Manure Plant Draws Criticism

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Thermonetics Inc. vice president Ron James Monday night told approximately 20 persons concerned about the proposed construction of a manure-conversion plant near their property that the facility will not create a serious odor problem in the area.

The Texas Air Control Board (TACB) invited the residents to meet with Thermonetics officials in what TACB attorney Don Postell called "strictly a question-answer, informational meeting."

The residents, led by Hereford attorney R.C. Hoelscher, had submitted formal complaints against the construction of the plant 5½ miles northwest of Hereford.

Postell told the group that no decision would be rendered as a result of Monday's meeting. "This is not an evidentiary meeting," the TACB attorney from Austin said.

Thermonetics, which produces methane gas and cattle feed in a Guymon, Okla., facility and plans to build a similar facility in Deaf Smith County, applied for a TACB permit as required by state law.

If Thermonetics complies with all the criteria required by TACB regarding air-pollutant control, it will be issued a permit, according to Postell.

Accompanying Postell to the meeting were TACB regional director John Warner of Lubbock and staff engineer Gary Wallin of Austin. Wallin is presently conducting an engineer's review of the proposed plant to submit to TACB executive director Bill Stewart.

Stewart will consider the review along with public comment, received by TACB during a recent 30-day period, in making his decision concerning the Thermonetics permit request. According to Postell, Stewart either will propose to the TACB board that the Thermonetics permit be approved, rejected or modified with special restrictions.

James told the crowd that Thermonetics will use manure from seven Deaf Smith County feedlots to make cattle feed. Methane gas--a by-product of the conversion process--will be used for plant operations and will not be sold, according to James.

The Guymon plant, on the other hand, converts manure into mostly methane gas, which is purchased by other firms.

James said the site northwest of Hereford was chosen because it is equidistant from the seven feed yards.

"We first proposed to the feedlots that we would build two plants--one to service the east side and one to service the west side," James said.

"However, economy later dictated that we build only one plant and centrally locate it for all the feed yards. The feed yards agreed to that."

James said the plant will cost $9 million to construct, have approximately 40 employees "and it will be an asset to the community."

"We can put together a system that will be acceptable from an environmental standpoint."

Most of those in attendance disagreed, however. James was questioned, sometimes vehemently, concerning the odor of stockpiled manure, the emission of sulfur dioxide gas into the atmosphere, fly and mosquito problems and the hauling of manure from feed yards to the plant.

"We will have one row of manure in very small piles and we will use it as quickly as possible," James said in response to several questions concerning the odor. "Manure is more volatile the quicker we can use it."

A farmer at the meeting told James he purchased land two miles northeast of the proposed plant site and was concerned

Beleaguered Clayton Honored

Enjoying Respite with Homefolks

Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, beleaguered by implication in a federal bribery probe, basked in the accolades of home folks in the 74th District here Monday night at a "Clayton Appreciation Dinner" sponsored by supporters in Deaf Smith and Oldham counties.

Clayton told the capacity audience of 325 that "we will vindicate ourselves from this political assassination." The event at Hereford Community Center was one of five such dinners planned for Clayton in the seven-county district. The dinners started in January.

"With the events of the past few days, there was a question in my mind whether to come here tonight," said Clayton. "But I believe in the system and I'm proud to be here. Even with my reluctance I could not pass up this opportunity to be with home folks."

The speech was Clayton's first public appearance since allegations surfaced last Friday. The three-time Speaker of the House goes before a federal grand jury in Houston Wednesday. He has admitted accepting a large cash "campaign contribution" from a Houston union leader who brought a man posing as a Prudential Insurance agent to his office in November.

But Clayton said he took the money only to avoid embarrassing the union man and intended to return it. The "sting" was part of an FBI operation called Brilab, for bribery-labor.

"I am convinced this is some kind of plot," Clayton said last night. "There is something big we don't know yet, but I am going to get to the bottom of it. People like you are giving me the courage to weed out, to search out what is happening to our system."

Clayton said his colleagues in the House have been supportive. "They ask me how I get the stamina to keep going, but I tell you tonight that I can keep on going because I have done nothing wrong," he added to the applause of his audience. "Friends across the state will rally and we will see a conclusion to this matter."

At the conclusion of his talk, Clayton stated: "Right will win...right will win. I have confidence in my Maker, confidence in the system and in my family and friends. God bless you."

James Gentry, banquet co-chairman, served as master of ceremonies for the event. "I believe this is a tremendous show of support for Bill Clayton," he said following the dinner.

The event drew many news media people from outside the Hereford area. Television cameras were here from Amarillo, Lubbock and Dallas, and

If Clayton Indicted

Speaker Resignation Predicted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Until Friday night, it looked like a two-way race for House speaker in 1981, with moderate-to-liberal Rep. John Bryant of Dallas challenging incumbent Bill Clayton.

Suddenly, legislators and lobbyists are thinking about the chance of a speaker election in August, with Clayton out of the picture, and candidates are multiplying.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, said Monday he thought Clayton would resign before the August special legislative session if an FBI "sting" operation against Clayton results in an indictment.

Clayton faces a grand jury in Houston on Wednesday. He has admitted accepting a large cash "campaign contribution" from a Houston union leader who brought a man posing as a Prudential Insurance Co. agent to his office in November. But he said he took the money only to avoid embarrasing the union man, L.G. Moore, and intended to return it.

The "sting" was part of an

Suit Hopes To Stop Primary Election

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Three Hereford Mexican-American residents who sued Deaf Smith County in 1978 over precinct lines have filed a motion in federal district court for a preliminary injunction to stop the May 6 primary election for commissioners.

The original lawsuit, filed against Deaf Smith County and former county judge Sam Morgan and commissioners Austin Rose, James Voyles, Bruce Coleman and the late Alfred Smith, attempted to delay the November 1978, general election until commissioner precincts were reapportioned.

George Korbel of San Antonio, attorney for plaintiffs Americo Gamez, Cecelia Garza and Oralia Guzman, told The Brand today that the suit was filed too close to the election to have it stopped.

"That's why we're trying to enjoin the election now. We're giving ourselves more time," Korbel said. "We hope to stop the election process until reapportionment."

Commissioners J.F. Martin of Precinct No. 1 and Coleman of No. 2 are seeking re-election and are opposed by Bill Bradly and Troy Moore, respectively.

The 1978 lawsuit contends that the present county apportionment "contains a population disparity in the neighborhood of 100 percent," making it discriminatory to Mexican-American voters and candidates.

A motion for preliminary injunction was filed in United States District Court in Amarillo and stated that an early hearing is needed "in order to provide as much time as possible for formulation of a new apportionment and to avoid any more disruption than necessary of the regular election process.

The plaintiffs contend that the present county apportionment does not comply with the "one person, one vote" requirement of the 14th Amendment.

A brief filed by Korbel says that the amendment requires commissioner precincts to be "as nearly of equal population as practicable" to ensure that voters of one precinct to not have a vote "of greater or smaller weight" than that of voters in any other precinct.

The brief supporting the preliminary injunction states that

Buffalo Lake Petitions Circulated

By JIM STEIERT
Ouidoors Editor

Petitions calling for the saving of Buffalo Lake were circulated among a gathering of some 50 concerned citizens following a meeting of the Save Buffalo Lake committee Monday night at the Randall County Courthouse in Canyon.

Those attending that session will be passing the petitions among their fellow residents in Panhandle communities as the SBLC works against an April 22 deadline in an attempt to avert the breaching of the dam at Buffalo Lake.

The petition cites the importance of Buffalo Lake in preventing flood damage to downstream communities including Camp Don Harrington and Palo Duro Canyon State Park, the close-to-home recreation offered by the lake in energy-conscious times, the effect of the lake in furthering water conservation and storage now and in the future and the fact that Buffalo Lake provides irreplaceable waterfowl and wildlife habitat.

The petition urges local, state and federal authorities to "prevent the senseless destruction of Umbarger Dam and the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge and to work for restoration of the facility to full operating status as soon as possible."

The petitions are to be circulated for a two week period and will be gathered at another SBLC meeting to be held Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Eagle Lodge in Amarillo at 516 North Taylor.

Arrangements are being made for petitions to be available at several Hereford businesses, and a full list of locations where concerned local citizens may sign petitions will be published as soon as arrangements are completed.

Both The Hereford Brand and KPAN Radio have petitions available at this time.

Rick Wilcox, a member of the SBLC steering committee urged area residents to couple their petition signing efforts with a letter writing campaign to their representatives.

"Take at least one of the

Lucio Trial Begins Today

Jury selection in the attempted murder trial of Narcisso Lucio Jr. of Hereford began this morning in 222nd District Court.

Lucio is on trial for the May 18, 1979 shooting of 17-year-old Danny Hernandez, who was left paralyzed as a result of the incident. Hernandez was shot once in the back with a .22 caliber rifle.

District Attorney Roland Saul is expected to call investigating officers and eyewitnesses to the stand today. Saul said Hernandez may testify Wednesday.

County To Submit DA Grant Request

Deaf Smith County commissioners Monday agreed to continue a federal criminal-justice grant for the district attorney's office by putting up $10,557 in matching county funds.

The grant, which must be renewed each year, allowed the county in 1977 to employ an assistant district attorney, an investigator and an office manager. Grant funds also were used to purchase equipment for the DA's office.

Continuation of the grant allows District Attorney Roland Saul to maintain the three positions, but does not allow for the purchase of additional equipment.

Saul introduced Don Davis, recently employed as assistant district attorney, to commissioners during the regular semi-monthly meeting. Davis, former assistant city attorney who practiced law with the Witherspoon-Aikin-Langley law firm, replaces Lorin Constanzo in the DA's office.

Constanzo resigned, effective Feb. 1, to enter private practice.

Application for continuance of the grant will be made through the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission (PRPC).

Saul also reported to the commission that depositions from Sheriff Travis McPherson, Department of Public Safety Trooper Gary Whitfill and Tom Smiley of the Immigration and Naturalization Service concerning a lawsuit against them were taken in federal district court last week.

The three officials were sued by two Mexican-American residents of Deaf Smith County who claim they were illegally detained because they could not

Globe-News Declines Comment Concerning Suit

DALLAS (AP) - Executives with the Amarillo Globe-News declined comment concerning a libel suit filed against the newspaper by Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis until they have a chance to read it. "We have no notification of any suit," James L. Whyte, vice president-general manager of the newspaper, said Monday. "That's all I can say. We haven't been notified by anyone."

Curtis filed the suit Friday in Dallas federal court, naming the newspaper and its parent company, Southwestern Newspaper Corp.

"It cites...12 separate and interwoven instances of allegedly libelous pulications that have occurred within the past year," said Curtis. "I told them I was going to bring a libel suit against them a year and a half ago."

He said the lawsuit claims the newspaper published false stories about Curtis with "reckless disregard for the truth."

"If you're a public figure or a public official, you have to prove malice in order to recover damages. And malice is defined as a reckless disregard for the truth," Curtis said.

Clayton To Appear Before Grand Jury

HOUSTON (AP) - An FBI undercover investigation of alleged insurance kickback schemes moved to a federal grand jury in Houston today with at least six political and labor leaders scheduled to testify.

Two other persons - Texas House Speaker William Clayton and his executive assistant Russell Kelley - are to appear before the panel Wednesday.

The probe-code-named "Operation Brilab," has reached into the Texas Legislature, the Houston City Council, and the Operating Engineers International Union.

Subpoenaes were served after FBI agents, posing as representatives of the Prudential Insurance Co., ended the investigation of possible government corruption.

Among those ordered to testify was Robert Johnson, executive director of the Texas Legislative Council and House parliamentarian.

Clements Hopes Public Won't 'Crucify' Speaker

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Gov. Bill Clements says he hopes the public will not jump to conclusion and "crucify" Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton because Clayton has been linked to a federal bribery investigation.

Clayton is being investigated in connection with allegations that he accepted $10,000 from some men who wanted to help in securing an insurance contract with the state. The money was paid in connection with what the FBI calls Brilab, "sting" operation in which money was allegedly paid to various officials in several states for help in obtaining insurance contracts.

Clayton is scheduled to testify Wednesday before a federal grand jury at Houston.

"I see no point in trying him by television or in the press," Clements said Monday night following a speech here.

Although he acknowledged that Clayton was under a "cloud" of suspicion, the governor said it would have no effect on his plans to call a special legislative session in August.

Iranian Official Says Crisis May End Soon

Associated Press

Iran's Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today he hoped the hostage crisis will end soon, adding that Iran will cooperate with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, Tehran radio reported.

There was no elaboration on Ghotbzadeh's statement. A U.N. spokesman in New York said Monday that negotiations over the hostages' release are at a "very sensitive stage" and that Waldheim is in constant touch with U.S. and Iranian officials.

Waldheim has attempted to arrange freedom for the 50 Americans since they were seized at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran 101 days ago. He has also proposed an international commission be set up to investigate Iranian charges against the deposed shah.

The radio said Ghotbzadeh declined to give a timetable for the Americans' release. But in what could be a related development, the radio quoted Ghotbzadeh as telling ABC News that an international commission being set up to investigate deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi will "probably" meet in Tehran within a week.

Ghotbzadeh said he was leaving for Athens tonight to begin a five-day European tour, the radio said.

about the southwest wind. "What am I gonna do when it gets to damn bad that I can't stand it?" he asked.

Postell answered that if odor from the plant becomes a problem, the farmer or any other landowner may contact Warner's Lubbock office and an investigation will take place.

"Manure odor is a violation of air-control regulations. The law prohibits the maintenance or an odor nuisance," Postell said.

James said the Guymon plant "has never had a noxious odor problem."

He added that stockpiled manure could possibly emit an odor, "but they'll tell us to take care of our pile. They'll tell us to build a building, and that's what we'll do. But, I don't think we will have a noxious odor problem in Deaf Smith County.

Several questions dealt with the company's decision to build a plant near a proposed residential area in the country.

"Why out there in the middle of nowhere? Why not build it you'll have to spend a lot of money for gas hauling the stuff. It just doesn't make sense," a resident near the site told James. doesn't make sense," a resident near the site told James.

"We're looking with seven different feed yards, and this is the only point equidistant from all of them," James said. that there are four feed yards east of Hereford with a total of 125,000 head of cattle. "Why not build it east of town?" he asked.

"I have a very delicate arrangements with those feed yards," James said. "And, later, we want to expand the plant to use all the cattle in Deaf Smith County."

James emphasized that the plant "is not a feed yard and does not smell like a feed yard."

He said that insecticide would be used around a lagoon at the facility to kill flies and mosquitoes.

Manure-hauling trucks would take routes away from residential areas and schools, James said.

Wallin implied that his engineer's report probably would be favorable to Thermonetics.

"With a plant this size, I feel confident they can keep the odor inside the plant," Wallin said. "I feel real positive with something like this, rather than with a 100,000-head feed lot."

Speaker — from Page 1

FBI operation called Brilab, for bribery-labor.

"I don't think Billy wants to hurt anybody, and he would do anything he could to keep from hurting anybody. I don't believe he would do anything to hurt the House members," Nabers said.

Nabers said he spent the weekend lining up support for a speaker's race in the event Clayton either resigns or decides not to run, after all, in 1981. House members elect the speaker, or presiding officer, from their ranks.

There were reports that former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes was drumming up support for Nabers. Barnes said that while he supported Nabers, he had been too busy with John Connally's presidential campaign to seek votes for Nabers.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, agreed with Von Dohlen that Clayton probably would resign if indicted.

Von Dohlen recalled the 1971 legislative session in which Speaker Gus Mutscher was the target of allegations he conspired to accept a bribe. The session was tumultuous, from start to finish, with continual political jockeying and attacks on Mutscher, who responded with an attempt to use the redistricting bill to eliminate some of his enemies from the Legislature.

Clayton "would not put the House through that sort of ordeal," Von Dohlen said.

Von Dohlen has shown interest in running for speaker when Clayton no longer wanted the job but said Monday he is not seeking pledges of support in view of the changed situation.

"I'm not working on anything. I'm watching, as everybody is, to see what will happen," he said.

Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, r also has accumulated expressions of support from conservative House members.

"I feel comfortable that if Bill gets out, I will pick up enough support to win," said Lewis.

He said he would attend a meeting Wednesday afternoon of the House Urban Caucus, which is taking the position that lawmakers should refrain from early commitments to speaker candidates if Clayton leaves the picture.

Vandals Destroy Restroom Items

Vandals smashed a sink and toilet in the city's restroom facilities at Veteran's Park Sunday night or early Mondy morning, according to police reports.

Police said the restrooms have been vandalized numerous times since they were constructed in 1977. Officers have no suspects in connection with the latest incident.

Max Tony Garcia, 218 Archer, reported that someone dented the side of his 1974 Buick while it was parked Monday at Hi-Plains Savings & Loan.

Officers arrested a man for driving while intoxicated Monday, were called to a minor traffic accident and wrote 14 citations.

newspaper reporters were also present from the same cities. Clayton announced there would be no news conference, on the advice of his attorney. "I would like to talk to the press, but I don't have the answers at this time."

Clint Formby, program chairman introduced the honoree. Formby outlined many of Clayton's accomplishments during his 18-years of service to the district "with loyalty and integrity." Formby called Clayton a "workaholic, a doer, a generous man with the reputation of honesty and fair play as Speaker of the House."

Formby also said Clayton provided a "first" with his mobile van office that covered the seven-county district, adding the van was paid for by the Speaker himself. "He draws the same salary as all representatives, but he's the hardest-working Speaker in the history of the House."

After Clayton's address, banquet co-chairman Milton Adams presented the Speaker with a charcoal painting. Adams explained the painting was obtained from the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage with a contribution in Clayton's name.

"It's beautiful," said Clayton on accepting the gift. Indicating his sense of humor was intact, he said: "But I have one question, is it a bribe?"

Adams also presented Clayton's wife, Delma, with a cowhide rug purchased from Texas Processors of Hereford. Gentry had earlier made some glowing remarks about Mrs. Clayton's role in the Speaker's career.

The dinner program included special entertainment by The Country Four, a welcome by Mayor Bartley Dowell, dinner music by a local trio, and the invocation and benediction by Helen Langley and Ken Rogers. The Hereford Key Club provided table service.

Clayton's address was not limited to his problems. He talked of the state's great progess and growth. "Texas will be a super state. We will be a leader--not because of legislators or state government, but because of the people who direct them. We are pawns in your hands," he stated.

He pointed out that Texas will have two more congressmen after the next census. "We still hold dear the things that have made this country great. The attitude of Texans is a pattern for others to follow. We will continue to work for Texas to be No. 1 in all areas," he emphasized.

Saul also met with commissioners in closed session concerning a lawsuit which seeks to have county precinct lines redrawn to improve Mexican-Americans' chances in an election.

The suit requests a temporary injunction to stop the upcoming county commissioners' election.

County librarian Sharon Champion reported to commissioners that 10,612 books were checked out from the library in January. 100 library cards were issued, 465 persons attended various library programs and 15 groups requested films during the month.

The library has 48,867 pieces of material, mostly books, on hand, according to Mrs. Champion.

Commissioners, in other business during the short meeting:

--agreed to continue the county's membership in PRPC by authorizing the payment of $1,499.19 in annual dues.

--tabled a request from James Jesko, county veterans service officer, to employ a part-time secretary until the 1980-81 budget is put together.

--and drew the name of Debbie Gonzales from the grand jury list to serve on the county's salary-grievance committee.

Commissioner Precinct No. 1 "deviates above the idea" by 55.55 percent and No. 2 "deviates below the idea by 29.41 percent.

Deaf Smith County precincts were last apportioned following the 1970 census. They will be reapportioned following the 1980 census, but Korbel told The Brand that the apportionment would not take full effect until 1984--the reason for the plaintiffs' efforts to stop the upcoming election.

"1984 is a long way off," Korbel said. "The apportionment wouldn't fully take effect until then because commissioners are elected on four-year staggered terms.

"All we're doing is requesting that the court give consideration to moving up the trial so we can do it before the May election."

Korbel said he anticipated no problems in dealing with Deaf Smith County, which is represented by District Attorney Roland Saul and private attorney Rex Easterwood.

"The people in Deaf Smith County, the commissioners, have been as cooperative as any other set of commissioners I've dealt with. I've not met with a set of commissioners who didn't want to reapportion and do a good job. I don't think we'll have any problem working something out," Korbel said.

The plaintiffs in their 1978 lawsuit contended they are members of a class which has been the subject of "individious and discriminatory treatment" and requested "fair and equitable representation."

They also have filed a motion requesting that their action be designated a class-action lawsuit.

Petitions may be returned to Wilcox or Kenneth Land, chairman of the SBLC at 103 Country Club Drive, Canyon.

In other matters at last night's session, concerned residents were informed that residents of the Lake Tanglewood area will vote in a Feb. 18 meeting on whether to support the cause of the SBLC.

Land reported that he obtained expressions of support from Water Inc. during the annual membership meeting of that water importation organization Saturday in Amarillo.

A member of the National Campers and Hiker's Association also reported that support will be given the SBLC cause by that organization.

SBLC supporters received word that a representative of the Audubon Society in Brownwood is suggesting writing letters to Governor Clements in order to find out why the Governor apparently favors allowing federal marshland purchases in the Big Bend area of Texas when a waterfowl area that is already established in the Panhandle is endangered.

Committee members also heard reports on a survey concerning citizen use of Buffalo Lake, a recommendation that establishing Buffalo Lake as a national grasslands park be pursued if action cannot be obtained on the dam and spillway issue, and a call for all future use of Buffalo Lake to be on a fee basis to ensure that the area is taken care of by its users.

SBLC members were informed that the petitions and letters will be used as an indication of citizen sentiment concerning the lake when SBLC members meet with congressmen and senators concerning the matter of saving the Buffalo Lake area.

"Our immediate goal is to avert the breaching of the dam, and this is our first area of concern. If we get that accomplished, we'll then turn our attention to alternate water sources for the lake," stated Land.

99 Percent of Texans Within Commuting Distance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A senator named Wardlow Lane asked sarcastically in 1961 when Tenaha, a backwoods town in his Deep East Texas district, would get a state college.

Tenaha doesn't have a college yet, but the idea of higher learning at every crossroads isn't far from reality.

"We now have a public or private college, junior college or university within commuting distance of 99 percent of the population," says Kenneth Ashworth, state commissioner of higher education.

Geographic accessibility, more than low tuition, has made higher education a bargain in Texas, says Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, chairwoman of the House Higher Education Committee.

"More and more people are demanding higher education and have insisted on development of higher education around the corner," said Mrs. Delco, D-Austin.

Two decades of expansion have left Texas with 37 public senior collage units, 54 community junior college campuses and four state technical institutes. There also are 37 private colleges and seven private junior colleges.

Third in population, Texas ranks second in enrollment and second in the number of publicly supported colleges.

In all major population centers and some small ones, you can complete a four-year degree program without leaving home. Students in some cities attend junior college for two years, then transfer to an upper-level campus, which offers junior and senior courses.

Dean Lorrin Kennamer of the University of Texas College of Education says Texas' hard-scrabble history explains her commitment to inexpensive education.

"I think it is part of the heritage of the frontier," he said. "It's a feeling that education is still the way to upward mobility."

Whatever the reason, the Legislature has plowed vast amounts of money into higher education, building far-flung campuses and taking up the slack left by cheap tuition. The $2.84 billion appropriated to higher education from undedicated state taxes in 1980 equals 40 percent of the general revenue budget.

A popular misconception has it that college is inexpensive in Texas because of oil royalties from the 2.3 million acres of land dedicated to higher education.

But only UT and Texas A&M may spend the earnings from the $1 billion in invested royalties, called the Permanent University Fund (PUF).

UT and A&M pay off construction debts mainly with PUF income. Any money remaining may be spent on equipment and for general operating expenses — presumably in the pursuit of "excellence."

Ashworth says oil money has brought national stature to UT-Austin and A&M by enabling them to woo outstanding teachers and build quality libraries and laboratories.

Oil and gas also provide about $1 billion a year in state taxes, some of which go to higher education.

But nothing so simple as spreading oil wealth among the schools determines how much money state universities receive.

The Legislature long ago told the Texas College Coordinating Board to establish formulas for various costs, from faculty salaries to janitors. This year's formula amount for business administration faculty salaries, for example, was $25.67 for each semester credit hour of instruction taken by each business administration student. One course normally gives three semester hours of credit.

Lawmakers seldom can finance the full amounts called for by the formulas and decided to fund higher education at 92 percent of formula this year.

Formulas have cut competition between colleges for funds and offer an "equitable distribution of unhappiness," Ashworth says.

Unhappiness is an understatement for schools whose declining enrollments meant fewer state dollars this year under the formula system.

Lawmakers had to vote $1.6 million to help eight schools adjust to fewer students: East Texas State, Midwestern, Stephen F. Austin, Texas Southern, Texas Woman's University, Texas A&I, West Texas State and Lamar.

"Faculty members have to be given advance notice when they must be dismissed, particularly when they are tenured," Ashworth explained.

What is happening is a slowing in the growth of the 18-21 age group, which Ashworth says increased 120 percent in the 1970s but is expected to rise only 15-17 percent in the 1980s.

The slowdown already has started — enrollment in public universities this fall was only 0.75 percent higher than it was the year before.

The upshot could be increasing attacks on the formula system.

"We are getting complaints about that system, which was very popular when enrollments were increasing. They (declining colleges) say we must finance quality instead of quantity," Ashworth said.

A committee of educators named by Gov. Bill Clements and a citizen panel headed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby are looking hard at the formula system.

Clements believes there must be a better way than the formulas but says he has no instant remedy.

"It works so poorly there has to be a better way. ... I am talking about a hard way, a more thoughtful way, undoubtedly a more complex way, because the formula basis is so simple it is downright scandalous. That's why they (the colleges) are all out here bringing in night students, day students, community centers and everything else, just to build up enrollment," he said.

DALLAS (AP) — The body of an 88-year-old retired bus driver, who had been stabbed repeatedly in the chest and abdomen, was discovered by a friend who followed a trail of blood in the victim's apartment, police said.

The victim was identified as Eldridge Skelton. After he was stabbed, he apparently walked or crawled to the door of his bedroom where he collapsed and died, said a field agent for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Investigators said Skelton's wallet, containing $374, was found hidden beneath the mattresses of his bed. Homicide investigators Gerald Robinson said he was looking into reports that Skelton had being involved in disagreements with several neighbors.

"The neighbors said he wouldn't let anybody in unless he knew them," said homicide Sgt. Joe Poe.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A Grand Prairie patrolman shot and killed a 23-year-old man who fired a shotgun at the officer, police said.

Lt. Don Sherman said the victim had been drinking and quarreling with his wife about custody of their child when patrolman Doyle Winter answered a disturbance call.

The victim was identified as Armando Ricardo Lara Jr.

Winters told investigators the victim pointed a .20-gauge shotgun toward his patrol car and fired a shot, Sherman said. Winters said he then got out of the car and ordered Lara to halt, Sherman said.

The patrolman fired three shots, striking the victim once in the chest, Sherman said. Lara was pronounced dead at the scene.

DALLAS (AP) — The federal government has announced it plans to keep and renovate the 43-year-old Terminal Annex building downtown, which has been nominated as a historical landmark.

The five-story building housed the U.S. Postal Service until 1978 when it moved to a new mail-processing center in the Oak Cliff section of town.

The Terminal Annex will be renovated and used as office space for federal agencies including the departments of Defense and Justice and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, according to a spokesman for the General Services Administration.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Justice of the Peace Jose Baca has refused to step out of the misdemeanor assault hearing of Mayor Thomas D. Wesfall and set jury trial for Feb. 19.

Rev. Johnnie Washington, head of El Paso's NAACP, filed the charge last month after she and the mayor were involved in a heated exchange in Westfall's office.

She accused the mayor of refusing to name a black to the Housing Authority board. She contended the mayor touched her wrist while motioning during the argument.

Defense attorney William Markin attempted Monday to evidence that Baca was prejudiced against Westfall.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A 41-year-old woman apparently died from carbon monoxide poisoning as she sat in her house waiting for her car, in the garage, to warm up, county investigators said.

Alma Waters was found dead in her home Sunday night, said Peace Justice Silas Clark.

She apparently had started the car to let it warm up, and the home's heating system carried the deadly fumes from the garage into the house, suffocating her, Clark said.

Her husband, Jerry, found her when he returned home from an out-of-state trip, said Clark, who ruled the death accidental.

He said the car was parked in the garage, with the gas tank empty and the ignition still on.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — An unemployed welder has been released on bond, after authorities charged him with trying to hire someone to kill his wife.

Alvin C. Bicknell, 46, posted a $5,000 bond Monday on charges of solicitation to commit capital murder.

Police said Bicknell tried to hire James Smith, an undercover police detective, to kill his estranged wife, Patsy Bicknell. Officers said two meetings between Smith and Bicknell took place on Feb. 8, one at an Amarillo bar, the other at Bicknell's home.

Bicknell gave Smith $2,000, the charge says, and promised another $18,000 when the killing was done.

A warrant for Smith's arrest was issued immediately, according to investigators, and he was arrested that night.

He was charged Monday before Justice of the Peace E. Jay Hail. Police said they made tape recordings of conversations between Smith and Bicknell, which they will use as evidence in the case.

Mrs. Bicknell has filed for divorce, according to police.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Unemployment in Texas rose by one-half of 1 percent within a month to 4.3 percent in mid-November, the Texas Employment Commission announced Monday.

The commission said bad weather curtailed outdoor activity across most of the state, causing employment drops in such fields as construction and agriculture.

Total employment dropped by 25,500 from mid-October to 6,002,900 in mid-November, the commission said.

"The November employment rate of 4.3 percent, while up significantly from mid-October, was still below" the November 1978 rate of 4.8 percent, the commission said in a statement.

"The current rate for November is the lowest for the month since 1973, when the unemployment rate was 3.6 percent," the commission added.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' 1980-81 plan for preventing and treating alcoholism is available for public inspection at the state office in Austin and in Amarillo, Arlington, Corpus Christi, Houston and Odessa.

The Texas Commission on Alcoholism said Monday the plan lists objectives for the commission and 24 regional alcoholism authorities.

HOUSTON (AP) — Commissioners of the Port of Houston eased a two-month old wage dispute with port fire fighters Monday by giving all monthly contract employees a 12 per cent pay increase.

A spokesman for the International Association of Fire Fighters said, however, the union may file a class action suit against commissioners to get sick leave pay for 15 members who refused port authority officials access to their medical records.

Rather than show favoritism to the 32 fire fighters, the port commissioners granted all monthly contract workers the 12 per cent pay hike or a $100 per month raise, whichever is greater.

Commissioners also complied with other demands for overtime pay, equipment improvement and more holiday time.

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Washington's Birthday will be celebrated in a unique binational tradition for the 83rd year beginning Feb. 19 in the twin cities of Laredo and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

The five-day festivities will include appearances by Robert Krueger, U.S. Ambassador-at-large to Mexico; and Abelardo Valdez, chief of protocol for President Carter and a Floresville, Texas, native.

Dr. Hector Garcia of Corpus Christi, founder of the American G.I. Forum, and Mexican composer Pepe Guizar will receive special awards.

Other events include an international parade Feb. 23, followed by a luncheon for U.S. and Mexican dignitaries, an egg-throwing contest, a tricycle contest and a jalepeno-eating contest.

Payoffs to INS Employes Barred

NEW YORK (AP) — Work permits, travel visas, even coveted "green cards" are available to foreigners seeking to smooth their way into the United States through unscrupulous Immigration and Naturalization Service agents — if the price is right, a convicted briber asserts on secretly recorded FBI tapes.

The undercover recordings were made last year during a continuing federal investigation that, sources said, has spread to INS offices in Newark, N.J., Miami and 12 countries.

The Associated Press has learned that about 15 INS employees here are under investigation and that several others are the subject of sealed indictments. While the FBI's Abscam investigation of bribery has resulted in the indictment of an INS employee here, officials say the two investigations are not connected.

INS officials here and in Washington, D.C., declined comment.

The existence of 52 hours of tapes came to light this month in the trial of Isidore Markowitz, an analyst in New York City's Community Development Agency. Markowitz was convicted of giving INS clerk Juan Espinal $2,800 in return for forged or blank documents.

Espinal, who had access to a range of INS files, went to the FBI in April after fellow employees asked his aid in illegal activities. He was wired by the FBI to record meetings and telephone calls Markowitz had with him and a INS investigator over 3¼ months.

According to the tapes, Markowitz said he made $16,000 a year at his city job. He told Espinal, "I make an extra 20, 20 grand a year. It's good enough for me."

The transcripts of 20 hours of tapes — 32 hours remain sealed — examined by the AP and evidence produced at Markowitz's trial allege:

—Payoffs to some 20 INS employees here and others in Miami, Newark and to U.S. consular employees overseas, as well as employees of 12 foreign countries.

—Payoffs to "immigration consultants" who bribe low-level INS employees to help bona fide aliens entitled to legitimate paperwork to avoid bureaucratic red tape.

—Payoffs ranging from daily $50 payments for employment permits to $40,000 for workups involving the wholesale forgery of official files and the issuance of "green cards" that indicate legal immigration and eligibility for work.

—Payoffs to destroy incriminating files.

Targets of the investigation include file clerks, inspectors in the travel documents section, deportation officers, detention section guards, contact representatives and clerks in the citizenship, alien and investigation sections.

4-H BICYCLING FOR FUN, ADVENTURE

More and more 4-H'ers are taking up bicycling today than ever before, thanks to fancy new bicycle models with their multiple gears and touring accessories.

Combined with camping, bicycling can provide fun and adventure. Thousands of 4-H youth are already enjoying bicycle touring, camping and bike maintenance programs conducted by 4-H bicycle clubs.

These young 4-H outdoorsmen have discovered a new inexpensive and pleasant way to see the country. Riding a bicycle over familiar routes will undoubtedly reveal sights that you have continually missed at 55 miles per hour in an automobile. Thanks to the bicycle's low speed, you'll enjoy scenery you've never noticed before. A whole new panorama will flow leisurely past.

From a bike's "saddle," back roads which you may have been avoiding with your car can become pleasant sightseeing routes. Chances are that you'll find more pleasure in a 20-mile bike ride than in a 500-mile auto trip.

So, for fun and adventure, saddle up the old two-wheeler and go on a family picnic or afternoon ride. If you want to learn more about bicycling and fun with your bike, contact the county Extension office and ask about the 4-H Bicycle Project.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ann Landers

Unbelievable Story

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column--with tongue in cheek--you told a reader, "If you believe that story, I have a nice swamp in Louisiana I'd like to sell you." After receiving a raft of offers from people who wanted to buy your swamp, you write, "I was trying to be funny. I have no swamp to sell. From now on I won't be so cute with my answers."

Since you welcome information that sets the records straight, I'd like to inform you that the oil-rich swamps of Louisiana are extremely valuable and very hard to come by. The checks I receive from a major oil company for wells on my property aren't funny, but they sure are cute.--Louisiana Swamp Rat

DEAR RAT: Sorry about the goof. And now, do YOU have any swamp land in Louisiana (I) can buy?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need compassion, not scolding. I hope I have come to the right place.

I am addicted to cigarets. Yes, it's a stinking habit. I know how much it costs. I know how many sweaters and blouses I've burned holes in. I know I am polluting other people's air. I also know that more than 300,000 people a year die because of diseases that are traceable to cigarets. I want to quit. I've tried hypnosis, tapering off, cold turkey, (ad nauseum.) Two years ago when I managed to stay off cigarets for three weeks, I gained 10 pounds. I went back to the darned things.

My husband and kids nag me constantly. They won't get off my case. Why don't non-smokers realize that for some people smoking is as much an addiction as alcohol? Nagging only makes it worse. Please tell them.--A Weakling in Montana

DEAR MONTANA: You are right. Nicotine addiction can be as hard to conquer as alcohol or other drugs. Your family must accept the fact that they are powerless over your addiction. The only person who can do anything about it is YOU.

Others have overcome addictions, and you can, too. Certain techniques work for some people and not others. Contact your physician and enlist his help. Don't give up. It can be a matter of life and death.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is the first letter I've written to you in 20 years of reading your column. I had a lonely childhood. I liked you better than my mother. Thanks for printing the letter from "Big Mama From Bellingham." I, too, was a large child. Although I was above average in intelligence and maturity, I knew no matter how well I did, more was expected of me because of my size.

All the heroines in literature seemed to be petite. I was sure I could never attract a man. I lived in fear of growing up to be as tall as my father. (He was 6-8). My size was constantly working against me. I was looked on as a girl who could take care of herself. Men don't exactly flock to that type.

Luckily, I found a great husband. We now have two daughters who are going to be very tall. I am trying to reinforce their self-esteem and make them proud of their height. I hope other mothers of tall girls will do the same. It's a real challenge but essential to a female's well-being. Sorry, I don't have the courage to sign my name. Just call me--Kansas

DEAR KANSAS: You sound like a lady I can look up to. Thanks for writing.

Is pot a drug? Can LSD and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed stamped envelope (28 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

I can't remember when housework became "home management efficiency," but I could swear there's no difference.

All my life, I've been searching for a way to achieve Phyllis Diller's lifelong dream: a stove that flushes.

In my catch-all drawer, I've got a collection of household hints, beauty and time savers so weird they're guaranteed to get you committed to the ha-ha home of your choice.

In fact, I have just gone through all of them and would like to initiate my annual Bombeck Clean-off, Mrs. America Beauty and Efficiency Pageant and Self-Righteous Spit-Up Bowl. Here are the favored entries wearing their "original" quotes.

ILLINOIS: "For formal affairs, weddings or just ordinary dress-up occasions, here's a hint. If you're wearing a long dress on a rainy or sloshy day, cut two holes in an extra large garbage bag and step inside. Pull it up to your waist and you'll have no problem with splash marks."

NEW JERSEY: "Home repair jobs are made easy. Did you know that you can substitute pancake mix for plaster to fill nail holes in a wall before it's painted and revive old Christmas decorations by coating them with clear nail polish?"

GEORGIA: "Smart hostesses are going 'all out' these days by wearing an outfit to match the walls of their homes. You'll be a real show stopper and receive prolonged 'bravos' for your originality and creativity." (Don't forget to smile so people can find you.)

OREGON: "Children with busy social lives prefer a little privacy when on the telephone. A family in Portland installed a phone in a walk-in closet. Now talkers aren't heard by the rest of the family and the unsightly telephone message board is easy to hide."

OHIO: "You've certainly heard of the wondrous things a compost does for your soil, but suppose you live in an apartment and have no place for one. Ah, but you do. You can make your own compost in a window box handy to the sink where you dump in your coffee grounds, vegetable peelings and egg shells. The odor is like a lush jungle rain forest."

ARKANSAS: "Once a week, we plan an international meal for the whole family. We plan the entire menu to reflect foreign countries. We then make a map of the area, research its interesting facts and appear at dinner in the costume of the country. It's fun, educational and rewarding."

Nominations close April 1. The winner will be given a scholarship to a baking soda factory and will be crowned in Atlantic City, Bert Parks willing.

Griffth Hits OT Shot To Give Louisville 56-54 Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was a long shot.

Well, not as long as Les Henson's — but just long enough for Louisville.

"The play was just to get it to Darrell Griffith and let him do what he could with it," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum.

Spinning around at the baseline, Griffith went high in the air and hit a 20-footer with one second left in overtime to give the nation's third-ranked college basketball team a 56-54 victory over stubborn Virginia Tech Monday night.

"Griffith hit it with two hands in his face," said Virginia Tech Coach Charlie Moir. "I thought Dexter (Reid) did a good job on him."

After Griffith's shot, Henson launched a 40-footer from just beyond the half-court mark for Virginia Tech. But the ball just missed — hitting the rim inside the basket and bounced out at the buzzer. Henson, of course, was the player who beat Florida State earlier this season with a record 89-foot, 6-inch shot at the final second.

"That's the most patient I've ever seen a Louisville team play," said Moir. "They showed a lot of patience and poise."

In other action Monday night involving the nation's Top Twenty teams, eighth-ranked Maryland walloped Boston University 99-76; 11th-ranked North Carolina defeated Georgia Tech 60-50; and No. 12 Notre Dame turned back San Francisco 78-66.

Griffith's game-winning shot came after the Cardinals had run 43 seconds off the clock following a basket by Jeff Schneider that tied the score at 54-54 with 44 seconds remaining.

"There aren't too many guards that can block one of my jumpers," said Griffith. "I just concentrated on getting good elevation. I wasn't having what you would call a hot night (7-of-19), but that's basketball. You can't let that bother you."

Griffith wound up with 14 points for Cardinals, one behind team leader Wiley Brown, who scored 15. Virginia Tech's Dale Solomon led all scorers with 27 points.

Albert King scored 32 points, including 16 of 17 free throws, to lead Maryland's victory over Boston University. King's first free throw of the game gave him 30 in a row, then he missed his next attempt before dropping in the next 15.

Michael O'Koren scored 17 points to lead North Carolina past Georgia Tech. The Tar Heels scored only two field goals in the last 10 minutes, but hit 20 free throws in that time.

"We got a lot of practice shooting foul shots," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "But, that's the way they chose to play it."

Georgia Tech Coach Dwane Morrison: "We were not ready mentally tonight. We were still reliving the Virginia game. That's just human, but that's not the way to win ball games."

Georgia Tech, competing in the Atlantic Coast Conference for the first time this season, broke a string of 11 conference losses last Saturday with a victory over Virginia.

Tracy Jackson scored a career-high 23 points and Kelly Tripucka added 20 in Notre Dame's victory over San Francisco. The Irish took a 20-point lead, then held off a second-half rally by the Dons.

"Our offensive execution was excellent, especially in the first half," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "Tracy really played well, and we rotated people to give everybody the necessary rest. The game got physical in the second half, but that's just part of the game."

In other games, Greg White scored 20 points to lead Marshall over Tennessee-Chattanooga 67-55; Kenneth Lyons scored 23 points as North Texas trimmed the University of San Diego 88-73; an 18-point performance by Greg Nance led West Virginia past Massachusetts 73-68; DeBoyd Johnson's 20 points paced Southeastern Louisiana to a 62-54 triumph over Centenary and Temple beat Rider 80-64 as Jim McLoughlin came off the bench to score 20 points.

Also, Ronald Frazier scored 17 points to lead Northeast Louisiana to a 72-61 decision over Houston Baptist; Mitchell Anderson's 32 points paced Bradley over Indiana State 82-60; Robert Scott's 19 points helped Alabama nip Georgia 66-64 in overtime; North Carolina State defeated Wake Forest 52-40 as Hawkeye Whitney contributed 16 points; Mickey Dillard scored a game-high 27 points as Florida State snapped Florida Southern's 13-game winning streak with an 85-78 victory over the Moccasins; Jeff Ruland had 24 points and 13 rebounds as Iona beat St. Francis (Pa.) 72-62; and Dan McLaughlin's jump shot at the buzzer lifted Fairleigh Dickinson over Manhattan 60-58.

Blue Demons Hit No. 1 In Poll

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

Ray Meyer and DePaul may have received a scare last weekend, but this week's Associated Press college basketball poll was just another cakewalk.

Meyer's Blue Demons were the unanimous choice Monday for the top spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll for the fourth straight week. DePaul was tabbed No.1 on all 58 ballots and received a perfect score of 1,160 in the voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

But that was the easy part. DePaul faced a tougher challenge in upping its record to 20-0 last Saturday — Dayton. It took a basket by Clyde Bradshaw with three seconds left before DePaul emerged with a 65-63 triumph.

"We got the scare of our lives," said Coach Meyer after the game.

DePaul wasn't the only team to find a niche to its liking — the next five teams in the poll also remained unchanged.

Second-ranked Syracuse collected collected 1,047 points in outdistancing Louisville for the runnerup slot. The Cardinals, who posted victories over Cincinnati and Providence last week, were third with 1,012 points.

Oregon State, which nipped Arizona State in overtime last week, was fourth with 959 points, followed by Kentucky, 898, and Louisiana State, 874.

St.John's moved up one spot this week and took over the No.7 position from Maryland with 774 points. The Terps were next with 749 points while Ohio State and Clemson rounded out the Top 10.

The Buckeyes, ranked 13th last week, collected 628 points following triumphs over Michigan and Michigan State.

Olympiad Opens Despite Problems

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Hounded by continuing political problems and haunted by logistical nightmares, the Games of the XIII Winter Olympiad began on schedule today in this picturesque map-dot village nestled in the Adirondack Mountains.

The official opening of the Games, complete with the ceremonial parade of nearly 1,300 athletes, is scheduled for Wednesday. But the hockey competition got a jump on the other sports with six games on today's schedule.

For American athletes the 1980 Games could yield a record winter medal haul. The United States won 10 medals in the 1976 Winter Games at Innsbruck and never has captured more than the dozen it won the last time Lake Placid hosted these Games in 1932.

But stars like champion speed skaters Eric and Beth Heiden, cross country skier Bill Koch, figure skaters Linda Fratianne and Charlie Tickner and skiers Phil Mahre and Cindy Nelson could make this a memorable Olympiad for the United States.

Most of the hockey interest centered on the awesome Soviet Union team, considered almost certain to win the hockey gold. The Russians opened against Japan tonight. In other games, Norway met Czechoslovakia, Canada played Holland, the United States faced Sweden, West Germany opposed Romania and Poland took on Finland.

The young American team, composed largely of college players, got a close look at the Soviets in a 10-3 thrashing last Saturday in New York. Coach Herb Brooks thought he detected some extra verve in the play of the Russians, brought on, perhaps, by the current world political situation.

"The Russians have always been subtle physically before," said Brooks. "I've never seen them quite as physical as they were against us. When Khrushchev said that they'd bury us, I didn't think he meant the American hockey team of 1980. They vented a lot that seemed to be inside them in that game."

The Soviet squad includes many of the stars such as goalie Vladislav Tretiak and forward Boris Mikhailov, who have become familiar to North American fans in the last eight years in games against National Hockey League teams. Brooks smiles at matching them up against his young American team.

"Eight years ago, they were playing against Team Canada," the coach said. "I've got six or eight kids on my team who were playing peewee hockey eight years ago."

With the opening ceremonies just 24 hours away, the Taiwan issue remained clouded. Athletes from that nation, demanding to compete as the Republic of China under their own flag and with their own anthem, planned to carry their suit against the International Olympic Committee into the New York State Court of Appeals today. On Monday in a middle-level court, Olympic officials got reversed an original ruling supporting the Taiwanese position.

The IOC had ordered the changes to clear the way for participation in these Games by athletes from mainland China. That triggered the original suit by the Taiwanese. If the higher court also supports the IOC, it could send the Taiwan team home.

While the Taiwan question weaved its way through the judicial network, American Olympic officials presented to the IOC President Carter's case for moving, postponing or cancelling the 1980 Moscow Games because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

"I couldn't say if we won any points or lost any," said Robert Kane, president of the United States Olympic Committee. "I was pleased, however, that their questions indicated at least that our points were being understood. That's been difficult to get across, even in our own country."

The USOC point, which has seemed to be little more than semantics to some but is important in the lexicon of the IOC, is that the United States opposes any Olympic boycott.

"Boycott has hostile connotations," said Kane. "We are for staying within the system to continue our relations with the IOC, to take part in the deliberations and discussions and perhaps the decision-making."

Kane said he agreed with the president's position.

"It seems illogical and incongruous that a nation which is invading its smaller neighbor and killing and plundering should host ... a festival which is intended to further peace and international goodwill in the world," he said.

Kane called the question of the Moscow Games the most difficult crisis situation the IOC has ever faced. "We are trying to preserve the Games, not destroy them," the American official said.

And while the philosophical questions of Taiwan and Moscow dominated the political side of the Games, the more practical problem of logistics plagued the world press assembled to cover this event.

The carefully-constructed transportation plans to move people around the Olympic area venues seemed to have collapsed completely on Monday. Only 80 of the expected 300 busses were on duty because of a labor dispute and waits of more than two hours for transportation were routine. The press corps from Switzerland, Italy and France filed official protests over the situation.

"We have had a problem with transportation," said Ed Lewi, press coordinator of the Lake Placid Organizing Committee. "A couple of contracts had to be clarified. Our labor problems seem solved one day but then not the next. The last word I have is that they are solved and we will have 300 busses available Wednesday."

Credentials were another problem with limited access for events such as hockey, speed skating and figure skating leaving some members of the media vying with one another for seats.

For the athletes, however, all the problems were strictly peripheral. As the start of the Games approached, they occupied their time in the Olympic Village where a disco and first-run movies kept them busy. But they were aware that their moment in the world's sports spotlight was approaching.

"We've waited a long time for this," said Mike Eruzione, captain of the American hockey team. "We're looking forward to it right now."

Herd Cagers Meet LHS

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

In all likelihood, there won't be too many raised eyebrows concerning the outcome of tonight's district tilts between the Hereford Whiteface varsity basketball teams and the Lubbock High Westerners. But both, boy's coach Bob Decker and the girl's head mentor Larry Sowers aren't trying to pull the wool over anyone's eyes by saying "We've got the Westerners in the bag gentlemen."

The Whiteface boys formerly ousted the Westerners 60-45 in their third outing of the year, while the girls waylaid LHS 70-25.

But unlike the girls squad, the boys varsity has everything to gain by beating the Westerners considering its prospect of sharing the districts second-half title in some shape or form.

And just in case you haven't figured out what the Herd's odds are for a district wild card-team berth, then here's the score.

First of all the Whitefaces must win two out of two remaining contests in this round against Lubbock tonight and Lubbock Coronado Friday. Then, if Monterey (now holding an identical 1-1 second-half slate like the Herd) can beat this half's leader Plainview (2-0) and in turn lose a clash to the CHS Mustangs--that would send the second-half race into a deadlock between the Herd and Plainview. After that, there would be a playoff between those two and the champ would meet first-half outright winner Monterey.

But those are a lot of BIG IFS--at least not enough to lean on entirely and coach Decker is only concerning himself with the clash tonight.

"This game with the Westerners is definitely going to be a tough one even though it may not appear that way," said Decker." "The Westerners have really come on in this second-half and have come very close to beating some teams that are much better than they are, so I think we'll have our work cut out for us."

"Their post man Kirk Cole (netted 16 points in the previous Hereford-Lubbock clash) hurt us the last time we played and Lubbock's zone defense has really started to work for them--that's the defense they used against Monterey and came within two points of beating the Plainsmen," he said.

"But most of all, there is that added pressure for us to win because we still have a chance to make things happen in the second half district race," he added. "With a little luck and two more wins we could tie in this round's race."

In the girls varsity's instance, there isn't an appetizing thought of competing for the district crown, tonight, but more importantly to the squad--the game with the Westerners is a matter of pride and they aren't going to take it lightly says coach Larry Sowers.

"I hope we can play really well and get everybody in the game for some playing time, and most of all I hope we play well so that we can finish this season off on a winning note," he said.

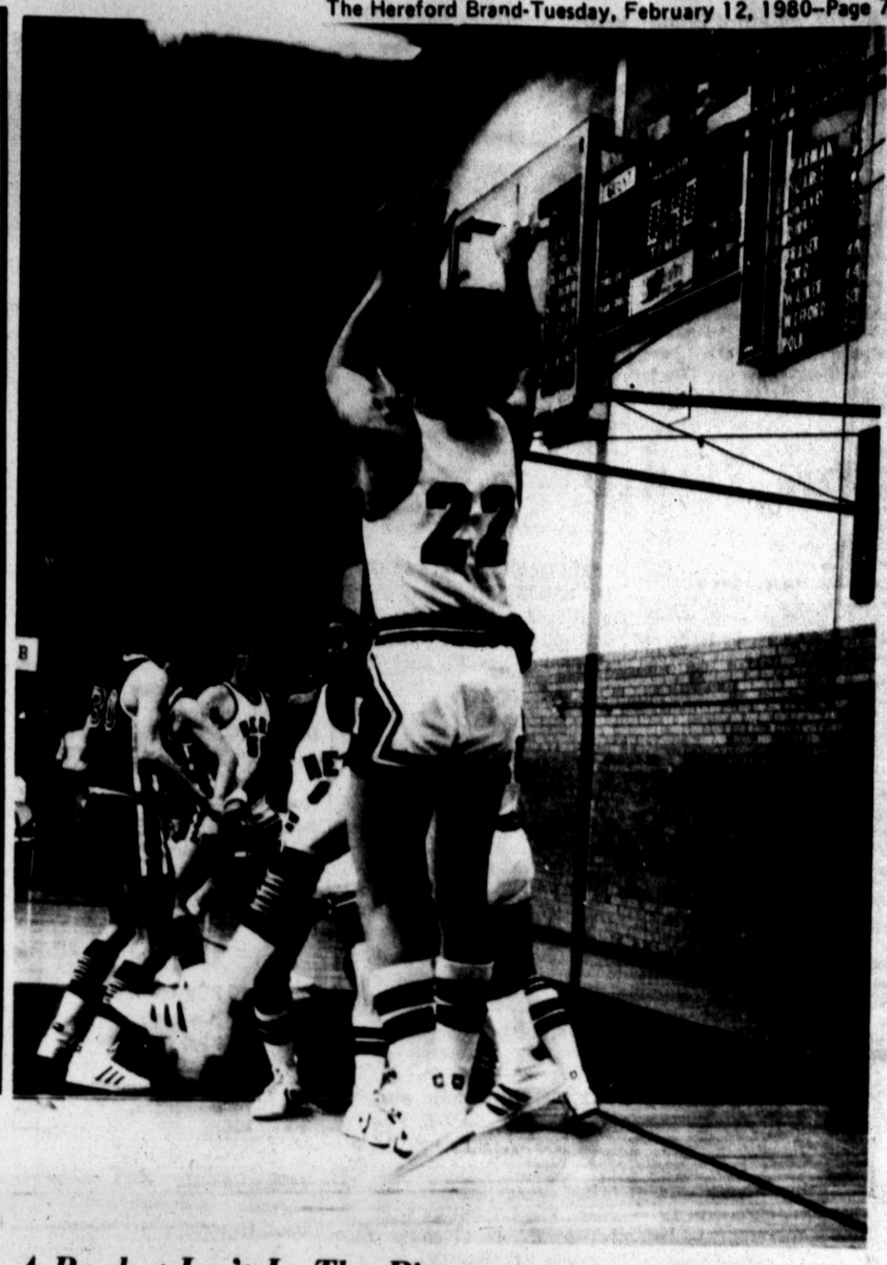

"We're not going into the game with over-confidence just because we beat them last time by so much because they are a better team than they indicate," Sowers said. "They played Coronado to within 11 points before CHS came up here and played us off our feet so they aren't going to give anybody anything."

The Whitefaces go into this last game of the year against the Westerners bolstering a winning 15-11 leger on the year after dropping two disappointing back-to-back losses to Monterey and Plainview, but next year's girls squad could be contenders in the district race with most of its starters returning.

"We've had a good season this year and fullfilled our goal to break .500," he said. "Next year we will try to build on our success and if our top six players coming back with work this summer then we can certainly make a run for the district champ spot.

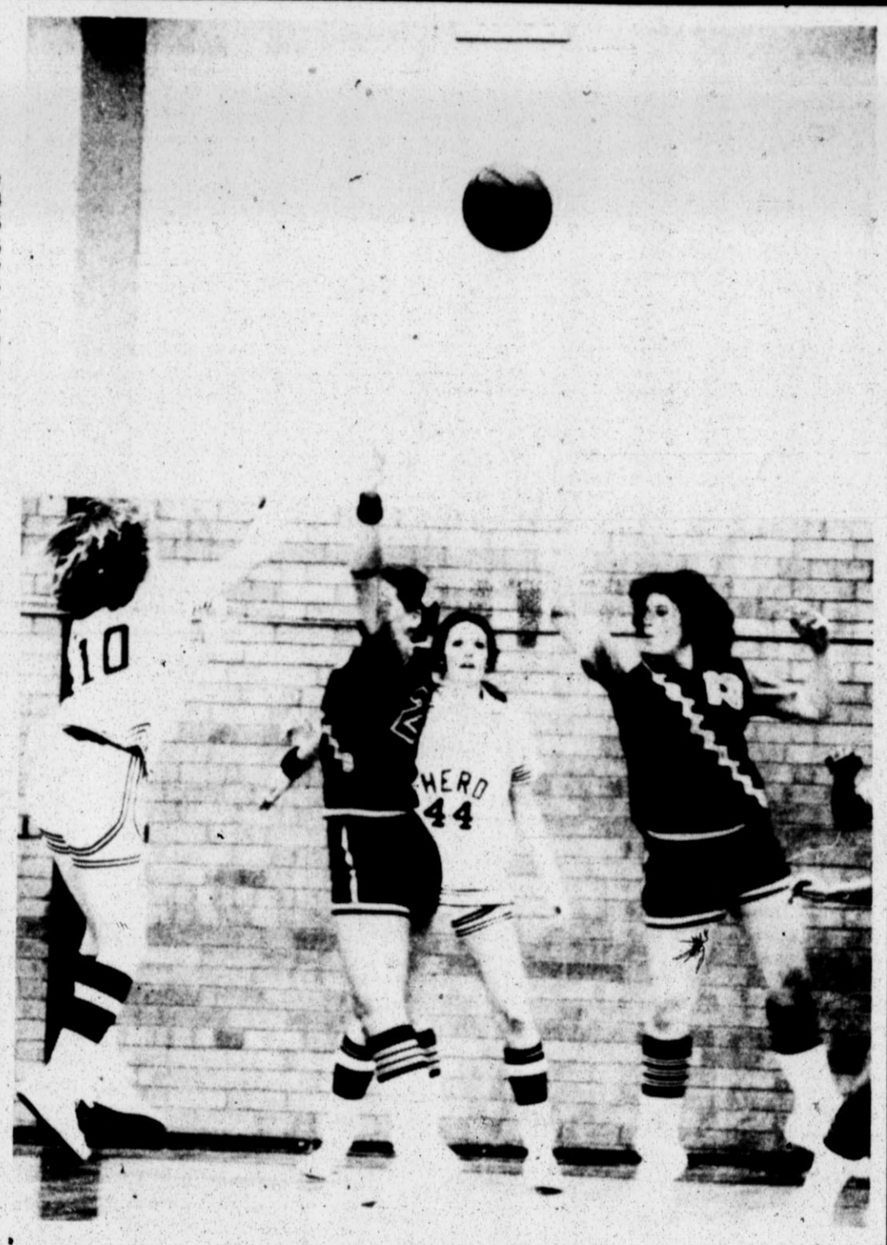

"Monterey and Plainview are going to have some starters coming back--some good ones, but they both have lost some good ones too and if we can improve by next year there's a very real chance that we can legitimately contend for the district championship," said Sowers.

The girls are slated to pair off against the Westerners at 6 p.m. at the Lubbock High Gym while the boys are scheduled to hit the court at 7:30 p.m.

A Bucket Isn't In The Picture

Ernie Suarez [22] is up in the air following a set shot he just made in the first district pair-off between the Lubbock Westerners and Hereford. Whitefaces Joe Walker [44] and Burt Wofford [50] watch the shot along with Lubbock defenders. Hereford won the last battle 60-45 and will look for another victory tonight as they meet the Westerners in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m.

Hot Shot

Amy Schumacher [10] goes up for a shot despite the efforts of Lubbock Westerner defenders to prevent it. Hereford's Deborah Rogers [44] watches the play from the baseline. The Whitefaces toppled the Westerners in the last outing very handily by a margin of 70-20 and will attempt to do so again tonight in Lubbock at 6 p.m.

Falcon Gets Examination.

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski will undergo an orthoscopic examination of his right knee Thursday, a spokesman for the National Football League club said.

Bartkowski injured the knee while playing basketball over the weekend.

"Right now, the injury doesn't look serious," spokesman Charlie Dayton said Monday. "He injured it when he pivoted," Dayton added.

He said Bartkowski's knee was checked Monday by a team physician but the extent of the injury was not known immediately.

Dayton said tests with an orthoscope, an instrument which allows doctors to check for internal damage without opening up the affected area, would reveal any damage.

Only 12 nations, beside Greece, the host country, competed in the 1896 Olympics, the first modern edition of the games.

James Connolly of the United States won the first championship medal at the 1896 Olympics, finishing first in the hop-step-and-jump competition.

The United States won four gold medals in speed skating in the 1932 Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Bobsledding, as a sport, came into being in 1877 in the Swiss Alps, the brainchild of some British tourists.

Penny Charles hadn't weighed herself in 4 or 5 years. Oh, she knew she'd put on a few pounds cooking all the fattening things her husband liked, but she still thought she couldn't weigh much more than 120. When she finally did step on the scale, she burst into tears. Her weight was up to 142 pounds.

"I'd started shopping in the maternity department for smocks," Penny recalls. "I told myself I needed them for my work as an artist, but the fact was I couldn't find [illegible] that fit."

The Knee [illegible]ther's influence, Penny found Pat Walker's program . . . and began an exciting new stage in her life.

Reduce in privacy

Penny discovered that going to Pat Walker's doesn't mean becoming just one more in a roomful of overweight women struggling through strenuous exercises. At Pat Walker's, privacy is very important. Penny liked that, because she was self-conscious about the after-effects of a bout with polio.

"I didn't want to parade around in a leotard for others to see," she says. "I think a lot of women feel that way, for whatever reason."

No-sweat exercise gets results

You don't even have to change from your street clothes at Pat Walker's. Or work up a sweat, or muss your hair. All you do is lie back and relax for a half hour or more about 3 times a week, while the Symmetricon exercise unit does the work for you. As it gently moves your body, you get the benefits you want: toning, tightening, smoothing.

It's a remarkably easy way to achieve the best body you can have, which can be a surprisingly nice one, as Penny will tell you.

"I always made excuses for my fat arms, telling people it was because I'd used crutches for a long time. Well, that was a crutch. Now I have slender arms!"

She does indeed. Penny Charles has lost 43 pounds and a total of 80 inches (7 feet of fat) over the last 2 years. Not only has her weight loss changed her looks, it's changed her career. Now art work is her hobby, and Pat Walker's is her job — she's a salon owner and assistant director of Pat Walker's International.

Does her husband approve of the new Penny? No doubt about it. "He used to give me practical gifts, like an iron or a bathrobe. For Christmas last year, he gave me a beautiful diamond ring in the shape of a 'S'. . . for 'sexy.'"

Pat Walker's is for you, too

There is a difference in weight reduction programs. If you like the idea of being treated as a special and valued patron, in complete privacy, if you'd like to take it easy while you reduce, let a Pat Walker's consultant explain our complete program to you.

Call today to reserve a time for your complimentary treatment and figure analysis. There's no obligation.

Connally Blasts FBI Probe

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John Connally took time from a fund-raising dinner in his honor Monday night to criticize the FBI for its handling of recent bribery investigations.

Connally referred to allegations by the FBI involving officials in several states, alleging an insurance kickback scheme.

"Here you have an obvious scheme on behalf of the FBI to test the morality and integrity of public officials," Connally said. "I think it is an extension of the FBI role that goes too far.

"So far as I can see, they were not investigating any crimes. On the contrary, they were guilty of trying to create a situation, creating circumstances, testing morality."

Connally spoke with newsmen prior to a speech before 1,500 persons attending the fundraiser at Albert Thomas Convention Center. The $100 per plate dinner netted an estimated $170,000 for Connally's campaign fund, officials said.

Connally suggested at one point "there must be more to it than we know now."

He then added, "Obviously, the more that comes to light, they weren't investigating a crime, they were enticing those individuals into their lair."

The GOP presidential hopeful said the Justice Department would be hard pressed to prove their investigation was not a case of entrapment. "It looks to me like the FBI deliberately set out to entrap a number of people," Connally said.

The former Texas governor later told the dinner crowd the United States would have to make drastic changes if it is going to survive. He suggested new alliances in the Middle East, and said the economic future of America lies in a Pacific-based common market.

Connally also called for new western alliances that ultimately would "look to push Castro and communism plumb out of the Western Hemisphere."

The United States is facing the fourth crisis of its history, Connally said. The first three were its founding, the War Between the States and the great depression.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1980. There are 323 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln was born in what was then Hardin County, Ky.

On this date:

In 1554, Lady Jane Grey, who had been queen of England for 10 days, was beheaded after being charged with treason.

In 1809, the scientist who developed the theory of evolution, Charles Darwin, was born in Shrewsbury, England.

In 1962, the Soviet Union backed down from an attempt to restrict allied use of air corridors to Berlin.

Ten years ago, an Israeli air raid accidentally hit an Egyptian scrap metal plant, killing 70 civilians.

Five years ago, Britain's Queen Elizabeth asked for a $1 million raise in her living allowance due to rising expenses.

Today's Birthdays: Italian Director Franco Zeffirelli is 57. Actor Lorne Greene is 65. Sportscaster Joe Garagiola is 66.

Thought For Today: I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me — Abraham Lincoln (1809-1865).

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Make cubes from coffee

DEAR POLLY — Instead of throwing away leftover coffee, freeze it in an ice cube tray and then put cubes in the freezer in a plastic bag. When you serve iced coffee use these coffee cubes instead of ice cubes and the beverage will not become weak when the cubes melt.

Does anyone know how to restore a wool blanket to its original size after it has shrunk from washing? — MYRTLE

DEAR MYRTLE — All I can suggest is a way to make the blanket look more presentable, even though it is smaller. Doubtless the shrinking was caused by washing in water that was too hot. Rewash in cooler water and then try to stretch to as near its original size as possible. When almost dry stretch again.

Never use clothespins if drying on a line. Put it over two lines. Never let the blanket get completely dry before removing from a dryer. Brush up the nap. Press the bindings. If anyone has curtain stretchers I think putting such a blanket on them while damp would be a great help. How about this readers? — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Apartment dwellers and those whose timers do not work on their washing machines or dryers can set an oven timer for the allotted time. There is no guess work or running back and forth. — BARBARA

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Too young to forget

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm writing to you in desperation. To put it plainly, I can't remember. I am serious. I can't. I've gone to writing things down. At times I say, "Oh, I won't forget that," but I do. I would be too embarrassed to go to my doctor. He would probably snicker anyway. My husband becomes perturbed with me. I am young and on no medication. What can I do?

DEAR READER — You refrained from telling me what your age is but it really doesn't matter because people can have memory problems at any age. It is not necessarily a sign of old age. That's why we have to be careful about deciding that an older person who has trouble remembering things has this problem simply because of age. There are a lot of reasons for such difficulties.

Since we do see this rather commonly in people as they get older, though, we tend to associate it with age. I included quite a bit of information on this problem in The Health Letter number 14-2, The Aging Mind. I am sending you a copy that has some suggestions in it about what you can do in reference to your memory. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Some people seem to be able to remember things more easily than others but a lot of this is training. If you've never learned to play the piano, you may not do very well if you sit down to play. The same thing is true in training the memory. If you haven't made any real effort to train it, it may not work so well.

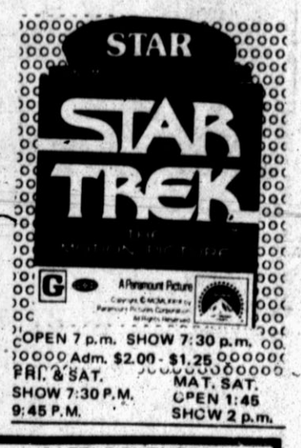

I would suggest that you start a regular program of exercising your mind and developing your memory. Start learning to remember lists of things. I have included in The Health Letter I've sent you the idea of using word associations. Start memorizing poems, quotations or other things. Try to picture things as you see them. In fact, you might be wise to go by the bookstore and pick up a good book on memory training.

I do think it's very important for people to start training their memory when they're young. The higher the development of their memory and mental faculties, the longer they will serve them well as they get older.

I often think one of our best examples of this is some of our great musicians who have lived to quite old age and still are able to remember and play musical scores with unequalled skill. That's because they trained their memories and continued to work the memory system so it continues to function for them for years.

Basically, the mind is a lot like muscles and it can be trained in almost everyone. Sometimes it's easier to train the mind of some people than it is others, just as it's easier for some people to learn to become a skilled musician than it is for others.

Sometimes a person may have too much to remember. A good example is the busy executive. He usually has a secretary to remember the more routine things for him while he remembers the big things.

Gromyko Backs Stance

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko arrived in New Delhi today to explain the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan to the leaders of India, the Kremlin's biggest Asian ally.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other Indian leaders were expected to urge an early withdrawal of the Soviet troops. But they were expected to do their urging in private.

India was the third foreign country visited by Gromyko in an apparent effort to reduce foreign opposition to the Soviet military action in Central Asia. Previously he visited Syria, where President Hafez Assad backed the Soviet action fully, and Romania, where President Nicolae Ceaucescu didn't.

Gromyko in a statement on his arrival did not mention Afghanistan. But he said India and the Soviet Union "have labored strenuously" to develop their ties, and their relations have "never been guided by momentary considerations or mere emotions."

Indian Foreign Minister P.V. Rao welcomed the visitor as "Comrade Gromyko" and said he shared his optimism about continued good relations between their two countries.

Mrs. Gandhi told U.S. presidential envoy Clark Clifford two weeks ago and other visitors that she would try to influence the Russians to withdraw their troops from Afghanistan, but she said she was not optimistic that her words would have any effect.

She and other Indian leaders take the line that no amount of pressure, such as the U.S. arming of Pakistan or a boycott of the Moscow Olympics, is going to budge the Kremlin's resolve to keep troops in Afghanistan as long as the communist Afghan government is unable to contain the Moslem rebellion against it.

The Indians have argued that it might help for the United States, Pakistan and China to satisfy Moscow's demand for guarantees that they will stop helping the Afghan rebels. But all three governments deny providing any help other than humanitarian economic aid to the hundreds of thousands of Afghans who have fled to Pakistan.

While cautiously calling the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan unjustified, Mrs. Gandhi's government has taken pains to declare publicly that the Soviet government has always been India's friend and arms supplier, including during its wars with China and Pakistan.

Kennedy Gains Momentum

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy say their candidate has new momentum in his presidential campaign although he is a two-time loser to President Carter in caucus contests.

But they also concede Kennedy faces the prospect of yet another defeat when the votes are counted in two weeks in New Hampshire, site of the first state presidential primary.

After taking a day off in Washington, Kennedy arranged to resume campaigning today in his home state of Massachusetts. His schedule the rest of the week was booked solid in New Hampshire.

President Carter, meanwhile, is sticking to his decision not to campaign at least until there is a break in Iran, where some 50 Americans are in their 101st day of confinement at the U.S. Embassy.

"No doubt it's an uphill fight," in New Hampshire, where the primary will be held Feb. 26, one Kennedy aide said Monday. "It's going to be difficult."

Pointing to one public opinion survey that showed Carter a 2-1 leader in the state, the aide said, "I don't know if you can turn that around in 14 days."

But the aide, who asked not to be named, said Kennedy was in a good mood despite his weekend defeat in Maine's caucuses, and added that his prospects in nearby New Hampshire were "much better than before."

Kennedy lost the Iowa caucuses to Carter last month by a margin of 2-1, and the senator's aides said the narrower defeat in Maine amounted to a victory.

"I think this is going to give us some momentum in New Hampshire," said campaign spokeswoman Martha Angle. "We're the underdog there, obviously." Kennedy himself said the Maine results were "good news," even though Carter defeated him 45 percent to 39 percent. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. had 14 percent.

But Carter, echoing Kennedy, also called the Maine results "very good."

Kennedy and his aides said the caucuses showed the voters want Carter to begin campaigning personally.

However, White House press secretary Jody Powell, citing the crises in Iran and Afghanistan, said, "I can't imagine that the president would even consider a recommendation that he change his posture right now" and begin campaigning.

Morris Dees, Kennedy's chief fund-raiser, said the Maine caucuses would make his job easier "because the president got less than half the votes."

However, Powell said the president would have done even better had he campaigned in person. And he said of Kennedy's second-place showing: "It's New England. It's his back yard." He questioned whether Kennedy could win "if he can't win here."

Why Not Draft Us Old Guys?

President Carter may imagine that a registration for military service and subsequent draft would absorb our country's unemployed teen-agers.

On the contrary, some industries are going to be reluctant to hire and train anybody between 18 and 26. Some companies with expensive training programs have already stopped hiring draft-age people.

That is a shame.

Why disrupt those young lives? Why not draft us old guys instead?

Airline pilots are considered competent to fly at 59; how come we bump bomber pilots in their forties?

Recruiting officers tell me they have a very hard time explaining to themselves why thousands of capable, prior-service-men must be turned away.

Industry is making exceptions to long-established retirement critieria, but the military still thinks in terms of boypower.

Generation after generation our most promising young men are sent way to war while the misfits, the hideouts and the incompetents are left behind to prosper and propagate.

If we intend to fight tomorrow's wars with the weapons of the last one, most old guys have had some experience with those.

Our sons are so-much smarter than we will ever be, why deny their opportunity for further growth? Besides, most of us old guys have enjoyed our nation's shining hours. We have grown fat on the bountiful fruits of our beloved Republic; we owe a debt.

Our school-age generation has not yet harvested the first fruits, has not had time to live a life, love a wife, to father children.

Let's give these vigourous young bodies and keen young brains a chance to mature. Perhaps they, wiser than we, may one day lead us out of the jungle.

Most of the dogfaces left from previous wars have reared a family by now. Many of us spent such a little while in such safe rear-echelon jobs that we have yet to wade through mud and blood as your young are being asked to do.

Besides, it's older men who get us into this mess; let the old men get us out. We backed into the fire; it's our rear that ought to get blistered--not our sons.

Also, I have an idea that if the draft should start breathing down the necks of us grownups--if the safe security of voting-age Americans were suddenly in jeopardy--there'd pretty by George quick be some changes made. You'd hear a grass-roots demand that we stop running around the world defending dictatorships in the name of "freedom."

Because I'll tell you something: Many more bloodlettings like Korea and Vietnam and eventually they'll get around to us old guys anyway.

Youth Says Gacy Handcuffed Him

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — John W. Gacy Jr., on trial for murder in the deaths of 33 young men, offered a teen-ager money in exchange for sex and once handcuffed the youth, a Cook County Circuit Court jury was told.

Tony Antonicci, now 20, told jurors Monday that Gacy, a remodeling contractor and then his employer, made advances on two occasions in 1975, when Antonicci was 16.

The first incident occurred June 2, when Gacy and Antonicci went to a Democratic Party headquarters to set up chairs for a meeting, Antonicci testified.

He said both of them had a drink of whiskey and Gacy offered him "between $50 and $100" for oral sex. Antonicci refused, testifying "I thought it was a joke and that Gacy was just trying to test me under pressure."

Later that summer, when Antonicci was at home alone, Gacy stopped by and asked to come in, offering the teen-ager wine and asking if he would like to see some stag movies. Antonicci said he consented and Gacy brought in some film and a projector from his car.

After the movies, Antonicci said, "we talked and then started wrestling around...He put me to the floor and handcuffed both my hands behind me with my face up. He unbuttoned my shirt and pulled my pants down, then he left the room and went to the kitchen.

"I worked my right hand out of the handcuff," Antonicci said. "I stayed there and then when he came near, I grabbed his legs and tackled him down."

Antonicci put the handcuffs on Gacy and made him lie face down.

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm moved by this, but not a lot," John Belushi told an audience at UCLA as he accepted the annual "Jack Benny Award" for excellence in comedy.

"Anyway, I had nothing better to do today," said the former star of "Saturday Night Live" as he accepted the award Monday.

He told the audience he considered the award special because it had been given by students, but received groans when he said he would not return to the NBC television show where he gained fame. "Well, maybe I will return — when hell freezes over," he replied.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Pat Boone, who says he thinks the crisis at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran will end soon, is distributing an orchestrated prayer for the release of the Americans.

Boone says he got the idea for "The Hostage Prayer" after praying at Christmas for the 50 Americans held since Nov. 4 by militants demanding the return of the deposed Shah of Iran.

"A friend and I were talking later and decided radio stations needed some type of song asking God to provide for the hostages' release," he said.

The recording is a recitation of what Boone feels a hostage might be praying: "Lord, bring us home."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Jerry Colonna, whose career was launched after Bob Hope signed him on for his radio show, is "recovering slowly" but is in good condition after a series of heart problems, officials say.

Colonna remained hospitalized Monday at the Motion Picture and Television Country Hospital. The 75-year-old comedian, who suffered a stroke in 1966, has been hospitalized since May 29 at the Woodland Hills facility.

Known best as the comedian with the walrus mustache and popping eyes, Colonna began his show business career as a musician. He joined Hope's radio show after they met in 1938, and starred in dozens of films and television shows through the 1950s and 1960s.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — After a protest by parents who threatened to boycott classes, school officials have reversed a decision not to allow elementary students out of class to attend a college lecture by "Roots" author Alex Haley.

The school board had decided to let some 600 older students go to today's lecture at Southern University because it was geared to a college-level audience and because seating was limited. However, after the protest grew, officials said the university guaranteed seating for 2,000.

Southern University, the nation's largest predominantly black university, had invited all public schoool students to attend the lecture by Haley, whose book traced the ancestry of his family through slavery and back to Africa.

Trustees To Meet Tonight

Administrative contracts will be discussed in closed session. The remainder of the meeting will be open to the public.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As a director of the National Life Stock and Meat Board, I have gained some insight into beef industry needs and problems.

The major need is for money--to finance nutrition research, consumer education and beef promotion--all aimed at overcoming the anti-beef propaganda that is eroding the demand for beef.

The Meat Board now has a budget of $2.4 million for beef programs. That amounts to only about 1 cent per capita to tell the beef story to the 222 million people in the U.S. One cent per capita won't even permit us to send one postcard per year to the consumers we are attempting to influence. A one-page color ad in READERS DIGEST now costs over $80,000; a 60-second commercial on national TV now costs over $40,000.

Authorities tell us that 15 to 20 cents per capita are needed to get the job done. That adds up to $30-40 million a year--exactly what the Beef-erendum is designed to raise.

The Texas Farm Bureau is misleading cattlemen by saying: "There is an alternative. Texas Farm Bureau policy favors a voluntary contribution plan for research and promotion through the National Livestock and Meat Board."

Fact is, this is not a viable alternative. The Meat Board is 57 years old and the TFB did not support the Meat Board financially at all until two years ago--and then only as an excuse to oppose cattlemen working for the Beeferendum. In these two years, the TFB has been able to raise only $26,000 for the Meat Board. Of course, this is appreciated by the Meat Board as is all support, but it isn't going to get the job done.

Cattlemen need a much bigger program--one that permits us to tackle the big problems facing our industry. That's why the Meat Board supports the Beeferendum.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Josserand
333 Centre

Dear Editor:

I want to thank you for and say "Amen to Speedy Nieman's editorial in Sunday's Brand. The sort of thinking expressed in the article is what we need to keep our nation together. Would that more people could think like this.

Blessings on you as you continue to put out a good paper.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Don Davidson
