Clinton queries persist

Controversy of candidate's fidelity won't die

■ Woman releases tapes, says Arkansas governor lied on '60 Minutes.'

By A.L. May and Christina Cheakalos
N.Y. Times News Service

BATON ROUGE, La. — Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, a leading Democratic candidate for president, tried to close the door on questions about his marital fidelity Monday but the controversy wouldn't die as his accuser played the role of spurned lover.

Gennifer Flowers, an Arkansas state employee and sometime cabaret singer, insisted Monday in a New York City news conference that Clinton is "absolutely lying" when he says he did not have a 12-year affair with her.

"She didn't tell the truth," said Clinton later, his face reddening in a campaign appearance in Baton Rouge. "As far as I'm concerned it's a closed matter."

Few Democratic experts expected the tabloid-driven story to subside anytime soon, although Clinton and his wife, Hillary, were getting good marks on their appearance for a "60 Minutes" program Sunday.

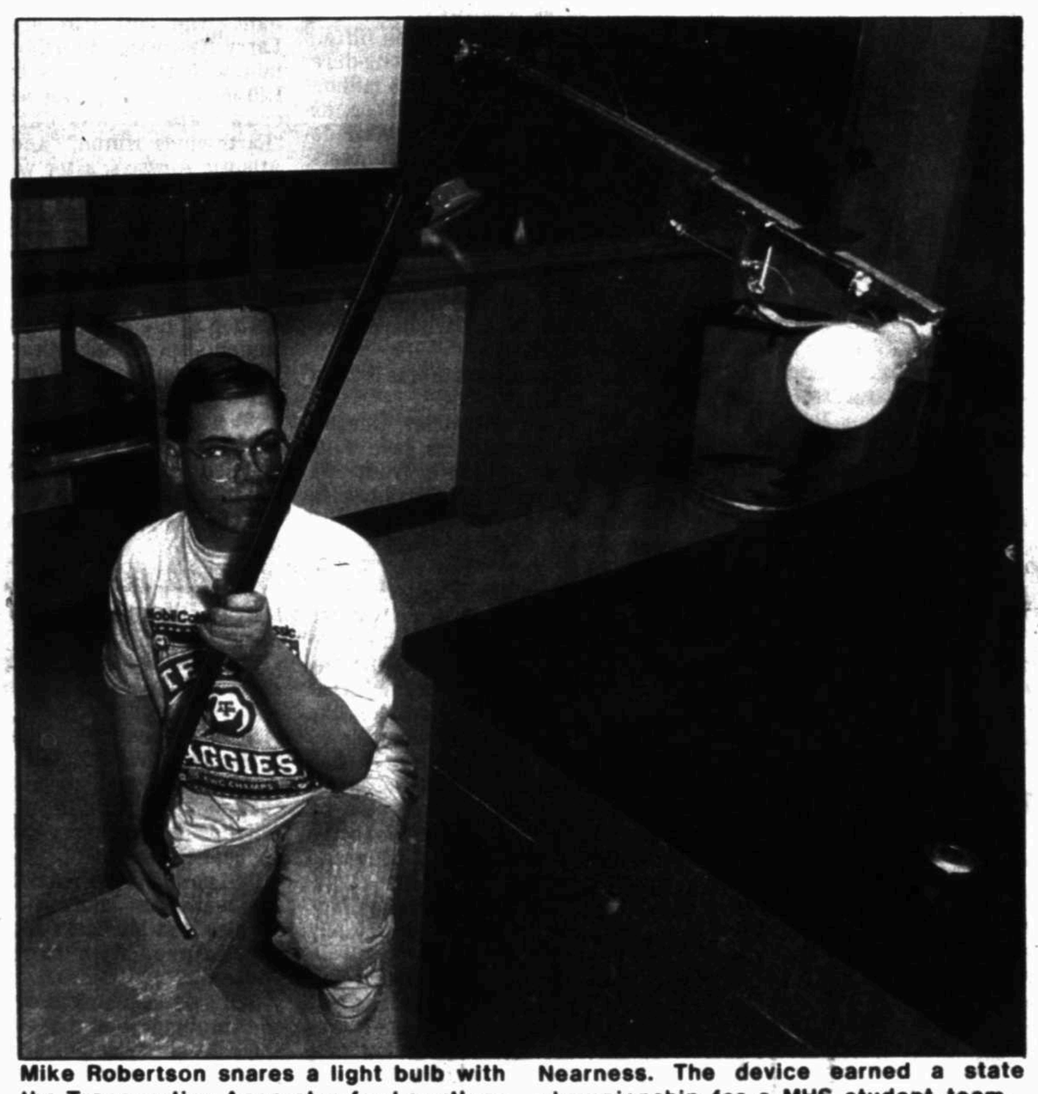

CBS estimated that the program , which followed the Super Bowl, drew 40 million viewers, many of whom were getting their first look at the young presidential hopeful.

Morales 'strengthens' bounds, Seltzer says

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales' opinion on the bounds of Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter's authority "certainly strengthens" the Commissioners' Court's contention that the sheriff should restrict his powers to Midland and not venture out on reverse stings, Midland County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said on Monday.

Last week, Morales wrote that a "sheriff has no general authority to investigate criminal activities outside of the geographical boundaries of the county in which he is elected."

The sheriff, however, said last week that his deputies "don't control and investigate in someone else's authority (jurisdiction)" when they are carrying out reverse stings in concert with other law-enforcement agencies in order to catch drug traffickers, drug money and contraband.

The sheriff and Clayton McKinney — captain of the operations division — claim their undercover narcotics agents only venture into other counties and states at the invitation of other law-enforcement agencies. In doing so, they said, the deputies were fol-

Court to seek law officers' insurance buy

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court on Monday agreed to seek bids on insurance coverage for Midland County's law-enforcement officers.

In seeking coverage, which would top out at $2 million per incident, the county would be "protecting both the officers and the taxpayers' investment in Midland County," Midland County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said.

"We're hoping we never have to use it, but I think the court owes it to the officers and to the taxpayers to try to protect their investment and to protect the officers individually," he said.

Seltzer said that as a lawyer, he is "trained to think in preventive measures."

Midland High team 'grabs' top state engineering honor

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Midland High School students proved they could build a better "picker-upper" at a recent engineering design contest.

Not only could they build a better gadget, their efforts garnered them the state championship at the recent National Engineering Design Challenge competition in the Balcones Research Center of the University of Texas at Austin.

It was the first time Midland students — who were coached by area professional engineers — had entered the competition.

"The Midland High School students even beat last year's national champions from Houston," said Gary Harris, regional coordinator of the local area contest sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of Texas Society of Professional Engineers (TSPE).

Ex-champ goes to court in pageant assault case

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Attorneys in Mike Tyson's rape trial cracked the lid on their case during jury selection Monday, making it clear one key will be whether the boxer's teen-age accuser ever said "no" to sex.

"'No' means 'no,'" special prosecutor Greg Garrison told prospective jurors. "If a woman says 'no' and a man forces her anyway, that's rape. A woman is in charge of her body at all times."

Tyson, who was cheered as his arrived at the courthouse, is charged with rape, criminal deviate conduct and confinement. If convicted, the 25-year-old former heavyweight boxing champion could be sentenced to 63 years in prison.

Bush's popularity continues to fall, CBS/Times poll finds

By Robin Toner
N.Y. Times News Service

In his State of the Union message tonight, President Bush will speak to a nation that is gloomier than it has been in 13 years, more disapproving of his presidency than ever and increasingly willing to try a Democrat in the White House, according to the latest New York Times/CBS News Poll.

The survey suggests that Bush's speech at 8 p.m. CST may be the most important of his presidency. He is facing a discontented and volatile electorate that on a variety of issues is willing to give the opposition party the benefit of the doubt.

Seventy-three percent of those polled see the country as being in worse shape today than it was five years ago, a crucial measure of the national mood that has not been this grim since the days of "malaise" under Jimmy Carter when the figure was 63 percent.

Ace, Russian astronaut high on 'world' balloon challenge

By Malcolm W. Browne
N.Y. Times News Service

AKRON, Ohio — For more than two centuries aeronauts have dreamed of circumnavigating the world in a balloon, the last great aeronautical challenge remaining to be conquered.

All the adventurers who previously attempted the daunting 22,000-mile voyage have failed, but this week an American balloon ace, a seasoned aeronautical mechanic and a senior Russian astronaut are completing preparations for the launching of Earthwinds, the most complex and advanced balloon ever built.

If all goes well in the next few days in Akron, the huge craft, carrying American and Russian scientific experiments as well as the three crew members, will ascend on Thursday or Friday from its berth at the Loral Defense Systems Air Dock, a gigantic hangar built in 1929 to accommodate the largest di-

WEATHER SUMMARY

Morning fog, low 50s on tap

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for fog in the morning and partly cloudy skies in the afternoon with a high in the lower 50s and north to northwest winds at five to 15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the lower 30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 50s.

After an overnight low of 43, Monday's high reached 51 compared with the record high for that date of 80 set in 1970. The record low for that date is 10 set in 1948.

CLINTON: 'It's a closed matter,' candidate says

(From 1A)

The sentiment among Southern Democratic leaders interviewed was best summed up by Alabama State Chairman William Blount:

"I think he did a fine job, but I don't think it is over," he said. "It's going to be a matter of what the press does and it going to be a sad day if he gets hounded out of this race because of this."

Democratic National Committee Chairman Ron Brown came to Clinton's defense and chided the news media in general and CNN in particular for broadcasting Ms. Flowers's news conference, which featured a blowup of the Star supermarket tabloid which paid the woman for her story.

"Enough is enough," Brown said. "We should pull the plug on trash journalism and titillating television."

Brown also released a copy of a letter he sent to CNN's Ed Turner and Tom Hannon complaining that CNN's live coverage of Ms. Flowers's news conference, after it "led the way" in 1988 in refusing to air unsubstantiated rumors of sexual infidelity by then-Vice President George Bush.

Flanked by her lawyer and officials from the Star tabloid newspaper, Ms. Flowers told reporters that she was "disgusted" by the presidential candidate's television appearance.

"The truth is I loved him," said Ms. Flowers,"Now he tells me to deny it." She refused to answer questions about how much money the Star paid her.

Ms. Flowers also said "a local Republican" approached her six months ago to ask her if she would publicly admit to having had an affair with Clinton. An Arkansas party official denied the GOP was involved.

BUSH: President's popularity declines, poll finds tional health care and even ending the recession, the poll found. Sixty percent in the telephone survey of 1,281 adults nationwide say it is time to give a Democrat a chance as president, but Republican strategists note that an idealized generic nominee is likely to fare far better in polls than an actual one.

Support for Bush continues to erode, with just 43 percent saying they approve of his performance as president, an astonishing drop of 45 points since his popularity rating reached 88 percent, a historic peak, after the Persian Gulf war.

Perhaps most tellingly, the public has even lost confidence in Bush's handling of foreign policy, long his strong suit in the polls. In the latest survey, conducted Wednesday through Saturday, 46 percent approved of his conduct of foreign policy, while 46 percent disapproved. The poll had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus three percentage points.

While the poll outlines extraordinary opportunity for the Democrats, it is just that. The survey shows that less than a month before the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 18 only one Democrat, Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, has broken from the pack in the race for the presidential nomination.

Among those who said they were likely to vote in the Democratic primaries nationwide, Clinton's support has jumped to 22 percent, from 5 percent in October. The governor now is trying to steady his campaign in the face of accusations in a supermarket tabloid that he committed adultery.

Presidential approval ratings at this stage of a campaign are not a reliable indicator of a president's chances on Election Day. Two recent presidents had ratings in the Gallup polls similar to Bush's in January of their re-election year — Gerald R. Ford, who went on to lose, though narrowly, and Richard M. Nixon, who stood at 46 percent approval at the beginning of 1972, and won 49 states that November against George S. McGovern.

Charles R. Black Jr., a senior adviser to the Bush campaign, said that the Democratic race was "in its embryonic stages" and that any predictions about the strength of the party's eventual nominee were highly premature.

The economy is clearly driving political attitudes now, and profoundly changing the zeitgeist of the 1980s. Seventy-eight percent of those polled say the economy is in bad shape, and only 9 percent say they think it is improving.

Even with a burdensome federal deficit, the survey suggests that the public is in the mood for a more active government.

rigibles ever built in America, the ill-fated Akron and Macon.

The Earthwinds balloon is supposed to rise slowly to an altitude of about 35,000 feet, slip into the eastward-flowing jet stream, and complete its trip around the world in something under two weeks.

But the unpredictable jet stream could take the craft over such hazards as the Persian Gulf, the Arctic Sea or the Himalayas, and its crew has planned for the worst: stowed in compartments aboard the boxcar-sized crew capsule are parachutes, Arctic clothing, cold-water immersion suits, rescue beacons and even a hunting rifle.

The Earthwinds balloon differs radically from previous long-duration balloons and cost $3.5 million, not counting the time, labor, expertise, devices and material donated by hundreds of volunteers. The balloon's builders say it has more in common with a manned space vehicle than with any conventional airship or balloon.

It is also one of the most expensive lighter-than-air craft ever built. The cost was shared by Larry Newman, the balloon's captain, with nine sponsors, including Hilton Hotels Corp., for which the crew capsule was christened "Earthwinds Hilton," and Virgin Atlantic Airways, after which the balloon itself was named "Virgin Earthwinds."

Newman, the organizer, fundraiser, construction chief and captain of Earthwinds, is a 44-year-old millionaire businessman, airline captain for America West Airlines, and veteran of several historic balloon flights. Those include the first balloon flight across the Atlantic Ocean, aboard Double Eagle II in 1978, and the first across the Pacific, aboard Double Eagle V in 1981.

four men — were seated before court was adjourned Monday.

Among the men were a truck driver, a T-shirt printer, a body shop parts manager and a specialist who works with learning disabled and emotionally handicapped children. Two of the men said they were sports fans who don't follow boxing, although they had seen Tyson fight on television.

"Do you believe Mike Tyson is violent?" Tyson attorney Vincent Fuller asked one man. "In the ring, he is," replied the man, who eventually was seated.

Judge Patricia J. Gifford estimated that jury selection would take about two days, with opening statements as early as Wednesday afternoon.

Tyson's accuser, an 18-year-old Miss Black America contestant, told police she met Tyson at a pageant rehearsal on July 18 and went with him to his hotel room, where in the pre-dawn hours of July 19 he restrained her on the bed and raped her.

"Do you think rape is less a crime if the woman used bad judgment?" Garrison asked the parts manager.

"I don't think she should be punished for bad judgment," the juror replied.

Tyson, who has often been accused of fondling women, insists his accuser consented to sex.

"The woman knows what happened. I know what happened. I'm innocent," the boxer said after an earlier court appearance.

During jury selection Monday, Tyson's attorney, Vincent Fuller, asked jurors about their understanding of implied consent — the idea that behavior could signal willingness, even though the word "yes" had never been uttered.

Fuller, who successfully defended John Hinckley in the shooting of then-President Reagan, also questioned jurors about how they would handle conflicting medical testimony, explicit discussion of male and female anatomy and the use of vulgar language.

BIDS: Court seeks policy

(From 1A)

Court has a responsibility to provide our law-enforcement officers with that type of personal coverage."

"Furthermore, the court has a responsibility to protect the taxpayers, and that's what we are doing now," he said.

For several years, the county has not had liability insurance coverage for law enforcement officers in the sheriff's, constable's, district attorney's and county attorney's offices.

"We are essentially self-insured by default," Seltzer said.

He noted that Sheriff Gary Painter has placed law-enforcement liability insurance as high priority.

"I agree with him," Seltzer said.

Since he assumed office in January 1991, Seltzer said he has "been pursuing this. We should provide it for them."

Monday night Painter said the judge was seeking the coverage for himself. "He's not doing it for me. The judge is the one that's wanting it."

Painter, who has been sheriff since 1985, said the only lawsuits filed against his office were by aggrieved prisoners in the Midland County Jail.

"They very seldom agree on anything we want them to do," he said.

Painter, who has been at loggerheads with Seltzer since mid-1991 in their continuing disagreement over the sheriff's authority, said the coverage is "going to cost the taxpayers."

In seeking the "cheapest and best" coverage, the Commissioners' Court has hired Kathleen Miller, an Austin-based insurance consultant, to assist the court in finding a carrier.

Midland County Attorney Mark H. Dettman had been an advocate of a self-insured county.

"With our experience rate and the generally conservative nature of juries, I feel comfortable with Midland County's self-insuring rather than spending that money on law-enforcement insurance," he said.

"In any respect," Dettman said, "I recognize the importance of having either an insurance policy or a certain amount of funds set aside in case of a disastrous judgment."

Seltzer declined to discuss annual premiums that the Commissioners' Court would be willing to pay for coverage.

"I don't want to tip off any prospective bidders on what we may or may not be willing to pay," the judge said. If the bids are not reasonable, then the commissioners "may take another look at the self-insurance," he said.

Seltzer said that insurance coverage is "important, especially with the litigious nature of today's society."

"We need to be going ahead and providing this type of protection for our law-enforcement officers and also at the same time protecting the taxpayers' investment," Seltzer said.

Should a Midland County law-enforcement officer be involved in a gunfight and a bystander accidentally is hit, then "it's possible a lawsuit would be filed under those circumstances and the lawsuit would come against Midland County," Seltzer said.

HONOR: MHS team builds a better 'picker-upper'

(From 1A)

The MHS students, who will represent Texas in the national competition on Saturday, competed against peers from Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Tyler and Austin.

Harris — an employee of the engineering firm Parkhill, Smith & Cooper — said about 14 local engineers volunteered to coach teams from MHS, Lee, Odessa and Permian high schools.

"Students were given a written problem. They had to design and build the device themselves from an idea on a piece of paper to the finished product," Harris said. "We provided an advising engineer who watched students to see that the project was carried out safely and to give a sense of direction, but not solve the problem."

He said the actual conceptualization and work on the model was the responsibility of students. The team coaches and advising engineers provided guidelines and advice.

The MHS students devised the TALON (Transporting Apparatus for Length or Nearness). MHS senior Matt Spencer was the brain behind the device's name. "We tried to think up something that would be catchy and attract attention in Austin," Harris said.

The TALON — equipped with a battery-operated light, a mirror and a magnet to see behind large appliances like refrigerators — succeeded in picking up everything from a two-pound sack of flour to a sewing needle.

The TALON had to facilitate "handling, placing, retrieving and manipulating common household or office items that are beyond ordinary reach."

The competition's theme is "Just out of reach."

MHS science teacher Charles Bell said the students gave a 10-minute presentation in front of a panel of judges. "They had to pick up some pretty tricky things with the device, such as a wet bar of soap," he said. "They also had to answer questions about the processes used in order to develop the machine, which ideas they discarded and why, the scientific theory behind the machine, and what a future machine would look like with additional technology."

Bell said students were challenged with designing a device that could easily be operated by the handicapped and the arthritic or persons in need of a gadget to grab difficult-to-reach items.

"I used it to get something off of a top shelf," he said. "It actually does work."

Matt said students involved in the project worked evenings and weekends to get it going. "It was strictly an extracurricular project," he said. "We started by talking about it and playing around with it on a chalk board."

MHS senior Niki Fanning, team captain for the project, gave the presentation at the competition and served as the group's spokesperson.

"I had some discouraging moments at the beginning when I was depending on myself to get the job done," she said. "I knew about being a leader but I didn't know about working as a team. I realized I had to depend on other people to get it done."

Then at the Austin competition, students spent much time operating the device and picking up various objects.

"It was a nerve-wracking day," Niki said.

When MHS was announced as the state winner, Niki said, "I was out of my seat. . . . I jumped right up."

The team captain said she plans to become a mechanical engineer. Matt has his sights set on a career in nuclear engineering.

But those are long-term goals. A short-term goal for both students is to successfully present the project at the national competition Saturday in Washington, D.C.

Other MHS students on the state championship team include Glenn Antrim, and brothers Bradley and Michael Robertson.

Bell coached the team; advising engineer was James Robertson, Bradley and Michael's father and an engineer with the city of Midland.

Bell said coaching the students and funding their expenses "involved a complicated mix of people from the local chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers to the Math and Science Boosters."

"Vincent Bash (a local dentist and Math and Science Booster founder) initially got us involved back in September," he said. "This is the first time that the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Petroleum Engineers hosted a regional contest."

Bell said while the national SPE is footing the bill to send the winning team to Washington, D.C., some local individuals also donated funds to cover additional expenses.

The TSPE contributed $500 so the students can stay an additional day for sightseeing in the nation's capitol.

Harris said several teachers from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin served as regional judges and the Center for Economic Diversification offered rooms for the area competition at a reduced rate.

Lee High School students also advanced to the state competition but did not place in the top three positions. A previous report from the TSPE in Austin incorrectly said LHS students placed third, but it was referring to students from Robert E. Lee High in Tyler.

Harris attributed the success of local students to their accomplished presentation before the judges.

"The competition involved composition, presentation and public speaking in front of their peers," he said. "If you had the best widget in the world, but couldn't present it, well, it wouldn't win."

The MHS students, who initially competed with their peers from 54 Texas schools, will vie for top honors with teams from 11 other states and the District of Columbia.

"The competition — which is in its third year — will only have 13 representatives at the national event," Harris said.

National competition sponsors include the National Society of Engineers, the National Talent Network and the Junior Engineering Technical Society.

OPINION: Morales adds to case, Seltzer says

(From 1A)

lowing up on narcotics schemes that either originated in Midland County or were being carried out here.

The attorney general's opinion was requested by Midland County Attorney Mark H. Dettman on Aug. 14 after the Commissioners' Court issued an Aug. 12 order to curtail the sheriff's out-of-county reverse-sting drug operations.

The opinion was to clarify and define the sheriff's jurisdiction and to ascertain who possesses forfeited drug money.

Morales' opinion, which quotes constitutional and statutory law, states that "each sheriff shall be a conservator of the peace in his county."

Painter said the "host agency" handles the investigation, while Midland County undercover deputies "are there to assist, to provide information and not to control or interfere in day-to-day jurisdictional operation of their offices."

The sheriff had been participating in reverse stings, engineered by McKinney from 1987 until last August after the commissioners ordered Painter to curtail his out-of-county operations.

Afterward, the sheriff sued the Commissioners' Court in contesting its authority to restrict his power.

Trial date for the lawsuit has not been set. But any trial over the conflict likely will not be held until after the March 10 Republican Party primary in which Painter, facing three opponents, is seeking nomination to a third four-year term.

Seltzer said the sheriff may venture out of county on investigations when there is "a valid inter-local agreement."

But "there are no valid inter-local agreements entered into by the Midland County Commissioners' Court or any other government in this area that authorizes our law-enforcement officers, whether they are invited or not, to participate in enforcing the law in other counties, let alone in other states," Seltzer said.

Seltzer said the law is "fairly clear-cut on that."

"They don't have jurisdiction to operate" outside Midland County if there is "not a valid inter-local agreement," Seltzer said.

Morales' opinion "clearly states" that a sheriff and his deputies "are not allowed to operate outside their jurisdiction" except under "specified exceptions," Seltzer said.

Midland taxpayers "are hung out on the line" if the Midland deputies "get into some kind of trouble," Seltzer said. "They aren't borrowed servants, and there is no agency agreement."

Seltzer has been alarmed about Midland County's liability should something go awry, such as the accidental shooting of an innocent bystander, in one of Painter's out-of-county sting operations.

"That is what I have been trying to stop in the first place — the exposure to that kind of activity and that type of liability," Seltzer said. "We owe that to the taxpayers."

"The liability involved far outweighs (any forfeited drug money)," he said. "The whole county is going to pay for that — not just the sheriff's office."

Seltzer noted that the opinion alluded to an officer serving warrants outside the county, not to an officer witnessing a crime that "he does not have to ignore. That is a reactive statute, not pro-active."

"If the officer is sitting in a 7-Eleven, and a guy walks in and robs it, he has the right to stop the robbery even though he is not a law-enforcement officer in that jurisdiction," Seltzer said.

The law also allows for a sheriff and his deputies to cross county lines in pursuit of criminal suspects.

Seltzer was out of state late last week on assignment with the U.S. Air Force Reserves when Morales' opinion reached Dettman and was unavailable for comment until Monday.

Yeltsin disappears; rumors run rampant

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia made another characteristically abrupt retreat from public life on Monday, this time stirring a sense of mystery and diplomatic risk on the eve of the Middle East conference here of leading nations whose economic aid he has been courting.

Yeltsin cancelled all meetings for two days and left Moscow to focus on domestic problems and a coming foreign mission, according to the office of the Russian president, who has disappeared previously on sudden restorative retreats that caused world anxiety about the stability of this troubled nation and its leader.

Aside from any perceived slight to the arriving conference officials, his unexpected departure to an undisclosed location heightened the focus on Yeltsin's executive style and resiliency as he prepared to depart later this week for another trip to the United States.

The Russian president will be intent on reassuring the world, both at the United Nations and in a White House visit, that the Russian republic deserves moral and economic support as it tries to lead the republics of the fallen Soviet Union in a new Commonwealth of Independent States.

Previously, Yeltsin's chief aides had said that they preferred to sacrifice parts of his busy agenda occasionally to see him better prepared for critical missions. But the tactic invariably proves unsettling both in this crisis-bedevilled land and in the world's speculative stock markets.

Yeltsin, who received mixed personal reviews in two previous visits to the United States, will resume his Kremlin schedule on Wednesday and meet with Secretary of States James A. Baker III, the president's office said.

"Circumstances arose which required his departure from Moscow," his spokesman, Pavel Voshchanov, explained, again denying recurrent speculation that Yeltsin might be seriously ill from heart disease or alcohol abuse.

"These rumors are absolutely foolish and are being circulated by those who do not want Yeltsin to be Russian president," Voshchanov declared.

The Yeltsin agenda lately has been most heavy with the pressures of trying to spark a free market economy into being from the ashes of communism. The first step, a switch to free-floating consumer prices after 74 years of drastically suppressed prices through state subsidies, has incurred the public wrath and loss of personal popularity that Yeltsin predicted when he ordered the change on Jan. 2 as an unavoidable necessity.

Police watch Iraqi mob rough up U.N. inspectors

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — With Iraqi police looking on passively, U.N. weapons inspectors were roughed up and menaced Monday by a shouting crowd of Iraqi men, the United Nations said. It denounced the Baghdad government's "clear breach" of agreements covering the inspections.

It was the latest in a series of ugly incidents involving the inspectors, whose work is being carried out under the terms of the Persian Gulf War cease-fire. There were no reports of injuries to the inspectors in Monday's confrontation.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the team's leader, U.S. Army Maj. Karen Jansen, and two colleagues were "jostled, shouted at and pinned against the wall of the lobby" while police looked on.

The crowd — about 40 Iraqi men — was described as being made up of demonstrators, but in Iraq protests are often orchestrated by the government. A U.N. official called it a "hired mob."

Despite pleas for help from the police, the rest of the inspection team was trapped inside a bus in front of the hotel for about 25 minutes before they decided to force their way through the crowd into the hotel, he said.

Giuliani said police watched without intervening as the men shouted slogans and jumped up and down on the U.N. vehicles.

"The police, in response to questions why they did not do anything, said they 'were not allowed to,'" he said.

The 18-member chemical and biological weapons inspection team had just arrived in Baghdad from Bahrain, where the U.N. inspectors have headquarters.

"I understand it was an organized protest by a hired mob in which about 40 people were involved," said Alastair Livingston, U.N. special commission regional officer in Bahrain.

He said "there was some pushing and shoving when the team got there," but did not hear of any injuries.

Dispute about Palestinian delegation threatens latest Mideast peace talks

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — A last-minute controversy over the makeup of a Palestinian delegation threatened today's scheduled opening of the third phase of the Middle East peace talks.

The problem arose Monday when the Palestinians, upset over Israeli restrictions on the makeup of their delegation to previous sessions in Madrid and Washington, broadened their contingent to include delegates unacceptable to the Jewish state.

The new composition of the delegation left Russia, as host of the conference, a difficult choice. To accredit the broadened delegation risks the possibility Israel will refuse to participate. To reject the delegation risks a possible boycott by both the Palestinians and Arab participants to the talks.

The Reuters news agency, quoting diplomats in Tunisia, reported that three of the 11 delegates were from Jerusalem and three others were from outside the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip — two categories excluded from direct talks in previous sets of talks. However, the news agency said, the Palestinians left their exact functions undefined, apparently to give them leeway in last-minute negotiations with the Russians on a formula for taking part.

There was immediate speculation that Secretary of State James A. Baker III, who arrived in Moscow Monday, might be called in to try to mediate the problem. Baker had been instrumental in the initial negotiations with Israel over the makeup of the Palestinian delegation.

On other matters, Baker said Monday that nuclear disarmament in the former Soviet Union is going well and the United States is willing to help even more.

"We think good progress has been made," in reducing tactical nuclear weapons, Baker told reporters as he went into a meeting with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev. The Americans would "absolutely" send technical experts to help destroy the weapons, he added. Tactical nuclear weapons are mobile and have caused the most alarm because they could be more easily stolen and misused.

The World

■ Shamir survives Israeli no-confidence vote

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's government survived a string of no-confidence votes in Parliament, overcoming its first such challenge since two small, right-wing parties defected from the governing coalition last week, stripping it of a majority.

Opposition movements brought a total of five motions of no-confidence on Monday to protest the government's handling of social and economic matters. But the motions were defeated in a single 55-49 vote after several hours of debate.

The widely expected victory was partly a result of abstentions by members of the two parties that left the fragile coalition last week to protest Israel's participation in the Middle East peace talks. With their abstentions on Monday, however, the parties indicated that they do not yet want to see Shamir's government brought down.

■ Canada: U.S. can extradite ex-pinup

TORONTO — A judge ruled Monday that the United States can proceed with its extradition request for ex-pinup Lawrencia "Bambi" Bembenek, a onetime Milwaukee police officer who escaped from prison while serving a life term for murder.

Ontario Court Judge David Watt said proceedings against the 33-year-old former Playboy Club waitress do not violate her rights under Canadian law.

She has sought refugee status here, claiming she was framed in the 1981 killing of Christine Schultz, the ex-wife of her then-husband.

Ms. Bembenek's lawyers had argued she shouldn't be returned to the United States until her refugee claim is decided. It was stalled last December by the U.S. government's extradition request.

■ Two die as hotel in Spain collapses

SANTANDER, Spain — A seven-story downtown hotel undergoing remodeling collapsed Monday morning, killing two construction workers, injuring eight and leaving three trapped and presumed dead, civil defense authorities said.

Eight workers escaped injury.

It was not known what caused the collapse of the 181-room Hotel Bahia in this northern port.

Civil Defense spokesman Juanjo Revuelta said rescuers pulled two bodies from the rubble and that specially trained dogs were searching for more victims.

Revuelta said authorities feared three construction workers trapped in the wreckage were dead. "There is a chance that someone is still alive in an air pocket. But with the tons of material that fell ... it is a very small possibility," he said.

■ Seaplane with nine aboard crashes

NANAIMO, British Columbia — A charter seaplane crashed on takeoff and sank in Newcastle Channel Monday morning. Seven of the nine people aboard were believed killed, Royal Canadian Mounted Police said.

The twin-engine Beech 18 crashed about 8 a.m. in Newcastle Channel, said police Sgt. Peter Montague in Vancouver. Witnesses reported seeing the plane enveloped in a ball of fire.

The plane was floating upside down in the water with seven bodies believed trapped inside, Montague said.

Several vessels, divers and a Canadian Coast Guard helicopter were dispatched to the area, said Capt. David Mansi of Canadian Search and Rescue in Victoria.

Rescue workers in boats combed the water in driving rain and gusting winds. The marine forecast for the area included gale force southeast winds.

Mitterrand's Socialists take beating at polls

N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS — The governing Socialist Party of President Francois Mitterrand, battered by a weak economy and mired in a leadership crisis, suffered a humiliating defeat in parliamentary and municipal by-elections on Sunday as support for the ultra-right National Front surged.

The results of the six by-elections, released on Monday, suggested that the popularity of the Socialists had fallen to its lowest point since Mitterrand took office a decade ago. They also revealed an angry French electorate, tired of traditional parties, and drawn to the xenophobic platform of the National Front, which proposes sending immigrants back to the countries they came from.

"This poll indicates a worried country with a leadership crisis and a party in power that is tired and has lost its sense of identity," said Gerard Grunberg, a political scientist and member of the Socialist Party. "Ten years is long for any governing party."

With nationwide regional elections approaching in March, and crucial parliamentary elections next year, the results increased pressure on Mitterrand, who is 75, to revamp his party. Several political analysts suggested he may eventually be obliged to replace the prime minister, Edith Cresson, who has proved unpopular since her appointment last May.

Mitterrand's term does not expire until 1995, but he is seeking to avoid an awkward "cohabitation" with the right wing should the Socialists lose control of Parliament next year.

The worst defeat for the Socialists came in a depressed industrial area near the northern town of Lille, where the party was pushed into third place by the National Front and thereby knocked out of a runoff between the top two finishers next Sunday. Such run-offs between the two leading parties are held in France when no candidate gains a majority in the first round of voting.

The Socialists' share of the vote in Lille plunged to 12.97 percent from 31.14 percent in the last election in 1988. The National Front's vote rose sharply to 15.71 percent from 10.36 percent. The leading party in the Lille parliamentary voting was the incumbent Union of French Democracy, a centrist party.

In a municipal race in the eastern town of Bischwiller, in Alsace, the National Front again gained more votes than the Socialists.

Bird expert helps rescue rare Siberian white crane

By Karin Davies
Associated Press writer

FARNHAM, England — Rob Harvey has never seen Siberian white cranes in the wild, but might someday if he and Russian ornithologists are able to save them from extinction.

Harvey is advising the Russians about incubating eggs, at which he is a self-trained expert.

"They've just got to try something," he said in an interview. "That's what it comes down to, because they don't want them to disappear in the wild."

Fewer than 2,000 of the graceful birds remain, which puts the species on the World Checklist of Threatened Birds maintained by the International Council for Bird Preservation in Cambridge. They are in two flocks in Siberia, separated by 1,000 miles.

"Ultimately, there is a real threat of extinction," said Mike Everett, spokesman of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

Why the population has declined is not known, but Everett said some of the causes might be hunting, destruction of the wetlands where the Siberian white cranes winter, and encroachment on their breeding grounds.

Russian ornithologists admired Harvey's book "Practical Incubation" and invited him in August to help save the rare birds.

Harvey, 28, said the book grew out of his meticulous records of what works for particular species and what doesn't.

"There are a lot of old wives' tales about incubation, but little practical information," he said.

China says it's released 9 'Tiananmen' dissidents

N.Y. Times News Service

BEIJING — China said on Monday that it had recently released nine people who had been held in connection with the Tiananmen democracy movement of 1989.

The State Council Information Office declined to identify the nine, who apparently had been held for about two and a half years without charge. But John T. Kamm, an American business executive and human rights advocate who has successfully negotiated the release of dissidents before, said Chinese officials on Saturday gave him the nine names.

He also said that they had informed him that 11 other dissidents were now being sentenced for about the length of time they have been held in prison. The Chinese authorities told him that these people were given short sentences and so would be released soon.

Hundreds and perhaps thousands still remain in prison or under detention for their involvement in the Tiananmen democracy movement, according to human rights organizations. Many of these political offenders may have been sent to labor camps for re-education and were therefore handled outside the legal framework.

The recent releases suggest that China may be dealing with the cases of people who have been under detention since the 1989 crackdown without being formally charged.

China finally seems ready to dispose of these cases just as Prime Minister Li Peng is beginning his first visit to the West since he helped lead the Tiananmen crackdown; his arrival in Italy on Sunday was marked by street protests. Li is also scheduled to visit Switzerland, Portugal, and Spain, and to make his first appearance as head of state in New York, where he will attend the summit meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

Wang Zhixin, who was a student at the University of Politics and Law, in Beijing, was the most prominent protestor released. He was No. 12 on a list of 21 most-wanted students that the government published in the summer of 1989.

ANC official issues warning of possible right-wing coup

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A ranking member of the African National Congress said Monday that white extremists are gaining strength and may try to seize power in a coup to stop blacks from winning political rights.

Secretary-General Cyril Ramaphosa said he was confident any right-wing coup could be defeated because most whites and blacks want reform and would unite to oppose any takeover attempt.

He said the threat should be taken seriously, but added, "I don't think our people as a whole would accept a coup taking place."

Large numbers of whites, fearful of losing status and privilege under a black government, have been flocking to right-wing parties.

The pro-apartheid Conservative Party has been gaining strength at the expense of President F.W. de Klerk's National Party, which is committed to ending the apartheid system of racial segregation and white domination.

Defense Minister Roelf Meyer dismissed any threat of a military coup, saying the military's senior command was loyal to the government.

"We are not thinking about the possibility of a civil war," he told a separate briefing Monday.

The right-wing is divided on how to oppose de Klerk's reforms.

The Conservative Party, the official opposition in Parliament, has so far rejected violence, hoping to force de Klerk to hold a whites-only election.

Envoy from U.N. can't persuade Serb to accept U.N. peace plan

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A U.N. envoy failed Monday to persuade a key ethnic Serb leader to accept peacekeeping troops in Serb-held parts of Croatia, possibly delaying the deployment of up to 10,000 U.N. troops.

Croats, meanwhile, accused the federal army of violating the 3-week-old truce.

U.N. Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding said Milan Babic, leader of the Serb-controlled Krajina enclave, rejected a U.N. plan to post peacekeepers in his region in western Croatia.

He said Babic's "irreconcilable" stand at talks in Knin, capital of Krajina, could delay sending a U.N. peacekeeping force.

The United Nations says it wants to be sure the truce in Croatia will hold before deploying the force in Croatia and neighboring Bosnia-Hercegovina.

Croatian defense officials said infantry of the Serb-led army attacked Sustjepan village on the outskirts of the Adriatic resort of Dubrovnik, which suffered heavy damage during the seven-month-old civil war.

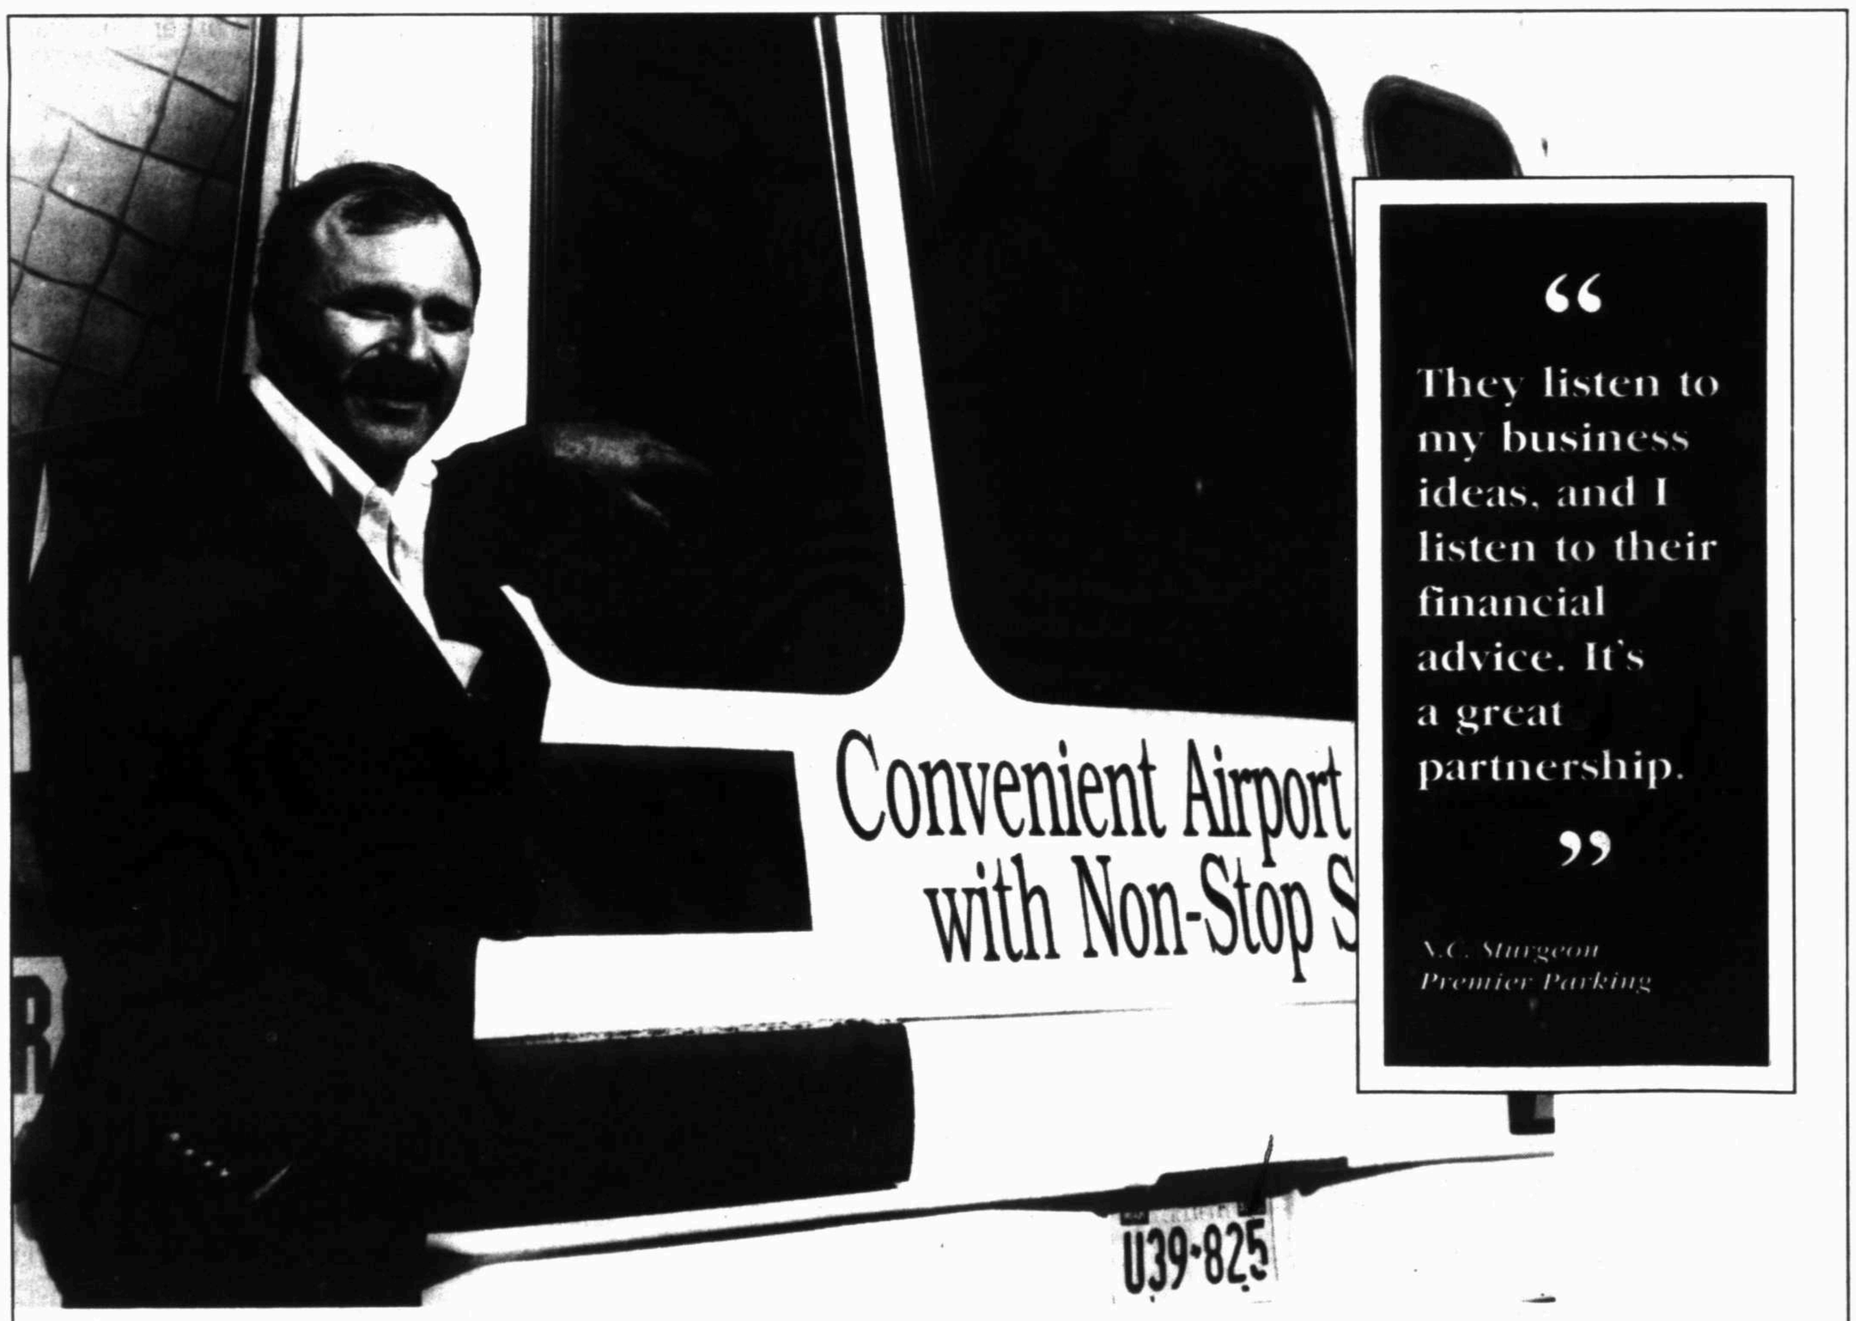

Croatian radio called it the worst breach of the U.N.-brokered cease-fire since it took effect Jan. 3.

Thousands of people have died in battles between the Croatian military and Serb-led forces, including the federal army and ethnic Serbs who fear persecution under an independent Croatia.

In Budapest, Hungary, talks involving Yugoslav federal Transport Ministry officials and representatives from Croatia, Slovenia and international civil aviation organizations also were at an impasse, the state news agency MTI said.

Aim of the talks was to reopen airports in Croatia and Slovenia, have have been recognized as independent nations by the European Community and other countries. The two former republics declared independence June 25.

Florida jury finds woman guilty in slaying

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — A prostitute was found guilty Monday in the slaying of the first of seven men authorities say she killed on Florida highways.

The jury will begin deciding Tuesday whether to recommend a death sentence for Aileen Wuornos, 35.

She was convicted of first-degree murder and felony murder in the killing of businessman Richard Mallory in 1989. The 12-member circuit court jury returned its verdict after deliberating for an hour and 35 minutes.

Wuornos, who claimed she killed the men in self-defense, looked straight ahead as jurors were being polled, and quietly said "I am innocent" as the jury began to file out of the courtroom.

Then, as defense attorneys tried to restrain her, she said "I was raped."

She called the departing jurors "scumbags of America."

Circuit Judge Uriel Blount set a hearing Tuesday to determine whether the jury will recommend death in Florida's electric chair or a mandatory 25-year prison sentence without parole.

At the close of the two-week trial, State Attorney John Tanner told the jury, "She has left you no reasonable choice except to find her guilty."

Tanner said Wuornos fatally shot a would-be client as part of her "deadly pattern" that claimed seven men's lives.

He depicted Wuornos as a cunning, calculating killer motivated by greed.

Belittling the defense effort to separate Mallory from the other slain men, Tanner said: "Similar-fact evidence of other crimes is relevant and material, and is properly and legally considered."

Defense attorney William Miller urged the jury to disregard testimony and evidence of the other six slayings in central and northern Florida in 1990 and to judge Wuornos only in the Mallory case.

Bush waives law to get advice on punishing Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush has quietly exempted 13 top officials from federal conflict-of-interest laws so they may advise him on how Libya can be "punished and isolated" for the bombing of Pan Am flight 103.

Three of the officials, Secretary of State James Baker, then-Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, have large oil investments. One tactic proposed by foreign policy experts has been an oil embargo against the North African nation.

The unusual group waiver was granted by Bush less than a week after two Libyan intelligence officers were indicted by the Justice Department and Britain last November in the 1988 airliner bombing over Lockerbie, Scotland, that killed 270 people.

A president is known to have granted a similar group exemption only once before: In August of 1990, Bush similarly waived the law for 11 top officials so he could get their advice on "policies and military measures" to counter the week-old Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Although both waivers are public documents, neither was publicly disclosed until requested by The Associated Press.

It is a felony for federal officials to take or recommend government actions that directly affect their finances, but a boss can waive the law if the financial interest is too small to influence them.

In both waivers, Bush wrote that although some officials would not need the waiver, others have "substantial financial interests in industries that may be affected."

In the Libyan waiver, Bush concluded, "In my judgment, the nature of the current situation and the gravity of the measures under consideration by the United States are such that even the substantial financial interests held by some of you could not be deemed likely to affect the integrity" of their actions.

"We now face a series of decisions on steps the international community should take to ensure that a major perpetrator of state-sponsored terrorism — Libya — is both punished and isolated," Bush wrote.

Gary Davis, general counsel of the Office of Government Ethics, could not recall another group waiver since waivers were authorized in 1962. But the ethics office was only set up in 1978 and, while agencies frequently consulted it on waivers, they were not required to until 1989.

"We concurred in the final documents both times," Davis said of Bush's group waivers, but it was up to Bush to decide whether their financial holdings were large enough to influence his officials' advice.

The CIA said last year that oil "contributes practically all export earnings and about one-third of gross national product" in Libya. And oil is the primary investment that might present conflict problems for any Bush adviser.

Mosbacher, who left government Jan. 14 to chair Bush's reelection campaign, controlled more than $9.5 million in oil and natural gas exploration, production and transportation assets.

Jury selection begins in sanity trial for Dahmer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Attorneys on Monday began selecting a panel of jurors who will determine if serial killer Jeffrey L. Dahmer was sane when he strangled and dismembered 15 young males he had lured to his home for sex.

The trial will determine whether Dahmer will be sent to prison or to a mental hospital.

About 150 potential jurors reported to the courthouse Monday.

Of the 70 questioned, 25 said they could not serve on a jury that will be sequestered for an expected three-week trial. They were taken one-by-one into the judge's chambers with the attorneys, Dahmer and a pool of three members of the media to explain why.

All 25 were excused, including one woman who said she breeds birds that would die if she were unable to hand-feed them daily. Others cited financial or family reasons, saying they couldn't be away from home or work for three weeks.

"Judge, I just don't have the stomach for it," another woman said.

After three other potential jurors later were excused for various reasons, the remaining 42 were ordered to go home for the night. They were questioned about their feelings about serving at a trial expected to include details of necrophilia and cannibalism.

Defense attorney Gerald Boyle asked the prospective jurors if any of them had ill feelings toward homosexuals, because "evidence is going to show that Jeffrey Dahmer is a homosexual."

District Attorney E. Michael McCann told the group that under Wisconsin law a person can't be found insane simply for committing an unnatural act.

"Such an unnatural act may be having sex with a dead body," McCann said.

People who indicated they had problems with issues raised during group questioning were to be called into the judge's chambers for private questioning.

Dahmer, 31, was arrested in July after officers found body parts scattered through his west side apartment. He later confessed to killing 17 young males since 1978, 16 in Wisconsin and one in Ohio.

Prosecutors said they don't have enough evidence to charge him in one of the Wisconsin deaths.

Iran may become greater menace

Iran may be becoming a greater menace to peace and stability in the Middle East than Iraq.

Governmental intelligence and other reports say the Iranians have purchased billions of dollars worth of advanced fighter planes, tanks and other sophisticated weapons from Russia and other former Soviet republics. The Iranians also have integrated into their air force an estimated 140 Iraqi warplanes which fled to Iran from Iraq during the Persian Gulf War. Tehran is making big buys because Russia and the other republics are reported to be selling at bargain prices because of their desperate need for hard currency. Other reports indicate Iran is receiving help from China to build a nuclear bomb. North Korea is said to be selling them Scud missiles.

The Iranians claim they are forced to strengthen their military because of a continued threat from Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

That may be true, but it is also obvious that Tehran will contest Syria for control of Lebanon and still support Islamic fundamentalists in Algeria and other countries in the Mideast and North Africa.

Despite denials, Iranian intrigue in these regions continues at a very high level. For example, intelligence sources insist that negotiations to release the American hostages took place in Iran, not Lebanon, and the Iranians paid not only for the imprisonment of the Americans and other captives but their release.

Russia and the other republics are doing themselves no favor by selling sophisticated weapons to the Iranians. They have restless Moslems living within their borders near Iran. They also risk their relationships with Washington and other western capitals who express rising concern about their weapons sales. The Commonwealth of States is now engaged in a double game — seeking aid from the West while helping troublemakers. How long can this be permitted? And why should we believe and act on the claim that the Iranians seek peace and stability in the Mideast?

Rather the Middle East is returning to normal — plot and counter-plot.

CNG vehicle industry screeches to a stop

The answer to our prayers! That's what everyone seems to be saying. "All we've got to do is get everybody driving CNG (compressed natural gas) fueled cars and buses!" It sounds good, but "We've got a long way to go baby." CNG fueled vehicles would be a good market for West Texas-produced gas and good for the environment. CNG has all the so-called entrepreneurs claiming they want a part of the deal, but where is their money?

The self-proclaimed leader in the industry (T. Boone Pickens) has been scolding the majors for months to little or no avail. The "chicken or the egg syndrome" has the whole industry at a standstill. No one wants to convert to CNG if they cannot fill up anywhere and no one wants to spend a quarter of a million dollars on a filling station if there's not any vehicles to fill up. One hundred cows can generate more methane gas than is currently being used privately in the Permian Basin for vehicles. It is apparent that CNG-fueled autos is not the immediate answer to a depressed gas market.

So what do we do? There is another answer! For less than the cost of a Sprayberry well — about the cost of a public CNG fueling station — a vast new market can be generated! A market that can potentially use more natural gas than 26 million cars, more than the Seven Sisters currently produce in Texas at a time of year when gas prices are most depressed. And it's a heck of a lot quicker than converting 26 million cars!

It's good to know law officials are concerned

Early this morning we stopped by the sheriff's office to leave a list of guns which had been stolen from us in Mitchell County. The deputy on duty and the young lady in the computer office were very courteous and helpful.

It was wonderful to know that there are still law enforcement people who are concerned about catching criminals.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 28, the 28th day of 1992. There are 338 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 28, 1986, the space shuttle Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff from Cape Canaveral, killing all seven crew members: flight commander Francis R. "Dick" Scobee; pilot Michael J. Smith; Ronald E. McNair; Ellison S. Onizuka; Judith A. Resnik; Gregory B. Jarvis; and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

On this date:

In 1547, England's King Henry VIII died; he was succeeded by his 9-year-old son, Edward VI.

In 1596, the English navigator Sir Francis Drake died during a voyage and was buried at sea.

In 1853, Cuban revolutionary Jose Marti was born in Havana.

In 1871, France surrendered in the Franco-Prussian War.

In 1878, the first commercial telephone switchboard went into operation, in New Haven, Conn.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

It's all in the way that you say it

The humorist Sam Levenson used to tell of a little boy who reported that all the children in his class had been asked to stand up and do a turn on their first day at school. "And what did you do, Johnny?" asked his parents. Replied the boy: "I vomited."

Safire

This homely anecdote convulsed audiences because (a) children do it all too often in real life, and (b) the verb to vomit packs such a punch.

When George Bush, during his state visit to Japan, was afflicted with "stomach flu," as White House aides called it or "intestinal flu" as it was called more formally, or "gastroenteritis" as preferred by Lawrence K. Altman, M.D., medical correspondent of The New York Times, many radio and television news readers shied away from the distasteful verb to describe what the president did. First reports were that he "was taken ill and collapsed" or "became sick to his stomach and fainted"; later, the broadcasters added that he had thrown up.

Print reporters were more inclined to come up with the hard word. When Marlin Fitzwater, the White House press secretary, announced that the president "was feeling weak and was helped to the floor by Secret Service agents," a reporter introduced the V-word: "Was the president nauseous when he slumped to the floor, or was there any vomiting?" Fitzwater, being helped to the truth by inquiring journalists, said: "Yes, he was nauseous. He did vomit just before he slumped to the floor."

But he adopted the questioner's use of nauseous, which most dictionaries say means "causing nausea or disgust; sickening." (Pronounce it NAW-shus, not NAW-zee-us.) Nausea is rooted in "seasickness," from the same Greek root as nautical; for years, good usagists have insisted that the feeling you get before vomiting should be nauseated, not nauseous.

As a card-carrying lexicographer and self-styled usagist, I always say, "I am nauseated," before clapping a handkerchief over my mouth and racing to talk to Ralph on the big white phone, but I don't know anybody else who says that. They all say, "Gawd, I feel nauseous," or offer a telegraphic "Nauseous, gonna go whoops," and they actually take offense when I correct them with "No, you are nauseated"; in one instance, my lap then became the target of a power boot. Since that time, I have accepted nauseous as a synonym for nauseated, and when I need a word to denote "causing nausea," I rely on disgusting. I realize this caving-in to common usage is permissive and descriptive — nauseous to prescriptivists — but it has saved me from the fallout of upchucking friends.

Layering is in. This locution — not to be confused with lawyering, or "making it hard to sue and impossible to understand" — has taken hold in several industries.

Vidal Sassoon, the London hairdresser, sent ripples through the barbering dodge with his geometric, layered hair styles in the 1960s; we still see people with that organized shagginess shaping their heads today. The description soon dropped from the head to the body: since 1976, when Newsweek reported that Sonia Rykiel "continued her layered sweater look over Bermuda shorts," the layered look — big skirts with tight pants, tiers of fabric, one color on top of the other, men's shirts over women's blouses over kids' pajamas — has been a fashion staple.

A White House official was quoted by Ann Devroy of The Washington Post as saying that a new communications director was going to be chosen by the new chief of staff, Samuel K. Skinner. But "the same official cautioned that because someone new is coming in 'does not mean David Demarest is going out.'" Ms Devroy explained that "David F. Demarest Jr. is the current communications director and is likely to leave or 'be layered,' as one source put it yesterday — given lesser duties and a different title."

William Safire's column is distributed by New York Times News Service.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Japan-bashing only shoots us in the foot

Tough Tom Harkin, who wants to be your president, snarls that if the Japanese don't treat us right on trade issues, we'll keep their cars from coming over here. Raising the question: What if, after all's said, you still want a Japanese car? What, indeed, if the Japanese offer you a better car at a better price than does Detroit?

Murchison

Tough Tom says, in effect, tough. Economic nationalism, of the sort Harkin and others are peddling, makes no room for consumer preference or efficiency. The idea is to play World War II and kick the living daylights out of the cartoon-figure Nips (as we called them in those emotional days), with their buck teeth and glasses. Bombs away over Tokyo!

A little of this, given economic conditions, is mildly understandable. Not much more than a little.

Out in Los Angeles, which television and movies portray as the center of the universe and the mother lode of all trends, acutely disturbing things are happening. Los Angeles County this week canceled a $122 million contract to buy rail transit cars from a Japanese company. Earlier the county had decided that the Sumitomo Corporation of America offered a better, cheaper deal than the only American rail-car maker, Morrison Knudsen. The angry protests of aerospace and automobile workers changed the county's mind.

But that wasn't all. The county said, let's keep the jobs in the area. How? There's no rail-car factory in the area. Never mind, the county government will spend $49 million to build one.

Well, as they say in Tokyo, you win some, you lose some. You lose a rail-car contract, but in the process your competitor shoots himself in the foot.

So we spend $49 million in taxpayer money, if that isn't a lowball estimate, build the rail cars and then what? We've got a factory sitting around idle. Oh, but California will by then (so it is explained) be a rail car- and bus-building center. The county forecasts a demand for an unrealized product from an unbuilt factory with an unhired work force. A private business, able to screw down costs and to market creatively, might — might — bring it off. A government entity, to which political considerations matter as much as economic ones, is disadvantaged from the word go. Indeed, the whole thing savors of socialism — the stuff the Russians used to swear by.

Los Angeles County is implementing what politicians call an industrial policy. Such a policy entails second-guessing the marketplace.

The marketplace says Los Angeles County doesn't need a rail-car factory (or else it would have one). The Japanese can build and sell rail cars — maybe better ones — more cheaply than Los Angeles can do it from scratch. But these are rational factors. We are dealing with irrational considerations, born of anger and frustration.

Japan-bashing is worse than silly, it's hurtful to us. Why not take advantage of the Japanese if they are willing to sell us quality products at lowish prices? Because of patriotism? Fine; let's strike a red-white-and-blue attitude while Sousa plays in the background, trumpets and woodwinds raising gooseflesh on our arms. Patriotism, whatever you may hear to the contrary around Harvard Yard and similar venues, is a virtue. But not necessarily an economic virtue.

Point 1. Subsidizing American jobs gives Americans no incentive to compete effectively; thereby the subsidy undermines those very jobs.

Point 2. Industrial policies that raise costs just make it easier for foreign competitors to undercut our companies in bidding.

Point 3. Tariff walls hurt American consumers and destroy jobs that foreign companies create over here.

It's 50 years since Pearl Harbor. Enough Japan-bashing, the worst aspect of which is the complacency it breeds. Far from asking what we're doing wrong, we rave all the day long about what's being done to us. We demonize the competition and pout like poor, pitiful Pearl. That's not the spirit of Midway, Guadalcanal and Tokyo Bay; it's the defeatism of a confused ex-world power, with tail dragging between its legs.

William Murchison's column is distributed by Heritage Features Syndicate.

CHARLEY REESE

Steamtown remembers America's past

I'd like to say a word in behalf of trains and a national park you probably have never visited, but ought to, and may never have heard of.

It's called Steamtown. It's in the heart of Scranton, Pa. It's being called a pork barrel boondoggle by its critics, but often that's just another way of saying the project is in someone else's backyard and I want the money spent in my district.

Reese

Steamtown is no boondoggle. I've been there twice and my sons and I love it. It is just shy — about $20 million shy — of being one of the greatest living museums of Americana in the country, a great tribute to America's industrial age.

These 41 acres and 13 buildings, all of which are on National Register of Historic Places, are situated on an abandoned railroad yard of the old Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. When it's completed — if it's completed — you'll be able to see machinists and craftsmen restoring steam locomotives just as they did in the days when the railroads were America's major means of transportation. Your children will be able to see a working railroad repair shop, roundhouse, and marshalling yard and talk to the skilled men who know how to shape steel and iron with a sculpture's touch.

Even now it is well worth a visit and is one of the few places in the country where you can take excursions on a train pulled by a steam locomotive. Furthermore, Steamtown is a national park in a city that will allow future generations to see the role urban America played in the nation's history.

The wild places with their natural wonders are part of our heritage, but so, too, are the urban areas. And urban areas have unfortunately received short shrift in the preservation and parks budgets. It just as important for America's youth to be able to see the industrial contributions America's cities made to our history as it is for them to see the great plains or the Rocky Mountains.

When America was a wild place, Americans were as poor as the Indians they were displacing. The exploration of this great continent and the westward movement of people is an important part of our history — a tragic part if you were an Indian in the path of this human wave.

But what made the America we know today — the great industrial power — were the cities, like Scranton, and others, which grew from frontier towns into the seats of mighty industries — coal, steel, railroads. It was this great burst of industrial growth in the late 19th Century and early 20th that turned America from a poor nation into a rich one.

Not much of this part of our history is being preserved. Steamtown is one great start toward it. My kids were just as fascinated by Steamtown and the Anthracite Coal Museum, also in Scranton, as they were by the Amish farms and the mighty Niagara.

So I hope Congress will spend the $20 million necessary to complete Steamtown. If it can hand out $15 billion a year to foreign countries, it could certainly spare $20 million to complete an urban national park in Scranton that will allow generations to see and know a great segment of American history as no other place can.

Old railroad yards and locomotives may seem like junk but the saddest part of loving history is to witness how much of our past is lost forever because somebody in authority doesn't have the wit to see its value.

After Steamtown is completely developed, then we ought to consider a Steeltown project before all the great mills, many of them now idle, are torn down and carted off.

Craft Bazaar shows unique quality gifts, decorative accents

By Liz and Don Merckle

The unique store with a number of mini-stores within: every crafter has a specialty, each with his own talent and ideas. Silk flower arrangements, ceramics of all kinds, wooden items, handpainted denim jackets and shirts, hand-crocheted afghans, hand-quilted quilts, baby gifts, dolls and toys. Just about anything you can imagine we have or can have custom made for you.

All sorts of dolls and animals are available — including porcelain, wood, cotton-stuffed or hand-crocheted. A good selection for home decorating, for collecting or for toys. Doll clothes are specially created for the dolls.

School items and teacher's gifts are always available in your special school colors. Check out the Aggie items for that Aggie you know. We have hair bows, T-shirts, earrings and many other things for the schoo spirited.

New decorating items are added weekly for your home. Add a Southwest painting, ceramic figurine, crocheted afghan, wooden table or wall hanging to give that extra uplift for Spring. For an extra special Spring lift bring in your own vase or bowl, or choose one in the store, and Liz Merckle will create a spectacular floral arrangement in your color choice or style. If you want to make your own arrangement, she will assist you with selection of flowers. Also available are jewelry findings, beads and chips for those of you who make your own jewelry. Liz has added a line of gift baskets for a bride, a new baby, your Valentine sweetheart, and yes, even your favorite man.

For something special to wear this winter and early Spring, you could choose a denim skirt or jacket, T-shirt or rompers — all handpainted. For the young at heart, check out the fun pajama sets.

Need a place for all of those spools of thread? We have two styles of thread holders, one is wall-mounted , the other turns on a stand. Wooden chests, tables, magazine racks, seats, coat racks, wall shelves, toys are a few of the wooden things made by several crafters. They will take special orders to fit just what you want.

For your valentine, we have gift baskets, gift cups, corsages, flower arrangements and T-shirts full of hearts. Gift wrapping is available.

If you are redecorating a room, we have accessories for that special touch. The styles are country, Southwest, contemporary and one of the newest — Victorian. Liz can help you with ideas for your home.

Crafters add new items daily to their booths. Come by often to see what is new.

If you are a crafters and want a place to sell your crafts, talk to Don or Betty about renting a booth. Craft Bazaar will sell your crafts, with out a commission, collect sales tax, and advertise for you. A 4-foot by 4-foot space is only $60 a month. You can arrange your booth the way that will show off your crafts the best. Your crafts are not mixed up with others. We will take special orders for your crafts. Craft Bazaar sells your crafts.

Store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Craft Bazaar is located at 3712 West Wall in Midland. Call 689-8852 for more information.

This is just a small sampling of Craft Bazaar's vast array of arts and crafts.

Comet is second largest dry-cleaning franchise in world

Comet has over 300 franchise cleaners nationwide now, and three of them are right here in Midland! With 33 friendly employees and exceptional service, it's no wonder Comet was voted the number one dry cleaner in The Best of Midland Contest. When they were, congratulations came from other franchisees all over the country.

The Comet franchise organization is like a large family, and the home office keeps all informed on important news. Like by sending fabric care alerts that involve "problem" fabrics about to come on the market. Also, most Comets are famous for their dry-cleaning coupons, so watch the mail for yours.

Midland's Comets always stay in the forefront of dry cleaning technology by attending seminars, conventions and other informative meetings on a regular basis. This coming March, owners Bille Jo Corbell and Paul Graves will be attending a series of meetings in Fort Worth. All to better serve their customers.

Another service that Comet provides is handling insurance claims. When smoke or water damage clothing, Comet experts will go to the individual home and assess the damage. They will honestly inform either the customer or the customer's insurance company as to whether the damage can be repaired or not.

And, they will work with either the insurance company or the customer — as the customer requests.

Comet employees frolic in the snow after finishing the official Comet snowman. Midlanders have always found the Comet staff friendly, fun loving and very professional.

It's winter now, but warmer weather is just around the corner. Experts at Comet would like to remind everyone to have winter leathers, suedes, wools and other clothing cleaned before storing. Clothes that have been worn may have sand, dust and dirt particles (not evident to the naked eye) imbedded in them. Long storage without cleaning could actually damage clothing.

Other Comet Cleaners special services include:

- Handy drive-through service at each location.
- Minor alterations (hems, zippers and mending) — in by 9 a.m. and out by 5 p.m.
- Major alterations and professional tailoring Monday through Friday.
- Leather and suede cleaning.
- Free minor repairs and small charges on other jobs.
- Same-day service (Monday through Saturday) and one-hour cleaning on request.
- Free personal consulation.

Comet has three locations. Stores are at 3108 W. Cuthbert; 2602 N. Midland Dr. (with one-hour service available), and 2106 N. "A" St. (package mailing and UPS available). Hours are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays. Hours truly designed for working people.

A NEW CONCEPT IN AUTO CARE CENTERS

Justices narrow scope of Federal Voting Rights Act

By Linda Greenhouse
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In an important ruling on the Federal Voting Rights Act, the Supreme Court on Monday adopted a restrictive view of the 1965 law and rejected arguments the Bush administration had put forward on behalf of black elected officials in two Alabama counties.

The blacks won election to previously all-white county boards, only to find that some powers the commissioners had historically exercised had been stripped from the offices in reorganizations pushed through before they took office and supported by the white incumbents.

The court ruled Monday that these reorganizations were not covered by the Voting Rights Act, which prohibits most southern states and some parts of northers states from adopting any new "practice or procedure with respect to voting" without first getting approval from the attorney general or the federal district court. The Etowah and Russell County Commissions had not sought such prior approval and argued that the law did not require them to do so.

Justice Clarence Thomas voted with the 6-to-3 majority in the first civil rights decision since he joined the Court, in which Justice Anthony M. Kennedy said, "The Voting Rights Act is not an all-purpose antidiscrimination statute."

The decision marked the first time that the Court, in more than 20 years of interpreting the Voting Rights Act, has rejected the Justice Department's view of the scope of the law's Section 5, which sets out the prior approval requirements.

The Bush administration had argued that unless governmental reorganizations in the circumstances of this case were covered by Section 5, the purpose of the law would be defeated because a jurisdiction could "negate the election of a candidate favored by minority voters simply by reallocating the successful candidate's authority to other elected or appointed officials."

In rejecting this argument, Kennedy said that an internal reorganization carried out by a democratically elected state or local government was not the kind of change "with respect to voting" to which Congress intended the law to apply. Congress did not use the phrase "with respect to governance," he noted.

He suggested that the law would threaten basic principles of federalism if its "intrusive mechanisms" could be used by the federal government to challenge choices made by state and local governments about internal government structure.

"If federalism is to operate as a practical system of governance and not a mere poetic ideal, the states must be allowed both predictability and efficiency in structuring their governments," Kennedy said.

Kennedy's opinion, Presley v. Etowah County Commission, No. 90-711, was joined by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and by Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia, and David H. Souter in addition to Thomas.

Justice John Paul Stevens filed a dissenting opinion that Justices Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun joined.

Stevens said that the decision marked a retreat from the court's previous commitment to giving Section 5 "the broadest possible scope." He said that in the years since the court first read the section broadly, in its 1969 decision in Allen v. State Board of Elections, its continual concern had been that "recalcitrant white majorities could be expected to devise new strategems to maintain their political power" as blacks began to make effective use of their right to vote.

The facts of the case on Monday bore out those concerns, Stevens said. "This is a case in which a few pages of history are far more illuminating than volumes of logic," he said, noting that the reorganizations at issue were the "obvious response" to the election of the first black county commissioners since Reconstruction.

Stevens said: "In my judgment, such a change in the reallocation of decision making authority in an elective office, at least in its most blatant form, is indistinguishable from, and just as unacceptable as, gerrymandering boundary lines or switching elections from a district to an at-large basis."

Court leaves 'dial-a-porn' statute alone

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The Supreme Court on Monday left intact a federal law aimed at denying children access to "dial-a-porn" services that offer telephone sex talk for a fee.

Without comment, the justices refused to hear a challenge to the 1989 statute that says telephone companies can provide the X-rated conversation service only to adults who request it in writing.

The law requires the phone companies to use technology to block universal access to the sexually explicit messages, which are usually available on 976 exchanges at a cost-per-minute rate.

The federal law, known as the Helms Amendment after its chief sponsor, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., had been upheld by a federal appeals court. However, four companies that provide the services had appealed to the Supreme Court, saying the law placed unconstitutional limitations on free speech.

"Countless children have been the victims of this disgusting 'business'," said Helms. "Unscrupulous smut peddlers entice children with sexy ads on TV. Then children call these numbers and listen to filthy messages."

Declining to hear the appeal, the Supreme Court effectively cut the cord on the multimillion-dollar "dial-a-porn" industry. The law had not been enforced while the case was pending.

The Supreme Court's decision to let the lower court ruling stand "was not terribly surprising," said Elliot Mincberg, legal affairs director for People for the American Way, a liberal group concerned with First Amendment issues.

Three years ago, the justices had unanimously stuck down a federal law that would have virtually banned the sexual telephone message businesses. In seeking to protect children, Congress had also unconstitutionally curbed adult conversations with that law, the court said.

C and C Music Factory wins big at music awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — C and C Music Factory triumphed at the 19th annual American Music Awards on Monday by winning five trophies. Pop star Michael Bolton, soul's Luther Vandross and Natalie Cole each garnered two awards.

C and C Music Factory won trophies for favorite dance music single for "Gonna Make You Sweat," favorite dance artist and new dance artist, best pop-rock group and favorite new pop-rock artist.

In sweeping the dance music category, C and C defeated Madonna, Crystal Waters, Mariah Carey and The KLF.

The group has been stung in the past by allegations of lip-syncing, but Zelma Davis hummed a few bars at the podium to prove that she really can sing.

Country superstar Garth Brooks won three trophies, but couldn't claim them because his pregnant wife became ill. He won top country single for "The Thunder Rolls," favorite country album for "No Fences" and favorite male country artist.

"Unforgettable," Natalie Cole's tribute to the music of her father, Nat King Cole, was named favorite adult contemporary album. Miss Cole also won favorite adult contemporary artist, besting Paula Abdul and 11-time winner Whitney Houston.

"I don't know how many times Whitney and I have been in the same category, but I'm going to enjoy this one," Miss Cole said as she picked up her second award.

In the favorite female artist category, Miss Abdul won for pop-rock, Miss Carey for soul-rhythm and blues, and Reba McEntire for country.

Directory assistance expands programs

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

An expanded directory service options program should benefit a wide-range of customers, said Linda Basham, public relations director at Southwestern Bell Telephone in Midland.

The extra services, which took effect January 8, will allow customers who have dialed 1-411 to have their call completed by pressing "1" on their touch-tone phones. Customers with rotary dial telephones can have their calls completed by an operator if they stay on the line.

"Prior to this service you may have been without a pen or nothing to write the number on. Now it just tells you to press number one on your phone, and the number you're calling about will be dialed," Basham said. "It's a tremendous timesaver for everyone."

Basham also believes the rotary telephone service is helpful for the handicapped.

"It might not be so easy for them to continually dial numbers," she said "This really eases a lot of that for them."

The company already offers free directory assistance for the blind.

The charge for a directory assistance call is typically 30 cents, depending on how the call is billed. If the call is billed collect, through a third number or if the operator handles the call, the charges may be higher.

Another added service is the multiple listing request, which will allow customers to get more than the usual two directory listings per call from the directory assistance operator.

When calling a directory assistance operator, customers should indicate that they wish to use the multiple service option. Beyond a customer's monthly free-call or listing allowance, the multiple listings are 30 cents for the first two listings and 30 cents for each additional listing.

"Now the customer will be able to get a lot of listings," Basham said. "Where before they could only get two numbers on one call, now they can get up to 10."

Or, if customers need more than 10 listings, they can reserve time with an operator for $1 per minute with a 15-minute minimum.

According to Southwestern Bell, operators handle about 847,000 directory assistance calls on an average day in Texas.

INTRODUCING ...

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Apolinar "Polly" Lara, Midland street superintendent, achieved the admiration of his co-workers and city officials during the more than 30 years he has worked for the city. He will retire in March.

Roads scholar merges to retirement

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Apolinar "Polly" Lara admits he lacked direction when he began working for the Midland Street Department 30 years ago.

"I didn't start with the intention to move up at all. I didn't really know what I wanted," said Lara, who has been superintendent in that department for more than 20 years. "But here I am. I guess you can say ... I was in the right place at the right time."

Not one to be held back by circumstances, Lara took advantage of opportunities and quickly moved up through the ranks.

"I could work my way up, without any (educational) degrees or anything," Lara said. "Nowadays, you need a lot of education. It's so much more important."

Lara, who plans to retire in March, has many fans at City Hall.

City Manager Fred Poe said the secret to Lara's success is his dedication.

"He has a hard, sincere dedication to the job. He would do it regardless of what hours it takes," said Poe, who has worked with Lara for most of his career.

"Polly is the kind of worker, if he had his men out late at night working on something, he was out there with them," Poe said. "He cared for the men and he cared about giving his employer a good day's work."

Lara was named foreman in four years and street superintendent after nine years on the work force. Now he uses his experience to help the men who work for him.

"I tell them what I had to go through," he said. "It's easier for me, coming up through the ranks. I learned out there doing it."

'I could work my way up, without any (educational) degrees or anything. Nowadays, you need a lot of education. It's so much more important.'
— Apolinar "Polly" Lara

But Lara said he doesn't really see himself as a role model for other workers.

"Sometimes they ask me how I accomplished this. I just tell them what I know," he said.

Lara's own children, too, have heard their father's stories of work and hardship. He has a son who is a firefighter and another who is an engineer, while his daughter works at a local bank.

"I always tried to show them what I had to put up with," Lara said. "I told them educated people had a better life."

Family is very important to Lara, who says he couldn't have accomplished much in his job without the love and support of his wife and children.

"They've been behind me all the time," he said.

His nickname — so commonly used it appears on his desk nameplate — is the anglicized version of his name in short form. He said English-speakers couldn't pronounce his whole name, Apolinar, and even the shortened version required some ability with accents. So "Polly" it became.

Even Mayor Carroll Thomas, presenting a service award to Lara at a recent council meeting, stumbled over the first name for a moment and then said, "Oh, that's Polly!"

Lara is surprised by questions about his loyalty to the city: Why would anyone work so long for a governmental entity where pay is notoriously low and respect hard to find?

"The city has been very good to me," he said. "There's so much good in it, benefits and everything. If you work hard and take pride in what you're doing, the city has a lot to offer that people don't realize."

He hears many of the same gripes, but they don't set him back.

"We have a few (customers) complain," Lara said. "But that's something we have to work with. It's not as bad as it seems. People are nice, really."

In fact, working with people, his staff and the public, is what Lara likes most about his job.

"It's probably what I do best, trying to guide people and working with them," he said. "I don't like office work. That's probably where I fall short."

He looks forward to retirement, which means days without so much work.

"I've worked all my life," he said. "I'm not going to just sit home and waste my life. But I'm not going to overdo." He imagines he'll get a job volunteering somewhere, perhaps with a hospital or nursing home — some place where he can work with people.

Dallas City Council approves resolution opening city's JFK files

By Mike Drago
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — The Dallas City Council on Monday voted unanimously to release all municipal files on President Kennedy's assassination, including a box of records recently discovered.

The resolution, sponsored by councilman Domingo Garcia and approved in a 15-0 vote, also urged Congress to authorize the release all federally-held files on the assassination.

"... The American public has a right to know in a free and open society what the government has or hasn't got," Garcia said. "They have a right to see these files not in 2029, but in 1992."

Garcia said "maybe they (files) will reveal something, maybe they won't."

A box of documents was delivered to City Hall as the resolution was being considered. The municipal archives already had 15 boxes of files relating to the assassination, said city archivist Cindy Smolovik, who added that the new files should be available to the public within days.

Garcia said he didn't know what the new files contained. Several of the files were labeled "intelligence Oswald" or "intelligence Ruby" and one said "letters to Ruby."

"There are some that are really bland ... but there are some like letters to Jack Ruby and all kind of activity involving people near Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald," Garcia said.

Last week, Assistant City Manager A.C. Gonzalez told Garcia in a memorandum that "almost all" the Dallas records had already been turned over to the Warren Commission, the FBI or the municipal archives.

'The fact that anything that important would be left in Dallas seems to me unlikely.'
— Bob Hays

They included records pertaining to Oswald, identified by the Warren Commission as the lone assassin; Ruby, who killed Oswald; and Kennedy's death.

Kennedy was fatally shot during a motorcade in downtown Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. In the recent movie "JFK," filmmaker Oliver Stone had raised allegations of a conspiracy in the assassination.

Congressional files on the president's death had been sealed until 2029.

Garcia's motion covered any documents, police reports, audio tapes or film related to the assassination. His resolution also asked that the U.S. House open all sealed files of the House Select Committee on Assassinations.

Dallas County Historical Foundation executive director Bob Hays, who helped assemble The Sixth Floor exhibit on the assassination, said he doubts the Dallas files will reveal new information.

"The fact that anything that important would be left in Dallas seems to me unlikely," Hays said. "... It's possible."

Garcia has said the police department is "diligently checking all divisions and offices for any possible remaining records."

Police are requesting all department employees to turn over any assassination-related records. The department planned to contact police retirees to retrieve any files they may have taken.

Police Chief Bill Rathburn had recommended that all records discovered in the department's possession be released unless prohibited by law.

A resolution that would call for release of the sealed congressional documents within 30 days after the measure's adoption was sponsored by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-San Antonio.

Police seek information in Jan. 19 stabbing death

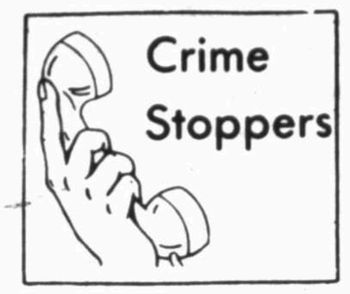

Staff Report

This week Midland Crime Stoppers is seeking help in solving the Jan. 19 stabbing death of Manuel Galindo. At approximately 10:30 p.m. officers responded to 1609 E. Butternut in response to a stabbing.

Officers determined during the initial investigation that Galindo had been involved in an altercation with several young Hispanic males in the area of Tennessee and Mineola prior to arriving at his residence.

At this time there are no suspects in the case.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 this week only for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this crime. If you have any information on this crime or any other felony crime you can reach Crime Stoppers in Midland at 694-TIPS or in Odessa at 333-TIPS. All callers may remain anonymous.

CITY: Council ponders privatized park mowing

three years of service.

Castro, mayor pro tem, and a manager with Southwestern Bell, has resigned because his company has transferred him. He has served on the council since 1989, according to the city secretary's office.

The council is scheduled to debate replacement possibilities in executive session, although staffers said an appointment is not likely. They have not released names of those under consideration, but reports indicate at least five local residents have shown interest.

Approval is expected today, however, for a plan to seek bids for the mowing of about 44 city parks. Community Services Director George Logan said staffers want to know if privatizing care of more parks would save money.

"We know what it costs us to take care of these parks," he said. "But we want to see if it's cheaper to utilize the private sector. We think it could be."

Already, about 22 Midland park areas are mowed by private companies. If approved by the council, the plan would advertise for bids for the additional neighborhood parks to be mowed privately. Once bids are in, expected by early March, the council will decide if the plan is worth pursuing.

Logan said privatizing would allow more frequent mowing of parks, a common complaint of local residents.

"We think we can get them mowed, edged and trimmed once a week for probably what it costs us to do it once every 17 working days," Logan said. He said city costs are more, mainly because of the benefits paid to employees.

"With those first 22 (parks privatized), we saved about $40,000," he said. "This time around, we're hoping we can get the same savings on a grander scale."

But the move may force a staff cut in the department, Logan said.

"If this goes, we'd probably identify some positions to look at — I don't know which ones yet. But it may mean reducing our staff," he said.

City employees would continue other park maintenance work, including playground repair, litter control and irrigation, Logan said.

Two escape injury in vehicle accident

Staff Report

Two people escaped injuries Monday afternoon in a two-vehicle accident at Farm to Market 1788 and State Highway 191, Department of Public Safety officials said.

At 2:25 p.m., a 1985 Volkswagen Sedan driven by 38-year-old Pat Hallmark of Midland was stopped at a stop sign on Highway 191. When she proceeded into the intersection, she was struck by a 1991 Ford truck driven by 40-year-old Gerald Brewer of Midland. Brewer's vehicle then struck a concrete post and overturned on its left side, DPS officials said.

Both Hallmark and Brewer were treated and released from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

Odessa man jailed

ODESSA — A 17-year-old Odessa man remains in Odessa city jail Monday after he was charged with murder Sunday for last week's death of his 5-month-old son, Odessa police said.

Lateef Shomari Grubbs, of the 3900 block of Penbrook, is being held under a $200,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright. He was taken into custody Sunday at about 9 p.m. in the 1500 block of Keeling Street in south Odessa, police said.

Five-month-old Levi Aaron Grubbs died on Jan. 19 from trauma to the head, according to reports.

Man sentenced

A 29-year-old male charged with the Nov. 5, 1991, robbery of the Team Bank in Midland was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court in Midland to 41 months imprisonment with three years supervised release, federal investigators said.

James Edward Dabney pleaded guilty on Dec. 13, 1991, to conspiracy to commit bank robbery.

He is one of three men charged with the crime. Alvin Shinette Jr. and Patrick Stiefel pleaded guilty Saturday and will be sentenced March 9, federal investigators said.

Man pleads guilty

An Ohio man pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court to being an accessory after the fact to wire fraud, federal investigators said.

Thirty-three-year-old Stephan Kuljko Jr. was indicted by a federal grand jury on Nov. 21, 1991, in a three-count indictment for attempting to defraud a Midland resident of about $390,000, federal investigators said.

Kuljko will be sentenced on March 3 in Midland.

ANNEX: City plans annexation hearing

(From 1B)

by Gist and Stokes Avenue on the north, Fort Worth on the east, Longview to the south and by Colorado and Baird streets on the west. Residents and property owners have been mailed letters inviting them to the meeting, which will begin at 7 p.m. at Lee Freshman School, 100 Gist Ave. (immediately north of the neighborhood).

"It's the culmination of a long-time effort toward this," said Cameron Walker, assistant director of planning and development for the city. The project began as a 1984 agreement between the County Commissioners' Court and the City Council.

A second area under consideration is not expected to be annexed until the county has provided some improvements that were part of the agreement.

Walker said the meeting is planned as a question-and-answer session as well as a chance for residents to speak out.

"I'm sure some people will have questions about what new codes and by-laws they're going to come by," he said. "We'll have specialists from the various departments there to answer them."

Along with planning staffers, others will attend from code enforcement, utilities and animal control, Walker said. There may be conditions in the neighborhood — animals or abandoned cars, for example — that violate city ordinances.

Although some conditions will be allowed to remain, others must be removed after annexation. Residents will also be subject to city taxes.

After the meeting, the final decision falls to the council about continuing the annexation process. Council members have said residents' wishes will have a strong influence on their decision.

Two die in nightclub shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A constable fatally shot a man who opened fire early Monday at a nightclub, killing one patron and injuring another, said police.

The 34-year-old suspect died at Baylor Medical Center of multiple wounds. Another man died at Parkland Memorial Hospital of a gunshot to the head while a 25-year-old patron was treated for a head wound and released, officers said.

Gunfire erupted in the nightclub at 1:55 a.m.

Economic worries top list as Texans wait on State of Union speech

By John A. Bolt
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Rosa Maria Oaxaca struggles to protect her two teenagers and to stretch her minimum wage garment factory job to provide the safe life she wants for them.

H. Ross Perot struggles too. The Dallas billionaire doesn't have to worry about making the rent payment, but he is concerned about what he sees as government incompetence robbing his children and grandchildren of a prosperous future.

Although at different ends of the economic ladder, both Ms. Oaxaca and Perot look to President Bush's State of the Union speech today for the same help: jobs.

"It all stems from the job," said Ms. Oaxaca, 45, in El Paso. "With a better paying job, I could have a better home," she said in Spanish.

As a single parent raising two teen-agers on a minimum wage salary, she said her $375-a-month rent is all she can afford, and it forces her in a neighborhood rife with gangs and drugs.

More money would mean better living, she said.

"Our priorities must be, number one, to protect the job base," says Perot. "Because only that way can we protect the tax base, and only with millions of people at work paying taxes can we hope to pay our bills."

"If I had an opportunity to talk to our elected officials, I would say: time is our enemy, the clock is running against us," Perot said. "We cannot lose a year while you provide Novocaine, aspirin and tranquilizers to the American people.

"We just have a group of people in Washington who don't understand business," said Perot, who himself has been mentioned as a possible presidential candidate.

Ms. Oaxaca and Perot were among two Texans asked their assessment of the country as Bush prepares his address to the nation.

The economy was on everyone's mind as they waited to hear from Bush, who has declined for months to offer his ideas on what — if anything — should be done to stimulate the economy. Wait until the State of the Union, he has said.

Not everyone called for action.

"My view is the politician needs to refrain from trying to fix something that is not yet broken," said Dan Leach, a 42-year-old veterinarian in Lubbock who said his business is improving.

"I don't think we need to get into any long-term jobless programs. ... If people find something to lean on, they will lean on it. Some are just looking for enough money to get by. They find it and they won't look any further."

Leach said he believes the recession is ending, "but it will take as much time to come out of it as it took to get into it."

Leach realizes he is better off than many others. "The people that don't have money to put food on the table and take care of their children have legitimate concerns, but there is no quick fix," he said.

Sheldan Perry, an accountant in Houston, says the economy has been good to him despite his layoff from Tenneco Inc.

He still does accounting work for Tenneco on a contract basis, and also sells real estate. He has bought a house, a $30,000 car and a $1,300 stereo in the past year.

Bush's drug strategy earmarks money for U.S.-Mexico border

By Dan Freedman
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Declaring that his administration will "win this war" on drugs, President Bush on Monday proposed moderate increases in anti-narcotics spending, including an extra $43 million for programs along the U.S.-Mexico border.

Overall, federal dollars to combat the flow of drugs into the United States as well as to rehabilitate addicts and educate youth will rise next year to $12.7 billion — a 6.5 percent increase. That compares to an 11 percent dollar increase announced a year ago and a 65 percent increase two years ago.

Bush earmarked the Southwestern border for $579 million, an 8 percent increase over present funding. The money will be used for treatment, prevention, education and law enforcement — "the whole gamut of drug-related activities," according to Bruce Carnes, budget director for the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy.

The increase is due to the government's designation of the entire 1,933-mile length of the border as one of five designated "high intensity drug trafficking areas" entitled to priority for federal anti-drug dollars. The other four areas are Los Angeles, Houston, New York and Miami.

"Everybody that is working the problem is determined that we will win this war," Bush said in unveiling his administration's fourth annual drug strategy. "It is imperative that we put more resources into our fight."

Among government agencies fighting the drug war along the Southwest border, the Border Patrol will see the part of its budget specifically earmarked for drug enforcement rise 10 percent next year to $52.9 million. Of that, $1 million will be used for helicopter purchases.

The Border Patrol is responsible for drug interdiction in areas between border ports of entry. Border Patrol drug seizures have gone up since 1989, according to Immigration and Naturalization Service figures.

Carnes said the increase would translate into 30 extra Border Patrol officers along the border. However, according to a budget summary released on Monday by the Justice Department, the Border Patrol is scheduled to hire an extra 200 officers overall next year. Carnes conceded the lion's share of the new agents will be assigned to duties other than patrolling the border.

The U.S. Customs Service, responsible for drug enforcement at U.S. border ports of entry, will see its anti-drug budget decline by $6 million.

Advocate blasts request for rate increase

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposed 47 percent rate increase for automobile insurance that could affect nearly 500,000 Texas motorists is an "outrageous burden," the state's insurance consumer advocate said Monday.

The State Board of Insurance will conduct a rate hearing today on premiums for people who cannot buy auto insurance on the open market and must buy it from the Texas Automobile Insurance Plan.

Amy Johnson, of the Office of Public Insurance Counsel, recommended that rates stay the same. She called for a reorganization of the TAIP board, which she said is dominated by the insurance industry and meets behind closed doors.

The TAIP, often called the Plan, provides state-required minimum limits of auto liability coverage for drivers denied coverage in the voluntary market because they are deemed high risks.

Ms. Johnson said the proposed 47 percent hike is "not based on any credible data and is indicative of the fact that the Plan is now entirely controlled by the insurance industry. We want to change all that."

She said the 10-member committee of insurance representatives, should be reduced to nine members with three each chosen by the insurance industry, Insurance Counsel, and Insurance Board.

The TAIP board has defended its proposed rate increase, saying substantially higher rates are needed to cover record medical, auto repair and litigation costs.

But Ms. Johnson said the number of policies written under the plan has nearly doubled in the past year because of the state's tighter enforcement of mandatory auto liability insurance.

This has had the result of throwing thousands of safe drivers into the Plan, which should make losses go down, she said.

By the end of 1991, there were 452,000 policies worth $234 million written under the plan, as compared with 231,000 policies worth $113 million in December 1990.

Pentagon awards TI $252 million missile contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon gave Texas Instruments Inc. a $252 million contract Monday to build more of the anti-radar missiles that took out Iraqi air defenses in the Persian Gulf War.

The contract is for 1,328 high-speed, anti-radar missiles, often called HARM. Of that number, 749 are for the Navy, 465 for the Air Force, 74 for Italy and 40 for South Korea.

"Defense dollars are hard to come by, which is why this is a good announcement," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

The contract came amid word Defense Secretary Dick Cheney will propose cutting at least $213.5 million in funds from this year's budget for weapons and components built in Texas. Cheney's proposal is due Wednesday with the president's new budget for fiscal 1993.

TI has had a contract with the Defense Department for HARM missiles since 1982, company spokesman Tony Geishauser said in Dallas. The new deal extends the existing contract.

"It's a valuable asset to the United States," Geishauser said of the air-to-ground missile, which is attached under the wing of a plane.

The HARM intercepts radar signals coming from the enemy, locks on to the signal and then knocks out the radar dish, blinding the enemy, Geishauser said.

Police investigate officer suspected of selling drugs

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer is under investigation because he reportedly drove his patrol car to a nearby city to sell drugs while still on duty, officials said Monday.

Chief Bill Rathburn said Officer Howard Watson had been under surveillance for several months after an informant told police they saw the officer selling drugs outside of Dallas. The informant said Watson was still in uniform.

Last Wednesday night, Watson was confronted by superior officer at the start of the department's criminal investigation, police spokesman Ed Spencer said.

That same night, Detective Harold Hammons, 28, was accidentally shot by another officer during a drug raid at a Dallas apartment complex. Hammons was buried Sunday.

"It started Wednesday night. Hours after one of our officers was killed trying to fight the drug problem, we had evidence to indicate that another officer had, in fact, been involved in selling drugs," Rathburn said at an afternoon press conference Monday. "I'm outraged."

Rathburn would not say what evidence had been gathered on Watson.

There are five Howard Watsons listed in the Dallas telephone book. Four of the five listed said they were not the Howard Watson being investigated. The fifth had an unlisted number.

The Department also is investigating other possible violations Watson may have committed, including whether he left the city in his patrol car, in uniform and while on duty.

"I don't know the specific allegations, but it was clear he had violated a number of department rules," he said.

AT WIT'S END

No wonder accidents happen in the kitchen

By Erma Bombeck

As a matter of fact, I did receive a Salad Shooter for Christmas. People don't come right out and ask me, but I know what's behind their smirks. They figure it would serve me right for making all those smart remarks about domesticity.

Bombeck

OK, so I have an image problem with my family. They look at me and figure that any person who always has a nose tissue handy when she needs it has everything.

I can't remember when I became the Gadget Queen, but somewhere between a Mother's Day when I received a set of grapefruit spoons with serrated tips that severed my tongue and a birthday that netted me an egg separator, I amassed an arsenal. The Salad Shooter is the ultimate in weapons.

My kitchen is a battleground. At this point, I can search out and destroy the entire food chain. With my trusty salad spinner, I can dump a head of lettuce in the basket, pull a cord and torture it for hours by spinning it around like an astronaut in a centrifuge.

I have a juicer that pulverizes fruit right down to the rind and blows away the seeds. On my countertop is a guillotine for cheese, a set of knives that will cut through metal, and lethal-looking skewers that can be plunged into the heart of a potato and bake it in 10 minutes. I even have a metal teabag squeezer so I don't have to grab the bag by the throat with my bare hands.

Just for fun I have a metal disc that I can place on an apple and detonate the core right out of it. Given a turkey or a chicken, I can have it trussed and immobile with skewers and ready to thrust into a hot oven before you can say "Yi-hah!"

In case anything is still alive out there, I can blow it up in the microwave.

Last year, the family gave me a large crate addressed to the Kitchen Terminator. It contained a garbage compactor.

I don't want you to think I enjoy all this violence. I'm just a professional doing her job. If I have to baste a few chickens with hot butter or drown a few French fries in hot grease, I'm doing it to keep peace in this world.

I strapped the Salad Shooter around my waist last night for the first time and then I drew and wasted a few carrots. Next I blew away a cucumber before returning the shooter to the holster.

The family says if I could cook, I'd be dangerous.

Forager hunts leeches, bats

■ Owner of a Texas firm collects fluids and secretions from exotic creatures for medical researchers.

By Richard A. Oppel Jr.
N.Y. Times News Service

BEDFORD, Texas — On a typical trip abroad, Terry Fredeking might hunt blood-sucking vampire bats. Or he will scour the Amazon River, searching for 18-inch-long leeches among schools of pencil-thin fish that, Fredeking explains with a grimace, like to swim into human bodies.

For real excitement, he jokingly taunts Sandinistas. "My sense of humor gets away from me sometimes," he says.

Fredeking, 45, has forged a reputation during the past 15 years as a leader in his field: collecting fluids and secretions from exotic creatures and siphoning diseased blood from humans.

His work is in great demand. Lab scientists in drug companies rely on Fredeking to fetch those substances — everything from leech innards to blood from sufferers of hepatitis B — often from remote locales, including Central and South America. They are needed to make antidotes and other drugs.

"There are other companies that do a portion of what we do, but no other company does the total package of what we do," Fredeking says of his firm, Antibody Systems Inc. in Bedford, between Dallas and Fort Worth.

"We're the Red Adair of the business," he says, referring to the oil well firefighter. "All of the researchers know we're here."

Even more do now. Earlier this month, Fredeking was the subject of a front-page Wall Street Journal profile. Callers phoned his Bedford office non-stop that morning, some just wanting to see whether the story is true.

"Yep, we're here," Fredeking assured them. One call was for a live radio interview with the Canadian Broadcasting Co. Thirty-one others inquired about jobs.

Laura Wixon, an employee of the firm, said, "They want to go look for bat saliva or leeches."

For all his appreciation of a good laugh, Fredeking's work is deadly serious.

His forays in search of vampire bats, for instance, have helped researchers develop anti-coagulants, drugs that dissolve blood clots. In a practical sense, Fredeking's work for those researchers could help heart attack victims.

When the intricate muscles and valves in the heart suffer tears, the body sends clotting agents. Sometimes, the clots become big enough to spur a heart attack. If a doctor can instantly dissolve that clot, the victim has a better chance for recovery.

The saliva of thumb-size Mexican vampire bats contains an extremely effective anti-clotting agent. The specimens Fredeking captures and sends to drug companies allow scientists to examine and isolate the bats' natural anti-coagulant. From that, they can make a structural blueprint of the agent, and then reproduce it genetically in a laboratory.

"Once they get the blueprints, our job is done," Fredeking says.

Fredeking's work has helped scientists develop tests for rubella, also called German measles, and hepatitis B. His finds have also helped researchers develop drugs that help transplant patients ward off infections.

Because many of the specimens he seeks are found in countries south of the border, Fredeking has acquired a few diplomatic skills to help him deal with foreign bureaucrats. (He is also helped in that respect by Bob Dean of Dallas, a retired diplomat.)

Fredeking has managed, on occasion, to lace his overtures to foreign officials with a good bit of levity.

Will Latham of Dallas, a retired Army general, made a 1984 trip to Nicaragua and several other Central American countries with Fredeking.

One night, the two stood together in a receiving line waiting to meet some Nicaraguan officials. One greeter was the infamous "Black Widow," a Sandinista leader who got her reputation by supposedly luring a high-ranking military official and aide to deposed dictator Anastasio Somoza into her bedroom and killing him with an icepick.

Fredeking's work has helped scientists develop tests for rubella . . . and hepatitis B . . . helped researchers develop drugs that help transplant patients ward off infections.

Fredeking and Latham approached her. Latham recalls his amazement when Fredeking gestured his way and said: "Don't pick on our general."

It was Fredeking's father, a physician, who first got him interested in immunology. After graduating from Haltom High School, Fredeking joined the Air Force, and later worked for General Dynamics. In 1977, he decided to devote himself full time to his largely unusual branch of pharmacology.

Although no one has ever been seriously injured on a Fredeking expedition, a young University of Mexico scientist was bitten by a rabid vampire bat inside a cave in southwest Mexico. A quick shot from the cache of antidotes that always accompanies Fredeking did the trick.

A few days later, Fredeking shuffled through customs upon his return to the United States. His luggage slid out of the suitcase carousel and out came wrapped wire cages filled with live vampire bats. Though Fredeking had all his papers and permits, a customs agent demanded to see what was inside.

The agent's normally unflappable drug-sniffing dog had reacted strangely to the package.

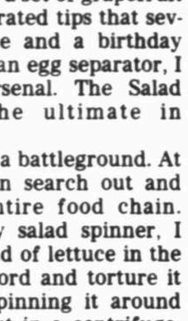

"Instead of sniffing at the box, he pretended like it was a bird," Fredeking recalls. "The dog had its nose ruined for the week," the customs agent told him. "He thinks he's out quail hunting."

DEAR ABBY

Supervisor can't find teens who're dedicated to work

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "A Teen, Centerville, Iowa" just sent me through the roof! (She complained because the fast-food place where she was employed also hired women in their 50s, thus depriving teens of jobs.)

Van Buren

This situation is symptomatic of why the Japanese are beating our brains out.

I supervise the work of many part-time workers and usually have a choice between using teens or older people. It's been my experience that older people have more dedication to the job and are more reliable than teen-agers. It's not fair to generalize, but the teens I've known seem more interested in the money, and my guess is that they will draw more from unemployment and welfare in the future than they will from gainful employment. — BILL FROM BIRMINGHAM

DEAR BILL: I hope you're wrong. The teen from Centerville does not speak for all teen-agers. There are some hard-working, responsible teens who earn their pay and appreciate their jobs. At least that's what I'm told by the managers of McDonald's, Carl's Jr., Denny's and Big Boy's.

DEAR ABBY: What does a wife do when she gets a really ugly gift from her husband? For example, an item of clothing — does she just grin and wear it?

What if it's an expensive piece of jewelry that is especially hideous? I don't want to hurt his feelings, but I hate to see him spend his hard-earned money on something I have to force myself to wear just to please him. Also, it's very difficult for me to pretend I'm thrilled with something when I'm not. What do other women do? Please help me, as my birthday is coming up soon. — GRINNING AND WEARING IT

DEAR GRINNING: Level with your husband and offer to go along and "help" him select the gift! (This will eliminate the agonizing and speculating most men go through when shopping for a gift for the wife or girlfriend.)

DEAR ABBY: I was so glad to see that letter in your column from "A Touchy Ticket Taker." I've been a ticket taker for 16 years — I'm a flight attendant, and you wouldn't believe how many people hold their tickets in their mouths, then hand them over to me! It's been a major pet peeve of mine for years. I was so glad to see it in print. Perhaps it will do some good, and the offenders will smarten up.

And while I'm on the subject of passing around germs, please, people, don't hand me your chewed-up apple cores, used Kleenex or disposable diapers. Yuk! Reach into your seat pocket, put them into an airsick bag, then I will be happy to dispose of them for you.

It's hard enough trying to stay healthy when you work in an enclosed environment with recirculated air and 135 people sneezing, coughing and heaven only knows what else!

Please, use some common sense. I don't want any more of your germs! — FED UP IN THE FRIENDLY SKIES

EFFICIENCY IN GOVERNMENT
My goal as Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector is to make the office more efficient. By cooperating with the Commissioners Court and working with the Central Appraisal District, we can save a large sum of your tax dollars.
With my years of business management experience, college training, and direct involvement in the oil & gas business, I am the best qualified candidate for your Tax Assessor-Collector. I hold B.S. and M.Ed. degrees in mathematics, a commercial broker's license, and have experience in minerals and oil and gas leasing.
Vote for a sound business approach to running your County Tax Assessor-Collector's office. I would deeply appreciate your vote in the Republican Primary on March 10.

Coach for Colts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis Colts are expected to announce Tuesday that Ted Marchibroda has been chosen as the team's new head coach, according to a published report.

The Indianapolis Star said in Tuesday's early editions that General Manager Jim Irsay will hold a 5 p.m. EST news conference to introduce the new coach, whom he met with Monday in Minneapolis.

Marchibroda was the head coach of the then-Baltimore Colts in 1979, before being fired by Irsay's father, Robert, after a 5-11 season in 1979.

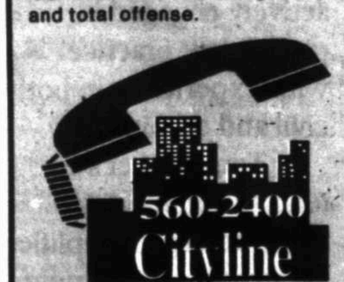

Jim Irsay flew back to Indianapolis on Monday evening to meet with his father and work out the details of the agreement, The Star said.

"If it's true, Ted is without question the best choice they could have made," Bert Jones, a Colts player under Marchibroda, told The Star. "I have great respect for the Irsays and they should be complimented for making the proper decision."

The Colts could not approach Marchibroda, Buffalo's offensive coordinator, until the Bills' season officially ended, which it did in a 37-24 loss to Washington in Sunday's Super Bowl.

Only two other candidates were in the running for the quasi-vacant Colts' coaching job. One of them was Rick Venturi, the team's former defensive coordinator who had served as head coach for the final 11 games after Ron Meyer was fired in October.

But the Colts were believed to be looking for a specialist on offense, and Marchibroda's credentials as architect of the Bills' high-powered, no-huddle attack might be a hard-to-pass up opportunity for a team that ranked last in the NFL in rushing, scoring and total offense.

Wranglers chop Chaps

■ Odessa College defeats Midland College for the 11th time in the last 12 meetings, 62-57.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

The Midland College Chaparrals collected just six offensive rebounds and shot only 40 percent from the field en route to losing their first conference game of the season, 62-57, to the Odessa College Wranglers.

It was OC's 11th win over Midland in the last 12 meetings. The Chaps, 17-5 overall, fell to 7-1 as the first half of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference ended. OC is now 17-5, 5-3.

In other conference games, Howard was stunned by New Mexico Military, 89-79; Western Texas slipped by Clarendon, 68-66, and New Mexico Junior College defeated Frank Phillips, 116-105.

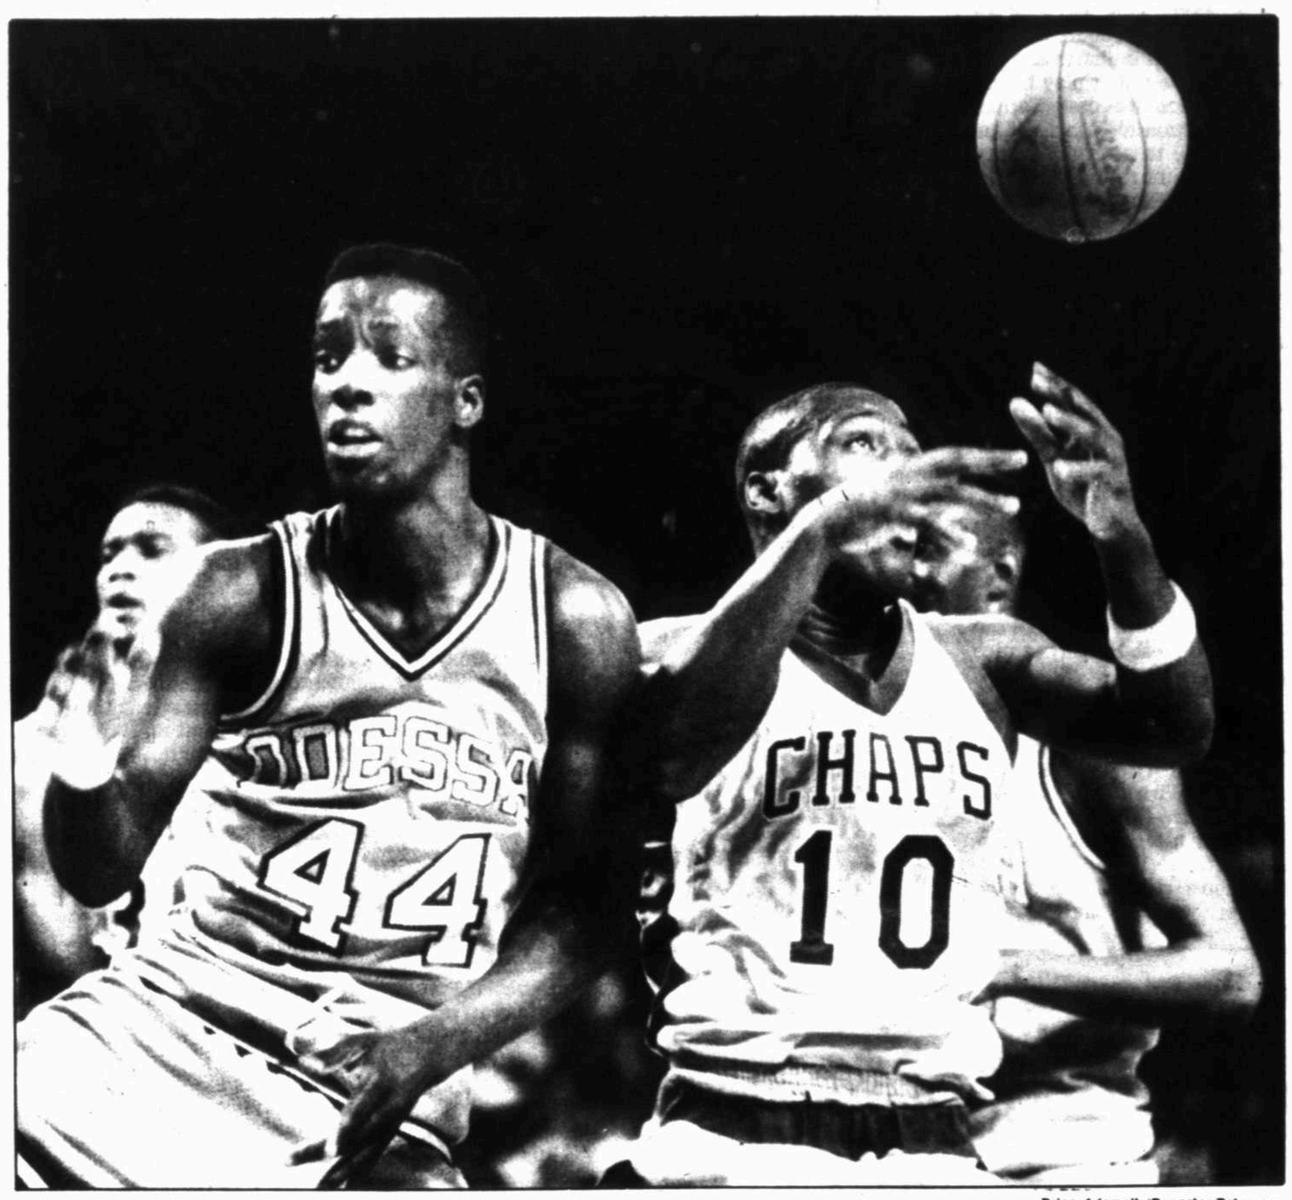

The Chaps simply were not a factor on the boards against the Wranglers. OC out-rebounded MC, 38-20, with Robert Shannon and Jermain Willform bringing down 10 apiece for the Wranglers.

"Ever seen a scared deer stare into headlights?" was the way Midland head coach Steve Green summed up things. "They stymied us. I don't think it was anything they did to us other than line up in a zone. But we're just not a rebounding team."

MC trailed 28-26 at halftime in the unusually low scoring game, and did not take its first lead until 16:33 remained. The two teams then traded leads seven times in the final 16 minutes before OC went ahead 47-46, never to trail again, with 4:36 remaining.

"We wanted to play hard, because we knew if we didn't, we'd get blown out of here," Odessa head coach Dennis Helms

District 3 ousts ties

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

A formality that served only to bog down the playoff picture in District 3 soccer last year goes by the boards this season as league members voted in the offseason to abolish ties.

This season, games that are tied at the end of regulation will be followed by playoff-style shoot-outs until a definite winner is determined.

Ties clouded the playoff picture in District 3 last March, especially locally, as Midland Lee wrapped up what appeared to be second place and its first-ever playoff berth with a 7-3-2 league record.

That was March 16, when even a season-ending loss to San Angelo did nothing to deter the Rebels from preparing for a bi-district game against Wichita Falls Rider.

For the Midland High Bulldogs, who posted a 6-2-4 mark in district play, it looked on paper like a third

Soccer kicks off with Lee vs. MHS

■ District 3 season opens as cross-town rivals face off.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

If the Richter scale sends out a bleep around 4:30 p.m. today do not be alarmed. That's the time the Midland Lee and Midland High soccer teams are set to collide on the MHS field.

It's the District 3 season opener for both teams, and what better way to begin the new campaign than with a match between the same cross town rivals that tied for second place last year and met in a playoff game to determine the district runner-up?

The Rebels, 11-5-2 last season, defeated the Bulldogs 3-1 that day last March and proceeded on to their first-ever bi-district encounter, where they dropped a narrow 1-0 decision to Wichita Falls Rider.

Lee's, venture into the postseason was just enough to whet the Rebels' collective appetite. They want more. Yet with the loss of six key starters — three of them all-district honorees — Lee coach Eddie Bull knows it will be tough to repeat.

"It's really going to take a lot of hard work to get back to the playoffs," said Bull, whose Rebs have been picked to finish fourth in a poll of District 3 coaches and carry a 3-0 pre-district record into the loop opener.

"We're probably picked where we ought to be considering we lost six starters. Last year we were a totally different type of team due to our great depth and talent at forward. This year we don't have that luxury," Bull said. "We'll have to depend a lot more on our defense."

Yet it was through a blend of offense and defense that Lee gathered its first three wins of 1992 at the West Texas Invitational tournament last weekend in Abilene, where the Rebels dropped Abilene High in a shoot-out in the finale. Two of Lee's wins there were shutouts.

MHS, a single win shy of the '91 postseason, has its sights set on a bi-district excursion, too. The Bulldogs, 10-5-4 overall a year ago, will test the District 3 waters with nine returning mainstays from their '91 version. In addition, no fewer than 14 sophomores made the pre-district trek as MHS garnered the 2-2 mark it takes in to today's game.

Both the MHS victories came at last weekend's Alamo Heights Invitational in San Antonio, where the Bulldogs won the consolation trophy.

"I think we are capable of going to the playoffs, and that's certainly our goal," said MHS coach Tom Esikhati, whose Bulldogs are picked to finish fifth in the coaches' poll. "We're looking good with nine returning players and a bundle of excellent young sophomores, which will actually make up a good nucleus of our team."

With San Angelo favored to win a third-straight district title, the remainder of the league may find itself scrapping for the other playoff position, and that makes today's openers

Lee teams meet 'Cats

Staff Report

Last Tuesday was the best of times and the worst of times for Midland Lee's two basketball teams.

Lee's Lady Rebels won a stunning 63-43 victory over Abilene High, a team that skipped through the first half of the girls district race unbeaten at 6-0. And for Elise Kail's 5-2 team, it kept a lock on second place.

However, Lee boys coach Jon House saw his Rebels lose a 91-82 overtime road decision to Abilene High while taking a stiff tumble from a tie for first place to a third place reading with a 3-2 mark.

Abilene High and Abilene Cooper share the boys lead with identical 4-1 records, heading into games with the Odessa teams tonight.

The Lee boys host 2-3 San Angelo at 8 p.m. at Chaparral Center in an effort to stay close enough to make a charge when the time is ripe. Lee can ill afford to drop another game now with cross town rival on the schedule Friday, followed by Cooper next Tuesday.

That's why the loss to Abilene High was so tough to take. The Rebs once had a 12-point lead, but 36 whistles against the Rebs and five players fouled out, left little chance of winning against the high scoring Eagles in overtime.

The Lady Rebs are coming off its biggest win of the season, but could give it all away with a road loss tonight against the Lady Bobcats in San Angelo. Only one game back of Lee, Midland High's girls have the off day and can set their sights on Friday's rematch with the Lady Rebs.

The MHS girls know their playoff hopes may ride on the outcome of Friday's game. Both the MHS boys and girls lost to Lee in the first district meetings and it doesn't take an open date to remind them of the fact.

'Skins were consistent all season

By William C. Rhoden

MINNEAPOLIS — Solid.

Whenever Joe Gibbs was asked to characterize this year's Washington Redskins, he'd go back to the well for that one word: Solid.

From opening night in September when his team pummeled Detroit, 45-0, to Sunday night's 37-24 pasting of Buffalo in Super Bowl XXVI, Washington has been as consistent as the morning sunrise.

said. "I certainly thought that the 74 percent of the rebounds we had in the first half was a big, big factor.

"Midland's the best defensive team in the conference and that's why they're still in first place. Maybe this was a down night for them, but we just knew we'd get embarrassed out of here if we didn't play hard."

OC sophomore post Nathan King returned from his self-imposed exile to score 17 points, repeatedly burning MC's Ari Rodriques. King, who walked out of a Wrangler practice last week, was suspended from last week's OC win over NMMI, but returned over the weekend. Helms said King had "grown up about three years in the last two days."

"I feel better now," King said. "I feel I would've let my teammates down if I didn't play tonight. I just had to get away from the coach for a day or two."

On beating Rodriques underneath, King said, "I kind of just used my size on the baseline and it was easy from there. I came out on top. But I like the kid (Rodriques). He plays a nice game."

Despite King's sentiments, it was in part a Rodriques blunder that prevented the complexion of the game from changing. With 2:21 left to play, OC freshman Fred Durham was called for a technical for shoving Terrance Rone. Rodriques, MC's most reliable free throw shooter, went to the line and missed both shots. The Chaps then had possession, but failed to connect on three shots from the field. Had Rodriques made his free throws and the Chaps made the most of their subsequent possession, MC would've erased a 52-49 deficit and taken the lead.

"We were too hyped," MC's Bruce Patterson said. "This one will help us. I think it'll turn out for the better."

Chris McKinney's 20 points for MC led all scorers.

The Chaps went to the line just 16 times, compared with 28 for the Wranglers.

MC's 57 points were the lowest by a Chaparral team since an 86-48 loss to South Plains, December 7, 1989.

"We just didn't come out with that go get 'em type of feeling," Green said. "We took 9.9 seconds to get the ball across mid-court several times."

MC is open Thursday and returns to action next Monday against the Reggie Franklin-led New Mexico Military Institute Bronchos. Chap Center tip-off is at 7:30 p.m.

REDSKINS: Washington stayed focused during week

(From 1C)

The players on the Redskins' massive offensive line average 6 feet 4 inches and 276 pounds, but the most significant statistic is that the unit averages eight years of NFL experience. Over all, six starters have 10 or more years experience.

"This team had great, great chemistry," Gibbs said at a news conference Monday morning. "There was a great feeling among the players for each other that seemed to be there from Day One. There was nobody in it for their own personal goals. I think it was truly an exceptional team from the chemistry standpoint.

"This was truly a team, not a bunch of stars. If you gave them something they knew they had to do, they were the ones who made sure they got ready."

Washington's convincing victory over Buffalo may have said as much about character as it did about the importance of strength, size and preparation.

In the hyped-filled days leading up to Super Bowl XXVI, it became apparent that the Buffalo players and Washington players represented two completely different mind sets. From the start of last week, Buffalo came off as quarrelsome, reactionary and not quite sure of its identity.

Washington, while very much scripted, was reflective, reserved and focused.

"I think that comes from people having a lot of confidence in themselves," Gibbs said. "I think our older players — those are the ones you could have trouble with — were very unselfish guys who wanted the team to do well. They know where their bread's buttered. If the team does well, they're going to do well."

Buffalo's character flaws surfaced during and after Sunday's game: Cornelius Bennett was penalized for leveling Mark Rypien with a forearm to the chest after the quarterback had thrown a pass. Andre Reed's temper tantrum after pass interference was not called on an incomplete pass cost the Bills 15 yards and took them out of field-goal range just before the half.

After the game Bennett implied that Buffalo's offense hadn't carried its weight, and Leon Seals, the Bills' defensive end, blasted management and said he wanted to be traded.

Gibbs said: "Some guys who don't have a lot of self-confidence or they're trying to push themselves up front are selfish. I don't think we had that.

"I've had some players who have been very vocal and they would definitely have said something. In the past, I'm sure we've had guys here who would have been saying some things that as a coach, I wouldn't have liked. We've got a basic rule, that's just don't do something to help the other team. We had a lot of guys who had their heads screwed on right."

"We had our poorest season after our Super Bowl year," Gibbs said, referring to 1988, when Washington went 7-9. "You're late starting practice because the players take longer vacations. You have trouble getting players signed because everyone starts thinking they're better than what they are.

"From an assistant's standpoint, I've got to start battling to hold on to my assistant coaches."

Super Bowl XXVI may have set a legal betting record

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Michael Gaughan didn't lose $7 million, but bettors willing to give away a touchdown and take the Washington Redskins managed to cash a lot of tickets from Sunday's Super Bowl.

Gaughan, operator of two Las Vegas hotel-casinos, escaped taking a financial bath in a Super Bowl that may have set a record of some $50 million in legal betting in the state's sports books.

Gaughan, as an enticement to lure bettors to his Gold Coast and Barbary Coast sports books, had offered bettors an extra half point on both sides, a move that would have made winners out of all bettors had the Redskins won by exactly seven points.

The move paid off, however, as bettors jammed the betting windows in the days prior to the game, wagering millions on their favorite teams.

Gold Coast sports book manager Bert Osborne said his place quadrupled its Super Bowl business of last year and had enough money bet on Buffalo to offset the Washington tickets and make the book a profit.

"It worked out well for us," Osborne said. "We did something, really, that set the sports (gaming) industry on its ear, but it turned out successfully."

Most bookmakers said this year's game was the most heavily bet ever, with an estimated $50 million wagered legally at the state's sports books. Last year, gamblers bet about $40 million on the game.

Most of the smaller bets taken in on the game were on the Redskins, although some big Buffalo money came in late to balance the books at some of the books.

Bookmakers estimated between 60-70 percent of the books lost on the Redskins, but got some of the money back when the total points went over the 48-50 point over-under line.

"The public should do well," said Sonny Reizner, race and sports book director at the Rio hotel-casino. "The parlay cards were a great write, but disappointing results."

Bettors also wagered heavily on various proposition bets, with one gambler winning $50,000 by wagering there would be more than 10 points scored during the third quarter.

ND swimmers may be victims of bus going too fast in blizzard

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — A chartered bus may have been going too fast for blizzard-like conditions when it overturned during a blinding snowstorm, killing two members of the Notre Dame women's swim team, investigators said Monday.

Funeral services were held Monday for two freshmen who died in the crash early Friday, Margaret Murphy Beeler of Granger, Ind., and Colleen Hipp of St. Louis, both 19.

A third team member, Haley Scott, 18, of Phoenix, remained hospitalized Monday in serious but stable condition at South Bend Memorial Hospital, a spokeswoman said. Patient confidentiality rules prevented the hospital from releasing additional information on Scott.

One witness told police the bus had passed other vehicles on the snow-covered Indiana Toll Road and the vehicle may have been moving too fast for the slick road conditions, said Frank Ghiorsi, chief of the National Transportation Safety Board's northeast regional office in Parsippany, N.J.

"We don't have a fix on the speed," Ghiorsi said.

NTSB officials, who are investigating the crash with Indiana State Police, had not yet spoken with that witness, with driver Howard E. Dixon or with any of the 34 passengers aboard the bus who survived, Ghiorsi said.

A check of the impounded wreckage showed the steering equipment, brakes and other parts appeared to have been working properly before the crash.

"We didn't discover any equipment problems," Ghiorsi said.

The lead state police investigator, Trooper Al Williamson, also said the investigation was focusing on speed.

State police hope to conclude the investigation by week's end and turn over the findings to the St. Joseph County prosecutor, who will determine whether charges will be filed, Lt. Joan Gootee said.

Dixon, 53, of Mishawaka, Ind., had a drunken driving conviction five years ago but was not under the influence of drugs or alcohol when the accident occurred shortly after midnight Thursday a few miles from South Bend, Ghiorsi said.

The driver was fully qualified to operate the bus and had not exceeded the federal limit of 10 driving hours in one day before the crash occurred as Dixon was transporting the team home from a meet at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., Ghioris said.

Dixon, employed by United Limo of Osceola, Ind., stayed home from work on doctor's orders Monday, said Bud Ousnamer, the company's operations manager. Dixon did not return messages left on a telephone answering machine at his home.

Ousnamer said United Limo officials had discussed the crash with Dixon but the driver did not say what caused the accident. However, Dixon did not consider the weather conditions too hazardous for bus travel, Ousnamer said.

Wesley leads Baylor past Longhorns, 84-68

Associated Press

WACO — David Wesley scored 33 points and pulled down 12 rebounds Monday night, leading the Baylor Bears past the Texas Longhorns, 84-68, in a Southwest Conference game.

The victory lifts Baylor to 10-7 overall and 3-3 in the SWC. Texas drops to 11-8 and 4-2.

Benford Williams led Texas with 20 points and 10 rebounds while B.J. Tyler had 11 and Terrence Rencher had 17.

Kelvin Chalmers backed up Wesley with 19 points and 10 rebounds while Alex Holcombe put in 10.

Baylor built a 38-28 halftime lead behind a 28-15 rebounding edge and the Longhorns' cool 28.9 percent shooting over the first 20 minutes.

UT starters Benford Williams, Tyler and Rencher were a combined 18-for-60 for the night, the Longhorns were 2-for-22 from 3-point range, and they didn't get their first three-pointer until 13:52 left in the game.

Most of the night, the Longhorns got only one shot, as the Bears repeatedly came away with the rebound.

Wesley stepped up to take command whenever Texas sought to close the gap in the second half. When the Longhorns closed to within eight in the second half, Wesley took a rebound and went the length of the floor for a spectacular layup. When fouled, Wesley was perfect (14 of 14) from the free-throw line.

Knicks batter Jazz, 97-80

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Patrick Ewing had 28 points and 12 rebounds as the New York Knicks stopped Utah's 17-game home winning streak, beating the Jazz 97-80 Monday night.

Ewing also blocked five shots and had five assists as the Knicks finished 3-0 on a trip that included games against Golden State and the Los Angeles Clippers. Ewing averaged 32 points in the sweep.

New York has won 11 of its last 17 road games after losing its first five of the season. The Knicks have won four in a row overall against the Jazz.

Karl Malone had 28 points for Utah, which had rallied within 84-76 after Tyrone Corbin's two foul shots with 5:20 to play. But the Knicks held the Jazz without a basket the rest of the game, and outscored Utah 18-12 in the fourth quarter.

Utah, the NBA's top-shooting team on 3-pointers, was 0-for-11 from long range. John Stockton missed all five of his attempts.

Record bass being kept alive

AUSTIN (AP) — A record largemouth bass was being kept alive by state parks and wildlife officials, who hoped it would survive to produce offspring.

The 18-pound, 2.88-ounce Florida largemouth was caught Friday by Barry St. Clair of Klondike at Lake Fork.

The reservoir, about 75 miles east of Dallas, has produced eight of the top 10 largemouth bass caught in Texas.

St. Clair immediately turned the 25-inch long fish to the Lone Star Lunker Program at the Tyler Fish Hatchery for observation and care.

Under the program, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department tries to get largemouth bass to spawn in captivity so that the offspring can be raised to help produce future generations and stock lakes.

David Campbell, hatchery manager, said Monday that the fish has improved after being given antibiotics.

"I was very happy to see her swimming around this morning," said Campbell. He said if the fish continues to improve they will remove it from a 500-gallon tank to a 3,500-gallon display tank.

Officials said about 70 people had dropped by the hatchery Saturday to take a look at the fish.

Buzzer-beater upsets 49ers

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Tim Bowen atoned for two missed free throws by hitting a running 22-footer at the buzzer Monday night as Butler knocked off No. 17 North Carolina-Charlotte 87-84.

Top 25

Bowen had gone to the line with 16.4 seconds left and a chance to wrap it up for Butler (14-5), which was leading 84-81. But he missed both free throws, and Delano Johnson of the 49ers hit a 3-pointer with 5.8 seconds left after backing into Bowen.

Butler took a timeout and Bowen, a 5-foot-8 point guard, brought the ball upcourt and never hesitated as he let fly from just outside the 3-point arc.

His shot ruined a homecoming for Henry Williams, an Indianapolis native who led the 49ers (13-3) with 28 points, including an 8-for-14 effort from 3-point range. He also became the second-leading scorer in school history with 2,033 points, passing Chad Kinch (1977-80) at 2,020.

No. 6 Connecticut 72, Villanova 58

STORRS, Conn. — Connecticut heeded coach Jim Calhoun's plea for improved defense, holding Villanova to 30.6 percent shooting in avenging its only loss of the season.

The Huskies (16-1, 7-1) had trouble generating offense, shooting only 38.5 percent, but they overcame that with 11 blocked shots, seven by freshman Donyell Marshall, and a strong rebounding game.

The Huskies stretched their lead in the Big East to a game over Syracuse.

Villanova (7-9, 5-3), which has played Top 25 teams in six of its past eight games, has lost three of its last four after winning four straight.

No. 1 Duke 112, Clemson 73

DURHAM, N.C. — Christian Laettner became the seventh player in Duke history to score 2,000 points as the top-ranked Blue Devils rolled over Clemson.

Laettner, one of three players with 11 points Monday night, reached the plateau on a 3-pointer with 14:26 to play in a game in which his record was about the only suspense. Just ahead of him on the Duke list is former guard Jim Spanarkel.

Laettner is the 27th player in the Atlantic Coast Conference to reach 2,000 points. He needs 35 rebounds for 1,000, which would make him the seventh player in ACC history to reach both milestones.

No. 18 Oklahoma 79, Nebraska 76

LINCOLN, Neb. — Brent Price hit a 3-pointer with 29 seconds remaining as Oklahoma came from seven points down in the final 1:25 to beat Nebraska.

The Sooners (13-3, 2-2 Big Eight) trailed for most of the first half but outscored Nebraska 11-3 in the last three minutes to take a 40-37 halftime lead.

Oklahoma opened the lead to seven five minutes into the second half, but Nebraska (13-4, 1-3) used its dominant rebounding to trigger a 13-1 spurt for a 59-54 lead with 10:36 remaining.

Nebraska, which outrebounded Oklahoma 72-42, led by as many as eight in the second half and was up 75-68 with 1:25 left when the Sooners rallied.

No. 23 Florida St. 68, Florida 67

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Douglas Edwards had two key baskets in the final three minutes and Sam Cassell hit a twisting layup with three seconds to play as Florida State celebrated its first appearance in the Top 25 in nearly three years with a victory.

The 23rd-ranked Seminoles squandered an 11-point first-half lead and fell behind by nine early in the second half before rallying behind Edwards and Cassell.

There were only six lead changes, but five came in the last 3:04 when Douglas put Florida State ahead twice before Cassell took a pass from Charlie Ward beneath the basket and got off a scoop shot while using his body to shield off Florida's Stacey Poole.

all the more important as each team looks to get off to a positive start.

"This is a rivalry that's always intense," Bull said. "The kids know its a cross-town rivalry and they know its intense.

"And it's healthy," he said. "There certainly has been no dominance in it yet."

Lee and MHS split their three games last year. Each squad captured a win and shared a tie.

"I don't have to stimulate the kids with a pep talk," Esikhati said. "I think they understand that this is not only a cross town rivalry with a lot of tradition, but also an important game."

The Bulldogs are led offensively by senior forwards Jamey Johnson, Joseph Martinez, Mario Rodriquez, Thomas Larsen and Gregory Pinkerton. All but Larsen started for MHS last year.

Defensively the Bulldogs will rely on Mac Nichols and at times Martinez and Rodriquez for senior leadership.

Senior goal keeper Chip Pinkerton is back, and the two-time letterman will share net duty with sophomore Jeremy Hernandez.

MHS has four juniors in Dustin Arras, Bradley Kothman, Luis Licon and Brian Robey. Add a slew of sophomores and it looks like a pretty balanced squad.

"The sophomores look good and that's really going to help us this year," said Rodriquez, a captain for MHS who led the team with six goals in '91. "We'll have a little more edge in speed than we had last year, though we might give up a little of the ball control we had.

"But with the same intensity we had last year I think we'll do pretty well," he said. "I think we can make the playoffs."

In order to get off to a good start toward that goal the Bulldogs must first contend with a Lee team made up of 11 seniors and seven juniors, and the only unbeaten team entering the District 3 chase.

The Rebels boast five returning starters, including junior goal keeper Freddie Silva. The others are seniors Tim Tucker, who scored four times from his forward slot last year and made the all-tournament team in San Antonio, and Cody Welch, a veteran defenseman. Juniors Tommy Tipton and Matt Lawrence also return to their starting roles. Tipton was named the MVP at the West Texas Invitational.

Other returning letter winners for Lee are seniors Todd Meade and Matt Perkins and junior Jason Meyers. Senior additions are Vijay Gallopudi, Jason Brown, Garrick Roegner, Dennis Ehler, Paul Rodriquez, Leo Daud and Darren Brown. Junior newcomers are Denver Renfro, Brett Ramsey and Jason Gotcher.

"We've lost a lot of our leaders from last year so our seniors are going to have to take over that roll," said Welch, a captain for Lee. "We'll have to go out with intensity and play our best every game."

TIES: Shoot-outs common in other soccer districts place finish since they had one less victory than Lee. The Bulldogs began turning in their equipment.

(From 1C)

Then another paper was found.

An overlooked section in the policy book governing high school soccer came to light March 18. It stated: "ties will count as one-half game won and one-half game lost in the district standings." Counting ties in such a manner gave Lee and MHS identical .667 winning percentages — and for all intents, 8-4 records.

Midland Independent School District athletic director Jack Tayrien immediately sought a ruling from District 4-5A athletic chairman Gene Buinger, the superintendent of the Ector County Independent School District. Buinger agreed the new information entitled MHS to a share of second place, and the Bulldogs met the Rebels in a one-game playoff March 21 to determine the league runner-up.

MHS had to reclaim its gear.

Lee had to put its preparations for Rider aside and rethink its strategy against the Bulldogs.

Lee, which had tied and been defeated by MHS in two regular-season games, came away with a 3-1 win and the bi-district playoff berth. Still, Rebel coach Eddie Bull would rather not have to worry about the implication of ties.

"We did away with the ties because of the way the situation changed day-to-day last year," Bull said. "We just feel like there should be a definite winner in each game so that everybody is on the same level ground.

"There was too much confusion last year. One day we were in (playoffs), then we were out and then back in again."

MHS coach Tom Esikhati, who notes the El Paso and Wichita Falls-based districts have always settled ties with shoot-outs, also prefers District 3's new method for settling the score.

"It was kind of confusing last year because of the point system. It didn't make any sense," Esikhati said.

"Really, we opened up the eyes of our district with that controversy. This year we'll know where everybody stands."

So, unlike in previous seasons, District 3 teams that are tied this year at the end of regulation play will conduct shoot-outs. In shoot-outs, each team selects five offensive players to try and score on the opposing goal keeper. Starting 35 yards from the goal, each player, in turn, gets five seconds to make a shot on goal from as close as he can get before the time expires.

If the teams are tied at the end of the five-man shoot-out, the teams will alternate scoring attempts until a winner is decided.

"Actually, these shoot-outs can help the teams that get out of district because its the same way ties are broken in the playoffs," Bull said. "This makes us practice shoot-outs everyday, and it's really something we should be working on."

Lady Mustangs down MHS JV

Staff Report

Tracey Burgess scored 19 points to lead the Midland Christian Lady Mustangs to a 47-29 romp over the Midland High junior varsity Monday night.

Midland Christian improved to 17-5 with the win.

The Lady Mustangs never trailed in the game, and held a 20-11 halftime lead. After three quarters, Midland Christian had upped its advantage to 35-17.

Michel Ann Thompson's six points led the Lady Bulldogs.

The Midland Christian JV defeated Midland High's sophomore girls, 28-21. Claire Wright's 11 was tops for MCHS.

The Lady Mustangs host conference rival Abilene Christian Friday.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your relationship with a loved one will get better and better! Your career gets a boost, thanks to travel or a return to school. New professional challenges and an improved working environment contribute to your sense of well-being next June. A change of lifestyle will add to your comfort while increasing your self-confidence in late fall. A special project will help you build a stronger relationship with your loved ones over the winter holidays.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Alan Alda, Cuban activist Jose Julian Marti, actress Susan Howard, author Susan Sontag.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are unusually gullible now. Avoid making new investments. Expressing your true opinions may be difficult. Diplomacy and compromise will help you get your point across.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your intuition serves you well. You have many splendid creative ideas that could boost your reputation and income. Deal with family members in a positive way. Avoid criticizing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Taking the easy way out is not the best answer. Rewards of past efforts are near at hand An out-of-town visitor gives you excellent advice. Follow it to the letter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Give family members the approval they have sought for so long. Do not take a loved one's cooperation for granted. A teen-ager asks some startling questions. Answer as honestly as you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Forget about an abandoned project and get into the swing of things at work. Temporary family problems should be handled in private. A sibling could suggest a practical solution.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A busy day lies ahead. You hold center stage at a business or social event. If you suspect someone of trying to deceive you, ask probing questions. Stand up for your rights!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not worry if something is less than perfect under existing circumstances. Look to your family and friends for support and advice. Exercise care if traveling. Check travel or hotel reservations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is no time for wishful thinking! At the first sign that the odds are being stacked against you, seek advice from professionals. Evening brings good news from friends at a distance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Rely on tried-and-true methods today. Behind-the-scenes activities will take up most of your time. Your buoyant enthusiasm carries you effortlessly through the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Two people in love should be able to come up with a special way to celebrate their relationship. Hosting a small party need not involve a lot of work. A dream could prove prophetic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concentrate on ventures that will let you build a firmer foundation for family life. Teamwork is favored. Welcome constructive suggestions from your loved ones. Even the small fry can help.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The likelihood of discord is sharply reduced when a fair monetary policy is enforced. Seek the cooperation of family members in keeping expenses down. Romance offers some interesting possibilities.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are affectionate, tenderhearted and tactful. They hate to hurt anyone's feelings and may have difficulty saying "no" to preposterous schemes. Concerned parents will teach these youngsters to take a firm stand on matters of principle.

Opening lead: King of ♣

The French have a term for it: Look for the lady. However, the bridge expert has a different slant on life: Don't rely on a guess when you have an almost sure thing.

North-South were playing weak two-bids. Even so, we know many who would have opened one heart on the South hand. But South gave the lie to any charge of timidity when the auction revealed that any cards North held were likely to be working, and indulged in the unusual move of bidding again on a hand that had preempted in an auction that was not forcing.

After the lead of the king of clubs, declarer was looking at two spade losers and one diamond. Apparently, the location of the trump queen was going to determine the fate of the contract. However, West's overcall suggested a line that was considerably better than a guess.

Sitting South was Grant Baze of San Francisco, one of America's leading players. After winning the ace of clubs, he ruffed a club and led the king of diamonds. West ducked, but won the diamond continuation with the ace and shifted to a spade, taken in dummy with the ace. Declarer ruffed a club and, needing two more entries to the table for two club ruffs, found them by ruffing the queen of diamonds and crossing to the king of trumps. The ace of trumps was South's 10th trick—two trumps, the two black-suit aces, one diamond, four club ruffs in hand and a diamond ruff in dummy. East's two spade tricks crashed on West's two trumps.

Cybill Shepherd works to keep identity with Memphis strong

NEW YORK — Cybill Shepherd, raised in Memphis and starring in a TV movie of the same name, plans to keep her identity with the Tennessee city going strong: She is building a second home in the Mississippi river port.

Shepherd

"My creativity kind of springs from there some way," said the 41-year-old actress.

It's also the place where she went on a date with Elvis Presley, she told USA Weekend.

Shepherd, who lives in Los Angeles, appears tonight in the TNT movie "Memphis," a story of kidnapping and racism based on a novel by Shelby Foote.

"I'm a product of the segregated South," Shepherd said. "I wanted to do a story about the hatred of racism, and (how) sometimes the most incongruous people break through."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Singer Warren Zevon runs into trouble with audiences when he doesn't perform his 15-year-old hit "Werewolves of London."

"I experimented with not doing "Werewolves" and it seemed not to make people happy," Zevon said in Sunday's Tennessean newspaper. "It's simple and memorable, but there have been times when I have thought it would have been nice to be remembered in some other way."

Zevon says his bitterly comic lyrics are influenced more by literature than by other songwriters. "I think Norman Mailer may have been a bigger influence on me than Lennon and McCartney," he said.

Zevon is on tour promoting his album "Mr. Bad Example." He also has worked with three members of rock group R.E.M. in the band Hindu Love Gods.

LINCOLN, Neb. — Lyle Talbot's road to Hollywood goes back to the early part of the century when he playacted in a barn for friends.

Residents of Brainard, a town 45 miles northwest of Lincoln where Talbot spent part of his childhood, gathered Sunday to celebrate his upcoming 90th birthday and talk about his early attempts at acting.

"He'd put on shows for us at his grandma's cowbarn," recalled Otto Holesovksy.

Talbot appeared on "The Bob Cummings Show" from 1955 to 1959 and "The Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet" from 1956 to 1966.

About a dozen people gathered at the Museum of Nebraska History to watch "They Raid By Night," a 1942 film in which Talbot stars as a spy.

Talbot, who was born in Pittsburgh on Feb. 8, 1902, lives in San Francisco.

LOS ANGELES — Michael Jackson's achievements are being honored by an association of black-owned radio and television stations.

The singer will be awarded a lifetime achievement award in Washington, D.C., on March 5 by the National Association of Black Owned Broadcasters, said executive director, James L. Winston.

"In addition to his amazing success in public life, Michael has in private life set an important example with his selflessness, caring attitude and philanthropy," Winston said in a statement Monday.

The trade organization represents 182 black-owned commercial radio stations and 18 commercial television stations.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Harvard University's Hasty Pudding Theatricals on Monday named Michael Douglas and Jodie Foster as their 1992 Man and Woman of the Year.

Foster will be honored with a parade through Harvard Square and presented with the traditional "Pudding Pot" on Feb. 11. A week later, Douglas will be given his award at a Pudding performance of "Up Your Ante," described as a musical spoof of "all things Vegas."

Foster won an Academy Award in 1988 for her role in "The Accused." Her most recent films include "The Silence of the Lambs," and "Little Man Tate."

"We're very impressed with her versatility and the transition she's made from actor to director," said Amy Samsel, a producer for the Theatricals.

Douglas, with more than 30 years in theater, film and television, appeared in "The China Syndrome," "Fatal Attraction" and "Romancing the Stone."

The organization picked Douglas because "he's been working for so long and produced films of such great magnitude," Samsel said.

CLEMSON, S.C. — Paul Newman's food company has donated $50,000 to the alma mater of his father-in-law, Wade Woodward Jr.

The gift to the Robert Howell Brooks Center for the Performing Arts at Clemson University will establish the Wade Woodward Jr. Green Room in memory of the father of Newman's wife, actress Joanne Woodward.

The elder Woodward graduated from Clemson in 1922.

Newman's Own food company donates all after-tax profits to charity, more than $40 million in a decade.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE
560-2400

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx and OTC sources: all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400: enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticket symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticket guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticket symbol, press the (*) star key and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update: which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticket symbol. You now have 2 options:
* You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
* You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticket code.
* You may enter up to 10 ticket symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today, recovering a little of last week's losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 32.20 points last week, rose 7.38 points to 3,240.16 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .08 to 229.09. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .11 at 413.53.

Volume on the Big Board came to 133.34 million shares with two hours to go.

OTC

NEW YORK (AP) — The following list shows the Over-the-Counter stocks and warrants that have gone up the most and down the most based on percent of change for Monday.
No securities trading below $1 or 1000 shares are included.
Net and percentage changes are the difference between the previous closing price and today's last or bid price.

Prices rebound

NEW YORK — Oil prices rose Monday on technical influences in the market, as traders await an OPEC meeting next month that may determine whether the world's supply of oil will drop this spring.

West Texas Intermediate for March delivery rose 36 cents to settle at $19.36 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Other futures prices also gained.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian and Texaco Trading and Transportation raised their posted price 25 cents to $18.

Natural gas, which has fallen lately to near $1 per 1,000 cubic feet amid slack demand, gained on the Merc. The March contract rose 5 cents to $1.218 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Dollar climbs

NEW YORK — The dollar rose sharply Monday against other key currencies after major industrial nations meeting over the weekend failed to indicate a preference on exchange rates.

The dollar finished at 125.225 yen in New York, up from 123.525 yen late Friday.

The dollar finished at 1.6105 German marks in New York, up from 1.5950 late Friday.

The dollar was also strong against the British pound. The pound fell to $1.7825 in New York from $1.7955 late Friday. In London, the pound fell to $1.7770 from $1.8070 late Friday.

Stocks rise

NEW YORK — Stock prices struggled to some small and spotty gains Monday in a subdued atmosphere as traders awaited economic proposals from the Bush administration.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 32.20 points last week, rose 7.83 points to 3,240.61.

Advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Rates recover

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities rose in Monday's auction to the highest level in several weeks.

The Treasury Department sold $10.3 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.84 percent, up from 3.78 percent last week. An additional $10.2 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.93 percent, up from 3.84 percent.

The three-month bill rate was the highest since the 3.85 percent of Jan. 6. The six-month rate was the highest since the 4.19 percent of Dec. 16.

Home sales boost recovery hopes

Third straight gain comfirms modest housing revival, analysts say

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The pace of existing home sales rose 0.9 percent in December, a real estate trade group said Monday. It was the third gain in a row and, analysts said, further confirmation of a modest housing revival.

Still, sales of previously owned homes fell to a six-year low in 1991 and most economists expect this year's rebound to be restrained.

"There's certainly no expectation that there is going to be a real surge," said Daryl Delano of Cahners Economics in Newton, Mass. "It's probably going to be midyear before things are really well established, so, for the year as a whole, we're not going to see a big boom."

But any increase in existing home sales would be an improvement over the 0.3 percent decline last year, when sales dropped to 3.287 million units, according to figures compiled by the National Association of Realtors. That was the smallest sales total since 3.214 million units were sold in 1985.

Regionally, sales were mixed in December and for the year. They were up in the Northeast and the West at year's end, but down in the South and the Midwest. The Northeast and the Midwest posted annual gains, while the South and the West recorded losses.

The housing recession ended in January 1991, but activity stalled at midyear before picking up again last fall.

Existing home sales, which Delano described as "the first link" in a housing recovery, were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.34 million units in December, the Realtors said. They had jumped 4.7 percent in November and 1.3 percent in October.

New home sales also advanced in October but were unchanged a month later.

Although December's new home sales report will not be available until Friday, builders and lenders have reported increased buyer interest recently. Builders boosted construction of new homes last month.

Analysts attributed much of the increase in housing activity to interest rates, which averaged 8.5 percent in December for 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages. That was the lowest since the mid-1970s.

"Low mortgage rates are holding the housing sector together," said Realtors president Dorcas T. Helfant. "Despite the lackluster economy, buyers are getting into the market while rates are this favorable."

Sales activity continued to be concentrated in the lower- to middle-price ranges, particularly among buyers purchasing their first homes. But Realtors economist John A. Tuccillo said more second- and third-time buyers will begin shopping for bigger, more expensive homes as the economy rebounds.

Chevron talks PA shutdown with officials

■ Likelihood of cuts comes at a time when area shows some signs of coming out of economic depression.

Associated Press

NEDERLAND — State officials, company executives and union leaders from the besieged Chevron refinery in Port Arthur huddled Monday to see what the state of Texas could do to prevent the nearly century-old plant from almost total shutdown.

Chevron has said that at the very least, about 500 of the Port Arthur plant's 1,900 jobs could be cut as the plant goes to a single line operation for processing crude oil. As many as 1,600 jobs, however, are at risk.

"Retention of jobs is the most important thing we have to do over the next few years in the Texas economy because the national recession is playing havoc with our employment base," Cathy Bonner, executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce, said after emerging from a 90-minute meeting.

"And the most important jobs we can put our attention on are manufacturing jobs, refinery jobs, and petrochemical jobs that are so vital to the economy of our state."

San Francisco-based Chevron U.S.A. Products Co. is considering closing, selling, downsizing or finding a joint-venture partner for its Port Arthur refinery, the company's largest, as part of a 5 percent companywide reduction of its 50,600-member workforce.

On Jan. 15, Chevron announced a series of changes designed to trim expenses as it faces spending more than $2 billion in the next five years to bring its eight refineries into compliance with new environmental regulations.

"We're here today to see the human side of what it would mean if we were to lose 1,600 jobs in this area and how the state could be of help so we can do everything to keep that from happening," Ms. Bonner said.

She said state projections showed the employment loss would be felt statewide, with another 26,026 residual jobs cut, costing the state economy $5 billion and local, state and federal tax coffers $377 million.

Shoppers cram Macy's flagship store in New York during the Christmas shopping rush on Nov. 29, 1946. The 134-year-old company filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy on Monday.

Macy's succumbs, files for Chapter 11

■ Documents starkly illustrate severity of retailing giant's plight.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — R.H. Macy & Co. Inc., the retailer known around the world for its Thanksgiving Day parade and enormous Manhattan store, sought sanctuary in U.S. Bankruptcy Court on Monday, overwhelmed by debt and the recession.

Plagued by the same sluggish sales as other retailers, Macy's fought for two years to remain solvent. But it conceded defeat Monday when lawyers carried three boxes of documents into a courthouse and filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection for the 134-year-old retailer.

"We have known for some time that Macy's had more debt than is desirable in such a weak economy," chairman Edward S. Finkelstein said in a statement.

The filing showed Macy's had liabilities of $5.32 billion against assets of $4.94 billion as of Nov. 2.

Much of the debt was left from the company's $3.48 billion leveraged buyout by management and its $1.1 billion purchase of the California-based Bullock's and I. Magnin chains from Federated Department Stores Inc. in 1988.

All of Macy's units, including its 144 department stores and 107 specialty stores, were listed in the filing. The department stores are concentrated in the Northeast, the South and the West. Speciality stores are scattered around the nation.

The documents starkly illustrated how severe Macy's plight had become. The company told the court it expected to lose $86.5 million in the next 30 days.

Chapter 11 allows a company to continue to operate while it reorganizes without retribution from unpaid creditors.

Macy's entered bankruptcy court protection as Federated and its affiliated company, Allied Stores Corp., prepared to emerge from Chapter 11. Like Macy's, they were swamped by takeover debt.

Retailing analysts said Macy will undergo a reorganization process similar to Federated and Allied, selling or closing underperforming stores. How that will affect Macy's 69,500 employees remains unclear.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Bank's failure won't affect trust income

By Bill Doyle

Q. My mother died and left a $500,000 trust administered by a bank. Under the terms of the trust, I am to receive $1,100 per month for as long as I live. What would happen if the bank goes broke? Am I still protected?

Doyle

A. Relax. The failure of the bank would not affect the trust. The trust would be safe and sound. So would your income from the trust.

Assets held in a bank's trust department are separate from the bank's assets and cannot be touched by the bank's creditors in the event the bank goes belly up.

The bank acts as trustee for the assets your mother placed in the trust. The bank does not own those assets. So, in the unhappy event the bank fails, there is no way the bank's creditors could get their hands on the trust's assets.

I have to assume there are other beneficiaries of that trust besides you. At $1,000 a month, the trust pays you $13,200 annually. That's only 2.64 percent on $500,000. Even with interest rates way down, as they are these days, that's a ridiculously low yield, if you are the only beneficiary receiving income from the trust.

Q. Say I leave my estate in trust for my grandchildren and one of them goes sour before I die. Can I change the trust and take that grandson off, or are they locked in once the trust is signed?

A. That depends on whether you set up a revocable or irrevocable trust.

A revocable trust can be changed or cancelled any time while you are still breathing Earth's air and are mentally competent. An irrevocable trust is set in stone the minute you sign the final trust document. From that point on, the trust cannot be altered or scrapped.

Based on your obvious worry, it would seem a revocable trust is more suitable for you. However, when properly structured, an irrevocable trust might save more estate tax and/or inheritance tax dollars.

Trusts are complicated and can be tricky. My standard advice to readers interested in setting up trusts is to have them drawn by competent attorneys experienced in that field.

Q. I have more than $100,000 in certificates of deposit at the same bank. In order to stay under the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage limit of $100,000 per depositor, I have some of the CDs made out "in trust for" each daughter.

My will specifies that my entire estate be divided equally between my surviving children. Does my will take precedent over the stipulation on my CDs?

A. No. It's the other way about. Upon your death, each of your daughters will be entitled to the particular CD in trust for her. Because it is in trust form, that money will pass outside your will and won't be subject to probate.

This does not mean your estate and your heirs will escape "death taxes," if your estate is large enough to be subject to those levies. Our federal government has an estate tax; all 50 states now have estate and/or inheritance taxes.

Your method with the CDs is smart. Because the CDs in trust for each daughter are in a "different right or capacity," each is counted as a separate depositor for FDIC coverage purposes. That means you're safe — at least for now.

That might change when — some observers would say "if" — Congress ever gets done writing new FDIC legislation. There are proposals to limit deposit insurance coverage to $100,000 per family, no matter what combination of accounts and/or depository institutions are used.

Our overpaid lawgivers have been "working" — misuse of a perfectly good word — on that for several years. In that time span, the story broke about many congressmen writing rubber checks and otherwise being overdrawn at their private bank, which is provided by we the taxpayers.

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your 'day job.' Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

ACCEPTABLE OFFERS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED ON THE FOLLOWING PROPERTIES

PMH	ADDRESS	CITY	ZIP	PRICE	OFFEROR/BROKER
595434	2201 QUAIL GLEN	MIDLAND	79703	$14,000	LOPEZ/BRADEN 14000 SP/	14000 NET CASH
545174	402 WEST 50TH.	ODESSA	79764	$20,000	FLOTLE/TADLOCK 2000 SP/	2000 NET CASH

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. We will accept cash offers up to 5 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers' closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 5 percent of the term list price. Interest rate of available vendee financing is 8 percent (APR 8.25 percent). Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26 - 6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser. The underwriting of offers requesting VA vendee financing will be completed by VA staff at no cost to the purchaser. To expedite the underwriting process, brokers are encouraged to submit a complete package to VA with the Offer to Purchase. This includes: a) recent copies of pay stubs, a completed, signed copy of last year's federal tax return and a copy of the latest IRS Form W - 2, Wage and Tax Statement (or) a Verification of Employment, VA Form 26 - 8497, completed by the employer b) signed SR statements required by the sales listing c) verification of self - employment to include completed, signed copies of the last two year's federal income tax returns, including all schedules, and a year - to - date profit and loss statement which has been prepared and signed by an accountant d) current schedule of all real estate owned, to include all current rental / lease agreements e) past three months of bank statements, and f) any other information pertinent to the underwriting of the offer. Purchase offers not accompanied by this required information MAY BE REJECTED FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY.

Offers to purchase VA - acquired properties requesting VA - vendee financing received from investors and speculators will be limited to not more than five properties over a period of 6 months. No additional sales will be approved until the purchaser has demonstrated his / her ability to maintain all previous loan accounts over a period of 6 months or more commencing with the due date of the first payment of the latest loan account. The intent is not to limit the cumulative / aggregate number of properties which can be sold to speculators, but rather to ensure that the purchasers' financial position is such that he / she can satisfactorily support the additional obligations. However, additional VA - vendee financed sales to an investor - purchaser who already owns five properties purchased from VA within the preceding 6 months will be considered if the investor - purchaser is willing to make a 20 percent cash down payment on each such additional property.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, the broker must deposit in the broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The $500 earnest money deposit will be remitted to the closing agent upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchasers, the earnest money WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure that they want the property prior to submission of an Offer to Purchase. Prospective purchasers will have the option to select the title company or attorney of their choice to close the sale of VA - acquired properties. The address, telephone number, FAX number, tax ID number and name of person to contact should be included with all Offers to Purchase. The closing agent will be responsible for document preparation and sales closing. The purchaser or sales broker will be responsible for the payment of all costs charged by the closer. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26 - 6705 - Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA pays 6 percent sales commission. VA Form 26 - 6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:
