

On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

The new child labor law, the amendment that applies to child labor in agriculture, is giving farmers in this area who have a big cotton crop cause for concern. Farmers who hire children under 16 years of age during school hours are subject to a heavy fine.

Perhaps the situation is remedied for the time as school has been dismissed for at least two weeks to give farmers an opportunity to get their cotton gathered, but the problem will be here year to year. Farmers are faced with the necessity of raising only the cotton local labor can harvest or turning to mechanical pickers.

School Closed For Cotton Picking

Because of the child labor law amended in 1949 to include agriculture, the board of trustees of the Loraine Independent School District decided to discontinue school from Wednesday of this week until October 30, if the weather will permit cotton pulling.

There are hundreds of cotton pullers in this area under 16 years of age and since it is unlawful for farmers to hire such labor during school hours, it was deemed best to dismiss school for a short time to give farmers an opportunity to gather the big crop of cotton.

Supt. Parish stated to the Lions Club Tuesday that the local school is not prepared to take care of 500 or 600 children of migratory laborers, who are here for only a month or two in the year.

Fifteen Years Ago In Loraine

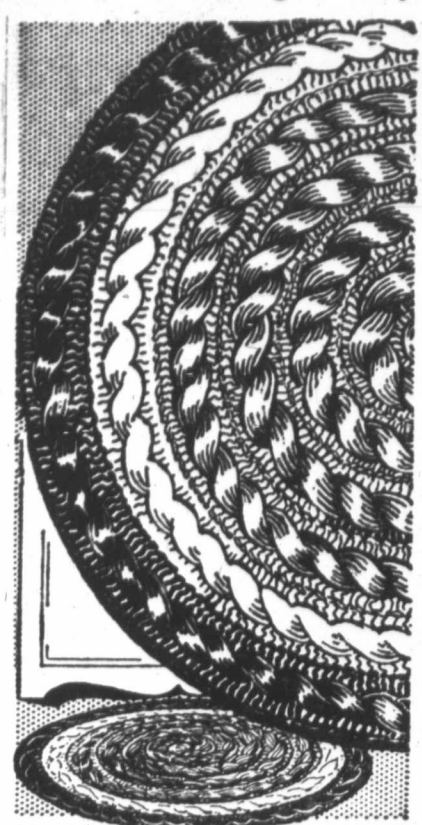

(Taken from files of the Mitchell County News October 10, 1935.)

A youthful hitchhiker, about 22 years old, turned on his benefactor late Tuesday afternoon near China Grove, and at the point of a pistol robbed him of his car, $20 in cash and a suitcase of clothing, leaving his victim stranded on foot about 3 miles from China Grove.

The victim, B. C. Dodson of El Paso, was told by the young robber, that he would leave the car in Post, Texas.

The Roscoe Plovboys won a victory of 51-6 over the Loraine Bulldogs Friday afternoon.

Use Chew-Gum Laxative—
REMOVES WASTE... NOT GOOD FOOD

When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as millions do—chew FEEN-A-MINT.

FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different!
Doctors say many other laxatives start their "drugging" action too soon... right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy... you feel weak, wretched.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25¢, 50¢, or only 10¢

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complaints of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used occasionally by millions for

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Congress Overrides Truman Veto
Of Tough Communist Control Bill;
United Nations Forces Take Seoul

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

The race of U.N. forces from the Inchon and Pusan areas to cut South Korea into two sections and isolate thousands of Communist troops in the south went forward at such a clip correspondents were unable to keep up with the advance. The two spearheads made a junction north of Taejeon, trapping about 100,000 Communist troops in southwestern Korea. Arrows indicate the directions the converging advances took.

KOREA:

Three Bloody Months

After three bloody months the war in Korea appeared near the end with the capture of Seoul, 500-year-old Korean capital, and the junction of U. N. troops from the Inchon and Pusan beachheads.

The war seemed to be in the last of three stages. The first began with the invasion of Communist troops and the general retreat of American and South Korean troops to the narrow beachhead at Pusan.

The second was that period when U. N. forces maintained their beachhead while troops and weapons for an offensive were being built up in Japan and near Pusan.

The third and final stage began with the Inchon invasion and a general attack from the north and south to isolate the invaders below the 38th parallel and thus destroy them.

The breakout from the Pusan beachhead came suddenly and in force. Troops landed at Inchon captured Seoul and headed south. The two forces were within a few miles of each other at last reports and thousands of Communists were doomed to isolation and destruction in the final phase of stage three.

Military commanders were quick to report that fighting would go on for some time as mopping up operations continued. They expected guerrilla warfare in the mountains for a long time since many Communist units were expected to resist to the death.

One important question remained unanswered. Will U. N. troops cross the 38th parallel into North Korea?

NOBEL PRIZE:

To American Negro

Dr. Ralph Bunche, U.N. mediator who brought an end to conflict in the Holy Land, was awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1950.

Dr. Bunche, grandson of an American Negro slave, is the first of his race to receive the peace prize. It will be presented to him December 10. He will receive $23,000 and a gold medal.

A member of the U.S. state department, Dr. Bunche was loaned to the United Nations in 1946. He succeeded Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden as the U.N. mediator in Palestine after Bernadotte was assassinated in 1948, effected an armistice and ended the bitter clash between Jews and Arabs.

When informed of the award, he paid tribute to his predecessor for laying the essential foundations of the Palestine agreements.

"At this moment, I cannot forget that Count Bernadotte and 10 other members of our team gave their lives in the effort to restore peace to Palestine," he said.

Dr. Bunche is the eleventh American to win the peace prize. Others were President Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Woodrow Wilson, Charles G. Dawes, Frank B. Kellogg, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Jane Addams, Cordell Hull, John R. Mott, and Emily G. Balch.

BUSINESS:

Buoyant Economy

The business boom flourished on all fronts during September, supported by a buoyant civilian economy and increased spending for the rearmament program.

Virtually every one of the standard measuring devices that tell the state of business at any given time showed gains, and in some instances new peaks for recent years. Where there were no advances, indicators held steady.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Consular Service Consolidated
With Diplomatic Branch in 1924

This is the fifth of a series of six articles on the state department and its personnel by Walter A. Sheard, Western Newspaper Union's Washington correspondent.

By WALTER A. SHEARD

Washington, D.C. — Benjamin Franklin was the first member of the foreign service of the United States department of state when in 1776 he was appointed joint commissioner to France and in 1778 minister to France.

At least seven men who later became President served as chiefs of missions abroad. The consular service was launched in 1780 as an adjunct of the diplomatic service, but was not consolidated with it until 1924.

Briefly, the foreign service represents the American people and the American government throughout the world and is the means of carrying out American foreign policy abroad.

In the set-up of the functional operation of the state department as now constituted, the foreign service operates directly under the secretary and the under secretary of state. It is broken down into six major departments and these in turn are broken down into 18 small offices. The six main bureaus, all under an assistant secretary of state, include the bureau of German affairs, bureau of United Nations affairs, bureau of European affairs, bureau of inter-American affairs, bureau of near eastern, south Asian and African affairs and the bureau of far eastern affairs.

With the eyes of the world focused today on the Far East and South Asia, these latter two departments are of tremendous importance. The Near East and the south Asian affairs bureau is broken down into the office of Greek, Turkish and Iranian affairs, the office of African and near eastern affairs and the office of south Asian affairs. The bureau of far eastern affairs is broken down into the office of Chinese affairs, the office of northeast Asian affairs and the office of Philippine and southeast Asian affairs.

Presiding over the near eastern bureau is Assistant Secretary George Crew McGhee of Texas, an Oklahoma university graduate and a Rhodes scholar. Serving as chief of the Far Eastern affairs bureau is Dean Rusk of Georgia, a graduate of several American colleges.

Patsy Campbell, star of CBS's "The Second Mrs. Burton," and her radio actor husband, Al Ruddy, have yet to get a taste of Bermuda sunshine. They've returned from a ten-day vacation there—and it rained every day.

Irene Beasley, mistress of ceremonies of "Grand Slam," has been doing a little figuring. The show recently celebrated its fourth continuous year on the air, and Irene says she's used approximately 3,000 questions and distributed 16,000 prizes.

First, six senators teamed up to filibuster for 19½ hours against the bill in the hope that popular opinion and last-minute presidential appeals might tip the scales in the administration's favor.

Then, when the six finally gave up, supporters of the bill continued to talk until several advocates, including Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio could arrive for the final vote.

Among its sweeping provision, the bill requires the registration of Communists and Communist-front organizations, authorizes the mass roundup of suspected subversives in time of war or national emergency and provides stiffer penalties for espionage and sabotage.

President Truman said he vetoed the measure because:

(1) Aid potential enemies by requiring publication of a complete list of defense plants.

(2) Require the justice department and the FBI to waste "immense amounts of time and energy attempting to carry out its unworkable registration provisions."

(3) Deprive the U.S. of "great assistance of many aliens in intelligence matters."

(4) Antagonize friendly governments.

(5) Put the U.S. in the "thought control" business by regulating subversive literature and propaganda.

(6) Make it easier, instead of harder, for subversive aliens to become naturalized American citizens.

Atlantic Hop

For the first time in history a single-engine jet fighter plane, refueled as it flew, crossed the Atlantic from England to the United States.

Piloted by Col. David C. Schilling, the F-84 Thunderjet averaged 330 miles an hour in the 3,300 mile hop. A second plane failed to complete the distance when it ran out of fuel. The pilot, Lt. Col. William Ritchie, bailed out safely.

THE THOUSANDS of men and women in the foreign services are screened, chosen for particular aptitude and technical training for specific jobs, and are known as "career" men and women and generally make a life work of the foreign service.

So conscious has the department of state become of the necessity of winning political objectives through diplomacy after the country has won military victories or periodically its graduates, coming from every state in the union, find their way into the ranks of the foreign service. The institute also trains employees of other governmental agencies concerned with foreign affairs. The courses run up to six months, with the regular course for new foreign service officers now three months.

The school for basic officer training provides courses designed to prepare new personnel for initial field duty. The school of advanced officer training is concerned with graduate-level instruction in the social science fields, including economics, politics, law, sociology, social psychology, cultural anthropology, etc. And the school of languages is designed to equip the employees with a rudimentary or even advanced knowledge of the language of the country of assignment.

The foreign service institute equips the representatives of the American people to do a much better job for them in the 75 nations where consuls, embassies and other diplomatic missions are maintained. By the measurement of every yardstick the training is giving to the department a higher type of American citizen than has ever before been possible.

Chances are, had I gotten this letter when I was fresh out of the army and plenty hungry, I would have called my wife every dirty name and busted up my marriage as fast as the law would allow. But standing there on the porch I thought of the three good years we'd had together and the 30 more, maybe, coming up—not to mention the fact that I hadn't always been a saint myself. So, I put the letter in my pocket, and that night after work went to a jewelry store and made a down-payment on one of those wristwatches with little red stones.

THE FICTION CORNER

SECOND WIFE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

LIFE began for Lionel Ainsley when he met Cynthia Trumble. She was the fulfillment of dreams that were dreamed while he sat alone by his camp fire in the wilderness, while he listened to the hoots of owls and the screeches of bobcats, and wondered if the time would ever come when somebody sat with him by the fire and listened to the night sounds that had been his only companions since graduation from the state school of forestry two years ago.

He met Cynthia when he came out of the bush one June for a short vacation. They were married the day he was due to start back into the woods.

The first week was deliciously sweet. Cynthia had been a country girl, and because Lionel was her first real love, she eagerly looked forward to spending weeks alone with him in the wilderness.

That was before they reached Woodville, where Lionel had his base. There was a big packing company at Woodville, run by a man named Austin, who had a son young Austin had come to Woodville to learn the packing business. Quite naturally the place was dull and boring to one so sophisticated.

Then Lionel and his new wife arrived, and Austin looked on Cynthia and vowed to know her better. Austin had that polish about him that attracts women. So when Lionel finally headed his canoe toward Woodville to replenish their supplies, Cynthia's pulse quickened a little, and she kept her eyes fastened on the bend in the river that would first reveal the great buildings of the packing house.

What followed made Cynthia a little ashamed. She hated to hurt Lionel, he was so fine and generous and kind. And so devoted. She thought he'd object to a divorce, and it was a little disappointing when he agreed readily.

AND SO Lionel went back into the wilderness shortly after the divorce was granted, and Cynthia, free and content, waited for Austin to come to her.

He came at last and stood near where she lay in a hammock. It was night and she could not see his face.

"Cynthia, darling, why did you do it? I feel like a cad, breaking up you and Lionel like that. He's a good sort and—well, I meant nothing by my attentions. It was all—well, sort of fun."

"But, darling, you do love me? You do want to marry me?" "Misgivings chilled her heart.

Austin ran a finger under his collar. "Well, you see, Cynthia—you see, I can't, that is—I'm already married!"

Cynthia nearly swooned. When she again opened her eyes Austin was gone. She was alone. Panic gripped her, then fear. Later she thought of Lionel. She'd not known how to appreciate him. She'd wait. He'd be out of the bush again in three weeks. He'd understand.

It was almost unbearable, that waiting. The people of Woodville looked at her curiously and whispered among themselves. Three weeks passed and Lionel didn't return. Another week dragged by and still no sign of him.

Then, at last, Lionel came back. Cynthia, watching from the veranda of her rooming house, saw his canoe sweep into sight, and her heart leaped. Lionel at last! Lionel, whom she'd loved and would love again. Lionel who had loved her so tenderly. Love like his didn't die. She had treated him miserably, but she'd admit all that, ask his forgiveness.

And then the canoe neared the shore and Cynthia went down to meet it. Lionel saw her, and waved a greeting.

Cynthia's heart stopped beating. There was someone else in the canoe. A girl.

The canoe touched the shore. Lionel grinned at her happily. "Cynthia, it's good to see you again. Hope you and Austin are happy."

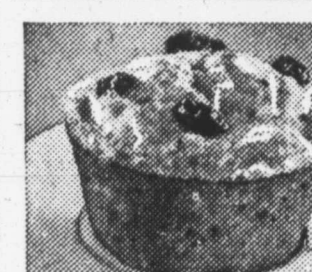

He gestured toward the girl, who had turned to stare. "Cynthia, meet the new Mrs. Ainsley."

MIRROR Of Your MIND

'Love' Can Be
Means of Escape
By Lawrence Gould

May love be an "escape from reality"?

Answer: Yes, it may grow out of unwillingness to face the fact that you've lost something which you cannot bear to admit is gone—your hope of happy marriage, for example. I recently was told of a wife whose husband had abused and abandoned her in the most cold-blooded manner but who insists she "still loves him." Unless the poor woman has a "martyr complex," her "love" must be a way of denying that she feels about her as he obviously does. For you cannot really love a person if you know he does not and never will love you.

Is it normal to "hate to be hurried"?

Answer: It is natural to dislike having other people tell you when and how to do things, but I think that this dislike has become unconsciously childish in the sort of person who "just can't do anything" if he is asked to do it in a hurry or on a fixed schedule. Consciously he may be trying hard to do what is expected of him, but deep down inside, his rage at the idea of being "bossed" creates a conflict which prevents his concentrating, and allows him to defy the "orders" without having to admit that he's rebelling.

Answer: Yes, reports J. Lawrence Angel in the American Journal of Physical Anthropology, after studying 103 obese white women from the standpoint of their social and racial backgrounds, body structure, heredity, etc. They showed pretty uniformly such characteristics as a loveless childhood, and a tendency to combine premature physical development with emotional childishness. Further research is planned to determine the comparative importance of heredity and early conditioning in producing varying personalities and physiques.

LOOKING AT RELIGION

THE CUSTOM OF THE WASHING OF FEET IS AMONG THE MOST ANCIENT AS WELL AS THE MOST OBLIGATORY RITES OF EASTERN HOSPITALITY. IT APPEARS TO HAVE EXISTED AS EARLY AS THE DAYS OF ABRAHAM, CHRIST, IN WASHING HIS DISCIPLES' FEET, TAUGHT A LESSON OF HUMILITY AND GOOD WILL.

KEEPING HEALTHY Colitis Due to Emotional Imbalance

By Dr. James W. Barton

MANY INDIVIDUALS suffering from chronic diarrhea (colitis) consult their physicians asking for some safe medicine to stop it. Diarrhea can have such a simple cause as too much fruit and bulky vegetables; it can also be due to certain diseases such as dysentery, cancer, an overactive thyroid gland sending poisons into the blood, tuberculosis, and disease of the pancreatic gland.

Where there has been persistent diarrhea for a long time, the physician usually suggests a few days in hospital, where X-rays of the stomach and intestines, examinations of the content of the stool, examination of the blood and urine, a barium enema and examination by fluoroscope (X-ray) may reveal any real or organic cause of the diarrhea.

However, in mild persistent diarrhea, the commonest single cause is emotional disturbance. This is called mucous colitis—mild inflammation, or more correctly irritation, of the colon (large bowel).

In the severe type of colitis—ulcerative colitis—there is ulceration of the colon and formation of pus, and both pus and blood are found in the stools. In some cases removal of a portion of the colon is necessary to save life.

In the Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine, England, Dr. A. Abrams states that emotional tension was connected with three-fourths of all cases of chronic diarrhea.

As chronic diarrhea is both a mental and physical hazard in itself and can so undermine the patient's strength that he will have little resistance to disease, a persistent effort on the part of the patient to try to acquire a calmness of spirit is necessary and this will be more effective than quieting or astringent drugs.

Calmness of spirit can be sought by religion or philosophy, but complete physical examination is first necessary to make sure that no organic disease is present.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Small-Sized Rugs May Solve Decorating Problem

By Ertia Haley

ARE YOU ONE of those people who have several rooms in the home, bare of floor covering because you can't afford full-sized rugs? Or are you simply unaware of the possibilities, decoratively speaking, of scatter rugs?

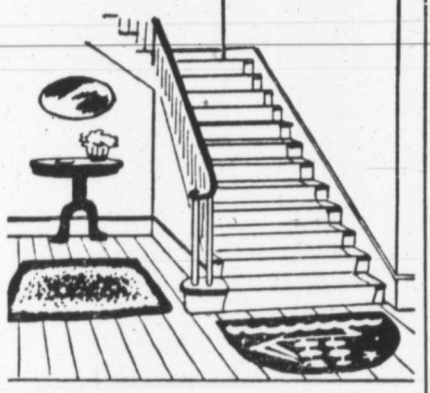

Small-sized rugs can be used so effectively that you may never again feel that need for large rugs. Even with full-sized rugs, these small rugs can add that nice splash of color to rooms and prevent expensive large carpets from showing wear prematurely, especially in the heavy traffic areas.

No room in the house need be without them, and the rugs themselves are equally at home in living, bedroom, den or hall. They can, when properly used be very effective.

If you happen to have some of these rugs stored away, check them for possibilities. All cannot be used because of pattern, color, size and shape. If they were used, they would give a hodge-podge effect which is just what you seek to avoid.

The right scatter rugs are in scale and harmony with your furniture. The colors have just the right accent for the room, and the patterns must either provide effective background for the room in which they're used, or at least lead the eye to the center of interest.

Keep the basic tenets of decorating in mind, and when balance, unity and harmony are satisfied, you may be certain that the rugs are doing a good job of their appropriate role.

The rugs used may be bought, or they may be made at home either by the hooking or braiding method whichever you prefer.

Room Suggests Ways Of Arranging Rugs

Let's start with the living room that needs a center of interest. This usually happens when there's no fireplace or mantel. You can make an attractive window arrangement by using a fairly good sized scatter rug, setting it near the window. It should be large enough to cover the floor required for a conversational group, with two chairs or loveseats and a table between the two.

The window can be made decorative by placing an arrangement of plants on either side of the fireplace or mantel. You can make as high as the sill.

The sofa and coffee table arrangement is quite common in many living rooms. Does yours stand out as attractively as possible? If not, try placing the coffee table with its width to the sofa so that the length extends out into the room. On either side of the table place a square rug that just fills the space.

Placing rugs like this gives a balanced arrangement that's neat but not too formal. If the room is modern, you might try rugs with colored stripes forming squares. For traditional rooms, geometric or attractive patterned rugs are the answer.

Let's say that you have a small living room with a fireplace. You can give this room a feeling of imaginative decor to home.

spaciousness by placing one large scatter rug in front of the fireplace where would be placed a small coffee table with a chair on one side and a small sofa or loveseat on the other. Smaller rugs can be placed in the room to reach to the fireplace rug, and they do not have to be the same style and just so long as they harmonize with the room.

Use Good Scatter Rugs In Place of Skimpily Large Ones

Does your hallway with its stairs stand close scrutiny, or could it be more of a decorative asset? Those nice oblong rugs are excellent covering for long hallways, much better than the very narrow, skimpy rugs which are all too frequently tacked in the hall. In front of the stairway, use one of the half moon shaped rugs to give character.

All rugs should be anchored to the floor with non-skid pads or rubber jar rings on the corners of these small rugs. This anchoring of the rugs is especially important in places like halls and stairways where you anticipate traffic.

A good arrangement in the bedroom is to have the scatter rugs on either side of the bed, the length of the rugs matching the length of the bed. Continue the rugs to bathroom entrance.

In long, narrow living rooms, scatter rugs help facilitate furniture groupings. If you have a desk and bookcase arrangement in one corner or on one side, use one large or several matching rugs for this unit.

If you have a musical corner, use several matching rugs for this group. Still another group, around mantel or fireplace can be carpeted with one or two scatter rugs in still another pattern or style.

Playrooms and nurseries are ideal places for scatter rugs because they can be used for play groupings, and then rolled up quickly if the whole room floor is needed for more rugged activities.

Equipment for Hooked Rugs Is Simple

If you've decided to make hooked rugs for the home, they'll be ideal for the scatter rug uses just outlined. Best of all, you probably have most of the materials on hand already.

Gather your faded kitchen curtains, outgrown and outmoded dresses, woollens from shirts, suits and jackets. Even worn rayon or nylon stockings can be used. These should be dyed according to colors you choose for the rugs.

All fabrics cannot be used in one rug. Wools and wool-like rayons may be used together, with a bit of silk for shine. Cottons, linens and linen-like rayons go together. Silk and nylon can be used together for those spots which do not have to wear, but for which you want an especially attractive, fragile looking rug.

It is difficult to estimate how much material you will need for a rug because weaves differ. Dry material, weighing about 4 pounds will give a rug approximately 20x40 inches. A rug 40x60 inches will require around 10 pounds.

Back and Frame Hooked Rug

For backing the rug you'll need burlap, rug canvas, monk's cloth or some other fabric of similar weave. Lay the backing flat on the table and sketch the design on it. You may purchase or make the wooden frame, which should be a good grade seasoned wood.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

How Smart Is a Smart Girl?

SEVEN YEARS AGO I had a letter from a girl named Rosamond Lee. Her situation was a terrible one. I clipped the name from the letter and destroyed it, but I filed the letter itself because I hoped to hear from Rosamond again.

Rosamond had had three years as an invalid from polio, between the ages of 13 to 16. Therefore, when she entered college, in a town 500 miles away, it was as a special student; nobody watched her and nobody cared about her marks.

She had come from a fine home; there were two brothers, one sister, and devoted parents. They didn't know that Rosamond met a boy named Jack Parker, at college, and began to spend her afternoons and many nights in the one-room shack where Parker lazed away a supposedly artistic existence. What Parker felt was unimportant; Rosamond was deeply in love.

After some months of this she discovered two things; one was that she was going to have a baby and the other was that Parker not only had another regular girl visitor to his love-nest, but that a third girl, this one living in a sorority house, had attempted suicide on his account.

Felt Like a Heel
Rosamond then wrote me the most frenzied letter I have ever received from any girl. She was half-mad with shock, anger, despair, shame, every frightful emotion a girl's heart can know. Before she had my letter in answer she and Parker had found a doctor who performed the operation that killed her child—and that killed Rosamond, too, though she lived until last week. Then her mother wrote me that she had died of anemia.

The mother wanted Parker to marry Rosamond, Parker explained that he "felt like a heel," to use his own term, but that now the second girl was pregnant, too, and he felt that he owed her honorable marriage. If anything could have added to the weight of Rosamond's utter humiliation it was this; but she was helpless, and her mother was helpless, and her 19-year-old brother whose one idea was to shoot Parker, was helpless, too, for even he saw that wouldn't help anyone.

So Rosamond's family went home, and she got into war work, and after a few years married, a fine man who was in the marines. What he thought of her story I don't know, but I know she told him the truth. They had one little girl, and it was, while he was away in the south seas that it became certain that Rosamond's health had been fatally affected by the operation years earlier; she had never really recovered.

Boasting of His Conquests

"Our girl knew she was going, and she confided her little Katy to my care," her mother wrote.

"Poor child," from her 13th year she knew nothing but suffering. First the terrible polio, which she bore with such cheerfulness and courage; then her college experience with that contemptible, insufferable man who did not eventually marry even the other girl, but is still probably boasting of his conquest. Then the physical agonies of a septic condition that almost cost her her life, and then her own shame at having to tell Peter that she was not the innocent, delicate girl she seemed. And now, for months, to face leaving all she loved, and to die at 28.

"The story is finished now," says the mother's letter, "except for her father and me, who can never forget. My husband has been a changed man in these years; I know I myself am changed. She knew — Rosamond knew, exactly what she was doing when she gave in to this man's persuasion. She was always a little thing. She had spent long years reading and studying when other girls are going to first dances and house parties. That's what baffles us; how could she do it?"

Why, she drifted into it just as other girls, all over the union, are drifting into the same arrangement right now. It seems thrilling, it seems harmless, to let young passion have its way, and to believe what the adoring young man so confidently asserts, that nobody is going to be hurt by it, not even themselves. Sure they're going to be married, when Parker gets a job. Meanwhile, he does so want her to be sweet and loving and stop worrying. This seems to be his biggest concern—about her. She gives in.

Devoted Author Writes, Writes

But It's Only Hobby;
Nothing Is Published

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y.—For 20 or 30 hours a week, most weeks, and for 20 or 30 years, most years, Arthur Carey Kemble has been writing books.

He has turned out manuscripts for nine full length volumes, some of them rewritten several times. He has started and in some cases nearly completed a dozen more.

The point is, Kemble is not a professional writer and not one of his books has been published.

For him, writing books is a passion to which he has dedicated a large part of his life. Just now he has recast an autobiographical work, "Odyssey in a Forgotten World," for the fourth time, and plunged into the first draft of a novel called "Niagara."

"I can't complain. It has been an interesting life. In the process I have grown up. In those books about my childhood, I have turned myself inside out so many times it has been better than any psychiatry," he says.

"Another thing, many people stop growing. I know I have not. I can trace the growth rings from manuscript to manuscript.

Household Hints

To keep the children from dirtying various parts of a roller towel before the parts in between are used, pin the back and front of the towel together near the top with a safety pin. Since the towel won't roll then, they'll have to wipe their hands on the front part. When that's dirty, take out the pin, roll the back part to the front and put the pin in again.

If the stains in your sink were caused by fruits and vegetables, mix up a paste by combining equal parts of bicarbonate of soda and chlorinated lime with boiling water and spread it on the stains. Leave it until it dries, and then wipe it off. Another paste for the same purpose can be made of three parts of cream of tartar to one part of peroxide.

Sports News

The Lorraine Bulldogs played The Mastiff their first conference game Friday night with the Stanton Bulldogs. This has been said to be the best game the Bulldogs have played all season even at the odds of a 40 to 13 defeat.

The Bulldogs opened the game with 6 to 0 Lowell Richardson making the score. Later in the game Don Martin made the other touchdown.

The boys were outweighed and faced without the work of quarterback Lowell Richardson the last half of the game due to a knee injury he received in the second quarter. Next week is open date week and the boys are coming out ready for Robert Lee.

Sophomore News

The Sophs really enjoyed the party they had Tuesday night of last week. We served sandwiches, cookies, and punch which were made by the Soph H. E. girls. Everyone really enjoyed it all though we had some unplanned excitement.

We had one less this morning. Beth Narrell who has gone to Canada with her mother and father. We also have a new girl this morning. Her name is Mary Crownover and she is from Bronte, Texas.

Everyone is on the beam this morning for this is six weeks test. We are having a little trouble with our World History and everyone is a little puzzled to whether or not they are going to pass or not. Having our test early is not any good for us since we are turning out school for cotton picking. But some are happy because we are turning out school, watch! We turn out Wednesday, October 11 to October 30.

Band Elects Officers

The Band met Monday, Oct. 9 at regular band period and elected the following officers: President, Don Martin; vice president Billy Martin; secretary, Dixie Templeton; treasurer, Beth Narrell; reporter, Jan Snyder.

The Band has been active this year. Besides playing at all the home games the band has made two trips with the team. The band made their first trip to Iraan September 29, and then last Friday night went to Stanton. There is a rumor going around that the band uniforms have been ordered. We all hope it is more than a rumor. We at least hope to get them before school is out, anyway.

The band is very proud of their new director and feel they will accomplish a lot this year.

Home Ec. News

Everyone is taking test this week. The Home Ec classes have already had some of theirs. Wonder how they came out? ? ?

The Freshman girls are saying the Homemaker Creed. They have finished the unit on breakfast and will take up a unit on luncheon after we start back to school. The Sophomore girls have finished their unit on child care and are starting on their dresses. Hope they come out o. k.

The Junior girls have finished studying part of marriage and family relationship. They are starting on their suits are really going to be pretty.

Mary Templeton, who is Corresponding Secretary of Area 3, will attend a meeting at El Paso for Area officers.

Who Runs America?

RUNNING AMERICA is the joint job of 150,000,000 people. It's the biggest job in the world today—keeping it running for liberty and for freedom. And the whole world's watching to see whether Americans can do it!

IN MUCH OF THE WORLD today, the people have resigned from running their own countries. Others have been quick to step in—first with promises of "security"—and then with whips and guns—to run things their way. The evidence is on every front page in the world, every day.

FREEDOM COMES UNDER ATTACK. The reality of war has made every American think hard about the things he's willing to work and fight for—and freedom leads the list.

But that freedom has been attacked here recently—just as it has been attacked in other parts of the world. One of the most serious threats to individual freedom has been the threat of Government-dominated Compulsory Health Insurance, falsely presented as a new guarantee of health "security" for everybody.

THE PEOPLE WEIGH THE FACTS. In the American manner, the people studied the case for Socialized Medicine—and the case against it.

They found that Government domination of the people's medical affairs under Compulsory Health Insurance means lower standards of medical care, higher payroll taxes, loss of incentive, damage to research, penalties for the provident, rewards for the improvident.

They found that no country on earth can surpass America's leadership in medical care and progress. They found that able doctors, teachers, nurses and scientists—working in laboratories where Science, not Politics, is master—are blazing dramatic new trails to health for Americans—and for the world.

THE "GRASS ROOTS" SIGNALS CONGRESS. In every community in the Nation, people stood up to be counted on this important issue. Thousands of local women's clubs, civic groups, farm, business, religious, taxpayer, medical, educational and patriotic organizations spoke out—giving the great United States Congress its unmistakable Grass Roots signal from home!

And ever watchful, ever sensitive to an alert people, The Congress saw that signal, and heard the people speak out, loud and plain. That's democracy in action. That's the American way!

Today among the 10,000 great organizations on militant public record against "Compulsory Health Insurance" are:

General Federation of Women's Clubs
American Farm Bureau Federation
National Grange
Veterans of Foreign Wars
National Conference of Catholic Charities
American Protestant Hospital Association

American Legion
National Association of Small Business Men
United States Chamber of Commerce
National Association of Retail Grocers
National Retail Dry Goods Association
American Bar Association

• Doctors of this Nation are grateful that the people refused to be wooed by the fantastic promises of this un-American excursion into State Socialism. • Doctors of America are dedicated to serve their fellow citizens at home and their comrades in uniform, wherever service to this Nation may take them. • And the thing they stand ready to fight for—to sacrifice for—to die for—is not the alien way of life of Socialism, but the prideful security of a free and self-reliant people!

THE VOLUNTARY WAY IS THE AMERICAN WAY!

• Throughout the Nation, free men and women, working and planning together, are finding the American answer to every question of medical service, care and cost. Hundreds of Voluntary Health Insurance Plans are in healthy competition—sponsored by doctors, insurance companies, hospitals, fraternal organizations—by industry, agriculture and labor. • Today in America—70 million people are protected by Voluntary Health Insurance! • Throughout the Nation, families are insuring themselves against the major costs of illness—at reasonable, budget-basis prices. Voluntary Health Insurance takes the economic shock out of illness. Protect your family now. • For information, ask your doctor—or your insurance man.

An American's greatest heritage is the right to learn the facts—and to speak his mind. Maintained with honor and used with sincerity—that right will guarantee forever that

Kind Words for a Few Managers
By GRANTLAND RICE

ANYONE DESIRING to walk into a trouble up to his ears can do so easily. All he has to do is pick the manager of the year in baseball—and then prove it.

There have been several managers in both leagues who have done better than a minor job so far. On or off the record, I would say that a few of them had turned out work well above the average and rate at least a sprig or so of laurel or olive.

There are three managers in the American League who deserve more than a few kind words. They are Red Rolfe, Casey Stengel and Steve O'Neill. There are also three in the National. They are Eddie Sawyer, Leo Durocher and Billy Southworth.

This means six managers out of 16 starters who were above average—leaving only 10 who turned out a routine job, or a trifle worse.

Rolfe started with what looked to be the best pitching staff in the league. Later on he had to use rare judgment to keep it working effectively. He always had a great outfield, especially on the offensive side, but only a fair infield and fair catching.

Stengel had to operate with his two stars, Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich, below par physically. DiMaggio was magnificent on his big days. Ordinary in others, Henrich was of little help. Casey had to lean heavily on Rizzuto, Berra, Johnny Mize, a pretty fair but unheralded outfielder and better than a pretty fair pitching staff.

Steve O'Neill apparently inherited disaster. He took over the Red Sox when they had just lost one of the greatest managers of all time, one of the star ballplayers of the decade, Ted Williams, and were eight games out of first place.

The Red Sox were promptly thrown overboard by the critics. O'Neill applied some brand of soothing ointment that was more effective than any cure Tom Yawkey's hired men had ever known.

In the National
At this moment Eddie Sawyer and Leo Durocher have the call in the National with Billy Southworth's case depending on the stretch run.

The affable, scholarly Sawyer was far in the lead until his young Whiz Kids started skidding first losing five games in a row, and then, skidding a trifle in others.

But it was better than merely normal to take a young team and plant it in first place by a margin of seven games on Labor Day, or shortly thereafter. After all, when the eight-club field was spread out in April, the assembled experts in a compact field picked the Dodgers on top. A few scattered votes went elsewhere, but the Dodgers were the people. There were five clubs given a chance: Brooklyn, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Boston and New York. Sawyer's main job, once his young team moved into first place, was to keep them from getting the jitters or the yips, which are too often the result of inexperience roosting too high.

It would be difficult to find a greater job than Leo Durocher has given his Giants. Durocher had a bad-looking ball club for the first month or so. The pitching especially was on the moribund side. The team couldn't locate itself and back in June was 12 or more games out. There seemed little chance around July Fourth that the Giants would finish in the first division. They weren't any better than the Cubs or Reds.

The arrival of Sam Maglie and Jim Hearn was the lifesaver, of course. But it can also be remembered that Durocher had a much better looking outfit working. It was a team that had improved in every way. And much credit for this improvement must be handed to Leo Lip.

With two weeks left, Leo Durocher could challenge Eddie Sawyer. The Giant manager, always a star field director, was at his best after a poor start. He has had his best year.

Billy Southworth has never been sensational this season. He has given his fans a good year.

Drive, Approach, Putt
Which is the most important—the drive, the approach or the putt? Johnny Farrell says: "We drive for pleasure, but we putt for money." Jim Barnes says: "The drive sets up the hole."

Hogan can handle all three assignments, day in and day out. Sammy Snead is a master with wood and iron, but he only wins when he is putting well—and he isn't as consistent around the greens. Yet he tied Hogan in the Los Angeles Open. It is seldom the average or even pretty fair golfer can blend his drives, approaches and putts into one good pattern. Once in a while he will get two of the three big patterns working. More often only one of the three.

In this battle of the three big factors in a golf swing, I'll have to award the prize of importance to the approach. It is more important than either the drive or putt.

Using Your Bible

Lesson for October 15, 1950

THE BIBLE must be approached in three ways: with the head, with the heart and with the will. With the head for understanding, the heart for appreciation and reverence, and the will for obedience. That was the first question Philip asked the Ethiopian: Do you understand what you are reading? Not do you enjoy it, or do you believe it, but do you understand it? If not, then the reader can neither fully believe nor rightly enjoy it.

Dr. Foreman

The King James Version

THE BEST and simplest help in understanding the Bible is to read it in the language we speak. Now unfortunately it was not written in that tongue, but in Hebrew and Greek. We have to read it in translations. There are scores of translations in English alone.

The most widely sold of these is the one known by various names: the King James, or the Authorized, or the 1611, version. This was first published in 1611, being essentially a revision of the Bishop's Bible, a still earlier translation. The name "authorized" is misleading, however, for it never was authorized by church or state. It is a noble example of 17th century English and has had a wide influence wherever English-speaking people have gone.

The fact is, however, that people today do not speak 17th-century English any more, and very few of us even read it. Consequently the Bible, in this King James version, has a quaint Shakespearean sound, and the difficulty of the language is one of the main reasons why the average American today finds it hard to read.

Furthermore, the King James is inaccurate in many places. At the time it was published, the translators were working from Greek manuscripts which are now known not to be either the earliest or the best available. For these reasons, fresh translations of the Bible were greatly needed.

20th Century Translations

THESE modern-English translations of the Bible haven't changed the Book; they are simply helping the reader to get back to the ideas of the original apostles and prophets; they are putting the Bible again into the language people actually speak.

Some of the more important versions may be noted here. Practically all the churches of Protestant North America have been cooperating through the International Council of Religious Education, in producing what is called the "Revised Standard Version" of which the New Testament is already out, and very popular too. The whole Bible in this version is due to be off the press by September 1952.

This is an excellent version for church or liturgical use, as it keeps close to the King James rhythm wherever it can; for the King James version, wherever its faults, has a rhythm about parts of it (notably the Psalms) which has never been surpassed.

Two other translations have been before the public, and have won many friends, for a score of years now: Moffat's, and the American Translation by Goodspeed, J.M.P. Smith and others. (This latter includes the Apocrypha, to which most Protestants are strangers).

At One Sitting

THE average reader, used to taking his Bible in snippets of a verse or two, or a chapter at most, at one time, will find that he can sit down with one of these modern translations and just read on and on, fascinated by the first time.

One of the "hardest" yet most important parts of the Bible, for instance, is the Epistles section of the New Testament. Every one of these epistles is a short letter, but how few persons ever read one straight through! Let the reader who is puzzled by the Epistles get a copy of "Letters to Young Churches," a translation by J. B. Phillips, and he will find that dark part of the New Testament simply opening up and shining.

The work of translating will go on and on as long as language keeps changing; let us thank God for all those who in our time have been making the Word of God again an open book for all men.

Hot Milk Makes an Easy Sponge Cake

(See Recipes Below)

Let's Bake Cake!

WHY BAKE a cake? First of all, there's a personal satisfaction in it to you and second to your family. Third, it's nice to have a home-baked cake on hand, "just in case," if there are afternoon callers, or if the folks in your house are just plain hungry for something sweet during a busy week-end.

Good cakes are easy to turn out, even though you may be trying one for the first time, if you use standard measuring equipment, and follow instructions to the letter. If you want a cake success every time you bake, you'll always follow measurements accurately, because that leaves nothing to guesswork.

Measure ingredients and set them out before you start mixing. This assures you of not forgetting anything. It also makes mixing the cake easier than starting to blend a few ingredients, then stopping to measure out the rest one or two.

Many of the cakes, we have now found, are easier to mix and give better results if ingredients are allowed to stand at room temperature for two hours or so. This makes measuring them at one time a necessity.

A HOT MILK sponge cake is easy to mix and delicate to eat. Frosting is easy as you can see from the picture if you place a lace paper dolly on the cake and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Hot Milk Sponge Cake

(Makes 2 8-inch layers)

2 cups cake flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons baking powder

4 eggs

1 1/2 cups sugar

1 cup milk, scalded

1 teaspoon vanilla

3 tablespoons butter, melted

Sift flour, measure; sift three times together with salt and baking powder. Beat eggs with rotary beater until light and lemon-colored.

Add sugar gradually and beat until fluffy. Fold in flour mixture. Add scalded milk, flavoring and melted butter last. Fold until well blended. Pour into two round buttered 8-inch cake pans, bottoms of which have been lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate (350° F.) oven for 30 minutes. Cool in pans. Serve with chocolate filling, berries or sugared fruit in-between layers.

HERE'S A small-sized recipe for a fudge cake that uses the egg yolks in the cake, while the whites go into a delicious frosting.

Fudge Fluff Cake

(Makes 1 8-inch layer)

1 cup sifted flour

1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 cup sugar

1/2 cup shortening

2 egg yolks

1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1/2 cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add shortening and egg yolks. Mix vanilla and milk and add to flour mixture. Stir to combine ingredients. Beat 3 minutes (450 strokes) scraping batter down sides of bowl. Pour into greased, paper-lined 8-inch pan. Bake in a moderate (375° F.) oven about 25 minutes. Let cool 10 minutes before removing from pan. When cool, cut in half and frost.

Fudge Fluff

2 squares bitter chocolate

1/2 cup butter or substitute

1 cup confectioners' sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla

Dash of salt

Melt chocolate over boiling water. Cream butter with 1/2 cup of the sugar until light. Add vanilla, salt and chocolate and blend well. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in remaining 1/2 cup sugar. Gently fold egg whites into chocolate mixture. Spread generously on half of cake, put on top half and spread top and sides.

HERE ARE TWO good recipes for those of you who frequently get sour milk on hand. They're both the good kind of cakes that sour milk makes, light, fluffy, tender and moist.

Spice Nut Cake

(Makes 2 8-inch squares)

1/2 cup shortening

1/2 cup brown sugar

1/2 cup granulated sugar

2 eggs, well beaten

2 cups sifted flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon soda

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon cloves

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

1 cup sour milk or buttermilk

1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Cream together shortening, vanilla and sugars. Add eggs; beat thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Stir in nuts. Pour into 2 greased, waxed-paper lined 8-inch square pans. Bake in a moderate (350° F.) oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

*Pear-Gingerbread Cake

(Makes 1 9-inch pan)

2 tablespoons butter

1/2 cup corn syrup

1/2 cup brown sugar

6 pear halves, cooked or canned

1/2 cup walnut meats

1/2 cup shortening

1/2 cup granulated sugar

1 egg, beaten

1/2 cup molasses

2 cups sifted flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon soda

1 teaspoon cinnamon

2 teaspoons ginger

1/2 cup sour milk

Melt butter in 9-inch round cake pan. Add corn syrup and brown sugar then blend. Place walnut-filled pears in pan. Cream together shortening and granulated sugar; add eggs; beat thoroughly. Add molasses and blend. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Pour batter over pears. Bake in a moderate (350° F.) oven for 60 to 70 minutes. Invert to serve.

UNITED NATIONS:
Vote Down Red Move

Again the Soviet Union's campaign to seat Communist China in the United Nations met defeat.

The defeat was significant in that a vote was taken within four hours of the opening of the fifth session of the general assembly and was the first time the assembly ever tackled a major issue before disposing of routine organizational problems.

The motion to seat the Communist government of China was introduced by India and led to an immediate clash between Russia's delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky and the U.S. delegate Dean Acheson.

The U.S. secretary of state said in his speech, "Vote on it now and vote it down." He reminded the assembly that 43 of the U.N.'s 59 members recognized the Nationalists as the "true government of China. The vote was 33-16, with 10 abstentions.

Political observers speculated that the Soviet foreign minister might walk out after the vote. He contented himself, however, with declaring the assembly's action "illegal and incorrect."

A Canadian proposal to set up a seven-nation committee to study the question of Chinese representation and report back to the assembly when its recommendations were adopted.

Whatever the report, observers believed Russia would continue its campaign to seat Red China. It was only a matter of time until the question was brought up again.

RUSSIA:
What New Game?

World diplomats are wondering what new game the Russians are playing.

The first clue of a new Soviet attitude was evident with the opening of the U. N. general assembly. Andrei Y. Vishinsky, the Russian foreign minister, and his colleagues on the Soviet delegation were affable. Their speeches were almost soothing, in comparison to what they used to be. They were making a deliberate show of reasonableness.

Later, Jacob A. Malik declared he favored a meeting of top leaders of the U. S. and Russia to negotiate for peace. He said also his government would pledge not to be the first to use the atomic bomb. He also favored general disarmament.

Malik made his views known in answer to questions submitted to him by a Maryland committee for peace. The Russians are always careful in answering questions and never do so unless the questions have been cleared and approved.

With this thought in mind diplomats were wondering could it be possible the Soviet realizes what a narrow escape the world has had from a general war? Could it be possible the Russians finally desired peace or was this a propaganda move?

The state department was inclined to believe the latter. After a hurried conference the department declared Malik's statements were only propaganda.

WAR-TAX BILL:
Congress Approves

Congress approved the $4.7 billion emergency war-tax bill that boosted taxes from 12 to 20 per cent on individual incomes.

It was significant that the senate shouted its approval of the bill without a roll call and the house passed it 328 to seven. And even while the vote was still ringing in the two chambers, the house ways and means committee called a meeting to begin drafting a second tax increase bill.

The two measures together could boost taxes by $12 billion, to almost $50 billion a year—higher than any collections in World War II.

MUMPS:
A Commercial Vaccine

Development of a commercial vaccine against mumps has been perfected.

Dr. Karl Habel of the National Institute of health said that limited human trials showed the vaccine, while "not 100 per cent protective," appears to give a three-fold reduction of mumps cases among vaccinated people, as compared with those who were not vaccinated.

Soil Conservation News

Congressman George Mahon met with the Mitchell Soil Conservation District Board at their recent regular meeting, and went on a field trip with them.
The group observed conservation treatment on district cooperating farms.

Among conservation practices looked at were row-planted Madrid sweet clover; row planted alfalfa on dry land conditions;
posture management contrasts;
neighbor group watershed treatment and row planted blue panic grass which was nearly ready for seed harvest.

Arthur Marth northeast of Roscoe visited with the group on his farm and answered questions pertaining to his clover and blue panic grass.

W. A. Taylor, chairman of the board, announced that rental rates were set by the board on equipment recently purchased using State appropriated funds.

The new grass seed drill which is an 8 foot drill designed specifically to handle coarse or fine seed grasses and legumes will rent at 75c per acre. This drill will be handled by R. H. Bennett of Loraine and M. A. Webb of Westbrook.

Two 2-row grass and legume planters are being made available for rent at 50c an acre and the two supervisors mentioned above will have one each of these. The district owns 2 mowing machines that rent at 50c per acre and Mr. Bennett and Mr. Webb are looking after these Three post hole diggers are available from Supervisors Bennett, Webb and Thomas Riden who lives near Loraine. The rental rate on these is $5.00 per day with a minimum charge of $2.50.

There are 5 district-owned grass drills which have fertilizer and small seed attachments and they rent at 50c per acre. Each of the 5 supervisors are looking after one of these drills. The other two supervisors are Chairman Taylor and John McGuire who lives at Cuthbert. One John Deere double disc terrace maintenance plow is available at $3.00 per day.

Chairman Taylor stated that he wants to emphasize the fact that this equipment is available to all farmers and ranchers within the Mitchell Soil Conservation District for their use in conservation treatment of their land. He further stated that the above named supervisors should be contacted for this equipment

Q. My husband, a World War 2 veteran, to whom I had been married for five years, recently passed away. I have not remarried. Would I be eligible for a VA pension?

A. No. Among requirements for death pensions is this: a widow must have been married to the veteran before December 14, 1944, or for ten or more years before death.

Q. I am a World War 2 veteran drawing a nonservice-connected pension. I just inherited $5,000. I know that amount puts me over the income limitations this year, but what about future years? May I ever get back on the rolls?

A. Yes. Your inheritance is counted as income only for the calendar year in which you received it. Next year, if your income does not exceed maximums set by law, and if you meet other requirements, you may apply to have your pension restored.

Q. I have heard much about a July 25, 1951, cut-off date for GI Bill benefits. Does it mean I must get a GI loan before that date?

A. No. The 1951 cut-off date applies only to GI Bill training, and is the date by which most veterans must start their courses if they want to continue afterwards. You have until July 25, 1957, in which to obtain a GI loan.

Double Check
your selection of a cooking appliance

IS THERE a range that will make your kitchen cool in summer? Be wary of "claims." You know it takes heat to cook.
There is no cooler-to-cook-with range than a new gas range—why would 96 of 100 women who have gas service cook with gas, if there were?
Moreover, new gas ranges cost less than any other automatic range. There is no expensive installation cost. No special, costly utensils are necessary. Meal-for-meal, a gas range cooks for less than one-fourth the cost of any other automatic range.

Check and double check. See for yourself why 96 out of 100 women cook with gas; why a new gas range is your best range buy!
