Lincoln's Duel Told By Sooner

NICHOLAS B. JONES

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to the Avalanche)

ENID, Okla., Feb. 11.—Nicholas B. Jones, 67-year-old father-in-law of W. L. Alexander, superintendent of the state hospital here, and former state treasurer, is ready to add a new chapter to the life of Abraham Lincoln. It concerns a duel that heretofore hasn't been included in anything that has been written about the great emancipator.

Witnessed Fight. Jones says he was a witness to the duel, fought in Illinois. The dispute was between Lincoln and a General Shields, and arose over letters Lincoln had written the general, according to Jones.

Jones states his father was chosen by General Shields as his second. The son and several boys sneaked into the field where the duel was to be fought, at night, with single shot muskets. Shields was first to fire, but his bullet went wild. Lincoln took deliberate aim. Something hit Shields in the chest. Red spurted everywhere, the witness says. Shields dropped to the ground and an excited group rushed to his aid. They found that Lincoln had loaded his gun with pokeberries.

Joke Made Friends. The joke made the men life-long friends thereafter, and, when Lincoln went to Washington as president, one of his first acts was to give Shields a government appointment relates Jones.

Bank Employees Tell Of Cashing Checks From Fee Fund For Robison and his Family

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 11.—When judgment was entered in the state suit against the Texon Oil Company for recovery of one-eighth royalty claimed as Texas University's share of production from oil on school lands, $50,000 was designated as interest on $500,000 so that it could be used by the institution in paying attorneys fees and incidental expenses growing out of the litigation.

This testimony was given today by Robert L. Holliday of El Paso, university regent, before the joint legislative committee investigating the land office, governor, attorney general's department and board of regents with reference to leasing oil and mineral rights in university lands.

Fee Totalled $28,000. Holliday said that the regents had agreed to pay private counsel, representing them in the suit, $8,000 and two per cent of the amount of the recovery. The fee amounted to $28,000 and some of the $50,000 interest fund has not been expended, he said.

Explosion Of Meteor Is Reported Near Carlsbad

Tires One's Feet Miss Trout Smashes Another Record

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11. (P)—It tires one's feet to fly and smash air records. The authority for this paradoxical statement is Miss Bobbie Trout, who regained her women's endurance title here today with a continued flight of 17 hours, 5 minutes and 37 seconds.

"The most tired parts of me are my feet", Miss Trout declared just before she retired "During the night I replaced my boots with moccasins to keep my toes warm. And constantly working those rubber pedals was simply murder."

Following the report that the meteor had fallen east of here, searching parties were hurriedly organized but at a late hour tonight none of those returning reported finding any evidence of it.

Theories advanced as to the cause of the explosion center on whether the astral fragment contact with the rim of the atmospheric pressure surrounding the earth was responsible or that it actually landed at some spot east of here.

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Texas office seekers who broke ranks of the democratic party in its recent presidential campaign stood satisfied tonight after defeat of the Mankin "Party Loyalty" bill by a 61 to 58 vote in the House.

Aimed at Hoover democrats who swept the senate away from the "Solid South" Representative Mankin's measure would have required all candidates to make an affidavit that they had stayed within the party at the last general election before their names could have been printed on its ballots.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINA HELENA RUBINSTEIN

NINA RUBINSTEIN

In selecting your hat, always observe the effect in a full-length mirror, rather than sitting down, to be sure that in line and size it suits your figure as well as your face. Study the side and back views, to see that they are also becoming. Be sure that your hat does not give the effect of a bird which has lighted casually nor on the other hand of an extinguisher which has been pulled down over your head.

The little woman should select a comparatively small hat, so that she will not be overpowered by sheer size. The crown should add a little height, and be rather more pointed than round. A broad, full crown will give a too-heavy appearance, the trimming should be used sparingly, and placed in rather a vertical effect, and it is wise to have the hat match the gown or coat in color.

For the tall, thin woman, tam-o'-shanter shapes, with low, drooping crown, are good. High-crowned hats, on the other hand, are usually to be avoided, as the low, soft crowns are more friendly and flattering. Hats of the picture type, with their wide, drooping brims, are extremely effective for the tall, thin woman. She would do well to have her hats contrast with her costumes, and place any trimmings of flowers, pins or ornaments horizontally.

A stout woman will most often have a full, round face, and to select turbans for this type is a great mistake. The full face needs a brim of sufficient width to extend well beyond the facial surface, so that the too-full effect will be mitigated. The crown, too, should be wider than the face, and never a rounded shape, as this gives a monotonous, uninteresting appearance to the face. A square crown, a pointed crown, an arrangement of uneven lines, will give pliancy and balance to the round face.

Just as the little woman should select a smallish hat, so the woman with small features needs a little hat, and the trimmings should be quite simple. A turned-down brim requires a turned-down brim, and if you are a thin neck let your hat be a small circumference, slanting upward at the top. Always remember, too, that a turned-down brim defines the face and shades the eyes. Many a woman who has begun to show the tell-tale lines of maturity has been able to give the illusion of youth by the subtle flattery of a brim.

Don't let your hat hands be too tight. This is apt to cause a headache, and the hat has a tendency to slip up on the head. On the other hand, see to it that your hat band hugs the head firmly enough so that it does not vibrate. When you don your hat, look into the mirror and place it so that it suits your face from the front. Observe, too, the side and back view, to see that they are also becoming. Then, with your hat well selected and well adjusted, you are prepared to face the world.

Korn Files Cross Action-Suit Plea

Slaton Man Seeks Damages Of $1,000 In Action Of Music Society Filed In Federal Court Here

An answer and cross action to the charge of infringement of copyright, in cases number 3 and 6 on file in the United States District court, Lubbock division, have been filed by Oskar Korn, of Slaton, operator of a chain of moving picture theaters.

The original suit was filed several weeks ago and are styled, Gene Buck, as president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and Leo Feist, Inc. versus Oskar Korn, and Irving Berlin, Inc., with the society named, versus Korn.

Grounds for the original suit are based on the playing of two popular musical numbers, "In a Little Spanish Town," ("Twins on a Night Like This"), and "Always," in theaters operated by Korn, without permission of the composers and publishers.

In the cross-action Korn's petition states that on or about the early part of the year 1928, the plaintiffs sought to have him use their copyrighted music in his numerous theaters and pay them an exorbitant price for the use, and that he refused, his refusal, he contends is the reason the publishers have brought suit against him. Because of the worry, humiliation and chagrin sustained by him, by reason of this suit, he asks the court to award him damages of $1,000, with the dismissal of the suit.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST—Grape fruit sections, cereal, cream, poached eggs, on graham toast, extra toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Casserole of spaghetti, ry bread and butter sandwiches, canned pears in raspberry jelly, coconut cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Planked lamb chops, spinach and egg timbales, kamquat salad, Washington cream pie, milk, coffee.

The dinner dish is most attractive. Broil chops on one side, then add a border of fluffy mashed potatoes and return to the over long enough to brown them slightly. Garnish chops with thick slices of orange sprinkled with minced parsley and serve.

Casserole of Spaghetti—One cup broken spaghetti, 2 slices fat salt pork, 1 medium sized carrot, 1 onion, 1 sweet green pepper, 2 stalks celery, 6 mushrooms (optional), 1-4 pound round steak, 1 cup strained tomatoes, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 cup fine state bread crumbs, 1-4 cup grated cheese.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and rinse in cold water. Put half of it in a smooth layer in a casserole. Put salt pork through food chopper and cook in a hot frying pan until fat has cooked out and pork has begun to brown. Put carrot, onion, pepper with seeds and pith removed, celery, mushrooms and meat through food chopper and add to pork and fat in frying pan.

Cook until vegetables begin to brown and add tomatoes, sugar and pepper. Mix well and spread over spaghetti in casserole. Cover with remaining spaghetti and bread crumbs thoroughly mixed. Put into a moderate oven and bake until cheese melts and top is brown. Serve from casserole.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

"Put on my tomb, He has lived and accomplished nothing."

This request was found in the will of one Max Litt of Trenton, N. J., who died a few weeks ago.

His neighbors and relatives were surprised, as Litt, supposedly at the head of a successful millinery business, gave frequent interviews on how to achieve success, and was considered a prominent business leader of the community.

His wife explained the rather bitter epitaph request as a ranking on the part of the deceased that the business and its plan of management were all hers. She explained that her husband merely signed the checks, "because it looked better."

HER FAILURE
Reading between the lines, one gathers that the real failure was the widow who did not care enough nor was not tactful enough to make her husband an integral part of her business; after all, a wife's money launches many a man who is able to save his self-respect despite. Perhaps it depends more on the attitude of the wife. The very fact that she would "tell on him" after his death proves her fault in this case.

WHY DON'T THEY EAT CAKE
Lovely Katherine Cornell, the actress, refuses to endorse a cigarette, even though by saying that such a brand enables her to keep her lovely speaking voice she could receive a check for $11,000.

Somewhat applauding this sacrifice by a lady who must earn many a good thousand a year seems in the same class as a lady refusing cake who is already well stuffed with charitable ruses. The real test of virtue would be for a dry goods clerk, with honest convictions, refusing a check to endorse a cigarette ad.

A PROTEST!
Now that the fundamentalists are banding themselves together to make the world unsafe for evolutionary teachings, my one and only word on the subject is that, regardless of what one thinks of evolution, no one has any right denying knowledge to anyone else.

Seeking to interpret that knowledge is another thing. No school child has any more right to be barred from knowing that the evolutionary theory exists than prevented knowing various economic and social experiments.

The whole trick of education is to turn out people capable of interpreting facts and theories given them.

"COZIER PLACE"
James Lucey, the Northampton shoemaker, to whom President Coolidge has declared that he owed much, went visiting at the White House lately. When he returned to his last and was asked about his visit he remarked, among other things, that the White House was beautiful but not exactly homelike, and he imagined Mrs. Coolidge would be glad to get back to a cozier place.

A rather popular opinion of humble people is that people called to the higher places must be ill at ease and pining for the simpler joys they once knew. This is a form of self-defense. It helps bolster up a personal sense of having less than some men with the sureness that even if we had more we wouldn't be so happy, anyway.

SHE LIKED IT
As a matter of fact, Mrs. Coolidge has thoroughly enjoyed her life in the big house, say those nearest to her, and will probably regret the days that were in the big house when she is again in "a cozier place," just as she is supposed to mourn for that place while in the spacious house on Pennsylvania avenue.

About the greatest compliment we can pay a person is to call him a good sport.

Now it takes several qualities well-blended to give one a clear right to this title. Not the least of these is a bit of iron in our systems that enables us to "see things through." And just about the best time to mine some of that iron of stick-to-it-iveness is in childhood.

Courage is natural to some children, that is, physical courage. By all the laws of well-intentioned nature, behaviors tell us that it should be common to all. But we know that it isn't. Bred out or born out, most children are physically timid.

They have to be shown bravery. Naturally the first step is to eliminate fear by avoidance of things that will cause it, strengthening a child's courage in a negative manner—no frightening stories, no reference to the dark, no bugaboo punishments and so on.

Putting Fear to Rout
For instance, a little girl was given a pony. She was terribly afraid of riding it. But finally she was induced to stay on it while it was being led. Later she rode it alone while it walked and she even shut her teeth tight and stuck on while it trotted.

But one day it tried to keep up with a horse and started off at a stiff canter. Her eyes dilated and her father could see that she was frantic with terror. But he called out, "Stick on, Betty! Stick on! You're all right."

Betty stuck on for a quarter of a mile and the pony slowed down. After that there wasn't a horse in the world she was afraid of.

A boy took a notion to sleep out in the yard in a tent. For three night at two in the morning he awakened frightened and had to be let into the house.

The fourth morning, his father called, "You're all right, Charlie stay out," Charlie probably spent several hours of terror the first night, but after that the silent loneliness of the wee sma' hours had no horror for him. His father knew the boy and knew just what he needed.

Lubbock Farmers Tour Spur Station

More than a score of Lubbock county farmers visited the Spur experiment station yesterday to inspect the experiments on terracing which are being conducted there under direction of R. E. Dickson, the station's superintendent.

The tour is preliminary to inauguration of a county-wide terracing program.

R. B. Patterson of Idalou, terracing expert, is to assist the local county agent in the terracing program here.

The group of farmers returned to Lubbock late last night. They made the trip by automobile.

Matadors Meet Sul Ross Cagers In Final Home Series

The race for the T. I. A. A. basketball crown hangs in the balance this week as members of this conference face a 12 game card, all of which have a bearing on the standing. Leading the chase this season are the North Texas Teachers of Denton and the East Texas Teachers of Commerce. Games in which these two teams figure will furnish the chief points of interest. Fresh from a double triumph over the A. C. C. Wildcats and an even break with the Simmons University cagers, Texas conference leaders, will meet the San Antonio Teachers at Hurlwood next Wednesday and Thursday.

The East Texans go into action Friday and Saturday nights against the San Houston aggregation at Commerce. Although the remainder of the season will furnish a severe test for both the North and East Texas teams, the former are conceded a slight edge over the rest of the field. McMurry Indians who appeared here last weekend in a two game series, will meet their first conference opponents this week, meeting the Daniel Baker Hill Billies, also one of the title contenders of the association. In Hurlwood Friday and Saturday, The Hill Billies are hoped to win both these encounters, but cannot be considered certain winners so long as Medley's team is to be overcome.

PITY THOSE PORKERS
If there ever was a group who could find comfort in the old saying, "When it rains, it pours," it's the Arkansas Razorbacks. Last week was a sad one for the six foot basketballers from the Ozarks as well as the entire personnel of the university located at Fayetteville. The PORKERS lost within the space of a week. Reports from the campus of the Arkansas university indicate the gloom is so thick that visitors are forced to hire guides to tow them across the campus. Either calamity would have been a bitter dose to swallow, but both coming at once were enough to cause the hog horns to raise doleful echoes among the hills and dales of the Ozark region. Doubtless the "Shepherd of the Hills" were still at his post on "Lookout Mountain" when "a hurricane" came and the sorrowful Razorbacks and other kind words of sympathy in their hour of grief.

Francis Schmidt was considered a fixture at Arkansas University and the news that he had been lured away by Texas Christian University came as a stunning blow to Razorback authorities. On the heels of this unwelcome news, The Texas University Longhorns put an end to the string of victories that had carried the PORKERS through 21 consecutive conference basketball games. The PORKERS didn't believe there was a team in the country that could outscore their six-foot aggregation, but a fighting Orange team did that very thing down in Austin Saturday night in the "Match Box" affair which is used for a gymnasium. After losing to the Arkansas Friday night, the Texans came back Saturday night with a rough and tumble offense that netted 13 field goals and a defense that held the conference scoring aces to seven field goals.

Whether or not the morale of the Razorback machine has been completely broken will be determined within the next two weeks as the season comes to a close. The PORKERS have four more games to play, with Rice February 15 and 16, and with the Texas Aggies February 22 and 23. Coach Schmidt's cagers should win all four of these games with little difficulty if they show anything like their standard form. Arkansas still holds a leadership of more than one full game over the Longhorns in second place. In their five remaining games, the Steers meet the Texas Aggies in two series, Baylor and Rice.

COWBOYS DOWN JACKETS
ABILENE, Feb. 11.—(P)—Simmons University's quintet won its eighth straight Texas conference basketball victory here tonight by defeating Howard Payne, 35 to 16, in the last home game. Bob McCollum, Simmons was high with 13 points.

Sharkey Prefers Money To Fans' Love And Kisses
NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Jack Sharkey, who soon will fight Young Stribling at Miami, Fla., has his own philosophy about the fight customers.

"Give me their dough and the other guy can have their love and kisses," he says. "My way of going along is to make them hate you if they won't love you. A lot of guys pay their dough expecting to see me take one on the chin from some mug and get tapped off. That's okay with me. Let 'em holler themselves hoarse when I fight, but when I leave I'll have a piece of money out of each of them and as long as they contribute the other fellow can have their love and kisses."

Major Leaguers Ready To Start Toward Training Camps In South

Tech Basketeers Take On Alpine Aggregation Tonight in Last Home Stand; Play Again Wednesday Night

Loboes Present Formidable Basketball Machine For Matadors' Final Bow Before Home Crowd

Nearing the close of a strenuous basketball season, the Tech Matadors will make their final home appearance tonight and Wednesday night at the college gymnasium when the Sul Ross Loboes invade the stronghold of the crimson basketball loopers for a two-game series. Anticipating stiff competition from the Alpine aggregation, coach Payne put his pupils through a snappy workout last night and pronounced the cagers fit and ready to make their final bow before the home crowd.

Because of a conflict with a League number which is scheduled for February 25, the closing contest of the season with the Simmons University Cowboys has been called off. This will make the Sul Ross series the last of the season to be played at home.

Hitting their scoring stride last week in the two-game fracas with McMurry, the Tech sharpshooters are playing a brand of basketball that is expected to send their season's average well over the 500 mark in the remaining four games. The Sul Ross cagers, however, recently admitted to the T. I. A. A., have been going at a fast pace this season and should give the Payne-men two hard games.

Following the two games with the Alpine crew, the Matadors will take a much needed rest before going to Canyon for the closing games of the season, February 20 and 21, with the West Texas Teachers, who humbled them in a recent series played here. A fast improving Tech aggregation, which has just reached the peak of its playing form, should be able to avenge the two reverses suffered at the hands of the Buffaloes last week.

Bufs Want Games With Porker Five

Razorbacks Offered $1,250 to Appear in Three Game Series At Canyon; Offer More Than Simmons

(Special To The Avalanche)
CANYON, Feb. 11.—Boasting one of the strongest teams ever to represent the West Texas State Teachers college, Coach S. D. Barton, who has been at the basketball helm here for the past eight years, is making an effort to bring the Arkansas Razorbacks to Canyon for a three-game series with the Buffalo quintet. The local cage mentor has mailed the Porker authorities an offer of $1,250 for the three-game affair.

This offer by the Canyon mentor comes on the heels of an offer made by Coach Frank Bridges of Simmons university who made what the Abilene Reporter believes to be a record when he offered the Porkers $750 for three games. Coach Barton points out that the Simmons offer lacks a great deal of being a record as he paid the North Texas Teachers college at Denton $1,000 for two games of a "three-game series" in 1927.

Coach Barton is not claiming that his team is in the class with Arkansas, but does believe he has one of the best teams he has produced during the eight years he has been at the helm of basketball in Canyon. To date the Buffaloes have played 16 games this season and have won 12. Three games were lost on a long road trip after two of the star performers of the Herd had been incapacitated. However, Barton does not offer this as an alibi. In the eight years he has been in charge of the Buffalo cagers, a total of 160 games have been played and the Bufs have won 143.

Arkansas, as the remaining member of the Southwest Conference, will testify, have one of the greatest teams in the nation, and bringing of such a team to West Texas would mean much to this section.

Baseball's Parade Toward South, West Under Way

Most Of Sixteen Clubs In Majors Will Be On Way To Camps By End Of Week; Giants Show Way

BY ALLAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (P)—Baseball's big parade is ready to march to the south as well as to a few far west outposts.

By the end of this week, most of the 16 major league squads, or their advance guards, will be on the way to training camps scattered from St. Augustine to Catalina Island. By the end of this month the battle between regulars and rookies will be on.

Smaller squads, with a marked increase in college talent, feature most of the big league rosters. Shakeup in the organization or personnel of a number of clubs, notably the Detroit Tigers, Washington Senators, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs, will cause unusual attention to the workouts of these outlaws.

Teams Strengthened

All along the line, in the American league, they are strengthening to give battle to the world's champion Yankees, whose advance guard does not leave for the St. Petersburg camp for another 10 days. In the National League there is every prospect of another hot fight for the pennant.

Most of the clubs are traveling light, so far as the quantity of extra talent is concerned. The spring squads appeared reduced to a point where only the likeliest rookies are having their expenses paid for try-outs.

Here are the sizes of the squads to be marshalled in the camps, according to the club rosters:

American League—Athletics, 27; Chicago, 31; Washington, 32; New York, 34; Boston and Cleveland, 35 each; St. Louis, 36; Detroit, 37.

National League—St. Louis, 26; Brooklyn, 30; Chicago, 31; Philadelphia, 34; New York and Boston, 37 each; Pittsburgh, 38; Cincinnati, 39.

Giant Vanguard Starts

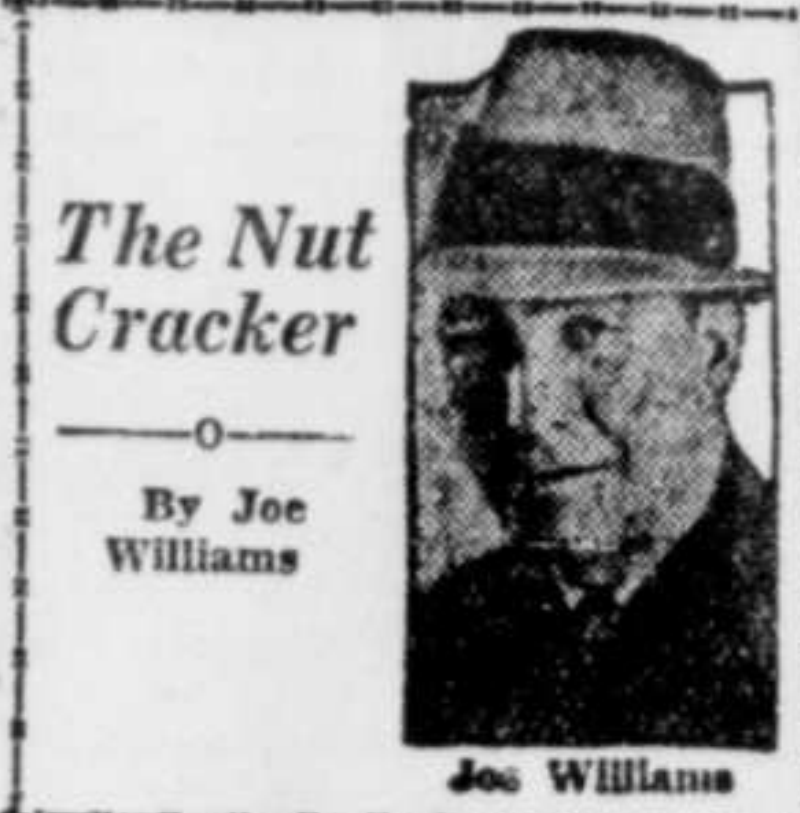

Pathfinders for the Giants start the jaunt to San Antonio tomorrow, led by Secretary Jim Tierney. Players departing will include Warren Ogden and Floyd Johnson, pitchers; and Jack Cummings, catcher, whose signed contract was received today.

At St. Louis the party will be joined by Joe Genewich, Larry Benton and Bill Walker, pitchers; as well as Ray Schalk, assistant manager and catcher; and Joe Witry, another backstop.

The first workout for battersmen at San Antonio is slated for February 15, and the roll call for the regulars for March 1.

According to Tierney, only three players remained to be signed for 1929—Garland Buckeye, Giant outfielder; Jimmy Welsh and Fred Leach, outfielders.

Wiley Moore, minus his tonsils, is ready for a big comeback on the mound for the Yankees this year. What effect the throat operation will have remains to be seen but the Oklahoma today notified Secretary "arrow" it had been performed and that he was on the way to Hot Springs, Ark., for work-out preliminaries to joining the champions in Florida, February 25, the date on which the Yankees assembly will be sounded.

Georgia Tech has signed a new band leader who plays the violin, Hawaiian guitar, tenor banjo, viola, cello, string bass, mandolin, ukulele, banjo, piccolo, flute, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, also French horn, trombone, marimbaphone, tympani and drums. And he never has been tried for murder!

Connie Mack has sent infielder Hal Rhyne to the Boston Red Sox. He had better change the spelling of that name—he plays in Boston.

Boston, by the way, now announces it is sure of Sunday baseball. What nerve!

The next heavyweight champion is coming from the ranks of the unknowns, says a New York scribe. Gosh they're all unknown.

A 90-pound woman in Chicago took away a 250-pound policeman's gun and spunked him with his stick. But then he was her husband, so that isn't news.

The onward march of Herr Schmelling, from over on the Rhine, may finally lure Tunney from retirement, sayeth a dopester. Then would you see the headline, "Tunney May Stop Schmelling?"

well as Ray Schalk, assistant manager and catcher; and Joe Witry, another backstop.

Morrison Refuses Virginia Position As Athletic Coach

S.M.U. Mentor Regrets That Negotiations Have Been Given so much Publicity; Methodists Elated

DALLAS, Feb. 11. (P)—Ray Morrison, football coach at Southern Methodist University here, has declined an offer of a similar position at the University of Virginia, he announced today.

The first intimation that Morrison was negotiating with Virginia was given in a Baltimore dispatch some time ago.

Morrison, in a statement, said he regretted that the negotiation had received so much publicity and explained that Virginia officials had taken the initiative. He declined to go into details of the proposition offered.

Morrison is under contract to S. M. U. until September 1, 1930. Had he come to an agreement with Virginia officials, S. M. U. officials, it is said, would have given him his release.

S. M. U. was elated over Morrison's decision to remain here.

Return Of Former Texas Banker To Oklahoma Asked

J. T. Crane Sought In Requisition Issued Monday by Acting-Governor; Was In Probe Testimony

(The Associated Press.) OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11.—A requisition for the return from Texas of J. T. Crane, formerly a banker in Marshall and Hughes counties, Oklahoma, whose name has figured in testimony before the legislative committee investigating departments of state government, was issued today by W. J. Holloway, acting governor.

Crane, who was reported in testimony to have received money in return for assisting Clem L. Butler, formerly a deputy state examiner, in state penitentiary audit which contained startling charges while he (Crane) was a convict in the prison, is said to be under arrest at Amarillo, Texas.

Crane Was Pardoned Shortly after the audit was completed in the summer of 1927, Crane was pardoned. He had been convicted of charges in connection with the insolvency of banks which he was associated. After the pardon, however, Crane was convicted on five additional charges and returned to the penitentiary.

The banker soon retained his freedom on a leave of absence granted by Henry S. Johnston, then governor. Since January 4, 1929, he has been listed as a fugitive from justice.

Crane, who was arrested at Amarillo on swindling charges, is said to have declared he would fight extradition if acquitted on the Texas charges.

Texas Livestock Gains In Value During Past Year

Prices Are Generally Favorable Throughout State; Hogs Decrease in Number While Sheep Expand

(By Associated Press.) AUSTIN, Feb. 11.—Total value of all livestock in Texas on January 1, 1929, is estimated at $416,689,000 compared with $386,543,000 on January 1, 1928, by the United States department of agriculture. In its annual report issued here.

Price, with the exception of hogs, were generally favorable throughout last year and many cattlemen were able to liquidate financial obligations and the new year opened with the cattle industry on a more stable basis than for several years, says the report.

"Hogs decreased in numbers materially during 1928," says the report. "The number of farms on January 1, 1929, is estimated at 1,210,000 compared with 1,375,000 last year. The average price per head on January 1 is estimated at $9.70 compared with $11.20 on January 1, 1928."

Cattle At Standstill "The number of cattle is reported as 5,607,000 head, the same as last year. High prices during 1928 caused cattlemen to cull their herds. Approximately 976,000 cattle and calves were shipped to other states. Notwithstanding high prices cattlemen withheld desirable breeding stock and it is apparent that the low point of the production cycle, which has been on the downward swing since 1922, is now reached.

"The sheep industry, under impetus of favorable mutton and wool prices continued to expand rapidly during 1928."

are making plans for their joint Valentine party to be given at the Cafeteria tonight according to Inez Marshall, president of the girls' Glee club. Evelyn Carter is chairman of arrangements for the girls, while Cecil Batton is chairman for the boys.

Romeo Is Foiled Wooing Activities End In Jail

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Sure enough, William J. Walsh is in jail.

For a year Walsh had regarded Miss Hazel Lofgren as his girl friend. Last night, however, he found his welcome frigid. Miss Lofgren told him to get out, and that if he came back in 20 years it would be too soon.

Walsh went to the Kensington police station and telephoned Miss Lofgren.

"I am in the hands," he said of the police.

"Delighted," came the voice. "Goodbye."

Thwarted, Walsh went out into the night. Half an hour later the Roseland hospital notified police that a young man had just dashed in announcing he had been beaten by thugs. The hospital could find no wounds. It was impressed, however, with his insistence that Miss Hazel Lofgren be notified.

It was a quiet night anyway, so the desk sergeant at Kensington station notified the young man and Miss Lofgren to come over, which they did. Walsh was waiting with open arms when she came in, but she side-stepped.

"Sergeant," she said, "I've been annoyed enough by this guy. Lock him up. He's a pest."

Now Walsh is in the hands of the police.

Phone 23 First Department Wants Chance At Fires

"If you are going to build a fire under your Ford to start it these cold mornings, please call the fire department first."

This was the statement yesterday of Fire Chief W. E. Twitty following the fourth car fire within the past few days. It was necessary for firemen to make several runs last week when the temperature was only 7 degrees above zero, and in every instance the car fire had been put out before the arrival of the shivering firemen.

A car parked by the side of a 16th street house caught fire early yesterday afternoon, but the blaze had been extinguished before the truck got there.

Lady Grace Drummond Hay, only woman passenger on the Graf Zeppelin.

"The fact that we were not permitted to smoke from the time the Graf Zeppelin left Friedrichshafen until we landed at Lakehurst only increased my appetite for a Lucky Strike. Oh, how good that first one tasted! I'm really keen for Lucky Strike—the toasted flavor is delightful. I smoke a Lucky instead of eating sweets—that's what many men have been doing for years. I think it high time we women smoked Luckies and kept our figures trim."

GRACE M. HAY DRUMMOND HAY

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skillfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

SPITTING

This may seem a peculiar subject for a fellow to choose on which to write, but it is one that concerns a great many more people, than hardly any of us will acknowledge, or even think about. We recently read an article on this subject prepared by an eminent physician, that was rather interesting to us, and might be put into pretty good effect by many people. This physician says that the least of it, spitting is a very vulgar habit, which can be done away with if we would devote a little time and attention to the task.

The saliva is a very necessary digestive fluid. It was not provided as a luxury, but as a necessity. To waste it is to disturb the normal balance in our adjustment. The habit of spitting is a symptom indicating disease. We should be more considerate of our fellowmen than to willfully expose them to our throat and nose infections. Sputum may contain many forms of bacteria; in fact, the "spitter" usually has an infected throat, causing increased secretion. To expectorate croakly, or on the ground about the home, is to smear the premises with germs which after drying, are ready for a voyage into some innocent respiratory tract. This is the way in which the dreaded "T.B." finds access to many lungs. In the same manner, influenza, diphtheria, pneumonia, scarlet fever, and many other ugly processes started. To withhold your expectoration, or, if you cannot, then to deposit it on a cloth, piece of paper—something you can burn—is to be a humanitarian on a small but very noble scale. To sneeze in your neighbor's face, exhibits idiosyncrasy of course. To expectorate where it will dry and be carried to the throat of an unsuspecting victim is equally ignorant, if not positively criminal. I dislike to endure resentment on part of my friends, but I know I'm exactly right about this matter. Now for an anti-spitters' club in the new year, 1929.

PREACHER'S SONS

A protest against extraordinary newspaper emphasis upon the fact that a preacher's son was convicted of robbery the other day in a Dallas court is made by the Abilene Morning News. Quite correctly, the News points out that "preacher's sons" are wrong so seldom that when one does get into a jam it is news. The usual is not news; it has to be unusual. It is news when a preacher or a preacher's son gets into trouble because they so seldom do.

There was a time when the preacher's son was generally regarded as typical of the "bad boy." There was a time when preachers had to work so hard to earn a living that they had little time to devote to companionship with their sons, and the boys grew up as opportunity permitted them, and some of them really were bad. But as a rule the average preacher's son of today is at least no worse than the banker's son or the grocer's son, or the newspaperman's son and his father has leisure to devote to him and by precept and example endeavors to develop him into useful and righteous manhood. Sometimes he goes wrong, but as is pointed out by the Abilene contemporary, it is so seldom that headline writers immediately recognize it as unusual news worth screaming headlines in the daily press.

We habitually demand too much of preachers' sons, expecting them to be abnormally pious and unreasonably mature in all their thoughts. We expect too much of preachers' wives, for that matter, and perhaps we are unjust to the preachers themselves when we insist that they should forego normal and harmless pleasures and be forever exhorting and theologizing. Preachers are human, and their families are human and humanity can not be perfect. If the preacher or his family happens to get into trouble it is not by any means prima facie evidence that the whole profession is wicked as sin and unfaithful to its professed ideals and purposes.

BREAD UPON THE WATERS

A Port Arthur machinist is a firm believer in the doctrine that it pays to be courteous and kind to people even though they be strangers. And he has reason to be. Eighty thousand reasons, in fact, counting a reason at a dollar.

Five years ago, while down in Georgia, E. P. Grimes, of Port Arthur, had an opportunity to assist a couple of women who had been injured in a highway automobile wreck. He carried the women to a nearby town and placed them in a hospital and subsequently forgot the incident. But the husband and father of the two women died the other day, and in his will gave Grimes property valued at $80,000. Grimes is a happy man now.

It costs so little to be kind to other people, and thoughtful of them, that the world is so full of us are kind and thoughtful. Every day we have opportunity to aid somebody who is in need but we harden our hearts and actually become so accustomed to seeing people in distress that we feel no compunction in passing by them without so much as a kind word. Not all of us, of course, will inherit fortunes from poor unfortunates whom we help; very few, in fact, will do so. But every one of us who gives a portion of our time and thought and energy—or money, if it is needed—to alleviate suffering and pain and to rescue from danger and death will be well repaid for our trouble. There is an immutable law that always sees to the balancing of the accounts.

Plans are to start the preliminary survey for the new lake for Hamlin within the next few days. The new lake will be north of Hamlin on the "T"-Diamond ranch and will supply water for a town of from 15,000 to 25,000 people.

Snyder is soon to have a modern commercial airport. The 200 acre plot was recently purchased for $50,000. It joins the northern city limits, and will have a camp, water, gas, electricity and sewage disposal, filling station and other conveniences.

DISLIKES COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR THE UNITED STATES
BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Lubbock Morning Avalanche

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Senator Henrik Shipstead sorted out a typewritten sheet from a pile of papers on his desk and held it up before me.

"This questionnaire," he said, "is from an eminent authority on political subjects who plans a series of articles favoring a commission form of United States government."

"I have answered it, admitting a system of national government my lack of sympathy with such but advising the author to consult Benito Mussolini."

"Commission government," observed the senator, "has been cities, with highly satisfactory results thoroughly tested in our suits—to certain people."

"They commend it for its efficiency."

"They give it credit for ending a vast deal of graft."

"Undoubtedly it really does cleanse a city of a swarm of petty grafters."

"The few big, well-thought-of grafters, who wax fat and powerful under commission, attend to the extermination of the many, disreputable ones."

"Nobody is so anxious as the big grafter to make graft respectable."

"Naturally," continued the Minnesotaan, "the folk who would wish to commission government on a national scale by an American dictatorship—by Mussoliniism—are working steadily, surely in that direction."

"Congress stands in their way."

"For years they have been waging a campaign of detraction against the legislative branch of our government."

"Congress upsets business!"

"Congress hampers the president!"

"It would be a blessing if congress would adjourn for a decade!"

"These are just a few sample slogans. Their whole purpose is to convince the country that congress is considerably worse than useless. There is nothing accidental about them. They are deliberately coined slogans. The idea is to get rid of congress—eventually!"

"Our constitution's framers," said the senator from the Gopher state, "meant to place a check on the president, by giving the power of the purse strings to congress—especially to the house of representatives in order to be as close to the people as possible."

"Today what body dictates our governmental finances?"

"The bureau of the budget—controlled by the president."

"Perhaps the appropriations committee of the house of representatives has a suggestion or two to offer. Back comes the word from the budget bureau that they are not in line with presidential policies."

"And the committee has to submit, so strongly is popular opinion behind this new—and unconstitutional—theory of government."

"Thus," concluded Senator Shipstead, "our entire government, as conceived by its founders, is being made over before our faces, by folk who prefer it to the original form, for their own advantage."

"Mussoliniism—their ideal?"

"Absolutely," replied the senator. "And what's more, with the country in its present frame of mind I see no way of preventing them from realizing it."

STUDY OF SNAKE POISON BRINGS OUT FACTS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor of Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
Snakes are not so common in this country as to be a constant menace to most of us, but they still constitute a subject of the greatest interest to investigators of the actions of poisons on the human body.

It was previously thought, as is pointed out in a recent discussion of the subject by investigators in the Antivenom Institution of America, that the venom of different species of snakes were essentially identical in their actions.

This conception was based on the similarity of the symptoms which followed snake bite, and of the effect of various substances on the snake venoms, mostly chemical studies.

Recent investigations have been made by the method of the science of immunology which deals with the building up of resistance in the body against various poisons.

Such tests are carried out in two ways—by animal experimentation and by placing together in tubes of the poisonous substances and of portions of the blood of animals into which small doses of the poisonous substances have been injected.

As a result of such investigations, it has now been determined that the venoms of six species of North American rattlesnakes contain identical or almost identical poisons. The poisons of the copperhead and moccasin snake are practically identical but differ from those of the rattlesnakes.

The poisons of the coral snake or rattlesnake of Central and South America and that of the bothrop atrox or fer de lance differ entirely from those of the snakes of North America. The poisons contain not only certain substances which produce paralysis of nerves and death, but also other substances the effects of which on the human body have not yet been determined.

Preventing Death
In these experiments the chief end sought is the development of anti-serums with which to prevent death from snake bite. It has been possible to develop serums for some of the poisons, the effectiveness depending to some extent on the amount of poison injected by the snake when it bites.

It has been shown that the rattlesnake does not inject the entire contents of the poison gland when it bites, but always holds back part of its venom for the next bite.

The human body can take care of a certain amount of the poison, responding with some inflammation and weakness. To save life it is necessary to neutralize the excess of poison above this dose.

The large Florida diamond back and water moccasin seem to eject much more poison than the ordinary rattlesnakes and more anti-serum is required for them.

Q—What is an anti-venomist?

A—George Jean Nathan said that an anti-venomist was a woman who strains at a guinea pig and swallows a baby. Animal experimentation is used to study disease so that it may be prevented in human beings. The rate of progress of medical science is dependent largely on the use of animals in experiment.

Turn Backward, Turn Backward

SO THINK WE

We think that the Lubbock County automobile owners have complied with the laws of the state law very well regarding registration and there will be very little trouble along this line. The number of cars registered has not come up to the number of last year, but quite a number will be registered yet where the owners have not used them since the winter months have started in, and will bring them out again when spring comes.

We think that the girls and boys and the older men and women as to that are not having to use any artificial "Rosy" these days the sharp laden with frost is keeping their faces toned up to a good color without any pain or powder.

We think that very few people really know just how the traffic is over the county roads, and the state highways until they get out on the highways in a wagon or a buggy and keep count of the number of people who meet them and pass them. The Dawson County Journal man tried this last Sunday and this is what he found: "We were on the highway for about four miles, and spent about eighty minutes going the distance. In that time 49 cars going both ways passed us. We wonder just what this will amount to in the next twenty years, if the progress of development keeps up like it has been in the past ten."

We think that every one should get the snow off the sidewalk in front of their business or their home as soon as possible, and in that way help to prevent all the accidents that they possibly can. A great many people fell on the paving yesterday (Friday), and although none were badly injured, but with snow and ice on all of the walks, more people might fall.

Your Income Tax

YOUR INCOME TAX

(No. 7)

Under the revenue act of 1923 the maximum amount which may be claimed as earned income to which a credit of 25 per cent applies is increased from $20,000 to $30,000. This credit on the tax due on net income in excess of $5,000 the income must actually be earned by the taxpayer as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services."

The tax on an earned income of $30,000 is computed in the case of a married person, without dependents, as follows:

Net income	$30,000.00
Less personal exemption	3,500.00
Balance taxable	26,500.00
1-2 per cent tax on first $4,000	80.00
3 per cent tax on second $4,000	120.00
5 per cent tax on remaining $18,500	925.00
Surplus on net income of $30,000	880.00
Total normal and surplus	1,985.00
Less 25 per cent of $1,985, earned income credit	496.25
Balance of tax payable	1,488.75

A taxpayer may have earned during the year a salary of $100,000 or more, but the 25 per cent credit applies only to $30,000 of such amount.

The Way Of The World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

REMEMBRANCE

Sir James M. Barrie, in an address, said: "God gave us memory that we might have roses in December."

But the gift of memory may be a curse as well as a blessing. We decide for ourselves which it will be. Today we make tomorrow's and next year's memories. It is mostly up to us to say whether we shall think back to roses or think back to bitterness. Every day we are laying up the mental and spiritual bank account of the future. Are we arranging for the day when we shall either be glad or be wretched because of memory?

WHAT GOES INTO MEMORY?

A man said: "I will treat those who are nearest and dearest to me in such a way that in the long and weary days of life to come memory shall be sweet."

Daily we bring something to put in the temple of remembrance. In the afternoon of life shall we find comfort and peace in visiting the temple?

INDEPENDENCE

Young men are sometimes impatient when older people urge them to save money. Young people think that if they have a joy, and enough is coming in to keep them going, there is nothing else that need be done. Older people know the pain of poverty. They know the humiliation and sometimes the wretchedness and misery of dependence. They know what it is to live with people who do not care for them. Some, indeed, know the deadly chill of the poorhouse. Robert Burns was not a man without fault, but he had a keen understanding of life—its penalties, its failures, and its rewards. He wrote this verse:

That's justified by honor,
Not for to hide it in a hedge,
Nor for a train attendant,
But for the glorious privilege
Of being independent.

INDEPENDENCE OF MIND

To be sure of independence of mind it is better first to be sure of financial independence. If you are dependent on somebody else for every dollar—if you have never saved any money and have no foundation of your own to stand on—it is pretty hard to say what you choose and be what you think you ought to be. Young men will listen very little to their elders. Experience is something that must be gone through again and again.

on the old Merrill side, and also the addition of five stories on Hotel Lubbock, it looks like the hotel question in Lubbock will be well taken care of for the next two or three years, but you can never tell about Lubbock, the rapid development may bring on a demand for a lot more hotels before these are completed even.

We think with the sanitary system of putting up the groceries and the things that we eat these days ought to be much more healthful than it was forty or fifty years ago, when nearly all of the foods were bought in bulk, and in open barrels, boxes or sacks, and this food was exposed to the atmosphere for several weeks and maybe months before it was finally sold. Now everything is in sealed containers, carefully handled, and the general health of the people should be all-aroundly caused from impure foods.

PRESS COMMENT

WEATHER IN THE CORNSTALK

The cornstalk is being developed into a source of wealth through machinery by which the fiber of the stalk is manufactured into paper, insulating board and other products. Cornstalk products have not become an important factor in industrial production yet but they are on their way and there is not the least doubt that inventive American genius will continue the development of the products until the cornstalk may be aligned beside the once discarded cottonseed as one of the great wealth producers of the country.

While discussing the possibilities of developing the cornstalk into a source of industrial wealth we, in the cotton producing section of the country, are prompted to ask: "If there is wealth in the fiber of the cornstalk, why not wealth in even greater degree in the fiber of the cottonstalk?"

The cottonstalk is said to have a tough and pliable fiber that would make a fine material for paper-making as well as does the fiber of the cornstalk, but, as in the case of the cornstalk, machinery for full utilization of this fiber has not been invented to date.

There are thousands upon thousands of southern folks still living who recall from personal observations and experience how much depressed cottonseed were less than 20 years ago; how the ginners would run and rear when his customers left their seed around the gin; how some of the heaps of seed were used to fire the boilers and the rest sent to the field as a fertilizer. Today cottonseed products represent millions upon millions of industrial production and there is not a kitchen or hotel in the land that does not make use of the products of cottonseed. It is not wild a thought to look forward to a day when cottonstalk products may furnish both clothing and paper for commercial use.

Development of products from cornstalks has progressed to a point where capital in respectable proportions is interested in it. An Illinois concern is producing newspaper from cornstalks. An Iowa concern is producing insulation board and this last mentioned concern has advanced orders on file to keep it operating to full capacity for months.

If cornstalk and cottonstalk development should reach the stage where it becomes a factor of large industrial proportions Texas will easily be in position to take the lead as it now does in the production of cotton and cottonseed products, because it has both cotton and corn in vast areas from which to draw raw material.

The federal government is giving attention to the utilization of things that now are waste and the government will give co-operation and aid in bringing about development of cornstalk and cottonstalk products for the commerce of the country and as a new source of wealth. Agriculture throughout its history has been looked to mostly for a supply of food. It is only since chemistry began intensive explorations of the possibilities in what had been considered waste, and now, as far as a direct monetary return was concerned, that farming's possibilities as a reservoir of manufacturing material assumed importance. We are, as yet, only in the beginning of this development, and not all the optimistic predictions voiced will be realized in a short time, if ever. Even the most conservative observers must be impressed, nevertheless, with the fact that agriculture is definitely, although perhaps slowly, entering a new era. The function of providing food necessarily will occupy as prominent a

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, honeymooning in Paris, meets an old sweetheart, MONTY ENGLISH. Monty is young and handsome, but Ash-toreth turned him down because he was only a radio salesman, and poor as poverty.

She married, instead, a millionaire named HOLLIS HART, who showers her with gifts and loves her with all his heart. Ash-toreth loves him, too—or she thinks she does. Anyway, Hollis is fabulously good to her. They live at the Ritz, and she has a lady's maid, and a Hispano-Suiza, with a chauffeur named Felix, who wears a bottle-green uniform. And she wears the most beautiful clothes of any American girl in Paris (which is saying a great deal).

Now she is sitting with Monty at a little sidewalk cafe near the Place du Market, watching the French sweethearts make love to each other. Monty tells Ash-toreth how he has come to Paris, to sell radios. Suddenly leans to her across the table and says, "Tell me, Ash," he asks, "are you happy, dear?"

She tells Hollis of meeting Monty, and asks if she may invite him to dinner. Hollis is hospitable, and gracious as usual.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LXIV

Ash-toreth had all she could do, coaxing Monty to have dinner with them.

He had given her his address and she had Felix drive her over to the Left Bank. Felix, very grand in his bottle-green livery and his shiny puttees, driving the beautiful car, which was also bottle-green.

Perhaps Monty wouldn't be at home, but she had chosen Monday hoping for the best. Hardly any shops were open on Monday, so probably there wasn't anywhere for a radio salesman to call. Anyhow she could leave him a note.

She was admitted by a lady of generous proportions and snapping black eyes, who escorted her to Monty's room, and assured her that he would return shortly. Felix smiled nastily, showing his upper teeth, which looked like a squirrel's.

She was getting uneasy, when Monty made a noisy appearance.

"Bon Jour, Madame! Bon Jour!"

He had seen the car and was up the stairs in three at a time.

"Ash, for the love of the saints! Get out of here, you blooming little fool."

"But Monty."

"Yes—I know. Get out! Get out, I tell you!"

He had her by the arm, and was shaking her unceremoniously down the hall.

"I suppose you think Madame thinks—"

"I know, dam! well what Madame thinks. And that little ditty about there—the hired man that runs your buggy. What did you suppose they'd think—they're French, aren't they?"

"But Monty! For heaven's sake, stop pushing me! I'll go—you don't have to throw me down the stairs. Listen, you poor chump, I only want to ask you to dinner."

He steered her into the parlor, and sat her down in a plumed green chair. The place was clean and musty, with flowers under glass on the center table. The color scheme was green, like Pullman's, and four coaches.

"Dinner?" he exclaimed. "In your bridal suite at the Ritz, I suppose? Nice, honey little meal. No thanks, Ash—not on your life."

"But Hollis wants you to come," she protested.

"Well, that's very nice of him. I'm sure. Nothing mean about Hollis, is there? All ready to prove that the best man won. Being good to the bird that got the place. You tell him for me, Ash. I'm not hankering to see him making love to any of my old girls."

"Oh, Monty, don't be horrid. You're just as vulgar as can be."

"That's what you used to tell me. Well, I haven't got over it any. If it's vulgar to hate to see any man pawing you, then I'm vulgar."

"But, Monty, you don't know how fastidious and reserved Hollis is. Why, he wouldn't even touch me, in front of a servant or anybody . . . Please come, darling. I'm awfully lonesome for somebody besides Hollis."

"Getting fed up are you?"

Ash-toreth put her fingers across his mouth.

"Don't talk like that," she commanded. "Just say you'll come, like a good boy. And we'll have champagne."

"Nope," he declared. "I won't."

But, in the end, of course, he did. Ash-toreth wore a dress like a silver armor, and looked as Jeanne d'Arc ought to have looked, but probably didn't. Slim and sparkling, with a proud high lift in her dark hair, and her gray-green eyes flashing like spear points.

Hollis was deferential, as though she was a saint—or a nun, at least. He never touched her with his hands all evening. Only place as ever in its activities, but in that process, and not unlikely in supplementary crops, additional forms of wealth will appear, traceable to laboratory research.

Wheat straw for several decades has been in some demand for the making of a few varieties of heavy paper. Its utility, however, according to available information, does not promise to be as extensive as that of the cornstalk. The latter has become the outstanding symbol of the broader opportunity that is unfolding in farming and that doubtless will turn new money into many other familiar products of the soil, including the cottonstalks. —Temple Telegram.

with his eyes. They followed her about, caressing her every move and motion. And he called her Orchid. He never called her anything else.

"Orchid-this," and "Orchid-that" in his quiet, thrilling voice that made love every time he opened his mouth.

At 10 o'clock Monty went away rather abruptly. Ash-toreth thought Hollis had suggested that they go somewhere, but Monty was almost rude. He had a headache, he said, and a lot of work to do the next day.

She rather expected a note from him after that. He might have beautiful clothes of any American girl in Paris (which is saying a great deal). She rather expected a note from him after that. He might have beautiful clothes of any American girl in Paris (which is saying a great deal).

It was Monty again. Hollis was at some stupid museum, looking at relics. The curator was a friend of his. It was sure to be a tiresome, highbrow afternoon. So Ash-toreth set out in the Hispano-Suiza, with Felix in his bottle-green, to call on Monty again.

He was in the garden when she arrived, feeding hens and rabbits. Just like one of the family, she thought. Monty was always like that.

"Come for a ride," she invited. "The mimosa's blooming, and the bushes are all gold."

linked so hard to keep them back that she could feel her nose getting red. She powdered it vigorously from a slim gold vanity.

"You might sell your autobiography to one of the True Story magazines," suggested Monty wickedly. "I Married Millions and Hunger for Love." "The Amazing Life Story of a Girl Who Loved Wisely, But Not Too Well." Nice titles, Ash.

"Please, Monty!" she cried. "You're not being funny a bit and you know perfectly well that follis is simply crazy about me!"

"Oh, sure," he agreed. "The door sap."

Ashtoreth sat up very straight. "You're being absolutely insulting," she told him hotly. "I'm sure I don't know why I should endure your insolence."

"Neither do I," he conceded. "I get my mad money. Want me to get out and walk?"

"Now you're trying to be funny again."

Monty snuffed his cigaret in a little silver tray.

"There's no pleasing you, he growled. "A nice easy chap like me to get along with. I don't know what's the matter with you."

"Neither do I," she cried. "Only please—please Monty—be good to me!"

She reached for his hand, and told it on her knee.

"I don't know," she confessed. "What's the matter with me. Only I'm so miserably discontented."

Monty! Oh, I know, I shouldn't talk like this. It's wretched of me. I've the best husband that ever lived. He's perfectly wonderful.

She put her handkerchief to her mouth. A wisp of lace, that waited a whispered of sachet, Hollis had bought it in the convent where she had brought her linens to be monogrammed. He had remarked that it was strange, the things nuns work on. Bridal nightgowns. And little clothes for babies that are the fruit of love.

"It is odd that they should spend their lives," he said, "on exquisite fripperies for women that are beloved of men."

It was a beautiful handkerchief but not very practical. Ashtoreth wiped her eyes daintily. It wasn't big enough to blow her nose on.

"Now see here," Monty patted her knee consolingly. "No tears now. We don't want any crying."

"Who's going to cry?" she demanded angrily. "Oh, Monty, you make me sick. Here I'm only looking for a little sympathy, and"

"Brides shouldn't look for sympathy," he warned her. "It's apt to get them in trouble."

(To Be Continued.)

Hollis and Ashtoreth decide to go home, and Monty plans to sail at the same time—only, all of a sudden—it's in the next chapter.

Wall Street Feels Bouyancy After Unsettled Week

Face Of Trading Slows Up
Following Unsettled Developments In Credit Situation

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The stock market displayed unexpected bouyancy today, after last week's unsettling developments in the credit situation. The only effects of the announcement of a special meeting of the directors of the New York federal reserve bank after the close, and of the holiday tomorrow, seemed to be a slowing up of the pace of trading, total sales dropping below 4,000,000 shares for the first full session in weeks.

Reports that Secretary Mellon would issue an encouraging statement on the stock market after the close restored confidence to a marked degree. However, nothing whatever was forthcoming from the secretary, who declined to discuss credit or the federal reserve board in any way. The meeting of the New York reserve bank directors after the close brought no change in the redoubtable rate, and nothing was revealed as to its purpose, leaving Wall Street mystified.

Call Money Rate Drops
Call money opened at 8 per cent, the highest renewal rate since early January, but dropped to 7 as funds were attracted by this rate.

The weekly trade reviews continued favorable. The non-ferrous metal share improved with rumors of still higher prices for copper, and announcement of a $2-a-ton increase in lead prices. A few good earnings statements made their appearance.

Copper, rubber, chemical and utility shares were in the forefront of the advance. Peoples Gas, Radio, and Otis Elevator mounted 14 points each, while American and foreign power jumped 11 to a new peak. Chile and Greene Cananea led the copper shares with gains of about 7 and 9 points, the former breaking into new high ground.

Some of the rails made good headway. Canadian Pacific and Pere Marquette climbed about 6 points. Burroughs, Addins McCrory Stores preferred, National Surety, Nickel Plate, and Pittsburgh and West Virginia were among the handful of issues closing off 2 to 5 points.

The commodity markets were quiet and generally steady.

Daughter Takes Mother's Life and Then Her Own

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(P)—Mrs. Eva Bishop, 68 years old, today was found slain in her bed in her home in Whitestone, Queens, and her daughter, Sadie, 42, was found dead in another room, apparently a suicide by gas. Police said a letter on a table nearby indicated the daughter killed Mrs. Bishop and then ended her own life.

Me Of My Trouble," Says
Lubbock Ginnee

"Since Orgatone relieved me of my trouble I just can't help praising it to everybody," said J. T. South, of 1613 Sixteenth St., Lubbock, Texas. Mr. South is a well known ginnee in this part of the state and owns and operates the J. T. South Gin Company.

"For several years," he continued, "I suffered from stomach disorder and a general run-down condition. I had very little appetite and three or four hours after eating gas would form and cramp my stomach so that nothing would relieve me of the agony. I was in a very run-down weak condition and was tired and worn out and didn't feel like doing my work. I had a severe case of constipation and had severe headaches.

"My first dose of Orgatone seemed to hit the spot and I have been getting better ever since. I can eat with a relish and eat anything and everything I want. I don't have any trouble with gas, my stomach is toned up and I feel better in every way than I have in a long time. Orgatone has saved me a lot of suffering and money and has made a new man of me. I want my many friends to know about it and I am glad to recommend it to them."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowens Drug Store under the personal direction of the special Orgatone representative.

Cotton Advances Slightly Monday OnGothamMarket

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(P)—The cotton market was higher today on covering combined with some trade and commission house buying promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and bullish private figures on domestic consumption for January. The advance to 20.10 for May encountered considerable resistance, but it was absorbed on reactions of 7 or 8 points.

That delivery closed at 20.07, compared with 19.97 at the close of Saturday. The general market closed steady at net advance of 8 to 11 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 12 points and sold up to 20.00 for March and 19.97 for new October contracts in the early trading on rather an active demand.

After the first flurry of demand, support became less active. Prices sagged off to 19.91 for March and 19.81 for the new October contract, or about 6 to 9 points from the high levels of the morning. Offerings were not heavy and the market steadily up again in the late trading. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best on the crop positions.

Standard cloth statistics showed sales for last month amounting to 92.5 per cent of production, which was rather above recent expectations and indicated decrease of 7.10 of 1 per cent in stocks on Jan. 1. The end of January. It also showed a decrease of 6 per cent in unfilled orders.

Private cables said there had been covering, trade calling and continental buying in Liverpool. Exports today 10,936 making 5,912,210 this season. Port receipts 15,510. U. S. port stocks 2,146,452.

Hogs Go Higher On Fort Worth Market

FORT WORTH, Feb. 11.—(P)—Cattle prices were about steady, hogs steady to 10c higher, and sheep steady on the market here today. Steers 9.75@10 — about steady. Sales included about a dozen loads of slaughter steers.

Common light bulls mostly 6.50, one load 7.25, with a car of fed bulls at 8.50. Slaughter yearlings and heifers show about steady. Carlots sold 10.85@11.15.

Cows offered were of the better kind and sold fully steady at 8.00@8.75. Cannons and cutters 5.00@6.00.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10.—(P)—U. S. D. A.—Fed steers trade around the 11-market circuit was in a semi-demoralized condition, this class of the supply. Prices were weak to again comprising a large proportion unevenly lower on fat steers with several points reporting only a par-balance of the week if the market, final clearance up to a late hour. Meager receipts will be necessary the is to stabilize itself. No material changes were registered on fat light yearlings but packers continued to put away away on some January fat cows.

Aggregate receipts were estimated at 53,100, against 54,457 last Monday and 68,891 a year ago.

Moderate supplies and a fairly broad shipping demand resulted in steady to 15c higher hog prices. Total offerings were around 150,800, a decrease of 2,000 from a week ago and 53,000 short of the corresponding day last year.

Fat lambs found a slow outlet at values unevenly steady to 25c lower and at some markets aged stock shared in the down-turn. The supply approximately 64,800 as compared with 66,840 a week ago and 73,555 a year ago.

Cotton Works To Higher Level In Southern Market

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11.—(P)—Trading in the cotton market today was largely under the influence of liquidation and covering. Prices, however, worked slightly higher under a moderate demand stimulated by bullish private consumption figures. Although there was some realizing at the advance May ultimately sold up to 19.43 and closed at 19.46, or 11 points net higher.

The general market closed very steady at net advances of 10 to 11 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due at the start here and as Saturdays textile figures, issued after the market closed, were construed as bullish the market opened 6 to 8 points up. Demand continued after the start under the impetus of a private consumption estimate of 65,000 bales during January by domestic mills which was larger than looked for and consequently bullish. Before the end of the first hour March traded to 19.36, May to 19.43 and July 19.49.

When the demand was supplied the market encountered some realizing and liquidation in advance of the holiday and prices reduced 6 to 8 points from the highs but in late trading there was another buying flurry consisting mostly of pre-holiday covering by shorts. Active positions traded to new highs for the day except May which duplicated its earlier high point. At the top March sold at 19.37, and July 19.39, or 11 to 13 points net up. Final prices were 1 to 2 points under the top.

Receipts 15,217; for week 26,687; for year 8,137,210; last year 6,935,388. Exports 11,006; for week 34,205; for year 5,737,353; last year 4,756,176. Stocks 2,208,860; last year 2,263,897. Stocks on shipboard 132,251; last year 134,936. Spot sales 17,788.

Private cables said there had been covering, trade calling and continental buying in Liverpool. Exports today 10,936 making 5,912,210 this season. Port receipts 15,510. U. S. port stocks 2,146,452.

Weekly Review Of Business in Lubbock

Butler Firm Serves All Of This State

Public Buildings Form A Specialty

Specializing in public buildings, the Lubbock office of the Butler company, composed entirely of expert licensed architects, serves not only the entire state of Texas, but the eastern section of New Mexico and western Oklahoma as well. Located in the Myrick building, this office has a remarkable record during its five years existence in this section. It has averaged about $2,000,000 worth of business each of the five years, and together with the other office of the company in Oklahoma City, has done work throughout Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and southern Kansas.

Since the Lubbock office was established the company has done the jobs of six court houses throughout this section in addition to more than 100 school buildings. At the present two major jobs are under construction: one of a $150,000 school building at McCamey and the other a $250,000 high school building at Wink. One of the outstanding examples of the workmanship of the Butler company is exemplified by the Hockley county court house at Levelland.

M. C. Butler is manager of the local office, which does the engineering and other phases of the work to be done. The company claims as efficient an organization as can be found in West Texas.

Skilled Workers At Beauty Shop

Using skilled operators and guaranteeing all work in the shops, the Lubbock beauty parlors here offer all phases of beautification to their patrons.

Mrs. Lena McElroy is owner-manager of the two shops, one of which is located 1115 Avenue K with the other at 1606 Broadway.

The Frederick permanent waves are featured along with facials, finger waving, hair dyeing, scalp treatments and marcel. The Belcano line of cosmetics is carried by the shops.

ILLNESS REDUCES WEIGHT OF KING

Sovereign Reduced From 170
Pounds Down To 112

BOGNOR, England, Feb. 11.—(P)—Some of those about Craigwell House have passed a story around indicating that King George's illness may have reduced his weight to 112 pounds.

It is said he was quite cheerful and jollied those who carried him from his room at Buckingham Palace to the ambulance that brought him to Bognor Saturday. He told them he hoped they would not find him too heavy. When the chief bearer said they had been practicing with a man weighing 170 pounds the king laughed and said he weighed only 112 pounds.

"It is a good thing for you you don't have to carry that big policeman outside Buckingham Palace. I believe he weighs 280 pounds," he said.

Reliance Brick Co. Optimistic

With Lubbock apparently standing on the threshold of the greatest era of building activity in the history of the city, Fred Caylor, manager of the Reliance Brick company in this territory, is optimistic for the year 1929, predicting that the company's business will reach its highest level during the next few months.

Mr. Caylor has been manager of the company here for the past five years, taking charge one year after it was located in this city. With headquarters in the Temple Ellis building, this district of the Reliance Brick company includes 29 counties of this section in addition to the eastern part of New Mexico. The district extends north to Plainview, east to Crowell and south to the Texas and Pacific railroads.

All type of brick is handled by the Reliance company, including tile, paving brick, hollow brick, and all kinds of face brick.

Farm Loans Are Specialty Here

Operating for the past twelve years in Lubbock, the Temple Trust company, offices at 608-610 Myrick building, have been meeting the demand on the part of Lubbock and South Plains folk for city and farm loans. As a result of the efficient service offered its patrons in this section, this concern has enjoyed a flourishing business throughout the years, according to T. B. Duggan of Lubbock, who is vice president and inspector of the organization.

Organized in 1913, the Temple Trust company, with its headquarters at Temple, Texas, now has a capital stock of $200,000, and an additional surplus of $100,000.

H. C. Glenn of Temple is president of the corporation and W. A. Rowland is secretary.

Board Managers Win 3 Skirmishes In Sooner Probe

Impeachment Proceedings Of Governor Johnston Open Monday Before Senate; Pardon Draws Fire

(By Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11.—Plunging into its major contention that Henry S. Johnston is not competent to remain governor of Oklahoma—the house board of managers today won three legal skirmishes in its prosecution of Johnston before the senate impeachment court.

Johnston's trial on eleven articles of impeachment preferred by the house opened before the senate court. By consent, the board of managers began presentation of evidence on all charges, with that of incompetence uppermost. The charges will be voted on separately when evidence has been taken.

Counsel for the suspended governor vainly objected three times to the trend of questioning, on the ground that it was immaterial.

Chas. W. Mason, chief justice of the state supreme court, presiding over the trial, overruled the objection and the senate voted down two others in succeeding roll-calls.

Testimony centered about the pardoning of R. D. Crosswhite, convicted murderer and fugitive. Johnston's attorneys objected to testimony relating to Crosswhite's slaying of Thelma Lovejoy, young Oklahoma City school teacher, in 1918, and stories of her brother's and father's protests after they had learned of the pardon.

It was not pertinent to the charge and was prejudicial.

bank at the famous Lorelei rock, a rare occurrence.

VIENNA, Feb. 11. (P)—Intense cold afflicted southeastern Europe today. The Balkan states resembled the Arctic region. Rivers, lakes and water reservoirs were frozen and whole villages in Yugoslavia, Hungary, Albania, Czechoslovakia, Roumania and northern Greece.

Neville went to Cuba and participated in the battles of Guantanamo and Cuzco, distinguishing himself for bravery on each occasion and winning promotion to a captain.

With the first marine battalion, Neville was conspicuous for gallantry at the former engagement.

The war presently ended, but Neville's adventures did not. The outbreak of the Philippine insurrection caused a marine brigade to be sent to Manila, and Neville was one of the men chosen.

Before the Boxer Rebellion in China had started, and Neville went there to see a good deal more active service.

After this was over he went to the Philippines, remaining there for several years. In 1906, as a major, he went with the First Expeditionary Marine Brigade to Cuba, where he helped the army of Cuban pacification untangle a few snarls.

Then followed sea, Buffalo, and Dixie, followed by shore assignments at Washington, Honolulu and Charleston.

Landed At Vera Cruz
In 1914 came more excitement. As a lieutenant colonel, Neville commanded the Second Regiment of Marines at Vera Cruz.

The battle does not loom large in the history books, but it provided plenty of sharp fighting and cost a number of young men their lives; and then it was all over. Neville held the Medal of Honor for "coolness and unaffected bravery under fire."

The next two or three years were more peaceful. But 1917 saw the crowning activity of all. Neville, now holding the temporary rank of brigadier general, went to France to command the famous Fifth Marine Regiment.

What that regiment did at Chateau Thierry, at a battle of the French Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerre (with four palms), the U. S. Army Distinguished Service Medal and the U. S. Navy Distinguished Service Medal.

That is the service record of the marine corps' new commandant—a fighting man heading a fighting outfit.

Consolidation Of Schools Studied

Methodist Educational Commission To Consider Combining of Texas Schools, News Dispatch Says

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Feb. 11.—Information which may lead to consolidation of two or more of the major Methodist educational institutions in Texas will be placed before the Methodist Educational Commission at its meeting in Georgetown Thursday, a special dispatch to the Dallas News from Nashville, Tenn., said tonight.

The commission will meet to hear the report of Warren B. Brown, a specialist in educational surveys, commissioned to make a study of Texas Methodist schools.

Sherman is quoted as saying that the report would not recommend a merger, but would strive to place all "essential facts" about the schools in the state before the commission to enable that body to comprehend the situation.

Three of the Methodist colleges in the state, Southwestern University of Georgetown, Southern Methodist University of Dallas and Texas Woman's college at Fort Worth, are supported by the five conferences of the state and any move to merge these would require the approval of the five conferences. Seven others supported by individual conferences and these could enter any merger with the consent of their patronizing conference. These colleges are: Kidd-Key at Sherman, McMurry at Abilene, Weatherford at Weatherford, Long Morris at Jacksonville, Wesley college at Greenville, Westmoreland college at San Antonio and Amarillo college at Amarillo. The report will cover all of these.

Local Grand Jury Does Quick Work

Wheels of justice turned with record-making speed yesterday following the empaneling of the 72nd District grand jury by Judge Homer L. Pharr.

Slim Rutledge, O. H. Gholson and Lloyd Finley, arrested during the past week-end on charges of violation of the prohibition laws, were formally indicted by the grand jury following an investigation of only a few hours. The grand jury convened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and had returned the bills of indictment by 4 o'clock in the afternoon. J. H. Teague, of Slaton, is foreman of the body.

These three, together with several others were arrested Saturday and Sunday nights by the sheriff's and police departments. The others, including one local woman, are still in the county jail awaiting action of the grand jury.

Representative Mankin's bill is admittedly aimed by its author at a "Hoover democrat already making preparations to launch a fight for the governor's office."

Seek Backward Course
Declaring that "Hoovercrats" should not be discriminated against and that "if we're going to clean up, let's sweep the house," Representative Forbes of Weatherford sought to introduce an amendment which would extend terms of the bill to 1919 when the American party offered former Governor James E. Ferguson as its candidate for president.

Representative Purl of Dallas, declaring that if thousands of democrats who voted the republican ticket in 1928 were to be ousted, the bill should apply to party resisters for all time, attempted to amend the bill so that it would affect any person who had failed to remain in its ranks, at any time since he became eligible to vote. Both were defeated.

Rountree Predicts 3rd Party
"We are simply playing into the hands of Tom Love, O. B. Colquitt and Alvin Moody," Representative Rountree of Lamesa interposed. "I predict that if this bill is passed an independent party will spring up overnight which will mean the ruin of Texas democracy. It would be the greatest mistake ever made by a legislature."

Representative Pope of Corpus Christi, stressed the need of legislation which he said was demanded to clean up "the deplorable condition of the last presidential election."

Mr. Brownfield was one of those hardy pioneers who fought the battles incident on colonization of this great country when the Plains was a new and undeveloped region. In the early days he drove cattle over the long trail to the Kansas markets and many were the tales that he afterward told of these journeys.

He was one of the first seven charter members of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association and was ever prominent in that organization.

Mr. Brownfield was a Mason and a Shriner and a member of the Lutheran church.

representative sought to repeal existing laws relating to party matters and place the right of voters to participate in elections with state executive committees, her attempt was held out of order.

Some harmony was restored to the warring factions through adoption of an amendment by Long of Houston which provided that the bill would not take effect until December 31 of this year. Long contended that the measure as originally drafted was retroactive and unconstitutional.

Smith Is Bureaucratic
Smith of Tyler essayed the role of bureaucrat by offering an amendment which would insert as the caption of the bill, "An Act Choking the Democratic Party Until Dead, Dead, Dead," and substituting an emergency clause which would read "the fact that there is at the present time no law which would destroy the democratic party constitutes an emergency."

McGill of El Paso, acting as speaker, held that Smith had acted out of order.
