The Independence Day holiday provides another long weekend for many Americans, and with it comes reminders and warnings from agencies and organizations interested in traffic safety.

Fun, food and fireworks are traditions on the Fourth of July, they agree, but they are urging all drivers to forego their "firewater" if they are going to be using their automobiles. No less than 100,000 people in Texas were involved in alcohol-related accidents on highways last year which killed 1,0000 people.

The National Safety Council says that drinking continues to be the primary factor in automobile accidents.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has issued a list of highlights showing general benefits derived from aerospace research and development. Items in the medical field alone represent an impressive showing.

For example, a NASA scientist conducting basic research into the effects of space radiation on body cells has discovered intercellular linkages that may help in understanding the behavior of certain types of cancer. He was studying the effects of ionizing space radiations in interfering with normal cell division.

Also, doctors can watch a movie of the beating of a patient's diseased heart — identifying dead spots or scar tissue in the heart wall, aneurisms and other malfunctions — with a computer method devised by a NASA-Stanford University team.

A brain sensor and radio transmitter system developed for space medical research with test pilots appears to allow major improvements in the diagnosis and treatment of schizophrenic mental patients.

And the computer used to enhance pictures radioed back from the moon and Mars has been successfully used to analyze pictures of human chromosomes. Chromosomes in a human blood cell have been analyzed in three minutes, about one-tenth the time required previously.

A pressure suit made for test pilots in the space program saved the life of a young woman whose internal bleeding could not be stopped by established procedures.

These are some of the "spin-offs" in the field of medicine only. There are others in various other areas, some of which already are taken for granted by the general public.

U. S. Concerned Over Viet Cong's Motives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's immediate concern over the newest Viet Cong peace plan appears not so much whether to accept or reject, but to determine the motive behind the proposal.

The official White House and State Department stance is the seven-point plan contains "positive as well as clearly unacceptable elements" and will be given serious study.

The new ingredient and apparently the positive one in official U.S. eyes is the proposal made Wednesday by chief Viet Cong Paris delegate Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh:

"If the U.S. government sets a terminal date for the withdrawal from South Vietnam in 1971 of the totality of U.S. forces and those of the other foreign countries in the U.S. camp, the parties will at the same time agree on the ... release of the totality of military men of all parties and of the civilians captured in the war, including American pilots captured in Vietnam so that they may all return rapidly to their homes."

Administration officials have agreed the United States should, at the outset, determine the meaning of the Viet Cong's gesture and whether it indicates a serious intention to negotiate.

Among alternatives U.S. officials say privately are being considered are these three:

—The time has come in North Vietnam's mind to negotiate total withdrawal of U.S. forces, including advisers, out of the South.

—Recent defeat of congressional efforts to legislate a withdrawal has led Hanoi to attempt to pump new blood into the antiwar drive in the United States.

—The peace plan may be an effort to generate bad feelings between the United States and the Saigon government at a time of the impending South Vietnamese presidential election.

FTC Rules On Cig Warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. tobacco companies have been given six months to agree on a health warning to accompany the bubbling brooks, pretty girls and cattle roundups in their cigarette advertising.

The Federal Trade Commission wasted no time in its ruling Thursday. The 3-1 vote with one abstention came as a congressional prohibition on cigarette advertising expired.

The tobacco companies were given six months to sign a legally binding consent agreement requiring them to include in advertisements a "clearly and conspicuously displayed" note saying: "Warning! The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

That warning already is required on cigarette packages and cartons.

All cigarette advertising has been banned from radio and television since Jan. 2 this year.

Some provisions of the proposed consent agreement are still open for negotiation, including the standards for "clear and conspicuous display," such as the size of type that would be required.

However, Gerald Thain, assistant director for food and drug advertising in the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said the advertisements should not be "a symphony of seduction with only a flute of warning."

The FTC action Thursday accused two of the six tobacco companies of alleged deception by failing to include any warning message in print advertisements and charged the other four with inadequate 'caution messages.

Trustees Pledge Fight For Schools

DALLAS (AP) — Public school trustees broke a months-long silence on a pending desegregation suit Thursday to pledge a vigorous continuing fight of neighborhood schools.

It was their first public comment since the case was filed last October.

School board president John Plath Green read a formal statement, drafted at a four-hour closed session of the board, urging Dallas residents "to have confidence that the board and district are pursuing and shall continue to pursue" a goal of quality education for all children.

He told newsmen the purpose of this statement was to demonstrate the trustees' firm grasp of the desegregation problem and put them clearly out front as leaders in defending the school system.

Dallas County commissioners agreed at their own meeting to offer the school district "total aid and cooperation" in its legal fight but decided against actually intervening in the lawsuit.

City council members, after indicating they would like to join the school board in the court case, withdrew to a neutral position on advice of counsel. More than 25 speakers at a sometimes stormy meeting urged the councilmen to support the neighborhood school concept and to oppose busing of pupils.

Green declined comment when asked if he felt the city and county should make themselves parties to the suit.

"The board recognizes that in our democracy every citizen is committed to abide by the final decision of our courts," he said in reading the statement.

"Indeed, the board has at all times relied on the orders of the courts in 1965 in permitting the school district's concept of neighborhood schools, and will continue to urge in the courts that the 1965 orders of the courts should be applicable to the present as well as the future operations of its schools."

Approval was given the neighborhood school concept in the 1965 court order for Dallas schools.

Green said the board would take the case to "the final court of competent jurisdiction or the last court."

War Changed Since Pentagon Papers Written

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — For all their fascinating detail on the origins of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war, the Pentagon Papers cast little light on how the war has come to where it is now. In the three years since they were written, the conflict has undergone radical changes.

The most important was a reversal of U.S. policy that began the withdrawal of American combat forces while the Vietnamization program imposed a greater share of fighting on the South Vietnamese.

Another was the spread of open hostilities into Cambodia in 1970 and Laos in 1971, geographical expansions of the war that the Nixon administration gambled would also shorten it.

Despite these sweeping developments and the general disaffection of the United States with Vietnam, many Vietnamese and some Americans in Indochina have an unsettling sense of repetition about the present situation.

Col. David Hackworth, a much-decorated Army officer with 5½ years in Vietnam as combat leader and senior adviser, sees the military situation reverting in the next two years to where it was in 1963-65. The South Vietnamese in 1965 were losing a battalion a week. Hackworth's appraisal is that after the allies pull out, the Saigon forces will again face a bloody and probably losing battle against a superior enemy.

Apparently beset by some of the same fears, President Nguyen Van Thieu predicts a "major confrontation" between North and South Vietnamese forces in late 1972 or early 1973, after most allied forces have gone.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, is said to share this view.

In the rumor-mill coffee houses along Saigon's Tu Do Street, some current speculation has a strong early 1960s flavor. It centers on the possibilities of a political coup before the Oct. 3 election or, perhaps more likely, afterward—regardless of who wins.

Serious Western observers tend to discount this kind of political talk. The prevailing view is that only Thieu has a chance to win the election, and that nobody has a chance of overthrowing him. Even so, the wisest observers know enough of Vietnam's history to concede the possibility.

Cosmonauts Are Laid To Rest

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Russian cosmonauts, who died at the controls of their ship just before completing an epic space voyage, were laid to rest today in the Kremlin Wall, the nation's traditional burial place for fallen heroes.

The cosmonauts—Georgy T. Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev—were eulogized at funeral ceremonies in Red Square for their flight aboard the world's first space laboratory.

Mstislav V. Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, told the thousands of Russians assembled in Red Square for the cosmonauts' funeral that they had "opened up vast possibilities for all mankind."

"Their flight aboard the world's first long-term manned space station, Salute, marks the beginning of a new stage in the conquest of cosmic space," said Keldysh, speaking from Lenin's Tomb beside the Kremlin Wall.

Heavy Rains Hit El Paso

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Heavy rains swamped this border city today, causing numerous traffic accidents and tieups.

A car and a pickup truck plunged into a canal at the height of the downpour which continued for over three hours, dumping .81 of an inch of rain.

Some business establishments were flooded out and pumps were being manned to clear from flooded basements.

Visibility was restricted to half a mile but there were no significant air traffic delays.

Jobless Rate Drops Sharply

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped sharply in June to 5.6 per cent of the labor force, even though more than a million more workers lost their jobs, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics attributed the sharp decline in the jobless rate to a statistical quirk. It said the drop "may be somewhat overstated" because more young workers than usual were still in school—and not seeking work—when the unemployment survey was taken the week of June 6 through June 12.

Nevertheless, the fall was moderately good news for the Nixon administration, which has set a goal of reducing unemployment to 4.5 per cent of the labor force by the middle of 1972.

The Labor Department said the number of unemployed persons climbed by 1.1 million over May, to 5.5 million last month. In May, the unemployment rate was 6.2 per cent.

The department noted the unemployment rate usually increases sharply between May and June, but added the rise was much less this year as a smaller than usual number of young people entered the labor force at the end of the school year.

By using a stastical method of adjusting unemployment for seasonal influences, the department figured the level of unemployment was down by 530,000.

It was an inconclusive report in terms of the economic expansion pursued by President Nixon in an effort to reduce joblessness. The statistical quirk in June possibly meant the unemployment rate would show a greater rise next month.

The six-tenths of one per cent decrease in unemployment was one of the sharpest in this decade. It returned the unemployment rate to the level of last October, when the nation was undergoing a strike in the automobile industry.

Most of the decline in unemployment occurred among teenagers and young adults, the department said, with the jobless rate for teen-agers dropping from 7.3 per cent in May to 5.8 per cent in June.

Unemployment among young adults fell from 11.1 per cent o 9.9 per cent.

For men 25 and over, the jobless rate declined from 3.6 per cent to 3.3 per cent. For women 25 and over the rate was down from 4.8 per cent to 4.5 per cent.

Total unemployment in June declined by 500,000 to 78.4 million, the same level as in March, the department said.

He's disgusted with cruelty

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am only in the 5th grade but I have some strong feelings about life and death. Today while walking down the main street in our town I found a bird's nest that had fallen out of a tree. There were some baby birds in the nest that looked like they were just born and couldn't fly yet.

I asked some people who were walking by what I should do with the birds, and one man said, "Shove them down the sewer." Another man said, "Step on their heads." And someone else said, "Either feed them to a cat or get a B. B. gun and when the mother comes, use it on all of them."

Please tell me, Abby, what is the matter with people? What would you have done? FIFTH GRADER

DEAR FIFTH: Some people think it's smart to talk a cruel game, but they wouldn't actually behave that way. I would have borrowed a ladder and with the help of an adult put the nest and the birds back in the tree. Or called the humane society.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a 22-year-old girl should be expected to keep a kosher kitchen for her husband?

ROSALIE

DEAR ROSALIE: Only if he's Jewish.

DEAR ABBY: A lonely widow of 57 wrote to you for advice on how to bring some excitement into her life and you told her to get involved with volunteer work for some charitable organization, political group, or service club.

Abby, what have you against these organizations that you would wish a woman like that on them? If a woman hasn't become involved with her community by the time she's reached her early forties, she is a "taker," not a "giver," and she'd become the kind of deadwood these organizations get bogged down with.

I like the song, "People who need people are the luckiest people in the world." They are also the busiest. Sign me. . . .

BUSY

DEAR BUSY: Some "givers" have been so busy giving to their families they haven't had the leisure to get involved elsewhere until they're widowed. Widows are people. There are all kinds.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrible problem. My son who is 23 and is taking his master's degree in psychology came home last week and told me he intends to marry the girl he has been going with for a year. She is a registered nurse, intelligent and refined; and seemed like a very nice person, but in the course of the conversation I learned that she is 30 years old.

How can I keep my son from marrying this old woman who is no doubt trying desperately to get married to a man regardless of his age? CONFIDENTIAL, PLEASE

DEAR CONFIDENTIAL: There is nothing you can—or should do. Any interference on your part might permanently damage the relationship between you and your son. Perhaps your suspicions are wrong. They could be perfect for each other.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Devlin Is Expecting

DUBLIN (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic firebrand, expects a baby in the fall, a Dublin newspaper reported today.

The pregnancy was reported by the Irish Times. Mary Cummins of the paper said Miss Devlin told her in London: "My morals are a private matter. When I'm a member of Parliament, I represent a political program."

Miss Devlin is 23 and the youngest member of the British House of Commons. She represents a Ulster district.

A man answered the phone at Miss Devlin's London apartment today and said she was out of town. She was scheduled to speak tonight at a political meeting in Essex, near London.

Miss Devlin refused to identify the father of her child. She said she was pregnant when she went to the United States for a lecture tour earlier this year but did not get a medical diagnosis until she returned.

She said motherhood would not keep her from running in the next general election, which must be held not later than 1974. But she told the reporter from the Irish Times that she is not at all certain of the reaction to her pregnancy among the Irish Catholics who sent her to Parliament.

"After all the people of Ireland have many reasons for being concerned," she said.

"Whatever they think of my being pregnant, it ought not for a moment distract them from facing up to the real menances of bad wages, exploitation, slum houses and oppressive landlordism."

"My moral position on abortion is that I would not be able to justify it to myself," she added. "This is something that people have got to decide for themselves. My decision is no."

Leary Held In Switzerland

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss authorities are holding LSD advocate Timothy Leary for extradition to the United States.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said today that Leary, who escaped 10 months ago from a California prison where he was serving a sentence for marijuana possession, was arrested Wednesday at the request of the U.S. Embassy.

The spokesman said Leary was arrested at Villars sur Ollon, in the Lake Geneva area, and was taken to a jail in Lausanne. His wife was with him but was not taken into custody.

Authorities in Europe said the Harvard lecturer was en route from Algeria to Geneva when arrested.

Leary, 50, was taken into "provisional custody for extradition" and was not charged with any violation in Switzerland, the spokesman said. He added that Leary can be held for two months while the extradition request is awaited.

Soup Is Recalled

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — As a nationwide search for 6,444 cans of vichyssoise continued, the Westchester County Health Department announced today that botulism caused the death of a man and paralysis of his wife.

The findings from a state laboratory did not conclusively identify the disease as coming from the suspected soup, which bears the Bon Vivant label, said Health Commissioner Jack Goldman.

The National Canners Association said Thursday distributors and retailers had been notified to return to Bon Vivant, Inc., of Newark, N.J., all products bearing the company label and the code number V-141.

Researchers To Trail Accidents

By WALTER STOVALL
Associated Press Writer

In many parts of the country this July 4 holiday weekend, ambulances, tow trucks and state troopers speeding to auto accidents will be trailed by another man – a traffic safety researcher.

Snapping photographs and interviewing witnesses, the researcher will be gathering data as part of the U.S. Department of Transportation's effort to strengthen safety on the nation's highways.

Auto safety research teams have been at work across the country for the past three years. They include psychologists, engineers and technicians who have probed hundreds of accidents.

One of the teams, from the Research Triangle Institute near Raleigh, N.C., uses a white car with a green flasher light on top. The team monitors the state patrol radio to get to the accident scene before the cars are towed away.

The teams investigate only personal injury accidents involving autos manufactured during the past three years. Each investigation takes from 21 days to three months.

Operating under grants from the Transportation Department's National Highway Safety Bureau, the researchers are still analyzing much of their information. Court suits and the reluctance of persons to say how badly they were injured slow down investigations.

A research team based in Atlanta, Ga., found a variety of causes for individual accidents. A number of investigations showed front-seat passengers and drivers suffered serious head injuries from the hood flying up through the windshield.

"Although researchers have discovered that the majority of accidents involve more than one factor, they agree on the most frequent single cause of accidents: drunken driving.

"We feel the amount of money, time and lip service paid to alcohol is far out of proportion to what is actually done about it," Fred Tyner, chief engineer of the Triangle Institute's research program, said.

Liquor stores in Mecklenburg County, N.C., cooperating with the program, now dispense their product in brown paper bags marked with a chart showing the mathematical chance of having an accident per ounce of liquor consumed.

Another Triangle Institute innovation is a small intoxication indicator given away with each alcoholic beverage purchase.

Arriving at the scene of an accident, the researchers begin their investigation with measurements of three factors: the mental and physical condition of the driver, the condition of the vehicle and the condition of the road surface.

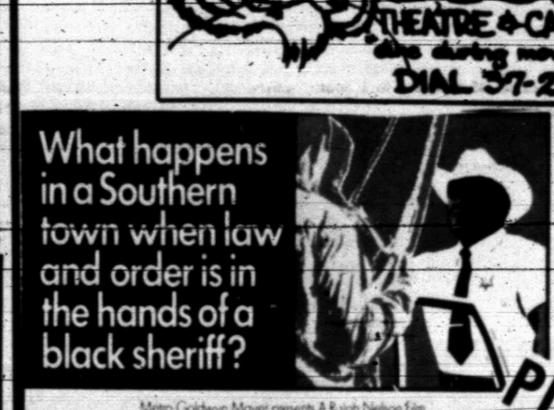

A psychologist interviews the driver to learn his state of mind, while a social worker talks to the driver's friends in an attempt to determine his mental condition before he got behind the wheel.

STARS AND STRIPES DAY — The Fourth of July is the great time for an outdoor meal enjoyed with family and friends. Fourth of July feature is Lemon Barbecued Chicken to treat guests to a meat everyone likes, cooked a new way.

Uncle Sam's Birthday Special Is Grilled Barbecued Chicken

Hurry up, everybody! It's Uncle Sam's birthday, the Fourth of July. All his nieces and nephews are celebrating with a picnic, and the eating outdoors is simply great.

Smell that savory chicken on everybody's grill. It's the meat everybody likes, and the National Broiler Council reminds you that it's one of the most economical meats in the market.

Make your Fourth of July picnic very special this year with broiler-fryers that have been grilled with interesting sauce and seasoning. Lemon Barbecued Chicken is really fabulous. It's got the taste of chicken as prepared in a fancy restaurant and yet it's easy to prepare on your outdoor grill. The broiler-fryers are marinated in a zesty blend of lots of lemon juice, seasonings such as dry mustard, oregano, Worcestershire sauce and scallions mixed with salad oil. The chicken is then grilled and basted with the marinade. Gloriously good!

When you're serving grilled chicken at your picnic, the key words are: PLAN AHEAD. Be sure to start your fire sufficiently before eating time so that you can cook the chicken in the leisurely time that develops flavor and juiciness best. Allow a half hour in advance of cooking time to light the charcoal briquets and to reach the light gray ash stage that is ideal for cooking chicken. The chicken takes from 45 minutes to 1 hour and 15 minutes to grill to doneness. So you see you need at least an hour and a half preparation time including the fire.

For the children at Uncle Sam's birthday picnic on the Fourth, we have a very special barbecued chicken with a milder barbecue sauce that has just the flavorings children like. It's based on chili sauce and there are no added spices in it. It's just the degree of piquancy that children favor. And of course children love chicken that can be picked up in the fingers.

Here are two great grilled chicken recipes to make yours a happy Fourth of July.

LEMON BARBECUED CHICKEN

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons chopped scallions
2 broiler-fryer chickens, halved or quartered

Mix together lemon rind, salt, dry mustard, oregano and Worcestershire in small bowl. Gradually stir in lemon juice. Gradually stir in oil and add scallions. Pour over chicken in large bowl or baking dish; marinate in refrigerator for 2 hours. Remove chicken from marinade and place skin side down on grill set 3 to 6 inches from charcoal briquets that have reached the light gray ash stage. Cook until tender, turning and basting occasionally with marinade, 45 minutes to 1 hour and 15 minutes.

YIELD: 4 to 8 servings.

KIDS' FAVORITE BARBECUED CHICKEN

Place 3 broiler-fryer chickens, halved or quartered, on grill set 3 to 6 inches from charcoal briquets that have reached the light gray ash stage. Cook until tender, turning occasionally, 45 minutes to 1 hour and 15 minutes. Brush frequently with Tomato Barbecue Sauce during last 10 to 15 minutes cooking time.

YIELD: 6 to 12 servings.

Tomato Barbecue Sauce

1 tablespoon sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon lemon rind
2 tablespoons chopped scallions
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup chili sauce
1 cup water

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. YIELD: About 2 cups, enough for 3 broiler-fryer chickens.

NOTE: For more highly seasoned sauce for adults, double amount of lemon rind, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce.

GS's Have End Of Year Activities

Cadet Troop No. 42 closed out the year with a flurry of events. The troop qualified for Emergency Preparedness Challenge, which proved to be a very educational and challenging experience.

They also had a chance to put the learning to the test when they discovered a school bus wreck while on their hike at Camp Ila Rue. Several girls were injured and it was the responsibility of the girls in the troop to render aid. They treated such ailments as broken bones, cuts and bruises, hysteria and burns.

When the time came to prepare the meal for the "patients," as well as the troop, the girls were in for a surprise, the food was missing! In the box was a campass and instructions to follow to find the lost food (the leaders received the blame for this). Somehow a fire was built and a meal prepared. Food had a rather calming influence on the girls just recovering from the adult responsibilities of the day. The leaders were quite proud of them and somehow they seemed to have a little more faith in their own abilities.

Another eventful ceremony was the Bridge Over Ceremony, at which the troop welcomed nine girls from Junior troop 168. These girls are to enter junior high school in the fall. A lovely candle lighting ceremony was held as the new troop members repeated their Cadette pledges. Refreshments were served from a lace covered buffet table.

The last official meeting of the year was an exciting one. A ceremony was held in honor of Diane Chastains' completion of the requirements for First Class. This is the highest rank to be achieved in Cadettes and represents a lot of effort on her part. The troop joined hands and turned back the years in memory as they recalled eight years of scouting shared with Diane. A Court of Awards was also held at which the Girl Scouts received several badges they had earned during the year.

The Weeders Guide

The first seedless pickle has been developed by researchers who genetically induced a "false mating" in female cucumbers.

This pickle, the work of 10 years, tastes the same as its seeded brothers and sisters, is the same color, has the same bumps on the skin but has more crunch, reports Dr. Larry R. Baker of Michigan State University. The major difference is that all are female.

It will be five years before seedless pickles and salad cucumbers make your supermarket. Further testing and increasing seed supplies are the reason.

Growers will benefit from seedless pickles, which grow at the same speed, enabling mechanical harvesters to pick 10 or more pickles per plant at one picking. The standard plant yields one or two ripe ones per picking. Baker says "yields could be increased by more than 50 per cent."

A Dutch seedless greenhouse cuke—highlyle (monoecious), with occasional female flowers that bear the fruit, was the basis for the breeding program. "All we wanted from the Dutch cucumber was the seedless characteristic," says Baker.

After several thousand plants, the researchers got their first good parent lines, which have been used to breed experimental hybrids.

"Disease resistance is vital to high yields," adds Baker. "For this reason, we want our seedless hybrids to be resistant to the four major cucumber diseases—cucumber scab, cucumber mosaic virus, powdery mildew and angular leafspot.

"Pickle processors demand shapely cucumbers because all pickles are packed in glass jars. Good pickle shape is necessary to attract the housewife's eye in the supermarket."

What's the Difference?

Differentiate among herbicides, insecticides, fungicides and pesticides:

Herbicides are used to kill weeds or undesirable plants.

Insecticides kill insects.

Fungicides control plant diseases.

Pesticides include herbicides, insecticides and fungicides. A pesticide is a substance that controls or kills a pest.

Moles in Lawn

Moles cause much damage to lawns and the way to get rid of them is to eliminate their food supply.

"Moles don't destroy many plants or bulbs by directing feeding," says Dr. William Wallner. "Their main damage is dislodging grass and plant roots when they burrow through the soil in search of grubs, earthworms and other insects."

Moles feast on grubs. Kill the grubs and the moles will disappear.

"Recommended treatment is applying chlordane in the granular form to the lawn," says Dr. Wallner.

Loves Antiques

NEW YORK (AP) — Unable to resist "such a delicious moment," Hermione Gingold, 74, says she has yielded to a proposal of marriage from a London antique dealer she has known for 20 years.

"He loves antiques and I think that's why he fell for me," the British comedienne said Thursday. She identified her suitor as Beaudoin Mills.

Woman Theologian Advises Teaching Religion At Home

By JAMES J. GALLAGHER
Written for AP Newsfeatures

BRONX, N.Y. (AP) — "The best way for parents to start teaching small children about religion is to take down those crucifixes from the nursery walls," says a vivacious woman theologian.

The suggestion may shock Christian parents who still live by the customs of their own younger days. But it is an effective way for modern parents to rebel against what Dr. Christiane Brusselmans of Fordham University calls "the way religion is inflicted on children today."

Dr. Brusselmans regularly shocks her colleagues in religious education as well. Speaking in a disarmingly soft and vaguely European accent, she tells them: "The home, rather than the church or schoolroom, is the primary school of religious instruction for children. Parents who give up to others the opportunity to teach their children religion are losing some of the greatest pleasures of parenthood. They may do the children a great disservice as well."

Her objections to crucifixes arise from the same concerns. "Children are psychologically unready to grasp much of the deeper meaning of religious belief," she observes. "They need first to learn religion in terms of simple and attractive ideas like hope and love and joy. Parents are ideally suited to introduce these ideas in their everyday and highly personal contacts with their own young ones."

A native of Belgium, the perpetually cheerful catechist is currently carrying her message to parents over the country on lecture tours to church conventions, college campuses and even local parish meetings.

She recently wrote a book, "A Parents' Guide: Religion for Little Children" and has included in it answers to the 76 questions children ask most frequently about God, death, heaven, hell, punishment, repentance and similar perplexities.

Since she is without children of her own, she explains her interest in teaching religion to the young by recounting experiences in Belgium with her 38 nieces and nephews. "I was still in my 20's and studying theology at the Louvain," she recalls, "when I heard my brothers and sisters complain about the inadequate religious instruction provided for their children. Although my own academic interests had been more theoretical, I felt responsible to help, and opened a Sunday school for the 38 children of the family.

"I made the parents promise to help me out. It was a matter of necessity, but a fortunate accident. The parents, not the teacher, proved to be the crucial factor in the school's success and the children's enjoyment of learning. I have since seen over and over again how important parents are in education, particularly in religious education."

She soon discovered her own calling with the children and switched her studies to catechetics. A fellowship to Catholic University in Washington, D.C., brought her to the United States for a doctorate in religious studies. Two earlier books for parents that have sold 100,000 copies each in three languages established her reputation.

Her own happiest experience as teacher for her family's children occurred one Easter, she said. "I decided to do something about the gory presentations of Good Friday the children had received. The young ones were even having bad dreams as a result.

"I asked the parents to remove the too-realistic crucifixes from the walls of the children's rooms. Then the parents helped their children make replacements from pieces of wood found in their back yards. The youngsters did their best with sticks of different shapes and textures. They produced surprisingly creative images.

"Then the parents suggested the children show in some way that Jesus achieved victory over death and gave joy and everlasting life to the world."

Some nephews and nieces made banners with glorious colors as backgrounds for their crosses. Others strung together dried flowers to form crowns of victory to decorate them. Others fashioned wreaths from palm fronds. In this way, Dr. Brusselmans explains, the cross became for the children a sign of achieving glory.

Cox Seeks Child Custody

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Anthony D. Cox, the former husband of Yoko Ono Lennon, has filed a suit in Harris County domestic relations court seeking permanent custody of their 7-year-old daughter, Kyoko Cox.

Yoko is presently the wife of ex-Beatle John Lennon.

Cox also seeks in the suit to enjoin Mrs. Lennon from attempting to abduct Kyoko and to cease filing legal suits in other jurisdictions. He said custody suits have been filed by her in New York and the Virgin Islands.

Cox has had custody of the girl, except for a short period, since January 1969 when he and Mrs. Lennon were divorced in the Virgin Islands.

Experts Seeking Answer To Service Problems

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most obvious and distressing domestic problems these days is the failure of many white collar and service industries to produce the quantity and quality of work desired of them.

Transportation, power and communications break down, letters contain typos, repairmen decline house calls, men's suits take three weeks to alter, municipal workers are disgruntled, sanitation jobs are scorned.

And while the situation has long existed and has been the fuel of countless blowups, complains and threats, it might possibly get even worse in the next few decades because of two persistent factors: 1. The economy is steadily becoming more service oriented. Relatively more people work at supplying services today than work in agriculture, mining and production of goods. Demand often exceeds supply, pushing up costs.

2. The productivity of service workers is lagging, and in some instances is declining, putting a graduated and not clearly measured drag on economic growth.

The situation is ready-made for the nation's industrial engineers, the men who study systems and methods and motivations, but so far they haven't mastered the problem nor has management expressed great interest in having it solved.

Who is to blame? To begin with, everyone. Individuals at every level of the economic scale are demanding more services. Secondly, educators who have failed to make such jobs attractive. And thirdly, managers who fail to motivate and reward such workers in order to increase their productivity.

You might also blame the industrial engineers. These are the people—once called time and motion study men—who analyzed America's factories, measuring each task in an effort to improve work flow, to methodize, to systemize.

They did a good job. There is no mystery to how much work is expected of a production line worker. It's all down on paper. And the work flow is constantly studied in order to eliminate waste motion.

But until the past decade or so, many of these engineers ignored the service areas, one of the reasons being the difficulties involved in measuring performance. Preciseness is much more difficult to achieve. Service people don't always do repetitious jobs; they may do five separate jobs in an hour.

Now the industry has the tools but, its members say, they still need to educate management on the necessity of using them. "Unless the top management people are interested there can be very little real effect," says Joseph Quick, chairman of Science Management Corp., one of the biggest in the business.

Top management often knows about the situation and still doesn't act, Quick says, even though he maintains it is quite obvious that a worker deprived of pride, without a sense of urgency, or without clear goals, doesn't do as much work as he might.

The job as he sees it is one of education. Many executives fear that the industrial engineers might have a dehumanizing effect on their workers, but the engineers themselves claim they know when to stop.

"Treat a worker like a machine and his productivity will fall off," says Quick, reminding the listener that this is precisely the opposite of what his men seek.

Three Flemish Paintings Stolen

LE ZOUTE, Belgium (AP) — Three Flemish paintings with an estimated value of $60,000 have been stolen from a villa at this fashionable sea resort, police report.

Two of the pictures were attributed to the school of Peter Paul Rubens, the other to Peter Bruegel the younger.

Airport Name To Be Changed

DENISON, Tex. (AP) — The Grayson County Airport Committee, which hopes to take over Perrin Air Force Base when the military leaves will rename it Sam Rayburn Airport after the late House speaker who was instrumental in first having the base located between Denison and Sherman.

The base had a peak strength of 5,000 but this has dwindled to 350 who remain on housekeeping jobs, and will be further reduced to about 32 civilian employes by the fall.

Junior Editors Quiz on MAPLE SYRUP

QUESTION: Who started using maple syrup and where?

* * *

ANSWER: The American Indian residing in the area known today as New England was the first to draw out the secret of the maple tree. The Indians slashed the trees, caught the "sweetwater" as they called it, and then boiled it down in iron cauldrons over an open fire.

The early settlers learned of the value of the maple tree from the Indians. They were taught how to use the sap of the maple and produce syrup. The New England farmers further developed skills in tapping the trees and boiling the sap to produce syrup and other maple products.

The syrup-producing maple is known as the hard or rock maple. It is a stately tree growing from 75 to 120 feet. It has a gray bark and dark green leaves.

The maple sap starts to flow in the late winter and continues for about six weeks. It takes 40 gallons of sap to produce one gallon of syrup which would be the output of four trees in the season. The maple farmer taps the trees and lets the sap flow into buckets or inserts plastic tubing to the cut in the tree and conveys the sweet sap to the sugar house. Here it is boiled down to syrup, maple cream and to maple sugar.

In early April, the Franklin County Maple Festival is held in St. Albans, Vt., a state which is famous for maple products.

Hal Makes Christmas List Early

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Merry Christmas!

What's this—Santa Claus in July?

Well, why not? Only old fogies and spoilsports want to cramp the jolly yuletide season.

It used to start soon after we caught our breath after celebrating Thanksgiving Day. Now Thanksgiving and Pilgrim fathers are only footnotes to the swelling pageantry of Christmas, which is becoming a year-long industry.

The wise shopper—if he didn't buy all his Christmas presents at the Washington Birthday sales last February—will be able to get plenty of last-minute bargains over the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

It may seem odd to try to team up Santa Claus and Uncle Sam, but, after all, odd couples are in vogue nowadays.

Anyway, what with the population explosion, the work is piling up for the Jolly Old Saint and it takes him longer to get it done.

So if you want to be sure old Santa reads your letter and still has time to get the presents you ask for, you'd better write him now in July.

Here's what I'm asking him to bring:

A "not secret" stamp for government officials to mark on official documents which nobody but the printer will read anyway.

Something in metal from Ft. Knox.

A right number from the telephone company.

A pension from my draft board.

A free tooth from my dentist.

An interesting new wonder drug. It's called money, is guaranteed to cure most cases of depression, and has no bad side effects.

A wallet that will self-destruct 10 seconds after a mugger takes it from a victim. The mugger will be turned into ashes too.

A film so clean that my 83-year-old mother can take me to without either of us worrying about having to explain to the other what it's all about.

A boy friend for my teen-age daughter whose hair doesn't look like a mop covered with long fishing worms.

A deflatable inflation.

An official government misinformation official to weed out any unofficial information that might creep into any official misinformational announcements.

Problem Is Design Error

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first problem reported aboard the Mariner 9 spacecraft since its launch—a design error—could force the craft to cut its scientific mission around Mars three months short.

The California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Tuesday an error in the design of an electronic circuit was causing the attitude stabilization system to use nitrogen faster than planned.

A spokesman said the problem isn't expected to interfere with the unmanned, 2,200-pound craft's initial 90-day orbit of the red planet, scheduled to start Nov. 13, with television transmissions and tests of the Martian atmosphere.

But the difficulty could cut the craft's succeeding extended mission from nine months to six, the spokesman said, if the consumption of nigrogen used to fire stabilizing nozzles can't be cut down.

Track Team Hopes To Beat Russians

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — United States men's track and field forces aim to build a solid lead over the Russians today and avoid a repeat of the defeat they suffered last year in the Soviet Union.

Coach Dave Maggard's team counts heavily on the 100-meter dash, which the United States did not win last year, the 110-meter high hurdles, the pole vault and the shot put during the second program of the USA-USSR World All-Star Meet at the University of California's Edwards Stadium.

Scoring will be on a dual meet basis between the United States and Russia, and the United States and the All-Stars.

The Russians objected to a play for a triangular meet scoring system, and it was abandoned.

In the Men's competition, most observers figure the meet will be close, with an advantage to the Russians in the gal's division.

The World All-Stars, with some great individual performers, are not figured as strong over-all.

Dr. Delano Meriwether, the 28-year-old hematologist, and Jim Green provided the United States speed in the 100, facing Russia's Valeriy Borzov, who won the event a year ago, and Aleksandr Korneliuk.

Rod Milburn, who last week cracked the world record with a 13.0 in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Ron Draper, who placed second to Milburn in the collegiate and AAU championships, are favored strongly in the 110-meter high hurdles.

Jan Johnson and Dave Roberts hold the hopes in the pole vault. Johnson, the 1970 NCAA champion from Kansas, won the AAU meet last week, clearing 17 feet. Roberts, of Rice, had the same height but more misses getting to it.

Russia's vaulters, Yurly Isakov and Gennadly Gusyev, have bettered 17 with Isakov holding the Russian record at 17-5. Both Johnson and Roberts have gone higher than that.

World shot put record holder Randy Matson was so upset when he lost the AAU championship that he returned to the ring late in the evening to work on his form last Saturday.

Matson, with a lifetime world record best of 71-5½, teams with Karl Salb of Kansas, the collegiate and AAU champion, facing Romas Plunge and Valeriy and Volkin of Russia.

Salb has thrown 67-2¾, while the Russians have best marks of 63-7 and 64-2½ respectively.

Today's program lists five decathlon events plus 10 finals for the men and seven for the women.

In the women's 100, both Iris Davis of Tennessee State and Pat Hawkins of Brooklyn have better times than Nadyezhda Besfamilnaya and Marina Nikiforova of Russia.

On the other hand, Lyudmila Bragina and Tamara Pangelova of the Soviet Union have run 1,500 meters faster than Uncle Sam's best—Doris Brown of Seattle.

The men's 10,000-meter run matches AAU champion Frank Shorter and Gerry Lindgren against Mikolay Sviridov and Valdimir Afonin of Russia.

Juan Martinez of Mexico and John Farrington of Australia race for the World All-Stars over the crushed volcanic rock track.

Lindgren first came to international notice when he bested the Russians at 10,000 meters as a high school senior in 1964.

The Russians appear strongest in the men's throwing events and the jumps. So Uncle Sam hopes to pile up points in the dashes and hurdles for this meet with its 4 p.m. PDT start.

Scoring will be on a basis of 5-3-2-1.

Four Share Lead At Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — Rolf Deming is a former mathematics instructor at the University of Minnesota who admits to "an adversion against adding up large numbers."

He didn't have to Thursday.

The addition came to 67, five under par, and gave the relative newcomer to the golf tour a share of the first round lead in the $150,000 Canadian Open Tournament.

Deming, 31, but only two years on the pro tour, was tied at that figure with four veterans Rod Funseth, Phil Rodgers and Lou Graham going into today's second round in the chase for the $30,000 first prize.

Canadian George Knudson and little Rod Curl were one stroke back at 68. Veteran Lionel Hebert and Canadian Ben Kern headed a group of seven at 69, three under par on the 6,920-yard Richelieu Golf Club course.

Arnold Palmer, one of the favorites despite a balky putter, was at 70. But the 41-year-old giant still had his problems on the greens, three-putting twice and using 34 putts.

South African Gary Player and United States Open king Lee Trevino had even more difficulties and were well back at 73.

Deming, a pleasant, hard-working player, hasn't come close to winning in his brief time on the tour. His best finish was a tie for fourth in the satellite Azalea Open.

He didn't make expenses last season, has won only $7,500 this season and admitted he has been "scraping the bottom of the barrel a couple times" after his sponsors had given up on him.

Deming served for two years as a mathematics instructor at Minnesota while working on an advanced degree, then gave it up to take a club job for five years.

He chipped in from off the green for two of his birdies, needed only 26 putts and said it is "one of the luckiest days I've ever had in golf.

Pit Rips Mets; Giants Nip Cards

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

It rained on the Pittsburgh pitching parade but the much-battered Pirate staff marched home with a shutout.

The Pirates, who had yielded 54 runs in their nine previous games, blanked the New York Mets 3-0 Thursday on the combined efforts of four pitchers in a game that was delayed a total of an hour and 16 minutes and ended up as a twilight affair.

The victory—his 11th straight and 13 in 16 decisions—went to Dock Ellis, the tender-elbowed right-hander who was knocked out by the second rain delay after five innings.

In other National League action, Cincinnati swamped Philadelphia 5-1 in a night game that was delayed 2:05 by rain, San Francisco edged St. Louis 8-7, Atlanta took Montreal 7-3 and Houston and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

In the American League, Cleveland nipped Baltimore 3-2, Washington edged the New York Yankees 3-1, the Chicago White Sox downed Milwaukee 6-4, Boston tripped Detroit 8-7 and Kansas City walloped California 9-4.

Minnesota and Oakland were not scheduled.

The Pirates' combined five-hit victory, in which Willie Stargell drove in his 80th run of the season, lifted them to a three-game lead over the Mets in the NL East.

"His elbow hasn't been real strong the last three or four times out, so I had to lift him after the second delay," Murtaugh said of his removal of Ellis, the winningest pitcher in the league, who gave up two hits. Each of the first two delays were 20 minutes.

Jim Nelson relieved Ellis and ran into trouble when the Mets loaded the bases on two singles and a walk with two out. Nelson Briles marched out of the bullpen to end the inning. Giusti, getting his 16th save, stopped the Mets in the seventh, waited out a 36 minutes rain delay and then allowed just one hit in finishing up.

When it wasn't raining in Philadelphia, Cincinnati's Jim McGlothlin was mopping up the Phillies.

The rain delay came in the third inning after Willie Montanez homered for the Phillies. When play resumed it was all Cincinnati, with the Reds getting McGlothlin all the runs he needed with two in the fourth.

West-leading San Francisco rode a big second inning and the hitting of Bobby Bonds.

Bonds and Tito Fuentes each singled home two runs in the Giants' six-run second and then after Ken Henderson broke a 6-6 tie with an RBI single in the sixth, Bonds doubled home what proved to be the winner. Joe Torre and Lou Brock homered for St. Louis.

Atlanta ripped Montreal with a four-run ninth inning that was keyed by rookie Ralph Garr's second triple of the game. Garr also rapped two singles.

Felix Millan snapped a 3-3 tie with a single, then Garr, who had tripled in an earlier run, tripled home two more and scored on Mike Lum's double. Bob Bailey homered for Montreal.

Don Sutton pitched a five-hitter for his fourth consecutive victory and Richie Allen and Wes Parker drove in fifth inning runs to give Los Angeles its victory.

Yankees, Cubs Win LL Tilts

The Yankees clipped the White Sox 17-7 and the Cubs nipped the Braves 4-3 in two Little League tussles held in Towle Park Thursday.

Yank pitcher John Velasquez limited the White Sox to four hits—doubles by Danny Chaidez and Bobby Riggins and singles by Cary Welsh and Larry Lee. The Yanks collected eight hits, led by Tommy Hester, who stroked two doubles and a home run. Velasquez and Dana Hanna each hit two singles and Kinney Thompson hit one.

The Cubs got only three hits off Kerry Young and Mike McClure, but they won with a tally in the 5th inning. Tim Burnett doubled in Lee Allen Jarrell, who singled ahead of him. The other Cub hit was a single by Allen Lee. The Braves collected six hits off Jeff Reed, but they were scattered. Young stroked three singles, Vance Voss hit a double and Robbie Moore and Kirk Johnson each hit one single.

Rebs, Dodgers Win Jr. Tilts

The Rebels blanked the Braves 6-0 and the Dodgers whipped the Bullets 15-5 in two thrilling Junior Teenage League games held in Towle Park Thursday night.

Rebel pitcher Cary Coffee twirled a 3-hitter, giving up singles to Randy Golden, R. Halford and R. Smith. The Rebs socked nine hits, including two doubles and a single by Widgeon Emerson, two singles by Danny Brumley and one single each by Greg Gafford, Dennis Young, K. Ragland and D. Phipps.

Dodgers batters rapped five hits, including two singles by Clifton, a double by Dryden, and single base hits by Sterling, and Beard. The Bullets collected four hits, including two singles by Roberson and one single each by McCartney and Crow.

Braves, Sox Win FL Tilts

The Braves beat the Cubs 7-2 and the White Sox flailed the Yankees 17-6 in two Farm League tilts held last night in Towle Park.

The Braves tallied two runs each in the 2nd and 3rd frames and three runs in the 4th inning. The Cubs got three runs in the 1st and one in the 2nd. G. Newman and R. Lamb singled for the Cubs.

The Sox's took a commanding 6-0 lead in the 1st inning, then buried the Yanks with seven tallies in the 2nd inning and four more in the 3rd. The Yanks got two runs in the 3rd and four in the 4th.

J. Fulford singled for the White Sox, and Ronnie Wooldridge singled for the Yankees.

Smith In Finals

By GEOFFREY MILLER

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Stan Smith, the lanky soldier from Pasadena, Calif., will face John Newcombe Saturday in a bid to break Australia's hold on the Wimbledon tennis title. But he will be the underdog.

Most players and critics predict the final could be a long match, with sets perhaps going to 8-8 and a tie-breaker. Newcombe is favored to win for the third time in five years.

Australians have won the title nine times in eleven years.

Ken Rosewall, the little 36-year-old Australian master who lost 1-6 1-6 3-6 to Newcombe in the semifinals Thursday said "Smith is a dangerous player and he must have a chance. But Newcombe is much safer off the ground, and I make him favorite to win."

Smith reached the final Thursday with a 6-3, 8-6, 6-2 victory over Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., who was handicapped by a back injury.

Today was women's finals day.

Fans slept all night on the sidewalks outside the All England club, hoping to see Evonne Goolagong, the 19-year-old Australian, dethrone the reigning queen, Mrs. Margaret Smith Court.

If Mrs. Court wins today and Newcombe wins Saturday they will make Wimbledon history. Since the challenge round was abolished in 1922, and the champion has had to play through from the first round, the two reigning singles champions have never retained their titles in the same year.

The tie-break, introduced this year, is the first major change at Wimbledon since the challenge round was scrapped. When any set except the decider—reaches 8-8, it is decided on a "sudden death" game of 12 points, with each player serving alternately.

Primitive Art Displayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major collection of primitive American folk art, rescued more than six years ago from the Washington slum warehouse where a government laborer toiled on it for 14 years, went on public display for the first time Sunday.

Its title: "Throne of the Third Heaven of the Nations' Millennium General Assembly."

A 30-by-16-foot gallery at the National Collection of Fine Arts is crammed almost to overflowing with the work: the crowning life effort of James Hampton, a black laborer, to construct a church's entire ecclesiastical appointments.

Glittery is the word for what Harry Lowe, curator of exhibition and design at the National Collection, calls "clearly a fine example of American folk art."

Throne-like chairs, altars, tables—all are covered with intricate layers of foil in gilt and silver. Constructed of wood and cardboard, the work is dotted with hundreds of burned-out lightbulbs, again covered with foil. Angel wings abound, built up of intricate layers of cardboard, covered in foil.

Dominating the display of 30 major works is a throne, more than seven feet tall, crowned with the words "Fear Not" in letters covered with aluminum foil.

Little is known about the artist except that he worked for the General Services Administration; and that for 14 years he paid out $50 a month rent on a cold brick warehouse in a slum area alley within sight of the Capitol to work on his creation.

Hampton died in November 1964 at the age of 53, leaving no clue to the vision which led him to put in untold hours on the "Throne of the third Heaven ..."

A coincidence led to saving his work from the trash heap. A month after Hampton's death, The Washington Post printed a story about "the strange legacy of a lonely man." A London paper picked up a similar story and a friend sent a clipping to Lowe, who had just come from the Tennessee Fine Arts Center at Nashville, along with a facetious note which, as Lowe recalls, said something like: "I suppose that in your new job you will be acquiring works like this."

Thus learning of the creation, Lowe went to see it, decided it was indeed worth acquiring, and raised the money to buy it—largely a matter of paying back rent on the warehouse.

The work has been in storage since it was salvaged in January 1965.

He said bids to display the work have come from the Walker Art Center in Milwaukee, the Whiteney Museum and the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City, but no decision has been made as to whether it will travel.

Some wall plaques included in the display are in English, but others are printed in a sort of cabalistic script which no one has been able to decipher. Notebooks and loose papers found in the warehouse contain hundreds of pages of the same script.

Inscriptions on the plaques which are in English, with Hampton's spelling intact, read:

"This is true that Adam the first man God created appeared in person on January 20, 1949 this was on the day of President Truman's inauguration.

"It is true that on October 2, 1946 the Great Virgin Mary and the Star of Bethlehem appeared over the nations capital.

"This is true that the Great Moses the giver of the ten commandments appeared in Washington April 11, 1931.

"And God spake all these words saying I am the Lord thy God which have brought three out of the land of Moses."

PORT ARTHUR (AP)—Ralph Smith, 69, had no idea he was about to be bulldozed out of his garage—literally—but he has a 15-year-old youth to thank for his life.

Smith was sitting in his garage recently when Bill Portier raced in, pulled the man to safety, then watched as a bulldozer driven by two other youngsters plowed through the garage. The big machine crashed out of the garage, damaged a beached houseboat, narrowly missed a fishing rig, then nosed down into a canal.

Young Portier was fishing in the canal when he spotted the two boys near the bulldozer. It had been left over the weekend by a construction crew working nearby.

The youngsters climbed atop the dozer, cranked it up, and rumbled toward Smith's garage.

Smith received no injuries and credited young Portier for saving his life.

The dozer did $3,000 to $4,000 damage.

The unauthorized drivers were taken to police headquarters before being released to their parents.

Government Operating On Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning this week, almost the entire United States government is operating on emergency relief.

Not that it's anything to get terribly upset about. It happens every year at this time, the beginning of a new fiscal year.

With literally hundreds of federal departments, agencies, administrations, commissions, boards, councils, services, institutions and corporations to fund, Congress never gets around to distributing all of the federal dollars on time.

When fiscal 1972 was born Thursday, Congress had managed to get only three appropriations bills through both houses and into President Nixon's hands: the bill for the Office of Education, the bill jointly covering Treasury and the Postal Service and also the appropriation for Congress.

That left unfunded such entities as the Departments of Defense, Labor, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, State, Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, Justice and most of Health, Education and Welfare.

Also unfunded for FY 72, as the fiscal year is known around town, were a host of smaller agencies; the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the American Battle Monuments Commission.

The vast majority of the federal government structure isn't exactly on the fiscal ropes because Congress has passed for all unfunded agencies emergency stop-gap legislation to provide operating funds until new appropriations are passed.

For most unfunded agencies, the stop-gap legislation permits them to continue spending at or near the levels set for FY 71. That way everybody continues to get a paycheck, but no raises, and new projects have to wait the new appropriations.

Wood insulates better than brick, concrete and aluminum, says the American Wood Council.

FIREWORKS STAND — Tommy LaRoux (left) and Bill Gilliland put the finishing touches on the Jaycee's fireworks stand located on Thirty-seventh Street next to the Town and Country Food Locker. The Jaycees use money made from the sale of fireworks and other projects to help defray the cost of their many community service projects.

Religion's Role In Government Still Issue

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — From the first, the United States staked its destiny on religious premises.

They were the cornerstone of the American Revolution, which the nation celebrates this weekend, July 4, and the basis of its founding manifestor, the Declaration of Independence.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights . . ."

Liberty, said Thomas Jefferson, is " a gift of God."

Yet just what part religion should play in governmental operation has been a keenly sensitive issue ever since, as shown again this week in the U. S. Supreme Court ruling barring state payments to church schoolteachers.

While forbidding what was called "excessive entanglements between government and religion," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the Constitution does not demand "total separation between church and state."

This "is not possible in an absolute sense," he said.

It is a fine, difficult and variable line, rooted distinctively in the tensions of American history.

While the country found justification for its founding revolt from British domination in the greater sovereignty of God, the new nation also embraced another basic concept that has permeated the world.

It is the idea of religious freedom, that men's faith must be free of governmental controls. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof," says the First Amendment.

The U. S. Constitution set a new pattern of religious freedom which gradually has spread through much of the world. It is what Jefferson first called a "wall of separation between church and state."

"We are a religious people whose institutions presuppose a Supreme Being," Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has said, although he is one of the strictest interpreters of church-state separation.

Through the years, the stress and pull of both values, both prime rudiments of the nation, have produced varying approaches. Schools themselves remained largely under Protestant auspices, with state support, until 1840 when public schools got started.

But in the last quarter-century, with growing diversity in America, the issue has brought a continuing line of court battles.

In that time, the high court has banned officially sponsored prayers and Bible reading from public schools, rejected religious grounds for Sunday closing laws, and prohibited requiring belief in God as a criteria for conscientious objection to war or for holding state office.

But the court also has sanctioned teaching "about" religion in public schools, has upheld the phrase "under God" as part of the pledge of allegiance, has approved states paying for transportation and textbooks for church school pupils, and allowed "released time" from public schools for religious instruction.

While the latest ruling bars state payments for church schoolteachers, it leaves undetermined the propriety of various other state programs, such as educational grants to pupils or parents and "dual enrollments" in public and church schools.

A score of court cases about such programs are under way.

Lubbockite Feared Dead Is Alive

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Michael Wayne Hubbard, whose friends thought he died 12 days ago when his plane crashed into Lake Bridgeport, is alive in Lubbock today.

Hubbard, 27, turned up Thursday. Memorial services which had been scheduled for 3 p.m. today were hurriedly cancelled.

A family statement issued Thursday said Hubbard's plane did go down in Lake Bridgeport and is still there.

But, the statement continued, Hubbard crawled out of the plane and onto a wing, but the aircraft sank and Hubbard swam about 200 yards to shore.

While trying to hitchhike, Hubbard walked nearly to Decatur, and finally reached Oklahoma City "where he sought professional help after wandering the streets for several days."

After talking it all with doctors and lawyers, the family said Hubbard returned to Dallas from where he contacted relatives Wednesday night.

The statement said that Hubbard, reported missing June 21 on a flight from Fort Worth to Lubbock, encountered turbulence including lightning and rain. Clouds closed in and he could get no help by radio.

He dipped below the clouds, and there was Lake Bridgeport. The family said Hubbard was preoccupied by business problems and that the weather frightened and disoriented him. He ditched.

Hubbard is co-owner of an educational consulting firm in Lubbock where his wife, three daughters, mother and father, and two brothers reside. The family said there would be no further statements.

AFTER NEARLY A YEAR

Kidnaped Tots Are Reunited With Mom

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two small kidnap victims, so thin from malnourishment that their mother didn't recognize them, were recuperating at a hospital today.

Trini Esquivel, 6, and her sister, Paula, 3, were reunited with their mother after police found them at a residence here. Officers said they were kidnaped nearly a year ago near Chicago and had bad scars on their wrists where they apparently had been bound.

"I couldn't recognize them. They look like they never ate," said Mrs. Victoria Esquivel, 23.

When she first saw them at a hospital here, Mrs. Esquivel told attendants they were not her missing children. But Trini apparently recognized her mother and began crying.

Mrs. Esquivel pushed back Trini's hair and found a scar, then realized the children were hers and began crying with joy.

Police said the youngsters were kidnaped last August in Aurora, Ill. Their mother said she moved there to get away from a man here who "kept bothering me."

A hospital spokesman said the two children had scars a fourth of an inch wide on their wrists, and that they were badly malnourished and frightened.

He said Trini told officials their wrists and ankles had been bound with ropes.

By Thursday, both were listed in satisfactory condition.

Police said they located them Wednesday after a man was arrested here June 20 on traffic warrants.

Charged in the case was Jose Aureliano Sifuentes, 35, who police said has 11 children of his own.

In Illinois, Kane County officials said Sifuentes was charged with kidnaping and the FBI had charged him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. He was freed Wednesday on $10,000 bond.

Police said they were still investigating the case. The children had been staying with a woman in her 80s, officers said.

Midland Gets Bell Center

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — Plans were announced Wednesday by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for construction of a $31 million telephone facility making Midland and largest long distance switching center in Texas.

T.O. Gravitt, vice president and general manager of the company's regional headquarters, said the project will begin next year with completion slated for 1974.

The center will handle about two million long distance telephone calls a day, employing about 270 people earning $2 million annually.

Fan Demands An Apology

LONDON (AP) — An American who describes herself as the Beatles' No. 1 fan claims she was socked in the nose by one of the objects of her devotion.

Carolyn Mitchell, 24, of Salt Lake City, demanded an apology from Paul McCartney for the incident she said occurred a week ago at his hillside hideaway near Campbeltown, Scotland.

Miss Mitchell said she was sitting on a neighbor's land when McCartney drove up and "started screaming and cursing and calling me things.

"He started hitting me and my nose began to bleed. He then pulled my hair," she said.

"I think he's horrible," Miss Mitchell added. She said she had moved to London to be near the Beatles.

McCartney was quoted by the Daily Express as saying that although he told his fan to go away "in no uncertain terms," he did not hit her.

Police here said a report of Miss Mitchell's complaint would be sent to authorities in Scotland who will decide if charged are warranted.

Symbols of Love

...the Eagle and the Flag. They are signals of warning that declare we are a free people.

A land where every man may worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. The Eagle is for strength and elevation of thought and purpose. The Flag is for loyalty and sacrifice.

One tells of greater dreams for tomorrow... the other calls to mind heroic service rendered by the good and the great. Liberty loving fathers formed this government, "of the people, by the people, for the people." It was founded on the brotherhood of man because here, the Fatherhood of God existed.

God's Book is the source of our freedom. July the Fourth is the birthday of our independence. God bless all the Americas and make us a channel of blessing to all the world.
