds, testified how his suspicions of the embezzlement were aroused when he found water bill receipts in a city hall waste basket.

Mrs. Wiehl, 49, of Texico is charged with 16 counts of embezzelment, 16 counts of failure to deposit public money and six counts of tampering with public records.

District Attorney Bill Bonem said Tuesday he would try to prove how Mrs. Wiehl accepted payments for water bills by customers but did not deposit the money in city accounts.

About $27,000 is reported missing in an audit taken of the city finances. Mrs. Wiehl, however, was charged only for the embezzlement of $5,000 to $6,000. That is the amount estimated missing during the period October 1977 to March 1978.

The five-woman, seven-man jury heard a reading Tuesday of testimony from Billy Lee Hammet, Texico water superintendent. Hammet could not appear in court because he is recuperating from back surgery.

Hammet's testimony told how he found 23 water bill receipts in a city hall waste basket in late February of 1978. The receipts stubs were wrapped in a city cash ledger sheet, used to record customer payments.

"I couldn't believe what I found," said Hammet in testimony taken Saturday. "Clara and I have been good friends for a long time, and this cut me to the bone."

Hammet said the stubs totalled $588 in water bill payments.

Hammet said he and another city hall worker checked the city's water bill payment record and found that entries for payment of bills had been made for the stubs that were thrown away.

Before Hammet found the missing stubs, he said Mrs. Wiehl had told him "there's no use looking in the trash because it would have already been thrown away."

After finding the missing stubs and the doctored cash ledger, Hammet went to the Texico mayor. "I told him there was something going on down here that needed checking," he said.

The embezzlement trial is being held in Ninth District Court in Clovis before Judge Ruben Nieves.

The district attorney said Tuesday that the large number of witnesses called by

Oil Company Profits Show Sharp Rises

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc., reporting an 81 percent increase in first quarter profits, paced a series of earnings reports showing oil company profits benefiting from sharply increased world petroleum prices. Texaco's chairman said the profit rise was "not excessive."

Texaco, the nation's third largest oil company, said net earnings in the quarter came to $307 million compared with $169.7 million in the first quarter of 1978.

Gulf Oil Co. said its earnings rose 61 percent to $241 million in the first three months of this year compared with last year. Shell Oil reported a 16 percent increase to $224 million and several other oil companies reported sharply higher earnings in the period.

Lower Profit Rise

Phillips Petroleum, which has limited foreign operations, reported a 4 percent increase in profits for the quarter.

The glowing earnings reports of most major companies, which included a 37 percent increase to $955 million by top-ranked Exxon earlier this week, come at a time when Congress is debating whether to limit oil company profits as domestic price regulations are relaxed gradually through 1981. The petroleum industry favors decontrol but is fighting the tax.

Major companies cite tight supplies of oil and gasoline, a problem aggravated by the revolution last winter in Iran, as the major reason for sharply higher earnings.

Tax Plan Criticized

Several major oil company executives, including Texaco's chairman Maurice F. Granville and his counterpart at Gulf, Jerry McAfee, were critical of President Carter's oil-tax proposal. They argued that it would provide unnecessary government regulation and could hamper energy development.

"These earnings were generated on a worldwide basis by a worldwide company Less than half the total, or about $137 million was earned in the United States," said Texaco's Granville, adding that the company's $307 million in profits "by any logical standard ... are not excessive."

Texaco also announced it was increasing its quarterly dividend for shareholders by 4 cents to 54 cents a share; Phillips Petroleum raised its dividend 5 cents a share to 35 cents and Gulf announced it would post a "modest" increase in its quarterly dividend of 47.5 cents a share but did not specify the amount.

In addition to higher prices for oil on world markets, several companies said earnings improvement looked especially good because the 1978 first quarter was one when earnings were depressed. Gulf said its first quarter last year showed was its lowest profit quarter in six years. Texaco, Gulf and others also said their quarterly earnings benefited from favorable currency exchange rates compared with the previous year when the dollar was lower against most major currencies than it is now.

Oil company reports issued Tuesday,

MRS. BIRCH BAYH

Cancer Claims Senator's Wife

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marvella Bayh, who turned her long personal battle against cancer into a national crusade, died Tuesday. She was 46.

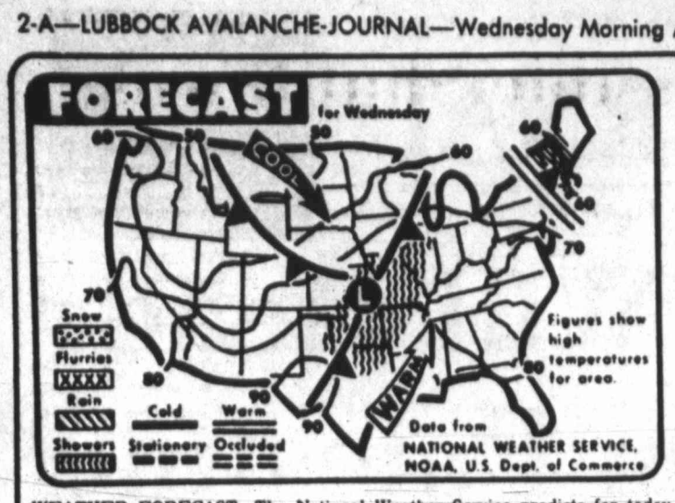

Mrs. Bayh, wife of Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh, died of inoperable cancer at the National Institutes of Health hospital in suburban Maryland in midafternoon.

Bayh was with her at the time of her death and left immediately for Charlottesville, Va., to inform their son, Evan, a law student at the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Bayh's final struggle against cancer began about a month ago. But she had been fighting the disease for eight years after having a breast removed. At the time, her husband was campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Since her mastectomy, Mrs. Bayh had devoted her time to campaigning for American Cancer Society projects, supporting anti-cigarette crusades and promoting school programs to teach girls to examine their breasts for signs of the disease.

Mrs. Bayh was an active partner in her husband's political career until her mastectomy eight years ago. A week after the operation, Bayh halted his campaign for the 1972 presidential nomination. When he ran again in 1976, Mrs. Bayh was not active in the campaign.

Weakening Dikes Threaten Additional Areas With Flooding

Clay dikes protecting the sister cities of Grand Forks, N.D., and East Grand Forks, Minn., turned mushy under heavy rain Tuesday and flood fighters routed more residents threatened by the Red River's worst flood this century.

"The situation is worsening," said Bob Norlund, a hydrologist for the National Weather Service as the river continued to surge through the area at about 20 feet above flood stage and just about a foot below the brim of the weakened makeshift levees.

More than 270 homes are already flooded in the area, some up to their eves, and the crest of the flood is not expected until Thursday when the river is expected to reach 49.5 feet, six inches higher than originally forecast. Flood stage is 28 feet.

Down south, the Neches River crested 7 feet above flood stage at Beaumont, Texas, flooding more houses in Jefferson County where 500 families had already abandoned their homes with water over the windows.

Barriers built with 50,000 sandbags prevented widespread damage and Beaumont police patrolled the Neches River and Hillabrandt Bayou by boat to head off looters.

In Mississipi, the Pearl River was lowly dropping at Columbia. Half the town's 7,500 residents had fled, and Civil Defense Director Jim Thornhill said, "I would think the crisis has passed."

But Thornhill said it may be several days before many of the residents, forced out when the river crested 10 feet above floodstage of Saturday, can return home.

"And there are villages to the south that we haven't been able to reach," he said.

Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., said 25,680 persons had been displaced from 6,000 flood-damaged homes in his state, including 4,000 in Jackson. The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration has interviewed 2,142 applicants in need of housing in Mississippi and another 2,773 seeking Small Business Administration loans.

Just north of Mobile, Ala., at Saraland, about 75 families were evacuated and another 200 were put on alert as Bayou Creek overflowed from floodwaters that last week routed 1,000 residents along the Tombigbee, Warrior and Alabama rivers farther upstate.

In the nation's capitol, in the meantime, Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, Columbia Mayor Robert Bourne and other officials were scheduled to testify at congressional hearings in support of lower interest rates for federal disaster loans. Finch earlier estimated damage from the Pearl River flood at up to $1 billion.

And two enviornmentalists Tuesday blamed federal works projects for contributing to the record floods in Mississippi and Alabama.

"It's time to find out whether the federal flood control agencies are in fact increasing flood losses," said Tom Barlow of the national Resources Defense Council.

Brent Backwelder of the Environmental Policy Center said two task forces have warned of the flood dangers posed by stream channeling and the construction of dams.

Toting up flood losses so far in the flat and sprawling farmlands of the Red River Valley, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers put the cost at more than $26 million.

"It's proving to be the most expensive flood in the Red River area in history," said Jim Braatz, a spokesman for the agency.

The north-flowing Red has spread miles wide into both Minnesota and North Dakota, damaging scores of farms and inundating a dozen small towns.

The Red Cross has opened eight emergency care shelters along a 200-mile stretch of the river and is feeding 6,000 dike workers and flood victims each day, according to Jackie McCarty, a spokeswoman for the organization.

The clay dikes were expected to save Grand Forks, population, 54,000, and East Grand Forks, population 8,400, but the muddy wall had started giving way in some areas, despite the efforts of about 700 flood fighters who worked through the night in the rain.

Hundreds of volunteers, many of whom had come from high schools in towns as far as 50 miles away, patrolled the dikes overnight, filled countless sandbags, built more levees and hauled more clay.

"We're still hanging on by an eyelash," said East Grand Forks Mayor Louis Murray. "We're very watchful, very tired, very hopeful."

About 270 homes had already been flooded in the two towns by Tuesday and 2,000 residents were isolated in the Point section of East Grand Forks, getting food and sandbags by helicopter and boat.

More residents were evacuated Tuesday from the Riverside section of Grand Forks where a primary dike was breached earlier and a secondary dirt dike was threatening to give way and pour water through about 70 homes.

In the English Coulie section of Grand Forks, water trapped behind the dikes was 3 feet to 6 feet deep over an area of five square miles.

With the river running at its highest and strongest since 1897, Flood coordinater Jerry Daily said that even it crests, "We're going to have to maintain this thing for five days, maybe longer, depending on how much rain we get."

HEARTLINE: I applied last year for SSI but was turned down because of my present income. I think I read recently that Social Security was going to be raising the amount of income you are allowed to have to meet qualifications for SSI. Has the income level been raised yet? — J.G.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare published regulations on March 23, 1979 that raise the income levels used in deciding whether to consider a person's work substantial, gainful activity for determining eligibility for Social Seourity and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability benefits.

To be considered disabled and eligible for Social Security and SSI disability benefits, a person must have a physical or mental impairment so severe as to prevent him from doing any substantial, gainful work for at least 12 months.

The increased guideline amounts are designed to bring substantial, gainful activity guidelines more in line with the higher earnings of workers in the national economy, to guard against discouraging impaired persons from seeking rehabilitation and to adjust for the impact of inflation on our lowest paid workers, said HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Effective with the March 23 publication of the regulation in the Federal Register, persons earning more than $260 a month for calendar year 1978 or more than $280 a month for 1979 and thereafter ordinarily will be considered to be engaged in substantial, gainful activity. Similarly, an employee earning less than $170 a month for 1978 or less than $180 a month later on will usually be considered not to be engaged in substantial, gainful activity. However, other factors that may affect whether work activity at these income levels is substantial, gainful activity also will be considered.

In cases where a person's monthly earnings from work activity average between the upper and lower levels inclusively, other circumstances concerning the person's work and medical restrictions will be evaluated together with the amount of earnings to determine whether he or she is engaged in substantial, gainful activity.

Under previous guidelines, a person earning more than $240 a month usually was considered to be engaged in substantial, gainful activity. A person earning less than $160 a month usually was considered not to be engaged in substantial, gainful activity.

Also effective at this time, disability claims involving earnings for calendar years 1978 and 1979 will be considered on the basis of the increased guideline amounts. All disability claims that previously had been denied or terminated when the former guideline amounts were applied to earnings in 1978 and 1979 will be reevaluated under the increased guideline amounts for 1978 and 1979.

HEARTLINE: What is the best way to apply for a Railroad Retirement disability annuity? — G.N.

The best way for a person to apply for a disability annuity is to visit the nearest office of the U.S. Railroad Retirement Board. The personnel there will assist with the application and advise as to how to obtain medical records and any other necessary documents or records.

If a person cannot visit a board office personally or if there is not a board office near his home, he should call or write the closest board office for information and assistance. Itinerant service is available in outlying areas.

Wichita Falls Extends Price Ceilings

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The Wichita Falls City Council, sitting in special session Tuesday, extended its disaster emergency ordinances for two weeks and its price ceilings for three weeks in further attempts to recover from a tornado that caused widespread damage.

The extension of the price ceiling to May 11 means that certain retail goods, such as gasoline and food items, cannot be sold for more than the price on April 10, when the tornado hit.

The other emergency ordinances, except for the curfew, were extended until May 2.

No part of the city remains under any type of disaster-related curfew restriction.

The council also passed emergency ordinances allowing mobile homes for displaced persons to be located in vacant lots outside the damaged area of town.

In an attempt to keep former residential areas from becoming commercialized, councilmen authorized its legal staff to file lawsuits enforcing existing land use restrictions. This was done because the city has no formal zoning or land use ordinances.

The emergency measures also dealt with issuance of building permits, allowing electrical contractors licensed in other cities to work without being licensed by Wichita Falls.

The council will allow mobile homes to be temporarily placed on existing vacant lots within the city as well as on lots where a permanent building exists, provided a 90-day renwable perit is obtained, utilities are availale to the lot, and all applicable building code requirements of the city are met.

Those 90-day renewable permits are good for one year.

The council also passed resolutions concerning long-range planning for the entire city as it redevelops the affected area.

Neches River Crests 4 Feet Above Flood Stage

By The Associated Press

The Neches River crested at 11.2 feet Tuesday, slightly more than 7 feet above flood stage, while residents along the waterway applauded sandbagging efforts to keep rising waters out of their homes.

L.D. Farrow, Jefferson County civil defense supervisor, said homeowners along the Neches used about 78,500 sandbags to try to hold back the swift, swirling waters.

"For the most part, they were successful," Farrow said. "Of course, there were those who lived very close to it who knew those attempts would be useless."

Meanwhile, major flooding from the Pine Island Bayou is expected to continue for several days from Sour Lake to the confluence of the Neches near Beaumont and in the Romaya and Moss Bluff areas of North Liberty.

C.L. "Buck" Eckols, Liberty County sheriff, said that although the flood waters have leveled off and have begun to recede, it will be at least two to three days before the 150 residents affected by the raging waters can return to their homes. He said he has received reports of as much as six feet of water and mud in many homes.

"But you got to understand that these people expected this," Eckols said. "They knew the river was rising and when it was expected to crest. And since most of them own their own boats, they knew when it was time to get out."

However, looters looking for easy profit have been plaguing the flooded areas.

"The problem isn't too bad, and we've had only a few reports of looters in the flooded areas," said Beaumont police spokesman C.W. Gandy. "But then, we won't know who much damage was actually done until everyone goes back to their homes."

In order to prevent the situation from getting out of hand, police are patrolling the Hillabrandt Bayou and Neches River in boats.

No rain has been forecast, and water levels in feeder creeks and streams in Hardin, Liberty and Jefferson counties are slowly inching back into their banks.

Throughout the remainder of the state, sunny skies prevailed with some high cloudiness in portions of Northwest, North Central and Southwest Texas.

Temperatures climbed into the upper 70s and lower 80s, and winds were light and variable, with speeds ranging from 10 to 15 miles an hour.

Man Shoots Girlfriend, Self

DALLAS (AP) — A 25-year-old Dallas man shot and killed his 16-year-old girlfriend, barricaded himself inside his apartment and then killed himself early Tuesday, police said.

The incident began around 3 a.m. when officers patrolling the West Side neighborhood heard gunshots. Seconds later, Officer Jim Little and his partner found a body, later identified as Sharon Mitchell, on the porch of the apartment, a bullet wound in her back.

Little said he and his partner then took cover as more shots came from inside the apartment. Nearby apartments were evacuated, and police surrounded the building to talk to the barricaded man. He never replied.

About two hours later, tactical officers kicked in the front door and found Aaron Smith dead in an upstairs bedroom, apparently from a single gunshot wound to the head.

In a separate incident earlier this week in suburban Irving, David Allen Edgar escorted his estranged wife, Peggy, out of the church where they met and were married last January, shot her to death and then killed himself.

Police said the shooting occurred Sunday morning while Mrs. Edgar was attending services with her 4-year-old son from a previous marriage.

"According to my understanding, she (Mrs. Edgar) had been at the alter at special prayer time," said David Brauchler, pastor of the Love of God Church . "She went back to her seat and that's when she went outside with him."

Witnesses told police the couple, who were separated, began to struggle and Mrs. Edgar ran into the women's restroom. Edgar apparently then fired several shots through the door, then opened it and fired at his 25-year-old estranged wife, hitting her in the right arm and chest.

He then put the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger, officers said.

Nuclear Reactor Plants Seek To Head Off Possible Shutdowns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The operators of nuclear reactors with similar design features to the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor sought Tuesday to head off a possible shutdown of their facilities by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Executives from four utilities and from the Babcock Wilcox engineering firm argued before the NRC staff that plants which use Babcock and Wilcox reactors can be operated safely.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is expected to decide today whether to order temporary shutdown of eight reactor units which use the Babcock and Wilcox equipment. Four of the units already are out of service for refueling or safety checks.

If a shutdown is ordered, the hardest hit will be the Duke Power Co., whose three reactors provide electricity for much of South Carolina and North Carolina.

Warren Owen, a senior vice president of Duke Power, said in an interview that a shutdown would cause sporadic blackouts in his service area during the peak-demand month of August.

He said his company's three Oconee nuclear facilities provide 60 percent of the electric power in South Carolina and 40 percent of Duke Power's total output.

The operators of the Davis-Besse plant in Ohio, the Rancho Seco plant in California and Arkansas Unit One in Arkansas urged the NRC staff against recommending a shutdwn.

Two key NRC staff members — Roger Mattson, director of the division of system safety, and Edson Case, deputy director of nuclear reactor regulation — told NRC commissioners Monday that a temporary closing of the Babcock Wilcox plants is advisable.

However, Case's superior, Harold Denton, who supervised emergency operations at Three Mile Island, suggested further discussions with the utilities and reactor manufacturer, prompting Tuesday's day-long meeting.

The NRC staff, including Denton, expressed concern Tuesday that the Babcock Wilcox-equiped plants continue to have a number of design features which could make them susceptible to accidents such as the one at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg, Pa.

Denton, who will present the recommendation whether to order a shutdown, said he was "not very comfortable" with the arguments made by utilities. He said, however, he had not decided on what recommendation will be made.

Case and Mattson questioned Duke Power Co. representatives sharply on what preparations they have made in case of problems with auxiliary cooling systems in their plants.

Denton at one point said "in light of the financial concern, we thought we would have heard more intermediate solutions" short of shutting down the plants.

Besides the three South Carolina units, the only other Babcock Wilcox plant now operating is the Rancho Seco reactor near Sacramento. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. earlier asked that the facility be temporarily closed but its operators contend a shutdown is unnecessary.

Fraudulent Refund Claims Working

How much money is lost through the fraud is unknown, said Richard L. Fogel of the General Accounting Office, the auditing and investigative arm of Congress. But the total is estimated in the millions of dollars a year.

In one case, the Justice Department is seeking the extradition of a 40-year-old West German national from Switzerland on charges of defrauding the U.S. government of $500,000 through refunds to 60 fictitious persons.

In testimony before the House Government Operations subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs, Fogel said the so-called "multiple filers" come from all walks of life.

About 75 percent are members of the general public, he said, while prisoners and their accomplices account for 19 percent, tax return preparers, 5 percent, and former IRS employees, 1 percent.

"The most remarkable characteristic of a multiple filer is that he or she generally is not particularly remarkable," said Fogel. "Almost anyone — automobile dealers, waitresses, salsmen, laborers, machinists, students — can become a multiple filer.

"All it takes is minimal knowledge of how to prepare a tax return, access to certain forms which for the most part are readily available to the public and the nerve to follow through on a scheme aimed at defrauding the government."

The keys to carrying out such a tax scheme are obtaining a false Social Security number and filing of fake W-2 forms, Fogel said.

He said multiple filers either use fictitious names to obtain Social Security numbers from the government, take the Social Security numbers of persons, such as derelicts or students, who are not likely to file their own returns, or use the numbers of dead people.

The tax fraud scheme also requires obtaining blank W-2 forms, putting down amounts of money earned and withheld, and including an employer identification number. Fraudulent filers normally use a valid company's number, apply for their own or make one up, Fogel said.

The IRS began cracking down on such schemes in 1977 through the creation of a Questionable Refund Program. The program attempts to identify phony tax returns by matching fraudulent W-2 forms with ones filed by employers and checking for unusual characteristics in phony tax returns.

However, Fogel said, because the IRS must deal with millions of tax returns, often the matching and other investigative procedures occur months after the return is filed, the refund paid. Because of this, recovery of government money is extremely difficult, he said.

Fogel also cited other problems in the IRS program, including lack of coordination with other federal agencies such as the Social Security Administration and the Postal Service.

The IRS also finds it difficult to prosecute multiple filers even when they're detected bcause of problems in determining their real identity, he said.

Fogel said that of 512 questionable refund schemes identified in 1978, 287 were rejected by the IRS' criminal division.

Red Official Chastised By Chinese Newspaper

PEKING (AP) — A high ranking mlitary adviser has set a poor example by refusing for seven years to give up a 33-rom estate waned by the government for other uses, China's leading newspaper reports.

The People's Daily said Zheng Xuyu (Cheng Hsu-yu), an adviser in the Hebei (Hopei) province military district, "... created a very poor influence on the party's prestige."

The newspaper said Zheng vacated the dwelling, built for famed Peking opera actor Hao Shou-chen, last December, but has failed to hand over the key.

HSCH Bill Solution Past Due

BILLING AND COLLECTION problems are to be expected in the early phases of a business operation as large and complex as the Health Sciences Center Hospital but, clearly, it is time that the Hospital District got its act together.

A $6 million backlog of uncollected bills 15 months after it opened its doors represents a serious, if not alarming, state of affairs for the Lubbock County Hospital District's Board of Managers.

HSCH administrators and board members say they are getting the problems solved —and, undoubtedly, they are diligent in their efforts—but the taxpayers won't rest easy until greater progress is reported.

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand, from the layman's point of view, why it should have taken until October to get provisionally certified to bill Blue Cross for patient services —or why, once that certification was received, the backlog of uncollected bills still was growing six months later.

Other insurance carriers indicated to patients whom Avalanche-Journal reporters contacted that they, too, never received the hospital's bills.

Patients themselves have been confused by uncoordinated billings received from the hospital and the companion Texas Tech-run clinic and laboratory, sometimes months after their discharge.

Also helping complicate the difficulties in sorting out the billing situation is the matter of medical indigency requirements.

Indigency guidelines have been changed at least once but the bulk of the unpaid bills are said to be among patients who don't qualify for tax-paid hospitalization but who can't or won't pay.

Some of these may be under the mistaken notion that they are entitled to "free" treatment at the county-owned teaching hospital. If so, the HSCH business office, again, has not done its job in handling admissions and collections in a businesslike manner.

"WE'RE ATTEMPTING to provide what we think is a reasonable allowance for doubtful accounts that may or may not be collectible," says C. Wayne Smith, chairman of the board's finance committee.

"In the meantime, we are doing everything that can be done to attempt to collect every account that's due the hospital," Smith adds. "Any time you open a new facility, you build accounts receivable to some sort of level. Our problem at the moment is we don't know what that level is."

That's as disturbing to the rest of us as it is to the unpaid Board members who devote their time to hospital district business. If the problems aren't satisfactorily resolved very soon, everybody's patience is certain to wear thin.

AN EDITORIAL:

Unequal Justice Under Islam

THE EXECUTION of political leaders in Iran and Pakistan by fundamentalist Islamic regimes deepens Western anxieties about the resurgence of Islam in a region of great strategic importance.

The Western tradition of tolerating a loyal opposition is alien to nearly all non-Western cultures, and violent "justice" has been characteristic of revolutionary upheavals.

It would be unrealistic to view this month's hanging of former Pakistani Prime Minister Bhutto or the firing-squad execution of former Iranian Prime Minister Hoveida as peculiarly Islamic, however.

WHILE THEY held power, Bhutto's government and the regime under which Hoveida served, did not establish appealing patterns of Western justice. But they were closely identified with other aspects of Western culture—the pursuit of material progress and a freer life-style.

Because God revealed the laws of the good society to Mohammed in the seventh century, according to the teachings of Islam, the idea of progressive improvement of the laws makes little sense to devout Moslems.

While the religious character of Islamic law makes innovation akin to blasphemy, it has proved flexible enough to survive centuries of change. But this is a different kind of flexibility from that of the laws of the West.

The rapid spread of Islam in its formative years forced an accommodation between its laws and the customs of different cultures ranging from Central Asia to Spain.

The accommodation was achieved by a tolerance of a gap between theory and practice, between the immutable principles of Islam and the surviving of pre-Islamic cultures, between God's perfect laws and compassion for His imperfect creatures.

IT WAS easier for Moslems to make such an accommodation with the traditions of the conquered than with those of the conquering West of modern times.

The victories of Western imperialism, the achievements of Western economies, the triumphs of Western science and the seductions of Western liberty left those who had found security in God's "final revelation" profoundly insecure.

Such a sense of insecurity makes it difficult to tolerate, let alone pursue, change. And it cuts off Moslems not only from the creative potentials of Islamic civilization which often in the past challenged legalistic fundamentalism, but from the spiritual sources of Western justice as well.

M. STANTON EVANS:

D.C. Doesn't Deserve More Representation

WASHINGTON—Debate about the proposed amendment to give the District of Columbia voting representation in the U.S. House and Senate is often an emotional business, generating more heat than light.

A welcome exception to this rule is a scholarly survey by Prof. Jules Gerard of the Washington University Law School in St. Louis.

Though Prof. Gerard is an opponent of the D.C. amendment that is currently making the rounds, he supports congressional representation for the District, and makes a cogent case for altering its present status in political limbo.

Also, he is scrupulous in weighing all the arguments, pro and con, concerning the amendment.

Gerard's monograph, "The Proposed Washington, D.C., Amendment," is published by the Missouri Council for Economic Development. Its basic argument is two-fold.

FIRST, THAT by treating the city of Washington "as though it were a state"—and thereby giving the District two U.S. senators—the proposed amendment creates a political hybrid that would be unworkable and unfair.

Second, that the non-state state thereby established would be surrounded with constitutional confusions.

On the first point, Gerard observes that Washington is no more entitled to two U.S. senators than any other American city, and less entitled than most. It is, for one thing, less populous than many other urban centers, and has been losing population in recent years.

Equally important, it not only lacks the balance of urban and rural interests that marks the states, it is even less balanced in terms of economic, political, and cultural interests than other major U.S. cities.

THE REASON for this imbalance, of course, is that Washington is a company town—and the company is the Federal government. Fully one-third of the D.C. work force is employed by Uncle Sam, and a large proportion otherwise is involved in government-related activity.

Forty-three percent of the total D.C. budget is supplied by the Federal government. Also, Washington receives a much larger outlay of Federal money per dollar of taxes paid ($7.67) than any state (Alaska, the highest-ranking state, gets only $2.44).

As a result of all these factors, Gerard contends, Washington is a Federal dependency, pure and simple, and two U.S. senators elected from the city would be in the posture of "representing the Federal government to the Federal government."

HE SEES NO reason to confer such power on any city, and especially sees no reason to confer it on a city so lopsided in socioeconomic terms as the Federal capital.

Also generating problems, Gerard contends, is the peculiar status of the District under other terms of the amendment.

For instance, the amendment would permit the District to participate in the process by which amendments to the Constitution are ratified—a function performed by the legislatures of the several states.

But D.C. has no state legislature—only a 13-member city council. Will a seven-member majority of the city council be casting votes in behalf of (possibly decisive) ratifications of constitutional amendments?

For that matter, the status of D.C. local government itself is murky. The amendment says the rights and power of the non-state state "shall be by the people," as "provided by the Congress."

THIS MIGHT possibly mean Congress could veto an amendment ratified by the city council—or it might not. Nor is it clear how Washington would cast its vote for President, since the 23rd amendment which presently governs in such matters would be repealed.

All these confusions, Gerard concludes, suggest the D.C. amendment should not be passed.

He argues that the District should have a voting representative in the lower chamber, and that for purposes of voting for the Senate should cast its ballots with the state of Maryland (whose property it originally was).

This formula has its own complexities, but far fewer than those created by the D.C. amendment.

GEORGE F. WILL:

The Prints Of Peace

WASHINGTON—For several decades, since the Soviet Union lost its allure, many "progressives" have admired Asian communism—from a safe distance, of course. For such people, 1979 is becoming tiresome.

In January, Vietnam attacked Cambodia: War really is hell for a "progressive" when neither side can be called fascists. Cambodia's slaughtering Communists were an embarrassment, but so, too, was Vietnam's attack.

It refuted the myth of "peaceloving" Hanoi, a myth concocted to serve the supreme myth: that Hanoi's war of aggression against South Vietnam was merely a welling-up of nationalist ardor.

Then China, which "progressives" have said "has so much to teach us," attacked Vietnam, destroying villages to "teach them a lesson."

And in Paris, Jean Lacouture, a prolific journalist revered by Hanoi's Western friends, denounced himself and others for having been "vehicles and intermediaries for a lying and criminal propaganda...spokesmen for tyranny in the name of liberty."

Lacouture confessed "shame for having contributed...to the installation of one of the most oppressive regimes (Cambodia's) history has known."

And "with regard to Vietnam, my behavior was sometimes more that of a militant than of a journalist. I dissimulated certain defects of (North) Vietnam at war against the Americans...

"I believed it was not opportune to expose the Stalinist nature of the (North) Vietnamese regime."

MICHAEL LEDEEN, writing in Commentary, says Lacouture's recantation is part of "the debate among French intellectuals over the nature of communism—a debate which has now reached historic proportions."

In France, philosophy, like wine, matures slowly, and some French philosophers, having read Solzhenitsyn, have concluded (better late than never) that the Gulag is the essence, not an accident, of communism.

It is quite French, this lighting upon the obvious with a proud sense of original discovery, but it is nonetheless welcome, especially because the debate is spilling into Italy.

The debate there is helped along by an irony: As an Italian commentator has noted, Rome has a Communist mayor who knows nothing about real communism, and a pope who knows everything about it.

ALTHOUGH IT deals admiringly with some martial virtues (such as bravery, loyalty, and disciplined ferocity), it is in no way a celebration of war or of America's Vietnam involvement.

Nevertheless, it has been denounced by those among Hanoi's friends who cling to the old cause as if clinging to life.

They detest the movie's stirring love of country, and even more its portrayal of Vietnamese Communists as brutal, especially in the treatment of prisoners.

That their many brutalities did not include one shown in the movie—forcing prisoners to play Russian roulette—is not the principal point of controversy.

Those who denounce the movie as "reactionary" reveal how much their opposition to American policy was rooted in anti-Americanism and a romantic assessment of Asian communism.

Captain John McCain of the U.S. Navy has not seen the movie. He saw too much of the reality.

HE WAS a POW for nearly six years, and experienced some of the "defects" of the North Vietnamese that the likes of Lacouture thought it would be "inopportune" to expose.

One day his captors told him he would be taken to meet someone identified only as "an American actress who is for peace."

He refused to see the actress, in part, he says, because he did not expect her to be the sort of person who would go home and tell the truth.

He also refused because of the experience of a POW who had agreed to meet with some other Americans in the "peace" movement. The "peace" people commanded the POW to confess war crimes.

FOR REFUSING to see the actress, McCain was confined for four summer months in an unventilated cubicle five feet long and two feet wide, and he was beaten and starved.

Other prisoners suffering similar abuse also were made to suffer Jane Fonda's voice:

The North Vietnamese piped into the cells recordings in which she urged prisoners to actively oppose U.S. policy, and told the world how well the prisoners were being treated.

McCain recounts this without passion. He is a professional who understands that he must know the enemy, but not take things personally.

ANDREW TULLY:

Huff In A Puff

WASHINGTON—Most non-smokers are nice people. Some are pains in the neck. In the latter category is Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, a non-smoking member of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Mrs. Bailey also is an example of the belief among certain federal government bigshots that they belong to a mandarin class whose members are quite a bit more equal than other Americans.

On March 29, Mrs. Bailey's connecting plane for a flight from Atlanta to Washington arrived late. Consequently, passengers for the Washington-bound Eastern Airlines plane already had started to board.

She asked for a seat in the non-smoking section. An Eastern spokesman says she reported that she was told her seat would be in that section.

IN ANY case, the non-smoking section already was filled. Mrs. Bailey made a fuss. She "insisted" she had an absolute right to a seat in that section. The stewardess replied she had no such right if there were no non-smoking seats available.

Mrs. Bailey took a seat in the smoking section, but she then informed te stewardess that she was "a government official who is, in part, responsible for the regulation of these rules."

Back in Washington, Mrs. Bailey filed a formal complaint with the CAB's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

THE BAILEY furor was one of those things bound to happen when Big Brother government indulges in over-regulation.

The non-smoking section was filled. Mrs. Bailey offered Eastern two choices: Throw somebody out of the non-smoking area, or order smokers to stop smoking so she could sit there in exclusive comfort.

The ridiculous kicker is this: Last January the CAB adopted rules requiring airlines to provide a no-smoking seat for any passenger who requested one.

Previously, a certain number of seats was set aside for non-smokers; when the seats were filled, a non-smoker had to take a seat among the tobacco fumes.

The earlier rule made sense, which probably is why the CAB altered its decree to guarantee a no-smoking seat for a non-smoker.

NOBODY IN THE bureaucracy gave a thought to what would happen if a plane was full except for a smoking-section seat.

Ted Lopatkowiez, the Eastern spokesman, admitted he didn't know the answer. That's the only plus in the whole fouled-up mess—a crumb of bureaucratic honesty.

The fact is, there isn't any answer. What the CAB did was trust to luck that such an occasion wouldn't arise.

Meanwhile, somebody—like maybe Jimmy Carter—should remind Mrs. Bailey that government officials do not hold office by divine right.

JAY HARRIS:

No More Shmoos

IN ALL THE conflict over what ails the nation and what to do about it, monetary and fiscal affairs may head the list as to what confuses most people the most.

It is true that more persons than ever before have come to understanding the workings of the money market, what is happening in the Spend, Spend, Spend policies of the Federal bureaucracy and what dependence on foreign oil and the deficit in the balance of payments means.

But, past that point, a huge segment of Americans still don't seem to realize that they also have a key role to play in what sort of nation we have from an economic standpoint.

Recently, we came across an item by one Dr. David I. Meiselman, a professor of economics and director of the Northern Virginia Graduate Economics program at Virginia Poly. His remarks in Public Commentary follow:

"MANY OF YOU will remember the Shmoo, Al Capp's marvelous fictional character in his Li'l Abner comic strip.

"If you recall, the Shmoo was the pear-shaped, friendly, playful and cheery animal who was lots of fun, required no care or feed, and multiplied rapidly. When eaten, the Shmoo tasted like fried chicken, everybody's favorite food in Dogpatch.

"Without complaint or question, the Shmoo happily sacrificed himself for the pleasure and benefit of his owners, automatically supplying an abundance of fun and food for all.

"Until recent years, the American economy seemed like the Shmoo, happily producing fun and food for all, or almost all, including a wide diversity of favorite foods, not merely fried chicken alone.

"IN ONE view, the Shmoo was fact, not fiction or fantasy, because following the example of the Shmoo there could easily be something for nothing for everybody if only we willed, legislated, regulated or ordered it, and provided ourselves with enough printing press money to cover government and private deficits.

"The only scarcity was of goodwill and non-polluting, ecologically pure beauty.

"The alternative view, summarized by the aphorism, 'There is no such thing as a free lunch,' was generally dismissed by the best and the brightest as an outmoded relic of a defunct and dismal economics chanted only by a few small-minded, ungenerous and misguided fossils of an early economic ice age.

"Pointing to the long record of virtually uninterrupted and apparently self-generating economic growth, some 'experts' mindlessly extrapolated the past, believing that, like the Shmoo, the American economy would readily and costlessly sacrifice itself to any demands on it, including profound changes in its fundamental character.

"OTHERS WERE mindful of the consequences of altering the basic structure of the American economy.

"But they, believing that more is less, relished the prospect of achieving the goal of no-growth by altogether stopping economic progress, especially if control of the process was in their hands, and if the costs of economic stagnation were borne by others.

"The proponents of zero growth have already achieved their goal. For the first time in American history, productivity has stopped rising. The Shmoo is dead.

"Typically, productivity rises more rapidly than usual when employment surges during business cycle expansions, but in the expansion year of 1978 the conventionally measured increase in output per hour of work in private business was a mere 0.8 percent.

"TO BE SURE, total output continues to increase, but only because more people are working.

"Consumption also continues to rise, but the savings rate is falling as is the fraction of our output devoted to plant, equipment and technology that underpin production and growth.

"Economists of diverse persuasions, from Karl Marx to Milton Friedman, differ on many matters but all agree that labor productivity depends on the amount of capital per worker. (Only in the world of the Shmoo can there be consumption without production.)

"More than any other tax system in the industrial world, the American tax system imposes differentially high taxes on using income for saving and capital formation rather than consumption.

"The fundamental bias against capital formation in our tax system results from the multiple taxation of income which is saved and invested. Current income devoted to savings is subject to multiple taxation because taxes must also be paid on the interest, dividends, capital gains and the like that result from saving and investing.

"THE USE of income for savings is thereby taxed at substantially higher rates than the use of income for consumption. People naturally respond by saving and investing less.

"Inflation increases the tax bite on savings and capital and makes a bad situation worse. The overzealous, often mindless and incessantly widening web of government regulation that contemplates only benefits, with little or no account or concern for costs, as well as ever-increasing government expenditures...have driven even more resources out of capital formation and towards current consumption.

"The result is that, for the last generation, of all the industrialized countries in the world, the U.S. has devoted the smallest fraction of its output to capital formation. Consequently, U.S. output per worker has increased less than in any other advanced economy...

"We have already essentially 'achieved' zero growth. Unless we drastically alter our course and change economic policies, we will soon begin to go backwards. There will be no Shmoo to feed us unless we take proper care of ourselves. It won't be much fun either."

House Approves Enlarged Budget Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A $20.3 billion state budget bill that vastly exceeds Gov. Bill Clements' recommendations won final House approval Tuesday but only after a fight over abortion.

The bill passed, 87-51, with all but one of the 23 House Republicans voting against it.

Next stop is the Senate, where that chamber's version of the 1980-81 general appropriation bill has yet to reach the floor.

The final bill to fund government operations through Aug. 31, 1981, will be written by a House-Senate conference committee and submitted to each chamber for an up or down vote.

Clements will get the final shot at the bill with his veto pencil. The House version of the appropriations bill tops his budget recommendation by some $500 million.

"There are many steps left in the appropriations process before a final budget bill is agreed on. I am disappointed that the House did not provide for more tax relief, but I am still hopeful tha final conference committee report will be more realistic and will leave on the table sufficient funds for additional tax reduction in the range that I have recommended," the governor said in a statement.

He has recommended that lawmakers leave $1 billion unspent and return it to the taxpayers through the Foundation School Program.

The House bill leaves $261 million available for tax cuts, school finance or other expenditures in 1980-81.

Also "on the table" is another $269 million, but legislative leaders have earmarked it to avoid a scheduled rise in local expenditures and taxes for the Foundation School Program.

Before the final vote, Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, tried to add a rider prohibiting expenditure of state money for abortions for women on welfare.

Needing a two-thirds vote, the rider failed, 79-43, with 12 present but not voting.

Monday night, a rider prohibiting expenditure of either state or federal funds for welfare abortions was removed by a point of order. It was held to be an unconstitutional attempt to pass a general law limiting the use of federal money.

Smothers conceded his proposed rider would leave the Texas Department of Human Resources free to spend federal money on abortions within limits set out by the so-called Hyde Amendment.

"We can't control the federal government but we can control state dollars. ... There are many who feel abortion is murder. I happen to be one who falls in that category," said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, a supporter of Smothers' amendment.

Opponents said Smothers' amendment would interfere with abortions to save the lives of expectant mothers or for victims of rape. The Hyde Amendment, however, allows the use of federal funds for abortions for those purposes.

The appropriations bill includes funds to give all teachers a 7 percent annual cost of living raise at a cost of $420 million.

Also in the bill are funds to raise rank-and-file state employees by 7 percent a year, but only on their first $20,000 of salary.

State college and university faculty and staff would get 5.1 percent annual pay raises.

In other legislative action, senators refused to debate a bill that would extend bilingual education to the fourth and fifth grades. Local districts must provide bilingual instruction in kindergarten and the first three grades if 20 students within a grade level need it.

Sen. Carlos Truan needed 21 votes to bring up his bill but fell short, 19-12. Truan, D-Corpus Christi, says he will try to switch two votes and ask for reconsideration soon.

The Senate also backed away from a controversial rule that prevents high school athletes from attending private football and basketball camps in the summer. Sen. Ron Clower, D-Clower, is sponsoring a bill to abolish the rule of the University Interscholastic League.

Clower also needed a two-thirds vote to debate his measure, but received 16-14 support.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill the would add public members to the Texas Real Estate Commission. Under the sunset act, the commission will cease functioning this year unless renewed by the Legislature.

Senate To Rule On Barnhart Appointment

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Republican Chairman Ray Barnhart has been cleared for a decision Thursday by the full Senate on his appointment to the Texas Highways and Public Transportation Commission.

The Senate Nominations Subcommittee recommended Barnhart's confirmation Tuesday, 7-0, after closely questioning him about his political plans for the 1980 presidential election year.

"I have no intention whatever to get out front and lead a charge for any political campaign or party," said Barnhart, who also plans to resign as state GOP chairman if confirmed by two-thirds of the Senate.

Barnhart was an outspoken and active state campaign manager for former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the 1976 fight for the national Republican nomination. He was named state chairman after Reagan supporters seized state party control from backers of President Gerald Ford.

He replaces Reagan Houston of San Antonio, whose term expired in February, on the powerful three-member commission that controls development and upkeep of the Texas highway system.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, who has been a frequent political foe of Barnhart, commended him to the subcommittee. "He knows construction, because he was once in that business. He also knows the many problems of urban areas and the Gulf Coast," Brooks said. "His varied background will be good for the state as a whole."

Barnhart told the subcommittee he would resign as state GOP chairman within 24 hours after he is confirmed by the Senate.

"I don't intend to divorce myself from my party but I have no intention to take any major part that would take away time from my job on the commission," he said. "At this time I have no intention to assume any interest in any campaign. My intention is to remain free of outside partisan politics without leaving my party affiliation."

Barnhart said he was now in the insurance business in Houston and intended to retain his interests there.

Other appointments by Gov. Bill Clements cleared by the subcommittee for Senate action Thursday included:

Texas Industrial Commission — Lewis Bracy Jr., Uvalde; Sidney M. Wieser, Lampasas, and James H. Simms, Amarillo.

State Board of Control — Robert H. Dedman, Dallas.

State Board of Medical Examiners — Dr. James Knox Peden, Dallas.

Trinity River Authority — A.W. Cullum III, Dallas.

Jury Deliberates Fate Of Financier

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego County jury of eight women and four men began its first full day of deliberations Tuesday in the eight-month grand theft trial of financier C. Arnholt Smith.

The complicated case went to the jury Monday, but there was no indication Tuesday of an early verdict.

During the eight months of the trial, more than 100 persons testified and more than 2,000 exhibits were introduced.

Smith, 80, was indicted by a grand jury in 1975 on a total of 64 counts which were later trimmed in pretrial arguments to three counts of grand theft and five of state income tax evasion.

Smith was accused of failing to report income of $6.5 million in 1971, another $8.9 million in 1973 and $9 million in 1974. Among the business deals involved was Smith's sale of the San Diego Padres baseball team to Ray Kroc in 1974.

A one-time "Mr. San Diego," Smith controlled 50 companies including the nation's largest taxi-cab network, hotels and a bank, U. S. National, which collapsed in the nation's biggest bank failure to that date.

Smith pleaded no contest in 1975 to federal bank fraud charges, was fined and put on probation. His attorney indicated lengthy appeals could be expected with conviction on any of the state charges.

The slang term "limey" — used for Englishmen — originated with the British Navy's inclusion of lime juice, to prevent scurvy, in ships' provisions for long voyages.

Irish Battle Foreign Leprechauns

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Staunch Irishmen stand ready to man the barricades against a planned invasion by foreign-based leprechauns.

The call to rally behind the "Little People" came from the national daily newspaper, The Irish Independent, which saw sinister moves afoot in Europe.

"On this issue, the whole country must stand firm and full square behind the 'Little People,'" it said. "God help us if we don't."

At issue was an Irish law prohibiting the import of souvenirs —such as made-inJapan leprechaun statues — unless they were clearly marked "foreign."

"Japanese leprechauns!" the Independent exclaimed. "Have you ever heard the like?"

The European Economic Community has charged that the Irish law discriminates against other member states and threatens to haul the Irish government before the European Court if it is not repealed within two months.

"All leprechauns are Irish," the Independent said. "No leprechaun has ever left our shores and any leprechaun who tries to come into the country under the guise of a returned emigrant or masquerauding as an Irish leprechaun should be shown the door."

Leprechauns may not have left Ireland, but leprechaunwatchers say they're going somewhere. It seems the wee folk are fleeing their traditional haunts in droves — or, at least, folks don't seem to be seeing them very much any more.

More than a decade ago folklorist Kevin Danaher, a respected authority on the ways of the "Little People," sounded the alarm.

"Nowadays they are not seen as often as they used to be, for they have not taken kindly to modern civilization," he said.

Advances since then seem to have upset and bewildered them still more. Wooded hillsides and shady glens that once sparkled to the pranks of the merry mischief-makers, at least in legend, now stand forlorn and silent. Scrublands have been cleared, marshes drained and hillocks flattened under the relentless demands of progress.

As their playgrounds have been eaten up by giant machines, the little people are disappearing faster.

Now and then, however, sentiment stays the hands of the developers. Fairy mounds and rings dotting the countryside have been respected, roads routed around them and building plans altered to take them into account.

No doubt there are elves and fairies and sprites galore in mystic glens where only the young at heart can find them, but the leprechaun has remained as elusive as ever.

Now there are those who believe they will reappear in legions the first time a Hong Kong-or Japanese-stamped leprechaun sets foot on Irish soil.

Treehouse Banned In New Jersey

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — The Self family is going to court to fight a fine slapped on them for an illegal treehouse.

"It's really ridiculous," Judy Self said Tuesday. She and her husband have been fined $20 for illegally building a treehouse "framed of component structural parts designed for the housing shelter, enclosure and support of individuals, animals or property."

The Selfs said they will take their case to Superior Court Thursday as they appeal the municipal court ruling and fine.

The battle began when inspectors, acting on a neighbor's complaint, determined the treehouse didn't have a building permit and tacked a stop-work order on the backyard structure.

The Selfs went to Building Inspector Kenneth Henson for a permit.

"Catch 22," said Mrs. Self. "We can't put up a treehouse because it's a structure and we can't get a building permit because the structure's not even in the building code."

A structure is anything a person could walk into, Mrs. Self said she was told.

"Tell them it's a large birdhouse," suggested workers at a lumber yard that sold Dr. Edward Self $400 worth of plywood and beams for a house that would not collapse and break bones. The doctor had carpenters design and build the structure.

If they lose the treehouse fight, the Selfs, who moved from Yonkers, N.Y., two years ago, will move again.

"Kids should be able to have treehouses," said Mrs. Self. "It's part of American folklore."

Australia's Natural Hazards Discussed

Natural hazards in Australia is the topic for a seminar to be given at 3 p.m. today at Texas Tech University by Dr. J.E. Hobbs, senior lecturer in geography at the University of New England, Armidale, New South Wales, Australia.

The seminar is open to the public. It will be in the conference room of the civil engineering department. Sponsors are the Texas Tech Institute for Disaster Research, the departments of geography and civil engineering, and the Atmospheric Sciences Group.

He has a special interest in climatology as well as natural hazards and is particularly noted for having developed courses in natural hazards, which teach people how to cope with anticipated hazards.

"Large Hike In Busing Argued"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for black parents and children in Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, told the Supreme Court Tuesday massive busing is needed to erase years of deliberate segregation throughout their school systems.

You can't "treat a systemwide cancer with a Band Aid," said lawyer Thomas I. Atkins, representing parents and children in Columbus. In Ohio's capital, he said, the 1954 decision outlawing racially segregated schools "hasn't meant a thing."

Lawyers for the two Ohio school boards told the justices their systems had only isolated examples of segregation, and remedies were needed only to correct the specific violations.

"It should not be sufficient to say in broad generalities that a condition exists, you go out and remedy it," said Samuel H. Porter, representing the Columbus school board.

Both Ohio cases are significant because the court's eventual rulings — expected by June — may advise all federal courts when they can order systemwide busing to desegregate schools in northern cities.

The Justice Department says about 200 school districts with more than five million pupils are now under court-ordered desegregation plans that could be affected by the decisions.

In Columbus, the issue is whether 37,000 of the city's 89,000 public school students will have to be bused for desegregation.

In Dayton, the court is reviewing a plan that has allowed about half the city's 36,000 pupils to be bused since the 1976-77 school year.

William E. Caldwell, representing black parents and children in Dayton, said that city has deliberately allowed segregation since the early 1900s.

All-black schools were established, black children in white schools sat in the back of the class, and black pupils were even denied the chance to play angels in school plays, he said.

"Their (the school board's) case has been that discrimination has been the rare exception," he said. "My case is that it has been the rule."

David C. Greer, representing the Dayton Board of Education, said there were only isolated segregation practices. He criticized courts that find "a condition of racial imbalance" and then believe "it's fair game to go back in the past...to find some constitutional violation."

He said it would be fair to focus only on conditions at the time the suit against the school board was filed.

Porter said the Columbus school system has taken steps to achieve voluntary desegregation, including a voluntary transfer policy, career centers and magnet schools designed to attract white and black students.

A federal judge, he said, found about a dozen violations and then ruled there was systemwide segregation. "They are the sum total and this is his springboard" for busing thousands of students, Porter said.

But Atkins contended there were "at least 77 specific constitutional violations during the time of the court review. This is not a case of isolated circumstances."

Dual Organ Transplant Announced

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A surgical team at the University of Iowa has performed the first simultaneous kidney-pancreas transplant operation in the United States.

"We're very pleased with how the patient is doing," Dr. Robert Corry, director of the transplantation service at University Hospitals, said Tuesday. "We are cautious in predicting the outcome, but it's very favorable so far."

The operation on 42-year-old Leslie Brandt of Waverly was performed April 18. Brandt is a life-long diabetic whose kidneys failed as a result of the disease, which is caused by the failure of glands within the pancreas to produce insulin.

"Mr. Brandt hasn't needed any insulin in six days, he has normal kidney function and he is up and around and eating," Corry told a news conference.

University Hospitals has performed more than 400 kidney transplants during the past 10 years. But the simultaneous transplanting of both kidney and pancreas has been performed only twice and that was in France, Corry said.

"We will do this procedure only on people with renal (kidney) failure," Corry said, adding that there is little additional risk to a patient already slated for a kidney transplant.

"That's the key — there's no increased risk. The patient would be on these drugs (to suppress rejection of the new organ) anyway.

"But we're not ready to do a transplant on people with healthy kidneys," he said.

Corry said a successful pancreatic transplant is a cure for diabetes, a disease that sometimes can be controlled with insulin injections. In its severe forms, however, diabetes attacks other organs, including the kidneys and eyes. It is in these cases that a patient would be a candidate for the kidney-pancreas operation.

Although a person could receive the organs in separate operations, "it is better simultaneously because the patient is healthier at that time," Corry said.

"The patient has not been on drugs to suppress rejection, and he is less likely to develop infection."

Brandt must take the anti-rejection drugs for the rest of his life and is never really free of the possibility of rejection.

Steel Firm Reports Earnings

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel on Tuesday reported net income of $59.2 million for the first quarter, a whopping jump over the $1.1 million earned during the same period last year.

On a per share basis, earnings were $1.36 for the 1979 three-month period compared with 2 cents in 1978. Net sales were $1.74 billion, compared to $1.38 billion for the same period last year — a 25.6 percent increase.

Bethlehem chairman Lewis Foy blamed the 111-day bituminous coal strike for the poor 1978 first quarter showing.

"Orders have increased for virtually all products," he said, adding that shipments had increased 15.7 percent and raw steel production 20.1 percent.

He said the increases "reflect the continued strengthening of our order entry rate that began in the third quarter of 1978."

Despite the jump in net income, Bethlehem, the nation's No. 2 steelmaker, reported that profit margins were eroded during the first quarter of 1979 by the spiraling costs of energy, labor and materials.

The firm said net income was an unsatisfactory 3.4 percent of net sales for the period. This percentage is slightly less than the 3.6 percent realized for the full year of 1978 and significantly less than the historical average for all manufacturing companies, Bethlehem said.

Foy later told reporters that the company might have to ask the Council on Wage and Price Stability for "some allowances" to raise prices beyond what is allowed by the Carter administration's voluntary guidelines. He said Bethlehem was being pressed by rising energy and labor costs.

First quarter 1979 shipments of rolled steel and other finished products were 3.58 million net tons, compared to 3.09 million for the corresponding period last year.

"Bethlehem Steel had a reasonably good first quarter," Foy said. "Barring unforeseen occurrences the second quarter should be better.

"Looking into the third quarter and beyond we continue to be concerned about inflation and escalating costs, particularly in the employment and energy areas. Also if fuel shortages develop, Bethlehem and the entire domestic steel industry will be adversely affected."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have been using the dividend reinvestment program of a company in which I own stock to buy more shares. I plan to continue to do so, until I retire in 16 years. At that time, I will start taking the dividends in cash.

I work for a company which does not have a pension plan. Can I consider the dividends I am reinvesting each year the same as an Individual Retirement Account (IRA)? If so, this will allow me to deduct the dividends from my income tax.

A. Nope. You can't treat dividend income from stocks as you would an IRA. Even though you are reinvesting your dividends to buy additional shares, those dividends are subject to federal income tax — after deducting your "dividend exclusion." Let's hope you haven't overlooked that.

The exclusion allows each taxpayer to pay no federal income tax on the first $100 of "qualified dividends" — received from U.S. corporations — each year. The exclusion is $200 for a married couple filing a joint return and who own stocks jointly on which at least $200 of dividends are paid or who own stock individually and each of whom gets at least $100 of dividends.

This doesn't mean you can't set up an IRA. Because you are not in a retirement plan, you can. And you should. You can put up to 15 percent of your annual earnings or $1,500 a year — whichever is less — into an IRA.

You don't pay income taxes on the money you put into an IRA — thereby reducing your annual tax bite. And the earnings your IRA investment makes — in dividends and-or interest — are also sheltered from income taxes.

You start paying taxes on your IRA investment when you begin to withdraw that money. That's normally after retirement, When you're in a lower tax bracket.

Anyone who is eligible and who can afford to put money into either an IRA or a Keogh plan — for the self-employed — and who doesn't do so is really just making an unnecessary gift of taxes to Uncle Sam.

Just remember that "investment income" — interest, dividends, rents and such — should not be added to what the Internal Revenue Service counts as "earned income" — wages, salaries and self-employed income — when calculating how much you can tuck away in an IRA or Keogh plan.

Q. I am 17 and have $2,000 in savings certificates and $900 in a passbook savings account. Can you recommend some good books for beginning investors?

A. This column has always shied away from such recommendations, because there are so many books on the market that it's hard — and dangerous — to pick out one or a few.

That problem has now been solved. The Brooklyn Public Library has put together an "investment bibliography." Among other things, that handy pamphlet lists books for both beginning and experienced investors and has a thumbnail description of each book.

You can obtain a copy by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Business Library, Brooklyn Public Library, 280 Cadman Plaza West, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11201.

Read that bibliography. Pick out the book that appeals to you. Borrow it from your local public library.

Q. I own 250 shares of a company which is making lots of money on its oil and gas operations in the North Sea but is not paying any dividends. Where is the money going? The stock has risen quite a bit. But no dividends!

A. You'll have to read that company's annual and quarterly reports to stockholders to get a firm answer to your question. Some companies have policies of not paying out any of their earnings in dividends.

A company with such a policy "plows back" its earnings to make the company bigger and its stock more valuable and attractive to people who like that sort of thing.

Frankly, I have to tell you that you should have looked into this situation — before you bought the stock. If the company plans to continue its "no-dividend" policy and you want cash, you'll have to sell some or all of your 250 shares.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Facts — investors and traders are stuck in a period of tension. Frustration, and great uncertainly. Unfortunately, it will be months before we have concrete evidence of where the economy is headed. The outlook for inflation and interest rates also will remain shrouded for quite some time. Question — can we expect the market to do anything big in either direction prior to at least some answers to a few of the uncertainties. So far, all that investable cash out there and all those reasonally priced stocks have not overcome the appeal of almost no risk, high yielding, short term vehicle. Answer — no one can say when the bull will come to life but he is out there someplace. All we can do is try to understand what is in motion right now and adjust to it.

The situation is a lot trickier at this time. Our technical indicators are flashing bright yellow but stocks do not act like they are quite ready to go down hard. Conversely, we see only limited upside short term. Our scenario looking out several weeks is for more fails in the 880 area and then a test of the 780-800 area. That's industrials but we envision substantially more risk among the still heavily margined, non-institutional stocks. If this one to two month scenario is correct and the test is successful, buying opportunities could be very attractive for a multi-month play. However, at the moment market action says do not get overly ambitious in either direction.

We know what the fundamentals of the economy, interest rates, and inflation are, it's too late as stock market factors. Thus, our own concerns about these critical areas are subjested to what the market is doing. For months now, because of the many economic uncertainties, it has been much more a market. There has been no broad advance but rather money has been willing to buy selected issues with outstanding potential and low multiples. The past several weeks, however, even this limited momentum has deteriorated as have most other technical indicators. In our opinion, stocks have acted tired lately and only rallied the past few days because of a 30 point drop the prior two weeks.

A buyer of companies will a record of proven management particularly among the fallen institutional favorites.

Novel Portrays Seamy Side Of Hollywood Movie Production

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — On the other side of the bright glamour, sparkling romances, and big bucks of Hollywood are the shady deals, casting couches and seamy infighting that accompanies the production of almost every movie.

One of the most incisive observations of the cut-throat business and social rites of the film colony has been written by screenwriter Eleanor Perry in her roman a clef novel, "Blue Pages."

The title refers to the rewrite pages of a movie shooting script and what goes into the making of them after producer, director, stars and financial backers get through with their personal contributions.

The star fattens his part. The director adds a character to accomodate a strumpet with whom he is sleeping. The producer's wife, who fancies herself a writer, insists on plot changes.

And they are just the good guys.

Anyone who has been around the Hollywood jungle for a few years can pick out the real life counterparts of almost every character in the book although author Perry — with a great big grin — says they are all fictional.

The book apparently is autobiographical. The heroine is a screen writer who is married to a director younger than herself. Together they produce a couple of hit films. The director dumps his wife for another woman.

Coincidence or not, that is the story of Eleanor and Frank Perry.

"David and Lisa" was their first hit. It was nominated for an Academy Award, followed by "Diary of a Mad Houswife" and "The Swimmer."

After the Perrys divorced, Eleanor wrote for other producers and directors, most of whom are the scum of the earth if Eleanor's book reflects even a scintilla of accuracy.

Altogether Eleanor has written 10 screenplays which were produced, six of them with Perry. She's authored nine others that never made it to the screen. Her credits include eight TV movies and a pair of Emmys, for "The House Without a Christmas Tree" and "A Christmas Memory," the latter with Truman Capote.

More than anything else, Eleanor's novel-memoir is a revelation of the miserable estate of the screenwriter in Hollywood, low man or woman on the totem pole financially and socially.

Writers are often treated as creative pariahs by illiterate producers and drug-oriented directors, self-appointed "auteurs," anointing themselves as renaissance men if not saviors of the "cinematic art."

What saves "Blue Pages" from being a profound tragedy is Eleanor's lively sense of humor which peels off layers of tinsel from the phonies encountered in her book — and in every studio in town.

"I'm sure a lot of people in Hollywood will recognize themselves," Eleanor said, smiling. "But I insist my characters are fictional."

She then reeled off the real life counterparts of almost every weirdo in the book.

Eleanor, in her 50s, has few illusions about Hollywood but she's not altogether cynical either. She still has the capacity to fall in love — almost always with the wrong guys.

She saves her real cynicism for the process of filmmaking.

"Writers are the women of the film industry," she said. "By that I mean they have the fewest rights and are the most put-upon. Even the best paid, most famous writers are just employees of producers and directors. Money has the clout in this business, not talent.

"Every writer who works in Hollywood is at the mercy of the wives and girlfriends of the producers, directors and stars.

"In my case, being a woman is an additional hindrance. The men in this town don't see us as intellectual equals. And my age has something to do with it. I have gray hair which intimidates a lot of people."

Eleanor, a stylish New Yorker, took two years off to write her novel which she found a great deal more difficult that turning out a scenario. The book was far more personal than anything she has written for the screen.

"I decided to let it all hang out," she said. "'Blue Pages' is very close to me and enormously revealing. I didn't try to hide anything, no matter what people in this town might think.

"The woman in this book is very much myself. She's a survivor. She doesn't go to pieces or get drunk or take drugs when her personal life falls apart. She survives with a sense of humor. And so do I."

Eleanor said she would love to write a screenplay based on the book.

"It has all the elements of a good movie," she said. "It's a love story that starts at the top and plummets to the pits — and all of it with a Hollywood background."

Eleanor, however, has eliminated several producers and directors as prospective filmmakers for her book. If they recognize themselves, they're more likely to call their lawyers.

Autopsy To Probe Mysterious Death Of Undercover Agent

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Bexar County medical examiner, aided by a New York pathologist, will perform an autopsy "late this week" on the body of a jailed federal drug agent who died after four months in a mysterious coma.

Sante Bario, 42, a flamboyant undercover federal drug agent for 14 years, died about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. He had been charged with accepting a $9,000 bribe, and became ill in his Bexar County jail cell Dec. 16 while awaiting trial.

It was originally believed Bario was poisoned, but Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos said later tests found only normal traces of a prescribed anti-depressant. Tests on drinking cups and a partially-eaten peanut butter sandwich in Bario's cell turned up no traces of poison, Santos said.

Gerald Goldstein, Bario's attorney, said both sides had agreed to use Dr. David M. Spain of the Brookdale Medical Center in Brooklyn as "an advisor and observer" to the autopsy. Spain was called in by the Justice Department, Goldstein said.

"He (Spain) has the reputation of being one of the best," said Frank Castillon, chief medical investigator for Santos.

Castillon said the autopsy would be performed "late this week," probably Friday. He also said a third pathologist might participate.

Goldstein said he fears it is impossible for the autopsy to show the cause of death because Bario's body probably metabolized any trace of what it contained Dec. 16.

"I would hope that it would show what happened," he said Tuesday. "Whatever it was, it would at least lay to rest everyone's worries and the anxiety the family has felt.

"Realistically, the consensus of the pathologists I've talked to is that he lived long enough for it to be unlikely they would find traces of anything," added Goldstein.

Goldstein has maintained his client was poisoned. He said he still feels it is "one of the real possibilities."

"I don't buy the theory that he choked on a peanut butter sandwich and went into spectacular convulsions," he said. "I know the family also feels uneasy and uncomfortable about the whole thing."

Bario, a native of Italy, was arrested last Oct. 7 at a downtown San Antonio hotel, accused of taking the bribe from a Drug Enforcement Administration informant to overlook a cache of cocaine during a Mexico City raid by DEA agents a year ago.

Bario was a DEA group supervisor in Mexico City, but was suspended after his arrest and fired about a month later.

Bario was originally confined to the Kerr County Jail in nearby Kerrville in lieu of $500,000 bond because federal marshals were concerned about his safety among Bexar County prisoners.

He was brought to Bexar County 10 days later for a court appearance. He was found on the floor of his individual cell in the jail's hospital, where he was confined because he was under prescribed medication.

Bario was removed from life support systems in January and had survived a bout with pneumonia last month.

Teachers Lobbying For Pay Increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas school teachers may be eligible for poverty level federal subsidies if they don't get an adequate pay raise, says the Texas State Teachers Association.

TSTA Executive Secretary Callie W. Smith said Tuesday in a statement that new Internal Revenue Service regulations effective June 30 will allow persons filing 1978 income tax returns to receive federal credits up to $400 if their income fell below $8,000. The "earned income credit" is for head of a household, who is married and has a dependent child.

Smith said there are 29,000 Texas teachers this year who are on the state minimum salary schedule which begins at $8,540. However, he said, because of experience and additional education, not all are at $8,540.

The TSTA wants the minimum salary raised to $10,000 for a teachers with a bachelor's degree.

All Local Talent In Abernathy Play

ABERNATHY (Special) — "Pathos on the Plains" has been selected as this year's Abernathy High School Junior Class play. As an added attraction to the annual event, Jacquelyn Smyers, author of the play and a writer for The Abernathy Weekly Review, will participate in the May 4 production.

The play is a three-act melodrama which tells of a rich beauty dying of some dreadful malady who falls into the clutches of a financially embarrassed gambler stranded on the Texas plains.

Performances are scheduled in the afternoon and 8 p.m.

Woman Ordered Not To Get Pregnant

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — "Some people just shouldn't have children," said a judge who ordered a 28-year-old mother of two not to get pregnant or to marry a man with children while she serves 10 years probation for aggravated child abuse.

Kathy York Rodriquez was convicted of severely beating her 8-year-old daughter, Shannon Marie, in the front yard of their home last July in what police said was an apparent attempt to exorcise the devil.

Polk Circuit Judge Oliver Green issued the unusual order last Friday after she was convicted. He said Tuesday that he meant every bit of it, and that the terms he spelled out are within the power of the court.

She also lost custody of her children and was told she couldn't marry a man with children without the judge's permission.

Mrs. Rodriquez, who could not immediately be contacted for comment, is separated from her husband. Custody of Shannon and a half-brother, who is 3, was given to the natural fathers.

Her attorney, assistant public defender Rick Repolgle, said he doesn't think the judge's ruling is proper. But he said if he contests it, the judge might change his mind and send her to jail.

"I don't think the ruling is legal, but what can you do?" he said. "She has probation for something she would have expected to go to prison for, so she should make the best of it.

"I expected the judge to say she couldn't have custody of her children, but this restriction on getting pregnant was a surprise."

Repolgle said he thought the no-pregnancy ruling was improper because it fails to take into account circumstances such as rape, when a woman wouldn't necessarily be in control of getting pregnant.

Green, however, said he sees no reason why Mrs. Rodriquez could not avoid pregnancy.

"I think my condition is legal, or I wouldn't have made it," he said. The court, he added, has the power to impose "certain measures if patently necessary."

If she violates any of the judge's conditions, the probation could be revoked and she could be sent to jail.

Green says he expects probation officials to enforce his order. "The court doesn't enforce it, probation does," he said.

Bill Ruster, supervisor of the Polk probation office, said he hasn't read the judge's ruling.

"I'd want to know the judge's intent in not letting her get pregnant." As far as enforcing it, he said: "There's only so many hours in a day."

Joyce Johnson, a neighbor in Auburndale where Mrs. Rodriquez lives, told police she witnessed the attack and heard the child pleading with her mother not to beat her.

The young girl reportedly cried out: "Don't hit me, Mama. I believe in God, mommy."

Finally, the mother laughed, then said to a neighbor: "I finally did it. I've cast the devil out of her," witnesses said.

The girl was treated at a hospital for swelling and bruises but was not admitted.

Museum Pays Highest Price At Antique Sale

LONDON (UPI) — With California's J. Paul Getty museum among the major buyers, one of the world's greatest fine art auction houses Tuesday sold $131,857 worth of carpenter's tools.

Not your everyday, garden variety saws and hammers, of course, but the type of handmade antique tool which has become a collecting cult in the United States and, oddly, Norway above all other countries.

Christie's sold roughly 1,000 tools amassed through the decades by the carpentry firm of Arnold and Walcer — weird tools no longer used, like a coach-door jack or a traveling tinman's lipping swage, plus more usual planes and chisels smoothed by two centuries of loving use.

The Getty museum paid the sale's highest prices — $2,310 each — for two Dutch planes, one dated 1726 and the other 1740.

Another buyer paid the same price for an early 19th century ornamental turning lathe, and 76 cutting tools to use with the lathe sold for $1,470.

"Everything was going for more than we expected," a Christie's spokesman said.

Muzorewa Pledges Guerrilla War End

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Election results announced Tuesday will make Bishop Abel Muzorewa, a U.S.-educated Methodist clergyman, Rhodesia's first black prime minister. He immediately promised to try to end the seven-year war waged by black guerrillas.

Muzorewa's party won 51 of the 72 seats reserved for blacks in the new 100-seat parliament in five days of voting that ended Saturday. The bishop is scheduled to be installed as prime minister in June, replacing Ian Smith, the white leader who has been prime minister for 15 years.

Whites hold 28 parliament seats in accordance with the limited black rule agreement designed to protect white minority rights.

Civil War Seen

In Washington, informed sources reported President Carter's top African policy advisers believe the election was a fraud and in New York, Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said he thought the results will not stop the guerrilla fighting and could lead to an all-out civil war.

The election triumph of the 54-year-old bishop cracked the uneasy alliance among the nation's moderate black leadership.

And despite Muzorewa's victory, Rhodesia's major institutions will remain in the hands of the 230,000-member white minority in this nation of 6.7 million blacks.

Whites will retain a major slice of the parliamentary membership, holding 28 seats for up to 10 years that will allow them to block constitutional changes. They also will control the police, military, judiciary and civil service for five years.

Smith Leads Minority

Muzorewa, wearing a cleric's collar and sporting a beaming smile, told his supporters that his victory meant a "rejection of the forces of darkness and evil," an apparent reference to the guerrilla leadership.

He said his first goal as prime minister will be to end the war which has claimed more than 16,000 lives.

He must also convince the international community to recognize the elections and drop crippling economic sanctions against Rhodesia, a British colony that declared its independence when Smith broke with Britain in 1965 over white minority rule.

British Link Hoped

"We hope they will be sensible enough and big enough to say that the people they quarrelled with have gone," the bishop said of Britain.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington the Carter administration asked Congress not to try to lift the sanctions until it can be determined if the elections were fair.

Resolutions have been submitted in the Senate and House that call on Carter to lift the U.S. sanctions 10 days after a black majority government is installed.

The Soviet Union condemned the election as a farce. A commentary published Tuesday by the official Tass news agency in Moscow said, "Regardless of the results of the counting of votes, it is clear to all that the results have been determined in advance.

Voting Attacked

"Seeking to create the semblance of 'mass participation' of Africans in this farce, driving them to polling stations by bayonets, the racists obviously will not be scrupulous when countng the votes."

Muzorewa's United African National Party swept 51 of the 72 seats assigned to blacks in the 100-member national assembly. The 28 white seats were won by Smith's Rhodesian Front Party in an election two weeks ago.

The assembly is to take office in June, when the country will adopt its African name and become Zimbabwe Rhodesia. The assembly will be the nation's first black majority government after nine decades of exclusive white rule.

The Rev. Ndabaingi Sithole, one of three black moderates allied with Muzorewa in the interim goverment, won 12 seats for the Zimbabwe African National Union. As the returns mounted in Muzorewa's favor, Sithole charged that there were "gross irregularities" in the five-day vote.

He said he had reports "from black and white farmers, black teachers and civil servants" that the Internal Ministery of Affairs had "instructed people what party to vote for at the polling booths."

Many of the 1.8 million voters were semi-literate peasants who were casting ballots for the first time. Sithole also claimed security forces had intimidated his supporters.

Election chairman Malcolm Thompson said in a statement that Sithole should officially report his charges to the election's supervisory commission, while rival parties chided Sithole for what one official said was "sour grapes."

The remaining nine seats went to Chief Kayisa Ndiweni's United National Federal Party, which champions the minority Ndebele tribe.

Jeremiah Chirau, a Shona chief who had called for all-party talks with the guerrilla leaders, was soundly trounced and failed to win a single seat. Sithole, Muzorewa, and Chirau formed an interim bi-racialgoverment with Smith in March, 1978 in an agreement denounced by the guerrilla leadership.

The elections have been termed a sellout to white interests by guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who have vowed to step up their war for total black control and topple what they say willbe a puppet government.

Muzorewa studied at a Methodist college in Fayette, Mo., and in Nashville, Tenn., in the 1950s and is an ordained minister of the United Methodist Church. He has favored compromise as "the best formula we could expect" for a peaceful transition to black rule and to prevent an exodus of white technical and economic expertise.

Election officials said 63.9 percent of the estimated 2.8 million black and 106,000 white adults voted.

Gas Station Closing Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's standby plan to manage energy shortages was dealt a major setback Tuesday as the House Commerce Committee voted down a proposal to give the president the authority to close service stations on weekends.

Another part of the legislaton — a "last-resort" proposal for gasoline rationing — also seemed headed for committee rejection, although a final vote was postponed until today.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said he hopes the full House will overturn the panel's decision and restore the president's program.

Testifying before the House Commerce energy and power subcommittee, Schlesinger said Carter's plan to decontrol domestic oil prices will help spur long-term U.S. production, but cannot provide any relief from looming energy shortages.

He said the standby plan is needed so the president can deal with more immediate shortages.

"I very much regret seeing even a tentative turndown by the committee," he said. "I hope on the floor the president's proposals will be sustained."

Schlesinger said that, because of the three-month loss of Iranian oil, fuel supplies are so tight that refineries might be forced to make less gasoline and more heating oil to avoid a serious shortage next winter.

While this would aggravate gasoline shortages this summer, it might be needed to keep homes that heat with oil warm, the energy secretary said.

Heating oil supplies are now at historic lows and unless oil companies begin rebuilding them soon for next winter, mandatory steps may have to be considered, Schlesinger said.

The full committee rejected Carter's proposal to give Carter the option of closing gasoline stations on weekends as a fuel-saving measure. And administration allies said they expected the standby rationing plan to also be rejected.

The committee's weekend-closing vote was a rebuff to the presidential approach for coping with the next energy emergency, and it follows a lukewarm Senate reception for the president's conservation package.

Regardless of the committee action, the entire presidential conservation package still will be put to a House floor vote, said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the manager of the plans in the committee.

Committee members did approve 23-9 a resolution recommending that the House approve a proposal giving the president authority to regulate building temperatures, a plan that is seen as essentially requiring voluntary cooperation to succeed.

Presidential authority to ban outdoor commercial lighting was sent on to the House by the committee on a voice vote, without a recommendation for or against.

The weekend-closing proposal would give Carter the power to order gasoline stations to close for anywhere from a few hours to a maximum period running from noon Friday to midnight Sunday. Emergency vehicles, taxis, trucks and farm equipment would be exempted.

Many states objected to the basic presidential plan, the chief criticism being that it would destroy tourism. The administration submitted a second plan that would allow states, with federal approval, to draft gasoline-savings plans of their own.

Both weekend-closing proposals were combined for a vote and rejected 26-15. A motion to send them to the House without a recommendation lost 23-19.

Road Crash Kills Eight Teen-Agers

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — Shock and disbelief spread through this Army-centered community Tuesday in the wake of a traffic accident that claimed the lives of eight teen-agers.

Four others were injured in the crash of a small pickup as the group apparently went to meet friends for a party Monday night, police said.

"Half the school is crying," said Jeannie Armstrong, who attends Fort Meade Senior High School where five of the dead had been students. All were of Army families.

Capt. Robert Russell of the Anne Arundel County police said the truck, driven by Alan Cole, 18, of Baltimore, apparently went out of control and slammed into several trees.

Only Cole escaped serious injury. He was in good condition with multiple cuts and bruises at an Army hospital.

The crash occurred on a road described by area residents as a dark, lonely, dangerous stretch of highway. Remnants of the tragedy remained at the scene Tuesday. A watch, stopped at 9:14, was imbedded in a tree. Another watch, its hands set at 9:11, was found lying nearby.

State police said the accident was the second worst in Maryland's history for traffic deaths. Ten persons died in a crash in June, 1954, they said.

The cause of the crash was still under investigation Tuesday afternoon.

"We've been able to interview the driver briefly," Russell said. "He said there was another car approaching from the other direction and it had crossed the center line. The driver said he had to swerve to get out of its way and went off the roadway, striking three trees." Russell said Cole couldn't describe the car.

He said Cole had taken a blood test to determine if any alcohol was in his system, but the results would not be available for several weeks.

While the police continued their investigation, the families of the victims were trying to piece together their lives. Several parents said they had no idea their children were going to a party.

The students at the school were also trying to understand what had happened.

During the first period of classes, Rick Cathey, a sophomore, said one of the girls who knew the victims well kept repeating, "Please, tell us they are not dead."

Police identified the victims as Paul Morenz, 16; Tammera Weaver, 16, and her 18-year-old brother, Robert; Barry De Aoun, 14, and his 15-year-old sister, Denise; Cindy Bray, 18; Marilyn Harris, 14; and Clark Kusaj, 14, who died on the operating table at University of Maryland's Shock-Trauma Unit over six hours after the accident.

N-Weapon Of Soviets Ires U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is concerned about the Soviet Union's new nuclear weapon in eastern Europe and will take it into account in deciding whether to deploy the neutron bomb, press secretary Jody Powell said Tuesday.

Powell said "the president is aware of and concerned" about developments in Soviet nuclear weaponry.

Asked whether that meant the neutron bomb was still seriously considered an option, Powell replied, "You're damn right it is."

Powell made clear his remarks were in response to a Soviet decision to deploy a new nuclear-armed missile in East Germany, the SS-21.

Last year, Carter decided to delay a final decision on whether the neutron weapon would be put into the arsenal of the United States and her allies. Some military leaders feel the weapon, which has power to kill without doing extensive property damage, would be especially useful in Europe.

"The president's final decision ... will be affected by Soviet behavior," Powell said.

"The Soviets are well aware of our concern," Powell said.

He said U.S. consideration of the neutron bomb was unlikely to hamper talks between Washington and Moscow on a new strategic arms limitation treaty, discussions which Carter has said are entering the final stages.

Powell said the SS-21 — one of three short-range missiles the Soviet Union has developed recently — would not be covered by a SALT II agreement, but that it would be negotiated in subsequent arms talks.

"We are continuing to monitor the Soviet nuclear modernization program, with a view toward Soviet restraint," Powell said. "The president's final decision on enhanced radiation capabilities (the formal name for the neutron bomb) for our nuclear weapons will be affected by Soviet behavior."

The United States already has developed the neutron weapon, but Carter decided last year against production of the controversial weapon. However, he said he would reconsider if the Soviet Union did not restrain nuclear deployments.

Critics say the neutron weapon is inhumane since it is aimed at destroying humans instead of property, and some contend it would increase the risk of tragedy since the military might be tempted to use it in a "limited" nuclear war.

Powell said, "the successful negotiation and ratification of a SALT II treaty is essential to permit us to move on to SALT III and other discussions ... to abort the threat of a nuclear arms race."

"In short, the president is aware of and he is concerned about the Soviet nuclear modernization program, which is directed against our NATO allies, and he is determined ... to take the necessary defense and arms control steps to deal with that situation."

Powell's remarks followed news reports on the SS-21 which said American intelligence analysts had observed the missile recently for the first time with Soviet forces in East Germany.

Military analysts say the SS21 is in the class of tactical nuclear weapons that the United States and Russia have been deploying in Europe for two decades.

Israelis Pound Palestine Bases

By The Associated Press

Israel pounded Palestinian strongholds in Lebanon by air and sea Tuesday. Egypt denounced the attacks and said they could hurt the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Israeli jets hit Palestinian positions north of the Litani River in southern Lebanon hours after naval gunboats ended a two-day attack on coastal targets near the Lebanese port of Tyre, the Israeli military command said.

Israel said the area was the launching point for Sunday's Palestinian terror attack in the Israeli resort town of Nahariya in which four Israelis died.

Egypt said the Israeli attacks could have a negative effect on implementation of the Israeli-Egyptian treaty signed March 26.

Violence Deplored

The Egyptian statement deplored the cycle of violence between Israel and the Palestinians, but did not condemn the Palestinian terror strike at Nahariya, which is believed to have sparked the Israeli response.

The Egyptian Foreign Ministry statement also condemned Israel's decision to establish two new settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

An Israeli communique said the warplanes hit Palestinian artillery and rocket emplacements near Beaufort Castle and the towns Nabatiyeh and Arnoun, 20 miles inland from the earlier coastal targets.

Palestinian guerrillas said Israel started pushing "columns of tanks and armored vehicles" from the northern Israeli settlement of Metulla to the southern Lebanese town of Marjayoun.

Freighter Damaged

The Lebanese freighter Neveen was listing sharply in Sidon harbor, Lebanon at daybreak. Palestinian and local shipping sources said it was damaged by an explosion set by Israeli saboteurs, and no one was injured.

There were no immediate casualty reports on the evening raids, but 13 Palestinians and Lebanese reportedly were killed in the gunboat attacks.

In other developments:

—Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said he would seek the death penalty for terrorists.

—Begin pledged to continue Jewish settlement of the West Bank.

—Egypt accused Syria of sending saboteurs to Cairo.

Interested In Peace

—The United States said Kuwait and Saudi Arabia still are interested in peace with Israel despite breaking relations with Cairo over the Egypt-Israel treaty.

—U.S. diplomatic sources in Washington said President Carter will name Robert Strauss as chief U.S. negotiator in the Middle East. They said Strauss, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and now the president's special trade representative, will head the U.S. delegation to Egyptian-Israeli talks next month on Palestinian autonomy.

Israeli law now neither provides for nor bars the death penalty. Begin's office announced he would ask his government to accept a resolution calling for prosecutors to demand the death sentence for those "convicted for acts of inhuman cruelty perpetrated by them against civilians — men, women, and children."

In Cairo, two men accused of being Syrian saboteurs told reporters at a news conference they were recruited by Syrian intelligence agents to set off explosives in Cairo public buildings.

Interior Minister Mohammed Nabaway Ismail said an organization called "The Eagles of the Palestinian Revolution" was a front for Syrian intelligence and had caused two explosions in Cairo in which one woman was killed and eight persons were injured.

Syria is one of the hard-line Arab nations that has vowed to punish Egypt for signing a treaty with Israel.

In Washington the Carter administration expressed regret that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait had cut off relations with Egypt but said the two nations were moderate states still interested in a peaceful settlement with Israel. Both nations have supported the Egyptian economy with millions of dollars in aid, and have not said whether the support will continue.

Texico Clerk Accused Of Embezzlement

both the state and defense would cause the trial to run at least through Friday.

Also testifying Tuesday was Mrs. Marie Christian, acting city clerk-treasurer. Mrs. Christian testified about bookkeeping practices used in city hall.

Mrs. Christian became city clerk-treasurer after Mrs. Wiehl quit her job on March 10, 1978.

Under cross examination by Dan Buzzard, Mrs. Wiehl's attorney, Mrs. Christian told the court that other city employees, including Hammet, accepted water bill payments and had keys to City Hall.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. Christian said that $7,000 in cash had been found in the city hall building the day after Mrs. Wiehl quit.

Lloyd Jeffries, a field engineer for the National Cash Register Corporation, told the court how the Texico City Hall accounting machine worked. He said it would be possible on the machine to show payment by customers, while not actually depositing any money into the city's account.

Mrs. Whiel was indicted on Dec. 15, 1978. All of the embezzlement charges, except four, were fourth degree felonies, which could carry a one-to-five year prison sentence.

Texaco Terms Profits Boost 'Not Excessive'

—Texaco of White Plains, N.Y., said its earnings rose to $307 million, or $1.13 a share, from $169.7 million, or 63 cents a share in the first quarter of 1978. Texaco's revenues came to $8.36 billion in the quarter up from $7 billion a year earlier.

—Gulf Oil Corp. of Pittsburgh reported profits rose to $249 million, or $1.28 a share, from $155 million, or 79 cents a share in last year's first quarter. Gulf's revenues rose 14 percent to $4.88 billion from $5.57 billion in last year's quarter.

—Shell Oil Co. of Houston reported net earnings of $224 million, or $1.47 a share, up from $193 million, or $1.31 a share in the first three months of last year. Revenue in the latest quarter was $3.1 billion, up from $2.6 billion in the comparison period.

—Phillips Petroleum of Bartlesville, Okla., said its first quarter profits rose 4 percent to $177 million, or $1.15 a share, from $670.8 million, or $1.11 a share in the 1978 period. Revenues were $1.99 billion, up from $1.74 billion in last year's first quarter. The company, with less extensive worldwide operations than many U.S.-based firms, said it earnings were adversely affected by lower crude oil production in Indonesia and its holdings in the North Sea. It also restated its 1978 earnings to reflect new accounting procedures.

—Marathon Oil Co. of Findley, Ohio, had earnings of $104.4 million, or $3.45 a share, up 107 percent from last year's $50.26 million, or $1.66 a share. The 1979 earnings reflect a one-time West German tax credit of $23 million carried over from prior year losses, the company said. Its revenues in the first quarter of 1979 were $1.47 billion up from $1.23 billion a year earlier.

Police Find Dead Fetus In Lubbock Alley

A dead fetus was found by Lubbock law enforcement officials in an alley near downtown Lubbock, apparently only hours after it had been left there.

The fetus — apparently in its fourth month of development, police said — was pronounced dead at the scene, behind the Rose Hotel, 804 Ave. G, by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy shortly after 4 p.m. LeCroy said he would withhold any ruling until he had met with representatives from the criminal district attorney's office.

Police said the fetus, about six to eight inches long and apparently a male, was placed in the alley about 9 a.m. Tuesday. It is being kept by a local pathologist.

A burglar trying to carry a TV set out of Mary Helen Johnson's residence at 1917 E. 1st Place early Tuesday was forced to flee minus his haul after he was spotted by a neighbor, who became suspicious after hearing several dogs bark.

The neighbor, upon seeing the man with the TV, went back inside to get a gun and when he returned, the man had fled without the TV set, worth $700.

Lubbock County sheriff's deputies said someone entered the boat shop and took seven slalom water skis, together valued at $1,435.

Property worth some $600, including a stereo, a TV set, a clock and some records, was removed from Patrick Asogwa's residence at 2107 8th St., sometime early Tuesday, according to police report.

The officers caught the 18-year-old boy after he left the store without paying for a $190 camera. He was turned over to juvenile authorities following his arrest.

Kelley Young said someone broke into his car while it sat in the parking lot of the College Inn at 1001 University Ave. early Tuesday.

Young said the burglars broke into his car and took a CB radio and antenna, and two sections of his T-top roof. The missing items are valued at $885, he said.

Mrs. James Earl Jeffreys of 2103 62nd St. said she came home from work about 4:45 p.m. and discovered a back door open and a window broken.

Police, called to the scene, entered the house and found an estimated $26,500 in property and cash had been ripped off. Police said the break-in was thought to have occurred between 12:30 p.m. Monday and the time Mrs. Jeffreys arrived home.

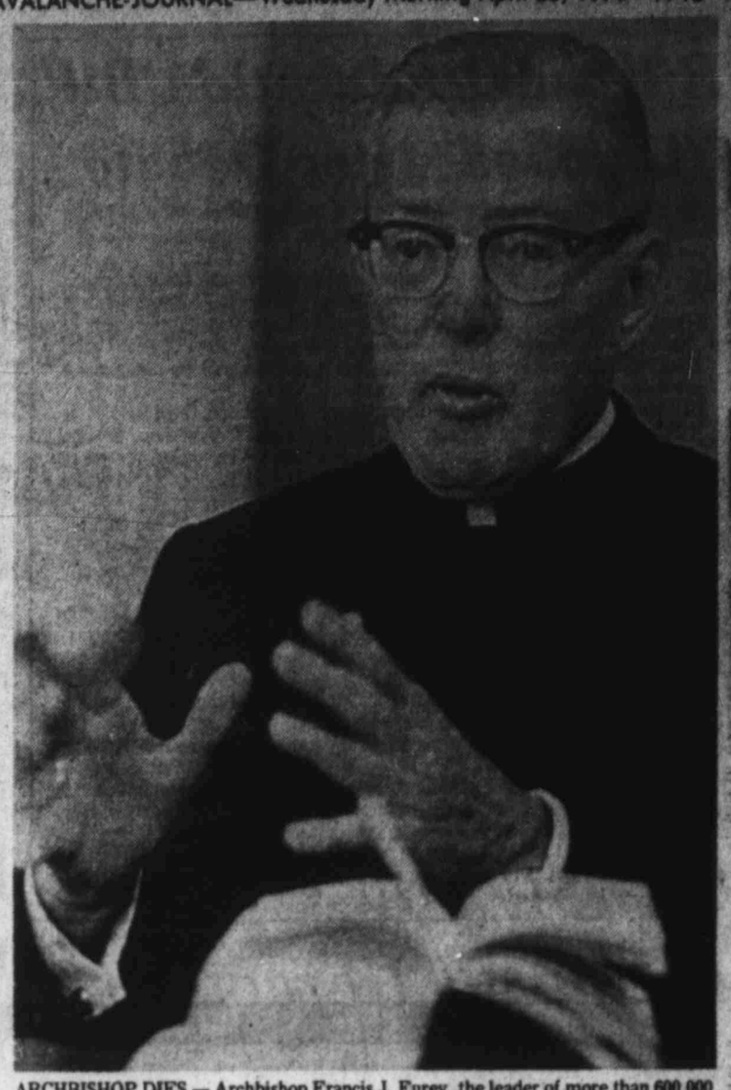

Jeffreys, owner of Southwestern Electric Supply Co. at 818 Ave. G, said that among the items stolen were two diamonds weighing more than a carat a piece and valued at $8,000 each. Other property reported stolen included more jewelry, a pistol, camera, gold coins, a lawnmower, and $1,000 cash.

Much of the loot reportedly was locked in a bedroom closet. The door apparently was pried open with a screwdriver.

Mrs. Jeffreys said she went to a neighbor's house to call police after seeing the broken window and back entrance open.

In other activity, three juvenile boys and two teen-agers were taken into custody about 11:20 p.m. Monday after police chased down the group's car in the 600-block of Avenue L.

The driver of the vehicle, a 16-year-old, was taken into custody for attempting to elude police; the other two juveniles, ages 15 and 16, were apprehended for allegedly breaking the city's 11 p.m. curfew on weekday nights.

Carpenter Found Guilty In Gas Station Robbery

After almost three hours of deliberation Tuesday night, a 99th District Court jury found Rayford Wayne Carpenter guilty of the Jan. 5 aggravated robbery of Al's Texaco service station.

The five-woman, seven-man panel will meet at 9 a.m. today to begin the punishment phase of Carpenter's trial.

Key testimony against the 17-year-old defendant was provided by a former Lubbock teenager, who told the court he had driven the getaway car the afternoon the station was robbed.

The "accomplice," who was arrested shortly after the robbery but never charged in the incident, said that Carpenter and another youth had met him the morning of the robbery in the parking lot of a 34th Street pool hall.

The Corpus Christi teenager told jurors Carpenter had suggested the robbery because he knew the station owner, Allen Treadwell, carried a large amount of cash in his billfold while working at the 4202 Boston Ave. station.

He said Carpenter and his companion then convinced him to drive them to the station, and he watched Carpenter assemble a sawed-off shotgun and place a toboggan cap on his head before getting out of the car and walking toward the station.

The accomplice testimony was to be introduced as identification evidence by Dist. Judge Thomas L. Clinton because the pair who robbed the station had ski masks covering their faces and Treadwell and station employee Tommy Edwards were unable to provide positive identification of the bandits.

Because state law demands that accomplice testimony alone cannot be considered by a jury, Assistant District Attorneys Mark McBride and Travis Ware also called Treadwell to the witness stand.

Treadwell told jurors that he had seen Carpenter in the station numerous times before the robbery and that shortly before the holdup, he had made change from his wallet for the teenager.

After 2 1/2 hours of deliberation, two jurors requested to hear again Treadwell's testimony that Carpenter was aware of the large amount of cash the station owner carried in his wallet.

At 7:15 p.m., 20 minutes after the court reporter read Treadwell's testimony to the jury, the guilty verdict was returned.

Forgery, Gun Charges Filed

Richard Earle Smith Jr., of 1811 Broadway, is accused of forging a $65 check April 13, in charges filed by the Criminal District Attorney's office. A $25,000 bond was recommended.

In other charges filed Tuesday Joe Savandra, 40, of Sundown was charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon into a east Fourth Street club on April 21. Police arrested Savandra that night at the Fiesta Club, 1904 E. Fourth St., after an employee of the club reported he had carried a pistol onto the premises. A $2,500 was recommended for Savandra.

Wesley Glenn York, 17, of 1312 25th St., was charged with burglary and a $2,500 bond was recommended for him.

York is charged with stealing a $300 television from April 8 from Troy Biggs' 1312 25th St. rear residence.

A $5,000 bond was recommended for Greg James Lawrence, who was charged with the April 19 theft of a stereo from Mark Fisher's 1913 Baylor St. No. 39 residence. Lawrence, 21, of 1213 48th St., was arrested by police April 23.

Timothy Dale Gould, 17, of 206 51st St. was charged with stealing a motorcycle April 16 from James Swofford. According to police reports, the motorcycle was parked in the 5400 block of Avenue D at the time of the theft, and the CDA recommended a $2,500 bond for Gould.

Tony Carrol Price, 23, of 2501-C Weber Ave. was charged with theft of $866 worth of checks from the Village Inn Pancake House. A $5,000 bond was recommended for Price.

ABC News Moves Up In Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "World News Tonight" finished second in the evening news ratings for the first time in at least five years, grabbing the No. 2 position from NBC's "Nightly News" during the week ending April 22, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC said it was the first time an ABC evening news program had finished that high under normal circumstances.

ABC News has been a consistent No. 3 in the ratings, while CBS and NBC have swapped places a number of times since the early 1950s. In the summer of 1977, ABC began to strengthen its news program, and last summer unveiled its "World News Tonight" program which replaced the New York-based anchor with anchormen in Washington, Chicago and London.

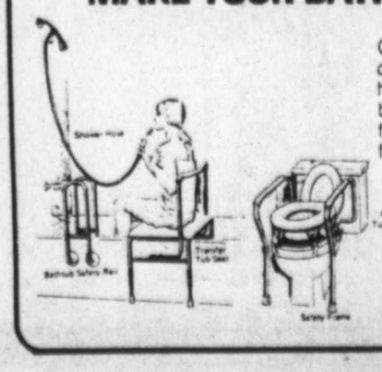

Figures for the week ending April 22 were 13.6 for CBS, 11.2 for ABC and 11.1 for NBC. Ratings measure the percentage of homes in the country with television which tune to a specific program.

Bilingual Education Bill Blocked After Debate

AUSTIN (AP) — An additional two years of bilingual education could hinder a Spanish-speaking child's abililty to learn English, a senator told his colleagues Tuesday.

"I have a lot of sympathy with bilingual education through the third grade, but it's a crime to carry it any further," said Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan. "Educators tell me they can learn it in four years, from kindergarten to third grade."

Enough senators agreed with Moore to block consideration of Sen. Carlos Truan's bill that would force school districts to add bilingual education in the fourth and fifth grades if enough children need it.

The sponsor needed 21 votes to bring up the bill, but senators voted 19-12.

"The whole purpose of the program is to help children stay in school, become fluent in English and do good in school," said Truan, D-Corpus Christi. "We're not mandating something," Truan added. "The local school district still would identify the children who need the program."

Local schools must provide access to bilingual instruction in kindergarten through the third grade if there are at least 20 children within a grade level who need it. The State Board of Education refused to extend the program in November.

Truan's bill would cost the state an additional $2 million in 1980 and $2.5 million in 1981. In addition to extending bilingual instruction, it would authorize schools to offer English improvement courses to Spanish-speaking pupils in the sixth to 12th grades.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, joined with Truan, who was then a House member, to sponsor the original bilingualeducationbills.

"In 1973, when the first bilingual program passed, it was agreed it would go through the third grade on a trial basis," Ogg said. "We've seen that kindergarten through the third grade will still not bring all of them into the mainstream."

After the vote, Truan said he will try to switch two votes and probably will ask the Senate to reconsider his bill soon.

"I thought I had 20 votes firm," he said. "I was hoping that one (of the four) Republicans would vote with me. I was hopeful that the governor's endorsement would have helped."

Cuevas Found Guilty In Hostage Death

HOUSTON (AP) — Ignacio Cuevas was convicted Tuesday of causing the death of a hostage during bloody prison siege five years ago.

IGNACIO CUEVAS

A jury of six men and six women deliberated about five hours before once again convicting the 47-year-old prison inmate of causing the death of Mrs. Julia Standley.

The jury now must decide whether Cuevas will receive life imprisonment or death by injection.

The jurors listened Tuesday to testimony they had heard previously from the hostages who had provided a human barrier as the three convicts attempted to escape from an educational building to an armored truck parked nearby.

After hearing this testimony re-read, the jurors came back quickly with a guilty verdict.

Sitting in the courtroom were Mrs. Cuevas and four young children ages 13 to nine.

When asked how many witnesses the defense would present in the punishment phase of the trial which is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday Azios said, "We'll have several witnesses. I don't know how many."

Cuevas sat impassively when the verdict was read.

Prosecutors were surprised at the quickness of the verdict.

"Whatever the question someone had on the jury apparently was answered when the testimony was read back," said Bert Graham, assistant Harris County district attorney.

Jurors, who can make no comment until after the punishment phase of the trial, were escorted from the courtroom by a sheriff's deputy immediately after their verdict was read.

Texas law provides that jurors must recommend the punishment, which in this case will be either life in prison or death by injection.

Mrs. Standley and another librarian hostage, Elizabeth Beseda, were shot to death as the three convicts that staged the 11-day siege — the longest in U.S. penal history — attempted to escape behind a movable shield of lawbooks taped around two chalkboards. Eleven handcuffed hostages formed a human protective barrier around the shield.

Two of the inmates, Fred Gomez Carrasco and Rudolpho Dominguez, were shot to death. Cuevas lived and was tried in 1975. He was convicted and sentenced to die.

After more than three years on Death Row, he was granted a new trial by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on the ground of a judicial error.

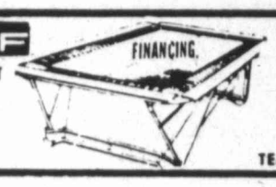

In final arguments Tuesday, defense attorney Will Gray said, "There is no evidence Cuevas shot anyone. In fact, his gun was jammed.

"And if you listened to the state's witnesses you know there is a strong feeling by these people against Cuevas. One even testified he was sorry that Cuevas wasn't killed.

Gray said, "There were 30 to 40 shots fired that night, but only a few came from the weapons" of the inmates. Who knows who shot Mrs. Standley? Who know who shot Elizabeth Beseda?

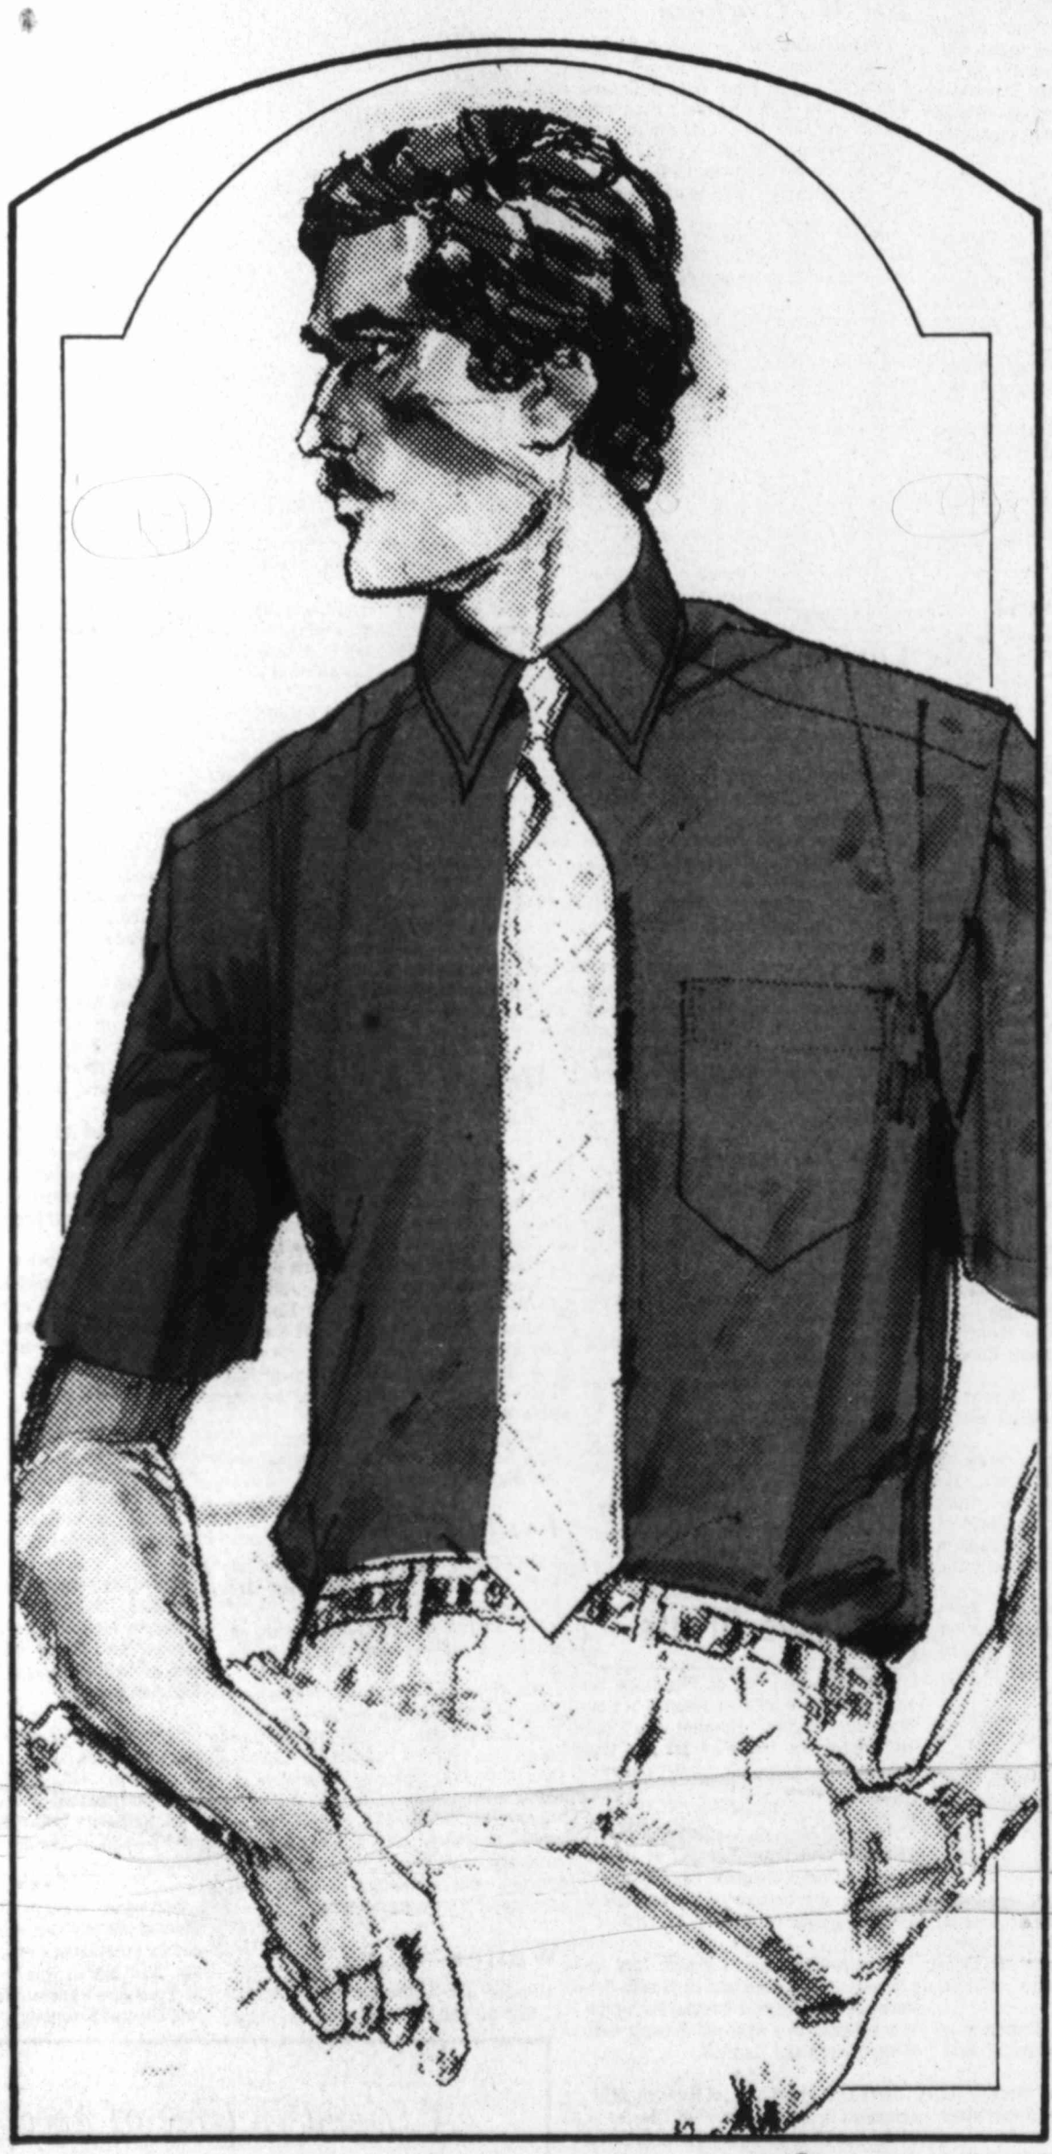

"The Texas Deprtment of Corrections over-reacted. They were embarrassed by the seige for which they had prior notice. Now the state is trying to make Ignacio Cuevas the bad guy because he was the only inmate survivor."

Awards Of $50,000 Made To Families Of Three Dead Firemen

The families of three Lubbock firemen who died from injuries suffered while fighting a blaze March 25 have been awarded, tax-free, $50,000 each from the federal government.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which allocates such money to survivors of public servants who have died in the line of duty, made the announcement Monday in Washington.

The beneficiaries are the spouses of city firemen Kenneth H. Haggard, 34; Eddie C. Swafford, 30; and Larry Dwayne Tucker, 25.

The firemen died from an apparent combination of carbon monoxide poisioning and smoke inhalation, which they suffered while fighting what was thought to have been a routine blaze at a 34th Street restaurant March 25.

Their deaths still have not been fully explained by city officials, nor the Lubbock Fire Department.

The LEAA administers the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act of 1976.

In addition, the firemen's widows will receive $20,000 each, according to Everett Davenport of the Employees' Retirement System in Austin.

A monthly payment between $200 and $400 will go to the firefighters' children, Davenport said.

Another Texas statute provides that the firemen's children be exempt from paying tuition and laborartory fee payments at any state-supported college or university they choose to attend, said Jane Innis of the Texas Coordinating Board.

Commenting on the awards, assistant city manager Jim Blagg said, "The nature and danger of their employment has been recognized by both the state and the federal government.

"I think it's appropriate that the inherent dangers of those professions be recognized and that families be compensated for the giving of their relatives' lives in the line of duty."

Teachers Want Quarterly Terms

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock public school administrators may be singing the same song, second verse, if the Texas Legislature passes a bill that would change the quarter system of operation back to the semester system.

House Bill 508, which passed in the House on April 12, would reverse a law previously passed by the legislature that required the change from the semester to the quarter system in 1975.

The House voted 118 for and 9 against, with area Reps. Froy Salinas Nolan J. "Buzz" Robnett and Pete Laney all voting "yea."

The bill is currently before the Senate Education Committee, although no hearings have been scheduled as yet.

The measure would permit schools to revert to the semester sytem as early as the fall of 1979, and would mandate the change for the the fall of 1980.

School Superintendent Ed Irons is reluctant to make another switch, but said he is aware of the advantages and disadvantages of both systems.

"I would rather have stayed with the semester system before, but now that we have the quarter system, I would hate to go through all this again. We're just now operating smoothly with the quarter system."

Irons said that, as he understands it, the reasoning behind the bill is that the quarter system "takes a good bit of time for scheduling classes — three times a year instead of twice — and there's quite a bit more grade reporting."

He said that "on the other hand, the quarter system allows more flexibility for students in scheduling more courses."

"Whatever we do," he added, "we need standardization so that everybody is doing the same thing." He explained that all schools in the state should adopt the same system to accommodate students who move from one city to another.

The primary obstacle in making the switch to the old semester operation would be in the mountain of paperwork necessitated by the change, according to administrators.

Jay Gordon, assistant superintendent for instruction, said that several forms would have to be reprinted, the curriculum guide would have to revised somewhat and computer report cards would need to be reprogrammed.

He estimated that printing costs would amount to a maximum of $25,000.

He said that there would be no noticeable difference in the elementary schools" because "they run straight through the year" without any kind of semester or quarter break.

The change would, instead, be most evident on the secondary level.

He said that the curriculum guide would have to be altered to some degree because some of the courses are "tied to" the quarter system. Administrators would have to decide whether to expand those courses into a full semester. "They would have to add a few units to expand," he said.

Academic courses, however, are almost always full year courses and would not need to be revised.

Another problem would be in the revision of transcripts. Gordon said that under the previous semester system, students could be credited with half a credit for some courses. However, under the quarter system, students had to receive either one or two quarters worth of credit. Administrators gave students the benefit of the doubt and credited them with two semesters of work for each half-credit under the old system.

He said that now, administrators will have to decide to change the credits back to half or one full credit for two quarters of work done. "If they're only given half credit, that's taking something away from them," said Gordon.

Report cards for upper level students would also have to be reprogrammed because the computer would be called on for grades only twice a year rather than three times a year.

Gordon added that hand-prepared report cards for grades K-6 would not have to be revised, because they are already distributed every six weeks and that time frame would not be affected by a quarter or semester system.

One advantage of the quarter system that would be lost upon implementation of the semester plan would be the opportunity for students to graduate in less time.

Under the quarter operation, seniors could graduate at the end of any of the four 12-week quarters. However, students would have to wait an entire semester to graduate, even if they lack only a few courses, under the proposed new plan.

Gordon also acknowledges the pros and cons of both plans, though he said he thinks the teachers will be happy to revert back to the semester system.

He said the educators would have to average grades only two times a year and they also generally feel that an 18-week course is more comprehensive than a 12-week course.

Most people within the education system are "now accustomed to working within the quarter system and see no great advantage to changing back.

"But after the work of changing back is done, we will be just as happy to get back to the semester system. It gets us back in step with the colleges and universities, which never did change to quarters."

Gordon said that any changeover in operations will have to wait until next summer, because educators will be busy completing plans for the special LEAP (Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program) during this coming summer.

Dance To Benefit Nichols Family

A benefit dance for the Robert L. Nichols family has been set for Saturday night at the Elks Lodge at 3045 Slide Road.

The Nichols family, a couple with three children, lost all its belongings when a fire destroyed their trailer home near New Deal Thursday.

The dance, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., will feature music by Mary Beth and the West Texas Travelers, a Lubbock Country and Western group. Admission is $10 per couple.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Miers, who are sponsoring the benefit, all proceeds will go to the Nichols family.

Earlier, a trust fund was established at Plains National Bank to assist the family, which lost all belongings including clothing in the fire. Their losses were not covered by insurance, a spokesman said.

Crackdown On Dissent Brings More Mundane Chinese Walls

Today's FOCUS

By The Associated Press

PEKING (AP) — The fiery posters are fading and dawn seldom breaks on fresh angry paint. But the people still come to Democracy Wall and the posters still speak. The voices are softer now, but clear.

Several weeks ago the Chinese government called a halt to the wall poster demands for human rights and to criticisms of the Communist Party. The most ferocious banners were torn down or pasted over.

Here and there are small, scrawled remnants: "Where there is suppression, there is rebellion" — from Chairman Mao. A yellowed scrap of paper carries a pink blossom and the words, "A flower for human rights."

The wall posters that survived and the occasional new arrivals are more mundane — a rambling collage of pinks, greens and whites, of gripes and pleas, snatches of biography, traces of hopes.

All are pasted on an unassuming gray wall between the Telegraph Building and a sports stadium. It faces the vast Chang An Avenue and looks back to storage sheds and a bus yard. Signs atop the wall warn: "Lock your bicycle before looking at wall posters."

In a day, thousands of people amble by. They stand silently, reading, then moving on with their clusters of coriander or bags of fresh crabs. They say nothing about what they read.

One young man near the wall said some people are afraid now to be seen at the wall, for fear of losing jobs or places in school.

The newest posters include windy political discussions that may stretch for 20 posters and poems that stretch for 10 posters. The messages may be ponderous, prosaic or poignant. There are even posters about posters.

Some writers vent their spleen on the Gang of Four or extoll Mao Tse-tung and Party Chairman Hua Guofeng (Hua Kuo-feng). One writer criticizes the forestry program of the old regime, one suggests an elaborate reform of Chinese characters.

Another advertises a new mathematical game that "teaches you to calculate, easy to grasp. Makes you think deeply." Just one yuan, says the man who stands by the poster and sells them.

Then, there are the people:

A foot-high banner in shocking pink proclaims that ex-soldiers are out of work and want to return to their homes in the city. About 10 posters from ex-armymen follow.

"I can no longer endure this misery of being a vagrant. I want to work," says one demobilized soldier in an unsigned, undated poster. "I have suffered in the cold. I have been stripped of my family."

Says another: "I was proud to be a soldier. Now to get my job back seems reasonable."

A third army veteran says he and his comrades were workers and served in the army for six years. "When our time was up, we were sent to work on farms," he says, "but we had studied military law which clearly stipulates that you are to return to where you came from."

Wang Yu Fen, a woman of the Dong Sheng Commune in Haidian District on the outskirts of Peking writes that a factory has taken her home.

In March 1976, she says, factory number 6971 unlawfully took over her house and demolished it to make way for new construction. She appeals to Hua Guofeng and the Communist Party Central Committee to investigate and solve her problems.

Yang Jung Hua of Shaanxi (Shensi) Province says that in 1974 he wanted to marry and have a family but the woman he hoped to marry was told she must undergo sterilization. She refused, he says, but the operation was performed later when she was ill.

He complains that "the law provides for free choice in marriage and no third party should intervene. The people who violate the law continue to ruin my marriage."

He says he has come to Peking and appealed to various organizations for help, but to no avail. Then, he says, he wanted to join a Buddhist group but was told it was not permitted.

"As a citizen of the People's Republic of China, I really don't know how I should go on existing," he said.

At the beginning of democracy wall near the stadium, there is a poster about a poster.

The writer says that another man cursed him when he put up his first poster, which was not described. "He told me to get out and go back to my native Hunan Province," he said. He insulted me by saying "you don't know how high is the sky or how deep is the earth.

"He told me my poster was not in conformity with what Chairman Mao says. But I say cursing and intimidation is not the correct Marxist way to struggle."

One poster criticizes the recent poster campaign and says: "Some wildly wrote and painted on Democracy Wall low and vulgar things, such as liberation of sex and setting up brothels ... They shamelessly applauded the enemy ... some bent their knee to Soviet revisionism ... Some deem it an honor to stretch out their yellow hand to shake the white hand of a foreigner."

SOLAR ORDINANCE

BRAMPTON, Ont. (AP) — The city council has adopted an ordinance requiring houses in future subdivisions to be aligned north and south to provide for optimum solar exposure. The exposure will allow houses to take advantage of solar heat through windows and provide top exposure for solar panels on roofs. The new policy's first test will be in a planned 206-unit subdivision.

By ERMA BOMBECK

We can now report that the child-proof caps on aspirin bottles are a success. The rate of headaches among adults has never been higher.

Toddlers saw the caps for what they were...a challenge to their dexterity. They regarded them much as they regarded Daddy's camera, where you twist a dial, the back falls off, and the exposed film wriggles all over the floor. And we all know what a good time they had with Daddy's camera.

The statistics are now in. In 1979, 35,000 toddlers assisted adults in getting the caps off the aspirin bottles (of this number, 15,000 of them were rent-a-toddlers who were hired by the elderly).

Sixty-five thousand adults despaired and turned to bottles with the traditional twist tops which resulted in bigger headaches.

A walloping 85,000 adults simply learned to live with pain.

The child-proof cap has been a real breakthrough in child ingenuity. I think we can do more. We used to have a small dog and when we threw him a rubber toy hermetically sealed and encased in a waterproof, airtight, permaplastic card, we would set our watch to see how many seconds it took for him to not only open the package, but to remove the whistle from the toy. That little devil worked his way down to 12 seconds.

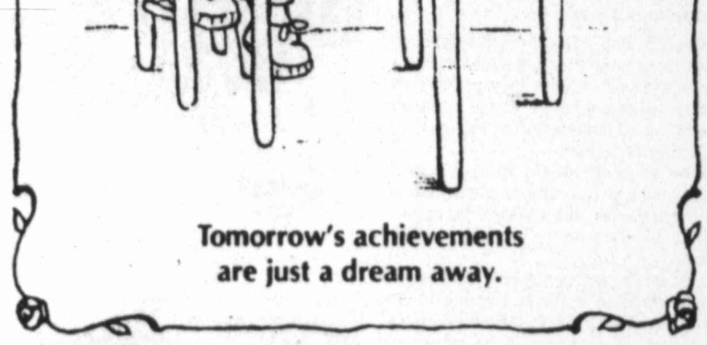

The point is, toddlers are now ready for the big time. They're ready for combs contained in plastic bubbles and lunch meat that can be opened and resealed simply by "peeling back the flap with your fingernail."

They're ready for bags of dog food that you open by simply pulling a string, and tin lids of cough drops that you open by "pressing firmly on the top with your thumb."

Maybe not today or tomorrow, but sometime soon, toddlers may be able to open bacon for us, or a canned ham with a key that breaks off halfway around. Or possibly a box of soap powder where you push your thumb in at the dotted line.

Children have brought a new meaning to all of our lives. How do you spell relief in this country? K-I-D-S!

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I overheard a conversation in a drugstore. I'd like to tell you about it in the hope you will print my letter and help somebody.

One woman was telling another about her niece. "The child is so perverse," she said. "She does everything she can think of to annoy her mother. Lately she has been pulling huge chunks of hair out of her head. My sister decided to fix that little brat once and for all. She cut some of the child's hair off with a scissors, chopped it into bits, mixed it in with her mashed potatoes and butter and made her eat it."

Ann, I was just sick. I taught school for many years and had two such little girls in my class. I knew these youngsters had emotional problems and recommended a psychologist. Both mothers cooperated and took their children for counseling. (One of the fathers went, too.) Within a few weeks the hair-pulling stopped in both instances. The youngsters' grades improved and there were no more problems.

Dear H.G.C.: I hope and pray all parents of hair-pulliing children will see your letter. This goes for eyebrow and eyelash pulling, too.

Such behavior is a symptom of anxiety, insecurity, fear or anger. These youngsters need professional help and I'm delighted you pointed out in your letter that it was highly successful in the cases of your two students. Bless you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 20 years old and would love to have a baby. My boyfriend says he likes the idea, too. We both have good jobs. Mine pays for all hospital expenses and there is a neat clause for maternity leave. It wouldn't cost my folks a penny.

The only thing that worries me is how they would take it. But then I keep telling myself I have to live for ME, not my parents. Please give us the go sign, Ann. We really want this kid. — In Love

Dear Love: Do you both want the kid enough to get married? If not, my advice is forget it. You aren't mature enough to be parents.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: Concerning the letter from "Fed Up" who asked if there are any decent men left in the world: you wanted to know what she was doing arguing with a guy in his apartment until 2:00 a.m. Well, Ann, she was probably trying to get him to drive her home.

I've been in the same boat, sometimes till 4:00 a.m. In our small town there's no such thing as taxi service and the only alternative is to hoof it. It's a long, scary hike on dark roads.

Is it wrong to expect a guy to keep his hands OFF, especially on the first date? I'm 23, attractive, intelligent, hard-working and pleasant. I've never been asked out to dinner. I've been treated to a movie exactly twice.

I hope you have a better answer for "Fed Up" before she becomes as bitter and cynical as I am. I guess the decent men must be on the other side of the moon. They're sure not here where I live. — Thoroughly Disgusted

Dear T.D.: You are 23, attractive, intelligent, hard-working and pleasant. You've never been invited to dinner by a guy and only twice to a movie? Maybe if you weren't willing to go to a man's apartment on a first date, he might take you someplace else. Try it.

• • •

Dear Ann: My wife has been accusing me of running around, which is not only crazy but impossible. I come straight home after work and never go anywhere without her. Weekends she has so many errands lined up I couldn't cheat if I wanted to.

If I go to the local police station and ask them to give me a lie detector test, will they do it? I've got to get this woman off my back. — Toledo Tom

Dear Tom: If the police spent their time giving lie tests to all the men whose wives accused them of cheating, they'd be too busy to hunt for criminals.

Carole Wirtz New TWASO President

"I could talk for three days straight on symphony orchestras and what they add to the life of the community," said Mrs. Jack Wirtz during a recent interview.

And Carole Wirtz has been doing just that during these last three days as conference chairman for the Texas Women's Association of Symphony Orchestras (TWASO) at its annual meeting held in Lubbock.

Yesterday Mrs. Wirtz was installed as the new state president of TWASO, an honor and a responsibility for this vivacious Lubbock matron.

"I just can't imagine any woman being bored!" Mrs. Wirtz said recently. "If you ever get involved, you can never get it out of your system."

And involved Mrs. Wirtz has surely been during the six years her family has lived here. This recent honor is a milestone in a busy and varied volunteer career. She is an active member of the Junior League of Lubbock, on the board of directors of the South Plains Children's Shelter, on the board of the Lubbock Symphony, a member of the ARCS Foundation, the Cultural Affairs Council, and the Women's Division of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Her major interest, however, is music. She has been on the TWASO board for five years and is a member of the Women's Council of the American Symphony Orchestra League, the national organization for groups associated with local orchestras. Mrs. Wirtz was elected 1979 conferference chairman two years ago and now assumes the presidency.

During her college years at Texas Tech University, she played the organ, piano and violin, performing on the violin with both the Amarillo and Lubbock orchestras. Now she plays only for her own enjoyment, she reports.

Other hobbies which she enjoys are ice skating, snow and water skiing, boating, swimming, fishing and tennis.

After the family moved to Lubbock in 1972, when Jack Wirtz opened a second office of his general contracting firm of Page and Wirtz Construction Company, Mrs. Wirtz immediately became an active member of the Lubbock Symphony Guild. She assisted in the restructure and reoranganizion of the Guild.

Mrs. Wirtz is proud of the many accomplihsments of TWASO-related organizations thoughout Texas. Represented at this week's meeting were groups from 22 cities with a total of more than eight thousand members. These members contribute more than 12 percent of the operating expenses of the orchestras they support.

The various guilds and leagues engage in many different fund raising activities such as charity balls, garage sales, compiling and selling cookbooks, and, like the Lubbock Guild, putting together and selling living appointment books. Of course the women also participate in the usual supportive acvitivies associated with annual membership and season tickets drives by the symphonies.

CAROLE WIRTZ

Many of the women's organizations emphasize and promote the educational possibilities of the orchestra within the community. Activities include sponsorship of youth concerts, young artists competitions, and student scholarships.

TWASO is one of only three state organizations in the nation associated with the American Symphony Orchestra League. TWASO was the idea of Mrs. Henry Miller of Dallas. She had attended the national meeting and thought that a state organization would allow for sharing of ideas among a smaller group of women. This conference is a delegated one and each organization may send delegates and alternates.

Mrs. Wirtz was anxious to have this year's TWASO meeting here in Lubbock so that many more of our local women might attend the sessions and enjoy meeting persons from across the state who are similarly involved in the work with orchestras. The many social activities asociated with the conference, as well as the general meetings and workshops, have allowed that kind of interaction to occur. Mrs. Wirtz feels our local guild has been enriched by the experiences of this week's meeting.

She is also looking forward to visiting with many of the guilds and leagues in Texas during her term as state president, and thinks she will bring home many new ideas garnered while making new friends.

The long hours of preperation for this conference (she often worked well into the wee hours of the morning making plans and arrangements during these past months) are just a prelude to the busy year she will spend as state president.

She is helped greatly by her family throughout all these responsibilities. The couple has a 14-year-old son, Erick, who has many musical interests himself.

In her dedication to the many activites of the Lubbock Symphony Guild, and now as TWASO president, Carole Wirtz is living proof of her belief that "volunteerism has its own psychic income."

Children's Problems Subject Of Meeting

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

"Runaway children don't just run away from strict curfews or rules like that. They are running away from abuse."

With this statement, Jeanette Watson of Austin, director of the Early Childhood Development Division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, described the leading problem of Texas children today. Mrs. Watson will be a speaker at today's United Way Agency Orientation Institute on Children at Reese Air Force Base. The conference is sponsored by the Community Planning Council and the Interagency Action Council.

Interviewed in Austin as she prepared to attend the conference, Mrs. Watson listed three other major problems affecting children which she feels must be faced realistically:

"Stress in the family unit resulting from such factors as divorce, changing lifestyle and unemployment is a major cause of problems," she said.

A second factor is a sizeable increase in the number of working mothers. She cited the figure that 40 percent of all Texas mothers with children under six years old are employed outside the home. This situation makes more acute the need for quality child care, the speaker indicated. "The second most important adult in a child's life is the child-care giver," she said.

Yet a third cause of problems with children is poverty and an attendant lack of health care. A 1975 survey showed that there were 24 counties in Texas which had no medical doctor. Nearly 8,000 infants born in Texas in 1977 had received no prenatal care.

In all of these areas, Mrs. Watson stressed the importance of prevention. "It is better and, in the long run, less costly to deal with these problems on a preventive basis rather than as crises later," said Mrs. Watson.

"The only way change in these areas is going to be cost-effective is through increased public awareness of the problems," she said.

Many programs presently in operation are aimed at dealing with such problems and are positive signs in the whole picture of child development, according to Mrs. Watson. She listed such programs as those teaching parenting skills, identifying handicaps in early childhood, and working with early childhood education among that category.

Also at the conference speaking as panel members on the subject of "The Child and Self" are Judy Atchison, director of Project Review, South Plains Health Systems, Inc.; Karen Meers, special education instructor in the Lubbock Independent School District; and Dr. Jeanette Jenkins, College of Home Economics, Child development, Texas Tech University.

Serving as panel members discussing "The Child and Parents" are Dr. Jeanette Coufal, College of Home Economics, Parent Education, Texas Tech; Daniel H. Benson of the Texas tech School of Law; and Claude Dollins, marriage and family counselor.

A third panel will discuss "The Child and Society." Panel members are Dr. Robert Pinder, College of Home Economics, Family Studies, Texas Tech; Mike Kelly, Drug Abuse Services of Lubbock Regional MH/MR; Lloyd Watts, administrator of Lubbock County Juvenile probation; and Drs. Ray H. Brown and Richard L. Wall, psychologists.

The contract was terrible. Not enough can be said to condemn it. North's leap to seven diamonds was unwarranted. He had learned that South had three aces, but that by itself did not guarantee 13 tricks. Fortunately, South was able to find the only winning line of play.

West's opening lead took care of one of South's problems. He now could count 12 tricks: two spades, two hearts, seven diamonds, and one club. He realized the 13th trick would have to come from a squeeze. The best squeeze chance was one known as the Vienna coup, an intricate maneuver in which declarer cashes a high card to establish a lower-ranking card for the defense which they will be squeezed out of later.

His ace of hearts covered East's king at trick one. He cashed the ace king of spades (pitching two hearts from dummy) and now made the key play of the ace of clubs — the Vienna coup. He next ran off all the diamonds.

This brought him down to a two-card ending. Dummy held the queen of clubs and a small heart. It didn't matter what East held. South held the queen-seven of hearts and poor West held his head in his hands and groaned.

He had to discard down to one heart to keep the king of clubs and the lucky slam had come home. The Vienna coup had worked because West had been dealt four hearts and the king of clubs.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is there such an ailment as catarrhal jaundice? If so, is it rare or common? What are the symptoms? Would it affect the chest and stomach? — V.S.

Some medical terms are born to die. Catarrhal jaundice is one. It came into use in the latter part of the 19th century and was still a respectable term as late as 1892 in the book, "Principles and Practice of Medicine," by the famous Sir William Osler. Until then it referred only to certain symptoms — inflammation of mucous membranes with drainage, along with yellowed skin.

When doctors got smarter they learned that the cause of the symptoms was liver infection (as in hepatitis). The old term "catarrhal jaundice" lost its meaning and "viral hepatitis" in its various forms replaced it. That's as far as I care to tread upon the ground of medical historians. You may still find some doctors who use terms such as "autumnal catarrh (for hay fever) or "vernal catarrh" (for spring allergies).

Viral hepatitis is common. Jaundice, chills, fever, loss of appetite, weakness and aches are the usual symptoms. The virus infection damages the liver cells, leading to the digestive symptoms. The damage to the liver causes improper retention of bile, which is deposited in tissues (jaundice). It usually lasts a few weeks, after which the liver returns to normal and recovery occurs. This is the type of hepatitis that may occur in epidemics since it is contagious. The treatment is rest and a nourishing diet.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I would like to learn how to live with hardening of the valve of the heart that governs the outflow of blood. My doctor advises living as usual, stressing only an afternoon nap. Is there any diet one should follow? I exercise keeping house and doing some chores outside. I am always busy with church and civic duties. I am 85 and am really fairly well except for deafness, for which I wear hearing aides. — M.L.B.

After age 70 some hardening, even calcification (calcium deposits), is common in the aortic valve. That is the one that governs the flow of blood from the heart to the aorta, the chief artery of the body. By itself this is no problem. The doctor just hears an extra sound when he listens over the area. No treatment is necessary, and you should continue as your doctor suggests. Staying active should add enjoyable years to your life.

For K.H. — "Paroxysmal ventricular tachycardia" means sudden, fast heart beats that originate in a lower chamber of the heart rather than in the upper chamber where they normally should. It is rare in normal hearts; if you have been told this is your problem, you should have a thorough examination. The rhythm disturbance is particularly dangerous in people who have serious heart disease, because it may lead to more dangerous rhythm problems.

You ask about medicine. If the heart is otherwise normal the rhythm is controlled by medicine like quinidine and propranolol. You should not have to be thumping yourself to restore proper rhythm — as you tell me you do. Have your doctor adjust your medicine to prevent attacks! It is dangerous to engage in self-diagnosis and even more so to self-prescribe. Thumping yourself is not the answer, although chest-thumping is used to restore rhythm in some emergencies.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My daughter, age 17, has pretty bad acne. She has begged me to buy a sunlamp, but I don't want to waste money on something that isn't going to help her. On the other hand, I don't want to deny her this if it is a good thing for her. Will it help? — Mrs. T.Z.

A sunlamp (ultraviolet) properly used might help acne. Rays from the sun seem to help, which is why many young girls see improvement in the summer. If you get a lamp for her, be sure you instruct her in its proper use and to observe the precautions that come with it. Youngsters easily fall into the "if a little helps a lot will help a lot" syndrome. The fact is that too much sun, from whatever source, can be worse than too little. The lamp should always be at least two feet from her, and exposures should be brief. If she has a doctor treating her he can advise as to specific exposure times.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I recently bought some lovely patterned sheets at an auction, only to discover that they are all flat, none fitted.

If memory serves, you once ran instructions in your column for making fitted sheets from flat ones. Of course, I didn't save this column because I didn't need it at the time. (Isn't that always the way?)

Could you please tell me again? — Ann Bellnor

Would be delighted, so for you and others, especially new homemakers, here's how:

The easiest way I can suggest is to run elastic through both ends of the sheet. Not the most satisfactory perhaps, but it works.

Another is to use 1/4-inch elastic, starting about six inches from the corner on the selvage side of the sheet.

Stitch the elastic onto the sheet, stretching the elastic as you sew. Make an arc or semi-circle as you go around the corners and secure the elastic about six inches from the corner on the hem end of the sheet. Do all four corners in the same way.

A more involved, but more professional-looking way, is to remove the hems at each end of the sheet. Press and trim off the corners of the sheet, rounding them slightly.

Make a 1/2-inch hem, or casing, across the end of the sheet and about 12 inches up the selvage side. (Do both ends in the same manner.)

Now, insert 1/4-inch elastic through this casing, securing the ends of the elastic well. I use approximately two yards of elastic for each end of a double bed sheet, but you can use a little less for a tighter fit, more if you have a king-size bed, for instance.

The sheet will contour beautifully and look nice besides. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For protecting small plants such as tomatoes, cabbage, or any other plants for that matter, I use ice cream tubs which are made of plastic. Cut out the bottoms and place over the plants.

These tubs can be cleaned very easily. When stacked one inside the other, they can be stored in a very small space. Not only that, they will last a 'lifetime.' — P.E.P.

Lubbock Symphony Offers Widely Varied Pops Nite Program

A-J SYMPHONY REVIEW

The Lubbock Symphony Orchestra practiced truth in advertising Monday evening, offering an extremely adventurous Pops Nite concert which earned a standing ovation. Taking a bit of a chance, the symphony featured not only its own soloists, but also vocalist John Gary, keyboardist Mac Frampton and the Continental Dancers doing disco routines.

It was no surprise that Gary and especially Frampton provided the highlights. The evening began with the orchestra performing Leroy Anderson's "Irish Suite," more specifically the "Washer Woman" segment which seems to make every day St. Patrick's Day. The St. Patrick's Day parade segued into a New Orleans street march, as the symphony, still keeping the atmosphere light and airy, went into "Fantasy On The Saints."

Dick Tolley earned high approval with his solo trumpet rendition of "The Shadow Of Your Smile," and the orchestra followed with "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" and a selection of tunes from Fred Astaire & Ginger Rogers films. Quite a few patrons were actually humming along to selections like "The Continental," "Dancing Cheek To Cheek," "The Way You Look Tonight" and "The Carioca."

John Gary's appearance was more of a nightclub than symphonic setting, thanks to the amplification. But the crowd ate it up. Unlike some guests who sing their three songs and walk away, Gary went all out and sang at least a dozen separate selections. His voice was an example of mastered tenderness, more refined than strong. And if he seemed to be holding back at first, it was obvious that Gary began to feed off Frampton's energy on stage and really gave his last few songs every bit of emotion he had stored inside.

Frampton, too, was nothing short of stupendous. Whether serving as music director or accompanist for Gary, he knew just when to be forceful and when to hold back. And his performance of "Bach Classical Gas" at the piano was a sight rarely seen, speedy, joyous and bouncing. I use the last word literally as Frampton literally bounced on his piano stool and often raised up and tickled the keyboards Jerry Lee Lewis style. It was a heck of a lead-in to intermission, and the applause didn't die down for quite some time.

Gary came back during the second portion of the show to sing songs like "Georgia," "Send In The Clowns," "I Will Leave You Softly" (a standout) and Mickey Newbury's "An American Trilogy." The latter saw him urging the audience to sing along and sparked that standing ovation.

The orchestra kept things in the pop and easy listening mold by offering a stirring rendition of "A Fifth Of Beethoven," and the evening closed with a couple disco numbers performed by the Continental Dancers. The disco numbers did not earn that same standing ovation.

But whether or not examples of disco dancing had a place on stage that evening can be debated for months. The fact remains that it WAS there, and it was extremely well performed. The work showed, and the Continental Dancers made the dances sensual, imaginative, energetic — everything good disco should be.

Extra kudos should be paid, also, to conductor William Harrod not only for his excellent direction and able reading of keys from Frampton during Gary's songs, but for his wit, which he revealed to laughter more than once during the course of the Pops Nite.

Ticket Sales Intended To Finance Anti-Crime Operations

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A major push to sell tickets for a May 3 crime symposium as a means of financing the first year of operation by the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council was announced Tuesday at the group's weekly meeting.

The symposium, which will be held at the Civic Center in separate morning and afternoon sessions, will include seminars designed to help local merchants curtail such activities as employee embezzlement and theft, bad check passing, shoplifting and deceptive trade practices.

Frank Abagnale Jr., a former con artist and master forger who has passed $2.5 million in illegal checks in six countries, will be the main speaker.

After serving time in federal prison, Abagnale now assists vulnerable businesses, both big and small, in halting white collar crimes.

"We need to sell 2,800 tickets to finance our first year of operation," said Mal Cleland, LCCPC president and Better Business Bureau director. "We've exhausted our media campaign and now it's just a question of banging on doors."

Cleland said he will be calling on local merchants and service clubs in an all-out effort to sell tickets.

"Local businessmen and merchants will be helping themselves and the community by attending the symposium," Cleland said.

The morning session will last from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the afternoon session from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tickets to each session are $10.

Hal Hensley, chief administrator of the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office and coordinator of Operation Identification, said marking pens have arrived and volunteers are ready to go when the council kicks off its campaign to mark valuable items next Tuesday.

Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford outlined to the council a list of recommendations for volunteers to follow while canvassing neighborhoods during Operation Identification.

He said volunteers have been advised not to enter homes but instead to leave markers with the homeowners to be picked up the following day.

Montford said homeowners should mark valuable items with their Texas driver's license number or Department of Public Safety ID number. Items that are too small to accommodate the whole number should be marked with the owner's initials and recorded on the inventory card which will be left at each house.

Montford read from a list of most pilferable items that his office compiled from police reports since Jan. 1, which includes bicycles, stereos, microwave ovens, camera equipment, sewing machines, lawnmowers, paintings, television sets and the like.

He said items should be marked on hard metal surfaces if possible. He added a list of items most commonly stolen also will be left with the homeowner.

Hensley pointed out that because of the amount of materials on hand it will take 20 to 25 days to complete Operation Identification in each neighborhood and that it will be early next year before the campaign is completed.

Montford said he will announce new policies concerning burglaries and bad check passing Thursday as part of his office's efforts to prosecute all such cases.

"Bad check losses are staggering in Lubbock County," Montford said. "And that is why businessmen should attend the symposium, which will outline procedures for obtaining proper identification.

"Our new policy will minimize their (merchants') losses and help get more convictions on hot checks." Montford said his office is going to start prosecuting check cases, adding he'll need to be able to identify the person wrote a bad check to do so. "We're not a collection agency."

Cleland said he has talked with a couple of members of Crime Line Inc. about a coordinated and comprehensive program of stopping crime.

"We'll see increasing promotion of our logo with that of the Crime Line Inc. one." He called LCCPC efforts "preventive medicine," while the Crime Line Inc. is a "threat after the fact."

LCCPC Chairman Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said he received a letter from the National Sheriff's Association informing him that brochures explaining burglary-proofing of homes are not available at this time.

Other council members suggested printing up handouts covering those areas to be left with the homeowners. Hensley said he would see if his office could run off a few thousand copies to be distributed by volunteers.

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Senators Duck Camps Fuss

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators refused Tuesday to get involved in a fight between the University Interscholastic League and high school athletes who want to attend private summer basketball and football training camps.

The UIL regulates extracurricular competition among state public high schools.

Under a league rule, high school students cannot attend football and basketball summer camps without losing their varsity playing eligibility. The league conducted a referendum on abolishing the rule, but results are pending.

Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, sponsored a bill that would overrule the UIL sanction. He needed 21 votes to bring the measure up for debate. Senators voted 16-14 to consider the bill.

"What has the UIL done to offend you?" Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, asked Clower.

"They haven't done anything to offend me," Clower said. "I just think this is a good piece of legislation. We could have a lot better athletes who could compete better if they were allowed to go to summer camps."

During a committee hearing, basketball coaches Abe Lemons of Texas, Sonny Allen of SMU and others testified for the bill.

"Well, I haven't heard anybody in my district that's for this bill," Moore said. "It looks to me like we're tampering with something we don't know anything about."

Reports Say Dissident Keeping High Morale

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet prisoner who passed messages to Anatoly Shcharansky inside bars of soap or shouted them through sewer pipes says the imprisoned Jewish activist is suffering excruciating headaches but his spirits are "higher than the sky."

The interview with Hillel Butman and other recently-released prisoners, held at the apartment of dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov, provided the first eyewitness account of the fate of Shcharansky and Yuri Orlov, both imprisoned last summer.

Butman, just released from Chistopol Prison, in the Ural Mountains, said Shcharansky was sentenced to 15 days in isolation in late February for passing messages.

Some notes were swung from cell to cell through barred windows in a wad of tobacco or ball of wool on a string, he said, and other times they were left in a bar of soap in the washroom.

When guard shift changes permitted, he said, water was emptied from toilet bowls and the men exchanged messages by shouting through pipes But guards seemed to foil most communications methods except one, which he declined to reveal because it was still in use.

Butman described Shcharansky as "a rather joyous man, very optimistic because he hopes, and when a man has hope he hopes and he waits and he lives."

But he said, "His physical state is not all right, first of all because of the very strong headaches he has all the time."

He also said Shcharansky is permitted few letters from his mother or his wife in Israel.

Another released prisoner, Anatoly Altman, said he became friends with Orlov in a labor camp and that he was suffering from debilitating work and was sent to an even tougher camp for hardened criminals.

The trials of Shcharansky and Orlov came at the height of a crackdown on dissidents last summer. Shcharansky, 31, was sentenced to 13 years in prisons and camps for treason.

Orlov, 55, the founder of the "Helsinki" human rights group, was sentenced to seven years in a labor camp followed by five years of internal exile for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

Butman and Altman, along with Wulf Zalmanson, Leib Khnokh and Boris Penson, all Jewish activists, were in Moscow preparing to leave the country after being released from nine years in prisons and camps for their part in a 1970 attempted hijacking of an airliner.

Supreme Court Deliberations Leaked; Printing Office Employee Loses Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger fired a typesetter from his job at the Supreme Court's print shop last week following two ABC News reports that gave premature word of court decisions, The Associated Press has learned.

Although official confirmation is being withheld, The AP learned that the firing followed a stormy confrontation in Burger's chambers, during which Burger accused the employee of "leaking" information to ABC correspondent Tim O'Brien.

The employee denied Burger's accusations.

Court spokesman Barrett McGurn refused to verify the firing, or to comment on whether the court's investigation into the apparent leaks ended with last Friday's firing.

"It is the court's belief that the public's best interest is not served by premature word of decisions," McGurn said. "You can be assured that the security of the court's deliberations has been and will continue to be of real interest to the court."

ABC reported accurately on its nationally televised evening news program April 16 that Justice Byron R. White would speak for the court's majority in an important libel case that would hand the news media a major defeat.

Two days later, the court ruled that public figures suing for libel may inquire into a journalist's "state of mind" and the editorial process that led to the allegedly libelous statement.

ABC subsequently reported that Burger will speak for the court in deciding a case from Nebraska dealing with the rights of prisoners being considered for parole. That decision has not yet been made public.

In its report on the libel case, ABC told about a discussion of the case that had taken place during one of the court's closed conferences — attended only by the nine justices.

The report said the justices' discussion became so heated that guards rushed to the conference chamber to investigate the commotion. Court sources told The AP that never occurred. O'Brien has refused to discuss how he received the information.

Court sources, who asked that they not be identified, told The AP that Burger immediately ordered an investigation of the ABC reports.

Sources said also that the 32 law clerks working for the justices never were questioned about the leaks. Apparently, the print shop and office of the court's reporter of decisions quickly became the focal point for the investigation.

Employees in both offices have access to final decisions, or parts of them, before they are released in written form.

The man fired from the court print shop, John Tucci, actually was not a court employee but works for the Government Printing Office as do most of the typesetters in the court's print shop. Tucci's future status at the GPO is uncertain.

The AP was told that Tucci was confronted by Burger and print shop supervisor Louis Cornio after being called to Burger's chambers Wednesday afternoon — two days after ABC's initial report.

Tucci was fired from the court print shop two days after that meeting, in which sources still working at the court told AP that Burger angrily waived in the air printed reports about the ABC stories.

Contacted by AP, Tucci confirmed his firing but refused to comment other than to repeat the denial made to Burger.

Such reports, leaking a decision or a particular vote before it is formally announced, are extremely rare in the 190-year history of the nation's highest court.

No one is believed to have been fired in previous cases of leaks.

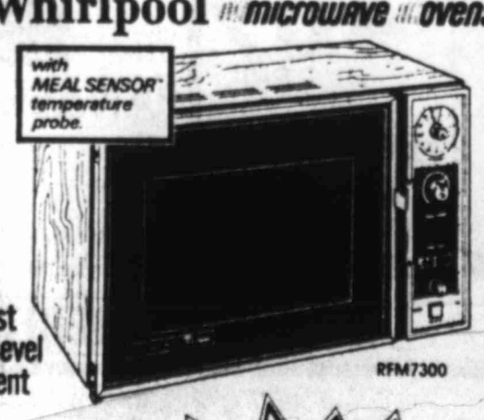

The last such purported leak came in 1977, when it was reported that the justices had voted to reject the appeal of John Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman from their Watergate cover-up convictions.

TIRE SAFETY RULES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is proposing safety regulations to protect some 330,000 workers who service potentially explosive tube-type truck, bus, trailer and other tires using multipiece wheel rims. Improper mounting of tires, defective parts or mismatched components "literally can cause the rim and wheel sections to explode apart, often resulting in death or severe injury to the worker," said Eula Bingham, head of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Bergland Rejects Meatless-Day Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland rejected calls for a consumer boycott or "meatless days" to protest high beef prices, but said Tuesday that shoppers shouldn't buy beef or anything else unless they can afford it.

"I think we who consume should buy what we can afford," he said. "There is no way to alleviate a shortage except by price."

Addressing the annual meeting of the Newspaper Farm Writers of America, Bergland said beef supplies won't increase until cattle producers finish a two or three year period of rebuilding their herds.

Until supplies increase, he said, prices will not decline and the beef that is available will have to go to those with the money to buy it.

Bergland said he tells consumers concerned about meat prices the same thing he would tell a farmer who wanted to purchase a new $65,000 tractor: "If you can't afford it, don't buy it."

Bergland's chief economist, Howard W. Hjort, told the group Monday that meat consumption in the first three months of the year apparently dropped by 1.5 pounds a person.

But consumers still are spending on meat only 4.8 percent of their after-tax income, the second smallest portion on record, so incomes must be keeping pace with prices, Hjort said.

The Agriculture Department now expects retail prices for all cuts of beef combined to average more than 20 percent higher this year than last year's record $1.82 a pound.

Cattle producers began reducing herds sharply in 1975 because of sagging market prices that government and industry economists blame on a 1973 consumer boycott, price controls and high feed prices in 1973 and 1974.

Earlier, Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., told the writers that he thought his House Agriculture Committee will approve a measure to raise grain farmers' subsidy rates this year by 7 percent.

But Bergland said the raise is neither feasible nor included in his budget and "it would most likely b defeated on he (House) floor."

Agency Impounds Contaminated Pork

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials said Tuesday they have condemned or impounded 2.9 million pounds of pork products from a Marshalltown, Iowa, meatpacking plant because they were contaminated by waste water.

Company and federal officials are still trying to locate some 100,000 pounds of fresh pork that had reached retail food stores, however.

Department officials said the meat will be safe to eat if it is cooked to an internal temperature of 170 degrees, or "well-done."

Donald L. Houston, acting administrator of the Food Safety and Quality Service, said that production resumed Monday at the Swift and Co. plant after Iowa officials declared its water supply safe.

The Center for Disease Control has reported no outbreaks of illness that could have resulted from the pork that may have been sold to consumers, Houston said.

Agency inspectors the day before noticed an unusual color and odor in the plant's water and stopped the production line until the water pipes were flushed, he said. Coliform bacteria was found in the water and all products in the plant were impounded the next day, he added.

About 1.1 million pounds of fresh pork were condemned April 20, Houston said, and will be disposed of by the firm under agency supervision, along with 400,000 pounds that were recovered from supermarkets.

Another 1.3 million pounds of cured and processed pork were impounded because the ingredients included about 300,000 pounds of contaminated meat, he said. Products found free of the bacteria will be released for the market, he said.

Bill Dillman, a spokesman in Chicago for Esmark, the holding company that owns Swift, said the firm had no comment except to point out the department's statements that "We're back in business, and we're cooperating."

Pollution Suit Tied To Tomatoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tomato grower from Ohio was charged Tuesday with polluting the air and water by disposing of waste oils and solvents containing the toxic substance PCB.

The Justice Department filed a civil suit in Cleveland against Alvin F. Laskin, owner of Laskin Greenhouse and Waste Oil Co. in Jefferson, Ohio.

The suit seeks a court order to prevent Laskin from disposing of materials containing excessive PCBs, polychlorinated byphenyls.

In the suit, the government alleged that since 1966, Laskin has burned waste oils containing PCB to provide heat to grow tomatoes in the winter and has also used the oils in connection with local contracts to spray oil on roads to hold down dust.

The department filed the suit at the request of the Environmental Protection Agency, which said that Laskin was using waste oils that contain PCBs in excess of federal standards.

The government said Laskin had burned 200,000 gallons of waste oil annually and spread 600,000 gallons on public highways each year.

The suit asks for fines of $10,000 per day for each unauthorized discharge of excessive PCBs into Cemetery Creek since Oct. 23, 1972.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

TELCOT, THE ELECTRONIC COTTON marketing system developed by the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association of Lubbock, was demonstrated Tuesday in Washington to the House Agriculture Committee and top U. S. Department of Agriculture officials.

Officials of the cooperative had a video display terminal, which was hooked into the PCCA's computer in Lubbock, in operation in the Longworth House Office Building.

Members of the House Agriculture Committee and USDA officials could see trading as it actually was occurring in Texas and Oklahoma.

Explaining the operation were L. C. Unfred of New Home, PCCA president; C. L. Boggs, general manager; and Vern Highley, secretary.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE BOB BERGLAND visited the demonstration for about an hour. He and top members of his staff originally were scheduled to stay only a few minutes.

Highley said Bergland "was really overwhelmed." The secretary, Highley said, commented that he had never seen anything like the electronic system in marketing.

Bergland was "extremely interested" in having the USDA serve as a forum to encourage the concept, Highley said, not only in cotton but also in livestock, grains and other commodities.

The secretary was interested in the way that cotton prices are posted immediately after each sale. He commented that only 1 to 3 percent of the cattle sales transactions are recorded and pointed out that this fractional volume has extensive impact on the whole cattle market.

BERGLAND BELIEVES THERE IS GREAT merit, from that aspect alone, of knowing what the market is so that producers will be able to make better marketing judgments, Highley said.

The secretary was impressed with the producer options available on Telcot — the regular offer, the firm offer, and crop contracting.

The PCCA officials were guests at a reception with the House Agriculture Committee Tuesday night and presented a slide show on Telcot.

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N. C., chairman of the House Livestock and Grains Subcommittee, participated in an earlier briefing Tuesday and led some of the discussion on how he believes the electronic marketing concept could be applied to other commodities.

ROSE BELIEVES THAT EVENTUALLY it will be possible to hook up with satellites and other forms of communications to keep farmers better informed on what is happening with other crops, developments on the foreign scene, and so on.

"The reception throughout has been quite positive," Highley said. "There have been several comments expressing surprise that so much information is available to producers using the system."

After a sale is completed, for example, the amount the individual lot of cotton has sold for is flashed on video screens throughout the Telcot network. Other farmers in gin offices throughout the region can see immediately what lots of specific qualities are bringing.

"Everybody liked that feature," Highley said. He said there also were favorable comments on options through which a farmer, for example, can either sell his cotton in a timed auction or can put a fixed price on it.

About 150 gin points now have the video display terminals on a year-around basis, not through just the most active harvesting or marketing period.

Highley said there probably will be more than 175 cooperative gins on the system next season along with about 100 or more independent gins.

More volume on the system would tend to make the cotton offered even more competitive, it was said, since there would be more buyers interested in the electronic concept.

THE WASHINGTON BRIEFING WAS ARRANGED by Reps. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Charles Stenholm of Stamford, both members of the House Ag Committee, and by Rose.

Rose saw Telcot in operation on a visit to the High Plains about three weeks ago with Barbara Schlei, administrator of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

The PCCA officials also visited with Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jim Williams, Assistant Secretary Dale Hathaway, and Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"We've been real pleased with the reception," Highley said.

Agriculture Reporter Honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas agricultural writer was named Saturday as second place winner in the "Best Farm Column" competition conducted by the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

Clark Bolt of The Waco Tribune-Herald finished runnerup to Gordon Billingsley of the Springfield (Ill.) State Journal-Register.

James V. Risser of the Des Moines Register and Tribune was named Newspaper Farm Editor of the Year for his seven-part series on the "Environmental Crisis Down on the Farm."

It was this series that won Risser this year's Pulitzer Prize for national reporting, his second. Risser, who is his newspaper's Washington bureau chief, won a Pulitzer in 1976 for reporting on the grain inspection scandals.

Fred Kiewit, farm editor of the Kansas City Star, was named runner-up in the association's annual contest for a series on agriculture in the Soviet Union.

Risser and Kiewit were judged winners in the farm news and series-running categories, respectively. They were then selected for the two top awards.

A two-way tie was judged for runnerup in the farm news category between Gay Cook of the Denver Post and Larry Nyhre of the Sioux City Iowa Journal. Second in the series-running category was Warren Wolfe of the Minneapolis Tribune.

Grain Futures

An Agriculture Department report showing heavier-than-expected soybean exports last week helped push soybean futures 7 to 13 1/2 cents higher. The reported 14.8-million-bushel exports were only half of the previous week's levels but more than expected by traders.

In a separate report, the department said domestic wheat supplies were about 1.22 billion bushels, 20 percent less than a year ago and less than expected.

Domestic soybean supplies at 871 million bushels were 3 percent above last year's levels.

Cattle Futures Down In Chicago Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 110 to 150 points lower on 24,420 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. June through April tumbled the limit after distant June also fell a like amount.

Prices were at two-week lows on aggressive liquidation following comments by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, on suspending cattle futures trade.

Reaction followed a new season's high in August. Weakness in beef added to pressure as did softer cash cattle.

There have been 485 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 109½A cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $1.50 with the best top $78.50 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $78. Slaughter was 108,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 16,200 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed the daily limit level of 150 lower across the board with most contracts sellers over. Volume was 3,636 lots.

Prices skidded to two-week lows following Rep. Smith's adverse comments on cattle futures. The market reversed course after gaining 35 in early trade.

The decline in beef at noon and lower slant to cash slaughter and feeder cattle made for additional pressure.

Deliveries total 483 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to weak with the best top $135 per hundredweight at Fort Worth. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 8,100 head.

Hog futures closed down 27 to the 150 limit, with distant June exceptionally up 2. Sales totaled 6,437 contracts.

July was at the limit after June also was down limit.

Prices fell to two-week lows after climbing 75 to one-month highs.

Higher cash hogs brought early support with later liquidation spilling over from limit losses in other meat pits. Weakness in loin prices was also a late influence.

Deliveries total 139 thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged to off ½ cent at 69½ to 75 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up 25 cents to $2 with the best top $47 per hundredweight at Sioux City. Kill was 332,000 head. About 30,500 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 25 to the 200 limit lower, led by August at the limit after May and July also posted limit loss. Volume was 4,876 cars.

President Supports Passage Of Genocide Crime Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, paying tribute to the 11 million people killed in the Holocaust, called on the Senate Tuesday to end 30 years of delay and ratify the treaty making genocide an international crime.

"Our words pale before the frightening spectacle of human evil unleashed upon the world and, before the awesomeness of the suffering involved," Carter said. He recited the statistics of "11 million innocent victims exterminated — six million of them Jews."

The official state ceremony in the rotunda of the Capitol was unprecedented in the United States and in any other country except Israel. It brought together leaders of the administration, both houses of Congress, survivors of the death camps and leaders of the Jewish community.

Their light and airy voices echoed along the old sandstone walls at the base of the soaring dome and contrasted with the sonorous chanting of a prayer offered by Cantor Isaac Goodfriend.

The seven candles of a tall brass Menorah were lit in honor of the dead, both the Jews of Europe and the millions of non Jews who died.

The Rev. Vartan Hartunian, minister of the First Armenian Church of Belmont, Mass., invoked the memories of Armenian "who perished in the first genocide of this century."

And at the end of the hour-long ceremony a Jewish rabbi recited the Kaddish, the Jewish prayer for the dead.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale told the audience that the hatred, injustice and oppression represented by the Holocaust "fester our nobler instincts like trash in a garden."

Elie Wiesel, chairman of the president's Commission on the Holocaust, spoke of being banished as a teenager with his family and the Jews of his town "to the dark and evil kingdom" of a death camp.

"What does one do with such memories of fire?" he asked. He spoke of those who were cremated as "those whose cemetery was the sky."

"The truth is that they were forgotten," Wiesel said. "The world knew and kept silence. And yet there was no hatred in the hearts of those who survived — only sadness and hope."

"To truly commemorate the victims of the Holocaust we must harness the outrage of our memories to banish all human oppression from the world," Carter said.

"I renew my call on the Senate to take a long overdue step this year by ratifying the International Treaty on the Prevention and Punishment of Genocide. Without concrete action our words are hollow."

The genocide treaty was first signed by the United States in 1949. Although many other nations have ratified it, the United States has not done so.

Speaker Outlines Religious Belief For Audience At Texas Tech Campus

The word 'religion' normally refers to a particular set of rituals and beliefs, but a Texas Tech speaker representing the Vedanta Society says his group has no doctrine other than the pursuit of truth and knowledge.

Swami Prabudhananda said at a press conference Tuesday that dialogue among individuals is the group's main source of knowledge but that the society uses tenets from Jesus Christ, Buddha and "all the great" religious figures.

He will discuss "Dehypnotizing Ourselves" at 7:30 p.m. today in the Senate Room at Texas Tech University where his appearance is sponsored by the Student Counseling Center and the philosophy department.

Materialism hypnotizes people, he said, and that creates a distance between people and fear. By dehypnotizes ourselves and opening our minds to truth, he said, "We are all one. We're all brothers. We're all sisters. Rich and poor. Black and white. Indian and American."

Wealth is acceptable, the swami said, as long as an individual doesn't have a fierce protectiveness of his possessions.

"It's that sense of clinging to possessions that brings trouble," he said, adding that learning to fight that attachment and be less selfish is a "lifetime job."

The Indian monk, who came to the United States nine years ago, said some people try to solve the problems of life through physical or psychological means but "We try to talk of problems in terms of spirituality — what we usually call God."

Even though some people may not believe in a Supreme Being, the swami said, "Who is not interested in real love? That is truth. That is God. The spirit is in you and me and everyone."

The definition of the group's name, 'Vedanta,' he said means "culmination of knowledge" and the group uses the basic principles of all religions.

"All religions are true," he said, adding that some practices of different religions may differ in details.

Although he wears the dress of an Indian monk, the swami said followers of the Vedanta Society follow no codes of dress, diet, prayer or other types of discipline. While all group members believe in the "higher values of life in general" he said individuals are free to make their own decisions on details such as whether to believe in reincarnation, and other matters.

"There are many truths," he said. He will discuss secular and spiritual freedom at 8 p.m. Thursday at the First Unitarian Church.

Vietnamese Boat People Dumped On Tiny Island

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

BIDONG ISLAND, Malaysia (AP) — It was 7 a.m. and the equatorial sun was already blazing over the horizon as Vuong Kiet Kheim scaled the hillside with his ax in hand, calling to his three oldest children to try to keep up.

Down below, the surf lapped lazily at two wide white beaches. A fringe of palm trees nodded at the waters' edge. The sparkling blue sea stretched toward the distant mainland.

But for Kheim and 30,000 other Vietnamese refugees struggling to survive on a thin, 100-acre ribbon of scrubby land, this is no tropical paradise.

With bitter humor, they have renamed it "Bidat," which means "terrible" in their language.

Until a few months ago, no one had ever lived on Bidong Island. But the Malaysian government, reluctant to let the Vietnamese "boat people" land on the coast, decided to dump them here, two hours by boat from the nearest port of Kuala Trengannu.

So on this day Kheim was struggling up the hill to chop down a few remaining stumpy trees. They can be sold for crude furniture.

The 39-year-old Chinese-Vietnamese said he paid 50 ounces of gold, all he had, for his family of eight to flee Saigon last October. His small plastics factory in Saigon was confiscated.

In the settlement below, Dr Nguyen Van Hong, 34, was picking his way along a rutted dirt path between small houses framed with rough bush timber. The houses are covered and floored with straw matting, flattened cardboard boxes and old sacks.

Hong's dispensary, which also serves as the Office of the Sanitary Services, had lost its back wall. Since no other wood was available, the wall had been ripped out the previous month to be used for the coffin of an old man who had died of asthma.

Several women with children at their feet were waiting for the doctor. One pale child was lying in a crumpled heap on the ground. Hong diagnosed the child's ailment as heptatitis and worried that it might be the start of another epidemic.

There are few toilets on the island. The people use the rocks at night, the beach at low tide, and the hillsides. As the sun gets higher, a putrid odor hangs in the air.

By mid-morning, Bidong was bustling. Carpenters were hammering the last boards of a new schoolhouse where 2,500 students will learn English.

Several American and Australian embassy officials had arrived to interview those who want to immigrate. They drew thousands of shouting applicants.

But only a few hundred from the Bidong settlement have been selected so far. Refugees who arrived earlier in other Malaysian camps have priority. Many will stay in Bidong for at least a year.

The sound of the hymn "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" being sung in Chinese drifted down from the largest refugee-built structure on the island, the Catholic church.

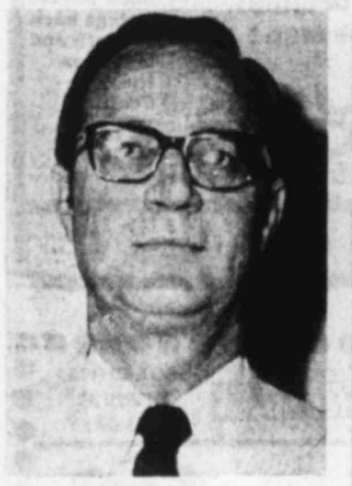

Bent branches form the walls, two roughly hewn posts support the altar, and a rough wooden cross stands on the headland outside. A khaki plastic tent covers the roof, and sugar and flour bags the walls.

The singers were a children's choir

Solon Seeking To Change List Of Legal Holidays

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston, wants to substitute Emancipation Day for Columbus Day on the list of legal state holidays.

Edwards' bill was approved 12-0 Tuesday by the House State Affairs Committee and sent to the House debate calendar.

The measure would erase the second Monday in October as an official state holiday and make June 19 a day off for Texans.

"Although President Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation on Sept. 22, 1862, slaves in Texas were not freed until June 19, 1865," Edwards said in a statement. "On that date federal troops under the command of General Gordon Granger landed at Galveston and Granger issued an eancipation proclamation which freed slaves in Texas."

There are now 12 official state holidays in Texas which gave state employees 14 days off in 1978 and 1979.

Vietnam Drama Attracts Big Audience For Network Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — "Friendly Fire" was as attractive to viewers as it was to critics, and the movie starring Carol Burnett as a mother trying to determine how her son died in Vietnam helped ABC to another runaway triumph in the networks' prime-time ratings race.

The Sunday night movie based on C.D.B. Bryan's account of an actual event, was fourth in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings for the week ending April 22, behind reruns of three ABC situation comedies, "Three's Company," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Taxi."

In fact, the movie was broadcast after ABC had declared the week of April 15 the last in the 1978-79 prime-time season. The competing networks carried the competition a week further, with little effect.

The rating for "Friendly Fire," one of three non-reruns in Nielsen's Top 10 for the week, was 25.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 25.9 percent saw at least part of the show.

Other new programs in the first 10 were from CBS, No. 6 "60 Minutes" and a special in 10th place, "The National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships."

ABC's strong showing at the top — seven of the first 10 programs — contributed to a rating for the network of 19.2. CBS was second at 18.9 and NBC third at 13.2.

The network say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.2 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC shows.

Counting 32 weeks to the season — 31 by the networks' count, since ABC began the season a week ahead of the competition and finished a week earlier — ABC finished first 27 times, including the last 15 in a row, CBS was first three times and NBC twice. NBC ran out the last 10 weeks in third place.

NBC continued to struggle in its effort to produce attractive new programs. Five limited series begun recently by NBC were among the nine least-watched shows of the week, No. 56 "Whodunnit," No. 59 "The Duke," No. 61 "Cliffhangers" and No. 62 "Highcliffe Manor."

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Three's Company," with a rating of 29.1 representing 21.7 million homes, "Laverne and Shirley," 27.4 or 20.4 million, "Taxi," 26.2 or 19.5 million, Movie-"Friendly Fire," 25.9 or 19.3 million, and "Mork and Mindy," 25.8 or 19.2 million, all ABC; "60 Minutes," 25.5 or 19 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 24.7 or 18.4 million, and "Charlie's Angels," 24.5 or 18.3 million, both ABC, and "M-A-S-H," 24.2 or 18 million, and "National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships," 23.8 or 17.7 million, both CBS.

Sentiment Makes Movie Comeback With Return Of Kid Stars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -Are kid stars coming back?

The trend toward unashamed sentiment in movies suggests that possibility. Ricky Schroder, who plays the Jackie Cooper part in the revived "The Champ," has been hailed as the best young find since — well, Jackie Cooper. Now make way for Sara Stimson.

Schroder, recently turned 9, started performing in TV commercials at 4 months. Sara, an ingenuous 6, is a total non-pro — unless you count three years of half-hearted dance lessons.

Sara is starring in the fourth version of the Damon Runyon yarn, "Little Miss Marker." The 1934 original starred Adolph Menjou as the horse player who plays reluctant father to a girl left by her real father to cover a bet with a bookie. Bob Hope repeated in the 1949 "Sorrowful Jones" and Tony Curtis in the 1963 "40 Pounds of Trouble."

"Little Miss Marker" was the star-making role for Shirley Temple. Only a film buff could tell you the names of the little girls in the remakes (Mary Jane Saunders and Claire Wilcox).

Sara's mother, Mrs. Dana Floyd, is realistic about the girl's future: "If the new picture is a big hit, then we'll have to deal with the consequences. If it isn't, then we'll just go back to our home on a hill in Texas and continue our lives as before."

The other day Sara was playing a scene with co-star Walter Matthau on the backlot of Universal Studios. The New York street had been converted to 1934 with period autos and elevated train tracks. The scene: Matthau has just told the girl her real father was dead. She refuses to believe him and hurries off through the traffic, followed by Matthau in his famous slouch.

"Cut and print!" called Walter Bernstein, directing his first film. He wrote the screenplay, which he termed "totally different from the other three versions, except for the basic premise." Also in the cast: Julie Andrews, Tony Curtis, Bob Newhart.

As co-stars often do, Matthau and Stimson retired to the mobile home he uses for a dressing room. Unlike other stars, he carried her on his shoulders. He served drinks (apple juice).

Has Sara seen Walter on the screen?

"Yes, I saw him in 'California Suite.' I thought he was very funny. Especially when he tried to get the pantyhose on the girl before his wife arrived."

After Sara went off for her required three hours of school, Matthau admitted that the girl was incredibly talented. Even her own mother is amazed: "Sara has never done anything like this before, not anything."

Now divorced, Mrs. Floyd lived with Sara and two sons in the hamlet of Helotes, working at the Veterans Administration hospital in nearby San Antonio. That's where a friend told her about hearing on the radio of an audition for little girls at the local TV station.

Mrs. Floyd took Sara as a lark. They met Liz Kiegley, a casting agent who was helping Universal conduct the "Little Miss Marker" hunt in Texas. Miss Kiegley was immediately taken by the dark-haired, shy, but bright first-grader. Sara returned to videotape a scene from the movie. She was one of eight finalists flown to Hollywood from various parts of the country.

Vietnamese Boat People Endure Harsh Lifestyle

practicing for the Sunday service that usually draws about 1,300.

At a smaller, similarly constructed building nearby, the Rev. Nguyen Xuan Bao of the Christian Reformed Church was holding classes for several hundred orphans.

Some of the orphans had hitched rides on boats, Bao said.

"Their mothers had told them, 'go play down on the beach. You might get a trip to America,'" he said.

Bao complained about the camp committee, which was elected by the captains of the 240 boats represented on the island. He said there is not enough food.

"We often exist on just one small can of rice a day," he said. "I had more rice in Vietnam."

Others concurred. An Australian doctor said not enough food is provided by United Nations and that actual shipments are often less than what was expected. Vegetables and fruit are particularly in short supply. A recent shipment of rice was found to be bad.

"The community is living on the verge of starvation," he said.

To compensate, Vietnamese entrepeneurs — using gold they brought with them — have established a black market that flourishes on the dusty main thoroughfare of the settlement.

Malaysian smugglers supply the goods, landing them in coves at the back of the island. The Vietnamese stole enough wood for a score of small rowboats that pick up the illegal merchandise at night.

Eggs costs one U.S. dollar each. Beer and soda pop sells for a dollar a can, half as much again if it's cold. Fruit, meat and toiletries are also for sale. French bread baked on the island in primitive stoves costs a dollar for two small loaves.

The few Malaysian security men on the island make only infrequent attempts to stop the trade.

With permission from the Malaysian authorities, the Vietnamese established a primitive government on the island, including a judicial system.

So in the early afternoon, Dr. Truong Buu Hoa, the camp commander, received a young couple at "city hall" where they declared themselves married.

Hoa could have provided the couple with a marriage certificate, but they didn't ask for one.

"It is not the Vietnamese way, it is the refugee way," the doctor said. "We have married 12 this way. Some of them women have been pregnant."

"They go to a flat 'lovers rock' about 600 feet up the mountainside," he said. "Or they can go to the deep water off the beach." He pointed across the distance to where several hundred people were cooling off in the sea.

In late afternoon, the refugees were reminded of their own recent trials at sea. A small fishing boat, with red eyes painted on its prow, pulled into the bay with 11 people aboard, waving to the shore. But the Malaysian authorities would not let them land immediately.

Watching them, Nguyen Phuong Lam, 33, a former interpreter for the U.S. Provost Marshall's Office, recalled his own arrival in Malaysia on the evening of January 9.

When he and 60 others landed on a the beach they were set upon by young Malaysians armed with knives. They took everyone's watches and wallets and most of the food. The Vietnamese were being pushed back into the sea when police arrived to help.

The refugees remember the pirates with even more bitterness. Mrs. Tran Thi Qui said she was on boat KG 0480 that left Soctrang on Nov. 2. They were attacked by Thai priates six times during the seven-day journey. The last band took everyone's clothes because there was nothing else left to take.

Now evening has come to Bidong. The houses are crowded, spirit lamps burn dimly. Vendors offer cakes to the few passersby. With no outside entertainment, people go to bed early.

One of them is run by former pop singer, Thanh Tuyen. Before she fled Saigon last year, she recorded a hit called "Heat Up My Revolutionary Fire, Darling."

TOMORROW: Death or Flight.

NEWLY INHABITED — This is a general view of the refugee camp on Bidong, an island eight miles off the coast of Malaysia where no one had ever lived until recently. The Malaysian government, reluctant to let Vietnamese boat people land on the coast, decided to put them on Bidong island, to hours by boat from the nearest port of Kuala Trengannu. Along the shore are the remains of some of the boats used to bring the refugees to the island. (AP Laserphoto)

JUST A TEMPORARY STOP? — Totox Tiang, foreground, is 59 years old and was a motorscooter mechanic in Vietman near Saigon. Nine members of his family were part of a group of 159 people who came on one boat to Bidong Island off Malaysia. He hopes to leave Bidong and settle in Australia. (AP Laserphoto)

Public Television Targets New Shows For School Room Use

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne, Shelley and Michael aren't happy with the meatloaf served in their school's cafeteria. When they complain, the dietitian challenges the three students to plan a more popular menu.

Michael asks classmates what they prefer for lunch, Wayne tries to determine the cafeteria's least-popular meals, and Shelley talks with the dietitian about nutrition.

The three meet later at a restaurant to discuss their findings and predict the winning menu — tacos.

The dramatized problem, carried through to solution, is one of 60 in public TV's upcoming "ThinkAbout" series, to be broadcast into thousands of fifth-and sixth-grade classrooms in this contry and Canada beginning in September.

"The objective is to help youngsters become independent learners and problem-solvers," said Shirley Gillette, director of the education division at New York's WNET, one of the participating stations.

"The belief," said Miss Gillette, "is that skills developed in the classroom will be transferred to use in everyday life."

"ThinkAbout," previewed in a closed-circuit transmission to 60 Public Broadcasting Service stations Tuesday, is the latest in a steadily increasing number of projects designed to use both prime-time and specialized programs as learning tools.

Both NBC and CBS support reading programs tied to specially selected programs, and a Chicago-based organization, Prime Time School Television, distributes curriculum units and other materials designed to draw useful information from a range of programs.

Prime Time School Television's current curriculum unit, "Television and Economics: From the Medium to the Marketplace," assumes newscasts, comedy and dramatic programs, documentaries and commercials can be an effective catalyst for teaching economic concepts.

"Kids are watching so much television anyway," said Linda M. Kahn, PTST's director of curriculum units. "They see George Jefferson as an entrepreneur and Laverne and Shirley on the production line at the brewery. Why not use these programs in a contructive way?"

In addition, Warner Cable TV recently unveiled "Nickelodeon," described by the sponsor as "the first all-day, every day, something-for-every-kid programming package ever offered for cable TV."

"ThinkAbout" is based on the assumption that children often do not relate information learned in school to real-life problems. "The program attempts to show the youngster that problem-solving skills can be used in everyday life, and not solely in the artificial classroom situation," said Miss Gillette.

Each "ThinkAbout" segment is grouped into one of 13 "program clusters," which in turn focus on a general skill — finding alternatives, estimating and approximating, giving and getting meaning, collecting information and so on.

Each program runs 15 minutes. New York's WNET, for example, will broadcast two a week during a 32-week school programming period.

Teachers helped develop "ThinkAbout," and the project includes orientation materials and guides for classroom use.

"ThinkAbout" was developed by the non-profit Agency for Instructional Television and a consortium of 35 state and provincial education agencies in the United States and Canada. Total cost of the program was $4.6 million, with about $3 million from the consortium, $1.4 million from the Corp. for Public Broadcasting for production and $200,000 from Exxon Corp. for information activities.

Camp Award Won By Tech Senior From Crane

Lisa Gallion of Crane has been presented the 1979 Earl D. Camp Award as the most outstanding graduating senior in the department of biological sciences at Texas Tech University.

Miss Gallion is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Gallion of Crane.

A $100 stipend accompanies the award which was established by the faculty to honor a former chairman of the department.

Dr. Camp, a botanist who has been a member of the Texas Tech faculty since 1945, attended the presentation ceremoney.

Architect Says Chinese Need Indoor Plumbing

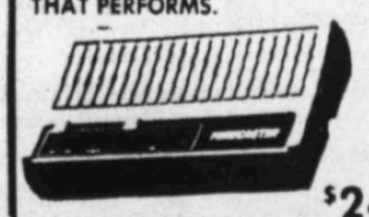

PEKING (AP) — A U.S. architect says China desperately needs mass produced buildings and indoor bathrooms before it needs fancy, modern structures.

"When the priorities call for getting a roof over your head and sanitation, let's face it, esthetics can wait," said E. Keith McPheeters, dean of the architecture school at Auburn University in Alabama.

HOPES TO JOIN HER NEWPHEW — Bxung Luz, from Mitxo, Vietnam, is 75 years old and made the voyage from Vietnam to Bidon Island in a boat that carried over 300 people. Bxung Luz and the eight members of her family who are with her hope to get to Australia where Bxung has as nephew. (AP Laserphoto)

WHY STRUGGLE TO GET TO THE TOP IN SOMEONE ELSE'S BUISNESS WHEN YOU CAN START AT THE TOP IN YOUR OWN?
If you have the required investment of $9,975.00, you can have your own highly successful business.
TWO BOOMING INDUSTRIES COMBINED INTO ONE
You will have income from two different sources, not just one. You will manufacture demand items for Banks, Savings & Loan Associations, Hospitals, Schools, Shopping Centers, Office Buildings, Retail Store, Tourist Industry, Professional Buildings, Factories, Apartment Buildings, Motels, Restaurants, City, County, State and U.S. Agencies, and other businesses too numerous to mention.
We personally install the machinery and equipment for both industries at your location. You will be thoroughly and expertly trained in both phases of factory operations (we guarantee your complete satisfaction).
The marketing of your products will be handled by company established sales outlets (no selling by you is necessary).
You will have a protected territory and each state will have a limited number of our factory operations — so be one of the first applicants in your area — act now — an unheard of opportunity to be in an exclusive business for yourself. Achieve total financial independence and become one of the top money makers in your area.

CHEVY CITATION

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG — CITY ESTIMATE 24
38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".

TEST DRIVE THE ALL NEW CHEVY CITATION.

Court Bids To Stop Treatments

BOSTON (AP) — A judge ruled Tuesday that the parents of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green must stop giving him Laetrile and have him tested for possible cyanide poisoning. The judge said the therapy was not only "ineffective," but a serious risk to the child's health.

State authorities said no attempt would be made to enforce the order on the Greens, who have fled with their son to Tijuana, Mexico, where use of Laetrile is legal.

A lawyer representing Diane and Jerry Green had been given a copy of the ruling by Judge Guy Volterra in advance and had flown to Tijuana Sunday to inform the couple of the decision.

The Greens, at a court hearing in January, had pleaded with Volterra to allow them to treat their son with natural foods, massive doses of vitamins, enzyme enemas and Laetrile, a controversial substance that is derived from a chemical found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

In his ruling, the judge ordered the Greens to stop giving their son Laetrile, doses of Vitamins A and C which exceed recommended daily allowances, and the enemas. He also said they must submit Chad to tests for cyanide poisoning.

Volterra said in his 40-page ruling that Chad is currently suffering from low-grade chronic cyanide poisoning stemming from his treatment with Laetrile. He also found that the massive dose of Vitamin A administered daily by his parents was beginning to impair his liver function.

The decision makes no attempt to take the child from the custody of his parents or to interfere with the vegeterian diet he has been following.

"I find essentially that the metabolic therapy is ineffective in the treatment of acute lymphocytic leukemia, poses a serious risk of injury to the child, and is, therefore, neither consistent with good medical practice nor in the best interests of the child," the judge said.

Because the Greens are "beyond the reach of American law," according to Assistant Massachusetts Attorney General Jonathan Brant, "the decision to return is now their decision to make."

"Chad's best interests will be served by their return," Brant said. "Otherwise, his life will be in danger. He's not getting good medical care there."

Volterra found that Chad's leukemia had been in remission for a year, following the resumption of chemotherapy treatments, and that he suffered few side effects from the treatment.

Expert testimony presented during the hearing showed that had Chad's chemotherapy not been interrupted by his parents, his chances of being cured would have been 85 percent. At present Chad's chances for a cure are 50 percent, they said.

Looking at other recent legal precedents for the use of Laetrile, Volterra said most cases involved patients who were terminally ill, a description, he said, which does not fit Chad.

Grudging Approval Seen For Carter Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's efforts to decontrol oil prices and tax windfall profits seem to be gaining grudging approval from Americans, according to many members of Congress back from their spring recess.

However, most members interviewed cited a widespread skepticism among their constituents toward both the goverment and the oil industry's performance in the energy arena.

This is mixed with a general apprehension that long lines at service stations may soon be as inevitable as $1-a-gallon prices, the lawmakers said.

"This is dominant in people's minds," said Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz. "People seem to accept decontrol. They mostly want protection against getting caught in an energy crunch that could be worse than 1973-74. There is a lot of hostility toward the oil companies."

A sampling of House and Senate members interviewed by The Associated Press suggested that rising gasoline prices and President Carter's latest energy initiatives were much on constituents' minds during the two-week congressional Easter recess.

But the president's proposed windfall profits tax seems to be scoring points with voters, many of whom view it as a way to strike back at oil companies they perceive as greedy, many lawmakers said.

"I was surprised. I didn't find as much hostility to decontrol as I thought there might be," said Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind. "But then there was a great deal of skepticism about the government's ability to manage and control oil prices anyway."

"I think there's a widespread resignation to rising gasoline prices," Sharp added. "But that doesn't mean people are happy about it. There's a negative flavor along with the resignation: you can't count on government, you can't count on oil companies."

Now most are predicting enactment of the tax, although a fierce debate is still expected on how to distribute the revenues. Carter's proposal to use the money to help poor people pay their fuel bills and to encourage mass transit is being challenged by Republicans and oil-state Democrats who want to see it "plowed back" into oil company exploration.

"My people want to see it go to finding new energy," said Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, "although it's a close question whether the people mistrust giving it to the government or to oil companies more."

"Nobody is happy with prices going up," added Brown, ranking Republican on the House energy and power subcommittee. "But I think people are beginning to understand the economics of the situation — that the price has to go up to get new supplies."

Republicans are quick to note that they were calling for oil decontrol and a windfall profits tax long before Carter proposed it — although they generally want the kind of "plow back" to the oil firms that Carter has vowed to fight.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker said in an interview that his talks with Tennessee constituents showed "a sort of weariness" on the whole subject of energy prices.

"They expect $1-a-gallon gasoline and they're indignant that they're being told that higher prices will make them use less. It won't," Baker said. "There's a general feeling that we ought to go ahead with decontrol and with the windfall profits tax."

Thus Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee and leader of a congressional move to block decontrol, cited "tremendous outrage" among his constituents over Carter's plan to lift oil price controls beginning June 1. And oil-state lawmakers said their constituents overwhemingly supported decontrol.

Conservative Sen. Orrin Hatch found his Utah constituents citing the same basic Republican line that he voices in the Senate: "There was a widespread feeling that Carter has demagogued this issue worse than any issue they have heard."

Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., sounded a common theme: "The great majority of people I talked to in Indianapolis didn't talk excess profits; they didn't talk decontrol. They suspected a conspiracy on oil supplies to keep prices up."

Millionaires Dumping Own Trash During N.Y. Apartment Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — On Park Avenue in Manhattan — where $200 suits are cheap, $10,000 cars are second-rate and $250,000 co-ops are a good deal — the natives are taking out their own garbage these days.

But they have no choice. About 25,000 apartment workers, demanding job security, went on strike Tuesday in a walkout expected to affect one million tenants in 3,000 buildings.

Martin pointed out that many affected by the strike of doormen, security guards, porters, elevator operators, handymen and other building workers were veterans of a similar 17-day walkout three years ago.

Just then a tenant came by to tell Martin to make certain that Rachel, her cook, be allowed in later in the afternoon. Another said she had a cleaning girl on the way.

Security guards were posted at each of 10 buildings surveyed in a five-block area between 61st and 66th streets. Tenants were being issued entry passes.

"Come back later. The man in charge of the building is indisposed at this time," said the temporary centurion from behind a locked gate at 620 Park Avenue.

Building manager George Sutherland said tenants like corporate executives or retirees from ITT, General Motors and General Electric — who pay as much as $2,400 per month for maintenance charges in their co-op — will gladly sign up for their share of chores.

Under the old contract, which expired last Friday, the apartment workers received $220 a week. They had been demanding a $50 wage hike and a one-year contract.

A block away from Sutherland's building, four chic matrons were in the lobby organizing "door watch, intercom and garbage patrol." A security guard stood by.

He checked identification cards and nodded OK. The women acted as if they'd received training from the FBI. "No one comes or goes without a pass," said one women.

The heavily jeweled ladies were talking strategy in preparation for a tenant meeting.

Lower Sexual Consent Age Draws Fire

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey parents, concerned about teen-age "Romeos and Juliets," are mounting a statewide petition drive to amend the state's new penal code which lowers the legal age of sexual consent to 13.

"I don't think 13-year-olds, 14-year-olds or 15-year-olds are psychologically mature enough to make a decision about sex," said Joseph Delaney, a Paramus police lieutenant, the father of three and a key mover in the attempt to retain 16 as the age of sexual consent.

Signatures are being collected on petitions at shopping centers, churches and other places where people gather, Delaney said Tuesday. The petitions will be sent to state legislators.

"I feel there is a moral issue here. I don't want to encourage our kids to be Romeos and Juliets at age 13," said Tay Miller, president of the parent-teacher organization at a Westfield junior high school. "We're talking about seventh graders. We're talking about little kids."

Mrs. Miller said the penal code would be discussed at the organization's meeting Monday. A course of action may be decided at that time, she added.

The 212-page criminal code, which takes effect Sept. 1, allows 13-year-olds to consent to sexual intercourse, providing that the partner is not a relative, guardian, or supervisor, such as an employer or a teacher.

The code also permits sexual activity between persons under 13 years old, as long as their partners are less than four years older.

Since 1975 when the state of Michigan became the first to institute reform of its rape statutes involving minors, the trend has been away from defining rape strictly on the basis of age. Factors now include the circumstances of the injury, and the age of the person committing the rape.

In Arkansas, for instance, the most serious sexual offense is defined as a person older than 18 having intercourse with a person under 11. Maryland defines rape as a sexual offense between a person less than 14 and a person at least four years older, whether the victim is male or female.

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed the code into law last August, but the public did not become aware of the buried sexual consent provision until recently.

Writers' Competition Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Five books of poetry by new American writers will be published next year as part of a new annual competition organized by novelist James Michener.

MICHNER

Competition in the 1980 National Poetry Series closed March 15.

A spokesman for Michener said it was not known how many manuscripts were submitted. Winners are expected to be announced in the fall.

Michener, whose first novel, "Tales of the South Pacific," won a Pulitzer Prize and led to 25 best sellers that include "Hawaii" and "Chesapeake," is financing the $500,000 competition with the aid of the Edward J. Piscek Foundation, Ford Foundation and Witter Byner Foundation.

Random ouse, Douleday Co., E. P. Dutton, Harper Row, and Holt, Rinehart Winston each will publish one of the winning poetry books.

'Turn Up The Satellite'

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Daryl M. Chapin, co-inventor of the solar cell, envisions a day when huge satellites 22,000 miles in space will collect the sun's energy and beam it directly to earth.

"The sun is the one atomic plant 93 million miles away that is going to be there as long as we are," he said in an interview.

The 72-year-old retired scientist predicted that solar collectors on earth and in space, and a safer form of nuclear energy, will combine in the next century to supply most of man's electrical energy needs.

It was 25 years ago Tuesday that Chapin, Gerald L. Pearson and Calvin S. Fuller demonstrated in the Bell Telephone Laboratories the world's first practical device for converting sunlight into useful electrical power.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Actor George Burns was honored as "entertainer of the century" Tuesday at the 22nd annual Show-A-Rama gathering of the film industry, a trade convention sponsored by the United Motion Picture Association.

"I'm now entertainer of the century, and if you think I made it in this century, wait 'til you catch me in the next century," said Burns, who at 83 is in the midst of a flourishing film career.

"I'll be here. I have to be here ... I'm booked," he said.

Brown Eyes Senate Seat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. says that in 1982 he'd like to run for the U.S. Senate seat held by Republican S.I. Hayakawa.

BROWN

Brown, who was 74 on Saturday and is the father of the current governor, Edmund G. Brown Jr., said in a telephone interview Monday that he hasn't discussed running for the Senate with his son — or with his wife or daughter.

"They may think I've had my day, and they're probably right," Brown said. "But that doesn't stop me from dreaming. I don't think of myself as 74."

Brown, elected governor in 1958 and defeated for a third term by Ronald Reagan in 1966, said "Age seems to be no deterrent. Hayakawa's in his seventies, too. So is Reagan. I've been attorney general and governor, and I'd like to be a U.S. senator."

Cardinal Recovering

BOSTON (AP) — Cardinal John J. Wright was reported in good condition Tuesday at Tufts New England Medical Center, where he was recovering from removal of a cataract from his left eye, according to Tufts spokesman Al Waitkus.

Celts, Bird End Talks–For Now

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics said Tuesday they have broken off negotiations for a multi-million dollar National Basketball Association contract for Indiana State star Larry Bird.

But Bird's attorney, Bob Woolf, disputed the Celtics' announcement and said he had made "a dramatically modified proposal" to Arnold "Red" Auerbach, Celtics president and general manager, during their 90-minute meeting.

"My door is always open," said Woolf. "I made a dramatic modification in an honest effort to reach a conclusion."

Bird reportedly had requested a $6 million, 6-year contract, but Woolf refused to discuss figures.

"As a result of today's meeting, we have decided to end negotiations at this time," said Auerbach.

Woolf accused Auerbach of making "implied threats and intimidation" and said he planned to meet Wednesday with the Basketball Players Association to complain for Bird, the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last year.

The two had met for the fourth time since April 11.

Woolf claimed he didn't know the talks had been broken off until he received a telephone call from The Associated Press on his return to his office from Boston Garden, the Celtics' headquarters.

"It's becoming rather bizarre," he said.

Bird reportedly wanted to become the highest paid player in the NBA when talks started two weeks ago.

At that time, Woolf said there was a "substantial gap" between his proposal and the Celtics' offer.

Woolf said he had not been in touch with the Indiana State All America who is winding up his senior year in Terre Haute.

Miller Issues Strong Warning

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, charged Tuesday that that New York Yankees would be guilty of a subterfuge if they levied an open-end fine against pitcher Rich Gossage because of a locker room fight with teammate Cliff Johnson.

Gossage, an ace right-handed reliever, will be out from six to eight weeks after surgery Sunday night to repair torn ligaments in his right thumb suffered in the altercation last Thursday night. The pitcher was released from New York University Hospital Tuesday.

According to a report that the Yankees would neither confirm nor deny, Gossage was informed in writing that he would be fined a day's pay — reportedly $1,800 — for every day he is sidelined. Miller said such an open-end fine, if it is imposed, would be a pretense or a subterfuge for docking Gossage's pay, which he said would violate the pitcher's guaranteed contract.

Miller said Gossage's six-year contract, said to be for $2.7-million, is "pretty-much air tight."

Miller indicated that grievances would be filed on behalf of Gossage and Johnson even if the fine is for a specific amount. "I can't say for certain until we know if there will be fines, and for how much," he said.

Baseball's collective bargaining agreement permits fines against players as a disciplinary measure, and allows players to challenge the fines by filing grievances.

Chaps Sweep Pokes

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

In presenting Randy Vinson the Frank Hord award at the Lubbock Christian College sports awards banquet Monday night, coach Larry Hays said the plaque went to the kind of kid who "always had a dirty uniform".

Well, if Vinson's uniform is dirty, his record is near spotless. The senior relief pitcher picked up a save as LCC dumped Hardin-Simmons 6-5 in the first game of a doubleheader; then collected his second win of the year in guiding the Chaps to a 5-4 nightcap decision.

As you could probably tell by the score, both games went down to the wire.

The Chaps pounded starter Ken McLeod for three homers and 4 scores in the third inning of the opener to take a 6-4 lead. But Hardin-Simmons didn't go down without a fight. A Jim Nelson infield single scored Steve Tietze in the top of the sixth and then, with a man on second and only one out, Hays called on Vinson to put out the fire in the seventh to save the win for Noel Delgado.

Just Like Pulling Teeth

GETTING ROBERT LEPARD to the track in Des Moines, Iowa, for Saturday's Drake Relays looks to be about as hard as — pardon the expression — pulling teeth.

And, if there is a moral to this yard, it's that athletics and academics do mix — they have to mix.

At a time when many collegians are struggling to keep nostrils above the white-caps, Lepard is bopping along with a 3.68 (of possible 4.0) grade-point average and a yearning to be a dentist.

He has an older brother in the profession and Robert has no hankering to return to the farm where he was raised ("I've eaten enough dust," says Lepard).

Robert is on a track scholarship carrying 17 semester hours of work — including an organic chemistry course which requires seven hours of classwork weekly. But, it's all in prepartion for dental school — or application for same. And the molar-miler mixture created quite a problem.

• • •

WHEN TECH WON the two-mile relay at the Texas Relays two weeks ago, up popped hopes of continuing that success. There is the Drake Relays, one of the nation's foremost track meets, and Lepard and mates sought a chance to run there.

Lepard, Greg Lautenslager, Ricky McCormick and James Mays won the two-mile and got third in the distance medley, so while coach Corky Oglesby was busy trying to round up an invitation and funds for such a trip, Lepard was thinking about this exam.

Seemed that he is scheduled to take this five-hour, national dental examination required of all persons seeking entrance to a dental school. The test is given nationwide, on the same day — very same hours — at various spots, and only reason accepted for taking it at a different time is religious.

"When we first starting talking about the trip (to Drake), Robert mentioned the exam," Oglesby recalled. "We didn't know what to do. But, I didn't think it would take too much to get it worked out."

Famous last thoughts.

• • •

FIRST, OGLESBY LEARNED there would be no way Lepard could take it early or late. Then, the coach called the head honcho of such exams in Chicago. "I don't know how many times I talked to him," observed Oglesby. "He was a great guy, but he just said there was nothing he could do."

But, Oglesby and Lepard didn't want to take no for an answer, especially after it looked as if the team could get the invitation to run.

Oglesby found that another such exam was being given in Ames, Iowa, but even that was too far from Des Moines, since

Coronado Earns Split With LHS

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Coronado baseball coach John Dudley strolled to the mound about as many times as the number of runs the Mustangs lost to Lubbock High in the first game.

However, Coronado came up with four insurance runs in the top of the seventh, and then held off a last Westerner rally to gain a split of the 4-AAAA doubleheader. Lubbock High took the first game 16-6, with Coronado grabbing the nightcap 11-8.

The split virtually ends all hopes of Lubbock High winning the second half loop crown. The Westerners' loop mark goes to 1-3, while Coronado is at 1-1. Overall, Lubbock High sports a 15-11 record, with Coronado at 17-8.

It seemed like the Mustangs were going to easily win the second game. Coronado took an 11-5 advantage into Lubbock High's last bat in the seventh.

"I was feeling mighty good at the start of the inning," said Mustang coach Dudley. "And I have to admit when we got the first two runners out, I felt even better."

So when pitcher David Rush came to the plate, the Westerners were down to their last chance.

Rush bounced the ball to Mustang third baseman Mark King for what first seemed like the final out. But the ball sailed over first baseman Jim Wells head to give Lubbock High some extra life.

Then rightfielder Oscar Lopez doubled to deep center field to bring home Rush, and the Lubbock High crowd rose to its feet to help support the rally.

However, Johnson wasn't able to put the fire for two batters. Pinch hitter Larry DeLeon surprise surprised everybody in the park by laying down a bunt along the third base line which moved Vasquez to third base.

After some strategy talks, Lubbock High coach Bart Hernandez sent Sammy Chavez to the line as the potential tying run.

But Chavez, on a check swing, chopped the ball towards the third base side of the pitcher's mound and Johnson grabbed the ball and threw to Wells two steps ahead of Chavez to end the game.

"We were able to hit the ball," said Lubbock High coach Bart Hernandez. "I bet nobody has hit Segrest (Mustang ace pitcher Gene) like we did in the first game. In the second game, we just didn't have the pitching."

The Westerners tagged Segrest for six runs before Dudley too relieved him.

"Gene's arm was a little sore," said Dudley. "He said he just couldn't go in the second game if we needed him."

Walker paced the Lubbock High scoring attack in the first game with a 3-4 showing at the plate. Lubbock High built a 15-5 lead in the fifth with six runs, but since the two coaches didn't discuss the 10-run rule prior to the start of the doubleheader, the game went the distance.

Coronado and Lubbock High will return to action Saturday in district action. The Mustangs host Hereford, while the Westerners visit Plainview.

Matadors Trip Panthers 10-1

Hector Limon hurled a three-hitter, striking out three, and Manuel Escamilla drove in 3 runs as the Estacado Matadors pummelled Dunbar 10-1 Tuesday.

The Matadors did most of the damage in the fifth when they exploded for 6 runs. Bernard Conner led off with a single, stole second and then scored on a double from Limon.

And Limon quickly came accross the plate himself as Escamilla doubled. Ken Davis followed with a walk and Micheal Sykes singled to bring a couple of more runners around. Sykes then scored on an infield error.

The win raises Estacado's district mark to 2-5 while the Panthers slipped to 0-7. Overall EHS owns a 13-13 season slate and Dunbar is 3-23.

Striking Umps Using Television To Help Broadcast Complaints

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the print press is powerful, television is titanic. So it's no surprise that the picketing umpires have brought their signs to all three national television games this season and that at least one baseball official allegedly attempted to tamper with NBC's coverage of the umpires' dispute.

"We always picket the national television game," said Richie Phillips, negotiator for the major league umpires who haven't worked this season because of a salary dispute. "We have one game to reach 25 million people, to create attention and we'll use that avenue whenever we can."

NBC has devoted nearly its entire 15-minute pregame show to the umpires' dispute in all three Saturday telecasts. Phillips says the NBC coverage has been fair, "especially when you consider that they are selling major league baseball to their sponsors."

But Bob Fishel, assistant to American League president Lee MacPhail, wants more baseball and less umpires on the pregame show. Fishel was the management spokesman on NBC's first show when MacPhail and National League president Chub Feeney were unavailable.

According to Fishel's assistant, Phyllis Merhige, Fishel was unhappy with that interview, contending that he was surprised that NBC talked to the picketing umpires as well as Phillips, leaving baseball less time to present its view. Fishel made a call to David Stern, producer of the show.

"He told me the pregame show wasn't a news show," Stern said. "He wanted to know why we kept pushing the umpires' situation. He said if they had to, they'd make phone calls to NBC management people."

Fishel was not available for comment, but the top NBC Sports executives say they haven't heard from him. Tom Villante, executive director of marketing and broadcasting for baseball, said no pressure has been exerted on NBC.

"It's their shot. They can treat it as pure baseball, or as a news thing. We have no say. All we care about is getting equal time," Villante said.

Tony Kubek, NBC's highly regarded baseball commentator, said that some of the NBC brass had considered the umpires' story a dead issue last week.

George Finkel, producer of Saturday's national TV game in Boston between the Red Sox and Kansas City, said that the umpires' situation had quieted down last week and, anyway, it wasn't the only story in baseball.

"But it's dead wrong to suggest that anybody was trying to squash the story," Finkel said.

There was, however, a possibility that picketing in Boston could impair the NBC broadcast. Kubek and Bryant Gumbel, the pregame host, considered not crossing the picket line, which would have left play-by-play announcer Joe Garagiola alone on the broadcasts.

And NBC, fearing problems, did not bring a camera outside the stadium — as it had done during the two previous weeks — to interview the picketing umpires, shooting instead from the roof of Fenway Park.

Finkel said the camera was placed on the roof because "you don't know the reaction of the cameramen."

TI Course Schedules Tourney

Cutoff point is 72 teams for the annual Treasure Island Spring Partnership Golf Tournament, to be held Thursday and Friday over the par-3 layout.

Entry fee is 40 per team, according to host pro Wilson Swinney.

Teams will be scheduled for two shotgun starts, at 5:30 p.m. and 8:30 at the lighted layout.

The team of Rex Robertson and Steve Long won the 1978 championship but is not expected to be on hand for the tournament this week.

CUBS, ASTROS RAINED OUT

Tuesday's National League game between the Chicago Cubs and the Houston Astros was postponed because of rain.

A spokesman for the Cubs said it has been requested that the game be rescheduled as part of a doubleheader July 6.

Plainsmen, Bulldogs Share Loop Lead

PLAINVIEW (Special)—Steve Coleman settled down after the second inning and drove in three runs to lead the Monterey Plainsmen past the Plainview Bulldogs in the first game of a 4-AAAA doubleheader Tuesday 10-6.

The Bulldogs, however, rebounded in the second game to gain a split of the twinbill. Plainview took the second contest 7-6.

Monterey had its chance to sweep the twinbill in the top of the seventh. The Plainsmen had the bases loaded with nobody out. However, Monterey couldn't get the run home.

The Bulldogs then went to bat with the score tied 6-6 in the bottom of the last inning and loaded the sacks with nobody out.

the team was to run on Saturday, as the exam was being concluded.

"But, the one that really helped us was Mrs. Fay Wilson over in the (Tech) testing department. With everybody's help (from Chicago on down), we found out that a national medical exam was being held at Des Moines Saturday. And, they would let Robert take it there. Only thing was that the exam was to end at 3 o'clock, and our distance medley was to run at 2:51."

• • •

ONCE AGAIN, THE phone lines crackled, and Oglesby wangled permission for Lepard to take the dental exam at the medical exam site, if he paid $50 for someone to observe him in an adjacent room and time him on the various phases of the test.

"That's what we'll do," said Lepard. "They're supposed to start at 8 in the morning and get through at 3 in the afternoon. But, they're going to let me start at 7 and get through at 2.

"I'll go to the test in my track uniform and warmups and then go straight from the exam to the track. The test site is only about a block or two from the stadium, so it won't be too hard.

"I don't think it will make that much difference, because the adrenalin will be flowing (for the exam)."

Lepard added, "I like track but this (dental career) is something I've been going to school four years for. Only about two to five percent of the people who start out make it, and I don't want to miss this exam."

Over at Brownfield, his mom and dad don't want to see him miss either. But, to them, such as struggle to mix exams and athletics is nothing new.

Seems that older brother Richard was an athlete at Abilene Christian. So, in the fall of 1975, the family drove Richard to Dallas, he spent the entire day taking a similar test, jumped in the car and drove to Commerce where ACU played East Texas State in football that night.

Local Net Rivals Eye Regionals

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Over the past couple of years, Estacado's Sammy Lovato and Dunbar's Kevin Bryant have gotten to know each other rather well.

But really they haven't had much choice— the two tennis players have completely dominated the 3-AAA boys's tennis scene for the last two seasons.

Both will be traveling to Odessa this weekend to represent the district in the Region I meeting, also for the second straight year.

Two weaks ago in Plainview Lovato and Bryant met in the singles finals of the district meet. And for the second straight year, the results were the same—Lovato defeated Bryant for the district title.

But that isn't meant to imply that the Matador netter has dominated Bryant. The Dunbar senior has beaten Lovato in three previous meetings this season.

"Sammy's a slow starter," says his coach Ralph Cox. "But he came on pretty strong later in the year. He won the Lubbock Valentine tournament and the Odessa Invitational."

In addition to Lovato, the Estacado mentor will also be taking his doubles team of Kenneth Taylor and Kennth Carr to the regional meet in Odessa. The two finishe second to a team from Borger in the district meet.

KEVIN BRYANT

SAMMY LOVATO

Taylor was also named the outstanding Estacado tennis player at the EHS all-sports banquet.

In last year's regional meet, Lovato finished third and Bryant was eliminated in the first round. (This is the first trip for Taylor and Carr.)

But the top two finishers from last year have graduated and, according to their coaches, the Lubbock singles players have a good chance of advancing to state.

"It's going to be tough," said Dunbar coach Charles Morris. "There is a kid from Monahans who's beaten Sammy (Lovato) and a kid from Vernon who's beaten Kevin (Bryant) once.

And Bryant said that he liked it that way.

"That takes the pressure off of me," he said. "But I'm going down there to win—and I think that I can."

Bryant was hampered by a sore shoulder in the latter part of the district schedule and was even forced to play underhanded for a couple of weeks. And his serve was not at it's strongest for the district meet.

"But that's no excuse for losing to Sammy in the finals," the Dunbar coach was quick to explain. "Sammy just played a heck of a match."

The Dunbar netter is back at full strength now though. And, according to his coach, that means that he will have regained his powerful serve— an important part of Bryant's game.

"He is a real consistent player," said Estacado's Cox of his star netter. "He doesn't hit the ball real hard but he doesn't make mistakes. I think he's got the best offensive lob of anybody in this area."

Regardless of how he does in this year's regionals, it is almost a sure bet that Lovato will be back there next year, since he's only a junior. But for Bryant this will be his last trip.

Niekro Sets Sights On 200th Pro Win

ATLANTA (AP) — If anyone ever devises a list of hard luck athletes, reserve a spot for Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro.

The 40-year-old Braves' righthander is closing in on a milestone, his 200th career victory — one he wants to attain in Atlanta.

"I wanted to win this 200th at home," Niekro said Monday night after another in a long line of heart-breaking losses that have filled his 16-year major league career.

"I have been thinking about that a lot over the winter and during spring training," he added. "I guess it really doesn't matter where you win it, but I'd like to win it here."

Niekro appeared to have No. 199 in the bag Monday night, owning a 2-0 six-hit shutout over the St. Louis Cardinals after eight innings, but the Redbirds tied it in the ninth and then beat Niekro 3-2 in the 10th, leaving the Braves' ace with a 1-4 record this season and a 198-175 lifetime mark.

"This one was hard to take," he said, "because I'll be pitching again Friday night (against Chicago) and I could have had a shot at my 200th at home. Now, it looks like it might come on the road. I should have two starts on our next road trip."

But, the way things have been going for Niekro, he still may have a shot at No. 200 when the Braves return home following a 6-game road trip.

In his last eight starts, including three at the end of the 1978 season, the Braves have scored only 14 runs. The string includes four shutouts by opposing hurlers.

pitch. Then, with one out, Tim Leslie and Kenny Toney knocked back-to-back, first-pitch homers. Surprisingly, hurler McLeod repented his generous ways. He went the distance and shut out the Chaps the rest of the way, holding LCC hitless.

H-SU appeared to have the edge in the nightcap as it took a 3-2 lead in the sixth. But Tommy Inman, playing his first home game since breaking his ankle against Jarvis Christian in the season's first home series, popped a solo homer in the botton of the inning to tie the score.

The Cowboys came back. Rusty Hamric knocked a double to score Rick Lewis in the top of the seventh. But again LCC refused to quit.

Richard Bowles doubled inside the third base bag, then Steve Brigante singled to center and moved to second when H-SU tried unsuccessfully to catch Bowles at the plate.

Brigante moved to third on a Leslie groundout, bringing up Toney. He blooped a high fly just right of the pitchers mound. Three players converged on it and catcher Rodney Smith and first baseman Mark Setser collided going for the ball.

Brigante streaked home but Smith rolled out of the tangle holding the ball high in his mitt. He had held on.

Inman also provided the big hit in the final inning (he finished 3-of-4 in the nightcap with a run scored and 2 RBIs).

The third hit was a sharp single to center that chased starter Wayne Norton and brought on Larry Martindale. Martindale got Doe out but Dave Hanna bounced a ground-rule double over the fence in center field.

Expos Snap Losing Streak

By The Associated Press

Ross Grimsley tossed a six-hitter and Ellis Valentine drove in two runs with a home run and a single to pace Montreal to a 5-1 victory over the San Diego Padres Tuesday, snapping a three-game Expos' losing streak.

The Expos added three runs after Valentine's leadoff homer in the second inning off San Diego starter Randy Jones, 3-2.

After Grimsley forced Parrish at third, Andre Dawson singled to drive in a run and Rodney Scott followed with an RBI-double.

BLUE JAYS 2, RANGERS 0

Toronto right-hander Dave Lemanczyk, who hadn't won a game since last July, baffled Texas on one hit — Pat Putnam's third-inning single — and the Blue Jays defeated the Rangers 2-0 Tuesday night.

The Blue Jays, winning only their second game in their last eight, touched Texas starter Steve Comer, 1-2, for two runs in the fifth inning when Al Woods walked, stole second and scored on former Ranger Roy Howell's double. Dave McKay bunted Howell to third and he scored on Rick Cerone's squeeze bunt.

METS 10, GIANTS 3

Joel Youngblood's three-run homer against Vida Blue, following a 28-minute argument over an umpires' decision, triggered the New York Mets to a 10-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday night.

Managers Joe Altobelli of the Giants and Joe Torre of the Mets both played the game under protest after a first-inning call by umpire Phil Lospitalier, one of the substitutes working during the current major league umpires' contract dispute.

ROYALS 5, WHITE SOX 0

Willie Wilson stole three bases, scored twice and made a spectacular defensive play in the fourth inning in support of Dennis Leonard's seven-hit pitching to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

Wilson bunted safely in the third inning, stole second and came around to score on two groundouts to give the Royals a 2-0 lead following Frank White's solo homer in the first.

PHILLIES 7, DODGERS 6

Relief pitcher Ron Reed doubled with two outs in the 10th inning and scored on Larry Bowa's single to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 7-6 victory over Los Angeles Tuesday night, their second straight extra-inning victory over the Dodgers.

The game was forced into extra innings when Los Angeles scored three runs in the eighth inning to wipe out a 6-3 Philadelphia lead.

INDIANS 7, TWINS 2

Andre Thornton drove in three rns with a doble and ahome run, pacing the Cleveland Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

PIRATES 9, REDS 2

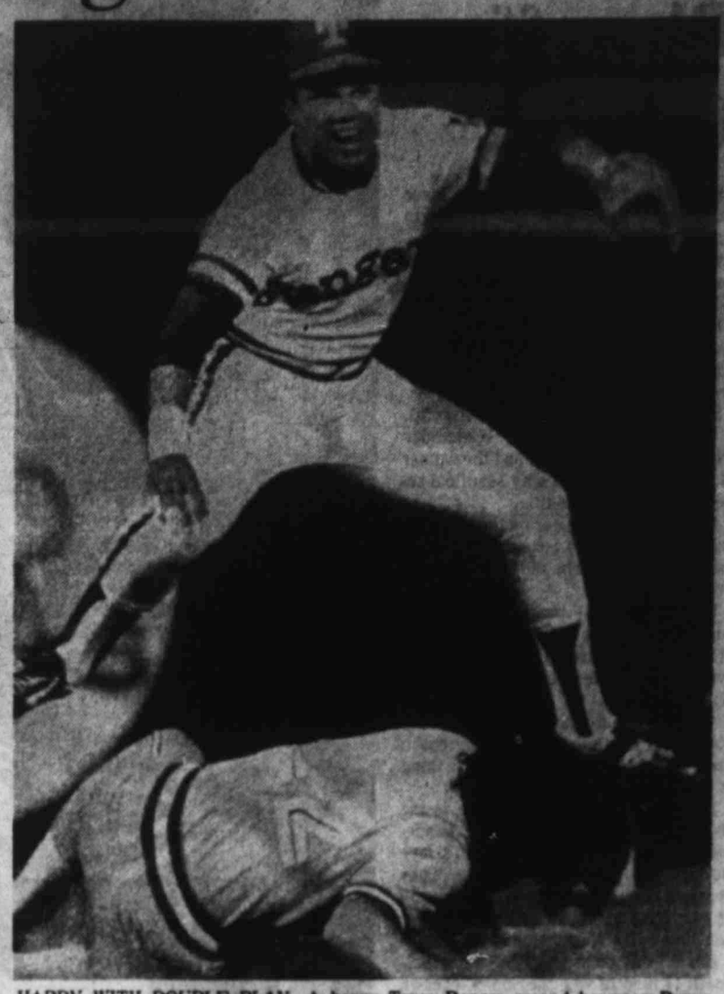

John Milner's two-run homer capped a 17-hit assault for Pittsburgh as the Pirates broke a six-game losing streak to beat the Cincinnati Reds 9-2 Tuesday night.

The Pirates jumped on last-minute starter rookie Frank Pastore for two runs in the first inning and four more in the fourth. Pastore was a last-minute choice of Manager John McNamara when Tom Seaver, who was scheduled to start for Cincinnti, complined of a lower back sprain during his pre-game warmup.

CARDS 6, BRAVES 5

Ted Simmons belted a solo home run in the 10th inning Tuesday night, giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Simmons' homer, his fourth of the year, came off reliever Gene Garver, 1-2, after two were out. The victory went to Cardinal reliever Mark Littell, 3-0, who also beat the Braves in relief in a 10-inning game Monday night.

Hawks Stay Alive In Playoffs

A-J News Service

Terry Furlow came off defense to score 21 points and his two free throws with eight seconds remaining clinched a 107-103 victory for the Atlanta Hawks over the Washington Bullets Tuesday night.

The come-from-behind victory kept the Hawks alive in the National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoffs, which resume in Atlanta Thursday night with Washington leading the best-of-seven series 3-2.

Washington, led by Elvin Hayes with 26 points and Bobby Dandridge with 24, rallied from a nine-point deficit in the final 6½ minutes and pulled to within 105-103 with 23 seconds left when Dandridge sank one of two free throws.

Rangers Set For Next Step

By The Associated Press

Walt Tkaczuk scored two goals and two assists Tuesday night as the New York Rangers beat the Philadelphia Flyers 8-3 in Philadelphia and advanced into the semifinal round of the National Hockey League playoffs.

The series clinching victory wasn't exactly easy for the Rangers, who after building a 5-0 lead with 10:37 remaining in the game, gave up three goals as the Flyers threw everything at them but the bench. But New York's Carol Vadnais and Ed Johnstone each scored in a one-minute span to cut short Philadelphia's late surge.

It was the sixth win of the playoffs for Rangers' goalie John Davidson. In the five games against the Flyers, Davidson allowed just eight goals on 154 Philadelphia shots.

Ron Greschner's power-play goal started the Rangers to their first semifinal appearance since they lost to the Flyers in 1974, with a 20-footer off a pass by Phil Esposito at 9:55 of the first period.

LA Faces Playoff Ousting

SEATTLE (AP) — The first of three chances for the Seattle SuperSonics to wrap up their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Los Angeles Lakers comes tonight in the cozy Seattle Coliseum.

Home of the Sonics for their first 11 seasons, the 14,098-seat Coliseum will house Game 5 of the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series.

Seattle leads the hard-fought series 3-1. A victory over the Lakers Wednesday would send the Sonics against the winner of the Phoenix-Kansas City semifinal series for the conference title.

A baseball game featuring the Mariners and the Boston Red Sox has booked up the Kingdome, where the Sonics moved this season.

The Sonics had attracted 10 straight Kingdome crowds of over 20,000 fans. Moving to the Coliseum for Game 5, however, doesn't bother Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens.

"The noise our fans made at the Kingdome was fantastic," the Sonic coach said. "We're going to have the same thing in the Coliseum."

The Sonics have a one game losing streak in the Coliseum, where pandemonium reigned during the team's race through the playoffs last season. They dropped the seventh and deciding game of the NBA championship series there last June to the Washington Bullets.

The last of the 4,500 tickets available to the general public for Wednesday night's game was sold before noon Monday, about three hours after ticket windows were opened for business. The sellout guarantees a live television broadcast in the Seattle area.

Seattle has experienced three nail-biting finishes in a row against the Lakers, escaping with two victories. The Sonics have outscored the Lakers by just 12 points in the series' four games.

Los Angeles Coach Jerry West said he plans no major shakeups for Game 5, although he recognizes "two obvious differences" between the two teams — rebounding and the inability of the Lakers' backcourt to stop Seattle guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson.

Sixers Eye Showdown With SA

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It may be Fiesta Week in San Antonio, but the Philadelphia 76ers are not in any mood to celebrate.

Shell-shocked Philadelphia trails the sizzling San Antonio Spurs 3-1 in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series, which moves to Texas on Thursday for game five.

But Coach Billy Cunningham, who gave the 76ers the day off Monday while he tried to solve the riddle of the Spurs, said he's not about to hoist a white flag.

"If we win down there Thursday, it's going to be a seven-game series. And I'll tell you one thing — we won't quit.

"The biggest problem we've had, as far as I can figure, is that we haven't been able to hold them to one shot," he said.

"I don't know why we don't do a better job. Especially in the first half. We were playing the kind of defense where you stay with your own man. I can't explain it," Cunningham said.

Julius Erving, who was 1-for-6 in the first half of the Sixers' 115-112 loss Sunday, said afterward his team wasn't going to change its game much.

"We're not going make any radical changes. We've got to go with a consistent plan of attack that we know we have within us and just make the ball drop.

"We have to hold them to only one shot the next game because they shoot the ball exceptionally well in their building," Erving said. "We have to play with greater intensity but the intensity level tends to rise anyway as the games get big. It can't get any bigger for us.

"We got outplayed Sunday, simple as that. The next time we might outplay them. Even though it's an uphill battle, our guys haven't given up. They'll have to win it from us. We'll just have to take 'em one step at a time. We've won twice down there during the regular season...so it's not impossible."

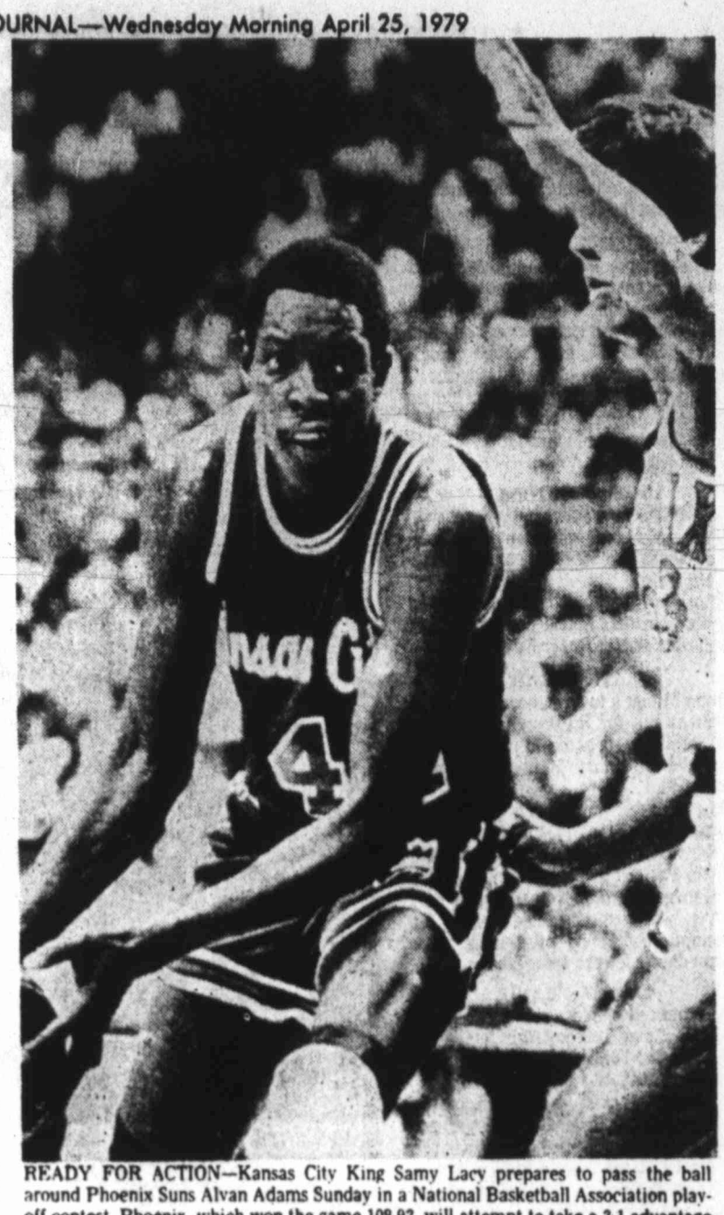

The Spurs punctuated their last victory by hiding Ervng to just four points during the first three quarters. Among the 76ers' starters, only rookie guard Maurice Cheeks, who tallied 33 points, left an impression on Spurs coach Doug Moe.

"He was the only guy I was really concerned with," Moe said. "He really hurt us — did everything from leading the break to scoring on offensive rebounds."

MacLeod's Key Strategy Helps Suns Defeat KC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A key strategy devised by Phoenix Coach John MacLeod is looking like a stroke of genius as the Suns, leading 2-1, prepare for game four here tonight in their best-of-seven playoff series against Kansas City.

Play-making guard Phil Ford, who was spectacular when the Suns last stopped in Kansas City during the regular National Basketball Association season, is 8-for-35 from the field in the first three playoff games.

A great penetrator and supreme ballhandler, the rookie from North Carolina collected 22 points and handed out 21 assists on eb. 23 whn the Kings downed the Suns in Kansas City, 121-112. But during the playoffs he's ben constantly befuddled as the Suns sag off on defense and make him take the outside shot. The first encounter, which the Sunswon in Phoenix, he was 3-for-17. Sunday in Phoenix when the Suns cruised to a 108-93 victory, he was 1-for-7.

Guessing right, the Suns figured that making Ford shoot the jumper would slow the tempo of Kansas City's fast-break offense. When Ford's jumpers don't fall the Kings seem to be taken out of their game.

"Phil hasn't had a good game yet," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "And we're not the same team when Phil's off his game."

"It seems like the roof has fallen in," says Ford. "It kind of shocks you when you go down court and find yourself that wide open. I've never been played that way in my life. And when the shots don't go down you begin to think about it more."

"When you start out 3-of-17 like Phil did in the first game it's like a golfer who begins bogey, bogey," said Fitzsimmons. "It gets very difficult to dig yourself out of a hole."

But Fitzsimons, who took the Kings from last place to first place in his first year at the helm, has figured out the perfect counter measure.

"Phil will come out one game and hit his first three jumpers and the Suns will have to change their defense," he predicted.

The Suns haven't been clicking on all cylinders themselves. Paul Westphal, their most consistent scorer during the regular season, is having a miserable series. In Sunday's contest he contributed only two points, his lowest total since joining the team.

"We knew before we played in Kansas City that they were a whale of a club," said MacLeod. "There's a lot of character on their ball club. You take a look at what they did, the way they finished. They made the big stretch drive."

The series shifts to Phoenix for game five on Friday.

O'Brien Tells Group Not To Write NBA's Obituary

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — "This is not a dying sport," Commissioner Larry O'Brien said of the National Basketball Association Tuesday, but he conceded there is trouble in three key cities.

O'Brien told Associated Press sports editors from New England and upstate New York that declining television ratings pose a problem for the league, especially because teams in New York, Chicago, and Boston — prime media centers — were weak last season.

O'Brien also speculated that the sport may be oversaturated on television because cable TV makes 200 to 250 games available to some viewers each season.

Nevertheless, O'Brien predicted "worldwide international competition" for the NBA five years after the next round of expansion in 1980-81, when two unspecified American cities will be added. He also reported that officials of the New Orleans Jazz franchise are talking about moving the team to Salt Lake City.

O'Brien told the annual meeting of the regional sports editors that the NBA "needs winning teams in strategic Nielson (ratings) cities, New York, Chicago, and Boston." But he insisted the league will not take special steps to help improve those franchises, adding that a comeback by the Knicks, Bulls, and Celtics will come about because of sound local management.

O'Brien did say, however, that the future of the Boston Celtics — once the NBA's dominant team — depends in part on improvements at Boston Garden or a move to a new facility.

"I am very concerned with the conditions at Boston Garden,' he sai. "It doesn't measure up as a sports arena."

The Celtics had to ask the league to move the site of the 1980 NBA All-Star Game because of obstructed views from many seats and the generally poor physical plant. Celtics owner Harry Mangurian is investigating building a baketball arena outside Boston with private capital, while the owners of the Boston Garden — the corporation that owns the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League — is considering a multi-million dollar renovation of the 15-year-old facility.

"I don't understand what's going on up there. The arena (Boston Garden) is not up to par and something has got to be done," O'Brien said. In general, however, the commissioner said that the NBA "has lived up to its billings as the sport of the 1970s ... but not in media centers."

Conceding that NBA television ratings have declined, he said, however, that the league is competitive, color-blind, and violence-free. "The league," said O'Brien, completing his fourth season on the job, "is in its most stable financial condition in its 33-year history."

Ryan Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Nolan Ryan of the California Angels was named American League player of the week Tuesday for an effort that included two victories, one a shutout and the other a flirtation with a no-hitter. Ryan went the distance in blanking Minnesota 6-0, and pitched no-hit ball for 71-3 innings against Oakland in a game California won 13-1.

In the April 16-22 span covered by the award given by the league, Ryan pitched 162-3 innings, allowed five hits and only one earned run. He struck out 22, 12 in one game, and boosted his career total for 10 or more strikeout games to 121, a major league record.

Stock Rally Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market chalked up its third gain in a row Tuesday with a brisk advance paced by oil issues and other stocks reponding to favorable earnings reports.

Analysts said recent declines in some key short-term interest rates also contributed to the gain.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 10 points at its mid-day peak, closed at 866.86, plus-6.76 for the day.

Among oil issues which have posted first-quarter earnings gains since the start of the week, Exxon was up ⅞ at 53⅛ as of the 4 p.m. close in New York; Texaco rose ⅝ to 26¾; Standard Oil (Indiana) added ⅜ to 62 ⅝ Shell Oil 1½ to 41¾, and Cities Service 2⅛ to 65⅛.

Strong quarterly profit figures also prompted gains in such big-name stocks as Xerox, up ¾ at 57⅞; INA, up 1 at 44⅞; Bethlehem Steel, ahead ⅛ at 23½, and Pittston, up ⅜ at 20½

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Transportation Secretary Sends Airport Bill To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams sent Congress Tuesday a $6.6 billion bill to improve the nation's airport and airway safety system for the five years beginning Oct. 1, 1980.

The funds, more than double the amount spent on such programs in the last decade, are needed, Adams said, because "the country is experiencing dramatic growth in air transportation as a result of airline deregulation."

The plan would shift much of the burden of paying for maintenance and operation of the system from the general taxpayer to those who use it — particularly to owners of private and small business planes.

Taxpayers also would get a break because about $8 billion would be shifted from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund in the five years to help pay for maintenance and operation. After 10 years, the fund would no longer exist. These costs currently are paid from general tax funds.

Goals of the program include:

—Reducing congestion and delays at the largest airports by stimulating the development of new and expanded satellite airports. This would be financed from a total of $4 billion in airport improvement grants.

—Substantially increasing funds for improvement of air traffic control towers, instrument landing systems, radars and navigation aids. A total of $2.1 billion is alloted for these such measures.

—Five-year expenditure of $500 million for research into advanced safety systems. The amount being spent this year is $75 million.

—Cutting down on the impact of aircraft noise by permitting the use of airport grants to soundproof schools, hospitals and public health facilities near airports.

—Assuring that airport owners and operators offer access on reasonably competitive terms to all persons who seek to use their facilities.

The legislation calls for a 10-year extension of existing aviation user taxes, with the 7 cents per gallon tax on fuel replaced by a tax of 10 percent on the retail price of the fuel, and a new tax of 6 percent levied on the sale of new aircraft and avionics for use in non-commercial planes.

"This is not an anti-business or anti-general aviation bill," said Langhorne Bond, administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration. "We feel only that they should pay their fair share."

The users of commercial air service currently pay about 90 percent of the cost of airways services provided them by the FAA, while the comparable figure for general aviation ranges from 14 to 25 percent.

The agency estimated that under the proposed tax plan, it would recover from commercial users 95 percent of the cost of service provided, while general aviation would be paying between 24 and 44 percent of its costs.

Bond said the bill represents what he considers the best consensus of the parties involved in the aviation community. But he said many of the parties aren't sure what they want and he said he would recommend that congressional hearings not be held on the measure until late this year to give everyone a chance to "think out" the proposals.

He said initial reaction of general aviation interests to the tax increase "is not favorable. I think there will be an uphill fight in Congress to pass it."

As an example of the opposition he expects, Bond held up a bumper sticker he received in the mail Tuesday from an irate flying farmer from Kansas. It read: "Impeach Langhorne Bond."

Airlines Report Lower Earnings

MIAMI (AP) — National and Eastern airlines both reported declines in first-quarter earnings Tuesday, although National said its net income had risen in the first nine months of the company's bookkeeping year.

National, target of takeover attempts by Eastern and two other carriers, reported first-quarter earnings of $5.1 million or 61 cents a share compared to $6.5 million or 77 cents a share in 1978.

Revenue for the three months was $175.6 million this year compared to $163.8 million a year ago.

E.F. Dolansky, National's president, said the quarterly earnings were lower in part because Easter and Passover travel was not included in the first quarter this year. Earnings from those holidays did count in the first quarter last year, he said.

For the first nine months of the fiscal year, Natonal's net income was $10.5 million or $1.24 a share — a 31 percent increase over the $8.1 million or 94 cents in the same period one year earlier.

Eastern, reporting to shareholders at the company's annual meeting in New York, said its first quarter net income was $13.2 million or 48 cents a share compared to last year's $19.5 million or 92 cents.

Frank Borman, Eastern chairman and president, blamed higher costs for jet fuel and harsh winter weather that disrupted operations at many airports.

He said the travel business remained strong and Eastern's operating revenue increased 13.2 percent to $661.7 million for the quarter. But that rise was outpaced by a 15 percent hike in expenses, Borman added.

The defense force of the Arab sheikdom of Dubai recently purchased a British-made snowplow to clear sand from remote roads.
