Commercial Failure
Report For Texas
Very Encouraging

AUSTIN.—Continuing the good showing which has characterized the record of commercial failures in Texas since early last year, only 43 bankruptcies were included in the weekly reports to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. This number is smaller by more than a third than that reported for April, 1932, 69, and there are only 110 cases since 1920 when the total number of commercial failures in April was smaller than it was this year.

"Total liabilities owing by the bankrupt firms were $44,000, only a trifle more than a fourth of the total for April a year ago, $1,624,000, and substantially below the $569,000 reported for March, 1933." The Bureau's statement said. "This decline is reflected in the average liabilities per failure record, which was only $10,233 for April, as compared with $17,781 in March and $28,536 in April a year ago."

"The only disheartening feature of the report was that on the basis of assets on the books of the bankrupt concerns, there was available for creditors only 28.4 cents on the dollar—and creditors are not likely to realize the book value of the assets. In March, 50 cents on the dollar was available for creditors, and in April a year ago, 45.1 cents."

Orphan Heroes Who Saved Train from Fatal Plunge

Heroic "orphans of the storm," these six-tousled youngsters found themselves suddenly famous after their presence of mind and bravery saved a speeding Erie Railroad train from plunging with its 500 passengers into a wash-out near the Passaic Orphans' Asylum, Passaic, N. Y. Espying a gully cut under the track by a torrential rain, one of the boys raced back to the orphanage for his chums. And when six pairs of their eyes watched the widening they decided it was time for action. The New York train from Passaic was almost due. Waving their raincoats, they raced up the track and at the risk of their lives refused to get off until the locomotive was brought to a grinding stop before them. Here they are, receiving the thanks of Flagman John Rogers.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR TESTIMONY: I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest.—Psalm 40: 9.

MINERAL WEALTH OF TEXAS

Until the last few years the mineral deposits of Texas were not considered of any great importance. Now, Texas is considered one of the wealthiest mineral regions of the world. It has long been known that salt deposits existed in Van Zandt county. Experts have whispered it to the Associated Press correspondents that the deposits of saline ore there are considered to be sufficient to last for 2400 more years. It required more than 1000 years of mining to deplete the salt dome of Belgium, once the salt center of Europe.

Grand Saline is the salt center of Van Zandt county and the salt dome there is said to be the largest in the world. The deposit is over two miles in length and over one mile wide. Its surface is underlaid with 99 that the dome contains over 20,000,000 tons of pure salt. The experts claim that salt will be produced from the Grand Saline dome long after the oil and gas resources of Texas have been depleted. They say, too, that unless a synthetic substitute is developed salt mining should take first place among Texas' natural resources. At the present average prices of salt, the potential value of the Grand Saline dome is over 400 billion dollars.

Salt is not the only mineral in which Texas leads. The largest natural gas reservoirs in the world are under her broad acres. It is piped for domestic purposes to thousands of outside cities and towns, and for fuel purposes for the industrial centers of the North and the West. Besides these, Texas has the largest sulphur deposits in the world. It is said that there are phosphate beds in certain West Texas counties whose values some day will be staggering to the mind. These, with the iron ore in East Texas give Texas a vast amount of mineral wealth.

CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING

When the State Legislature failed to pass the Congressional redistricting bill two years ago, those men failed to see the possibility of one of our Texas cities having three representatives in Congress, but that is the way it happened. In the race for Congressman-at-Large two of the Dallas entries were chosen. When the final count was made it was noticed that Hattin W. Summers, Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., and Sterling P. Strong, all residents of Dallas, had received tickets to the national assembly.

This arrangement did not please congressional aspirants, as well as many other citizens, in other sections of the state. So, as soon as the legislature met in January, movements were started to do something about it. However, the movements were not very rapid, because any congressman is leary about giving up any of his old territory or taking on new territory. But any redistricting requires some of both and it seemed that all efforts were fruitless. Then, an unexpected event happened. Clay Stone Briggs of the Galveston district died. This gave an opening for the wedge which would rip asunder the other districts. Efforts gained momentum rapidly and now the redistricting for congressional purposes is a fact.

One of the first results noticeable is the grooming of an unusually large number of candidates for the races in 1934. Another possible result is that the two Dallas extras will not be up for re-election. The lopping off of great slabs of the old districts and the adding of some new territory to most, doubtlessly, will weaken the incumbents and give courage to would-be congressmen to go in and try to win. At this distance it appears that Thomas L. Blanton will have, at least, two opponents in his next campaign to hold the berth in the seventeenth.

IMPROVED BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN TEXAS

Lest we forget, the University of Texas has a bureau of business research. Its early May report revealed greatly improved business conditions in Texas during March. For instance, the Texas cotton textile industry made a much more impressive showing than was to be expected on the basis of unusual seasonal increase, "with sales, production and unfilled orders gaining by much more than the usual seasonal proportions and showing substantial gains all last year."

Unfilled orders at Texas mills, according to the survey, jumped 24 per cent during March to the highest total for any month since October, 1929. In addition to this, fewer Texas commercial failures were reported in March this year than in any other March since 1920.

Well, get the figures straight: Only 32 Texas firms went into bankruptcy during the month. Not since September, 1929, has the number of failures been so small. In March last year there were 79 failures. According to present indications, the survey estimates the Texas wheat crop would be about 18,500,000 bushels as compared with the actual harvest of 29,500,000 bushels in 1931.

All of this is a reminder that federal agents of the department of agriculture predict an increased acreage planted to cotton in 1933. Why should the cotton growers invite continuous financial disaster?

You have undoubtedly seen clumps of greens in your market, but unfamiliar with the variety and more or less at a loss as to how to cook and serve them, refrained from buying them. If you make a habit of trying these vegetables, you will be able to add variety to many menus at small cost.

There are at least a dozen kinds of leafy greens now obtainable in all city markets. Almost all are rich in iron, sulphur, phosphorus and vitamin A so essential to bodily growth. All supply "roughage" to keep the system vigorous, cleansed and the blood purified.

The tender, fine-textured and delicately flavored greens like spinach, young chard and beet greens are cooked without the addition of extra water, the drops clinging to the leaves after washing giving sufficient moisture. The coarser leafy greens like dandelions, kale, chichory and escarole must be cooked in a small amount of boiling water.

Baked Escarole
One bunch or two pounds escarole, 4 tablespoons fat or butter, 1 bouillon cube, ½ cup boiling water, salt, pepper.

Blanch escarole by plunging into boiling water for five minutes. This removes excess bitterness. Drain and put into a buttered baking dish. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water, add fat or butter and salt and pepper and pour over escarole. The amount of salt depends on the kind of fat you use. If you use bacon fat less salt will be necessary.

Behind the Scenes in Washington
WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—What American voters were thinking about when they went to the polls last November is the subject of a unique survey and report by Edward S. Robinson, professor of psychology at Yale University.

Professor Robinson has long doubted that the public stupidity is as great as the public seems to think it is. He suggested to the National League of Women Voters last year that they get together on a study of political opinions of voters. Last fall they obtained from about 8500 men and women in 37 states their reactions to the candidates and to 24 typical political statements that were being used in the campaign.

The professor is still unable to assert any faith in the sort of public omniscience which has been claimed by some of the more ardent worshippers of democracy. But he is reassured in his faith that "our present tendency to dismiss the public mentality as a thing of extreme simplicity is probably far from the truth."

THE voter is becoming more liberal in his political thinking. Robinson demonstrates. Retaining some of the principles of Mr. Hoover's rugged individualism and still vague as to what socialism may be, he is nevertheless veering slightly toward socialistic doctrines. He believes now, for instance, that:

"The rich should bear a larger proportion of the burden of taxation."
"It is the duty of the federal government to place farming on an equal footing with industry."
"The Hoover voters, the Roosevelt

The booster class of Methodist church opened with Mrs. W. W. Phillips, presiding in absence of officers, and a group of hymns, programmed, in observance of Music Week. Prayer was led by Ed F. Eastland Girls Entertained by Breckenridge Girls
The Girls Athletic association of Breckenridge extended invitations to 20 high school gymnasium girls, and their coach, Miss Mary Carter, to be their guests, in Breckenridge, this week-end, at the high school auditorium, when three towns were represented in the gathering. Eastland, Ranger and Breckenridge, on the second annual play day of Girls Athletic association.

The assembly at noon, brought the introduction in of stunting by the visitors and hostesses who were presented ribbons of different colors which they matched with those shades on the six valley ball courts and played match games in pairs, the contending sides vying for supremacy.

A vigorous game of basketball for five minutes, prefaced a "lame dog" race when each girl had one foot tied and hopped on the other.

The snake crawl, and archery contest concluded the merry round of frolics, when they adjourned to the auditorium for a stunt program put on by Eastland and Breckenridge girls.

The local team gave "the magic formula" and the Breckenridge girls "the athletic wedding," when the bride appeared in tennis garb, and the groom in football regalia. The party was taken to the Country club for a swim, and a most hospitable picnic supper.

Eastland guests were Miss Mary Carter, high school faculty, and Misses Kathleen Cottingham, Norma Kelly, Carolyn Cox, Joan Johnson, Susie Shepherd, Wayne Cope, Carolyn Doss, Clara June Kimble, Lurline Brawner, L. G. Tucker, Della Webb, Faye Tucker, Ophelia Smith, Earline Harvey, Margaret Frye, Joe Earl Uitz, and Geraldine Francis.

Work In Mission Fields of Japan

The following is from Joe J. Mickle Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Mickle of Eastland, who is a teacher in Kwansei Gakuin, Nishinomiya-Shigai, Japan. Because of the existing conditions in that country and the war between China and Japan, the article is of special interest at this time:

"March 28, 1933. Dear Friends: From time to time Mrs. Mickle and I send out 'home letters' and with each letter we find ourselves wishing we could give it a bit more of the 'personal' appearance. Especially is this true when we find our letters going to many of our old school friends and to others whom we have known in the North Texas and Northwest Texas districts. So even though the appearance may not be that of a personal letter, the spirit behind the letter is that of personal communication with each of you.

"A short time ago a certain Christian leader in Japan asked the question, 'Is Christian internationalism the only way in which Christianity can express itself?' This seemed to me an altogether useless and foolish question. Useless because the answer is so obviously 'no,' and foolish because if there was ever a time when Christian internationalism needed to assert itself, this is that time. Christianity can, and does, find expression in many forms but there is no use in our trying to escape the obligation that falls upon us at this time as Christian internationalists by saying that we will shift the emphasis to some other form of Christian expression. I am not trying to say that Christianity must not first of all find its abode within the human heart, but I am saying very emphatically that the complete fulfillment of the Christian ideal must include a Christian internationalism. As both food and water are necessary to satisfy the human body, so the Christian of today cannot be satisfied without both the 'inner' and 'outer' expressions of the mind of Christ.

"Many of you have doubtlessly read the laymen's report, 'Re-Thinking Missions.' If you have not, I hope you will. At the request of our board of missions this whole report is receiving careful study on the mission fields. Some of us have been asked to view certain sections of this book and send our reviews to the secretaries of the boards in America. There is much in this report that is helpful and sane and many of their recommendations will doubtlessly be acted upon. It fell my lot to review the chapter dealing with higher education in Japan, and as my typed review of this chapter is right here before me as I write, I want to quote one part of it:

"The educational needs in other parts of the world are great, but Christian schools are far more apt to maintain their broad international outlook and not hand themselves to the cry for narrow nationalism. Nowhere is the need greater than in Japan today. Christians in America cannot put their money into any field where it will produce more in the way of international sanity and help avert the danger toward which many say we are drifting—the danger of a war in the Pacific."

"I feel that upon the Christians in America falls a two-fold obligation. First, there is the task of making America so thoroughly Christian that both her inner life and her international actions may always be based upon Christian principles, and second, aiding in whatever way they can the promotion of the Christian life and ideal in other lands. This latter is the task to which we have addressed ourselves here in Japan.

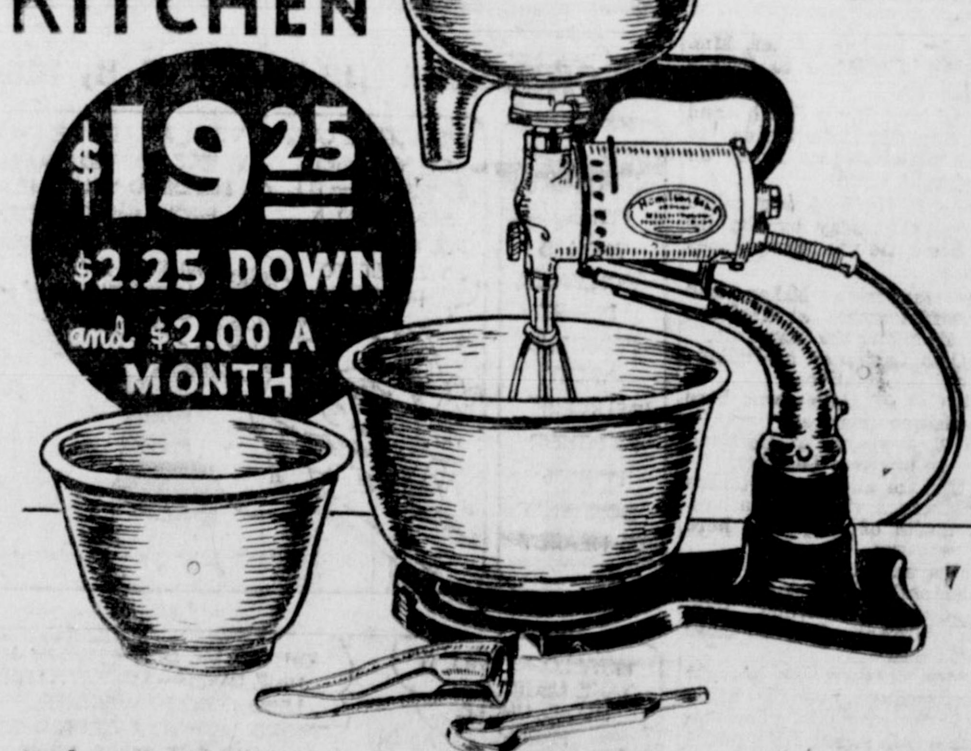

"To those of you who are not acquainted with Kwansei Gakuin I would like to say that since it was founded by Bishop Lambuth more than 40 years ago it has been devoted to the education of young men. Today we have more than 2,200 students in all departments including high school, university preparatory school, university, theological school and literary and commercial professional schools. We are located in the very heart of the manufacturing and commercial center of Japan, being midway between Kobe (population 800,000) and Osaka (population 2,500,000). The former is the greatest port in Japan and the latter the greatest industrial city. They are only 18 miles apart.

"Spring is here now and within a few days the cherry blossoms will be out in all their glory; out in their glory for two or three days at the most and then gone! After that come the azaleas. It is difficult to imagine any place on earth more beautiful than the hills right behind Kwansei Gakuin when the azaleas are in bloom. Personally I prefer the azalea to the cherry blossoms, but no Japanese would agree with me I am sure.

"If any of you, finding yourselves unable to visit Japan just now, should care to write us a letter instead we would be most happy.

"Sincerely yours,
"MR. AND MRS. JOE J. MICKLE JR."
