40,000 WORD FOREIGN POLICY MESSAGE

Nixon's 'New Strategy For Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Congress today Russia's growing force of intercontinental nuclear missiles has created "a serious threat to our retaliatory capability" and raised grave questions about where the Soviet Union is headed.

In his first State of the World message, Nixon presented his proposed expansion of the Safeguard ballistic missile defense program as the best immediate response to the Soviet build-up.

He expressed hope that eventually he could negotiate a limitation or reduction of nuclear missiles with Russia.

RUSSIAN POWER

By the end of this year, Nixon reported, Russia will have an estimated 1,590 missiles capable of reaching the American mainland against an estimated 1,710 for the United States. Five years ago, in mid-1965, he said, Russia had only 331 such missiles to 1,398 for the United States. Under the Johnson administration, Nixon said, the United States leveled off missile deployment but the Russians continued building up.

". . . The Soviets' present build-up of strategic forces," Nixon said, "together with what we know about their development and test programs, raises serious questions about where they are headed and the potential threats we and our allies face."

The 40,000-word message, with a global look at the past year and projections for the future, stressed Nixon's stated intention to go on reducing U.S. involvement in the affairs of other lands, to seek partnership instead of domination in relations with friends and allies, and to try to negotiate peace-preserving agreements with Russia and eventually Red China.

He made these other major points:

—A breakthrough in Vietnam peace negotiations could "come with little warning" but there's no sign it will. The United States remains ready to be "flexible and generous" in negotiations if the Communists ever want to negotiate seriously. Nixon hopes the fighting will continue to decline but has no assurance that it will.

—The United States will continue to work for peace in the Middle East but can't do the job alone. The United States has warned the Soviet Union and other nations against being drawn "more deeply" into the Arab-Israeli conflict and would be gravely concerned if Russia sought to dominate the area.

—Nixon intends to enlarge U.S. cooperation with Asian nations "as they cooperate with one another and develop regional institutions." Partnership is also the central theme of Nixon policies toward Western Europe and Latin America. In Africa the United States plans to back African efforts for their own development.

The President also pledged to work for a freer flow of capital and trade among nations, to promote international cooperation in expanding communications and knowledge, and to support the United Nations. He declared, too, his readiness to negotiate with Eastern European nations on establishing more normal relations at whatever pace they prefer.

Nixon's foreign policy statement, which overrode one that had been planned at the State Department and replaced such documents issued in former years by the Defense Department, was built around his own speeches of the past year and quoted at length from his own pronouncements.

'NIXON DOCTRINE'

It officially labeled as the "Nixon doctrine" the policy line he laid down at Guam last year during a Pacific trip that the U.S. wanted no more Vietnams and was cutting its involvement in Asia while promoting Asian self-help.

Nixon titled the paper "United States Foreign Policy for the 1970's—A new Strategy for Peace" and keyed it to the idea that the cold war days of conflict with Russia are fading and that negotiations are opening up.

"This," the President told reporters in a meeting at the White House Monday, "is the most comprehensive statement on foreign and defense policy ever made in this country."

He also called it a "policy for a decade" and said it marked a watershed in the life of the nation because it shows a shift from the policies of the past—of the cold war —to the policies of negotiation which Nixon proclaimed on taking office in January 1969.

Scott, Tower Tangle Over Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today specifically endorsed a substitute offered by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scot for a Southern amendment that seeks to require uniform national application to school desegregation policy.

Scott told reporters he had gone to the White House this morning to talk to Bryce N. Harlow, counselor to President Nixon, about the highly unusual challenge to him on the Senate floor Tuesday.

The result was a letter from Harlow endorsing the substitute over the amendment of Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.

"It was the first time my word had been questioned in my 12 years in the Senate and this I will not permit," the Pennsylvanian declared of the Tuesday challenge.

When Scott offered the substitute Tuesday, he announced that it had the support of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch and the Nixon administration.

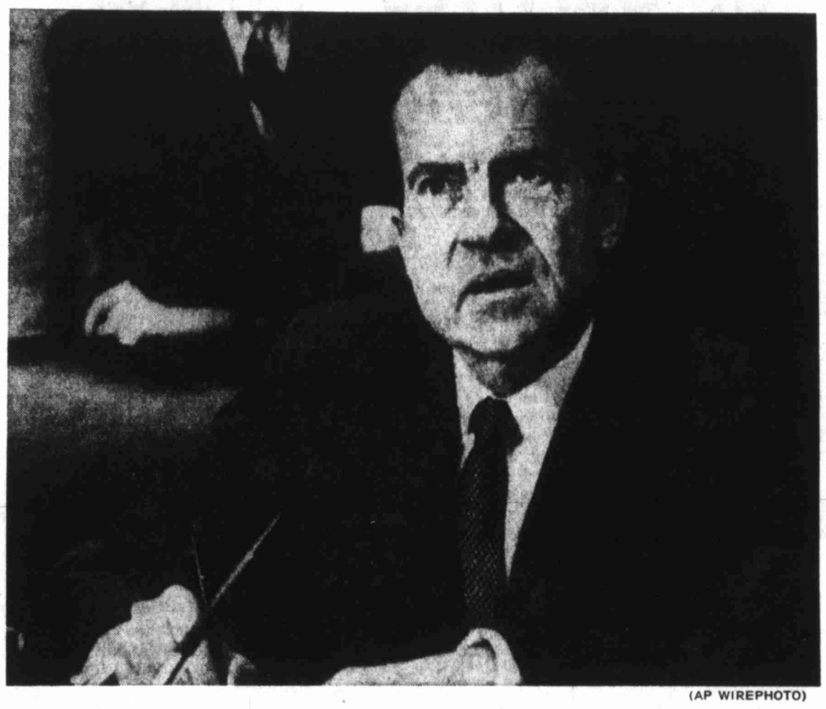

But his statement brought a virtually unprecedented counter claim from another Republican, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas.

Tower announced he had talked to Harlow and had been told the substitute did not have "the imprimatur of the White House."

In his letter today, Harlow advised Scott that "your amendment is administration language, preferred in existing circumstances" to the Stennis proposal.

Southerners charged bitterly Tuesday that the substitute was so drafted that it did nothing about de facto (neighborhood) segregation in Northern schools but would continue the drive against de jure (legal) segregation in the South.

The Stennis proposal would hit at both, they said.

Appeals Court OKs Antiriot Laws Of Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The State can prosecute an alleged participant in a University of Texas disturbance for slashing police car tires even though there is no evidence he committed any destruction, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled today.

The court upheld the constitutionality of the state's antiriot laws, including one that makes any rioter responsible for crimes committed by others participating in the disturbance.

Richard Edward LeClair, 29, a bearded, long-haired non-student, was charged with rioting and with destruction of state property following a Nov. 10 near-riot at the university.

Several hundred persons, including students and off-campus "street people," were involved in the disturbance which followed police ejection of protestors who had occupied the Chuck Wagon snack bar in the UT student union. The demonstrators were protesting a new rule barring non-students from the Chuck Wagon, a popular hangout for non-student hippies.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith brought destruction charges against LeClair. The penalty upon conviction is two to 20 years in prison. LeClair is free on $2,500 bond.

LeClair's lawyers contended that to try him under the riot and property destruction laws would be unconstitutional because it would make him responsible for the acts of others.

"Rioting does encompass a wide variety of activity, but the constitutionality of the statute does not depend on its possible said.
misapplication," the court

The destruction law is a "valid statute upon which a prosecution could be based, as well as the riot statues," the court said.

It also said the state's antiriot laws "are not vague and would not through proper application infringe on the guaranty of free speech. We hold the statutes to be valid."

At Lubbock

Fire Sends Canned Goods High In Air

LUBBOCK (AP) — A raging four alarm fire, whipped by 15-mile an hour winds, roared out of control for about three hours today at a Lubbock grocery warehouse, sending fireballs of exploding canned goods through the air.

The fire broke out around 5:30 a.m. and was contained around 8:30 a.m.

Some firemen called the fire at the Swan Grocery Co. Warehouse the "worst in Lubbock history."

More than 30 firemen from 13 units were summoned to the blaze, about a mile east of the downtown section. No injuries were reported.

Initial reports from company officials indicated the building and contents were a total loss. Damage estimates were expected to be "very high."

Witnesses said firemen were hampered by freezing temperatures and the flying canned goods.

Three walls of the one story brick building collapsed. The building covered nearly a block.

Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., guided a Senate panel into a new round of hearings today on voting rights legislation, after branding a compromise proposal as unacceptable.

The compromise would extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act for five years and tack on two parts of a substitute bill, nationwide in its application, that President Nixon has recommended.

Ervin's constitutional rights subcommittee, a unit of the Senate Judiciary Committee, called for testimony from civil rights leader Clarence Mitchell and Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md.

Another Confrontation Over Education Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is heading for another confrontation with President Nixon over education spending following its Rules Committee spurning of a proposed presidential compromise.

The committee refused to clear the way for a House vote on an amendment that would have given Nixon discretion to spend only as much as he wanted on education, regardless of what Congress appropriated.

The Republican-backed amendment was added by the House Appropriations Committee to a new $19.3 billion health-education money bill designed to replace the $19.7 billion measure vetoed by Nixon last month as inflationary. The House will take up the new bill Thursday.

Under House rules, such an amendment would not be in order unless specifically approved by the Rules Committee, and by a 9-6 vote Tuesday the committee refused. The threat of another veto was raised immediately.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, who testified before the committee Tuesday, said failure to include the provision raised a definite possibility of a veto because the bill once again carries more money than Nixon wants.

After his veto was sustained by the House, Nixon said he would accept $449 million of the $1.3 billion Congress added over his budget to the vetoed bill. But the Appropriations Committee boosted that to $814 million and the prospects are for still more additions when the bill reaches the floor.

Majority Leader Carl Albert said the Democrats would not be deterred by talk of a veto. "Intimidation is not the way to deal with the House," he said. "The members will not be swayed by such a threat. And I think we would have a much better chance to override another veto."

The Rules Committee's refusal to allow discretionary spending authority may have weakened a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition that also added three antischool desegregation amendments. Southerners had agreed to support the discretionary spending amendment in return for GOP votes for their proposals.

The Southern amendments are designed to prohibit HEW from forcing any school district to bus its students as part of a desegregation plan, to give congressional approval for freedom of choice plans, and to deny funds for any plans that would preclude a freedom of choice plan.

Finch, in his rules committee testimony, opposed all three amendments. He said the busing amendment was unnecessary, freedom of choice was unconstitutional, and the third would cause chaos by throwing out most of the plans now in existence.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal jury convicted today five men of inciting violence at the 1968 Democratic National Convention, and acquitted all seven defendants on charges of conspiracy.

The jury deliberated 40 hours before finding David P. Dellinger, Jerry C. Rubin, Abbott Hoffman, Thomas Hayden and Rennard C. Davis guilty of crossing state lines to promote rioting.

Burns Warns 'Recession Still Is A Possibility'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns assured the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee today that "the Federal Reserve will do everything in its power to prevent a recession."

But he said the board will continue to fight inflation, and he cautioned that a recession still is a possibility.

"Large backlogs of demand have been built up in important sectors of the economy, so that total spending can be expected to respond with speed and vigor to monetary stimulus," Burns testified.

"But I also want this committee to know that the board is determined not to forsake the present opportunity to obtain control over inflationary pressures."

He said monetary policy must stand ready to "adapt quickly to unanticipated developments in the economy and in financial markets.

"At the present stage of our battle against inflation, this principle has particular force. The board cannot overlook the possibility that the present slowdown in economic activity, which is a healthy development, may yet be followed by a recession.

DEFENSE COUNSEL PLANS ARGUMENTS FOR MISTRIAL

Riot Trial Jury Deadlocked?

CHICAGO (AP) — A jury that had its last deliberating session cut short because of threats went into its fifth day of discussions today on a verdict for seven men charged with riot conspiracy.

Defense counsel planned arguments for a mistrial and a declaration that the U.S. District Court jury is deadlocked.

John C. Meisszner, U.S. marshal, said Tuesday's deliberations were cut short after the FBI received word that demonstrators were planning to stone a bus that carries the jurors between the Federal Building and the Palmer House, a hotel where they have been sequested since September.

"We heard threats that the bus was going to be stoned and a guy was going to burn himself to death out here in the building area so we got the jury out and they didn't use the bus," the marshal said.

Several of Meiszner's deputies are being used to guard the presiding judge, Julius J. Hoffman. The marshal said two threats on the judge's life have been reported to the FBI.

Protests marked by violence have taken place in several cities in reaction to the trial of the seven men on charges of conspiracy to cross state lines and incite rioting in Chicago at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Attorneys William M. Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass filed a motion asking for a mistrial late Tuesday and requested an immediate hearing.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman was not in chambers and shortly after the motion was handed to his clerk, the jury retired for the night.

Kunstler later told newsmen he hoped to argue the motion today.

Kunstler said he did not think the defense was pressuring the jury by making the motion.

Judge Hoffman said last week that he might, if the jury appeared deadlocked, call them in and instruct them to retire once more and try to reach a decision.

Kunstler contends this would be applying judicial pressure on the jury.

He said he still believed that the jurors would bargain and compromise with the result that "some will be convicted, others will be acquitted or the jury will hang (deadlock) on all of them."

"It would be a miracle if all were acquitted," he said, adding that members of "a middle-class jury such as this" might "feel they are protecting the country from revolution, that they are safeguarding the youth of the country."

Kunstler faces a sentence of four years and 13 days for contempt and Weinglass has been sentenced to 20 months and five days, but Judge Hoffman has stayed execution of their sentences until May 4 so they can function as lawyers in appealing the sentences of the defendants.

A legal team represented by Chicago lawyer Thomas P. Sullivan may file Thursday a brief with the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in support of a motion to reverse the contempt rulings.

The brief also will ask that the seven defendants be freed on bond pending the appeal, a motion which Judge Hoffman has denied.

The defendants, if convicted, face a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $20,000 fine each.

They are David T. Dellinger, 54, Jerry C. Rubin, 31, Thomas E. Hayden, 30, Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, 31, Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29, John R. Froines, 31, and Lee Weiner, 31.

City Working On Pipe Plans

Preliminary plans for a large volume water line from within the city limits to the Cosden Oil and Chemical Refinery are nearing completion, Acting Public Works Director Bo Anderson said this morning.

The city commissioners at their last regular meeting approved a study to determine the costs and other aspects of constructing a line which could flow as much as 400 gallons of water per minute to the refinery.

Anderson said today that his study is not final and that tentative plans to begin the new line at a connection near Bowl-A-Rama might have to be changed if permission to cross a nearby section of IS 20 cannot be obtained from the Texas Highway Department and the Federal Bureau of Roads.

Anderson said other problems which have to be worked out before any definite plans for the line can be made include determining where the line should begin to serve both the city and Cosden and the size of line best suited to provide service to both parties.

McCormack Survives Leadership Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker John W. McCormack easily survived a challenge to his leadership today when House Democrats tabled a resolution calling for a vote of no-confidence in him.

The action was taken by a lopsided vote in a closed party caucus.

Still to be acted on was another resolution calling on the House Democrats to undertake a study of the organization of Congress, which could lead to an overhaul of the seniority system.

Rep Jerome R. Waldie of California, who sponsored the no-confidence motion against McCormack, had predicted its defeat, saying "I haven't seen any great upsurge of support in this body."

The move for a study of congressional organization was less sweeping.

Minnesota Rep. Donald M. Fraser, chairman of the Democratic Study Group, said "We are not seeking a confrontation. But we are trying to establish the principle of self-examination and self-criticism."

McCormack declined at his news conference Tuesday to comment on the DSG resolution, saying he has not had time to study it.

But Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma, who ranks second to McCormack in the Democratic hierarchy, said "I'm inclined to favor it."

"I don't believe in prejudging," he said, "but when they're talking about exploring things, that's different."

But even in the face of defeat, Waldie said "I think I have made my point" in the attack on the 78-year-old McCormack, whom he accused of being unresponsive to current problems.

Suspects' Photos Being Set Out

Howard County Sheriff A. N. Standard said this morning pictures of suspects in the Jan. 9 theft of 243 payroll checks from Harding Well Service in Coahoma are being sent to officials in Hobbs, N.M., Odessa and Midland.

Standard said five checks have been reported cashed in these three towns. All the checks are signed with the same name, Jack Randolph Abey, and carry the number of an expired New Mexico drivers license.

Traffic Safety Film Purchased

"Signal 30," a film depicting the brutal ends of reckless driving, has been purchased by the Big Spring Police Department to be included in the department's traffic safety programs, Officer Stewart Dickson said this morning.

Firemen Called To Two Blazes

Firemen were called out twice Tuesday, once to a stove fire in a house and again to a grass fire. Neither blaze caused extensive damage.

A stove line apparently snapped causing a minor fire in the residence of Hubert Clawson, 603 E. 12th, around 11:15 a.m. Tuesday. Firemen said only minor smoke and fire damage resulted from the blaze.

A grass fire in Terry Patterson's yard, 407 Edwards, was doused by fire units around 3 p.m. before any damage was done.

Hubcaps Taken

Charles Gonzales, 101 NW 8th, reported hubcaps worth $35 stolen from his car as it was parked outside the Howard County Junior College gym around 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. He told police he was inside the gym only about five minutes and returned to his car to discover the wheel covers gone.

Bourbon's Illness Delays His Trial

Court reconvened about 11 a.m. today in 32nd District Court in Brownwood, delayed by illness of defendant Rae Bourbon, 77, charged as an accomplice in the shooting death of A. D. Blount here in December, 1968.

A doctor was called and Bourbon reportedly was given oxygen. When court reconvened he was in the courtroom in a Stratolounger.

Bourbon has been plagued with illness since being brought to Howard County in the spring of 1969. Granted a change of venue in November, 1969, he was transferred to Brownwood. He was brought back to Big Spring after Howard County received a bill for medical services in Brown County.

Testimony continued today from Mrs. Josephine Pickett, manager of the St. Regis Apartment Hotel in Kansas City, where at one time Bourbon, Bobbie Randall Crain and Bobby Eugene Chrisco all lived.

Chrisco was sentenced to life in prison in September, 1969, for murder with malice. Crain is awaiting trial on the same charge in Ector County.

Mrs. Pickett testified to phone calls to Big Spring which were charged to Bourbon's room. She began testifying Tuesday afternoon shortly before the night recess.

Other witnesses testifying Tuesday afternoon included Maurice Hernandez, a service station attendant from whom Chrisco and Crain bought gas; Jim Theissen, a Kansas City vice squad detective; R. H. Hanson, Kansas City nightclub entertainer; W. B. Orman, Dallas; M. L. Chandler, Scurry County deputy sheriff; and John Orms, Snyder oil field worker.

Orms testified to finding a .45-caliber gun on the Garden City Highway south of the Pet-A-Zoo on the morning after Blount was shot. Orms said he took the gun to an oilfield where he was working, and he and several of his fellow workers fired the gun several times.

It was not until he reached his home in Snyder that night that he heard of Blount's death and a search by Howard County officials for a gun. He handed the gun over to Chandler in the Scurry County Sheriff's office. Chandler testified to giving the gun to Howard County Sheriff A. N. Standard.

Theissen and Hanson both testified the gun found here belonged to Bourbon. Theissen said he originally purchased the gun and sold it to Hanson, who testified he sold the gun to Bourbon. Medical evidence showed Blount was shot with a .45-caliber gun.

Approximately eight more witnesses are to be called by 118th District Attorney Wayne Burns, who is prosecuting the case in 32nd District Court under Judge Joe Dibrell. Burns is being assisted by 32nd District Attorney George Day. William W. Bell, Brownwood court-appointed attorney, is defending Bourbon.

Roadside Fire

A passing motorist reported a roadside fire on IS 20 in Mitchell County to Howard County Sheriff's officers Tuesday about 6:15 p.m. Sheriff A. N. Standard said the Coahoma Fire Department and Mitchell County Sheriff's Office were notified. Westbrook fire trucks answered the call, but Coahoma firemen had extinguished the blaze.

Y Member Drive Has Good Report

Excellent progress on the annual membership campaign was reported to the YMCA board of directors at its monthly meeting Monday at the Y.

The participating division is within $300 of its $13,000 goal, according to Mike Hull, chairman. The sustaining division is about $2,900 away from its target but with good prospects of achieving the goal, according to a report from Jack Little, chairman of this division.

The board gave special recognition to these leaders and to those who helped them.

Introduced by Frank Hardesty, president, as directors of the Class of 70 were Don Finkenbinder, G. R. Robinson and Tommy Ross.

Harold Bentley, chairman of the youth committee, presented Youth Members of the Month. They were: December—Evaristo Pineda, 14, Runnels Junior High, basketball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Pineda; Jodi Grant, 11, Boydstun school, tumbling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Grant; January — Dawn Higgins, 11, Kentwood, trampoline and ballet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Higgins; Macky Vaughn, 10, Washington school, trampoline and Gra-Y basketball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weaver Jr.

Highlights of the membership reports presented by Mrs. Clyde Thomas Jr. were:

Tito Arencibia, top producer with $1,760, probably an all-time record for one individual; Frank Hardesty, president, and second highest producer with $725; Capt. Ken Rider, top seller of new memberships with 28 (Arencibia topped this but after cut-off date); top division individual producers: Bill Schwarzenbach, of Apollo I, George Colvin of Apollo II, Mrs. Jack Little of Apollo III, and Capt. Rider of Apollo IV. Mrs. Jack Little's team was the top ranking one and included Mrs. Gene Nabors, Mrs. Ray Sinder, Mrs. Charles Tuttle, Mrs. Jack Worsham and Mrs. Keith Thompson as members. There were 12 workers who produced more than $200 each.

Recognition was given to Mrs. Floyd Mays, James Balios, George Colvin and Capt. Rider as division leaders. Other reports were received from Jack Worsham, treasurer; Don Farley, physical education; Lowell Jones, personnel; Curt Mullins, executive director, who expressed appreciation to news media for help in publicizing the membership drive. He also acknowledged memorials for the late J. Gordon Bristow and Tom Rosson.

College Trustees Election Is Set

The election for trustees of Howard County Junior College was called formally at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening and set for April 4.

John A. Coffey, board president, and Dr. P. W. Malone, the only remaining member of the original board from 1945, have filed for re-election. Coffey has been on the board since 1952.

The filing deadline is March 4, and drawing for places will be March 16. Absentee voting will be at the office of the county clerk from March 16-31.

Purchase of welding equipment for the vocational-technical division was approved in the amount of $860.25, the low bid submitted by Mid-west Welding Co. of Big Spring.

Coffey, Dr. Charles Warren, and Dr. W. A. Hunt, college president, were re-named as the college representatives on the Community Action Council.

Trustees authorized a change in the contract with Saga Food Services, which operates the college cafeteria. The per day allocation will be $2.08 instead of the $1.82 previously approved. Rising food and operations costs were cited as the basis for the change, which will not affect the charges to individuals during the spring semester.

Coffey reported for the committee studying workman's compensation insurance and estimated that this would approximate $2,200 per year for all paid employes. Dr. Hunt said he would recommend this to the board at the March 14 meeting.

Stone trim on the buildings is being sand blasted and given a sealer, Dr. Hunt reported.

Mrs. Marr Tells OEA Chapter About Banking

COAHOMA — Mrs. Ivanelle Marr, assistant vice president of Security State Bank, talked to the Coahoma chapter of Office Education Association at its monthly meeting on a career in banking.

Banking is people, she said, and banks specialize in serving people. Bankers must have respect for the dignity of man, and a banker is a good friend and neighbor. A career in banking is a challenge to those who enjoy helping others, she said.

Banks are beginning to hire vocationally trained students after high school graduation provided the graduate shows sincere interest and a good attitude toward serving his fellow man, she said.

She quipped that the man who saves money these days is not a miser but a wizard, and that money is that commodity described as "here it is, there it goes."

Mrs. Marr, a native of Aspermont, attended North Texas State University and began her banking career in Amarillo in 1953. She became associated with Security State in 1958. She is a graduate of the American Institute of Banking and served as president of its local chapter and as president of the National Association of Bank Women for Texas.

Mrs. Marie Ethridge, adviser, announced plans for attending the Area OEA Youth Leadership Conference in Odessa, March 13-14. Students planning to compete in area contests must have their entry in by Feb. 25. The two-day conference will be held at the Inn of the Golden West and Permian High School.

Twenty members and two guests were present. Next regular meeting will be March 2.

Purse Is Stolen

Don Hanson, 1703 Alabama, told police Tuesday night a purse belonging to his wife, Jarvadine, was taken from their station wagon parked outside the Cosden Country Club while they were inside eating between 7:30 and 9 p.m. He said the purse contained a department store charge card, a watch valued at $33, and personal items. Officers said the thief apparently entered the station wagon through an unlocked rear door.

Webb Officer Helps Deliver His Seventh; Valentine Baby

Saturday was Valentine's day and for Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Frederick Kevetter, wing chaplain at Webb AFB it was an even more special day when his wife presented him with their seventh child. In addition, the chaplain helped deliver the baby at his home.

"The day was pretty usual," said the Chaplain, "I spent most of the day at our little ranch, and came home about 6 p.m. It had been the same at home for the kids and Nancy (his wife). About 11 p.m., things really started happening. My wife told me that she thought she was getting ready to have the baby. "I called the hospital for an ambulance. The ambulance hadn't even gotten there when my wife started to deliver. I had watched several of our other children being born, so I said to myself . . . here goes."

"I was trying to help my wife, when the door bell started to ring. I had forgotten to unlock the door and the corpsman couldn't get in. I went to the door, and let the men in, and then helped them. Sgt. Gustav Sosa, the corpsman, deserves all the credit for the delivery. About 11:15 p.m. the baby was delivered, then we had the problem of clamping and cutting the umbilical cord. We ended up using my razor."

Following the delivery of their seventh child, a seven pound, eight ounce girl, mother and baby were bundled up and taken to the base hospital.

Chaplain Kevetter said the baby's name would be Caroline because, "We have had children in every state that I have been assigned except North Carolina. Nancy and I decided that we would name our little girl after that state."

The chaplain and his wife now have six girls and one boy and just about run the gamut of months for birthdays. They had hoped the baby would be born in March, which would give their family birthdays in April, May, June, July, August, September, October, and December and March. The chaplain continued, "With my wife's and my birthday, and the baby in March, we would just about have the year lined up, but Caroline decided not to wait. I can't complain though, it was the greatest thrill of my life!"

Shotgun Death Ruled Accidental

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Accidental death was ruled Tuesday in the death of a policeman's wife struck by a shotgun blast as she and her family prepared to leave a target practice site.

Mrs. Hazel Robbins, 33, wife of patrolman Milton Robbins, 36, died Monday night. She was shot in the chest as she placed the weapon in a pickup truck.

Mrs. Robbins, mother of four, dropped the shotgun and it discharged, Robbins told police. The family had been target practicing at a gravel pit.

Mixed Views On Marshall School Plan

DALLAS (AP) — Contradictory views on steps toward integrating public schools at Marshall in East Texas were voiced Monday before an examiner for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Speaking as lawyers for the school system, Sam Hall and Dan Reeves maintained that the Marshall district demonstrated "good faith in every way" when it departed from a plan approved by HEW in 1968 and adopted a so-called freedom of choice plan.

Paul Marcus, a civil rights specialist appearing for the government, said the plan abandoned at Marshall included alteration of bus routes and geographical rezoning. He said HEW staff members in the Dallas office offered several suggestions to the district but, as far as he knew, "none has as yet been adopted."

Government witnesses said departure from the HEW-approved plan resulted in failure of Marshall schools to integrate classes as ordered.

Hall and Reeves disputed this view, contending that the freedom of choice plan implemented HEW orders.

The district exercised no control over bus routes, the two lawyers said, explaining that these are administered by elected officials "and have been for years."

Testimony was heard by examiner Albert E. Luttrell of Washington. He then directed each side to file briefs by April 22.

M. McEvers, sponsored by the school; and Mrs. C. O. Trantham, who is going individually. Jack Denson is also going as a private citizen.

Nominated For Safety Award

2nd Lt. John G. Schriever, of the 3561st Student Squadron at Webb AFB, has been nominated for the Air Training Command (ATC) To Promote Safety (TOPS) Performance award for Operations.

Lt. Schriever was flying a solo Cessna T-37 trainer advanced contact mission, Dec. 1, 1969. After approximately 20 minutes of acrobatics he noticed the oil pressure on his right engine was dropping toward zero. He went through the emergency checklist items, but the oil pressure continued to drop. After contacting the supervisisor of flying and explaining his problem. Lt. Schriever declared an emergency and returned to Webb.

He contacted the runway supervisory unit and flew in the single-engine pattern, with a safe landing.

"During the entire emergency, he was clam, cool and handled the emergency in a professional manner," says the nominating letter.

A Devotion For Today . . .

"Every one who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened." (Matthew 7:8, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal Father, we thank Thee for life's little blessings—the smile of a friend, the care of a family member, the joy of an accomplishment. We want to shout, "Hurrah!" for the overlooked common blessings of life. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Passing Of An Era

Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has at long last stepped down as director of the Selective Service, and this marks the end of an era.

He took over this job in the days of World War II when the nation felt itself in peril and when there were no recent memories of war. Therefore, there were few instances where the rigid disciplines of the system were questioned.

Much has changed since then. There have been two undeclared yet costly wars in terms of human as well as physical resources. Then also there came to be gradually woven into the fabric a pattern of deferments (notably those for students) which seemed to mitigate against individuals with lesser opportunities. At least there was a disproportionately large number of the poor and the minority population who ended up in military service.

Further, more individuals came to protest the Selective Service on grounds of conscience. While it was more or less accepted that certain groups, for example the Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses could claim to be conscientious objectors, it was not possible for the average Catholic or Protestant to claim the same thing, an inequity as obvious as that of student deferments.

Gen. Hershey (who performed a splendid service) held his ship together with a firm hand, but in fact it had become antiquated. Now that he has stepped down, it may as well be acknowledged that his successor or successors will be dealing with a different mechanism at a different time and in different circumstances.

Fiction And Stark Reality

Variants on the death ray concept have played an enduring part in science fiction. It is not entirely an occasion for general rejoicing that here, again, science fiction is becoming reality. High-energy lasers being developed by the Air Force are, quite literally, death rays.

Such beams of intense light can do far more than kill a man. They can cut steel like butter, and pierce diamonds. Fragmentary reports from Washington suggest that the Air Force envisions using laser "guns" as air defense systems that could dispose of enemy planes or missiles.

There is nothing worse about using a "death ray" for such purposes than using more conventional weapons. The target is there: You use the best available means of knocking it out of the sky. All the same, each new advance into the world of science fiction weaponry has its chilling effect on those who yearn for peace.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS—

Around The Rim

The Wonderful Interstate System

Ever wondered what the mileposts along side interstate highways mean? Or how loops off the IS system get their numbers? Or which IS roads get the even numbers and those which get the odd?

CHARLES P. ZLATKOVICH, research assistant for the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas, has written an excellent piece in Texas Business Review on the "Interstate Highway System in Texas." He has a wealth of information, including the little tidbits that have puzzled many of us.

Mileposts are placed on the IS highway showing the mileage from the southern or western boundary of the state, or from the southern or western end of the highway if it originates within the state. Hence the numbers we see around here are measured from (or to) the juncture of IS 20 with IS 10 in far west Reeves County.

LOOPS OFF IS highways take the number of the highway, with an even designating number as the right-hand digit — I.E. 610 at Houston, 410 at San Antonio, 820 at Fort Worth, 635 at Dallas; local spurs follow the same system but use an odd prefix, like IS Spur 110 at El Paso, 345 at Dallas.

The lower highways are to the south and west of the country — for instance IS 10 hugs the southern extremity; IS 20 is about 200 to 300 miles north of it, and so on. The east-west routes carry even numbers; the north-south odd ones.

LONGEST of the IS routes in Texas is IS 10 from Orange to El Paso via Houston and San Antonio, a distance of 878 miles. Second is IS 20, distance of 630 (which would be about 800 counting the IS 10 portion from west Reeves County to El Paso.

Although the 3,166 miles of IS highway in Texas reach only 90 of the state's 254 counties, these counties contain nearly 75 per cent of the population. The IS system will constitute little more than one per cent of the national road and street mileage, but it will carry more than 20 per cent of all traffic. Over one-third (33.74 per cent) of the state's population reside in the 21 counties served by IS 35 (Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, San Antonio, Laredo).

WITH APPROVAL of IS 27 from Amarillo to Lubbock, only five metropolitan areas in Texas are off the IS system — Wichita Falls, Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito, McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg, San Angelo, and Sherman-Denison.

Traffic varies but generally is heavy. The 13,980 vehicles on IS 35 between Austin and San Antonio translates to one vehicle passing a given point every 12½ seconds in each direction around the clock, or IS 445 between Houston and Galveston one each 10 seconds. West of San Antonio, where the wide-open spaces begin, traffic averages less than one vehicle in every 30 seconds.

OF THE 42,500 miles in the national system, 3,166 are in Texas. Only other state with more than 2,000 miles is California.

Design is projected to meet traffic demands 20 years ahead. Standards call for speeds of at least 70 miles per hour in areas of flat terrain; 60 miles on rolling terrain; 50 in mountainous or urban areas. Traffic lanes are to be at least 12 feet wide; shoulders 10 feet wide; medians 36 wide (less under certain circumstances); vertical clearance of 16 feet for at least one lane for all routes and 14 minimum for all structures. This consciously makes safety a consideration, and estimates are that Texas fatalities would be up 30 per cent if IS roads maintained the same rate of fatalities as other rural roads.

THE SYSTEM will cost $59 billion for the nation when complete, and it will be paid for when complete. Thus, savings in speed, safety, carrying capacity and interest make it an excellent buy. —JOE PICKLE

Being Ruled By Edicts

WASHINGTON — Every now and then, out of the thousands of letters received from citizens who reflect the undercurrents of American public opinion, there is one that states succinctly the case for the feelings which prevail at the time. Such a communication came the other day from a man who expresses the frustration of people in the area in which he lives. He writes:

"I am a physician in a small community — a 'country doctor' — trying to make my children, my town, my state and my country a little better for my having lived here, but in my heart, I sincerely believe that I speak for millions of people in our great country who would like for our nation to be even a better place for future generations.

"WOULDN'T IT BE a pleasing thought if our Congress were made of all truly dedicated men instead of a conglomerate of too many petty politicians, all trying to further their political careers, and too few dedicated statesmen — if our Presidents were less concerned with their glorious image and more concerned with our country's present and future — if the federal government would quit creating bureaus that increase in size every year and become more dictatorial — if the Supreme Court could only be renovated. Lifetime tenure of the Supreme Court justices is neither reasonable nor logical.

"WHY HAVE THE southern states been singled out for total, instant integration of our schools? We have had freedom of choice in schools for several years — right here in this section of Louisiana.

"The Civil Rights Act stated specifically that there would be no busing of students — yet the Health, Education, and Welfare Department and the Surpreme Court have done just that. My children have been removed from the elementary school one-half block away and sent by bus to an elementary school two miles away. This is busing, is it not?

"Is this to be the beginning of the second hundred years of the 'reconstruction era?' If a law is just, it must apply to all 50 states equally and at the same time.

"HAS THE United States of America degenerated to the extent that it must be controlled by edicts and decrees instead of laws? Every totalitarian nation that ever existed — from ancient Rome to Nazi Germany and to present-day Russia — was ruled in the same manner which, as history has shown, gets rapid results but ultimately brings on decay of that nation. Power corrupts, but absolute power corrupts completely."

Many people do not express themselves as well, but they feel as intensely as does the "country doctor." The big question is whether this feeling is really confined to just the southern part of the United States. The busing problem is, in fact, an issue also in the North, where concern is spreading, too, as the citizens foresee the possibility that their children may be transported to schools long distances from their homes.

CONGRESS KNOWS of this growing discontent but is confused by the various edicts and decrees issued by the federal courts and by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The courts have by no means clarified the questions, and the Supreme Court has not finally passed on the fundamental principles involved.

Under these disturbing circumstances, it is not surprising that in many sections of the country people have become uneasy not only about the problem of busing in the schools but the kind of teachers who will be employed and the quality of education their children may be getting in the next several years.

Marketing Men Puzzled

NEW YORK (AP)—As some people have been led to believe, the United States of America is about to be taken over by an army of youth, 100-million strong and intolerant of old concepts and beliefs.

Responding to this popular notion, thousands of businesses today are preparing themselves for the new era, overhauling their marketing strategies for the day, sometime in the 1970s, when half the population will be under 25.

Already the evidence of preparation can be seen in various areas of life. Parents solicit advice from their youngsters.

Educators, clergy, government officials, politicians all seek the wisdom of youth. And the over-35 individual with an ear for the thoughts of youth feels he is in an enviable, privileged position.

Few, however, have studied the youthful scene in the same manner as the marketing man —the specialist whose job it is to find out what the populace will buy and then devising ways to see that it does buy.

And few may be making a more serious error.

"Too many marketing and advertising men are selling a youth market rather than a youthful market," says one marketing man. "As a result, their 'now generation' approaches are not reaching the focal point of spending power."

That's the opinion of Solomon Dutka, president of Audits & Surveys. He finds that some companies seemingly have the figure 25 fixed in their minds, when in reality buying power will remain with 35 to 45-year-olds.

"You just cannot rely on sheer numbers," says Dutka, "because a goodly segment of the under-25 population is comprised of infants and school age children." Their buying decisions are for dolls, records and breakfast foods.

In terms of spending power, he maintains, "the figures show that the 18- to 34-year-old segment will account for only 30 per cent of all spending by 1975."

Research into the mind of youth continues, however, in a volume that might compare pound for pound with the U.S. Census, but there appears to be even more doubt regarding the value of the contents.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States surveyed 5,000 college students and learned a great deal about their motivations, opinions, plans and frustrations, but it may be difficult to rely on at least two of the answers.

"If you had the power to change one thing in American society," the students were asked, "what would it be?"

The chamber found more than one-third of the males and almost two-thirds of the females had no specific answer. "In other words, the majority would change nothing."

However, in response to the question, "What do you consider the most valuable quality of your own generation?" the majority answered, "The ability to challenge old assumptions."

No wonder some marketing men are puzzled . . . and many parents, teachers, clergy. Well, in fact, the whole world.

Worth Remembering

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Mothers between the ages of 16 and 35 are least likely to give birth to abnormal babies. The average is about one in a hundred. The figures are two in a hundred for mothers under 16 or over 35.

One river that appears to be winning the battle against pollution is London's waterway, the Thames. Half a century ago it had become so foul no fish were left in it. But within the last year, thanks to purification measures, some 42 kinds of fish have been caught in the Thames.

Our own campaign to keep from being choked by our own debris isn't going too well. Americans now toss away 800 million pounds of junk and trash every day, and the annual cost of getting rid of it has now risen to half-billion dollars.

Worst pun of the week: "Doctors say that cheerful people resist disease better than glum people. In other words, it's the surly bird that catches the germ."

Quotable notables: "If a man's curve of efficiency is ascending at 45, and keeps on ascending just after that period, it may well move upward for his whole life; but if there is a turn downward at 45, he will never recover."—Nicholas Murray Butler.

Worth remembering: "When a man gets too old to set a bad example, he starts giving good advice."

Shooting stars that flash across the sky at night may startle you with their brilliance, but most of these flaming visitors from space are small—often no larger than a pebble or a grain of sand.

Folklore: If two friends wash their hands in a basin at the same time and then dry their hands simultaneously on the same towel, their friendship will soon dwindle. Fruit trees will bear better if you drive a peg or nail into them. Bad luck will follow if you count the number of cars in a funeral procession. Long hair on the arms is a sign you'll be rich some day.

It was Thomas A. Kempis who observed, "A humble knowledge of oneself is a surer road to God than a deep searching of the sciences."

The Future For Mayor Lindsey

NEW YORK — In the strange mix of this troubled year with both major parties divided along ideological lines, anything can happen, and it probably will. That helps to explain why Mayor John V. Lindsay is on one of the two or three hottest political properties in the nation.

AN OBVIOUS REASON for Lindsay's rating is television, the medium that has become decisive for a candidate for high office. The Mayor has what in an earlier day was called "it," that is sex appeal on the political register. On screen he looks in every lineament the commanding figure, the clean-cut American dedicated to the public good. This — together with his mastery of the technique, the understated ease, the quick thrust, the disarming smile — is an asset of incalculable value.

THE QUESTIONS about his future pressing hard are for the Mayor at the present stage irrelevant. Will he turn Democrat? Will he support Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, with whom he is currently feuding over funds for the city, for a fourth term? Is he likely to become a candidate for statewide office in the foreseeable future?

What he achieved in his campaign for re-election last fall says a lot about the Lindsay potential. A year ago his chances for re-election to a second term in what he calls the second toughest office in the land were rated close to zero.

SLOWLY WITH the help of several shrewd advisers — notably Richard Aurelio, now Deputy Mayor — Lindsay began to build back his strength. He did this by creating a coalition of leading Republicans and Democrats.

His present goal is not only to hold this coalition together but to enlarge its dimensions. Although the men close to him keep careful silence, the rise of a similar coalition on the national scene is the prospect casting an aura around the Mayor. He is the only man on the political scene, so say those foreseeing a future far beyond the confines of City Hall, who understands at firsthand the problems of the cities where up to 75 per cent of Americans live today.

THE STILL-UNWRITTEN script has these basic elements. President Nixon runs for re-election. George Wallace of Alabama is again a third-party candidate appealing to the South and the ethnic lower middle class in the white suburbs. Lindsay, either as the nominee of the Democratic party or as an independent liberal, captures the urban-minority-young voters. He is elected a minority President, as he was returned to the mayor's office by a minority of the electorate and through a similar coalition on the national scale.

A MIDWINTER hallucination, a wishful excursion in the political never-never land? Yes, if one takes into account all the obstacles in the way of such a happening and particularly the hazards of presiding over a city constantly threatened with complete collapse.

Billy Graham

What do you think of the new "sex education" being offered in the schools today? In your opinion does it go far enough, or should the schools be teaching the subject at all? H.A.

I believe the intentions of some of the people who are promoting sex education in the schools are good, but some of their principles I believe to be in error. For example, SEICUS, The Sex Education and Information Council of the United States, seems to discourage the teaching of morals, and insists that the purpose of sex education is not to create moral standards. One of its past presidents said recently: "The simple fact is that through most of our history in Western Christendom we have based our standards of sexual behavior on premises that are not totally insupportable — on the folklore of the ancient Hebrews (perhaps alluding to the Ten Commandments), or the musings of medieval monks . . ."

The teaching of permissiveness has invaded our morals. As someone has said, "If anything goes; of course everything goes." How do children know what is right and wrong if they are not taught? When they are told that the immoral is moral, the obscene is permissable, that dishonesty is honesty, they are being hoodwinked by their teachers.

I believe that the time has come for sane education in this field based on a strong morality. If permissiveness is to be the theme, without moral guidelines, then I am against it.

Educators Fuss: Children Suffer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky once was a pioneer in special education, but its service to the handicapped now is fragmented, a Legislative Research Commission staff report says. It cited conflicting philosophies among educators.

Alcohol: A Cause Or An Effect?

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Maybe you can help us. My husband has been a compulsive drinker — he hates the word alcoholic — for 25 years. It destroyed him physically — he has had lab work and tests — but he can't accept the fact that it also affected his mind.

He is so obsessed with accusations of infidelity on my part that he is violent and abusive causing me and the children great mental stress.

The problem is that we tell him the drinking drove him to it and he claims it didn't, yet when sober he doubts his accusations to some degrees. He claims we should respect and love him, sober or not. I cannot respond to him in any way when he is mean and abusive. He thinks I should. Who is right?—Mrs. R.S.

You can love him. You can love a weak and sick person. But respect him? That's something else.

He may hate the word alcoholic, but what else can you call a person who for 25 years hae been unable to give up his glass crutch?

For what help it may be, if any, you might better look at his drinking as a result, not the cause, of his accusations and violence. A psychiatric analysis probably would show that he is an insecure individual, drinks to release himself from his fears of being a weak person, and when in his cups reacts belligerently.

Yet the fact remains that he has no right to make the whole family miserable.

The children, I presume, must be at least partly grown by now. Perhaps, together, you can all tell him in a sober moment that he really does these things when drinking, that you all love him — but he makes it hard for you to do so when he behaves so.

It is seldom that an alcoholic reforms until, because of bringing complete disaster upon himself, or because of a flash of insight into what he is really doing to himself, he accepts the fact that he needs help.

Sometimes a shock of some sort does it — I recollect a case in which a wife took some photographs of her husband when he was blind, sloppy drunk, and showed them to him afterward. He quit drinking.

In your case your husband still refuses to admit that he is an alcoholic and is still trying to persuade himself that he doesn't do the things he really does when drunk.

His salvation, if any, will be in realizing what he really is like, if there is any way to show him. There may be.

* * *

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need To Know About Them." Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Lindsey Has Top Demos Worried

WASHINGTON — A man can run out of fingers these days counting the prominent Democrats who are worried almost sick about a young sprout named John Lindsay.

THE NEW YORK mayor has emerged as a definite threat to the political livelihoods of practically every Democrat that ever dreamed of the Presidency. Among these are Hubert Humphrey, Edmund Muskie, Teddy Kennedy, Gene McCarthy and George McGovern. But the list also probably includes Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, who just quit as Democratic National chairman, and former United Nations Ambassador Arthur Goldberg.

BUT HERE'S John Lindsay, who lost the nomination of the Republican Party and yet won re-election as a Liberal-Independent. Actually, Lindsay won as a Democrat in disguise. His future as a Republican is virtually non-existent. The office he now holds is a blind alley. Thus if he is to go anywhere, he almost surely must do so as a Democrat.

IT IS NOT surprising, then, that Lindsay was the chief topic of backroom conversations at the recent huddle of the Democratic Policy Council headed by Humphrey.

The Democrats got little comfort from the Gallup Poll, learning only that Lindsay was gaining in national appeal. Mr. Gallup reported that 22 per cent of persons interviewed gave Lindsay a "very favorable" rating, compared to only 13 per cent in August, 1967. Worse, Lindsay got more support and enthusiasm from Democrats than from Republicans. Twenty-five per cent of the Democrats gave Lindsay a "very favorable" rating, compared to only 20 per cent of the Republicans.

NOR WAS THERE reassurance in the poll's finding on Ted Kennedy, who was given a "very favorable" rating by 28 per cent of those interviewed. Kennedy thus led the Democratic pack, with Humphrey second at 24 per cent, Muskie third with 21 per cent, and McCarthy and McGovern trailing with 14 and 7 per cent, respectively.

Most Democratic pros figure that 28 per cent support for Kennedy is wasted because they consider him finished as a viable candidate in 1972 as a result of Chappaquiddick. They're probably right. But in a showdown, Teddy's 28 per cent support most likely would switch to John Lindsay, who is, as they say, "in the Kennedy image."

NEITHER HUMPHREY nor Muskie fits that role. Senator McGovern has garnered most of the old Bobby Kennedy backers, but he can't seem to get his campaign off the ground. Gene McCarthy? Forget it. That leaves John Lindsay, who would enjoy being a Democrat and who would do almost anything short of slipping a Borgia-sized dose of arsenic into Nelson Rockefeller's soup to escape from City Hall.

'Boss Of Year' Is Webb NCO

M. Sgt. Julio Tapanes Jr. was named "Boss of the Year" by the Cactus Chapter, American Business Women's Association, during a bosses night banquet Tuesday at Big Spring Country Club. A trophy was presented to Sgt. Tapanes by Mrs. J. C. Anderson, winner of the title in 1969.

Sgt. Tapanes was nominated for the honor by his secretary, Mrs. J. C. Rogers. He is the non-commissioned officer in charge of the Item Accounting Section, Base Supply, Webb Air Force Base. Sgt. and Mrs. Tapanes reside at 125-B Barksdale with their daughter, Debbie, a high school senior. Arriving at Webb AFB in August, 1969, the sergeant is a member of the Top Three Steering Committee of the NCO Club, the purpose of which is to assist young airmen in their Air Force careers.

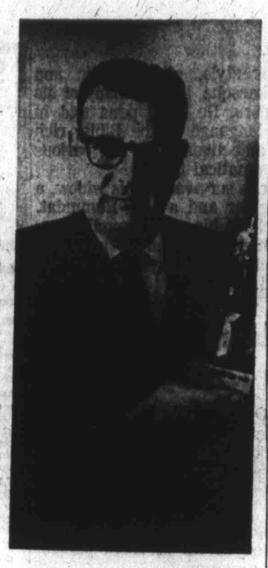

Mrs. Charles Hans, president, extended the welcome, and Mrs. Bob Taylor, mistress of ceremonies, introduced guests. Mrs. Owen McComb gave the invocation and led the Pledge of Allegiance.

After a brief history of ABWA was presented by Mrs. C. O. Trantham, Miss Ramona Molina gave a vocational talk on her work in the cash office at Montgomery-Ward and Company.

Guest speaker was Charles Tuttle, an attorney for Cosden Oil and Chemical Company, who followed the banquet's patriotic theme in discussing the past, present and future of the United States. He urged the group to "hold the ideals of our forefathers." In conclusion, he said, "Although we seem not to realize it, our youth are our real hope."

Tables were covered with white cloths, and the head table held an arrangement of red and with blue irises, red candles and white carnations interspersed miniature flags. Large letters on the front of the cloth proclaimed "The American Heritage." On each table were smaller arrangements of red, white and blue ribbons, flags and candles.

The main centerpiece was presented to Sgt. Tapanes for his wife, who was ill and could not attend the banquet. Approximately 100 were in attendance.

Near Nudity Makes The Scene For Springtime

By LEONORA DODSWORTH
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP) — Near nudity has become the cliche of spring-summer Italian fashion shows but today Antonelli added new shock-transparent dresses with not even a body stocking underneath.

To top that, Antonelli's designer, Sergio Malta, designed the dresses with tongue in cheek. They were demurely styled, long sleeved and high necked and might have been worn by a Victorian Jane Eyre-type heroine if only they had had plenty of petticoats underneath.

Not only were there no petticoats there was no nothing except bare living flesh.

The collection began with a snappy group of beach costumes in natural-colored linen or crunchy silk. Tightly buttoned bosom-brief jackets were teamed with long skirts or flared pants. The pants were sometimes topped by bamboo-belted miniskirts. Big-brimmed bush hats in fine straw completed the look.

Dresses were short—about four inches above the knee. They were sleeveless with plunging V necklines and had accordion pleats fanning out from the center front waistline.

The current favorites, vests and jumper dresses, dutifully made their appearance. They were worn with silk scarves knotted in the neckline.

A welfare committee was appointed to assist Mrs. Morris Robertson of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center to pack work kits for Easter Seal campaign workers.

The charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Roy Carter.

Airy Fabrics Create Soft Spring Fashion

By MARY SUE MILLER

Spring fabrics are "weightless" — sheer, airy, flowing, floating. Even sturdy classics like linen and duck set new standards for light, soft texture.

It is already established that our fashions will carry on the body-shaping trends of the winter. It could hardly be otherwise; it will be more so. Material cling is the reason for being of the spring collections.

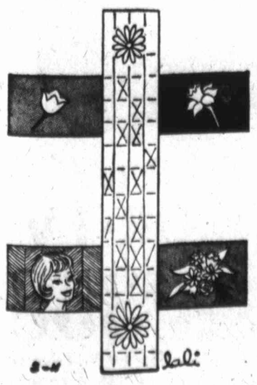

A quick resume of fabrics shows how. Headliners include gossamer wools, crepe, silk, jersey, organza, voile, batiste, all in both plains and prints. Downright see-throughs are created by open crochets and cotton laces in doily patterns. Very subtle transparencies combine sheer with shine, like satin stripes on a scrim of cotton and gleaming wire-open knits. Wow!

And there's more. There's the fascination of texture, pattern and color. The power of texture is seen in such bits of fluff as bubbled, crinkled and blistered shirtings. The big news in patterns is mini prints, borrowed from the lining of Grandma's trunk. How's that for old wine in new bottles? Somehow it looks right, the other side of the mod mood.

As for color, it is a do-your-own thing affair. Pastels are delicate as face powder, and as bright as a pink poppy. Nude shades and dusky greens, reds and blues win favor as offbeats. Whitened colors or white used with other colors look fresh as May flowers. Nice?

Could Become 'Antisexual'

LONDON (AP) — Britons could become "antisexual" if the population explosion is not curbed, Prince Philip says.

Philip said in a recorded television program that unless the problem is tackled now "we shall arrive at a situation of overcrowding which will be so unpleasant.

"If you overcrowd rats, they get all sorts of ghastly things happening to them — their whole social structure breaks down for one thing.

"They develop antisexual tendencies. Oh, I mean awful things happen — and there's no reason to suppose that something like that won't happen to us if we let it."

DEAR ABBY: I applaud your comments to the mother who snooped in her daughter's diary to find out if she was a "good" girl.

Two years ago I discovered that my mother had been reading my diary and listening in on my phone calls. I was terribly shocked and hurt. My faith and trust in my mother were shattered, and my respect for her diminished.

I am now 18, and more mature than I was then, but a trace of bitterness still remains.

If that mother is really concerned about her daughter's emotional state, she should realize that a meddling, overprotective parent can cause more harm than good. And if she continues to violate her daughter's privacy, she is running the risk of destroying what otherwise might be a good relationship with her daughter. Privacy is a precious thing to a teenager.

YOUNGER BUT WISER

DEAR YOUNGER: Well said, young lady. Well said.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My dog, Lowell, is very sick and the vet says he will die shortly. I would like to have a funeral for him as I have had him for 11 years and he is like a member of the family.

I have asked friends of mine who have known Lowell since he was a pup if they would attend the funeral which would be held at my house. They all laughed at me, and when I finally convinced them that I was serious, they said I was crazy. What do you think?

MISSES HIM ALREADY

DEAR MISSES: I can easily understand your feelings. I do think, however, that your friends are insensitive and unnecessarily unkind. Obviously, they have never truly loved a pet. (Their loss.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "Troubled" and "Sierra Bonita," each of whom expressed concern one way or the other about the height of the men of their dreams, the former being unhappy because he's too short, and the latter considering slight height some sort of virtue.

The height of a man, without a doubt, is one of the most ridiculous criteria for happiness foisted upon women, apparently mesmerized by Madison Avenue and romance claptrap which propagandize what the "ideal" couple should look like — men taller, of course.

No less silly is the preference for a man because he is short! What in the world do physical features (tall, short, handsome, plain, etc.) have to do with what's inside the guy? It's the inside with which one has to relate in some meaningful way for a lasting relationship.

I happen to be 5 ft. 10 in. tall, and my sweetie pie is a mere 5 ft. 5 in. tall, and the greatest guy in the world. (He makes the Robert Goulet-type look like a midget in my eyes.)

The thing about us is that neither of us gives a fig because we don't fit the "image" — we're too interested in each other, and learning about ourselves and each other, to care what the rest of you out there think of how we look together. Maybe "troubled" could do the same and be happier.

11.4 Million Baptist Members

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Membership in Southern Baptist Convention churches rose to a record 11.4 million during 1969, the executive committee of the nation's largest protest denomination was told here Monday night.

Although total church membership increased by 157,384 over the 1968 total membership, decreases were reported in most of the major Southern Baptist church organizations, the report prepared by the denomination's Research and Statistics Department indicated.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠

On a day when all suits break, declarer would expect to experience little trouble in winning all 13 tricks on the above deal. South was well satisfied to be in a small slam in hearts, however, and he was willing to invest the price of an overtrick to protect himself against adverse distribution.

West opened the ten of spades which was covered by dummy's jack, East's queen and ruffed by declarer with the six of hearts. A small diamond was trumped in dummy and South reentered his hand by overtaking the jack of hearts with the king. He ruffed another diamond and led to his queen of clubs to draw the remaining trump with two more pulls.

With two losing diamonds left in his hand, there might be a temptation at this point to attempt to run dummy's clubs for, if that suit divides three-two, as expected, South will have a parking place for his small diamonds and can claim 13 tricks.

Declarer was willing to forgo the opportunity to score every trick, however, in the interest of assuring his contract. When he led a small club from his hand and West played the seven, the latter was permitted to hold the trick as dummy followed with the four. When East showed out, South's small investment was revealed to have paid a handsome dividend for, had he gone up with North's king of clubs, he would have been unable to run the suit, and there would be no way to avoid the loss of two diamond tricks.

West returned a spade which declarer ruffed. The ace of diamonds was cashed and another club was led. The ace and king picked up West's remaining clubs and dummy's five took the last trick.

Nobel Prize Winner Dies

JERUSALEM (AP) — S. Y. Agnon, Israel's 81-year-old Nobel prize winning author, died Tuesday of a heart attack, the state radio announced. He had been ill for several months.

Agnon was the second 1966 Nobel winner to die in as many days. Dr. Peyton Rous of the United States, who shared the 1966 prize for medicine, died in New York early Monday of cancer. He was 90.

Agnon shared his Nobel award for literature with the Jewess poetess Nelly Sachs of Sweden.

Agnon wrote only in Hebrew, drawing on his boyhood in Poland and his later life in Jerusalem.

His style, often mystic and Kafkaesque, baffled many of his readers. He liked puns told in the language of the Bible, rich in adjectives and in various grammatical forms.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter and a son, Hemmdat. Much of his work remains unpublished, written in a scrawl which his wife says only she can read.

Marriage Boom In Lovington

LOVINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Officials in the Lea County clerk's office say the marriage license business is booming.

It all started Jan. 1 when a new Texas law went into effect requiring a six month waiting period before divorced persons can remarry.

ARMY DOCTOR'S WIFE AND CHILDREN SLAIN — Army Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, 26, bottom right, told authorities at Ft. Bragg, N.C., Tuesday that his two children, Kristen Jean, 2, top left, and Kimberly, 6, and wife, Colette, 26, had been slain in a bizarre attack by three persons who broke into his home early Tuesday. MacDonald, who was found unconscious by police responding to his telephone call for help, suffered stab wounds in the chest, stomach and arm.

NCO, Airman Honors Listed

Squadron awards in the 3560th Organizational Maintenance Squadron at Webb AFB for Airman and Noncommissioned Officer of the Month for January went to men in the orderly room, 2nd Lt. William McClure, administrative officer, announced. NCO honors went to Sgt. Keith A. Masters, while Airman David E. Leflore Jr., won the Airman award.

Sgt. Masters serves as the chief clerk in the OMS orderly room, supervising three airmen. Although he has been there for only three months, he has proved himself a valuable asset, according to his supervisor, S.M. Sgt. Claude Gray, unit first sergeant. "He has shown a willingness to accept responsibility and has demonstrated initiative and ability greater than normally expected of a man of his grade and experience," he said. In the Air Force 3½ years, Sgt. Masters has held assignments at Grand Forks AFB, S.D. and Da Nang, Vietnam.

Airman Leflore is an administrative specialist in the orderly room, having started work there with no experience in the position in November, 1969. His supervisor, Sgt. Masters, said, "Airman Leflore has applied himself in an outstanding manner learning his new duties.

Both men will receive a three-day pass as part of his recognition.

NEED A TICKET? — The annual pancake supper of the Kiwanis Club will be staged Friday evening in the student union building at Howard County Junior College, with serving time between 5-8 p.m. From left, tickest are being offered here by Noel Reed, general chairman; Pete Hull, procurement officer; and Dawson DeViney, Kiwanis president. Ducats are $1 for adults; 75 cents for students.

Key Role In Overseas Calls

Operators in the Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) station at Webb played a key role last year in the establishment of a new high in number of contacts between American servicemen overseas and their loved ones in the United States. The Webb station is operated by 2050th Communication Squadron, a part of the globally operating Air Force Communication Service (AFCS). Lt. Col. Robert E. Gagnon is commander.

World wide, Air Force MARS facilities operated by the AFCS personnel handled 447,963 telephone patches and telegraph messages. By comparison, 363,122 calls were handled in 1968. Of last year's total, 484 were handled by operators at Webb.

Capt. Jerry E. Burns, base MARS director, invited residents to use the MARS system. Sgt. Benny F. Weeks, noncommissioned officer in charge of the station, Airman 1.C. Henry McGee and Airman Jordon Brock are on duty from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to take messages and calls. The base extension is 2505.

School Board Member Reports Death Threat

HOUSTON (AP) — A member of the Houston school board said Tuesday his life had been threatened. Pupils at two schools staged demonstrations, meanwhile, over the possibility of massive principal transfers to achieve racial balance in classrooms.

Dr. George Oser, a member of the board's recently elected four-man majority which ordered the integration plan, said he had notified the FBI about threats to himself and his family. He said the threats came over the telephone and started after he voted for the plan.

About 200 pupils held a brief demonstration in front of Luther Burbank Junior High and 50 to 75 staged a similiar demonstration at Fonville Junior High protesting the plan.

Principals of both schools said the demonstrators were only a small part of their enrollments.

Oser said he decided to report the threats even though he thought they were only crank calls.

All the callers were women, he said, and one asked if his children were in school.

"Your children will never grow up to be adults in this town," he quoted one of the callers as saying.

Dr. Leonard Robbins, the new board chairman, said earlier this week that some top administrators were opposing the crossover integration plan.

"It will be difficult for us to ignore those in administration who openly encourage students and others to oppose the crossover plan," he said.

The plan calls for transfering up to 100 principals by March 1. This would be followed by a one-third mixing of teachers in September.

The school board's special counsel on desegregation, W. James Kronzer, has said the new policy is the minimum action the board can take to comply with the law.

Houston's integration plan is currently under review by the federal courts.

Two Judgeships For Texas Pared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee cut two proposed federal district judgeships for Texas out of a Senate-passed bill Monday.

In paring the measure from 66 proposed new federal judges to 53, the committee cut one of two proposed for East Texas and one of two proposed for North Texas.

Three judgeships for Pennsylvania, cut by a subcommittee, were restored to the bill on which the House Judiciary Committee still has not completed action.

Triple Slaying Linked To Dope

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Officials investigating the fatal stabbing of an Army doctor's pregnant wife and their two young children said today they were checking on patients he had treated for drug abuse.

The doctor, Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald, 26, of Patchogue, N.Y., who also was stabbed in their apartment on the post Tuesday, said the family was attacked by a hippie-type band of three men and a girl.

The girl, he said, muttered: "Acid is groovery; kill the pigs."

Acid is a slang term for the hallucinatory drug LSD.

Police reported finding a paring knife and an ice pick which they said might have been used to kill Collette MacDonald, 26, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., and her daughters Kristen Jean, 2, and Kimberly, 6.

In New York, the Daily News quoted MacDonald's grandmother, Wilma M. Perry of Patchogue, as saying Mrs. MacDonald was expecting her third child this summer.

MacDonald, a Green Beret paratrooper, said he was beaten unconscious, but revived later and called the military police. They found him in a bedroom, stabbed in the stomach and chest.

Col. Robert J. Kriwanek, post provost marshal, said the word "pig" was scrawled in blood on the headboard of the MacDonald's bed.

Col. Kriwanek quoted MacDonald as saying he had fallen asleep on a living room couch while reading, awakened about 3:30 a.m. and saw the four intruders, who knocked him unconscious.

MacDonald said the girl was blonde and wore a floppy hat and boots, and that one of the men wore an Army field jacket with sergeant's stripes.

MacDonald was reported in satisfactory condition in Womack Army Hospital.

Hospital Fire Kills Patient

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — One man died today in a fire that forced evacuation of about 50 patients from a wing in Mercy Hospital in this South Texas city.

Malcolm Johnson, assistant administrator, said the fire in a fourth floor room apparently was caused by an oxygen explosion.

The victim, Pablo Garza, 61, of Laredo, was in an oxygen tent, Johnson said. Garza had been in the hospital for about three weeks with a heart condition.

The only other patient in the room escaped unharmed, he said.

The explosion occurred about 6 a.m. and the fire was tapped out within an hour. Smoke from the room forced evacuation of patients in the non-surgical wing to other parts of the six-story building.

Mercy Hospital, a Roman Catholic institution, is the only public hospital in Laredo.

College Classes Dismiss Early

Classes will dismiss at noon Thursday at Howard County Junior College, so that teachers can attend the 23rd annual TJCA-TJCTA convention in Austin, Friday and Saturday. Administration offices will remain open, and classes will resume on normal schedule Monday.

Ben Johnson, HCJC academic dean, will preside as president at the meeting, and most HCJC teachers plan to attend. Others taking part in the program features a talk by TML Execu- Anna Smith and Doyle Holder.

Safety Project For Children

The Webb Junior Officers' Council recently completed a project geared for the safety of youngsters attending Marcy School.

Under the direction of 1st Lt. Norman M. Slocum, JOC chairman, and 1st Lt. Paul Procaccini, project officer, a high board fence was moved back from the road at the south gate entrance to Webb. The board fence was set back some nine feet across the corner of the lot. A safety hazard existed for some years at the corner, which has been the site of serious accidents. The fence cornered on the road near the curb, forcing school children, walking or riding bicycles, to enter the street to turn the corner on their way to school. Oncoming motorists had difficulty in seeing the children.

Prince Is Cast In Garbage Can

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Prince Charles has been cast in the roles of sports commentator and antiques expert in next week's annual revue to be staged by his college at Cambridge University.

The show is a satire called "Quiet Flows the Don."

The 21-year-old heir to the British throne took part in 14 sketches in last year's revue. In one, he occupied a garbage can.

Jury To Begin Mulling Evidence

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A 32nd District Court jury was to begin deliberation today in the trial of Eldon Wayne Veal, 23, Sweetwater, charged with burglary in connection with the Oct. 1, 1969, break in of a Safeway Store here.

Veal's car was found about a block from the store. He was arrested about 8:30 a.m. at Trucktown on the eastern edge of Colorado City.

Defense Attorney Temple Dickson called seven witnesses Tuesday afternoon including himself, Veal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Veal, Sweetwater; a brother, James Veal; and Mrs. Helen Wyatt, Sweetwater insurance salesman.

Veal's mother and sister testified Veal had been drinking Oct. 1 and appeared to be "staggering drunk" on the night of the burglary.

Mrs. McQueen said that when he left her home about 10:45 p.m. Oct. 1 with R. J. Self, 40, that he appeared to be resisting, but the older man was "pulling him." Self was arrested at the open door of the Safeway Store.

Tuesday morning District Attorney Weldon Kirk and Mitchell County Attorney Frank Ginzel called nine witnesses whose testimony tied Veal to a figure seen running from the scene.

District Judge Austin McCloud was to give the charge to the jury today, and attorneys were to give final arguments.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Marine Points Out Dangers Of Narcotics

To the Editor:

The following is part of a letter from Sgt. Gary O'Dell, U.S. Marine Corps, to his half-brothers, all students in Big Spring schools. He spent two years in the security section at Norfolk Naval Yards, Portsmouth, Va., and is now with the training office. He will receive his discharge on March 15:

"Two weeks ago a Marine at the barracks was found dead due to an overdose of heroin with the needle still in his arm. The kid was only 19 years old. I had talked with him a couple of times, but not knowing he was an addict. Now he is dead, and a couple of others are in trouble because of this. From what I understand, he started off to be with the 'in crowd' as taking dope was the 'thing.' Believe me the 'in crowd' is the one who will get you in trouble and the 'thing' will get you killed or in a fix you'll never want to experience again.

"I'm not trying to preach, but I would like to give you some suggestions or free advice. You've got good heads and been brought up in a good home and community. It doesn't take a man to give in to a crowd or challenge. It takes a man to say 'No' and stand straight and proud. Those people who get you to try this stuff don't have to live your life or pay your bills, and if you die, they'll forget you soon . . . Believe me you'll be respected more for standing up for yourself. You'll probably be called square, but "I'd rather be square and out than doped and dead — or if you're not dead, something worse the rest of your life.

"I listened to a girl the other day who was 17 years old and had been a junkie and she said 'Most young people used to think the 'in thing' was to get on some sort of dope or drug, but most young people are realizing that the 'in thing' is not to take dope or drugs"....

"Remember, no matter how much people (family, friends, etc.) have preached to you what's good and what's bad, only yourself can decide what you are going to do. Only you will receive the results either good or bad. So weigh everything before making a choice . . . It's a tough road to hold, but strive to be a leader, not just a follower . . ."

BATTLE MAP — U.S. B52s were reported to have bombed North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops for the first time in the Laotian Plain of Jars Wednesday.

Bomb Pathet Lao Troops?

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombing raids in South Vietnam were halted for 36 hours Tuesday and today while America's biggest bombers went into action for the first time against North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops threatening the Laotiian- Plain of Jars, informed sources reported.

The U.S. Command refused to comment on the report, but its communiques did not report any B52 strikes in South Vietnam during the 36 hours that ended at noon today.

Smaller American fighter-bombers were reported to have attacked North Vietnamese forces around the Plain of Jars on Sunday, and the B52s are used frequently against North Vietnamese supply depots farther east in Laos which feed troops and war materials into South Vietnam. But this was the first report of their use in direct support of Laotian government forces.

The Laotian government's forces last summer recaptured the Plain of Jars, a communications hub north of Vientiane, the Laotian capital, and last week North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces opened an offensive to retake it.

The attacking force has made steady progress and has recaptured a number of outposts around the plateau. Reports from Vientiane Tuesday said government troops were regrouping on the west side of the plain while American air strikes were hindering the North Vietnamese advance.

Sources in Vientiane said about 200 North Vietnamese troops, backed by four tanks, attacked the airfield in the Plain of Jars today but the Laotion government forces repulsed them. It was the third attack on the air field reported since the offensive began.

Simultaneously, American sources in Vientiane reported, 10 terrorists broke through the barbed wire around the airstrip at Long Cheng, the key base for U.S. logistic and advisory forces in northern Laos, killed a sentry and destroyed a Laotian army observation plane. Three of the terrorists were killed, the sources said.

Long Cheng, 80 miles north of Vientiane and 35 miles from the Plain of Jars, is the headquarters of Gen. Vang Pao, whose CIA-backed army of Meo tribesmen recaptured the plain for the government last summer.

Elsewhere in Laos, a North Vietnamese Pathet Lao battalion attacked and captured two villages near Paksane, 59 miles east of Vientiane early Tuesday, the sources said, but government troops recaptured both of them.

U.S. officials in Vientiane have been telling newsmen that the Americans are urging the government to abandon the plain rather than make a determined attempt to hold it. These officials presumably are setting the stage for a retreat of the government forces, but at the same time U.S. air forces are being used in support of the Laotian government forces on a larger scale than has ever been reported before.

Sources in Saigon estimated that in the past 36 hours about 60 B52s—four-fifths of the Strategic Air Command's fleet assigned to operations in Southeast Asia—attacked North Vietnamese positions in Laos. Their bomb loads totaled 1,800 tons, but there was no indication how many flew raids on positions in the Plain of Jars region and how many flew against the border bases.

Inside South Vietnam, allied forces killed 180 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers in fighting along the Cambodian border and in the western Mekong Delta, military spokesmen claimed today. Planes and artillery were responsible for a big part of the enemy toll.

South Vietnamese troops bore the brunt of the ground fighting, reporting four men killed and 12 wounded

Five Americans were reported wounded by enemy action. But three Americans were killed and 20 wounded when a South Vietnamese artillery battery fired a dozen 105MM rounds into a U.S. Army installation at the Bien Hoa Air Base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

INTERROGATION OF VIET CONG SUSPECT — A South Vietnamese Ranger officer points pistol at blindfolded Viet Cong suspect while he interrogates him during operation in area south of Da Nang, near Landing Zone Baldy. Male Birth Control Pills Predicted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Male birth control pills, removable plugs for temporary sterilization and immunization to prevent conception will be realities before the end of the decade, says a birth control reasercher.

But birth control pills for women are the most effective device now available, Dr. Maxwell Barr told a meeting of obstetricians and gynecologists here Tuesday.

"If we could have a fraction of what it costs to put a man on the moon, we could come up with an ideal form of birth control within this decade," said Barr, a professor at the University of Minnesota Medical School and chief of Planned Parenthood in Minneapolis.

A male birth control pill is available now, said Barr, but it has some very troublesome side effects.

Large doses of progesterone, a female hormone, suppress the production of male sperm, but also leave the man with little interest in sex.

"I am certain we will soon have that solved and have a male pill that is medically acceptable," Barr added.

Injections of a silicon rubber that hardens at body temperature may provide removable plugs for the temporary sterilization of men and women, said Barr, but preliminary research indicates this technique may be more successful on men.

"Most of the birth control research to date has aimed at producing devices interfering with female productivity," he said.

Another technique equally applicable to both sexes is immunization, he said.

Rice Owls Open Gap In League

By The Associated Press

Those gritty Rice Owls are threatening to run away with the Southwest Conference basketball race while everybody else is chopping each other up.

The Owls opened a full two-game lead on the pack Tuesday night with an 85-78 victory over Arkansas. Rice is now 8-2.

The Owls opened a full two-game lead on the pack Tuesday night with an 85-78 victory over Arkansas. Rice is now 8-2.

Texas Christian, Texas A&M and Texas Tech are two jumps back with 6-4 records.

The Aggies downed Tech 82-74, Texas stung TCU 93-84, and Southern Methodist upended Baylor 70-66 in other SWC games Tuesday night.

Baylor sank to a 5-5 record followed by Texas' 4-6, SMU's 3-7 and Arkansas' 2-8.

Tom Myer, a junior from Camden, Ind., popped in 15 of 22 from the field and six of six from the free throw line for 36 points as the remarkable Owls shot 50 per cent from the field.

Rice coach Don Knodel said, "We were brilliant at moments, but we went from brilliancy to the dullest dull we could be."

The news that A&M had whipped the Red Raiders and that Texas had beaten TCU caused Knodel to fake a shocked stumble.

He smiled and said, "We've still got four to play."

The Owls host Texas Saturday night then travel to Texas Tech Feb. 24, entertain TCU Feb. 28 before the regional television cameras, and wrap it all up March 3 in G. Rollie White Coliseum on the Texas A&M campus.

Hawks Shade T-Birds In 103-102 Thriller

By TOMMY HART

In one of the all-time thrillers played in the local gym, Howard County Junior College fought back from the brink of elimination in the Western Conference race to squeeze by New Mexico Junior College, 103-102, here Tuesday night.

Four points by freshman Billy King of Coahoma in the final 45 seconds of play led to the demise of the T-Birds. King cooly hit two gratis pitches at a time the locals trailed by a single point, then delivered the clinching bucket from immediately out front with 20 seconds remaining.

HC played together as it hasn't all season in achieving its eighth conference success, compared to four defeats. The locals are deadlocked for second place with South Plains and trail league-leading Odessa by only one length.

Decell Lewis' tremendous rebounding, together with the scoring punch of Danny Clendenin and Sammy James and the aggressive floor play of Clendenin, Glen Fletcher and George Tilley, kept the Hawks in the game. Jerry Phillips' rugged defensive play was a factor, too.

With ten minutes gone in the first half, the locals trailed by 15 points, at 37-22, but had cut that to eight by half time.

GOT IN TROUBLE

The Thunderbirds began to get in foul trouble early in the second half, however, and the Hawks began to close in. With 11:10 to go in the game, Melvin Perez scored on a nifty pass from Tilley and the Big Springers narrowed the gap to 76-75. The visitors could never afford to breathe easy again.

NMJC lost Fred Johnson with 10:40 left to play and talented Elgin Green followed him to the bench within five seconds.

HC missed a couple of free throws that would have sent it into the lead for the first time, with just over ten minutes left.

At the half way mark of the second half, James connected from down under to deadlock the score at 79-79 but Sam Carrasco came back with a gratis pitch and a field goal to push the T-Birds back out front.

With 8:08 remaining, Clendenin tied it at 83-83 with a bucket from the side and HC shot ahead for the first time with 7:45 to go when James rang the bell from close in.

TRIES DELAYED GAME

The lead changed back and forth as the seconds ticked away. NMJC, with a one-point edge and 2:09 remaining, tried its delayed game but its offense isn't geared to that type of ball.

The invaders were out front by three, at 98-95, with 1:50 to go but Fletcher, deadly from the outside, connected for the Hawks and James followed with a bucket to make it 99-98, HC.

Danny Whitlock of NMJC zeroed in for two gratis pitches that gave the guests the lead for the last time, with just 35 seconds left. Then King took the spotlight.

After Billy had wrecked the Thunderbirds with his four points, John Harrelson came back to close the gap with a two-pointer with just eight seconds remaining. The locals were able to get the ball in and run out the clock.

Clendenin, the fieriest competitor HC has, fouled out but not before he had accounted for 24 points, tops in the game. James tallied 22 and Fletcher 21 for the Hawks.

Willie Banks led NMJC with 22 and was one of six T-Birds to hit in double figures.

Lewis was a terror on the boards for HC. He clawed down 16 rebounds before he exited on fouls with 3:04 still to go.

The defeat left NMJC with a 6-6 conference record and might have severely damaged its chances to get an invitation to the Region V tournament.

Over-all, HC is 16-7 while NMJC slumped to 16-9.

HC returns to play Thursday night in what could be another barn burner at Levelland against South Plains.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

The quarterback in football and the pitcher in baseball have often been compared but they can be likened only in the fact that each operates in the eye of the hurricane.

The quarterback superintends the team's offense, is the pivotal man on every attacking play.

A pitcher, on the other hand, is the steward of a club's defense. Contrary to some claims, he does not handle the ball more than any other player on the club (the catcher does) but attention is always focused on him and the more efficiently he operates the easier the job becomes for his teammates.

It's amazing professional sports do as well as they do financially, when you consider the fact that an average family of four will spend upwards to $40, attending one pro football game and would invest about $30 to see the average pro basketball game — the cost of parking, programs and etc. included.

The expense, of course, would be far more for those families driving 300 to 500 miles to witness such an attraction.

Is it an indictment of our times, however, that the average fan would not bother to attend a game if tickets were offered for 75 cents each, whereas he would feel compelled to fight for them if they cost $7 each?

Since tennis' so-called amateurs were first permitted to share in the gate late in 1968, Stan Smith of California has banked more than $50,000.

There's little telling what the San Angelo netters, Cliff and Nancy Richey, have made. It's enough to say they find it rewarding to appear in tournaments across the world practically the year around.

Baseball in Europe is bigger than you probably suspect. Holland alone has 588 teams and many Italians are enchanted by the sport.

* * * *

All the teams in the National league have a big job in spring training — using up all their baseballs with Warren Giles' name on them.

Giles resigned as president of the league after the 1969 season. The 1970 baseball must bear the signature of Chub Feeney, the incoming chief executive.

* * * *

HCJC's Decell Lewis, the 6-3½ freshman from Madison, Miss., is going to become a terrific ball player when he develops a softer scoring touch — and that will come with practice.

Lewis has quick hands and can rebound with anyone in the Western Conference.

Together with smooth Melvin Perez, he should give the Hawks a good nucleus for a team next season.

* * * *

All of the people who constitute the hierachy of professional sports, not just those in his endeavor, are deeply concerned over Curt Flood's suit against baseball's reserve clause.

The consequence of this litigation could be far reaching. If Flood can alter a provision which binds one player to one employer, his triumph can reach into the equally shaky legal foundations of organized football, basketball and hockey.

All have achieved a measure of stability by regulating open competition for talent.

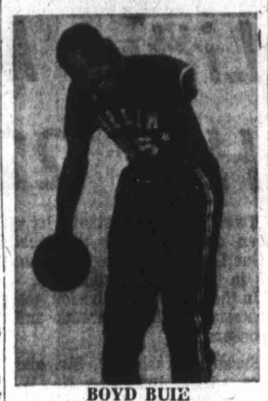

True, the rule protecting the club owner in professional football is not as exacting as that enacted by the baseball lords — an athlete can play one year without signing a new contract, then technically become a free agent.

The owners, however, are generally wary of such malcontents and do not sign a player without offering something in return — usually a proven player or a high draft choice — to his former employer.

Baseball, football, basketball and hockey have achieved unbelievable growth over the decades — and created unbelievable benefits to ownership, management, coach and athlete alike.

Many reason that Flood is tinkering with Pandora's Box, that pro athletics will never be the same if he achieves success in the court room.

It may be allright for industry or the arts to corner all the talent and prosper but sports need a "contest" to survive. Without it, the game is dead.

BOYD BUIE

Stars Exhibit Here At 7:30

Boyd Buie, who never let a little thing like the loss of an arm bother him, heads the Harlem Star contingent which will play a basketball exhibition with a Webb AFB contingent in the local high school fieldhouse at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Buie hastily reassembled his forces after tragedy struck one of the traveling units last week. In an automobile mishap, five members of one of the Harlem teams lost their lives.

Buie's lineup this evening will include Eddie Nelson, one-time BSHS and HCJC great.

Admission prices for the contest this evening will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for students. Part of the proceeds go to charities supported by the sponsoring organization, the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

BUD SPRAGUE

Sprague Joins Grid Shrine

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The famed Four Horsemen of Notre Dame were together as a unit again today—although one of them is deceased—as members of football's Hall of Fame.

Don Miller became the last of the four backfield stars of the Knute Rockne team to be enshrined in the latest election, which saw eight former college stars honored.

Miller, now a judge in Cleveland, was the ball-carrying work horse of the backfield, averaging more than six yards a carry over three seasons in the 1920s. His teammates, previously inducted, were Jim Crowley, Elmer Layden and the late Harry Stuhldreher.

Four backs and four linemen are included in the latest additions to the Hall of Fame, announced by Chester LaRoche, president of the National Football Foundation. They will be honored at the annual dinner next Dec. 8 in New York.

Besides Miller, the backs include Millard "Dixie" Howell, the throwing half of the great passing combination at Alabama in the 1930s that included Don Hutson; Myles Layne, Dartmouth's outstanding back of the mid-1920s, and Tom Davies, the two-time All-American back from Pittsburgh. Davies' years were 1918-21.

The linemen selected are Ed Bock of Iowa State, Mortimer "Bud" Sprague of Texas and the U.S. Military Academy, Ernie Smith of Southern California and Frank Wickhorst of the U.S. Naval Academy.

Kim Crowe's 18 points paced Midland.

Midland's JV's defeated the badly crippled Big Spring reserves, 91-38.

Midland also edged Big Spring in a sophomore contest, 64-57, despite a 24-point surge by David Newman.

DeBusschere Fills Bill For Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks can only be thankful that Dave DeBusschere scores, rebounds and plays defense better than he flips coins.

It has been written many times that DeBusschere's arrival in New York early last season turned the Knicks into winners. The trade that brought him here not only gave the Knicks an all-star forward, but enabled them to switch Willis Reed from forward to an All-Star center.

However, DeBusschere's presence was felt even before Detroit traded him to the Knicks. For it was DeBusschere, as player-coach of Detroit, who got Cazzie Russell for the Knicks.

"Dave called the coin flip," Russell explained Tuesday night after he and DeBusschere had helped the Knicks demolish Los Angeles 114-93 in the national basketball association.

"Yes, I called it," agreed De Busschere. "Tails."

It was several years ago, after the Knicks and Detroit had finished tied for the worst record in the NBA and flipped for the first choice in the college draft. It came up heads and the Knicks chose Russell.

He and DeBusschere teamed to bury the Lakers after Reed scored all of his 18 points to put the Knicks ahead 53-47 at the half.

When the Lakers, playing without injured Wilt Chamberlain, Happy Hairston, Willie McCarter and Keith Erickson, managed to pull within 57-53, DeBusschere led an 18-4 surge, including 12 straight points, and the Knicks had their 14th victory in 16 games.

DeBusschere finished with 19 points, along with 20 rebounds, his high as a Knick, and Russell had 18 points, including 10 in the decisive third period. Walt Frazier also had 19 points.

DeBusschere also held the Lakers' Elgin Baylor to 13 points for three quarters before going out. Baylor funished with 18, one more than teammate Jerry West, who was resting on the bench during most of the Knicks' third period spree.

In the only other NBA game, Phoenix ripped Seattle 129-118 behind Gail Goodrich's 44-point spree.

In the American Basketball Association, the New York Nets beat Carolina 108-103, Washington trounced Miami 134-118 and New Orleans stopped Dallas 119-112.

Goodrich's hot shooting sparked Phoenix to a 47-24 bulge early in the second quarter and the Suns coasted home, snapping a four-game losing streak. Bob Rule topped Seattle scorers with 25 points, but was blanked in the final quarter as the Suns blunted a late rally by the home club.

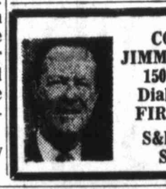

Steerettes Tip Flock

Big Spring's Steerettes got off to a flying start in District 3-AAAA volleyball play Tuesday night, defeating Abilene High here, 15-4, 15-7.

Mary Lou Brown had seven points in the first game and Mary Dirks six in the second for the local girls.

In B team play, Big Spring won both contests, 15-1, 15-1. Raylene Oliver counted seven points and Cindy Williams five for the Steers in the opener while Cynthia Cook served successfully nine times for the locals in the second engagement.

The Steerettes return to play Thursday night in Andrews.

McLAIN ACCUSED

Bookmaking Revelation

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn mulled over the latest developments in the case of Denny McLain today while the Detroit pitcher's whereabouts remained a mystery.

Commissioner Kuhn's disclosure last Friday that his office was examining certain of McLain's "off the field activities," during the 1967 season was followed today by the publication by Sports Illustrated magazine of a copyrighted story which said McLain was a partner in a bookmaking operation during that season.

McLain dropped out of sight following Kuhn's statement Friday and missed a scheduled court appearance Monday over his alleged failure to repay a $7,000 load received in 1968 from the Citizen's Commercial and Savings Bank of Flint, Mich.

William R. Aikens, the pitcher's lawyer, left Detroit for New York Tuesday night with Commissioner Kuhn reportedly preparing a statement for release today.

But a spokesman for the commissioner denied that any statement would be forthcoming today.

Sports Illustrated, in its copyrighted article, charged that McLain had put money into a bookmaking operation headed by one Jigs Gazell, who operated out of the Shorthorn Steak House in Flint, Mich.

Gazell said Tuesday night that he knew McLain casually while the pitcher was playing the organ at the Flint steak house.

Gazell denied being a bigtime bookmaker.

Regional TML Meeting Slated In Midland

More than 100 West Texas members of the league are expected at the dinner which freatures a talk by TML Executive Director Steve Matthews, Austin.

Crow said tentative plans are for all five commissioners to accompany him to Midland earlier in the afternoon to allow time to look at a new IBM computer before moving on to the meet set for 6:30 p.m. The commissioners decided to shop for new accounting equipment for the city at their last regular meeting.

No other city officials have made definite plans to attend the meeting, but others may decide to go before Thursday afternoon, Crow said.

Multiple Listing Service

Some of the important advantages of a MULTIPLE LISTING activity are:

1. Sellers of property, while retaining the professional services of a single agent, have access to the marketing facilities of all REALTORS who participate. 2. Buyers, by contacting one REALTOR, may have access to the listings of all REALTORS who participate. 3. The needs of the buyer and seller are more readily matched, this serving their interests, and saving time in more readily acquiring or disposing of property.

FORCED RESIGNATION — Leon E. Panetta resigned yesterday as director of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's civil rights office. Panetta told a news conference his resignation was forced when pressure from Congress became too great for the White House to resist.

Aides Undermined 'Hot' Enforcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A principal Nixon administration civil rights official has resigned with a charge that White House aides undermined tough enforcement of antidiscrimination laws.

Leon E. Panetta, director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's office of civil rights for the past eleven months, said he was forced to resign because of what he termed protests that were heeded at the White House from racist members of Congress on the pace of school desegregation.

Panetta, a 31-year-old, outspoken liberal Republican, said government-wide civil rights efforts are endangered because of lack of sustained presidential support.

"I think they (the administration) are playing with a big danger here of losing a lot of good people who have fought this battle for years," he said at a news conference Tuesday.

Panetta condemned a "kind of buying and selling" going on in administration civil rights policy that is undermining antidiscrimination enforcement.

Panetta said he believed President Nixon is still committed to his campaign pledge of bringing the country together.

"But I do believe those around the President and others whose principle goal is not to bring us together but to win the next election are primarily responsible for the policies that have resulted in this area," he said.

Panetta would not identify particular White House aides or members of Congress who demanded his resignation.

The rights official said he first offered his resignation four or five months ago but was talked out of it by HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch.

However, Panetta said, the two agreed Tuesday "we had fought this into the ground . . . the pressures got too great and the people affected by the pressures became too great."

Asked whether the White House demanded his resignation, Panetta replied: "You can say congressional sources asked for it. Either way you want to play it."

Earlier in the day, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, when asked if Panetta had been fired, responded he could only say the official had submitted his resignation.

Loving, Admiring Salute To Bobby

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Man Hunters" on NBC Tuesday night was a real-life suspense tale about detectives whose exploits were more fascinating than those of Sherlock Holmes or his descendants in fiction.

It was the story of a search for the beginnings of man in the mists of time before recorded history. The hunters are anthropologists and the search is in progress in Africa, Asia and Europe.

Clues are fragments of bones and teeth, hand-fashioned tools and weapons. The hunters were shown carefully digging dirt by the thimbleful, screening soil for tiny shells and seeds.

In one case, they decided that one early ape-man had been killed by a tiger by matching up holes in a fossilized skull with fossilized tiger teeth.

The program was well organized, used an assortment of illustrative devices and had the excellent services of E. G. Marshall as narrator.

"McCloud: Who Killed Miss U.S.A.?" the two-hour "World Premiere" feature on NBC was a fast-paced police action story that developed some interesting characters and had interesting New York City background.

It starred Dennis Weaver, who pulled his old "Chester" accent off the shelf to portray a drawling, match-chewing deputy marshal from New Mexico solving a murder case under the noses of the sophisticated New York police.

Shot largely on location, much of the film showed the deputy wandering around Manhattan slums and barrios.

At the end, there was a revealing little twist: The deputy was assigned to New York to study police work. This suggested the show's producers would like to spin it into a series. NBC could do worse, although Weaver's portrait of a country cop sometimes got too hay-seedy to be believable.

ABC broadcast the 90-minute memorial to Robert F. Kennedy which had received attention across the country. The film was written by Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and narrated by John Huston.

It used the usual documentary techniques to put together a portrait of a man who was in the public eye for a long time. There were news film clips, taped excerpts from speeches, family photographs, reminiscences of family, friends and associates.

The result was a loving and admiring salute. It did not, however, add much to what already had been shown and said of the young man who met at tragic death almost two years ago.

"Annie, the Women in the Life of a Man" on CBS—9-10 EST—tonight stars Anne Bancroft in a series of sketches, songs and dances that combine to make a witty and original hour which is virtually a one-woman show.

Murder-For-Hire Trial Under Way

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — The long, tedious task of selecting a jury for the murder-for-hire trial of Pete Thomas Scamardo ended Tuesday.

Testimony is to begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday and is expected to last from three to six weeks.

Jury selection took almost 17 days. A total of 1,300 persons were called for possible jury service. Prosecution and defense lawyers extensively questioned 140 persons before completing the jury.

Miss Edelmira Martinez, 24, a bookkeeper for a Weslaco variety store, was the 12th juror selected. Miss Martinez, who said she is opposed to the death penalty, is a Catholic and a graduate of Weslaco High School.

The jury is composed of six men and six women.

Although Dist. Atty. Oscar McInnis is seeking the death penalty, he accepted five persons who said they opposed such a sentence. Six of the jurors expressed no opposition, and one was not specifically asked if she opposes the death penalty.

Scamardo, 31, of Hearne, Tex., is accused of being an accomplice in the 1968 shooting death of Sam Degelia Jr., his former business partner and longtime friend.

The prosecution alleges Scamardo offered Charles V. Harrelson of Houston $2,000 to kill Degelia, who was found shot to death near McAllen July 11, 1968.

Harrelson is charged with murder with malice and is to be tried later.

A third man originally charged in the Degelia slaying, Jerry O. Watkins of Houston, is listed as a prosecution witness. The murder with malice indictment against Watkins, 43, was dismissed just before the trial got underway Jan. 26.

Dist. Atty. McInnis said his first witness would probably be Mrs. Ginger Degelia, wife of the victim. He said Watkins would probably be about the sixth person to testify.

Jurors for the case include Miss Norma Castro, 25, Pharr; Bernardino Bazan, 28, McAllen; Mrs. Jack Christoffel, Pharr; Mrs. Emma Lopez, 39, Mission; Dr. John Fucik, 41, Weslaco; E. B. May, 64, Mercedes; W.O. Garren, 64, McAllen; R.A. Morell, 55, McAllen; Mrs. Maria Ellena Rodriguez, 22, Weslaco; Miss Magdalena Cantu, San Juan; Rodolfo Gonzalez, 49, Weslaco and Miss Martinez.

Neches River Called Filthy

BEAUMONT (AP) — Representatives of 70 industries operating along the Neches River were told Monday the stream is filthy and it's up to them to do something about it.

"The level of pollution interferes with aquatic life and water temperature rises as much as seven degrees in the summer," said Dick Whittington, Austin field director of operations for the Texas Water Quality Board.

He said the board was ordering drastic improvement of the industries' water treatment systems.

A hearing will be held in 60 to 90 days to amend all waste permits to "conform with excellent treatment levels," Whittington said.

"If the state and industries cannot solve the problem it's an open invitation to the federal government to intervene," he said.

Whittington said the water board probably will reject two proposals for joint treatment facilities in the Neches River area. He did not name the locations or identify the authors of the proposals.

Such a joint plan would require long range study and the water board "is no longer receptive to long term studies," he said.

Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr., president of Civil Engineering Systems, Inc., of College Station, said that at low flow level the Neches River becomes practically stagnant.

Low tides, Whittington added, interfere with the river's flushing of oil, toxics and other pollutants.

Public Works Employes Taking Diesel Course

Public Works employes will begin classes Monday in the operation and maintenance of diesel equipment, to be taught by Al Jones of the Texas A&M Engineering Extension School, City Manager Larry Crow said this morning.

Attending the classes, which are scheduled to run through Thursday of next week, will be some 12 to 15 public works employes including supervisors, operators and mechanics, Crow said. The program was requested by the city, he said, and will include training in all phases of diesel operations, including safety.

Jones will work with the men both in the classroom and in the field between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. each of the four days, Crow said.
