Golden Corral to open

Snyder will soon be gaining a new "family oriented" eating establishment as the nationwide chain of Golden Corral Family Steak House opens a local restaurant.

A building permit for the new business was issued this week by the city. Dirt work on the building site — to be located between Anthony's and the Varsity Square shopping center adjacent to College Ave. — is expected to begin soon.

Once construction is begun, the building is expected to be completed within 60 to 90 days.

The specialty of the Golden Corral chain is steaks, although the menu includes also shrimp and chicken dishes.

The local restaurant will seat up to 190 persons and will feature a glass-fronted solarium at each end. The floor area will entail some 5,200 sq. ft. with almost 3,100 sq. ft. used for the dining area.

Joan Beaman, a company spokesman based in Raleigh, N.C., said a local manager has not been named as yet, but the company prefers to hire a local individual who would then undergo company training.

The total staff should entail some 30 persons. The restaurant will be open seven days a week. The operation will be from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday. On Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the closing would be moved to 11 p.m.

The chain has been in operation since 1973 and currently operates approximately 400 stores throughout the U.S.

The closest Golden Corral restaurant to Snyder is located in Big Spring.

Beaman said the firm is known for its moderately priced meals. A salad bar is featured also.

Ask Us

Q. — In viewing WTC's 13 percent budget reduction, what steps are being taken to cut the City of Snyder and Snyder ISD budgets?

A. — Both budgets are now under study by the staff of both the city and school. Their proposals have not been made public as yet since open session budget studies haven't begun. The school has a three-day budget session set June 24-26 and the city indicates it will begin budget sessions in July.

UIL official says legal tangle might scrap 4A playoffs

As the rest of the classes conclude their playoffs with championships today, the prospects for scheduling the postponed 4A tournament soon seemed more and more remote.

A hearing on the latest in a flurry of suits was scheduled today, with five teams waiting to find out who and when they will play.

Teams involved are Waco Richfield, Austin Westlake, Mercedes, Snyder and Brenham.

Snyder and Brenham are the only two which have not filed some sort of suit.

University Interscholastic League athletic director Dr. Bill Farney was quoted as saying that if the delay lasts too long, the 4A tournament would be scrapped.

Late Wednesday night, State District Judge Homer Salinas in Edinburg ruled that the games could not begin until Friday afternoon but would be held no later than 8 p.m. the following Friday.

Education cuts termed 'not feasible'

AUSTIN (AP) — Board of Education Chairman Jon Brumley looked at what budget cuts could do to Texas public schools and then started talking about taxes.

The board on Thursday looked at calculations based on 10 percent and 20 percent state budget cuts. The Legislative Budget Board and Gov. Mark White's office, faced with gloomy economic forecasts, have asked all state agencies to prepare such projections.

To make up for a 10 percent cut in state funds, local school districts would have to either raise property taxes by an average of 9.9 percent, eliminate 23,557 employees or cut salaries by an annual average of $1,212, according to the Texas Education Agency report.

To make up for a 20 percent cut, districts would have to either increase by an average of 19.8 percent, cut 47,146 employees or drop salaries by an annual average of $2,424.

Brumley said all the alternatives seem unreasonable. He said the property tax hikes are prohibitive.

"It's not clear to me that it would have to come from property tax. I suppose it come come from a sales tax," he said.

Of the employee cuts, Brumley said, "The districts just don't have that many extra people now."

At a time when state leaders are calling on agencies to spend less, the schools need more, he said.

"Education in this state needs to go forward. If we start cutting back on education at this time, then we're hurting the long-range plans of this state. I don't think we can afford to cut education at this time," Brumley said.

A 10 percent cut in school spending would add up to $500 million. A 20 percent cut would total $1 billion.

"A 20 percent cut would take away most of the good, if not all of the good, that we've already tried to accomplish. I don't think 10 percent would work either," Brumley said.

The board will act on a budget proposal at its July meeting.

The 10 percent cuts would force massive property tax hikes in some districts, according to the report. Many of the increases would be far above the 8 percent hike that can trigger a tax rollback election.

Here are examples of some of the larger property tax hikes that would be required by a 10 percent state education fund cuts:

Program targets busy housewives for college credit

Editor's Note: This issue begins the first of two articles related to a Western Texas College program aimed at proving to busy housewives they can also succeed at the college level.)

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

This past semester, Western Texas College officials encouraged women who were already functioning as wives and mothers to take on a new role — college student.

The director for this effort now calls the first term of the New Women's Program a success, and notes some of the 31 women who had their first taste of college study are looking toward completing their associate degree now.

Pat Blakeley, program director, has nothing but praise for the women who completed the twice weekly applied psychology course, which emphasized family living.

"We were so happy that 31 stayed with it," she said. "That they did so in spite of the obstacles was tremendous. Nineteens year-olds have no idea what it is like to try to go to school and be a wife and mother at the same time."

In all, 41 women signed up for the course--taught by Dan Osborn--at the beginning of the spring semster. Ten dropped out for various reasons.

The new program is being funded through a federal grant and is an outgrowth of the Image program which offered moral support to older women going to college.

In addition to tuititon costs, child care is available for the student-mothers while they attend class.

Bank franchise tax paid to four entities

The state's franchise tax on banks returned more than $49,000 to the four Snyder-based taxing entities recently.

The legislature in 1984 brought banks under the franchise tax for the first time and allocated receipts from the tax to cities, counties, school districts and other local taxing units where the banks are located.

Banks are taxed at the same rate as other Texas corporations. Previously, bank stocks were subject to local property taxes.

The legislature exempted the stocks from property taxes, substituting the new bank franchise tax. Collections are prorated among local taxing units based on their tax rates.

With the recent return, the district forming Western Texas College received a higher than normal return due to an underpayment received earlier.

This underpayment resulted due to a too low tax rate used to figure the return.

The amount of money paid to the four local entities totaled $49,730. The payment by entity was:

—WTC..... $21,316.
—Snyder ISD..... $15,386.
—City..... $7,735.
—County..... $5,293.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Stephen Henry, in the Levelland News-Press, reprinted a letter that Octave Broussard had written to the Secretary of Agriculture.

"Dear Secretary,

"My friend Bordeau over in Terrabonne Parich, received a $1,000 check from the Government this year for not raising hogs. So I am going into the not raising hogs business next year.

"What I want to know is, in your opinion, what is the best kind of hogs not to raise? I would prefer not to raise razorbacks, but if that is not a good breed not to raise, I will glady not raise Berkshires or Durocks.

"The hardest work in this business is going to be in keeping an inventory on how many hogs I haven't raised. My friend Bordeau is very joyful about the future of this business. He has been raising hogs for more than 20 years and the best he ever made was $400 until this year when he got $1,000 for not raising hogs.

"If I can get $1,000 for not raising 50 hogs, then I will get $2,000 for not raising 100 hogs.

"I plan to operate on a small scale at first, holding myself down to about 4,000 hogs, which means I will have $80,000.

"Now another thing: These hogs I will not be raising will not eat 100,000 bushels of corn. I understand you pay for not raising corn. So will you pay me anything for not raising 100,000 bushels of corn to to feed the hogs I am not raising?

"I may get started as soon as possible as this seems to be a good time of the year for not raising hogs.

"P.S. Can I raise 10 or 12 hogs on the side while I am in the not raising hogs business--just enough to get a few sides of bacon?"

Subcommittee cuts Reagan request

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's "Star Wars" budget request has been reduced by a Senate panel that normally is friendly to the controversial research program, congressional sources say.

In the first major defense budget vote of the year, the Senate Armed Services strategic and theater nuclear forces subcommittee voted 6-5 late Thursday to reduce Reagan's Star Wars budget request by more than 10 percent, said congressional sources speaking only on condition of anonymity.

For the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, Reagan had sought $4.8 billion in Pentagon spending and another $600 million in related Energy Department spending for the program formally known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Republican-controlled subcommittee, meeting in closed session, reduced the SDI Pentagon budget to $4.2 billion and cut the Energy Department request to $400 million, the sources said. The current SDI budget is $2.7 billion.

The SDI budget faces more attempts to cut it when the Pentagon budget reaches the Senate floor later this summer.

During the four years since Reagan announced the program and said it should be aimed at trying to develop a high-tech shield against missiles, the subcommittee has strongly supported SDI. In addition, the parent Armed Services Committee is traditionally the most friendly to the Pentagon.

Last month, 46 senators signed a letter to the Armed Services Committee, asking the panel to limit next year's SDI increase to 3 percent, which is the expected inflation level used by Pentagon budget analysts. Reagan wants a 77 percent hike.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes responded to the letter by saying, "We hope this is not the course that Congress will take in acting upon our budget request."

The administration has made Star Wars one of its top defense priorities.

The Senate subcommittee also voted Thursday to halve — from $1.4 billion to $700 million — Reagan's request for the new long-range nuclear-tipped missile known as "Midgetman," the sources said.

The weapon was designed as a successor to the troubled MX nuclear weapon and is scheduled to move into full scale development in fiscal 1987. Deployment of the weapon has been tentatively scheduled for 1992, although no basing mode has been approved by the Pentagon.

The subcommittee votes on SDI and Midgetman came as the panel finished writing its portion of the bill authorizing the Pentagon budget for the next fiscal year. Other Armed Services subcommittees also met in closed sessions this week, and the full committee will work on the bill next week.

Whatever finally passes the Republican-run Senate will have to be reconciled with the budget bill that comes out of the Democratic-controlled House, where the Armed Services Committee has not yet begun writing its bill.

Texas Co. pays $100,000 fine due to pipeline explosion

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Texas gas-pipeline company involved in three explosions in 10 months in Kentucky has paid a $100,000 fine and agreed to inspect and renovate its pipelines in the state, federal officials say.

The fine was officially levied against Texas Eastern Gas Pipeline Co. on Thursday for not repairing a corroded section of pipe that ruptured Feb. 21 in Garrard County, injuring six people.

It is the largest fine in the 16-year history of the U.S. Department of Transportation's Office of Pipeline Safety, a spokesman said.

The other two explosions involved parallel Texas Eastern pipelines that cross Kentucky on their way from the Gulf of Mexico to Northern states. Five people died after one exploded in Metcalfe County in April 1985. Three people were injured in a blast in Fleming County last October. The federal agency has not yet decided whether to take any action against the company for those accidents.

The Houston-based company has not admitted liability in the Garrard County case, but it has formally agreed to ensure the safety of its lines and has already paid the fine, said a Transportation Department attorney.

"Texas Eastern admitted that tests done months before the explosion showed a need for immediate attention. Repairs were not done because the inspection report was accidently not processed, the company said.

Despite the fine and two other citations for the Garrard County explosion, the Transportation Department does not believe the company acted deliberately or maliciously, said Jim Thomas, executive director of the Office of Pipeline Safety.

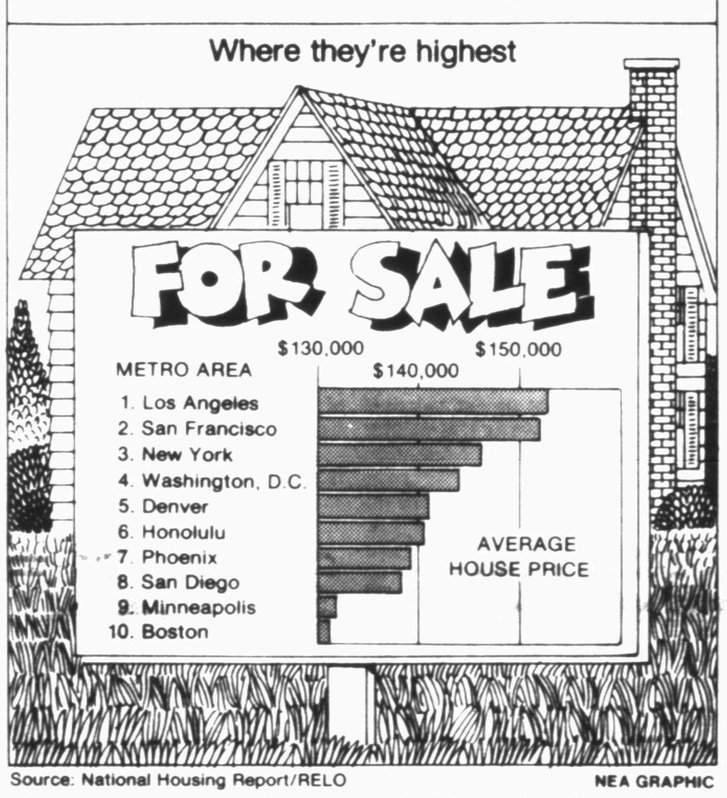

"Certainly it was inadvertent ... They have nothing to gain and everything to lose by having accidents," he said.

Transportation officials are still investigating all three explosions, Thomas said, and a task force from his office is evaluating Texas Eastern's pipelines in other states.

A spokesman for Texas Eastern refused to comment Thursday on the consent order.

Effects of niacin overuse

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What are the consequences of taking too much niacin?

DEAR READER — Niacin is a naturally occurring vitamin that prevents the deficiency state called pellagra, characterized by rough skin, diarrhea and mental changes that include irritability, memory loss, headaches and emotional irritability. The recommended daily allowance of niacin is 15 to 20 milligrams per day. Too much can cause flushing and palpitations.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My wife and I have been trying for years to have children, with no success. The doctor says it is because I have a low sperm count. I was not circumcised, and my mother says that could be the reason. Do you agree?

DEAR READER — No, I do not. Circumcision is not related to fertility. Your low sperm count, the probable cause of your difficulty, is a separate issue. I suggest that you be examined by a urologist to determine if there is a treatment that could improve the count. For example, you may have a low hormone level that can be treated, or you may have a varicocele — a type of varicose vein in the scrotum — that could contribute to infertility.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am taking three lecithin capsules daily. Is this enough to reduce my cholesterol level?

DEAR READER — There is no scientific evidence to support the claim that lecithin capsules reduce blood cholesterol. A more appropriate approach would be for you to eliminate animal fat and dairy products from your diet.

To give you more information, I am sending your a free copy of my Health Report titled UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 plus their name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband is 76. Early this year, he accidentally put his hands into some high-nitrogen fertilizer that had gotten damp. His hands were burned pretty badly. Then he broke into red blotches all over. The dermatologist said he had psoriasis and eczema and put him on prednisone. His sores heal up then break out again. Now the family doctor wants to do a liver biopsy. Both my husband and I feel that the nitrogen got into his bloodstream, but the doctors all scoff at this. Should I take him to a burn center? We are really concerned.

DEAR READER — Caustic burns from commercial fertilizer can sometimes cause skin rash and chronic allergic skin reactions. The affected areas can often resemble psoriasis or eczema. I believe it is more likely that the fertilizer affected his skin, rather than actually entering his body. I doubt that a burn center would be an appropriate place for your husband to seek help. I think the doctors in a dermatology clinic of a university hospital would be able to pinpoint the problem and suggest treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A beauty-salon operator said that the reason I'm losing so much hair and am getting shriveled skin is because I take 4000 milligrams of Encaprin daily. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Encaprin is basically aspirin. You are taking a high dose. I am not aware that aspirin causes hair loss; perhaps your thinning hair is a complication of the disease for which you are using Encaprin. Ask your doctor if you could, as a test, take another medicine — like acetaminophen — to see if your hair growth improves. You could be having a reaction to Encaprin, although I believe that is unlikely.

Texas executive slaying deliberate

NEW YORK (AP) — A company executive fatally shot inside his Waldorf-Astoria room apparently was the victim of a "deliberate and planned" attack by a gunman who used pillows to muffle the shot, police say.

Gary Ebsworth, 27, of Houston, was shot in the back of the head early Wednesday. Police say they still have no motive or suspect in the "execution-style" slaying.

Joiner earns art citations

Myrtle Joiner won two citations in the Lubbock Art Association's annual "Art Classic." The paintings, "Queen Anne's Lace" and "Is Anyone Home?" are watercolors.

The show will remain on display through June 30 at the Garden and Arts Center in Lubbock.

Joiner's watercolor painting "A Day at the Beach" was chosen for the circuit show to be displayed in a public building in Lubbock for one month.

Joiner has been a member of Snyder Palette Club for the past 10 years. She is also a member of Lubbock Art Association, West Texas Watercolor Society, and the Watercolor West Society.

BEAUTY BRIEFS

Plastic surgery

Expansion of knowledge in plastic surgery is leading to specialization in the field, according to the American Academy of Facial Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery, whose members must be certified by the American Board of Medical Specialists.

New techniques include the use of permanent pigmentation, bone work to augment facial structure and the use of skin flaps from the face itself in reconstructing lip or facial surgery scars.

According to the AAFPRS, practice of general plastic surgery is rapidly being displaced by specialization, offering greater expertise to patients.

Your Birthday
June 14, 1986

The good seeds you have sown in the past have taken root and sprouted. The year ahead represents a time of harvest for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your thoughts on commercial matters are likely to be more astute early in the day than they will be in the afternoon. Time isn't your ally. Is there romance in your future? To find out what's in store for you, get your Astro-Graph predictions for the year following your birthday. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra attentive today if someone gives you instructions on operating unfamiliar equipment. Don't pretend you understand if you don't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Broad swings are a possibility today where your finances are concerned. You have the potential to turn a profit as well as suffer a loss.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be tolerant and understanding of an infraction by an outsider today, but should a family member do the same thing, you'll come down on him or her rather heavily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A person in a position to do you a favor will agree to do so today. But he or she may put so many strings on it that it might not be worth it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Stay away from cliques today where the members are more concerned with what you have than with what you are. Stick to your true-blue pals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your ideas will win the approval of others today, but you might not know when to stop selling. If you keep pushing, their yes could turn into a no.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be a fun person to be around today if others are in accord with your ideas. But if you encounter any opposition, you could get very testy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You must be constantly vigilant in conducting your commercial affairs today. If you get indifferent or careless, you could lose what you gained.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be selective regarding who you go to for advice today. Suggestions from a new acquaintance could turn out to be fool's gold instead of precious metal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The little you do today you will do well. But the problem is that you might complete only half of a project that you started so enthusiastically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A well-intended friend who frequently gets involved in foolish ventures may tempt you into taking a plunge with him today. Do nothing impulsively.

Gramm measure to limit governors

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, taking to heart complaints by the Reagan administration, is pushing legislation to reduce the authority of state governors over their National Guard units.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said Thursday the committee will debate an amendment of his next week that would preclude governors from barring guard training assignments overseas.

The senator said he is offering the amendment to the Pentagon's fiscal 1987 budget authorization bill. Gramm said he had already received an endorsement for his proposal from Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the committee.

The Texas Republican's decision to pursue legislation follows an about-face on the issue by the Reagan administration in late April.

James Webb, the assistant defense secretary for reserve affairs, had disclosed he was working on legislation similar to that of Gramm's at the request of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

That disclosure prompted immediate criticism by a host of governors, leading to an announcement by Webb a week later that he was dropping plans to submit legislation.

Nonetheless, Webb has continued to express displeasure about the decisions of a handful of governors to block training assignments for their National Guard units to Central America. Such moves undercut American foreign policy and prevent the Defense Department from relying on the military capabilities of the guard, Webb contends.

Gramm said Thursday he had informed the Pentagon of his decision to pursue the matter but had not asked the administration for its support.

"This is primarily a committee initiative," Gramm said. "This would in no way take away from a governor's right to call up the guard for state purposes. It simply says that any training of the guard conducted outside the United States shall be conducted (with the guardsmen) in active federal service."

The language has been drafted to remove the current authority of state governors to block overseas training assignments, Gramm added.

These "weekend soldiers" are available to a governor for call-up during local emergencies and cannot be sent outside the United States for training without the concurrence of their governor.

"Politics has entered into decisions concerning training, especially in places like Honduras," Gramm said. "We are investing very heavily in the guard and reserves with new equipment and training. We are increasingly dependent on the guard as part of our front-line defense and we cannot have a governor for political reasons making decisions about whether we can engage in training overseas.

"We have invested so heavily in the guard that we have to have realistic traiing. And Honduras has produced some of the best training the guard has ever had."

The governors of seven states have either publicly criticized guard assignments to Honduras or vowed to deny permission for their guardsmen to travel to Honduras if asked. The states are Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, Washington, Kansas, Arizona, and New York.

Of those states, only Maine had a guard unit the Pentagon wanted to send to Central America for training this year.

Graduation brings summit memories

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Most of the high school seniors who will hear President Reagan's commencement address next week weren't born when President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet leader Alexei Kosygin met here 19 years ago.

When Reagan announced his plans for the visit on Thursday — "It will be my first high school graduation in quite some time," the 75-year-old president said — the community was already abuzz with rumors of a second visit from a chief executive.

Memories of the two-day summit of Johnson and Kosygin June 23-24, 1967, after the Arab-Israeli Six Day War are still strong. "Summit City" signs dot the town and an oil painting of the summit site hangs in town hall.

Glenn Esgro, president of Glassboro High School student government, said he grew up in a house full of pictures of the summit, where his father worked on the security detail.

He said it made sense for Reagan to choose Glassboro for a commencement speech "because of what the town's noted for. It's a honor that cannot be believed."

"It's a weird feeling. You feel this pride inside of you ... pride for the school," said Adam Johnson, 18. "It's something I can tell my grandchildren about."

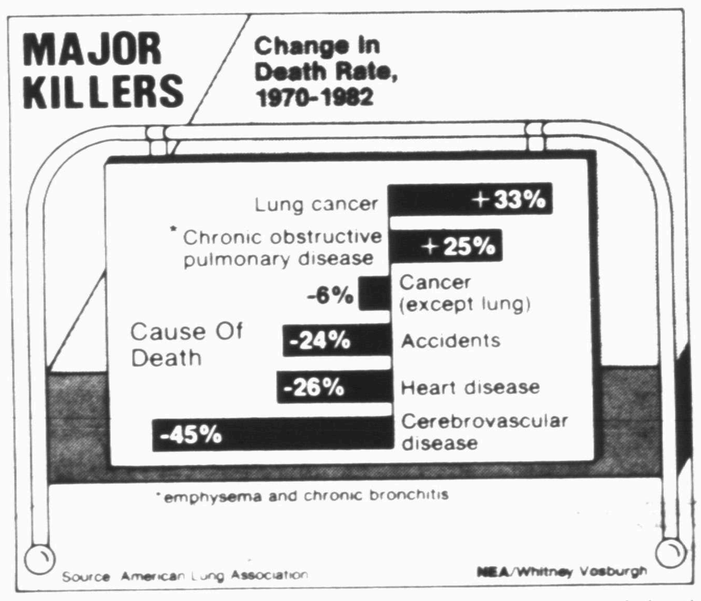

Residents of the town about 25 miles south of Philadelphia recalled Thursday how Glassboro's first presidential visit materialized overnight.

Kosygin was in the United States to address the United Nations after the Six Day War. He and Johnson wanted to meet, but they couldn't agree on a site, said Robert Bole, a retired Glassboro State College dean and author of "Summit at Holly Bush."

Then-New Jersey Gov. Richard Hughes, a friend of Johnson, suggested Glassboro — halfway between Washington and New York — and the leaders agreed to meet at Holly Bush, a 19th century villa that serves as home to the college president.

The decision was made on a Thursday, with the world leaders to arrive at 10 a.m. Friday.

"It was a night people will always remember," said Warren Layton, assistant to Glassboro Mayor William Dalton.

The death rates for lung cancer and lung disease have increased sharply while those for other major causes of fatalities have declined.

'Conan' dies while molting

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Conan, a giant, aged lobster that almost became a prize dinner last month, died while molting at Sea-Arama's Marineworld, a spokeswoman said Thursday.

The 22-pound lobster, estimated to be 154 years old, died either late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, said Gini Brown.

Conan was molting, a process that occurs every two to five years and is stressful, she said.

"He just didn't make it," Ms. Brown said. "Everything that's happened to him has been stressful. But the molting process just capped it off."

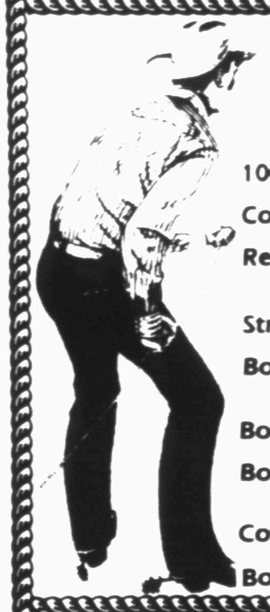

A Red Lobster restaurant in Mesquite had given the lobster to a Dallas-area family as a prize.

"There was kind of a campaign to save the lobster and then we offered him a home," Ms. Brown said. The family agreed not to eat the crustacean.

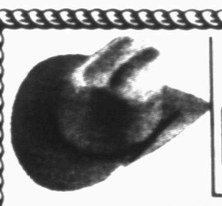

Conan, a popular attraction at Sea-Arama, will be buried Friday on the grounds, she said. He arrived at Sea-Arama last month.

Amendments fall by wayside

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, moving toward passing radical tax overhaul legislation intact, is ducking tough decisions on billions of dollars worth of major provisions and leaving them to congressional negotiators to resolve.

Senators today were debating an amendment offered by Sens. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Robert Kasten, R-Wis., that would restore the deduction for charitable contributions for people who do not itemize their deductions.

The writeoff is due to expire at the end of the year, and the bill would not continue the deduction that was claimed on 22.5 million tax returns filed in 1984.

However, that amendment, like all the rest offered this week to restore various tax breaks, was expected to fail.

Slowly but surely, supporters of the tax plan have been able to fend off all major amendments.

But while the legislation appears to be moving easily toward Senate passage — possibly by sometime next week — legislators are making clear that they never want some of the major provisions in the landmark plan to become law.

For example, on Thursday the Senate voted 76-21 in favor of a non-binding resolution endorsing continued full deduction of sales taxes, leaving the final decision on that issue to congressional negotiators who will draft a compromise version of what the House and Senate have passed.

Sens. Daniel J. Evans, R-Wash., and Phil Gramm, R-Texas, proposed an amendment to allow taxpayers to choose between deducting their income taxes or their state sales taxes from their federal income taxes, which would cost about $17 billion more over five years than the House bill passed late last year.

Evans and Gramm proposed to pay for the change by eliminating a "loophole" in the Senate bill's treatment of consumer interest.

Under the bill, consumer interest — such as on a car loan — could not be deducted.

But mortgage interest on one or two homes could be deducted. There is nothing in the bill to prevent getting a second or third mortgage on a home and using the money to buy a boat or car, and then deducting the interest.

Evans finally withdrew his amendment in favor of the non-binding resolution, leaving the consumer interest loophole in the bill that the Senate will pass.

"This ... simply cannot become the law of the land," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. "It is unworkable, an invitation to massive evasion. ... This is a rotten hole in a very pretty apple."

The Senate made a similar decision Wednesday when it voted in favor of another non-binding resolution expressing support for tax-deductable Individual Retirement Accounts, which would be severely restricted under the Senate bill but would be continued by the House bill. The Senate resolution would leave it up to the congressional negotiators to figure out what to do.

In other Senate action on the tax bill, legislators voted 77-20 to reject a plan to drop a special break for the oil industry.

Woman accused

DALLAS (AP) — A cleaning woman at a Neiman-Marcus store has been charged with stealing 343 dresses worth $686,000 during the past year, authorities said.

Police said the dresses, worth about $2,000 each, were stolen at a rate of up to four a week since June 1985 and sold to an accomplice for resale.

Diane Hunt, 32, and Glenn Allen Baccus, 30, both of Dallas, were arrested Wednesday, authorities said. Ms. Hunt was released after posting $1,500 bond and Baccus was released after posting $2,500 bond, officials said Thursday.

Neiman-Marcus officials last month began surveillance of Ms. Hunt, who worked during store hours in the housekeeping department, after receiving a tip that she was taking the dresses, a store spokeswoman told the Dallas Morning News.

Store officials declined to say how the woman got the dresses past the security system.

In August, a buyer at the downtown store and another woman were arrested on felony theft charges in connection with the disappearance of about $531,000 worth of women's clothing.

During World War II, nearly 120,000 Americans citizens and alien residents of Japanese ancestry were uprooted from their homes, farms, and businesses and transported to internment camps

House panel wants continued compliance....

Reagan wants to end SALT treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says it is time to end compliance with the unratified SALT II arms control treaty and "try to replace it with a better deal," but a House committee wants him to stay within the pact's nuclear weapons limits.

Reagan's statement, ending a day of confusion over the administration's position on the 1979 pact, came Thursday as the president sat around his Cabinet table with a group of high school students.

"We are proposing to reduce U.S. and Soviet nuclear arms to an equal and verifiable level, and it is in the interest of both the Soviet Union and the United States to do this," he said in an opening statement.

"If the Soviets will agree, we can get started on this right now," he told the youths, who will visit Western Europe and the Soviet Union as unofficial ambassadors this summer.

Reporters, admitted to the meeting, asked the president about his comments. He said the "treaty has never been ratified — that it has now gone beyond the time for which it was designed, which they (the Soviets) have never observed — have been violating since its inception — to replace that with a legitimate arms reduction treaty," Reagan said.

Asked whether this meant that the SALT II treaty was dead, Reagan said, "We're going to try to replace it with a better deal."

The Democratic-controlled House Foreign Affairs Committee, however, expressed just the opposite sentiment Thursday.

By a 29-11, mostly party line vote, the panel approved a non-biding resolution calling on the president to "continue to adhere to the numerical sublimits of the SALT agreements as long as the Soviet Union does likewise."

The document also said the "constraints on the growth of Soviet nuclear forces, especially those involving numerical sublimits, imposed by the SALT arms control agreements serve vital United States national security interests, especially in this time of fiscal austerity."

Reagan's remarks at his Wednesday news conference had sown new confusion about his May 27 decision to retire two missile-bearing submarines, thus remaining in compliance with the SALT II limits, while also declaring that the United States no longer regarded itself as bound by the treaty because the Soviets were not adhering to it.

As part of that announcement, the president noted that the planned addition of a B-52 armed with cruise missiles later this year would push the United States over the SALT limits.

At his news conference, Reagan was asked, "What's to replace SALT at this point, and why make this decision now?"

"Didn't make it now," he replied. "I said we've got several months here in which we're going to try to involve them in .... a definite arms reduction program."

Later, he was asked, "Exactly what are you going to do on SALT" and replied that "we've got several months before we reach that point. ... And if nothing is done, then we'll make the decision with regard to that plane."

GSU takes millions in decrease

AUSTIN (AP) — Gulf States Utilities will take a revenue cut in Texas of $125 million from its original rate request, Public Utility Commission officials said Thursday.

Bo Byers, PUC information director, said both sides reached agreement on a stipulation that will be presented to the PUC for approval and a final order.

GSU originally asked for a rate increase of $133.4 million in Texas revenue.

Of the agreed decrease, $80 million will be in base rates.

For residential customers the decrease in basic rates will mean a $61.3 million reduction.

Byers said that on the basis of 100 kilowatt hours the reduction would mean a monthly bill of $67.67, compared with an average in April, May and June last year of $82.09.

A hearing examiner will issue her findings on the agreement before it goes to the commission for a final order.

Ask The Preacher

"...about the 'cardinal doctrines' of Christianity".

I've heard this term "cardinal doctrines" used by different preachers, and I've also read it in commentaries and religious books of various kinds. Here's what it means.

The word "cardinal" (no, it doesn't mean 'redbird'), as used here, means "main, chief or primary."

Thus, the "cardinal doctrines" of Christianity would be the main, chief or primary TEACHINGS of the Christian religion.

What ARE those teachings?

Well, they are the teachings about Jesus Christ. His identity and importance and what He has done for mankind. The great doctrines of Christianity are also the great proofs of Jesus' deity, or divinity. They include the incarnation (or virgin birth), the substitutionary death, the resurrection, the ascension and the second coming of Jesus.

True Christianity is completely wrapped up in the identity and person of Jesus Christ, and, because of that, Christianity's chief doctrines concern themselves with that all-important figure.

4A TOURNEY HELD UP

Salinas' ruling was responding to an injunction filed by Mercedes.

Meanwhile, a judge was asked Thursday to hold UIL director Bailey Marshall in contempt of court for not rescheduling a Class 4A baseball series between Richfield and Westlake.

Lawyers for Waco Richfield asked State District Judge Bill Logue to penalize Marshall for not following Wednesday's temporary restraining order blocking the 4A playoffs until Austin Westlake and Waco Richfield complete a best two-of-three series.

The series was rained out last week after Westlake won the first game 4-3.

In Austin, State District Judge Juan Gallardo had also issued an order — blocking the 4A playoffs unless Westlake is allowed to participate.

Before the court intervention, Westlake was scheduled to play Mercedes in one semifinal game, with the winner playing for the 4A championship against the winner of a game between Brenham and Snyder. After the rainout, the last two scheduled games of the Westlake-Richfield series were canceled and Westlake was declared the winner.

After an appeal to the UIL failed, the Waco Independent School District field suit and received a temporary restraining order requiring the UIL to let the teams complete the three-game series before the state tournament begins.

A hearing on Westlake's restraining order will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in State District Court Judge Juan Gallardo's court.

Thursday, however, the Waco Independent School District filed another motion in Logue's court to have a hearing at 10 a.m. today to ask for another temporary restraining order that would prevent Gallardo from acting on the case.

Meanwile, the UIL filed notice that it would appeal Logue's Wednesday order to the 10th Court of Appeals in Waco, hoping for an accelerated hearing.

Yankees outlast three-belt attack by Orioles' Beniquez

by The Associated Press

This time, the New York Yankees were able to withstand three home runs by a Baltimore player.

Juan Beniquez homered three times Thursday night - the second time within a week an Oriole has done that against the Yankees - but New York still emerged with a 7-5 victory.

"When you hit like that, you expect to win," said Beniquez, who entered the game with one home run this season.

Don Mattingly hit a two-run homer in the first inning and lined an RBI double in the seventh that broke a 5-5 tie. Dave Winfield, who robbed Lee Lacy of a two-run homer with a fifth-inning catch in right field, singled home an insurance run in the ninth.

Last Sunday, Lacy hit three home runs to highlight Baltimore's 18-9 victory at Yankee Stadium.

In other American League games, Toronto beat Detroit 9-0 in a game called in the seventh inning because of rain, Chicago rallied past Seattle 8-4 and California edged Kansas City 3-2. The Milwaukee at Boston game was rained out.

Blue Jays 9, Tigers 0

Kelly Gruber's routine fly ball disappeared into a thick fog and wound up as an inside-the-park, three-run homer in bottom of the seventh inning in a game called 35 minutes later because of rain.

Gruber, who was in an 0-for-26 slump, had three hits. He came to the plate in the seventh with two outs and runners on second and third and lofted a fly to center field.

Center fielder Pat Sheridan appeared to see the ball, but did not move and it landed behind him. By the time right fielder Kirk Gibson retrieved the ball near the fence in right-center, Gruber had circled the bases with his third homer.

Home plate umpire Dave Phillips waved the players off the field after the home run, and the game was called 35 minutes later.

White Sox 8, Mariners 4

John Cangelosi singled home the tying run with two outs in the ninth inning, Carlton Fisk hit a two-run double and Harold Baines followed with a two-run homer as Chicago rallied for five runs to beat Seattle.

Seattle starter Jim Beattie, making his first appearance in nine months, allowed only three singles in pitching seven shutout innings. Beattie, who underwent rotator cuff surgery last August, did not walk a batter and struck out three.

Angels 3, Royals 2

Mike Witt held Kansas City hitless for five innings and finished with a six-hitter that led California over the Royals.

Witt, 7-4, struck out nine batters for the third time this season.

He walked three.

Archer City walks to finals of state baseball tournament

AUSTIN (AP) - Salado and Archer City met in a Class A semifinal game of the Texas high school baseball tournament, and the good news for Salado was that it jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning and three of its pitchers combined to shut Archer City down on only one hit for the contest.

The bad news was that Salado's pitchers also issued 24 bases on balls, as Archer City "walked" to a 14-9 victory in the Thursday morning battle, winning the right to meet defending state champion Colmesneil in today's 9:30 a.m. title match.

Colmesneil ran its record to 27-0 by beating Gorman, 3-2, in its semifinal game.

In other semifinals matches in the University Interscholastic League competition:

- Houston Bellaire (28-4) and Round Rock Westwood (31-6) battled their way into today's 7:30 p.m. Class 5A finals. Bellaire held off a late challenge by defending state champ Victoria Stroman for a 6-5 victory, and Westwood eliminated Arlington, 2-0.

- Prairiland (29-1) and Brownfield (24-6) won berths in today's 3 p.m. Class 3A championship match. Prairiland's Scott Scudder, a first-round draft choice of the Cincinnati Reds this year, struck out 10 on the way to an 8-6 victory over Medina Valley, while Brownfield's Martin Fonseca scored on a passed ball with two out in the seventh inning to give the Cubs a 7-6 victory over Sealy.

- Riviera Kaufer (26-5) and Frankston (23-2) earned positions in today's 11:30 a.m. Class 2A title match. Kaufer, the defending state champion, blanked New Diana 3-0 Thursday and Frankston rallied from an early deficit to beat Coppell 6-5 in extra innings.

The Class 4A state tournament was on hold, pending disposition of a flurry of lawsuits. When the courts get through, either Austin Westlake or Waco Richfield will play Mercedes in one semifinal, and Snyder will play Brenham in the other.

Third baseman Shane Weaver had Archer City's only hit, a line drive single to left centerfield with the bases loaded and two out in the sixth inning. At that time, Archer City already led 10-8 on 21 Salado walks.

Weaver's single scored the fifth run of the sixth inning, turning an 8-6 deficit into an 11-8 lead. Three more runs in the seventh - on walks, of course - iced Archer City's victory.

Three Salado pitchers tried to find the strike zone. Chris Fulford - who left the mound in the second inning and returned in the fifth - walked 12, Chris Bush walked eight and Donnie Jackson walked four. Fulford, the starter, was the loser.

Salado got nine hits and opened the game with four runs in the first inning, but Archer City freshman Nicky McCorkle relieved Tony Pollack with two outs in the first and pitched 6 1-3 innings for the victory. McCorkle gave up six hits, walked one and struck out two.

The great number of walks, almost certainly a tournament record, led to strange individual statistics. Archer City shortstop Gary Bates, who walked five times, showed up in the boxscore with no at-bats but scored three runs and was credited with two RBIs.

In addition to its 14 runs on one hit, Archer City left 10 runners on base in a seven-inning game that went on 3 hours and 8 minutes.

Stroman, trailing 4-1 through five innings, took the lead with a wild four-run sixth.

But Bellaire got RBI singles from Ben Austin and Fred Hinojosa to regain the lead 6-5 in the bottom of the inning. Reliever Dan Price snuffed a Stroman rally with two men on and no outs by striking out two batters.

"I'm getting too old for this. But all's well that ends well," said Bellaire coach Ray Knoblauch, who in his 25th year at the school is making his seventh trip to the state tournament.

Westwood's Wade Inman was all but perfect on the mound and at the plate. Westwood ace Wade Inman did it all for the Warriors, giving up just one hit, scoring the go-ahead run, and hitting a triple and two doubles.

Inman struck out five and took advantage of the spacious dimensions of Disch-Falk Field, normally the home field of the University of Texas. Arlington hit several balls hard, but balls that would have been homers in smaller parks were just long outs Thursday night.

Prairiland's Scudder improved his record to 18-0 while extending the Patriots' winning streak to 20 games. He also scored one run, hit a single and was credited with five RBIs.

Astros use rookie to clip Giants, 4-1

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston rookie pitcher Manny Hernandez and San Francisco Giants Manager Roger Craig had different interests in the baseballs used in a 4-1 victory by the Astros.

Hernandez, elated Thursday night after his first major league victory, wanted his teammates to autograph a game ball as a memento.

Craig was searching for scuff marks after accusing Astros reliever Dave Smith of cutting the balls after his game-ending strikeout of cleanup hitter Jeffrey Leonard.

Craig promises more inspections tonight when the Astros send former Craig pupil Mike Scott, the league's strikeout leader, against former Astro Mike LaCoss.

Houston catcher Mark Bailey hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Hernandez and relievers Aurelio Lopez and Smith quelled the Giants in a victory that boosted Houston's National League West lead to three games over the Giants. The remainer of the NL had the day off.

The hottest fireworks erupted following the game.

"Dave Smith is cutting the ball," Craig fumed. "How many times do you see Smith throw a fastball to a fastball hitter like Leonard?

"He'll (Smith) throw a split finger or a breaking ball. I could tell by the way the ball was moving he was cutting it."

Smith, who earned his a league-leading 16 saves, vehemently denied the charges.

"He'd (Leonard) been hanging back on my off-speed stuff so we decided to try him on a couple of fastballs outside," Smith said.

Craig responded: "I don't blame him, I'd deny it, too. Once a club has one guy that has some success with it, a lot of guys will start doing it."

LITTLE LEAGUE

Cardinals 10, Athletics 5

Tory Garza slammed two doubles and Adam Thornton added two singles as the Cardinals axed the Athletics in Little League play Thursday.

The Cards, 3-3, also turned in three singles, one each from Jason Warren, Chris Winter and Locadia Luera. David Patrick was the WP.

For the Athletics, 1-6, Eric West cranked out three singles; Jason Chapman two; and Lionel Aviles, Kyle Highfield, Tyson Cromeens and Brian Burton, one.

Cubs 5, Indians 3

Brian Crawford gave up just one hit on the mound as the Cubs edged the Indians Thursday.

Eric Braziel got the Indians' lone hit. The Indians are 2-4-1.

For the Cubs, 4-2, Brian Lickey punched a double and Bill Vestal and Wacey Parks knocked a single apiece.

FARM LEAGUE

Indians 17, Cardinals 16

The Cardinals scored nine runs over the final two innings but couldn't quite catch the Indians in this Farm League game played Thursday.

Hitting for the Indians, 1-5, were winning pitcher Israel Borrego, a double and a single, and Steve Owens and Casey Jones, a double each.

Hitting for the Cardinals, 2-4, were Harley Harper, a triple and a single; Josh Helms, two doubles and a single; Heath Freeman, two doubles; Salvador Castillio and Henry Elam, a double each; and Dexter Robbins and Greg Kitchens, one single each.

8-9 YEAR OLD LEAGUE

Mets 26, Cubs 3

Beau McLeon went wild with a home run, a triple, three doubles and a single while teammate John Clinkinbeard blasted two doubles and three singles and scored five times to launch the Mets past the Cubs in 8-9 Year Old League play.

Others getting hits for the Mets, 4-0-1, included Damian Medrano, a triple and four singles; Daniel Sanders, four singles; Phillip Ratliff, a triple and two singles; Tucker Collier, Glenn Lewis, Preston Smith and Richard Halford, two singles each; and Scott Williamson, Oliver Vasquez and Jason Jack, one single each.

Aaron Watson and Jason Stearmer, for the Cubs, hit three singles each; Scott Upton, two singles; and Brock Gard, Brandon Rollins and Timmy Clark, one single each.

Braves 17, Athletics 15

The Braves slugged 17 hits, including a home run by Brandon Hill, to defeat the Athletics Thursday.

Ricky Post and Richie Campbell got a triple and a single for the Braves, now 2-2, while Chris Goebel knocked a double and a single and Tyson Shifflett, Kevin Mueller and Daniel Holley powered two singles apiece. Also hitting for the Braves were Bryant Roberson, a double; and Jason York, Willie Collier and Wesley Mitchell, one single each.

Hitting for the A's, 3-1, were Wayne Braziel, two home runs; Jeremy Perkins, a home run, a double and a single; Tommy Torres, a triple, a double and a single; Daniel Fish, a triple and a double; Derek Freeman, a triple; Corey Chester, a double and a single; and Lindsey Gordy, two singles.

Pirates 26, Giants 11

Nathan Williams, Brad Smith and Chris Mills scored five runs apiece as the Pirates ransacked the Giants this week.

Hitting for the Pirates were Aaron McGuire, a triple and three singles; Mills, two doubles and three singles; Williams, Smith and Matt Remington, five singles each; Tommy Fish, three singles; Mike Navejar, a triple and a single; and Jason Crow, a single.

Getting hits for the Giants, 0-5, were Page Patterson, a double and three singles; Adam Orosco, three singles; Andra Thompson, a double and a single; Ben Wells, Brandon Wilson, Russell Schlegal and Neal McDonald, two singles each; and Jay Don Griffin, Josh Rambo, Juan Dominquez and Gabriel Rios, one single each.

Brooke Lowrance led the Bluebonnets' eight-hit attack with a home run and two singles. Cara Glasscock also hit two singles while Mandy Baker knocked a double and Paige Gayle and Danisha Ollison managed a single apiece.

It was the first loss of the season for the Bluebonnets, who are 6-1 now.

Lefty O'Doul, sometimes a part-time player and pinch-hitter, still had a lifetime batting average of .349 for 970 games in 11 seasons.

Baseball still the key topic when Robinson is around

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) - As a schoolboy living in the North Texas town of Paris, Eddie Robinson was intent on becoming a major league baseball player, even though his high school team didn't play baseball.

"I played football and basketball and came out for track because they needed bodies," he said.

He had to rely upon semi-pro ball to attract major league scouts.

"I got five bucks a game for playing semi-pro ball in Sulphur Springs one season, and I would hitchhike to and from the games," he said.

Robinson was in Sulphur Springs recently to speak at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club. Naturally, topping the day's menu was baseball conversation, covering his major league career that spanned 13 seasons with eight teams.

Although Robinson's batting credentials pale compared to some other Texas-bred major leaguers such as Rogers Hornsby, Tris Speaker, Frank Robinson, Ernie Banks and Eddie Mathews, he is knocking on the door of the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Although his career batting average was only .268, Robinson put together some red-letter days as a homerun hitter. The left-handed swinging first baseman hit the last of his 172 big league homers in 1957 as a member of the Cleveland Indians. Oddly enough, Robinson had hit his first round-tripper while wearing Cleveland flannels in 1946.

There were plenty of ups and downs in between for Robinson, whose career was interrupted by a stint in the Navy during World War II. A leg operation for removal of a tumor also slowed things.

Doctors told Robinson he would never play baseball again, he said, but he had different ideas.

His best years were with the Chicago White Sox, where he played under fellow Texan Paul Richards.

"Paul was the best manager I ever had, and I played under a lot of good managers," Robinson said, while reeling off such names as Bucky Harris, Jimmy Dykes and Casey Stengel. "Paul and I remained close friends through the years, and his death was a big loss in my life."

As one of the big sticks on the Chicago White Sox teams of the early 1950s, Robinson surpassed the 100 RBI mark for three straight seasons, beginning in 1951, when he banged 29 homers and drove in 117 runs. The 29 home runs stood as a club record for left-handed hitters until 1977, when Oscar Gamble hit 31 homers for the White Sox.

"I hit three home runs in a doubleheader against the Yankees that year before 85,000 fans in Cleveland," he recalled. "My second home run in the first game came in the 10th inning to win the game. My third homer came in the sixth inning of the second game to tie the score, and we went on to win the game, 2-1."

Another highlight came in the 1948 World Series, when he singled home the winning run in the sixth and deciding game against the Boston Braves. It was his only RBI in the series that fall.

Robinson also saw limited action for the New York Yankees in the 1955 series against Brooklyn. Robinson hit .348 in the series but had to settle for a runner-up's share, as the Dodgers won.

He appeared in four All-Star games and said he will never forget the 1953 game in Cincinnati, when he lined out to right field his first time at bat, "but the umpire had called time, so I got another swing and lined out to right field again."

Robinson played in an era that produced some of the game's greatest players - Ted Williams, Joe Dimaggio, and Mickey Mantle, to name a few. Scrappy Nellie Fox was Robinson's teammate on the White Sox.

"Nellie was a feisty player, and he didn't have a lot of ability," Robinson said. "He made himself into a great player, however. He had a weak arm, but (Joe) Gordon worked with him on the double play. Fox did not have great speed, but he became such an expert bunter that he beat out 17 bunts one season."

Robinson was a teammate of Mantle while with the Yankees in the mid-1950s.

"Mick was a quiet, shy country kid from Oklahoma who could hit the ball a country mile," Robinson said.

After bowing out as a player in 1957, Robinson hooked on with the Orioles as the club's farm director and director of player procurement. He became general manager of the Atlanta Braves in 1972, and four years later was named executive vice president of the Texas Rangers. Robinson now heads a baseball consulting firm in Arlington.

He works for the Houston Astros and the Minnesota Twins in this role.

"I get a lot of calls wanting my opinion on certain players when trade talk comes up," Robinson said. He also works on arbitration cases during the winter months.

"I don't see any end to the high salaries," he said. "The owners put themselves in a bad position, and the players are taking advantage of the rules that were legislated into the basic agreement."

Asked about his future plans, Robinson said, "I'll knock on wood, but I've never been out of baseball since I retired as a player and I hope to remain in the game."

Tway survives rains, winds to take early U.S. Open lead

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) - Scores and golf balls, caught in the relentless grip of a punishing wind, soared to unintended targets in the opening round of the 86th U.S. Open.

On a course with just one water hazard, water was a big hazard.

Drenching rains and powerful gusts whipped the already challenging Shinnecock Hills layout and its field Thursday, leaving only Bob Tway standing at par, 70, with a one-stroke lead over Greg Norman.

"It was probably as difficult a day as I've ever seen in American (major) championship golf in all the years that I've played," Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who shot a 77, said.

An early afternoon downpour caused a 14-minute suspension of play and darkness forced an end to the day's activity with six threesomes on the course. They were to complete their first rounds today.

Nicklaus, shooting for an unprecedented fifth U.S. Open title and trying to keep alive his Grand Slam hopes, had three double bogeys on par-4 holes on the back nine.

For the first time in a major tournament since the 1959 British Amateur, he even lost a ball. It happened on the 10th hole when he pushed his tee shot into a berry bush.

"You could start the ball 50, 60, 70 yards left of where it ended up," said Nicklaus. "The wind was blowing that hard."

Frey fired

CHICAGO (AP) - After firing Manager Jim Frey, Chicago Cubs President Dallas Green named John Vukovich as the team's interim manager.

But the guessing game in Chicago is: For how long?

Vukovich, who played on two National League pennant winners and has served as a coach on the major league level for the last five years, has been handed the reins of the Cubs as they opened a homestand against the St. Louis Cardinals.

After firing Frey on Thursday, Green would say only that Vukovich would manage the club today. He declined, when asked by reporters, to say whether Vukovich would serve as permanent manager.

"Finding managers is a bit difficult," Green said at a Wrigley Field news conference. "I'm going to do what I think's right for this organization."

Green said he fired Frey, who led the Cubs to their first baseball title of any kind in nearly four decades in 1984, because he "wasn't getting the job done."

"I think he did everything in his power to help the players and the oganization get back on the winning track. Unfortunately, in my opinion whatever he was doing at this stage of the game wasn't getting the job done," Green said.

The decision to fire Frey came after a disastrous road trip on which the Cubs dropped seven of 10 games.

Frey said the decision surprised him.

"It's something I'm very disheartened by," he told WBBM-AM radio. "I wanted to stay here a long time. I wanted to stay here and win."

When Frey was fired, the team was 23-33, in fifth place, 16½ games behind the division-leading New York Mets.

Amarillo, Louisana dominate nationals

Louisiana and Amarillo took home three championships apiece from the Girl's Little Dribbler National Tournament, held here last weekend.

Southwest Louisiana won the Continental Junior League with a 30-18 victory over Plains. Southwest also took the Continental Majors with a 24-15 win over Plains.

Cenla (Central Louisiana) defeated Twin County, 35-31, in the American Major League.

Southwest Amarillo swept the National Division. SW Amarillo defeated Amarillo Shooters 20-16 in the Junior League; defeated H.E.B. (Hurst-Euless-Bedford) in the Major League, 39-37; and defeated Amarillo Shooters 42-30 in the Senior League.

In other action, Twin County defeated Dalhart 36-20 to win the American Junior League and Dalhart nipped Cenla 33-31 to claim the American Senior League championship.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR OIL AND GAS WASTE DISPOSAL WELL PERMIT
James P. Dunigan, Inc., P.O. Box 5559, Abilene, Texas 79608 has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to dispose of produced salt water or other oil and gas waste by well injection into a porous formation not productive of oil or gas.
The applicant proposes to dispose of oil and gas waste into the Ellenburger (Formation), Fluvanna SW Strawn Unit (Lease), Well Number 673-1. The proposed disposal well is located 7 miles northwest of Fluvanna in the Fluvanna SW (Strawn Unit) Field, in Borden County. The waste water will be injected into strata in the subsurface depth interval from 8455 to 8655 feet.
LEGAL AUTHORITY: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.
Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected, or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Underground Injection Control Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (Telephone 512/445-1373).

Cisco residents remain edgy

CISCO, Texas (AP) — Residents edgy after three arson-sparked blazes in as many nights slapped a curfew on the city and kept a lookout despite the arrests of three suspects.

The curfew and state of emergency were declared by the City Council after the three fires damaged several businesses. Police believe they were meant to divert attention from petty burglaries, including the theft of cigarettes and change from a cash register.

The council, meeting in emergency session Thursday afternoon, clamped a midnight-to-6 a.m. curfew through Saturday. The town of about 4,500 residents is some 40 miles east of Abilene.

Three suspects were in custody Thursday night.

But despite the arrests, Cisco officials were not assuming the fires would stop.

In addition to the curfew, members of the citizens watch group patrolled the streets Thursday night, and frustrated businessmen also assisted the seven-person police force in the watch, said city manager Michael Moore.

"We're a small West Texas city and we're awfully proud of our town. That's what makes senseless acts like this so frustrating," Moore said.

Jim Bob Cozart, 21, of Cisco, was charged with arson and was being held without bond at Eastland County Jail. The other two suspects, ages 20 and 22, are also of Cisco, said Cisco Police Officer Rick Kirkland.

Cozart was arrested about 3 a.m. Thursday a block and a half away from a fire at Webb's Inc. warehouse and Dixon Auto Store, Kirkland said. The other two suspects were arrested a short time later at the scene of the fire, he said.

Kirkland said investigators believe the fires were used to distract attention from burglaries at other businesses.

Accident has possible injury

A Snyder woman reported possible injuries following a three-vehicle traffic mishap on south College Ave. Thursday evening.

Frances Evan Scott of 2506 28th St. declined medical treatment at the scene, according to reports.

She was driving a 1980 Chevrolet which was in collision with a 1977 Buick driven by Janell Marie Burgess of 2905 33rd St. and a 1982 GMC pickup and horse trailer rig driven by Jerald Eugene Highfield of 2002 Ave. O.

The collision occurred in the 4900 Block of College Ave. at 3:46 p.m.

Check case said cleared

A recent forgery case was reported cleared by police Thursday with the identification of a 15-year-old juvenile suspect.

According to investigators, the suspect — a former SHS student now living in San Angelo — is alleged to have stolen and passed a check belonging to SHS Principal Ray Courtney on April 11.

Reportedly, the check was passed at the Snyder Safeway Supermarket on that date.

The case has been referred to county juvenile authorities for disposition.

In other action Thursday, police logged three alcohol-related arrests.

One subject was jailed for driving while intoxicated, one for being intoxicated on a premise licensed to sell alcohol and one for public intoxication.

WTC program to aid women

get their AA degree at the college. One woman has even signed up for the golf course/landscape technology course.

"We feel we accomplished our goal," Blakely said. "We wanted to show women that they could do college level work. We feel we helped them with their self-image and how to plan for the future."

An evaluation was conducted at the close of the class and changes will be made in the fall based on that evaluation she said.

"It showed us how to change the class for the better," Blakely said. "We are grateful for all the support we received and for all the guest speakers who came to talk to the class.

"We wanted to give these women a taste of college life and that is what we did. We emphasized education for education's sake and as a means to obtain a good job. But the support system at home is really the key to success for these women."

In addition to realizing their potential in the classroom, Blakely said they also taught them how to fill out financial aid forms and how to secure funds for their future education. As it turned out, many were eligible for financial aid that they never knew about.

Seven of the women also earned their GEDs as they were taking their college class. Several more plan to get their GEDs this summer.

However, to take this course women do not need a high school diploma or GED, Blakely said.

"We saw a need and we tried to fill it. It was the most rewarding thing I have ever done," she said.

The program was so successful in its initial endeavor that Blakely said they are planning a repeat performance in the fall. Additional funding will be available to pay tuition and child care costs.

Since space will be limited, Blakely urged anyone interested to contact her or the college immediately.

Correction...

It was incorrectly reported in last Sunday's Snyder Daily News that 57-year-old Floyd Eugene Breedlove of Rt. 2, had been sentenced to an eight-year prison term after pleading guilty in 132nd District Court to a charge of indecency with a child.

He was in fact placed on felony probation for eight years with the provision that he move his residence to Jones County, Mississippi.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We have a beautiful 16 1/2-year-old daughter who is driving her father and me toward a nervous breakdown. She has done a complete turnabout in regards to everything and everyone who has ever meant anything to her.

She finishes her 11th grade this month, then she wants to quit school, find a full-time job and get her own apartment! She has no training or job experience, but she's "sure" she can support herself. She has forsaken all her old friends, her ideals, even her religion. Discussing anything with her is like talking to the wall. She knows it all, and that's that!

Her new friends are in trouble at school, and I'm sure they smoke pot on weekends.

Just getting this off my chest helps. Thank you.

FLORIDA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Writing to me may help you, but it won't help your daughter. Consider this: The sudden "turnabout" in your daughter's behavior might be the result of drugs. The national hot line for drug abuse is: 1-800-COCAINE.

You need professional family counseling with or without your daughter. Find the Families Anonymous group in your area and meet with it. (The people there have been through this scene and can be enormously helpful.)

Let your daughter know that you love her, but you're not allowing her to quit school, get a job and move out as long as she's a minor.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 1/2 and want more than anything else in the world to become a nun. Some of my friends view it as a joke, and my mother doesn't like the idea because she wants me to go to college (which I don't want to do).

I haven't told anyone else about this, and I'm too embarrassed to discuss it with my priest. What should I do?

CONFLICTING THOUGHTS

DEAR CONFLICTING: Don't be embarrassed to talk to your priest. He is the ideal person to advise you in this matter. You are too young to make a decision that will hold you to a lifelong commitment, but you need this explained to you with all the wisdom and understanding of your spiritual leader.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbor's young son is learning to play the trumpet. She sends him outside on the porch to practice.

Don't you think they should have a little more consideration for the neighbors? We can take only so much. My husband is fit to be tied.

The noise is so disturbing, the kid really ought to practice inside with all the windows closed.

We have always gotten along well with our neighbors, but this is getting us down. How should we handle this?

DISGUSTED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR DISGUSTED: Pay them a call and let them know that their young music student is disturbing your peace. (It's not what you say, it's the way you say it.) And be grateful the kid isn't learning to play the drums. Or the horses.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Expectant Father" who was hurt by comments by friends about having "his own" baby soon after having adopted one. We have just adopted our second baby, and here are a few comments that I wish I hadn't heard:

"How much did you pay for him?" (Nothing. It is illegal to buy a child.)

"Is he an illegal black market baby?" (No. Private, non-agency adoption is legal in our state.)

"Is he white?" (No. He's green.)

"Doesn't the birth mother have six months to change her mind and take the baby back?" (Yes. And a pregnancy has nine months to change its mind and miscarry.)

"Don't you want to have your own children?" (We're tired of waiting, and besides, these are our own children.)

SUSAN, ADOPTIVE MOM OF TWO

Brief says...

New York law used in case

HOUSTON (AP) — New York contract law was accurately applied in a suit that led to a $10.53 damage award against Texaco Inc., Pennzoil Co. says in response to a Texaco appeal termed a "pile of garbage" by Pennzoil's lawyer.

"Unable to deal effectively with New York law and the question of evidence, Texaco resorts to myriad hypertechnical complaints about the trial court's charge. Technicalities alone provide Texaco's last hope of avoiding responsibility for its actions," says a Pennzoil brief filed Thursday with the 1st Court of Appeals.

Pennzoil's 400-page brief is a rebuttal to the brief Texaco filed in April after a jury ruled Texaco wrongfully interfered in a merger agreement between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co.

"This is a response to Texaco's pile of garbage that they filed," Pennzoil attorney Joe Jamail said in filing the Houston company's response.

He said his own legal brief was "a work of art."

The Pennzoil response "basically says they (Texaco) are wrong. This brief filed (by Texaco) is so full of errors and we address that," he said.

A hearing on the case will be held before a three-judge panel July 31 in Houston. Texaco has until then to file its own response, Texaco attorney Paul Curren said.

A Houston jury in November ordered White Plains, N.Y.-based Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, to pay Pennzoil $10.53 billion in damages for wrongly interfering in Pennzoil's planned merger with Getty Oil in 1984.

In December, State District Judge Solomon Casseb Jr. upheld the damage award — the largest in U.S. history — and added another $600 million in interest.

In February, Casseb refused to overturn the jury verdict, effectively denying Texaco's request for a new trial. Texaco, therefore, filed with the 1st Court of Appeals.

The thrust of Texaco's April brief said Casseb misapplied New York contract law and, in charging the jury, misapplied Texas procedural law. Texaco also claims Casseb failed to explain the complexities of merger agreements in New York to the jury.

Texaco's appeal also says Casseb "permitted Pennzoil witnesses to testify that there was a contract (between Pennzoil and Getty), but at the time refused Texaco witnesses the opportunity to say there was not a contract."

But Pennzoil says "the total breach by the Getty entities because of interference by Texaco, and the obvious appropriateness of damages as a remedy, make it clear the agreement found by the jury was correctly determined by the trial court to be an enforceable contract."

The Texaco document claimed more than 300 errors were committed during the 4½ months the case was heard in Houston.

Baptists take political message home

ATLANTA (AP) — Thousands of Southern Baptists are headed home from their national convention with a message for fellow believers: Politics needs Baptists.

Praying, protesting and politicking are badly needed to fight a "suppression of religious expression" in the United States, the Baptists declared Thursday before concluding a three-day gathering in which they also elected staunchly conservative new leaders to top denomination offices.

The Southern Baptist Convention, with 14.5 million members, is the nation's largest Protestant denomination, second only to Roman Catholics among all American religious groups.

In the main points of resolutions passed Thursday, the Baptists:

—Objected to "interpretations of Supreme Court rulings that deny the right of voluntary school prayer and Bible reading in the public schools."

—Said they "strenuously object to the growing anti-Christian bias" in television programming.

—Saw censorship in a lack of religious references in school textbooks.

—Charged that "adolescent sex-education programs taught from a secular humanistic viewpoint have contributed to a decline in morality as based upon Judeo-Christian values."

—Contended anti-pornography laws "in many states are adequate to restrict the dissemination of obscene materials," if only such laws would be enforced.

In general, they said, "the suppression of religious expression in American life is destructive of religious liberty and violates the guarantees of the First Amendment" of the Constitution.

What to do?

Write to government officials, schools and others, the resolutions said. "Participate actively in legally permissiable means of protest." Ask TV advertisers to cancel commercials when necessary. Pray for textbook selectors and others making decisions with moral consequences.

And, "we encourage Southern Baptists to become active participants in the political life of this country — at the local, state and federal levels — in order to defend and promote the traditional Judeo-Christian values necessary if America is to survive as a nation founded upon those values."

The resolutions are non-binding.

Businesses lose money during cleanup

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The lengthy cleanup of a train derailment has cost businesses in the vicinity hundreds of thousands of dollars because they have been forced to shut down.

"Each day this goes on, it gets worse," said Tom Rice, general manager of Vaughan and Sons Lumber Co. But he added, "We want to be sure it is safe."

Rice's business as well as others in the area have been shut down since Sunday when 32 cars on a Union Pacific freight train derailed.

The derailment caused an explosion and the burning of several cars hauling butadiene, a gas used in the manufacture of rubber and plastics, and formaldehyde.

Officials, who decided to let the resulting fire burn itself out, ordered an evacuation of businesses and homes within a 2,500-foot radius.

Initially, 2,000 people were forced from their homes, but by Thursday, the number had been reduced to about 750.

Union Pacific officials said it likely would be sometime this weekend before everyone would be allowed to return to their homes.

Work crews Thursday were attempting to burn off the remaining chemicals inside the derailed cars. Officials said this step is the most dangerous.

"We could have a violent explosion," said Denny Day, general manager of Western Emergency Services, a consultant in the cleanup project.

"Our business has been a total loss because of this," said Larry Jones, general manager of Goldthwaite's of San Antonio, a supplier of golf course materials.

Jones said the derailment came at the busiest time of the year for his business.

"It's a big concern and a big worry for all of us," Jones said. "It's unfortunate that we can't do anything about this."

Bats are the only mammals that fly, but they constitute about a quarter of all mammal species.
