19th annual fair begins this week

At noon Thursday, the doors of Scurry County Coliseum will open to the public and the 19th Annual Scurry County Fair will again be underway.

A myriad of exhibits and fair competitions will then continue until 10 p.m. nightly Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Activity at the coliseum will begin Tuesday, however, as fair booth construction gets underway and the first entries for fair competitions begin to be accepted.

Locals will be vying for fair ribbons in a range of competition areas. A list of entry deadlines for these is included inside this issue on page 8A.

Fairgoers can look forward also to special activities nightly beginning Thursday with a dog show in the coliseum ag annex at 7 p.m.

Friday night, the annual mule show will be staged in the ag annex beginning at 7 p.m.

Saturday morning, the annual fair chili cookoff is planned with judging to take place around 11 a.m. At 1 p.m. Saturday, the youth horse show is scheduled.

Entertainment is planned nightly also at the stage area of the coliseum.

The 3rd annual domino tournament will stretch over the three days of the fair as will carnival attractions provided adjacent to the coliseum.

For children, the popular Kiddie Barnyard is again scheduled with an assortment of pets and farm animals to be on view.

Other attractions planned on a daily basis include cow milking and horse shoeing demonstrations, children's treasure hunts and periodic visits from fair clowns.

Fair livestock judging events will include beef, See FAIR, page 11A

Portrait of the Working Cowboy." A Creative Writing Contest for all ages is planned also in conjunction with the upcoming celebration of the American cowboy. (Photo Courtesy Scurry County Museum)

'Cowboy' writing entries sought

The Scurry County Museum of Snyder is sponsoring a Creative Writing Contest for all ages in conjunction with its upcoming celebration of the American cowboy entitled "Where the Buffalo Roamed."

Packets containing a bibliography of books and articles on the cowboy, sample ideas and contest rules have been mailed to Scurry County and area schools. Junior colleges within a 200-mile radius have been included in the mailing also.

Subject for the contest is the American cowboy as he appears in history, folklore or the present day. Categories include non-fiction and fiction.

In the non-fiction category, these may be a narrative or descriptive essay. Fiction categories should be either a short story or poem with no length requirements placed on these.

The divisions of the competition by age include: grades K-3; grades 4-6; grades 7-8; grades 9-12; junior college age; and adult.

The adult division is a special category reserved for "closet writers" who love to write but who have never been published or paid for their work.

Judges for the secondary school and adult divisions are Sherry Kafka Wagner, an author and writing consultant; Rebecca Tillapaugh, an English instructor at Midland College and a member of the Texas Association of Creative Writing Teachers; and Stanley Williams, author and professor of English at Odessa College.

For the elementary level, faculty members from Western Texas College will judge including Janet Halbert, a frequent judge for literary UIL events.

Winners will be announced Sunday, Oct. 16, at the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre as part of the "Where the Buffalo Roamed" celebration. It is made possible in part by a grant from the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state program for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

At the ceremony, writers will be given the opportunity to read their works.

The winning series will be published in a special edition of the WTC campus newspaper.

Deadline for the contest is Oct. 6.

Cash taken at college

Western Texas College officials reported cash had been stolen from a WTC office Friday.

At 3 p.m., Duane Hood, dean of student services, called police to report the theft. He told investigators that money in excess of $400 had been taken from the dorm office on campus sometime between Aug. 29 and Sept. 14.

Who needs United Way...?

Like a child in need of an adult's helping hand. A new United Way agency is the Oil Patch Foster Parents Association, which comes to the aid of abused or neglected children who need a temporary home. It is estimated from 15 to 20 are helped each month.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A gossip tells you about others, a bore talks about himself, and a brilliant conversationalist talks to you about yourself."

Guest speakers appearing before Lions Club have been known to wear protective armor. For most, Lions Club is a welcomed luncheon break from the serious business world. Lions go to have fun and they usually do.

Last week Lion Brud Boren, a Scurry County historical buff, brought Mike Banta as the program. Banta is co-chairman of the county's family history book and it was his assignment to encourage the Lions to write their individual family stories and turn them in before the deadline.

The Lions conducted themselves true to form. After the meeting one of the Lions spoke to Banta who also enjoys a good time. He said, "They really made me feel at home. They acted and listened just like my kids."

While on the subject of Lions, don't forget that the Snyder club will be conducting its annual light bulb sale Tuesday evening. Proceeds from the sale go to help sight conservation.

We read a news report last week that the West Texas city of Odessa has one of the highest crime rates in the country. Per capita, it is said to have led the state in murders last year.

Another news item may have given us a clue as to the problem. It seems they direct their enforcement to the wrong area. Recently four assistant city attorneys were in Municipal Court where a private citizen was on trial for the hideous crime of building his carport 4½ feet closer to the property line than the Planning and Inspection Department wanted him to.

The citizen lost even though the man's neighbor wasn't bothered by the carport. In fact, he even offered to give up some of his own property in order to make the carport comply with city regulations. That didn't work either.

Maybe we're not suppose to understand.

Over at East Elementary, a teacher was discussing the North American Indian and asked the class if anyone could tell what the leaders of the tribes were called.

"Chiefs," said one little girl.

"Correct," said the teacher. "And what were the women called?"

A sharp lad spoke up from the back of the room, "Mischiefs."

United Way count nears

An estimated 1,200 United Way donation packets are scheduled to be picked up by Monday as more than 90 volunteer workers conclude their efforts for this year's campaign.

Their work has been concentrated during the past week and United Way officials say they are ready to begin counting donations. The goal this year is $77,300 in campaign dollars.

Drive volunteers have been soliciting donations from county business and industry workers, professional personnel, public school and college staffers and public employees.

These funds will go towards the continued operation of eight United Way "agencies" which benefit Scurry County citizens. By far the majority of those aided are county youth.

United Way dollars help fund the Snyder Boys Club, Buffalo Trail Council of Boy Scouts, Snyder Child Day Care Center, West Texas Girl Scout Council, West Texas Rehabilitation Center, Oil Patch Foster Parents Assn. plus the local operations of the Salvation Army and Red Cross.

Drive chairman for this year's effort is Roy McQueen.

ANNUAL SALE — Snyder Lions Club members will conduct their annual door-to-door lightbulb sales campaign Tuesday beginning at 5:30 p.m. Snyder Mayor Rod Waller (left) has proclaimed Tuesday as "Snyder Lions Light Bulb Day" in observance of the campaign. Lions schedule lightbulb sale

Members of the Snyder Lions Club will conduct their annual door-to-door lightbulb sales campaign Tuesday beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Chairman of the 1983 campaign is Lynn Smith, assisted by Dr. Michael Dunham and Dr. Don Newbury.

"We expect to have a big crew out working light bulb sales, and a strong response from our citizens who can use the bulbs, and at the same time assist our Lions Club with important projects meeting critical needs," Smith said.

Major projects of the club include numerous programs for sight and hearing conservation, crippled children's camp, Girl's Town, USA and Texas Boys' Ranch.

Snyder Mayor Rod Waller has proclaimed Tuesday as "Snyder Lions Light Bulb Day" in observance of the sales campaign.

Purchasers will have the option of buying bulbs in two ways — six 60-watt bulbs for $4, or a combination of two 60, two 75 and two 100-watt bulbs, also for $4.

Dennis Chisum, Lions Club president, urges all residents of Snyder to purchase bulbs from club members.

Ask Us

Q — Who is the oldest active team member on the Dallas Cowboys?

A — The latest Cowboy roster lists fullback Robert Newhouse as the oldest member of the team. Last January, he turned 33. He has the double honor of being the Cowboy with the greatest number of years in the NFL with 12. Tight end Billy Joe DuPree is 33 also, celebrating his birthday in March, and defensive end Harvey Martin will turn 33 this coming Nov. 16.

In Brief

Seeking to break impasse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., trying to break an impasse between President Reagan and Senate Democrats, says he will ask Congress to decide whether, and how long, U.S. Marines should stay in Lebanon.

Baker, R-Tenn., outlined his proposal at a meeting with White House officials and Democratic leaders Friday. He said he would work out the details over the weekend, present the proposal to the Democrats for review on Monday and introduce it next week.

Local

Planetarium show Sunday

The planetarium at Western Texas College will show "Fall Skies" in a program open to the public at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The facility is located on the north side of the WTC campus and Sunday there will be signs to direct visitors to it.

There is no charge for admission. Persons wishing information about the program are invited to call the office of Dr. Shell Hillis, planetarium director, at 573-8511, ext. 317.

Entities plan sessions

Governmental entities to meet in Snyder this week include Scurry County commissioners, the Snyder city council and the Snyder school board.

Commissioners will meet for their regular weekly session at 10 a.m. Monday in the courthouse. The council will conduct a special meeting Monday beginning at 6:30 p.m. at city hall and the school board will discuss its updated school policy manual Thursday beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building.

United Way reports due

A report meeting for Scurry County United Way division chairmen is planned Wednesday at 10 a.m. at city hall.

Initial donation figures for the campaign this year are expected to be announced at that time. A goal of $77,300 was set this year for the effort.

Diabetes group will meet

The Scurry Chapter of the American Diabetes Assn. will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the conference room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

A demonstration of the different types of blood sugar monitoring systems will be exhibited. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Two thefts cleared in Snyder

Snyder police closed two recent theft cases and arrested a local woman on misdemeanor theft charges Friday.

Rex Henson, manager of the K-Bob's Restaurant here, called police at 8:55 p.m. Friday and requested no further investigation into the theft of an undetermined amount of money from the restaurant office Sept. 6.

All of the missing money had been recovered, he said.

Also listed as recovered by its owner Friday was a collie dog reported stolen from 4003 Eastridge Ave. earlier in the week. No further investigation is planned in this case.

City police were summoned to the Amoco Pipeline Co. office at 2311

Ave. K at 11:27 a.m. Kathy Kitchens, an employee of the pipeline company, told investigators that she had seen a woman remove something from a car parked at the office.

A short while later, officers arrested a 40-year-old woman in the 3000 Block of Ave. I and charged her with the misdemeanor theft of a headlight cover from a late model Ford owned by Salome Barrera.

Rudy Crabtree of 2405 37th St. called local authorities at 12:56 p.m. Friday to report the theft of an outboard motor from his residence. He told police that the 20-hp Mercury brand motor, valued at $400, had been taken sometime Thursday night. Gary Merrell of the Trinity Methodist Church filed another theft report at 3:30 p.m. He told officers that someone had stolen 5 gallons of gas from a van parked at the church sometime between 9 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday.

In other action, city police made five misdemeanor arrests Friday night.

One juvenile suspect was arrested for public intoxication at the high school football game and three other men were arrested later in the evening on the same charge. The three men were also found to be illegal aliens and turned over to the border patrol.

Two local men were arrested Friday evening and charged with driving while intoxicated.

City vehicle in accident

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Friday.

Involved in the 4:42 p.m. mishap in the 2900 Block of Ave. V were a 1979 Chevrolet owned by the City of Snyder and driven by Jesse Evert and a 1981 Honda automobile driven by Orveta Fryar of 2316 42nd St.

No injuries were reported in the accident and damage was listed as minor to moderate.

Tower okays spending hike

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, serving his fourth and final term in Congress, says the Soviets' recent downing of a Korean jetliner bolsters this country's need for increased military spending.

Tower, R-Texas, reaffirmed during a Friday visit to Kelly Air Force Base that he would not seek re-election. He had traveled here to help celebrate Hispanic Heritage Week.

WTC paper rated tops

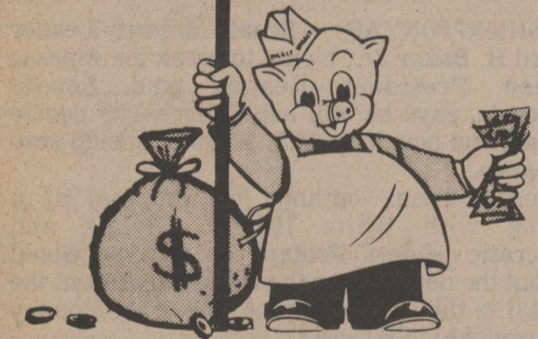

The Western Texan, campus newspaper at Western Texas College, has received a first place rating in the junior/community college division of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at Columbia University in New York City.

The publication earned a total of 926 points of a possible 1,000 to win the top rating.

Critic judge James F. Paschel of the University of Oklahoma School of Journalism, wrote, "The Western Texan is a fine student newspaper that serves the readership consistently well. Your timeliness, relevance and variety are always tops."

Editor and associate editor for the 1982-83 semester were John Moesch of Roby and Jana Harris of Ozona, respectively. Dr. Michael McBride was the publication adviser.

Darla Doty and Beverly Cross now serve as advisers.

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

Throughout my married life the most startling change that has occurred has been the relationship between my mother and my husband.

The man at the wedding who was "not good enough for my daughter" is now worth two of me.

Frankly, I never thought she'd turn on me. Mothers aren't supposed to. They never did in those B-movies where a mother would tell the warden, "I don't care what he's done, he's my son," and the kid would yell, "Get the old bat out of here and let's get on with it."

And remember Stella Dallas standing in the rain peering in the window for a glimpse of her daughter who was ashamed of her? That's what I thought it was going to be like. Right or wrong, she's my daughter and she's always right.

The change was barely noticeable at first. He'd bring mother a bouquet of fresh flowers for some occasion and she'd say, "Erma never got me flowers that you don't have to dust before." Or when we'd climb into a car she'd say, "I never got to ride in the front seat before. Erma always said if I rolled down the window, I wouldn't get so sick back there."

After the children came, she really put her longevity in the family to the test. I was pitching out uneaten food from the kids' plates one night when my husband said, "Are't you going to save any of that?" I looked to Mother for support. She looked at me like I was something that had just missed the trap for me set under the sink and said, "Waste not, want not. Lord knows that's not how she was raised. We never could get her to see the values of money. Maybe if she were out there like you earning it, she'd be more frugal."

Throughout the years my husband has been treated to the history of my stubbornness, my dedication to spending more money than I have, my bad temper, lack of patience, inability to finish anything, short interest span, irritability when things don't work out, reluctance to face reality, lack of consistency, basic shallowness, refusal to set goals, refusal to listen to anyone with experience, back-talking to elders, and taking more naps than a woman my age needs.

Psychologists and marriage counselors say that a good family relationship makes for a happier marriage. There is no doubt in my mind it makes longer ones. I would have left my husband and gone home to Mother years ago, but what for? He'd be there.

HOW TO CONQUER NERVOUS TENSION

your bed or does it stay tense and rigid? Do you have difficulty falling asleep or do you awake very early?

When your neck, back, shoulder, abdominal, pelvic or thigh muscles are taut, they may pull your spine out of normal alignment. Psychic stresses, as well as physical and chemical stresses, can cause misalignments of vertebrae compounding nerve tissue insults and consequent aches, pains, and functional disturbances. Serious disorders can be the result.

Nervous tension creates physical as well as mental problems, harnessing human potential. If you find yourself irritable or constantly "on edge" and not easily able to relax or to concentrate, it would be wise to consult a doctor of chiropractic. He is highly skilled in correcting spinal misalignments, reducing spinal tension, and aiding the restoration of normal nerve function to all vital organs of the body. In addition, the doctor of chiropractic can recommend a thorough program for releasing tension, developing your ability to relax, and more adequately coping with environmental stress.

Americans are a busy, ambitious people, moving at a rapid demanding pace. This high-pressure creates abnormal tensions in otherwise healthy people engulfed in an ever-increasing technological society.

How do you know you are suffering from tension? Watch for these signs.

1. Do you talk extra loud, extra fast, in a higher pitch than normal?

2. Do you have a "washboard forehead"? Occasional frowning is a normal reaction for a person under control — but it can be a sign of mounting tension.

3. How is your posture? When you lie down, check your neck and shoulders for tightness. Does the small of your back relax into the comfort of

ISENAY, France (AP) — The canals of France are a picture gallery. A new landscape unfolds around every easy bend. Indeed, since the speed limit is equivalent to a fast walk, the views are almost still-lives.

The pictures: Geraniums in Window Box. Vanilla-hued Charolais Cows Seeking Coolness in Shaded Mud-brown Pond. Stormcloud-gray Slate Tower of Ancient Ochre Chateau Stabbing Above Dark Green Trees. Red American-made Tractor Cutting Hay of Van Gogh Gold.

The fragrances: a barnyard. The village bakery at dawn. Blossoms of a canal-side hedgerow.

There are 5,000 miles of canals in France. They pass by their share of cement plants and train trestles. On some, modern locks winch 350-ton barges up massive concrete rails in what are in effect portable bathtubs.

On others, however, the locks are more apt to be small, mossy chambers where you can cool off under the squirting leaks of the old gates depending on the heat and how indifferent you are to the blasé French attitude toward riverine hygiene.

The canals are open to all: the professional captain who may raise his family year around on his immaculate, black-hulled 150-tonner; the yachtsman with mast stowed on deck; the classic canal bank fisherman in undershirt, beret and blue pants and obligatory dead cigarette wedged in the corner of his mouth, dozing in a canvas chair until summoned either by his wife to the picnic table or by the alarm bell on his line tinkling that he has a minuscule fish on the end of his immense pole.

You can also, as in this case, rent a barge and join the crowd. The barge is 42 feet long and is loaded with six people and about four cases of wine, one rose and one white from Sancerre and two of Pouilly fume from across the Loire River, all bought after taste-testing in dank caves.

This is a trip from approximately somewhere to wherever the canal goes. It is not arduous. The severest task may be trying to drive a mooring spike between the overgrown paving stones along the bank, stones that may have been laid by order of Louis XIV or maybe XV or even XVI.

You may tie up almost anywhere.

Cabin fever? Bread, pate and wine buyers; sightseers or those who find a nap under a tree irresistible can go off on bikes and catch up farther along the way. The canal is only going where it is going.

Time, along the canal of the upper Loire River and its offshoot, the Canal du Nivernais, is a clock without hands. There are the ruins of a medieval castle near Uxeloup where, would you believe, a falcon perches by the crumbling battlements waiting, perhaps, for its duke. There is a farm girl right out of eternity strewing corn from a sack for the geese. And the cutter of grass, at eventide, could have posed for Millet.

The only reminder that this is a century with a particular number is that the farm girl is wearing a stinky bikini and the cutter of grass is trying to start one of those gas-powered jobs you strap to your shoulder. He succeeds and blasts away at the weeds for an hour, disrupting any thoughts of the Angelus.

This is the backyard of France, a countryside as bountiful with light and texture as its language with its vowels. It takes three, for instance — e,a,u — to say "water" which is pronounced as but one — "o." "Goose," too, has three — o,i,e — pronounced as but two — "oy."

This surfeit of the French is to bedazzle the stranger, as is their landscape.

If there is any element of time, it is the locks which pop up wherever the reigning Louis' engineers decided to go up or down to accommodate the terrain. In the backwater canals, the locks' doors — two at each end — are cranked by winches that date to the invention of the toothed gear. One heave to get the old cast iron and wood door moving and you can crank it the rest of the way with one hand. Meanwhile, the lockkeeper — in French, an ecleusiere who runs his echuse from a redtile roofed house by the lock — has adjusted the flow gates in the doors to let water in or out depending whether you're going up or down. The process takes 10 minutes and raises or lowers you eight feet, on average, to provide a whole new perspective on what was ahead and is now behind.

Some lockkeepers manage two echuses. He or she will leave you to finish with the doors and bicycle off to get the next lock ready. You can tip the ecleusiere with a cigarette, share a glass of wine or just compliment them on their roses, geraniums and hollyhocks.

You could spend a lifetime at this, cruising the canals of France, the Low Countries, the British Isles, Germany, even Sweden. Some do. An Englishman with a dog and a boat that looked like it hadn't been painted since Dunkirk said he had taken early retirement to "see if canal life was worth the gamble." He'd been seeing for the last five years.

Canals don't lend themselves to the long perspective. They are revealed in stages, by surprises.

What looks like just another high bank unveils, when ascended, a whole meadow filled with the tents of weekenders. Pink tents, blue tents, tan tents, tents with peaked and flags. It could be the army of Charles the Stout of Burgundy — some histories, not French, refer to him as Charles the Fat — encamped on the eve of some battle.

Then there was this hamlet, Isenay. It crowns a steep hill above the Nivernais Canal and overlooks the Aron River valley to the hazy outline of Burgundian uplands in the distance. There is a Renaissance chateau, visible from the canal across a field and up through an alleyway of trees. That is why we had stopped, to take a closer look. It was closed to the public and invisible from the road.

Isenay did not seem much, about a half dozen houses clustered around a tiny Romanesque church, all very, very old except the chickens scratching along the road. But a tour of the church reveals an inn behind it. The inn has a terrace of crushed white stone behind a hedge and several white tables under a canopy of very old, very wise and carefully pruned trees from under which you can gaze at the homeland of Charles the Stout over a beer, even though it is not yet noon.

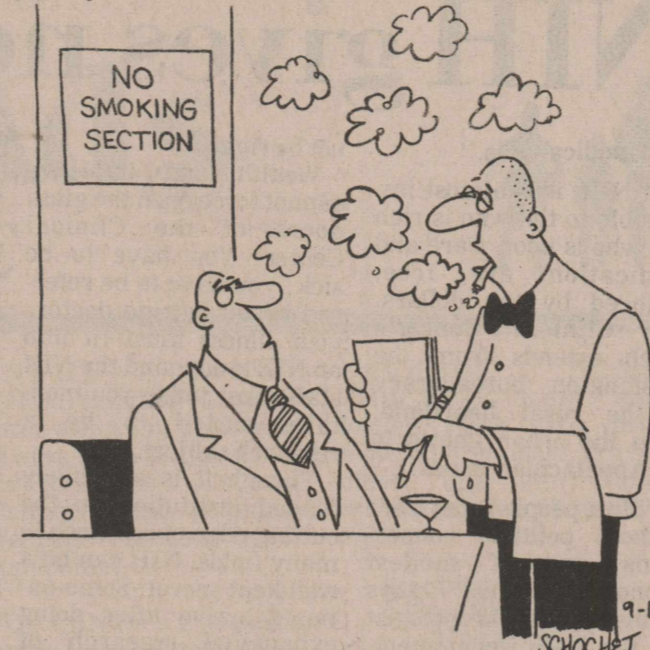

Might one eat? The patronne says no, her husband cannot serve lunch because the water is off. There isn't even ham, for sandwiches. A pity.

At the last moment, she relents, one would like to imagine because she has yielded to the spirit of the canal. Lunch will be served. It runs five courses and takes over two hours. It offers the best scallops, the second best Dover sole and the best brook trout that have ever been eaten.

The chef, a well-nourished Breton designed along the lines of Charles of Burgundy, emerges from his kitchen ad is hailed as a hero of France by his exhausted patrons.

On the wall of the dining room is a plaque befitting him, his scallops, his trout, his inn, his wife, his terrace.

Game Day slated at Senior Center

Wednesdays have become "Game Day" in the Senior Citizens Center. Skip Bo and 42 are the features, with play scheduled from 9-11:30 a.m. and 1:15-3:30 p.m. Senior citizens who enjoy these games are invited to join the group any Wednesday.

The Sunshine Choir will begin fall rehearsals Wednesday from 10-11 a.m. New members are invited to join the choir at the meeting.

The Whataburger has joined the Snyder merchants who extend special privileges to Senior Citizens, Gloria Shaw, center director, has announced. The Whataburger will send a card for a complimentary Whataburger as a birthday gift to senior citizens registered at the center. The Whataburger card will be mailed with the birthday card sent by the center.

The importance of nutrition will be discussed in a program at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the center's dining room.

County residents 60 years of age and older are invited to visit the center, located at 2603 Avenue M, and become active in its program. A complete schedule of events in the center and those sponsored at other locations can be obtained from the office.

Veteran officer shot in DPS office

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — A 34-year veteran of the Texas Department of Public Safety who had briefly played professional baseball was killed when a gun used by another trooper to demonstrate gun-handling techniques discharged, striking the 58-year-old captain in the chest, officials said.

Capt. Robert Ray Jones was pronounced dead at 4:15 p.m. Friday at Baylor Hospital, officials said. The shooting occurred about 3:05 p.m. in the troopers' report room at the DPS regional license and weight office in Garland, according to DPS trooper Joe Rich.

Jones asked to see gun-handling and survival techniques trooper Ross Powell, 36, learned last week at retraining school in Austin, Rich said.

Powell, a 13-year veteran of the force, unloaded his revolver, demonstrated some self-defense techniques, then reloaded the gun and placed it back in his holster, Rich said.

"The captain asked, 'Well, what would happen if you came out with the left hand?' He (Powell) reached his left hand to the right side, pulled the gun out, and it discharged, hitting the captain in the chest area," Rich added.

Rich said a routine investigation would be made by the Garland police, although the shooting was believed to have been accidental. DPS internal affairs officers also will investigate, he said.

Singing tower is ringer's domain

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — Milford Myhre has a rare job, one that many people would have trouble even spelling correctly. He's the carillonneur at Bok Tower Gardens, a Dutch immigrant's gift to the United States.

"They are better than almost anywhere in the world," Myhre says of the 53 bronze bells he plays in the 205-foot tower, the magnificent centerpiece in 130 acres of gardens, ponds and woodland.

Although the bells are almost completely hidden from the view of the 175,000 visitors who come each year, the music Myhre creates from "the singing tower" fills the area with distinctive sounds likened to carillons of Belgium, France, England and, to a lesser degree, some other European countries.

Here, visitors find a peaceful alternative to the dazzle and hubbub of Florida's more renowned tourist attractions. Serenity envelops all as they walk the neat paths through the gardens filled with trees, bushes, birds and squirrels.

The stillness is broken only by Myhre's live recitals or his taped renditions of classical music broadcast every half hour over an elaborate quadrophonic sound system.

Edward W. Bok had the gardens established and the bell tower built here on Iron Mountain, one of Florida's highest points at an elevation of 295 feet.

Bok, born in Helder, Netherlands, Oct. 9, 1863, and his parents moved to Brooklyn, N.Y., when he was almost 7 years old, says Charlene Johnston, director of community relations for the American Foundation which Bok created in 1923 to direct his philanthropic enterprises.

Bok was also a successful author and was editor of the Ladies' Home Journal from 1887 until 1919 before retiring here.

"Mr. Bok found Iron Mountain a peaceful place to walk and in the late 1920s got the idea for building the bell tower remembering them from when he was a child in the Netherlands," explains Ms. Johnston.

Construction of the tower began in 1927, was completed a year later and was dedicated in 1929 by President Calvin Coolidge. Bok died Jan. 9, 1930.

The tower was built with pink and gray marble from Tate, Ga., and tan coquina rock native to the St. Augustine area.

The bells, cast in Loughborough, England, vary in size from 17 pounds to 12 tons and are hung from four levels.

Myhre, president of the World Carillon Federation, plays the carillon from a keyboard located in a small playing room on the level below. He manipulates rods and foot pedals which activate bell clappers.

"It has no similarity to other keyboards," says Myhre, one of only two paid, full-time carillonners in the United States. "There's as much difference as there is between an organ and a guitar." Myhre became the second carillonneur here in 1968, succeeding Anton Brees, who died the year before.

The tower, 51 feet wide at the base and 37 feet across at the top, has never been open to the public. Librarian Helena Caldwell works on the fifth level and Myhre has a studio on the sixth. The ground floor is a large single room, equipped with fireplace, where Bok worked in retirement.

Outside the massive brass entrance depicting the Book of Genesis in 30 panels is Bok's grave, marked by a simple plaque. The tower is encircled by a moat filled with goldfish and a distinctive wrought-iron fence created by Samuel Yellin, a Polish immigrant who Ms. Johnston says did much of the iron work at St. Marks Church in Philadelphia and the gateway at Washington National Cathedral.

For some patients NIH gives new lease on life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twig Johnson was drifting one night towards death.

"It seemed so attractive and so comfortable. Death seemed so pleasant," he remembers.

"And then I got really angry and remembered the Dylan Thomas poem about 'Rage, rage against the dying of the light.' ... I said, 'Give me those chemicals. Let's get the poisons in here. Kill cancer.'"

Lymphoma was expected to kill Johnson within 10 days. He endured months of experimental chemotherapy at the National Institutes of Health. Five years later, he is alive and free of cancer.

Near-miracles are not unknown at the NIH Clinical Center, a boxlike brick ark of human subjects on a grassy, tax-supported research campus in suburban Bethesda, Md., 12 miles from the Capitol.

The hospital is a research tool for NIH's 11 institutes; a frontier on which innovative treatments are tested by doctors and patients locked in a pioneering partnership.

There is no accurate measurement of success or failure for the hundreds of studies in progress. Some patients come here with little or no chance of survival, and never reach the near-miracle stage. Some buy added months or years with experimental treatments; some endure the treatments and die anyway.

But the most dramatic are those whose lives are on the line. They do not come to the NIH Clinical Center expecting to die. They are fighters, willing to tolerate risks and ravaging side effects as they stretch for each extra day.

Four years ago, doctors told Bernadine Flescher she had ovarian cancer and a 50-50 chance of lasting two months.

"My doctor said, you have two choices — you can go to the National Institutes of Health, or you can just accept it," says Mrs. Flescher.

"It would have been so much easier to give up. But life was too precious," says the fragile-looking woman. "I told the doctor, 'I want every day I can get. If it prolongs my life a year, I want it.'" It's been almost three years since the cancer disappeared.

The Dluzak family moved from Lancaster, Calif., to Rockville, Md., in 1976 to be near an NIH expert in the rare Wiskott Aldrich syndrome afflicting both of their sons.

Mark, 10, and Matthew, 7, were born with defective abilities to maintain enough platelets or produce proper antibodies to stop bleeding or enough antibodies to fight infection. Chances are one in three they will get lymphatic cancer.

Since their move, the Clinical Center has seen Mark and Matthew through frequent, frightening sieges. Among them: a case of chicken pox that put Mark in hospitalized isolation for six weeks and brain surgery for Matthew after he woke up paralyzed on his entire right side.

"If we were in California, I don't think either boy would be alive now," Mrs. Dluzak says.

Richard Dluzak, now a computer programmer, was a meat cutter in Lancaster. His union benefits didn't begin to meet the hospital, drug and travel expenses incurred in a statewide search for top-notch medical care.

"We were going bankrupt in California," says Mrs. Dluzak. "We went to see congressmen and their aides said we'd be better off on welfare. We didn't want welfare. We just wanted a little help with medical bills."

At NIH, it is almost impossible to tell who is rich and who is poor. Care and medication are free, financed by tax dollars. The Clinical Center's reach extends from the Washington bureaucracy to the rural heartland, from the urban ghetto to the Appalachian mines.

"Most people I met were without political connections and of modest economic status," says Johnson, an anthropologist for the State Department. "None of them knew senators or congressmen. I heard of a number of cases of very influential people who didn't get in. That really impressed me. In this town, how could it not be rigged?"

Wealth and influence cannot force open the glass doors of the Clinical Center. You have to be sick; you have to be referred by an outside doctor; your illness must fit into an NIH study, and the NIH staff must judge you mentally suited to be a research subject.

Though it is a publicly funded institution on the cutting edge of research in many fields, NIH can be a well-kept secret. Some patients arrive after doing exhaustive research of their own to find the best available care, and many come over the objections of conservative or skeptical doctors.

Johnson, a strapping blond 6-footer, was directing Peace Corps volunteers in Brazil when tumors formed in his lymph nodes and began spreading through the rest of his body. He was brought back to a Washington hospital.

As his organs failed, his weight plummeted and his life expectancy dwindled to a few days, Johnson had three choices: conventional chemotherapy where he was, surgery at another university hospital or an untried chemical brew at NIH.

"A number of doctors said, 'You'll be a guinea pig.' They said NIH could do anything they wanted — that I would have no control. They implied I'd be taking a substantial risk by entering there," recalls Johnson, 41.

But he says the NIH approach — the new chemotherapy, followed if necessary by surgery — seemed very sensible.

"All the individual chemicals had been tried, although not in this combination," he says. "They didn't say, 'What's on the shelf? Let's put it in him.'"

The NIH chemotherapy Johnson chose has turned out to have a 50 percent survival rate, compared to 10 percent for conventional treatment. As for the third choice, he says, "In retrospect, I'm convinced that surgery at that time would have killed me."

NIH's medical mavericks are sometimes better received by seriously ill patients than by colleagues around the country who don't know what is happening there or don't approve of it.

"We've tried to make them aware of what we're doing. There are going to be disagreements," acknowledges Dr. Sam Broder, associate director of the National Cancer Institute's clinical oncology program.

Broder says a four-drug combination to fight Hodgkins disease, developed 20 years ago at NIH, "was opposed by virtually everybody at that time. It was a fight all the way." The regimen turned out to cure 50 percent of patients in the advanced stage of the disease, and is still in use today.

Cancer in-patients occupy about 118 of the Clinical Center's 504 beds, the highest number allocated to any one institute. The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute is second with slightly more than 90.

The center strives for a homey atmosphere. Playrooms offer computer games for highspirited Mark and Matthew, while nurses dispense reassurance to older patients grown uneasy after dark. Street clothes and off-campus field trips are encouraged, as are picnics and wheelchair races.

Treatment plans often employ bold new chemotherapies and surgical techniques, but one area remains largely untapped. That is the psychology of survival — whether a fighting spirit, a sense of humor or a religious faith can make a difference.

Three NCI doctors are studying psychiatric symptoms reported by breast cancer patients in relation to disease recurrence and survival. However, their results are preliminary and their research is not designed to assess the power of attitude.

Thompson attends banking seminar

MADISON, Wisc. — Derwin Thompson of Snyder, an employee of the West Texas State Bank, was among those who attended the 39th annual session of the Herbert V. Prochnow Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin-Madison this summer.

The school, sponsored by the 16 state bankers associations in the Central States Conference of Bankers Associations, was established in 1945 to provide bankers with advanced study and research in banking, economics and monetary problems. This year, 1,225 students from 43 states and Puerto Rico attended.

Instructions in the Graduate School of Banking comes in three two-week summer sessions; along with home study work, to be completed in the period between summer resident sessions. The school's faculty of over 160 people includes leading bankers, economists, educators, consultants and government officials.

Clinical Center helps NIH

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — The 11 National Institutes of Health, part of the Department of Health and Human Services, are located on a rolling 306-acre tract just outside Washington city limits.

The 30-year-old Clinical Center is one of 50 buildings on the grassy campus. With more than 500 beds and 1,100 laboratories, it gives NIH investigators a chance to test their hypotheses on carefully chosen patients.

"There is a strong emphasis on understanding the causes as well as the treatment of a disease," says Dr. Michael Ebert, acting director of the Clinical Center. "Usually when a patient leaves, it is after a longer hospitalization but also with a very careful review of his condition and a plan of treatment that's usually good for a couple of years."

Each institute uses a specific number of beds and laboratories in the Clinical Center for research projects. The institutes also contribute prorated portions of the center's budget, which is $89 million this year.

NIH is tax-supported and care is free. A very limited amount of financial aid is available to some outpatients and their families for temporary housing and transportation costs. Cancer patients constitute 95 percent of those in the program, called special ambulatory care. Patients come from all over the United States and 2 percent are from foreign countries. The mid-Atlantic region is the most heavily represented.

All patients must be

Campers using computers

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — If Steffan Gross is asked to write an essay on how he spent his summer vacation, the 11-year-old computer whiz is likely to tell of making decisions involving no less than the future of the world.

And he won't be alone in sharing his summer adventures in software. Steffan, who lives in New Providence, N.J., is one of thousands of youngsters across the country combining fantasy with hands-on learning by taking part in the computer camp boom.

Some camps, such as the one run by the Appel Farm Arts and Music Center in Salem County, have installed computer terminals and other hightech gadgets alongside their sports fields, music rooms and hiking trails.

Drew University here and other colleges have offered day programs taught referred by other doctors. NIH writes letters to doctors and medical journals to publicize its studies, and sends staff members on the road to inform community hospitals of its work.

by mathematics professors on campus; a few camps are run by corporations.

"There's such an interest in computers, you have to keep up," said Tim Moss, special projects coordinator for the Appel Farms camp in Elmer. "You've just got to do it since the kids are much more likely to sign up for a camp with computers."

It is not only America's brightest youngsters signing up for Pac Man-style summers. Most of the camps cater to all types of children, but a few, including the one sponsored by the city of Newark, incorporate remedial education programs designed to motivate struggling youngsters.

Many camp directors say they plan to continue or expand their programs next summer. But while software mania is going strong, some camp owners caution that in a few years, the computer craze may be as unfashionable as Space Invaders.

Studies are usually determined by the merit of individual research proposals, but occasionally also by public pressure, as in the case of AIDS research under way at the National Cancer Institute.

"These specialty things come and go in the camps, whatever the fad is," said Alan Stolz, a spokesman for the American Camping Association, the country's largest industry trade group for summer camps.

"In the last couple of decades, the public fancy has gone through a number of them," Stolz said, citing the waning interest in camps with tennis and backpacking themes, both very popular in the 1970s.

Appel Farms acquired on loan an advanced music synthesizer, ordinarily used only by professionals or colleges, and allowed campers to create an original piece for an orchestra. Campers in their early teens played music into the synthesizer, via a keyboard, and used the computer to print out the score for the conductor, plus parts for various instruments.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

SMOKE HARMS CHILDREN

Smoking parents may contribute to the development of respiratory disease in their children. According to the British Medical Journal, children exposed to parents' cigarette smoke at home had twice as many lung problems as children living with non-smoking parents. Infants are especially susceptible to this smoke, which impairs their defenses against infection. Be fair to your children and don't pollute the air they must breathe.

Diamond M art to open in Odessa

"Art From the Diamond M," a traveling exhibit of works from the collection of the Diamond M Museum, will open at the Presidential Museum, 622 North Lee, Odessa, on Sunday. A reception, open to the public, will be held from 1 to 4 p.m.

The exhibit contains 23 paintings, four lithographs and twelve pieces of sculpture.

Painters represented include Manuel Acosta, George Phippen, W. H. D. Loerner, N. C. Wyeth and Frank Schoonover.

Sculptors include Anna Hyatt Huntington, James Earl Fraser and George Phippen. American, English, European and Eskimo works are included to show the diversity of the Diamond M Collection.

"Art From the Diamond M" will travel to museums in Alpine, Canyon and San Antonio during the next few months. "A traveling exhibit gives us the chance to reach new audiences and to make available works that we might not have the space to exhibit here," says Janet Parker, associate director of the Diamond M. "We also feel that this sampling of our collection will pique the interest of visitors who will then make an effort to see more of the collection here in Snyder.

The exhibit will continue at the Presidential Museum through October 30.

Millionaire 'different' friends say

DALLAS (AP) — Slain millionaire tycoon Henry Harrison Kyle has been portrayed as a self-made man who exploded when his sons couldn't match the success he forged.

Kyle, 60, was shot to death July 22 at his mansion in the Bel-Air section of Los Angeles. His elder son, 20-year-old Henry Harrison "Rick" Kyle Jr., was charged this week with murder.

Kyle had frequent arguments with his sons — Rick and Scott, 19 — that sometimes erupted into fights in which "he beat the boys with his fists," said a Dallas businessman who asked not to be identified.

Kyle, born in poverty in Tennessee, made a name for himself when he joined the Marine Corps as a pilot during World War II. He was decorated for his exploits in the Pacific and later won a second Distinguished Flying Cross in the Korean War.

"He was a hell of an aviator and a fearless man ... totally fearless," said Maj. Gen. Ralph W. Spangler, a longtime friend of Kyle's and former superintendent of the Marine Military Academy in Harlingen, Texas. "He was one of the most dead-eye and accurate fliers and bombers."

But Kyle's military strictness caused tension, however, when his sons entered their teens, said John Greer, a longtime handyman of Kyle's.

"They used to be real sweet boys," Greer said, "but they do grow up."

Suspect's statement is heard

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — A Dallas man charged with murdering three pizza restaurant employees told authorities he went into the restaurant with a pistol but "didn't mean to hurt anybody," the government alleged at the man's capital murder trial.

Charles Mac Cobb, Titus County's district attorney, introduced a statement allegedly taken from Calvin Lloyd Padgett, as the state's final piece of evidence in Padgett's capital murder trial for the May 11, 1982 slaying of Howard Leroy McClaffin, 25, a Pizza Hut employee.

Padgett, 28, of Dallas also is charged with the capital murder of two other Pizza Hut employees — George Dwain Landrum, 42, and Shirley O'Bier Thompson, 24.

Mount Pleasant Police Chief Conrad Mars testified Friday that he, Cobb and Texas Ranger Brantley Foster took the statement volunteered by Padgett March 9, the day after he was picked up from an Oklahoma prison and returned to Texas to face the murder charges.

Gorilla attack puts zookeeper in the hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Mopie," an 11-year-old, 410-pound gorilla, "very carefully and quietly" unlocked his cage, threw a zookeeper in the air and bit him in an escape attempt from the San Antonio Zoo that officials said was executed with human-like stealth and skill.

The zookeeper, 26-year-old Rick Estrada, was hospitalized Friday in fair condition, authorities said.

"The gorilla lifted Rick up off the ground, bit him several times and threw him down," said Ernest Roney, assistant director at the zoo.

"He apparently squirted the gorilla (with a hose) and this may have provoked the attack."

The primate managed to escape from his cage because of a defective locking mechanism, said Roney.

Estrada was expected to undergo additional surgery Saturday at Medical Center Hospital. The gorilla keeper was attacked early Thursday.

A tranquilizer gun was used to subdue the ape, but Roney said the gorilla was "doing all right" as the effects of the drug wore off.

Roney said Mopie, who is on loan from the Bronx Zoo in New York, planned his escape carefully.

"He's very strong — and also very smart," Roney said. "We could see the first day he was here he was studying how the doors worked and where the cables ran."

"In New York, he'd make a smaller gorilla stand in a certain place and beat him on the head if he moved. Then he'd climb up on the other one's head and onto the roof to get out."

"The zookeepers hot-wired the roof," Roney said, "but he figured out how to get around that."

In Senate bid...

Gramm finds backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen Republican members of the Senate have thrown their support behind Rep. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, in his bid for a Senate seat, which he is expected to officially announce next Thursday.

The 15 senators said in a telegram to Gramm on Friday that recent decision of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, not to seek re-election next year "leaves a big pair of shoes to fill in the Senate."

"You are the man to do the job," the telegram said. "We need your courage and know-how in the Senate."

"We especially need your expertise in budget and economic issues," the senators told Gramm, a former economics professor and co-sponsor of President Reagan's 1981 budget proposal.

"And we are convinced that you can and will carry the Republican banner to victory next year," the senators said.

Gramm, a conservative, was first elected to the House as a Democrat in 1978. Because of his strong support of President Reagan's economic policies, the House Democratic leadership early this year stripped him of his seat on the Budget Committee.

Gramm then resigned his seat, switched parties and was re-elected as a Republican in a special election in February.

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, and Robert A. Mosbacher Jr., a Houston businessman, have already announced they would seek the Republican nomination for the Senate seat.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, state Sen. Lloyd Doggett and former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger have announced for the Democratic primary.

DALLAS (AP) — The arrival of a boxcar that was used to transport Jews during World War II brought back painful memories for some of those who gathered at the Jewish Community Center for the occasion.

"I turn away from it. It's painful," said Dorothy Hersch, whose husband's family was killed in German concentration camps. "It's very real, and it's very personal."

Schoolchildren looked on Thursday as a crane unloaded the boxcar at the center, where it will become part of a memorial for Holocaust survivors.

The arrival of the red carriage brought a mixture of emotions for those who knew how the boxcar had been used four decades ago.

Mike Jacobs, an Auschwitz survivor responsible for bringing the boxcar to Dallas from Belgium, said the first thing he did was walk inside — and remember.

"I'm sure this car is soaked with tears, the walls, the floors," Jacobs told the Dallas Morning News.

"I remembered I traveled in a car like this with my parents," Jacobs said. "They would hold me up to the windows so I could look out to see signs or villages to tell which direction we were taking."

He said he and his family traveled in a similar boxcar for 3½ days in November 1939.

Gramm will officially announce his decision to enter next year's Republican primary for the Senate nomination during a news conference at College Station next Thursday and then begin a tour of 21 Texas cities, according to a source familiar with his plans.

Earlier this week Gramm announced the formation of a 37-member exploratory finance committee to begin lining up financial support for his bid and said committee members had already begun accepting checks.

Among Republican senators joining in the telegram of support were Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Orrin Hatch of Utah, John Heinz and Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania and John Warner of Virginia.

Remembers boxcar purpose

The Belgian government donated the boxcar, which was transported by ship from Holland to Galveston and then by truck to Dallas.

"Well look, I'm a Jew. I have to be interested," Alex Pershan said. He climbed into the car and asked Jacobs how it had been used and how many people were transported at one time in such cars.

The boxcar is about 20 feet long. Its red paint is peeling and its ironwork is rusty. It will be displayed for about a week, Jacobs said. Then it will be cut into pieces and moved to the basement of the center.

The boxcar will be reconstructed and will become an entryway to the 5,000-square-foot memorial, which will include a library, conference room and memorabilia display.

"This will be a reminder," Jacobs said. "It's so important that people should know."

New York State, which ranks second only to California in population, ranks 30th in size among the 50 states. According to the Rand McNally "Road Atlas," New York covers 47,831 square miles. California, by contrast, has an area of 156,361 square miles.

Chiefs win battle, 21-8...

Lake View hands Tigers third loss back Scott Frasier hit Carey Sartain on a 14-yard pass. Once again the penalty bug bit Snyder as the Tigers were called for a late hit, and Lake View was suddenly at the hosts' 27-yard line.

Rodgers then ran for gains of 1, 9, 4 and 7 yards before Frasier scored on a six-yard scamper with 11:57 left in the fourth quarter. Frasier also added the PAT kick, and Lake View led 14-0.

Lake View scored again just two plays later. Snyder had taken possession on its 20 after the kickoff but fumbled on first down and Danny McCall recovered for the Chiefs at the 26. Frasier responded by finding Thomas Campbell open for the distance. He kicked the point-after and with 11:40 still to play, Lake View led by 21-0.

Offensively, most of the rest of the game belonged to Snyder, but the Tigers still struggled. The hosts were ignited when Cain lofted a deep pass to Chad Peterson on a play that went 49 yards from the 20 to the visitor's 31-yard line. A pass interference call against Frasier gave Snyder a first down at the 5-yard line.

But Snyder wasn't able to take advantage. Malone picked up one yard on first down and three on second. Paul Thompson was stopped short on third down and referees whistled Cain down at the 1 on fourth as Lake View held.

The Tiger defense got Snyder's first points of the game moments later when tackle Jeff Sisneros crashed through the line to tackle Rodgers in the end zone for a safety. The clock read 2:50 to play in the game.

Lake View kicked off and Snyder marched down for its second score. A 34-yard screen pass from Cain to Malone got Snyder to the Chief 30. Cain then hit Claxton on a nine-yard toss to the 21 and picked up another first down when he ran for seven to the 14. Carries of 6 and 7 yards by Malone and Peterson left Snyder on the 1-yard line. Snyder scored two plays later as Cain pushed over with no time left in the game.

Darren Greenway's follow-up PAT kick went under the crossbar.

Lake View's first score of the night had come with 1:10 left in the first quarter on a Frasier to Leo Escobedo pass of eight yards. Frasier kicked the point-after.

The 41-yard, seven-play drive began with a fumble recovery by James Allen and was keyed by a 26-yard toss from Frasier to Sartain and runs of 4, 7 and 2 yards by Rodgers.

Lake View tried field goals of 42 yards at the 8:29 mark of the first quarter and of 41 yards with 6:41 of the second but neither kick - both by Frasier - was successful.

Rodgers led both teams in rushing with 109 yards on 28 carries. Malone had 91 yards on 16 totes.

Lake View was flagged seven times for 74 yards in penalties while Snyder was ticketed 10 times for 78. The Tigers were hit six times for 55 yards in the second half.

Top teams win; AHS forfeits one

Fort Stockton, Sweetwater and San Angelo Lake View won their third games in a row Friday night while Andrews also won, but drops to 2-1 for the season.

Andrews falls to 2-1 after it was learned the Mustangs unknowingly used an ineligible player in their first game of the season, a 44-0 victory over Seminole. The forfeit, the minimum penalty, came after Andrews school officials realized the concern and informed the district and the University Interscholastic League. The ineligibility concerned a player which had earlier played freshman football twice - at least one year in Georgia - and had surpassed the 10-semester rule of the UIL.

The results left Monahans, Pecos and Lamesa with 1-2 season slates while Snyder falls to 0-3.

All 2-4A teams are idle on Friday, Sept. 23, and open district play Sept. 30. First-action district games pit Lake View at Lamesa, Sweetwater at Snyder, Andrews at Monahans and Fort Stockton at Pecos.

Friday's Results: Lake View 21, Snyder 8; Sweetwater 24, Pecos 0; Fort Stockton 13, Monahans 7; Andrews 29, Lamesa 0.

In games played Friday, Sweetwater showed surprising strength in defeating Pecos 24-0, Andrews walked over Lamesa 32-0, Lake View beat Snyder 21-8 and Fort Stockton edged Monahans 13-7.

Defending champs remain undefeated

Highland and Trent and Ira kept rolling Friday night as they recorded their third straight wins of the season, while Borden County picked the perfect time to post its first victory.

Borden overcame the highly-touted publicity of Leuders-Avoca to pop the hosts 32-14. Defeated in their first two ball games against other strong opponents, the Coyotes' win Friday gives them a 1-2 season record, but a 1-0 District 2-1A mark.

Meanwhile, 1982 state champ Highland ripped McCaulley 66-20 while Trent took care of Hermleigh 64-14. Ira also continued its three-game winning streak with a 24-14 victory over Grady.

Paint Creek was idle.

In games next Friday, McCaulley invades Ira while Paint Creek opens at Leuders-Avoca, Grady battles at Trent and LAKE VIEW WINS - Quarterback Scott Frasier scampers around right end during Friday night football action here between San Angelo Lake View and Snyder. Closing in on the Chiefs' junior is Ronnie Landis. In the background are Snyder's Chad Peterson and Lake View's Kevin Young. Lake View led only 7-0 after three quarters but won the game 21-8 as Snyder again had trouble scoring. See related article above, and Coach George Byerly's comments below. (SDN Staff Photo by Noble Young).

Mistakes, poor play leaves coach disgusted with team

Snyder's third straight dismal performance left Coach George Byerly shaking his head Friday night, discouraged, but not giving up hope.

"I'm just thoroughly disgusted with this team tonight," said the coach, after Snyder's mistake-riddled 21-8 loss to San Angelo Lake View. "We didn't even seem like we were up for the game. We talked a lot, but we talked more than we played. You don't beat people with talk. Lake View is not any better a football team than we are, other than they just played a lot better," he said.

Snyder got deep inside Lake View territory several times without scoring Friday, usually losing the chance on costly penalties.

"Offensively we were terrible. I didn't think our defense played all that well, but I guess they did keep us in the game until late in the third quarter. Even then, we had a chance to come back. We had chances to make plays, both defensively and offensively that we didn't make. We're still not doing the things we have to do when we have to have them, the same as last week."

Snyder failed to score from the 1-yard line for the second time in two games, committed a costly turnover that Lake View turned into a touchdown drive and had penalties that killed two marches inside the visitor's 20.

Now 0-3, the Tigers are idle next week before beginning 2-4A play against undefeated Sweetwater.

Byerly said the upcoming open date might help the Tigers better prepare for district play, but added that looking into the future wasn't a habit the team wanted to get into.

"I think the opportunity is still there for us to be a good football team, but we're tired of talking about next week. We need to take one (a victory) while it's still there."

Caldwell leads Pro-Ceb classic

Defeat Leuders, 32-14...

Coyotes finally howl!

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Rex Caldwell, fired a 6-under-par 66 and moved into an apparent three-way tie for the lead in the $1,050,000 Las Vegas Pro-Celebrity Classic.

This is what the kids wanted to do and that surprised me. Most kids want to throw passes and run all these different patterns and things. Our kids didn't. They wanted to get down and muscle with them," said Coach Duke Frisbie.

Led by potential all-loop standout Sammy Williams, the Coyotes rolled for 303 yards on the ground.

Williams chalked up three of Borden's five touchdowns, including the first one on an 11-yard run.

Chris Cooley broke free on a 57-yard sprint later in the second quarter and Williams crossed over from three yards out with three seconds to play in the half to make it an 18-0 ballgame.

Leuders, last year's 2-1A runnerup team, didn't quit, however. The visitors came out in the third quarter and scored on a 16-yard run by Freddie Cosper.

Borden retaliated on a 1-yard run by Williams in the fourth quarter. Both teams scored again as Cosper took it over from a yard out and Charles LaRue pushed across on a two-yard run.

Cosper kicked one two-point conversion for Leuders while Doug Adams booted one for Borden County.

"The kids played good football," said Frisbie. "Getting Charles LaRue back (from injury) helped lift the team. Our kids probably played as good a defense as we can play. We had scouted them (Leuders) but they changed their whole offense for us and the kids had to adjust, themselves, on the field."

"We needed this. When you get beat, your kids fill the training room the next day with bruises and all kind of ailments. Today (Saturday morning) there isn't a kid in the training room."

Borden County, which opened the season with highly touted Dawson and Wellman, now must go to 1983 state champion Highland for its next outing.

DUNCAN RANCH MANAGEMENT COMPANY OFFERS
Practical Ranch Financial Management

Most ranchers have never been shown how to successfully organize and analyze their ranch business information beyond record keeping strictly for tax purposes. Duncan Ranch Management Company is offering a one day workshop to provide the rancher with a "bag of tools" deliberately presented in a basic form to insure a complete understanding of financial statements, cash flows, and true net profits. The course will outline the spread sheet analysis developed by Duncan Ranch Management Company to enable ranchers to compare one ranch business enterprise to another and to project future annual net profit for their operation.

Each student will be provided with an instruction manual complete with charts and forms to apply to his own operation. The class will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will be limited to twenty students on a first come first served basis.

But Denver winning...

Elway still struggling

by The Associated Press
Although designated savior John Elway has been less than divine for the Denver Broncos, they still have managed to remain one of only five unbeaten National Football League teams going into the third weekend of the season.

The rookie quarterback has started the first two games for the Broncos and has completed only 10 of 29 passes for 120 yards, with one interception and seven sacks.

those plays, has worn on his mind.

"I'm still thinking too much," he said. "I've put a lot of pressure on myself, and I'm my own worst enemy at times. I've just got to relax and it will come easier."

While Elway struggles, the Broncos have benefited from DeBerg's relief work and a stout defense, which has held both of its opponents to 10 points.

The Eagles bring a 1-1 record into the game, having beaten San Francisco 22-17 and lost to Washington 23-13.

Cardinal ploy doesn't work a second time

by The Associated Press
With two outs and the bases empty in the bottom of the 10th inning of a tie game, relief ace Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals intentionally walked Mike Schmidt, the National League home run leader. The idea worked - the Phillies did not score.

4, who pitched three scoreless innings, got the victory.

The Cardinals got only three hits in the entire game. Phillies' starter Charles Hudson went eight innings and gave up just one hit - Darrell Porter's RBI double during a two-run fifth.

aided by Sutter's throwing error.

Pirates 9, Expos 0
Rookies continue to pace Pittsburgh while the Pirates continue to cause trouble for Montreal's Charlie Lea.

Lea, 15-9, had won eight straight games, but lasted just six innings as his career record against Pittsburgh fell to 0-6.

Landry begins tough policy with Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys kissed their families goodbye and said hello to Coach Tom Landry Saturday night in another chapter of his 1983 get-tough policy.

Landry wants to insure his team is concentrating about the New York Giants and not lawn-mowing or the neon lights of Dallas nightlife. So he ordered them to a local hotel the night before the 3 p.m. Sunday National Football League game.

Former FBI agent Larry Wansley and his security patrol will be on hand to monitor privacy. And the coaches will be there to make certain the players heed the midnight curfew.

Landry has not forgotten that some players on the team broke curfew the night before Dallas lost to Washington in the National Conference title game.

The Cowboys haven't been sequestered in a hotel the night before a home game since 1974.

Landry has brought back a lot of old work ethic habits, including the dreaded grass drills and wind sprints which the players dearly loathe.

However, superior conditioning has been the prime factor in Dallas' come-from-behind victories over Washington and St. Louis.

"Our conditioning paid off in those two games," said defensive tackle John Dutton. "We were tired but we kept plugging. You could see the other two teams hanging their heads."

There have been a few grumbles about Landry making the team come together the night before a home game.

However, at a team meeting Landry asked, "Does anyone have anything positive to say about it?" Not one player spoke up. Case closed.

The 1-1 Giants have lost seven consecutive games to the Cowboys in Texas Stadium.

The two teams did not meet in 1982 because of the players' strike.

Landry is 28-11-2 against his old team. Landry was a defensive back for the Giants in the 1950s and also was an assistant coach for the club.

HERMLEIGH - Trent used the power of the big play and the speed of Benjamin Beaver to gallop past Hermleigh here Friday, 64-14.

some teams that are more on our level," added the coach, whose squad has played Wellman and Blackwell in addition to the Gorillas.

and a 38-yard second-quarter run by Darren Hughes. Martin Fuentes kick one two-point conversion.

Taking no prisoners, the Gorillas exited Hermleigh after winning by the 45-point rule in the third quarter.

"We were flat," he said of Friday's performance. "Everyone of us. There's just not any other way to put it."

Beaver got Trent's first two touchdowns on runs of 52 and 75 yards. Williams then scored the next two from 36 and 12 yards away.

The outcome leaves Trent at 3-0 for the season and 1-0 in District 1-2A six-man play. Hermleigh falls to 0-3 and 0-1.

Trent scored 20 points in the first quarter and 38 in the second to lead 58-12 at halftime. A 1-yard pass from Billy Williams to Richard Vergenz in the third quarter evoked the 45-point rule and ended the game.

Beaver came back to score again on a 36-yard run before Casey Johnson hit Vergenz on a 17-yard pass play.

Hermleigh is idle next week and Coach Clarence Spieker plans a return to basics.

Trent's other scores were on a Johnson to Farrion Hambrick pass of 60 yards, a 79-yard run by Williams, and the 1-yard Williams to Vergenz pass.

Williams kicked two conversions; Simon Dela Cruz booted one.

"We can use the time off to work on basics. That's what we need to do and that's what we will do. Learning. Blocking and tackling," he said. "Our first three teams were pretty strong and we're pretty young. It's a hard way to start the season. Maybe as we go along we will improve and run into with our performance. We played a pretty sloppy ballgame," said Lee, whose Bulldogs defeated Grady here Friday 28-0.

GRADY - The good news is that Ira won. The bad news is Coach Mitch Lee was not pleased with the effort.

Never the less, Ira chalked its third straight victory, including its first District 2-1A six-man win. The Bulldogs are at home next Friday, hosting McCauley.

the coach. Neither team scored in the first quarter but Ira broke the deadlock with 7:07 to play in the second when Danny Denson crossed the plane on a 19-yard sweep. Bruce Strickland kicked the conversion.

Defensively, Strickland led with 12 tackles. Denson and Clark had five each. "We're going to have to be tougher offensively next week," Lee said.

"I was pleased with the outcome but not pleased because our offense didn't move the ball. We missed a lot of blocks, and did things that stopped ourselves. We didn't execute. We just didn't put together a sustained drive." Overall the game was as tough as we thought it would be. You're going to have a flat ballgame or two and hopefully this was our flat ballgame for this time of the year," added

Ira made it 22-0 by halftime as Strickland scored on a 1-yard dive with 6:07 remaining and Jay Clark hit Don Crane on a 9-yard pass with 2:58 left. Strickland kicked one two-point conversion.

Jim Mattox vows to fight charges

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox insists he will "fight to the last breath" and win acquittal on charges of commercial bribery. But even if he wins in court, the mere fact that he has been indicted may already have cost Mattox a future career in public life.

"Regardless who you are, indictments are not good. But they're always more damaging to a public official," said former House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton is one of three top Texas politicians indicted and then acquitted in the past decade. The other two are former Texas Attorney General Waggoner Carr and former Gov. John Connally, and despite their courtroom victories, none has won elective office since.

Clayton and Carr did not seek public office after their successful trials, although Clayton did win an unprecedented fourth straight term as House speaker in a post decided by a vote of House members. Connally sought the presidency and failed.

Mattox said during a news conference Thursday he was not worried. "I don't know what all this good publicity is going to manage to do for me politically. I'm frankly not concerned about it."

Clayton said the law presumes you innocent until you are proven guilty. But if you are a well known public official, the law doesn't say people have to vote for you after the trial, even if you were acquitted, as Connally found out in 1980.

He spent $11 million in a bid for the GOP presidential nomination and won only a single delegate at the Republican convention. Other factors were involved, but press accounts of Connally's campaign reminded readers again and again of the 1974 indictment.

Connally declined to discuss the topic when approached by a reporter at the conclusion of a special ceremony for the University of Texas' 100th anniversary on Thursday. But for Carr, who has written a book on his ordeal, it has become a personal crusade.

"If a charge of wrongdoing is made against you when you're in politics, there is always a certain element of people who believe it. The fact that you were indicted means 'guilty' to a lot of people, and they will say you got out on some trick or a lawyer got you out," Carr said in 1974 after the second of his two trials on federal charges of bribery, conspiracy and fraud. He was found innocent of all charges after both trials.

"It's not right, but it's a fact of political life," said Carr, who served 10 years in the Texas House including four as speaker, before becoming attorney general. He is now a private attorney in Austin.

Carr spent three years and more than $1.5 million fighting the charges against him, which were an outgrowth of the Sharpstown Bank scandal that shook state government 10 years ago.

For Connally, a popular three-term Texas governor who also served as treasury secretary under President Nixon, the indictment and trial fueled his critics' characterization of him as a big-time wheeler-dealer too closely linked to corporate interests.

The federal charge, which stemmed from the Watergate investigation, accused him of accepting $10,000 from dairy lobbyists in exchange for persuading Nixon to raise milk price supports.

Five years after the indictment, a 1979 Time magazine article about Connally's presidential bid referred to it as "the case that continues to haunt John Connally — despite his acquittal..."

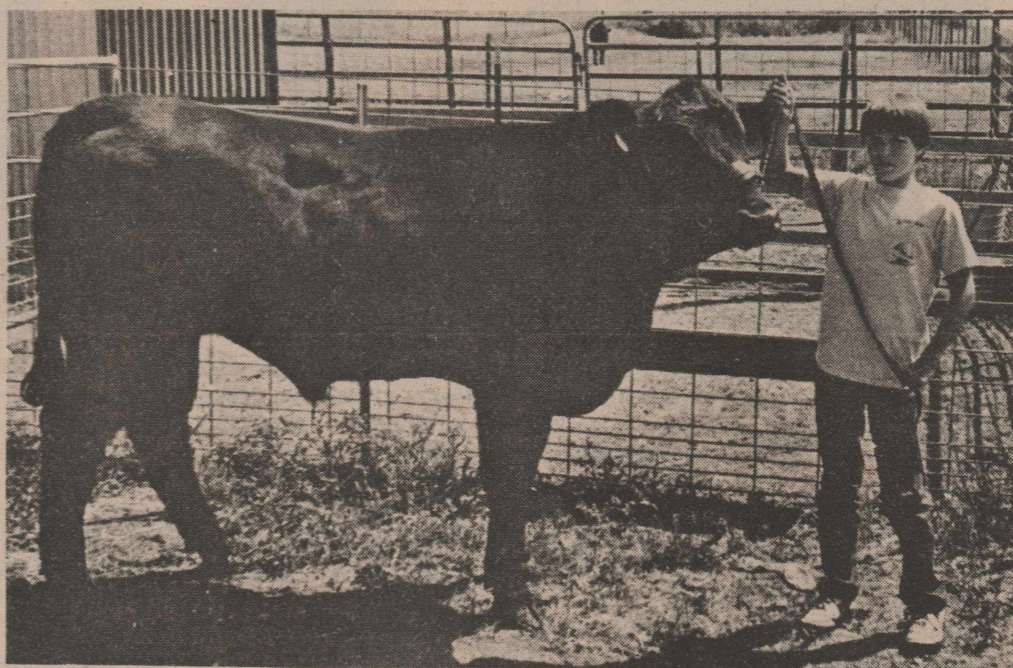

To this day, Clayton insists that the Brillab indictment was not the main reason he changed his mind about seeking statewide office last year, although he acknowledged it was a factor.

TO ENTER TEXTILES—Nancy Doyle and her son, Casey, are pictured with two dresses she made for daughter, Brandi, which will be entered in this year's fair—children's textiles division. She will also enter an outfit she has made for her son. Brandi will model the clothes during the fashion show on Friday at 5 p.m. (SDN Staff Photo)

Migration of the Thule Eskimos, who probably originated in northeastern Asia and gradually made their way to Alaska, drastically changed the pattern of human life in the North American Arctic. In Eskimo terms, the event was as profound and far-reaching as Europe's conquest and colonization of the New World, National Geographic says.

Youth official has resigned

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The executive director of the Catholic Youth Organization in San Antonio, who was charged with indecency with a child in New Braunfels, has resigned his position, a spokesman for the local archdiocese said Friday.

Chapel ceremony joins Thibault, McBride

BRUNSWICK, Maine—Former Snyder residents Margo Sheila Thibault and Michael Hanson McBride, both of Austin, were married at 6 p.m. on Aug. 13 in the chapel of Brunswick Naval Air Station. Rev. Vicki Woods of First United Methodist Church in Bath, Maine officiated the double ring ceremony.

The couple's parents are Roger A. and Carmel Schinck of Brunswick and Mary M. McBride and the late Homer H. McBride of San Angelo.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an all cotton voile dress in cream candlelight lace in delicate raised roses trimmed in cream pearl buttons made by Barbara Miller of Fluvanna.

Her bouquet was silk cream roses bunched with navy bud accents and lavender baby's breath and cream satin streamers.

The bride's sister, Cynthia Schinck Lobikis, was maid of honor. She wore a pale lavender dress with navy satin sash and carried navy silk roses bunched with cream, lavender and navy satin streamers.

Bernie Schinck of East

Providence, R.I., the bride's brother, was best man.

Two urns of cut flowers and the traditional wedding candle decorated the altar. Pale lavender satin bows with navy baby buds marked the family pews and guest pews were marked with cream silk rose bows with navy buds.

Joe Villoni, pianist, presented "Pachabel Canon in D Major," "What I Did for Love," "Ave Marie," and "The Wedding March." Kathy McCarthy of Quincy, Mass. gave a special reading from 1st Corinthians. Gerald McCarthy of Quincy was soloist.

A reception was held at the Cosmopolitan Club in Bath.

The bride's pale cream cake was decorated with rosebuds, lavender buds and navy accents and shaped like the state of Maine. The groom's chocolate cake with the same frosting design was shaped like the state of Texas.

Kimberly McBride registered guests in the bride's book.

The bride graduated from Western Texas College with an associate of arts degree. She was a Phi Theta Kappa member and is currently attending the University of Texas at Austin.

The groom holds master of arts and doctor of education degrees from Texas Tech University. He was professor of journalism at WTC for ten years and is now professor of journalism, advertising sequence, at Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's mother at Land's End, Bailey Island, Maine.

A shower was given in the home of Reba Erwin in Snyder by Mrs. Erwin, Sandra West, Marilyn Lancaster, Gerogia Jones and Beverly Cross. Cynthia Lobikis and Joni Murphy honored the bride in Brunswick.

Out of town guests were from Portland, Topsam, Scarborough, Yarmouth, and Bath, Maine; Hartford and Andover, Conn.; Quincy and Boston, Mass.; Ottawa, Canada; and Dallas and San Angelo, Texas.

The eyes have it

ROCHESTER N.Y. (AP) — The eye is often compared to a camera, in which the retina, like a piece of film, "records" what the eye focuses on.

However, University of Rochester psychologist Peter Lennie points out, the eyes move almost constantly, smearing and jerking the image. "If you moved a camera around like that, all you'd get on the film would be a blur," he says.

Somehow the human visual system is able to extract a clear picture of a stable world out of the input from a "camera" in constant motion.

"Our challenge is to find the physiological mechanisms by which this 'magic' is done," Lennie says.

Pair notes 50th anniversary

Elmer and Zola Askins of 608 Linda Lane in Big Spring celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family gathering hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry (Andrea) Merrick and their children, Le'Ann and Byran. Mrs. Merrick is their daughter and lives in Plainview.

Askins was born in Borden County and lived with his family on a ranch near Gail. In 1933 he was married to the former Zola Jones of Snyder by Rev. Walter Devers.

The couple lived at Snyder, Gail, Polar and Justiceburg before moving to Big Spring only to have to leave to serve in World War II.

After the war Askins was employed by Cabot Carbon Co. until his retirement in 1975.

Mr. and Mrs. Askins are members of Wesley Methodist Church. He enjoys rodeos, horses and riding while Mrs. Askins enjoys needle work and working with her husband. They both enjoy their grandchildren.

Those present for the event were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harless, and Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Askins, all of Snyder. Also Debbie Fields and Carl Waters of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Merrick and Jack Merrick of Ackerly.

VITAMIN CLAIMS NOT TRUE

Billions of dollars are spent in the United States each year on vitamins. Anyone can buy them in supermarkets, drug stores and health food outlets, as well as from door-to-door salesmen and by mail.

Because there is so much advertising about vitamins, many people wonder about the claims surrounding them.

One claim is that if you have that run-down feeling, you need vitamins.

The fact is that some of the B vitamins are required for food to change into energy, but amounts greater than the Recommended Daily Allowances (RDA) will not provide any benefit.

Another claim is that modern farming practices have depleted the soil so that our food no longer contains enough vitamins.

But the fact is that crop rotation, soil tests and soil enrichment help to make modern crops just as nutritious as ever.

A third claim is that Vitamin C will prevent the common cold.

But carefully controlled experiments have shown no real difference in the number of colds between those who were and were not taking vitamin C supplements, although cold symptoms were reported to be less severe in those taking the vitamin.

Finally, some claim that if a few vitamins are good for you, then more should be that much better.

But the fact is that certain vitamins taken in large amounts can be dangerous. The fat soluble vitamins A and D have been found to be toxic in large amounts. Very high levels of some water soluble vitamins, including niacin and vitamin C, can also have adverse effects.

Claims about vitamins will probably always be with us. But to make sure that you have enough vitamins, simply choose foods from the basic food groups daily. These include meat, poultry, fish and beans, milk, breads and cereals, along with fruits and vegetables.

SPLIT LABELING CAN MISLEAD

Although manufacturers are required by law to put certain information on their packages, the law does not specify where that information should appear.

Be on the alert for what is now called "split labeling" which does not provide the consumer with readily available information. For example, one of our homemakers purchased what she thought was plain frozen fish. Upon opening the package, she discovered that the fish was coated with "Flavor-Tex," a mixture of water, maltodextrin, sodium alginate, calcium chloride and cellulose gum (CMC).

This information did not appear prominently, as it should have, on the main panel of the package. It appeared only on a side flap, used for opening the package. This example of "split labeling" shows the need for shoppers to examine all surfaces of packages to obtain information on ingredients.

Custom computing

CINCINNATI (AP) — True computers have come a long way since the 1940s when they were introduced.

The first true computer, ENIAC, weighed some 30 tons and took up 1,500 square feet of floor space. It was called the Electronic Numerical Integrator and Calculator.

Today's true computers are not only desk-sized, but can operate equipment. A computer at Futuro Co., manufacturer of support hose, takes leg measurements from the big toe to the thigh, then operates a knitting machine that turns out a pair of custom-fitted hose in less than 20 minutes.

Italian masters

NEW YORK (AP) — Drawings by Italian masters working between 1375 and 1775 are on display at the Pierpont Morgan Library through Nov. 13.

The 50 drawings were selected from a collection of some 1,500 Italian master drawings assembled by Janos Scholz and presented to the Morgan Library in 1973.

Most of the drawings were preparatory sketches for paintings.

Couple united in double ring ceremony

Kathryn Northcott became the bride of John Penny Hanson of Burkburnett in a double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. on Aug. 12 at First United Methodist Church. Rev. Bob Ford, minister of the church, officiated.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Northcott of Snyder. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gowen of Electra and Ted Hanson of Burkburnett.

An arrangement of yellow gladioli and blue carnations centered the altar. This was surrounded by three brass candelabra entwined with greenery.

Jacqueline Pylant played "Ice Castles," "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony. Mrs. Bob Womack was soloist and Mrs. Bob Ford played the recessional on the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown styled in white silk organza and lavishly trimmed in Chantilly lace. The Queen Anne neckline featured a stand-up ruffle of soft organza. The bodice was styled with an empire waistline and overlaid with appliques of Chantilly lace lavishly embroidered with seed pearls. Lace appliques circled the waistline. The back of the bodice featured a soft circled yoke and was outlined with lace.

The full sleeves of Chantilly lace ended in fitted cuffs and narrow ruffles of organza. The cuffs were embroidered with seed pearls. The full skirt featured two rows of Chantilly lace and six rows of ruffled organza which formed a cascade from the center of the skirt to the floor in front. The back of the skirt featured 12 rows of Chantilly lace and ruffled organza which swept into a full chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of illusion featured a cap covered in Chantilly lace to match her dress. Clusters of seed pearls adorned the cap and a silk flower with pearl loops was at one side of the cap. Double rows of pearls outlined the cap. The veil had two tiers each outlined in Chantilly lace.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white silk roses, yellow silk sweetheart roses, blue baby's breath with fresh white baby's breath and streamers of matching picot and satin ribbon.

Penny Fulks served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ann Melton and Karla Gist.

They were attired in blue Lustreglo gowns fashioned with blouson bodices which featured low circled necklines. There were tiny bows of the same material at the shoulders and bodices were styled so that capelet sleeves were divided at the shoulders and over the arms. The formal length pleated skirts were gathered at the bodices and at the front waistlines a bow of Lustreglo was featured.

Each carried a colonial nosegay of roses, frenched carnations and baby's breath with matching satin ribbon streamers and wore matching flowers in their hair.

Lindsey and Jennifer Northcott, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. They wore dresses styled in white lace and silk organza. The necklines were enhanced with wide ruffles of lace and just under it another wide ruffle of lace topped the bodice. Puffed sleeves were of organza and had a wide band of lace ruffle. The fitted waistline of each dress featured a wide sash of yellow satin ribbon with a large bow in front. The full skirts had three wide ruffles of lace at the bottom. At two points in center front yellow satin bows topped the upper lace ruffles.

Best man was Paul Gafford and groomsmen were Terry Phillips and Steve Tomlinson, both of Wichita Falls. Jerry and Steve Northcott, the bride's brothers, and James Gowen, the groom's brother, were ushers.

Sheri Gowen of Electra, the groom's sister, and Sharon Bynum were candlelighters.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The refreshment table was covered with an eyelet embroidery cloth with a matching gathered skirt draped with yellow satin ribbon. It held a three-tiered cake and a blue and yellow silk floral arrangement. Mrs. Keil Williams, Mrs. Jay Fiest and Miss Melinda Stephens presided.

Following a wedding trip to Padre Island the couple will reside at 1051 Jan Lee Dr. in Burkburnett. They are students at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College.

The groom graduated from Burkburnett High School in 1980.

Regular saving

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The inability to set aside even a small amount of money on a regular basis may be the first sign a person is headed for financial trouble.

Without savings, unexpected occurrences may require borrowing money, which can compound financial difficulties, says Julia Martin, credit union manager at R.J. Reynolds Industries.

If a person borrows money to pay routine bills or can pay only the minimum amount on monthly charges, Martin recommends professional financial counseling.

Dear Abby

Man Thinks Ex-Wife's Digs Aren't Decent for Daughter

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure this is not a unique problem, but I can't sleep because of it. Are there any civil laws that prohibit an ex-wife from shacking up with a boyfriend in front of her 10-year-old child?

My daughter is being forced to live like this, and it seems that by Florida state law, I can do nothing about it. Is there no sanity even within our civil laws?

I love my daughter dearly and can give her a better life, but her mother got custody of her simply because she is her mother. Thanks for listening.

HEARTSICK IN FLORIDA

DEAR HEARTSICK: I'm no lawyer, but it seems reasonable to assume that in order to gain custody of your daughter, you would be required to prove that your ex-wife is an unfit mother, or that your daughter is suffering from some kind of child abuse or neglect.

Since the deleterious effect of living with a mother who is "shacking up with her boyfriend" cannot be easily assessed at this point, the other aspects of child-rearing, such as attention to the child's health, upbringing, education, discipline and how much love she's getting, are probably the determining factors.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl. I have always wanted a car and have been saving up for one for a long time. I already have a driver's license, and I'm now finally able to get a car. The problem: My boyfriend, who has his own car, told me if I got a car he would break up with me. We've been going together for two years and I really do love him.

He says if I get a car he would probably never find me at home. I don't think he trusts me. He thinks I might mess around behind his back.

What should I tell him?

WANTS WHEELS

DEAR WANTS: Tell him that when he gives up his wheels, you will give up all thoughts of having your own.

DEAR ABBY: For the first time in my life I can afford to have a cleaning woman, but there are a few things I need to know. This woman comes to my home every Monday, Wednesday and Friday to clean and do the laundry. I pay her by the hour.

She arrives at 8 a.m., and as soon as she gets here she prepares an elaborate breakfast for herself. She has fruit, bacon (or ham) and eggs, fried potatoes, coffee, toast, french toast or waffles. With her breakfast, she reads the newspaper, and she doesn't really start doing any work until 9 a.m.

Her luncheon routine takes another hour. She leaves my house at 4 p.m. Should she be paid for the two hours she takes to prepare and consume her breakfast and lunch? She's a nice woman and a good worker, but I feel as if I am being taken advantage of. Am I? Also, should I give her a Christmas present?

ELIZABETH, N.J., READER

DEAR READER: A person who is paid by the hour should arrive ready to work — not to prepare breakfast for herself. She should be given half an hour for lunch (on your time). A present of any kind is never imperative — it's optional.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TALL GIRL IN BRADY, TEXAS: Don't judge a man by his height. "Mr. Right" could be standing right under your nose.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Ailment reason for cancellation

BALTIMORE (AP) — Concert pianist Leon Fleisher has canceled a performance at the opening of Peabody Conservatory's concert hall Oct. 8 because of a mysterious, recurring hand ailment.

The conservatory's board of directors announced the cancellation Tuesday, saying it is based on advice of Fleisher's surgeon.

Fleisher, 55, gave his first two-handed performance in 18 years at the new Joseph Meyerhoff Symphony Hall a year ago, but had to cancel another performance, at the Kennedy Center in Washington last March.

Image of pool player is changing

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — Modern-day pool sharks like Mike Sigel are taking their cue from high-paid counterparts in other pro sports, and one of the casualties is the poolroom "hustler" of an earlier era.

The wiry, dark-haired young man says he earns more than $100,000 a year plying his trade on the brightly lit, felt-covered rectangles. He says pool is in line to become one of the country's next big televised sports.

Sigel says you can bet on it — although he wouldn't anymore.

"I used to be a big gambler but, frankly, I haven't gambled in five or six years. In fact, none of the top players hustle any more, and they hardly ever gamble with each other," says the 29-year-old Baltimore resident while practicing between matches at the Blue Grass Classic, held in a steelworkers hall in this small eastern Kentucky river city.

"There's too much money to be made playing in tournaments these days and there's no risk involved, other than your entry fee."

Once, Sigel would have been known as a pool shark, as a hustler, or by some other pejorative term. He and his foes would have battled it out in murky rooms festooned with spittoons and peopled by characters out of a Damon Runyon story.

Now, however, he and his peers see themselves as legitimate athletes who aren't all that different from pro golfers or tennis players.

Sigel paused to drill the nine ball into a side pocket and then returned to the subject of what it's like to be a latter-day professional pool player.

"Nobody hustles much any more," he says. "You can make too much money in tournaments these days; besides, it takes $100 a day on the road just to survive, and lots of days you simply don't make that much when you're hustling."

"Then, too, in addition to the tournaments there are more and more television exhibitions. And, as for me, I also have product endorsements and I teach one week a month at a pool school in Tennessee."

"Pool is like where tennis was 10 or 12 years ago," he says. "It's becoming a popular television spectator sport and it's right on the verge of taking off."

If he's right, Sigel is likely to become one of television's newest sports stars. He's already one of the top two or three pool players in the country, if not the world. "And, this year, alone, I've already earned more than $25,000 in tournament prize money and the year's hardly begun as far as pool is concerned."

He attributed pool's growing popularity to television and, especially, to the advent of cable networks that specialize in sports.

The French explorer Jacques Cartier reached Canada in 1534. Seeking a northern passage to the Spice Islands, Cartier and his crew sailed through the Strait of Belle Isle and explored the Gulf of St. Lawrence. By following the coasts of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, he made his way to Gaspe.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

September 18, 1983

In the year ahead you could be quite fortunate with any dealings involving large groups of people. You'll possess a knack for sensing the pulse of the crowd and giving them what they want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This can be a very productive day provided you can do things at your own pace, free from outside direction. Be your own boss. Virgo predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Select the types of social activities today which are not too tightly structured. Your enjoyment will be lessened if you feel you're under obligations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're exceptionally skilled today at managing your involvements. You'll permit others ample latitude, but it will be YOU who has the final say.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Utilize your mental abilities today on projects of a practical nature. Benefits will result when your logic is put to the test.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have a stabilizing influence upon others today. When persons you're involved with go off on tangents, you'll be able to get them back on course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you are not likely to be overly aggressive or pushy, you still won't permit others to delegate you to a subordinate role today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll function more efficiently today if you make a conscious effort to maintain a steady pace. Don't rush things, even if urged to do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are now in a very fortunate cycle for making friends and helpful contacts. It's to your advantage to begin to mingle with new groups.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Dedicate your efforts and energies to important objectives today. If you are truly persistent, Lady Luck will intervene on your behalf.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Let your thoughts take precedence over those of your associates today. Your imagination is likely to perceive concepts they can't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be hesitant to be of service today if others request your assistance. Your good deeds could result in future rewards.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Put yourself in the other person's shoes today so that you can understand his or her viewpoint. This will eliminate potential misunderstandings.

September 19, 1983

You are likely to be more selective than usual this coming year in choosing close friends. However, when you do form an alliance it will be a strong one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companions are likely to scrutinize your actions more closely than usual today. Avoid all forms of affection or pretense. Virgo predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of worrying about the rewards you'll receive today, concentrate on doing a good job. The quality of your work will determine your remuneration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unless you have complete faith in your counterparts, it's best to avoid involving yourself in joint ventures today. Use wise judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your possibilities for fulfilling your objectives are good today, but success might not come easily. Regroup and charge again!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let it be said today that you are a better excuser than a producer. Instead of coming up with alibis, strive to come up with results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might associate with a friend today who has extravagant whims but a stingy wallet. Don't let this person jockey you into being his sponsor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't loosen your grip on the tiller today in situations where a firm hand is required. Stand up for what you believe to be right, even if others disagree.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) "To thine own self be true" today. In situations requiring your best efforts, don't look for easy outs or shortcuts. Take pride in what you do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Steer clear of intrigues or gossiping with friends about others pals today. You'll regret it later if you are a contributor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Anticipating negative results in advance of what occurs will impede your progress today. You'll be timid in matters where you should be assertive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might be given to occasional flights of fancy today. This would cause your practicality to get out of focus. Be a visionary, not a daydreamer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are going to be charitable today, be sure that what you give will be put to good use. Don't contribute to questionable causes.

1983-84 club year begun by Amitie

Amitie Study Club opened its 1983-84 club year with its first scheduled program and meeting at the Martha Ann Woman's Club Sept. 13.

After an extensive program presented by Winona Curfman and Diane Price of Oil Patch Foster Parents Assn. describing the special needs of the association and the children involved, club members discussed old business and plans for future projects and programs.

The group voted to donate $100 each to the foster parent organization for their emergency fund and to Martha Ann Woman's Club for interior redecoration.

Lisa Williams, president, appointed the ways and means committee to act as the dance committee for the upcoming fundraiser planned for Dec. 3. The group is also planning the Third Annual Blue Denim Ball.

Amitie officers are Lisa Williams, president; Carla Price, first vice president; Valerie Drum, second vice president; Lea Ann Shields, third vice president; Jan Johnson, treasurer; Anne Genuchi, recording secretary; and Janet Spence, corresponding secretary. Appointed officers are Mary Hood, parliamentarian; Kristie Jones, reporter; and Mary Gunnels, historian.

Eddie Kantar, one of our greatest players, has been writing articles called "Kantar for the Defense" for some time. He has just produced a book covering 100 of them. Here is a hand that illustrates several points of expert defensive play after South stops at three spades.

West, who knows that his partner has a very poor hand, opens his diamond ace. East drops the deuce and declarer the 10.

Who has the missing five spot? In expert play West knows that East would have started a high-low with a doubleton, so the deuce was a certain singleton. West can give his partner an immediate ruff and hold South to his contract, but West should go after a possible fifth trick. The diamond ruff will keep East can't get two diamond ruffs since South is going to overruff the third diamond, but watch what West can do. It is simple indeed. At trick two he takes his ace of hearts and irrespective of what East plays, continues with the jack.

Declarer wins and leads a trump, but West is in control. He grabs the first trump and gives his partner that diamond ruff. When East returns a heart, West is able to score the setting trick with his eight of spades, which is one spot higher than dummy's seven.

Neves, Taggart are wed

Kimberly Shawn Neves and Clayton Matthew Taggart exchanged wedding vows Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Miller Robinson. Rev. Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Neves of Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Norwood of Dunn.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a street-length crystalline organza dress with a jewel neckline, shirred top and full wrist-length sleeves. Baby's breath adorned her hair.

Her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses, alstroemeria lilies, french-ced carnations and baby's breath tied with lace and satin streamers in shades of pink and dusty rose.

In keeping with tradition her dress was new and she wore a blue garter. Something old was her mother's wedding ring and a gold ring belonging to the groom's mother handed down to her by her mother. She borrowed a cultured pearl necklace from Millie Givens that was worn at her wedding, her mother's wedding, and by her two daughters at their weddings.

Susan Neves, the bride's sister-in-law, was matron of honor. She carried a long stemmed pink rose with baby's breath tied with long lace streamers.

Nickie Neves, the bride's brother, was best man.

Tonya Freeman played "The Wedding March." An arrangement of light pink and dusty rose carnations was centered on the piano. On either side were candelabra holding votive candles surrounded by a ring of pink and dusty rose silks.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Robinson home. The two-tiered cake was decorated with dusty rose and pink roses and topped with two doves centered with two silver wedding rings. Rita Staton and Millie Givens presided.

Guests were registered by Melissa Pherigo, niece of the bride, at a marble table decorated with a silk arrangement made of pink and dusty rose flowers given to the bride and groom by Linda Sellars.

Following a wedding trip to Abilene the couple will reside at 2506 Ave. H in Snyder.

The bride attended Snyder High School, Western Texas College and Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

The groom attended Snyder High School and is employed by Halliburton.

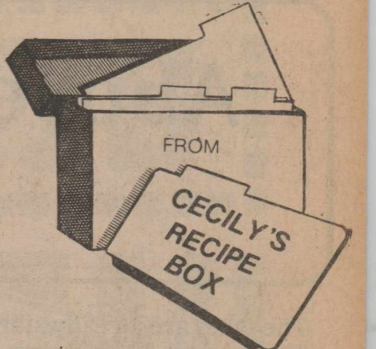

Floral arrangements were done by Travis Flowers.

SNACKTIME FARE
Bran Muffins & Beverage

SWEET BRAN MUFFINS

They have a light texture and store well.

- 1 1/4 cups all-bran cereal
- 1-3rd cup raisins
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1 1/4 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 1/4 teaspoons baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 large egg
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 1 cup buttermilk

In a small bowl soak bran and raisins in boiling water. Cool. On wax paper or in a small bowl stir together flour, soda and salt. In a large bowl beat together until blended the egg, sugar, oil, molasses and buttermilk; stir in bran mixture. Add flour mixture and stir only until moistened. Turn into oiled 1-3rd cup capacity muffin-pan cups, filling two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 20 to 25 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges; let stand on wire rack about 5 minutes; remove. Serve warm. Makes 15.

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Kidstuff-Letters

The jokes are already starting to roll in. The peeved TV watcher noting "I knew this would happen. Anchorwomen are letting themselves go." and the "Generic news-at-six" to "de-emphasize personalities."

The object of all this attention got off a pretty good one-liner herself when she noted "I will not defer to anyone just because he or she happens to be better at basic hair spray."

We're talking about Christine Craft, who won a judgement totaling $500,000 in a sex-discrimination suit filed against her former employers, television station KMBC in Kansas City.

Her lawyers contended and the jury believed that they told the 38-year-old Craft she was "too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men."

We can understand how the "deferential" part might not go down too easy, but the "unattractive" stipulation fascinates us.

That is "unattractive" and "too old" in the wonderful world of newswoman anchordom, where years count quite a bit more dear than in other professions.

She said she thought she was being hired on her journalistic skills and not her looks. And when these began to fade, she said they dumped her.

It occurs to us that we wouldn't think about trying to sell page one of the SDN with pink and blue trumpeting angels bordered on the side. We wouldn't draw in squiggly furbelows rather than straight borders and we wouldn't decorate a large red bow tied across our masthead.

We wouldn't try running news copy upside down to gain reader attention or headlines so big they look like a flight of bats across the page.

Our point is "image" is a definite part of the product, whether it be a newspaper or a television news report. And a TV newscaster of any gender who says they didn't think they were in part hired for their looks or "personality" is trying to pour water in your boots and tell you it's raining.

We wonder if anchorpersons ever read the credits at the end of their own news shows. We're talking about the references to "Hair by..." and "Clothes furnished by..."

No matter how good his "journalistic credentials" might be, nobody's going to hire Mortimer Snerd to replace Dan Rather.

And in all professions, there comes a time when we no longer deliver what we promised.

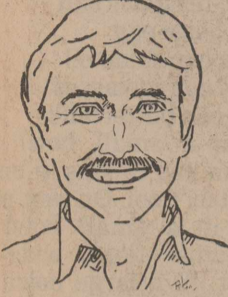

Newspaper folks generally aren't paid as much as TV folks, so the competition isn't quite as fierce or the turnover rate quite as high.

But "looks" seem to be an integral part of the television announcer game. To our mind, it's not much of a stretch to equate baggy eyes and double chins with the torn knee cartilage of a downfield runner.

Or the newspaper hack who types "City council members voted unanimously today" one too many times and winds up punching out his video display terminal.

Stuff just wears out. And when we can longer do what we were hired to do—regardless if it is written in ink or blood—it's time for the old career path adjustment.

Begrudging no one a fat fee, however, we're glad Ms. Craft got paid for her's.

John Dunnam

I'm about 1,500 miles from home as I write this. Hopefully, I'll be home by the time you read it. But I'm not sure about that. The next bus doesn't leave until noon tomorrow and since it's raining here in Jackson's Hole, Wyoming, hitchhiking is out, at least temporarily. Stranded again.

Since stepping onto a bus in Snyder nearly two weeks ago, I've stepped off of one at the Grand Canyon, Las Vegas, Reno, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Butte and Livingston. At that point, the bus schedule didn't fit my own, so I hitchhiked through Yellowstone and Grand Teton's National Park and on here to Jackson.

I've sent my suitcase home, and my backpack is falling apart. And when I get home, I think I'm going to be sick.

It's not the temperature extremes — from 107 in Las Vegas to a wet 38 here in the Wyoming hilltops — that's getting to me. Nor is it the constant travel and lousy coffee. What's killing me is what I'm missing.

At every turn are tempting diversions: rafting the Snake River; ghost towns; underground mine tours; bicycle races. I've also come close to, but missed, Canada, the Pacific Ocean and the entire State of Alaska.

Still, I've got my money's worth ogling the scenic wonders. Even if you've never missed an issue of National Geographic, you can't begin to imagine the raw, majestic beauty that overwhelms most states of the North and West. Ask someone who has been there.

For the most part I've managed to leave my camera and those expensive rolls of color film packed away. Trying to capture this on film would surely be futile. If it doesn't seem real being here, how can a reflection on paper help?

What does help is hiking down to one of the numerous rivers and soaking tired feet in the roaring, frigid water. Dipping one's finger into a boiling geyser is a sure way to experience a dose of reality, not to mention a broiled finger.

The natives along the way, barely tolerant of tourists without Mastercharge, are busy making the transition from summer to winter. Labor Day was the last big summer holiday and already they're predicting snow in the mountains. Ski "sales" are replacing "hot deals" on canoes.

Everyone is preoccupied with the rites of fall, except myself of course. I'll just head on home anyway I can. This has been here for a long time, and I suspect it will all be here when I return. Perhaps I'll have more time and money next trip, but I wouldn't bet on it.

Looking Back

FIVE YEARS AGO
Dora Chaidez reigned as Queen of the Fiesta during annual Diez y Seis de Septiembre activities sponsored by Our Lady of Guadalupe church here Saturday — Sept. 16.

Members of the Scurry Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse met last night — Sept. 18 — and chose Chamber of Commerce manager Bill Warner to lead a fact finding investigation relating to the establishment of an alcohol rehabilitation center in Scurry County.

Chamber of Commerce members voted Monday to honor three Chamber benefactors. Two men, Roger B. Mize and Charles Noble, both of whom donated land for the construction of the chamber office building, were to be honored with portraits to hang in the chamber conference room. The group also voted to present a plaque to Mrs. Bently Baize at the annual banquet honoring her late husband's work for the chamber.

10 YEARS AGO
The annual Scurry County Fair opened Thursday — Sept. 13 — with two booths, the Snyder FFA's educational entry and the Good Neighbor Home Demonstration Club, sharing grand champion honors in the Educational Division.

Students at Snyder High School elected class officers for 1973-74 Wednesday — Sept. 12. Officers of the class of 74 included Mac Dishman, reporter; Julie Rhodes, secretary; Waynann Monrone, vp; and Larry Price, president.

20 YEARS AGO
Officials of Snyder Savings and Loan officially opened their new building at the intersection of 27th St. and Ave. S with an open house Sunday afternoon — Sept. 15.

25 YEARS AGO
Southwestern Bell officials today — Sept. 15 — announced plans to install dial type phone service for the town of Hermleigh in the near future. The Hermleigh phone system will remain on a separate exchange and calls to Snyder will still be considered long distance.

30 YEARS AGO
Members of the First Christian Church of Snyder held their first services in their new church building on 37th St. this morning — Sept. 13.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,
The recent Supreme Court decision denying tax-deductible charitable contributions to Bob Jones University is very important to all Christians. The right or wrong of some of the BJU policies is not my reason for writing this letter. The Supreme Court based its decision on the grounds that to receive tax exemption, an organization must: (1) serve a public purpose, and (2) not act contrary to public policy.

This ruling will be used to force all organizations, granted tax exemption by regulation 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code, to limit their activity to positions approved by public policy. Why? Because of fear of losing their tax exemption. I know something about how the IRS operates in these matters because I am associated with an organization that has a religious tax exemption. It took almost a year, piles of paper work and legal counsel to secure a temporary exemption (now permanent) for our work. Refusing to ordain women, refusing to receive practicing homosexuals or ordain them to the ministry. Supporting right-to-life policies (anti-abortion) is opposite to recent court decisions and national policy.

Their are some very dangerous precedents in the BJU ruling. The Supreme Court preempted the exclusive rights of Congress. Exempt organizations must prove they provide a benefit the public wants and the exempt institutions must never act in any manner that is inconsistent with public policy.

Remember the Bible says: "The things of God are foolishness (meaningless nonsense) to the nonspiritual person." Kenneth S. Kantzer wrote: "If we are unable to communicate our biblical values to our fellow citizens, we shall soon lose our tax advantages and ultimately our religious freedoms. Christians must reverse their tactics of the last 75 years and once again actively seek to penetrate our society and persuade men and women we shall bit by bit lose our precious heritage of freedom and eventually find ourselves a persecuted people."

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,
Seems the Coalition to Ban Handguns has picked Odessa statistically "murder" capital of the United States. Not surprising to anyone, they conclude that handguns are at fault and should be banned.

Here is a statistic on murder for them to contemplate: 25 percent of the total known population murdered another 25 percent of the total population — worst criminal activity in statistical terms of recorded history — long before the handgun was ever an idea: "Cain slew Abel with a rock."

Now, God in his infinite wisdom, found the rock not at fault and punished Cain. If He had used the logic used by the Coalition to Ban Handguns, instead, He would have caused all the stones on the face of this earth to be turned into dust, incidently, leaving little David an empty sling against Goliath.

Could it be that they think they are wiser than God?

SDN Week in Review

SATURDAY
Sept. 10
A 17-year-old Snyder man is pronounced dead of stab wounds and an 18-year-old arrested in connection with the incident following a dance Saturday night at the Towle Park National Guard Armory.

MONDAY
Sept. 12
As projected earlier, the Scurry County Commissioners Court Monday morning approves a tax rate for 1984 equaling just over 15½ cents per $100 valuation.

This will then finance the $3.9 million tax share of a some $12 million 1984 County Budget. This estimate includes the $6.7 million operation of D.M. Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

To county taxpayers, the new rate equals an approximate 1 percent increase over last year, due in large part to a drop in oil values here.

A look at the future relationship between Western Texas College and Ma Bell is offered here Monday as college trustees wrangle with the problem of staying with or changing out its phone equipment system "after divestiture."

TUESDAY
Sept. 13
Representatives of Snyder's NAACP Chapter voice public support Tuesday for the "one grade per campus" concept, an idea which produced a tide of protest systemwide when discussed here last spring.

At Tuesday's meeting of the school board, NAACP members point to the "total integration" at the elementary school level which the concept would produce. Specifically, the redistribution of an approximate 75 percent ethnic minority student count at Central Elementary.

School district hiring practices involving minorities and a possible change in the school board structure, changing to a "single member" district, are requested also.

WEDNESDAY
Sept. 14
An old foe to Scurry County farmers — the boll weevil — prompts the Scurry County Producers Association to extended the deadline until Saturday to collect funds for a possible boll weevil diapause program here this fall.

At the present time, the anticipated level of funds will not support such a program and unless a substantial response is obtained, such a program for this fall will have to be cancelled "due to lack of support," it is reported.

Formal induction ceremonies are conducted Wednesday to install local officers for the newly formed Snyder Chapter of The Daughters of The Republic of Texas chapter. State president for the organization, Mrs. Rex Arnold of Lubbock, is on hand for the ceremony.

THURSDAY
Sept. 15
Longtime Snyder civic leader Lyle Deffebach is honored by his fellow Rotary Club members Thursday with a Rotary WHOO award.

The name stands for We Honor Our Own and it is given to recognize both service to the community as well as Rotary.

FRIDAY
Sept. 16
The traditional Fiesta for Our Lady of Guadalupe Church begins Friday with activities planned through Sunday.

A queen crowning and dance is planned at the church Friday and Saturday's parade is to begin at 3 p.m. It will circle the square with three brief pauses at the west, south and eastern sides for demonstrations by fiesta folk dancers.

The state continues to lag behind approximately 1 percent and sales tax figures reported for Snyder and most other surrounding communities indicate a continuing trend of reduced sales as well.

Locally, a reduction in sales of some 15.2 percent is reported.

For the nine-month reporting period, some $593,000 has been returned locally through the one cent sales tax collected by the state. For the same period last year, this figure equaled just more than $700,000, a net loss of $107,000.

The deadline for submitting family histories for inclusion in the "Footprints Across Scurry County" publication passes.

Changes mark art of mapping

DEATH VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Gary Bohren, burly, bearded and deeply tanned, stands on a dusty little hilltop on a sweltering spring day and squints through a surveyor's transit.

Several miles away, in a heat-shimmering sea of white sand and baby tornadoes called dust devils, another surveyor squints back. An assistant marks the spot with a twinkle of sunlight flashed from a heliograph, a signal mirror cavalrymen used during the Indian Wars.

U.S. Geological Survey surveyors like these have stepped on just about every square foot of America. They've looked through transits — now high-tech versions called theodolites — and marked up "Field Notes" for 104 years.

"This is the fun part," Bohren says halfway through a hectic day that began at dawn and ended well after dusk. "This is the closest we come to really doing surveying. We don't cover the ground like we used to."

Racing about by helicopter, the crews covered 200 square miles of Death Valley before dark.

"It's a good job if you like to see a lot of country and be outdoors," says Bohren, whose three children spent most of their childhood in a 15-by-40-foot house trailer that moved every few months.

"If Powell and those guys from the old days were out here with us," Bohren says, "they'd know exactly what we're doing."

Powell was John Wesley Powell, a flamboyant explorer who lost an arm in the Civil War and was best known for his 1870-73 expeditions down the Colorado River and through the Grand Canyon. He ran the river enthroned in a chair lashed to an open boat.

Powell became the Survey's second director in 1881 and forged the agency into the preeminent mapper of the continent.

But things are different today. Sunburned surveyors — spiritual descendants of Powell, of Lewis and Clark — are changing or disappearing. Men and women like Bohren, who "wanted to be a surveyor ever since I was kid," are moving indoors. The 41-year-old farmboy turned civil engineer is now district cartographer for the USGS Western Mapping Center at Menlo Park and spends less and less time in the field.

The agency's first duty is mapping America and its geology, and in four regional centers, it's being revolutionized by computers and satellites.

The need for heliographs and transits is dwindling. Aerial photographs, satellite images and computers do most things surveyors have done since the Egyptians invented the art 3,000 years ago.

At the Menlo Park center archives, William J. Johnson Jr., 57, chief of the regional National Cartographic Information Center, smooths out a topographic map Powell drew of Bannock, Idaho, in 1890. Its intricate, twisting contour lines show slopes and valleys more clearly, to a practiced eye, than a photograph ever could.

"He went out there and he inked in all those lines in the field," Johnson says. "He set up a tripod with a table on it and tacked down a sheet of paper. Then he would start taking shots" — sighting through a transit and using geometry to figure distances.

"Those guys were artists," he says. "Now it's a lost art."

Such a map might have taken two summers to prepare, Johnson says. "If we were doing it today from Landsat (a mapping satellite), it would take us maybe two weeks."

The USGS Menlo Park Center takes in about $550,000 a year from map customers such as city planners, oil and mineral companies, pipeline and powerline firms, engineers of all kinds, commercial mapmakers and government agencies. Typically, topographic maps run about $2 each.

The newest wrinkle is digital mapping. The whole staggering collection of data for an area, from field surveys to U-2 aerial photos to images from Landsat 477 miles up, are fed into computers — and sometimes generated by them — then stored without paper and extracted as needed for a particular map.

At Menlo Park, draftsmen now draw map lines on computer screens.

Coordinates can be typed in to set lines or names or features such as houses or campgrounds. Impressive maps can appear on television monitors — and then be manipulated and changed — at the push of a few buttons.

The pride and joy is an experimental device called "Voice Data Entry System." The operator wears a microphone, speaks a few numbers and says "house" or "road." Big mechanical arms on a table move, sliding a pen over paper and a house or a road appears.

"We make the paper copy just to have it," Johnson says. "The information is recorded on tape...and the map will drawn by a digital tape.

"Now you see how far we've come from that guy out in the field drawing lines on a piece of paper."

What may well be the last major chore of the field surveyors is a continuing effort to map America at 7½-minute scale, where an inch on the map represents about 2,000 feet on the ground. The minutes are one-sixtieth of one degree of latitude and longitude. A standard 7½-minute map, each half the space of the last mapping effort, might cover an area as small as seven miles by eight miles.

"We've scheduled that to be finished by 1985," Bohren says. "Basically, what we've done is work ourselves out of a job."

Small grains need fall nitrogen

Applying nitrogen for small grains this fall will be important.

Four important reasons why wheat and other small grains need nitrogen at planting or a short time afterward:

- aid in developing of good root system,
- for early grazing,
- to hasten decomposition of excess residual straw, and
- for high production of forage and grain.

Sufficient fall growth for early grazing cannot be expected without adequate nitrogen at planting. The advantages of early planting and favorable fall growing conditions can be lost if nitrogen fertilization is delayed until late fall. Establishing a good uniform stand with good tillering requires nitrogen, and most soils are deficient in this nutrient.

To meet nitrogen requirements during the fall growing period, producers can apply the total requirement before planting on heavy textured soils for both forage and grain. Or they can apply a small amount at planting followed by topdressing soon after planting or in late winter for grain production only.

Of course, fall nitrogen fertilization is also affected by the amount of straw from the previous crop. The bacteria and other microorganisms needed to decompose the straw require nitrogen and can use that already in the soil as well as that applied, thus reducing the amount available during the fall.

The general rule in applying nitrogen has been to increase the rate of nitrogen about 20 pounds per acre for each ton of undecomposed straw. However, a portion of this nitrogen is recovered during the final stages of decomposition so that as much as half of this may be available during the spring months. This means that about half of the "extra" nitrogen could be deducted from the late winter topdressing.

Seek visit from royalty

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Undaunted by rejections from President Reagan and Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, a public relations man is trying to entice Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Diana to visit a local thoroughbred racetrack.

Andrew Furman, director of promotions at Latonia Race Course, wrote to the royal couple Wednesday saying he had read in the newspapers that they were "eager for a visit to the United States — just waiting for an invite.... Here it is."

Use of energy

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have heard that your body uses more energy at rest than it does with exercise. Can that be true? Do some people use more energy at rest than others? Is that the reason some people get fat and others stay thin?

DEAR READER — Whether you use more calories a day at rest or from physical activity depends a lot on how active you really are. If you were an active lumberman and labored at hard work all day you might use over 4,000 calories a day. But it is true that for the average person most of the calories used a day are used just to maintain the body's resting needs.

A 150-pound muscular person will use about 1,500 calories at absolute rest in a 24-hour period. That same person would have to walk 25 miles to use an additional 1,500 calories that day.

There are a lot of things that can influence how many calories your body uses at rest. Just having lots of well developed muscles will enable your body to use more calories when you are sitting still than if you weighed the same but had less muscle and more fat. That is because muscle tissue uses energy at rest even while fat uses little energy at rest and may be considered inert.

For most of us the bulk of energy used at rest is from chemical actions in the body and transporting chemicals into and outside the cells. But medical conditions can affect your use of calories at rest. The best known example is an overactive thyroid that steps up your metabolism.

I think the difference in basal metabolism is a big area for research into why some people have trouble with weight control and others do not. But most people who have weight problems do not have decreased thyroid function. The problem is more complex than that.

I am sending you The Health Letter 5-2, Understanding Your Energy System, to give you more information on how your calories are used. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been plagued for years with those dreadful blisters. Usually I get one or two a year but in the past three months I have had 11. I had eight of them at one time. Two went from the left side of my upper lip to my nose. The scabs lasted three weeks.

In the past I have used spirits of camphor but that has done nothing for these last outbreaks. I also started taking Lysine Plus since this last occurrence but it's too late for my new blister.

What is the real cause of these? Can it be from stress or too much acid in the body? Should I see a special doctor?

DEAR READER — You probably have herpes simplex or cold sores. It is caused by a virus that lives in the nerve fibers and migrates to the skin to form the blisters. You probably got it when you were a child. Maybe 80 percent of the population becomes infected when they are children and were kissed by a family member or friend who infected them.

Stress, fever as from a cold, sunburn and trauma can precipitate an attack.

Go see a dermatologist and make sure of the diagnosis. There is no sure cure but he may be able to help make you more comfortable and give you a routine to help suppress them.

Tell children to be cautious of strangers

(Editor's Note: The following article is a public service of the Snyder Daily News through the cooperation of Pete Greene, district attorney, and the Prosecutor Council.)

September means school and for parents of young children, their child's trek to and from school each day can be a constant source of apprehension.

Parents should teach their children basic, common-sense precautions and work with school officials and the PTA to initiate crime prevention strategies in and around schools.

-Give your child a healthy suspicion for strangers. A stranger is anyone a child's parents don't know, even if the person knows the child's name or "seems like a friend."

-Children should never accept food, gifts, or an automobile ride from a stranger and should never play around public restrooms.

-Teach your children never to open the door to a stranger and never to enter a stranger's home. If your child is selling Girl Scout cookies, Easter Seals, or Christmas cards door-to-door, make sure he or she is accompanied by at least one friend.

-If a stranger bothers your child, the child should take note of the stranger's appearance, his clothing, and the color and license number of his car. Call the police IMMEDIATELY.

Know the length of time it takes your child to walk to and from school. Be aware of the schedule for any extra-curricular activities after school. Immediately check any delay in arrival home. Check out the safest route to and from school and instruct your children to follow that route. If possible, have them walk with others; there is safety in numbers. If your children are to arrive home after dark, arrange to meet them.

Parents of young children might consider organizing "child safety patrols" if child harassments become a serious problem. These patrols are composed of parents or concerned adults who walk the streets when school opens and closes each day.

Know your children's playmates and where they congregate. Visit the school and become acquainted with teachers and school officials. You may learn of delinquent behavior before it becomes a serious problem. Give the school instructions to release your children only to persons you have designated in writing.

Tell your children never to admit being home alone, whether to someone on the phone or to someone at the door. If your child is alone and the person asks where you are, the child should simply say that you can't come to the phone or door right now. Teach your children to give as little information to a stranger as possible. Be sure your babysitter is a responsible person and capable of acting in an emergency.

Children should be encouraged to talk with their parents any time they have a problem, whether the problem is with a stranger, friend, or relative. Remind your children that the police officer is a friend who can be called on any time help is needed.
