Riders at the Crossroads Stampede take to the trail on tricycles instead of horses in good-natured competition at Friday night's celebration.

Stampede

Crossroads round-up gets audience in act

By KEELY COGHLAN

Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, step aside. A couple of mere babes in the audience tried out their own dance steps Friday night while the performers in sang, danced, played and jumped their way across stage in the Amphitheatre.

It was audience participation night at the talent show during the Crossroads Stampede in Comanche Trail Park.

Aaron Henderson, 11 months, and his cousin, Krystal Cline, moved their feet to the music while Aaron's parents, Karen and Rusty Henderson looked on. The Hendersons and Krystal had come to watch two other members of the family on-stage, but the youngsters couldn't contain themselves.

Meanwhile, a youth performing lip-synce to "Footloose," drew his own crowd of admirers, including screaming girls.

It was audience participation night elsewhere, as councilmen and other members of the community chugged their way across the finish line in tricycle races, cheered on by on-lookers.

Crossroads Stampede events will begin at 9 a.m. today with Grandma's Little Miss and Mr. Beauty contest in Comanche Trail Park.

Other events will be horseshoe pitching, 11 a.m.; black powder shoot, noon; toddler diaper run, 1 p.m.; watermelon-eating contest, 2 p.m.; washer pitching, 3 p.m.; sack race, 4 p.m.; liar's contest, 5 p.m.; potato-peeling contest, 6 p.m.; tricycle race for adults, 7 p.m.; and Mr. and Mrs. Legs contest, 8 p.m.

A dance at 9 p.m. will feature music by the Texas Swing Band of Odessa. Cost is $5 per person.

Adults' tricycle races will run throughout the day.

Sunday afternoon, finals will be held in horseshoe pitching at 1 p.m.; liar's contest at 2 p.m.; tricycle race for adults at 3 p.m.; and husband-calling at 4 p.m.

The Stampede will conclude Sunday night with an awards program.

Finances at state Farm Credit banks in better shape than national average

AUSTIN (AP) — While financial problems plague farmers and their bankers nationwide, the Farm Credit Banks of Texas have managed to do well, the banks' president said Friday.

"Texas is in as good or better financial shape than any Farm Credit district in the nation," president James Rogers told a shareholders meeting.

"Our losses for all three of our banks and our associations this year are going to be very small and certainly within tolerances. We feel very confident about the strength of our banks," he said.

The Farm Credit Banks of Texas are comprised of the Federal Land Bank of Texas and its 44 land bank associations, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Texas, 28 Production Credit Associations and the Texas Bank for Cooperatives.

Collectively, they provided more than $4 billion in financing for farmers, ranchers and cooperatives last year.

"Our credit quality is certainly holding within bounds and our expected losses for 1985 are really coming in much lower than we had projected in our planning sessions," Rogers said.

Stacy bonds OK'd

Colorado Municipal Water District directors gave the orders to start a $54.255 million bond issue to finance the construction of Stacy Dam.

The dam is projected to cost $68.131 million by Freese and Nichols, the district's engineering consultants, but directors agreed to use reserves and earnings to arrive at a lower face figure for the bond issue, according to a district spokesman.

District President John Taylor said its finance committee and its fiscal agent, First Southwest Co. of Dallas, would present information on the project to bond-rating agency Sept. 8 in New York City. He expects the bonds to be sold in mid-October, he said at the directors' meeting Thursday.

The bond issue will not have a STACY DAM page 2-A

4 youths sentenced in arson

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Revenge was cited as a possible motive in the Airport Elementary School fire Aug. 5, arson investigator Burr Lea Settles said Friday afternoon after two male juveniles were sentenced to the Texas Youth Commission for the offense.

Two female juveniles received probated sentences in the same case during yesterday's hearing before Howard County Court Judge Milton Kirby.

"One motive of sorts that was brought out during the hearing was that one boy didn't care for school. It was a revenge type motive," said Settles, who investigated the blaze.

The two boys, ages 15 and 16, will serve in the TYC "for an indefinite period of time," Settles said.

One of the girls will be placed in Big Spring's Rainbow Project facility for a one-year probationary period. The other girl received a one-year probation sentence and was released to the custody of her mother, Settles said.

The arson investigator said initially he thought the blaze might be related to an earlier fire this summer at Washington Elementary School.

Iranian oil facility hurt in jet strike

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Marine salvage executives on the Persian Gulf said Friday that Iraqi jets inflicted enormous damage on Iran's vast Kharg Island oil terminal, but that two of its three loading jetties may still be operating.

Iran, while silent about damage at Kharg Island, claimed its troops killed or wounded 650 Iraqi soldiers in a pre-dawn attack Friday.

The official Iranian news agency, IRNA, said Iranian troops routed two Iraqi battalions and captured four strategic heights near the Iranian town of Fakkeh, on the southern section of the 733-mile battlefield.

The Islamic Republic News Agency was monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

One expert estimated Kharg Island's loading capacity was cut by 40 percent in Thursday's air attack by Iraqi jets, but said operations could be back to normal in about two weeks.

Iran said Iraq lost one jet in attacking Kharg, but Iraq said all its planes returned safely.

Traffic at the heavily fortified island, 138 miles southeast of Iraq, accounts for about 90 percent of Iran's exports of 1 million barrels daily of crude oil.

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980. Iraq periodically has attacked Kharg and gulf shipping trying to cut off oil export income that Iran uses to finance its war effort.

Friday, the salvage officials said the warplanes struck an "effective blow" at the 60-square-mile oil storage tank farm, which is equipped with a network of land and underwater pipelines and jetties in the northeastern gulf.

Kharg Island, an Iranian oil terminal, may still be functioning after being attacked by Iraqi jets in the Arab nation's continuing war.

Fire fever

Boston station's firefighters fascinated with flames

BOSTON (AP) — Fire Lt. Jerry Lucas shrugged the oxygen tank off his back, slapped it back into the cab of Ladder 26 and said wryly:

"Somebody burned the supper." The call to an apartment house below the Mission Hill project was a dud — someone smelled burned food and turned in an alarm. Lucas was disappointed.

"You get pumped up going to a good fire," said Lucas, 36, 6-foot-5, 210-pounds and built like a wide receiver. He is the son of a firefighter and an 11-year department veteran.

It was 11 p.m., a slow night for Huntington Avenue, District 5. Ladder 26 and its companion truck, Engine 37, sped to nearly 7,000 calls in 1984, more than any other station in Boston.

Capt. Howard C. Ferguson, 56, the white-haired station commander who has fought fires since he became a part-time firefighter while in high school 40 years ago, understood.

"A fire is a turn-on," he said. "You don't want to see anybody in trouble. But as long as it's going to happen, you might as well be there. A good fire is a challenge. Who's going to win? Definitely, there's a fascination in it. I never get tired of it."

Within 10 minutes, Lucas was back on the street commanding Ladder 26, a gleaming red-and-chrome truck with a 100-foot ladder folded on a 30-foot trailer steered from a rear turret by a firefighter called the tiller.

Lucas and company, siren wailing, sped past Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, Harvard Medical School and a half-dozen of the country's most famous hospitals.

Riding a screaming fire truck is a giddy experience, a cross between a childhood fantasy and the reality of going into combat. The last two Boston firefighters who died made their last run in 1981 from the Huntington Avenue firehouse. A roof fell on them.

"That's the fear in the back of everybody's mind," said Lucas. "There's nothing you can do about it. If you think about it, you might as well quit. It's not hard getting men into a burning building, it's hard getting them out."

Firefighters eat and sleep in the firehouse, tensely awaiting the next alarm. At any one time, 20 percent to 25 percent of Boston firefighters are on the injured list. High blood pressure, said

Lt. Jerry Lucas of the Huntington Avenue firehouse in Boston, the city's busiest, poses Friday at the station in one of the fire engines.

Ferguson, is an occupational hazard.

Firefighters worry as much about the fumes they breathe from burning chemical substances as they do about collapsing roofs, said Lucas. Wearing masks connected to air tanks now is mandatory.

Their destination was the vacant Tobin School next to a low-income apartment project in Roxbury. In an enclosed grassy lot on a terrace behind the school, a stripped Japanese compact car blazed.

The firefighters dragged a hose from Engine 37 through an alley too narrow for the truck, up a dozen concrete stairs, through a hole in a wire fence.

"They can't burn them where you can get at them," muttered Lucas.

Although calls have dropped by almost 30 percent since a 1975 high of 63,775, Boston firefighters now answer more alarms for burning cars than for burning buildings.

As a lieutenant with a place on the captain's list, Lucas, who has only a high school education, earns about $32,000 a year. A captaincy means another $5,000 a year.

His father retired in 1974, the year Lucas joined the department.

"It's hard work," said Lucas. "But after a good fire, after I've been challenged, I go home and I feel I've earned my money."

variable interest rate, the spokesman said. He said the variable rate might save some money, but that First Southwest President Frank Medenich recommended they not go that route.

Voters in Abilene, Midland and San Angelo approved the purchase of 15,000 acre-feet of water each from Stacy Dam in a special election last Saturday.

Half of the surveying has been completed and land appraisals will begin next month, district general manager O.H. Ivie said.

He also said geo-technical work on the foundations were finished and consultants were making on-site inspections this week. The district also has started to talk to other agencies about highway relocation and construction.

The reservoir's design engineering is 15 percent completed, he said.

District directors also allocated up to $60,000 for a cooperative survey by the U.S. Geological Survey for quality improvement about Lake E.V. Spence.

Ivie said the district will try to broaden the study to include the Stacy watershed and that the study might take more the current estimate of two years.

The district just spent $4.25 million on improving water quality with a diversion dam on Beals Creek, a tributary to the Colorado River above Lake Spence.

But Friday he said, "I haven't found concrete evidence to link the two incidents."

The two female youths were runaways. Settles said. They were referred to him by juvenile probation officer Pat Dunham who said they might have knowledge of the fire.

"When I talked to them, it was evident they did have knowledge," Settles said. The four juveniles were taken into custody Aug. 7 and detained at city jail.

The fire caused about $60,000 damage, according to figures presented to the Big Spring Independent School District from local insurance adjusters.

The school had been closed for several years and was used primarily as a storage area.

Settles declined to say what matter was used or how the fire was ignited.

Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Margy Thompson said sentence terms for the two boys would be determined by the faculty at TYC.

Settles said he received no assistance in gathering the evidence that was presented to County Attorney Tim Yeats, who prosecuted the case.

Boyd named to state board

Hal Boyd, Big Spring airport and industrial development manager, was named to the Texas National Guard Armory Board Aug. 1 by Gov. Mark White.

Boyd, 55, of 607 Highland is a retired colonel in the Texas Army National Guard. He replaces Fred Avila of Pasadena whose term on the board expired April 30. Boyd's term will extend to April 30, 1991.

Boyd said the board is a quasi-corporation established to supervise financing, acquisition, construction, sales, rental, control, maintenance and operation of more than 130 National Guard or State Guard armory facilities across Texas.

Boyd was nominated for the position by several state officials, including Sen. John Montford and Rep. Larry Don Shaw.

Polish opposition ebbs

VIENNA, Austria — Polish leader Wojciech Jaruzelski, speaking in a rare Western interview, claimed opponents to his regime are steadily losing influence and called for better relations with the often critical Roman Catholic Church.

Gen. Jaruzelski, in an interview broadcast Friday by Austrian television, also urged the United States to lift its remaining economic sanctions against Poland.

The 62-year-old Communist Party first secretary and prime minister plans to make his first official trip to the West on Sept. 27, when he will visit New York to address the U.N. General Assembly.

"The sharpest moments are behind us," Jaruzelski. His speech was translated into a 22-page German-language transcript, given The AP in advance. "The remnants of the opposition are still fairly vital but the influence of this opposition is constantly less."

19 killed in fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christian and Moslem forces exchanged artillery and mortar fire Friday in barracks that spread through most of the capital, killing 19 people and wounding 82. The West German ambassador's car was fired upon, and his chauffeur was killed when they tried to run the gauntlet of snipers.

Few of the militiamen who keep the city buzzing with deadly fire are killed in the fighting, because they are well-entrenched. But civilians fall victim to stray bullets or random fire.

At least 51 people have been killed and nearly 250 wounded since the shooting began last weekend across the Green Line that divides the capital into Christian and Moslem sections. They are the fiercest sectarian clashes since July 16, when Syria announced a plan to restore peace to Lebanon.

Troops out by 1990

BANGKOK, Thailand — Vietnam said Friday it would remove all of its troops from Cambodia by 1990, but would take what it called appropriate measures if the security of Cambodia was undermined by the pullout.

It was the first time Vietnam set a specific date for a total withdrawal. It has staged annual withdrawals of 10,000 or more troops since 1982, but opponents say those merely were troop rotations. Western diplomats estimate Vietnam still maintains 150,000-170,000 troops in Cambodia.

In an apparent policy change, the foreign ministers of Vietnam, Laos and the Vietnamese-installed government in Cambodia also said in a joint communique that they saw merit in a proposal for indirect talks to resolve the dispute over Cambodia.

Vietnam is ready to talk with all Cambodian resistance groups about national reconciliation and national elections, the communique said.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scarton, parents of Airman 1st Class Frank Henry Scarton, receive a flag from 1st Lt. Anne Houseal at their son's funeral. He was killed in a terrorist bomb attack Aug. 8 at Rhein-Main Airbase near Frankfurt, West Germany.

Airman slain by terrorist bomb given rites

WOODHAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Twenty-one rifle shots and the sound of taps broke the silence under a cloudless sky Friday at rites for a suburban Detroit airman killed in a terrorist bombing at his base in West Germany.

About 500 family members and friends honored Airman 1st Class Frank Henry Scarton, 20, in a Mass at Our Lady of the Woods Church in Woodhaven before his body was taken to Our Lady of Hope Cemetery for military rites and burial.

Scarton, a member of the 437th Military Airlift Wing on temporary duty at Rhein-Main Air Base near Frankfurt, and a civilian were killed and 20 other people were injured Aug. 8 when a terrorist car bomb exploded at the base.

Direct Action, a French leftist group, and the anarchist Red Army Faction of West Germany claimed joint responsibility for the bombing.

The Rev. John Leo Phalen eulogized Scarton as a good citizen of this world and "a citizen beyond this world."

Scarton was a Woodhaven High School football star who married his high school sweetheart, Mary Ellen Krausch, before going on his tour of duty, and he was buried with his wedding band on his finger. They had no children.

"He had a frame that was powerful, but it couldn't last in this world," said Phalen. "The world was not fit for him to live in."

At the cemetery, Scarton's widow and other family members wept after seven members of an Air Force rifle squad fired three shots each into a sunny sky. As taps played, a color guard headed by 1st Lt. Anne Houseal folded the flag that draped Scarton's coffin.

Houseal was the officer in charge of Scarton's section when he was stationed in Charleston, S.C., for 21 months before he was sent to West Germany on July 23. She fought back tears as she handed the flag to the dead airman's wife. Houseal presented a second flag to the airman's parents, Frank and Mary Ann Scarton.

"I feel hurt but proud," Houseal said later. "This is the most difficult thing I've ever done."

Phalen said in the eulogy that the way in which Scarton died reminded him that "some of the things we do tell us we aren't very far from the caves."

"We have to look for another way of dealing with one another," he said.

A memorial service for other victims of the bombing, Becky J. Bristol, was held Thursday in her hometown of San Antonio, Texas.

Purple Heart medals were presented to Mrs. Bristol's husband, Senior Airman John Bristol, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Patch.

Mrs. Bristol worked in the personnel office at the base, where her husband was stationed. Purple Hearts have been available to civilians since February 1984, when President Reagan signed an order allowing them to be given to citizens injured while serving in some capacity with U.S. military forces.

Ron Travis, minister of the Memorial Christian Church, called Mrs. Bristol "a casualty of war — not just a war with guns and bombs, but a war between that which is good and righteous and that which is evil."

Tornadoes kill 1

PARRISH, Ala. — Tornadoes spawned by the remnants of Hurricane Danny hopscotched across north Alabama on Friday, killing one person, injuring at least six and causing extensive damage.

In Louisiana, thousands remained without power as authorities tried to repair damage from the storm, which weakened to a tropical depression after coming ashore over Louisiana on Thursday. Danny moved northeast, carrying rain into Mississippi, Arkansas and west Tennessee.

In Parrish, about 40 miles northwest of Birmingham, a 66-year-old woman was killed when a twister ripped apart her mobile home, and one man was injured when wind flipped his truck, authorities said.

State troopers were sent into Parrish to guard against possible looting.

Four people were hurt in Jasper, the Walker County seat about six miles away, county officials said.

A tornado touched down near Gold Ridge, in north-central Alabama, and caused some injuries and much damage, said Donald Steele, Cullman County Emergency Management Agency director.

Boeing issues 747 notice

SEATTLE — The Boeing Co. has advised operators of 747 jetliners that they may want to inspect rear sections of the planes, following this week's Japan Air Lines 747 crash that killed 520 people, a spokesman said Friday.

"We're saying that, in view of this accident and until the cause is determined, you may wish to do this. It's not a recommendation or a request," Boeing spokesman Richard Schleh said Friday.

He said the company sent a telex late Thursday to 747 operators worldwide advising: "Until the cause of the accident is determined, operators may wish to inspect the vertical fin and rudder structure due to the reported decompression (of the JAL plane's cabin). Operators may also wish to visually inspect the external and aft portions of the pressure shell structure."

Japan's Transport Ministry earlier ordered inspections of the tail sections of all Boeing 747s flown by Japan-based airlines. That order was issued after preliminary evidence indicated a structural failure in the tail section may have caused Monday's crash.

Mine closed; 3 killed

CORBIN, Ky. — A Whitley County coal mine was closed indefinitely Friday after federal and state inspectors said three miners suffocated because of poor ventilation.

Carl Boone, sub-district manager of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration at Barbourville, said it appeared the shaft "didn't have a movement of air" at a point between 600 and 800 feet below the surface where the bodies were recovered Thursday.

Judge refuses to lift order barring AIDS youth from class

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 13-year-old AIDS victim must go through school channels to fight an order barring him from fall classes before a court can consider his case, a federal judge ruled Friday.

The boy's mother accused U.S. District Judge James E. Noland of "copping out" by declining to decide whether her son should be allowed back into school.

Ryan White, a hemophiliac who contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion, has been out of school since December, when he was diagnosed as having acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

James O. Smith, superintendent of the Western School Corp. near Kokomo, has refused to allow the boy to enroll when classes start Aug. 26, fearing that Ryan's condition could harm other students.

Ryan's physicians say he is capable of attending school.

Ryan and his mother filed suit against the school officials, claiming they illegally discriminated against Ryan as a handicapped person and denied him equal protection under the law. They sought an injunction preventing the school from barring the boy.

But at Friday's hearing, lawyers for the school district argued that Noland lacked legal authority to decide the case because the Whites had not exhausted their administrative remedies under a federal law governing handicapped children's access to education.

David R. Day of Indianapolis, the school district's lawyer, said the procedure spelled out in the law starts with a case conference involving parents, school officials and experts. The recommendation stemming from that conference is subject to review by the school superintendent, then by a hearing officer appointed by the State Board of Education and finally by the State Board of Special Education Appeals.

The average appeal takes four months, Day said, and in the meantime, Ryan could be educated at home. But Charles Vaughan of Lafayette, the Whites' lawyer, said the case could drag on interminably.

"In an AIDS case we cannot toy with time. Time is of the essence like in no other case in the world," he argued.

Iranian elections extended

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran said it crushed attempts by underground groups to disrupt Friday's presidential election and voting was extended by four hours because of a huge turnout.

A resistance movement claimed to have killed or wounded dozens of Iranian Revolutionary Guards in a single attack in the southern city of Abadan.

President Ali Khamenei, the 45-year-old incumbent, was expected to win easily over the two candidates the Council of Guardians allowed to run against him. Iran's official news agency said the revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, cast his ballot soon after the polls opened.

Abstract business teaches history

In running an abstract company, every task provides a history lesson, said Janice Montealeone, manager of the Howard County Abstract and Title Co.

Montealeone, 29, and Betty Thixton, 27, run the company for Montealeone's parents, George and Bonnie Franklin, the latest owners of the abstract business. The Franklins purchased the abstract plant after the death of owner Katherine E. McDaniel. The company, located at 110 W. Fourth, has been directed by Montealeone and Thixton since the purchase was made in March. Thixton also was employed with the company under the ownership of McDaniel.

Bonnie Franklin, Howard County treasurer, said she has worked with titles and abstracts for several years and decided to buy the company because she "had always wanted to own a title company."

The work done by an abstract company "is something most everybody comes into contact with but knows very little about," Mrs. Franklin said.

Montealeone said the company maintains an index of the legal description of documents that appear on public records regarding titles to real properties in the county. With these records, she and Thixton write title insurance papers.

Mrs. Franklin said all banks, loan companies and lending institutions require title insurance on city property.

Oil companies use title company records to search out mineral owners and secure oil, gas and mineral leases. The company does not write title insurance on minerals, which must be an abstract of title, she said.

Thixton said the work is interesting because it is "never the same." It takes one to two weeks of research to prepare one title insurance, she said.

The company's records also are open for individual customers to review, Montealeone said.

Montealeone has about 11 years of both direct and related experience in title work. Thixton has five years experience. Mrs. Franklin said added experience is one of the changes made with their ownership of the company.

Other changes in the process include putting all miscellaneous items, including wills and other legal documents, used in title research on computer with printouts available, Mrs. Franklin said. This change is still being implemented.

Mrs. Franklin said she and her husband, who is employed with the Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., have no regrets about buying the company and enjoy working closely with their daughter and Thixton in an advisory position.

The goal for the abstract company, which is the oldest in town, is "to maintain the best records," Mrs. Franklin said.

Howard County Abstract and Title Co. is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Janice Montealeone and Betty Thixton manage the Howard County Abstract Co., 110 W. Third, for new owners George and Bonnie Franklin.

Peters on excellence

Critics criticized

By TOM PETERS
At least three reviewers of Nancy Austin's and my new book, A Passion for Excellence, have lashed out at our last chapter, "The Price of Excellence." In that chapter, we extolled the virtues of excellence — in garbage collection, UPS drivership, toothpaste mixing, teaching. We said the pursuit of excellence gives purpose, zest and vitality to many of us.

How much better, we supposed, it is to be engaged in a cause — creating a great car dealership or an excellent Cub Scout troop — than to be drying up, devoid of emotion for one's work (which will occupy more waking hours than any other single activity for most of us). Yet we concluded that win-win is possible only to a point; one cannot have both a full and satisfying personal life and a full and satisfying professional life.

The attacks on our view have been so virulent that I've concluded we must be on to something. You don't make people that mad unless you strike close to home.

In particular, the offended mention our quote from David Ogilvy's book, "Confessions of an Advertising Man" — "If you prefer to spend all your spare time growing roses or playing with your children, I like you better, but do not complain you are not being promoted fast enough."

I admit that Ogilvy's line is rather offensive. On the other hand, it's the first honest statement on the subject I've been privileged to read. I write about excellence in organizational performance. Above all, I believe, it means face-to-face contact (MBWA — Managing By Wandering Around) with customers, vendors and one's own people. Face-to-face contact takes time, energy and emotion — time, energy and emotion not devoted to something else (be it family, reading, gardening, tennis or embroidery).

One scornful reviewer hinted that the price of excellence might indeed be high for Peters and Austin, but not for him; he wanted it all, and he could have it. That attitude, I think, is the height of childishness. I am, quite simply, a fan of mature choice. I agree foursquare with Ogilvy: I most respect the souls who do not miss PTA meetings, who have a fine garden and who take pleasure in their work, too. But I do not expect to see them be nominated for a Nobel Prize, win an Olympic medal, found a major new business or serve as executive vice president of a giant, mature one.

The truth is that I have simply not seen many "balanced" people soar to the heights, nice as the idea may be. I have seen many who think they are balanced, or believe they are spending "quality time" with their spouses and kids. The rude awakening to the fact that their spouses and kids think otherwise is always unpleasant to observe.

Yet I do not believe that business (organizational) excellence and divorce must be highly correlated. I do think that excellence and strain go hand in hand, especially in today's world.

Recent articles in The Wall Street Journal and in Fortune profiled the wives of chairmen of large American corporations. Most, apparently, are content to be housewives, child-rearers and stellar cocktail-party hostesses. That is fine, to be sure. But, beware: Those times are quickly changing. Such a role may be normal for the spouse of today's chief executive officer, but it isn't going to be so for the head honcho's spouse 20 years from now. The tightrope walking, two-career family will certainly become the norm.

With these changes will come increasing tension and strife for the fast-trackers — men and women alike. You just can't attend 50 client dinners a year and not miss any PTA meetings. Nor can you attend three dozen operating committee meetings and have near-perfect attendance throughout your son's all-star senior year on the baseball team.

A choice is necessarily involved. I beseech you only to make that choice with your eyes open, but brush the costs of excellence under the rug with glib rationalizations.

Ben Brancroft recently organized one such group. He and four other young leaders meet for lunch once a week in his office to brainstorm ideas to make a better community.

The Social Security reception for the public was a great success Wednesday. Many citizens came by to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security act by FDR.

What's happening with the super collider project? Plenty behind the scenes. Two representatives from the Permian Basin met recently with Vice President Bush. The first step is to get the project funding in the federal budget; second, to get Texas chosen as the state in which it will be built; and third, to get the site within Texas to be in the Permian Basin.

For a clear insight into this project, read last month's issue of National Geographic, which explains this complicated, gigantic scientific program in graphic detail.

Three major factors in site selection are: land/construction costs, and having a major airport and a top university close by. The University of Texas, Permian Basin, then, becomes glaringly important. A large number of Rotary Clubs in the Permian Basin already have formally adopted UTPB as their project for '85-86 to give various types of support to make it a stronger, more widely recognized institution.

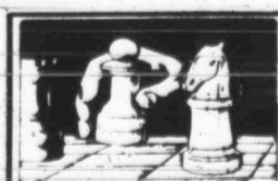

Other things are simultaneously being done to strengthen UTPB support: establishment of a UTPB PAC, created to support candidates and elected officials who believe the university is a viable part of the Permian Basin; moving along rapidly in the opening of the UTPB Research Center; and the John Ben Sheppard Jaycee Leadership Program to be held twice a year for 100 carefully selected young leaders from every part of Texas to wrestle with major issues confronting Texas.

Midlander John Landgraf is heading up a group, including some Big Springers, to put together a report with information gathered from all the Permian Basin Chambers of Commerce. The report will depict the role of support and importance of the university in the Permian Basin. This will then be submitted to the Select Committee on Higher Education studying Texas' higher education situation to make major recommendations for changes in much the same way the Public Schools Select Committee made recommendations resulting in House Bill 72.

Paul Youngdale, director of development for the University of Texas system, is working with UTPB's development office to raise the goals for unrestricted and restricted funding. The needed yearly minimum is $100,000.

Howard signs El Paso recruit

Howard College men's basketball coach Ed Sparling announced the signing of prized recruit Mike Duran of El Paso River-side to a scholarship Friday.

The 6-6, 192-pound Duran was one of the finest high school players in the state last year while averaging 18 points and 14 rebounds per game for Riverside. Duran was named El Paso Male Athlete of the Year and Player of the Year following his senior season.

Duran was a consensus All-district performer at Riverside and was named the 2-5A Most Valuable Player for the '84-85 season.

In addition to his exploits on the hardwood, Duran maintained a 3.5 grade point average through high school.

Sparling is planning to use Duran as a swingman to take advantage of his fine shooting touch and aggressive rebounding.

MIKE DURAN
... Dist. 2-5A MVP

"We are certainly pleased to have a player of Mike's caliber joining our program," commented Sparling. "He was one of the most hotly recruited players in West Texas and is a Division I quality ball player. I expect great things from Mike, both on the court and in the classroom."

NCAA slams SMU

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA, citing Southern Methodist University's "history of involvement" in rule violations, slapped a three-year probation on the Mustang football program Friday that includes an unprecedented reduction of 45 scholarships.

A lengthy list of penalties accompanying the Southwest Conference school's fourth probation in 11 years also calls for sanctions prohibiting television and bowl appearances and punishment of certain unnamed staff members.

Most critically, SMU will not be allowed to give any football scholarships next season and only 15 the following year. This is in line with a resolution adopted this year by the American Football Coaches Association urging the NCAA to cut greater use of scholarship cuts in punishing rule-breakers.

In a statement issued just after the NCAA announcement, SMU President L. Donald Shields said, "SMU acknowledges with great embarrassment and regret the violations of NCAA rules which have occurred in the intercollegiate football program."

Willford Bailey, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA, said in his agency's statement that "this case marks the fourth occasion in 11 years that the university has been placed on NCAA probation, and these cases have included findings that the university has been involved in violations during 11 of the last 14 years."

"Based upon the serious violations in this case, as well as the university's history of involvement in previous infractions cases, the Council believed that the severe penalties proposed by the Committee on Infractions in this case were appropriate, including severe grant-in-aid limitations."

In what was previously thought to be the most severe scholarship cut, Florida last year was stripped of a total of 30 grants over a two-year period. Clemson, less than a year after winning the 1982 national championship, was stripped of 20 grants over two years.

NCAA rules allow a maximum of 30 football scholarships each year and a total of 95.

The NCAA release included four pages of single-spaced listings of alleged violations from 1981 through 1984. Violations include giving $5,000 in cash to the family of a prospect, and promising the young man a $300 monthly cash allowance during his SMU career; paying the cost of repairing players' cars; giving cash amounts up to $2,000 to family members of other players being recruited; and providing improper transportation, lodging and entertainment expenses to recruits and their family members.

Specifically, the probation:

- Prohibits SMU, expected to be among the most powerful teams in the nation this year, from playing in post-season bowl games after the 1985 and 1986 seasons.

- Prohibits the school from having its games on any live telecast during the 1986 season.

- Orders that during the probation period of three years, effective on Friday, SMU "shall make every reasonable effort to ensure that outside representatives of the university's athletic interests are not engaged in any activities related to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes in the sport of football on behalf of the institution."

- Orders that one assistant coach, who was not named, be placed on probation and not be allowed to recruit until May 1, 1985; that his salary be reduced 15 percent.

Aussie grabs Buick lead

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Australian Wayne Grady shot an 8-under-par 64 Friday for a two-round total of 133 and a one-stroke lead over Ken Green in the $450,000 Buick Open golf championship at Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

Grady, 28, a resident of Queensland, Australia, who is playing his first season in the United States, started his round with a bogey on the par-4, 401-yard second hole but recovered to birdie three of the remaining seven holes on the front side, making the turn in 34.

Grady blistered the back nine, rolling in birdie putts on the first four holes and finishing with birdies on the 16th and 18th for a 30 on the back. His longest birdie putt was a 30-footer on No. 4 and the shortest was from five feet at both the seventh and 12th.

Grady, who spent the last 10 years playing in Asia and Europe, has earned $102,421 so far this year on the PGA Tour. The last time he led a round was at Hartford, Conn. when he and Raymond Floyd were tied for first place entering the final round. He finished in a tie for fourth in that tournament.

Green, 27, a resident of Marblehead, Conn., also won his Tour card in the 1984 PGA qualifying school, along with Grady. He doesn't have a top 10 finish in 21 tournaments this year, but he's been in the money 16 times.

Green started the day at 3-under and carded a 65 on Friday in a round that included two bogies, one when he three-putted the par-3 11th hole.

Paul Azinger, who started the second round at 66, one shot behind first-round leader Rick Fehr, carded a 69 Friday for a two-round total of 135, two strokes behind the leader.

Fehr stumbled to a 2-over 74 on Friday and was at 139.

A knot of players were three strokes behind the leader, including Gene Sauers — at 22, the youngest player on the Tour, plus Mike Nicolette and Donnie Hammond.

Grady, Green, Azinger and the other half of the field teed off in the afternoon over the 7,014-yard, par-72 layout.

Another stroke back, at 7-under 137, were Canadian Dave Barr, who tied for second in the U.S. Open, Roger Maltbie and D.A. Weibring, the former assistant pro at Red Run Golf Club in the Detroit suburb of Royal Oak.

Calvin Peete, George Burns, John Hallett and Terry Snodgrass were at 138.

Sauers, who started the day at even-par, had eight birdies and no bogeys during his brilliant round.

The course was in near-perfect conditions and the greens were soft, the way the players like them, following a day-long rain which hampered play in the first round.

Still, several name players failed to make the 143 cut. They included Gary Player, Lou Graham, T.C. Chen, Chi Chi Rodriguez, George Archer, J.C. Snead.

Eighty-four players survived the cut, including Leonard Thompson who came back from an opening round 77 to card a 66 on Friday.

The winner of the tournament will earn $81,000 and have the use of a new Buick for one year.

Dejected South African golfer GARY PLAYER walks from the green on the 18th hole after failing to make the cut during the second round of the Buick Open in Grand Blanc, Michigan.

Alcott, Daniels tied at World's BUFORD, Ga. (AP) — Two-time champion Beth Daniel turned in a hot putting round Friday with a 7-under-par 65 and moved into a three-way share of the lead with Amy Alcott and Patty Sheehan in the second round of the $200,000 LPGA Nestle World Championship of Women's Golf.

Alcott lost the lead she had held throughout the round when she bogeyed the final hole, settling for a 70. Sheehan had a 67 and the trio stood at 9-under-par 135 for 36 holes over the hilly, 6,007-yard Stouffer Pinesle Resort Golf Course.

Pat Bradley, who took two weeks off after winning the du Maurier Classic, battled into contention with a bogey-free 66 that left her three shots off the pace at 138 in the select field of 12 playing for the richest first prize on the LPGA tour, $65,000.

"I got a bad break and a bad like, so we just go on with it," Alcott said of her 18th hole bogey that came after her tee shot caught a cart path and flew into the rough, forcing her to lay up. She lipped out a 22-foot par putt that would have preserved her lead.

"I realized it was the second round and I didn't want to do anything stupid," Alcott said. "I knew I could play it save and make a five or maybe a four, but I didn't want to go for it and maybe make a six."

Daniel said her round was a shot in the arm because, "I'm not at the peak of my confidence level right now, but today certainly is going to help."

Daniel scored two birdies before sinking her 50-footer on the ninth and then put together four birdies in succession, including a 25-footer on the par 3 15th.

"I'm very pleased, but there's a long way to go," Daniel said.

Alcott, who started the day with a three-shot lead, built that margin to four when she played the front side in 32, saving par on the opening hole when her first two shots caught trees but her third almost landed in the hole.

Alcott bogeyed the 10th when she missed the green and then parred her way to the final hole where she bogeyed again.

"I'm not surprised," Alcott said of the three-way tie. "There are a lot of good players out here. It's only the second day. Everybody's jockeying to be in there. Sure, I'd like to be 15 under. Maybe I'll do it tomorrow."

Jane Blalock shot 68 to move into fifth place at 139 and Judy Clark had a 71-140.

U.S. Open winner Kathy Baker had her second 71 in a row and was tied at 142 with Nancy Lopez, the year's leading money winner.

AMY ALCOTT, a leading member of the LPGA tour, is currently tied for the second round lead at the LPGA World Championships.

Britain's Cram running at record pace

LONDON (AP) — In a mere 20 days, Britain's Steve Cram smashed three world track and field records and came within a whisker of breaking No. 4.

In that short time, he equaled Sebastian Coe's 1979 feat of three world marks, but Coe needed 41 days.

"I'm not sure that even when I peak at the end of August, I could run like that," Coe said.

Cram's dazzling summer has been the focal point of the inaugural Grand Prix season during which athletes can collect points and lucrative prize money through trust funds.

Still, the modest, unassuming 24-year-old runner, the toast of British sports, shrugs off suggestions that he has assumed the mantle of the 28-year-old Coe.

"We could meet another four times this year and no one could say who would win," he told reporters in Oslo, after shattering Coe's mark for the mile last month.

And anyway, Coe has something Cram still dreams about.

"Three world records are fine. But Seb's got an Olympic gold medal. I'd swap them all for that. World records can be taken off you, but an Olympic title is yours for life," Cram said.

Cram has tried twice for an Olympic medal. At Moscow in 1980, as an inexperienced teen-ager, he placed eighth in the 1,500-meter final. At Los Angeles last year, he was second behind Coe in that event. He'll try again in Seoul in 1988.

Cram's three-week string began in Nice, France, on July 16 when he smashed fellow-Briton Steve Ovett's 1,500-meter record by clocking 3 minutes, 29.67 seconds.

Eleven days later in Oslo, his 3:46.31 shattered Coe's mark for the mile. Roger Bannister, who in 1954 became the first man to break four minutes, would have trailed almost 100 yards behind: Cram said he felt he could have run even faster.

Another week went by before he broke the 2,000-meter world best by one-hundredth of a second when he ran 4:51.39 in Budapest to claim New Zealander John Walker's 9-year-old record.

On his home track at Gateshead, northeast England, last weekend, only the wind prevented Cram from adding Coe's 1,000-meter mark. He failed by just 0.67 seconds.

While opponents feared Coe for his devastating sprint finish, Cram runs in an entirely different style. He uses his strength, height and awareness to grind down opponents with powerful, long strides.

"Size and strength is the essence of Cram's achievements," said Peter Coe, Sebastian's father, who spent 12 years guiding his son toward peaks now being surpassed or threatened by Cram.

Cram, 6-foot-1 and 152 pounds, says he studied the preparation and strategies of Ovett, Coe and other middle-distance stars and learned from them. Instinctively in races, he moves into position at the right time.

"You can't set yourself up with pre-race plans because they never work out," he told The Times of London recently. "You've got to be able to think on your feet."

Born on Oct. 14, 1960, Cram hails from Jarrow in northeast England, where the locals are known as Geordies and their accent is difficult to understand even for other Englishmen.

Off the track, Cram shows none of the ruthless competitiveness he displays on race days and shuns special treatment. When he returned home from winning the 1,500-meter gold medal at the Helsinki World Championships two years ago, he declined to ride in an open-topped bus, saying it was "too flashy."

"He'll even stand third in a queue for a packet of chips," said former Olympic long-distance runner Brendan Foster, another Geordie who has become Cram's friend and mentor.

In his spare time, Cram travels the short distance from his home to watch his beloved soccer team, Sunderland, for whom he says he would rather have played than been a world-class athlete.

"I think going to a match helps me to keep my success in perspective," he told The Times.

"It means I'm in the position of spectator for once. I can understand how some people may feel toward me, and want a little bit of the success that I have enjoyed. It helps me appreciate what people cheering me really feel," he said.

Since age 11, Cram has been coached by Jimmy Hedley who, in recent years, has become more of a motivator, allowing his pupil to make up his own training schedules.

Tickets and travel arrangements are handled by Cram's wife, Karen, who accompanies him on most trips abroad.

Great Britain's middle distance ace, STEVE CRAM, shown here setting the world record in the mile at Bislett Stadium in Oslo, has broken three world records in only 20 days during this summer's European track circuit.

College Football '85: The Year of the Running Back

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Pat Sullivan is no longer the answer to a trivia question. From 1971 until Doug Flutie came along last year, Sullivan, Auburn's career passing leader, was the answer to the question: Name the last quarterback to win the Heisman Trophy.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers, the 1972 winner, was mainly a flanker but he carried the ball often. But the years from 1973 (John Cappelletti) to 1983 (Mike Rozier) were dominated by running backs, even though the passing game made a dramatic reappearance at numerous 3-yards-and-a-cloud-of-dust schools.

With apologies to quarterbacks such as Brigham Young's Robbie Bosco, Iowa's Chuck Long and Bowling Green's Brian McClure, 1985 looks very much like another Year of the Running Back.

Keith Byars of Ohio State and Kenneth Davis of Texas Christian were the first-team All-American running backs in 1984 and Washington State's Rueben Mayes made second team. The previous year, Auburn's Bo Jackson made first team and Navy's Napoleon McCallum was a second-teamer. Jackson missed half the 1984 season with a shoulder injury, while McCallum was sidelined in the second game with a broken ankle.

KENNETH DAVIS
... Heisman candidate

All five are back — McCallum returns as the first redshirt in Naval Academy history — and so are five of the top 10 finishers in the 1984 Heisman balloting — Byars finished second, Bosco third, Davis fifth, Long seventh and Mayes 10th. That's not all. Notre Dame's Allen Pinkett leads current players in rushing with 3,031 yards and LSU's Dalton Hiliard (2,916) is second. Pinkett and Hiliard are 2-3 among active players in career all-purpose running and scoring behind McCallum and Byars, respectively.

Byars is a defending champion in three categories — rushing (150.5 yards a game), all-purpose running (207.6) and scoring (13.1). McCallum was the 1983 leader in all-purpose running (216.8) and was the top 1984 returnee in rushing (144.3).

Among returning quarterbacks, Bosco is the defending champion in total offense at 327.7 yards a game, while Long Beach State's Doug Gaylor (third at 324.3 behind Doug Flutie and Bosco) was good enough to be No. 1 in almost any other year.

Bosco also leads the returning passers with an excellent 151.8 rating points under the NCAA formula, which was a close second to Flutie. Florida's Kerwin Bell at 148.0 and Iowa's Long at 147.1 had figures good enough to lead the pack in most years. Long, who bypassed the National Football League draft and elected to return to Iowa for his final season, posted a 160.4 rating in 1983 when he set a Division I-A record with 10.31 yards per pass attempt.

On the career charts, Flutie's major-college record of 10,579 passing yards may not last long. Bowling Green's McClure has thrown for 7,606 yards and needs 2,974 — he had 2,951 last season — to surpass Flutie. In career passing efficiency, Bosco at 152.6 and Long at 145.3 have a shot at the all-time record of 156.9 by BYU's Jim McMahon, whose final season was 1981.

Let's take a look at the running backs:

The 233-pound Byars was the Most Valuable Player in the Big Ten last year when he rushed for 1,796 yards, an Ohio State record, including a school record 274 against Illinois. His 24 touchdowns and 207.6 all-purpose running average also led the nation. Byars also is an excellent pass catcher who led the Buckeyes with 42 receptions. For good measure, he averaged 24.8 yards on eight kickoff returns.

TCU's Davis rushed for 1,611 yards a year ago to become the most prolific rusher among underclassmen in Southwest Conference history. He had no less than seven runs of 50 yards or more and led the nation in yards per carry (7.64), finished third in both yards per game (146.5) and in scoring (17 touchdowns) and was a unanimous choice as SWC Offensive Player of the Year.

Davis also broke Jim Swink's TCU career rushing record (he has 2,842 yards) and became the first player in SWC history to rush for more than 200 yards three times in a season.

Washington State's Mayes, a native of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, is one of the few Canadians to make it big in the United States. He scammed for 1,637 yards in 1984, second nationally to Byars and the sixth best in Pacific-10 Conference history.

Mayes' hobbies and special interests are as fascinating as his yardage — classical music, fishing, hunting and gourmet cooking.

Jackson and McCallum were among the preseason Heisman favorites a year ago before they were injured. Jackson, who has 2,517 career yards and needs 1,007 to become Auburn's career leader, became Auburn's first three-sport letterman in more than 30 years by emerging as one of the Southeastern Conference's leading sluggers in baseball. He also is a sprinter on the track team.

McCallum was only 84 yards short of Navy's career rushing record when he was injured. Never before has the academy allowed an athlete to compete after his scheduled graduation date, although redshirting is common at civilian colleges.

The decision was reviewed as high as the Pentagon, and Rear Adm. Charles Larson, superintendent of the academy, said redshirting "will not become routine practice during my tenure. This was a unique case decided on its merits. I decided we had an obligation to support him after all the support he has provided for the Naval Academy."

Notre Dame already has had six Heisman winners. Pinkett, who would like to become the seventh, owns numerous school records in scoring, 100-yard games and all-purpose yardage.

Hogeboom gets exhibition nod

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The holdout of running back Tony Dorsett is over, and the Dallas Cowboys apparently have solved a dilemma at quarterback for Saturday night's exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers.

The nationally televised National Football League contest continues the game of who will be the Cowboy's starting quarterback. Although Dallas Coach Tom Landry said the job belongs to Danny White, the Cowboys will start Gary Hogeboom against San Diego.

The only quarterback question in San Diego involves who will back up Dan Fouts. Bruce Mathison and Mark Herrmann are vying for the No. 2 job.

White was yanked as the starter last year but continued as the Cowboys punter.

"I learned the hard way last year that you really can't count on anything," he said.

Dorsett will not play until the Cowboys' Aug. 26 game against Chicago, Dallas Coach Tom Landry said.

"He has a lot of work to do," Landry said of Dorsett, who agreed to a new five-year contract Wednesday. "It will take him two to four weeks to get back into top shape."

The Cowboys and the Chargers, winners in their preseason opener last week, are both eyeing an infusion of youthful talent this spring after subpar 1984 campaigns.

The Chargers, who cut nine veterans in one day last month, are starting two rookies in the defensive secondary, and No. 1 draft pick Jim Lachey at offensive tackle. The Chargers also heavily recruited youthful talent from the United States Football League.

"We'll be playing the players who have shown well in practice, the ones who we think will help us and remain with the team," Chargers Coach Don Coryell said.

The Cowboys, who missed the playoffs for only the second time in 19 years last season, downed the Green Bay Packers last week, 27-3, in an exhibition win Landry credited to "one of the better rookie nights we've ever had."

Landry says he sees some similarities between the makeup of this year's team and the 1975 Dallas club, which advanced to the Super Bowl where it lost to Pittsburgh, 21-17. That Dallas team had 12 rookies.

"I don't believe history necessarily repeats itself, but we're going to work to see if we can do it," he said. "I think it's always interesting to take a team that nobody thinks is going to do anything ... and take it somewhere."

Landry said White and Hogeboom would each play roughly the same amount of time Saturday.

Decker sets 800 mark

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Mary Decker-Slaney set an American record in winning the women's 800 meters Friday in the Bern international track and field meet.

Decker-Slaney won the event in 1 minute, 56.9 seconds. Claudette Groenendaal of the United States was second in 1:58.3.

Olympic gold medalist Joaquim Cruz easily won the 1,000 meters in 2:15.11. Organizers had scheduled the event at his request as a warmup for the Brazilian's expected 800-meter duel against Steve Cram and possibly Sebastian Coe next week at the Zurich Grand Prix meet.

Cruz fell short of his own Brazilian record but outlasted fellow countryman Jose Luis Barbosa, who was second 3.32 seconds behind.

Jerome Carter of the United States won the high jump at 7 feet, 2 1/4 inches and American Dwight Stones was second.

Staying unbeaten in European races this year, Doug Padilla of the United States put in a spurt in the last lap to take the 3,000 meters at 7:47.22 minutes. Graeme Fell of Canada and Switzerland's Markus Ryffel were close behind.

U.S. Olympic silver medalist Judi Brown was virtually unchallenged in the women's 400 meter hurdles, finishing first in 56.53. West Germany's Gudrun Abt was second.

Olympic triple jump champion Al Joyner, however, was not in form in the broad jump. The American finished third behind Ulrich Gregoire and Rene Gloor, both of Switzerland.

Kenya's Mike Boit won the mile run.

McEnroe, Connors advance

MONTREAL (AP) — Defending champion John McEnroe and third-seeded Jimmy Connors quickly dispatched their opponents Friday and advanced to the semifinals of the Player's International tennis tournament.

Top-seeded McEnroe used a blistering serve and strong passing shots to defeat 16th-seeded Ramesh Krishnan of India 6-3, 6-2.

"He's a talented guy, but he can't win enough points on his serve," said McEnroe, who won in one hour after breaking Krishnan's service twice in each set.

"He's difficult to play against because you are not sure what he's going to do."

Krishnan took an early lead after he broke McEnroe's service while last year's victor was hitting wide. But Krishnan's game was later plagued by poor net plays, as well as his inability to return serves and a tendency to hand McEnroe opportunities for overhead smashes.

Campbell, Saints set to test Oilers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It's Earl Campbell's first home appearance as a New Orleans Saints starter and his first time to go against the Houston Oilers, the team he led to the playoffs three straight years before his bad times started.

The Oilers meet the Saints in the Superdome Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

"Earl has looked good in practice, in scrimmage and in last week's game," said Saints Coach Bum Phillips, who twice used first-round draft choices to get Campbell. He drafted Campbell No. 1 in 1978 at Houston, then last season traded this year's No. 1 to get him from the Oilers.

Phillips raised the stakes by trading a handful of late and middle draft choices, along with incumbent George Rogers, the first player he drafted at New Orleans, to Washington for a first-round pick — a trade the Redskins call a steal.

Campbell hasn't shown his old form since the Oilers fired Phillips after the 1980 season. Used up, the Oilers said. Not used properly, says Campbell and the folks who believe there are still seasons left in his legs.

He didn't show it last year, when he checked in after six games overweight and out of shape to play backup to Rogers. He had preseason knee surgery and was pressed into duty at Houston without being given a chance to rehabilitate the knee properly or get into playing condition, Phillips said.

Campbell carried 50 times for 190 yards for the Saints last season, an average of 3.8 yards a carry.

He carried 10 times for 65 yards in the first half of the Saints' 32-20 exhibition season victory over New England last week, including a nice 32-yard burst that recalled the glory days.

"He's healthy and in great shape," Phillips said.

There are seven other former Oilers on the Saints' player roster, three assistant coaches who made the move with Phillips and one hired as a coach after finishing his playing days at Houston.

Houston is 0-2 for the exhibition season by a total of five points — a 20-21 loss to the Giants in the opener and a 3-7 loss to the Rams last week.

Nebraska Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier, moved over from the U.S. Football League, and Butch Woolfolk, obtained from the Giants, battle incumbent starter Stan Edwards for playing time in the Oilers' backfield.

Warren Moon, going into his second NFL season after a record-setting career in Canadian football, seeks to secure his grip on the Oilers' starting quarterback job over Oliver Luck.

They'll test a defense that surrendered 371 yards to New England, including 262 passing yards.
