Schlesinger advocates plan as 'temporary safety net'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger urged Congress today to enact President Carter's emergency energy proposals as a "temporary safety net" to meet natural gas shortages spawned by the unusually cold winter.

Schlesinger testified on Carter's proposals before a House energy and power subcommittee as the Senate, which waived committee hearings, opened floor debate on the plan.

Schlesinger said it is likely that natural gas heat will be cut off in some homes in a few days.

"I think the full seriousness of the situation has not sunk in," the energy adviser said.

While some areas of the country are short of natural gas, other regions have adequate supplies and can help meet the shortages, Schlesinger said. He said legislative authority to shift gas supplies is urgently needed.

The natural gas shortages already have resulted in thousands of plant closings, the presidential adviser testified.

Subcommittee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., said in an opening statement that the severe winter, not government policy, is responsible for the natural gas shortages. Dingell said he wants to expedite Carter's legislative proposal and deal with long-term problems of natural gas supply at a later time.

In the Senate, Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., predicted a vote on the bill by Monday and said he hoped "senators would restrain themselves in offering amendments."

He said that because of the emergency nature of the legislation, it is important it not get bogged down in controversy. Schlesinger has promised congressional leaders that Carter will submit an overall energy plan that may deal with the question of long-range decontrol by April 20, Byrd said.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., led off Senate debate on the legislation by claiming it "does not alleviate the natural gas crisis, it redistributes the natural gas crisis."

Although Weicker said he would support the measure, he termed it "just another pain killer" and said Senate Democrats can no longer blame a Republican administration for the nation's lack of a comprehensive energy policy.

Carter is seeking fast congressional action on his request for authority to deal with the cold-spawned natural gas crisis that has closed schools and businesses in a number of states. His plan would allow allocation of natural gas among interstate pipelines, temporarily remove price controls from some gas and give the President the power to send gas to the areas that most need it.

Currently, the areas hit hardest are the Southeast, the Northeast and parts of the Midwest where unusually cold weather has made shortages worse.

In some areas of the country where temperatures have not been as cold, such as the Pacific Northwest, small emergency supplies of gas are available for transfer.

License stickers go on sale Tuesday

More than 1,000 farsighted Midlanders will receive their new automobile registration stickers by mail shortly after the Feb. 1 opening date for registration.

Frances Shuffield, chief deputy of the Midland County tax office, said her office has processed that many renewal cards and wishes "we had 1,007 more," in order to avoid long lines in the tax office as the April 1 deadline approaches.

Persons renewing their car registration should mail in their computer renewal cards by Feb. 28, making sure to enclose all parts of the card, Mrs. Shuffield said.

Registrants should be sure to specify which address they want listed with the state, Mrs. Shuffield said, explaining that often her office receives a different address on a registrant's return envelope, renewal card and bank check.

Registrants also may obtain their stickers in person at the tax office in the county courthouse basement after Feb. 1 without paying the $1 handling fee.

Mrs. Shuffield said she urged all persons renewing their registration to mail their cards in by Feb. 28 to avoid long lines in the tax office.

She especially urged operators of large fleets in Midland County to mail in their renewal cards as soon as possible.

New Texas residents should have a law enforcement officer (city, state or county) inspect their car's serial number before going to the tax office for their registration.

All commercial vehicles must have an empty weight slip in order to receive a new sticker, Mrs. Shuffield said. These are available at any public scales, she said.

The stickers this year will be red and should be attached in the upper right corner of the license plate, Mrs. Shuffield said.

The 1976 stickers expire midnight April 1, and the 1977 stickers must be attached to the car license by that time, Mrs. Shuffield said.

ANDREWS — "All the world's a stage," said the clairvoyant Jeane Dixon,". . . and all the men and women, each and everyone of us, are merely players."

Original or not, Dixon set the pace for her talk that entailed more predictions than prophecies.

"We all are born for a mission, for a purpose, and we all have our exits," she, again, said in a Shakespearean vein.

Dixon was here Thursday night to impart some of her learned predictions before approximately 700 folks at annual Andrews County Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting.

Andrews County Commissioner Jay Moxley was honored as the county's outstanding citizen for his efforts in improving the county since he moved to the community in 1938.

George Harrill was installed as chamber president for 1977.

Dixon, like oil-rich and patriotic Andrews, serves God and country and supports her government.

"I believe in prophecy; I believe in God," she told the throng, which had just had its fill of Mesquite Burners-prepared beef steak and baked potatoes.

"Prophecy is the will of God and cannot be changed by the will of the people," she said.

However, she did say that the United States of America "can be the leading country in this world" if only its people will unite for the common good.

But Dixon, off and on preaching made some predictions. Some were pro-Texas.

— "Texas is just beginning to enter into her Golden Age," She said in Energy crisis hits three states

By The Associated Press

A major Texas supplier of natural gas asked its customer utilities along the East Coast today to immediately shut off deliveries to nonessential customers as gas shortages caused by severe winter weather escalated.

The action by Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., affecting 69 utilities, came as Ohio, New York and New Jersey were already under declarations of energy emergencies. Utilities in those and other states had already begun curtailing service to nonessential customers.

Meanwhile, a severe storm bore down on the East with blowing snow and bitter cold that threatened to intensify the gas shortages.

In Washington, White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger urged Congress to pass President Carter's emergency energy proposals as a "temporary safety net." He said many natural gas systems already have largely depleted their gas storage fields, and in many cases "we are and have been using the gas that we expected to use in February and March."

Transcontinental said the curtailment was necessary to ensure that residences and other human-need customers which lack alternate fuels would not suffer an interruption in service.

The company's announcement did not specify the utilities involved or how customers it might affect.

Transcontinental has imposed daily maximum delivery limits on all its larger customers since Jan. 18.

A company spokesman said the firm was arranging to buy emergency supplies, but it was not known how much gas that would yield.

The fuel crisis in the Northeast threatened to add more than 250,000 new layoffs to the ranks of the estimated 400,000 already "energy unemployed."

A blizzard blew across the Midwest this morning, halting ground and air traffic and forcing numerous schools to close in Indiana and lower Michigan, where visibility was down to zero at times due to blowing snow. The temperature at Indianapolis dropped from 20 degrees to 5 degrees in less than an hour.

Ohio and West Virginia braced for the storm's arrival later in the day and officials in West Virginia said it had the potential of paralyzing the state.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, who on Thursday declared an "energy crisis" in the state, ordered state employes to go home and asked all businesses and nonessential services in the state to close by noon as the storm approached.

State chamber elects Collyns

The Texas State Chamber is a confederation of Texas' four regional chambers of commerce — West Texas, East Texas, South Texas and Rio Grande Valley.

Other new officers include Henry Gossett of Longview, John Cypher Jr. of Kingsville and W. C. "Bill" Cain of Progreso, vice presidents, and J. Fike Godfrey of Abilene, secretary.

Collyns is a past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the West Texas Press Association and the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Association. He presently is serving as secretary of the Midland Industrial Foundation and as a director Of the Texas Press Association and the Texas Good Roads Association. He is a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church.

The meeting in Austin was held in connection with the Texas State Chamber-sponsored third biennial Conference on State Governments, at which the principal speakers were Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton and Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Master craftsman still learning his art

LUBBOCK — "I'm still learning everyday," said the modest master.

Delcour, unlike the gunsmiths and firearm fanciers he serves, by his own admission is fairly unenlightened about weapons.

That is his choice.

"About caliber and guns, frankly, I don't know much. I'm just an engraver," said the Belgian artisan, who's professor of engraving at The Liege Gunsmith School at Liege, Belgium.

Delcour is here for the opening of the "Belgian Gunmaking and American History" exhibition that was holed up in the Smithsonian Institution during the 1976 Bicentennial.

The 150-firearm exhibit that delineates Belgium's 200-year role as a supplier of gunnery to the United States will be here for six months. (In October, the exhibit will be set up in Midland's Museum of the Southwest.)

Delcour flew in from Brussels this week to lend his expertise in a show of pistols and rifles, ornate and plain, blackpowder flintlocks and smokeless automatics, grotesque and streamlined, vulgar and plain.

Delcour teaches firearm engraving in a three-year technical program at Liege, an European gunsmith capital.

For benefit of the often-curious and sometimes-dubious newsmen, Delcour offered a preview of his art in Texas Tech University's The Museum, an armory.

Prinze condition 'critical' after apparent suicide try

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Freddie Prinze, the 22-year-old star of the hit television series "Chico and the Man," was in critical condition today with a bullet wound in the head following an apparent suicide attempt, police said.

Lt. Dan Cook said Prinze had been despondent Thursday night and that several friends and his psychiatrist were in his apartment trying to cheer him up when the shot was fired.

"All of a sudden, he reached down into the sofa, pulled out an automatic pistol, and shot himself in the head," Cook said.

Cook said a note was found but he would not reveal the contents.

Richard Green, administrator at the nearby UCLA Medical Center, said Prinze was listed in "serious to critical condition."

"He is not in surgery," Green said. "We have admitted him to one of our intensive care units."

Green said Prinze arrived at the hospital's emergency room at 4:06 a.m. and a team of doctors immediately went to work on him.

He said Prinze' parents arrived shortly after their son was admitted.

The shooting occurred about 3:30 a.m. in Prinze's suite at the plush Beverly Comstock hotel in West Los Angeles.

Prinze had been staying there since he and his wife, Katherine, filed for divorce last month. They were married in Las Vegas in October 1975. They have one son, 14-month-old Freddie.

James Komack, creator and executive producer of "Chico and the Man," said he had been with Prinze early Thursday evening in Komack's home. He said Prinze gave no hint of personal problems and said the actor didn't "leave here suicidal."

referring to the State's natural wealth in oil and gas.

— Politicans and others who have somehow contributed to the energy shortage will suffer "a terrible blacklash." Politicians, in particular, will be "running for cover."

— Former President "Richard Nixon will be vindicated" by "historians yet unborn." Just the facts, she said, will pay homage to Nixon, who resigned from office in the aftermath of the Watergate furor.

Among the facts that will vindicate Nixon will be (1) that no nation "fell behind the Iron Curtain" during his administration, (2) that he visited China in a peace-keeping mission.

— Corporate, business and individual taxes will "be slashed" under the Jimmy Carter administration.

But there a catch:

"What the government will give you in one hand they will take from another," Dixon said.

— "OSHA's (Occupational Safety and Health Act's) wings are going to be clipped."

— Texas Sen. John Tower, "the little giant," will "move to a commanding position in his own party." Tower, a Republican, will win his bid for re-election two years hence. The senior Texas senator will "stand tall in the national spotlight."

— However, Texas's, junior senator, Lloyd Bentsen Jr., will "remain independent of the President." He will not be the giant image that is promised (or, predicted) for Tower.

— U.S. Rep. Jim Wright, a Democrat from Dallas, "will inherit the mantel of Sam Rayburn," the late (1961) speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives. "Jim Wright will stand on the brink of national leadership."

— "I'll have to look up George Mahon to see who he is," she said of the U.S. representative who's chairman of the House's appropriations committes.

— "Lebanon begins its descent into bloodshed."

— The United States and the Soviet Union will get into a "deep and dreadful involvement" in Yugolsavia. That confrontation will be similar to that which launched World War I in the Austrian Empire in 1914.

— Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, who's planning defense-budget cuts, actually will have to recommend increased defense spending. "Those plans (to cut back) will be upset" due, in part, to Russia's strong show of power.

— "Most of Latin America will turn against the United States." Brazil, Argentina and Chile "will form their own alliance" for self-survival.

— "Upheavals in Latin America . . . and (Congressional) outbursts over the Panama Canal," will occur. "It could even bring the President to the brink of disaster" in the wake of "cries of impeachment."

— Haiti will be "in great danger of an invasion from Cuba."

— "Britain and Italy are nearer and nearer to the brink of total collapse." However, a "female Winston Churchill" will come to Great Britain's rescue. ("I know her.") Italy will not be so fortunate.

— Northern Ireland will be blessed with "less violence."

— Many years will pass before "the government of China will be stabilized." "China will secretly develop nuclear weapons."

-- President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union will "go to South Africa to lay a foundation for an economic-political disaster for the United States."

The U.S.S.R. will try to control shipping lanes and hoard South African ore. "It will soften our (the U.S.'s) economy, and they (the U.S.S.R.) will walk in without a shout."

— Edward Kennedy's chance for the presidency is nil. "When he was conceived, it was not the Lord's plan to put him in the White House, but I could be wrong."

— Miss Lillian, the President's mother, says her beer-guzzling son Billy Carter "is smarter than the President, but I hope that she is very wrong."

"He (Billy) will entertain us."

— "He (former President Gerald Ford) is not programmed (by the stars) to be president in 1980. I could be wrong, of course."

— "I think the women have the best of two world's" without the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"The Lord programs our lives when we are conceived." And if women will "take care of the men" they marry, then they will "come out on top."

The ERA will pass.

"The women (who) want it, they can have it, but they'll not get my vote."

— "I feel we will stumble onto a cure for cancer, the same as we did for polio."

— World Wide peace and the Second Coming of Jesus Christ will take place, "in our lifetime." Divine Intervention is the only answer to World peace.

— "Ronald Reagan has a magnificent future." Reagan, the "biggest power" on the conservative side of politics, was Dixon's choice for president.

— "I'm for the President (Carter) in the White House; I will help him all I can."

— President Carter's pardoning of draft dodgers and evaders will be "one of the biggest tragedies of his presidency, tragedies of his life, tragedies of this country." The blanket pardon will hurt the President's abillty to lead this country.

— "If he's lucky enough to be around, he (Carter) could be elected president (again)." Dixon recommended a "triple security" for Carter. His life is endangered, because of his pardoning decree.

— "I believe that there's a sister planet (to the earth) on the opposite side of the sun."

Lamesa's Dorothy Haney wins national contest

LAMESA — Dorothy Haney of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce has won the nationally sponsored volunteer membership sales contest for 1976.

Haney also broke the standing record number of sales with no time limit. The previous record was 370 memberships in 20 years. Haney has sold 540 memberships in eight years.

Among other cities in the contest were Macon, Ga., Orlando, Fla., Pawtucket, R.I., Kansas City, Kan., Oak Cliff, Texas, Hartford, Conn., Macon, Ga., and Wichita, Kan.

Master craftsman still learning

Adroitly, he rapped the chisel with the mallet and produced art. Voila! Meanwhile, a photojournalist was taking, or trying to take, close-up pictures of Delcour chiseling.

The photographer, standing shoeless in a chair and overlooking the working master, focused in on her subject. Something went amiss.

"I'm so flustered at seeing how pretty it is," she said, as if vainly trying to flatter the seasoned master, "(that) I fouled it (the picture-taking) up!"

And only moments earlier, a note-taking newsman had asked the 47-year-old Delcour, who has been engraving firearms since age 16, just how long does it take to master the art and craft of engraving.

"I don't know," Delcour responded. "I'm still learning. They (his students and fellow craftsmen) call me master, but I'm not . . . ."

Modesty.

A plaque at the base of the vise politely tells those watching the master at work:

"Sorry, but I am afraid I can engrave much better than I speak English! So . . . . . be nice! Thank you!"

He speaks the language very well.

In all of Europe, Delcour said, there are only two firearm engraving schools: the one in Belgium and one in Austria. There's none to the west, he said, and some of his students ars from this country.

Just what is the attraction to engravings, however ornate, sim- as an answer to that.

IRS official admits protesters top list

An Internal Revenue Service official said Thursday persons who vocalize their resistance to the federal income tax are given top priority for investigations.

Jerry Stamps, group manager for the IRS intelligence division in Dallas, testified in a pre-trial hearing before U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle that when there are grounds for criminal action in the case of tax evaders who publicly declare their resistance to income tax laws, prosecution is zealously sought without regard to the dollar amount involved in the case.

The purpose of the hearing was to see if selective prosecution "without cause" was used by the government in the income tax evasion cases of Gordon W. Kahl and William M. Rinehart, both of Odessa. That hearing was expected to continue in federal court here today.

Kahl is charged with failing to file a tax return during 1973 and 1974. At that time he resided in Crane. Rinehart is charged with failing to file a tax return in 1974. Both men are members of the United Tax Action Patriots, a group claiming the federal income tax law is a subversion of American principles.

"As a general rule of thumb," Stamps said in the courtroom, priorities for the prosecution of tax cases by the nine IRS special agents assigned to the West Texas region are determined by both the "flagrancy and size" of the tax law violation.

When asked by Lubbock attorney Lewis Terrell, representing Kahl, what the IRS would do if it learned someone who claimed he had not filed a tax return was urging others to do the same, Stamps said the IRS would "certainly" investigate to see if there was validity in the statement that no taxes were filed."

On further questioning, Stamps said an investigation to lodge criminal charges would begin in all cases where there were grounds and a person had gotten publicity over an anti-income tax stance. For those tax evaders who kept a lower profile, Stamps added, civil procedures were generally used as a means to obtain back taxes first.

"We have to deter people from failure to pay their taxes," Stamps explained.

Stamps said of 64 criminal charges filed in 1975 by the special agents under his command, 13 were for failure to file tax returns. And of those, four were protesters.

"We see some of that sort of thing (tax protesting) in the Dallas area, but most of it is out here."

Odessa attorney Bill Harman is representing Rinehart and Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck is prosecuting the case.

3 states call emergencies

New Jersey's largest utility, shut off virtually all natural gas service today for 2,500 industrial and commercial customers until at least Tuesday. PSE&G was the fourth and last of the state's major gas companies to stop service for its big customers. The cutbacks have forced the layoffs of thousands of factory workers.

A spokesman for PSE&G also urged households to turn down heat, saying "We'll all be out of gas" if the pipeline system loses pressure.

The energy crisis across the East and Midwest began last week when another wave of snow and record low temperatures moved as far south as Florida.

Carter's men advise against tampering with plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Congress tries to add too much to President Carter's $31.2 billion economic stimulation package, the President's advisers might recommend that he veto the package, an administration economist warns.

The administration's three top economic officials explained and defended the package before the House Budget Committee on Thursday.

But some Democrats plied them with questions about how firm the administration is on holding the program to $15.5 billion this year and $15.7 billion next year.

The officials avoided commitments, but insisted the totals they cited represented the best judgment of the President and his advisers.

Asked whether he would recommend a veto if more were added, Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said "the likelihood of such a recommendation would grow with the size of the addition."

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, the senior Republican member of the taxwriting Ways and Means Committee, said he doubts the new administration and the Democratic majority in Congress can resist pressures to pump more funds into the public works, jobs and other non-tax parts of the stimulation package. Carter budgeted them at $1.7 billion this year, $7.6 million next year.

"The pressure will come from the constituencies the Carter administration jumps to — the AFL-CIO, the mayors and the others. Each will want his slice made bigger," Conable said in an interview.

Conable said there were hopeful signs that the economy is recovering on its own, with most prvate economists predicting a bigger growth than the administration projected.

He said he suspected the Democratic White House is maneuvering for position to claim credit for an economic gain that would occur anyway.

The Carter program's emphasis on tax rebates and reductions disappointed the AFL-CIO and some Democrats who favored the labor federation's $30 billion, one-year proposal. The AFL-CIO's approach would rely entirely on job-stimulating programs, housing, and payments to state and loral governments, with no tax break.

Schultze, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Budget Director Bert Lance argued that the jolt of a $50 rebate or payment for each taxpayer and each dependent would hit 96 per cent of the population and be the quickest way to galvanize the sluggish economy.

Slower-developing jobs programs could take over later, they said.

"This will immediately add to consumer income and ... will shortly begin boosting sales of consumer goods," Schultze predicted.

"A further enlargement of public service employment or accelerated public works would not meet this objective. Neither can be expanded faster than the President has proposed without running into very serious management problems."

Vietnam vets given job priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who pardoned Vietnam draft evaders as his first act in office, now wants to give a break to the thousands of jobless Vietnam-era veterans.

Carter's new labor secretary, F. Ray Marshall, announced a $1.3 billion program Thursday to find jobs for 200,000 of the nation's 558,000 unemployed Vietnam-era veterans. The government hopes to create 145,000 public service jobs for veterans, and to persuade business and industry to hire 50,000 to 60,000 more.

The jobs program was endorsed by both the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, which last Friday denounced the President for pardoning draft evaders.

A VFW spokesman, asked if the jobs program would blunt that criticism, said: "No. He (Carter) chose to recognize those who ran and broke the law before he chose to recognize those who served honorably."

The jobs plan was linked with the pardons in a 29-page agenda prepared by Carter aides for the President's first six months in office.

The agenda, made public last week, said the jobs program was a chance for Carter to show "his deep, personal feelings that those who served during the war deserve to be honored."

Marshall said Carter has placed the program among his "highest priorities." The 8.6 per cent unemployment rate among veterans aged 20 to 34 is "a blight on the nation's conscience," Marshall said.

The veterans' jobless rate is well above the national average of 7.9 per cent. For veterans aged 20 to 24, the jobless rate is even worse: 18 per cent, compared to 12.5 per cent for nonveterans of that age.

Marshall said the hardest hit have been young black veterans, more than 20 per cent of whom are out of work.

The program is part of the $31.2 billion, two-year economic stimulus package that Carter sent to Congress on Thursday.

Marshall said local and state governments will be asked to earmark 35 per cent of their public job service openings for veterans.

Marshall unveiled the plan at the White House shortly after he was sworn in as the last of Carter's Cabinet members to take office.

Woodkins granted stay from date with chair

WASHINGTON (AP) — A convicted Texas murderer, who says he knows he's going to die in the electric chair, has been granted a delay in his Feb. 10 execution by a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. on Thursday ordered Texas officials to allow Woodkins to live until the court decides whether to hear his appeal.

Woodkins, 21, of Marshall, Tex., was convicted in March 1975 of the kidnap-slaying of Marshall insurance agent Jimmy Kuykendall.

According to testimony at Woodkins' trial, he and two other persons abducted Kuykendall from a public phone and forced him at gun point to a rural area where he was shot. Kuykendall was robbed of $90.

Ruby Hicks, one of the persons with Woodkins during the abduction, received total immunity for her testimony against Woodkins. Douglas Pilot, the other member of the trio, is serving a 25-year prison term for murder.

Woodkins' conviction was upheld by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which ordered a state district court judge to set an execution date. Woodkins was sentenced on Dec. 1 to die in the electric chair.

Attorneys for Woodkins told Powell, who serves as circuit justice for Texas, the condemned man will appeal what he considers to be numerous trial errors.

The attorneys claimed prospective jurors were wrongly excluded on the basis of general opposition to the death penalty, that irrelevant and highly prejudicial evidence was allowed to be used against Woodkins, and that the death penalty was not appropriate in his case.

Tax funds bountiful

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday Texas' major tax funds brought in over $4 billion in 1976, a 16.8 per cent increase over 1975.

Natural gas tax revenues rose 48.1 per cent to $391.6 million; the motor vehicle sales tax rose 18.2 per cent to $275.9 million; and sales tax collections totaled $1.5 billion, an 18.2 per cent increase, or nearly double the national average.

"Consumers had more money and they spent it in record amounts for such luxuries as new automobiles," Bullock said in a statement.

SW Bell fighting ruling

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has been asked by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to order a state district judge to suspend a rate increase less than 20 per cent as big as the one Bell wants.

Bell asked for a writ of mandamus from the high court Thursday. It said Judge Jim Meyer of Austin should be compelled to reverse his refusal to suspend the order by the new Public Utilities Commission.

Bell asked for rate increases totaling $296.7 million a year. The PUC granted only $57.8 million. This is so low, Bell contends, as to amount to confiscation of its property.

The law creating the PUC provides for suspension of PUC orders in confiscation cases.

Bell says it should be allowed to charge the rates it originally asked for, pending appeal. It will post a reasonable bond to insure repayment if it loses the appeal, it says.

"We feel strongly that the commission's rate order must be set aside," said Doyle Rogers, Bell's chief executive in Texas. "The commission and the district court have ignored the company's established need for additional rates and also have ignored the law regulating public utilities in Texas."

Atty. Gen. John Hill argued in Meyer's court that Bell should stop behaving as if it were entitled to special privileges. Bell should follow the normal appeal route and not seek extraordinary judicial remedies, he said. Posting a bond will not guarantee repayment in all cases, Hill said, because customers must file claims.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TITLE XX PLAN

PUBLIC COMMENT INVITED

Title XX of the Social Security Act provides funds for social services such as day care, family planning, protective care for children and adults. Each year the State Department of Public Welfare publishes a services plan which describes how Title XX funds will be used. The following are proposed amendments to the Title XX Comprehensive Annual Services Program Plan for the year which began Oct. 1, 1976 and ends Sept. 30, 1977.

AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE WAIVERS FROM FEDERAL INTERAGENCY DAY CARE REQUIREMENTS (FIDCR)

(This amendment will permit better use of existing resources to provide day care services to eligible Title XX children.)

That the "Regional Structure" section of the plan be revised to permit regional DPW child development staff to waive compliance with FIDCR. Waivers will be permitted only after regional DPW staff have determined that child care spaces are not available in centers that meet federal standards. The centers granted waivers must have had child care agreements with DPW before Jan. 1, 1977.

GRANTS TO DAY CARE PROVIDERS EMPLOYING AFDC RECIPIENTS

(This amendment will increase the number of children cared for and assist day care providers in meeting federal child staff ratio standards. Source of funds: P.L. 94-401.)

That the "Coordination and Use of Related Systems" section be revised to allow grants to day care providers for employment of AFDC recipients. The grants will be made to day care providers who are funded fully or partially by Title XX. At least 20 percent of the children served in the facility must be eligible under Title XX.

COMMENTS

Comments about the proposed amendments are encouraged and must be sent to the Title XX Information Center, State Department of Public Welfare, Austin, Texas 78701. Comments must be received by 5 p.m. February 28, 1977.

GETTING COPIES OF AMENDMENTS

The proposed amendments may be read or obtained free of charge at the DPW offices listed below or by writing to the Title XX Information Center (see address above).

A public hearing on the proposed amendments will be held in the John H. Reagan Building in Austin at 9 a.m. February 23, 1977.

Addresses are for DPW offices. When there are no offices, the address of the county judge is given.

Head on folded hands, Melvin Dummar rests his eyes before returning to the witness stand to resume testimony on how he got the so-called "Mormon will." Dummar stands to inherit more than $100 million if the Hughes will is declared authentic. To the left, Dummar's attorney, Rogert Dutson (with glasses), quietly talks with Paul Freese, who represents Hughes' paternal relatives.

Equifax finishes defense against FTC complaints

ATLANTA (AP) — Equifax Inc., the nation's largest credit investigating firm, concluded the last scheduled Atlanta hearing Thursday on charges of misrepresentation and other violations of federal credit laws in its handling of credit information.

The hearing before an administrative law judge was one of a continuing series of hearings at which Equifax has attempted to rebut charges by the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC has accused Equifax field representatives of misrepresenting themselves to consumers to obtain credit information for insurance companies. In addition, the FTC alleges Equifax has furnished credit information to unauthorized individuals and has denied consumers the right to examine their credit files.

The company also is accused of maintaining a "quota system" which requires its field personnel to develop "a certain percentage of adverse information" about potential insurance customers, the FTC said. In addition, the FTC has charged that Equifax agents are unable to adequately or accurately investigate consumers because their work load is too heavy.

Company officials have denied the charges and Thursday's testimony from a representative of Arthur Andersen and Co., an independent accounting firm, included time and motion studies in support of the Equifax's claim that time spent on credit investigations is "reasonable."

The FTC complaint, which seeks to ban the alleged illegal practices, was filed March 6, 1974. The hearings, at which Equifax is presenting its defense, began in Washington, D.C., last November.

Equifax officials have complained they have been singled out by the FTC because they are the nation's largest credit investigating company.

They also say the FTC complaint is a thinly veiled attempt to press for legislative reform of the Consumer Credit Act.

The Los Angeles Times

LAS VEGAS — Melvin Dummar, a contestant on television's "Let's Make a Deal" several times before he became nationally known as a potential inheritor of over $100 million from Howard Hughes, Thursday declined a "deal" offered in a courtroom.

Los Angeles attorney Paul Freese, who is contesting a purported Hughes will as a forgery, offered to use his efforts to keep Dummar out of prison if the 31-year-old Utah man would tell the truth about the document.

But, for the third consecutive day of what Clark County Dist. Court Judge Keith Hayes called an "extraordinary proceeding," Dummar stuck to his latest story as the true account.

Interrogation of Dummar is to conclude Friday morning. Hayes gave him a safe conduct pass in and out of Nevada for purposes of telling "the truth." However, state and county prosecutors have said they would not grant him immunity from future prosecution in return for his appearance.

Dummar, confessing that he lied under oath when he said he had never touched the will, testified here this week that he delivered it to Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City last April after receiving it from a man he did not know. He changed his story after his fingerprints were reported found by the FBI on the envelope containing the document.

Harsh winter kills fish, too

By The Associated Press

A silent tragedy is under way in the Upper Midwest as millions of fish smother, victims of one of the driest summers in decades and a viciously cold winter.

In Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan, dozens of shallow natural lakes have been opened to "promiscuous fishing," allowing anglers to take unlimited quantities of all fish by any means short of poison or dynamite.

The fish are dying of oxygen starvation. Conservation officials say the first to go are the gamefish; the survivors if any, will be carp and other rough fish.

The officials believe it is better that the fish be harvested now rather than simply rot.

"It's a combination of low water, thick ice, a heavy snow cover and excessive decaying vegetation," said Jerry Conley, superintendent of fisheries for the Iowa Conservation Commission.

The oxygen supply in the water is decreasing because sunlight cannot get through the thick ice and heavy snow to the live plants that produce oxygen through photosynthesis, he explained.

The problem is compounded by the drought-induced low water levels that force the fish to compete in a smaller universe, and by abnormally heavy concentrations of decaying plant matter which consume the oxygen. The high levels of nutrients in the water are to blame for excessive plant life.

In Wisconsin, a commercial fisherman working out of Ferryville says the Upper Wisconsin River "is dead" because of the severe conditions.

James Addis, director of fish management for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, said kills would be worst in the Wisconsin River, but that their lakes and backwaters also are in grave danger.

In Minnesota's Hennepin County, where Minneapolis is located, lakes have been opened to promiscuous fishing.

Michigan's chief fisheries biologist, John Scott, predicts the most massive fish kill in several years in many of that state's 11,000 inland lakes.

Conley said the first fish to go are bluegill, yellow perch, walleye, bass and crappie. Northern pike seem to survive a bit better than other gamefish, he said, succumbing just before the bullhead and other panfish.

Not for hucksters

Because Americans are sports conscious, the sweeping changes proposed by the special presidential Olympics Commission promises to engage Americans in a lively dialogue in the months ahead.

The voluminous report addressed what has become a major problem for American youths participating in Olympics games. They are amateurs bound by a strict ethical code, carefully enforced by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

By contrast, many of the other participants, particularly those from Communist countries, are professional athletes. Some are nurtured from early childhood to win gold medals for their countries.

The special presidential commission proposed to equalize matters by amending federal laws to permit American athletes to accept money for endorsement of commercial products and for other noncompetitive activities.

A new central sports organization, founded within the "organizational shell" of the U.S.O.C., would act as arbiter, mediator and final authority over all problems arising from the arrangement.

The presidential committee has come a long way from the philosophy of Baron Pierre de Couthbertin, who revived the modern Olympics in 1896. The baron insisted that "the most important thing in the Olympics games is not to win, but to take part."

For example, wouldn't the athlete who could sell the most cereal, footgear or apparel ultimately be among the chosen few who get to the Olympics? And is this the basis on which the selection should be made? Or wouldn't U.S. glories in the Olympics eventually be narrowed to the most popular sports which would have the most appeal to advertisers?

We believe that American participation in the Olympics should set an example by projecting our ideals. Huckstering by our amateur athletes can only tarnish our role, not only in the Olympics, but throughout the world, and most particularly in the Third World.

There is a better way. Using the powers that it already has, the U.S.O.C. already has authorized the establishment of three training centers, including one that will open this spring in Squaw Valley. Additionally, a job opportunities program has enlisted the support of 50 major U.S. corporations. And the U.S.O.C. has committed $10 million to a development program for the 1980 Olympics.

All Americans should get wholeheartedly behind these programs to send their amateur all-Americans to the Olympics honorably and without dispute.

Vietnam wins again

A decision by the International Monetary Fund to loan Communist Vietnam $35 million runs against the grain of U.S. policy.

Heretofore our government has taken the position that Hanoi should follow through on its promises to cooperate in accounting for Americans missing in Indochina before there is any talk of financial aid to rebuild Vietnam.

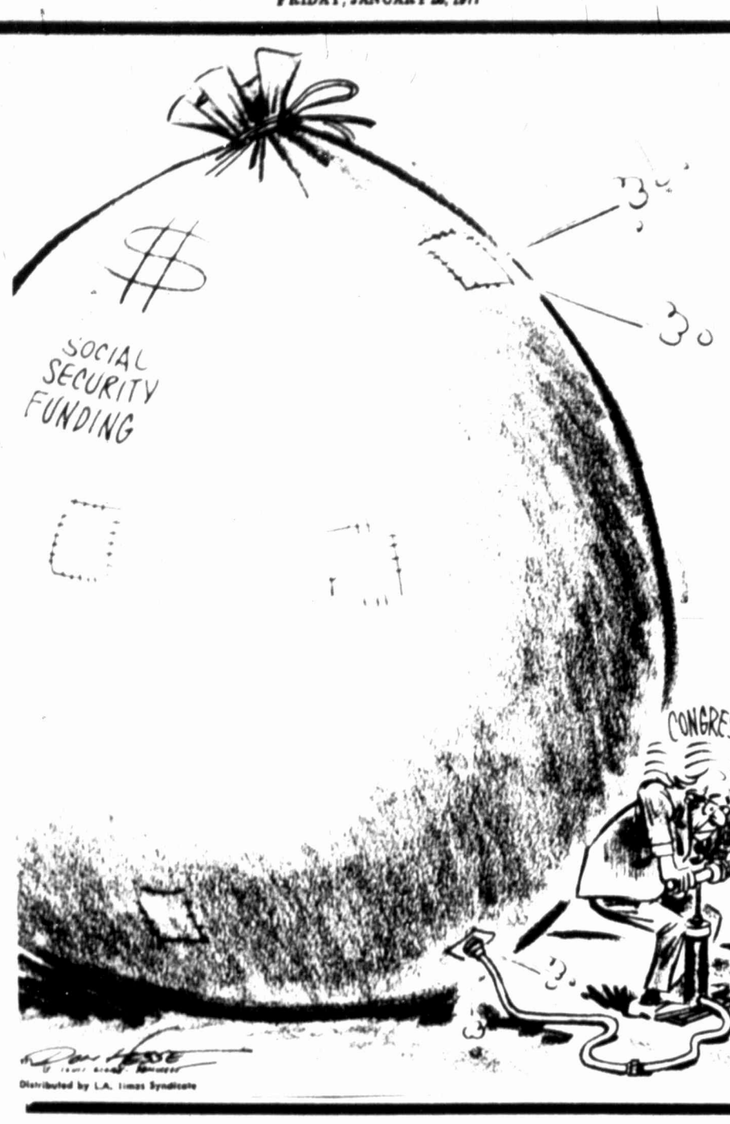

Technically, of course, the IMF is an international body with a mind of its own. However, the IMF relies upon the United States for a significant amount of its funds. For all practical purposes, there will be American dollars going to Hanoi under the IMF loan.

Meanwhile, another financial institution in which the United States is the key supporter, the World Bank, is sending a delegation to Hanoi for studies that may lead to further financial aid.

The United States should not impose its own quarrel with Hanoi on international organizations like the IMF and the World Bank, but many Americans would be happier if the U.S. representatives in those organizations would at least dissociate their government from decisions which run contrary to our current national interests.

The question of reconstruction aid provides a lever for getting a final accounting on MIAs from Hanoi. It is a weak lever if the IMF and World Bank provide a source of such aid — and a bitter irony if the aid includes American dollars.

It is difficult to understand in the first place how an organization which relies upon the United States for a large amount of its funds could do business with Hanoi. And then when two worldwide lending agencies in this very same category plan on doing business with North Vietnam, well it simply is too much. The United States government should advise the lending agencies to call off the loans to Hanoi or else plan on getting along without U.S. funds.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Venezuela gets blame for high oil prices

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Petroleum seems to be Latin America's $6 billion problem of the moment.

Most Latin American countries do not have enough oil to satisfy their needs. Of those few countries that do produce sufficient oil to fuel their economies and have some left over for sale abroad, only Mexico appears to feel that its prospects are bright.

Venezuela still is Latin America's No. 1 oil producer and exporter. It extracts about 2.4 million barrels of crude a day. Trinidad-Tobago, Ecuador and Bolivia also are oil exporters, to a much lesser extent.

But the rest of the hemisphere republics must buy all or part of their petroleum abroad and the estimate is that those foreign oil purchases will cost them at least $6 billion in 1977.

They are all hurting. And they are increasingly blaming the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and Venezuela, which claims to have inspired the foundation of OPEC, for their difficulties.

Brazil is the worst off. It reportedly spent about $3.9 billion on imported oil in 1976, when its imports increased over 14 per cent to an average of 842,000 barrels a day. Its bill this year predictably will be higher.

Brazilians are not the only Latins who have been criticizing Venezuela for refusing to supply them oil at preferential prices — that is, at prices considerably lower than those charged by the Arabs and other producers.

The Dominican Republic has, along with Costa Rica and some of the other Central American republics. Colombia and Jamaica have not been specific in their protests, referring only to the OPEC countries in general.

Even Cuba's Fidel Castro has discussed the subject of oil prices, but he makes it clear that he does not condemn Venezuela which, presumably, soon will resume shipping oil to his country under an arrangement worked out with the Soviet Union.

But the point is not lost on Venezuela.

Venezuela has tried to blunt the criticism by offering the Third World countries a compensatory financing arrangement under which part of the ever-higher cost of Venezuelan oil may be financed over a period of years at 8 per cent interest.

However, the Dominican Republic, which reached such an agreement with Venezuela in December, insists that the deal is strictly business and not the least bit generous.

Outspoken criticism by the smaller countries has made Caracas aware that opinion in the hemisphere is turning against Venezuela. Foreign Minister Ramon Escovar Salom, for example, reacted sharply to a Washington newspaper column that blamed Venezuela for causing Brazil problems and which suggested that Brazil take military action against Venezuela in reprisal.

The Venezuelan indicated that the article may be part of "an international campaign" to split the Latin American countries.

But there was nothing in his reaction or that of other Venezuelans that hinted of any possible relaxation of Venezuela's steadfast insistence on charging ever-higher prices for its oil.

Even Bolivia, which exports a trickle of some 23,000 barrels a day, bewailed the latest round of world petroleum price increases and their inflationary effect. Gen. Juan Lechin, planning minister, predicted that "a few months after this price increase, and then for an indefinite period, there also will be price increases on imports of equipment, machinery, manufactured products and consumer goods."

Of the Latin American oil exporters, apparently only Mexico is able and willing to increase its production. The government oil company, Petroleos Mexicanos, has announced plans to increase its output to more than 2.2 million barrels a day over the next six years. That will permit Mexico to more than triple its exports from the current 120,000 barrels a day to 400,000 barrels.

President Jose Lopez Portillo has let it be known that Mexico will ship as much crude oil as it can, "as it would be suicidal" not to do so at a time when the United States and other countries need oil and prices are attractive.

Mexico's optimism is based on the fact that Petroleos Mexicanos now is exploiting fields in the Southeast, in Chiapas and Tabasco states, where wells are producing about 5,000 barrels a day each, compared with the old national average of a mere 120.

The additional income will be most welcome in Mexico.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON
and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Three years after the Arab oil embargo, Washington still hasn't developed a plan to protect the nation from another oil squeeze.

This incredible failure is acknowledged in a secret national security memo, known as Policy Study No. 38, which President Jimmy Carter found waiting for him when he settled into the Oval Office.

The recent cold spell, meanwhile, has put a squeeze on America's dwindling oil and gas reserves, even though there is no embargo.

A year ago, President Gerald Ford ordered his national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, to set up a task force to find ways "to ensure a reliable supply of required energy imports at reasonable prices over the next five years." The task force was instructed to give special consideration to "influencing pricing and production decisions in exporting nations."

Their report was supposed to be completed by March 15, 1976. But the policymakers kept sending the drafts back for revision. A tentative report was submitted last July. But, according to a secret briefing paper prepared for President Carter, this was also returned "to answer major questions that had been omitted, and a new working outline was developed."

The report still hasn't been "finalized." The briefing paper blames the State Department for keeping "overly tight control of the study." The striped-pants set allegedly tried to manipulate the study "to rubber stamp (their) existing international-energy initiatives."

This charge has irritated State Department officials, who hold the Treasury experts responsible for the delay. "They came up with questions, but they never had any answers," grumped one official.

The State Department wants to "lessen the impact" of future oil price increases, according to the briefing paper, by cutting back imports.

But the Treasury Department contends that "further arbitrary reductions in the amount of oil we import do not appear economically justified at present." This would merely result in a corresponding cutback in trade and an economic slowdown at home, the Treasury experts warn.

They, therefore, fear "such a policy could inflict higher costs upon the American consumer than the anticipated (oil) prices increases." Treasury officials would rather stockpile oil, as a hedge against an embargo, than reduce imports.

But in the backrooms, the experts are quarreling over who should pay for the strategic petroleum reserves. "If oil for storage is procured domestically," states another briefing paper, "it will have to be replaced with additional imports." Of course, this would raise prices, and the consumers would get stuck with the cost of building up the stockpile.

But if the government purchased oil for the stockpile directly from foreign sources at world market prices, the taxpayers would wind up paying the bill. Or the government could compel the refiners and importers to establish an industrial reserve. Then the oil companies would have to put up the money, although they likely would collect it back from their customers by raising prices.

The Treasury experts are also toying with the idea of buying "directly from foreign governments," according to the document. If this principle should be applied to all overseas oil purchases, it could save millions by eliminating the oil middlemen.

Rep. Phil Burton, D.-Calif., for example, is one of the most amiable men in Congress when his tooth isn't hurting. But the other morning, he set out for the dentist to get a painful chipped tooth repaired. The bitter cold weather didn't improve his disposition.

At a red light, Burton impatiently ordered his driver to make an illegal right turn. The infraction was witnessed by a policeman, who motioned the car to the curb. He approached the congressional vehicle, his face flushed with righteous indignation.

But he was unaware, poor fellow, that he was approaching a grizzly bear of a congressman with a sore tooth. Burton threw open the door, leened out and began to berate the befuddled cop. "I want your badge number!" bellowed Burton.

The startled policeman never pressed charges, and the congressman completed the journey to the dentist. "It was just one of those crazy things," he told us afterward. Now that his tooth is feeling better, he's sorry about the incident.

CARTER CAPSULES: Now that Jimmy Carter is installed in the White House, his campaign aides have loosened up on some of the campaign secrets. Here are a few stories they are now telling:

— Carter's irrepressible mother, "Miss Lillian," was so painfully frank that campaign aides quietly limited her appearances. They feared she would speak too honestly about some of the pro-segregationist views of the president's father. In New York, for example, her escorts went out of their way to keep her from the press.

— The campaigning Carter family became scattered so far and wide that they used the peripatetic advance men to pass messages to each other. Little Amy Carter, for example, got birthday greetings from her brother Chip, courtesy of an advance man who passed the message on to "Miss Lillian."

--One group that came out with high marks with the Carters was the Charlie Daniels Band. The Carters were so impressed with them that they may want the band to play a concert on the White House lawn.

INSIDE REPORT:

Another defeat apparently recorded for President Jimmy Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Stung once by the Senate in the Sorensen-CIA fiasco, President Carter has now all but conceded a second defeat, less significant than the withdrawal of Ted Sorensen's nomination to head the CIA but, in a personal sense, more humiliating.

Mary King, who along with her husband, White House aide Peter Bourne, has been touted as one of Jimmy Carter's closest personal aides, was slated to be director of the $100 million agency called ACTION (including the Peace Corps, VISTA and other volunteer organizations).

But when word of the pending nomination leaked to the press, it triggered a storm of indignation in the Senate Labor Committee, which, with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has jurisdiction over confirmation. Leading the opposition are two formidable Senate powers: Sen. Harrison (Pete) Williams of New Jersey, Labor Committee chairman, and Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the Senate majority whip and chairman of the Labor subcommittee that would handle the nomination.

They and other Democrats have quietly passed this firm word to Mr. Carter: Mary King was a "disaster" as head of the Carter women's committee and his health policy task force during the campaign and is unqualified to run a $100 million agency that has been in trouble since it was created six years ago.

Williams personally led the 1971 floor fight against the Nixon administration's proposal to lump the Peace Corps and VISTA together in one sprawling agency. The Nixon plan was adopted, however, and the agency is now described by congressional experts as "having the lowest morale of any agency in town."

What makes the Senate's rebellion against Mary King so embarrassing is her closeness to the new President. She was described in the New York Times last summer as "one of the Carter brain trust, on the same level as his foreign policy adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski." Senate operatives view her differently, describing her privately as too inexperienced and politically naive for the top ACTION job (now held by Michael P. Balzano) but perhaps suited for a lesser post in the same agency.

PANAMA AND REPUBLICANS

The Republican party's ideological split was vividly brought home to the party's new national chairman, William Brock, when Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina once again raised the incendiary issue of Panama Canal control.

Helms proposed to Brock that Ronald Reagan represent the Republican party nationally on the canal issue — a bitter point of contention between Reagan and President Gerald Ford in their struggle for the Republican presidential nomination. Since Brock has no intention of reopening that struggle, he is not about to follow Helms' advice.

With Robert Strauss' remarkable record of conciliation as Democratic national chairman during the past four years as his model, Brock wants to emphasize those issues on which Republicans agree rather than disagree. But that means overcoming the intense pressure from the party's left and right wings, both of which claim credit for Brock's election, to take hard stands on specific issues.

Helms, who has emerged as an aggressive and influential figure on the Republican right, telephoned Brock shortly after his election to congratulate him for winning as a "born-again conservative." The phrase reveals the dubious but widely-held view by many conservatives that Brock lost his Senate seat in Tennessee last year by straying too far left and now has moved right again to be elected national chairman.

Helms then suggested that the Republican National Committee demand equal time to answer President Carter's contemplated fireside chat on the Panama Canal negotiations. Reagan, said Helms, would be admirably equipped to present the Republican viewpoint.

The Ford camp, led by the former President himself, would protest loud and long should Reagan represent the party on canal negotiations. So, Brock is at once faced with a divisive issue from out of the past which runs exactly counter to his search for issues that will unify the bedraggled party.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Senior executives of General Telephone & Electronics Corp. directed the payment of at least $14 million in bribes, kickbacks and rebates in 28 countries, including the United States, between 1971 and the present, some of it going to government officials, according to documents filed Thursday in federal court here.

Without admitting or denying the allegations made in a complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission, GT&E consented to a court-ordered permanent injunction.

In an unrelated case, Uniroyal, Inc., also consented to a court order after the SEC alleged that it had paid $2.3 million to officials of several foreign governments.

GT&E officials named in the complaint — but not as defencants — are Theodore F. Brophy, chairman of the board; John J. Douglas, vice chairman; and William F. Bennett, executive vice president.

The SEC complaint says that GT&E sold a 28 per cent interest in Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. to four Filipinos handpicked "at the highest level of government." Some details of the sale were spelled out earlier this month in an SEC suite against the four Filipinos.

About $4.5 million was distributed by GT&E to the four to make the acquisition possible. This was done through secret commissions, credits and uncollected loans, the SEC said.

Brophy, Douglas and Bennett directed the Philippine venture, according to the SEC.

The SEC complaint notes that the company based in Stamford, Conn., "approved substantial commission payments to foreign agents without inquiring about the use of such commission payments."

In 1971, when GT&E was negotiating a large telecommunications project in Iran, the company's marketing representative in that country advised management to retain an agent.

The agent, who was to get 60 per cent of the 10 per cent commission GT&E was paying the marketing representative, was "necessary" because of his "close relationships with persons at the highest levels of the Iranian government," according to the SEC.

After the agent and representative presented GTE's proposal "at the highest level of the Iranian government" the company got a letter of intent for work valued at $80 million, the complaint says.

The two received commissions totaling $6 million, and some GT&E employes "understood" that some of the money went "to various government officials involved in the project," the SEC says.

Both the agent and the marketing representative have denied this in writing.

When it looked as if the Iranian contract would grow to several hundred million dollars, the agent and representative's commissions were scaled downward, the SEC says.

The commissions were paid through four Shell companies, two of them in Switzerland, the SEC says.

In 1973, GT&E was awarded a contract to supply telecommunications equipment to an unnamed south American country, according to the complaint.

At the last minute, the SEC says, the contract was rescinded, and GT&E was told it could be revived by paying about $270,000 to two high-level government officials.

These payments and others were "disguised on the books of GT&E," the SEC found.

The complaint states that GT&E paid a total of about $35,000 in illegal domestic campaign contributions from 1964 through 1972.

The SEC was told by GT&E employes that, between 1971 and 1973, the company made payments to unnamed officials in Mississippi and New York City in connection with negotiations for contracts.

In the Uniroyal case, the company signed a consent decree without either admitting or denying the SEC allegations.

The commission alleged that a Uniroyal subsidiary paid $420,000 to a trade association in Mexico on the promise that "the entire amount would be given to government officials" to block a planned price increase for tires.

In past complaints, the SEC, has made similar allegations of payments in Mexico by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and General Tire and Rubber Co.

The SEC complaint says that Uniroyal and its subsidiaries paid "questionable commissions" to stimulate export sales in many countries. A number of government officials also received payments, the SEC says.

Adamson talks about plane offer

The Los Angeles times

PHOENIX — Confessed killer John Harvey Adamson said Thursday he was offered a chance to flee the country in a twin-engine plane millionaire Kemper Marley Sr. and Arizona Gov. Raul Castro had in Mexico at the time of the slaying.

Adamson told of the purported offer during the second day of a preliminary hearing for Max A. Dunlap, 47, a Phoenix builder, and James Robison, 54, a Chandler, Ariz., plumbing contractor, both charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy in the June 2, 1976, car-bomb murder of newspaper reporter Don Bolles.

"He (Dunlap) asked me if I wanted to get out of the country," Adamson said in response to a question from Asst. Atty. Gen. William Schafer III, special state prosecutor.

Adamson said Dunlap told him, "they could get me out of the country in a minute," because they had a twin-engine plane. "You know," Adamson quoted Dunlap as saying, "Marley and the governor have the thing in Mexico."

Castro, who earlier had denied any social or business association with Marley, characterized Adamson's testimony as "untrue, ridiculous and absurd."

Marley, who contributed $19,000 to Castro's election campaign, was the governor's biggest financial backer.

Under questioning by Defense Attorney Percy Foreman, Adamson admitted he spent most of his time in a number of Phoenix cocktail lounges, drank about a quart of vodka daily, had experimented with cocaine and took tranquilizers on a regular basis.

He also admitted a connection with the bombing of a Bureau of Indian Affairs building in Phoenix owned by attorney Neil roberts, a close friend of Adamson.

"If he (Roberts) collected the $500,000 in insurance, you were to receive $50,000 of that for destroying the building?" Foreman asked. "From Neil Roberts?"

"Yes, Adamson answered.

Earlier, Adamson told the court the Bolles murder was part of a $50,000 package price deal for three slayings. He said he was offered the money by Dunlap, who told him he was speaking for Marley, to kill Bolles, Arizona Atty. Gen. Bruce C. Babbitt and public relations man Al Lisanetz, also known as "King Alphonse."

'Marriage of Figaro' first-rate

Of any major entertainment event to come to Midland in recent months, Texas Opera Theater's "The Marriage of Figaro" was the one I looked forward to with greatest anticipation — and greatest dread.

With anticipation because Mozart's sublimely melodic, magical masterwork has long been something special for me, a synthesis of 18th Century wit and elegance and musical sophistication — in short, the embodiment of everything opera represents, as entertainment and as an art form.

But with dread, nevertheless, because there is always the fear that something you cherish may not fare well, may not be well received, just at the time and the place you want it to succeed the very most. Would this rather fragile bit of musical theater, based upon a classic of the French stage by the 18th Century playwright Beaumarchais, succeed in Midland, Texas?

Happy am I to report that "Figaro" succeeded very well, indeed, here Thursday night in its presentation by Texas Opera Theater, the touring wing of the Houston Grand Opera.

A touring production it may be, but with little of the mark of a one-night-stand roadshow about it, be assured — no rumpled and ratty costumes, no flimsy or shabby scenery, no rag-tag group of instrumentalists to provide lukewarm orchestral accompaniment and, above all, no second-string, "second best" singers providing that most essential ingredient of opera, the lyric excitement.

In a word, TOT's "Figaro" is quality.

Opera buffs in the Midland area have been hearing good reports on TOT productions for the last several years — perhaps some had caught the company's presentation of "El Capitan" in Lubbock last season, or some other performamce by the troupe elsewhere. But I think few, if any, of us were quite prepared for the thorough professionalism, the absolute expertise, demonstrated so remarkably by the singers and the instrumentalists Thursday night in Midland High School auditorium.

Midland Community Concerts Association, the sponsoring organization here, must certainly be commended for having the courage of its convictions by booking the operatic performance. The association felt— and rightly so, it turned out — that Midland was ready for, and would be receptive to, lyric theater. With that conviction splendidly vindicated by the warm response of the audience Thursday night, may we hope that TOT will be invited to return with another production sometime in the future?

TOT's "Figaro" is brand-new having opened at Galveston just a week ago, and the company is now in the first days of an extended tour of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Part of the zest, the sparkle in Thursday's presentation here is attributable to the fact that the production is so new. But I am sure that the TOT troupe will be providing zest and sparkle in the same or greater measure this time next month, or six months hence. Because professionalism is the name of this game and these are gifted, well-trained, disciplined young artists who love to make music, love to share it with others and love to have it as well appreciated by an audience. That's a winning kind of combination.

TOT'a "Figaro" is extremely fortunate to have vocal artists of the calibre of Eric Halfvarson, Maryanne Telese, Warren Ellaworth and Pamela Porter in pivotal roles, not to mention other equally-gifted young singers to provide the strong support necessary in smaller roles in the opera.

Halfvarson as Figaro and Miss Telese as his betrothed, Susanna, brought witty insouciance, great gusto to their roles as clever servants out to teach their master a well-deserved lesson. These two possess considerable comedic ability in addition to fine voices and were warmly engaging in their parts.

By the same token, Ellsworth and Miss Porter were strong and believable as the Count and Countess Almaviva, he with an eye for every pretty girl, she sad and forlorn at her husband's desertion.

In fact, Miss Porter provided some of the best musical moments in the entire performance despite the fact her initial scene in the opera's second act seemed a bit lackluster. Nevertheless her voice has the suppleness and appeal needed for this touching part, and her command of recitative is admirable. She warmed to her role remarkably well as the performance progressed and her big moment in the third act, climaxed with the moving and supremely melodic "Dove Sono" aria, was certainly one of the highlights of the evening.

Ellsworth as the amorous and autocratic nobleman was absolutely fine. Occasionally I had difficulty understanding his singing lines but, by and large, his diction, like that of the other vocalists, was quite good.

Duets and ensemble numbers in the production were generally excellent, seldom with flaws.

Providing excellent characterizations in supportive roles were Linda Kowalski in the "trouser role" of the page Cherubino; Laura Lay as the maiden lady Marcellina; Joseph Warner as Dr. Bartolo and as Antonio the gardener; Adair Lewis as Barbarina and Scott Pederson as Don Curzio and Don Basilio. The opera orchestra was conducted by Jo Demain, TOT's music director.

With the exception of a rather barren and uninteresting stage in the first act, the sets for "Figaro" are handsome and very workable — rather simple, of course, as fits the needs of a touring show, but visually nice. Costumes for the production are colorful and attractive. Sets and costumes for the opera were funded by a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation of Los Angeles.

Winter-like weather due to return to area

Midlanders are scheduled to be reminded that it's winter as the spring-like respite ends and temperatures plunge below the freezing mark.

Fair and colder weather is scheduled tonight with partly cloudy and a little colder conditions Saturday.

Tonight's low should be in the mid-20s and Saturday's high in the mid-50s. Winds are due to be from the north and northwest at 10 to 15 mph tonight the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Thursday's high was 69 degrees and this morning's low was 41 degrees.

Above freezing temperatures and partly cloudy skies were reported this morning in Andrews, Lamesa Stanton. Clear skies were reported in Rankin, Crane and Big Lake.

Thursday's highs ranged up to the highest levels since last October, hitting highs of 83 at Alice, Brownsville, Cotulla, Laredo and McAllen in southern areas of the state.

Spanish violence continues

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gunmen and bombers killed four police and wounded 11 today in an outbreak of violence despite a government crackdown aimed at enforcing law and order, various sources reported.

Two men using pistols with silencers fatally wounded two police guards at a postal substation in southwestern Madrid, police said.

At almost the same time, a car carrying two paramilitary civil guards exploded on a highway outside Madrid, killing both occupants, the news agency Europa Press said.

Gunmen also shot and wounded two civil guards at a suburban bank, the agency said, and nine other civil guards who sped to the scene were injured when a bomb was thrown at their jeeps.

Police said none of the patrons in the postal station was injured. The gunmen took no money and fled in a waiting car, police said.

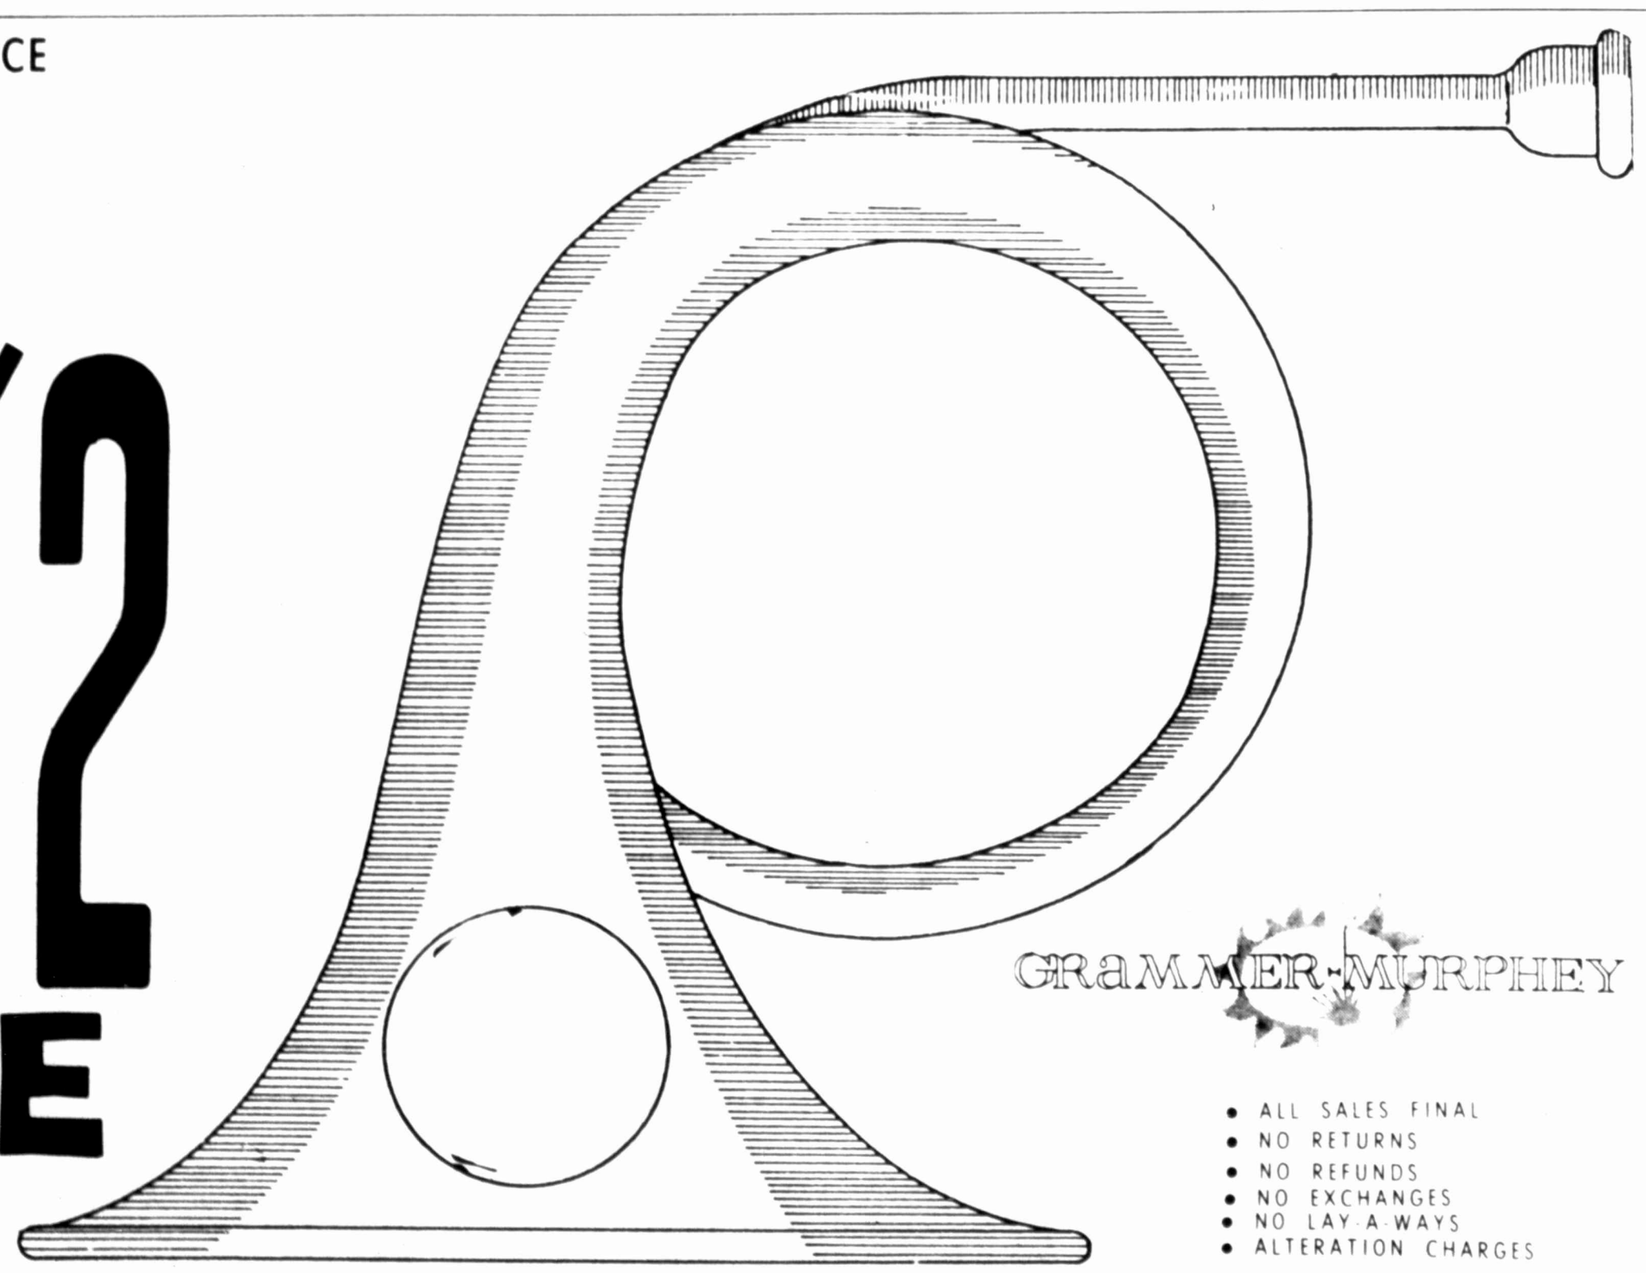

Witnesses said the gunmen, wearing raincoats, walked into the postal station this morning without speaking and shot the two uniformed guards several times. The two died later in a hospital.

Corporate wife's role now changing

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a four-part series concerning the role of the corporate wife.

COLLEGE STATION— "Ideal" executives and their wives seem to be fading fast in the corporate world. At least compared to the description from the 1950's which appeared in the first article in this series on the executive's wife.

Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out a few examples to illustrate this trend.

"A leading brokerage firm asked one of their executives to relocate in Chicago; his wife, who had a good job in Manhattan refused to move. Result: the executive now works for a competitor.

"Also, a health management consulatant was expected to move when his firm changed the location of the home office. Rather than uproot his wife and children, he quit and found another job."

The "Wall Street Journal" reported the story of the wife of a prospective vice president who was called in reference to a routine interview. In a note, she replied, "If Stan is being considered for a promotion, I suggest you interview Stan. I'd make a lousy vice president; he'd make an excellent one.

"These examples certainly do not typify American corporate wives today, however, no longer are they simply isolated cases. With a little 'push' from women's liberation, better education, and the influence of the mass media, wives of corporate executives are challenging the compan's right to dictate the life of their husbands and families, Miss Johnson noted.

They no longer feel it is entirely the husband's decision when a move is being contemplated. Researchers in business and sociology find it increasingly common for husbands and wives to consider both careers in reaching a decision, she explained.

"Many of these feelings are held by younger women, fresh out of school, eager to workand establish a name and identify for themselves. Women today are less likely to view themselves as extensions of their husbands, which is particularly important for women in the middle years, whose life has centered around husband and children for so many years.

What happens to the woman, whose identity has been established around her family, when the children leave home and "hubby" is at work or on the golf course? These are realities of life which women are beginning to face early in life while there is time and opportunity to set up their goals and identity, specialist said.

"A marriage does not consist merely of one life, one set of feelings, one set of goals, and one set of interests. Neither husband nor wife should have the right to make all decisions or expect the other to blindly accept and practice the whims and wishes of the other.

"With these ideas in mind, the executive wife is challenging the traditions of the corporation. Some refuse to allow their husbands to go on business trips without them. The general manager of a hotel in Chicago reported that the wife's attendance at business meetings has doubled in the last five years. While at the meetings, rather than taking in the traditional tours and activities of the town, the wives are attending seminars and workshops themselves."

As noted in the first article, entertaining business associates was a large part of the wife's role. Not so any more. When the couple does entertain company people, they are more often friends anyway and do it as part of their friendship, not out of necessity or obligation. As one woman put it, "There is no way of entertaining the right people and have it do anything for your husband. After all, they're probably on to you—once they did it themselves" Miss Johnson recalled.

Speaking one's mind is gaining wider acceptance by our society, and likewise, executive wives are no longer obliged to agree passivley with and accept their husbands' opinions as their own. They are freer to speak out on hot issues, even though they may be opposite their husbands' views.

"Yet, with all of the movements toward integrating the wife into corporate decisions which ultimately involve her, there are many women today who are locked into a situation in which the company does run their life. We are face with the reality here that women daily suffer emotional tension and strain because of the pressures and demands placed on themselves, their husbands and their children," Miss Johnson said.

The third article in this series will deal with the psychological problems which face executive wives and what is being done by companies and families to alleviate the stress.

DEAR ABBY

Wife fails to understand husband's continuous lies

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a college graduate and successful businessman. He is also a habitual liar. When we're out socially (or on vacation) he tells such outrageous lies that I'm embarrassed. He has tripped himself up so many times, then vows he'll never lie again, but he continues to do so.

It's a way of life with him. It's bad enough that he lies to others, but his constant lying to me has become more than I can bear. We've been married for 25 years and have four children.

I considered divorce because of his lying, and he dragged me into therapy. It gave me a handle on my life, but it didn't help him, so don't suggest therapy. I've offered him his freedom, but he swears he loves me and won't consider it.

I love him, but every time he lies I'm ready to throw in the towel. Maybe if I knew why he lied so much I could cope better. Help me.—FEELING HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS: Chronic liars are insecure people who feel that they must appear better, more important or "bigger" than they really are. And they usually lie to create that impression. Others merely fabricate tales in an effort to be more entertaining. Perhaps your husband could be helped if he were to understand why he seems unable to resist lying.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old boy. Almost 16, really. I recently got kicked out of school until my parents had a talk with the principal.

Well, because of that, my dad says I can't get anything that requires a license to operate until I am 18. No car, no motorcycle—nothing with wheels.

Abby, I know I did wrong. I am sorry and I even said so, but my father doesn't believe me. How can I get him to change his mind and lower the line? Please give me some suggestions; man, two years is a long time to wait.—SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Go about your daily life, proving at every opportunity that you are a more mature, responsible boy than you have shown yourself to be previously.

Study harder, be especially courteous and willing to help around the house, and in general start a self-improvement program.

I promise you, it will be noticed, and if you change your ways, your father may change his mind.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me! Does a runaway 17-year-old girl have any rights? I have a 5-month-old baby and am living with a guy whom I care about very much. I also have a job and a roof over my head. I haven't been home since the baby was born for fear my parents would have my boyfriend arrested.

I've heard that at 17 there is nothing they can do providing I am O.K. Is this true?—HOMESICK AND WORRIED

DEAR HOMESICK: Check with the Legal Aid Service listed in your telephone book. There you will get legally sound and confidential advice.

Deodorizer kills new fabric 'smell'

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

The SOS has gone out and we have an answer. Marye Bradley tells us that CD (concentrated deodorizer) is available at Thrifty and Save-On Drugs in her area, or by mail order from the Crackerbarrel, 61 Cabot St., West Babylon, N.Y. 11704. Marye goes on to say:

"It is the greatest I have ever used. I put two drops in a spray bottle with a pint of water and spray all through the house to kill cigarette smoke. It kills odors in the shed where our two dogs sleep. One tiny drop in the wash cycle and it kills all odors." — Marye, Torrance, Calif.

Thank you, Marye, for your continued help. This all came about from one little question — How do you remove the funny odor from some new fabrics?

"The Guinness Book of World Records" states that one Brenda Robinson set a world record by threading a No. 13 needle 3,795 times in two hours. Hurrah for Brenda, but how did she do it??

Even though thread was meant to go through a needle, it doesn't always. If you have trouble (especially with the polyester-cotton thread), cut the end of the thread at an angle. This gives you a little point to poke through the needle. Also, if you will place a dark piece of paper or fabric behind the needle, you will be able to see the eye better.

Of course, if your eyesight isn't 42-and-fading, you may not need these tips. But save them anyway.

Dear Mrs. Kinser: Enclosed is a sample of material that was preshrunk in warm water with a cold water rinse and dried in a dryer on "wash-'n'-wear" cycle. I made the fabric into a skirt, wore it twice and washed it as above. A couple of weeks ago I had to use a commercial laundry. The skirt came out of the dryer all wrinkled, even though I had set the dryer on wash and wear. I took the skirt to a friend's house and put it in her new dryer. Still wrinkles. What do I do? I need the skirt. Help! — Jean M. Wallin, Omaha.

Oh, Jean, how I wish I could have caught you before you threw that skirt in the commercial dryer! Even though those driers do have delicate cycles, they are so very hot they can really mess up some fabrics (no news to you, right?). The extreme heat allows the fabric to reset into wrinkles.

Since your skirt has been through so much and survived, perhaps we could try one more thing. Wash it in the hottest water you can. DO NOT spin dry. Hang up soaking wet and allow to drip dry. And, keep me posted, OK?

Questions may be addressed to Mrs. Betty Kinser, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

NASA experts working on problem of feeding elderly who live alone

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can't something be done to get decent food to old people who are living alone and are unable to cook or else don't have a kitchen they can use. It seems to me that if we can land a man on the moon and a couple of spacecraft on Mars, we should at least be able to feed the elderly who can't feed themselves.—Frances G.

Dear Frances: As a matter of fact, something is being done about this—and by the same people who organized those moon expeditions you speak of. The technology used to prepare and package food for the astronauts is now going to provide good, practical food for older people. Doctors, nutritionists, and biomedical engineers are working on this at the NASA center in Houston, and they expect to have a system ready by the end of the year.

There is to be a variety of menus—a number of combinations of 10 entrees, 20 side dishes, 10 desserts and five beverages. The basic meal will consist of one entree, two side dishes, a dessert and a beverage.

There already are several programs delivering hot meals to old people at home. The NASA program is being planned to reach people living outside the range of these programs or in places where there is no delivery on weekends. The meals will get to their destinations by a number of methods—including parcel post.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been overweight and forgetful for 15 years and all I've been told to do is exercise—push myself away from the table. I just had some tests done and I was told I had a sluggish thyroid. How common is this?—T.R.

Dear T.R.: It is not very common. Of the thousands of patients I have tested and treated for obesity, only 4 percent had low thyroid or hypothyroidism. One patient with a sluggish thyroid whom I remember well was Doris.

She had always enjoyed teaching until two years before I saw her. At that time, she started to get very forgetful—mainly, forgetting assignments from one day to the next. She also tired easily and started missing school two and three days a month. She could hardly wait until the end of the school day so she could go home and go to bed. She also noticed she was becoming much less interested in sex. In fact, sex really didn't much matter to her anymore. She noticed she was developing fat deposits above her collarbone, around her waist, and at her ankles. Previously, she had never had any trouble with skin infections, but she now noticed that she would often develope what she called boils. For the first time in her life, she was troubled by swelling of her fingers, breasts, and the area around her ankles. When I saw her she was about 15 pounds overweight. Her skin was dry, her tongue thick. Appropriate tests showed she did have hypothyroidism, and was deficient in thyroid hormone. Put on the exact amount of thyroid hormone she needed and on a nutritionally sound diet, Doris has done well, losing about 15 pounds in two months, and keeping it off now for two and a half years.

Writing deadline Monday

Monday is the deadline for Midland College students to enter the annual creative writing contest sponsored by the college's English and journalism departments.

"This contest is open to any student who is taking one or more credit courses at Midland College," Rebecca Tillapaugh, instructor, said. "It is not limited just to those students taking English or journalism classes."

Entry categories include poetry, fiction or short story and essay. First place prize in each category is $50 cash and second place prize is $25. Third place and honorable mention will receive certificates of merit.

Students seeking 50 jobs

About 50 Midland College students urgently need employment, Sally Hollman, director of the school's placement service said.

"We have placed students in virtually all the jobs which had been listed," she said. "But we have more than 50 students who have been registered seeking jobs this semester that we have not been able to place."

Most of the students seeking employment are in their late teens or early twenties and have limited work experience. They mostly are available for afternoon and evening employment.

Persons who have either full-time or part-time jobs which would be suitable for Midland College students may contact Hollman at the college.

California governor's mansion seems lonely

The Los Angeles Times

CARMICHAEL, Calif. — In a courtyard in this suburb of Sacramento is an elaborate fountain bearing a plaque:

"Time capsule to be opened July 4, 2076."

Somebody may even be living in the mansion by then.

There it stands, cold and lonesome, a $1.3 million white elephant with eight bedrooms and eight bathrooms.

Fifteen miles away, in an ordinary two-bedroom apartment in downtown Sacarmento, lives gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. His rent is $275 a month, which he pays himself. He sleeps on a mattress and box springs on the floor. He has never even set eyes on the new residence.

California's mothball fleet of gubernatorial mansions. Where will it end? Another statehouse, in which Ronald Reagan declined to live, has become a museum.

But while Brown refuses to have anything to do with what he regards as a "Taj Mahal," the new mansion — like a newborn baby — requires daily care.

"We keep it heated at 60 degrees all the time because of the teakwood and other materials inside," said Greg Lipscomb. "Otherwise moisture would harm them."

Lipscomb is deputy director of the Department of General Services and as such is in charge of maintenance of the mansion. The cost runs about $90,000 a year, although the Brown people are quick to argue that it would be about $500,000 if there were an occupant.

Part of the cost is for caretaker Igor Hermann, who prowls the empty abode with a long pole, sweeping cobwebs from the ceiling.

"One day I had to kill hundreds of crickets that had gotten between the cracks of the doors," he recalled.

Hermann also cleans the fountain, mops the floors, washes the windows, rakes the leaves, mows and waters the grass.

Golfers on the 13th tee of an adjacent course can look up at the structure, and golf balls found near the doorways indicate that some golfers have turned around and attempted to reach it with a drive.

At one time the property was a productive walnut orchard. Walnut, olive, pine and oak trees abound on the land. One of them has the remnants of a tree house, which might be more what Brown has in mind.

All manner of fauna inhabit the grounds.

"There are squirrels, raccoons, pheasants," Hermann said. "One day I saw a skunk on the patio. Another time there were two rattlesnakes outside the master bedroom."

The idea of a new mansion came about after Reagan abandoned the former official residence, calling it a fire hazard. A site for a new home was subsequently donated by a group of Reagan supporters, with the stipulation that it be used for a governor's residence.

The dwelling was completed in October, 1975.

Contributions to DNC may violate election law

Newsday

WASHINGTON — The Democratic National Committee, which spent $3 million on behalf of the Carter-Mondale ticket last year, now is asking wealthy supporters to help pay off the bills. But the solicitation could unwittingly involve some contributors in a violation of federal election law.

The committee needs about $1.15 million to pay off outstanding debts incurred during the presidential election last year, and at least another $1.5 million for operating expenses this year.

The committee has received approval from commercial banks to borrow the money if repayment is guaranteed by acceptable outside sources. So the committee is asking dozens of its supporters around the country to back the loans.

The election law, which includes loan guarantees and cash contributions under the same category, allows an individual to donate or guarantee loans of up to $20,000 each year to a committee of the two major national political parties.

But the law also says that in any given year an individual can only give an aggregate of $25,000 to all campaigns for federal office or committee spending on behalf of those campaigns. A contribution earmarked for a specific election counts against the election-year ceiling, no matter when the contribution actually was made.

Therefore, according to a Federal Election Commission official, an individual who gave the limit of $25,000 to federal election campaigns in 1976 could get into legal trouble in 1977 if he contributes additional money to defray 1976 election expenses.

"This really is a gray area, and it's the first test of it we've had," said David Fiske, a spokesman for the Federal Election Commission. "The key is the intent of the donor in giving contributions. If he intended that all the money given last year and this year go for defraying 1976 election expenses, then he is in a problem area. If he intended that part of his contribution be used by the DNC just for operating expenses not related to a specific campaign, then maybe he's okay. Intent is the key, and intent is very difficult to prove."

Fiske said no complaints had been made to the election commission about the Democratic solicitation, but that the commission staff probably would call the potential problem to the attention of the national committee's staff.

The question about the solicitation first arose last weekend when Robert Lipshutz, counsel to President Carter, confirmed that a nationwide solicitation was being made. Lipshutz said its principal purpose was to raise operating funds for the committee, and to help pay off campaign debts left over from the 1968 presidential compaigns of Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

Under the election law the National Democratic Committee and its Republican counterpart each was allowed to spend $3.2 million on behalf of the presidential tickets in the general election. The Democratic committee spent exactly $3 million, of which $1.15 million in bills still have not been paid.

Among those owed are Carter pollster Pat Caddell and Carter media director Jerry Rafshoon.

The Republican National Committee, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 million on behalf of the Ford-Dole ticket and reports all bills paid.

Opening lead — ♠ 5

Declarer takes the king of spades, draws two rounds of trumps and starts the clubs, hoping to get rid of two diamonds.

Unfortunately for South, East ruffs the third club, and South can discard only one diamond.

East knows that he needs three diamond tricks to defeat the contract. Since South has already discarded one diamond, the only chance is that South started with four diamonds. This means that West must hold exactly two diamonds—including the ace.

MUST LEAD LOW

East cannot get three diamond tricks by leading the king. He must lead a low diamond to make it possible for West to play the ace without losing a diamond trick.

Then it is West's turn to keep out of the way. West must not win the first diamond trick with the ten. He must take the ace of diamonds and return the ten as the only chance to produce the three diamond tricks which both partners know they need.

This kind of cooperative defense is easy if both partners count the tricks needed to defeat the contract. It's impossible if either partner is the lone wolf type.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened the bidding with one club, and partner has responded one spade. It is your turn again, with SAK; HAJ74; D953; CAKJ10. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts. This "reverse" bid shows a strong hand, is forcing for one round, and invites partner to bid notrump if he has strength in the unbid suit.

Tri-language class taught

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — At Winnetonka High School, students can study French, German and Spanish in one semester — and all in the same course.

Designed by three teachers at the school, the course stresses the ability to speak the three foreign languages rather than relying on traditional grammer or reading.

"It's survival skills in a foreign country. If they need to change money, order in a restaurant or ask where a rest room is, they know how," said Mrs. Vicki Barmann, French teacher for the program.

Mrs. Barmann and two other teachers said they began working on the program about three years ago after enrollments in foreign language classes declined at schools throughout the country.

Solon threatens new filibuster

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Oscar Mauzy, who stopped an effort in the last legislature to create more state district courts, says he would do it again if the facts are the same this year.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked the legislature Thursday for emergency action to create 23 new district courts. He linked it to the fight against crime.

Mauzy, D-Dallas, who said he has not seen Briscoe's request for new courts, said he will be a strong supporter of the measure if it puts courts where they are needed.

"The courts ought to be where the litigants and law suits are," Mauzy said, "not where friends of politicians are."

Mauzy led a filibuster in the final moments of the 1975 legislature that killed a bill calling for more district courts.

Briscoe also submitted as an emergency the transfer of $188,974 from the railroad commission's oil and gas division to the gas utilities division, which is swamped with local gas rate cases.

Emergency designations mean the bills won't have to wait in line behind the general appropriation bill for action late in the session.

It was the new legislature's busiest day since it convened Jan. 11.

Senators quickly confirmed, 27-0, the appointment of Garrett Morris, Al Erwin and George Cowden as public utility commissioners; H. C. "Dulae" Bell, as a Texas A&M director; and Harry McAdams as head of Texas' office of state-federal relations in Washington.

The Senate passed and sent to the House bills that would:

—Allow the Texas flag to be flown at night if illuminated by spotlights and in bad weather if made of weatherproof material.

—Permit overweight timber and pulp wood trucks to continue their journeys but subject the carriers to $200 fines. Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, explained it would cause a safety hazard to bring in a log unloader and transfer the extra logs to another truck.

—Require students enrolled at two or more state colleges to pay tuition only once.

—Allow teachers with high school certificates covering grades 7-12 to also teach sixth grade classes.

Briscoe asked for four district courts in Bexar County; four in Harris County; three in Tarrant County; and one each in districts consisting of these counties: Angelina; Atascosa, Frio, Karnes, LaSalle and Wilson; Collin; Hamilton, Comanche and Bosque; Deaf Smith and Oldham; Gray; Fort Bend; Smith; Lubbock; Midland; Brazoria; and Montgomery, Grimes and Brazos.

Rape trial testimony ends

Both the prosecution and defense concluded thieir cases this morning in the aggravated rape trial of Gary Wayne Childs.

The nine-man, three-woman jury was expected to deliver a charge this afternoon and the defense and prosecution were expected to present summary remarks before the jury began deliberation of the verdict.

Childs, 23, of 1304 S. Mineola St., is charged with the Sept. 26 rape of a 77-year-old woman in her southeast Midland home.

After District Attorney Vern Martin called three witnesses Thursday in 142nd District Court, defense attorney Thomas Hirsch of Odessa called six witnesses, including two Midland County Jail attendants and members of Childs' family.

The two jailers testified that Childs behaved in such a way when he was transferred from Midland City Jail to the county jail that they had to take measures to protect him.

Testimony from the defendant's family and fiancee purported to establish his whereabouts during the night of Sept. 26 and early Sept. 27.

One witness and Childs' fiancee both testified that Childs brought milk to his fiancee's baby about 1 a.m. Sept. 27 at the fiancee's home.

Upon questioning by the prosecution, the fiancee said she had asked Childs to bring the milk im the morning of Sept. 26. The prosecution asked the fiancee if she thought 1 a.m. was an unusual time for Childs to make the delivery.

Prominent in Thursday afternoon testimony was a red sweatshirt which Childs was alleged to be wearing the night of Sept. 26. Police found the sweatshirt in Childs' fiancee's home after Childs was arrested Sept. 27.

Childs is alleged to have taken part of the bottom of the sweatshirt off and used it in the rape. His sister testified that the sweatshirt was hers and that Childs had worn it the night of Sept. 26. She further said that pieces of cloth alleged to have been part of the sweatshirt did not seem to be part of the same sweatshirt.

Blaze ravages hotel

BRECKENRIDGE, Minn. (AP) — About 20 persons were unaccounted for today after a predawn fire swept through a three-story hotel in temperatures that plunged to 23 below zero.

Three hours after the blaze began in the Stratford Hotel, firemen reported that only one person was known to have escaped. Authorities said none of the other guests had called in to report they were safe.

Authorities said they did not know exactly how many people were registered in the hotel, but authorities estimated about 20.

Fire dispatcher Robert Blackwelder said the fire destroyed the hotel in downtown Brenkenridge, a community of 4,200 on the Minnesota-North Dakota border.

Blackwelder said the man who escaped was Douglas Johnson, whom he described as a veteran railroad worker. He was rescued from a second-floor window by police.

Some of those occupying the hotel were believed to be employes of the Burlington Northern Railroad.

Among the missing was the owner and operator, Catherine Stade, a widow believed in her 80s.

Sparks set off fire

Sparks from a moving railroad train caused a grass fire 13 miles from Midland on U.S. 80 West early Wednesday night, fire officials said.

Firemen used 700 gallons of water to put out the fire which caused damage to numerous fence posts in the area.

FIRE CALLS

3:26 p.m. — 705 W. Dormard St., wood fire in the alley caused damage to scrap lumber and fences, 300 gallons of water used, cause unknown.

Coast Guard boats pour water onto still smoldering Exxon dock and the side of the tanker Exxon San Francisco Thursday morning at daybreak. A series of explosions rocked the tanker and sank a tugboat as the San Francisco was taking on fuel oil at the Baytown refinery. Seventeen persons were injured and four persons are missing. Three of the missing persons were from the tugboat.

Search continues for missing crewmen after tanker blast

BAYTOWN Tex.(AP) — A sunken tug boat was expected to be raised today and the search continued for its three crew members, presumed drowned when the vessel sank after a series of explosions ripped across the Exxon docks here.

The tug, Nathan B., sank and the tanker Exxon San Francisco sustained minor fire damage in the early Thursday morning incident.

Eleven persons were hurt in the explosion and fire but only one was hospitalized.

The missing men were identified as Capt. Dale Wolfred of Jasper, Ruflin Hardin of Orange and Wendell Droddy of Port Neches.

Juan Vasquez, 25, of Baytown, an Exxon employe, was reported in satisfactory condition in a Galveston Hospital with second and third degree burns over 12 per cent of his body.

The other injured men were treated at a Baytown hospital and released.

"They were loading heating oil through a loading arm when the arm broke, spraying heating oil over the dock," said Lt. Dinnis Sande of the U.S. Coast Guard, which has scheduled a inquiry into the blast.

Sande said that according to reports, the tug, which was docked on the other side of the pier from the San Francisco, started her engines "and it was shortly after that the explosions occurred."

Sande said the tug went down immediatly in the murky bay waters.

Thomas Votisis, 28, one of 26 crewmen on the Norfolk, Va., tanker, said he had just gone to sleep in the crew quarters at the stern of the 800-foot vessel when he heard the blasts.

"All of a sudden I heard this big bang," Votisis said. "I saw flames when I got on deck and I jumped into a fire station on board. I was on the ship some 45 minutes afterwards and I kept hearing these explosions and it seemed like there was no hope so I jumped overboard and went under."

Votisis was rescued as were several other crewmen of the tanker who leaped into the water.

An Exxon spokesman said the tanker sustained only minor fire damage on the deck. The refiner's operations were not affected by the blast.

Governor Briscoe urges deregulation

WASHINGTON (A) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe of Texas told Congress today that deregulation of new natural gas rather than President Carter's emergency legislation would be the best solution to the nation's natural gas problems.

In an appearance before the House Energy subcommittee, Briscoe said, "I am extremely concerned about the effect this legislation, as presently drafted, could have on the consumers of the state of Texas."

He said Texans are paying up to four times as much for natural gas because they get their fuel from the intrastate market rather than from fuel lines operating between states.

The fact any emergency legislation is needed proves that "the regulation of natural gas by the federal government has resulted in a disaster of unprecedented proportions," he said.

Carter has proposed authorizing allocation of natural gas among interstate pipelines and temporarily freeing some gas from federal price controls.

Through April 30, the President could require transfers of natural gas among pipeline systems as a way to get gas from companies with extra supplies to areas of the country hit by shortages.

Briscoe said, "To allow gasstarved interstate pipelines to suddenly enter our intrastate market and purchase this precious commodity amounts to nothing less than allowing consumers in other states ...to now reap the benefits of an extensive drilling program which has been financed entirely by Texas consumers."

Briscoe said there has been a natural gas emergency for many years and that it "proves once again that there is no one in or out of government smart enough to make price controls work for the long-term benefit of the consumers of this country."

He said he was encouraged that Carter supports the principle of deregulation of the price of new natural gas.

But he said "emergency legislation such as the bill before you today will not solve the nation's natural gas problem. If such a crisis is tobe prevented next winter, and in the winters ahead, quick and decisive action must be taken at the federal level to deregulate the price of new natural gas."

Wildcats, confirmer, stepout test reported

Exploration has been planned for Pecos and Winkler sectors, a confirmation was completed in a Sterling field, and a stepout site staked in Martin.

Texas Oil & Gas Corp., operating from Midland, filed application for an 11,000-foot wildcat, designated No. 1 Fey, in Pecos.

Drillsite is two miles northwest of the Sheffield, Southwest (Strawn gas and Canyon oil) field and 1½ mile northwest of the Block A-2 (Ellenburger) oil field.

It is 467 feet from south and 1,980 fset from west lines of section 14, block C-4, GC&SF survey, 15 miles southeast of Bakersfield.

WINKLER EXPLORER

Amoco Production Co. plans to reenter and plug back to an unreported depth at No. 1 J. M. Williamson, im attempt to open Wolfcamp production in the Flying W, Southeast field of Winkler, 14 miles northeast of Kermit.

Originally drilled by Midwest Oil Corp. (now Amoco), it was completed in 1971 as the Devonian opener in the field. The old total depth is 11,597 feet, where 5½-inch casing is seated.

While being drilled, it indicated production in the Wolfcamp with the recovery of 280 feet of slightly gas-cut mud, 180 feet of gas-cut mud, 90 feet of oil- and gas-cut mud and 90 feet of very heavily oil- and gas-cut mud on a drillsten test from 8,123-8,228 feet.

If successfully completed from the Wolfcamp zone, the Devonian will be abandoned, or production from both zones will be commingled.

STERLING EXTENDER

Anadarko Production Co., Tulsa, Okla., has completed its No. 1-B E. Horwood as a second producer and ½-mile northeast extension to the Horwood (Canyon) field of Sterling County.

The 24-hour potential test gauged 9.7 barrels of 43.7-gravity oil and 10.2 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 412-1. Completion was on the pump, through perforations at 7,136-7,278 feet, after fracturing the pay zone with 45,000 gallons and 40,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 467 feet from south and 1,800 feet from east lines of section 48, block A, GC&SF survey, 14 miles south of Sterling City.

The discovery, Anadarko No. 1 E. Horwood, finaled last June for 210 barrels of 43-gravity oil and 18 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 7,157-7,306 feet.

MARTIN STEPOUT

A ⅝-mile south stepout to the Breedlove, South (Spraberry) field of Martin County has been scheduled by Dalco Oil Co., Midland.

No. 3-B-3 Mabee, slated to 9,700 feet, spots 891 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of tract 6, labor 25, league 255, Briscoe CSL survey, five miles south of Patricia.

Yeso oiler potentials

Marathon Oil Co. has completed its No. 2 Arnquist Estate as an undesignated Yeso producer, 1½ mile east of the Penasco Draw (San Andres-Yeso) pool of Eddy County, N.M.

It finaled on the pump for 23 barrels of 37.2-gravity oil daily, along with 159 barrels of water and gas-oil ratio of 1,000-1, on potential test.

It was completed through perforations at 2,396-2,706 feet, following a 3,000-gallon acid treatment, and fracturing with 80,000 gallons of water and 200,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 330 feet from north and east lines of section 29-18s-26e, ½ mile southwest of Dayton.

Prospector yields show

V-F Petroleum, Inc., Midland, No. 1 Covington, Stonewall County Ellenburger wildcat, 2,000 feet southwest of 5,442-foot production in the Bissett field, was bottomed at 6,325 feet, preparing to take a drillstem test in the Ellenburger.

Tool was open 1¼ hour on a test taken from 5,543-5,555 feet, in an unidentified fornation. Recovery was 60 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, 90 feet of oil, and 2,350 feet of salt water.

The sample chamber contained two tenths of a cubic foot of gas, 200 cubic centimeters of oil and 1,200 cubic centimeters of water.

It is 2,173 feet from south and 1,539 feet from west lines of section 62, block F, H&TC survey, 14 miles north of Aspermont.

Pecos test flows oil

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, No. 1 Chalkley, Pecos County exploratory test, one mile west of the Apco (Clear Fork) field, flowed 116 barrels of oil in 24 hours, from an unidentified pay section.

The flow was on a 16-64-inch choke and from open hole at 4,700-4,714 feet, which had been acidized with 250 gallons. Testing continued.

Location is 4,646 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 4, block 110, Mrs. L. Merchant survey, abstract 5880, and 11 miles south of Imperial.

Israel may be close to major oil discovery

The Los Angeles Times

RAMADAN FIELD, Gulf of Suez — Israel may be close to a new oil discovery in the Gulf of Suez that could alter the course of Middle East peace talks.

The Israelis are drilling off the western shores of the occupied Sinai Peninsula in an area geologists say is highly promising. Israeli officials say "positive signs" of oil have been found.

If the Israelis find oil before the proposed Geneva peace talks with their Arab foes, it will give them a new card to play at the talks — and perhaps a reason for not wanting to return the Sinai to the Egyptians.

First the Israelis drove other oil prospectors from the east side of the Gulf at gunpoint. A Sept. 2 incident came close to a shooting fray.

Then the Israelis moved in their own rig — one that once was swamped off Oman, then salvaged and refitted in South Africa. Named Springbok after the South African gazelle, it is manned by Canadians and Texas working under cover of firms existing mainly on paper.

Any oil man or contractor known to be working for the Israelis faces blacklisting in Arab nations. Despite this, the Israelis have managed to enter the sophisticated field of offshore drilling.

From the producing Ramadan field here operated by an Egyptian-Standard Oil partnership near the midpoint of the 16-mile-wide gulf — the Israeli rig can be seen eight miles northeast across the deep blue water close to shore, guarded round the clock by an Israeli patrol boat.

"They started in December, so they ought to come in next month, when they get down 10,000 or 12,000 feet," said a U.S. oil man at Ramadan. "We will know if they've hit it when we see their gas flare go."

The United States has been strangely quiet about the Israeli ventures in the Gulf, despite the fact that:

—The Israelis, without legal announcement, have taken over the east side of the Gulf, which lies between the Egyptian homeland and the occupied Sinai. It is a de facto presence proclaimed by the bullhorns of Israeli patrol boat skippers. They have driven off any non-Israeli work boats bent on new drilling, and now even Suez Canal freighter traffic transiting the gulf stays on the western side to avoid them.

—In the incident on Sept. 2, an Israeli flotilla faced down two Egyptian boats and drove the American Mariner I drill rig back toward Egypt after destroying marker buoys with gunfire — and, say U.S. oil men, threatening to set the $60 million Mariner rig adrift by machinegunning its tow line.

—Israel refuses to recognize U.S. leases. The Mariner was seeking to drill just east of the Gulf mid-point on an Egyptian 1964 lease to the Gulf of Suez Petroleum Co. (GUPCO). Half of GUPCO is owned by Egypt's government oil firm, the Egyptian General Petroleum Corp. and the other half by a Standard Oil Co. of Indiana subsidiary, AMOCO International. The Springbok is drilling on an Egyptian-AMOCO lease granted by Egypt in 1974. Israeli troops overran and occupied the Egyptian Sinai in the 1967 war.

—State Department officials say, not for quotation, that the United States contends Israel's drilling is a violation of the 1907 The Hague Convention on rights of an occupying power. "Occupation forces may tap existing resources but are enjoined from developing new ones," an official said.

The State Department has filed no official protest with Israel. Standard Oil has informed the Department of what it calls "increased harassment" and "an increasingly aggressive attitude" by the Israeli navy. Egypt has asked U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Herman Eilts to seek U.S. action to prevent the Israeli drilling.

"It is a very delicate matter," said a State Department official in Washington. "We are in touch with the Israelis on various levels." He indicated it would be a matter of high priority for the new Administration and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Many Israelis have never forgiven former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for insisting that Israel return Egypt's Abu Rudeis refinery on the Sinai coast northeast of here as part of the 1975 Sinai disengagement agreement.

Abu Rudeis produced about 75,000 barrels of oil a day — aabout half Israel's needs, some said. The crude was transported by tanker around the tip of the Sinai peninsula and up to Eilat, the Israeli port on the Gulf of Aqaba. Israel says it cost $500 million a year to replace the Abu Rudeis oil. Israel gets most of its oil from Iran, supported by U.S. aid.

"If the gulf is another Abu Rudeis, Israel may not be too anxious to deal it away," said one diplomat. "But return of the captured lands is an Arab requisite for a peace agreement."

Said another, in Cairo: "Two things — Israel settlements in the Sinai and the oil drilling there — cast greatest doubt on Israel's real will to ever give up the occupied territories."

"I don't think if we found oil it would prevent us from reaching an agreement on the Sinai," said an Israeli spokesman in Jerusalem. "If we find oil it will make the Sinai more attractive for the other side to get. It will then interest the other side in being more reasonable when we start bargaining."

And if the other side is not "reasonable?"

"If we keep it, there's no reason not to develop it, is there?"

The Israelis say their claim to the gulf's eastern side is an extension of their control to the midpoint of the Suez Canal. In the 1967 war, when the Israelis drove Egypt from its Sinai territories, it took over everything up to the midpoint.

"We held to the midline there," said the Israeli official, "and held by extension that the same criteria was valid for the gulf south of the canal. We exercise control on the basis of 10 years' practice in these waters."

A foreign office spokesman in Jerusalem said legal experts were analyzing The Hague protocols but were not prepared to respond immediately to the U.S. view that it bars Israel from exploration.

Israel is also drilling on the Sinai shoreline two miles from where the Springbok is working. The state oil company announced this week that the crews discovered "oil indications" two weeks ago and that drilling has halted at 3,250 feet while further tests for oil — and its quality and quantity — are being made. The company announced last week that it was drilling in the area, which the government had refused to comment on previously.

Two wildcat sites have been staked in Menard County, and one in Runnels. Also, a stepout is planned for a Concho field and an Irion field gained an extension.

Monument Energy Corp. of Lovington, N.M., has filed application for two 1,500-foot ventures in Menard, about nine miles east of Menard townsite.

No. 1 Damon Kothmann, one mile north of an active wildcat, is 467 feet from north and east lines of pisher & Miller survey 2169, abstract 223.

No. 2 Damon Kothmann, ½ mile north of No. 1, is 1,320 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of Adam Mohr survey 74, abstract 571.

RUNNELS TRY

Walsh & Trant Petroleum Corp. of Tyler has scheduled No. 1 Robert W. Lange as a 4,100-foot prospector in Runnels, ⅜ mile northwest of the Loco Rico (Gardner and Dog Bend) field.

The new test spots 4,792 feet from sth and 5,502 feet from west lines of Austin & Williams survey 262, 10 miles northeast of Ballinger.

CONCHO STEPOUT

Texas American Oil Corp., operating from Midland, has announced site for No. 2 Otto Sultemeier, a ¾-mils southwest outpost to the Paint Rock, West (Strawn) oil field of Concho.

Drillsite is 1,320 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 133, block 72, T&NO survey, four miles southeast of Paint Rock townsite. It is slated for a bottom depth of 3,800 feet.

IRION EXTENDER

Mitchell Energy Corp., Houston, has completed No. 1-65 Lawdermilk as a third well and ¾-mile south extension to the Burnt Rock (Canyon) oil pool of Irion, 5½ niles southwest of Mertzon.

It had a 24-hour pumping potential of five barrels of 41-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 2,900-1.

Production was through perforations at 7,193-7,343 feet, after treating with 4,000 gallons of acid and fracturing with 57,500 gallons and 57,000 pounds of sand.

The project, scheduled as a wildcat, was drilled to 8,120 feet, and plugged back to 7,394 feet, in 4½-inch pipe set at 7,453 feet.

Chaps ax Amarillo in overtime, 74-70

BY TED BATTLES

Hank Iba, that old exponent of tight-fisted defensive basketball, would have enjoyed this one. In a battle of arm-waving, lane-clogging zone defenses , Midland College rode the overtime heroics of Jackson Pace, Tommy Parks and Sim Nickerson to a 74-70 victory over Amarillo College Thursday night.

The Chaparrals did it the hard way, never leading in the final 13:50 of regulation play and needed all the four-leaf clovers and horseshoes they could find to extend the game into an extra period.

However, once into the extra session, the Chaps took charge. At least, long enough to win it, although the Panhandle Badgers, who went into the game as co-leaders of the Western Junior College Conference, threw one last scare at MC's anxiety-plagued fans.

AFTER 6-5 Carl Walton's jumper from the lane to open the five-minute overtime, Jackson Pace hit a rebound and then from the corner to put Midland ahead 66-64, the first time since the Chaps held a 44-42 lead four minutes into the second half.

Six-six Ricky Hudgins then yanked down his second biggest rebound of the night off a missed Amarillo shot and it led to a couple of free throws by Parks. Parks then pulled off his fourth theft of this superbly played contest and made a spectacular feint and shot under the basket despite two defenders to make it 70-64 with two minutes left.

Sim Nickerson then sonverted two more free throws with 58 seconds left, and if Coach Delnor Poss was a cigar smoker, it looked like the time to light up.

But the Badgers weren't through. A couple of free throws by Ray Mayo, a steal and basket by Walton and another steal that resulted in two free throws trimmed MC's lead to 72-70 with seven seconds left.

Amarillo led on Maurice Robertson's corner shot and Midland tied at 60 when Alvin Mayes stuffed in a rebound on his own missed shot. Amarillo went up on Dale Cleveland's off balance, underhand pivot shot with 55 seconds left and Midland tied it at 62 when Parks found Hudgins open under the hoop with 25 seconds left.

With 19 seconds left, Robertson went to the line and when he missed, Hudgins came down with his biggest rebound of the night to maintain the tie.

PARKS HIT 11 of 18 from the field and was four-for-four from the line for a game high of 26 points while Walton's 22 topped the Badgers.

The result leaves both teams 7-3 in WJCC play while Midland is 16-5 for the season, same as Amarillo.

With Parks and Ron Jones shooting the bottom out of the basket, MC hit eight of its first 10 shots, all from outside, to build up an early 18-10 lead, but then the Chaps suffered a point famine, going scoreless for five minutes and notching only four points over a nine-minute stretch as Amarillo built up a 29-22 lead.

The Badgers monopolized both boards in the first half, pulling down 30 rebounds to 14 for Midland and led 42-38 at half.

Halftime score: Amarillo 42, Midland 38

Regulation: Amarillo 62, Midland 62

"WE CHANGED the type zone we were using at half and the guys responded," Poss said. As a result, MC outrebounded Amarillo 20-17 in the final 25 minutes.

"It was a super effort and everyone played well," Poss beamed as he enjoyed his third victory in four starts as Chaparrals' coach.

Midland took a momentary 44-42 lead, holding Amarillo scoreless for the first 6:10 of the second half as Jones scored on a fast break, then passed to Jeff Jackson to tie at 42 and Parks 10-footer gave MC its only lead until overtime.

The win reversed a two-point loss at Amarillo and was a big win in the Chaps' bid for a regional playoff berth and, perhaps, even a WJCC title.

CHAPS CHIRPS — Jackson, 6-6 sophomore from Midland Lee, had four first half rebounds for the Chaps, two more than anyone else , but Mayes and Hudgins got going in the second half to wind up with seven each, tops for the night...

Coach Gary Cardinal is in his first year as coach at Amarillo after switching over from New Mexico Military Institute. "For one thing, the fact that it is a military school makes it hard to recruit and for another Amarillo offers three times as many basketball scholarships so it's a more conducive atmosphere to producing a winner."

Oddly enough, AC's WJCC losses before Thursday's setback came at the hands of NMMI and Western Texas in overtime. "Our two non-conference losses were to Seminole, Okla., and Southwest Oklahoma."...Each team turned the ball over nine times and MC didn't notch its first steal until the second half, Parks getting his first of four thefts...

Howard College, although buried deep in the standings, doesn't offer the Chaps much of a breather Monday in Big Spring. MC beat the Hawks in the last second here on Sim Nickerson's winning goal at the buzzer.

Rebels, Bulldogs set to open second half of 5-4A cage play

By BOB DILLON

The second half of District 5-4A basketball play opens tonight with the surprising Midland High Bulldogs entertaining the Odessa Permian Panthers and the Robert E. Lee Rebels facing the Odessa Bronchos in Odessa.

Midland, fresh from a startling 65-63 upset victory over first half favorite Lee, faces one of the two first half winners in the Panthers. Permian tied Abilene Cooper for the title in the first half of the spilt schedule with both winding up 6-1 followed closely by Lee and Midland with 5-2 and 4-3 records.

THE REBELS were the pre-season pick to win the overall 5-4A championship and still could but they will have to win the second a half of the race outright or tie with somebody besides Mojo or the Cougars to get into a playoff series. Should Lee win it outright in the second half, then Permian and Cooper will meet in a playoff tilt and then face the Rebs in the title game for the overall championship and a berth in the Class AAAA state playoffs.

SHOULD LEE tie, say Midland or any of the other 5-4A teams besides

Permian or Cooper, then there would be four teams involved in a playoff series. Of course if Permian or Cooper also tie for the second half title a playoff would occur or if the Black Cats or Cougars win the second half outright, there will be no playoff.

The way the Midland Bulldogs have been playing, they will be a definite contender in the second half of the race. After all, the Pack only lost to Permian by five and to Cooper by two points in the first half of the race and those were both on the road.

Lee faces an Odessa team which failed to win a loop game and the Rebels take a 22-6 record into the game compared to OHS' 7-19 reading.

Midland, meanwhile, is 8-17 and Permian sports an 18-6 record on the year as the two rivals meet in a triple-header, strating with the sophomore contest at 4:30 p.m. The junior varsity tilt starts at 6:17 with the varsity tipoff at 8 p.m.

Both Lee and OHS will also play a tripleheader in the OHS Fieldhouse.

MIDLAND HIGH's attack is led by Craig Dunn and Brently Jackson who are both scoring in the double figures in 5-4A play. Dunn is the No. 5 scorer with 113 points for an average of 16.1 per loop outing while Jackson is scoring at an 11.3 clip.

Dunn has poured in 435 points in 25 games for the Purple Pack for a season scoring average of 17.4

Billy Ray Ennis of Robert E. Lee, leads 5-4A in scoring with 148 points in seven outings for an average of 21.1 and is scoring at a 20.9 clip in 28 games with a total of 587 points.

Starting for the Pack tonight will be Dunn Jackson, sophomore Walter Bryson, Terry Rogers and John Magness with James Hicks and Kiffy Hickey ready in the wings.

Lee's lineup will include Ennis, Bobby Alexander, Mike Denny, Mike Wallace and Roy Lee Smith.

Permian is led by 6-5 Tom McLemore and 6-3 Huey Chancellor along with 6-1 Stan Strifler.

Permian also has been getting good scoring from Don Gray, Mark Berryhill and Randy Wilson.

BESIDES THE two games between the Odessa and Midland schools, other 5-4A games to open up the second half of the race tonight find Big Spring at Abilene and San Angelo at Cooper.

Will Knox be traded?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It appears Los Angeles Rams' Coach Chuck Knox is headed for the Detroit Lions, but officials from both teams deny published reports that Knox will do so in exchange for a trade of players.

A source on the Detroit Lions said Thursday the National Football League team has been seeking Knox. The same source said, however, that the hangup is what compensation, if any, the Rams are entitled to in exchange for the coach.

"They're (the Lions) trying to steal my coach," said Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who indicated he would expect to be compensated if Knox left for Detroit.

But Rosenbloom insisted at the same time that "Chuck Knox is the head coach of the Rams and will continue in that capacity."

Knox added he is "in total agreement with Carroll's statement and that's all that needs to be said in the matter."

There has been ill feelings between the Lions and Rams ever since Detroit wide receiver Ron Jessie signed with Los Angeles in 1975, afer playing out his option here. Commissioner Pete Rozelle awarded Cullen Bryant to the Lions as compensation. The Rams' running back balked, headed for court, and the Lions received a No. 1 draft choice.

A Lions' spokesman, meanwhile, characterized as "ridiculous" a report that Knox would come to Detroit in exchange for a trade of players. The report was published in the Oakland (Mich.) Press.

Selmer hired

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Carl Selmer, fired as head football coach of the University of Miami last season, was hired Thursday as offensive line coach by North Texas State University.

Athletic Director and Head Coach Hayden Fry made the announcement which also included the appointment of offensive line coach Andy Everest as assistant athletic director.

The appointments are effective Feb. 1.

Selmer went to Miami in 1973 and served as offensive coordinator to Pete Elliott before taking the head position in 1975.

MC tank event today

Full contingents from Midland and Robert E. Lee High Schools headline the entrants for this weekend's Midland College Invitational Swimming and Diving Meet to be held today and Saturday at the City of Midland pool.

Twelve schools are entered in the two-day event, and all are expected to field both boys' and girls' teams. In addition to the two Tall City schools, Abilene, Cooper, Big Spring, Odessa, Permian, Monahans, Pampa, Lubbock Coronado, and Lubbock Monterey will also be challenging for the meet's team titles.

The preliminary round got underway today at noon and will continue until the late afternoon. Saturday's final round of action will begin at the COM pool at noon as well, and continue until the end of the competition.

The diving portion of the competition is scheduled for Saturday morning at 8, at the Midland High School pool.

Midland College swim coach Steve Montgomery, who will be co-ordinating the weekend event along with his entire men's team and most of the MC varsity athletes, is expecting some very exciting competition during the next two days.

"We've got some very good teams entered," he said, "and the fans should be treated to some excellent high school competition."

Houston gridder wins 1977 Lombardi trophy

HOUSTON (AP) — As a 6-foot-3, 225-pound eighth grader at Brenham, Tex., Wilson Whitley almost didn't get to play football because his mother was afraid he might hurt someone.

As a 6-3, 268-pound All-American defensive tackle at the University of Houston, Whitley almost didn't get to make his acceptance speech Thursday night as the 1977 winner of the Vince Lombardi Award to the nation's top college lineman.

He broke up, choking back emotion, as he accepted the trophy from former President Gerald Ford and comedian Bob Hope.

Luckily for Whitley, his sisters induced their mother to let Whitley play football. And after the shock of winning the award sank in, Whitley's power of speech returned.

"You set a goal for yourself but you never dream that it will come true," Whitley finally told the capacity crowd of 1,200 at a $100-per-plate dinner. "I've never been in this position before. It's beautiful. That's all I know to say."

English girls clash in pro net tournament

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — England's top two female tennis players, Virginia Wade and Sue Barker, meet tonight in a quarter-final match of the $100,000 Women's Professional Tennis Tournament.

Miss Wade, No. 1 seed in the tournament and top-ranked in her home country, advanced past Marcie Louie of San Francisco 6-2, 6-2 while Miss Barker, ranked No. 2 in England, turned back Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles 6-4, 6-4 Thursday.

The Robert E. Lee girls basketball team raced to an impressive 67-44 victory over Odessa High Thursday night in the Lee Gymnasium.

Paving the way for Lee was Schilla McCalister with 22 points. She was backed up by Sandra Poole and Deborah Kittle with 18 and 13 points, respectively.

Goodley Carla led the Lee defense which held OHS to four points in the third period as she came up with eight steals.

Lee also won the B-team contest, 29-24 over Midland High.

Watson threatening pair in San Diego Open event

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Zender and Tom Kite performed some last-hole heroics for the lead in $180,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open, but they had to be keeping an anxious eye on threatening Tom Watson.

"You'll see the good players, the Millers and the Greens and the Nicklauses and, hopefully, the Watsons, they get on a streak and they ride the momentum until the wave runs out," said Watson, a winner last week and looking for another triumph.

And Watson definitely has the momentum still going.

HE SCORED only the second hole-in-one of his pro career— an eight-iron shot that hit to the left of the hole, ran about three feet past, then sucked back into the hole—on his way to a six under-par 66 Thursday that left him one shot back of Kite and Zender, each of whom birdied the final hole for 65s.

"The more you play, the more you learn about this game, the better you play, the longer your streaks are," Watson said, flashing a boyish smile. "When I first came on the tour, my streaks lasted about two holes."

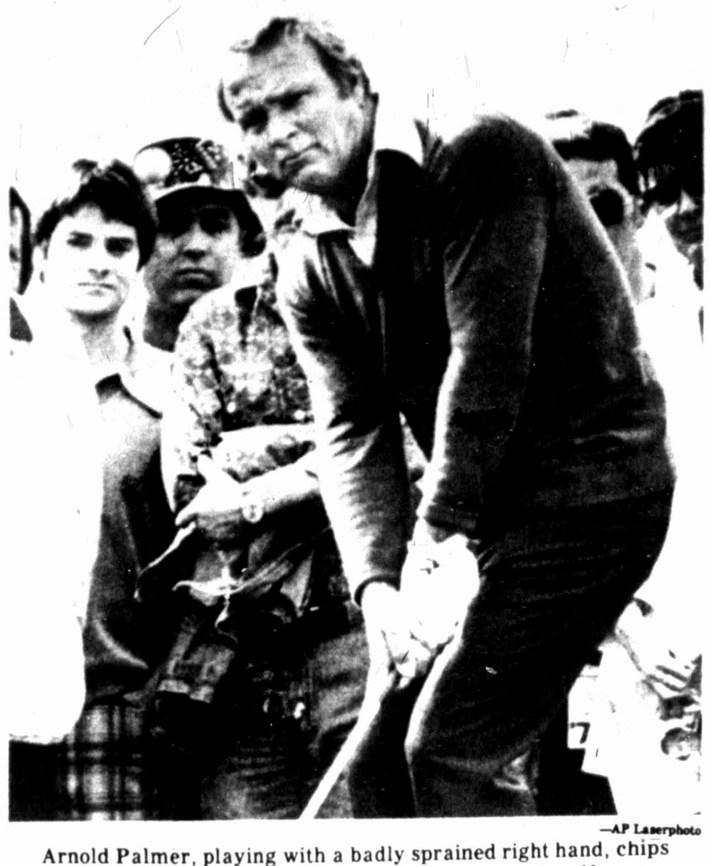

Watson, a former British Open champion who has finished fourth and first in his last two starts, was tied with Homero Blancas and Lon Hinkle. At 67, five-under-par, were veteran Don January, Leonard Thompson, Bill Rogers, Barry Jaeckel, Rick Acton, Australian Bob Shearer, Dennie Meyer and rookie Jay Haas.

BEN CRENSHAW headed a group of more than a dozen at 69. Defending champion J.C. Snead had a 71, while Arnold Palmer, playing with a painful sprain in his right hand, was far back at 74.

In all, 81 of the starting field of 156 bettered par 72. Most of the low scores came on the shorter, easier North course, which Kite, Zender, Blancas and Watson all played. All players switched courses today and the final two rounds will be played on the 7,047-yard South course. Each layout is a par 72.

"You give these players a course in perfect shape with good greens and you'll get low scoring," Zender said. Kite, who scored his first tour victory in Philadelphia last year, agreed. "I've never seen it play easier at this tournament," he said.

ZENDER, A six-year veteran still seeking his first title, used his length off the tee to dominate the par fives. He played those four holes four-under-par and capped off a course record 30 on his front nine with an eagle three.

GRIMSLEY'S SPORTS WORLD

When will bubble burst?

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bjorn Borg strode into the interview area of the Spectrum. His long, blond hair dripped with sweat. He wore a coonskin coat. In the crook of his arm he cradled eight tennis racquets strung to an unbelieveable 80-pound tension.

His strong Viking face was a frozen mask. Who could have guessed that this 20-year-old phenom of the burgeoning world of tournament tennis had just been wiped out in a second-round match of the U.S. Pro Indoor Championships?

Win or lose, Borg always has managed to retain an icy, unflappable reserve. On this occasion, there was a more understandable balm.

The ink was hardly dry on the $100,000 check he had picked up three days earlier for beating Jimmy Connors in the televised Grand Slam of Tennis final at Boca Raton, Fla. Outside in the hall, a man was waiting to offer him $1.5 million to sign a contract with the Cleveland Nets of World Team Tennis.

In the wings were two of Borg's chief rivals for world honors—Connors, the game's "hit man," a court assassin on the loose, and Ilie Nastase, the mad Romanian given to crazed outbursts which sadly blunt one of the game's greatest talents.

Connors got a reported $750,000 for signing with Lamar Hunt's World Chamionship of Tennis this season. He is guaranteed $500,000 for a challenge match against Nastase, who gets $100,000, in Puerto Rico March 5, and he meets Nastase in a $100,000-winner-take-all Challenge Cup final April 10 at Las Vegas.

It is the new face of tennis— with money cascading like Niagara Falls into the pockets of the white pants brigade. The sport has come a long way from the time that a red-blooded guy was ashamed to be seen carrying a racquet and the tennis tour managed to subsist on dirty money passed under the table.

It is the "in" thing. Court complexes are mushrooming. More than 30 million now play it. And promoters with the aid of television are producing a new sports breed—young, rich, constantly on the move and thoroughly spoiled.

Everyone is asking: When will the bubble burst?

It is unreal. A player such as Nastase can make a mockery of the game with profane gestures that should be X-rated and by spitting insults on officials and fans. Established players can disregard obligations to promoters by staging private mini-tournaments for their own selfish interests. It has become routine to shrug off the Davis Cup, once the international cornerstone of the sport.

Tennis administrators are concerned. "There are 500 players seeking tournament spots— 215 in our organization," says Bob Briner, executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals. "We have 70 tournaments in the Grand Prix this year with $8 million in prize money. Our aim is to spread the talent as evenly as possible among the promoters."

It is not easy. The WCT has its own four-month tour. World Team Tennis picks up in April and continues through the summer, a drain on available manpower. Agents and managers set up their own private deals.

So far, no one has seen the bottom of tennis' money well. Connors earned $687,335 in prize money last season. Nastase went over $500,000, Borg $400,000. Ten players made $200,000 or more, 16 were above $100,000 and 43 in excess of $50,000.

Mostly they are kids in short shorts, with bulging bankrolls, racquets strung like Stradivariuses, an endless stream of camp followers who all look like long-tressed Farah Fawcetts—and always handy, an airplane timetable.

"What a life," someone was heard to remark in the headquarters hotel restaurant here. "You travel the world at someone else's expense and you travel with a harem."

Bayi making debut

NEW YORK (AP) — The political entanglements and intrigue that kept Filbert Bayi out of last year's Olympic Games have been overcome, and the world 1,500-meter record holder from Tanzania will make his 1977 debut in the United States tonight in the Wanamaker Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

Bayi gave meet officials a scare Wednesday when his flight was grounded in Nairobi, but he finally arrived Thursday, about 30 hours before his scheduled mile race against a standout field including Olympian Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland, veteran Marty Liquori, Kenya's Wilson Waigwa, unheralded Paul Cummings and U.S. Olympian Mike Durkin.

But his equipment and clothes did not accompany him. Bayi's belongings wound up on an Iranian airline and Tanzanian officials had to scurry around and find the weary traveler new belongings while airline officials were busy trying to track down the originals.

Bayi also arrived somewhat out of condition, not having practiced for four days. But he had no plans of withdrawing from the race, which he won in 1975, the start of four consecutive victories at the Garden.

This is Bayi's third straight year in the United States, but his long-awaited confrontation with New Zealand's John Walker, the world mile record holder and Olympic 1,500-meter champion, will not take place.

The slender Bayi is scheduled to run in four meets in the U.S. at approximately the same time Walker will be touring the country. But a boycott, prompted by racial differences, by South African nations involving meets in which New Zealanders compete—the same problem that prevailed at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal—will prevent the world's two best middle distance runners from facing each other.

Bayi ended his U.S. trip last year with a sparkling 3:56.1 mile at the Garden. It was the third fastest indoor mile ever run and the sixth time in seven U.S. races that he had bettered four minutes.

While the mile usually commands the most attention at the Millrose Games, there are several other events with first class entries.

The most notable is the high jump, featuring Dwight Stones, the world indoor and outdoor record holder.

Bjorn Borg, Ilie Nastase and Manuel Orantes fell by the wayside Wednesday. They were joined there Thursday by Adriano Panatta, Harold Solomon, Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried, who were all upset.

"That's all I heard when I came in here tonight," the 24-year-old Connors said of the string of upsets. "People kept saying, 'Watch out! Watch out! All the seeds are losing.' It makes it a little tough on you mentally."

Even Connors appeared headed for an upset loss Thursday night, as he was in trouble his first three games against 10th-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

Fibak won the opening two games before Connors ran off an 11-game string. Connors, the defending champion, won in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2 to advance to today's quarter-final round against southpaw Tony Roche of Australia.

After finishing off Fibak, Connors paused to discuss his status as the lone survivor. "You guys better be nice to me," he began. "I'm all you've got."

Asked how it felt to have the tournament sewn up, apparently, Connors responded, "There's always a guy across the net saying, 'Connors, I need the money more than you do.'"

Having seen Borg, Nastase and Orantes, seeds two through four, eliminated in second round play, Roche continued the upsets Thursday with a 6-3, 6-4 decision over fifth-seeded Panetta of Italy.

Sixth-seeded Solomon bowed 6-0, 6-4 to Jeff Borowiak, Berkeley, Calif.; seventh-seeded Dibbs lost 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 to Bernie Mitton of South Africa, and eighth-seeded Gottfried dropped a 6-3, 6-2 decision to Dick Stockton.

Ray Moore of South Africa, the upset victor over Borg, lost to Ken Rosewall of Australia.

Connors had a parting shot for Borg, who beat him in the finals of a four-man event in Florida last weekend.

Jim Hall: he's got an Indy ambition

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Jim Hall doesn't know the meaning of the word complacency. For all of the accomplishments that have marked his star-studded career as one of the most successful driver-designers in auto racing history, the man seldom looks back—only ahead.

It's been almost twelve years now since the tall, lean 41-year-old Midlander broke into national proninence in 1965 by winning Sebring with this revolutionary Chaparral car, and the auto racing world has never been quite the same since.

As a designer, Hall has instituted such innovations into racing as fiberglass bodies, automatic transmissions for racing cars, and his famous "racing wing," an air foil designed to increase racing car stability at high speeds.

But despite all of the success and recognition he has gained the world over in road racing, Hall is still a man with one unfulfilled ambition. He wants to run a car at Indianapolis.

"Running a car at Indy has always been my one ambition," he explained recently, "just because it's such a big deal.

"Technically," I don't think it's as interesting as road racing, but from a publicity and salesmanship standpoint there's nothing like it."

ROAD RACING'S "identity complex" might also be contributing to Hall's desire to run in the legendary Midwest race. Hall explained, "everybody you meet says 'well, have you raced at Indy,' and you say no. Then they want to know why.

"No matter how much success I ever achieve, people will always ask that same question. Everybody's heard of Indianapolis, but not everybody's heard of Watkins Glen or Riverside."

While Hall may be struggling with an anonyminity problem among some race fans, he is no stranger to Formula 5000 racing followers. For the past three years, he has teamed up with Carl Haas and driver Brian Redman to dominate F-5000 racing. Haas supplied the money, Hall handled the technical aspect, and Redman drove the cars.

BUT NOT long ago, Hall was notified that the F-5000 series had been abruptly cancelled. "The race organizers have been unhappy with the gates for the last couple of years," he said explaining the postponement. "They always did think sports cars drew a lot better than the cars we use. They said they had nore people appeal."

But lack of popularity wasn't the series' only problem. "They let the rules get out of hand too, and let turbo-engined cars in," Hall added. "Nobody could afford to run a car then."

A prime example of the exorbitant value of the cars is the turbo-engined Porsche, which costs in the area of $200,000. "There's no way you can afford to run a program like that," Hall stated emphatically, "except for maybe a factory program like Porsche's."

WHAT HAS come out of it all is a compromise program that will result in a new series for the 1977 season.

"They're going to put body work on roughly the same cars," Hall added, "and call it Can-Am '77."

While F-5000 races were normally 100 miles in distance, the Can-Am series, which begins June 12, at Laguna and will include nine races this summer, will be expanded to the 130-200 mile range. Hall likes the idea of longer races.

"It will mean fuel stops of course, and it will be a little more expensive and a little more hairy for the pit crews," he explained, "but I think these are some of the things we can handle. I'm really looking forward to it."

THE COMPLETE 1977 Can-Am schedule looks like this: June 12, Laguna; June 26, Atlanta; July 10, Watkins Glen; July 24, Road America; August 7, Mid-Ohio; August 21, Mosport; September 4, Trois Rivieres, Quebec; September 25, Sears Point; October 16, Riverside.

Despite his optimism for the new Can-Am series, Hall's thoughts always manage to revert back to Indianapolis. To race there would be the topping on a great career. And to win at Indy? Just the thought is enough to put Hall into momentary euphoria. But whether or not he will ever be there on race day is still a question that only time can answer.

"I would still like to do it," he said thoughtfully. "I will always want to do it. But I just have never had the opening present itself. It's a very expensive thing and it takes a lot of crew people. Besides that, you've got to spend a month at Indianapolis before the race, and I don't know if I've got that kind of time.

"The economic climate, the time when I've been right and so forth; it's just never quite worked out. But I still want to do it, and maybe somday..."

Next: A look at Jim Hall's great career, and the reason's for this man's success.

NEW YORK (AP) — Centers dominate the National Basketball Association Western Conference All-Star team following the selection of the reserves by the 11 West coaches for the Feb. 13 mid-season game at Milwaukee.

Los Angeles' Kareem AbdulJabbar, the only unanimous choice among the reserves, Detroit's Bob Lanier and Portland's Bill Walton were among the seven additions made to the West squad Thursday. They join starting center Dan Issel of Denver, who was voted to start the game by the fans.

Also named as West reserves were guards Billy Knight of Indiana and Phil Smith of Golden State, and forwards Maurice Lucas of Portland and Rick Barry of Golden State.

The Eastern Conference reserves include Boston center Dave Cowens, who has played in less than half of the Celtics' games this season and only recently returned from a selfimposed two-month exile. Cowens will back up starting center Bob McAdoo of the New York Knicks.

The East coaches voted forwards Elvin Hayes of Washington, John Havlicek of Boston and Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston to the squad, along with backcourtmen Earl Monroe of the Knicks, Jo Jo White of the Celtics and George Gervin of San Antonio.

Besides McAdoo, the East will start guard Pete Maravich of New Orleans and three members of the Philadelphia 76ers—Julius Erving and George McGinnis at forward and Doug Collins at guard. In addition to Issel, the West will have two of his Denver teammates—forwards Bobby Jones and David Thompson—in the starting lineup. The starting guards are Norm Van Lier of Chicago and Paul Westphal of Phoenix.

Tech takes Houston on last second bucket

By The Associated Press

Yogi Berra once said, "You're never out of it until you're out of it."

So Yogi would have absolutely loved what Maryland and New Mexico State, both of whom were about as out of it as possible, did Thursday night, a night of miracles in college basketball.

Maryland fell behind 19-2 and never led until late in the game but recovered to nip North Carolina State 75-73 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

But that rally was mere child's play compared to the one New Mexico State put on against shell-shocked Bradley. The Aggies fell behind 28-0 after seven minutes—count 'em, 28-0—and then stormed back for a 117-109 Valley Conference victory in what must rank as one of the greatest comebacks in sports history.

Meanwhile, in another one for the book, Centenary scored an incredible eight points in the final three seconds in defeating Northwestern Louisiana 79-71.

Those developments stole the spotlight from the four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty who saw action. Second-ranked Michigan held off Wisconsin 69-64, No. 11 Louisville downed Dayton 76-71, No. 13 Minnesota crushed Indiana 79-60 and No. 15 Arkansas mauled Southern Methodist 77-59.

It looked like a football score as Bradley piled up a 28-0 bulge over New Mexico State. But while the Braves might have been thinking shutout, they should have been thinking win.

"That's the first time I've ever seen a score like 28-0 and it's probably the first time anybody did that and got their tails beat, too," said Bradley center Alex Mazeika.

"It's almost impossible to get a 28-0 lead on a good team," said Coach Joe Stowell, "and it's almost impossible to lose a game once you do. You score the first 28 points, you just don't lose, that's all."

Albert Jones scored 28 points to pace New Mexico State's comeback, which overshadowed a 40-point effort by Bradley's Roger Phegley.

"I really didn't think about what the score was when it was 28-0," said State's Dexter Hawkins. "Then all of a sudden it was 28-15 and I thought, shoot, we're still in it."

By halftime, the Aggies were within 56-50. They took the lead for the first time with 3:20 remaining on Richard Robinson's lay-up and it see-sawed until 1:53, when Robinson's 15-foot jump shot put them ahead for good 105-104.

Steve Sheppard's 20-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining capped Maryland's comeback against North Carolina State. The Terrapins never led until late in the game. N.C. State's Kenny Carr sank two foul shots with 30 seconds remaining to tie the score and Maryland's Brad Davis dribbled 28 seconds off the clock before Sheppard's winning shot. Carr led all scorers with 26 points and Charles Whitney added 21 for the Wolfpack. Sheppard led Maryland with 18.

Arkansas, unbeaten in Southwest Conference play, took a 40-21 halftime lead against SMU and coasted the rest of the way. Marvin Delph was high man with 20 points.

Elsewhere, Texas Tech upset Houston 84-83 on freshman Kent Williams' shot with one second left in overtime, Billy McKinney sank all eight floor shots and Northwestern hit a perfect 24-for-24 free throws—six by McKinney—in defeating Michigan State 66-58 and football quarterback Tony Flanagan scored 12 points in the second half as Georgia rallied to beat Georgia Tech 60-51.

Scuba diving instruction to be given

The YMCA wil hold an instructional course in basic scuba diving, beginning on February 1, and extending through March 10.

The classes will be directed by Richard Stovall and will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m.

Instruction will include shallow and deep water check-out dives, and successful completion of the course will qualify each participant for National YMCA diver certification.

Candidates for the class need to be strong swimmers, sixteen years of age or older. A swimming skill test will be administered to each registrant during the first class period, which will be held in Club Room B of the Central YMCA.

Fees for the scuba diving course are $100 for YMCA members and $125 for non-Y members.

All diving equipment will be furnished by the YMCA through Stovall's Dive Shop. The participant must furnish his own mask, snorkel, and fins.

Individuals may secure more information by calling the "Y" office, 682-2551.

Once-powerful Aussie netters going through severe depression

By BEN PRESS
Copley News Service

In virtually every major tournament around the world, the entries far exceed the available spaces in the draw. As a result, tournament committees seeking an equitable solution have begun to rely completely on the computer rankings.

This determines who can be placed directly into the draw and also the order of seeding. Since the emergence of the computer and even for several years prior, one question has been apparent. Where are the Australians?

For a decade and more before the present determination, the Australians were without question the dominant tennis power in the world. There were such names as Frank Sedgman, Rod Laver, Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall, Tony Roche, Roy Emerson, John Newcombe in the men and Margaret Smith Court and Evonne Goolagong in the women.

I put the question to Dr. Julian Lee of Sydney, Australia. He is a famed internist from that area and also is involved with their tennis program. He is opinionated on why Australian tennis continues to decline while the rest of the world remains in the midst of the tennis boom. Here are some of the reasons volunteered by Lee:

First, the Australian Lawn Tennis Association is not a happy one, nor is it a cohesive group. The old guard refuses to relinquish any power at the expense of progress.

Second, there has been a huge lag in the construction of tennis courts. Public courts are being replaced, but slowly.

Third, there is an overemphasis on team sports such as soccer, cricket and rugby plus the fact that much of the younger generation has taken to water sports, surfing in particular.

There is also the money factor. The ALTA almost always has operated in the red although the advent of professional tennis has helped. The chief source of revenue for years was the Davis Cup.

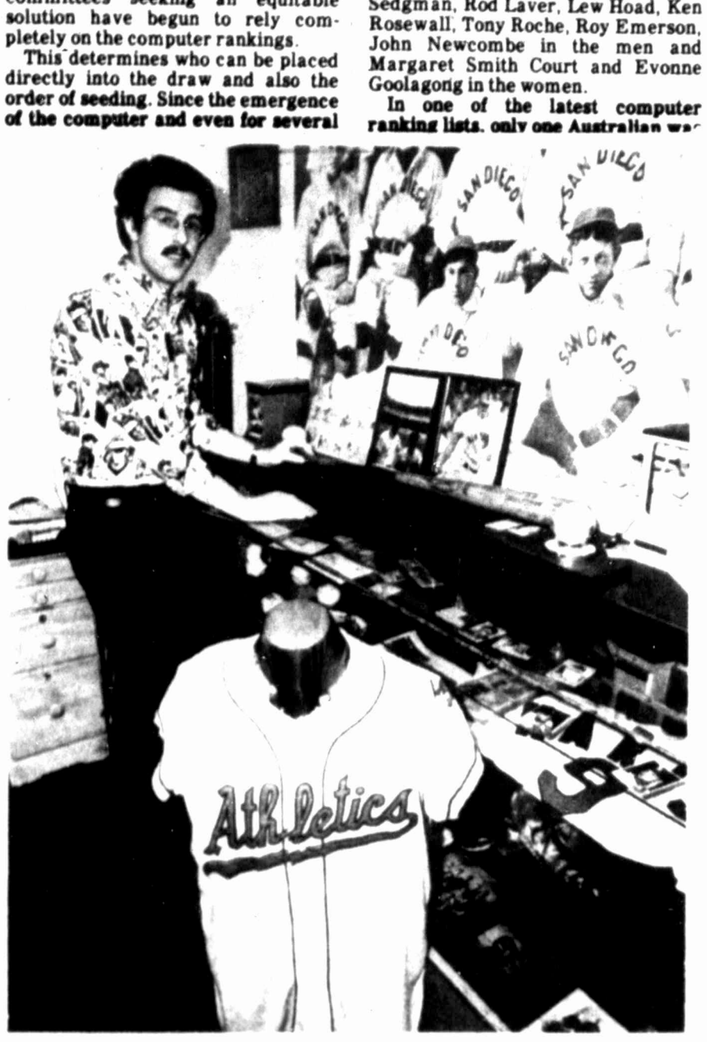

Now this is no longer a major factor and the possibility of Australia reaching the challenge round is extremely remote.

Spectator tennis has almost disappeared as there are no new super players to draw crowds. There is minimal TV coverage. Lee added that coaching is another serious condition. He feels there are only about six competent teachers in the entire country and that the substrata coaching is poor. There is a junior program but that too has disintegrated into precious little.

Of course you have to include the name Harry Hopman as the one person responsible for all the past Australian successes. Here again, Lee feels the Hopman approach would not work today and that if success is dependent solely on one person, then there is something drastically wrong with the system.

Because there are no athletic scholarships available, there is little college incentive.

The point of all this is that there are many pitfalls we can avoid here in the United States. Unquestionably we are now No. 1 in the tennis world and we can certainly learn and avoid going from a superpower to an also-ran.

Andy Strasberg, San Diego's director of season ticket sales, explains some of his collection of baseball memorabilia, including gum card photos, bats, uniforms and even seats from the bleachers of several long-since abandoned ballparks.

A diamond collector out west

By JOE HAMELIN
Copley News Service

Mainly because he's 27.

Without the mastodon.

It has almost everything else, however. An antique baseball pinball machine, for instance.

A letter from Abner Doubleday. Sandy Koufax' uniform. Henry Aaron's bat. A baseball autographed by the 1931 New York Yankees, Babe Ruth among them. And an honest-to-gosh wooden seat from Yankee Stadium.

Among other things.

"And, honest, this is only about 5 per cent of it," Strasberg will tell you. "The rest is in storage or back at my folks' home in White Plains (N.Y.)."

Strasberg, director of season ticket sales for the San Diego Padres, collects anything and everything associated with baseball. Aside from the obvious beginnings with cards, coins and such, he has bought, begged and borrowed enough uniforms to start his own ball club, enough seats to start his own stadium.

He not only collects cards, for example, he also collects the wrappers they come in.

"I got started on the uniforms when I acquired Fran Tarkenton's jersey," Strasberg said in an interview. "And that was easy, because the Giants trained at C.W. Post when I was a student there. I wasn't interested in football collecting and it didn't mean anything to me, but I knew what it was worth.

"We collectors have our trade papers and such, through which we trade stuff. I wound up trading it to the Yankees' visiting team batboy for two jerseys — Frank Howard's (size 52, big enough for two) and Bill Melton's."

That was in '71. He has since added, among others, jerseys worn by Koufax, Bill Mazeroski, Billy Martin, Jim Bouton (the original Seattle Pilot outfit), Bob Lemon and Japanese star Sadaharu.

"Lemon's is one of my prizes. It's his 1948 home jersey," Strasberg says.

"I was working in a camera store when someone did a piece on my collection and Lemon read it. Next thing I know, his son brought the jersey down to the store and told me to add it to my collection.

"Funny thing was, after Lemon made the Hall of Fame I got a call again. They wanted the jersey back, for the Hall. They offered a 1952 road uniform in trade, and there were a number of conversations.

NBA Central teams in neck and neck race

By The Associated Press

There may not be parity throughout the National Basketball Association but there certainly is equality in the league's Central Division.

After Thursday night's action, the Washington Bullets, Houston Rockets and Cleveland Cavaliers are seperated by just three percentage points at the top of the Central with fourth place San Antonio not too far behind. The Rockets, who beat Detroit 114-107, are tied with the idle Bullets for first place with a .568 percentage. Cleveland, which squeaked by the New York Knicks 113-111, is at .565. And the Spurs, who dropped a 112-104 decision to Portland, are 2½ games back at .511.

Cavaliers 113, Knicks 111

Austin Carr's basket with 18 seconds left won the game for the Cavs, who then forced Bob McAdoo to miss from in close in the last five seconds.

"We had very good defense at the end," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. "We prevented well.

Rockets 114, Pistons 107

The Rockets overcame a nine-point halftime deficit to defeat Detroit. Mike Newlin came off the bench to score 27 points and was aided by teammates Moses Malone, who had 25 points and 23 rebounds, Rudy Tomjanovich (24 points) and Calvin Murphy (22) as Houston kept pace in the frantic Central.

Trailblazers 112, Spurs 104

Portland handled San Antonio despite losing Bill Walton and Larry Steele on fouls in the fourth quarter. Maurice Lucas scored 23 points and Dave Twardzik added 20 as the Blazers stayed atop the Pacific Division with their 24th victory in 25 home games this season.

Suns 111, 76ers 95

The Oregon grad scored 28 points, grabbed 15 rebounds, assisted on eight Suns' baskets, stole the ball six times and blocked a shot.

"You bet this was my best game," said Lee. "I felt good. I wanted to take the ball to the hoop just about every time I got it."

City will hold auction

Have a desire to own some restaurant equipment? Perhaps your idea of a good buy is owning an old police car.

At 10 a.m. Saturday in the old Crawford Hotel, 106 W. Wall St., Midlanders will have the opportunity to buy restaurant equipment, old city police cars, and a lot of other items.

The City of Midland is auctioning off the contents of the Crawford Hotel, equipment in the Red Fox Restaurant, located in the hotel, plus surplus city and parks department equipment.

The city acquired the hotel and restaurant property to make room for the planned downtown exhibition center to be located there.

Some of the items auctioned from the hotel and restaurant property include kitchen equipment, commercial refrigerators, ovens, booths, tables, chandeliers, cash registers and light fixtures.

Also, outside the hotel the city will auction surplus police cars, business machines, recreation equipment and other items it owns. These larger items will be sold from a parking lot near the hotel and on the city hall parking lot.

In the event of rain some of the large items will be shown on slides inside the hotel and auctioned there.

Jim Hall: he's got an Indy ambition

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Jim Hall doesn't know the meaning of the word complacency. For all of the accomplishments that have marked his star-studded career as one of the most successful driver-designers in auto racing history, the man seldom looks back—only ahead.

It's been almost twelve years now since the tall, lean 41-year old Midlander broke into national proninence in 1965 by winning Sebring with this revolutionary Chaparral car, and the auto racing world has never been quite the same since.

As a designer, Hall has instituted such innovations into racing as fiberglass bodies, automatic transmissions for racing cars, and his famous "racing wing", an air foil designed to increase racing car stability at high speeds.

But despite all of the success and recognition he has gained the world over in road racing, Hall is still a man with one unfulfilled ambition. He wants to run a car at Indianapolis.

"Running a car at Indy has always been my one ambition," he explained recently, "just because it's such a big deal.

"Technically," I don't think it's as interesting as road racing, but from a publicity and salesmanship standpoint there's nothing like it."

ROAD RACING'S "identity complex" might also be contributing to Hall's desire to run in the legendary midwest race. Hall explains, "everybody you meet says 'well, have you raced at Indy,' and you say no. Then they want to know why.

"No matter how much success I ever achieve, people will always ask that same question. Everybody's heard of Indianapolis, but not everybody's heard of Watkins Glen or Riverside."

While Hall may be struggling with an anonyminity problem among some race fans, he is no stranger to Formula 5000 racing followers. For the past three years, he has teamed up with Carl Haas and driver Brian Redman to dominate -5000 racing. Haas supplied the money, Hall handled the technical aspect, and Redman drove the cars.

BUT NOT long ago, Hall was notified that the F-5000 series had been abruptly cancelled. "The race organizers have been unhappy with the gates for the last couple of years," he said explaining the postponement. "They always did think sports cars drew a lot better than the cars we use. They said they had nore people appeal."

But lack of popularity wasn't the series' only problem. "They let the rules get out of hand too, and let turbo-engined cars in," Hall added. "Nobody could afford to run a car then."

A prime example of the exorbitant value of the cars is the turbo-engined Porsche, which costs in the area of $200,000. "There's no way you can afford to run a program like that," Hall stated emphatically, "except for maybe a factory program like Porsche's."

WHAT HAS come out of it all is a compromise program that will result in a new series for the 1977 season.

"They're going to put body work on roughly the same cars," Hall added, "and call it Can-Am '77."

While F-5000 races were normally 100 miles in distance, the Can-Am series, which begins June 12, at Laguna and will include nine races this summer, will be expanded to the 130-200 mile range. Hall likes the idea of longer races.

"It will mean fuel stops of course, and it will be a little more expensive and a little more hairy for the pit crews," he explained, "but I think these are some of the things we can handle. I'm really looking forward to it."

THE COMPLETE 1977 Can-Am schedule looks like this: June 12, Laguna; June 26, Atlanta; July 10, Watkins Glen; July 24, Road America; August 7, Mid-Ohio; August 21, Mosport; September 4, Trois Rivieres, Quebec; September 25, Sears Point; October 16, Riverside.

Despite his optimism for the new Can-Am series, Hall's thoughts always manage to revert back to Indianapolis. To race there would be the topping on a great career. And to win at Indy? Just the thought is enough to put Hall into momentary euphoria. But whether or not he will ever be there on race day is still a question that only time can answer.

"I would still like to do it," he said thoughtfully. "I will always want to do it. But I just have never had the opening present itself. It's a very expensive thing and it takes a lot of crew people. Besides that, you've got to spend a month at Indianapolis before the race, and I don't know if I've got that kind of time.

"The economic climate, the time when I've been right and so forth; it's just never quite worked out. But I still want to do it, and maybe somday..."

Next: A look at Jim Hall's great career, and the reason's for this man's success.

Hall checks out the engine on one of the Lola cars that made the Hall-Haas-Redman team one of the dominant factors on the now-defunct Formula 5000 racing circuit. As he looks to the future, Hall would like to run a car at Indy some day.

Pivotmen dominate West all-star lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — Centers dominate the National Basketball Associtiion Western Conference All-Star team following the selection of the reserves by the 11 West coaches for the Feb. 13 mid-season game at Milwaukee.

Los Angeles' Kareem AbdulJabbar, the only unanimous choice among the reserves, Detroit's Bob Lanier and Portland's Bill Walton were among the seven additions made to the West squad Thursday. They join starting center Dan Issel of Denver, who was voted to start the game by the fans.

Also named as West reserves were guards Billy Knight of Indiana and Phil Smith of Golden State, and forwards Maurice Lucas of Portland and Rick Barry of Golden State.

The Eastern Conference reserves include Boston center Dave Cowens, who has played in less than half of the Celtics' games this season and only recently returned from a selfimposed two-month exile. Cowens will back up starting center Bob McAdoo of the New York Knicks.

The East coaches voted forwards Elvin Hayes of Washington, John Havlicek of Boston and Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston to the squad, along with backcourtmen Earl Monroe of the Knicks, Jo Jo White of the Celtics and George Gervin of San Antonio.

Besides McAdoo, the East will start guard Pete Maravich of New Orleans and three members of the Philadelphia 76ers—Julius Erving and George McGinnis at forward and Doug Collins at guard. In addition to Issel, the West will have two of his Denver teammates—forwards Bobby Jones and David Thompson—in the starting lineup. The starting guards are Norm Van Lier of Chicago and Paul Westphal of Phoenix.

Tech takes Houston on last second bucket

By The Associated Press

Yogi Berra once said, "You're never out of it until you're out of it."

So Yogi would have absolutely loved what Maryland and New Mexico State, both of whom were about as out of it as possible, did Thursday night, a night of miracles in college basketball.

Maryland fell behind 19-2 and never led until late in the game but recovered to nip North Carolina State 75-73 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

But that rally was mere child's play compared to the one New Mexico State put on against shell-shocked Bradley. The Aggies fell behind 28-0 after seven minutes—count 'em, 28-0—and then stormed back for a 117-109 Valley Conference victory in what must rank as one of the greatest comebacks in sports history.

Meanwhile, in another one for the book, Centenary scored an incredible eight points in the final three seconds in defeating Northwestern Louisiana 79-71.

Those developments stole the spotlight from the four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty who saw action. Second-ranked Michigan held off Wisconsin 69-64, No. 11 Louisville downed Dayton 76-71, No. 13 Minnesota crushed Indiana 79-60 and No. 15 Arkansas mauled Southern Methodist 77-59.

It looked like a football score as Bradley piled up a 28-0 bulge over New Mexico State. But while the Braves might have been thinking shutout, they should have been thinking win.

"That's the first time I've ever seen a score like 28-0 and it's probably the first time anybody did that and got their tails beat, too," said Bradley center Alex Mazeika.

"It's almost impossible to get a 28-0 lead on a good team," said Coach Joe Stowell, "and it's almost impossible to lose a game once you do. You score the first 28 points, you just don't lose, that's all."

Albert Jones scored 28 points to pace New Mexico State's comeback, which overshadowed a 40-point effort by Bradley's Roger Phegley.

"I really didn't think about what the score was when it was 28-0," said State's Dexter Hawkins. "Then all of a sudden it was 28-15 and I thought, shoot, we're still in it."

By halftime, the Aggies were within 56-50. They took the lead for the first time with 3:20 remaining on Richard Robinson's lay-up and it see-sawed until 1:53, when Robinson's 15-foot jump shot put them ahead for good 105-104.

Steve Sheppard's 20-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining capped Maryland's comeback against North Carolina State. The Terrapins never led until late in the game. N.C. State's Kenny Carr sank two foul shots with 30 seconds remaining to tie the score and Maryland's Brad Davis dribbled 28 seconds off the clock before Sheppard's winning shot. Carr led all scorers with 26 points and Charles Whitney added 21 for the Wolfpack. Sheppard led Maryland with 18.

Arkansas, unbeaten in Southwest Conference play, took a 40-21 halftime lead against SMU and coasted the rest of the way. Marvin Delph was high man with 20 points.

Elsewhere, Texas Tech upset Houston 84-83 on freshman Kent Williams' shot with one second left in overtime, Billy McKinney sank all eight floor shots and Northwestern hit a perfect 24-for-24 free throws—six by McKinney—in defeating Michigan State 66-58 and football quarterback Tony Flanagan scored 12 points in the second half as Georgia rallied to beat Georgia Tech 60-51.

Scuba diving instruction to be given

The YMCA will hold an instructional course in basic scuba diving, beginning on February 1, and extending through March 10.

The classes will be directed by Richard Stovall and will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m.

Instruction will include shallow and deep water check-out dives, and successful completion of the course will qualify each participant for National YMCA diver certification.

Candidates for the class need to be strong swimmers, sixteen years of age or older. A swimming skill test will be administered to each registrant during the first class period, which will be held in Club Room B of the Central YMCA.

Fees for the scuba diving course are $100 for YMCA members and $125 for non-Y members.

All diving equipment will be furnished by the YMCA through Stovall's Dive Shop. The participant must furnish his own mask, snorkel, and fins.

Individuals may secure more information by calling the "Y" office, 682-2551.

Once-powerful Aussie netters going through severe depression

By BEN PRESS
Copley News Service

In virtually every major tournament around the world, the entries far exceed the available spaces in the draw. As a result, tournament committees seeking an equitable solution have begun to rely completely on the computer rankings.

This determines who can be placed directly into the draw and also the order of seeding. Since the emergence of the computer and even for several years prior, one question has been apparent. Where are the Australians?

For a decade and more before the present determination, the Australians were without question the dominant tennis power in the world. There were such names as Frank Sedgman, Rod Laver, Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall, Tony Roche, Roy Emerson, John Newcombe in the men and Margaret Smith Court and Evonne Goolagong in the women.

I put the question to Dr. Julian Lee of Sydney, Australia. He is a famed internist from that area and also is involved with their tennis program. He is opinionated on why Australian tennis continues to decline while the rest of the world remains in the midst of the tennis boom. Here are some of the reasons volunteered by Lee:

First, the Australian Lawn Tennis Association is not a happy one, nor is it a cohesive group. The old guard refuses to relinquish any power at the expense of progress.

Second, there has been a huge lag in the construction of tennis courts. Public courts are being replaced, but slowly.

Third, there is an overemphasis on team sports such as soccer, cricket and rugby plus the fact that much of the younger generation has taken to water sports, surfing in particular.

There is also the money factor. The ALTA almost always has operated in the red although the advent of professional tennis has helped. The chief source of revenue for years was the Davis Cup.

Now this is no longer a major factor and the possibility of Australia reaching the challenge round is extremely remote.

Spectator tennis has almost disappeared as there are no new super players to draw crowds. There is minimal TV coverage. Lee added that coaching is another serious condition. He feels there are only about six competent teachers in the entire country and that the substrata coaching is poor. There is a junior program but that too has disintegrated into precious little.

Of course you have to include the name Harry Hopman as the one person responsible for all the past Australian successes. Here again, Lee feels the Hopman approach would not work today and that if success is dependent solely on one person, then there is something drastically wrong with the system.

Because there are no athletic scholarships available, there is little college incentive.

The point of all this is that there are many pitfalls we can avoid here in the United States. Unquestionably we are now No. 1 in the tennis world and we can certainly learn and avoid going from a superpower to an also-ran.

Andy Strasberg, San Diego's director of season ticket sales, explains some of his collection of baseball memorabilia, including gum card photos, bats, uniforms and even seats from the bleachers of several long-since abandoned ballparks.

A diamond collector out west

By JOE HAMELIN
Copley News Service

Mainly because he's 27.

Without the mastodon.

It has almost everything else, however. An antique baseball pinball machine, for instance.

A letter from Abner Doubleday. Sandy Koufax' uniform. Henry Aaron's bat. A baseball autographed by the 1931 New York Yankees, Babe Ruth among them. And an honest-to-gosh wooden seat from Yankee Stadium.

Among other things.

"And, honest, this is only about 5 per cent of it," Strasberg will tell you. "The rest is in storage or back at my folks' home in White Plains (N.Y.)."

Strasberg, director of season ticket sales for the San Diego Padres, collects anything and everything associated with baseball. Aside from the obvious beginnings with cards, coins and such, he has bought, begged and borrowed enough uniforms to start his own ball club, enough seats to start his own stadium.

He not only collects cards, for example, he also collects the wrappers they come in.

"I got started on the uniforms when I acquired Fran Tarkenton's jersey," Strasberg said in an interview. "And that was easy, because the Giants trained at C.W. Post when I was a student there. I wasn't interested in football collecting and it didn't mean anything to me, but I knew what it was worth.

"We collectors have our trade papers and such, through which we trade stuff. I wound up trading it to the Yankees' visiting team batboy for two jerseys — Frank Howard's (size 52, big enough for two) and Bill Melton's."

That was in '71. He has since added, among others, jerseys worn by Koufax, Bill Mazeroski, Billy Martin, Jim Bouton (the original Seattle Pilot outfit), Bob Lemon and Japanese star Sadaharu.

"Lemon's is one of my prizes. It's his 1948 home jersey," Strasberg says.

"I was working in a camera store when someone did a piece on my collection and Lemon read it. Next thing I know, his son brought the jersey down to the store and told me to add it to my collection.

"Funny thing was, after Lemon made the Hall of Fame I got a call again. They wanted the jersey back, for the Hall. They offered a 1952 road uniform in trade, and there were a number of conversations.

NBA Central teams in neck and neck race

By The Associated Press

There may not be parity throughout the National Basketball Association but there certainly is equality in the league's Central Division.

After Thursday night's action, the Washington Bullets, Houston Rockets and Cleveland Cavaliers are seperated by just three percentage points at the top of the Central with fourth place San Antonio not too far behind. The Rockets, who beat Detroit 114-107, are tied with the idle Bullets for first place with a .568 percentage. Cleveland, which squeaked by the New York Knicks 113-111, is at .565. And the Spurs, who dropped a 112-104 decision to Portland, are 2½ games back at .511.

Cavaliers 113, Knicks 111

"We had very good defense at the end," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. "We prevented well.

Rockets 114, Pistons 107

The Rockets overcame a nine-point halftime deficit to defeat Detroit. Mike Newlin came off the bench to score 27 points and was aided by teammates Moses Malone, who had 25 points and 23 rebounds, Rudy Tomjanovich (24 points) and Calvin Murphy (22) as Houston kept pace in the frantic Central.

Trailblazers 112, Spurs 104

Portland handled San Antonio despite losing Bill Walton and Larry Steele on fouls in the fourth quarter. Maurice Lucas scored 23 points and Dave Twardzik added 20 as the Blazers stayed atop the Pacific Division with their 24th victory in 25 home games this season.

Suns 111, 76ers 95

The Oregon grad scored 28 points, grabbed 15 rebounds, assisted on eight Suns' baskets, stole the ball six times and blocked a shot.

"You bet this was my best game," said Lee. "I felt good. I wanted to take the ball to the hoop just about every time I got it."

Coast Guard boats pour water onto still smoldering Exxon dock and the side of the tanker Exxon San Francisco Thursday morning at daybreak. A series of explosions rocked the tanker and sank a tugboat as the San Francisco was taking on fuel oil at the Baytown refinery. Seventeen persons were injured and four persons are missing. Three of the missing persons were from the tugboat.

Search continues for missing crewmen after tanker blast

BAYTOWN Tex.(AP) — A sunken tug boat was expected to be raised today and the search continued for its three crew members, presumed drowned when the vessel sank after a series of explosions ripped across the Exxon docks here.

The tug, Nathan B., sank and the tanker Exxon San Francisco sustained minor fire damage in the early Thursday morning incident.

The missing men were identified as Capt. Dale Wolfred of Jasper, Ruflin Hardin of Orange and Wendell Droddy of Port Neches.

Juan Vasquez, 25, of Baytown, an Exxon employe, was reported in satisfactory condition in a Galveston Hospital with second and third degree burns over 12 per cent of his body.

The other injured men were treated at a Baytown hospital and released.

"They were loading heating oil through a loading arm when the arm broke, spraying heating oil over the dock," said Lt. Dinnis Sande of the U.S. Coast Guard, which has scheduled a inquiry into the blast.

Sande said that according to reports, the tug, which was docked on the other side of the pier from the San Francisco, started her engines "and it was shortly after that the explosions occurred."

Sande said the tug went down immediatly in the murky bay waters.

Thomas Votisis, 28, one of 26 crewmen on the Norfolk, Va., tanker, said he had just gone to sleep in the crew quarters at the stern of the 800-foot vessel when he heard the blasts.

"All of a sudden I heard this big bang," Votisis said. "I saw flames when I got on deck and I jumped into a fire station on board. I was on the ship some 45 minutes afterwards and I kept hearing these explosions and it seemed like there was no hope so I jumped overboard and went under."

Votisis was rescued as were several other crewmen of the tanker who leaped into the water.

Louisiana governor blames government

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards said Louisiana can't do more than it is now doing to help the natural gas crisis, and accused the federal government of ignoring the problem for years.

Edwards referred angrily to a telegram from Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus which asked for special measures in meeting the crisis:

"We get a telegram where we have been robbing ourselves of natural resources and it says, 'Turn the valves open.'"

"Well, I regret to say we don't have that capacity," Edwards told the Louisiana Petrochemical Energy Group Wednesday.

Andrus' telegram, received Wednesday, asked Edwards to "waive any constraints" that may be limiting production of natural gas in this energy-rich state.

But Edwards replied in a telegram, "The measures you suggest ... have already been implemented and cannot result in the production of any measurable additional gas supplies."

Edwards said gas-producing states have warned of national shortages for the last 10 years "to deaf ears."

"The situation is far more serious than evidenced by the recent temporary cold season. The winter will pass, the crisis will not," Edwards said.

He said the problem was "not how we are going to share the shortage, but how we are going to produce more for people to share."

Edwards, long a proponent of unrestricted energy development, recommended seven steps he said the federal government should take to spur energy production.

He said the government should remove restraints on coal; order the use of coal when available to replace natural gas and oil; immediately explore the Atlantic seaboard for oil and gas; remove price restrictions on fossil fuels; implement a conservation program; sponsor development of other energy sources; and convene summit meetings of government and energy-industry officials.

Earlier, Rep. Henson Moore had criticized President Carter's emergency natural gas bill while Sen. J. Bennett Johnston said it was basically sound if changed by "one or two techincal amendments."

GOV. JAMES A. RHODES placed Ohio under an energy crisis Thursday which gives him additional powers to curtail business hours, close industries, shut schools and reallocate natural gas supplies.

Eddy project slates tests

Mesa Petroleum Co., Midland, No. 1 Ogden-State, southeast outpost to the White City (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N.M., was preparing to test through perforations at 11,386-11,416 feet.

Operator hung a 5-inch liner from 8,168-11,485 feet, on total depth of 11,486 feet.

A 150-minute drillstem test in the Morrow from 11,188-11,406 feet, had gas to surface in 18 minutes, flowing initially at the rate of 500,000 cubic feet per day, and increasing to 2.75 million cubic feet daily at the end of the test. Recovery was 336 feet of drilling fluid, with a trace of condensate, plus 2.7 cubic feet of gas from the sample chamber.

Israel may be close to major oil discovery

The Los Angeles Times

RAMADAN FIELD, Gulf of Suez — Israel may be close to a new oil discovery in the Gulf of Suez that could alter the course of Middle East peace talks.

The Israelis are drilling off the western shores of the occupied Sinai Peninsula in an area geologists say is highly promising. Israeli officials say "positive signs" of oil have been found.

If the Israelis find oil before the proposed Geneva peace talks with their Arab foes, it will give them a new card to play at the talks — and perhaps a reason for not wanting to return the Sinai to the Egyptians.

First the Israelis drove other oil prospectors from the east side of the Gulf at gunpoint. A Sept. 2 incident came close to a shooting fray.

Then the Israelis moved in their own rig — one that once was swamped off Oman, then salvaged and refitted in South Africa. Named Springbok after the South African gazelle, it is manned by Canadians and Texas working under cover of firms existing mainly on paper.

Any oil man or contractor known to be working for the Israelis faces blacklisting in Arab nations. Despite this, the Israeliz have managed to enter the sophisticated field of offshore drilling.

From the producing Ramadan field here operated by an Egyptian-Standard Oil partnership near the midpoint of the 16-mile-wide gulf — the Israeli rig can be seen eight miles northeast across the deep blue water close to shore, guarded round the clock by an Israeli patrol boat.

"They started in December, so they ought to come in next month, when they get down 10,000 or 12,000 feet," said a U.S. oil man at Ramadan. "We will know if they've hit it when we see their gas flare go."

The United States has been strangely quiet about the Israeli ventures in the Gulf, despite the fact that:

—The Israelis, without legal announcement, have taken over the east side of the Gulf, which lies between the Egyptian homeland and the occupied Sinai. It is a de facto presence proclaimed by the bullhorns of Israeli patrol boat skippers. They have driven off any non-Israeli work boats bent on new drilling, and now even Suez Canal freighter traffic transiting the gulf stays on the western side to avoid them.

—In the incident on Sept. 2, an Israeli flotilla faced down two Egyptian boats and drove the American Mariner I drill rig back toward Egypt after destroying marker buoys with gunfire — and, say U.S. oil men, threatening to set the $60 million Mariner rig adrift by machinegunning its tow line.

—Israel refuses to recognize U.S. leases. The Mariner was seeking to drill just east of the Gulf mid-point on an Egyptian 1964 lease to the Gulf of Suez Petroleum Co. (GUPCO). Half of GUPCO is owned by Egypt's government oil firm, the Egyptian General Petroleum Corp. and the other half by a Standard Oil Co. of Indiana subsidiary, AMOCO International. The Springbok is drilling on an Egyptian-AMOCO lease granted by Egypt in 1974. Israeli troops overran and occupied the Egyptian Sinai in the 1967 war.

—State Department officials say, not for quotation, that the United States contends Israel's drilling is a violation of the 1907 The Hague Convention on rights of an occupying power. "Occupation forces may tap existing resources but are enjoined from developing new ones," an official said.

The State Department has filed no official protest with Israel. Standard Oil has informed the Department of what it calls "increased harassment" and "an increasingly aggressive attitude" by the Israeli navy. Egypt has asked U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Herman Eilts to seek U.S. action to prevent the Israeli drilling.

"It is a very delicate matter," said a State Department official in Washington. "We are in touch with the Israelis on various levels." He indicated it would be a matter of high priority for the new Administration and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Many Israelis have never forgiven former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for insisting that Israel return Egypt's Abu Rudeis refinery on the Sinai coast northeast of here as part of the 1975 Sinai disengagement agreement.

Abu Rudeis produced about 75,000 barrels of oil a day — aabout half Israel's needs, some said. The crude was transported by tanker around the tip of the Sinai peninsula and up to Eilat, the Israeli port on the Gulf of Aqaba. Israel says it cost $500 million a year to replace the Abu Rudeis oil. Israel gets most of its oil from Iran, supported by U.S. aid.

"If the gulf is another Abu Rudeis, Israel may not be too anxious to deal it away," said one diplomat. "But return of the captured lands is an Arab requisite for a peace agreement."

Said another, in Cairo: "Two things — Israel settlements in the Sinai and the oil drilling there — cast greatest doubt on Israel's real will to ever give up the occupied territories."

"I don't think if we found oil it would prevent us from reaching an agreement on the Sinai," said an Israeli spokesman in Jerusalem. "If we find oil it will make the Sinai more attractive for the other side to get. It will then interest the other side in being more reasonable when we start bargaining."

And if the other side is not "reasonable?"

"If we keep it, there's no reason not to develop it, is there?"

The Israelis say their claim to the gulf's eastern side is an extension of their control to the midpoint of the Suez Canal. In the 1967 war, when the Israelis drove Egypt from its Sinai territories, it took over everything up to the midpoint.

"We held to the midline there," said the Israeli official, "and held by extension that the same criteria was valid for the gulf south of the canal. We exercise control on the basis of 10 years' practice in these waters."

A foreign office spokesman in Jerusalem said legal experts were analyzing The Hague protocols but were not prepared to respond immediately to the U.S. view that it bars Israel from exploration.

Israel is also drilling on the Sinai shoreline two miles from where the Springbok is working. The state oil company announced this week that the crews discovered "oil indications" two weeks ago and that drilling has halted at 3,250 feet while further tests for oil — and its quality and quantity — are being made. The company announced last week that it was drilling in the area, which the government had refused to comment on previously.

IRION EXTENDER

Mitchell Energy Corp., Houston, has completed No. 1-65 Lawdermilk as a third well and ¾-mile south extension to the Burnt Rock (Canyon) oil pool of Irion, 5½ niles southwest of Mertzon.

It had a 24-hour pumping potential of five barrels of 41-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 2,900-1.

Production was through perforations at 7,193-7,343 feet, after treating with 4,000 gallons of acid and fracturing with 57,500 gallons and 57,000 pounds of sand.

The project, scheduled as a wildcat, was drilled to 8,120 feet, and plugged back to 7,394 feet, in 4½-inch pipe set at 7,453 feet.

Yeso oiler potentials

Marathon Oil Co. has completed its No. 2 Arnquist Estate as an undesignated Yeso producer, 1½ mile east of the Penasco Draw (San Andres-Yeso) pool of Eddy County, N.M.

It finaled on the pump for 23 barrels of 37.2-gravity oil daily, along with 159 barrels of water and gas-oil ratio of 1,000-1, on potential test.

It was completed through perforations at 2,396-2,706 feet, following a 3,000-gallon acid treatment, and fracturing with 80,000 gallons of water and 200,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 330 feet from north and east lines of section 29-18s-26e, ½ mile southwest of Dayton.

Contributions to DNC may violate election law

Newsday

WASHINGTON — The Democratic National Committee, which spent $3 million on behalf of the Carter-Mondale ticket last year, now is asking wealthy supporters to help pay off the bills. But the solicitation could unwittingly involve some contributors in a violation of federal election law.

The committee needs about $1.15 million to pay off outstanding debts incurred during the presidential election last year, and at least another $1.5 million for operating expenses this year.

The committee has received approval from commercial banks to borrow the money if repayment is guaranteed by acceptable outside sources. So the committee is asking dozens of its supporters around the country to back the loans.

The election law, which includes loan guarantees and cash contributions under the same category, allows an individual to donate or guarantee loans of up to $20,000 each year to a committee of the two major national political parties.

But the law also says that in any given year an individual can only give an aggregate of $25,000 to all campaigns for federal office or committee spending on behalf of those campaigns. A contribution earmarked for a specific election counts against the election-year ceiling, no matter when the contribution actually was made.

Therefore, according to a Federal Election Commission official, an individual who gave the limit of $25,000 to federal election campaigns in 1976 could get into legal trouble in 1977 if he contributes additional money to defray 1976 election expenses.

"This really is a gray area, and it's the first test of it we've had," said David Fiske, a spokesman for the Federal Election Commission. "The key is the intent of the donor in giving contributions. If he intended that all the money given last year and this year go for defraying 1976 election expenses, then he is in a problem area. If he intended that part of his contribution be used by the DNC just for operating expenses not related to a specific campaign, then maybe he's okay. Intent is the key, and intent is very difficult to prove."

Fiske said no complaints had been made to the election commission about the Democratic solicitation, but that the commission staff probably would call the potential problem to the attention of the national committee's staff.

The question about the solicitation first arose last weekend when Robert Lipshutz, counsel to President Carter, confirmed that a nationwide solicitation was being made. Lipshutz said its principal purpose was to raise operating funds for the committee, and to help pay off campaign debts left over from the 1968 presidential compaigns of Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

Under the election law the National Democratic Committee and its Republican counterpart each was allowed to spend $3.2 million on behalf of the presidential tickets in the general election. The Democratic committee spent exactly $3 million, of which $1.15 million in bills still have not been paid.

The Republican National Committee, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 million on behalf of the Ford-Dole ticket and reports all bills paid.

Opening lead — ♠ 5

Declarer takes the king of spades, draws two rounds of trumps and starts the clubs, hoping to get rid of two diamonds.

Unfortunately for South, East ruffs the third club, and South can discard only one diamond.

East knows that he needs three diamond tricks to defeat the contract. Since South has already discarded one diamond, the only chance is that South started with four diamonds. This means that West must hold exactly two diamonds—including the ace.

MUST LEAD LOW

East cannot get three diamond tricks by leading the king. He must lead a low diamond to make it possible for West to play the ace without losing a diamond trick.

Then it is West's turn to keep out of the way. West must not win the first diamond trick with the ten. He must take the ace of diamonds and return the ten as the only chance to produce the three diamond tricks which both partners know they need.

This kind of cooperative defense is easy if both partners count the tricks needed to defeat the contract. It's impossible if either partner is the lone wolf type.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened the bidding with one club, and partner has responded one spade. It is your turn again, with SAK; HAJ74; D953; CAKJ10. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts. This "reverse" bid shows a strong hand, is forcing for one round, and invites partner to bid notrump if he has strength in the unbid suit.

Tri-language class taught

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — At Winnetonka High School, students can study French, German and Spanish in one semester — and all in the same course.

Designed by three teachers at the school, the course stresses the ability to speak the three foreign languages rather than relying on traditional grammer or reading.

"It's survival skills in a foreign country. If they need to change money, order in a restaurant or ask where a rest room is, they know how," said Mrs. Vicki Barmann, French teacher for the program.

Mrs. Barmann and two other teachers said they began working on the program about three years ago after enrollments in foreign language classes declined at schools throughout the country.

Blumenthal favors one tax rate

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary-designate W. Michael Blumenthal says he favors changing the tax system so that all income, including capital gains, would be taxed at a uniform, lower rate.

"At this point I am just philsophizing," he said, "but we should allow individuals and businesses to keep more of what they make."

In two wide-ranging interviews, one session last Wednesday and the other Friday, Blumenthal also:

—Said he would assure organized labor a voice in trade negotiations policy. Although stressing anti-protectionist attitudes, he declared: "I don't say that come what may, we have to get (trade) barriers down regardless of what it does to the domestic economy."

—Said there is little risk of a new world recession starting this year, provided that other nations, notably West Germany and Japan, join the United States in a "substantial and co-ordinated" expansion program.

—Rejected business leaders' demands for inclusion of an additional investment tax credit as part of Carter's $23 billion to $30 billion stimulus package. "More consumer purchasing power" will flow into the economy as a result of the package, and that in itself will stimulate new business investment, he said.

But the economic stimulus package "is only the beginning" of a Carter Administration effort to give business the "assurance" that comes from a predictable and expectable set of policies, Blumenthal said. The tax revision package is the next stage, he said.

The former president of the Bendix Corp. predicted that the administration would have its tax revision plans delivered to Congress by early fall, which could mean that, if approved by Congress, they would take effect in 1978.

Blumenthal left no doubt of his personal commitment to a change in the tax laws that will stimulate economic growth by providing "more opportunities" for business investment — "that will encourage people to work harder and put (their money) into the sorts of things society needs."

If there are two problems that top the awesome list of domestic problems he must grapple with, he said, they are tax revision and urban decay.

To those who have said that these problems in combination with a complex of international economic tensions make the job of Treasury secretary impossible, Blumenthal replied, "We can try, and we can make some progress."

He said he recognizes some of the "easy and simple" academic assumptions about economic behavior in recent years have proved wrong. "Economists maybe vaguely understand what's wrong, but they certainly don't know the solutions," admitted Blumenthal, himself an economist.

For example, he said in recent years, the United States has had large budget deficits, yet recently has enjoyed a falling rate of inflation. Also, the nation has suffered through high unemployment and high inflation at the same time — a condition that economic textbooks suggest is impossible.

Yet, even though Blumenthal contended there is no automatic relationship between government deficits and inflation, he said the public perception is that deficits are bad, "and since perception becomes reality," policy-makers must be constrained by the deficit. The Carter stimulus package has been shaped with this in mind, he said.

The problem of growing debt among the world's poor countries "is one of the big international issues we will be struggling with in 1977 and some years to come," he said. He stressed that he has an open mind on the poor nations' proposals for a variety of relief measures turned down by the Ford Administration, including commodity agreements. "That doesn't mean we are prepared to agree with them, but we are prepared to take a new look," he said.

He also said there must be ways of defusing the tension between the oil-consuming nations and the oil-producers' cartel by "seeking to develop" areas of common interest. He said he favors giving a larger role to some of the Organization for Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in the world's policy-making international financial organizations.

The single tax rate idea, a version of which was unsuccessfully put forward last year by former Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, is based on the concept of doing away with all preferences and social treatment.

There would be no deductions for such things as interest payments or contributions, no special treatment for capital gains, no exemption of earnings on municipal bonds, for example.

In one plan advanced by Simon, individuals instead of paying taxes ranging from 14 to 70 per cent on income after taking all deductions, would pay 8 to 38 per cent — but on the full total.

Commission checking into privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the telephone rings and it's somebody wanting to know what kind of detergent you use, watch out: it might be a private detective snooping into your life.

At least that's what the Privacy Protection Study Commission learned Wednesday from an official of the nation's third largest investigating firm.

John S. Ammarell, executive vice president of the Wackenhut Corp. of Coral Gables, Fla., gave the illustration when asked by Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., if the agency's investigators used pretexts to get information.

"You might for example call up and ask the lady of the house what type of detergent or soap she might use and she'd tell you and you would indicate to her you would like to come out on Monday, or whenever she does her washing, and take a picture of her," Ammarell said.

"Then you would get a picture of a person who was claiming she had a serious back injury and who was proceeding to wash and hang up a big batch of laundry."

The commission called Wackenhut and other agencies to testify about their investigative practices on insurance claims and job applications.

The commission is preparing to make recommendations on changes in federal privacy laws. Its report is due June 10.

Both Ammarell and Eugene Fey, executive vice president of Pinkerton's Inc. of New York, the nation's largest detective agency, contended that existing laws provide enough protection for the individual and that the Privacy Act of 1974 should not be extended to cover private firms.

John Duffy, president of Per Mar Security and Research Corp., Davenport, Iowa, said the individual's rights "must be maintained," but balanced against "the right of the employer and community to be protected from any possible illegal activity."

Ammarell said Wackenhut once kept files on the now-disbanded House Un-American Activities Committee's hearings, but had turned them over to the Church League.

Ammarell said the agency occasionally, although very infrequently, uses information provided by the Church League.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Senior executives of General Telephone & Electronics Corp. directed the payment of at least $14 million in bribes, kickbacks and rebates in 28 countries, including the United States, between 1971 and the present, some of it going to government officials, according to documents filed Thursday in federal court here.

Without admitting or denying the allegations made in a complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission, GT&E consented to a court-ordered permanent injunction.

In an unrelated case, Uniroyal, Inc., also consented to a court order after the SEC alleged that it had paid $2.3 million to officials of several foreign governments.

GT&E officials named in the complaint — but not as defencants — are Theodore F. Brophy, chairman of the board; John J. Douglas, vice chairman; and William F. Bennett, executive vice president.

The SEC complaint says that GT&E sold a 28 per cent interest in Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. to four Filipinos handpicked "at the highest level of government." Some details of the sale were spelled out earlier this month in an SEC suite against the four Filipinos.

About $4.5 million was distributed by GT&E to the four to make the acquisition possible. This was done through secret commissions, credits and uncollected loans, the SEC said.

Brophy, Douglas and Bennett directed the Philippine venture, according to the SEC.

The SEC complaint notes that the company based in Stamford, Conn., "approved substantial commission payments to foreign agents without inquiring about the use of such commission payments."

In 1971, when GT&E was negotiating a large telecommunications project in Iran, the company's marketing representative in that country advised management to retain an agent.

The agent, who was to get 60 per cent of the 10 per cent commission GT&E was paying the marketing representative, was "necessary" because of his "close relationships with persons at the highest levels of the Iranian government," according to the SEC.

After the agent and representative presented GTE's proposal "at the highest level of the Iranian government" the company got a letter of intent for work valued at $80 million, the complaint says.

The two received commissions totaling $6 million, and some GT&E employes "understood" that some of the money went "to various government officials involved in the project," the SEC says.

Both the agent and the marketing representative have denied this in writing.

When it looked as if the Iranian contract would grow to several hundred million dollars, the agent and representative's commissions were scaled downward, the SEC says.

The commissions were paid through four Shell companies, two of them in Switzerland, the SEC says.

In 1973, GT&E was awarded a contract to supply telecommunications equipment to an unnamed south American country, according to the complaint.

At the last minute, the SEC says, the contract was rescinded, and GT&E was told it could be revived by paying about $270,000 to two high-level government officials.

These payments and others were "disguised on the books of GT&E," the SEC found.

The complaint states that GT&E paid a total of about $35,000 in illegal domestic campaign contributions from 1964 through 1972.

The SEC was told by GT&E employes that, between 1971 and 1973, the company made payments to unnamed officials in Mississippi and New York City in connection with negotiations for contracts.

In the Uniroyal case, the company signed a consent decree without either admitting or denying the SEC allegations.

The commission alleged that a Uniroyal subsidiary paid $420,000 to a trade association in Mexico on the promise that "the entire amount would be given to government officials" to block a planned price increase for tires.

In past complaints, the SEC, has made similar allegations of payments in Mexico by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and General Tire and Rubber Co.

The SEC complaint says that Uniroyal and its subsidiaries paid "questionable commissions" to stimulate export sales in many countries. A number of government officials also received payments, the SEC says.

Adamson talks about plane offer

The Los Angeles times

PHOENIX — Confessed killer John Harvey Adamson said Thursday he was offered a chance to flee the country in a twin-engine plane millionaire Kemper Marley Sr. and Arizona Gov. Raul Castro had in Mexico at the time of the slaying.

Adamson told of the purported offer during the second day of a preliminary hearing for Max A. Dunlap, 47, a Phoenix builder, and James Robison, 54, a Chandler, Ariz., plumbing contractor, both charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy in the June 2, 1976, car-bomb murder of newspaper reporter Don Bolles.

"He (Dunlap) asked me if I wanted to get out of the country," Adamson said in response to a question from Asst. Atty. Gen. William Schafer III, special state prosecutor.

Adamson said Dunlap told him, "they could get me out of the country in a minute," because they had a twin-engine plane. "You know," Adamson quoted Dunlap as saying, "Marley and the governor have the thing in Mexico."

Castro, who earlier had denied any social or business association with Marley, characterized Adamson's testimony as, "untrue, ridiculous and absurd."

Marley, who contributed $19,000 to Castro's election campaign, was the governor's biggest financial backer.

Under questioning by Defense Attorney Percy Foreman, Adamson admitted he spent most of his time in a number of Phoenix cocktail lounges, drank about a quart of vodka daily, had experimented with cocaine and took tranquilizers on a regular basis.

He also admitted a connection with the bombing of a Bureau of Indian Affairs building in Phoenix owned by attorney Neil roberts, a close friend of Adamson.

"If he (Roberts) collected the $500,000 in insurance, you were to receive $50,000 of that for destroying the building?" Foreman asked. "From Neil Roberts?"

"Yes, Adamson answered.

Earlier, Adamson told the court the Bolles murder was part of a $50,000 package price deal for three slayings. He said he was offered the money by Dunlap, who told him he was speaking for Marley, to kill Bolles, Arizona Atty. Gen. Bruce C. Babbitt and public relations man Al Lisanetz, also known as "King Alphonse."

'Marriage of Figaro' first-rate

Of any major entertainment event to come to Midland in recent months, Texas Opera Theater's "The Marriage of Figaro" was the one I looked forward to with greatest anticipation — and greatest dread.

With anticipation because Mozart's sublimely melodic, magical masterwork has long been something special for me, a synthesis of 18th Century wit and elegance and musical sophistication — in short, the embodiment of everything opera represents, as entertainment and as an art form.

But with dread, nevertheless, because there is always the fear that something you cherish may not fare well, may not be well received, just at the time and the place you want it to succeed the very most. Would this rather fragile bit of musical theater, based upon a classic of the French stage by the 18th Century playwright Beaumarchais, succeed in Midland, Texas?

Happy am I to report that "Figaro" succeeded very well, indeed, here Thursday night in its presentation by Texas Opera Theater, the touring wing of the Houston Grand Opera.

A touring production it may be, but with little of the mark of a one-night-stand roadshow about it, be assured — no rumpled and ratty costumes, no flimsy or shabby scenery, no rag-tag group of instrumentalists to provide lukewarm orchestral accompaniment and, above all, no second-string, "second best" singers providing that most essential ingredient of opera, the lyric excitement.

In a word, TOT's "Figaro" is quality.

Opera buffs in the Midland area have been hearing good reports on TOT productions for the last several years — perhaps some had caught the company's presentation of "El Capitan" in Lubbock last season, or some other performamce by the troupe elsewhere. But I think few, if any, of us were quite prepared for the thorough professionalism, the absolute expertise, demonstrated so remarkably by the singers and the instrumentalists Thursday night in Midland High School auditorium.

Midland Community Concerts Association, the sponsoring organization here, must certainly be commended for having the courage of its convictions by booking the operatic performance. The association felt— and rightly so, it turned out — that Midland was ready for, and would be receptive to, lyric theater. With that conviction splendidly vindicated by the warm response of the audience Thursday night, may we hope that TOT will be invited to return with another production sometime in the future?

TOT's "Figaro" is brand-new having opened at Galveston just a week ago, and the company is now in the first days of an extended tour of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Part of the zest, the sparkle in Thursday's presentation here is attributable to the fact that the production is so new. But I am sure that the TOT troupe will be providing zest and sparkle in the same or greater measure this time next month, or six months hence. Because professionalism is the name of this game and these are gifted, well-trained, disciplined young artists who love to make music, love to share it with others and love to have it as well appreciated by an audience. That's a winning kind of combination.

TOT'a "Figaro" is extremely fortunate to have vocal artists of the calibre of Eric Halfvarson, Maryanne Telese, Warren Ellaworth and Pamela Porter in pivotal roles, not to mention other equally-gifted young singers to provide the strong support necessary in smaller roles in the opera.

Halfvarson as Figaro and Miss Telese as his betrothed, Susanna, brought witty insouciance, great gusto to their roles as clever servants out to teach their master a well-deserved lesson. These two possess considerable comedic ability in addition to fine voices and were warmly engaging in their parts.

By the same token, Ellsworth and Miss Porter were strong and believable as the Count and Countess Almaviva, he with an eye for every pretty girl, she sad and forlorn at her husband's desertion.

In fact, Miss Porter provided some of the best musical moments in the entire performance despite the fact her initial scene in the opera's second act seemed a bit lackluster. Nevertheless her voice has the suppleness and appeal needed for this touching part, and her command of recitative is admirable. She warmed to her role remarkably well as the performance progressed and her big moment in the third act, climaxed with the moving and supremely melodic "Dove Sono" aria, was certainly one of the highlights of the evening.

Ellsworth as the amorous and autocratic nobleman was absolutely fine. Occasionally I had difficulty understanding his singing lines but, by and large, his diction, like that of the other vocalists, was quite good.

Duets and ensemble numbers in the production were generally excellent, seldom with flaws.

Providing excellent characterizations in supportive roles were Linda Kowalski in the "trouser role" of the page Cherubino; Laura Lay as the maiden lady Marcellina; Joseph Warner as Dr. Bartolo and as Antonio the gardener; Adair Lewis as Barbarina and Scott Pederson as Don Curzio and Don Basilio. The opera orchestra was conducted by Jo Demain, TOT's music director.

With the exception of a rather barren and uninteresting stage in the first act, the sets for "Figaro" are handsome and very workable — rather simple, of course, as fits the needs of a touring show, but visually nice. Costumes for the production are colorful and attractive. Sets and costumes for the opera were funded by a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation of Los Angeles.

Winter-like weather due to return to area

Fair and colder weather is scheduled tonight with partly cloudy and a little colder conditions Saturday.

Tonight's low should be in the mid-20s and Saturday's high in the mid-50s. Winds are due to be from the north and northwest at 10 to 15 mph tonight the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Thursday's high was 69 degrees and this morning's low was 41 degrees.

Above freezing temperatures and partly cloudy skies were reported this morning in Andrews, Lamesa Stanton. Clear skies were reported in Rankin, Crane and Big Lake.

Thursday's highs ranged up to the highest levels since last October, hitting highs of 83 at Alice, Brownsville, Cotulla, Laredo and McAllen in southern areas of the state.

Spanish violence continues

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gunmen and bombers killed four police and wounded 11 today in an outbreak of violence despite a government crackdown aimed at enforcing law and order, various sources reported.

Two men using pistols with silencers fatally wounded two police guards at a postal substation in southwestern Madrid, police said.

At almost the same time, a car carrying two paramilitary civil guards exploded on a highway outside Madrid, killing both occupants, the news agency Europa Press said.

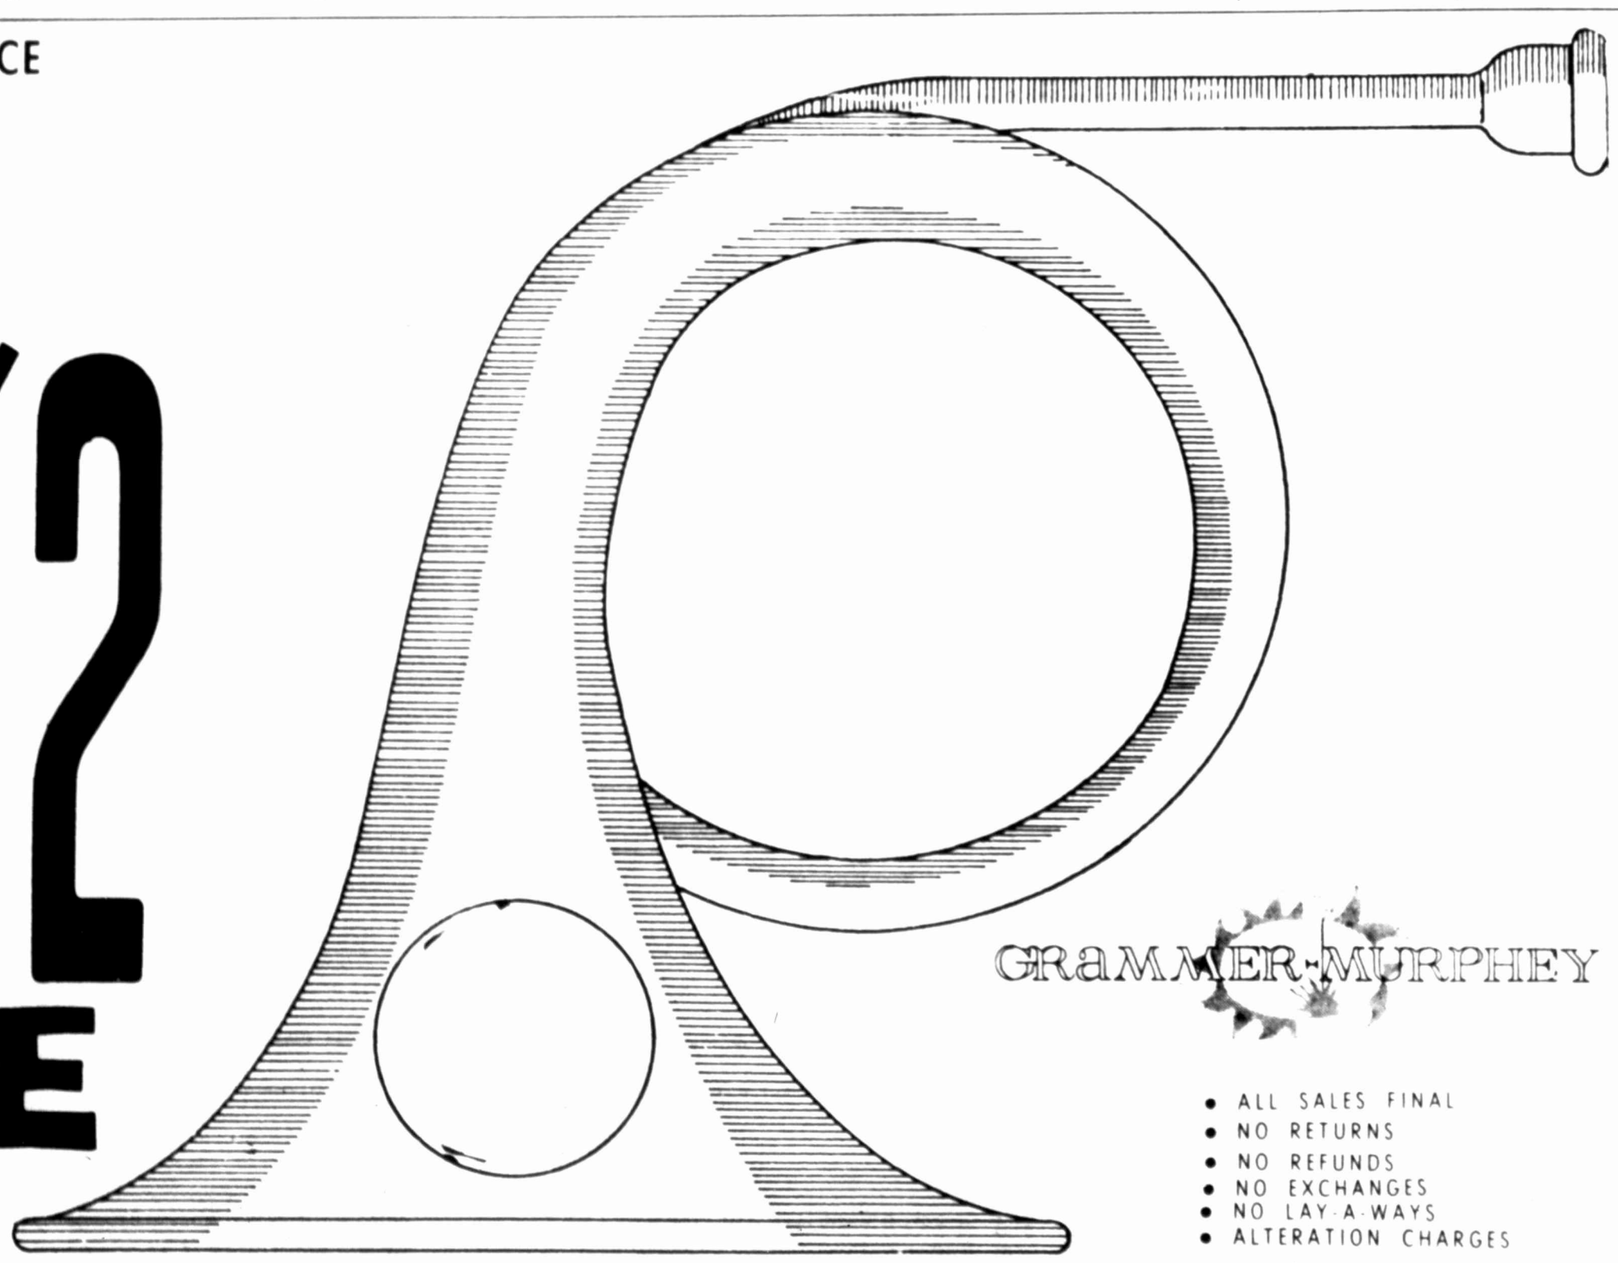

Gunmen also shot and wounded two civil guards at a suburban bank, the agency said, and nine other civil guards who sped to the scene were injured when a bomb was thrown at their jeeps.

Police said none of the patrons in the postal station was injured. The gunmen took no money and fled in a waiting car, police said.

Witnesses said the gunmen, wearing raincoats, walked into the postal station this morning without speaking and shot the two uniformed guards several times. The two died later in a hospital.

Lawmakers want assurances of future gas deregulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is getting fast congressional action on his emergency energy proposals, but some lawmakers want assurances that the legislation won't delay action on long-range plans to end price controls on natural gas.

The House Commerce Committee scheduled a hearing today on Carter's emergency energy proposal and the Senate, which waived committee hearings, slated floor debate on the plan.

White House energy adviser James Schlesinger is the leadoff witness before the House panel, which also was to hear from members of the Federal Power Commission and representatives of gas pipeline companies, natural gas producers and consumer groups.

Carter is seeking fast congressional action on his request for authority to deal with the cold-spawned natural gas crisis that has closed schools and businesses in a number of states. His plan would allow allocation of natural gas among interstate pipelines, temporarily remove price controls from some gas and give the President the power to send gas to the areas that most need it.

Currently, the areas hit hardest are the Southeast, the Northeast and parts of the Midwest where unusually cold weather has made shortages worse.

In some areas of the country where temperatures have not been as cold, such as the Pacific Northwest, small emergency supplies of gas are available for transfer. But there is no guarantee that there is enough of a reserve to spread around to all critical areas.

Lawmakers from gas-producing states, who want assurances that the emergency legislation won't foreclose later action on a long-range bill to remove price controls from natural gas, held a strategy session Thursday. They reportedly agreed to try to hold Cater to his campaign promise to support decontrol and have already submitted numerous amendments to the administration plan.

They include one that would require Carter to submit a decontrol plan to Congress within 90 days.

There is also some sentiment for amendments to guarantee against shortages developing in states which now have adequate supplies.

But Carter's proposal still has broad support in Congress and passage early next week is possible.

Those who want federal price controls lifted permanently from interstate gas pipelines say this is the only way to encourage the gas industry to invest in seeking significant new supplies.

Some Gulf Coast lawmakers are proposing amendments to protect gas supplies in their home regions. Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., wants the legislation to specify that gas cannot be diverted from producing states except for dire emergencies where home-heating is threatened.

More than 1,000 farsighted Midlanders will receive their new automobile registration stickers by mail shortly after the Feb. 1 opening date for registration.

Frances Shuffield, chief deputy of the Midland County tax office, said her office has processed that many renewal cards and wishes "we had 1,007 more," in order to avoid long lines in the tax office as the April 1 deadline approaches.

Persons renewing their car registration should mail in their computer renewal cards by Feb. 28, making sure to enclose all parts of the card, Mrs. Shuffield said.

Registrants should be sure to specify which address they want listed with the state, Mrs. Shuffield said, explaining that often her office receives a different address on a registrant's return envelope, renewal card and bank check.

Registrants also may obtain their stickers in person at the tax office in the county courthouse basement after Feb. 1 without paying the $1 handling fee.

Mrs. Shuffield said she urged all persons renewing their registration to mail their cards in by Feb. 28 to avoid long lines in the tax office.

She especially urged operators of large fleets in Midland County to mail in their renewal cards as soon as possible.

New Texas residents should have a law enforcement officer (city, state or county) inspect their car's serial number before going to the tax office for their registration.

All commercial vehicles must have an empty weight slip in order to receive a new sticker, Mrs. Shuffield said. These are available at any public scales, she said.

The stickers this year will be red and should be attached in the upper right corner of the license plate, Mrs. Shuffield said.

The 1976 stickers expire midnight April 1, and the 1977 stickers must be attached to the car license by that time, Mrs. Shuffield said.

ANDREWS — "All the world's a stage," said the clairvoyant Jeane Dixon, "... and all the men and women, each and everyone of us, are merely players."

Original or not, Dixon set the pace for her talk that entailed more predictions than prophecies.

"We all are born for a mission, for a purpose, and we all have our exits," she, again, said in a Shakespearean vein.

Dixon was here Thursday night to impart some of her learned predictions before approximately 700 folks at annual Andrews County Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting.

Andrews County Commissioner Jay Moxley was honored as the county's outstanding citizen for his efforts in improving the county since he moved to the community in 1938.

Dixon, like oil-rich and patriotic Andrews, serves God and country and supports her government.

"I believe in prophecy; I believe in God," she told the throng, which had just had its fill of Mesquite Burners-prepared beef steak and baked potatoes.

"Prophecy is the will of God and cannot be changed by the will of the people," she said.

However, she did say that the United States of America "can be the leading country in this world" if only its people will unite for the common good.

But Dixon, off and on preaching made some predictions. Some were pro-Texas.

— "Texas is just beginning to enter into her Golden Age," She said in States call energy emergencies

By The Associated Press

Ohio, New York and New Jersey were under energy emergencies today as officials sought to conserve dwindling natural gas supplies. The fuel crisis in the Northeast threatened to add more than 250,000 new layoffs to the ranks of the estimated 400,000 already "energy unemployed."

Meanwhile, the governors of Florida, Pennsylvania and Tennessee asked President Carter to declare their states disaster areas.

And an Arctic cold front settling over the Midwest and East was expected to drop temperatures to below zero and possibly cause some cuts in natural gas supplies for residential users.

In Washington, Congress was scheduled today to take up President Carter's emergency energy proposal that would give him power to redirect natural gas supplies to energystarved areas.

The unusually cold weather east of the Rocky Mountains has already closed some 4,000 plants and caused the 400,000 layoffs, according to federal energy officials. Officials in several states said they expect applications for unemployment benefits and food stamps to soar because of layoffs caused by the natural gas shortages.

Elsewhere in the freeze belt Thursday, officials in Philadelphia declared a state of emergency because of natural gas shortages; blizzard conditions swept northern Illinois and parts of Michigan; the Mississippi, Ohio and Illinois Rivers were frozen and barges carrying oil and other supplies remained locked in ice; temperatures hit minus 30 in North Dakota and Minnesota and minus 4 in Chicago, and Kentucky agriculture officials estimated animal deaths, production losses and high feed bills were costing the state's farmers an estimated $2 million daily.

Ohio Gov. James Rhodes declared an energy emergency Thursday but withheld, at least for now, sweeping powers the declaration gives him to close schools and businesses and reallocate fuel supplies.

Rhodes said his action was prompted by subzero temperatures due in the state this weekend, along with virtual cutoffs Thursday of some school and all industrial natural gas supplies.

Earlier Thursday, all major gas

Mauzy may fight courts

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Oscar Mauzy, who stopped an effort in the last legislature to create more state district courts, says he would do it again if the facts are the same this year.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked the legislature Thursday for emergency action to create 23 new district courts. He linked it to the fight against crime.

Mauzy, D-Dallas, who said he has not seen Briscoe's request for new courts, said he will be a strong supporter of the measure if it puts courts where they are needed.

"The courts ought to be where the litigants and law suits are," Mauzy said, "not where friends of politicians are."

Mauzy led a filibuster in the final moments of the 1975 Legislature that killed a bill calling for more district courts.

Briscoe also submitted as an emergency the transfer of $188,974 from the railroad commission's oil and gas division to the gas utilities division, which is swamped with local gas rate cases.

It was the new legislature's busiest day since it convened Jan. 11.

Briscoe asked for four district courts in Bexar County; four in Harris County; three in Tarrant County; and one each in districts consisting of these counties: Angelina; Atascosa, Frio, Karnes, LaSalle and Wilson; Collin; Hamilton, Comanche and Bosque; Deaf Smith and Oldham; Gray; Fort Bend; Smith; Lubbock; Midland; Brazoria; and Montgomery, Grimes and Brazos.

Prinze condition 'critical' after apparent suicide try

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Freddie Prinze, the 22-year-old star of the hit television series "Chico and the Man," was in critical condition today with a bullet wound in the head following an apparent suicide attempt, police said.

Lt. Dan Cook said Prinze had been despondent Thursday night and that several friends and his psychiatrist were in his apartment trying to cheer him up when the shot was fired.

"All of a sudden, he reached down into the sofa, pulled out an automatic pistol, and shot himself in the head," Cook said.

Cook said a note was found but he would not reveal the contents.

The shooting occurred about 3:30 a.m. in Prinze' suite at the plush Beverly Comstock Hotel in West Los Angeles. Prinze had been staying there since he and his wife, Katherine, filed for divorce last month. They were married in Las Vegas in October 1975.

James Komack, creator and executive producer of "Chico and the Man," said he had been with Prinze early Thursday evening in Komack's home. He said Prinze gave no hint of personal problems and said the actor didn't "leave here suicidal."

Paramedics who took the actor to the hospital said his condition was so unstable it was a half-hour before they were able to move him.

Master craftsman still learning his art

LUBBOCK — "I'm still learning everyday," said the modest master.

Delcour, unlike the gunsmiths and firearm fanciers he serves, by his own admission is fairly unenlightened about weapons.

That is his choice.

"About caliber and guns, frankly, I don't know much. I'm just an engraver," said the Belgian artisan, who's professor of engraving at The Liege Gunsmith School at Liege, Belgium.

Delcour is here for the opening of the "Belgian Gunmaking and American History" exhibition that was holed up in the Smithsonian Institution during the 1976 Bicentennial.

The 150-firearm exhibit, that delineates Belguim's 200-year role as a supplier of gunnery to the United States will be here for six months. (In October, the exhibit will be set up in Midland's Museum of the Southwest.)

Delcour flew in from Brussels this week to lend his expertise in a show of pistols and rifles, ornate and plain, blackpowder flintlocks and smokeless automatics, grotesque and streamlined, vulgar and plain.

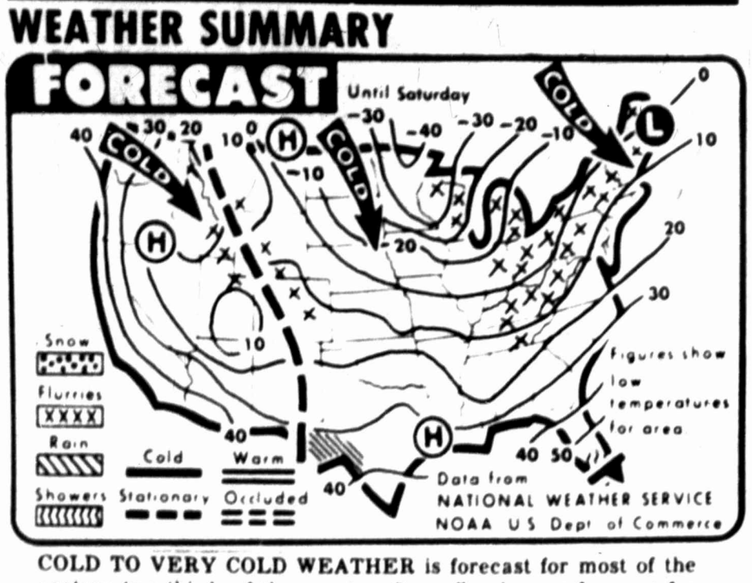

Delcour teaches firearm engraving in a three-year technical program at Liege, an European gunsmith capital.

For benefit of the often-curious and sometimes-dubious newsmen, Delcour offered a preview of his art in Texas Tech University's The Museum, an armory.

Lamesa's Dorothy Haney wins national contest

LAMESA — Dorothy Haney of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce has won the nationally sponsored volunteer membership sales contest for 1976.

Haney also broke the standing record number of sales with no time limit. The previous record was 370 memberships in 20 years. Haney has sold 540 memberships in eight years.

Among other cities in the contest were Macon, Ga., Orlando, Fla., Pawtucket, R.I., Kansas City, Kan., Oak Cliff, Texas, Hartford, Conn., Macon, Ga., and Wichita, Kan.

referring to the State's natural wealth in oil and gas.

— Politicans and others who have somehow contributed to the energy shortage will suffer "a terrible blacklash." Politicians, in particular, will be "running for cover."

— Former President "Richard Nixon will be vindicated" by "historians yet unborn." Just the facts, she said, will pay homage to Nixon, who resigned from office in the aftermath of the Watergate furor.

Among the facts that will vindicate Nixon will be (1) that no nation "fell behind the Iron Curtain" during his administration, (2) that he visited China in a peace-keeping mission.

— Corporate, business and individual taxes will "be slashed" under the Jimmy Carter administration.

But there a catch:

"What the government will give you in one hand they will take from another," Dixon said.

— "OSHA's (Occupational Safety and Health Act's) wings are going to be clipped."

— Texas Sen. John Tower, "the little giant," will "move to a commanding position in his own party." Tower, a Republican, will win his bid for re-election two years hence. The senior Texas senator will "stand tall in the national spotlight."

— However, Texas's, junior senator, Lloyd Bentsen Jr., will "remain independent of the President." He will not be the giant image that is promised (or, predicted) for Tower.

— U.S. Rep. Jim Wright, a Democrat from Dallas, "will inherit the mantel of Sam Rayburn," the late (1961) speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives. "Jim Wright will stand on the brink of national leadership."

— "I'll have to look up George Mahon to see who he is," she said of the U.S. representative who's chairman of the House's appropriations committes.

— "Lebanon begins its descent into bloodshed."

— The United States and the Soviet Union will get into a "deep and dreadful involvement" in Yugolsavia. That confrontation will be similar to that which launched World War I in the Austrian Empire in 1914.

— Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, who's planning defense-budget cuts, actually will have to recommend increased defense spending. "Those plans (to cut back) will be upset" due, in part, to Russia's strong show of power.

— "Most of Latin America will turn against the United States." Brazil, Argentina and Chile "will form their own alliance" for self-survival.

— "Upheavals in Latin America . . . and (Congressional) outbursts over the Panama Canal," will occur. "It could even bring the President to the brink of disaster" in the wake of "cries of impeachment."

— Haiti will be "in great danger of an invasion from Cuba."

— "Britain and Italy are nearer and nearer to the brink of total collapse." However, a "female Winston Churchill" will come to Great Britain's rescue. ("I know her.") Italy will not be so fortunate.

— Northern Ireland will be blessed with "less violence."

— Many years will pass before "the government of China will be stabilized." "China will secretly develop nuclear weapons."

— President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union will "go to South Africa to lay a foundation for an economic-political disaster for the United States."

The U.S.S.R. will try to control shipping lanes and hoard South African ore. "It will soften our (the U.S.'s) economy, and they (the U.S.S.R.) will walk in without a shout."

— Edward Kennedy's chance for the presidency is nil. "When he was conceived, it was not the Lord's plan to put him in the White House, but I could be wrong."

— Miss Lillian, the President's mother, says her beer-guzzling son Billy Carter "is smarter than the President, but I hope that she is very wrong."

"He (Billy) will entertain us."

— "He (former President Gerald Ford) is not programmed (by the stars) to be president in 1980. I could be wrong, of course."

— "I think the women have the best of two world's" without the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"The Lord programs our lives when we are conceived." And if women will "take care of the men" they marry, then they will "come out on top."

The ERA will pass.

"The women (who) want it, they can have it, but they'll not get my vote.,"

— "I feel we will stumble onto a cure for cancer, the same as we did for polio."

— World Wide peace and the Second Coming of Jesus Christ will take place, "in our lifetime." Divine Intervention is the only answer to World peace."

— "Ronald Reagan has a magnificent future." Reagan, the "biggest power" on the conservative side of politics, was Dixon's choice for president.

— "I'm for the President (Carter) in the White House; I will help him all I can."

— President Carter's pardoning of draft dodgers and evaders will be "one of the biggest tragedies of his presidency, tragedies of his life, tragedies of this country." The blanket pardon will hurt the President's ability to lead this country.

— "If he's lucky enough to be around, he (Carter) could be elected president (again)." Dixon recommended a "triple security" for Carter. His life is endangered, because of his pardoning decree.

— "I believe that there's a sister planet (to the earth) on the opposite side of the sun."

Six receive Silver Beaver Award

Six persons were presented the Silver Beaver Award, the highest award that can be presented by a Boy Scout council, at the 53rd annual recognition banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council Thursday night.

John White and Rudy Wright of Midland, Bill Priebe of Big Spring, the Rev. Phil Baker of Alpine, Marcellet O'Callaghan of Pecos and Bob Bagley of Odessa, were presented the awards for "noteworthy service of exceptional character to boyhood" within the council area.

Master craftsman still learning

Delcour wandered up to the workstand and snugly fitted a silvery metal plate in a vise.

Adroitly, he rapped the chisel with the mallet and produced art. Voila! Meanwhile, a photojournalist was taking, or trying to take, close-up pictures of Delcour chiseling.

The photographer, standing shoeless in a chair and overlooking the working master, focused in on her subject. Something went amiss.

"I'm so flustered at seeing how pretty it is," she said, as if vainly trying to flatter the seasoned master, "(that) I fouled it (the picture-taking) up!"

And only moments earlier, a note-taking newsman had asked the 47-year-old Delcour, who has been engraving firearms since age 16, just how long does it take to master the art and craft of engraving.

"I don't know," Delcour responded. "I'm still learning. They (his students and fellow craftsmen) call me master, but I'm not . . . ."

Modesty.

A plaque at the base of the vise politely tells those watching the master at work:

"Sorry, but I am afraid I can engrave much better than I speak English! So . . . . . be nice! Thank you!"

He speaks the language very well.

In all of Europe, Delcour said, there are only two firearm engraving schools: the one in Belgium and one in Austria. There's none to the west, he said, and some of his students ars from this country.

Just what is the attraction to engravings, however ornate, simas an answer to that.

IRS official admits protesters top list

An Internal Revenue Service official said Thursday persons who vocalize their resistance to the federal income tax are given top priority for investigations.

Jerry Stamps, group manager for the IRS intelligence division in Dallas, testified in a pre-trial hearing before U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle that when there are grounds for criminal action in the case of tax evaders who publicly declare their resistance to income tax laws, prosecution is zealously sought without regard to the dollar amount involved in the case.

The purpose of the hearing was to see if selective prosecution "without cause" was used by the government in the income tax evasion cases of Gordon W. Kahl and William M. Rinehart, both of Odessa. That hearing was expected to continue in federal court here today.

Kahl is charged with failing to file a tax return during 1973 and 1974. At that time he resided in Crane. Rinehart is charged with failing to file a tax return in 1974. Both men are members of the United Tax Action Patriots, a group claiming the federal income tax law is a subversion of American principles.

"As a general rule of thumb," Stamps said in the courtroom, priorities for the prosecution of tax cases by the nine IRS special agents assigned to the West Texas region are determined by both the "flagrancy and size" of the tax law violation.

When asked by Lubbock attorney Lewis Terrell, representing Kahl, what the IRS would do if it learned someone who claimed he had not filed a tax return was urging others to do the same, Stamps said the IRS would "certainly" investigate to see if there was validity in the statement that no taxes were filed."

On further questioning, Stamps said an investigation to lodge criminal charges would begin in all cases where there were grounds and a person had gotten publicity over an anti-income tax stance. For those tax evaders who kept a lower profile, Stamps added, civil procedures were generally used as a means to obtain back taxes first.

"We have to deter people from failure to pay their taxes," Stamps explained.

Stamps said of 64 criminal charges filed in 1975 by the special agents under his command, 13 were for failure to file tax returns. And of those, four were protesters.

"We see some of that sort of thing (tax protesting) in the Dallas area, but most of it is out here."

Odessa attorney Bill Harman is representing Rinehart and U.S. assistant attorney Wayne Speck is prosecuting the case.

3 states call emergencies

utilities in the state limited most large industrial users to maintenance levels. The shutdowns, designed to protect gas supplies for residential users, were expected to cause 250,000 layoffs.

Ohio school Supt. Martin Essex said that more than 400 of the state's 617 school districts will close today until further notice.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey's state of emergency empowered the state Energy Office and the Public Service Commission to take whatever steps necessary to cut down natural gas consumption.

Officials said there was no chance of cutoffs for residences, but they urged homeowners to turn down their thermostats and do everything possible to conserve fuel.
