WRITER PRAISES THE KU KLUX KLAN

We have all read about the Ku Klux Klan; some are for them and some against them, but I'm sure if we all would read and study about the K. K. K. we would more appreciate the good work they are doing.

The Ku Klux Klan originated in Scotland in 1680 and was first organized in America after the Civil War.

This organization was governed by the Grand Wizard, Commander in Chief, who lived at Memphis, Tenn.

The Grand Dragon commanded a State, the Grand Titan a Congressional district, the Grand Giant a county, and the Grand Cyclops a township den.

In the darkest hour of the life of the South, when her wounded people were helpless, amid rags and ashes, under the beak and talon of the Vulture, suddenly from the mists of the mountains appeared a white cloud about the size of a man's hand. It grew until its mantle of mystery on folded the stricken earth and sky.

An "Invisible Empire" had arisen from the field of Death and challenged the visible to mortal combat.

The K. K. K. was organized in those days to protect their homes and people from the negro, and today from the Jews and the Catholics.

Our forefathers fought to make the U. S. a free country and a free democracy. Shall we give up all they have fought for, for foreign rule? Our soldiers fought in the World War to protect their homes and country from Germany.

During Wilson's administration, one-third of the highest of fices were held by Catholics.

If the American people do not wake up to the fact that the Jews and Catholics are getting a hold on their country, and put 100 per cent Americans in our public offices, we will soon be where Italy is today, and have a Pope for a ruler.

The K. K. K. is composed of our best men, 100 per cent Americans. No one of foreign birth can join, even be in favor of the Klan.

The K. K. K. are for America, and America only, and to protect the women and children of our country, to help the poor and the sick.

This is an institution of chivalry, humanity, mercy, patriotism—

To protect the weak, the innocent and the defenseless from the wrongs and the outrages of the lawless and the brutal;

To succor the suffering and unfortunate, and especially the widows and orphans

Did you ever see a K. K. K. parade? When they go marching by, silently, without music of any kind, with Our Country's Flag in the lead and followed by the Red Cross the symbol of the old Scottish klan, don't you feel like shouting:

'Hurrah for the Ku Klux Klan! For they stand for America and for Americans only! And may the good work go on!'

If you wish to know more about the K. K. K., send for Col. Mayfield's Weekly, published at Houston, Texas, and read it.

"An American."

TO THE PEOPLE OF DONLEY COUNTY

I wish to take this means of thanking you individually for your support, good words and friendship shown me in my campaign for Sheriff.

You gave me a nice lead of 258 votes over the second man, Mr. Crane, for which I am very grateful to the people of Donley County. In the 22 years which I have lived in Donley County, I have tried to make the kind of a citizen that you would like to have for your neighbor.

In the run off primary I am going to make a clean race, as I have in the one just past, and further solicit your vote and influence, and if elected promise my very best efforts to make you a good Sheriff.

Again I thank you.

ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR HOUSTON UPTON

As this article is put into type the case of the State of Texas vs Houston Upton, charged with murder, is being tried in the District Court at Clarendon, on a change of venue from Floyd county.

Upton, the 18 year old son of a Floyd county ranchman, is charged with the death of two young girls, Gladys Solomon and Nell Umberson, having climbed through a window and killed them while they were in bed, about 4 o'clock on the morning of Feb 27, 1922, it is alleged. Upton was later found in the schoolhouse with a bullet wound near the heart, and for several weeks it was thought he would die. He is now on trial for the alleged killing of Miss Solomon. The case is attracting much attention. Judge Bishop is presiding, and Attorneys A. J. Fries of Childress, E. A. Simpson and A. T. Cole of Clarendon are assisting District Attorney Lloyd Fletcher in the prosecution. The defense is in the hands of Attorneys A. B. Martin of Plainview, Kenneth Bain of Floydada and W. T. Link of Clarendon.

It is reported the State will ask for the death penalty, and that insanity will be the plea of the defense.

The jury on this case are as follows: O. F. Weaver, J. M. Acord, R. F. Weldman, J. W. Bland, J. C. Estlack, Fred Ballew, J. D. Pope, T. B. Adkins, W. A. Gentry, J. W. Gatewood, W. A. Black and Ben Bentley. All the jurors are farmers except Estlack, a printer, and Ballew, an auto mechanic, and all are married except Weldman.

LARGE POTATOES MAKE BEST CHIP

New Tubers in Spring and Summer Should Not Be Used Before the Skin Sets.

BIG ESSENTIALS FOR SUCCESS

No Apparent Advantage in Salt Water Bath Sometimes Recommended—High-Grade Cottonseed Oil Most Satisfactory.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Any woman can prepare excellent potato chips at home if she will observe a few fundamental rules, says the United States Department of Agriculture. To make a good crisp chip she must first select mature potatoes, high in starch. Large or medium-sized round, smooth potatoes with shallow eyes are least wasteful to prepare and make the best-looking chips. Varieties of the Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain groups, according to locality, have given satisfactory results in respect to the quality and quantity of chips produced.

New potatoes in the spring and summer do not make good chips. They should not be used before the skin sets. Manufacturers who use new potatoes find that they are scorched flavor to food cooked in it. Approximately one-half pound of oil is necessary for each pound of chips produced.

How to Fry Potato Chips.

The best results are obtained when the sliced potato chips are washed in running cold water under a faucet for at least an hour and soaked in cold water several hours longer. The water in the pans should be changed until the last wash water is practically free of starch. The slices need not be dried before immersion, but as much water as possible should be shaken off. When the oil reaches 210 degrees C. (410 degrees F.) a basket of raw sliced potatoes is lowered into the fat, and stirred constantly with a long handled spoon. The object of the hot water bath sometimes recommended is chiefly to coagulate the protein in the potatoes, and this result can be obtained equally well by heating the fat to a point just below smoking before the slices are put in.

When the slices are crisp and brown, in from three to five minutes, the frying basket is raised and drained, and the chips spread on brown paper to dry. While still warm they should be sprinkled lightly with salt. Chips prepared in this way should keep sweet for weeks in moderate temperatures.

The oil should be reheated to 410 degrees F. after each batch of chips is removed. The best way to determine the temperature is by means of a thermometer. If chips are made frequently the oil should be renewed from time to time. The frying pan and basket should be deep rather than wide and made of iron or steel which is not affected by high cooking temperatures. Tin or enamel-ware pans are not safe to use.

BISCUIT DOUGH USED IN VARIETY OF WAYS

Can Be Modified in Baking Cookies or Tea-Cakes.

Three Good Variations of Recipe as Recommended by the Department of Agriculture—Many Fruits Are Useful.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The ingenious housekeeper will find that plain biscuit dough, which is cheap and filling, can be modified in a variety of appetizing ways for use like cookies or tea-cakes. The standard recipe for biscuits calls for the following ingredients:

2 cups sifted flour, 2 tablespoonfuls salt, 1/2 teaspoonful shortening, 1/2 to 1 cup liquid (milk, water, or equal parts of each).

Here are three good variations of this recipe, recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture:

Pin Wheels.

Add 2 tablespoonfuls sugar to plain biscuit dough and an extra tablespoonful of flour if needed. Roll to 1/4-inch thickness. Brush over with melted butter and sprinkle with fruit (currants, raisins, dates, or citron), or with cinnamon and sugar alone. Roll like a jelly roll and cut off pieces 1/2 inch in thickness. Bake same as biscuits.

Coffee Cake.

In the recipe for plain biscuits add 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar to the dry ingredients and one egg, well-beaten, to the liquid and mix as usual. Roll or pat into a sheet 1/2 inch thick and place in greased pan. Dot top with bits of butter and strew with sugar and a little cinnamon. Bake in rather hot oven. This dough may be baked in two sheets and used for shortcake.

Dutch Apple Cake.

Prepare dough same as for coffee cake. After placing in pan, cover top with tart apples sliced 1/4 inch thick, set close together and slightly overlapping. Strew generously with sugar, dust with cinnamon and dot with bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven until apples are very tender.

Other fruits, such as sliced peaches, plums, raspberries, cherries, and stewed dried fruits may be used in place of the apples in this recipe.

A little lemon improves pineapple preserve.

After-dinner coffee should be made double strength.

A teaspoonful of baking powder will make fudge more creamy.

A cabbage leaf is an excellent medium for cleaning greasy tinware.

Grease spots on wallpaper should be rubbed with camphorated chalk.

Never cook stews too fast or the meat will become hard and tough.

Boil a new clothesline. This will prevent it from stretching and make it last longer.

Let potatoes lie in cold water for a while before paring them if you wish them to be white.

A good remedy for a cut is raw starch. It should be wetted and applied thickly as soon as possible.

Add vinegar to the water in which table glasses are rinsed; it will give an extra brilliancy to the polish.

Morning After the Dance

By LAURA MONTGOMERY

© 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Minnie's round face wore an expression of vast disappointment as she dressed the morning after the dance at Rosalie Hall. She had been going with Tom Miller for three years and the girls were beginning to ask her when she was going to wear an engagement ring.

"It seems queer," she mused as she eyed distastefully the wornout gray gingham house apron, "that he doesn't propose. He never goes with any other girl, that is, steady, but he never speaks of settling down any more and all the cottages in Acacia row are going so fast. I thought once, here the soft, red mouth dropped until the happy curves were almost gone, 'that I would have one of those dear little houses with the sunshiny south kitchens and—'"

"Harry, Minnie, there is an east wind and grandma feels badly and—"

The rest of the speech was lost as an outside door slammed noisily shut.

Minnie hurriedly buttoned the ugly gray garment about her and ran down stairs. Grandma was apt to be difficult when an east wind blew and her brother Sam was home with a bad cold.

"Say," greeted Sam crossly, "you take your ease letting me get up and get breakfast. Where did you dig up that dress?"

"Minnie went to the dance last night," excused Mrs. Friedly placidly. "She got up the minute I called her. If all my children were as helpful as Minnie I'd have no cause for complaint."

Sam flushed and drifted out to the woodshed to return presently with an armful of short kindling cut the way his mother preferred. "Guess the east wind bothered me, too," he grinned, and sat down to the fluffy griddle cakes that Mrs. Friedly had just baked.

Minnie ate her breakfast thoughtfully. Sam's criticism of her frock had put into words what she had been thinking about. For two years past she had stinted on everyday clothes so that she would be able to afford elaborate party gowns. She worked afternoons in the dry goods store and bought all her own clothing. She could have had all-day work, but she was needed to help at home.

After the children had been sent to school and grandma, now somewhat appeased by a good breakfast, had settled down in the south bay window, where she had a good view of the street, Minnie began the baking, no small task for such a large family. "Mother," said the girl as her mother sat down to the sewing machine, "I am going to get some everyday clothes. Sam was right; I've been going around in horrid things."

The whirr of the machine paused for a moment. "Yes," said the other, "you have. I felt sorry when Tom caught you the other morning in that ragged apron. Your slippers are torn and you look really shiftless."

"Oh," Minnie's cheeks grew pink. "I've been spending too much on party frocks and satin slippers, and I'm going to stop it. Money is too hard to earn to foot away on such things. Even buying materials at wholesale at the store counts up too much. I'm going to buy some pretty dainties and cretonnes this afternoon and some patterns, and we are going to have some dainty house dresses. The dances will have to go for a time. I—" she paused suddenly and the older woman, looking at the brilliant cheeks and wet eyes, made no comment. She guessed that her girl had had a disappointment at the party and she thought it wiser to let it blow over without her interference unless Minnie asked definitely for advice.

"Don't you think it is better to look fairly nice right along than to save everything for a grand display for an evening?" asked Minnie as she cut out cookies.

"Decidedly," her mother's gray head nodded decisively. "to my mind it lessens one's self-respect to go about in ragged aprons even if no one else sees them. But I don't want you to get anything for me because my house dresses are all whole and—"

"Faded and of ugly gray colors," cut in Minnie, wondering why she had not thought of all these things sooner. Now that she really surveyed her parent she saw how patched and faded was her neat frock.

Tom did not call up after the dance as he sometimes did. It was the following Saturday morning that he stopped on his way to work at the Friedly home and asked for Sam.

"Sam has gone," said Rita, "but Minnie is in the kitchen."

"Never mind," began Tom, as the seven-year-old girl hung open the kitchen door. He had a lively remembrance of Minnie's untidy appearance on the last occasion when he had surprised her so early in the day and he did not desire to catch her again.

The morning sun flooded the big kitchen and the whirr of the sewing machine made a pleasant, homely sound. The cat on the braided mat glanced up sleepily at the tall young man hesitated on the threshold: "I beg your pardon," he began as the girl in the pink-trimmed frock half turned. "I thought Minnie was here."

Minnie rose, eyeing him in perplexity: "What's the matter, Tom?" she demanded.

"Why, you look so pretty," he stammered, keen eyes surveying the trim little slippers, the dainty gown and the shining brown hair of his sweetheart. "I thought you didn't dress up much unless you were going somewhere, and I fancied you had a guest here. Minnie," his gaze rested on the heap of lavender dainties with tiny purple sprigs, "is that a party dress you are sewing on?"

"That's just a little house dress I'm running up for mother; she loves lavender," said Minnie slowly. "I'm glad you stopped in, Tom, because I want to tell you that I'm going to cut out dances for a bit. I—that is—I'm going to be busy."

The young man's face grew radiant. With a long stride he reached her side and picked up the little be-shamed figure. "I like your plan," he said, turning up her flushed face until the soft red lips were very close. "I wanted to let you get your fill of dances, but I began to think you would never be ready to settle down and be just a poor man's wife. Your dresses of silk and satin scared me. A man needs a girl who will make a home, not one who thinks of nothing but gadding. You look sweeter in that thing you are wearing now to work than you ever did when tricked out for a party. Suppose we go to Acacia Row tonight and speak for one of those cottages? Want to?"

"Yes," agreed Minnie shyly, and her mother, passing the open door, took off her glasses and wiped them as she saw Minnie's brown head against Tom's blue overalls.

PAID TRIBUTE TO CAVE MAN

William James, in Eloquent Passage, Acknowledged Mankind's Debt to Early Human Beings.

One of the most eloquent passages in American literature is William James' tribute to the cave man. He wrote: "Bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, are these half-brutish prehistoric brothers. Girdled about with the immense darkness of this mysterious universe even as we are, they were born, and died, suffered and struggled. Given over to fearful crime and passion, plunged in the blackest ignorance, preyed upon by hideous and grotesque delusions, yet steadfastly serving the profoundest of ideals in their fixed faith that existence in any form is better than non-existence, they ever rescued triumphantly from the jaws of ever-imminent destruction the torch of life which thanks to them, now lights the world for us."

"How small indeed seem individual distinctions when we look back on these overwhelming numbers of human beings panting and straining under the pressure of that vital want. And how inessential in the eyes of God must be the small surplus of the individual's merit, swamped as it is in the vast ocean of the common merit of mankind, dumbly and undauntingly doing the fundamental duty and living the heroic life. We grow humble and reverent as we contemplate the prodigious spectacle."

Cane Birches of Chocorua.

On a southerly slope of Chocorua is a massed regiment of white cane birches that seem veritably to charge the base of the pinnacle cone. They stand, of course, yet to the eye they seem to be swarming up the slope like a regiment in charge, leaning forward, grasping eagerly, swaying and pressing onward with the enthusiasm of a mighty purpose, a grand rush onward toward the bristling, defiant height. There are places on Washington where the white birches charge upward in the same way. At greater heights they decrease in numbers and size yet go on, finally creeping almost vinelike in the tundra moss near the summit.—Christian Science Monitor.

Hopeless.

First Woman—How do you like our new neighbor?

Second ditto—I never saw such an ignorant person as she is. She can't talk about anything but painting, books and music. She doesn't know a word of gossip about anybody.—Boston Transcript.

An Expensive Thing.

BEST lunch is two packages of Little Sun-Maid Raisins and a glass of milk.

Tastes good when you're hungry. Nourishes yet keeps you cool.

Raisin's 75 per cent fruit sugar is in practically predigested form, furnishing 1560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound.

Doesn't tax digestion so doesn't heat the blood, yet energizes almost immediately.

Big men eat little lunches to conserve their thinking power. Don't overeat and lag behind the leaders. Get two packages of Little Sun-Maids now.

'Tis better to be brief than tedious.

What Is Worth Changing a Tire?

On the road changing a tire is not an especially pleasant task.

The dust or mud, the grease and grime, the tedious delay—all are things we like to avoid.

But the time to think about these things is when you buy the tire—not after the blow-out occurs.

For some tires blow out much more easily than others. Outward appearance counts for little.

It is the material in the tire and the construction of it that determines its strength.

Goodyear recognizes these facts and all Goodyear Tires are made of long staple cotton.

Take the 30 x 3 1/2 Cross Rib Clincher Tire here illustrated, for example.

It is made of Arizona cotton, the fibres of which average 1 1/2 inches long.

Many 30 x 3 1/2 clincher tires are made of short staple cotton from 1/2 inch to 1 1/4 inches long.

This means less strength and greater danger of blow-outs—more tire troubles.

Yet this high grade guaranteed Goodyear Tire costs only $10.95.

You can buy some tires for even less than this but none with the fine materials and construction of this one.

Can you afford to take a chance on more frequent tire troubles for the sake of the slightly lower price of cheaper tires?

Goodrich

announces new tire prices

—lowest cost mileage ever known

Effective July 20th, Goodrich establishes a revised price list that is a base line of tire value. It gives the motorist the buying advantage of knowing that whatever size tire he selects is of the same quality—the Goodrich one-quality standard. It gives him the longest mileage, the most satisfactory service and the highest quality his money can buy. Results will prove that it is impossible to buy tire mileage at lower cost.

Think of being able to buy

THE BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT

Rev. Y. P. Walker, Raymond Luttrell, Syphel Cook, Jack Findley and Y. P. Walker Jr. went to the Panhandle Baptist Assembly in Ceta Canyon last Wednesday for two days.

They report a great meeting.

The Canyon is unsurpassed in beauty, an abundance of fine springs, shade trees and great natural scenery, which, together with a host of happy congenial people, made the occasion one to be long remembered.

There were 800 people on the grounds the first three days, and this number was expected to be doubled before the session closes.

This was the first session of the Assembly to be held on its own grounds, but much time and money had been spent to make ready for the people. This will in the near future be one of the best assembly grounds in the South, and hundreds of people will go each year for rest and study.

Perhaps the finest bathing pool in the West is on these grounds, and another will be added next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griggs and children, from Howe, Texas, are visiting at the home of their relatives, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Coffey.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to take this means of thanking the friends who gave me their support in my race for Public Weigher in the July primary.

Although defeated, I appreciate you just the same, and have no hard feeling for anybody.

Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can't salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug; besides, it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tonic acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.—Advertisement.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

ROSES OR THISTLES?

DO YOU pause sometimes while journeying through the fields and along the byways of life, to consider whether you are gathering roses or thistles? The basket which you are unconsciously carrying is being filled with one or the other, which you will find when you arrive in the gloom of the gathering night and realize that your wanderings are done.

If when you stop to rest you have veiled roses to look upon you will in your delight quite forget the purpling sky and all that it foretells.

You will be happy in the thought that you have not missed your day; glad that you chose the beautiful instead of the repulsive; grateful that you did not misdirect your energies.

There is probably scant attention bestowed by you and me to the basket upon our arm into which we are placing every hour of life something which will rise up to praise or condemn us. Our heads are silvered and our feet are tired and unsteady.

But on this occasion we cannot retrace our steps.

Shadows are all about us and the half-hidden paths we once knew so well, are unfamiliar.

We are alone with the things we have garnered.

We would like to recall sharp words, scowls and frowns we have hurled at our friends, our patient fathers and mothers—and sadly recall hot tempers and terrible tongues.

As the scales fall from our eyes, there is something of the nature of dismay that takes hold of us and fills our soul with tears.

Oh, that we might be permitted to live over again those wild, impetuous days of youth!

We would curb our spirit, hide our dislikes and give instead of pain, heaping measures of pleasure.

We would make sure that we would gather nothing but roses—nothing but the sweet, the fine and the lovely.

From those who have gone before, it is for the inexperienced starting afresh, to learn wisdom, to pick the choicest flowers, and to leave the thorn, the briar and the deadly nightshade untouched.

SCHOOL DAYS

The Friendly Path

By WALTER L. ROBINSON

MUST BE A MAN

IF A MAN would be happy he must be a Man.

Try as one may, real enjoyment cannot be gotten out of life if one follows a wrong pathway.

If a man would be satisfied with himself, he must have the proper viewpoint of what he should be. Admitting this, let us consider the opinion of D. J. Burrell as to what makes a man a Man.

"Not what a man has or what happens to him; not wealth, nor noble blood, nor crowns," says Burrell, "but the things that are in him and shining through him—his thoughts, motives, spring, of action; those constitute the man."

Too few have this honest estimate in mind when they measure their own right to a place under the sun and their own right to comfort and happiness. Unfortunately humans are inclined to spend much more time thinking of what they would like to have, than in thinking what they are or what they would like to be.

"Self-preservation is the first law of Nature." It is true. But too often we find evidence that men and women place selfishness ahead of everything else. They do not understand that there is a wide difference between self-preservation and selfishness. If they do understand, they ignore the fact, for constantly, though earnestly seeking happy lives, we find them seeking worldly possessions, worldly pleasures—most of which are of the shallowest sort.

When one faces a hard-boiled burglar in the darkness of the night, he rightly protects himself by whatever means he finds at his disposal. That's a case of self-preservation, for the second-story men are usually ready to kill rather than be caught. But in the regular pathways of life no one can justify any action which is unfair to his fellowmen in order to gain something for himself. When a man stoops to underhand, dishonest methods, whether they be in buying or selling, either labor or goods, he is certain sooner or later to lose respect for himself.

No man can be happy in his own position, however exalted, if he knows that his thoughts, his actions and his heart are centered on what he hopes to get, rather than on what he hopes to do.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

THE BAD START

THE average man is so constituted that a certain amount of discouragement is necessary to progress.

That is why nobody should worry about a bad start.

Get a good one if you can, of course. It will help. But remember if your start was bad, that so was the start of almost every other man who ever attained a place of any importance in the world.

General Grant got a bad start in his studies at West Point, and did so poorly in the army that he resigned.

At the outbreak of the war between the states in America, he had settled down to the business of running a yard and tannery in an obscure Illinois town.

His biographer says that he was utterly discouraged. But he wasn't. He knew that somewhere in him was a very great ability. And when he got into the war, as all young Americans on both sides did, ambition awoke in him.

Everybody knows the rest of the story.

Lloyd George is one of the few conspicuous figures in the world today who proceeded from success to success after he once got his start.

The start itself was extremely bad. It would have discouraged most men. However, determination triumphed over poverty and lack of opportunity. The world knows the rest of that story, too.

It stands to reason that if you never have to use your muscles you will always be a weakling. And you can only use your muscles in overcoming something, whether it is a job, or your own natural inertia.

Neither can you develop your men-

"Things are seldom what they seem, Skim milk masquerades as cream."

WHAT TO EAT

TO PREPARE Danish beefsteak take one pound of round steak chopped, one teaspoonful of salt, one fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper, one fourth of a cupful of minced onion, one and one-half cupfuls of celery, three tablespoonfuls of fat and the same of flour, two cupfuls of cooked macaroni. Add salt, pepper, onions and meat, shape into small balls, fry in hot frying pan until well done. Cut celery into inch pieces, cook in salted water until tender, reserving the water for the sauce. Melt the fat, add flour and celery, water and meat balls, simmer ten minutes, add macaroni and serve hot.

Summer Curry.

Take two cupfuls of diced potato, three cupfuls of diced carrot, two cupfuls of diced turnip, two cupful of cooked peas, three cupfuls of milk, one tablespoonful of parsley, six tablespoonfuls each of flour and fat, one half cupful of chopped onion, one teaspoonful of curry, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper and one teaspoonful of salt. Leftover vegetables may be used. Cook the onion slowly in the fat until soft, add flour and seasonings, mix well, add the hot milk, stir and cook until smooth, then add the vegetables; heat well, turn into the serving dish, sprinkle with parsley and serve. Serve with meat.

Come-Agains.

Sift two cupfuls of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add one cupful of chopped raisins and pecans mixed in equal parts and one cupful of brown sugar. Beat one egg very light, add one-half cupful of milk and stir this into the dry ingredients. Lastly stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet, sift over them a mixture of sugar and cinnamon and bake in a quick oven.

Here is a new closed car built especially for utility purposes in city or country driving.

Farmers and ranchers have long wanted a low-priced, economical, closed car of better quality and great durability—completely equipped with all the essentials of modern motoring.

Chevrolet Utility Coupé satisfies this need in every particular.

It also possesses distinct advantages for salesmen, business men, suburban residents and those who need a car for every day use providing protection against all kinds of weather.

The Chevrolet Utility Coupé has a high-grade, Fisher body with black finish; gray whipcord upholstery; plate glass windows; double ventilating windshield, sun visor and extra wide doors.

Under the rear deck is a compartment approximately twice as large as those usually found on coupés.

But he didn't step one side. He asked more questions, one right after another.

"Are you sick, Mary?"

"I shook my head."

"Did you hurt yourself?"

"I shook my head again."

"It isn't your mother—you haven't had bad news from her?"

And then I blurted it out without thinking—without thinking at all what I was saying: "No, no—but I wish I had, I wish I had; 'cause then I could go to her, and go away from here!" The minute I'd said it I knew what I'd said, and how awful it sounded; and I clapped my fingers to my lips. But it was too late. It's always too late, when you've once said it. So I just waited for him to thunder out his anger; for, of course, I thought he would thunder in rage and righteous indignation.

But he didn't. Instead, very quietly and gently he said:

"Are you so unhappy, then, Mary—here?"

And I looked at him, and his eyes and his mouth and his whole face weren't angry at all. They were just sorry, actually sorry. And somehow, before I knew it, I was crying again, and Father, with his arm around me—with his arm around me! think of that!—was leading me to the sofa.

And I cried and cried there, with my head on the arm of the sofa, till I'd made a big tear spot on the linen cover; and I wondered if it would dry up before Aunt Jane saw it, or if it would change color or leak through to the red plush underneath, or some other dreadful thing. And then, some way, I found myself telling it all over to Father—about Mary and Marie, I mean, just as if he was Mother, or some one I loved—I mean, some one I loved and wasn't afraid of; for of course I love Father. Of course I do!

Well, I told him everything (when I got started there was no stopping)—all about how hard it was to be Mary, and how today I had tried to be Marie for just a little while, to rest me. He interrupted here, and wanted to know if that was why I looked so different today—more as I had when I first came; and I said yes, that these were Marie things that Mary couldn't wear. And when he asked, "Why, pray?" in a voice almost cross, I told him, of course, that Aunt Jane wouldn't let me; that Mary had to wear brown serge and calfskin boots that were durable, and that would wear well.

And when I told him how sorry I was about the music and such a noise as I'd been making, he asked if that was Marie's fault, too; and I said yes, of course—that Aunt Jane didn't like to have Mary play at all, except hymns and funeral marches, and Mary didn't know any. And he grunted a queer little grunt, and said, "Well, well, upon my soul, upon my soul!" Then he said, "Go on." And I did go on.

I told him how I was afraid it was going to be just like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. (I forgot to say I've read it now. I found it in Father's library.) Of course not just like it, only one of me was going to be bad, and one good. I was afraid, if I didn't look out, I told him how Marie always wanted to kick up rugs, and move the chairs out of their sockets in the carpet, and leave books around handy, and such things. And so today it seemed as if I'd just got to have a vacation from Mary's hot gingham dresses and clumsy shoes. And I told him how lonesome I was without anybody, not anybody; and I told about Charlie Smith and Paul Maybaw and Mr. Claude Livingstone, and how Aunt Jane wouldn't let me have them, either, even if I was standing where the brook and river meet.

Father gave another funny little grunt here, and got up suddenly and walked over to the window. I thought at first he was angry; but he wasn't. He was even more gentle when he came back and sat down again, and he seemed interested, very much interested in everything I told him. But I stopped just in time from saying again how I wished I could go back to Boston; but I'm not sure but he knew I was going to say it.

But he was very nice and kind and told me not to worry about the music—that he didn't mind it at all. He'd been in several times and heard it. And I thought almost, by the way he spoke, that he'd come in on purpose to hear it; but I guess that was a mistake. He just put it that way so I wouldn't worry over it—about its bothering him, I mean.

He was going to say more, maybe; but I don't know. I had to run. I heard Aunt Jane's voice on the piazza saying good-by to the lady that had brought her home; so, of course, I had to run and hang Marie in the closet and get out Mary from the corner before she saw me. And I did.

By dinner-time I had on the gingham dress and the hot clumsy shoes again; and I had washed my face in cold water so I had got most of the tear spots off. I didn't want Aunt Jane to see them and ask questions, of course. And I guess she didn't. Anyway, she didn't say anything.

Father didn't say anything, either, but he acted queer. Aunt Jane tried to tell him something about the missionary meeting and the heathen, and a great famine that was raging. At first he didn't say anything; then he said, oh, yes, to be sure, how very interesting, and he was glad, very glad. And Aunt Jane was so disgusted, and accused him of being even more abnormally-minded than usual, which was entirely unnecessary, she said.

But even that didn't move Father a mite. He just said, yes, yes, very likely; and went on scowling to himself and stirring his coffee after he'd drank it all up—I mean, stirring where it had been in the cup.

I didn't know but after supper he'd speak to me and ask me to come to the library. I hoped he would. There were lots more things I'd like to have said to him. But he didn't. He never said a word. He just kept scowling, and got up from the table and went off by himself. But he didn't go out to the observatory, as he most generally does. He went into the library and shut the door.

He was there when the telephone message came at eight o'clock. And what do you think? He'd forgotten he was going to speak before the College Astronomy club that evening!

He Didn't Say Much at First.

Forgotten his old stars for once. I don't know why. I did think, for a minute, 'twas 'cause of me—what I'd told him. But I knew, of course, right away that it couldn't be that. He'd never forgot his stars for me! Probably he was just reading up about some other stars, or had forgotten how late it was, or something. (Father's always forgetting things.) But, anyway, when Aunt Jane called him he got his hat and hurried off without so much as one word to me, who was standing near, or to Aunt Jane, who was following him all through the hall, and telling him in her most I'm-amazed-at-you voice how shockingly absent-minded he was getting to be.

ONE WEEK LATER.

Father's been awfully queer this whole week through. I can't make him out at all. Sometimes I think he's glad I told him all those things in the parlor that day I dressed up in Marie's things, and sometimes I think he's sorry and wished I hadn't.

The very next morning he came down to breakfast with such a funny look on his face. He said good-morning to me three times, and all through breakfast he kept looking over at me with a kind of scowl that was not cross at all—just puzzled.

After breakfast he didn't go out to the observatory, not even into the library. He fidgeted around the dining room till Aunt Jane went out into the kitchen to give her orders to Susie; then he burst out, all of a sudden:

"Well, Mary, what shall we do to-day?" Just like that he said it, as if we'd been doing things together every day of our lives.

"D-do!" I asked; and I know I showed how surprised I was by the way I stammered and flushed up.

"Certainly, do," he answered, impatient and scowling. "What shall we do?"

"Why, Father, I—don't know," I stammered again.

"Come, come, of course you know!" he cried. "You know what you want to do, don't you?"

I shook my head. I was so astonished I couldn't even think. And when you can't think you certainly can't talk.

"Nonsense, Mary," scowled Father. "Of course you know what you want to do! What are you in the habit of doing with your young friends—your Carries and Charlies, and all the rest?"

I guess I just stood and stared and didn't say anything; for after a minute he cried: "Well—well—well! I'm waiting."

"Why, we—we walk—and talk—and play games," I began; but right away he interrupted.

"Good! Very well, then, we'll walk. I'm not Carrie or Charlie, but I believe I can walk and talk—perhaps even play games. Who knows? Come, get your hat."

And I got my hat, and we went.

But what a funny, funny walk that was! He meant to make it a good one, I know he did. And he tried. He tried real hard. But he walked so fast I couldn't half keep up with him; then, when he saw how I was hurrying, he'd slow down, 'way down, and look so worried—till he'd forget and go striding off again, 'way ahead of me.

We went up on the hill through the Benton woods, and it was perfectly lovely up there. He didn't say much at first. Then, all of a sudden, he began to talk, about anything and everything. And I knew, by the way he did it, that he'd just happened to think he'd got to talk.

And how he talked! He asked me a I warmly clad (and here it is August!), and did I have a good breakfast, and how old was I, and did I enjoy my studies—which shows how little he was really thinking what he was saying. He knows school closed ages ago. Wasn't he teaching me himself the last of it, too? All around us were flowers and birds, and oh, so many, many lovely things. But he never said a word about them. He just talked—because he'd got to talk. I knew it, and it made me laugh inside, though all the while it made me sort of want to cry, too. Funny, wasn't it?

After a time he didn't talk any more, but just walked on and on; and by and by we came home.

Of course, it wasn't awfully jolly—that walk wasn't; and I guess Father didn't think it was either. Anyhow, he hasn't asked me to go again this week, and he looked tired and worried and sort of discouraged when he got back from that one.

The next evening he took me out to the observatory to see the stars. That was lovely. Honestly I had a perfectly beautiful time, and I think Father did, too. He wasn't stiff and polite one bit. Oh, I don't mean that he was impolite or rude. It's just that he wasn't stiff as if I was company. And he was so happy with his stars and his telescope, and so glad to show them to me—oh, I had a beautiful time, and I told him so; and he looked real pleased. But Aunt Jane came for me before I'd had half enough, and I had to go to bed.

The next morning I thought he'd be different, somehow, because we'd had such a lovely time together the night before. But he wasn't. He just said, "Good morning, Mary," and began to read his paper. And he read his paper all through breakfast without saying another word to me. Then he got up and went into the library, and I never saw him again all day except at dinner-time and supper-time, and then he didn't talk to me.

But after supper he took me out again to see the stars, and he was just as nice and friendly as could be. Not a bit like a man that's only a father by order of the court. But the next day—

"Well—and that's the way it's been all the week. And that's why I say he's been so queer. One minute he'll be just as nice and folksy as the very next he's looking right through you as if he didn't see you at all, and you wonder and wonder what the matter, and if you've done anything to displease him.

Sometimes he seems almost glad and happy, and then he'll look so sorry and sad!

I just can't understand my father at all.

ANOTHER WEEK LATER.

I'm so excited I don't know what to do. The most wonderful thing has happened. I can't hardly believe it yet myself. Yet it's so. My trunk is all packed, and I'm to go home tomorrow. Tomorrow!

This is the way it happened: Mother wrote Aunt Jane and asked if I might not be allowed to come home for the opening of school in September. She said she understood quite well that she had no right to ask this, and, of course, if they saw fit, they were entirely within their rights to refuse to allow me to go until the allotted time. But that she could not help asking it for my sake, on account of the benefit to be derived from being there at the opening of the school year.

Well, when the letter came I took it to Aunt Jane myself; and I was crazy to know what was in it, for I recognized the writing, of course. But Aunt Jane didn't tell me. She opened it, read it, kind of flushed up, and said, "Humph! The idea!" under her breath, and put the letter in her pocket.

DAIRY POINTS

BEST SITE FOR MILK HOUSE

Not Good Plan to Get Them Too Near Cow Barn—Must Be Clean, Airy and Dust-Proof.

Milk houses must be clean, airy dust-proof places, free from all insects and bad odors. They should not open directly into the barn, but it is equally injudicious to build them a very great distance away from the barn. Prompt removal and quick cooling are the main points to observe in handling milk. Put the milk house on a well-drained spot and away from rubbish heaps, manure piles and fly-breeding places. The outer walls, if of concrete, should be from 6 to 8 inches thick; if of brick,

Milk House Suitable for a Ten to Twenty-Cow Dairy.

9 inches; if of tile, 8 inches; if of stone, 14 to 18 inches; and if of wood frame, 6 inches.

Authorities say that particular care should be exercised in constructing milk house floors. Concrete is by far the best material for this purpose, as it resists moisture, decay and wear. Concrete floors should be built of a base made up of one part cement, three parts sharp, clean sand and five parts stone. This base should be about five inches thick and should be covered with a top coat one inch thick made by mixing one part cement and two parts sand. The top coat should be troweled hard and smooth.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY

Form of Ordinance Drawn to Guide Communities in Framing Practicable Law.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In properly safeguarding the milk supply of a community, the enactment of a suitable and enforceable law is usually the first step, according to a reprint of department bulletin 585, "A Guide for Formulating a Milk Ordinance," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk, in its composition and natural qualities, is a most useful and acceptable food, but may acquire one form or another of insanitary taint on its way from the cow to the consumer; and it is not always possible to require either producers or distributors to observe all the precautions which science has shown to be necessary, unless there is a law to back them up.

The public and officials of a city realizing this need may sometimes, in their zeal to make the new regulations strict enough, go too far and insert provisions that cannot readily be enforced or administered. Even health department officials may not be familiar with all phases of this subject, unless they have already been engaged in the enforcement of milk regulations; and in any case, whether the city is just starting milk regulation or is revising its ordinances to bring them up to date, it is desirable to take advantage of the experience of other communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has drawn up a form of ordinance to guide communities in framing a finished and practicable law. Copies of the bulletin may be had free upon application to the department at Washington, D. C.

IRREGULAR MILKING IS BAD

Not Only Lessens Output, but Tends to Disturb Functional Activity of Animal.

Early milking morning or evening one day and later milking morning or evening another day not only lessens the output of milk, but tends to disturb functional activity and prevents a maximum yield for the lactation period.

MIXTURE FOR YOUNG CALVES

Ground Corn, Oats, Bran and Oilmeal Is Recommended for Those Under Six Months.

For calves under six months old in good condition and having a soft, mellow hide, a mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground oats, 30 pounds bran and 10 pounds oilmeal, fed three to five pounds daily, is recommended.

Hard to Get Flow Back.

If a cow's milk flow is allowed to go down through neglect, poor feed or any other cause, it is almost impossible to get the flow back up to the first mark.

Milk Only Good Cows.

Milk more cows—but by all that's feasible, milk only good cows.

Cause of Stringy Milk.

Stringy milk does not occur frequently unless the cows drink water from stagnant pools, etc.

DECLINE IN HORSE RAISING

Decrease Since 1915 of About 60 Per Cent in Number of Stallions in Service.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If comparative figures from 14 of the leading horse-producing states can be taken as showing the tendency in all parts of the country, there has been a decrease since 1915 of about 60 per cent in the number of stallions in service in the United States. Grades, cross-breeds and scrubs have been falling behind at a greater rate than the purebreds, the latter decreasing a little less than 50 per cent. These statements are based upon a report, "Stallion Enrollment as Related to the Horse-Breeding Situation," just compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture from reports from 18 to 24 states having stallion-enrollment laws.

There has been a decrease in the total number of stallions and jacks every year since 1915, but the date of decline slackened somewhat in 1921. Fourteen states having an enrollment of 46,121 stallions in 1915, had only 18,092 in 1921, a decrease of 60.8 per cent. Of the stallions in 18 states in 1921, 74.2 per cent were purebred. In 1915, only 60 per cent were registered sires. As the numbers decrease the quality improves. Farmers are finding that it pays to raise only good horses and mules.

The number of stallions of the light breeds has been decreasing more rapidly than the number of draft stallions. The total of jacks has been increasing gradually until the last year, when there was a slight decrease. There has been a striking increase in the actual number of purebreds. The change in the ratio of jacks to stallions is a fairly accurate measure of the popularity of the mule. Twenty-nine per cent of the total number of stallions and jacks enrolled for public service in 15 states in 1921 were jacks, while in 10 states in 1915 only 23 per cent were jacks.

Several states have recently enacted enrollment legislation that should lead to further improvement of breeding stock and the general run of work stock. Pennsylvania and Indiana now permit the use of only purebred stallions and jacks for public service. They also disqualify stallions and jacks that are unsound or of such inferior type or conformation that they may prove a detriment to the horse-breeding interests of these states. Michigan, also, has passed a similar law that will become operative January 1, 1923.

A copy of the complete report on stallion enrollment may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BALANCED FEEDS MAKE MEAT

With Suitable Rations and Careful Supervision Farmer Should Make Hogs Pay.

There is no place on the farm where it will pay the farmer for keeping his weather-eye peeled, and his tank-tank active, as when he is feeding his domestic animals. Balanced rations will help to turn coarse feeds into high-priced meat products, but along with balanced rations must go balanced personal supervision. With both, the farmer who can't make money raising hogs in these days has something to learn.

GIVE PIGS PLENTY EXERCISE

Animals Given Pasture Range and Plenty of Exercise Will Be Sturdy and Healthy.

Pigs that are shut in small, dry pens do not do as well as those that have pasture range. A pig that has plenty of exercise may not be quite as fat as his shut-in relative but he will invariably be much sturdier and healthier.

Lack of Protein

The lack of protein causes animals to shed their hair late in the spring, and causes them to fatten slowly during the early pasture season. The feeding of straw likewise causes this condition.

Good Mixture for Lambs.

Lambs should begin to nibble at grain when about two weeks of age. A good mixture is ground corn two parts, crushed oats two parts, linseed meal one part, wheat bran one part.

JAMES P. HUMPHREYS, well-known automobile man of Hebron, Md., who declares he believes Tanlac is the best thing to overcome stomach trouble and run-down condition. States it completely restored his health.

"I believe in giving everything its due and I want to say right now I just can't praise Tanlac too highly for what it has done in my case," declared James P. Humphreys, proprietor of the Hebron Motor Co., Hebron, Md.

"For three years or more I suffered from indigestion. After eating I would bloat terribly with gas and my heart would palpitate until it interfered with my breathing. I was habitually constipated and my nerves were all upset. My sleep was unsound, I got up mornings all tired out, and I was only a shadow of my former self."

"Well, Tanlac has given me a keen appetite, stomach trouble has disappeared, my nerves have steadied down, and I have gained several pounds. Tanlac, to my mind, is the best thing ever sold for stomach trouble and run-down condition."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

One who can see nothing but his own interest, misses it.

Have You a Bad Back?

Are you lame every morning? Do you drag through the day with a steady nagging backache—evening find you "all played out"? Probably your kidneys are to blame. Hurry, worry, lack of rest and a heavy diet, all tend to weaken the kidneys. Your back gives out; you feel depressed and suffer headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities. Don't go from bad to worse. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

A Texas Case

James Vowel, 201 N. Main St., Ft. Worth, Tex., says: "I suffered with a heavy, dull ache through my kidneys. My back became sore, lame and painful. My kidneys were disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills and they did just as they are advertised to do. My kidneys became regular in action and the trouble in my back left immediately."

WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicines

Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between, was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. You may print my testimonial, as it is true."—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, 612 Miss. St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"as it is true." Every letter recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine. It is a statement telling the merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood tell each other about them. For fifty years Lydia E. Airy White Gains Ground; Embroideries on Blouses

SOFT and white georgette crepe, with set-in bands of fine, embroidered net, make the lovely frock shown here. It is one of many airy dresses (made for girl graduates) that prove the irresistible and unfailing charm of sheer white and its fitness for eminent occasions. The design is suited to evening dresses and is very simple, with drapery of the georgette, in cascaded panels, at the sides, and slashes in the sleeves between the net and georgette. The arms slip through them and the sleeves proclaim that the designer is conversant with the modes of the hour and couples good taste with imagination.

As summer advances white gains ground in every direction. Clothes for actual sports and for all out-dooring are employing white fabrics that range all the way from heavy cottons and linens, as in tennis skirts, to rough-surfaced, rich silk crepes for pastime wear. Evening dresses of white chiffon are as airy as the fairy globe of the dandelion, and all these white clothes possess a refinement that belongs, in the same degree, to nothing else.

Skirts and one-piece frocks in the heavy, silk crepe weaves are among the most useful of summer belongings. One is well enough dressed in them for any smart social gathering—but their character is informal—they go everywhere. As a companion piece sleeves are to be featured. Embroideries remain, but they are to be supplemented by other trimming devices, often used in conjunction with them, as beads and silks are used together. Rows of small buttons, plings and insets in contrasting colors, are heralded by the latest blouses, and sleeves that are wholly or in part of a different material and color from the blouse.

Whoever finds it necessary to acquire a new blouse may play safe by choosing one like either one of the two pretty models pictured. They are both of crepe de chine and both embroidered. The blouse at the left, in dark blue, is cut in simple kimono style, and has its sleeves and hem line finished by a battlement edge. Dark blue silk, dark red beads, and a little tinsel thread make up the very effective and simple embroidery.

Bisque colored crepe de chine in the other blouse sets off navy silk em-to a handsome sweater-coat in white or a color, the skirts of out-dooring silks are a joy forever—till the end of the season an, say.

White organdie and fine white voile make afternoon frocks that include bouffant lines on one hand or lovely and subtle draperies on the other. Drawn work, pin tucks, frills and narrow ribbons are used on them in painstaking decorative work that is merited by the fineness of the material.

Just now plain white crepe de chine finds itself in the spotlight of interest. Nearly all the frocks made of it are draped, but very little trimmed, and their lines are straight as a whole but graceful in detail. Crepe de chine looks cool and is cool.

It is between "hay and grass" in blouse styles, when manufacturers are busy making those things that are in demand and at the same time toning up their products by little variations of trimmings, and in other particulars. These late summer blouses brodery. The model hangs straight, has set-in sleeves and round neck; a crepe-covered cord forms a loose girder. The lines in this blouse are flattering to full figures which they slenderize.

In new, tailored blouses there are many long-sleeved models and the much-admired, hand-made and hand-embroidered Angerie blouse of batiste or voile is nearly always long sleeved. Good flit laces, in narrow and medium widths, maintain their place at the head of the list of desirable laces for these fine but sturdy garments. They are shown in white only, they launder perfectly and belong to any time of year. When one is in doubt as to what to choose, the lingers blouse is a guarantee against mistakes—it is worn at all times.

HEALING ART OF OLD CHINESE

Abundant Proof That They Were Familiar With Anesthesia Many Thousands of Years Ago.

The artificial induction of painlessness by narcotic draughts was traditionally known in ancient times, writes Dr. Charles Ballance in the London Lancet.

The Chinese were acquainted with general anesthesia thousands of years ago. It is related of Surgeon Hoatse in the Third century A. D. that he performed amputation, trephining and other major operations by its aid.

Doctor Browne relates two cases of anesthesia taken from a Persian manuscript. The first story concerns Aristotle and an Indian surgeon named Sarnab. An earwig had entered the patient's ear and attached itself to the brain. Aristotle gave the patient the drug so that he became unconscious while Sarnab trephined the skull. This was excellent treatment. It is now well known that living foreign bodies may produce otitis and meningitis. In the second case the operation was Caesarian section.

A Foghorn Conclusion.

Mr. Beach (at his seashore cottage)—My dear, please tell our daughter to sing something less doleful.

Mrs. Beach—That's not Helen; that's the foghorn.—Boston Transcript.

A woman may wield more influence with her eyes than a man with his eloquence.

When in doubt take a day off and mind your own business.

The Way to Do It.

Mary Garden, the great singer, was the guest of honor at a chorus girls' tea in Chicago.

"You girls are all beautiful," Miss Garden said, "and I know you must all be a good deal bothered in the streets by men. Always turn these men down—politely but firmly, you know."

"That's easier said than done," a blonde chorus girl demurred.

"Not at all," said the diva.

"Well, now," said the blonde chorus girl thoughtfully, "suppose a handsome young man should stop his racing car, jump out, and offer you his hand and say, 'Your face is familiar, what would you do then?'"

"I'd answer," said Miss Garden, "So are your manners."

Perfectly All Right.

"Doctor," said the business man, "I will double your fee if you will prescribe for my wife a summer at the seashore."

"All right; I'll do it at once."

"Fine! What had you intended to prescribe for her?"

"A summer at the seashore."

To a Nicety.

"This is splendid material for a bathing suit," said the clerk, "for besides being fast color, it is guaranteed not to shrink."

"In that case," replied the sweet young thing, who should have blushed but didn't, "I'll take a yard and a half less."—New York Sun.

The man who is worthy of a kindness is the man who will pass it on when it comes to him.

CHICAGO AGAIN CLAIMS LEAD

This Time It is for the Meanest Man, and He Surely Has "Some" Qualifications!

Another "meanest man" has been found. He was discovered in a north-bound elevated express. He had remained seated although a woman stood swaying on a strip in front of him. The train was standing at the Fullerton avenue station when he jumped to his feet, apparently realizing suddenly that his destination had been reached. He started for the door.

When the man quit his seat it was, logically, taken by the woman. Not for long, however, did she hold it. A second later he was back—obviously having spotted the station name through the open door.

"Pardon me," he said, "that wasn't my station."

And he allowed the woman to rise and give him the seat.—Chicago Journal.

His Incognito.

A man, arriving at an English hotel, was asked, according to custom, to register his name.

The stranger took up a pen and wrote "The King of Spain."

The clerk was surprised. The manager made inquiries, and, approaching the visitor, said, "Excuse me, sir, is this your writing in the book?"

"Yes, sir," replied the visitor.

"But," continued the manager, "you are not really the king of Spain," to which the visitor replied, "No; but I travel under that name—it is my incognito!"

Health is Wealth Itself

—and depends more upon the selection of proper food than upon anything else.

The reason is simple—the right kind of food digests promptly and is absorbed into the blood for building sound tissue; while food that digests slowly may ferment and lead to serious conditions.

Grape-Nuts—the delicious cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley—is so easy to digest that even delicate people and young children thrive on it.

This is only natural, because Grape-Nuts is baked for 20 hours, which transforms and partially pre-digests the starch elements, resulting in easy digestion and quick assimilation.

Served with milk or cream Grape-Nuts is a complete food—and along with its nutritive qualities is that wonderful flavor!

of Donley, State of Texas, and you shall cause said notice to be printed at least once each week for the period of ten days exclusive of the first day of publication before the return day hereof.

CITATION IN PROBATE The State of Texas.

To all persons interested in the estate of A. C. Muncie, deceased, Mrs. Martha A. Muncie has filed in the County Court of Donley county an application for the probate of the last will and testament of said A. C. Muncie, deceased, which said will is filed with said application, and for Letters testamentary of the estate of said A. C. Muncie, deceased, which will be heard at the next term of said Court commencing on the third Monday in August, A. D. 1922, the same being the 21st day of August, A. D.
1922, at the court house thereof in the city of Clarendon, at which time all persons interested in said estate may appear and contest said application should they desire to do so.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court on the first day of the next term thereof this write, with your return thereon showing how you have executed

the same

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court at my office in

The CHURCH COOKING FORCE

The early church prayed in the upper room; the Twentieth Century church cooks in the supper room.

Today the supper room has taken the place of the upper room, play has taken the place of prayer, and feasting the place of fasting. There are more full stomachs than there are bended knees and broken hearts.

There is more fire in the kitchen range than there is in the pulpit. When a fire is built in the church kitchen it often puts out the fire in the pulpit. Ice cream chills the fervor of spiritual life.

The early Christians were not cooking in the supper room on the day when the Holy Ghost came; they were praying in the upper room. They were not waiting on tables; they were waiting for God. They were not waiting for the fire from a stove; but the fire from above. They were detained by the command of God; and not entertained by the cunning of men.

They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and not with chicken pie or roast.

Oh! I would like the cooking force put out and the praying band put in.

Let us have less gravy and more grace; less soup and more salvation; less ham and sham and more heaven; less pie and more piety; less use for the cook and more use for the old Book.

Put out the fire in the kitchen and build it on the Altar. Let us have more love and more life;
fewer dinners and more saved sinners. Let us have a church of waiters on God. A church full of service to God. Less Churchianity and more Christianity.

REVIVAL MEETING

The First Baptist Church will begin its revival meeting the third Sunday in August and continue for two weeks.

Rev. R. L. Cole of Lufkin, Texas, will be here to do the preaching.

Y. P. Walker, Pastor.

J. S. Beach, B. M. Davis, P. C.
Johnson and C. O. Cooper left here one day last week to go fishing. Shorty Spalding is authority for the statement that they traveled two days without finding enough water to wet their hooks, whereupon they became peeved and returned home.

METHODIST CHURCH

The Pastor will preach next Sunday at 11 a. m. There will be no evening service.

Bro. Fuller will leave Sunday afternoon for Lakeview, where he goes to conduct a revival meeting.

Mrs. Ed Harris and two children and her brother, Leon Reeves, have returned from a two weeks visit to relatives at Tulsa, Oklahoma City and other points in Oklahoma.

CARD OF THANKS

The ladies of the First Baptist Church wish to thank the good people of Hedley and vicinity for the generous patronage accorded them at the dinner given in the Boston building on Primary Election day.

Out of the proceeds of this dinner, the sum of $77 was sent to Buckner's Orphans Home.

SEND IN YOUR NEWS ITEMS EARLIER

It is our intention to hereafter print the Informer Thursday afternoon and get them in the postoffice early Friday morning.

Our readers can help us by sending in their news and advertising copy as early as possible.

Heretofore three fourths of the copy for any current issue has reached this office on or after Thursday morning. We want all the news, and appreciate your sending it in,—but DON'T PUT IT OFF.

News items that should appear in the paper are left out nearly every week on account of our old friend, Procrastination.
DO IT NOW.
