LRC construction bid awarded for Daniel Unit

Tommy Klein Construction of Lubbock has been awarded the bid to construct the Learning Resource Center at the Price Daniel Unit.

Representatives of the Scurry County Area Foundation and economic development committee finalized the contract Wednesday, and construction should begin within the next six to eight weeks.

Funding for the project was completed in February and bids were solicted at the end of March. Three bids were received, but the lowest exceeded the $175,000 budget by some 72 percent.

Roy McQueen, chairman of the economic development committee, said the past several months have been spent working with the architect, contractor, subcontractors and the state to get the project within budget.

"With the help of Tommy Klein and his company, along with considerations by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, the project has been brought within $12,000 of available funds," McQueen said.

The committee is working on avenues for the additional funding, and is committed to have it in hand when actual construction begins.

"This has been a long and tedious process," McQueen added. "However, the additional space is sorely needed for the continuation of volunteer programs. The state has been extremely cooperative in agreeing to the substantial use of inmate labor which has helped bring the projected cost closer to budget."

Some $76,000 was raised in the local community which will be combined with a $100,000 grant from The Meadows Foundation of Dallas. Funding of the Meadows grant has been contingent upon a successful local fund-raising effort as well as a signed construction contract.

To be built is a 3,800-square foot metal building that will seat 250 persons. The larger area can be divided into three smaller classrooms where self-improvement courses are taught.

The building will also have offices for the chaplain and three counselors.

Persons wanting to make a contribution toward the remaining $12,000 can send it to the Scurry County Area Foundation, Box 949 in Snyder.

Foundry explosion injures 19

WARSAW, Ind. (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a foundry early today, spraying workers with molten metal and injuring 19 people including several who were critically burned.

The explosion at Dalton Foundries Inc. happened about 2:45 a.m., when water from a ruptured pipe mixed with molten iron inside a furnace, Bob Robinson, owner of BOMAR Security, said. The company provides security at the plant.

"It was just a large explosion, like a very large amount of TNT," said William Sloane, a plant employee who was knocked down and suffered burns to his arm from flying iron.

Sloane said workers "were peppered like a shotgun blast" by the iron, which he said was probably about 2,600 degrees.

Describing some of the most seriously injured, he said, "When they came out the door, their skin was hanging off, their clothes were burned off, some looked like they had teeth knocked out. ...

"They were burned through their clothes, their shirts were burned," he said. "One of them, all that was left was the collar from his shirt, and he was burned from the knees down."

About 150 to 200 production workers and managers were working at the time of the explosion and that all had been accounted for, Robinson said.

The sprawling plant was evacuated after the explosion, but some departments away from the damaged area later returned to work, Robinson said. The daytime shift was being told not to report to work.

Kelly gets axe; Brooks spared

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent base-closings commission voted today to strip virtually all of the assets of Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, rejecting the Air Force's recommendation to keep alive all five of the service's maintenance depots.

Earlier in the morning, the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission voted not to close Brooks AFB in San Antonio which the Air Force was seeking to shut down. By an 8-0 vote, the commission rejected the Air Force's plan to close Brooks and move its assets to Ohio and Florida.

San Antonio's good news over Brooks was overshadowed by the Kelly decision, which came on a 6-2 vote after lengthy debate.

Texas community leaders and lawmakers had been guardedly optimistic that the commission would vote to spare Kelly's Air Logistics Center, which employs some 10,400 civilians and 1,600 military personnel.

But the commission — faced with the fact that three depots could handle the Air Force's maintenance workload — voted to close Kelly's ALC and McLellan AFB in California.

"I believe that to close no depots would be shirking the job that we have before us," said Commissioner Benjamin Montoya.

With shutdown of the depot, Kelly's remaining tenants — employing some 5,445 other civilian and military workers — would move to adjacent Lackland AFB.

The picture was far brighter for Brooks.

Although civic leaders had argued to keep all of Brooks' functions, they had developed a fallback plan that would close Brooks but retain some 3,000 of its 4,500 jobs under the supervision of a sister base.

In the end, the fallback plan was not necessary to spare the base, which is one of the Air Force's major laboratories.

"It's the wrong thing to do to break up this world-class lab and move it somewhere else," said commissioner Josue Robles, a retired Army major general from San Antonio.

The future of six other Texas bases continued to hang in the balance. A decision on Red River Army Depot in Texarkana was expected later in the day.

June Jubilee slated Sunday

Trinity United Methodist Church will sponsor its annual June Jubilee on Sunday, not Saturday, as was previously reported.

The June Jubilee is a major event that will assist in funding the different ministries conducted by Trinity Methodist.

The celebration will feature a lunch that includes barbecue ribs and sausage with all the trimmings.

The event will begin at noon and end at 2. Other activities include a silent auction and arts and crafts sale. Baked goods will also be available.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12.

Judge to rule on valedictorian case Friday

LUBBOCK — A U.S. District Court judge is expected to decide Friday whether he'll extend a temporary injunction or allow Snyder Independent School District to go ahead and certify a top-ranking student.

The injunction is being sought by the plaintiff, Holly Jones, who believes she should be certified as the highest ranking student in Snyder High School's Class of 1995, based on language in the school handbook. School administrators plan to submit the name of a classmate, Veana Clay.

Testimony was presented by both sides on Monday, and Judge Sam Cummings gave counsel for the plaintiff and defense until 9 a.m. Friday to submit any new information in the case.

Miss Jones contends that she should receive the top-ranking, and a TEA scholarship that goes along with it, because she has the highest honors point average among students who attended Snyder High School for four years. Miss Clay, who took correspondance courses through Texas Tech University, graduated in three years. She has the best overall honors point average, 0.123 higher than Miss Jones.

In Monday's hearing, Miss Jones and school officials testified that the student handbook dictates that students shall be ranked "at the end of four years of high school."

Under questioning, SHS Principal Larry Scott testified that he defines the school handbook to mean "four years of course work or what would normally take four years." Miss Jones testified "It (the handbook) says four years of high school. ...It's there in black

CMH board discusses routine business items

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers covered mostly routine business this morning and heard a positive operating report for the month of May.

In-patient revenue for last month totaled $732,497 — up from $645,215 from May, 1994. Out-patient revenue increased also as it was up $109,952 from last year.

For the year, total in-patient revenue stands at $3,543,725. This compares with $3,140,528 from the same time last year.

The cash balance for the hospital at the end of May stood at $1,157,978 — up from $1,155,965 from the end of May in 1994.

The average daily census for May stood at 11.8 — down slightly from 12.9 last year.

Home health visits totalled 1,009, which was down some 200 from last year.

Teresa Graves, director of nurses, told the board that she expected to see an increase in the number of home health visits. She stated "Over 300 visits were made last week."

The board also heard reports from Iva Haywood, purchasing/central supply manager, and from Marka Dempsey on the Performance Improvement Program for the hospital.

Hospital CEO Jeff Reecer advised the board of needed plumbing improvements at the hospital which are expected to cost nearly $150,000.

All board members were present.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some folks are like blisters, they don't show up until the work is done."

Ole what's-her-name was out of town, so we were sitting on the front porch on a cool summer evening reading a book that we had intended to read last summer.

We looked up occasionally to see walkers pass by. I think Ernie Sears was walking. One thing for sure, I know he wasn't moving fast enough to consider it a jog.

Junior and Barbara McCormick came by, and they were moving so fast that their hello was barely audible. Rozelle Martin was next, and she was moving plenty fast because she had left I.E. at home watching the baseball game.

Then we heard the real commotion. Charles and Marge Anderson were stirring up the neighborhood dogs by pushing two of their granddaughters down the street in a garden cart. A grandson was riding a tricycle with Marge close on his heels.

They stopped and exchanged greetings long enough for the two girls to leap out of the cart. The grandson also abandoned his tricycle.

About that time, one of the granddaughters took possession of the trike, resulting in a vocal protest from the grandson. The tricycle then upended its rider, and there were two crying tykes in the arms of doting grandparents.

"They're staying until Friday," Charles moaned. "Tomorrow night, we're hiring babysitters."

Speaking of kids, did you hear about the kid who came home from vacation Bible school with a black eye. The mother demanded to know what had happened.

"Bubba and I got into a fight," he explained.

"Well, tomorrow you take him some cookies and make friends," his mother scolded.

The kid did as instructed but came home the next day with a busted lip. "Good grief," exclaimed the mom, "What in the world happened?"

"It was Bubba," said the kid. "He wanted my cookie, too."

A-B students need not apply

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Millionaire Edward Seese believed making the grade didn't make the man. So he left $4.5 million to Broward Community College for scholarships for C students.

The gift, largest in the school's history, caught administrators by surprise.

"I felt like I won the lottery," said Ann McGee, vice president of development. "It's an incredible first gift."

The bequest, announced Monday, represents 30 percent of Seese's estate and could benefit at least 250 new students a year.

"He said the Bs and As could get scholarships, but the Cs would be left out in the cold," said Seese's lawyer, Bill Leonard.

Seese, a real estate investor, died March 21 at age 86.

In his will, he singled out C students because they "are often capable of greater accomplishments when relieved from the problems of outside employment while attending school."

He stipulated that the scholarships should go to "industrious persons who show promise ... preferably from Broward high schools."

Seese added that if there weren't enough C students to take advantage of the scholarships, the money could be awarded to students who get higher grades.

Medicare cools tax-cut fever

NEW YORK (AP) — To fend off reductions in Medicare, three in four Americans would sacrifice some of the tax cuts promised by congressional leaders, according to an Associated Press poll.

People of all ages in the poll are mostly willing to give up some tax cuts to preserve spending on the federal health insurance program for the elderly. Deficit cutting plans before Congress call for slowing the increase in Medicare spending by up to $286 billion over seven years.

Generally, polls show Americans are eager to shrink what they consider wasteful federal spending. But with President Clinton and the Republicans who control the budget in Congress debating how much pain the nation and its economy can take, uncertainty seems to be growing.

Almost half those polled Friday through Tuesday, 47 percent, said Republican proposals to cut spending go too far, a slight increase from a poll that asked the same question in early April. Just 32 percent thought Republican proposals to cut federal spending don't go far enough, down from 51 percent in April.

The current poll included a random sample of 1,005 adults interviewed by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants. Results have a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Talk show hosts plan boycott

HOUSTON (AP) — A former president of the National Association of Radio Talk Show Hosts says presenting the group's free-speech award to G. Gordon Liddy "will diminish what this award stands for."

"In the minds of people in years to come, this award will not hold the same kind of prestige and honor," Mary Beal, a syndicated radio host from Jacksonville, Fla., said Wednesday. Beal is among a few board members who plan to boycott this weekend's ceremony.

The organization is holding its annual meeting Thursday through Sunday in Houston.

Liddy, who once instructed listeners on the best way to kill federal agents, is to receive the Freedom of Speech Award on Saturday.

Former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, last year's winner, has refused to present the award to Liddy.

"I don't think the way to make the point that the First Amendment is important is to (honor) the most outrageous abuses of that great privilege," Cuomo told The Washington Post.

The Continentals to perform Friday

THE CONTINENTALS — A concert performed by The Continentals will be at 7 p.m. Friday at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Featuring more than 35 cast members, including vocalists, instrumentalists, dramatists and technicians, The Continentals will present "Celebrate! Before The Lord" here Friday.

The concert will be held at 7 p.m. at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

The Continentals' contemporary music production includes something for everyone: current top Christian songs, a special number for the children and a section featuring a preview of their new musical, "David — a Man after God's Own Heart."

All participants are carefully selected from among thousands who audition annually from around the world. The program is fine-tuned during an intensive rehearsal camp in Southern California. Each group leaves for an approximate 10-week tour throughout the United States and many foreign countries.

In the last 27 years, more than 14,000 young people have been a part of The Continentals, traveling millions of miles to every continent in the world, except Antarctica, and more than 70 countries.

In 1985, the organization led a successful campaign, in conjunction with World Vision International, to raise nearly $2 million to fight world hunger.

Touring groups have been the training ground for countless individuals who are currently involved in many different arenas of the gospel music industry and church leadership. In addition, numerous well-known Christian artists, including Wayne Watson, Paul Smith, Karla Worley, Steve Taylor and Jim Custer began their careers in a tour with The Continentals.

A love offering will be taken. For more information, call 573-8596.

Rev. Graham to address SBC

ATLANTA (AP) — After a historic apology for condoning years of racism, the Southern Baptist Convention turned to other business toward the close of its sesquicentennial annual meeting, including a speech by the Rev. Billy Graham.

Graham was scheduled to give the closing address at the convention, which ends at noon today.

An AP News Analysis

Gramm marches through GOP territory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The transition to a Republican Congress has been easy for Sen. Phil Gramm. He's still saying no, just as he did when Democrats ruled Capitol Hill and he was not yet a presidential candidate.

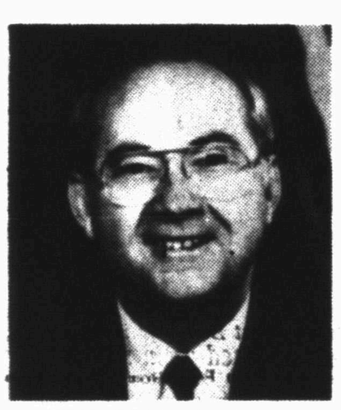

This year lawmakers in his own party are feeling the brunt of Gramm's mix of persistence, absolutism and ambition.

The Texas Republican is on a Sherman-like march across the new legislative landscape. He has vowed to bury GOP budget and welfare bills if they aren't changed to suit him, and he also pledged to thwart Dr. Henry Foster's bid to become surgeon general.

"I think we can serve the public interest by saying no," Gramm said on the Senate floor, echoing the argument he used during the 1994 health-care debate.

Republicans ended last year in a frenzy of obstructionism, guessing correctly that voters either wouldn't care or would blame the Democratic majority for whatever didn't get done. Most of them abandoned that approach when they took over both chambers this year.

Gramm, however, has settled

SEN. PHIL GRAMM

on a neo-obstructionist strategy that's having its greatest impact on Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole — the front-runner for the GOP White House nomination that both men covet.

At this point the GOP presidential race is essentially a competition to attract conservative primary voters. Dole, R-Kan., is trying to protect his right flank against incursions by Gramm and others, while at the same time meeting his responsibilities as a congressional leader.

The Foster nomination, sidetracked by controversies over abortion and credibility, exposed the two men's presidential rivalry unusually baldly. When Gramm vowed to filibuster, Dole said he might not bring the nomination to the floor.

"This is a game of one-upmanship" fumed Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., between "candidates for an office that won't be decided for 18 months."

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said Dole was "under extraordinary pressure" to keep the nomination off the floor and "showed some statesmanship" in letting it come up.

Gramm, unencumbered by leadership obligations, is in the same spoiler's role he played in last year's health care debate. At the time, against pollsters' advice, he led a GOP charge to kill the whole issue.

Countless times he labeled President Clinton's massive reform plan "deader than Elvis" and swore it would pass "over my cold, dead body." Ultimately Congress passed nothing at all — a devastating setback that has haunted Clinton and the Democrats ever since.

Past glories were on Gramm's mind Wednesday when he blasted a Republican welfare reform bill and said only dramatic changes would win him over. "You're looking at the 1995 version of the health-care debate," Gramm warned. He claimed backing from some 20 GOP senators and asserted "there is no possibility" the welfare bill could pass in its current form.

Gramm is also bucking his party on its budget. "I will stop it cold," he has said, if it doesn't contain a variety of tax cuts approved by the House but resisted by senior Senate Republicans intent on deficit reduction.

"I can't believe that Senator Gramm wants to kill a balanced budget. We'll just have to wait and see if he really wants to do that. End of statement," Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., a close Dole ally, barked at a reporter when Gramm first made his threat.

Domenici and other leaders bypassed Gramm, an economist and Budget Committee member, when they chose a negotiating team to reconcile the House and Senate budget blueprints. They said the idea was to keep presidential politics out of the process.

Gramm is not the GOP presidential front-runner at this point, and his colleagues may snub him.

Judge sends Railey case on to California

DALLAS (AP) — An attorney for Walker Railey says he's pleased with a federal judge's decision to transfer the former Dallas minister's bankruptcy case to California.

"It was a total victory for us," attorney Michael Pezzulli said of Wednesday's ruling by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold C. Abramson, which overturned his previous edict that the case stay in Texas.

The ruling was seen as bad news by attorney's for the family of Railey's comatose wife.

"More than 90 percent of these witnesses live in Texas," said Gerrit Pronske, attorney for Peggy Railey's mother and legal guardian, Billie Jo Nicolai.

Railey, who wasn't at the hearing, was acquitted of an attempted murder charge in 1993 after he was accused of trying to strangle his wife to death. Mrs. Railey was left near death by a strangulation attempt on April 21, 1987.

The former minister's attorneys had asked to move the case in July 1993. Abramson rejected the request in October 1993, but reserved the right to reconsider.

Mrs. Railey's attorneys have fought to prevent the bankruptcy declaration from discharging the former pastor of his obligation to pay her guardian an $18 million civil judgment. They filed a motion in May 1993 asking that Railey not receive protection from the default judgment.

Mrs. Railey is in a Tyler nursing home in what doctors call a persistent vegetative state.

Railey was pastor of the First United Methodist Church and one of the most prominent ministers in Dallas at the time of the 1987 attack. He later resigned and has been living in the Los Angeles area recently.

He admitted during the San Antonio trial that he lied to police about his activities the night of the attack. But he said he did so to conceal an extramarital romance he was having, not to cover a bungled murder attempt.

Much of Wednesday's session was devoted to discussions about what live and taped testimony would be heard at a future hearing. Some testimony was taped from Court TV telecasts of Railey's San Antonio criminal trial.

Piano recital held

Mrs. Virgil Mott presented her piano students in a recent recital at the Martha Ann Woman's Club and presented Guild certificates and year-end awards.

All of Mrs. Mott's students participated in the auditions sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teacers in May, held in Snyder. Cash awards went to Jimmy Hall, first place; Christy Garner, second; and Mark Bullard, third. In the junior high category, Kelley Garner and Katie Howard tied for the award. Elementary student with the highest grade was Sara Thornhill and the beginner with the highest grade was Natalie Alexander.

Practice awards during the year were given to Andra Dunham, Erin Dunahm, Katie Howard, Kala Kemph, Tiffany Kubena, Tara Kubena, Tyson Kubena and Audra Lilly.

Theory medals were won by Andra Dunham, silver; Lee Scott, silver; Sara Thornhill, silver; Tara Kubena, bronze; and Jimmy Hall, bronze.

Students receiving ratings in the Sonatina-Sonata-Concerto Contest in Lubbock included Mark Bullard, first; Christy Garner, first place; Sarah Lilly, third; Kelley Garner, in the Piano Festival Section, superior; and Audra Lilly, superior.

Students taking part in the Hymn Festival in Lubbock and their ratings were: Christy Garner, superior; Kelley Garner, superior; Jeffrey Garner, superior; Katie Howard, excellent; Sarah Lilly, superior; Audra Lilly, excellent; and Tyson Kubena, superior.

Mark Bullard and Jimmy Hall were presented in a joint Senior Piano Recital in the Fine Arts Theatre of Western Texas College on May 20. Bullard, a National Merit Scholar, will enroll in the Plan II Honors Program at the University of Texas at Austin. He received a $2,000 scholarship a year for four years at the university.

Hall will enter the Houston Baptist University, studying with Jeanette Lombard, professor of voice. He will enroll in a vocal performance course with a major concentration in opera. Jimmy was awarded a $12,000 scholarship by the university. His vocal instructor has been Melanie Smith of Snyder.

TV Hall of Fame

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Bonanza," "The Golden Girls" and "The Dick Van Dyke Show" may not have much in common, but three of their stars are about to.

Michael Landon, Betty White and Dick Van Dyke will be inducted into the Television Academy Hall of Fame this fall, the Academy of Television Arts and Science announced Monday.

The other inductees will be broadcasters Jim McKay and Bill Moyers and the writer-producer team of Richard Levinson and William Link.

Levinson and Link created or developed more than 15 network television series, including "Mannix," "Columbo," and "Murder, She Wrote."

A trip to the chair

Yesterday I included a depressing quotation from Raymond Chandler comparing alcohol and love. Here is more bad press for love, from Evelyn Waugh, the British novelist. "All this fuss about sleeping together. For physical pleasure I'd sooner go to the dentist any day."

How does that relate to today's deal? All will be revealed. For now, how would you plan the play in four spades after West leads the club two?

South won the first trick with dummy's ace and called for a trump. East defended perfectly, rising with his spade king and, when it held the trick, giving his partner a club ruff. West cashed the spade ace before exiting with a heart. Now declarer had no option but to take the diamond finesse. When it lost, South conceded one down.

"Well defended," said South to East. But when North didn't echo the sentiment, South wanted to know why.

"It is true, he did do well. Yet you still should have triumphed. Before playing a trump, cash your three heart tricks, discarding a diamond from hand. Then, after West has received his ruff and cashed the spade ace, what does he do? If he exits with a diamond, it is into your ace-queen. And if he plays a heart, it concedes a ruff-and-discard. Either way, you don't lose a diamond trick and do make your contract."

This type of play is called the Dentist's Coup. You extract an opponent's safe exit cards before conceding the ruff. Then, whatever he returns is the replacement filling for the trick you just lost.

Overuse of antibiotics facts

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The effectiveness of antibiotics is being eroded by overuse and overprescription, says Dr. David Welch of the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

That means they won't work when you need them — to combat drug-resistant tuberculosis, for example.

"Drug-resistant TB were really the first cases of drug-resistant bacteria that caught everybody's attention in the 1990s," Welch says. "We've had problems with drug resistance ever since penicillin was introduced and used in the 1940s."

What has happened is that bacteria which once were almost wiped out by wonder drugs have learned to cope and come back, turning into monsters that can't now be killed by these drugs.

Both doctors and patients share responsibility for overuse, Welch says. Doctors prescribe antibiotics uselessly against viral infections, often under pressure by patients. And people are overexposed through milk and meat products because of the high doses of antibiotics administered to farm animals.

"There only should be antibiotics prescribed for documented infections, in contrast to using them for the common cold or other undefined upper respiratory tract infections," Welch says.

Even if the infections are bacterial, patients often stop taking their medicine when they begin to feel better. This allows the bacteria to mutate into stronger organisms, and these mutants pass on resistant genes to succeeding generations of bacteria.

Welch thinks it would be a good idea to adopt a program similar to one being used in Israel, which verifies that the patient has completed the course of drugs prescribed for an illness.

He says that we can't stop using antibiotics, but that education, control and prevention can stop misuse of these miracle drugs and the rise of resistant bacteria.

Astros cap 7-2 road trip with 5-3 victory

MONTREAL (AP) — The Houston Astros hope that home will be as accomodating as the road.

Houston defeated Montreal 5-3 Wednesday night capping a 7-2 road trip with a three-game sweep of the Expos. It was the Astros' 11th win in 13 road games.

"Now we have to carry it over at home," said manager Terry Collins, whose club has a 19-9 road record, but a 7-15 mark at home, including six straight losses. "I think we try too hard at home, keep pressing and try to make too many things happen. There are no secrets, we have to go out and have some fun. Just go play."

Greg Swindell (4-3) pitched six strong innings for his first win in a month. The left-hander allowed one run on four hits, struck out four and walked one, sending Montreal to its fifth straight loss and seventh in eight games.

Tony Eusebio had two hits and drove in three runs, including two on a double off Butch Henry (2-5) in the third inning that gave Houston a 3-1 lead.

"We got some key hits, they made a couple of key errors, and our bullpen was strong," said Swindell, who hadn't won in five starts since beating Montreal on May 21.

"When that happens, you should win."

Montreal made four errors and several bad judgment plays that raised the ire of manager Felipe Alou.

"This was one of our worst games since I came on," Alou said. "Nobody's having fun here right now.

"Some of the young guys seem to be getting nervous. The important thing is not only wins or losses, but that they don't get overwhelmed by losses or mistakes."

Houston's top four in the batting order did little wrong on the Eastern road swing. Rookie Brian Hunter hit .310 in the nine games, Craig Biggio .342, Jeff Bagwell .341 and Derek Bell .316.

"When we get good pitching, we're going to win a lot of games," said Bagwell, who went 2-for-5 and extended his hitting streak to 11 games. Bagwell has hit safely in 17 of his last 19 games, raising his average from .183 to .250.

"I'm starting to get my swing back, but it's not quite there yet," he said. "We've all been struggling at different times this year, playing well six games, then badly six games. But it's coming around. Up and down the lineup, we're starting to get this thing going."

Hunter, the Astros' leadoff hitter who was called up from the minor leagues to begin the road trip after James Mouton was injured, also had two hits and went 6-for-13 in the series.

"He did what we hoped he'd do for us," Collins said. "He sparked the offense."

Hunter was hit on the thumb by a pitch from Luis Aquino in the seventh, but remained in the game.

He shrugged off the suggestion that the Astros' recent string of success has coincided with his arrival.

"They've been playing good on the road all year," the rookie said. "I didn't change that.

"But when a guy gets on base, it puts pressure on the opposing team. When I get on, I look to run," said Hunter, who has six stolen bases in the nine games.

Mantle encounters light liver rejection

DALLAS (AP) — Mickey Mantle is showing signs that his body is slightly rejecting the new liver he received two weeks ago, a problem common to many transplant patients.

The baseball Hall of Famer remained in stable condition today even though he is experiencing "light organ rejection," a spokeswoman at Baylor University Medical Center said early today.

Such organ rejection is "common" and occurs in 65 percent of liver transplant recipients, said spokeswoman Denise Kile Walton.

Dr. Anna Mae Diehl, a transplant surgery instructor at Johns Hopkins University Medical Center in Baltimore, said a light, postoperative rejection — marked by variations in blood chemistry brought on by changes in the liver's function — is almost a rite of passage for those who receive such transplants.

"I'd say 65 percent is a good number ... about 95 percent of those recover with no problems," she said.

"Sometimes, what we'll do is put them on a higher dose of steroids, and then rapidly taper off. Then we'd try different types of anti-rejection medication."

For about the next week, the anti-rejection drugs will suppress a patient's immune systems enough to make him or her more vulnerable to infection. However, doctors can deal with such problems easily, Diehl said.

A news conference was scheduled today by Baylor officials to explain Mantle's condition.

The conference would deal with a second liver biopsy performed on Wednesday to determine the source of some unusual test results, Kile Walton said.

The 63-year-old former New York Yankees star center fielder, who now lives in Dallas, received the liver transplant at Baylor on June 8.

Tigers shutout Rangers, 1-0

DETROIT (AP) — When preseason talk turned to promising young pitchers in the Detroit Tigers organization, Felipe Lira's name was rarely mentioned.

Now he's the talk of the Tigers, most recently after combining with Mike Henneman for a 1-0 blanking of the Texas Rangers on Wednesday night.

Lou Whitaker hit the first home run allowed by Bob Tewksbury this year and the Tigers made it hold up in a game taking just two hours to play, the shortest nine-inning game in the American League this year.

Lira (4-3), who has allowed just three earned runs in 21 1-3 innings over his past three starts, left after surrendering a one-out double to Juan Gonzalez in the ninth.

Henneman came on and got Mickey Tettleton and Mike Pagliarulo on groundouts for his 11th save.

Lira, who wasn't supposed to make the club this year, is 3-1 in five starts with a 2.50 ERA.

"Nobody ever talked about him," manager Sparky Anderson said. "We decided to keep him the last couple of days of spring training, and that's only because we were taking 28 players north."

Lira didn't mind that he didn't get to finish what he started Wednesday.

"We got the win," he said. "Maybe if I would've stayed in there, the next guy would've got a hit.

"That's Mike's job. He's one of the best stoppers in the major leagues."

Tewksbury (5-3) allowed nine hits in eight innings, struck out four and walked two. He was one out into his 10th start of the season and had not allowed a homer in his first 61 1-3 innings when Whitaker took him deep in the first inning.

"I just threw a fastball in and he hit it out of the ballpark," Tewskbury said. "It's pretty simple."

It was the Tigers' first 1-0 victory since Sept. 30, 1990 at Minnesota and the shortest game played in Detroit since a 1:54 contest June 29, 1982.

St. Louis and San Diego played a 1:59 game June 14, the shortest in the majors this year.

Anderson credited both starters with shortening Wednesday's game.

Ex-UW chief sentenced to seven years in prison

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Former United Way chief William Aramony was sentenced today to seven years in prison for looting the charity to pay for illicit romances and exotic vacations.

Aramony must surrender to a minimum-security federal prison in four to six weeks, depending on when space is available in the prison. He also was sentenced to three years' probation.

Aramony, who was ousted from the national charity three years ago, and two of his associates were convicted in April after a four-week trial.

Aramony, 67, was convicted of 25 of 27 fraud, tax and conspiracy charges. Thomas J. Merlo, 64, and Stephen J. Paulachak, 49, were found guilty on related charges alleging they helped Aramony loot the United Way and conceal his romances. A judge threw out about a third of the original 71-count indictment against the men.

Together, the three took about $600,000 from the United Way of America in about 10 years, prosecutors said.

U.S. District Judge Claude M. Hilton also sentenced Merlo, who got four years and seven months, and Paulachak, who received a 2½-year sentence.

Hilton did not impose the hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines on each defendant that were possible under federal sentencing guidelines.

All three men have promised to appeal.

Aramony did not speak in court and had no comment after the hour-long sentencing. He had warm smiles and a wave for family and supporters in the courtroom, including Lori Villasor, his former girlfriend.

Aramony's four-year relationship with Ms. Villasor, who was 17 when they met, was at the heart of prosecutors' case that Aramony abused United Way accounts to romance women and enrich himself.

Hilton rejected arguments by defense attorney William B. Moffitt Jr. that a degenerative brain illness lowered Aramony's inhibitions and coarsened his sexual drive.

Aramony headed the United Way from 1970 to 1992, when he was forced to resign amid reports of his spending excesses.

At the time of Aramony's resignation, he oversaw a charity that took in more than $3 million a year in donations. Contributions fell sharply as the scandal came to light, but giving rebounded to at least $3.1 billion last year. The United Way of America's Alexandria headquarters is the national office for more than 2,000 local chapters.

Much of the case against Aramony concerned his jet-setting four-year affair with Ms. Villasor, whom he met while he was dating her older sister. Aramony, who was married at the time, helped Ms. Villasor get her own apartment and a consulting job funded by the charity, prosecutors said.

Aramony also flew to see Ms. Villasor on the charity's tab and took her on lavish trips to New York, London, Paris, Egypt, Las Vegas and other spots, prosecutors said.

Ms. Villasor testified under immunity from prosecution that she drew a salary but did almost no work. Prosecutors said she was paid $89,000 over four years. After the trial, one juror said receipts and memos documenting the payments to Ms. Villasor was the most convincing evidence against Aramony.

Court rules against long-haired student

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today said that courts should not interfere with public school district dress codes.

The decision came in the case of Austin Barber, who was forced to cut his hair to avoid in-school suspension as an 18-year-old senior at Colorado High School in Colorado City in 1992.

Pat Barber, the student's father, and James Harrington, an attorney for the Texas Civil Rights Project, argued last November that a rule prohibiting male students in Colorado City schools from wearing earrings and hair below their collar is unconstitutional.

Barber's case was the first to question public schools' denial of equal rights provided to 18-year-olds — legal adults — under the Texas Constitution.

In the Supreme Court's majority opinion, Justice Raul Gonzalez wrote, "We refuse to use the Texas Constitution to micromanage Texas high schools.

"It is a matter of common sense that the state judiciary is less competent to deal with students' hair length than a parent, school board, administrator, principal or teacher," Gonzalez wrote.

Officers note variety of calls

Local law enforcement agencies had a relatively quiet day Wednesday but they handled a variety of calls.

At 8:31 a.m., a gas drive-off from Skinny's on Coliseum Drive was reported. The driver did return and pay for the gas.

Phillip Goldsberry requested a deputy at Ira at 11:17 a.m. in reference to being bitten by a coyote puppy.

Kay Price requested to speak to an officer at 3:19 p.m. in reference to a theft from the American Legion. An offense report for Class B theft was submitted.

David Green reported at 6:49 p.m. that someone had shot a hole through an irrigation motor.

An offense report for Class B theft was submitted at 7:33 p.m. in reference to a renter moving out of a house on Avenue B and taking some property from the residence.

An offense report was submitted at 12:19 this morning in reference to a theft of a beeper from an apartment at 4503 College Ave.

During routine patrol this morning, officers discovered open windows at a business on 25th Street and at an elementary school.

and white. I don't understand how they can count three years as four years."

Miss Jones' attorney, Robert Nebb of Lubbock, argued that the school district has committed a breach of contract by ignoring rules stipulated in the handbook. Attorney for the school district, Kelli Hamm Karczewski of Schwartz & Eichelbaum, contends that the handbook is to be used as a guide, and does not constitute a contract.

The case was filed in 132nd District Court on May 26 and a temporary injunction was awarded, stopping the school district from certifying Miss Clay as the top-ranked student. On June 2, attorneys for the defense were granted a notice of removal to U.S. District Court on the grounds that Miss Clay's civil rights were being violated. Nebb then filed motions for a second injunction and to have the case remanded back to 132nd District Court. Last week, Judge Cummings rejected the motion to send the case back to Scurry County, and on Monday took the motion for a second injunction under advisement until Friday.

Cable boasts better weather information

Cable television customers who have tuned into the Weather Channel recently have probably noticed a vast improvement in local weather information.

TCA Snyder Cablevision has installed a Weather Star 4000 system which includes radar, new graphics and easier-to-read additional information.

"We've already had several favorable calls. We're proud of it," said Larson Lloyd, Snyder Cablevision general manager.

The channel is number 30 on the cable. The system was installed in late May.

"It took a while to make adjustments to the system, but it is completely operational now," said Lloyd.

He said Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell and City Manager John Gayle, among others, had requested the updated service, especially since the weather office in Abilene may be closing soon.

"Television stations in Abilene and Lubbock are primarily concerned with Abilene and Lubbock, and because of our location, we don't get the attention that we need when it comes to weather information," said Lloyd. "When this system is showing the radar, you can see right where a storm is in relation to Scurry County, and you can see the intensity of it."

The system provides local weather information every five minutes. The additional information includes direction and speed of storms. It also has an improved warning system.

Extended outlook forecasts tailored to the Snyder-Sweetwater area are also more helpful than those which previously had focused on the Lubbock area.

"We're glad to have it. I think it will be a real help to our customers and to weather spotters as well," said Lloyd.

Local unit returns home

The local unit of the Texas Army National guard, Detachment 1 Company D 111th Engineer Battalion, 49th Armored Division has been training at Fort Hood for the last two weeks and will return home Saturday to the National Guard Armory in Towle Park.

The Snyder unit is among 9,100 other soldiers that have gone through intensive training at Fort Hood this summer. The Engineer's have been supporting the Tank and Infantry Battalions during lane training. This is very hard, hot but satisfying work.

Other soldiers from Snyder will be leaving for Fort Irwin, Calif. in September. They will be supporting the opposing force unit at the U.S. Army's National Training Center in Fort Irwin.

The majority of this local unit is composed of men from Snyder. They are a hard-working, responsible part of the Texas Army National Guard and our community.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this vital team should contact SSG Jessie W. Pierson at the National Guard Armory or call 573-4815.

Obituaries

Ramon DeLoera

1926-1995

COLORADO CITY — Funeral service is set for 2 p.m. Friday at St. Ann's Catholic Church for Ramon DeLoera, 69, of Loraine. Fr. Ray Wilhelm will officiate. Burial will follow in Loraine Cemetery.

Rosary will be said at 7:30 p.m. today at Kiker-Seale Funeral Home Chapel.

Mr. DeLoera died Wednesday at Mitchell County Hospital.

Born June 12, 1926, in Sweetwater, he married Juanita Munoz on April 4, 1948, in Loraine. He had been a resident of Mitchell County since 1958 and was a farmer and did upholstery work. He was a veteran of the U.S. Navy and a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Loraine.

Final vote expected today...

Foster nomination: one last chance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring a surprise, Dr. Henry Foster's nomination as surgeon general is on the verge of dying, riddled in a cross-fire of charges about abortion and Republican presidential politics. Opponents claimed victory today, while the White House maintained "we still have a shot."

After failing a preliminary Senate test Wednesday, Foster's last hope was a repeat vote today on whether to curtail debate on his nomination. The White House seemed glum about his prospects, after losing by three votes in the first round.

"It's still very tight," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said today on ABC's "Good Morning America." "We've made a number of calls, the president's been in contact with key members and we still have a shot here. It's still not over."

But Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who has been leading the fight against Foster, also was on network television at daybreak to proclaim the fight virtually over.

"I think on this high-profile vote, when people voted yesterday, they pretty well locked that vote into concrete. I don't see it moving. I don't see any evidence anybody's moving," Gramm said on Fox Television.

"Are we going to try for another vote? Yes, we are," President Clinton said after Wednesday's vote. "Do I know what the outcome will be? No, I don't. But I'm not through yet, and we're going to do our best to win it."

Foster's nomination, dangling since February, has become a lightning rod for attacks by anti-abortion groups because of his admission that he has performed 39 abortions during four decades in medicine.

"This is a debate about the qualifications of a candidate," Gramm said on "CBS This Morning," citing Foster's record, including some abortions. But Panetta, appearing on CNN, charged that the issue was really about "a very right-wing group in this country that is really trying to decide a woman's right to choose."

The White House — and even some Republicans — say Foster is being pummeled in the jockeying for the GOP presidential nomination, with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and Gramm leading the charge.

Foster, an obstetrician-gynecologist from Nashville, Tenn., pleaded for "the fairness that has been provided to previous nominations, the right to an up-or-down vote."

But Gramm and Dole, two GOP rivals, were determined to deny a straight vote, trying to kill the nomination through a parliamentary tactic.

If supporters fail to get the 60 votes to shut off debate today, Dole effectively will shelve the nomination.

On Wednesday, senators voted 57-43 to cut off debate and clear the way for a final confirmation vote. Eleven Republicans sided with the Senate's 46 Democrats, but it was three shy of the 60 votes needed to stop a threatened Gramm filibuster.

The White House searched for senators who might reverse their votes. Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., was a prime target. So was Sen. John Warner, R-Va., but he rushed to the Senate floor to insist he would not switch after his office was deluged by calls.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said Clinton was ready to do last-minute lobbying but "we're not going to have him chase rainbows."

Gramm suggested that Foster held "radical views about abortion," and said, "I do not believe those views represent traditional American values. I do not believe they represent the will of the American people."

Hijack motive remains puzzle; former bank employee queried

HAKODATE, Japan (AP) — Police were questioning an out-of-work bank employee today to try to find out why he commandeered a jumbo jet and terrorized its passengers for 16 hours before police overpowered him.

The 364 passengers and crew who had been on the All Nippon Airways flight, meanwhile, celebrated a safe end to an ordeal that began Wednesday on what should have been a short hop from Tokyo to the northern city of Hakodate.

"We were all so nervous," said 92-year-old Kunitake Watanabe, who worried about his heart condition during the long standoff that ended at dawn today when riot police stormed the aircraft. "But I somehow knew we would be rescued."

One 24-year-old passenger had a minor stab wound in her left shoulder and six other passengers were treated for stress-related ailments such as asthma or shock.

The hijacker, 53-year-old Fumio Kutsumi, was bloodied by police when they stormed onto the jet at the Hakodate airport and seized him after he had threatened to blow up the plane. He was brandishing a sharpened screwdriver, but no explosives were found.

Kutsumi has been on a medical leave from his job since 1994, and the bank says his ailments include a "nervous disorder" and asthma. The bank president, in true Japanese form, apologized for any trouble Kutsumi had caused.

The airline said its crew told them during the takeover that the hijacker was an apparent member of the Aum Shinri Kyo cult, accused in the Tokyo subway attack, and that he had demanded the release of jailed cult leader Shoko Asahara.

But police said Thursday they had turned up no evidence of an Aum connection. The cult denied any involvement in the hijacking.

Police said they were still investigating what was inside a vinyl bag Kutsumi had tried to puncture — a move that had raised fears he was trying to release nerve gas. In the March 20 subway attack, cult assailants punctured plastic bags full of the liquid form of the nerve agent sarin.

Once the hijacker began negotiating with police, he made no reference to Asahara, but repeated a demand that the plane be refueled and flown back to Tokyo. He provided no clue as to his motive.

"I did what I wanted to do," a police spokesman quoted him as saying. All Kutsumi has told police is his name and address, they said.

Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama, whose government was roundly criticized for a slow response to earlier crises including the Kobe earthquake in January, basked in the welcome news that the standoff ended without deaths or serious injuries.

Smith immigration bill ignores border fee, beefs up enforcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scores of new Border Patrol agents, fortified fences and sophisticated equipment would be deployed on the Southwestern border to deter illegal crossers under a sweeping new House immigration reform bill.

The 300-plus-page bill, drafted by House immigration subcommittee Chairman Lamar Smith of Texas, in many ways parallels Senate legislation and recommendations by the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform.

Unlike the Senate, where legal and illegal immigration are being dealt with in separate bills, Smith's legislation tackles both contentious issues at once.

Legal immigration would be brought from the current level of 830,000 annually to 535,000, giving preference to immediate relatives. More emphasis would be placed on the skill and education levels of newcomers.

"We have not, hopefully, been driven by arbitrary numbers or special interests but by what is best for America," the San Antonio Republican said Wednesday as he sketched details of the legislation he planned to introduce Thursday.

While Smith stressed that his bill is pro-family, minority-rights groups swiftly denounced provisions that would deny entry preference to siblings and adult children of legal residents.

"It's pretty mean-spirited stuff," said National Council of La Raza deputy vice president Cecilia Munoz.

She was particularly incensed by a provision that would deny legal status to foreign-born parents unless they obtain health insurance and more than half of their children are legal U.S. residents. "That means only wealthy people who have a lot of siblings in the U.S. can sponsor their parents and the rest of us can forget about it," she said.

Smith repeatedly said his focus was to put the needs of the United States and its taxpayers first.

His bill steers clear of a national ID card — which civil-rights and minority groups adamantly oppose. Smith also sidesteps what will be a highly controversial issue in Congress later this year — whether to deny citizenship to babies born to undocumented aliens on U.S. soil.

The Border Patrol would add 5,000 agents — doubling its size — between now and 2000 under Smith's bill. The agency also would gain funds for new equipment, including night-vision scopes, aircraft and vehicles.

The legislation, whose costs have not been assessed, also proposes funding for new physical barriers at popular crossing areas, including a triple-barrier fence along a 14-mile San Diego stretch that is the nation's most heavily trafficked crossing.

Smith parts company with the Senate legislation over a border crossing fee. Senate immigration subcommittee Chairman Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., is pushing a $1 fee for people entering the United States from Mexico and Canada.

Simpson contends a crossing fee, which the Clinton administration supports but many in Congress dislike, is the fairest way of financing border improvements.

But Smith, who toyed with a crossing fee in a GOP immigration blueprint last year, said such a fee isn't necessary. He contends costs incurred in deterring illegal immigration are far outweighed by the savings realized from fewer illegal immigrants receiving local, state and federal services.

Nonetheless, Smith's legislation does propose fines for undocumented aliens who are apprehended. The fines would range from $50 to $250, rising based on the number of times the crosser previously had been stopped.

Anti-drug programs cut for Texas prison inmates

DALLAS (AP) — An ambitious drug treatment program for Texas prison inmates has been cut to less than half of its envisioned size, officials say.

The reductions mean the cancellation of anti-drug programs for about 1,000 inmates.

State leaders on Wednesday brushed off suggestions that they're scuttling their commitment of rehabilitating prisoners and said they're simply re-evaluating the size and scope of such programs.

"What he's said is let's try this and see if it works before we jump whole hog into it," said Karen Hughes, press secretary for Republican Gov. George W. Bush.

The anti-drug program was started by Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, who argued that while building the largest prison system nationwide, penitentiary programs are vital to treat the root causes of crime.

A recent study indicates that 45 percent of the state's current 120,000 inmates are diagnosed as having an addiction that fuels their criminal behavior.

Bush also supports treatment if it can show a success rate, Ms. Hughes said.

"He's all for it if you can find him a program that works," she said.

Legislative budget cuts and fiscal improprieties within the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse have prompted a reshuffling of the prison program, Glen Castlebury, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, told The Dallas Morning News.

When created by the Legislature four years ago, the prison program was to entail treatment facilities for 12,000 inmates with a biennial program budget of $380 million.

Your Birthday

Friday, June 23, 1995

In the year ahead, you might establish two new primary objectives. It probably won't be easy, yet there are indications that you can achieve them before your next birthday rolls around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your possibilities for advancing your latest interest are very strong today. Move forward in a positive manner. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be lucky today in your financial involvements, but you'll need to take a very active role in bringing about success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Left to your own devices, you'll be capable of substantial achievements today. Do not let others infringe upon your time with frivolous projects or activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It looks as if the obstructions to something you've been hoping for will be lifted today. Once this occurs, follow through with alacrity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will prove important in this cycle to maintain good relationships with entrepreneurial friends. A close pal might point you toward something profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although it might require extra effort and dedication, an important career objective can be achieved in this time frame.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might do better than usual today in endeavors with pronounced elements of chance. With the odds in your favor, a few calculated risks may be in order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This could be the right day to implement a change to benefit to your household. Use your initiative instead of just dwelling on matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Authorship won't be as important as success today. If you feel your companion's suggestions are better than yours, use them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Industriousness will not only give you pride of achievement today, it could also increase your holdings. Doing good work will reward you amply.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It could make you feel very uneasy today if an endeavor involving others isn't managed effectively. You mustn't hang back; step in and take charge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Give domestic matters priority today. If you've left something critical unresolved, now is the time to settle it to your satisfaction.

Dog Who Marks His Territory Puts Husband in the Doghouse

DEAR ABBY: I have a real problem. My husband and I decided to breed our cocker spaniel last year. When Sadie had her five puppies, we decided to keep a male we named Ernie. Well, Ernie is now a little over a year old. Males seem to mark their territory wherever they go, and that's my problem.

I have had numerous arguments with my husband because I insist we should get Ernie neutered not only because of his urinating everywhere, including the house, but also to reduce the risk of cancer. My husband says he just can't do that to his dog! He thinks Ernie will lose his drive to play ball and walk all the time. He actually phoned the vet when he caught Ernie urinating on the plant in our living room. Then he canceled the appointment because he "just couldn't do that to Ernie."

Am I wrong to want to get our dog fixed before he wets the entire house? I love Ernie, and I really don't think he's going to know the difference being neutered or not. But my husband insists that neutering a dog is like taking away his manhood.

ERNIE'S MOM
IN CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR ERNIE'S MOM: I took your problem to my veterinary expert, Dr. Erwin David, who told me that your idea about neutering Ernie is correct. Neutering has a 50 percent chance of eliminating "urine-marking behavior in male dogs. And in the 50 percent of cases that fail to respond to neutering, hormone injections can be helpful."

He also told me that neutering has other health benefits: It eliminates the risk of testicular cancer and greatly reduces the risk of prostate disorders. Keeping that in mind (not to mention a serious pet overpopulation problem in the United States), male dogs that are not intended for breeding should be neutered.

He closed his letter to me as follows: "Not surprisingly, the opposition to neutering male pets invariably comes from male members of the household. However, neutered male dogs can be just as active as intact ones if their exercise programs are maintained."

DEAR ABBY: I tried to quit smoking several times, but wasn't able to. How I wish I had never started! I am 47, and was placed on a respirator last May, after having smoked for 31 years.

Please send all the young people who want to smoke to visit me. They can watch me wait for the respirator to give me enough breath so I can get a few words out. They can see that my mobility is limited to 12 feet of blue tubing. They can see all the medical equipment I rely on to keep me alive. They can talk to my husband, who is constantly by my side, and learn how his life has been affected.

Abby, we should give up trying to get smokers to quit, and crusade to prevent kids from starting.

GAIL H. IN GEORGIA

DEAR GAIL: Your speech may be limited, but your letter shouts the dangers of tobacco loud and clear.

Parents should begin letting children know that smoking is unhealthy and undesirable as soon as their children are old enough to understand and recognize what smoking is. Later on, the schools should impress upon them the many reasons why they should not smoke.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your comment that women live an average of seven years longer than men, I finally figured out why: They don't have wives.

ERNEST B. COPLEY,
PORTLAND, TENN.

DEAR ERNEST B. COPLEY: You apparently believe that wives contribute to the early demise of their husbands. Actually, wives have proven themselves to be the stronger sex, and take great pleasure in nurturing their husbands and children.

You rate an "A" for having the courage to identify yourself, but you'll never win a popularity contest as long as women are in the majority.

Will drug cause side effects?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from temporal arteritis. My doctor gave me prednisone because of loss of eyesight and he will not take me off it because of this. Since I cannot sleep with the prednisone, he placed me on Ativan. Are the side effects of this medication dangerous and is he on the right track?

DEAR READER: Temporal arteritis is a serious affliction of unknown cause that leads to headache and, sometimes, loss of vision. The arteritis is marked by inflammation of the temporal artery (located in the area of the temple), with resulting circulatory disturbances to the eye and other structures. The diagnosis is made by blood tests and biopsy.

Prednisone, a form of cortisone, is the most successful treatment. However, despite its side effects (such as osteoporosis and diabetes), the drug must be administered for months, even years, to prevent blindness.

I believe that your doctor is on the right track. Obviously, he will want to prescribe the smallest amounts of medicine possible and wean you from the drug once the acute signs of inflammation (pain and visual disturbances) have subsided.

Prednisone does not ordinarily cause insomnia. However, your physician made a wise choice to give you Ativan, an anti-anxiety medication that may aid sleep.

Follow your doctor's advice. For all practical purposes, Ativan has no side effects when used as a sleep aid.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have an arthritic calcium growth on the second vertebrae up from the base of my spine. I have severe pain in my lower back and upper legs. Pain killers don't stop the pain. Would it be beneficial to receive chiropractic treatment?

DEAR READER: Possibly. Calcium deposits may cause pain primarily by initiating muscle cramps and spasm that can be relieved by chiropractic manipulation.

In contrast, some calcium deposits can actually press on nerves, causing discomfort that cannot be cured by chiropractic therapy.

I see no reason why you should not try a chiropractor and if, after about two weeks, your pain has not subsided, then see an orthopedic surgeon for more definitive treatment, such as removal of the calcium spurs.

I should add that arthritic changes in the neck seldom cause pain in the lower back or legs. Such pain is usually the consequence of abnormalities (such as a herniated disc) in the lower spine.

Therefore, along with addressing your neck problem, you and your doctors should also pay attention to the lower spine, where something else may be awry. X-rays and an MRI of the area may solve the puzzle and enable you to receive therapy that is appropriate for your condition.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.
