MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

BY H. N. F.

Richard Spillane is the business editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. More than this he is one of the keenest economists and closest observers connected with the American press. Speaking of business conditions the country over this former adopted son of Texas says: "If America is not on the eve of business betterment you might as well scrap your trade barometers. Slowly but steadily the car loadings have been increasing for the last two months. That certainly indicates an increasing demand for commodities. The prices of the leading two products of the American farm—wheat and cotton—have been advancing with a fair degree of regularity, and the purchasing power of millions of agriculturists has been improved somewhat. Reports from construction industries indicate a decided enlargement in building operations the coming spring and summer, compared with those two seasons of 1921. Money remains cheap. United States Steel common, the largest issue of shares of any corporation in the world, shows an advance from a low of 70½ last summer to 94⅝ last Saturday. Certainly there would not have been such a pronounced appreciation in the market value of such a security if the prospects of large orders and general activity did not warrant purchases of the stock by those best informed. Dun and Bradstreet report a better business outlook. The oil production in the United States shows a pronounced increase. The winter crops and the crops to be planted this spring will be raised at the lowest cost in a decade. The savings banks deposits throughout the Nation remain high, remarkably high, considering the long period of deflation. Unemployment this winter, while high, has not been so great nor so widespread as was generally feared last fall. So much for basic conditions. Now for the indications for this spring and summer. Merchants and manufacturers have a pretty fair sense of the market to which they must address themselves for the sale of their goods. They give expression to this sense in the field of advertising. When they feel the demand for goods lessening, they curtail their advertising budget. When they feel it broadening, they increase their advertising appropriation and go after the business they feel reasonably sure is to be obtained. Advertising, therefore, is a fair barometer of general business. An issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, soon to come from the presses, will have the largest amount of advertising in volume of money ever contained in a periodical publication in America, if not in the world. The advertising in that one number will represent more than one million dollars. The size of the Saturday Evening Post during the spring months will average 140 pages an issue, as against an average of 120 pages for the same months last year. This increase will be due to advertising. The Curtis Publishing company people report a steady, healthy growth in advertising demand. Reports from other national publications are not at hand, but there is no reason to believe their experience has not been similar to that of the Curtis people. The foregoing figures should be deeply impressive. Men of business do not pay thousands of dollars for pages in publications because of love or affection or ad-

MIDDLE WEST FARMERS ARE HARDEST HIT

Roger W. Babson Tells the Reader of Conditions in the Farming Sections of the Middle West.

Iowa the Most Depressed and Minnesota the Best-Off; Growers of Northwest Not Complaining.

(Authentic statement by ROGER W. BABSON to be quoted only by Wichita Falls Record News.)

WELLESLEY HILL, Mass., Mar. 4.—Continuing his personal survey of business conditions throughout the country, Roger W. Babson, economist, furnishes the following exclusive statement to the Wichita Falls Record News on conditions in the farming sections of the middle west.

ROGER BABSON

"There is no use disguising the fact that conditions are pretty bad out here. The expected fall rise in business was apparent in all sections of the country except in these western states bordered by the Mississippi on the east and the Rocky Mountains on the west. Throughout 1920, the farmers tended to hold their crops pending higher prices but, as statistics clearly indicated would be the case, prices declined throughout the year. Hence farmers reached the end of the year with pressing obligations and no funds. All classes of farmers were hit but I find those depending primarily upon corn are the worse off. Of all the states in this belt, I find Iowa most depressed and Minnesota the best off.

"Those engaged in stock-raising or more properly speaking in the feeding of stock—have the greatest monetary loss. Many a farmer I have met, who a year ago purchased stock, has been feeding it twelve months and cannot today get for his cattle what he paid a year ago. Others have cattle which they purchased eighteen months or two years ago and these of course are in a much worse fix. The same applies to sheep and hogs. Hence the banks in the cattle and sheep sections are in a weak condition, although I believe 95 per cent of them will come through all right.

"I find a great interest in this section for heavy protective tariffs, especially on wool, hides and other products entering into industry. The farmers are panic stricken, grasping at straws here and there for temporary help. They are the real Bolshevists today and are actually favoring some of the uneconomic doctrines that Russia has already tried and found to be useless. Only greater efficiency and wider markets will help the farmer in the long run. Higher tariffs tend only to reduce efficiency and narrow our markets. Besides, the farmer will never get a tariff on his raw materials without giving the manufacturers a tariff on manufactured products and the double-tariff will so increase the cost of living that no one will be better off.

"Generally speaking, the wheat growers of the northwest are not complaining like the corn and cotton growers. Minneapolis I find to be the most optimistic city of the western states. The banks of Minneapolis and St. Paul, seemed to be in good condition and the stores of these cities are doing a fair business. Perhaps it may be said that Minnesota has turned the corner; but this is not true of any other state in this belt—1922 is destined to be a bad year for this section.

"This means that the western states will buy very little during 1922, even although they bought almost nothing during 1921. The purchasing power of the farmer has been cut from 50 per cent to 75 per cent. Moreover, his hope rests not in higher prices but in reducing his operating expenses. Manufacturers and merchants desiring to dispose of goods in these states during 1922, must feature "smashing price reductions." Farmers will not be attracted by the equality of the goods. Price will be the only consideration. Labor-saving devices and other necessities may be sold but very few pianos, phonographs or luxuries of any kind will be shipped into these states during the current year.

"Statistics have strongly indicated that even during average years very few farmers have made money operating their farms. I mean that if farmers were obliged to keep books the same as manufacturers and charge up wages for themselves and families and interest on their investment, most farms would show a loss on average years. The farmer has really made his money through the natural increase in the value of his land. The farmer is technically a great speculator. He speculates not only in his products but in his real estate holdings. There are far more speculators in Nebraska than in New York.

"Farmers complain about the watered stock of the industrial corporations of the east, but there is far more water in their farms than in the average industrial corporation of New England, New York or Pennsylvania. However, there won't be much speculating in farm lands during 1922. The tendency will be constantly downward. Farm land prices are bound to go through a period of readjustment and the lands of these western states will suffer the most. The greatest decline will come in farms which are rented. The real farmer who both owns and operates has

HARVEY CHURCH PAYS PENALTY FOR MURDERS

Slayer of Two Automobile Salesmen Executed at Chicago; in a Comatose State to the End.

Case of Interest Locally, One of Church's Victims Having Formerly Served at Call Field.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—In the same state of apparent coma, in which he lay during a 45-day hunger strike, Harvey W. Church, who killed two automobile salesmen to obtain possession of an automobile, was hanged in the Cook county jail today. He was carried to the gallows in a chair, in which he remained seated when the trap was sprung.

Almost until the moment of the execution, attorneys were fighting to procure a stay. Nine minutes before Church was hanged, Judge Kickham Scanlan, denied a sta.. Four minutes before Judge Joseph David took similar action. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in superior court less than ten minutes before. The last minute efforts to save Church's life were made on humanitarian grounds and on the contention that Church was not present in court during a sanity hearing.

Earlier in the day Church was visited in the death cell by his parents, and sister and spoke their names, the first words to pass his lips since he started the hunger strike. He made no statement. Photographs of the hanging were made for the first time in Cook county's history.

This execution ends a case that has been watched with more than ordinary interest by a number of Wichitans, since of the his victims, Carl Ausmus, was at one time stationed at Call Field.

LEWIS SCORES NEW PROPOSAL OF OPERATORS

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 3.—The proposal of the Illinois operators for separate negotiations with the miners was declared by Mr. Lewis to be an "inherently selfish policy," which he asserted was "economically unsound, and contains no elements of consideration for public welfare."

Mr. Lewis' message was sent to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, after the Illinois leader had announced at Springfield that the district executive board had refused to act independently of the international union in negotiation wage agreements and that he had wired President Lewis for instructions.

The message to Mr. Farrington was sent by Mr. Lewis after the adjournment of the latter's conference with district union officials representing Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Wyoming, at which the unions' policy as effecting the southwestern coal producing states was discussed.

No announcement of any decision affecting the southwest was made except that a statement that the union officials would confer informally with the representatives of the Southwestern Coal Operators association on March 9, probably at Kansas City. The policy, however, as laid down by the message to the Illinois miners, was regarded later as indicating that no agreement may be expected for the southwestern field.

STRIKE FORCES IN MEXICO CITY HOLDING FIRM

MEXICO CITY, March 3.—A day of conferences failed to bring about an agreement between the striking employes of the Mexican light and power company and the company's officials. Sympathy with the electricians has been voiced by the bakers and the city will be placed on bread rations tomorrow.

This afternoon announcement was made that the main power plant, at Necaxa had been rendered impotent by the strikers, but the city throughout the day was supplied with power from auxiliary plants.

FOUR "ORALIZERS" OF NEW ORLEANS TRACK CONVICTED

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Thomas J. Shaw, Harry Gardner, Remy Dorr and Mark Bousburg, identified also in sporting circles as "Jack Sheehan," well known "Oralizers" who operated at the fair grounds racing meet just closed, were convicted by a jury in criminal court of having violated the Locke anti-gambling law and were sentenced to seven months imprisonment and fined $300 each.

The defendants filed a motion for an appeal to the supreme court and March 20 was set for argument on the appeal motion. The cases against the four men were filed a year ago.

THIRTEEN ARE KILLED WHEN TRAIN CRASHES INTO LARGE AUTO BUS

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 3.—Thirteen persons were killed and approximately a dozen injured, four perhaps fatally, late tonight when New York Central express train number 600, eastbond, crashed into a bus at the St. Clair street crossing in Painesville. Only five of the dead were identified at a late hour. All are believed to have been residents of Painesville and Fairport, between which cities the bus operated.

Dead and dying were hurled along the railroad right of way for several hundred feet. Bodies of three of the victims were found lodged on the locomotive pilot when the train was brought from a sixty mile an hour pace to a halt 400 yards from the scene of the collision.

Eleven of the dead were taken to morgues at Painesville and it is understood two bodies were taken to Fairport. Five are women.

Just how the crash occurred was still undetermined late tonight, Joe Adams, the driver of the bus, being unconscious in a Painesville hospital. Physicians say he probably will die.

Others in the hospital not expected to recover are:

George W. McGhee, oil man of Medinah; Nick Meno and Mrs. Martin Steinback, Ray Hamilton, also seriously injured, probably will survive.

Frank Frenandez of Buffalo, the engineer, saw the machine on the tracks a second before his locomotive met it, but too late to check his speed. Air brakes instantly applied were unable to halt the train until it had passed the New York Central depot at State street and reached the Elm street crossing—three blocks from St. Clair. G. Ernest was the conductor.

LLOYD GEORGE NOT TO RESIGN, IS ANNOUNCED

Threat of Resignation Declared to Have Been Withdrawn at Request of Unionist Ministers.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, March 3.—Premier Lloyd George's threat to resign has been suspended at the urgent solicitation of his unionist colleagues in the cabinet, according to an authoritative statement tonight, but no justification for its withdrawal is said to exist as yet.

Official denial is made that any exact time limit has been fixed or receiving assurances of loyalty to the premier from the adherents of Sir George Younger, the unionist leader, although it is added that obviously the tension cannot be extended indefinitely.

Meanwhile there is no indication of any move on the part of the unionist party to dethrone Younger as its head. No meeting of the whole unionist party had been called and the general opinion is that the only happening will be that the unionist ministers in the cabinet—Arthur J. Balfour and Austen Chamberlain, may publicly reprove Younger for his tactics, as Lord Birkenhead already has done.

Speaking at Oxford today, Austen Chamberlain announced that the unionist ministers had unanimously requested the premier to continue as head of the government.

DENY EXTRADITION FOR MAN WANTED ON 'BLUE SKY' CHARGES

By Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 3.—Governor Parker today refused to honor a requisition of the governor of South Carolina for the return of J. H. Covington of Shreveport, prominent oil man on charges of violating the blue sky laws. The charges resulted from the sale of $3,500 of oil stock to S. M. Byers and W. J. King of Anderson, S. C., and Mr. Covington in an affidavit declared Byers and King brought the charges after he had refused to buy back the stock at a "tremendous profit."

Mr. Covington is well known in oil circles.

FIUME PALACE FALLS IN HANDS OF INSURGENTS

By Associated Press.

ROME, March 3.—Fascisti, headed by Deputy Giunta, today attacked the government palace in Fiume. They fired twenty cannon shots into the building whereupon those besieged in the palace hoisted the flag of surrender. They offered to give themselves into the hands of the Italian authorities, but Giunta declined the offer and gave them three minutes in which to surrender unconditionally. President Zanella was then obliged to yield.

Later Zanella issued the following declaration:

"As a result of today's events, which have compelled me to surrender to the revolutionary forces, I have transferred my forces to the national citizens committee of defense which stirred up this movement."

"NO MISSING LINK," SAYS SAVANT HITTING DARWIN

LONDON, March 3.—This is bad news for the circus and sideshow men. Dr. A. T. Schofield, a British scientist, declares that there is no such thing as a "missing link."

Speaking of the Motor Car and Of the Third Annual Auto Show

Not many years ago Colonel E. H. R. Green, son of the famous Hetty Green who died leaving behind her an estate having a value of 80 million dollars, purchased the first automobile ever driven or shown in Texas. It was shipped as freight from the factory to Terrell, Kaufman county, and then the colonel and his chauffeur drove the car to Dallas.

It was an innovation. It frightened all the live stock on the thirty-mile drive and all the farmers and their families turned out to welcome the colonel and his luxurious carriage. Now there are 10,000,000 motor cars in America, there are millions of trucks in America, there are thousands of tractors in America.

Now the auto is one of the ten leading industries of America and is rapidly climbing to where the topnotchers are found. There are automobile shows in the leading cities of America that are models of their kind, speaking of expositions.

Millions of dollars represent the investment in the exhibits at some of these shows and thousands of people visit them wherever they are given every year. They are social as well as business events.

Texans are strong for the pleasure car and the truck. Texans by their purchases have placed their state sixth in the list. That is, there are only five states which lead Texas in the number of cars registered.

Wichita Falls has made a proud showing. Her people have placed the city that faith built fifth in the list of Texas cities as to the number of cars owned and registered. A growing industry in this section is the automobile industry and its accessories.

Wichita Falls has an Automotive Dealers' Association. Its members are builders, they represent the forward-moving men of the city. They have arranged a big auto show and it will be inaugurated today.

This show will close Wednesday night. There is an interesting musical program. All the models of the year are shown. There are exhibitors and salesmen to tell the people all the latest in cars and improvements.

This show should appeal to all the people, not alone of Wichita Falls, but of the surrounding country. There is a vast trade territory to be covered. Why shouldn't Wichita Falls dealers cover it?

Unless all the predictions or prophecies made by leading men and leading journals of the trade are at fault, there is to be a large volume of business this year, and the greatest prosperity will come to those who go out and get the trade.

This is opening day with Herman A. Dodson, general manager; F. D. Kelm, show manager; Charles W. Nolen space manager; Jack Spiegle, manager of accessories; Lloyd Weaver, entertainment; C. C. Randle, publicity; A. L. Weissenborn, lights, and Frank Quiesser, chairman of the decorating committee. It is your show. It is our show. "Let's go."

OKLAHOMA OIL MAN HAS FIGHT WITH GOVERNOR

Fist Fight Comes as Climax to Governor Robertson's Visit to Okmulgee County Friday.

Executive Demanded Hearing Before Grand Jury Investigating Failure of Okmulgee Bank.

By Associated Press.

OKMULGEE, Okla., March 3.—A fist fight in the courthouse between Governor J. B. A. Robertson and James Lyons, local oil operator, came as a climax to the Oklahoma executive's visit here today to demand a hearing before the Okmulgee county district court grand jury, which is investigating the failure of the Okmulgee Bank of Commerce, and transactions of Governor Robertson and other state officials.

The clash came when Lyons, with an oath, refused to shake hands with Governor Robertson as the governor was being introduced about the courthouse.

Governor Robertson replied by smashing out with his right fist, declaring he couldn't be "bluffed physically, legally or any other way."

The blow, however, was intercepted by State Senator G. R. Horner, a by-stander. A moment later and the two men were in physical combat. A half dozen blows were struck, without injury to either participant before they were separated.

The governor came to Okmulgee early today from Oklahoma City to present a letter to James H. Hepburn county attorney, reiterating his demand to testify before the grand jury which is investigating the failure of the Bank of Commerce of Okmulgee, with which the names of the governor and other state officials have been linked. The county attorney, at a lengthy conference with the executive, stood firm on his previous announcement not to permit him to testify, but had the letter delivered to the foreman of the jury. It was following this conference, said to have been friendly, except for a few hot words at first, that the encounter occurred.

W. H. Crume, who was introducing the governor, made this statement about the affair:

"Mr. Lyons was the first man I turned to in the crowd and I did not want to pass him without asking him to meet the governor. I did not know his frame of mind. It was an unfortunate affair."

Mr. Lyons issued this statement: "I have utter disrespect for Governor Robertson as governor of the State of Oklahoma and supreme contempt for him as a man. The encounter this morning was the result of my being asked to shake hands with a man whom I feel toward as stated above."

Attorney General George H. Short, who is in Okmulgee in connection with the work of re-organizing the Bank of Commerce, conferred with the governor this afternoon and told him Mr. Lyons' action did not express the sentiment of the people of Okmulgee city and county. Several citizens who were present at the time voiced approval of this statement.

The governor had not received an answer from the grand jury late today, to his letter and was making preparations to return to Oklahoma City tonight or Saturday morning.

Governor Robertson tonight termed the conduct of Lyons "a personal insult" which he said he looked upon as the act of a "hot headed fool, not expressing the sentiment of his community."

The governor, having failed in his effort to be called before the grand jury, will leave early tomorrow morning for Oklahoma City, Joe O'Brien, his secretary, said tonight.

"We came over here for the purpose of giving the grand jury a chance to call the governor to testify," said O'Brien. "Our duty has been performed."

By Associated Press.

HARDING'S PLAN FOR MERCHANT FLEET PRAISED

Chairman Lasker of Shipping Board and Admiral Benson Approve Proposed Shipping Measure.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Support of President Harding's plan for an American merchant marine was voiced by shipping leaders, Chairman Lasker and Rear Admiral William S. Benson, retired, former chairman of the shipping board, at the opening session of the annual convention of the National Merchant Marine association.

Admiral Benson told the several hundred delegates there were evils which were preventing the proper development of the shipping industry and that the fact must be faced that a certain portion "of our shipping is tainted with foreign interests." He added, that allowance should be made, however, for foreign interests in American shipping, because these foreign interests came to the support of American shipping when "support was actually and badly needed." Mr. Lasker declared that without a well balanced and adequate merchant marine the country could not be properly developed.

P. A. S. Franklin, of the International Mercantile Marine corporation and W. A. Harriman, of the American Ship and Commerce corporation, endorsed Mr. Lasker's view.

Mr. Franklin said that the proposed shipping bill was the best that has been before congress in the 30 years he has been identified with shipping interests.

HOWAT-DORCHY SEEK TO HAVE BONDS LIFTED

By Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 3.—Alexander Howat and August Dorchy, deposed officers of the Kansas miners union, today filed a petition in the Kansas Supreme court, asking relief from bonds of $2,000 each, which were imposed to prevent them from calling strikes. In the petition the men stated they had been expelled from office and were without power to call strikes. This, according to friends of the International union, is an admission of defeat at the hands of the National organization.

"Since their conviction and sentence and the imposition of the bonds" the petition states, "they have been expelled from office in the union and membership, and are divested of all power incidental to their positions or to the positions as members, and are wholly without power to call strikes."

The two men ask the release of securities on the bond and from the obligation from the bond, imposed by the Cherokee county district court.

The petition does not affect the sentence of Howat and Dorchy to the Cherokee county jail.

REVISED BONUS PLAN APPROVED BY G. O. P. GROUP

Unanimous Agreement Is Reached on Compromise Bill by Republican Members of Committee.

New Measure Is Expected to Be Ready for Consideration of Full Membership Tuesday.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Unanimous agreement on a compromise soldiers' bonus bill along the general lines outlined officially yesterday, was reached today by house ways and means committee republicans who believed they had found a solution of the problem which has been giving administration and congressional leaders concern for several weeks. The revised measure, however, still has a long road to travel before it reaches the statute books.

As now drawn, the bill provides for cash payments only to those men whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50 and these four optional features:

Adjusted service certificates with an added loan provision which would enable the men to obtain immediately from banks a sum equal to 50 per cent of the adjusted service pay; vocational training, home and farm aid and land settlement.

In working out details of the certificate loan provision, which was suggested originally by Representative Bowers, republican, West Virginia, the majority committeemen reduced the face value of the certificate, which would be the amount of the adjusted service pay plus 25 per cent, plus interest at 4½ per cent, compound annually, instead of the service pay, plus 40 per cent, plus the interest as originally proposed. It was thought this would result in a saving to the government up to a possible maximum of half a billion dollars.

Banks in making loans on the certificates could not charge an interest rate in excess of 2 per cent above the rediscount rate charged by the regional federal reserve bank on 90 day paper in the district where the loan was made and, they could not make the loans for a period in excess of three years from the date of the certificates which would not be rediscounted by federal reserve banks.

If the loans had not been paid on September 30, 1925, the banks could make demand on the government for the money due. The government, it was stated, then would cash the certificates, pay the bank and turn the remainder over to the service man. The cash surrender value of the certificate on that date would be 85 per cent of the adjusted service pay plus interest at 4½ per cent compound annually from the date of the certificate. This also would be the loan value for federal advances as of that date.

A few details of the revised plan still remain to be worked out by the majority committeemen, it was said today, but the expectation is that the new bill will be ready for consideration by the entire ways and means committee on next Tuesday. The democrats on the committee would have then their first opportunity to study and pass on the new plan.

SEVEN HOUSES ADDED TO LONG LIST FAILURES

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Unrest among stock investors today swept down to failure four more brokerage houses in New York two in Philadelphia and one in Toronto.

The most striking failure of the day was that of George W. Kendrick and company of Philadelphia, which anuounced it had suspended operations because of lack of working capital, and would turn its affairs over to a creditors committee.

The Kendrick house was the third member of the New York stock exchange to close its doors since the series of brokerage failures began last October. Other stock exchange houses which have gone to the wall are W. Wagner and Company and Crawford, Patten and Cannon.

The other failures—48 in number, including today's casualties—were members of the consolidated exchange, the New York curb exchange and 'outside' houses without exchange connections.

REPORT MEXICO AND ARGENTINA TRADE BETTER

No Change Apparent in Business Outlook in Brazil and Chile, According to Federal Report.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Improvement of the economic situation in Argentina and Mexico, but no change in the business outlook in Brazil and Chile, were indicated in reports to the department of commerce made public today.

Commercial Attache Feely, cabling conditions in the Argentine, said that with increasing exports and restricted imports, rising prices for raw products with an outlook for a further increase coupled with lower prices for staples and specialties than were current a month ago, the economic condition of the country has greatly improved.

In Mexico conditions have slightly improved over last month, Assistant Trade Commissioner Connell reported from Mexico City, notwithstanding complication of the situation by the "recent defections of small military groups and the appearance of bands of guerillas in various parts of the country."

The improvement during December reported in Chile remained stationary during January and February, according to a cable from Commercial Attache McQueen.

RULES FRAMED FOR RAILROAD TELEGRAPHERS

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—A code of 22 rules governing hours and working conditions of telegraph and telephone operators on the country's railways was promulgated by the United States railroad labor board tonight.

The rules, which virtually constitute a national agreement, will replace previous fragmentary agreements, and form the first complete set of rules drawn up primarily by the board. They become effective on March 16.

Wiping out the practice of time and one-half pay for all overtime after eight hours, the board ordered only straight time for the first nine hours' work, with time and one-half thereafter and permitted institution for split tricks, with eight hours' work over a spread of 12 hours. Previously only agents operating telephones and receiving less than $60 a month were on spit trick basis.

As a result of the board's decision, many small stations of the country's 24,000 railway points are expected to be re-opened.

Eight hours is specified as a day's work in principle with Sunday and holidays to be paid for at the usual pro rata rate, except that a minimum of two hours' pay at time and one-half will be given for workers on other days. When called for work not continuous with their regular tricks, the telegraphers will receive three hours' pay for two hours' work or less and time and one-half for two hours.

A number of subjects, including promotion, discipline, vacations, emergency calls and transfer were remanded to the roads and their employes for further negotiations.

Release All Suspects in Store Robbery

A number of suspects booked earlier by the police for investigation in connection with the robbery of the Colonna Toggery Shop last week were released yesterday. Each was able to give a satisfactory account of his movements on the night of the robbery. The police have not yet abandoned the case, however, and are now working on a Fort Worth "end" that may prove of value in locating part of the stolen goods, at least.

Harding Would Not Interrupt The Reporters

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Harding, having been a reporter once himself, and knowing how it is, stopped the wheels of government business five minutes today and "held the phone," so he wouldn't interrupt a score of newspaper men who were getting a story from Acting Secretary Fletcher of the state department.

It happened this way, much to the amazement of other officials who usually reverse the process and let the reporters wait.

President Harding called up Mr. Fletcher, but learned that the latter was talking to the reporters. When Mr. Fletcher heard that the president had telephoned, he hastily concluded the subject under discussion and went to call up the president whom he found still holding the line.

The clerk showed the president of the United States had waited five minutes so he wouldn't interrupt the reporters in their daily work.

WOMAN PROMISED TO GO ANYWHERE EXCEPT TO TEXAS

NEW YORK, March 3.—Rev. Thomas A. Goode has lost the $118,000 damage suit in which he charged that the Pillar of Fire church in Brooklyn and Bishop Alma White had broken up his family, according to word received today by Reverend Bradford Clark, the pastor, from Denver, Colorado, where the case was tried.

The message said Judge Morley directed and obtained a verdict in favor of the defendant on the ground that the plaintiff failed to sustain any of his allegations.

Reverend Goode maintained that the church had instilled superstitious fear and certain doctrines into his wife's mind, so that she and their children were separated from him after he left the church. She would not go to Texas with him, he alleged, fearing that she might have to face temptations there that would ruin her life. She offered to accompany him anywhere in the world except Texas, it was brought out.

MIDDLE WEST FARMERS ARE HARDEST HIT

nothing to fear from a temporary decline in values. Like the seasoned manufacturers who have weathered many depressions, by not expanding during the preceding periods of prosperity, the honest dirt farmer has nothing to fear.

"What is the hope for this section is the question which everybody asks. The answer is that old and familiar one "diversified farming." Once in a while I find a prosperous farmer even during this trip. Upon inquiry I learn that he almost always is a general all around farmer and does not rely upon any one or two drops. One farmer in particular who seemed happy had raised a large amount of potatoes, while another was specializing in cabbage, cauliflower and other market garden products. The dairy farmers are also in a fairly good condition. Unlike the raiser of grains they have a constant income from week to week and can adjust their operating expenses to the price which they receive from their products.

"The most optimistic sign is the interest which farmers are showing in the co-operative movement. Recent legislation passed by congress permitting farmers to unite for purchasing and selling will—until abused—be very beneficial, to this section. Of course there is nothing wrong in combining whether it be by manufacturers, merchants, farmers, or wage-workers provided the privilege is not abused. The difficulty with the present legislation is not that the farmers are being permitted to combine, but that the law does not give the same privilege to all interests with a heavy fine for its abuse.

"Naturally the cities in these western states are not showing up very well. Sioux City, Iowa (72,000 population) is only 60 per cent of normal. Wichita, Kansas, with the same population is 85 per cent normal. Duluth, Minnesota (100,000 population), Davenport, Iowa (57,000 population), Omaha, Nebraska (100,000 population), and Peoria, Illinois, (77,000 population) are running from 75 to 85 per cent of normal. The best city is Minneapolis, Minnesota, 95 per cent of normal, followed closely by St. Louis which is 90 per cent of normal. Kansas City, Missouri and Omaha, Nebraska, are running about 85 per cent.

"From these figures it is evident that it is the west which is causing the low average figures on the Babsonchart."

The Index of the Babsonchart, shows no change from last week. The recent improvement seems to be holding very well with general activity at 18 per cent below normal. Increased building activity may be expected as the season progresses.

WHAT MADE "WILD" CALF WILD IS UNDETERMINED

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, March 3.—A "wild" calf, at times pursued by police rangers and a crowd of persons, and at other times the pursuer, terrorized a residence section today. The calf bolted up the stairs of a fashionable apartment, into several places of business and finally was shot. Emerging from one business place the animal carried the door sash with her. Just what made her "wild" has not been determined.

DOGS DISCLOSE THE MURDER OF YOUNG WOMAN

By Associated Press.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., March 3.—Barking dogs today disclosed the murder of a young woman whose body, the neck hacked with a penknife, was found at the deserted end of Jones Avenue, near John D. Rockefeller's estate at Pocantico Hills.

Mrs. Joseph Taylor, annoyed by the persistent barking of the dogs, looked through a pair of opera glasses, saw the body and notified the police.

The condition of the road indicated that the woman had been slain after a struggle. Mrs. Patrick Turner, who lives a few hundred feet from the scene told the police she had observed an automobile headed toward the end of the street about 10 o'clock last night. A short time later, she heard muffled wails and later noted that the automobile had retraced its route.

The body, which had not been identified tonight, was that of a woman of about 35, probably of Italian extraction, Coroner Fitzgerald said.

WORK ON FAIR STARTS AGAIN NEXT TUESDAY

Campaign for Capital Stock, Halted by Snow and Sleet, Discussed at Business Council Meeting.

Fair Prospects Enthusiastically Discussed by W. F. Weeks and Several Members of Body.

Work on securing subscriptions toward the $200,000 capital stock of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair, halted after some progress had been made, by the blizzard which visited this section early in the week, will take a new start Tuesday and will continue until the project has been definitely capitalized, W. F. Weeks, head of the Chamber of Commerce fair committee told members of the business council, Chamber of Commerce, at their Friday luncheon.

Following Mr. Weeks talk several additions to the teas engaged in the campaign were obtained from volunteers at the meeting, and several of those present expressed themselves as wholeheartedly in favor of the project being put over now and as convinced in its great value to Wichita Falls.

Bean Enthusiastic

Bert Bean expressed himself as feeling that the vacant land, without the buildings included in the deal for the fair grounds, which are being obtained on exceptionally favorable terms, was worth far more than the purchase price, and as feeling that the fair was the greatest civic undertaking in the history of Wichita Falls, next to the irrigation project, to which it has a close connection.

"In building this irrigation project, without a fair, we would be like a manufacturer who makes an A-1 article but does not advertise—does not let the people know what he has got," Mr. Bean declared. Others expressing their belief in the fair and their willingness to contribute were A. H. Britain, J. J. Perkins, Dr. M. M. Walker, Frank Timberlake and B. F. Johnson. Mr. Timberlake spoke particularly of the benefit of the fair to business men, and Dr. Walker pledged his work in the canvassing of members of his profession.

Discusses Several Angles.

After explaining the fair plan to the members of the council, Mr. Weeks discussed its advantages to the subscribers from several angles—from an investment angle, as represented by the value of the property and the improvements which will be erected thereon, and as a means of building Wichita Falls and the industries in the surrounding community, and as a means of providing some work for local workmen who are now idle—a benefit which will be felt not only by the workmen but right on to the business men who make the fair possible.

The location of Wichita Falls and of the plant to be secured for the fair, he reminded them, had been pronounced as ideal by experts who have had experience in fairs all over the country.

In talking of the building value of such an institution, Mr. Weeks called attention to the value to Dallas and Fort Worth of their respective fairs, and expressed himself as believing that as good a fair as herein believing that as good a fair as either, the latter in quite a short time, would be built in Wichita Falls. The interest created throughout the district, where the institution will serve as an aid to each of the county and smaller district fairs, was pointed out by the speaker.

Exceptional Opportunity.

The exceptional opportunity offered by acquisition of the Call Field site, with buildings, water, electric lights, sewerage, trackage and street car service which could not be installed for many times the capital of the fair, was pointed out.

Regret that weather conditions had interfered with the carrying out of the campaign as originally planned, and belief that the project was to be launched in the spirit which had characterized the people of Wichita Falls who have never been idle, but always engaged in some civic building project, was expressed by Mr. Weeks.

Announcement that the shippers guide, compiled at the direction of the trade extension bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, and setting forth the advantages of Wichita Falls wholesalers and jobbers in the matter of freight rates over jobbers at Fort Worth, Dallas and other places to places in this territory was made by Hubert Harrison, general manager, in the course of several minor announcements.

AN OPEN LETTER

Wichita Falls, March 3, 1922.
To Commissioners' Court, Wichita County; W. W. Murphy, County Auditor; J. M. Isbell, County Engineer:

This open letter is given to the papers of Wichita Falls, so that the tax payers, if they are able to do so, can advise us why you are not buying sand from the Western Sand & Gravel Co. We have made you an offer to sell you sand just as good as any that you are using, and far better than a great deal that you are using, for 10c per ton less than you are now paying, or that much less than you can purchase it for from anyone else.

Our sand has been tested as to quality by the best consulting engineer in the city and has also been tested by the laboratory at the University of Texas at Austin and they have advised us that our product is a most excellent concrete sand.

The tax payers of Wichita county are entitled to the knowledge that you are now paying 10c per ton more for sand than it is necessary for you to pay. They are also entitled to the knowledge that you are purchasing your sand from people near Denison and Alvord while you could purchase the same grade of sand at a lower price from the Western Sand & Gravel company, whose officers, directors and stockholders are tax payers of Wichita county and are entitled to the business on equal basis. The company, to secure this business, has offered to sell you this product at a saving of approximately $1,000.00 per month at the rate you are now buying. Still you fail and refuse to buy anything from us. Is Wichita county so rich that it can afford to send its money to distant parts of the state where it will never be returned? Did you ever stop to reflect what an immense amount of roads could be dragged, chuck holes filled up and needed culverts built with $1,000.00 per month? Do the farmers of Wichita county feel that the dirt roads leading to their farms could not be improved with $1,000.00 per month?

We also want the tax payers to know that we have talked to the county judge, the county commissioners and county engineer, Mr. Isbell and have offered to submit to any reasonable unprejudiced test as to the quality of our products but that you do not wish to submit to anything except Mr. Isbell's opinion as to the quality of our products. We also want the tax payers to know that at one time you did enter on your records an order to buy at least two cars of sand per day from us, but that you turned down every car that we shipped you in spite of the fact that even a man who made no pretense of knowing anything about quality of concrete sand could very readily see that our material was far superior in quality to a large portion of that which you are using every day. We also want them to know that the very sand you turned down was sent to the laboratory of the University of Texas at Austin to be tested and they reported that "We consider this an excellent sand which should make first class concrete." The State Highway Engineer pronounces the sand satisfactory for concrete. The samples sent were not taken by us, but by a man selected by Mr. Isbell after he (Mr. Isbell) had turned the car down.

We want the tax payers of this county to know that all the Western Sand & Gravel company is asking for is a square deal and that, in the opinion of the officers and directors of this company, we have not had it up to date.

If you wish to answer this letter through the press so that your constituents will know your side of this controversy, we shall be glad to have you do so, after which we shall publish in the press our correspondence with you and also various other information that we have in our files regarding the materials that you have been using on the roads in Wichita county.

We have tried to handle this matter without any unpleasant publicity but we feel that now patience has ceased to be a virtue and the people of Wichita county are entitled to knowledge of the facts we have in our possession and which we are going to give them from time to time.

THREE ENTER CITY COUNCIL RACE FRIDAY

Nominating petitions for three candidates for the city council were in circulation here Friday, those of Burton Stayton, for the public utilities assignment, and of Nat L. Inge and D. M. Perkins for place as street commissioner. The petition of Mr. Perkins was filed with the city clerk Friday, and it is expected that petitions of other candidates will be filed today, the last day.

Mr. Stayton is a member of the firm of Freear Furniture company, and one of the best known of the younger business men here. He is president of the Retail Merchants association, and is chairman of the business council, Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Inge, whose formal announcement was made yesterday, is a former railroad man and is now engaged in the real estate business.

D. M. (Dunc) Perkins is one of the principal officers in Cravens & Co., insurance. He has been a resident here practically since the close of the Spanish-American war, in which he saw service, as he did as a captain of the 144th infantry in the world war. His petition was filed by members of the company he commanded overseas, it was understood Friday.

SENTENCE IS PASSED UPON FOUR FRIDAY

Three Will Appeal on Briefs Attacking Legality of Recent Grand Jury; Gee Alleges Misconduct.

Sentences varying from two to eight years were imposed on four men by Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district court, acting judge of the 30th district court Friday afternoon.

S. M. Gee was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary for robbery with firearms; Hunter Russell, to two years in the state penitentiary for forgery; W. M. Saulter, five years in the penitentiary for forgery; Bill Millburn, two years in the penitentiary for theft.

The sentences in the case of the first three men after Judge Napier had overruled motions for new trials. All three cases will go to the appeal court alleging that the three men were not properly indicted based on the contention that the grand jury was not legally empaneled. The motions are the same as those which have been presented in other cases and overruled in the local district court.

In addition to the above misconduct of the jury is alleged in the Gee case. S. L. Conn, a member of the jury in the cases testified that they agreed on the sentence by adding all the years together, suggested by each juror, and dividing by twelve, one of the jurors then moving that the result be the sentence assessed. Another juror testified that something was said in the juror discussion regarding the fact that the defendant Gee did not take the stand in his own defense.

Bill Millburn, who plead guilty two weeks ago to a charge of felony theft was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and made no appeal. All men sentenced have been convicted by juries during the last two weeks.

WOMAN ARRESTED FOR DALLAS OFFICERS

Said by officers to be wanted in Dallas on a swindling charge Mrs. H. Harper was arrested Friday night at her room in a local hotel by City Detectives Glenn and Belcher. The request for her arrest was made by the chief of detectives of the Dallas police department.

According to the information obtained by local officers Mrs. Harper was connected with an alleged swindle. She is being held at the city jail pending the arrival of Dallas officers today.

POLICE ARREST TWO ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Will Honsker was arrested by City Detective Belcher Friday night and lodged in the county jail. According to the arresting officer, Honaker, when arrested in a down town shine parlor had liquor in his possession.

Jim Barnes was arrested Friday night by Patrolman Hoskin. According to the officer he had a half gallon of liquor in his possession. Both men will be turned over to federal officers this morning.

HARDING TAKES PART IN ARMY STRENGTH TALK

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Harding took a hand in the army strength discussion today, summoning members of the house army appropriations sub-committee into conference after a talk with General Pershing.

The sub-committee yesterday agreed tentatively, to cut the army enlisted strength for the next year from the authorized 150,000 to 115,000. After a White House conference it was disclosed that an administration policy for a force of not less than 130,000 had been formulated and expressed. The present actual strength is about 137,000.

General Pershing would not discuss the nature of his talk with the president, but when the summons to Chairman Anthony and his associates followed, there was no effort to conceal that General Pershing had felt it necessary to appeal to the president against the cut in the army the committee had in mind.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

miration for the publisher, but because they feel—in fact, they know—they are making a sound investment, an investment certain to bring adequate return in principal and profits. This increase in advertising means a change in outlook, a change from doubt to confidence. Foreign trade lags, but domestic trade is on its way back. Facts are indisputable. The facts are in the foregoing. They will become more and more manifest as the months roll by." Richard Spillane writes his own convictions. As the associate editor of Theodore H. Price's Commerce and Finance he won a reputation almost international as a writer on men and business. He states facts. He never colors his articles. His paper never gags him. He is told to go out on the road, study conditions, interview men and place the information before the readers of one of the greatest of American newspapers.

Harry Koch is the editor and proprietor of the Quanah Tribune-Chief. He is the maker of a splendid weekly newspaper. Speaking of irrigation the Tribune-Chief says: "Wichita Falls last week started work on what is said to be the largest artificial lake in America. It will impound something like 105 billions gallons of water, and drain an area of over 3,000 sections. Besides irrigating 150,000 acres of land, the lake will supply an inexhaustible supply of good water for Wichita Falls and nearby towns." Dreams come true when the dreamers are practical men. Dreams come true when the dreamers are the possessors of constructive brains, unflagging energy, tireless workers and are able to sell their ideas. There is one mistake in the Koch paragraph. This great reservoir has a capacity of 165 billion gallons of water and this will make it the largest body of artificial water under American skies.

There is money in oil and petroleum is a great game. The Standard Oil company of Indiana made net earnings of $21,288,348 during 1921, according to the annual statement made public after a meeting of the board of directors. The gross earnings were approximately $2,000,000 greater, the difference being used for federal taxes and similar items. The surplus earnings in the company's reserve fund now amount to $92,227,261, about $5,602,224 being added to the fund this year. The balance of the earnings was paid out in cash dividends to stockholders during the year, these dividends totalling approximately $15,688,-[illegible]. And the surface of Texas hasn't been scratched.

And now comes the grand jury of Harrison county with a scathing condemnation of gossips who caused the recent tar and feather party in that county. Gossips said that a fellow citizen was not all that he should be. Masked men tarred and feathered him. And now the grand jury after a sweeping investigation found this conclusion: "We cannot too severely condemn the idle gossips of the community which has nearly ruined the lives of two young people and created this present disgraceful condition." And the grand jury adjourned without returning indictments. Now just why a grand jury?

William Gibbs McAdoo has crossed the contingent and become a voting citizen of California. Long ago William Jennings Bryan deserted Nebraska to become a voting citizen of Florida. James M. Cox has refused to desert the Buckeye state. These three national leaders will be contenders for a presidential nomination in 1924. McAdoo will be the man of the West. This is a prediction. Bryan is an impossibility. Cox captured a nomination and the voters of America buried him.

Hogs in Kansas City Thursday according to the Star sold up to $11.10, the highest price paid since August last year, and the high record for all years, except when war was a dominating impetus to the trade. In March, 1910, hogs sold up to $10.95, and that stood as a high record until $11.15 was paid in September, 1916. In 1917 the top reached $20; in 1918, $20.65; in 1919, $23.40; in 1920, $17.80. In the past thirty-five years the top price for the year has been reached in only two Februaries, six times in September, five times in July, four times in August, twice in March, twice in April, once in May, March, April and May prices, though seldom recording the top for the year, have, with but few exceptions, ruled higher than in February. Even the rankest of pessimists should be willing to admit that the hog has come back.

Ireland is "The Irish free state." India is promised autonomy and home rule. Egypt has been given her independence with certain restrictions. This old world is jogging along and the trend of travel is ever upward. Egypt, over which the British protectorate has just been withdrawn, says a magazine writer, comprises lower Egypt or Bahari, and upper Egypt, or Said, together with a part of the province of Dongola, the district of Kosier on the Red Sea, El Arish in the Sinai peninsula, the Isthmus of Suez and the oases of the Libyan desert. The provinces have a total area of 6,099 square miles and a population of about 5,676,000. About 110,000 of this population are foreign born. The new rule which this country will come under brings to mind the romance and mystery of the ancient kings of Egypt, dating back thousands of years before the birth of Christ. Although scientists have spent many years digging into the ancient tombs of these rulers, they have brought but little light on the lives of the people and conditions existing in those times. No doubt it will be some time before another Egyptian who has the strength to bring this country back to the power and prominence it enjoyed in bygone times, one like the ancient Ap, who united the whole of Egypt into one kingdom and was king of the first dynasty. At probably 5000 B. C., or a little earlier, an invading and conquering race forced its way into the Nile valley, probably from the Red Sea, by the Kosseir road. This people brought a great artistic ability and the use of hieroglyphs. This system was aided by a strong taste for symbolism and a strong taste for expressing the plainest facts by symbolic figures. Every tribe and settlement had its animal figure as a standard, which served to express its actions in the records of conquest. Along in the time of the second dynasty came the period marked by the use of costly and very beautiful personal objects. At this time they built of wood and unbaked brick; stone was used only for sculpturing. At this time the commerce between Egypt and the Greek Isles began. Then came the time stone was used for building, sometimes covered with a coating overlaid, such as was used in the pyramids, the tombs of kings, built to last, with various devices to mislead plunderers and preserve the body. Then came a time of decay wherein there were centuries of rude imitation, until about 2500 B. C. Egypt again came into its own. Egyptian influence was extended into the bordering countries and it was again a power in world affairs. A list of the names of Egypt's rulers teems with romance, but in the latter years there has been a steady decline in Egyptian power and standard of civilization. Famine, plague and religious controversies have had their part in taking away Egypt's former glory. The Mamelukes, who based their power on military rule, impoverished the country by extravagance and plundering; and the Turks, on coming into power, did nothing to regain the old standard. The French held Egypt from 1798 until 1801, when driven out by the English and Turks. After another period of native rule the country was bankrupt, and a European commission of control was established. England and France handled this. The Anglo-French agreement, signed April 8, 1904, and binding for thirty years, gave Great Britain practical control, as France agreed not to obstruct Great Britain by asking a time limit on its occupation of the country, or in any other way. This agreement may be said to have legalized England's control over this territory, from which it has now withdrawn its protectorate.

This is a straw, the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York reports a prosperous year in 1921, notwithstanding the almost universal business depression. The new insurance paid for totaled $343,750,803, and the company's outstanding insurance on December 31 reached the imposing aggregate of $2,472,651,779. Payments to policy holders in 1921 were $89,239,239, and receipts from policy holders were $90,309,699. The assets on December 31, 1921, were $677,505,499, the liabilities were $649,453,912 and the surplus or contingency reserve was $28,051,587. The increase in assets during the year was $6,505,318 and the increase in surplus was $4,993,044. Straws are said to show the way the wind blows.

This is a Lloyd George story which is worth while. On one occasion when the premier was to address a meeting in South Wales the chairman, thinking to be funny at the speaker's expense, said in introducing him: "I had heard so much about Mr. Lloyd George that I naturally expected to meet a big man in every sense; but as you can see, he is very small in stature." Lloyd George arose: "I am grieved to find," said he "that your chairman is disappointed in my size, but this is owing to the way you have here of measuring a man. In North Wales we measure a man from his chin up, but you evidently measure from his chin down." After that the chairman made no more personal remarks.

Congressman Fess of Ohio says the Republican administration in less than a year reduced the public debt $3,500,000,000 and pruned down government expenses more than a billion dollars. That man has an imagination fully developed. There isn't anything like him under American skies, but he is criminally reckless when it comes to figures.

DIET INSTEAD OF LINIMENT

The man who was describing symptoms to the local druggist decided that what he really wanted was a bottle of liniment.

"Nothing like something to rub on," he said, taking a whitish bottle and removing the cork. He sniffed prodigiously. And almost collapsed as a result.

"I meant to tell you there was ammonia in that. Good, strong stuff," said the druggist, laconically. He was very tired of the customers who took corks out of bottles and sniffed at the contents, so perhaps he may be forgiven for having left the whitish liniment on the counter.

"Well, I don't guess I'll take a chance on that," said the farmer, wiping his eyes when he had recovered his breath. "Smells like horse medicine. What I want is a nice, powerful, searching kind of medicine to rub into my bones for this misery. It runs in the family. Nothing helps it like some good, searching med—"

The Farmer's Breakfast.

"Sure it isn't your diet?" asked the druggist, as the store emptied and the farmer showed every intention of lingering till closing up time.

"Diet? I don't see what difference that would make. I haven't any stomach trouble," said the farmer. "Always eat hearty. Breakfast's my best meal—though, of course, I can always eat when meal time comes. I never was one for putting everything on my back"—and the farmer looked rather hard at the druggist's store clothes.

"What do you eat for breakfast?" The young druggist was not surprised at the list of edibles the farmer passed over lightly. He had already visioned this man with "misery in his bones" sitting down by lamplight in a kitchen that was full of delicious odors to toss off mush and cream, plentifully sugared; piles of wheat cakes and syrup, meat, and fried potatoes, several cups of coffee, and a slab of pie, with a few doughnuts and cookies thrown in to polish off with.

Young Druggist Gives Advice.

"Meat—three times a day—and lots of fried food and too much sugar," meditated the druggist. But he just meditated. What he said aloud was "Do you drink lots of water?"

"In haying time I do. A dipperful at a time. But not so much in the winter. This misery in my—. Say, young fellow, what about this liniment?" And the farmer began to button up his coat.

Wrapping a bottle in pink paper, the druggist said earnestly, "I'm not attempting to diagnose this misery in your bones," as you aptly describe it, Mr. James, but I would advise you to get into the habit of drinking more water. Drink at least eight glasses of water a day."

Eight glasses! The farmer stared at him pityingly.

"And drink a little more milk and a little less coffee. Try leaving the fried foods alone, and take meat once a day instead of three times. You can eat eggs when we people in town have none." The farmer sniffed.

How to Use Liniment.

"And as for this liniment, instead of using half the bottle at a time, get some one to rub your back for you, using a little liniment and as much gentle pressure as you can stand. To get a really good effect from liniment the skin should first be washed with warm water and soap. And the rubbing should last about twenty minutes. Then try a warm flannel over the spot—and don't forget about those eight glasses of water."

But the farmer was really not quite in sympathy as he went out. Though he did go home and repeat the conversation to his wife, who always liked to hear what was going on in town.

PETER RABBIT WATCHES BUSY BEE

Busy Bee, as all can see,
Is just as busy as can be.
To and fro she doth go
Where the sweetest flowers grow,
Works all day without play
Treasures sweet to put away.
Busy Bee, I pray teach me
Pleasure in my work to see.

Now, Peter Rabbit had known Bumble Bee and Bumble's cousin, Busy Bee, ever since he was big enough to remember anything. He was forever running across one or the other of them in the sweet clover patch, and always he was very respectful and polite, for he knew quite as much as he cared to about the sharp little lances they carried. But though he had known them so long he really knew very little about them. He knew that Bumble was always rumbling and grumbling and making a great fuss about everything that he did, and was very proud of his handsome black and yellow suit, but he suspected that Bumble did a whole lot of pretending and really wasn't such a hard worker after all. He knew that Busy Bee always seemed in a hurry, didn't seem to mind in the least that she was very plainly dressed, and when she was busiest always seemed happiest. Anyway, she did a great deal of humming, then. And this was all that Peter knew about Bumble and Busy Bee.

"Good morning, Busy Bee," said Peter politely.

The more Peter thought about what Bumble had said to him the more he wondered if it was true that Busy Bee was such a hard worker, and at last he made up his mind to find out. The first thing to do was to find Busy herself. Peter remembered what he had learned when he was hunting for Bumble and wasted no time looking for the brightest flowers, but went straight to the sweetest flowers, which happened to be in his sweet clover patch. There he found Busy and she seemed to be very hard at work taking something from the heart of each flower she visited.

"Good morning, Busy Bee," said Peter politely.

"Morning. Buz-z-z, buz-z-z! Too much to do to talk. Buz-z-z, buz-z-z, buz-z-z!" replied Busy Bee, flying to the next flower.

Peter followed. "What do you work so hard for?" he asked.

"Buz-z-z, buz-z-z!" was all the reply he got as Busy Bee hurried to another flower.

"I shouldn't think there would be any fun in working all the time," said Peter. "Tell me, Busy Bee, is it true that you do work all the time?"

"Buz-z-z, buz-z-z!" was all the reply Peter got.

Then Peter started in to count the flowers that Busy visited, but she went from flower to flower so fast that he soon grew tired of that. Then while he was looking somewhere else for a minute she disappeared. Peter was sure that he had had his head turned only a wee little minute, but when he looked for her she was nowhere to be seen. He didn't know just what to do. To tell the truth, he felt rather foolish. Finally he decided that as long as he was at the sweet clover patch he might as well fill his stomach and straightway began to eat. He had almost forgotten about Busy Bee when, as he started to nibble a clover blossom, there was a sharp "Buz-z-z, buz-z-z!" close to one of his long ears. Busy Bee was back again and Peter didn't eat that particular blossom. No, sir, he didn't. He left it for Busy because she seemed to want it and he knew it is best to let Busy have what she wants.

NEXT STORY—PETER RABBIT FOLLOWS BUSY BEE.

That Ashma Case

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Asthma still constitutes a perplexing problem for the medical profession. This because, like epilepsy, asthma is not so much a disease in itself as a symptom indicative of a diseased condition that may be due to any one of numerous causes.

Thus there is asthma due to heart disease, asthma due to kidney disease, and asthma due to direct interference with breathing as a result of some pulmonary disease. Also there is what is known as neurotic asthma, brought on through extreme self-suggestibility.

Besides which, there is a type of asthma due to abnormal sensitiveness to dust, the pollen of hay, weeds, flowers, etc. Still further, it has of late been found that in some people there is an intolerance for certain foods, the eating of which will provoke asthmatic attacks. And, even more recently, evidence has been adduced pointing to poisoning from decayed and abscessed teeth as a cause of asthma.

In one case of this sort, reported by a New York physician, Dr. G. A. Rueck, in the New York Medical Journal, a woman had suffered more or less from asthma for nearly 10 years. No adequate cause for this could be found, and she remained unrelieved until, in the summer of 1920, on Dr. Rueckes' advice, she underwent radical and long-needed dental treatment.

For years she had been neglecting her teeth, which had gradually decayed. So extensive and serious was the decay that the dentist found it necessary to extract all the bicuspids and molars of the lower jaw, also the three left upper molars, which were badly abscessed. This work having been completed, not only did the patient's general health improve, but she became entirely free from asthma.

In another case, in which asthmatic attacks had been recurring for four years, Dr. Rueck discovered that the patient, a middle-aged woman, had had a long history of throat infections, and that a number of her teeth were so decayed that their removal seemed advisable.

The patient, however, refused to consider any operative treatment. That is, she refused to consider it for several months, or until her asthma became unbearable. Then she permitted the decayed teeth to be drawn—and with them went her asthma.

But, why, it may be asked, should decayed and abscessed teeth cause asthma? Here, somewhat shortened, is Dr. Rueck's answer:

"The pus of the apical abscesses containing many proteins is absorbed. The body finally becomes saturated in proteins. Changes of the blood occur. Poor blood weakens all the body cells.

"Even the heart muscle gets weaker. The heart does not pump the blood through the body quickly enough. The lungs become congested, and respiratory difficulty results."

Whatever the mechanism involved, it would seem clear that in decayed and abscessed teeth doctors, indeed, have another factor to reckon with as regards the asthma problem. And certainly, with so many factors to be taken into account, it is not surprising that they do not always find it easy to determine just why a given patient is asthmatic.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

Some one hit me on the back this morning as I doddered along the street, wrapped in my customary brown study. If the stealthy foe had been a small man I would have jarred him on the maxillary, for that wallop between my shoulders was stiff enough to break down a cantilever bridge. But the foe was not small. And he seemed so darned glad to see me—so absolutely overflowing with health and happiness and pep—that I involuntarily grinned back. I didn't want to. I preferred to go on hating him for a time. But you can't hate a man who fairly glows good cheer.

"Never saw you look better, Mickie," said I.

"Never was any better," said Mickie. "I feel too good to be true."

The important thing about this episode is that the last time I saw Mickie he was down and out physically. He was curved in, his ribs rattled, his eyes were dim, the flesh around his jaws had puckered somehow and his conversation bore arrant traces of that condition known as futtiness. Mickie wanted to lend me $ 5 [illegible] while he told me of all the things that were wrong everywhere. His eyes became so flaming and venomous that I grew actually scared. Next day I got the news:

I was so full of curiosity that Mickie saw it. See it? He couldn't help seeing it. It was as obvious as a street car. So he told me the story. It appears that it wasn't poor old Mick's mental apparatus that had crashed, but his teeth. Something had gone wrong with his entire chewing plant. Various little sacks of poison hived themselves under each tooth, and every time he wiggled a jaw that venom was shot into his system. He was not insane. He was poisoned. But he looked as nutty as a pecan field near Los Angeles.

Mick doesn't like the new idea very much. He has to take his apparatus out and let 'em cool every now and then, and he still feels that he is masticating his meals with some other man's chopping machine. But he is able to talk sanely and connectedly again, and he doesn't feel that the world ought to be destroyed and the holds broken, and he is so well that he hurts. Trouble is he has become an evangelist. He wanted to pry my mouth open right thereon the street corner to look for trouble. I felt like a horse in the hands of a grip.

RING WITH BLUE STONES

He bought the ring for her at the fair. They had wandered together to the booth where a dark, wide-smiled lady sold jewelry. A gay little booth it was, and the lady—they were too young to perceive distinctions—had a peddling way.

"Buy a ring for the little lady, young gentleman?" she coaxed and held out a glittering gem from her stock, at which Bertis gazed a little dazzled.

It was almost as bright as a genuine diamond and much too large for good taste.

"Will you wear it, Ruth?" Bertis stammered and felt in his pocket.

Ruth blushed and shook her head. "Please," urged Bertis. "Pick out one you like, Ruth. You know, I'm going away, and I want to give you something to remember me by. Please."

"Well——" Ruth's eyes scanned the brilliant array. There was one ring, quite simple, with small blue stones. It looked as if it might wear, although Ruth did not think of this fact, only that she loved blue in any shape or form, she pointed. "I like that one."

"You've made a good choice," smiled the dark lady. "That's a good little ring. Two dollars."

Two dollars was all the money Bertis had. Indeed, he had to borrow a penny from Ruth to pay, but the dark lady waived the penny.

"This is enough," she said, and put $1.99 in her bag.

Ruth slipped the little ring on the third finger of her right hand and walked away admiring it.

"Course I'd remember you anyway, Bertis," she said. "But it was awful good of you to give me this. Thank you, very much."

Bertis was so red with delight that his freckles scarcely showed. "Some day, when we're both grown up, mebby, I'll give you a better ring," he promised, in a lordly way.

Next day the fair ended. Ruth came and looked through a hole in the fence. She was wearing the ring with blue stones and her heart was heavy. The fair was over and Bertis had gone. His people had taken him away that morning.

She had not dreamed she should miss him so. He was only a boy and to a girl of twelve boys do not mean much as a rule. In a few days the feeling of loneliness wore away, but she continued to wear the ring. Bertis wrote a postcard or two to which she responded, then she heard from him no more. She no longer heard her mother talk about the Walkers moving to Kansas. Other things came up.

By and by the ring began to cut into Ruth's finger, and at last she took it off and placed it in her little jewel box along with such other trinkets as she had. Afterward when she lifted the lid of the box she saw the ring, but it did not mean much of anything to her now. She was seventeen and getting ready to graduate.

That summer was memorable in Ruth Blanding's life for two things—she took a prize for the best essay read on the commencement platform and her father failed in business.

At first the failure only meant to her the fact that her mother was always crying, and her father always groaning. It had been a small business, but it had kept the three of them nicely. When it was gone there was nothing to live on, and her father seemed incapable of making any fresh effort. The truth was he was very ill and growing worse daily. Two more things happened. Mr. Blanding died suddenly and Ruth went to work keeping books in Belden's store.

Mrs. Blanding was not very well herself, and she could not take boarders, so she rented rooms. There was no hotel worthy of the name in Westport, and her rooms were always full. Gradually as the place grew successful she withdrew into the northeast corner of the house, and there she and Ruth lived, not always comfortable, while strangers occupied the parlor, sitting room and library, and all the bedrooms except one. But it was only so they would keep their home.

Busy and bedged in as Ruth's life was, she still kept up a certain popularity. She had the rare quality which first attracts and then holds. Once she made a friend she had that friend forever. The small and rather exclusive little crowd which she had begun with she still kept about her. At least two of the young fellows in the crowd had proposed to her. One was Steve Bryant, the postmaster's son, and the other was Tommy Attridge, who was his father's partner in the law firm of Attridge & Attridge. Her mother thought she was foolish not to take one or the other, but somehow Ruth couldn't. They were good friends; she could not think of them as being anything else.

One night she came home from work unusually tired. It was a languid March day, warm, wet, and enervating. Yet Ruth had energy enough left to run up the steps and enter the home with the swiftness characteristic of her. As she closed the hall door behind her she looked up and saw a young man coming down the stairs from his room above. Their eyes met in an arresting look. She who had been plump and tanned had grown slim and clear skinned and mature; he who had been freckled and red was tall, well groomed, and successful looking. But still recognition called for recognition.

"Why, Bertis Walker!" she exclaimed.

"Ruth!" he returned.

He came down to her, and they shook hands and stood talking for a few minutes. Then Ruth went on to the kitchen, where she and her mother dined now.

"How in the world does Bertis Walker come to be back here and in this house?" she asked.

"Well, pretty nearly everybody who comes to town comes here for a room now," answered Mrs. Blanding. "Miss New went today, and I let him have her room. He's doing some kind of important business for the government that takes him all over. He's only here for a few days. I didn't know him till he made himself known to me."

"I knew him," said Ruth.

"His mother died just about the time your father did, and his father did not stand it long after. He isn't married. He acted awfully pleased to get here. I suppose, Ruth, really you ought to get your crowd together and give him some kind of a welcome. A lot of them would be glad to see him again."

"Well, I'll ask the girls," Ruth replied.

Thus it happened that the next evening there was a party for Bertis at the home of Mary Marish. Ruth went in the company of Bertis. The Marshes were good entertainers.

"That's the best time I've had since I left Westport," Bertis said as he walked home with Ruth. "Do you know all the evening I've been feeling an intense desire to open an office here and settle down."

"An office! What kind of an office?" Ruth asked.

"I'm a lawyer, or was before I went to work for the government, Ruth"—they had reached the steps. He was following Ruth up when he spoke, and she turned and looked down at him. The porch light was on and they could see each other plainly. Bertis said: "What did you ever do with that little blue ring I gave you so long ago?"

"That little blue ring!" Ruth gasped. "Why, I——" she blushed. "I've got it yet."

"You know what I said about getting you another?"

"Oh, Bertis, you've such a long memory!"

"Indeed I have where you're concerned, Ruth. If I settle down here in Westport, will you settle down with me for life?"

"Well, I'll have to talk it over with mother," Ruth answered.

The new ring was only a little less showy than those the dark lady had sold so many years before at her booth, but it was worth considerably more. Yet, perhaps, take it all in all, Ruth did not wear it with any more pride than she had worn the ring with the little blue stones.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

GOING TO PIECES.

My years are ten and fifty, and when I meet my friends, I say I'm feeling nifty, my cheerful spiel ascends. I cry, "Ach, donnerwetter, life's autumn is fun! I wasn't feeling better when I was twenty-one!" I bravely make a showing of being free from cares; but I am always going to some one for repairs. My motors drive me nutty, and need the dentist's skill; he plugs them up with putty, and jars me with his bill. I'm sighing and dodgasting when I am all alone, for I must buy a casting to fix my collar bone; as daily I grow older, some grievous want appears; I need a wooden shoulder, I need some new tin ears. The surgeon long has beckoned, the druggist brings his pill, and I must go in second when I would climb a hill. Yet cheerfully I canter along the village street, and blithely josh and banter the delegates I meet. "I never stacked up greater," I cry, in hollow glee; "I'd whip an alligator, and make a bobcat flee!" Some men may say I'm dotty as on my way I wend, may even say I'm naughty to fourflush and pretend; but I believe it's better to spring a cheerful wheeze than talk of gout and bitter and foot-and-mouth disease.—(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

DOGHILL PARAGRAPHS

By GEORGE BINGHAM.

Yam Sims had all eyes turned on him at Bounding Billows Saturday afternoon, and bids fair to yet be some sort of a public man. He had gathered up close to hear the brass band play, and, while he was not noticing, he stood too close and was accidentally hit by the bass drummer who was making a fine run on his instrument. Yam immediately apologized to him, and no hard feelings were engendered.

Big Beef Club Organized by Texas Boys

SAN ANGELO, Texas, March 3.—In conformance with the plans outlined by the all-West Texas joint livestock-dairy-poultry campaign being propagated jointly by the Fort Worth Stockyards company, and the West Texas chamber of commerce, there has been organized in San Angelo what is reported to be one of the largest beef clubs in the history of West Texas. Over 70 boys have signed for memberships in the Baby Beef club. These clubs are being organized by Don Brown, county agent. Each boy agrees to plant from three to five acres of sorghum grains, which grains are to be fed to the baby beeves. County Agent Brown estimates that as a result there will be at least two and possibly three solid car loads of beef shipped out of Tom Green county this fall.

Fashions for Americans

The simple dress of the sports type shown in the sketch has several interesting points. The low shoulder is particularly smart for a dress of this sort, and the little stitched-on rest of self fabric is also good, not only adding a definite style touch to the frock, but reinforcing the front of the waist as well—a worthwhile point for a slip-over frock. Then the trimming evolved is also unusual and very effective.

The dress as originally designed was made of a heavy white crepe de chine, and the cuffs, pocket sections, band on collar and attached scarf, or tie, were of vivid blue taffeta embroidered in white, yellow and poppy red. The ornaments on the scarf and sleeves were heavy silk floss rosettes formed by crocheting a succession of long silk loops on to small rings and then clipping the ends so that they fluffed out. Silk floss streamers, tipped with metal or celluloid, were attached to the sleeve rosettes and were run through the succession of three rosettes on the scarf or tie. The waist was held in by a sash belt of self fabric.

These silk or wool floss rosettes are apparently very much approved by designers, as they appear this season on many smart little frocks for children, a single rosette sometimes serving as a tie ring or clasp for a middy type of frock that is finished at the neck with a soft silk scarf or tie.

Incidentally, in preparing the late spring and summer outfit, it is well to bear in mind the prediction that all-white frocks will be in high favor. All-white, however, does not mean that not a single touch of color is given to the frock in its trimming. Fabrics that are plain white have received the approval of Dame Fashion, and the individual woman may think out n vel and interesting trimming touches galore.

Silk Floss Rosettes Add a Pretty Touch to This Sport's Frock.

A Wife or a Profession?

BY CAROLYN BEECHER

(Copyright, 1922, by Carolyn Beecher)

Chapter XV.

That night Howard did not come home to dinner, and instead of telephoning himself, chatting a few moments, and telling Annette how sorry he was he couldn't get away, he had one of the nurses at the hospital deliver the message.

"Dr. Blake will not be at home for dinner," was all she said, and before Annette could ask her to send the doctor to the telephone she had hung up.

"He needn't think I care whether he comes or not!" Annette declared, her eyes swimming in tears.

"Ain't the doctor comin'?" Elsie asked, remembering the quarrel and noticing the tears.

"No! Don't stand there staring, put on the dinner!"

"Gee, but she's mad all right! I guess I better keep outen the way till she gits over it. She'll be firin' me, and it's an easy place."

It was an easy place. The tiny house, the simple meals, left Elsie more time to herself than most of the hired girls—as they called them in Clarksville—had. So she put on the dinner, then discreetly kept out of the way.

Annette ate nothing, although, too proud to let Elsie see, she had taken small portions of the food and childishly carried them from the table, after sitting the usual time, and thrown them away. She would not endure a servant's pity, she told herself.

The doctor came in about 9 o'clock. His manner was more quiet than usual and his face still showed the strain of unusual emotion. He said, "Good evening" quietly, omitting his usual kiss and, taking a book, began to read.

Annette answered his greeting and also picked up a magazine.

"It's awfully chilly in there," Elsie said to herself after taking her orders for breakfast, curtly given. "I guess they froze up this morning and it'll take them a long time to git thawed out. Gee, but that was some fight;"

But people who have really cared for each other and who have been married but a year, and who never have quarreled before usually make up and promise themselves and each other never, never to do it again.

Howard and Annette were no exception to that rule. So as if it were the most ordinary thing in the world to sit as they had been without speaking for an hour, Howard suddenly asked Annette if she would like to drive out to see a patient in the morning.

"Yes—if you want me," her voice unsteady.

"Of course I want you. Don't I always want you—dear?"

Then neither ever knew which spoke first to ask forgiveness, to express sorrow for what they had said; to promise never to do it again. In their reunion neither gave thought that things once said, cruel things, leave an indelible scar. The scar was there even while they kissed and made up in the approved fashion of lovers, but it was hidden by the cloak of reconciliation.

"And you love me better than anything in the world?" Annette couldn't help asking that much.

"I love you better than anyone in the wide, wide, world," he parried, and Annette cuddled in his arms, never noticed.

"Will you try to understand that I never want to do anything to hurt you, Annette?" Howard asked, holding her close and occasionally dropping a soft kiss upon her hair.

"I'll try," she answered his question very meekly.

"That's the idea! If you do we'll be the happiest M. D. and Mrs. M. D. in the country. Now let's visit the ice-box. I've had no dinner and my stomach is just screeching for food."

Annette started to make her confession—that she had pretended to eat and thrown away the food. But suddenly she realized how childish she had been and she was so happy to have made up with Howard that she didn't want him to know anything that would make him think her foolish.

Elsie was in the kitchen devouring a yellow-backed novel. She had been reading of the quarrel a lord had had with his lady love, and was so enthralled she did not see Annette and the doctor until Howard spoke. Then she jumped quickly, giggling foolishly when she saw them with arms about each other.

"It's just like the lord in the story. They made up just like you folks, and they was real quality, too."

"Get out!" Howard said, laughing heartily.

After a cozy little supper Howard asked:

"Shall we take a little walk now that we have cooled down?"

"Yes, I'd love it."

"Then get your hat."

They started out talking and laughing gayly. Finally Howard said, patting the hand on his coat sleeve:

"Happy again, Annette?"

"So happy it hurts. Never let's quarrel again, Howard."

"All right, don't let's. I'm for that," and laughing heartily at their childish English they turned toward home, their quarrel forgotten, everything but their love.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

"Vamps" are coming back in style. Theda Bara, the original screen vampire, is to return to the films in a series of independent productions directed by her husband, Charles J. Brabin.

Brabin has severed his association with the Fox company, having formerly been one of its directors, and he will now devote his time to directing Miss Bara. The word is also given out that Theda will not step out in ingenue roles, but will remain true to her first love. In other words, she will duplicate the "vamp" type of picture that first made her famous when she started work for Fox.

Miss Bara has made no pictures for over a year, having appeared on the legitimate stage in "The Blue Flame," a very poor play, last season.

TOM MOORE RETURNS.

There has been considerable concern expressed as to the whereabouts of Tom Moore since he abruptly departed the Goldwyn screen. We now find him in an unstarred part in J. Parker Read's production of "Pawned," which has Edith Roberts as the leading woman. Mrs. Tom Moore, Renee Adoree, also has returned to the screen, playing a part in a Fox picture.

WEST COAST NEWS.

Lillian Walker has received an offer so flattering that it may cause her to forsake her voluntary retirement and play before the camera again. It is some time now since the screen has shadowed her famous dimples.

HAYAKAWA'S JAP PARTY.

Once or twice a year, Sessue Hayakawa and his wife, the enchanting Tsuru Aoki, entertained the Japanese youth of Los Angeles. During the holidays they gave a ball at their home, the Castle Glengarry, for the gentlemen and sirens Orientale. A Hawaiian orchestra furnished song and music, and during the evening there were interpolations of hula and Japanese dances. Mr. Hayakawa sponsors a Japanese society in Los Angeles for the purpose of discovering and developing talent among his countrymen.

Large Ranch To Be Cut Up Into Farms

QUANAH, Texas, March 3.—The cutting up of ranches in West Texas into farm lands received impetus here this week in the announcement from London, England, that the celebrated Waggoner ranch property comprising more than 600,000 acres of land, would be cut up into small tracts. The property was sold to British oil men for a consideration of $125,000,000. The English owners will reserve the oil rights in the land, but the land itself will be cut into small tracts and sold to English and American farmers. Word has been sent locally to the West Texas chamber of commerce asking the cooperation of that body in securing desirable immigration for this property. The matter has been placed before the American Hungarian chamber of commerce in New York city through Emil Zerkowitz, secretary. The development of the property along farming lines will be even more important in the advancement of West Texas than will be the exploitation for oil.

WACO FIVE ELIMINATES CLARA IN HIGH SCHOOL TOURNAMENT AT AUSTIN

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, March 3.—Two surprises were unfolded today in the basketball tournament of the Interscholastic league, being conducted at the University of Texas. One was when Polytechnic high school defeated Brackenridge high school of San Antonio, and the other when Lindale defeated Houston high school.

The score in the former was 14 to 13 and the latter 36 to 16. The Polytechnic-Brackenridge game was by far the most exciting of the day. Brackenridge was slated for placing in the semi-finals while little was expected of Polytechnic.

While Lindale had a good standing from its showing last year, Houston was expected to win a place in the semi-finals.

Other games in the tournament played today resulted as follows:

Stephenville 28, Tulia 14; El Paso 29, Kirbyville 13; Waco 34, Clara 11; Edinburg 29, Ozona 6; Texarkana 35, Shiner 6; Bryan 18, Austin 13.

The semi-finals will be played tomorrow and the final game for the state championship tomorrow night.

The results of the games tonight were as follows:

El Paso 17, Stephenville 15; Waco 21, Polytechnic, Fort Worth, 5; Lindale 26, Edinburgh 13; Texarkana 17, Bryan 13.

The winners of these games play in the semi-finals Saturday morning as follows:

Waco vs. El Paso, and Lindale vs. Texarkana. The winners in the semi-finals play in the finals Saturday night.

GOETHALS MAY DIRECT MUSCLE SHOALS WORKS

Builder of Panama Canal Will Be in Charge if Engstrum Offer Is Accepted, Is Announced.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—George Goethals, a former major general and builder of the Panama Canal will take personal charge of the development of the government's war made projects at Muscle Shoals, in the event congress accepts the offer of Frederick E. Engstrum, North Carolina shipbuilder and engineer for lease and completion of the properties, it was announced today. Mr. Goethals already has agreed, it was added, to accept the task of completing the great dam at Muscle Shoals and other projects there for Mr. Engstrum.

The announcement of the agreement between Mr. Engstrum and Mr. Goethals was made by Marion Butler, former senator from North Carolina in testimony given the house military committee on the proposal which was under consideration. The committee devoted both sessions today to an investigation of the Engstrum offer, receiving Mr. Engstrum first for a brief introduction of his bid and later examining Mr. Butler, who appeared as legal adviser for the North Carolinian. Mr. Butler said nitrate and fertilizer production viewed in the sense of their relation to the national defense, was the prime object of the offer he spoke for although hydro-electric development would not be neglected.

While the former senator did not refer to the Ford offer by name, he argued strongly against congressional action which would permit the principal water power project in the south to be controlled by a private concern. New York state had permitted Niagara to be monopolized, he said and the people there are up in arms now, crying for the power they cannot get.

SOUTHERN OPEN GOLF TOURNEY IS UNDER WAY

Sarazen of Pittsburgh Leads Field First Day; Hutchison and Barnes Considerably Off Form.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Gene Sarazen, of the Highland Country club, Pittsburgh, led the field of golfers in the southern open championship at the country club here today with a medal score of 146 for the first 36 holes of play. Cyril Walker, of Englewood, N. J., ran a close second to Sarazen with a total medal count of 149, while Leo Diegel, of the New Orleans Country club, was in third place with a score of 151.

Sarazen got off to an early lead in the morning round and held a commanding position throughout the tournament for the day. He played a remarkable game considering the heavy condition of the course. Diegel, after getting off to a bad start in the morning round, came back in the afternoon and played a superb game practically shooting the course in par. Jock Hutchison, one of the big favorites in the tournament was badly off his game in putting and only registered a medal score of 157 for the first 36 holes.

Jim Barnes, the national champion, only registered 157 for the first day's play.

Among others who completed the first day's play and turned in cards for the first 36 holes were: William Maguire, Houston, Texas, 82-76-158.

John Bredemus, Texas, 80-79-159.

Harry Turple, Hammond, La., 83-77-160.

JOHNNY COULON PULLS 'LIFTING' STUNT IN CHI'

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Johnny Coulon, 108 pounds, former bantamweight fistic champion, and now the self-styled "national champion of inertia," today was the hero of an engaging come-saw-conquered drama before the city athletic commission. Coulon was requested to appear before the committee to demonstrate the technique of his "lifting stunt" prior to the issuance of a permit for public exhibition. Six members of the city council were in the headquarters of the commission when Coulon entered, accompanied by Jack Linow, 220 pound wrestler.

"Lift me for the gentlemen," Coulon ordered, assuming an easy posture in the center of the floor.

The muscles of the stalwart Linow bulged, the floor squeaked—and finally tiny beads of perspiration encompassed the Herculean brow. Johnny stood fast.

"Let me see," offered Alderman Oscar Olsen, chairman of the commission, and a heavyweight of the first magnitude, as he turned his energies to the task.

Again Johnny stood fast.

In turn, each member endeavored to vanquish the immovability of the smiling Coulon, and in turn each returned to his place questioning the immutability of the long accepted theories of motion.

The permit was granted.

BIG LEAGUE MOGULS

NAVIN, OWNER OF THE TIGERS.

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

The republicans put Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit baseball club, into the great national game.

The Tiger magnate is a native of Michigan. At one time he aspired to a political career in that grand and glorious state and sought the nomination for justice of the peace on the republican ticket. But he made the mistake of not lining up the organization behind him. The said organization had other plans and another candidate and Navin was defeated. He announced that just for that he'd give up trying to climb the political ladder to the presidency and drown his sorrows in baseball.

Navin was born in Adrian, Mich., in 1871. Navin at first planned to seek fame as a lawyer. He studied law and passed the state bar examination in 1893. He began his baseball career as bookkeeper in the offices of the Detroit club. He learned the game and salted his nickels. When the club was purchased in 1903 by William H. Yawkey, rich lumberman, Navin soaked his last dollar in stock and became secretary of the club, which position he held until 1908. Then Yawkey retired from the presidency and Navin stepped into his shoes.

The greatest achievements in Navin's career were his signing of Tyrus Raymond Cobb, super-player, and Hughie Jennings, the man who led the team to three pennants in a row and developed a score of terrific battling organizations that ranked as pennant contenders year after year.

A young chaplain found a convict feeding a rat. "Ha! So you have a pet, eh?" he inquired. "Yes, sir," replied the convict, his hoarse voice softening, and a gentle smile illuminating his hard face, "I think more of this rat than I do of any living creature!"

The chaplain laid his hand on the man's shoulder. "In every man," he said, "there is something good if you can but find it. How came you to take such a fancy to the rat?"

"It bit the warden, sir," the convict replied.

The late scholar was sentenced to be caned.

"'Tain't fair," he whimpered, "Besides, canin' won't never do me no good!"

"Possibly not," replied the master, "but to refrain from caning you will certainly do you harm. Don't you know that Solomon, the wisest man who ever lived, said, 'Spare the rod and spoil the child?'"

"Yes," objected the lad; "but Solomon took mighty good care not to say that till he was growed up."

Marjorie's little brother asked what she had learned in Sunday school. "Well," she replied, "I learned that all our days are numbered."

"P-shaw!" exclaimed the little questioner, "I think that anybody who ever saw a calendar would know that."

"It will always seem strange to us," says Colonel George Bailey, "that a man will roar at a 1-cent tax on a lemonade and almost want to kiss the bootlegger who soaks him to the tune of $16 for a quart of bootch."

A Scotch laborer was slipping out of the yard during working hours to wet his whistle when he ran into the boss: "Hello!" said the latter pleasantly, "were you looking for me?"

"Ay," replied Sandy, "I wis lookin' for ye, but I didna want tae find ye."

MARKET REPORTS

Cotton

NEW YORK, March 3.—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today with fluctuations more or less irregular. Comparatively slight advances seemed to meet increased offerings and after selling at 18.09, May contracts declined to 17.90, closing at 17.94. The general market closed steady at a neat decline of 6 to 14 points, new crop positions being relatively steady.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 5 points, near months showing the losses under scattering liquidation, due to the easier early cables and less favorable Manchester advice. Liverpool firmed up right after the local opening and prices here rallied slightly on trade buying and covering. Offerings increased around 18.35 for March and 17.35 for July, however, and there was considerable scattered realizing later in the day.

Early afternoon bulges on prospects for bullish weekened figures carried the market back to about early high point, but there was only a moderate demand and the lowest prices were touched late in the day with March selling at 18.17 and July 17.22. Private cables said that sentiment in Manchester was still unsettled by the increased Indian import duty on cotton goods, which threatened to interfere with a revival of demand from that quarter.

Sales of print cloth in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at only 150,000 pieces, or considerably below the total of the previous week and increased curtailment was reported in that center. There were reiterated reports that cotton was coming from eastern belt sections for delivery on March, the amount of expected shipments being estimated at 10,000 bales. Week-end figures proved about as expected showing a decrease of 126,117 bales in the world's visible supply of American, compared with a decrease of 18,463 for the same week last year. Exports for the day were 6,138 bales, making 3,768,345 so far this season. Port receipts 14,390. U. S. port stocks 1,095,308.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Small declines prevailed during the greater part of the session in cotton today although there were 1 to 2 periods of steadiness and small net gains, the market at its best standing 5 to 7 points over the close of yesterday, at which level May traded at 16.95. At the lowest May traded at 16.76. At the lowest May tradlosses under yesterday's final prices of 6 to 13 points. On the close the list stood at net losses on the day, of 6 to 12 points, May closing at 16.76.

Poor cables caused a lower opening and more or less selling resulted from an unfavorable opinion of foreign political news. Scattered buying met the initial depression and it caused a recovery which lasted for some time. Highest prices were reached following the posting of the weekly statistics counting mill-takings of American cotton for the week at 200,000 bales, a considerably higher figure than expected.

In the early afternoon selling came on the market, based to all appearances on the better weather spreading over the cotton region and the idea that foreign politics were likely to furnish new selling arguments in the near future. Offerings were only moderate, but they were not well absorbed and the market sagged to its lowest levels. The tone was steady, but there was little display of recuperative power.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON

LIVERPOOL, March 3.—Cotton spot in good demand; business moderate; prices steady. Good middling 10.53; fully middling 9.98; low middling 9.13; good ordinary 8.35; ordinary 7.83. Sales 8,000; including 5,200 American.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 3.—After opening higher with lard, cottonseed oil reached sharply to below the previous level under realizing sales but prices again firmed up near the close due to good demand for spot oil and the strength in crude. Final bids were 20 points higher for March and 3 to 6 net higher for the balance. Sales 24,400 barrels. Tenders 600 barrels. Prime crude 10.25 bid; Prime summer yellow spot 11.75; May 11.94; July 12.14; September 12.36, all bid.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, March 3.—The raw sugar market was a shade lower for Cubas at 2⅛c cost and freight equal to 3.73 for centrifugal but Porto Ricos were unchanged at 3.62. There were sales early of 25,000 bags of old crop Cubas, April clearance at 2 3-16 cost and freight, followed by 10,000 bags afloat at 2⅛ while 5,000 bags of Porto Rican sold for prompt shipment at 3.61, all to local refiners.

The raw sugar futures market was firmer on covering and buying by commission houses and final prices were 1 to 3 points net higher. May closed at 2.42; July 2.62; September 2.76; December 2.74.

In refined prices were unchanged at 5.10 to 5.20 for fine granulated and the demand was again of fair proportions.

Refined futures were nominal and without transactions, closing unchanged at 5.70 for May, 5.85 for July and 5.90 for September.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The market for coffee futures was firmer today owing to higher Brazilian cables and reports of an improved trade demand. The opening was at an advance of 2 to 4 points with active months selling 10 to 12 points higher during the early afternoon. This carried May contracts up to 8.72 and September to 8.80, making recoveries of about 25 to 30 points from the low levels of Wednesday. The close was a shade off from the best under realizing but showed a net advance of 7 to 9 points. Sales were reported of 44,000 bags including exchanges. March 8.57; May 8.69; July 8.72; September 8.76; December 8.80.

WOOL QUOTATIONS

BOSTON, March 3.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will publish wool prices as follows: domestic: Missouri and average New England half blood, 38 @ 39; 3-8 blood 37 @ 38; quarter blood, 36 @ 37.

Scoured basis: Fine Texas 12 months 105 @ 110; fine 8-months 90 @ 95.

Stocks

NEW YORK, March 3.—The stock market gave another demonstration of strength and activity tdoay, extreme gains in numerous miscellaneous shares ranging from 1 to 6 points. In a majority of instances, however, these later were reduced to nominal proportions.

Few, if any of the standard rails or representative industrials share in the movement, which was most conspicuous in low grade transportations, foreign oils, rubbers, motors accessories, sugars and utilities comprising the gas group.

Firm to strong features at the close included gulf states and crucible steels, Mexican and Pan-American petroleums, Kelly Springfield tire, American sugar, consolidated gas, Famous Players and American woolen, coppers also improving on an advance in the price of the metal.

Uneasiness was displayed by Chandler and Studebaker motors, and United States steel was under moderate pressure.

Tobaccos and several of the textiles were offered in connection with adverse dividend rumors.

Sales amounted to 950,000 shares.

Momentum was given to the early advance by overnight advices of a hopeful character. Chief among these were the February review of general business conditions by the federal reserve board and the weekly survey issued by the department of commerce.

Money rates also favored the rise, demand loans opening and renewing at 4 1-2 per cent on the exchange, while private accomodations were obtainable at 4 per cent, to which figure the open rate was lowered in the final hour.

Relaxation of the domestic money market was not helpful to international currencies, nearly all of which reacted. Sterling dropped 1 3-4 cents, Allied bills were lower by three to eight points, the German mark continued to weaken and low records were established by central European bills.

Grain

CHICAGO, March 3.—Under pressure from heavy selling to realize profits, the wheat market today affected also by favorable crop reports fell off somewhat in price. The close was unsettled 1-4 to 7-8c net lower with May 1.45 3-8 to 1.45 1-2 and July 1.22 3-8 to 1.22 1-2. Corn finished 1-4 to 5-8c@1-4 down, and oats off 3-8 to 1-2c. In provisions, the outcome varied from 7c decline to 15c advance.

Selling out on the part of holders of wheat was proceeded by a material advance in prices during the early trading, an advance based chiefly on fresh upturns in quotations at Liverpool and on gossip that foreigners had been purchasing breadstuffs liberally overnight.

The rise in value here proved tempting to many owners who had bought at lower levels in the last few days, but it was an hour later before the market turned unmistakably downgrade.

Reports putting the condition of the domestic winter crop of wheat at 77.8 on March 1 as against 76 on December 1 were current at this juncture. It was pointed out too that 10,000 bushels of wheat had accumulated at Kansas City, and circumstances were at present such as to permit shipments from there to Chicago at a profit. Talk from Argentina of prospective better demand from domestic mills however, and of fresh export business today helped cause something of a rally at the last.

Corn and oats were mainly swayed by the action of wheat. In addition, demand for corn was reported as small from the seaboard and from domestic shippers as well.

Irregularities which characterized provision values appeared to be due to the conflict resulting from an advance in the hog market and a decline in grain.

BRADSTREET'S TRADE CONDITION REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 3.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

Developments of the week in trade and industry have been mainly favorable and this despite storms covering wide areas with severe cold, snow, and sleet, or heavy rains, which have operated to render country roads impassable and restricted retail buying in all but a few weather affected lines to narrow proportions. Perhaps the most important feature has been the definite breaking of the southwestern drought, this being accompanied, however, by a reaction in the bull movement in wheat after May delivered had reached just short of $1.50. Other notable events have seen a further slight gain in activity in wholesale and jobbing lines, the bulk of this confined to surplus grain and cattle growing districts; a further expansion in iron and steel buying and production, railroad proceedings being the chief feature, with a fair amount of steadiness in crude forms, but further weakness in finished products; a continuance of the rise in foreign exchange rates into new high ground, the highest in fact since 1919 when the "peg" was withdrawn; fair strength despite reactions in the stock market and a strong and active bond market.

Weekly bank clearings, $7,198,912,000.

BROWN NOT ONE AT TELEPHONE CO.

The Record News is asked to state that the B. H. Brown sentenced to seven days in the county jail for petty theft is not the B. H. Brown employed by the local telephone company. The initials and name of the man sentenced are the same as those of Mr. Brown.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting:
You are hereby commanded to summon W. M. Johnson, John Cook, G. W. Wentz, R. B. Hester, E. T. Sharp and R. C. Knight by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the first Monday in April, A. D. 1922, the same being the 3rd day of April, A. D. 1922. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 23rd day of February, A. D. 1922, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 12415-C wherein G. D. Anderson and H. B. Patterson are plaintiffs and W. M. Johnson, John Cook, G. W. Wentz, R. B. Hester, Fred Morris, E. T. Sharp and R. C. Knight are defendants and said petition alleging, That on or about the 1st day of February, 1922, they were lawfully seized and possessed of the following described land and premises situated in Wichita County, Texas, holding and claiming the same in fee simple, to-wit:
Beginning at the north-west corner of block No. 56 of A. Kemp Subdivision of the S. P. R. R. Survey No. 4 for point of beginning; thence E. 176 varas; thence S. 850 varas; thence W. 178 varas; thence N. 850 varas to the place of beginning, containing 30 acres of land more or less.
That on said date the defendants, and each of them, unlawfully entered upon said property and ejected plaintiffs therefrom and unlawfully withheld from them the possession thereof to their damage in the sum of $1,000.
Plaintiffs allege that said defendants, and each of them, are asserting title to said land and premises above described, but that the exact nature of the claims of said defendants are unknown to these plaintiffs, but plaintiffs aver that their title is in all respects superior, in law and in equity, to the title claimed by the defendants, and each of them, and that the claim of defendants to said property constitutes a cloud upon the title of the plaintiffs to the property above described.
Wherefore, plaintiff prays that said defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition and that plaintiffs have judgment for the title and possession of said above described land and premises, and that writ of restitution issue, and that the cloud cast upon the title of plaintiffs' property above described by reason of the claims, if any, of the defendants, and each of them be removed; and that plaintiffs have judgment for their damages and for such other and further relief, etc.
Hereon fail not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.
Given under my hand and seal of office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 23rd day of February, A. D. 1922.

INITIALED HOSE ARE NEWEST FAD

Huge colored initials on dark silk hose are the newest fad to be adopted by the flapper and her older sister. It is hinted that if the wearer is single she wears one initial on one instep and the other initial on the other instep, but if she is engaged she wears both her own and her fiance's initials on her dainty hosiery.

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE FORMED FRIDAY NIGHT

Action of Meeting Is Repudiated by the Central Trades and Labor Council When Presented.

By unanimous action of a mass meeting of two hundred men at the Labor Temple Friday night voted to place a candidate in the race for Mayor in the coming city election and also two candidates to fill the vacancies which will occur in the city council.

The action was taken after a petition was presented at the meeting providing for the organization of a Non-Partisan League of voters. The petition was circulated at the meeting and according to an announcement received over one hundred and fifty signatures. The petition is to be circulated throughout the city it was announced and it is expected that the league will support the candidates whose names are to be placed on the city ticket today.

The meeting was attended by those who for the past several weeks have been holding meetings protesting the wages paid on the irrigation project.

The Central Trades and Labor Council in session Friday night refused to endorse the action of the mass meeting when a committee appeared before it and asked that the unions of the city aid in the selection of the candidates and support them at the election to be held next month. It was announced that the central council had decided to place no candidates in the field but support those already announced who are considered friendly to organized labor.

Following the adoption of the resolution, some doubt was expressed by those in attendance at the mass meeting as to whether the necessary petition could be circulated and the signatures secured. Today is the last day in which candidates can enter the city election which is to be held the first Tuesday in April.

Little Old Sun Brings Final Rout To Recent Dose of Wintry Weather

Oh, the little old sun just shined and shined,
And the little old snow disappeared;
The little old citizens laughed aloud,
And the little old railroads cheered!
The little old trains went back on time,
And the little old ice and sleet
Just melted right into the little old soil
And encouraged the little old wheat.

Which may not be quite up to the standards established far back by poets who dwelt in the neighborhood "where burning Sappho loved and sang," but it tells a truthful weather tale of northwest Texas during the last twenty-four hours. The big storm is a thing of the past now, although if one is fool enough to say it's over the chances are another storm will promptly swoop down to prove the fool also a liar!

The sun shone yesterday; the real, warm, cheery old Texas sun, not the cool, proud sun of the northland, got on the job—and before nightfall he had done a masterful bit of work in melting snow and ice in city and country. Railroad linemen worked like beavers on a winter dam, and at last reports every railroad with a terminal in Wichita Falls had established connections with the outside world. There are still miles of tangled wires and fallen poles to be restretched and reset, but at least this city is no longer ice-o-lated.

The paved streets of Wichita Falls again are beginning to resemble paved streets, instead of highways for sleigh runners and bob-sleds—and the unpaved streets are glorious stretches of mud and water. Out in the country the steady thaw and resultant moisture is making every farmer's heart glad—and his city brother is tickled also, thinking of the farmer's trade that will soon be making its impression on the ribbons of hundreds of cash registers.

"Fair with rising temperature"; that's the weather report, folks. It's simply got to be fair with rising temperature, that's all. Abe Bowman has wired the Wichita Falls Baseball association that he has boarded a train—and Abe and the rest of the Spudders are due to start spring training next Monday. Can't trained ball club to win a Dixie championship unless the weather is fair with rising temperature; no, sir!

Big automobile show opens at noon today; big pure food show also. Plans under way for big Texas-Oklahoma fair. Baseball season ready to start. Golf club ready to build a new clubhouse. Things are booming in Wichita Falls. Old Man Prosperity sticking his head in every door and looking as pleased as a hound puppy with a big bone. Come on, you weather labelled "Fair"—Crack down, you temperature yelept, "Rising."

WASTING TIME.

Artist—You'd be surprised to know how much time was spent on this painting.

SERIES TRAVEL LECTURES AT LOCAL CHURCH

"One Night In Babylon" is the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given by Dr. Herbert Yenell, world traveller and lecturer, at the First Christian church Sunday night, a lecture in which Dr. Yenell, who has visited the scene of ancient Babylon, will endeavor to reconstruct the glories, and otherwise, of that city.

The lecture will be the opening series of a number of illustrated lectures to be given the first six evenings of the coming week. The subject for Monday night, "The Passion Play of Oberammergau" is one of the features of the series, the material having been gathered and pictures taken during a three weeks period when the lecturer was the guest of Anton Lang, for the past three decennial presentations and in the forthcoming rendition of the famous play the man who takes the part of "Christ."

Other lectures scheduled are:

Tuesday: "Sunny Italy and Her Romance."

Wednesday: "Quo Vadis."

Thursday: "The France of Yesterday and Today."

Friday: "Ben Hur."

No admission fee will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken at each of the lectures.
