Tax Measure Passes House
Washington—The "soak the rich" tax program passed the House Monday, after an attempt to delay it by sending it back to a committee had failed. Eighteen democrats bolted the New Deal to oppose the measure. Dempsey, New Mexico representative expressed his reason for opposing the bill as "detrimental to states with large undeveloped natural resources."

Senate New Deal leaders are attempting to outlaw "riders" to the wealth-tax program, and to speed adjournment by resort to debate-choking tactics. Borah is expected to make a determined stand against the measure, and may insist upon some sort of action on the bonus and farm bill.

Senator LaFollette wants to amend the house bill to increase income taxes in the lower as well as the higher brackets. Roosevelt, it is understood, is not so much interested in the bill as a revenue producer, as a reform force in leveling off the ultra-rich of the country. As the bill now stands, it is expected to raise about $270,000,000 in extra revenue.

Tax Tokens May Be Illegal, But Will Be Used
Santa Fe—Despite a ruling of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, that it was illegal for states to issue tax tokens, State Director Benj. D. Luchini, believes the tokens were legal because they were not money—the patron getting the tokens as a receipt he had paid more tax than due, and giving them in turn to another merchant as a surplus. Litigation is expected in other states soon to clarify the situation, meanwhile, the midget coins will be circulating in the state.

Cartoon Causes Diplomatic Troubles With Japan
Berlin.—Because Vanity Fair ran a cartoon of Emperor Hirohito of Japan, depicting him as getting the Nobel peace prize in Artist Gropper's humorous group on "unlikely historical situation," Japanese plenipotentiaries were aroused and demanded of Secretary of State Cordell Hull "disciplinary action." The Nazi newspaper Boersen Zeitung, editorializing on the cartoon, sharply criticized the United States for permitting an "Unbridled press."

The artist made known his intention to draw other caricatures of international figures, regardless of Hull's "apologies" to Japan.

Utilities Head Still Awaited In Washington
Washington.—Chairman O'Connor of the House rules committee accused former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley of having "spirited" away W. O. Hopson, missing lobby investigation witness, out of the city. The accusation followed a visit to Hurley's estate by officers with a subpoena, in search of Hopson.

The search culminated a day of scattered hunts from hotel to hotel for the Utilities official.

Mussolini Orders 75,000 More Men to Arms
Rome.—As an answer to Ethiopia's concentration of troops on Italian boundaries, Premier Mussolini ordered 75,000 more men to arms Tuesday.

A million men in uniform by October for service in East Africa and for preparedness at home is believed to be Duca's plan. Meanwhile, Great Britain, apparently shaky about the responsibility of maintaining peace in Africa, has left to France the initiative in the tri-power conference.

Any hope that Italy may have held for getting supplies from Japan were dispelled when that nation announced that crisis at home made it impossible to send any armament out of their territory.

MARRIAGE LICENSE
Licenses to marry were issued this week by the County Clerk's office to the following: J. T. Robinson and Leona Jones, of Portales; H. N. Thompson, and Mrs. Lillian Shipman, of Loveland, Texas; J. E. Pearce, and Velma D. Moore, of Amarillo; Milton White and Irma Fay Acuff of Clovis.

Jack Grey was in Portales Saturday making arrangements to attend the Portales high school this year. He is quite an athlete and will be a junior this year.

Junior Softball League Will Start Monday; Under Supervision of High School and Junior College

That softball is not only for grown ups exclusively, and that Portales youngsters will probably get more kick out of it than the present players of the corpulent age is contended by J. P. Steiner, superintendent of Portales schools, and Donald MacKay, president of the Junior college.

So, kids, if you want to play softball in a regular league, under regular rules, and with expert supervision, join one of the junior league teams that are being organized all over the county.

Other Morper has been selected by the Junior College to be official umpire and manager of the league. Teams entering the softball league will be required to have a manager above the age of 18 years. Players in the junior league must not be over 15 years of age. Any individual or organization may enter a team if they furnish a manager.

Teams must submit a list of 14 registered players to Other-Morper before Monday at noon. Morper can be seen during the day at Cissell's confectionery.

Tingley Assails Condition Of Rural School Buildings

"I'm going to build a thousand rural school houses in New Mexico next year," declared Gov. Clyde Tingley Monday morning in Clovis before the crowd gathered to hear Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

"I have just returned from Washington where I put before the authorities there pictures of 150, two- and three-room schoolhouses that were hardly fit for sheep. They had no roof, no floor, and no ventilation."

Although Tingley did not say whether he had final approval of the rural school building program, he repeated, "we may build them."

"I am going to build three school houses in Washington like the ones that I will build in this state."

"We are going to build rural schools in every county in the state. The labor and carpenters will be furnished by the government, and all we will have to do will be to buy the lumber."

Tingley also promised that there would be no "leaf raking" jobs under PWA now. "Any man who won't work won't get a job," he declared. Local funds will have to be made up to take care of unemployables, he pointed out, "but there won't be a man in the county that needs relief if you people will plan projects which will be approved."

He explained that the projects would not have to go to Washington in every case in the future. "I have had two administrators already during my time as governor, and I have one now who knows which projects will be approved."

"I have spent $39,000 in one park for tennis courts and you won't have any lasting relief until you give something for the younger generation to do," Tingley stated in reference to the Albuquerque City park.

Governor Tingley visited the Eastern New Mexico State park in the afternoon, returning to Albuquerque on the train at 4:30.

Wilmes Well No. 1 Is Being Plugged
The Claudell Development Company's T. A. Wilmes No. 1 in the southwest part of the county is being plugged.

Every effort was made to remove the bottom casing so that this well could be given the acid treatment, and failing in this the well was ordered plugged.

The well was swabbed for several days, and a good showing of oil and gas was found, but it was impossible to save the well.

Indications are that the field has not been condemned, and rumors are that another well will be put down in that section of the county at some time in the future.

Seth Visits Junior College While Here
J. O. Seth, member of the state board of finance visited the Eastern New Mexico Junior college Tuesday, as he passed through Portales.

Mr. Seth was shown through the building and the farm by President MacKay and Coe Howard.

Mesa School Plans to Erect New Building

Work on the new school building consisting of two class rooms and an auditorium for Mesa, district No. 7 of Roosevelt county, is well under way. The building is located 15 miles west and 3 north of Floyd.

The new district comprises the former school district of Benson, Doreno, Claudell, and part of Tolar. The buildings of the former districts, Benson and Doreno are being wrecked and as much of the material used in the new building as is possible.

The two class rooms of the new building are to be up-to-date in every respect. They are being built with a hall between them that leads to the auditorium.

The auditorium is so located and constructed that it can be used for an assembly room for the school and an auditorium for community activities at the present. If the school grows and more room is necessary to accommodate the school children, it can easily be made into two more class rooms.

Supt. A. C. Woodburn states that there was not a dissenting vote cast when the election for consolidation was held last spring, and the people of the district seem to be working together for one common end and that is to have a good school.

The teachers for the coming term of school are Mrs. Burna Parks and Miss Lois Cox.

Swimming Becoming Popular At State Park

Plans for a graded road from Portales to the Texas line and passing through Arch are almost complete states R. A. McCrory who is one of the main promoters of the road project.

The county is to furnish the tractor, grader, tractor-man and grader-man, FERA labor will do the remainder of the work, and the fuel and oil for the tractor is to be donated by citizens interested in the project.

The tractor and grader is being used in the Bethel community at the present time, but will be ready for the Arch road soon.

C. S. McCollum, county administrator of the FERA states that the government has placed the responsibility on the community for planning the needed projects and the authorities are anxious to consider programs of merit. FERA labor has been used on the streets of Portales. Promoter McCrory feels sure that this labor will be available for the project also.

More than 1,000 gallons of gasoline has been pledged on donations, besides several gallons of lubricating oil. The farmers and merchants of Arch have pledged liberally but the merchants of Portales have been liberal with their pledges for the project also.

There has been some discussion concerning widening the right-of-way to 100 to meet requirements for a state highway in the future, but this question is not settled at the present.

Gov. Clyde Tingley in his address at Clovis Monday on the subject of the PWA labor said to the people of New Mexico, if you are only going to build a road, build a good one.

Wallace Would Give Farmers Same Advantage as Industry

Predicts Farmers Will Rise Up as One Man if Highest Court Concurs With Boston Circuit Court Decision on Taxes

"The farmers should have their equivalent to the tariff and corporate form of control of industry," said Henry A. Wallace, the United States Secretary of Agriculture, before an overflowing crowd at the Lyceum theatre.

Wallace stated that he did not know what the higher court would do with the AAA, but that he "hoped and believed" it would meet the criticism of that court.

"If the highest court of the land would take away from the farmer the advantage of the processing tax and the crop control methods, farmers should rise as one man against the corporate control and tariff control advantages of industry."

This statement is believed to be strong evidence of what will be in store next September if the Supreme Court upholds the Boston Circuit Court's decision invalidating the processing tax on the ground that it gives the government control of industry wholly within states.

Favors Centralization
Wallace also indicated that the next administration would be backing to limit the centralization of agricultural powers. "It is no new thing to give centralized powers to a particular class. Alexander Hamilton handed out this principle in his banking policy, when he created a strong centralized system. He also gave the control of the tariff to a central body."

"The use of corporate powers has often been given to those who could use it," continued Wallace, "and it is due to this system that we have automobiles and radios, etc."

Don't Question Support
"I don't question the support of farmers or merchants in the three A program, but a few politicians and newspapermen are interested in fishing in the muddy waters of politics instead of helping the people. Farmers know there isn't going to be a millennium. All they want is a square deal."

"As a result of the nation being dominated by the business point of view, until 1932, there was no protection of farming interests. It became necessary for farmers to strike out, and they did strike out in all directions. But they drew together to their common interests, and united in a program."

Will Give up Processing Tax
"Agriculture will give up the processing tax and crop control when business gives up the tariff and the corporate idea."

"It is necessary to use our instrument of a centralized form of government to the betterment of business."

"But there is a point beyond which labor and industries cannot go to increase profits."

Industry Culpable
"Industry is a million times as culpable as agriculture. During the heart of the depression, industry

TRUCK DAMAGED IN ACCIDENT

A fender was smashed and the front axle of the truck belonging to Joe Metchen was broken when it struck a car near Clovis last week.

Metchen was following the car when it stopped suddenly to pick up a hitchhiker. The truck driver was unable to stop, and jammed the rear of the car.

No one was seriously injured.

Tommy is Lost! Widow is Dead! We're Worried

Tommy is loose again. Tommy is a baby hognose snake that Jay Thompson brought in to The News office to be kept with the rest of the varmint. Tommy, Mrs. Lactroctus Macfians, (a black widow spider), a black lizard and a large pinch beetle got along very well together, until the beetle went on a rampage, killing Mrs. Lactroctus and tearing up her nest with a vengeance born of three days of confinement to a glass topped cigar box.

And now Tommy's gone. He had been captured and was fast becoming a pet, when to his cage was found empty again.

And now we're all nervous, skeptical of every little moving object—Jay wants his snake—everything's gone haywire!

Wat Stewart Buys 14 Steel Bodied School Buses

Wat Stewart left Sunday morning for Richmond Ind., to receive 14 Ford V-8 school buses which he has had equipped with all-steel bodies, to be used in the transportation of pupils to the Portales schools.

He was accompanied by Dee Danabee, Bailey Callis, Wesley Loti, Chester Anderson, Hugh Burke, Hughes Chambers, Orin Dutton, Albert Woodburn, Boyd Kimbell, Buford Totten, Fred Oler, Cecil Haskeew, P. G. Spivey, David Jones and "Pat" who will assist him in driving the buses back.

Curt Barber also accompanied them, and will bring back a new Chevrolet for himself.

Stewart is taking the drivers in a school bus which is equipped in chuck wagon style for camping on the trip.

It was estimated that six days would be consumed in making the trip from Portales to Richmond, and 10 days in bringing the new buses back.

Molinari Is Head Of Exposition in State Societies

Former Portales Business Man Is In San Diego

Capt. T. J. Molinari, former Portales business man and father of Mrs. J. E. Camp of this city, is president of the San Diego Federation of State Societies, and "is responsible for the unique 'Hospitality House' maintained by the societies," according to a San Diego newspaper received here this week.

Molinari was in business in Portales years ago, and was a prominent promoter of the irrigation development here.

The State Societies' headquarters is the most ideal spot the exposition can offer for out-of-state visitors to rest and relax between visits to the hundreds of exhibits and displays in exposition buildings, according to the newspaper.

It is at this place that "State Days" are carried on.

WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATION PROBLEMS

Gov. Clyde Tingley stated in his talk at Clovis Monday that direct relief would be shouldered by the counties after this year, and that expenses of such relief would have to be met by money within the community.

On the other hand, Federal funds will be used to pay for labor on public works, providing the communities will furnish materials and supplies.

According to Governor Tingley, then we are between two fires, but it won't take much prospecting to see which way we are going to jump.

If we fail to provide projects that have a good chance of being approved, relief rolls will continue with the dole system, with the county footing the bills. But if we outline projects that will be of a permanent nature, and of public advantage, government money will pay for the labor, thus letting us out of the expense of direct relief. But there is another but—we must furnish the materials with which to build. We will realize something out of the latter program, whereas in the first, we would not only be taking money out of our pockets that would never come back but the moral of those on relief would be lowered by continued acceptance of "charity."

TREES AND GRASS PREVENT SOIL EROSION

One of the best preventatives of soil erosion is a heavy grass sod and trees.

Trees have been cut over the major portion of the nation's watersheds, and as a result water erosion has taken place, washing away many millions of dollars in fertile soil.

This decreases the rain fall and incidentally is the cause of wind erosion.

The planting of shelter belts will help cure this condition, and there is no better place to prove this plan than in the Black Water Draw, where the shallow water will insure a quick growth of trees.

Such a belt running from Melrose to Muleshoe would provide a shelter belt that would save the farmers of Roosevelt and Curry counties thousands of dollars annually.

Such a tree belt would provide cover for wild life, and help bring back the song birds, which would save the farmers thousands of dollars in the destruction of insects.

The citizens of Roosevelt and Curry counties have not awakened to the importance of this project, or they would have a delegation in Washington at this time laying its advantages before the forest department.

The New Mexico Game Commission recognizes the importance of such a move, and it is not at all impossible that this will become a reality within the next year or so.

A southern evangelist says the road hog is a sinner. There's one thing about that, he don't have to wait for the hereafter to be pretty thoroughly damned.

The Sage of Three Rivers declares that woman can never claim equality with man until she wears shoes that don't hurt her feet.

DEMOCRATIC DOGMAS

That Democratic dogmas have undergone a sea change is evident everywhere, but Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's address is the most striking example of how completely the "old has given way to the new."

For instance, can you imagine Thomas Jefferson making the statement, "Is it necessary to use our instrument of a centralized form of Government to the betterment of business?"

However, the spirit of Jefferson is still adhered to, for he was opposed to the tariff and probably would have recommended the same methods to fight its boosters as did Secretary Wallace.

TAX-EXEMPT SECURITIES

There are approximately 90 billion dollars worth of tax-exempt securities, bonds of the various states and of the United States, outstanding today. These securities will not be affected should the people of the United States ratify a constitutional amendment giving the federal government authority to tax the securities of states, municipalities and other local units, and the states authority to tax the securities of the federal government. Any change in the policy on these securities will apply to those issued in the future. Present holders will not be affected. Doubtless this fact accounts for the lack of any opposition to the taxing of the class of securities now exempt under state and federal law.

Naturally the holders of existing securities, not being affected by the change, are not at all vociferous in opposition to it. But this is not an intelligent viewpoint toward any public question upon which there is room for discussion. It is tainted with selfishness, an attitude which unfortunately seems to determine the views of the most of our citizens on public questions. It is regrettable that in this discussion a vast majority of the people are unable to approach the argument in an unbiased frame of mind and consider it in the light of what is best as a matter of public policy.

The tax exemption provision of securities sold by governmental units originally was set up because, being exempt from taxation of all kinds, those securities carried a lower rate of interest. The person with funds seeking investment could well afford to take the lower interest bearing bonds because when he considered their freedom from taxation their yield was greater than that on bonds yielding a higher rate but subject to taxation. But in the present era of low interest rates we find public securities, in many cases even with their lower return, better interest payers than many securities which are not exempted from taxation. So the same influence toward lower rates does not seem to apply as forcibly as it did once. As long as 15 years ago Secretary Mellon, then head of the treasury department, was advocating the removal of tax exemption on government securities of all kinds. A preponderant majority of those who have discussed the question in the last two decades have been of the opinion that tax-exempt securities should be done away with. As a matter of public policy we are inclined to that belief. The tax-exempt security, it seems to us, is out of joint with our general theory of taxation. Moreover, it is frequently a lure to capital which otherwise would be invested in productive enterprise and thus work for the people at large. To our mind, it is poor public policy in the extreme to afford any one class of investors an advantage over other classes by issuing securities which are free from taxation. The investor in tax-exempt securities not only ties up his funds so that he can not be made to pay his share of the tax burden, but this class of investment inevitably operates to keep staggering sums away from investment in that sort of enterprise which adds to the prosperity of the country.

The case against the tax-exempt security has been growing for a long time. It is not particularly a partisan matter. Men of all political faiths have advocated the elimination of the provision. We seem to be heading for that elimination. To our way of thinking, this is a matter of simple common sense and equity. There never was any real argument in favor of exempting any sort of investment from its share of the tax burden and there is no argument in that direction now. It is against the very essence of the principle on which all taxation systems are supposed to be built, the principle that all must pay according to their ability.—News-Telegraph, Atlantic, Is.

The Blood and Agony Of A Motor Accident

Moved to indignation by the failure of statistics to shock the motorist into a realization of the appalling consequences of careless driving, F. C. Furnas, writing in the August issue of the Reader's Digest, has tried a more realistic method. In a series of pen pictures of the results of bad motor smashups, he offers such gruesome comments as the following:

Collision, turnover or sideswipe, each type of accident produces either a shattering dead stop or a crashing change of direction—and, since the occupant—meaning you—continues in the old direction at the original speed, every surface and angle of the car's interior immediately becomes a battering, tearing projectile, aimed squarely at you—inescapable. There is no bracing yourself against these imperative laws of momentum. It's like going over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel full of railroad spikes.

This spring a wrecking crew pried the door off a car which had been overturned down an embankment and out stepped the driver with only a scratch on his cheek. But his mother was still inside, a splinter of wood from the top driven four inches into her brain as a result of son's taking a greasy curve a little too fast. No blood—no horribly twisted bones—just a gray-haired corpse still clutching her pocketbook in her lap as she had clutched it when she felt the car leave the road.

On that same curve a month later, a light touring car crashed a tree. In the middle of the front seat they found a nine-months-old baby surrounded by broken glass and yet absolutely unharmed. A fine practical joke on death—but spoiled by the baby's parents, still sitting on each side of him, instantly killed by shattering their skulls on the dashboard.

If you customarily pass without clear vision a long way ahead, make sure that every member of the party carries identification papers—it's difficult to identify a body with its whole face bashed in or torn off. The driver is death's favorite target. If the steering wheel holds together it ruptures his liver or spleen so he bleeds to death internally. Or, if the steering wheel breaks off, the matter is settled instantly by the steering column's plunging through his abdomen.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

REV. J. W. BERG, Pastor

The world is as it is because it has lost sight of the real essentials of living. A spiritual deadness has seized upon us as a people which hinders all progress to righteousness. What do you put first in life? Whatever man's major interest is, so he becomes. If anything means more to you than God does, you probably own a soul as pale as an oyster and as flat as a punctured tire. Put Christ first, and you will grow like Him and your life will be glad and good and free. We welcome you again to any of the services of this church. Sunday worship 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at 10 a. m. Young people's meeting at 7:15 p. m. Mid-week services at 7:30 p. m.

IT'S BLAZING. Inside your motor! That's why you need Germ Processed Oil for safe lubrication—it maintains high film strength under extreme heat! WITH heats of 225° to 425° in your motor, you must have oil that maintains high film strength under extreme temperatures to get safe lubrication. Otherwise, the lubricating film ruptures and the bearings and cylinders suffer damaging wear. Plain mineral oils have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing processes have even less. As motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength. It's an absolute certainty that you'll get better motor protection with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. Timken machine tests prove that it has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil and that heat above 225° does not lessen this advantage. More proof—supervised road tests were made in identical cars fitted with the new alloy metal bearings used in many 1935 cars. The bearings lubricated with a high-quality plain mineral oil showed 45% more wear than those lubricated with Conoco Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil. You'll be certain your motor is safely lubricated even at high temperatures if you say "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Germ Processed, the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that never drains away! Say "OK-Drain" - FILL WITH CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL. CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY'S 60TH ANNIVERSARY 1875 1935

New Interest Seen In Softball

Capacity Crowds See Games At Lighted Park Grounds

With the series near half over, and games beginning to have more of a bearing on team ratings, softball is expected to gain much interest in the next week.

Capacity crowds attend the games every night, giving Portales the distinction of having more interest in softball than any other town in the state. Press dispatches report that a thousand spectators is considered good for special games in other cities larger than Portales. Here, the crowds reach the thousand mark two and three times each week.

Games tonight are very important to the teams engaged. Fields and Bonner are undefeated to date, but East Valley View are a formidable crew when they are in shape. Fans expect the slump that has been holding them down for the last two games to break, and a real contest is expected as a result.

Elida is expected to not let another loss ruin their chances in the series, but the Fireboys are expected to have a small advantage over Floyd.

Cheatum Wins Over I. O. O. F.

Although the Odd Fellows looked like a winner Monday night with a seven-run lead over the Cheatum Street club, in the third inning, they fell into a hitting slump in the fourth, while the Cheatum Street aggregation rallied to win 19-13.

Carol McCasland was replaced by "Lefty" Jordan at pitcher's position in the fifth inning, but was unable to stop the slugging of the Cheaters. Townsley, McDermott and Watta were in good hitting form, earning eight runs and ten hits between them.

Cheatum Street earned 16 runs, 19 hits out of 39 times at bat, and made three errors.

The Odd Fellows earned 13 runs and 14 hits out of 37 times at bat, making nine errors.

Picked Local Players Get Easy Win; Plan Return Game

Handicapped by not having used a 12-inch ball before, Tucumcari fell easy prey to Munsey's fast, hard ball last night at the city ball park. The final score was 9-3 in favor of Portales.

Munsey was credited with eleven strikeouts, while Lease, Tucumcari hurler, fanned one. Tucumcari made seven hits, three runs and nine errors. Portales made ten hits, nine runs and six errors.

A potential homerun in the seventh inning was nipped in the bud when a long fly to center field, hit by M. Mundell of Tucumcari, was caught by Powell in the most brilliant play of the evening. Mundell annexed team batting honors, with two hits and three times at bat. R. Smith of the local team also batted .666 percent.

Kiker, catcher for Portales, was struck in the eye during the fifth inning and was replaced by Dickson.

Floyd Beats Fire Boys in Seventh Inning Comeback

With a tied score from the first inning until the last of the seventh the Floyd-Fire Department game Monday night produced more brilliancy than scores.

Woods made second when an overthrow to third scored Widner. Woods scored in another overthrow to third, which gave Floyd a one-run lead to end the game.

ENM State Fair Change Premium List for Exhibits

Some extensive changes have been made in the premium list of the Eastern New Mexico State fair to be held in Roswell, October 2, 3, 4 and 5. These books are just now coming off the press and a postal card to the secretary of the fair at Roswell will bring a copy. Increases have been made in premiums in some departments and there have been re-classifications which it is hoped will enable more farmers and stockmen to send exhibits, and more women to make entries in the domestic arts department.

Livestock barns at the fair grounds will be enlarged and the general exhibit space will be increased this year. Reservations for space for county exhibits have already been received from the western part of the state in addition to the usual community exhibits from eastern New Mexico. A much larger space has been reserved for the New Mexico Pure Seed association show this year. New and different entertainment features have been arranged for each of the four days of the fair.

A. R. Sell and wife and Miss La Verne Lightfoot of Elida left Saturday for a vacation trip to South Texas.

Present Oil Pools Dry In 16 Years, Geologist Says

Coal Will Give Gasoline for 4,000 Years If Needed.

Cambridge, Mass. — Every oil field in the United States will be pumped dry within 40 years and possibly 16, according to an eminent Harvard geologist, but American motorists needn't worry about running out of gas.

Prof. Kirtley F. Mather explained that after the country's petroleum supply is exhausted we can begin turning coal into gasoline—and there's enough coal down below to last us 3,000 to 4,000 years.

A lesson to be learned from the nation's dwindling oil supply, Mr. Mather told a Harvard Summer school audience was the shortsightedness of large-scale developments in mining or drilling centers where there are limited natural resources. He forecast a large migration of people from Western Oklahoma and Texas when the oil supply gives out.

At the current rate of production, Mather said, there is only enough petroleum in sight to last the country sixteen years. Discovery of new fields, he felt, could not be expected to extend the dead line to more than 30 or 40 years.

The geologist also asked an interested audience if they knew: The earth is 2,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 years old?

The earth as a whole is solid as steel and elastic as glass; although its core, 12,000 miles from the outer surface, may be liquid?

The oldest known rock formation in North America is one and a third billion years old, and the oldest in the world, in Australia, 1,850,000,000 years?

The Appalachian mountains were crumpled upward from beneath the sea 250,000,000 years ago?

Warm-blooded animals lived in North America 60,000,000 years ago?

Mather said geologists estimate the age of the earth by means of uranium and other radio-active minerals that change to lead and helium spontaneously during millions of years of time. By studying the composition of such radio-active deposits, he said, scientists can tell how long the area they are studying has been developed.

What the Farmers Have to Say

Emerson Vick states that the corn borers have not damaged the corn which is growing from seed that was treated to prevent their work as they have corn that is growing from seed that has not been treated.

J. T. Phillips of the East Valley View community thinks that another good rain is needed to mature the early crop in his community.

F. C. Miller says that his corn is silking and tasseling and his cotton has half grown bolls, but his crop is needing rain.

D. A. Gordon of the Floyd community thinks that when a farmer starts out in a dry spot in the spring he is likely to miss the rain all during the season. He says that is about the way the rain is falling for him this year and he is in a dry spot.

Finis Bilberry reports a good general rain in the Midway community.

Charlie Anderson of the Floyd community thought his crop was in a bad shape for rain until he made a trip to Amarillo, Texas, and he is fairly well satisfied with the appearance of his crop since his return.

Bill Cooper, northwest of Elida says that his crops are suffering from lack of rain.

V. O. Roberts is another farmer who lives in a dry streak of Roosevelt county. But he is hopeful of a fair crop if he can get moisture within the next few days.

B. L. Howard of the Dora community states that he is not bothered with cotton leaf worms yet.

J. A. Brasel, southwest of Portales, has had the most difficult time keeping the cockleburrs under control this year that he has ever had.

Brice Finley is one of the members of R. A. Young's agriculture class of the Portales high school. He reports that his project this year consists of 10 acres of maize. It is headed and needs a good rain to mature the grain.

Sam Cox, southwest of Delphos, reports some damage done to his crop by the wind last Friday.

Bill Smart has made arrangements to spray his cotton when the leaf worms make their first appearance.

Earl B. Womack says that he has treated seed corn to prevent the corn borers from working on the corn and he failed to recognize any good the treatment did.

H. E. Braden of the Bethel community thinks that he has one of the best prospects for a crop that he has ever had if he can only get rain.

Howard Edmonds says that he has had to do an unusual amount of hoeing this season.

Mrs. T. O. Caruthers of Lingo reports that they have had a rain in that community about every week since the rains started in the spring.

T. E. Oler of the New Hope community has observed that land in his part of the country that was farmed last year and good cultivation has been given this season has a better prospect for a crop this year than land that has not had such care.

There was a fair rain on the Greathouse ranch 20 miles west of Portales Saturday night.

M. T. Fullerton of the Dora community considers his early corn and broomcorn ruined by the drought. He is planning to cut the stalks for feed.

A. G. Wilson who lives in the east part of the Mesa community got a fair shower Saturday night.

E. S. Savage of the Elida community says that he got between a quarter and a half inch rain last week.

J. J. Plummer who is farming the Fred Marshall farm in the Rogers community says that his crops look promising. His early broomcorn is heading and his early corn is silking and tasseling.

W. H. Perry of the Pleasant

Valley community states that the corn borers has done considerable damage to some of his early corn. He examined a few stalks that had as many as five and six borers to the stalk.

J. H. Breshears reports his tomatoes looking fine. They are some later than usual. He has had some trouble with the wilt; however, the nematodes have not done any noticeable damage so far.

T. C. Sublette says that his early crows are heading and are needing rain.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Props returned from Ft. Sumner Saturday and reported a good rain as far as Melrose. The appearance of the grass in places along the road indicated that a rain was badly needed.

L. M. Kuykendall states that he has tomatoes that are large enough to be ripe but they are not. The wilt has damaged his stand in places.

Laney and Sid Copeland who are farming the J. W. King farm 45 miles southeast of Portales report a good rain Friday night. However, it only reached five or six miles on their road to Portales.

J. W. Silvers of the Lingo community was getting poison for the cotton leaf worms that are working on his cotton Monday.

Myron Jones, one of the ranchers on the Pecos reports that he has had good rains on his range. He is well satisfied with the way his cattle are looking.

A. M. Combs who lives 35 miles west of Portales was needing rain the last of the week.

A good rain last Friday night was reported in the Milnesand community.

C. H. Ledbetter is not taking any chances with the cotton leaf worm. He is getting his spraying material and apparatus ready for use.

J. H. Stroud is sure that there is no question in his mind about the advisability of poisoning the cotton leaf worm. One year he ran out of poison before he got entirely over his crop. The part that he did not treat did not make any yield, while the crop that did get treatment made a good yield.

D. B. Boroughs of the Oklahoma community says that he has the best prospects for a good cotton crop this year that he has had in some many years. His early corn and broomcorn are needing rain.

Henry Jones who lives in the northwest part of the Floyd district says that he has corn of several ages. His earliest corn is silking and tasseling. All of his crops need a good rain.

W. C. Thornton who lives in the southern part of the Floyd district reports that his crop on his sandy land is not needing rain as badly as some of the crops on the tighter land. His early crop still has a good chance to make a fair yield.

C. E. Massey reported a good rain Friday night. He lives in the southern part of the Richland community.

J. P. Ford who lives near Portales states that his tomatoes are setting on fast and he thinks that he will have tomatoes by the first of September, or before.

There are some farmers in the Causey and Rogers communities who are beginning to spray for the cotton leaf worm. Others are getting their materials ready for work when the first sign of the worm appears.

C. A. Franklin who lives five miles northeast of Portales says that his crop is late, and it needs rain badly.

Notice To Cotton Farmers

The Cotton State Board of Review for New Mexico has set Monday, August 12, as the last date when appeals in connection with cotton contracts for 1935 can be accepted. For this reason it has become necessary for the county allotment committee to set August 8, as the last date when appeals can be made to them. All producers having any complaint regarding cotton contracts for 1935 should contact the county allotment committee at once.

F. C. A. Helps Finance Costs Of Harvesting

Farmers whose small grain crops are subject to liens securing emergency crop loans may use up to one-half of the sale-proceeds of the grain to pay necessary harvesting and threshing costs, according to an announcement today from the Farm Credit administration. Heretofore, these allowances were limited to specified amounts per bushel.

Where a farmer sells a part of his small grain crop he may not use more than one-half of the proceeds to pay harvesting and threshing costs; at least 50 per cent of the proceeds must be applied to the payment of the loan, the announcement states.

Since the beginning of the small grain harvesting season the emergency crop and feed loan offices have been assisting borrowers to harvest their grain crops by releasing a part of the grain sale proceeds to pay harvesting and threshing expenses. Borrowers from the fund give first liens on their crops; and those needing funds to pay the cost of harvesting and threshing are permitted to retain out of the proceeds of the sale of their grain the necessary amount to pay such expenses.

Harvesting and threshing costs may include such items as the threshing bill, purchase of twine and sacks, oil and fuel for tractor, feed for workstock, and actual hired labor; but not labor performed by the borrower himself or members of his family. The borrower must present bona fide bills for all harvesting expenses allowed under the plan.

12,000 Acres of Cotton Planted In Roosevelt Co.

Cotton acreage in Roosevelt county this year is near 12,000, with an approximate yield of one quarter of a bale to the acre, in prospect, according to B. L. Love, assistant county agent.

Applications for tax exemption under the Bankhead act have been signed by 715 farmers.

The state office will be able to issue the farmers their certificates for tax exemption for ginning of the cotton by the first of September. The tax on cotton will be six cents per pound unless the producer has exemption certificates.

The farmers of Roosevelt county received $1,870 in compliance with the Bankhead act for cotton reduction, in the month of July.

Miss Willie Terrell, who has had an extended vacation is back at her post as head nurse of the Brasell hospital.

should contact the county allotment committee at once.

Crop Association To Hold Meeting

The New Mexico Crop Improvement association will hold a meeting on August 23 between 2 and 4 p. m. during Farmers' Week which will be held at State College, New Mexico. This meeting will be of special interest not only to members of the association but to other farmers as well.

The program will be as follows: Address of Welcome will be extended by Acting President H. M. Gardner, New Mexico State College; J. R. Ogden, President of the Crop Improvement association will discuss progress within the New Mexico Crop Improvement association, and J. C. Overpeck, Station Agronomist, will discuss crop improvement work at the Experiment Station at State College. There will also be time given for general discussion in the main meeting at which time special problems will be discussed. Directly following the main meeting a directors' meeting will be held. Tom Reid who has recently been appointed extension agronomist will have charge of this program.

During Farmers' Week which will begin on August 19, there will be many subjects of general interest to those in attendance. Such topics as dairying, poultry, farm crops, horticulture, agricultural adjustment and homemaking will be discussed. Recreational programs have also been arranged.

An opportunity will be given to those attending to visit the College laboratories and experimental plots of the experiment station.

Borers Trouble Crops Where Weeds Grow

Corn borers are giving the farmers of Roosevelt county more trouble this year than they have for several years past.

They are doing more damage to crops that are suffering from lack of moisture or are handicapped by a growth of weeds.

Early irrigated corn was damaged, but it was not completely ruined. In cases where the crop was kept clean and well watered.

On the dry land where the crops suffered for rain, the worms have almost ruined the prospect for any grain production. One farmer reported that he had a strip of corn that was unusually weedy and this showed more sign of worms than the crops that were clean.

County Agent Orren Beaty was interviewed concerning the pests. He compared the effect of the borers on crops to the effect of lice on cows. He says that the effect of lice on cows is not very noticeable on a healthy cow, but a poor cow is soon overcome by them. A crop of corn that is free of weeds and has plenty of moisture is not as likely to be overcome by the borers as a crop that is weedy and lacks moisture.

The four kinds of corn borers are the European, common stalk, lesser corn stalk, and large corn stalk.

All the varieties feed principally on corn but the first three named varieties feed on grass, weeds and other crops. The common stalk borer is especially fond of weeds and grass when they are young. However, as the worm grows, he seeks larger corn plants.

The borers hibernate in the corn stalks during winter. Some of them select weeds instead of the corn stalks for winter hibernation.

In the spring, he comes out of his din as a small butterfly that is about one inch in length. The butterflies lay their eggs which number as many as 600. The eggs are laid on the undersides of the leaves of corn, weeds and grass. The worms, hatching from the eggs, feed first on weeds and leaves of the corn, but soon enter the stalk, boring into the pitch.

There is from one to two generations of the borers during one season.

The only known way to control the pests is to destroy their hibernating places and keeping down extra vegetation along the fence rows, and out of the crop. Crop rotation is recommended also.

The corn has to be cut about two inches from the ground and the stalks burned. Ordinary plowing will not help much.

A.A.A. Attack Does not Affect Wheat Contracts

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced that the 4-year wheat control program beginning with the crop year of 1935 has been virtually completed in all its details. The sign-up campaign will begin as soon as administrative forms are approved and completed. Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, in commenting on the wheat program, says that wheat farmers need not hesitate to sign a new wheat contract because of court attacks on the processing tax or the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Mr. Davis assures farmers that they will receive their benefit payments for actual compliance with the provisions of the wheat contract. In this connection the Agricultural Adjustment administration emphasizes the strengthening effects of the amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The new wheat contract carries provisions by which it may be terminated if future developments in the wheat situation make crop control unnecessary.

For the 1935 crop year, seeded wheat acres on farms under contract will be reduced 15 percent under the base acreage. Not more than 25 percent reduction under the base acreage may be required of contract signers in any year after 1936.

Advise Poison Spray to Control Over Infestation

Jim Hatch thinks that the farmers of the Portales Valley will have to use sprays to overcome the numerous plant insects and diseases that are giving so much trouble at the present time.

Hatch completely lost his early crop of potatoes on account of the psyllid. He sprayed his later potato crop and for the same disease, and it is making a good yield.

No sooner did Hatch get the psyllid under control than the little green leaf hoppers attacked a later crop of potatoes. About three applications of the spray and this patch of potatoes promises to make one of the heaviest yields that he has ever produced.

His late corn crop became infested with worms. The farmer reasoned what would be good for his potatoes would be good for his corn and the corn was sprayed. He says that it is too early to say whether he has the worms under control or not. However, his corn is looking a lot better.

Had he sprayed his early crop of potatoes he would have made enough profit to have bought several supplies of insect poison.

The case with Hatch on the first crop was one of not knowing what to do until it was too late. He had some nice looking vines, except for curling of some of the leaves and a few of the leaves did not have the correct color for healthful plants.

However, all the doctoring that could be done would not make the tiny potatoes of the infested plants grow larger.

Crop Reports Are Good in All Areas

Reports from returned travelers are that crops are good this year in every section, and that it looks as if the farmers would beat the depression.

Joe Farha says that he never saw better crops in Oklahoma than those of this year.

Crops are also reported good all over this country and many farmers have laid their crops by.

Frank Craddock says that with the usual August rains that the entire county will produce good crops.

Tomato Crop Will Be Ready by September First

Carl Case, manager of the Portales Canning company, has estimated the tomato crop in the valley at 400 acres.

This estimate is based on a perfect stand. If a farmer has only half a stand, two acres is counted as one.

Several farmers will have ripe tomatoes next week, but the bulk of the crop will be ready about the first of September. This data is about the average for the crop here.

County Agent Orren Beaty and A. B. Fite, horticulturist of the A and M college at Las Cruces inspected several of the tomato fields of the valley Saturday, and agreed that the wilt disease is the main cause of the poor stand of tomato plants.

The cause of the wilt, they pointed out, is a bacteria in the ground and there is no known remedy for it. One of the best means of preventing it from spreading is to get the plants in the center of the row as soon as possible and not run the water close to the plants.

Farmers have been able to control the blight by spraying with a Bordeaux solution.

Beaty and Fite found some sign of the nematodes, but this disease is not causing much trouble at present.

In spite of these diseases, farmers expect a fair yield this year.

There is little indication as to what the market price will be this year, but it is believed that the early crop will bring good prices.

Rigid Regulations Will Be Observed

A 30-day open season on ducks was promised hunters today, but under the most rigid regulations ever imposed by the government in an effort to reduce the annual kill.

The shooting season, applying to geese, brant, jackknives and coot, as well as to ducks, will open in northern states October 21 and will close November 19. In southern states the season will run from November 20 to December 19.

Announcing the regulations with President Roosevelt's approval J. N. "Ding" Darling, director of the Biological Survey, said the restrictions were the only alternative to a closed season because "we've killed more ducks than we've hatched every year for the last 35 years."

Darling estimated 25,000,000 ducks will fly south this fall and 12,000,000 will be killed by hunting or natural causes.

But Darling's program was assailed by John H. Baker, executive director of the National Association of Audubon Societies.

Baker said a closed season was vitally necessary.

Chief points of the new regulations:

Elimination of sinkboxes, sneak boxes and open-water shooting.

Prohibition of shooting over baited water or land.

Prohibiting of live decoys.

Elimination of zoning by states and the substitution of two zones, northern and southern.

Restriction of shooting to the hour between 7 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The three-shell limit placed on auto-loading and repeating shotguns take effect this fall and regulations provide that hunters may use a shotgun only, not larger than No. 10 gauge.

The daily bag limit on ducks will be 10 in the aggregate of all kinds and the possession limit also will be 10. Bag and possession limits on geese and brant will be four.

The regulations limit the use of a blind, boat or any type floating craft to locations not more than 100 feet from the shore-line.

New seasons on mourning doves provide for shooting in northern states from September 1 to December 15 and in southern states from October 1 to January 15.

Motor Company Best Since 1930

Figures announced July 16 by officials of the Ford Motor company show that, during the first six months of the year, 634,961 units were sold in the United States. This is nearly two-thirds of the 1,000,000 cars and trucks which Ford is building this year. This figure does not include foreign sales.

In June alone 100,831 units were sold. This is the best sales record for June which Ford has experienced since 1930—and the fourth consecutive month this year that Ford sales have topped 100,000. During the first six months this year, Ford paid out $88,777,588 in wages and spent $274,368,873 for raw materials, a great part of cut production in half, but reduced commodity prices only 30 percent. Farm implement production was cut, but their prices were reduced only 5 percent. At the same time about 80 percent of the laborers were turned out of jobs.

"Agriculture stands up clean and strong, but industry does not. It is a part of the system, but the system needs adjusting.

Cannot Raise Income
"Agriculture can't raise its income above the present level. As a result of the drought, instead of crop curtailment programs, farm commodity prices rose this year. And it is impossible to increase the income of agriculture by cutting down on production this year.

These are not only problems of Eastern New Mexico, or West Texas, but of the nation as a whole. There is a gradual coming together of industrial and farm interests, but greedy every advantage for personal gain. "It is important that representatives of agriculture and industry meet on an even basis.

"The fact that the United States is now a creditor instead of a debtor nation may change the entire map of the continent. It may mean extraordinary movements of people from eastern seaboard to the more sparsely inhabited sections of the middle west. "We should use a centralized form of government not to freeze the present conditions, but to retain an open mind toward conditions that have grown as a result of the war. Situations change and we should watch that we don't get caught on the basis of old ideas."

Wallace described the plight of the farmers and the economic collapse in 1933 as reaching all over the country "like a disease communicated to the whole body." "Farmers found their income cut to a third, and stopped buying tractors, and other commodities, the effects of which spread over the nation.

"I don't believe in miracles," asserted Wallace, "or that by waving a wand, we can raise the prices of products."

Wallace pointed out that the agricultural crisis followed the raising of the tariff, and the stopping of loans to foreign countries in 1930.

Wallace praised the work of Sen. Carl A. Hatch, "who has a common sense, level headed approach to agriculture."

A telegram to Secretary Wallace asking that grain and sorghum crops be included under the AAA brought no promise from him, but a suggestion that if farmers of this section wanted such aid they would have to work for an amendment to the act. "That is the way government works," he declared. "I have observed that grain prices follow closely the trend of corn, wheat and livestock," he stated.

Former governor A. W. Hockenhull, now connected with a farm credit bank in Wichita, Kansas, introduced Wallace. Governor Clyde Tingley, who accompanied Wallace to Clovis talked about FWA work. A. W. Anderson, secretary of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce was in charge of arrangements.

CORRECTION
District Court will convene here Monday, August 12, instead of August 5 as announced in last week's paper. Regular court sessions are held in Roosevelt county starting the second Monday in August. In other counties, the court starts on the first Monday, which accounts for the mistake.
