Court Updating Proposed

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger proposed today creation of a council representing all branches of the federal government to bring the nation's court system up to date.

"In the supermarket age," he said, "we are like a merchant trying to operate a cracker barrel corner grocery store with the methods and equipment of 1900."

Burger proposed updating of the judicial system and warned of expecting too much of the federal courts in his first state of the judiciary message to the American Bar Association.

The white-haired jurist said the courts need more money, judges and trained administrators and a streamlining of their trial and appeals processes to retain public confidence.

He questioned the priorities of a nation that spends $200 million to develop the C5A airplane and $128 million on its federal judicial system.

For at least 50 years, he said, the federal court system has had steadily increasing burdens.

"Some of this," he said, "is because of new laws and decisions and some because of a tendency that is unique to America to look to the courts to solve all problems."

At the same time, Burger said, much of the judicial machinery has grown obsolete.

Burger told the lawyers and judges they should give urgent consideration to asking Congress to create a new judiciary council which would report to all three branches of the federal government on a wide range of matters affecting federal courts.

For example, he said, it could report on caseloads in particular districts, propose creation of temporary judgeships to meet urgent situations and study the present jurisdiction of federal courts.

Burger said the council could have six members, with two appointed by the president, two by Congress and two by the U. S. Judicial Conference, which he heads.

But while advancing this and other possible reforms, Burger also cautioned that the federal court system "is for a limited purpose."

"People speak glibly of putting all the problems of pollution, of crowded cities, of consumer class actions and others in the federal courts," he said.

"We should look more to state courts familiar with local conditions and local problems."

The chief justice, whose address was broadcast and telecast nationally, said there is a widespread public complaint that the present system of criminal justice does not deter criminal conduct.

99 Are Killed In Peru Plane Crash

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A Peruvian airliner returning tourists from a visit to the Inca ruins at Machu Picchu crashed Sunday, killing 99 of the 100 persons aboard, including 49 young American exchange students. It was Peru's worst air disaster.

"They were typical United States high school students, the best that their communities could offer," said Mrs. Mildred M. Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., president of the International Fellowship, Inc., which sponsored the Peruvian visit by the youths.

Fifteen other youths decided to remain in Lima with the families with whom they had spent the summer, rather than make the trip to the ruins.

Several other Americans were aboard in addition to the students spending the summer in Peru under the sponsorship of International Fellowship Inc. of Buffalo, N.Y. But their exact number was uncertain.

International Fellowship received from the State Department a list of 49 of its students 14 to 19 years old aboard the plane. But the airline, Lansa, issued a list of 54 Americans aboard which included three other teen-agers, a 21-year-old and four older tourists. The airline listed two of the students on International Fellowship's list as Peruvians, and it was thought some of those it listed as American might be Peruvian.

The airline said the Lockheed Electra carried 91 passengers and seven crew members, but later the Aviation Department said there were two more crew members aboard.

One man, the copilot, survived. He was found in the wreckage of the cockpit.

Most of the passengers had flown to Cuzco, the ancient Inca capital 365 miles southeast of Lima, for an excursion to the Inca ruins at nearby Macchu Picchu. After the day of sightseeing, the plane had just taken off from Cuzco for Lima when one of its four turboprop engines failed and the pilot, Capt. Alejandro Calegari, requested permission to return to Cuzco.

The plane crashed into San Jeronimo Hill six miles south of the Cuzco airport and exploded, scattering bodies over a wide area.

Lansa officials said the airline was sending a plane to Cuzco today to bring the bodies to Lima.

International Fellowship said the students, among 400 Americans spending 45 days with Peruvian families, were accompanied by 14 Peruvian youngsters, including Marisel Bedoya Vivanco, 16, daughter of a former Lima mayor.

Mitrione's Body Found In Car

By OSCAR J. SERRAT
Associated Press Writer

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The Tupamaro guerrillas executed American police expert Daniel A. Mitrione during the night because the Uruguayan government refused to release an estimated 150 political prisoners as ransom for him and two other kidnaped foreign officials.

Mitrione's body was found bound and gagged in a blood-stained car parked on a city street. He had been shot twice in the head. A bandage covered the chest wound he suffered when he was kidnaped July 31 while driving to work.

Police sealed off the area, removed the body from the car and declined to say where they had taken it. They refused to give official confirmation that it was Mitrione's, but police officials told newsmen there was little or no doubt.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that a second body had been found, but the police said nothing.

The abandoned car was found at an intersection about four miles from the center of the city. People living near the intersection said they had not heard shots or cars roaring off. This indicated that the Tupamaros had killed Mitrione, driven the body to the intersection and left the area on foot.

The car had been stolen Sunday. It was stained with blood.

Environment Report Sent To Congress

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today sent Congress a State of the Environment report urging the development of a national land use policy.

The report, prepared by the Council on Environmental Quality, may well be a preview of things to come, although too late for legislative action this year.

It recommends federal encouragement of planned and controlled land development, protecting areas of scenic and recreational value.

Economic incentives emerge throughout the wide-ranging report as one of the major tools to be used by the federal government in attacking environmental problems.

The costs of cleaning up environmental pollution, it emphasizes, must be allocated throughout society in the prices charged for products and services.

The report warns that man's activities are already altering the world's climate in ways that could bring on a catastrophe.

So little is known about this, however, that the Council was undecided whether it might emerge as a man-made ice age or—just the opposite effect—a melting of the polar ice caps and flooding of large land areas.

In sending the report—the first of its kind—to Capitol Hill, Nixon reminded Congress of the major environmental proposals he has already submitted, which still await Congressional action.

But the Council, only half a year old and in practical operation scarcely four months, also offered some new proposals, giving special attention to the problems of land use.

It said the federal government should:

—Use existing project-approval authority to encourage cluster zoning and timed development.

—Direct federal sewer and water grants and open space acquisition "toward communities or project areas which will use them to control development rather than to those which merely respond to uncontrolled growth."

—Use home mortgage and interest subsidy programs "to encourage the proper siting and environmental compatibility" of new residential subdivisions.

—Emphasize acquisition of small parks and natural areas near cities.

—Protect "areas of special ecological significance."

Such recommendations, the report said, are only "aspects of a strategy" requiring broader development.

"Land use is still not guided by any agreed upon standards," it said. "It is instead influenced by a welter of sometimes competitive overlapping government institutions and programs, private and public attitudes and biases, and distorted economic incentives."

Nixon told Congress that "We have treated our land as if it were a limitless resource ... Today, we are coming to realize that our land is finite, while our population is growing ... Society as a whole has a legitimate interest in proper land use."

Nixon added, "I believe we must work toward development of a National Land Use Policy to be carried out by an effective partnership of Federal, State and local governments together, and, where appropriate, with new regional institutional arrangements."

Bill Expands Jobless Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today signed a bill under which unemployment insurance will be extended to about 4.7 million more workers and extra benefits will be available in times of high unemployment.

Congress balked at proposals to bring employes of large farms under the unemployment insurance system, but it did vote to include other large groups not hitherto covered.

These include an estimated 2.121 million employes of nonprofit organizations, 1.132 million employes of smaller business firms, 940,000 employes of state hospitals and colleges, 210,000 salesmen, route drivers and similar workers, 190,000 persons engaged in processing agricultural products and 160,000 Americans employed abroad by U.S. firms.

The new law also provides for unemployment payments to be extended as much as 13 weeks, with federal help, when the national percentage of insured unemployment reaches 4.5 per cent, or in an individual state when the rate increases 20 per cent over the preceding year and is at least 4 per cent. The extra benefits would be effective generally beginning in 1972, but provision is made for states to start them sooner if they wish.

The federal unemployment tax is increased one-tenths of one per cent. The base on which it is levied goes from $3,000 of wages to $4,200, effective in 1972.

67 year-old Romeo a bird to watch

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I cannot remain silent after reading about that 67-year-old man making a play for his 59-year-old sister-in-law. This man needs help all right. What he needs is a woman who is ready, willing and able. I'd guess that his wife is able, but she is neither ready nor willing. The fact that the object of his affections is an 89-year-old woman is perhaps unusual, but it sets no precedent.

And I'll tell you something else, too. Eighty-eight-year-old Mamma may not be as dismayed by his attentions as is her daughter. I was a good man at 67, and still lack a lot of being dead at 79, and I resent your inferring that a 67-year-old man is a doddering old dodo.

Your answer, "Speak to the man as you would to a 'naughty boy'," irked me.

Dear Abby, just wait until you are 67 and see if you want some patronizing person talking to you as if you are a 10-year-old "naughty girl." Very truly yours,

STILL ALIVE AT 79

DEAR ALIVE: Thanks for writing. I am aware that Cupid doesn't work with a calendar, and I know that a 67-year-old man [or woman] can have a lively interest in romance. But when a man that age tries to take improper liberties with his 59-year-old sister-in-law, I say, he is neither healthy nor normal, and this bird needs help—and watching!

DEAR ABBY: I am a hairdresser in one of the better shops in town. The tips here run a dollar for a shampoo and set, so you know our clientele isn't exactly cheap.

We have a money-hungry operator here I'll call "Susie" who talks her customers into "conditioners," treatments and color, whether they need it or not. She brags that she sells her customers haircuts, then a perm, followed by another haircut [cutting all the perm off], followed by another perm, and so on. She pulls every trick in the book to run up the customer's bill. She makes the rest of us look like a bunch of pikers.

Now Susie has a new one. She has a piggy bank in her booth with a sign over it, "SEND SUSIE TO JAMAICA." We think this is pretty crummy. What do you think?

THE OTHER OPERATORS

DEAR OPERATORS: I think all you operators ought to buy Susie the ticket! [One way.]

DEAR ABBY: How important are table manners? I am married to a very fine young man who is kind and considerate, and I really do love him, but Abby, his table manners are unbelievable! We've been married only 4 months, and I admit I noticed this before we were married, but I thought I could change him later.

He eats just like an animal. He piles so much food on his plate that it slops over the edges, and soon it's all over the tablecloth. He fills his mouth full, chews with his mouth half open, and he eats like someone is going to take the food away from him. He doesn't use a napkin. He wipes his mouth with his bread.

Naturally, I don't invite anyone for dinner. Is there a book that tells how to eat properly? I hate to nag him, and little hints like, "Please slow up, Honey," or, "Please close your mouth when you chew, Darling," don't seem to get thru to him. Except for this one fault, he's a wonderful guy.

FRAZZLED NERVES

DEAR FRAZZLED: There are books to teach one which fork to use, but your husband needs more than that. With all the love and kindness you can muster, give him a palatable eating lesson, and teach him everything he needs to know. And if he's as "wonderful" as you say he is, he'll thank you for it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. J. P.: Urge him to put his affairs in order. He may live.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Mobutu Tours Disneyland

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — President Joseph Mobutu of the Congo took a morning off from the business of his 12-day trip to the United States—encouraging investment in his central African nation—and toured Disneyland.

His favorite attraction? The Adventureland ride up a simulated Congo River.

"He thought it was very delightful and he chuckled when he saw the hippos," an aide reported Sunday. Unlike the Congo's, Disney hippos are mechanical.

Mobutu left Sunday for New York on the last leg of his visit.

Guerrillas Attacked By Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli planes attacked Arab guerrilla bases in Lebanon over the weekend, and ground forces battled infiltrators on the Israeli-held Golan Heights. But quiet prevailed along the Suez Canal for the second day of the Egyptian-Israeli ceasefire.

The air attack Sunday on the southwest slopes of Mt. Hermon was in retaliation for guerrilla raids on Israeli frontier settlements and military positions over the weekend, an Israeli spokesman said. A Lebanese army spokesman said the raiders burned crops and knocked out electrical power in three villages known to be guerrilla strongholds-Kfar Shuba, Shaaba and Jorsa.

Arab guerrillas in Lebanon, fired mortars at an Israeli border settlement in Northern Galilee Sunday night, wounding one of the settlers, the military command in Tel Aviv said today. Israeli troops returned the fire, he said.

Guerrillas from Jordan claimed killing or wounding 30 Israelis in an attack Sunday on military positions five miles north of the Dead Sea. But a military spokesman in Tel Aviv said no Israeli casualties were reported in the incident.

The Israeli command said two guerrillas were killed and eight others captured Saturday after a small force from the Syria-based Popular Front General Command infiltrated into the occupied Golan Heights. A spokesman said the guerrillas were carrying explosives, mines and weapons and apparently were intercepted on a sabotage mission.

In Amman, the Jordanian capital, machine guns battles broke out between the Arab Palestine Organization, which supports Egypt's acceptance of the cease-fire, and the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which opposes it. Both sides said one child was killed and nine other persons were wounded, and each blamed the other.

Commandos from the Popular Front clashed twice last week with guerrillas from Action, another pro-Egyptian command group in Jordan. Two men were killed and 10 wounded in those clashes.

The Israeli cabinet met for more than five hours Sunday amid reports of strong government feeling that the United States had failed to guarantee Israeli interests in its campaign to put over the American cease-fire proposal.

A government announcement said only that the Cadinet "reviewed various aspects of Israeli-U.S. relations." But official informants said Israel was angered because the U.N. announcement of the start of new peace efforts did not make clear that Israel would not withdraw from any occupied territory without the recognition of secure frontiers in a peace treaty with the Arabs.

County and state welfare workers are also on hand along with personnel of the Texas Employment Commission.

Water pressure is almost normal in all areas except at Gregory and Port Aransas, the Office of Emergency Preparedness said.

Seven contracts have been let by the Army Corps of Engineers for four disaster dump centers with 30 trucks hauling debris at a cost of $2 million. Sixteen other contracts have been let by the engineers for debris removal at a cost of $3 million.

By Sunday, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had received 35 applications for assistance from school authorities.

The Sba has interviewed more than 1,000 families to whom loan applications were issued.

Gas Shipments Start Today

By WILLIAM CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

The Army plans to embark today upon what it says will be its last mission to ship lethal nerve gas by rail for dumping in the Atlantic Ocean.

Trains carrying 418 concrete and steel jacketed vaults of nerve gas rockets—30 to the vault—were to leave Blue Grass Army Depot near Richmond, Ky., and Anniston, Ala., Army Depot for North Carolina to be loaded aboard a barge. It will be scuttled in waters 16,000 feet deep 282 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The Army kept the routes secret but said the shipments would move through thinly populated areas. By highway, it is about 540 miles from Anniston and about 645 miles from Richmond to the North Carolina coast.

The Army said there is no danger of leakage from the vaults.

Army chemical experts will accompany the shipments and their mechanical gas-leak detectors will be backed up by 12 rabbits and 12 pigeons, highly sensitive to gas.

Army spokesmen said similar shipments in the future will be unnecessary because the Army is developing a method of decomposing the gas at the military bases where it is stored.

It said detonation of a 60-pound charge of dynamite beneath a vault would not damage it enough to allow gas to escape. The vaults are encased in quarter-inch armor plating.

Congressional sources said the Anniston train will pass through the Georgia cities of Bremen, Griffin, Macon and Athens before angling up through the Carolinas to an ocean terminal at Sunny Point, N.C.

The train is to move no faster than 35 miles per hour. A check of the rails was completed Saturday.

Few mayors have raised objections to the shipments and Gov. Lester Maddox, of Georgia offered to ride atop the train to demonstrate his confidence in the Army's safety precautions. The Army said it had no orders permitting him aboard.

But Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., says he will be on the Blue Grass Depot train until it leaves Kentucky "to help allay fear among the residents" of his southeastern Kentucky district. He said he had Army authority to ride the train.

However, dissent has been expressed by a number of persons, among them Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, three congressmen from his state and U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Thant said disposal of the gas in international waters would violate a U.N. General Assembly resolution on pollution of the high seas. The State Department denied this.

Kirk and the congressmen appealed to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird to halt the dumping, opposed by environmentalists who fear pollution of the ocean.

The Army contends that the ocean will render the gas harmless by dilution if salt water or pressure ever cracks the vaults.

Painter Tells About Families He Lives With

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Summer is a great time to have your portrait painted. People are more relaxed, and artists are available at many resorts where they set up their easels. Some artists are in demand as house guests. They may be invited to spend a vacation at a home as they paint the family scene—children, animals, house—and they can earn a fee, even as they enjoy.

The itinerant artist of the 18th century who painted the family scene as he moved across the country, may have blazed the trail, but he surely could not have been more pampered than today's artist.

"There's only one problem with being a house guest artist," explains Paul Longenecker of New York City, who was born in Greensboro, N.C. "It is difficult to persuade a family that you didn't really come to their home for a good time. You actually want to paint ... right away."

Longenecker has painted actresses, society figures and friends, and in many instances he has been transported to posh homes by the jet set's own planes. His paint box folds to suit-case size, but it can accommodate a five-foot painting.

Fonda Opens 'GI Office'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda and a group of other sponsors have opened an office here to investigate and document complaints by servicemen about deprivation of their rights.

Miss Fonda said Saturday she plans to donate proceeds from a college lecture tour this fall to what she calls the "GI Office." She said other funds are expected from individuals.

She declined to give the address of the office, saying there was a fear of reprisals, but she said GI complaints should be addressed to P.O. Box 9746, Washington, D.C.

Information gathered, she said, will be turned over to "senators and congressmen who share our concern."

Leftover cooked rice may be teamed with cheese sauce and baked. About two cups of sauce will be needed for three cups of rice.

He wastes no time in setting up his temporary studio in the house, often in a corner of the family room, and he is soon part of the family picture. There usually is a small party to introduce him to friends—artists from New York are considered very glamorous, he points out. Before long, he has become a pal to the children and animals and he has determined what the family's special interests are—sometimes it is the house, he says.

One problem about painting in a home is that everyone wants to peek at the artistic work while it is in progress, and this stymies the creative effort. If it is a portrait, he is likely to "pull a haughty act" and become adamant that it cannot be seen. No adult is ever satisfied "with the cruel likeness of a painting in the rough stage," he says. Pleasing a family is the biggest problem any artist faces, even when the painting is finished.

"Some people identify their own looks with another person's. People don't really know what they look like. One woman was shocked at the heavy eyelids in her portrait. She had always covered them with makeup and hadn't really seen them in their true light," he says.

Mothers often are disappointed in their children's portraits —one or another feature may suddenly loom large in the painting. And if there is a complaint about a portrait, it is usually a mouth, he says.

"People seldom notice anyone's mouth until they examine it in a picture. They will look at the picture and comment that 'the eyes are fine, the nose is good, the ears aren't bad, but there is something about the mouth' I always keep people talking when I paint them because the mouth must be relaxed. That's the way I can tell whether they part their lips normally or which side curves up more."

Getting people in the mood to be painted is another task of the artist. He must tell mother that he cannot paint the little girl in a party dress or the little boy in shirt and tie that will make them feel uncomfortable. He prefers children in casual clothes that will make them feel relaxed. The same is true of adults—he doesn't like to paint a woman who has just come from a beauty salon, and he doesn't like to paint a man who is wearing a tie or has just had his hair cut.

People should avoid the artist's easel when they are under emotional stress—it can make them look 20 years older, he says. And a good night's sleep is really essential before a portrait sitting.

Longenecker is noted, too, for his beautiful florals, and he often does gardens of homes. After a successful show at the Lobster Pot Gallery in Nantucket, he was invited to live at the home of the director, George Vigouroux, where he painted the family's waterfront home. He also used the studio at the gallery to paint local color and people.

Puppets Ease Children's Fears

PARK RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Telling children about hospital procedures often taxes the imagination of adults who are charged with allaying fears of tots about to be treated.

Sheila Johnson, pediatric-adolescent teacher and activity coordinator, uses puppets, play stethoscope, X-ray machine, blood pressure cuff and ID bracelets to tell children what it is like to be a patient.

"The program is an excellent idea," said Dr. Seymour Metrick, chairman of the department of pediatrics at Lutheran General Hospital. "I think it is helpful in lessening the tremendous anxiety of children as well as parents."

Darlington Links Social Problems To Genetics

THE EVOLUTION OF MAN AND SOCIETY. By C. D. Darlington. Simon and Schuster. $12.95.

In an age when cause pushers in public and private life are waving socio-political wands, muttering incantations, and forthwit claiming they are solving racial, social, and economic conflicts, it is high time for science to raise its too-subdued voice and make what contributions it can. That is exactly what C. D. Darlington, noted Oxford biologist and Geneticist, attempts to do in his latest book.

Generally speaking, publicists, historians and even novelists are not considered with it today unless they blame all our social woes on this or that unfortunate environmental factor. Darlington, from a lifetime of scientific study, unabashedly insists that this approach must be balanced by the careful application of genetics, the study of our inherited characteristics, if the history of man and his society is to be interpreted properly.

Darlington, trying to blend history and science, plays the gamut from prehistory through the great epochs of man's experience—Mesopotamian, Egyptian, Chinese, Greek, Roman, Islamic, etc. He attempts to show hereditary factors, as evidenced by repeated manifestations, in individual rulers and other leaders, families, dynasties, tribes, nations, and races. He does not argue that heredity is or should be unchangeable; indeed, he appeals strongly for sensible hybridization and outbreeding to achieve desirable variety.

Sometimes he seems to overplay his hand, mainly from too-confident application of genetics to individuals or families or nations in our ancient past whose hereditary factors we cannot possibly know with accuracy. For instance, we do not know assuredly who was the father of Tutankhamen, the boy pharoah entombed so expensively, whom Darlington sees as the end failure of a line of incentuous marriages.

Turning to modern America, Darlington touches on some points that are bound to stir controversy. For instance, he sees strong genetic factors in the criminal history of the Mafia. And on racial matters he asserts bluntly: "In short, racial discrimination has a genetic basis with a large instinctive and irrational component. Its action may be modified by education or by economic processes. But it cannot be suppressed by law."

Whatever our beliefs or prejudices, it would help take some of the fire out of contemporary controversy to consider carefully the points Darlington raises.

Modern food canning started in 1795 with a 12,000-franc prize offered by the French government to anyone who could find a way to preserve food. Nicholas Appert, a determined French confectioner, used a primitive pressure cooker technique and preserved fruits and vegetables by filling bottles with food, sealing them with cork stoppers and cooking the glass containers in boiling water.

Soviets Gathered Information In Disguised Planes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union disguised military aircraft as civilian planes and apparently collected radar and photo-intelligence data about U.S. military bases and North American coastal areas during mercy flights to Peru last month, defense sources report.

The sources said these judgments were based on routes flown by the planes and photographs and ground observations of Soviet AN12 and AN22 transports refueling at a base used by the U.S. Air Force and Navy at Keflavik, Iceland.

The Soviets declared the flights were to ferry emergency supplies to earthquake-devastated Peru.

Pictures show the planes were equipped with radar boosters and wing antennas that experts said usually are found on military rather than commercial-type Russian planes.

Also, ground observers reported seeing camera ports closing as Soviet planes landed at Keflavik after making wide, sweeping approaches that gave a broad view of the base.

An AN12 "Pathfinder" plane bound for Peru also was reported to have flown over the Kindley Naval Air Station in Bermuda, an important U.S. Navy anti-submarine base.

Defense sources said a close-up view of the Soviet aircraft on the ground at Keflavik indicated they had been dressed up rather hastily to look like civilian aircraft by painting on the insignia and markings of Aeroflot, the Russian International airline.

However, the AN12's had gun turrets in their tails.

The AN22s, huge planes somewhat comparable to the American C5, had windows in the nose which experts said could be used by bombadiers.

This was the first indication the Russians considered AN22s a dual purpose plane for use as transports and possibly as bombers.

Sources said the radar boosters could be employed either for navigation or radar mapping.

They suggested the Russians took the opportunity presented by the mercy flights to get good radar reference mapping information of some of the North American coast line. One stop en route to Peru was Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The sources discounted the possibility the Soviet planes would get much valuable information about the U.S. East Coast because their routes carried them too far out to sea.

Some U.S. strategists are concerned because the 8,000 mile flights to Peru demonstrated the Russian capability to fly long distances with huge aircraft like the AN22.

These analysts said the AN22 can carry sizeable missiles.

Judge's Shooting Is Probed

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A state prison official says a kidnaped judge "was sentenced to death, no matter what happened" in a courthouse escape attempt which ended in the deaths of the judge, two convicts and an accomplice.

Associate Warden James W. Park of San Quentin Prison told newsmen Sunday his opinion is based "primarily on knowing the extreme anger the convicts had expressed" against Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley.

Sheriff's officers said an investigation of the shootings was continuing.

Parks reported two prison guards had guns drawn and returned fire as a van attempted to leave Marin County Civic Center Friday. The van carried three convicts attempting to escape, an accomplice and five hostages— Haley, Asst. District Atty. Gary Thomas and three women jurors.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said Thomas, who was critically wounded, told his wife Maureen that he shot three men. He said he used a pistol he grabbed from the driver of the van after Judge Haley was killed.

Park said: "We have the signed report of guard John Matthews that as the van was opposite him, he felt weapons were aimed at him, that one went off and he returned the fire."

The abduction and shooting came after Jonathan Jackson, 17, whipped out a pistol in Haley's Civic Center courtroom and shouted: "Everybody freeze!" Jackson then passed out weapons to James McClain, being tried on a charge of assaulting a San Quentin guard, and to William Arthur Christmas and Ruchell Magee, convicts waiting to testify.

Officers, backed away by the weapons, reported a sawed-off shotgun was taped to the judge's neck. They said a blast from the weapon killed him when the deadly exchange began in the parking lot.

McClain, Christmas and Jackson also were killed and Thomas, juror Maria Graham and Magee were wounded.

Park said San Quentin has a policy of "not letting any prisoner go free because of a hostage."

"This would be the context in which our officers looked at the situation," he added.

"It is explained to all new employes at San Quentin. If they were captured, every effort will be made to rescue them, but no inmate will be allowed to get away.

"Once you allow a hostage situation to work, then you'll be plagued with it, like the airliner hijackings."

Under heavy security, Magee, reported in critical condition, was transferred Sunday from Marin General Hospital to the San Quentin prison hospital.

In London one spring day when the sun appeared unexpectedly, 840 umbrellas were left behind on buses and subways.

Disneyland Entertainers On Strike

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — About 75 entertainers on strike at Disneyland since Friday say they hope to resume negotiations for higher pay on Tuesday.

Two shows at the amusement park, the American Indian dances and "Kids of the Kingdom," have been closed by the strike involving members of the American Guild of Variety Artists, Disneyland officials said.

Union officials said management refused to talk seriously on wage issues during two months of negotiations preceding the strike. They claimed some top live entertainers earned $1.85 an hour.

A management spokesman said performers were paid "top dollar." Neither side disclosed exact figures.

The spokesman also said the strike was "absolutely unauthorized" by Orange County union groups.

Pete Remmel, secretary-treasurer of the Orange County Labor Council, said "we consider it authorized" despite a no strike contract clause because of sanction given by the union's national president.

Meanwhile, one of the striking pickets outside the main admission gates said: "We hope we'll get somewhere. We miss the Magic Kingdom."

Nixons Are Back In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon have returned to the nation's capital after a two-day stay at Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains.

It was a quiet weekend for the President. He conferred with advisers H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on both Saturday and Sunday. He returned to the White House with Mrs. Nixon by helicopter late Sunday afternoon.

Title Fever Spreads In Pittsburgh

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"We have to do it right now," said Roberto Clemente.

"These games aren't crucial," said Willie Stargell.

When players on the same baseball team—the Pittsburgh Pirates in this case—start talking in opposite directions it generally means one thing:

Pennant fever is spreading.

It was running rampant in the Bucs' clubhouse—although no one would admit it—after they took advantage of New York's pitching problems Sunday to turn back the Mets 8-3 and regain a 3½-game lead in the National League East.

The teams wrap up the four-game series tonight with the Mets sending their ace, 16-game winner Tom Seaver, against Dock Ellis, 12-8.

In Sunday's other games, San Diego turned back Atlanta 4-2 in the only other single contest. In doubleheader action, Philadelphia beat Chicago 6-1 after the Cubs won the opener 4-1; Montreal nipped St. Louis 7-6, then lost to the Cardinals 4-0; San Francisco ripped Houston 6-1 after the Astros grabbed the first game 7-5 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles shellacked Cincinnati 7-3 and 13-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees split a pair of 11-inning games with Baltimore, winning the opener 6-4 and losing the nightcap 12-9; Cleveland divided a twin-bill with Washington, dropping the first game 7-3 and capturing the second 6-3; California beat the Chicago White Sox twice, 5-0 and 6-3; Oakland swept two from Minnesota 3-0 and 6-3; Boston topped Detroit 7-4 and Milwaukee defeated Kansas City 4-2.

The Pirates, shooting for their first pennant in a decade, wouldn't permit themselves the luxury of thinking too far ahead in the season—they've got 48 games to play—but they're not above speculating about the opposition.

"It's too early to say what's going to happen," Clemente insisted, "but we have to do it right now. We have to get into a good position for that last month." The Mets and Pirates play seven of their final 10 games this year against each other.

Nolan Ryan was nursing a 3-2 lead when the Bucs opened the seventh inning with a walk and put runners on second and third as Ryan threw Matty Alou's sacrifice bunt past first base.

In came Ray Sadecki who proceeded to give up three more walks—one of them intentional—plus a pair of run-scoring singles and a sacrifice fly and the Pirates led 6-3. They added two more in the eighth on Clemente's triple, a sacrifice fly and Stargell's 23rd homer.

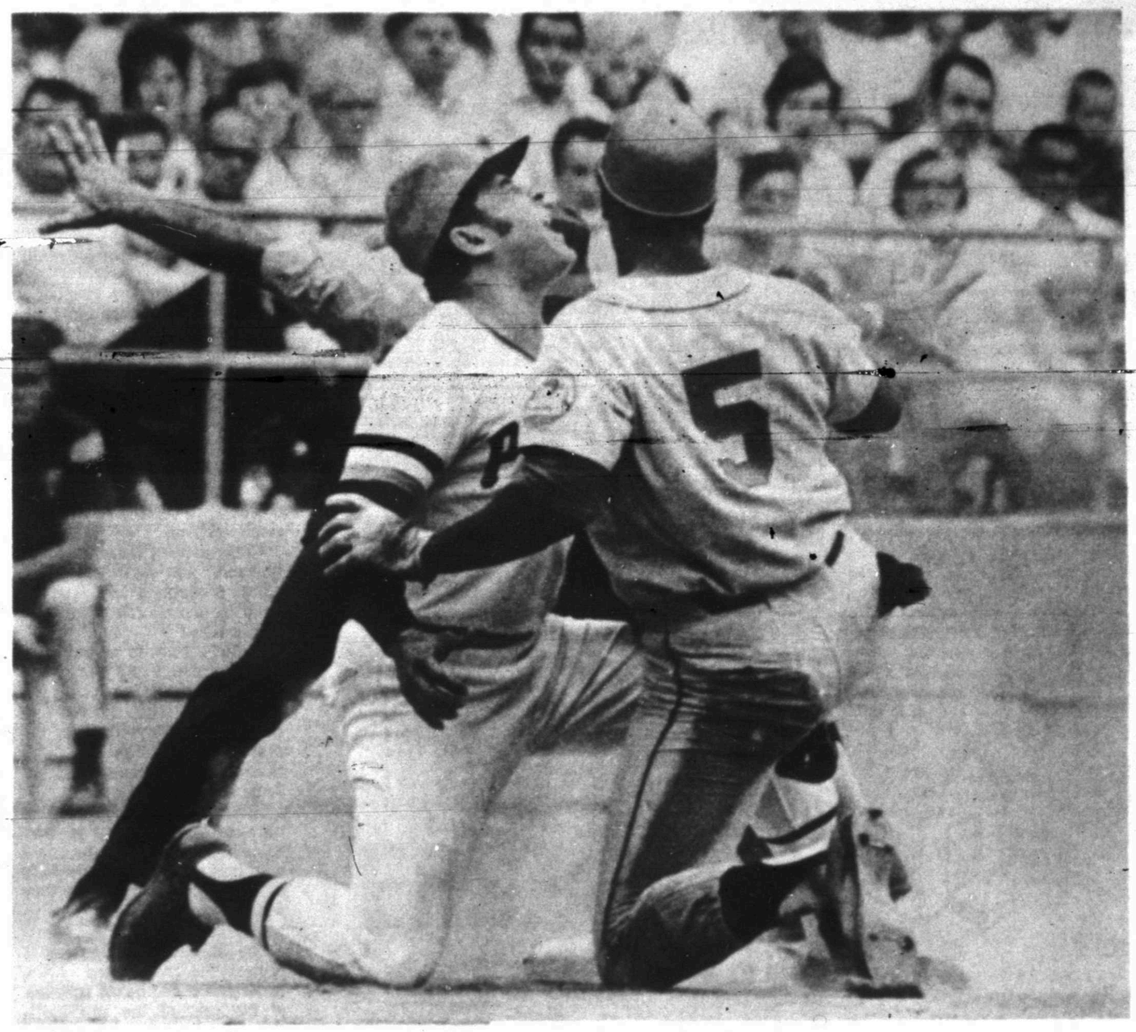

San Diego's Nate Colbert and Ed Spiezio cracked solo homers off Pat Jarvis as the Padres beat the Atlanta right-hander for the first time in six decisions. Henry Aaron of the Braves hit his 33rd homer.

Barry Lersch of the Phils made a successful debut as a starter, scattering eight hits while Tony Taylor crashed a two-run homer in the nightcap. The Cubs won the opener as pitcher Milt Pappas drilled a triple to trigger a two-run eighth-inning rally.

St. Louis rookie left-hander Jerry Reuss twirled a two-hitter to silence Montreal's bats in the second game of their twinbill. Bobby Wine's two-run tie-breaking double highlighted a four-run seventh inning that paved the way to the Expos' first-game triumph.

San Francisco scrambled back from a four-run deficit and tied the opener in the ninth but Houston's Joe Morgan unloaded a two-run homer in the next frame. Frank Johnson's two-run double in the sixth gave the Giants all the runs they needed in the nightcap.

Los Angeles unleashed a 35-hit attack—20 of them in the second game—to cut the runaway Reds' lead in the Western Division to 12 games. Ted Sizemore led the Dodger attack with seven hits for six runs batted in.

CARRAMBA! — Or, so it looks to be what Pirates third sacker Jose Pagan says as Mets third sacker Joe Foy (5) is safe at third in fifth inning double steal. Throw came a little late from catcher Manny Sanguillen as umpire Nicholas Colosi spreads his hands on the safe call . . . Foy was later thrown out at the plate. Pirates won it 8-3. (AP Wirephoto)

PROS CRANK UP
Bradshaw Has It

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Golden-haired Terry Bradshaw, pro football's No. 1 rookie, has had his baptism of fire in the play-for-pay ranks. Individually, he was a winner, although his team, the Pittsburgh Steelers, lost.

"What an arm," said Coach Don Shula, whose Miami Dolphins beat the Steelers 16-10.

It was one of the 10 exhibition games—first this season—in the National Football League. Collectively, the games Saturday attracted 450,674, more than twice the crowds for 11 major league baseball games the same day.

All 26 teams have games for the upcoming weekend of exhibitions, which runs from Friday night to Monday night. A feature will be a nationally televised, by NBC, game at Kansas City Friday night between the Chiefs and the Baltimore Colts.

The Steelers earned the right to pick Bradshaw, last season's Little All-American quarterback from Louisiana Tech, as the No. 1 rookie after posting a 1-13 record in Chuck Noll's first year as head coach.

Bradshaw—they called him the Blond Bomber in his college days—directed the Steelers on their only touchdown drive, something which veterans Kent Nix and Terry Hanratty couldn't accomplish. Bradshaw threw 19 passes, completing nine for 92 yards.

"Considering it was his first professional game, Terry did a remarkable job," Noll said. "We have great hopes for Terry and we do think things are getting better with the Pittsburgh Steelers."

Another rookie quarterback who showed well was Bill Cappleman of Florida State, who went the distance for the Minnesota Vikings. Like Bradshaw, Cappleman didn't direct his team to victory. The Vikings bowed 14-13 to the New Orleans Saints in the Pro Football Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio.

The Vikings, with quarterback Joe Kapp holding out for more money, were pleased over Cappleman's performance. "The kid did all right for his first game," said Coach Bud Grant. "We hadn't planned to play him all the way, but the further he went, the better he looked."

Cappleman connected on 19 of 30 tosses for 189 yards. "He hurt us," said Coach Tom Fears of the Saints, one of three Hall of Fame inductees. "We covered his passes quite well, but he froze the ball and that's what kept us in trouble."

Tom Dempsey's extra point kick after rookie safety Doug Wyatt had scored on a 59-yard fumble recovery return with four seconds left earned the Saints their victory.

The New York Jets, with quarterback Joe Namath also in the holdout ranks, got touchdown passes from Babe Parilli and Al Woodall plus Jim Turner's four field goals and beat the Buffalo Bills 33-10. Jim Marsalis, Jerry Mays and Emmitt Thomas each turned interceptions into touchdowns in leading the Kansas City Chiefs to a 30-17 conquest of the Detroit Lions.

The Green Bay Packers, with Bart Starr throwing 71 yards to Caroll Dale for a touchdown, and the New York Giants, with rookie Ed Baker hitting Dick Houston, who also caught a TD pass from Fran Tarkenton, for a 55-yard scorer, deadlocked 31-31 in the only tie game.

Earl Morrall came off the bench in the late going to throw one touchdown pass and set up another as the Baltimore Colts rallied to beat the Oakland Raiders, 33-21. Rookies Lamar Parrish, scoring with a 55-yard fumble recovery, and Sandy Durko, who dashed 67 yards for a touchdown with an interception, aided the Cincinnati Bengals in their 27-12 conquest of the Washington Redskins.

Roman Gabriel ran for one touchdown and threw for a second as the Los Angeles Rams defeated the Cleveland Browns 30-17 while the Chicago Bears, with Mac Percival kicking three field goals, whipped the Houston Oilers, 23-13.

Beard Eyes 2 In A Row

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Frank Beard took a look ahead to this week's PGA National Championship after picking off the $30,000 first prize in the American Golf Classic.

"No", the soft spoken technician said, "I've never won two consecutive tournaments. I've come close, but I've never won two in a row." Then he paused, smile and added, "until now."

"Actually, I'll go to the PGA just like this week never happened. I won't be overly elated and I won't be going in there feeling like I've used it all up."

Beard, who almost didn't come to Akron for the $150,000 classic, fired a conservative 71, one-over-par, on the demanding 7,180-yard Firestone layout in the final round Sunday.

He had a 276, two less than Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Tommy Aaron, each tied at 278.

Of the players who had a chance to challenge Beard, only Nicklaus could break par. He had a 69. Crampton, winner the week before, took a 71 and Aaron, who had a share of the top spot until he double bogeyed the 13th, finished with a 72.

George Archer, leader through the first two rounds, had a 73 and was alone at 279.

Tom Shaw, tied with Beard for the No. 1 position going into the final round, double bogeyed two of his first three holes en route to a 75 for 280. Defending champion Ray Floyd had a 75.

Gary Player managed a 69 but was too far back to challenge and finished at 281.

The big check boosted Beard's bankroll for the year to $119,446, the fourth consecutive year he has gone over the $100,000 mark. Nicklaus got $11,600 for his share of second and took over the top money-winning spot at $127,860, passing idle Lee Trevino.

The victory was the 10th of his career and second of the season for Beard, who didn't arrive from Louisville, Ky. until Wednesday night, just hours before the tournament's start, because he and his wife became the parents of their fourth child a day earlier.

"I really didn't decide to come until the baby was born and I knew everything was all right at home. Actually, it was my mother who urged me to come."

Diligence Pays Off For Landry

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys lost the Eastern Division championship last year to the Cleveland Browns, 38-14 and Dallas Coach Tom Landry blamed a leaky pass defense.

So Landry set out during the off season to shore up that defensive backfield and it appeared Saturday night that his diligence paid off.

The Cowboys' offense stunned nobody but the defense provided the impetus for a 20-10 victory over the San Diego Chargers. The Chargers' No. 1 quarterback, John Hadl, completed only nine of 31 passes and had one intercepted.

Part of Hadl's lack of consistency through the air, however, was that his top receiver last year, Lance Alworth, was in a 50-yard-line seat, having retired last Wednesday.

The game in the Cowboys' view was reminiscent of the first Dallas regular season game of 1969. Craig Morton, the No. 1 quarterback, was forced to the bench with a dislocated finger and rookie Roger Staubach took his place, running more than passing Dallas to a 24-3 victory over St. Louis.

Saturday night, Morton played the first half and did well, pushing the Cowboys to a 10-3 lead. Then, on schedule, in came Staubach, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Navy, to dazzle a crowd of 39,398 more with his running than his throwing.

Staubach ripped off 71 yards in his half game and scored on a four-yard run in the third period that gave the Cowboys a 14-point cushion. Roger also completed five of nine passes for 42 yards and showed his skill as a backup quarterback.

Dick Post, the sensational little Charger halfback plagued most of his career with injuries, again was stopped by pain. His shoulder separation in the first period further hurt the vaunted Charger offense. Post is expected to be out at least three weeks.

If the Chargers could be pleased with anything on a night of mistakes it could be the receiving of Gary Garrison, heir apparent to Alworth's crown. Garrison, the former San Diego State end, hauled in three passes for 75 yards — and a 25-yard average per catch isn't bad.

It was the Cowboys' fourth game against old AFL teams without a loss. The Chargers are 3-7-1 against old NFL teams.

Andrie Is In Camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif., (AP) — Defensive end George Andrie of the Dallas Cowboys has ended what may rank as professional football's shortest "retirement."

"It's over and I'm glad it is," said the nine-year veteran Andrie after arriving at the National Football League club's training camp Sunday and signing a two - year contract for undisclosed compensation.

Andrie said last Friday that he was getting out of football because of a $2,000 contract disagreement with the Cowboys.

"Terms of the contract are between the club and myself," said Andrie. "I'm here to play football."

After Andrie announced his retirement Friday, several groups of fans began taking up donations for the extra $2,000. Andrie refused to take the money.

Assistant general manager Al Ward said, "I will not go into any details of the contract other than to say that we agreed after taking a different approach to the incentive part of the contract."

Andrie had said the Cowboys would promise his increase request only if the team lost in the divisional playoffs.

Andrie immediately reported to the team doctor for a physical. He arrived too late for the afternoon workout of the Cowboys, who defeated San Diego 20-10 Saturday night in an exhibition game.

The club starts two-a-day workouts today with the only injury from the San Diego game belonging to offensive lineman John Niland, who has a pulled calf muscle.

Andrie's last words before going to the physical were, "Negotiating is no fun."

Flames 4th In Tourney

The Snyder Flames, who are preparing to hold their own tournament here this weekend, finished fourth in a softball tournament Saturday at San Angelo.

They downed Lampassas, 11-4, in their opener, with Nell Henry pitching the entire game. Jane Roddy and Wanda Hudgins each got two hits.

In the second round, the Flames were defeated, 18-2, by the Lubbock Roadrunners. Mary Braziel and Kathy Weber pitched. The Flames then were shut out by Hamby, 5-0, in the game to determine third and fourth places. Nell Henry pitched again for the Flames. Kathy Weber was named to the all-tournament team.

The Flames will open their tournament at 7 p.m. Friday when they face the Lamesa Blue Angles. Abilene will meet another Lamesa team in the second game Friday night. At 9 a.m. Saturday, Carlsbad will play Lubbock, followed by a match between San Angelo and Hamby.

The 1969 All-Star baseball game was scheduled for floodlights but it rained the night of the game and was played the next day in Washington.

Curtis Cup In Its Showcase

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — The United States had the Curtis Cup back in its usual showcase today after continuing domination of the British Isles in the biennial trans-Atlantic competition begun in 1932.

The Americans won the trophy for the sixth straight time and the 12th since its inception by overwhelming their amateur counterparts from overseas 11½-5½ Saturday at Brae Burn Country Club.

The British team, considered one of the strongest in years, was bitterly disappointed. It thought it had a chance of regaining the cup won by the British just twice. Two matches have been tied.

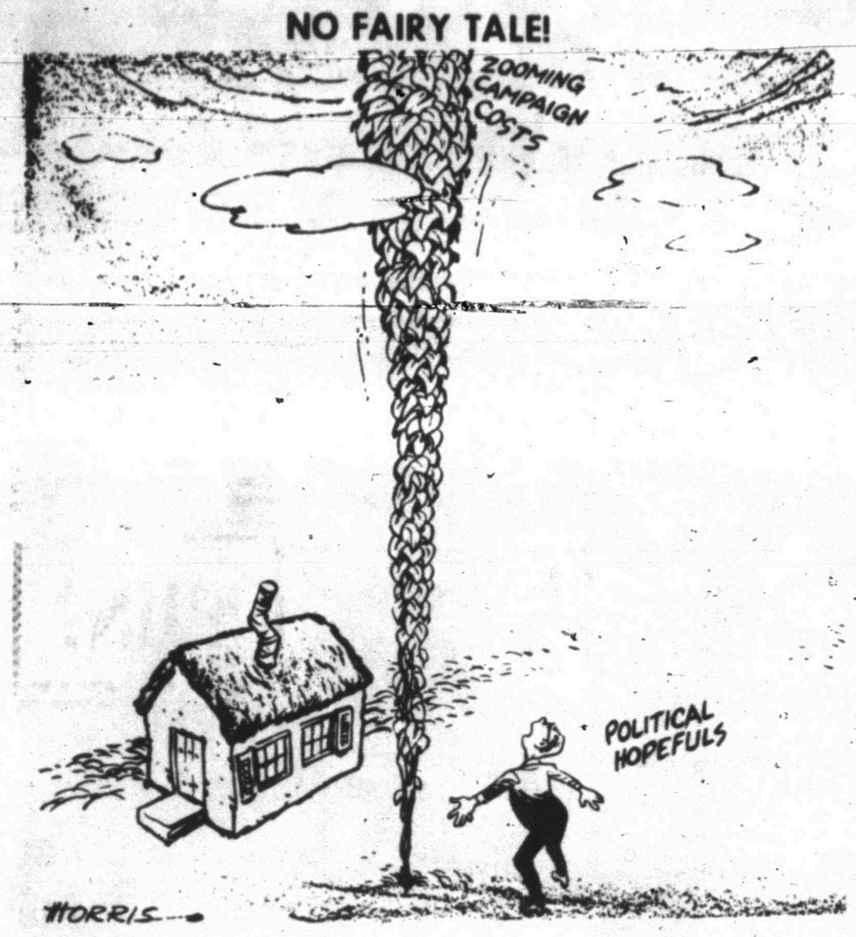

"We did our best, but it wasn't enough," said non-playing captain Jeanne Bisgood of the British team. "We're only sorry we couldn't have done better. We'll just have to try harder in 1972."

The United States collected seven victories and two ties in the 12 singles matches. They won three and halved one in scotch foursome matches.

The Americans were led by western amateur and former national intercollegiate queen Jane Bastanchury, 22, of Whittier, Calif., who won two singles, including one against English amateur champion Dinah Oxley.

Other standouts were Shelley Hamlin, 21, of Fresno, Calif., Cynthia Hill, 22, of South Haven, Mich., nine-time Indiana state champion Alice Dye, 43, of Indianapolis, and Tish Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., a five-time Curtis Cup player.

Food Criticism Prelude Of Things To Come

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent criticism of the foods we eat are probably only a prelude of things to come. Man is increasingly experimenting with what goes into his stomach, and if that cavity doesn't always rebel the mind sometimes does.

Cereals, additives and preservatives have been attacked recently by the Federal Drug Administration, "Nader's Raiders," and ordinary citizens. And while little has been proven, suspicions have been aroused permanently.

Now look at the potential for controversy that lies ahead because man has not been content with or has been unable to prepare and distribute, his food in its natural state.

There are:

—30 preservatives to keep food fresh.

—28 antioxidants to retard breakdown of fats and oils—to keep food from becoming rancid.

—44 sequestrants to separate minute elements which might interfere with food processing.

—31 stabilizers to keep food at uniform, smooth texture.

—85 surfactants, or wetting agents, which allow two surfaces of food ingredients to come together in a mixture.

That's only the beginning. Food science is one of the most rapidly growing disciplines, forced ahead by knowledge of 10,000 deaths a day from malnutrition, and spurred by the potential for making foods tastier or more nutritious or more profitable.

More than 2,000 of the world's top-ranked food and nutrition experts, now in Washington for the Third International Congress of Food and Science and Technology, are talking about strange possibilities for the future.

—The use of ocean plants, including algae, seaweed, plankton and tiny sea vegetables—whale food, you might say. Such foods are considered the most promising raw materials not now used by humans.

—The production of fish protein concentrates, or proteins from other sources such as plant leaves and micro-organism that have been fed on petroleum products.

—Meat analogs, or products that resemble meat in flavor, appearance and texture. Such foods already are being made, mainly from soybeans.

—Conversion of cellulose starch into food, and the conversion of waste products—animal blood, for example—into protein-rich foods.

—Development of chemicals to help prevent losses in the growing, processing and preserving of foods. Insects, for example, are said to destroy $4 billion of the world's crops annually.

Quite understandably, the food experts have decided on "The Science of Survival" as the theme of their meeting, because perpetuation of the species, much of which is in trouble, is the loftiest goal of their calling.

According to the food congress, 300 million children in less developed nations will reach maturity retarded because of insufficiency of diet during early school years.

To work toward improving so horrid a record is a noble thing, but some critics will be provided with plenty of food for adverse criticism, rightly or wrongly, by figures that show the noblest goal is only one of many.

The critics, that is, will be asking if it is necessary for Americans to swallow three pounds of additives a year or increase consumption of artificial sweeteners from 250,000 pounds in 1955 to 21 million pounds in 1969.

Do such practices, they ask, really help the species to survive. Or do they endanger it?

Junior Editors Quiz on LEOPARDS

QUESTION: Why are some leopards spotted and some solid black?

* * *

ANSWER: Think of an African antelope wandering through a forest glade where the sunlight sends spotted patterns of light between the leaves. An animal with a spotted coat could hardly be seen. But suddenly a batch of what looked like leaves turns into a leopard, which leaps on the antelope, ending its life. Over a long period, leopards have become spotted because it conceals them when hunting. And other animals have developed markings because these help them to escape. But not all leopards are spotted, for nature seems to be endlessly experimenting with her creatures. The spots are caused by a dark pigment, melanin, in skin and hair. In rare cases, this pigment may be missing, causing an albino leopard — pure white. More frequently, there may be so much melanin that the beast looks entirely black. This dark coat helps the leopard to merge into jungle shadows. Black leopards are fairly common in the dark jungles of the Malay Peninsula and Southwest China.

Curbstone Comments Of Pavement Plato

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato:

What is it women really want?

This question has created a great deal of honest male bewilderment in the wake of the new women's liberation movement.

Among the stated aims of the movement are these: child care centers, equal pay for equal work, an end to job discrimination, abortion on demand, equality with men at every level, and a refusal to be treated as mere sexual objects.

While some of those aims are laudable, and some debatable, others probably aren't even desired by a majority of women themselves."

"I don't want to be put on a par with men," said a practical unmarried young lady of my acquaintance. "Then I'd have to do everything myself. I like the system as it works now. If I need something done, I can get some guy to do it for me."

What puzzles the average man most, however, is why women should want to be equal with him when he already feels he is unequal to them. Do they want to turn the clock backward?

The liberation-seeking ladies protest the chauvinism of the American male, but to the men of the rest of the world the American man is an object of ridicule for what they feel is his abject servility to women.

While he is still waddling around in his diapers, a little boy is able to punch a toy-stealing little girl in the mouth as if she were just another ordinary human being.

But in kindergarten he is taught that little girls are superior and extraordinary human beings made of delicate fibers, spanked into saluting them, and he goes on saluting them until the end of his days. The female sex gains an edge on him it never loses.

It is not men but women who have the better union in America.

A man is expected to light a woman's cigarette for her, leap to his feet when she enters or leaves a room, push both his and her way through revolving doors, buy her lunches and

A man is also expected to marry a woman when she wants him to, name his kids after her side of the family, and work himself to death earning the money to buy her a bigger car, a nicer home, more expensive vacation trips, and a better hair dryer than the wife next door has.

When he does die, it is further expected of him that he will have had the gallantry and foresight to leave her enough money so that she can spend comfortably, if not luxuriously, the seven or eight years of widowhood she will enjoy before joining him in his tomb—the one she chose, not him.

Does all this sound like he treated her like a mere sexual object?

What do women really want? There are days when the average man feels that what they want is "all there is—and whatever is left."

Whatever they want, men don't have it. They've been giving everything they had to to women for quite some time now.

300 Words Used 50% In Reading

CHICAGO (AP) — An adult's average reading vocabulary ranges between 30,000 and 40,000 words, says a language specialist.

Dr. William A. LaPlante, director of curriculum and materials development for Borg-Warner Educational Systems, said despite the impressive number there are only about 300 words that make up about 50 per cent of the words most frequently appearing in normal adult reading material.

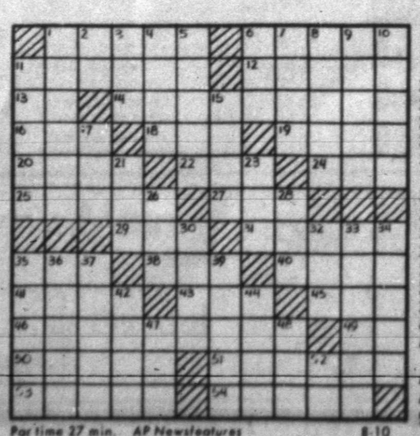

A teaching system he has devised with the aid of audio-visual systems teaches that the 300 word-core vocabulary was devised through research. It showed that it was essential to a youngster's needs.

Spanish moss, symbol of the old South, with its ethereal appearance, is neither Spanish nor is it moss, and the plant is not a parasite. A distant relative of the pineapple, it draws sustenance from the air, merely using the tree as an anchor. If the humidity is right, a telephone pole will do.

President's Panel Submits Obscenity Recommendations

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography has outlined tentative recommendations calling for repeal of all laws prohibiting adult Americans from possessing or possessing [illegible] books and other material.

But the commission said in a preliminary report that local, state and federal laws should protect children from exposure to smut, and that adults should be protected from unsolicited exposure through public displays or unsolicited mail advertisements.

"The commission does not believe, however," says the draft report, "that there is any warrant for the continuation of government controls upon what sexual materials may be made available to adults who wish to read or review such materials."

The recommendations obtained by the Associated Press have not been approved by the 18-member commission which reportedly will meet most of this week before issuing its final report, scheduled for release at the end of August.

The recommendations cover pornographic materials, but not pre-[illegible] They follow the lead of Denmark which lifted all restrictions against pornography for adults—but not children—last year.

Laws against what American adults can watch or buy are unwarranted, says the draft report, because its studies have found no evidence that pornography causes "crime, juvenile delinquency, other antisocial conduct, sexual or nonsexual deviancy, character disorders or significant emotional disturbances."

Even though there is no finding that pornography is harmful to children, it says, laws against youngsters' exposure to it are justified by the fact that many parents responsible for their welfare—rightly or wrongly—believe it might be harmful to them.

The simple fact that many adults object to pornography, it adds, is legal justification for laws against its [illegible] on them with public displays or unsolicited mail advertisements.

The draft report says the U.S. smut industry is not large or even very profitable and says the recommendations "would not substantially alter" the availability of erotica.

Contending it is "exceedingly unwise" to try to legislate morality, the preliminary report says existing laws are not effectively enforced and in some cases have resulted in suppression of works of art.

The 18-member commission was created by Congress three years ago to conduct a $2 million study on effects of pornography and how to control it.

A congressional hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday to blast commission studies measuring the physical response of college students and adults to pornography, and to challenge draft findings reported last week by the Associated Press.

Chou Says Future Belongs To Youth

PARIS (AP) — Red China's Premier Chou En-lai says the future belongs to the young people of today's world and it "doesn't necessarily mean making and remaking the revolution."

"The revolutionary struggle is a personal struggle," Chou was quoted as saying in an interview published Saturday in the newspaper France-Soir.

"One can commit errors, change and progress. The important thing is to find the right road, the happy medium."

Zuni Indians Ink Agreement

ZUNI, N.M. (AP) — The small Zuni Indian tribe of western New Mexico signed an agreement recently with the Interior Department which gives the tribe administration of their own reservation.

It was the first time such an agreement had been worked out between the federal agency and a tribe. The document was prepared under an 1834 law that never had been used before.

The agreement places the Zuni tribal government in district supervision of Bureau of Indian Affairs activities, programs and personnel on the reservation about 40 miles south of Gallup.

The agreement has a provision that can cause its cancellation by either party on 180 days written notice to the other if the experiment doesn't work out.

Eavesdroppers Assisting "Red China-Watchers"

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Is there a drought in Shantung? A nuclear accident in Sinkiang? A Red Guard quarrel in Canton?

Foreign ears and eyes, eavesdropping on the riddle that is Communist China, strain to detect them.

The eavesdroppers—mainly the United States, Japan and Nationalist China—are moved by more than ordinary curiosity. The political, economic, cultural and military facts they pick up (and some of the fiction) are the raw materials for a group of governmental, journalistic and scholarly analysts called "china watchers."

They exist because the China of today is nearly as closed and secretive as that of the Manchu emperors. Of the three watching nations, only Japan has journalists in Peking. None has diplomats there to observe and report on developments.

Sifting through bits and pieces of sometimes seemingly trivial information, the China watchers make educated guesses—often highly accurate—about the thinking and policy objectives of Communist Chairman Mat Tsetung and the upper levels of he Peking hierarchy. Their conclusions help form foreign policies, determine domestic security measures and mold public opinion in Washington, Tokyo, Taipei and other non-Communist world capitals.

Getting some of the pieces for the puzzle involves the use of sophisticated electronic devices, high-flying robot planes and highly developed "big ears" which tune in to provincial and national broadcasts.

Paro, is culled by agents dropped on the mainland from planes, put ashore from small boats or infiltrated into the long lines of patient travelers waiting to cross the bridge at Hong Kong's Lowu into Kwangtung Province. Their's is a calling which demands coolness and courage. Death never is far away.

Much of the wanted information is unearthed by more prosaic methods: An interview with a returning traveler, patient reading of Chinese newspapers, constant monitoring of official broadcasts, careful collecting of published reports by China-based correspondents.

Little is known of the Soviet operation, which has an advantage not enjoyed by the U.S. Nationalist China or Japan: On-the-scene reporting by trained diplomats based in Peking.

Much of the raw material for the U.S. program centers in Hong Kong, where a large staff of translators, monitors and china specialists work out of the American Consulate-General.

They turn out a "Survey of the China Minland Press" available, (for a price) to scholars and journalists and distributed free to allied governments. Put out in pamphlet form in an almost microscopic type, a typical issue reports textually: A Peking Peoples Daily analysis of what it calls the "sharp decline" in the American world economic position; a commentator's article on the need for continuing revolution; an account of a rural production brigade meeting; assertions by the liberation army that it is winning success in practicing thrift; a peasant's boast that "the more I study Chairman Mao's three constantly read articles, the younger I became."

In addition to these basic raw materials, the consulate selects and publishes articles from Communist Chinese magazines while the U.S. Information Service prints "China Scene," highly-regarded-and respected roundups, background material and analyses done by its own staff or by China scholars.

Provincial broadcasts are picked up by the Foreign Broadcasting Information Service (FBIS) which maintains electronic "big ears" in Okinawa, South Korea and Japan.

U.S. China information from all sources is funneled into Hong Kong, bundled together with material the consulate itself may have picked up through interviews with returning travelers, and transmitted to the State Department for final analysis. There it finds its way to the East Asian Bureau which handles administration government dealings with China, Mongolia, Hong Kong and Macao. The deep thinking is reserved for the cooly-detached gentlemen of the Intelligence and Research Bureau, a group which keeps very much to itself, away from the hurly-burly of the department.

Independent operations by the Defense Department and assorted intelligence agencies reach the I-and-R Bureau but play little part in the over-all analysis process.

The reason: their findings are of the nuts and bolts kind—deployment of troops, location of military units, types of weapons—valuable to specialists but less to the generalists.

An "in-group" much given to shop talk, American analysts based in Tokyo, Washington and Paris keep in frequent personal contact with each other and with civilian China scholars.

Day Presents Plaques For Realtors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In San Antonio it's a minipark with playground, baseball diamond and floodlight . . . in Des Moines, a $40,000 youth clubhouse . . . in Bellingham, Wash., a refuge for mentally retarded.

And what reward besides satisfaction is there for the real estate agents who sponsor such good works across the country?

Praise and plaques from an earnest, attractive Laraine Day.

She's the ambassador who presents official commendations from the National Association of Real Estate Boards for accomplishments in its Make America Better program.

"It's a square job but beautiful," said the actress. "After all, how often do you get a chance to be nice all the time? To express appreciation for the good things people do?"

Realtors launched Make America Better early in 1968 to counteract incidents of violence and destruction. Their association says hundreds of local boards and thousands of members are participating in activities ranging from housing for the elderly and poor to fighting crime and delinquency.

The smiling Miss Day, who since March has presented plaques to governors and mayors and made speeches in six cities, said:

"In Dubuque, high school boys, with the help of unions, built a house that will be sold for something like $24,500, with the proceeds going to scholarships and vocational training.

"In Virginia, a big contractor built low-income housing projects after Realtors brought in speakers from Washington to point out it's just as profitable to build low-income as luxury housing."

Amarillo and Dallas have instituted antidrug-abuse programs in high schools, she said. Detroit Realtors went door-to-door to avert panic selling when Negro families moved into a white area. Many cities have campaigns to combat strong-arm robberies by keeping high-crime neighborhoods well lighted.

Miss Day, ex-wife of baseball's Leo Durocher, is busy otherwise as mother of two lively daughters, Dana, 7, and Gigi, 5, by her present husband, show producer Michel Grilikhes.

With her former movie standin, she also has a dress business operated by appointment only from the stand-in's home.

Publisher Makes Donation To Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Publisher John Hay Whitney has donated $15 million to Yale University to finance the construction of residential units for 600 men and women.

A spokesman for the university said Sunday the new housing will help alleviate overcrowding caused when Yale became coeducational last fall. He described Whitney's donation as one of the largest individual donations ever received by the school.

Whitney is senior member of the Yale Corporation, the governing body of the university.

Luxury Cruises Costing US Taxpayers $50 Million Yearly

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is paying as much as $400 per passenger in federal aid to finance luxury cruises aboard ocean liners to such exotic ports as Hong Kong, Tahiti, Jamaica and Bora Bora.

Even a bubbly New Year's Eve party aboard a ship cruising off the California coast is covered by the rich flow of federal aid.

The payments are part of a special subsidy to American passenger ships that has cost taxpayers an estimated $240 million over the past five years.

The aid was begun for national defense reasons before World War II. But now, Government records show the only passenger liners benefitting from the payments are 10 cruise ships sailing the South Pacific and the Caribbean.

Congress, fed with plush campaign contributions from both seamen's unions and the shipping industry, moved this year to expand the aid to more cruises.

The subsidies go mainly to pay the difference in the higher wages for American seamen as compared to the low-paid crews on foreign ships.

The aid can run as high as half the total cost of a cruise ship's voyage.

Cruise ships don't even need to go to a foreign port to get the government support. The S.S. President Wilson plans a three-day New Year's Eve "party cruise" off San Francisco this year, and a company official says it will qualify for aid. The ship sailed to Mexico last New Year's Eve.

Shipping officials say that without this federal aid to pay their higher wage costs, they would be priced out of business and the privately owned American fleet would be certain to vanish from the seas.

The aid law makes keeping American ships sailing on overseas shipping routes a goal along with the national defense reasons.

The defense purpose of the payments seems outdated, government officials agree, in an era when a single jumbo jet can carry twice as many troops across the Atlantic in the same week it would take all cruise ships out of New York to cross the ocean.

"I don't know if it's necessary for national defense," concedes a Maritime Administration official. "But it keeps our flag at sea."

The government aid goes to both cargo vessels and the passenger ships. Because they have much larger crews, the passenger liners require much more aid per ship.

About $160 million a year is spent in federal aid for around 250 cargo ships sailing for American firms. Although far outnumbered by cargo ships, passenger liners' aid has amounted to nearly one-third the cargo cost.

The six passenger vessels sailing to the Caribbean and South America for Prudential-Grace Lines out of New York got $11 million in aid last year.

About $7 million went to the President Cleveland and the President Wilson on the Pacific routes out of San Francisco. and $6 million was paid to another set of sister ships, the Monterey and Mariposa, which also sail the South Seas.

The aid for these 10 cruise ships may be up this year, but the total spent for passenger liners should be down from the $50 million annual rate to perhaps $30 million because the number of ships has been shrinking. Seven have stopped sailing since 1968.

Congress passed virtually unnoticed this spring the law to ease the aid eligibility for the cruise ships. One section permits them to carry one-way passengers between American ports now without losing aid for doing so.

Ship owners are also giving an airing to a new idea to try to write into the law next year a flat guarantee of enough federal aid to insure that all cruise ships will break even—at the very least.

A source close to the House Merchant Marine Committee confirmed congressmen already have been talking informally about such a guarantee.

Key members of the House panel have been among the candidates getting big donations from committees for Seafarers International Union, which gave $500,000 to congressional and national campaigns in 1968.

The union is now under indictment for illegal campaign contributions. In another case, two shipping firms pleaded guilty in San Francisco in February to making illegal campaign contributions.

Wages for American seamen can run four times as high as the pay for foreign crews, a Maritime Administration official said. As a result, well over half of a merchant sailor's pay will come indirectly from the U.S. Treasury.

The government subsidy goes only to make up this difference in wages plus some lesser costs, such as insurance and American shipyard repairs. The liners get no help with fuel, pier fees, management or other costs.

But the wage subsidy for the President Cleveland and the President Wilson still topped half of the ships' total expenses last year, a company official said.

Cruise ships like these and the Santa Paula carry large crews, with almost one sailor or steward for every passenger. The Cleveland, for example, carries 390 persons and has 329 crewmen.

The Prudential-Grace Lines, which carries considerable cargo on its cruise runs to pay much of the bills, hopes to break even on its two biggest ships this year. The Monterey and the Mariposa, owned by a subsidiary of Matson Lines, have been making a slight profit.

But the American President Lines reports losses of about $4 million on the Cleveland and Wilson last year. A company official said airline fares put a ceiling on the prices the ships can charge and force the losses despite the federal aid.

Tele-Political "Ball Game" Rule Changes Are Pondered

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to television and politics, Federal Communications Commissioner Nicholas Johnson told Congress last week, "that little screen is the sum total of the ball game."

Congress is beginning to believe it.

Already on the verge of passing a bill to restrict the use of television in campaigns, Congress is flirting with the idea of voting itself free air time to express its views.

Politicians also have peppered the FCC with requests for free air time or rule changes allowing them to buy time to boost their pet ideas, so far to little avail.

Even the television-wary House of Representatives has voted to follow the years-old Senate practice of broadcasting some committee hearings.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott even proposed this week that his chamber allow broadcast coverage of a few special floor debates each year.

The politicians' concern re presents an increasing feeling that television focuses attention on the president at the expense of congressmen. Some legislators also feel television makes election winners out of obscure but rich and photogenic office-seekers.

Both effects are disturbing to some incumbent members of Congress.

Various attempts have been made to change the rules of the tele-political "ball game:"

—The House hopes to take up late this week its version of a Senate-passed bill that would limit campaign television expenditures. It's passage also would clear the way for free presidential television debates like the Kennedy-Nixon meetings of 1960, and would require broadcasters to sell time to politicians at their lowest commercial rates. Since the measure is thought to favor incumbents its chances for passage are rated good.

—The Senate communications subcommittee is considering a proposal by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to require broadcasters to give four prime-time segments each year to the House, Senate and judiciary to express their views. Fulbright said the President's traditional access to the airways threatened to upset the balance of powers between the branches of government. His measure was opposed by networks, broadcasters, Republicans, and the FCC. But subcommittee chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., extracted promises from the networks to consider voluntarily giving Congress some time as an experiment to see if the 535 members of Congress could agree on ways to use it.

TV Old Reliables To Return In New Series

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If seniority is an asset in television, then surely this coming season must go down as the Year of the Return of the Old Dependables.

In the casts of the new series are at least 24 performers who starred or appeared regularly in shows in the past. Altogether, they add up to 40 series, many of which were long-running successes and a few of which are still on the air.

Among them are winners of 15 Emmys, with Don Knotts and Rod Serling accounting for five each. Mary Tyler Moore has two and Dennis Weaver, Danny Thomas and Jack Klugman have one each.

So many veteran performers are returning in the same year that the networks are striving harder than ever for the attention of young adults. A number of new personalities are being given major starring roles, however, and some familiar personalities will be seen in unfamiliar surroundings.

Andy Griffith, for instance, will not be back in a comfortable bucolic setting as he was for eight years, but instead will be running a private school in "Headmaster." His former series, renamed "Mayberry R.F.D.," finished last season fourth in popularity.

Lloyd Bridges, who checked in his swim fins from "Sea Hunt" a few years ago, is an airport manager in his fourth series, "San Francisco International," a part of the "Four in One" package.

Tim Conway's new Sunday night variety hour will be his fifth time up, always as the same bumbling character. First, he was on the Steve Allen show, then "McHale's Navy," then "Rango," and finally, "The Tim Conway Show."

Another graduate of the Allen troupe, Don Knotts, headlines his own comedy hour. He won five Emmys for his portrayal of Deputy Barney Fife on "The Andy Griffith Show."

Dennis Weaver, an Emmy winner as Chester on "Gunsmoke," is promoted to New Mexico marshal in his new show, "McCloud," also a segment of "Four in One." After the Western, he tried "Kentucky Jones" and "Gentle Ben."

Two other actors with three series under their belts are joining existing shows.

Leslie Nielsen, finishing up in "The Protectors" segment of "The Bold Ones," becomes the heretofore unseen Bracken in "Bracken's World." He also was in "The New Breed" and "Peyton Place."

Walter Brennan, who went from grandpa in "The Real McCoys" to industrialist in "Tycoon" to cowboy in "The Guns of Will Sonnett," is a grandpa again in "To Rome With Love."

Ralph Bellamy, late of "The Survivors" and before that "Eleventh Hour," is a master sleuth in "Most Deadly Game." One of his cohorts will be George Maharis, who spent several years on the road in "Route 66."

Mary Tyler Moore, a double-Emmy winner as Dick Van Dyke's wife, is a newswoman in her new series. In her first show, "Richard Diamond," she was called Sam and only her legs were seen.

Jack Klugman won an Emmy for an appearance on "The Defenders" in 1964. He was a regular guest on that show and "Naked City" and starred in "90 Bristol Court." This season he is the sloppy sports writer on "The Odd Couple."

His fastidious roommate is Tony Randall, last a regular in "Mr. Peepers" in the early days of television.

Danny Thomas, practically a television institution for 11 years of "Make Room for Daddy," for which he won an Emmy in 1954, returns in "Make Room for Granddaddy." His short-lived "Danny Thomas Show" was the last of the old anthology series.

Burt Reynolds is a police lieutenant in his third series, "Dan August." He also was a policeman in "Hawk," but not in "Riverboat."

Herschell Bernardi, a Broadway star since leaving "Peter Gunn," plays a shipping clerk suddenly promoted to executive in "Arnie."

Oscar-winner Broderick Crawford, whose former series were "Highway Patrol" and "King of Diamonds," is the head doctor in "The Interns."

Vince Edwards was one of the most popular actors on the tube in "Ben Casey." He's back as a psychologist in "Matt Lincoln."

Rod Sterling, -five.- time Emmy-winning writer, is the host and author of "Night Gallery," a collection of eerie stories on "Four in One," reminiscent of his "Twilight Zone." He also created "The Loner."

Lee J. Cobb, the former owner of Shiloh Ranch on "The Virginian," is the senior law partner on "The Young Lawyers."

Campus Beat Sweepstakes At Mode O'Day

This fall, something new has been added to Mode O'Day's annual Back to School fashion presentation. "Campus Beat Sweepstakes" is the new addition to a yearly program developed by Mode O'Day and sponsored by all Mode O'Day stores throughout the country. Local winners will be selected from each community where Mode O'Day stores are located, and final selections will be made by a committee of judges at the home office in Burbank, California. The final two winners will each receive a grand prize of an all expense trip for 2 (winner and female chaperone) to the glamorous island of Hawaii, via TWA Jetliner. Each community winner will also receive prizes for their efforts.

Mode O'Day executives see this program as a way of approaching the "Now generation" of youth and coming in even closer touch with their fashion wants and needs. While it has always been a policy of the company to give excellent style and quality at budget prices, campus gear for this fall is far more exciting and younger than anything in years.

The Campus Beat Sweepstakes during August (1st through 31st) is easily entered. Any high school or college girl is eligible by simply filling out the entry blank which will be found at her local Mode O'Day store. No purchase is necessary, and girls may enter more than one time.

Another added feature this fall is the Mode O'Day "Time To Get It Together" LP stereo album featuring Joe South, Linda Ronstadt, Quicksilver Messenger Service, The Sons, and Lothar and the Hand People. Top sounds for youth on this limited edition collector's item can also be purchased at Mode O'Day.

Home Jobs For Housewives

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain

Dear Joyce: Since readers frequently ask you about home occupations for housewives, here's mine. I work part time taking telephone surveys with regard to commercials on television.

ASSIGNMENTS consist of 15 days beginning late in September and ending about the middle of December, and another 14-day assignment beginning late in January and ending the middle of April. You work from your home phone about five hours a day once every five days or so. The work is delivered and you must have the completed assignment in the mail by noon the following day. The starting rate is $1.75 per hour plus compensation for postage and any toll calls. This employment is classed as "contract hire" and you pay your own taxes.

YOU MUST LIKE to talk on the phone and be able to probe -- to get everything the interviewee remembers about the commercial you are discussing. And you should be a little thick-skinned, because some people do not take kindly to telephone interviewers. In my experience (about 20 assignments) I have had very little antagonism and have had many cooperative men and women talk to me. This might help some of your readers. -- KATHARINE PRICE, Cherry Hill, N.J.

Many thanks. I omitted the name of your employer, but those interested in telephone survey work can apply directly to firms listed in Yellow Pages phone directories under "Market Research." "Bradford's Directory of Market Research Agencies," available at some libraries, gives a list of these companies. Temporary help agencies also handle such work. If you find no immediate openings, get your name on file with as many firms as possible, enclosing an index card with your address, phone and any public contact experience you've had, including volunteer work.

Dear Joyce: My husband will be up for retirement soon and we will need to supplement our Social Security. He is an expert mechanic now. What jobs do you think would be available to a man over 65? -- R.I., Inglewood, Calif.

You didn't say what kind of mechanic so I think your best bet is to get in touch with the older worker specialists at your State employment service office, or, if there isn't any, write the State Director of Older Worker Services at your State Employment Security headquarters (get address from Post Office).

ONE IDEA you may not have considered which offers excellent job opportunities for mature workers, including women, is the occupation of central service technician in a hospital. These workers are responsible for the storage and distribution of the medical and surgical supplies and equipment related to patient care. Some central service technicians make repairs and adjustments to equipment; however, the jobscope is much broader and one need not be mechanically inclined to qualify. Salary range is about $4,000 to $7,200.

BOOKLET. The American Hospital Association will send you aa new free pamphlet with details. To request a single copy, send me a postcard at this newspaper asking for "Central Service Technician."

Carpet Cleaning Service Started

Coy Wooten, manager and owner of C&R Carpet Service, has started Snyder's first and only carpet cleaning service. Wooten, whose business is located in his home at 319 Thirtieth Street, is equipped to shampoo, vacuum, dry and fluff your carpet at minimum prices.

"Snyder did not previously have a carpet cleaning service, which is one of the reasons why I decided to establish this one. I feel that it will economically benefit the people of Snyder to have a locally owned business of this type. Before, they had to call someone from out of town, and a ceratin percentage of the money they paid for having their carpet cleaned had to be used for traveling expenses. I will have no expenses of this type, and so will be able to charge lower rates," said Wooten.

Assisted by Kenny Carnegie and Tony Bullard, Wooten can provide you with complete carpet cleaning service, from moving the furniture to making your rug look as beautiful as the day you bought it. Next time you decide to have your carpet cleaned, call Coy Wooten at C&R Carpet Service, 3-7674, or go by 319 Thirtieth Street.

Immunization For Polio Underway

SAN BENITO, Tex. (AP) — The second phase of a massive polio immunization campaign got underway in three Lower Rio Grande Valley counties today following the announcement Friday that two more children have died as a result of polio.

Officials of the Cameron County Health Department said the clinics will be open in Cameron, Willacy and Starr counties today, and the clinics in Hidalgo County will be open next Saturday.

Oscar Garza of the State Health Department has urged that all children receive the second dose of polio vaccine in the three-dose series. He said that children who missed the first dose should begin the series. The third dose is due a year later, he said.

Garza said there are now 12 confirmed or suspected cases of polio in the Valley.

Jail Escapee Still At Large

GOLDWAITHE, Tex. (AP) — Authorities were searching today for Garry Kincaid, 19, who escaped the Mills County Jail during a transfer of prisoners.

Officers said Kincaid of Virginia was being held on assault and robbery charges in lieu of $5,000 bond.

The break took place Sunday as the sheriff was taking some prisoners before a justice of the peace.

Writer Signed

NEW YORK (AP) — Producer-director William Wyler has signed Academy Award-winner I. A. L. Diamond to write the screen adaptation of "Forty Carats," the stage hit which will be brought to the screen for Columbia.

Diamond wrote Columbia's "Cactus Flower" and won an Oscar for "The Apartment."

According to National Geographic, legend credits a Chinese woman seeking shade as the inventor of the umbrella in 2000 B.C. Early umbrellas, shaped like Buddhist pagodas, soon became symbols of religious and political power.
