Barring school for AIDS denied

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In a statement doctors say was issued to reassure parents and schools, the American Academy of Pediatrics says there is no reason for children with AIDS to be kept out of school.

"A child should not be barred from school because of the presence of AIDS," said Dr. Martin Smith, president of the 28,000 member AAP.

"The risk of acquiring AIDS among children is low," he said, adding "There has been no instance whatever of child-to-child transmission."

The statement, Smith said, "should be one of reassurance to the school systems and parents of this country that AIDS is not a serious threat to their children."

Reagan speaks to UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Reagan, offering a "fresh start" in troubled U.S.-Soviet relations, today proposed the superpowers undertake a regional peace process in five war-torn countries.

"We must begin somewhere," Reagan declared in an address to the U.N. General Assembly, "so let us begin where there is great need and great hope."

In all five countries — Afghanistan, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Angola and Nicaragua — the president said, Marxism-Leninism is at "war with the people."

"Lives are being lost each day" because of Soviet expansion in those countries, Reagan charged. And, in each instance, he said, the conflict has spilled over into "war with their neighbors."

Reagan said the United States seeks "real peace" and, to pursue it, he intends to make the resolution of regional conflicts in Africa, Asia and Central America a "central issue" at his summit meeting Nov. 19-20 with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva, Switzerland.

The proposed regional peace talks would be initiated by the warring parties, the president said.

Once such talks would "take hold," he said, the United States and the Soviet Union would together seek lasting solutions, including a halt to foreign military intervention, curbs on the flow of arms from outside and free elections.

His speech marked the 40th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Freight hauling service request said near action

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Involved parties say they are expecting "any time now" a state hearing examiner's recommendation regarding a Waco-based freight hauling firm's attempt to begin serving routes which include Scurry County.

Central Freight Line of Waco has made application through the Texas Railroad Commission (RRC) to purchase the operating rights of Santa Fe Trail Transportation Co., an affiliate of Santa Fe Railroad.

This attempt has been opposed by two freight line companies currently operating in territory which would overlap with Central's request.

At hearings conducted by the RRC in Austin last spring, protests filed against the request were submitted by representatives of Merchants Fast Motor Lines, which currently serves Snyder and Scurry County, and the Red Arrow motor freight company, which now operates in other areas where Central Freight is attempting to operate.

At the RRC hearings, the opposing parties contended that the freight hauling needs of the area are already adequately served.

The rights Central Freight Line is attempting to purchase would allow it to haul freight up and down U.S. Hwy. 84 from Lubbock through Snyder to where 84 intersects with I-20, then to Abilene and south again to Santa Anna just south of Coleman.

In addition, the route would include the portion of U.S. Hwy. 180 which links Snyder to Lamesa.

Another portion of the route includes a short stretch of State Hwy. 36 from Abilene southeast to Commanche and a second short route from Amarillo to Fort Worth over U.S. Hwy 287.

Since a series of RRC hearings last spring, the body of evidence presented has been under the consideration of the hearing examiner.

A RRC spokesman said "the large amount of evidence offered" has caused the relatively long period between the hearings and the initial recommendation.

A spokesman for Central Freight, Ken Glaze, assistant general traffic manager, said Wednesday he expects this decision "any time now."

Once the recommendation — called a proposal for decision — is submitted, a time period of 10 weeks is estimated before the matter would come before the full RRC at one of its weekly hearings in Austin.

The proposal for decision will not finalize the action, however.

According to RRC personnel, once the recommendation is made, parties involved with both sides of the question will be allowed a period to offer comments.

The hearing examiner may then alter his recommendation based upon these comments. The examiner then makes his final proposal to the three men who serve as the Railroad Commission.

The RRC can then approve the recommendation as offered or send it back with suggested provisions.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The key to happiness is to build bridges instead of walls."

On the 9th of this month, Scurry County Peace Justice Dan Callaway married his 404th couple since he took office just over seven years ago.

The fee to be married by the JP is set during office hours, but after hours, the fee varies according to circumstances.

"Some pay $5, some never get around to paying anything and some have paid as high as $50," Callaway said.

The most unusual wedding occurred a few years ago when Callaway was asked to perform a ceremoney at a waterfall on the Jack Burney ranch.

"We had to walk over a mile to get to the waterfall, and the spring had dried up, so there wasn't any water."

For that hike, the justice of the peace got $5 from the bride's mother and a promise of some more from the groom who has since to show up.

Miller Robinson, minister at Colonial Hill, also says his fee varies and, too, leaves the fee up to the couple.

When they ask how much, Robinson tells 'em, "Just whatever you think it's worth."

One time he was asked that question by the groom and Miller told him, "Just look at your bride, see how pretty she is and you decide how much she's worth."

The groom handed him a five dollar bill. "I looked at the bride and gave him four dollars in change," the minister quipped.

Robinson was discussing the no-pass, no-play rule with other football fans in the coffee shop last week. Miller said at least one good thing has come out of the situation.

Miller told Ernest Sears, one of his members, about an idea he got from the no-pass, no play controversy. "We're going to enforce the no-pay, no pray rule."

Ask Us

Q. — This year's "Whirligig" was terrific in every respect, but why did all the printed matter refer to this fine production as "Whirlagig?"

A. — Project sponsors maintain the correct spelling for the locally-generated production is "Whirlagig."

In Brief

Swap likely

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Government officials said rebel kidnappers agreed to release President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter today in the first step of a swap also involving 118 jailed or wounded guerrillas and 33 kidnapped municipal officials.

Racial joke

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has been asked to reconsider the expected appointment of a former East Texas senator to the state's Public Safety Commission because of racial slurs the ex-lawmaker made during a charity roast.

During an Oct. 5 fundraiser in Tyler for the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, former Democratic state Sen. Peyton McKnight twice called state Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, a "nigger," prompting several angry audience members to leave the event, the Dallas Times-Herald reported today.

Local

Cogdell meet

The members of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers will face a light agenda for their regular October meeting Thursday.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. In addition to the monthly administrator's report and approval of minutes from previous meetings, the board will hear a report from Kathy Minemier, hospital community relations director, and review delinquent accounts receivable.

Also scheduled is a brief executive session for the consideration of personnel matters.

Bonfire at 8

A football pep rally bonfire is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday.

Tiger boosters should assemble on the Snyder High School parking lot at that time to form a caravan to the bonfire site on private land outside the city.

Caravan plans

Ira football fans planning to travel together to the Grady football game Friday are asked to gather at the school at 5:45 p.m.

Boosters have announced plans for a caravan of cars to travel to the game.

Prospective jurors selected in trial for alien smuggling

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Two housewives, one who says everybody probably knows about the sanctuary movement and one who doesn't know anything about it, are among prospective jurors who may be selected to hear an alien-smuggling case against 11 defendants.

As the second day of the trial ended Wednesday, U.S. District Court Judge Earl Carroll had seated 16 of the 32 people required for a jury pool.

The defendants, who are members of the sanctuary movement to aid Central Americans, all are charged with conspiracy. Some also face charges of smuggling, transporting and harboring illegal aliens.

One Sierra Vista housewife told Carroll Wednesday she did not believe "there is anyone who could possibly get through the day without hearing" about the sanctuary movement.

A prior resident of Florida, the woman said she was concerned about problems with immigrants in the United States, but "as long as they don't break the law, I see no problem."

Another housewife selected Wednesday said she knew nothing about the immigrant movement because she avoided reading the newspaper "as much as possible," rarely listened to television and turned on the radio "to avert boredom."

Others who have been added to the jury pool include a retired Air Force major, an electronics firm employee, a telephone company line installer and a school bus driver.

The retired officer told U.S. District Court Judge Earl H. Carroll that he had mixed feelings about whether illegal aliens are a threat to the U.S. economy. But, he said, he felt "a bit of idealism."

"Whatever happened to 'Give me your poor, your tired, your hungry,'" he asked.

With 21 years in the military, including a stint in special operations in Southeast Asia, the retired major also said he believed it was necessary for the government to use undercover investigative techniques at times.

The indictment resulted from an Immigration and Naturalization Service investigation that included the use of undercover agents and informants.

The defendants contend they were compelled by their religious beliefs to assist Salvadoran and Guatemalan refugees who are fleeing political oppression in their countries.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Donald M. Reno Jr. has said the Central Americans were merely fleeing poverty and were not entitled to asylum in the United States.

Carroll also has asked the prospective jurors whether they had opinions about the sanctuary movement, whether they had had any problems with the U.S. Border Patrol and whether they could view members of the clergy the same as other criminal defendants.

The defendants include two men considered the founders of the sanctuary movement, Quaker activist James A. Corbett, 52, a retired rancher, and the Rev. John M. Fife III, 45, a Presbyterian minister, both of Tucson.

Charges against two other people indicted in January were dismissed, and three others pleaded guilty to misdemeanor counts.

Woman who drives taxicab is murdered

HOUSTON (AP) — A widowed taxi driver with three children who was robbed and fatally shot has become the seventh Houston driver slain during the past 13 months, authorities said.

Cecilia N. LaTray, 39, died Wednesday morning, one week after she received a city permit to drive a taxi for Yellow Cab Co., authorities said.

Yellow Cab Co. president Joe Chernow said Ms. LaTray was almost "penniless" when she took the cab driving job and had three children — the youngest of whom was 8 and the oldest a teenager.

Chernow said the cab company was offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the killer's arrest.

A witness, the Rev. Henry Idlebird, said he saw a cab drive by his home about 9:45 a.m. with a passenger in the front seat next to the driver. The minister said he then heard a gunshot and the sound of a car speeding off.

The gunman left Ms. LaTray behind, and Idlebird said he ran up to her and found her still conscious.

"I asked her if she was shot, and she said, 'Yes, will you call the police?'"

Idlebird called for an ambulance, but Ms. LaTray died before help arrived, he said.

Police Sgt. H.G. Welch said it appeared she had been robbed. No arrests had been made late Wednesday.

Persistent AIDS Symptoms Are Cause for Concern, Not Alarm

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for devoting an entire column to AIDS. I learned a lot from your article, but you failed to list the symptoms. Please do. It would be helpful to a great number of your readers, including ...

ME IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ME: Many of the AIDS symptoms are subtle and may only indicate simple, everyday ailments; therefore, you should be alerted but not alarmed if you have one or more of the following symptoms:

— Weight loss of more than 10 pounds during a period of less than two months, not related to diet or increased activity; prolonged loss of appetite.

— Unexplained, persistent or recurrent fevers or drenching night sweats.

— Swollen glands (lymph nodes found in the neck, armpits or groin) that persist and are unexplained by other illness.

— Profound fatigue that persists and is not explainable by physical activity, substance abuse or a psychological disorder.

— Persistent and unexplained diarrhea or bloody stools.

— A persistent, whitish coating (or spotting) on the tongue or in the throat, which may be accompanied by soreness or difficulty in swallowing.

— A heavy, persistent, dry cough that is not due to smoking and has lasted too long to be explained by a cold or flu (especially with shortness of breath).

— Easy bruising or unexplained bleeding from any orifice.

— Skin rashes or discolorations of the skin.

— Blurred vision and/or persistent, severe headaches.

It must be emphasized that each of these symptoms may appear in diseases that are not caused by or associated with AIDS. When not easily or otherwise explained, the persistence of one or more of these symptoms should be discussed with a health care provider who is familiar with AIDS.

A national hotline with an informative recording can be reached by calling 1-800-342-AIDS. Many cities have a local AIDS information hotline. Your telephone operator can advise you.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I am a 39-year-old divorced man with two teen-aged children. I'm in love with a beautiful 36-year-old divorcee with children about the ages of mine.

We have been in love for 20 years, but fought our feelings because we thought they were wrong. Abby, we can no longer stay away from each other. Now for the bad news: We are first cousins and live in a state that forbids first cousins to marry.

We can go to another state where first cousins may marry, and we probably will, but we don't know which states permit it.

I am a born-again Christian and can find nothing in God's word to forbid our union. Can you give us a clue? We'll go anywhere.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: Go west, young man. And keep going until you reach the state whose capital is Sacramento.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO T.L. IN BERKELEY: Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The end of the human race will be that it will eventually die of civilization." Emerson must have had a crystal ball.

Bad bearing cited as cause

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A faulty anti-sway bearing probably caused a Burlington Northern freight car to derail and collide with an Amtrak train, injuring 42 California Zephyr passengers, a Burlington Northern official says.

The 42 injured passengers were treated for cuts and bruises, although one 80-year-old man remained hospitalized in satisfactory condition in Des Moines.

Truck has overturned

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Westbound traffic on Interstate 10 about 40 miles east of this West Texas city had to be rerouted for more than eight hours after a tractor-trailer rig carrying flammable liquid overturned, injuring the driver and causing about 10 gallons of the chemical to spill out, officials said.

The accident occurred about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday on an isolated stretch of the highway, said Texas Department of Public Safety communications operator Larry Villalobos in El Paso.

"There are no people in the area," Villalobos said, adding that the only reported injury was to driver Cecil Banks, 41, of Houston.

Banks suffered head and chest injuires in the accident and was taken to Vista Hills Medical Center in El Paso, where he was listed in stable condition, Villalobos said.

The truck from Reichhold Chemicals Inc. in Houston was carrying "several thousand" gallons of polylite, a synthetic polyester resin used as a bonding material, said John Cornell with the company's corporate headquarters in White Plains, N.Y. The driver's destination was an El Paso company that manufactures cultured-marble bathroom sinks and vanity tops, Cornell said.

DPS officers, Hudspeth County sheriff's deputies, Fabens city firefighters and officials from the Texas Department of Water Resources were called to the scene, where the interstate was washed off, Villalobos said.

Lee Sundberg, Reichhold plant manager in Houston, said the cleanup of the spill would consist of placing the chemical-tainted earth into drums, which later would be disposed.

Sundberg said the chemical has an odor and is flammable. "It's like any gasoline. If skin contact is made, there is the potential for irritation."

New business develops as more women seek designer

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

A recent survey taken among members of the American Society of Interior Designers found that a wider range of clients is consulting decorators today than in the past.

"The dramatic increase in the number of working women has been a major force in changing the market for interior design," according to Gail Adams, president.

The survey also found that the scope of residential design projects varies widely, ranging from some that cost less than $5,000 to those with budgets of over $200,000. The cost of the average living room redesign was $15,564; the bathroom, $5,008; and the kitchen $12,133.

The new dependence on design expertise has sent many who might not have chosen to work with an interior decorator in the past scurrying to find someone who will stay within the budget and whose personality will blend well with their needs.

As more people seek designers, new methods of pairing the two are likely to arise. One which was organized recently in the New York area is the Designer Referral Service set up by Judy Block, formerly employed by a designer, and Sharon Dietz, a former public school art teacher.

The two women met as neighbors in the Westchester County suburb of Chappaqua. They currently represent about 45 designers and craftsmen.

They interview each potential client, reviewing the scope of the desired job, budget limitations and other requirements, and advising whether the job is practically possible to accomplish.

Then they pair the client with the most appropriate designer. There is no charge for the service to the client; the women receive a commission on jobs from the designers.

Besides helping clients conceptualize what they want done, the two say the nonthreatening atmosphere they provide is another advantage. Many clients feel uncomfortable discussing some of these issues with a designer.

Mrs. Block says the idea for the new business developed over the years. As a former assistant to a designer and a member of a family with a carpet business, she was frequently asked to recommend a designer or offer an opinion on a wallpaper, fabric or carpet sample.

"There's a professional to consult for almost everything nowadays, but there wasn't for decorators; we decided we could fill this unmet need," she said.

Among some two dozen clients since June have been a couple with a large budget and no time to interview designers, who wanted a complete redesign of their home and a divorced mother with $5,000 to spend on "a pink bedroom."

Mrs. Block noted that one method she used to find decorators to represent was to visit show houses where many designers' work is on view. She said she sought good ideas in the use of space and materials, regardless of the particular style chosen.

Group hears spokeswoman

"Women's Concerns" was the title of a program presented by Nancy LaRoux to Beta Sigma Phi members on Oct. 15 at the Snyder Country Club. Mona Bryan introduced Mrs. LaRoux, a member of the Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People (SCOOP) board of directors.

In her historical review of SCOOP's operation, she explained how the idea originated and named the people who were instrumental in starting the organization. She also mentioned the social services offered and the procedures used in helping teenage girls. The program concluded with a question and answer discussion.

During the business session led by Sue Sewell, Cyndee Gayle, social chairman, reminded members of a couple's costume dinner party Saturday. Mickey Baird, ways and means chairman, updated the group on the Western Ball proceeds.

The chapter voted to contribute money to the Beta Sigma Phi state project — the purchase of children's dialysis equipment for the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Members will meet for a Christmas paper cutting session at the Snyder Country Club at 8:30 a.m. on Nov. 2. Christmas paper sales will begin Nov. 1.

Margaret Corkran read from the "Book of Beta Sigma Phi." Members learned that Dena Ellis had received special recognition and had her name listed in the honor roll in the October issue of "The Torch of Beta Sigma Phi" for maintaining perfect attendence for the past six years.

The local chapter's next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 5 at the Cornelius-Dodson House.

Vernon to lead Scout event

ABILENE — Peggy Vernon of Snyder will direct a fall junior event for the West Texas Girl Scout Council Friday through Sunday. She will be assisted by Cheryl Ballard of Abilene.

Snyder troop 210 plans to attend the event slated for Camp Boothe Oaks near Sweetwater.

Junior events are designed for Junior Girl Scouts (fourth through sixth grade girls) and their leaders who are inexperienced in earning badges. They will be given the opportunity to work with trained consultants and with leaders and girls in other troops.

During the weekend event, girls will earn the Troop Camper badge by learning to plan and carry out a camping trip for their troop.

Scouts will also have the opportunity to earn the Outdoor Fun badge — for planning and carrying out enjoyable and safe outings — or the On My Way badge — for planning trips away from home. The On My Way badge will teach girls about scheduling, visitor services and faraway places.

At this moment, Chip Martel is vying in the World Championships in Sao Paulo, Brazil, as part of the United States team. Here is a sample of his handiwork as declarer last August, when he was a member of the winning Grand National team in Las Vegas.

When his partner raised diamonds, Chip selected what he felt would be the safest game contract. Spades were led and continued, ruffed by declarer. Now the natural inclination — to draw trumps — must be avoided. If not, the unfriendly defenders will win the first club and continue spades, forcing South to ruff with his last trump before the club suit is set up. Chip Martel had the answer.

Without touching hearts, he played a club. East won the queen and returned a trump. Now declarer could pull the opposing trumps and play a second club. He made six heart tricks, the diamond ace and three club tricks for his contract.

Best defense would be for East to switch to a low diamond after winning the club queen. Chip Martel told me that he would play low, forcing the king from West and then pick up the jack from East by leading dummy's 10 before drawing all the trumps. After his many national team championships, I believe him. Now let's hope he has made believers out of his international opponents in Brazil this week.

Fungus requires prescription

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am constantly bothered by what a dermatologist called "tinea versicolor." During the summer it becomes much more pronounced. Is there any over-the-counter medication that can be purchased, or at least a prescription that is renewable again, since this is a constantly recurring problem?

DEAR READER — Tinea versicolor is a fungus infection of the skin. The brownish-yellow patches typically erupt on the trunk. A drug called Clortrimazole, when applied to the skin, may help clear up the disorder. However, I believe you should see a dermatologist for the specific therapy that might be appropriate to your individual condition. I do not know of any over-the-counter medicine that is consistently successful in treating this common skin disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had foot surgery a year ago for neuromas and had three incisions. My foot nearly drives me crazy. I have muscle spasms in all my toes, twitching, contractions, burning, stinging and so much pain I can hardly explain it. My surgeon sent me a certified letter saying he wouldn't treat me as a patient anymore, as he didn't know what to do. I've been to a podiatrist and two neurologists. All said: "normal." I'm afraid I won't have good sense if I don't get relief.

DEAR READER — Your surgeon behaved in a completely ethical manner by notifying you in the proper way that he no longer wished to treat you. The certified letter may have solved his problem, but, unfortunately, it did little to solve yours. No matter how good a doctor is, there comes a time when some patients exceed his or her ability, as is the case with your surgeon, neurologists and podiatrist. There is much in medicine that is mysterious, unexplainable and untreatable.

Now that I have said that, let me emphasize that the symptoms you have are not necessarily a burden that you have to bear indefinitely. You do not have to "learn to live with them." You have several options. To begin with, I suggest you ask one of your neuroloists to refer you to a pain clinic. Many big-city hospitals offer this service, and although you may have to travel a long distance to get to one, it may be worth the inconvenience.

Second, acupuncture may help you. Again, your doctors may refer you for this procedure — or you can check your local hospital for the names of acupuncture specialists.

Third, myotheraphy, massage or biofeedback may be beneficial. Practitioners of these arts are usually available in the telephone book or thorugh the hospital in your community.

Finally, you could consider hypnosis. This may enable you to alter your perceptions of the discomfort in your feet. Hypnotists are listed in the Yellow Pages.

House panel wants to hike interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, convinced many taxpayers find it more profitable to owe the government than to borrow from banks, is raising the interest rate charged on bills owed the Internal Revenue Service.

The panel did a major bit of backtracking Wednesday as it sought to keep the tax-overhaul issue alive despite an apparent lack of public interest. Following a week of criticism, the committee reversed much of a major $1-billion-a-year tax cut it had voted for commercial banks. And, going once again against the wishes of its chairman and President Reagan, the committee agreed that all credit unions should remain exempt from federal income taxes.

The votes came in a closed-door session that, according to two members, was marked by increasing frustration over the slow pace of rewriting the tax system. Those members, who would not be quoted by name, said fellow lawmakers were pressuring Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., to abandon the entire tax issue until 1986.

The fate of the tax-overhaul bill, which Reagan has made the top domestic priority of his second term, could be determined this weekend. Rostenkowski scheduled work sessions for Friday, Saturday and Sunday amid indications that a lack of significant progress might end the effort this year.

In the meantime, the panel made several decisions Wednesday affecting banking institutions. It also voted to make it a little tougher on taxpayers who are delinquent in payments to the IRS.

Aides to the committee said members are convinced many taxpayers take advantage of the relatively low interest rates charged by the IRS; they prefer to owe the IRS rather than go to a bank and borrow money to pay their taxes. That also discourages a negotiated settlement of a tax debt with the IRS and encourages the filing of Tax Court suits, aides said.

Present law ties the interest rate charged delinquent taxpayers to the "prime rate" that blue-chip corporations pay when they borrow money. Under that formula the IRS rate now is 11 percent.

The committee approved an amendment by Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., tying the IRS rate to the interest the Treasury Department must pay when it sells 90-day bills, plus three percentage points.

However, the interest the IRS pays on money it owes taxpayers would be one percentage point less. And that difference, the committee estimates, would cost taxpayers $1.8 billion over the next five years.

Other votes Wednesday would:

—Prohibit the nation's 450 largest banks from reducing their taxes by setting aside a portion of earnings in a tax-free reserve to cover anticipated loan losses.

—Allow all credit unions to retain their tax-free status. Reagan and Rostenkowski had recommended that the tax exemption only be allowed to those with assets under $5 million.

—Allow banks to continue buying a limited amount of tax-free bonds from small, rural governments without the banks losing their ability to deduct part of the interest paid to acquire those bonds. This exception was proposed by Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga. The committee had voted last week to deny any deduction for interest paid to buy tax-exempt bonds.

Some 350 Virginians were killed in 1622 in the first Indian massacre of European colonists in North America.

Jordanian king welcomes spirit of Peres' speech

NEW YORK (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan welcomed the spirit of a peace proposal made at the United Nations by Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and called it a step in the right direction, The New York Times reported Thursday.

Hussein, interviewed Wednesday at his palace in Amman, Jordan, called Peres a man of vision who is "acting with very strong feelings regarding the rights of future generations in our area and their right to live in different conditions than the ones we have now," the Times said.

"I believe his speech represents the beginning of movement in the right direction and reflects a personal concern for the fate of future generations and a determination to contribute towards the achievement of peace in our time," Hussein told the Times.

He called Peres' speech Monday to the UN "positive in spirit" although it did not "meet the needs of the moment" because of some conditions. Hussein declined to specify his objections, but said he could not reciprocate Peres' call that their state of war be ended immediately, the newspaper said.

Peres said in a speech before the General Assembly that he would be willing to go to Jordan by the end of the year for a Middle East Peace Conference. The Reagan administration on Tuesday welcomed the Israeli overture.

Congress is trying to complete bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate, working under the cloud of a White House veto threat, are moving toward final passage of bills designed to put teeth into the deficit-cutting plans Congress approved last summer.

The omnibus measures include spending cuts, tax hikes and other provisions designed to limit the estimated deficit this year to about $171 billion.

The Senate, working through a long list of amendments, so far has shown a willingness to buck White House pressure to remove taxes from the legislation.

Procedural votes have supported keeping the cigarette tax at 16 cents a pack, instead of dropping it back to 8 cents. The main Senate measure also would impose a new tax on industry to pay for cleaning up toxic waste sites, and place a duty on imports to pay for a program to retrain workers who lose jobs to foreign competition.

Senate supporters of import quotas to protect the textile industry are expected to offer their bill as an amendment.

An amendment approved by the Senate Wednesday night would make the 3 percent military pay raises planned for Nov. 1 retroactive to Oct. 1.

The language sponsored by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Pete Wilson, R-Calif., would cover the $150 million cost with a two-year pilot program allowing the government to bill private insurers for treatment of their clients in free military clinics and hospitals.

The House opened debate on its version of the spending cuts on Wednesday and planned to consider amendments today. The House has kept tax increases and farm program changes in separate legislation.

While the focus has shifted to action on immediate spending problems, a House-Senate conference committee is working on a controversial master plan for eliminating deficits in the future.

Ram batters woman to death

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — A 75-year-old woman who went outside to feed chickens in the barn was battered to death by a ram the family had known to be aggressive, police said.

Phyllis Ziarkowski's body was found Tuesday afternoon by her grandchildren coming home from school, said St. Clair County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Gleason.

Mrs. Ziarkowski died of internal injuries and broken ribs inflicted by the ram, medical examiner Dr. Clemens M. Kopp said Wednesday.

Reagan rejecting new army helmets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly a half-million soldiers and Marines wearing a new combat helmet may be inadequately protected because a manufacturer changed production specifications for the synthetic-material headgear, the Pentagon says.

Officials are investigating whether the manufacturer of the new helmet, which is designed to replace the familiar "steel pot," ignored goverment specifications to improve its profits, William Caldwell, a Pentagon spokesman, said Wednesday.

More than 460,000 helmets, out of the 800,000 already in use by Army and Marine Corps units, are affected.

The helmets, produced over the last two years by Gentex Corp. of Carbondale, Pa., are made of a special resin and synthetic fiber material known as Kevlar.

Gentex no longer makes the helmets itself, but still supplies the material for production by two other firms, Caldwell said.

Gentex denied any wrongdoing.

So far there has been no determination that the Gentex helmet fails to meet the general, minimum ballistic standards for protecting soldiers against flying shrapnel, Caldwell said, adding the Gentex helmet is superior to the steel helmet it replaces.

But the Pentagon has concluded the Gentex helmet has an unacceptable weak spot on the very top, Caldwell said.

The Pentagon believes Gentex may have cut corners in production to save $42.19 out of the $85.20 paid for each helmet, Caldwell said.

Caldwell and other Pentagon and Army officials released a prepared statement late Wednesday and agreed to discuss the matter following two days of inquiries by The Associated Press.

Gentex President L. Peter Frieder denied any wrongdoing by his firm, describing the dispute as a controversy "over interpretation" and "poorly defined specifications."

"This is absolutely incredible," he said when informed of the Pentagon's statement.

"The performance issue has never been a problem. These are the same helmets that saved two lives in Grenada. The question is whether the construction procedure achieved the original intent, and we believe it did."

The Army has previously reported that two Kelvar helmets saved the lives of servicemen during the October 1983 Grenada invasion.

Teacher's husband charged in death

CLIFTON, Texas (AP) — A school principal has been charged with murdering his wife, one of two slayings that recently has kept this small central Texas town on edge.

Clifton Police Chief Rob Brennand said Joe D. Bryan was arrested in Bosque County. Bryan was freed later on $50,000 bond set by Bosque County Justice of the Peace Alvin James.

Bryan is the principal of Clifton High School.

His wife, Mickey Bryan, 44, died of four gunshot wounds, three of them to the head, sometime between Oct. 14 and Oct. 15, authorities said.

Mrs. Bryan's death was the second to occur in four months in Clifton.

Reagan reluctantly goes along with delay in arms sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican controlled Senate, with President Reagan's reluctant permission, is ready to shelve the controversial $1.9 billion arms sale to Jordan until March 1 unless Jordan and Israel open meaningful arms talks before then.

With at least 73 of 100 senators publicly committed against the sale in the absence of such talks, and with the Republican leadership telling Reagan defeat was inevitable, the president agreed Tuesday to the 120-day delay, Senate sources said.

The GOP leaders had told the administration they would move on their own to delay action on the sale in order to head off a resolution that would bar it outright.

"The administration bowed to the inevitable," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., leader of the bipartisan effort to stop the sale.

Reagan had formally notified Congress on Monday of his intention to sell Jordan aircraft, air missiles and other weapons.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said many senators were concerned about the impact an administration defeat would have on the Middle East peace process.

The compromise, he said, "offers a lot of constructive possibilities."

"It is a step toward keeping the peace process going without having a negative vote that would be disruptive if not embarrassing for all involved," he said. "It leaves open the opportunity for movement in the peace process." The sale could be interpreted as an attack on Hussein, who has said he is ready for talks with Israel in the context of an international conference and with the participation of representatives of the Palestinian people.

On the other hand, they said they needed more than hopeful statements from the king, especially since his country is still technically at war with Israel.

The central subject of the negotiations would be future status of the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel has occupied since 1967.

Congress did approve nearly $250 million in non-military aid for Jordan earlier this year and many senators said that is sufficient evidence of U.S. support for the king's slow movement toward peace talks.

Head Start firmly set in safety net

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty years ago, President Lyndon B. Johnson launched Project Head Start as a summer program to help poor children just starting school who had "never looked at a picture book or scribbled with a crayon."

"When these children enter school they are already a year behind their classmates," Johnson lamented. "The purpose of Head Start is to make up that year, to help them get the most out of school."

Since then, numerous studies have documented the wisdom of early intervention through Head Start and similar programs.

When President Reagan took office in 1981, he aimed his budgetary ax at scores of education and health programs, but not Head Start.

Firmly enmeshed in the Reagan safety net, Head Start's budget has grown by a robust 31 percent in the past four years to $1.075 billion. Now a year-round program, it serves a record 452,000 children ages 3 to 5, giving them a leg up on school, as well as health screening, nutritious meals, parental education and other social services.

Two-thirds of the children are black, Hispanic or other minorities; one in eight is handicapped.

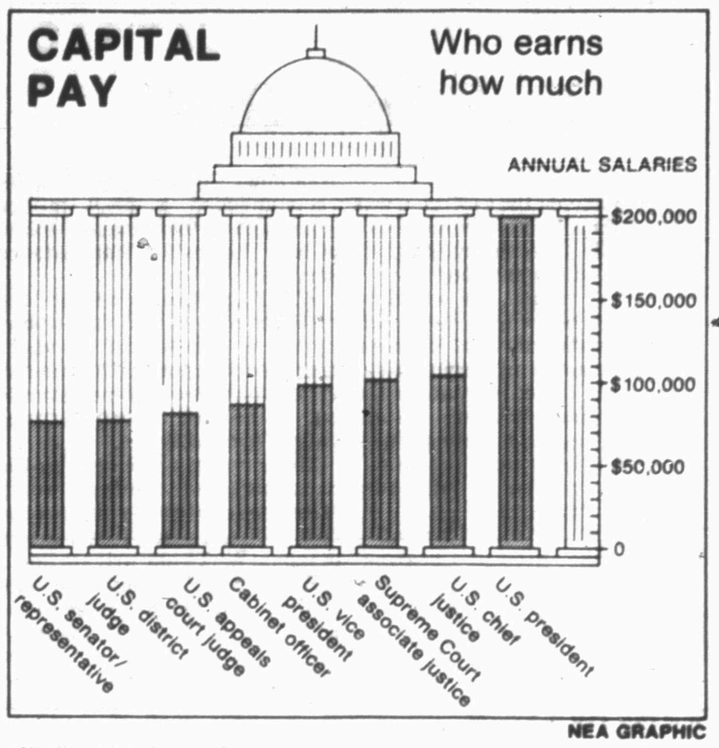

More than 9 million youngsters have passed through Head Start since Johnson launched it as part of his War on Poverty.

The project began on Feb. 19, 1965, but October has been Head Start Awareness Month in recent years. Head Start supporters were celebrating the birthday today by launching balloons from the steps of the U.S. Capitol and from many of the 1,300 Head Start centers across the nation.

"It's a wonderful program," said Karen Lucas, a Head Start teacher at the Bruce-Monroe School in an impoverished corridor of the nation's capital.

Most of the 60 children in three Head Start classes at Bruce-Monroe are from welfare families. Some mothers are still in high school. For these youngsters, Head Start means not only an introduction to skills that will help them learn to read and write, but field trips to the National Zoo, the Air and Space Museum and model farms.

Without Head Start, Miss Lucas said, "most of them would never get outside of the inner city."

Innocent man has charges dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — After spending almost a year in jail for a crime he did not commit, Harvey Dale Dickey Jr. will be released.

Dickey, 31, was sentenced earlier this year to spend 20 years in prison after pleading guilty to a July 1984 car theft.

But State District Judge Albert Pruett dropped the charge Tuesday against Dickey and granted the defendant's motion for a new trial.

The charge was filed after a man took a car from Doug Russell Chevrolet in Houston for a test drive on July 19, 1984 but never returned. Car salesman Frank Lira identified Dickey from police photos, and Dickey was arrested and jailed last November.

Technology exposes Americans' privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The explosion in communications technology has so outpaced privacy laws that Americans have little or no protection against a plethora of new ways for government or private adversaries to pry into their lives, a congressional agency reported today.

The non-partisan Office of Technology Assessment found that 35 out of 142 domestic federal agencies use or plan to use various electronic surveillance methods, including modern devices not governed by a landmark 1968 law that circumscribed the use of wiretaps and bugs — concealed microphones.

The agency said 36 agencies, not counting those in foreign intelligence, already use a total of 85 computerized record systems for investigative or intelligence purposes, and maintain 288 million files on 114 million people. The report raised the "technically feasible" specter of these being linked into a single data base network that could track untold numbers of citizens without due cause.

The report, requested by House and Senate committees, noted that many new and uncontrolled methods of surveillance are made possible by the very technologies of which more and more Americans are availing themselves — electronic mail, computer conferencing, cellular and cordless telephones, beepers and electronic pagers. Intercepting such devices is easy, and "the law has not kept pace," the agency said.

But other devices, such as miniature television cameras and pen registers — which monitor the numbers called on a given telephone line — have enabled new ways to spy on people even if their own communications habits are more old-fashioned, the agency noted.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on courts and civil liberties, said the study "shows how the law in this area has broken down; it is up to Congress to fix it. If we fail to act, the personal and business communications of Americans will not have the privacy protection they deserve."

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said the report "documents how new and more intrusive forms of snooping have followed in the wake of the exciting advances in communications technology," and agreed Congress must "bring federal privacy laws up to date."

Split decision reopens case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission's decision to seek more information about AT&T Communications' $114.5 million rate hike request is "unreasonable," says a company official.

"We provided as much information as any utility has ever provided," said AT&T Vice President Tom Jones.

But Commissioners Peggy Rosson and Dennis Thomas, who disagreed on whether AT&T is entitled to any more money, agreed that the company's rate hike package left unanswered questions.

In a meeting Wednesday, Ms. Rosson said AT&T should get no hike. Thomas favored a $50 million hike. Jones said the company will lose about $30 million in Texas this year. He said the $50 million hike "would not get us out of the red."

The three-member commission is down to two because Gov. Mark White has not appointed a replacement for Phil Ricketts, whose term expired in August.

Unable to work out a compromise, the commissioners sent the case back to a hearing examiner for scrutiny of AT&T transactions with its affiliates. Specifically, the commission wants to know if Texans are being billed for expenses that don't benefit them.

The case now will continue until at least January.

"I think they're being unreasonable," Jones said.

Ms. Rosson said AT&T's request, originally filed in January, did not prove its case. She also said intervenors' requests for information from AT&T were met with "repeated refusals" from the company.

It all added up to zero, according to Ms. Rosson.

"Even though we are in a changing regulatory environment, we cannot abandon our responsibility to insure that a utility has met its statutory obligations. We cannot simply give money away," she said.

Ms. Rosson and Thomas said the lack of a third commissioner had no impact on their deliberations. Even if White had selected a commissioner within the past few days, the new member probably would not have had time to study the AT&T case, they said.

Thomas agreed that AT&T's case was inadequate. But he said there was enough evidence to justify a rate hike. AT&T will lose about $30 million in Texas this year, according to vice president Jones.

For Thomas, the key issue was balancing the state's need for top-notch telecommunications and "affordable service."

"At $50 million, we would be $30 million below the (PUC) staff recommendation. I am concerned we are not doing very much at $50 million to get the state of the art telecommunications system we need," he said, adding that a $50 million hike might not be sufficient to prevent a "degradation" in service.

The PUC staff called for an $81 million hike. After the hearing, Examiner Charmaine Rhodes recommended a $35.8 million hike, with no increase in the cost of basic, intrastate long distance service.

AT&T's proposal on basic long distance tolls varied, but wound up as a request for a slight decrease for most calls. Thomas called for a two-cent per minute cut in the cost of long distance calls of over 106 miles.

The increases proposed by the examiner and Thomas would have been covered by hikes in the cost of business services, such as outgoing WATS and private line.

When the PUC impasse was evident, the commissioners asked AT&T if it would agree to reopen the case to allow a closer look at the company's corporate structure and whether Texas ratepayers are being asked to pay for expenses that do not benefit them.

Thomas said AT&T's structure "looks more like a model of DNA with its interrelationships and feedback loops."

The alternative to reopening the case was unclear. There are no rules or laws concerning a tie vote at the PUC.

Guard convicted of taking money

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Jurors deliberated about three hours before convicting former Big Spring federal prison guard Eddie Joe Roybal of accepting a gratuity from convicted drug kingpin Rex Cauble.

Roybal, 33, also was found guilty Wednesday of two counts of accepting gratuities from other inmates, one count of smuggling a controlled substance into the prison camp and one count of smuggling contraband into the facility.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward will sentence Roybal at a later date. Meanwhile, Roybal, who now lives in Weatherford, remains free on a personal recognizance bond.

On Tuesday, Roybal denied doing any favors for Cauble in exchange for a $11,550 loan from Cauble's sister, Thelda Cauble Harris of Denton. The defendant also denied doing any special favors for inmate Gary Marcus Gunter in return for money.

FBI agents testified that Gunter was cooperating with prison officials and FBI agents when he arranged $1,000 in marked bills to be mailed to Roybal.

Roybal said he thought the money was part of $10,000 that some friends of Gunter's in Dallas were going to loan him. He said he expected to repay the loan to Cauble's sister, the loan from Gunter's friends, and several thousand dollars in other debts.

Roybal said that he didn't do anything special for Cauble when he arranged for a hospital bed in Cauble's cell.

"Did you at any time do anything for Mr. Cauble that you had not done for other inmates?" Tallant asked him.

"No, I didn't," Roybal responded.

But the jury heard a tape-recording in which Roybal is heard boasting about persuading another corrections officer to bring Cauble a hospital bed.

Gunter, 31, who admitted to a lengthy criminal record, said he was present during conversations between Cauble and Roybal that led to the $11,550 loan from Mrs. Harris.

Witnesses testified that Roybal made installment payments, paid some debts and bought a $2,100 boat with the money from Mrs. Harris.

2 bankers trial ends

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A federal judge's order against allowing the personal banking records of Don Earney and James Kington to be presented as evidence suspended the former bankers' trial.

Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled Wednesday that the subpoenaed personal banking records of Earney and Kington were not properly delivered to a federal grand jury, as required by law.

The two men were charged with embezzlement, making false entries, causing the bank to fail to report currency transaction, and aiding and abetting illegal banking activities from 1980-82 while they were officers of Abilene National Bank, now MBank Abilene. The 53-count indictment was handed down last February.

Woodward's decision to have the records suppressed as evidence was a ruling that breaks new legal ground, according to lawyers on both sides.

In making the ruling, Woodward agreed with Kington's attorney, Ben L. Krage of Dallas, who said the law specifically requires delivery of confidential banking records to the grand jury, not to federal investigators.

Krage said FBI agents took the documents and prepared a summary of evidence, on which the indictment of Earney, Kington and ex-ANB officer Eddie Dunn was based.

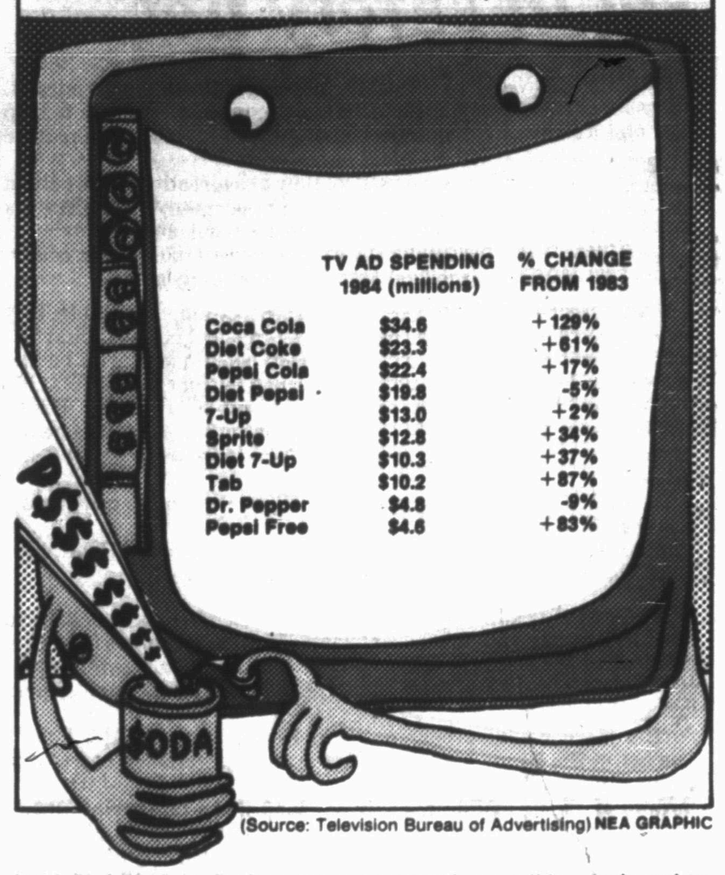

Earney, former board chairman and president of the Abilene bank, and Kington, a former vice president of the same bank, were scheduled to go on trial Wednesday before a seven-man, five-woman jury. Dunn's case was scheduled for a separate trial later. He was a bank vice president and now lives in Midland.

Woodward's ruling ended a hearing on defense motions to suppress evidence, and the scheduled trial itself.

The judge stressed he was not dismissing the charges against Earney and Kington pending a ruling by the federal appeals court.

Poster reunites mom with kids

DALLAS (AP) — Sherry Filimonuk says she has not "come out of the clouds" since she being reunited with her two children, one of whom recognized his picture on two missing children posters.

It wasn't until Gregory Filimonuk saw his picture on a poster in a Dallas restaurant and one displayed on a large truck that he realized he was one of the millions of children listed as missing in the United States.

The 8-year-old boy saw the posters on the same day last month while he was with his father and his sister, Michele, 6. He persistently questioned his father, who eventually decided to return the children to their mother.

"I haven't come out of the clouds yet," said Ms. Filimonuk, 28, of Sacremento, Calif. "I'm just loving them a lot. Touching them, smelling and keeping them near me ... Before I found my children, it seemed like every minute was an hour and now, an hour seems like a minute."

Her children were abudcted while they were visiting their father for seven days during the 1980 Christmas holiday, authorities said.

Michael Filimonuk, 35, and Paula Alvarado, 34, his previous wife, each face four felony counts of child abduction in Sacramento, said James E. Graves, Sacramento County deputy district attorney.

The pair turned themselves in to California authorities Friday.

The abduction was the second time Filimonuk seized the children, authorities said. The parents were fighting a custody battle when Filimonuk took them for several weeks in October 1980.

During the five year separation, Ms. Filimonuk said she lost two jobs and nearly suffered a nervous breakdown in 1982 "because I couldn't stand someone coming in with a child that resembled mine. I stared. I know it made people uncomfortable, but I couldn't help myself."

Ms. Filimonuk, who has worked with missing children organizations across the country, said her children probably wouldn't have been located without the posters.

"This shows that what we are doing to help find America's missing children is working," she said. "We need people to realize that it is working and we can't stop now."

For four years and 10 months, Ms. Filimonuk said, she searched for her children, circulating photographs, tailing cars, following children and working with authorities.

"It felt so hopeless," she said. "I didn't have the money to hire a private detective. And in 1980, there weren't any organizations like there are now. It was like being a ball in a ping-pong machine, going back and forth, back and forth, and no one can help you."

Eagle dominance ends, but look out Bears

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

I have to admit I'm enjoying this football season. Most of the credit has to go to Dennis Tomlin, his staff and the Ragin' Tigers, of course. Community support has certainly been a factor too.

It's not easy on the spirit for any team to lose. Believe me, it's not easy for us scribes, either. There was a time just a year ago when Snyder had lost its 17th game in a row. Number 16 was probably harder to sit at the typewriter and grind out because it came at the end of a season and 17 opened the next.

Just like it's hard for a team or a community to look forward to another loss, it was difficult for me to gather much enthusiasm, too. 'Course, that's all changed now. I don't know of a football fan, player or coach who isn't looking forward to Friday's game with the Pecos Eagles.

The Eagles, incidentally, are 6-point favorites according to the Harris Rating System. Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin said Harris himself called Wednesday to discuss the district race. Dennis asked him why he picked Pecos by 6 and Harris replied that he really didn't have much to go on except that Pecos has always beaten Snyder.

Harris is right, by golly.

The Eagles and Tigers have met on the football field only seven times (this will be the eighth) and the 'Birds have always come out on top. Even in Snyder's 1978 bi-district championship season the Tigers lost to Pecos 28-15. Last year, the Eagles nailed the Tigers 41-0. Ouch!

---

Last week was an "I thought I might" week in picking games. I thought I might pick Rice over Texas Tech. I thought I might pick Texas over Arkansas. I even thought I might pick Miami, Fla. over Oklahoma. But I didn't.

And I thought I might do pretty well with my picks. I didn't. I got 17 right, 13 wrong. That's .566, and that's lousy. For the season, it's 142-68 for .676.

Oh well, here we go again...

---

Pecos at Snyder: You've heard of the 7-year itch, 7-years bad luck, all that stuff? Well seven is gone now and this is the eighth meeting between the Tigers and Eagles. Give Arkansas a 20-point edge, say 34-14, over Houston. Also, choose Penn State to dump West Virginia, 21-7. In others, Auburn will top Mississippi State, 31-14 while USC nips Notre Dame, 19-17; Florida sacks Virginia Tech, 34-17; Tennessee tickles Georgia Tech, 24-14 and Michigan clips Indiana, 28-7. Also, make Lou Holt's surprising Gophers a 21-14 loser to Ohio State.

The pros...

Pick Dallas to alter Atlanta, 23-7; St. Louis to hop Houston, 24-14; the Jets to separate Seattle, 21-7; Cleveland to whack Washington, 31-28; the Rams to stupify San Francisco, 24-21; Philadelphia to boot Buffalo, 19-17; Denver to kick Kansas City, 17-14; Indianapolis to grip Green Bay, 14-13; Miami to dumbfound Detroit, 21-7; Chicago to mob Minnesota, 31-23; New England to terrorize Tampa Bay, 23-14; Pittsburgh to cinderfy Cincinnati, 27-19; and the Giants to 'nilate New Orleans, 27-7.

Underclassmen play outside foes tonight

Snyder underclassmen are back on the gridiron tonight, though some schedule changes have taken place.

Most notable is the junior varsity unit, which was to play Monterey in Lubbock, but instead will host San Angelo Lake View at 5:30.

Monterey is apparently suffering from losses to last week's no pass, no play rule.

The game here will be held at Travis Field.

Snyder ninth grade was scheduled to play Sweetwater-A team in Sweetwater. That game has also been changed. Now, Snyder ninth grade B-team will play Breckenridge A-team in Breckenridge at 6. There will be no game for the Snyder A-team.

In a couple of other games scheduled today, the local seventh graders will play in Sweetwater at 4:30 and 5:30.

Tudor jolts Cards to victory in series

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The St. Louis Cardinals are close enough to total victory to begin thinking about which of them will be voted most valuable player of the World Series.

Cardinal first baseman Jack Clark has already cast his vote for left-hander John Tudor.

"I would have to think so. He's probably the best pitcher in baseball," Clark said following Tudor's 3-0 victory over Kansas City in Wednesday night's fourth game of the Series. "If we go on and win, he's been the guy."

"I guess I did just about everything I was supposed to do," said Tudor, whose five-hit, eight-strikeout masterpiece gave the Cardinals a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 Series. "Everything was right. I had real good command of all my pitches."

St. Louis second baseman Tommy Herr said Tudor was at his best against Kansas City pinch-hitter Hal McRae, a nemesis from Tudor's days in the American League. McRae came up with the bases loaded in the seventh inning.

McRae, swinging at the first pitch, hit a grounder to third baseman Terry Pendleton, who stepped on the bag to end Kansas City's only major threat.

Tudor got the only run he needed on a second-inning home run by the club's leading postseason hitter, Tito Landrum, whose .400 Series batting mark is almost 200 points above the team average.

Willie McGee crushed a ball over the wall in left-center an inning later, and the Cards got an insurance run in the fifth when Terry Pendleton tripled and scored on Tom Nieto's squeeze bunt.

Pecos poses balanced threat

Friday's varsity grid contest between the Ragin' Tigers and the Pecos Eagles shapes up as a hard-hitting game between two good football teams.

The Eagles come into the 8 p.m. contest favored by 6 points according to the latest Harris Poll.

Pecos doesn't have a lot of outstanding athletes, but they play the game very well.

"They run a mis-direction type offense and execute it well. What they do, they do very good," said Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin. "They use a lot of different backs and receivers so you can't just key on one person. They make you play the whole field. I think that's what makes them so effective," said the coach. "They are so balanced they make you honor all areas of the field."

Tomlin did have special words for running back Lance Windham, a 5-8, 160-pound senior who leads the Eagles in rushing with 238 yards on 60 carries.

"When they have to have it and need it, he's been their producer."

While Windham leads the team in rushing, teammate Freddy Contreras is right behind, with 216 yards on 53 tries. Jamie Mata has added 190 on 43 carries while both Jamie Estrella and Javier Estrella have 60 yards apiece.

The Eagles also use two quarterbacks, Gary Beadle and Adan Herrera. Beadle has passed complete 8 of 29 times for 154 yards while Herrera is 27 of 53 for 394.

As a team, Pecos is averaging 229.3 yards and 17.3 points a game.

The Eagles also boast one of the district's better defensive teams, allowing only 202.5 yards per outing.

"Their linebackers, ends and their noseguard seem to be their strength," said Tomlin. "It's been difficult for anyone to run or throw the ball against them. It presents a real challenge to our offense to be able to move the ball and score points against them."

Unlike some teams Snyder has battled this season, Pecos doesn't have the reputation of being a big play team offensively. The Eagles have earned their points with good, solid drives, and by taking advantage of their opponents' mistakes.

"They have had some big plays passing the football, but they like to just line up and get after it. They aren't a big-play team, but they are capable of the big play," said the coach.

Snyder coaches haven't made any changes in Friday's lineup. Rusty Radican will not suit out, however. Radican is suffering from a stretched nerve (neck). Reggie Price is the only other player to be out with an injury. He is recovering from a hairline fracture (ankle).

Teachers file suit

AUSTIN (AP) — School boards throughout Texas have been named defendants in a damage suit filed by the Texas State Teachers Association and its members.

The defendant school boards, particularly in 20 named districts, have disregarded state law protecting the rights of teachers, said the suit filed Tuesday in a state district court.

No hearing date was set.

The 90-page petition asks the court to force the Texas Association of School Boards and its members to listen to the grievances of TSTA's 96,000 members.

The suit also asks $1,000 each from every school superintendent and school board member involved, mostly to help pay attorneys' fees.

The Texas Association of School Boards office said it had not receive a copy of the petition and would have no immediate comment.

"We are especially concerned about the right of teachers to discuss, challenge and, if necessary, to grieve decisions that directly affect whether or not they are placed on the career ladder," TSTA President Charles Beard told a news conference.

The 1984 Legislature's major school reform bill established a "career ladder" for teachers that would provide additional benefits for outstanding teachers.

The teachers association has accused the school board association of advising its members to refuse to listen to complaints about contracts, assignments, salaries and the evaluation process.

Appeals Court will not reconsider case

DALLAS (AP) — The man who has been fighting Texas' sodomy law for six years lost another round Wednesday, but he said the next battle will be before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Donald F. Baker said he didn't expect the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to reconsider its earlier ruling upholding the sodomy law, and the justices didn't surprise him.

"The appeal put forth in the petition, however sincere and deserving of response, is directed to the wrong audience," the court said. "It is not the role or authority of this federal court to decide the morality of sexual conduct for the people of the state of Texas."

Baker said the 5th Circuit appeal was a matter of routine and intended more to prevent later procedural tangles than to kill the law that forbids sexual intercourse among homosexuals.

"We wanted to follow all legal avenues," he said. "Having done that, we're on our way. We have planned since Aug. 26 to go to the U.S. Supreme Court."

The appeals court ruled in August that the state did have authority to pass such a sodomy law.

The complex opinion, signed by nine of the 16 judges on the court, referred to the "strong objection to homosexual conduct which has prevailed in western culture for the past seven centuries."

Opponents claim the law makes criminals of the 700,000 lesbians and gay men in Texas, and Baker said Wednesday that "we started in 1979 to get this law ruled unconstitutional, and we will continue that fight."

The appeals court said in its latest ruling that although it is "sensitive and sympathetic" to some of Baker's complaints, "It is simply not the business of this court to act upon them."

It added that "we suggest that the proper understanding of our constitutional authority is even more important to the republic than is this particular moral issue."

The case has been tied up in court since 1979, when Baker, of Dallas, said in a lawsuit that the sodomy law threatened his job.

Complicating the issue was the decision by state Attorney General Jim Mattox to drop his appeals after a federal judge struck the law down in 1982.

Potter County District Attorney Danny Hill of Amarillo took up the fight for the state, raising questions about his authority to jump in where the attorney general refused.

During the long court fight, the case also took on other implications as both proponents and opponents connected it to the AIDS issue.

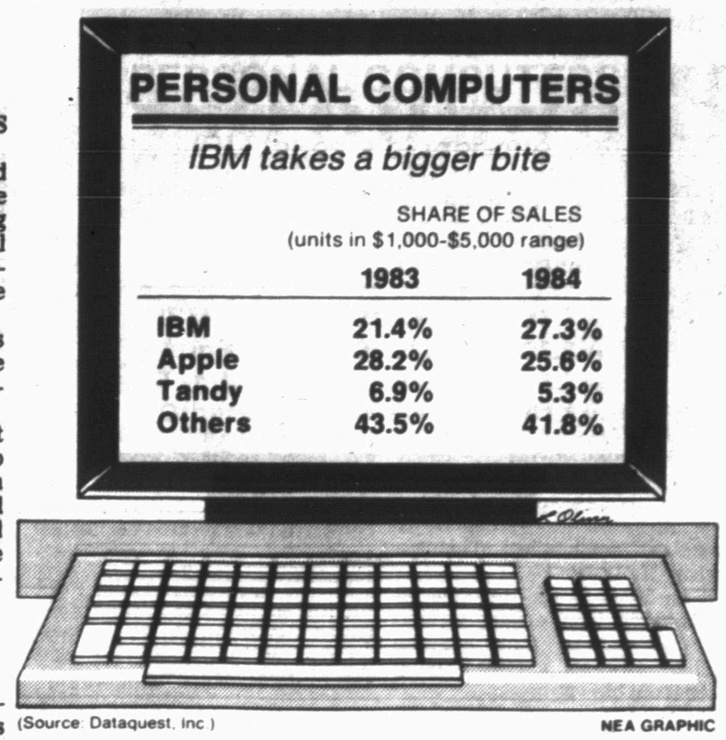

Baker said the law would threaten efforts to combat the killer disease by driving homosexuals under cover. Hill and others said the law was needed to control acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

But neither the appeals court's ruling Aug. 26 nor the one Wednesday touched on the question of AIDS.

"There are a lot of people out there who would encourage us to appeal this," Baker said. "Even though they may not understand the issue, they understand fairness. The American people understand that this law is unfair."

Voter review is continued

Proceeds of the bond sale would be used for loans made under the program which, if approved, would take effect Sept. 1, 1986. The program would be administered through the Veterans Land Board.

Its purpose would be to assist farmers and ranchers to acquire land. Those eligible could buy only one plot of at least 50 acres with the amount financed by the state not to exceed $95,000.

Applicants would have to derive at least 35 percent of their gross income from farming or ranching for three years preceding application and have a net worth of less than $250,000.

Arguments For

—The market value of farm and ranch land in Texas has risen from $34.3 million in 1975 to $79.7 million in 1982, greatly increasing land cost. This amendment would provide needed financial assistance and help owners of small farms to increase their holdings or young farmers to acquire land. The effect would be to preserve the family farm.

—There are built-in safeguards to ensure that the money only goes to real farmers and ranchers.

—The state would retain title to the land until the loan is paid off, so there is no risk to the state. Furthermore, it would require nothing from the general revenue fund.

Arguments Against

—The program will not rescue the small family farm whose major problem is production and operating costs, not lack of land. It is not in the best interest of the state to use state resources to support small farms and ranches that may not be cost effective.

—This program is likely to become a $500 million windfall for "hobby" farmers.

—Another bond program will further strain the credit of the state. It is unwise to authorize the issuance of additional general obligation bonds when state revenues and income are being depleted and the budget is so tight.

PROPOSITION 11

If passed, this proposal would eliminate specific wording in the constitution related to how a person is charged with a criminal offense.

Presently, the constitution guarantees anyone accused of a crime the right to know the nature and cause of the accusation and to have a copy of the accusation.

The same article also says that no person may be tried for a felony offense unless indicted by a grand jury. Article 5, section 12 provides that all prosecutions must be carried out "in the name and by the authority of the State of Texas" and must conclude with the words, "Against the peace and dignity of the State."

Passage of the amendment would eliminate the specific words in Article 5, section 12 and add subsection (b) which defines an "indictment" as a criminal charge presented by a grand jury and an "information" as a criminal charge brought by a prosecutor. The practice and procedures relating to such charging instruments would be provided by law. Presenting an indictment or information invests the court with jurisdiction of the cause.

Arguments For

—Adoption of the amendment would eliminate obsolete language from the constitution and allow the legislature to set reasonable standards governing the process of charging people with crime. The proposed amendment would protest the rights of defendants without subjecting prosecutors to unnecessary and unreasonable restrictions.

—This amendment would give the legislature long overdue authority to implement written charges in logical fashion. By stating that the court has jurisdiction once the indictment is presented, the defendants would have to examine the indictment closely before trial and make objections early enough for the state to make corrections.

Arguments Against

—Passage of this amendment would eliminate decades of judicial precedent guaranteeing that those accused of a crime receive sufficient notice of the charge in order to defend themselves. If the legislature permits vague, general charges to be filed, the prosecution could wait to bring up key allegations until the case came to trial.

Blowgun darts wound birds in Austin area

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman who has been feeding pigeons around her apartment near the University of Texas for several years says more than 30 birds have been wounded in recent days with steel darts fired from a blowgun.

"It is cruel, it is sick. For any person to enjoy inflicting pain on another living thing is not normal," said Sara Rao, who lives in a UT-area apartment.

"To me, they have as much right to live as anything else. I love all animals — especially those that are helpless. This is a torture. It is a sin."

Since Friday, Ms. Rao said, 37 birds have been wounded with four-inch darts that humane society officials say are being fired from blowguns.

Sales of blowguns have increased in recent months as a result of the movie Rambo and "ninja" films, officials said. Ninja movies are martial arts films that feature exotic weaponry.

Ms. Rao noticed several wounded birds last week when she fed them after she got home from work — something she has done every day for seven years.

The next day, she noticed nine birds with darts in their bodies. By Monday, 15 more birds had been wounded. She said she believes many of the wounded birds died.

Ms. Rao, who holds a doctorate in education and has raised birds all her life, said she contacted Austin police and the Austin-Travis County Humane Society, which sent two persons to investigate Tuesday.

Humane society officials tried to net one bird — which had a dart through its eye — but each attempt failed when the bird flew away.

That bird was one of three wounded pigeons that appeared Tuesday afternoon.

Shell earnings said down 18 percent

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co., citing reduced crude oil and chemical prices, reported third quarter earnings fell 18 percent compared to the same period last year.

Shell's earnings for the three months totaled $365 million, compared to $447 million for the third quarter of 1984, according to a statement released Wednesday.

The Houston-based company said it does not expect this year to match its record profits of $1.77 billion for last year.

"While company earnings in the second half of this year should exceed those of the first half, full-year results are now expected to be somewhat lower than the record level set in 1984," said Shell President John Bookout.

Shell's third quarter revenues totaled $5.12 billion, compared to $5.32 billion a year earlier. But operating profit rose 9 percent, helped by improved refining and marketing results, according to a statement Shell released.

The statement did not include figures for per-share earnings for the firm, which is owned by the Royal Dutch-Shell Group of Companies.

Bookout attributed the quarterly earnings decline to lower selling prices for crude oil and base chemicals and lower gains from property sales. But he said increased gasoline and natural gas sales helped offset the decline.

For the first nine months, profit fell 16.2 percent to $998 million from $1.19 billion. Revenue fell 4.2 percent to $14.97 billion from $15.63 billion.

Profits were down in the company's oil and gas exploration and production divisions for the quarter dropping slightly to $357 million from $359 million in the same period of 1984. Oil products earnings were $35 million for the three-month period, down from $43 million in the same period of last year.

Chemical division earnings were $14 million for the quarter, down $23 million from the previous year.
