Polish martial law 'must be respected'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Helmeted riot police and troops, backed by water cannon, patrolled the streets of Warsaw today in a show of force by the martial law regime to block pro-Solidarity demonstrations on the second birthday of the suspended independent union.

"Martial law can be liked or disliked, but it must be respected. Disturbing this law will not be tolerated," he said. For Polish dissidents, given to commemorating the anniversaries of past uprisings, today is the single most important date on the political calendar.

pendent union in the Soviet bloc. The birth of Solidarity kindled 16 months of political reforms and labor strife that ended last Dec. 13, when Jaruzelski, by then the leader of both the Polish Communist Party and the army, imposed martial law and suspended the union.

Thousands of Solidarity leaders were "interned." The most prominent of them, including union chief Lech Walesa, are still confined. But a handful escaped capture and went underground.

what it wanted. He did not lift martial law, he did not release the interned activists and he did not allow Pope John Paul II to visit his homeland for the recently concluded observation of the 600th anniversary of the arrival in Poland of the nation's sacred icon, the Black Madonna of Czestochowa.

much loyalty they still command among the millions of Polish workers who supported Solidarity. At least one statement, purporting to be from the Lenin Shipyard workers who helped launch Solidarity, has called instead for a conciliatory stance toward the authorities.

PLO evacuation about complete

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO chief Yasser Arafat was en route to Athens today after an emotional departure from west Beirut, and the remaining PLO guerrillas were scheduled to leave within the next 24 hours.

"I am leaving to continue the struggle so that we can win the war," Arafat told reporters Monday before boarding the converted Greek car ferry Atlantis.

Wearing his black and white checked kaffiyeh headdress, Arafat vowed revenge against Israel and the Arab nations who refused to aid his Palestine Liberation Organization fighters while they were trapped in west Beirut by Israel's invasion army.

"The snows of Mount Hermon were warmer than the hearts of some of the Arab regimes," he said. "The earth under Arab regimes will soon be shaken by Beirut's erupting volcano."

Arab governments have lent vocal support to the idea of a Palestinian state sought by the PLO, yet only Syria joined the battle against the Israeli invaders and then backed out early in the 10-week fight. And nearly all of the Arab states have clashed with the various groups that make up the PLO at one time or another.

The U.S.-organized evacuation leaves about 7,500 guerrillas scattered around the Arab world and presents the PLO with an uncertain future. Arafat regarded the PLO's two-month standoff against the Israelis as a major victory. Israeli leaders said U.S. pressure and the desire to forestall casualties prevented them from carrying out their threat to invade the PLO stronghold.

In Athens, a spokesman for the Socialist government said the PLO chief was scheduled to arrive Wednesday morning, meet with Premier Andreas Papandreu and depart the same day or early Thursday.

The spokesman, Dimitri Maroudas, said that for security reasons, the Atlantis might land in a small port in Attica where Arafat would stay in a country hotel. Arafat's decision to make Greece, a non-Arab country, his first stop outside Lebanon underscored his anger with the Arab world. He was expected to travel next to the Tunisian capital of Tunis and set up a new base.

As the 53-year-old guerrilla chief sailed from the harbor escorted by a U.S. 6th Fleet frigate and a French warship, war-torn west Beirut struggled to return to normalcy.

Leftist militias watched silently as the Christian-led Lebanese army deployed in strategic points, such as the PLO's Henry Chehab and Fakhreddin military barracks, and left the streets to police patrols.

Employees of shops, groceries and cafes began cleaning up the devastation of war and repairing the damage. Banks and government offices that had been closed for nearly 10 weeks, reopened.

The PLO estimated there were 7,100-7,500 guerrillas in Beirut 10 days ago when the evacuation started, and said 7,285 already have left.

More aliens see journey to America as economic necessity

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas — The peso's falling value and a rise in unemployment has sent near-record levels of job-hungry Mexicans scaling fences, swimming rivers and crossing deserts into the United States this month, immigration officers say.

"It's worth the risk," said Jesus Gonzalez, 21. "The most I can make in Juarez is 580 pesos a day. If I get $100 a week in the United States, that's 10,000 pesos."

For the Mexicans, it is a race against poverty, against an economic upheaval that threatens their day-to-day existence. But it's also a race against the "migra" — as the Mexicans call the U.S. Border Patrol along the 1,900-mile frontier.

"More people are coming to the United States now because the dollar's worth 100 pesos," said Arturo Mendez, 27. "We are looking for work — any kind of work."

Mendez is a carpenter, but has been unemployed in Ciudad Juarez for some time. He sees the dash across the Rio Grande into El Paso as a matter of necessity, not of choice.

"I have a wife and two children," he said.

The number of illegal aliens caught trying to get into the United States has soared near El Paso since the Mexican government allowed the peso to float on international markets Aug. 5. It has plunged from a rate of about 49 to the dollar to 124.5 to the dollar as of Monday.

Unemployment south of the border is about 40 percent and inflation is running at more than 60 percent annually.

More than 17,400 Mexicans were caught trying to enter the United States illegally in August in the West Texas-southern New Mexico sector. The exact number was to be totaled today. The all-time monthly high was about 19,000 arrested in July 1978.

Tom Collier, of the Border Patrol in Nogales, Ariz., said there has been a slight increase in arrests in his sector. "I understand that in other places they are noticing a rapid increase in apprehensions, but we haven't noticed it yet," he said.

"The devaluation is the straw that broke the camel's back," said Alan Eliason, Border Patrol chief agent in El Paso. "A lot of aliens have been struggling to get by, trying to make a living in Juarez. Or, they would come through from time to time to earn some money on the U.S. side and then go back.

"Now, it appears large numbers of them are saying, 'I just can't take it anymore and I'm going north.'"

At age 21, Antonio Fierro is an experienced runner in the race with the Border Patrol. He boasts he has been crossing the river regularly for "six or seven years" and knows what he is doing.

"But last week, they got me five times," he said. Usually, the Mexicans volunteer to be deported rather than go through lengthy hearings. They then are freed from Border Patrol paddy wagons at the international bridges. They often return.

"Sometimes, we wait two or three hours," said Fierro, who had crossed the so-called "Tortilla Curtain," a hole-riddled fence on the U.S. side of the border designed to stop the flow of aliens, and was waiting with some companions Monday for a safe moment.

A Border Patrol van approached, and the Mexicans slipped back through the fence and waited on the Rio Grande riverbank until the van moved on.

Despite ruling, aliens not flocking to Texas schools

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — School officials' predictions that the tolling of school bells this year in Texas would mark an influx of more than 100,000 children of illegal aliens thus far have proven to be false, a survey of border school districts shows.

The warnings came after the U.S. Supreme Court on June 15 said the children of illegal aliens are entitled to a free education. The court struck down as unconstitutional a Texas law allowing tuition charges — some as high as $1,000 a year — for the children of undocumented workers.

Officials at border school districts said Monday enrollment of undocumented children has increased only slightly in most schools — and decreased in some.

In the border Pharr-San Juan-Alamo District in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Harold Pena said only 31 undocumented children out of 15,200 students enrolled there on the first day of school, compared to 117 during the 1981-82 school year.

"We're low, comparatively," said Pena, director of people accounting. "But keep in mind it's early. Because of the devaluation of the peso, we anticipated a whole slew of people coming over, legal or illegal, but that hasn't happened, at least not here. It may happen in the next few weeks."

Brownsville, the largest school district in the Valley easily accessible to Matamoros, Mexico, also reported an initial decrease in illegal alien enrollments.

Spokeswoman Nancy Malstaff said 233 Mexican children registered in Brownsville schools. Last year, 394 registered. "I'm sure there will be more later," she said.

In Del Rio, director of elementary education Martin Johnson said he hadn't seen an increase in illegal alien students.

"I don't know who's blowing that up (projected flood of aliens). As far as I'm concerned, there is no increase in illegal aliens, therefore there is no increase in illegal alien children," Johnson said.

In the border city of McAllen, assistant superintendent Dr. Ricardo Chapa said the 103 illegal aliens registered there represented about a 20 percent increase over last year.

Midland lawyer may face disbarment

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A Midland lawyer accused of "professional misconduct" in his dealings with clients may be disbarred and prohibited from practicing law until his possible reinstatement.

The attorney, Harold Buford Jones, 57, of 405 S. Carver St., has been charged by the Texas State Bar's 12-person district Grievance Committee of misapplying funds intended for or from clients.

Jones is accused of using, for his own gain, $1,500 from a personal-injury insurance settlement for Ethel Mae Bradley, Mae Dean Bradley and J.C. Bradley of 912 N. Edwards St. in 1979 and of failing to return $1,500 to clients Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hernandez.

The Hernandez funds, which were to be used toward settling a judgment against the Hernandez couple, had been entrusted to Jones in October 1981 but, according to the State Bar, when the lawyer refunded the money via a check in May 1982, the check was not honored due to "insufficient funds."

"Such conduct on the part of the defendant constitutes professional misconduct in violation of Disciplinary Rules...of the Code of Professional Responsibility for which the Defendant should be...disciplined," according to the lawsuit, which has been filed in Midland's 142nd State District Court.

Jones, unavailable for comment, reportedly left Midland earlier in the summer about the time he was indicted for misapplication of fiduciary funds, a third-degree felony punishable by a two- to 10-year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine.

However, the disbarment proceeding predates the indictment.

"It did not stem from the grand jury indictment," said District Attorney Vern Martin, "but it apparently will have some bearing on this. The (disbarment) proceedings were already in the mill several weeks prior to the grand jury indictment," which came on June 30.

A month prior to the indictment, Jones' wife, Mica, of almost 12 years, sued him for divorce.

Harrell Feldt, president of the 300-member Midland County Bar Association, on Monday said, "The county bar really doesn't figure in the scheme of that (Jones) situation."

"Certainly, the bar takes note that it (the suit) has been filed, but as far as commenting on the merits of the thing, it's not proper."

Reportedly, Jones has surrendered his State Bar of Texas card.

Charles W. Yett, assistant general counsel for the State Bar of Texas, told The Reporter-Telegram that the court proceedings for Jones' reprimand, suspension or disbarment could come up within three to six months "if he's located and if he's served."

"It's strictly up to the court."

The hearing on the suit's merits could be before a jury or the judge, depending on the preferences of Jones and the State Bar. But, said Yett, if the judge or jury determines misconduct, it will be up to the judge — the court — to impose any disciplinary action, including a reprimand, suspension or possible disbarment.

"If you are disbarred," Yett said, "you cannot practice law for a minimum of five years." Five years after disbarment, a lawyer may petition the state district court for reinstatement to the State Bar and must show full amends and restitution.

Hometown girl returns to study at MMH

By GAIL BURKE Staff Writer

Kerry Crowley's interests during high school leaned toward the sciences. Today the petite 21-year-old is in her last year of college, studying to be a medical technologist.

Upon her graduation from Lee High School, she left home for Texas Tech University to become a medical technologist. Now she's back in Midland finishing her degree — at Midland Memorial Hospital where she is enrolled in the School of Medical Technology.

"A medical technologist is a scientist who runs lab tests on body samples, such as the blood, urine and other body fluids," said Margaret Kepple, MMH medical technologist and educational coordinator for the program.

The one-year program at MMH is based on a 40-hour week with approximately three-fourths of that time spent in laboratory practice and the other fourth in lecture. The 30 to 39 credits acquired from the school will complete the degree requirements needed for a bachelor of science degree in medical technology.

STUDENTS WHO HAVE completed 90 semester hours of college, including 16 semester hours each of biological science and chemistry and one course in advanced math are eligible for the MMH school.

Dr. Martha Madsen, pathologist, began the MMH school in 1953. Since then, Ms. Kepple said, they have had students from the Philippines, Thailand and Japan, along with a group from Montana.

"Montana doesn't have a school for medical technology, so a group of students took the course two or three years ago," Ms. Kepple said. "But most of our students are from colleges in West Texas."

"I found out that Midland had this school at the end of my third year at Texas Tech," Ms. Crowley said, adding "it was lucky for me because I can live at home."

Ms. Crowley is the daughter of Midlanders, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Crowley. She began the MMH course in July and recently completed the four week student lab and orientation.

Currently, she is in the MMH blood bank, following the second part of the curriculum, an eight-week course in hematology and coagulation.

"RIGHT NOW I DRAW blood from the patients and do blood cultures," Ms. Crowley said, explaining that "a blood culture is a test that is used to identify organisms that is causing a patient to be sick."

The other courses she will be taking until graduation in 1983 include eight weeks in immunohematology, eight weeks in chemistry, 10 weeks in microbiology, one week in mycology, four weeks in urinalysis and serology, one week in parasitology, four weeks in automation and isotopes and one week each in management, second laboratory experience, self-assessment and vacation.

Classes are limited to four students accepted in January and another four in July. The school is approved by the Council of Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association's Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation (CAHEA) and the National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Sciences (NAACLS).

Ms. Kepple said enrollments are down nationwide from five years ago when she had 20 quality applicants from which to choose.

"STUDENTS ARE attracted to higher paying jobs," she said. But Ms. Crowley claims the average $17,000 a year job "isn't bad pay for a woman starting work right out of college."

"But we've (MMH) hired at least eight or more who are graduates of the school," Ms. Kepple said. "In fact, if it wasn't for the school, there wouldn't be any staffing at times."

There is no tuition for the MMH 12-month program and the student who maintains acceptable grades receives a $200 a month stipend.

In addition, they are required to work at least 16 hours a month for which they get reimbursed, Kepple said. The students are provided with one textbook, hospitalization and free meals in the hospital dining room.

After completing the course, the student will receive a certificate from MMH which may be applied to their degree. Kepple said students are entitled to take the examination administered by the Board of Registry of Medical Technologists of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists.

Upon receiving the ASCP certification, the student then may take the exam given by National Certification Agency for Medical Laboratory Personnel which certifies the student as a clinical laboratory scientist.

Social Security number now required to get free meals

By HALLYE JORDAN Staff Writer

In an effort to ensure that only eligible students receive free and reduced price meals in public schools, the United States Department of Agriculture announced that it will require all 1982-83 applicants to provide Social Security numbers on applications.

service director for the Midland Independent School District, the rule regarding Social Security numbers will be followed strictly.

"We're going to be very picky about everything being complete," she told The Reporter-Telegram. "Until the application is complete, they (the applicants) aren't eligible for free and reduced lunches. We'll just keep sending them back."

bers, Social Security numbers of all household members 21 years or older — or state that a household member does not have a Social Security number — and the signature of an adult household member.

Information on the application may be checked by the school district or other officials at any time during the school year. If a child is approved for meal reductions, any household income increase of more than $50 per month, or $600 per year, must be reported to the MISD Food Service Office, 801 S. Moran, 687-0114.

children in certain cases are eligible for free and reduced meal prices. Persons with foster children living with them are asked to contact the MISD food service office.

The district must notify persons if they are eligible within 10 days of receiving their application. If information is missing on the application, the request will be denied. Any person who does not agree with the district's decision has the right to a fair hearing. Persons wishing to appeal or discuss a decision should contact Ms. Grillos at the Food Service Office, 687-0114.

U.S. denies Jordan Palestinian state

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is rejecting Israel's strategy for solving the Palestinian problem, saying it won't buy the argument that Jordan is a Palestinian state.

6. Another official said the administration would like to see an Arab peace plan that would include Arab recognition of Israel and acceptance of U.N. resolution 242, but would refrain from demanding a separate Palestinian state.

Bedouin. Therefore, Sharon argued, there was no need for a second Palestinian state on the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip where 1.3 million Palestinians live.

Births: MIDLAND Memorial Hospital Aug. 27, 1982 Rosario B. Ramirez, 1401 S. Colorado Ave., a boy.

"We do not agree that Jordan is a Palestinian state," John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said Monday in the most direct repudiation yet of the position put forward by Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and other Israeli leaders.

"An eastern Arab proposal like that could be part of Camp David in no time," said the official, who didn't want to be identified.

Hughes also dismissed a statement by Sharon that several thousand Palestinian guerrillas may be planning to remain behind in west Beirut in violation of the evacuation agreement.

Aug. 28, 1982 Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Torres Jr., P.O. Box 50331, a boy.

Hughes also denied that the administration has proposed establishment of a demilitarized Palestinian state on the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

That would leave the question of a separate Palestinian state in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip as an issue to be decided in negotiations.

Hughes said more guerrillas apparently are leaving than were thought to be in Beirut in the first place. "If more are going out than is speculated were there, it seems to me that addresses itself to the question of the residue," he said, referring to reports that some guerrillas were remaining.

While the Reagan administration is rejecting one key aspect of the Israeli strategy for dealing with the Palestinian problem in the wake of the withdrawal of Palestinian guerrillas from west Beirut, its own next moves are unclear.

The Reagan administration says the issue of a Palestinian state should be decided in negotiations, although Sharon told reporters last week that Israel "will never agree" to such a state.

Sharon declared repeatedly on his visit here that Jordan is already a Palestinian state because of its large concentration of Palestinians, even though it is ruled by King Hussein, a Official sources say President Reagan or Secretary of State George P. Shultz probably will make a major speech soon outlining U.S. policy in the region. Shultz has been conducting an intensive review of U.S. policy in the Middle East and has hinted that he wants to expand the Camp David framework for peace negotiations without saying how.

Hughes declined to say whether the issue had been discussed in meetings here last week between Shultz and Sharon.

Smith March 21, 1941, in Plainview. He was a 32nd Degree Mason and a member of the Masonic Lodge No. 909. He was a member of the First Baptist Church, the Lamesa Board of Realtors, the Evening Lions Club and had been a Demolay adviser for many years. Williams came to Lamesa in 1947 from Plainview.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Connie Williams and Darlo Jo Hanson, both of Lamesa, and Tondi Ree Williams of Jayton; three sisters, Clarice King of Plainview, Bonnie Phillips of Dallas and Kleta Fredde of Winterset, Iowa; three brothers, James Williams of Clovis, N.M., Alex Williams and Wayne Williams, both of Muleshoe; and six grandchildren.

Robert W. Adkins

Robert Wayne Adkins, 23, of 23 Katie Lane, died Sunday morning in a Midland hospital following a motorcycle accident.

Services were to be at 4 p.m. today in Tall City Baptist Church with the Rev. W.R. "Bill" Simpson officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Adkins was born July 26, 1959, at Midland. He was raised here and was graduated from Midland High School in 1978. Adkins was employed by Tri-Service Drilling Co. for the past five years. He was a member of Tall City Baptist Church.

Survivors include his mother, Sue Hewitt of Midland; a half-brother, Wendell Adkins of New Iberia, La.; a brother, Kevin Howerton of Midland; two sisters, Cecilla Adkins and Cherry Adkins Patton, both of Midland; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jenkins of Midland and Mrs. E.G. Adkins of McNeil, Ark.; four aunts and an uncle.

White supporters preach unity

NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) — The Mark White campaign unity tour got off to a roaring start when the revving engines of a nearby airplane drowned out big chunks of the speeches at a Houston Hobby Airport rally.

But by the time the road show got to the Pipe Fitters Union hall here Monday, the message of the unity tour was coming through loud and clear.

"Let's don't go to sleep this time. It's a very winnable race," said Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, who ran second to White in the Democratic gubernatorial spring primary.

"If we allow it to happen again, we'll get what we deserve," Temple said, harkening back to the 1978 Democratic in-party struggle that helped give Republican Bill Clements the keys to the Governor's Mansion.

White, Temple and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong — the third-place finisher in the primary — are on the road in a three-day trip to preach party unity. The tour ends with Mark White Night in Austin, a love-in expected to draw John Hill and Dolph Briscoe, whose bitter 1978 primary battle caused the Democratic rift that some say gave Clements the win.

At Hobby Airport, Monday's first stop, the sound system barely was strong enough to overcome the airplane noise. About 30 people strained to hear the speakers.

Armstrong said the Democrats of 1982 have a sort of divided unity.

"There's not as much unity in the party as maybe you'd think...they all hate (Clements) for different reasons," he said.

White said rising joblessness has not attracted Clements' full attention and concern.

"When you see 7 percent, that may not mean much to you, Bill Clements. But when you have 500,000 people looking for work, that is significant," said White, adding "If you're out of work in Texas, where do you go?"

At the union hall here, about 300 people packed in to see White and the supporting cast. White said the unity was obvious.

"I see people here who were putting up my signs (in the spring) and people who were taking down my signs," he said.

Armstrong cautioned against a repeat of the 1978 split.

"We let the door slip open and Bill Clements slipped through it," he said.

'Deranged' woman arrested at Balmoral

LONDON (AP) — A woman shouting, "I must see the queen," struggled with a police officer and a soldier before being arrested at the royal family's summer residence at Balmoral Castle in Scotland, the Sun newspaper reported today.

A spokesman at the central police station in Aberdeen, where the woman was reportedly taken, said no one was available to discuss the report.

The Sun said the incident happened last weekend when Queen Elizabeth II was at the Victorian castle.

According to the newspaper report, the unidentified woman was deranged and was taken from the police station to a hospital.

Parts of the 80,000-acre Balmoral estate are open to the public and the report said the woman, who is in her 40s, moved off the path from the main gates into trees to escape detection.

She was spotted first by the police officer and then the soldier, who tackled her together, the paper said. The report added that police did not consider the incident a serious threat to the queen's safety.

In the last 15 months, an unemployed youth fired blank shots at the queen in a London procession, another teen-ager was arrested near the Buckingham Palace gates with a knife, a man ran into the palace courtyard with a knife before being arrested and jobless Michael Fagan, 30, was arrested after climbing into the queen's bedroom at the London palace.

Odessa's murder trial to be in Lubbock

KERMIT, Texas (AP) — The trial of an Odessa man accused of kidnapping and then fatally stabbing a mother and her daughter has been moved to Lubbock after defense attorneys argued Michael Eugene Sharp could not get a fair trial in this West Texas town.

Sharp, 28, is accused of abducting a Kermit woman and her two daughters June 11 at a self-service car wash, and then slaying Brenda Kay Broadway and 8-year-old Christi Michelle Elms in a remote area in Winkler County.

Fourteen-year-old Selena Kay Elms escaped from her abductor and ran nude through the desert to seek help. State District Judge James Clack signed an order Monday to move Sharp's trial to Lubbock. Clack earlier had agreed to the venue change, but had not found a location for the trial.

Ector County District Attorney Mike Fostel said Judge Robert C. Wright in 137th District Court in Lubbock would hear the case.

Court-appointed defense attorney Bert Smith argued at a July 19 hearing that news coverage of the slayings of Ms. Broadway, 31, and her younger daughter would prevent Sharp from receiving a fair trial here.

When You Need Security... You Need Security National Bank!

Security means a lot of different things to different people.

Sometimes it's money in the bank. Sometimes it's our home and our family. It's not having to worry about retirement. And sometimes it's seeing a longtime, well-thought-out dream come true.

It seems like we spend our whole lives trying to find that elusive peace of mind.

Whatever security is to you, and whenever you need it, turn to us. We can help.

We're a banker who's a friend... who knows you by name.

When you need security, you need Security National Bank.

Former IBM Corp. employee goes on rampage leaving one man dead

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — A former assembly worker for IBM Corp. was charged with murder and assault after a rampage with a rifle and firebombs at an IBM complex left one worker dead and four others injured, authorities said.

The suspect, Leonard D. Avery, 39, of Raleigh, shot himself in the head just before being arrested at a roadblock after a 10-mile freeway chase, police said. He was in stable condition early today at Durham County General Hospital after brain surgery, said hospital spokeswoman Ruth Harris.

The incident was the second shooting spree in three months involving a former IBM employee.

Police said Avery, carrying a high-powered rifle and four firebombs, walked into the IBM complex and began firing Monday afternoon.

He was charged with murder, five counts of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with a firearm upon law enforcement officers, said a Durham County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

MICHAEL F. PANDICH, spokesman for local IBM operations, initially said Avery had worked as senior keyboard assembler for the firm and was "terminated" Aug. 19. Pressed later for details, Pandich said he would neither confirm nor deny that Avery had been fired.

The dead man, Ralph A. Glenn Jr., 53, was a part-time minister and had tried to calm the gunman but was shot anyway, said another IBM employee, O.T. Weaver.

Another worker, Richard D. Martin, 51, was shot in the chest and listed in critical but stable condition at Duke University Medical Center. Three other employees who received minor injuries were treated and released.

Pandich said as far as he knew, neither Martin nor Glenn had any professional relationship with Avery. But some IBM employees told reporters that Martin had been Avery's supervisor.

Avery, married and with two young children, had been deeply worried that his exposure to the chemical defoliant Agent Orange during the Vietnam war might endanger him and his children, said a neighbor who asked not to be identified.

Another neighbor and co-worker, Ryland E. Grissom, said he saw Avery Friday and "he didn't look off the wall or anything."

THE GUNMAN, wearing military fatigues, entered one of the IBM buildings at about 1:30 p.m., "fired some shots" and detonated two incendiary devices, said Durham police investigator David Frey.

The man fired several shots in one building, shooting out several windows but hitting no one. He then entered an adjacent building, ignited two more firebombs, and shot two workers while others barricaded themselves in their offices, Frey said.

Frey said more than 12 shots were fired from the .45-caliber semi-automatic rifle, which held a 32-round clip of ammunition. The bombs scorched walls and carpets but caused little damage otherwise, officials said.

After exchanging shots with sheriff's deputies in the parking lot, the gunman drove along Interstate 40 toward Raleigh with officers in pursuit.

Upon reaching the barricade, the man stopped his car. Police used loudspeakers to order him to surrender and took him into custody after he hung his hands from the car. Blood covered his face.

On May 28, another shooting spree at an IBM office in Bethesda, Md., left three people dead and six wounded after a man rammed his car through the doors and fired 150 shots using automatic weapons.

A former IBM employee, Edward Thomas Mann, 38, has been charged with multiple counts of murder, assault and handgun violations. The case has not yet gone to trial.

Sex-offender's release prompts angry letters

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A 500-pound convicted sex offender whose early release from prison prompted angry letters from around the nation says he feels victimized by publicity and fears being jailed again.

"I'm a sick, sick man," Joseph "Jo Jo" Giorgianni said in a telephone interview Monday. "I'm being raped. I'm the victim. Sure, I'm being persecuted."

The Trenton sandwich shop operator was scheduled to appear in court again today as prosecutors asked state Superior Court Judge Richard J.S. Barlow Jr. to reinstate his original 15-year sentence.

An attempt to postpone the hearing failed at every court level. On Monday, U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Brennan refused without comment to order a delay.

Giorgianni, 33, claims prison would kill him because he needs medication, oxygen and air conditioning due to his obesity, asthma and breathing problems. But state officials say he can be held without danger to his health.

Giorgianni was convicted in 1980 of carnal abuse and debauching the morals of a 14-year-old girl customer at his sandwich shop in 1978. Barlow sentenced him to 15 years, but Giorgianni remained free during his appeals.

After serving one week, Barlow released him Aug. 6 for medical reasons. His sentence was reduced to three years probation and a $2,000 fine.

Barlow's decision outraged residents, Gov. Thomas H. Kean and other political leaders. Kean ordered state officials to help prosecutors put Giorgianni back in prison.

Kean's press office has displayed hundreds of irate letters from citizens around the country complaining about Giorgianni's release.

"They're trying to make Judge Barlow buckle," Giorgianni said, maintaining his innocence. "I think he's a pretty good judge. He'll hold up under the pressure."

But he also noted, "I'll be in jail if the political pressure is there...The judicial system in New Jersey is second only to Moscow, so I guess I'll be in jail."

"I think Gov. Kean should take care of the state workers that are being laid off," Giorgianni said. "What's he hunting a 500-pound sick man for?"

The criticism, Giorgianni said, may work in his favor as people question why he is being singled out for attack.

The state Corrections Department believes it can handle Giorgianni's medical needs in prison, said spokesman James Stabile.

He said St. Francis Medical Center in Trenton has a 13-bed prison unit and better air conditioning than the infirmary at the Yardville Youth Correction and Reception Center, where Giorgianni was held previously.

Market hits high; Steel hits low

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer

The stock market rallied to the year's highest mark despite news that the proportion of steel plants working was at a post-Depression low, new tool orders were off sharply and sales of new homes plummeted.

A late buying spree Monday lifted the Dow Jones industrial index to 893.30, an advance of 9.83 points. It continued the rally that has lifted the Dow more than 100 points since Aug. 12, largely in response to declining interest rates.

Trading volume, however, fell short of last week's record level, and eight stocks declined for every nine that advanced on the New York Stock Exchange.

The American Iron and Steel Institute, the industry's chief lobby group, reported steel production in the week ending Aug. 28 sank to 39.9 percent of capacity from the previous week's 40.5 percent, which had been the year's low.

The capacity figure was the lowest since 1938, when the yearly average was 39.6 percent, according to Sheldon Wesson, a spokesman for the New York-based steel institute. He said no weekly figures were kept then.

Steel production so far this year has used 51.7 percent of capacity, compared with 83 percent a year ago. The number of tons produced so far this year is off 37.8 percent, and employment has fallen to 62 percent of its level during the late 1970s.

"Imports so far this year have risen at a time when domestic sales have been falling, so there's been a double whammy on the industry," Wesson said.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association, meanwhile, said orders for new industrial tools fell 14 percent in July from the month before. The trade group said foreign and domestic orders fell to $107.7 million from $125.9 million in June.

James Gray, association president, said the July decline was expected because of the recession and the normally slow summer month.

In Washington, the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development said sales of new single-family houses fell 4.9 percent in July to the third-lowest rate in at least two decades. Meanwhile, the median price of new houses rose to a record $73,600.

Through July, just 226,000 new houses had been sold for the year, down 22 percent from the same seven months of last year. And 1981 ended with only 436,000 sales, the lowest since the government began keeping such figures in 1963.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said the average rate for home loans rose to 17.22 percent in early July. However, rates in various parts of the nation now have fallen to the 14 percent to 16 percent range.

"Builders are at least looking to the future with some hope," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders. "Some might even survive."

In other economic news:

—Gold prices gained $6.40 a troy ounce in New York to $408.50.

—Three-month Treasury bills rate gained about one-quarter a percentage point to 8.14 percent.

—Ford Motor Co. said it will partially reopen a suburban Detroit valve plant closed last December due to slack demand. The plant now will be used to make fuel tanks and repair shipping racks.

—Martin Marietta Corp., the target of a $1.5 billion takeover attempt by Bendix Corp., countered with its own $1.5 billion offer to buy Bendix. Both companies make aerospace products.

Tresury bill rate rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities rose after declines the previous two weeks had sent rates tumbling to their lowest levels in two years, officials said.

About $5.5 billion in six-month T-bills were auctioned Monday at an average discount rate of 9.746 percent, up from the 8.968 percent of last week. The government also sold about $5.5 billion in three-month bills at an average rate of 8.804 percent, up from the previous 7.748 percent.

Monday's yields, a measure of the cost of government borrowing from the public, were the highest since the Aug. 16 rates of 9.821 percent for six-month bills and 8.616 percent for three-month bills. Before the sharp declines of the previous two weeks, short-term rates on new Treasury bills had hovered around 11 percent to 12 percent since February.

The discount rate on the T-bills auctioned Monday understates the actual return to investors. That return, or investment rate, came to an average of 10.39 percent on six-month bills and 8.92 percent on three-month bills. Beginning Tuesday, in private accounts linked to federal securities:

—Banks and savings and loan associations may pay as much as 10.123 percent on $10,000-minimum six-month money market certificates, down from last week's 10.355 percent.
