M'GREGOR AND BULLINGTON WIN SERVICE CUPS

'Goodbye Hoover' Is Cry As Democratic Spellbinders Open 1932 Campaign

Smith, Davis And Cox Jackson Day Speakers

Nominee of 1928 Devotes Address to Unemployment While Other Former Candidates Flay Prohibition and Assail Era of Republican Misrule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Democratic leaders opened the 1932 presidential campaign tonight with a joyous dinner at which 2,150 party adherents shouted a wild, if premature, farewell to the Hoover administration.

The occasion was the Jackson day banquet, which once in four years serves as the keynote meeting of the campaign.

Tonight's keynote speakers were the last three Democratic presidential candidates—Alfred E. Smith of New York, John W. Davis of West Virginia and James M. Cox of Ohio.

Their note was, first, victory.

Speakers talked as though the campaign were over, and a Democrat on his way to the White House to take up the work of the last Democratic president, Woodrow Wilson.

BLOW-OFF AVERTED
WASHINGTON, Jan 8. (AP)—The way for harmony at tomorrow's meeting of the Democratic national committee was paved tonight at a conference between Chairman Raskob and Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia, the vice chairman, when they agreed upon a resolution on the prohibition issue.

Byrd, a former governor, who was one of those who led the fight in March against a move to commit the national committee on prohibition, drafted a resolution acceptable to Raskob, referring the whole question to the national convention without recommendation. With this agreement, prospects of a blow-off tomorrow faded.

Cover Big Issues

Federal economy, an end to Republican "misrule," less and better government, all were emphasized in the speeches. Smith and Cox criticized prohibition, and Smith announced himself for a federal bond issue to provide money for construction to provide work for the unemployed.

The former New York governor spoke as strongly in favor of direct federal employment aid as Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, spoke against it in announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination last night at Baltimore.

Happy Prelude

The banquet was a happy prelude to the meeting of the Democratic national committee tomorrow, when a site and date for the national convention will be selected.

Chicago has been in the lead, but Franklin D. Roosevelt men are making a strong bid to send the convention to Kansas City, where they believe the atmosphere will be more friendly to their candidate.

Talk of Smith as the candidate, of Roosevelt, of Newton Baker, of Ritchie, of Speaker John Garner, of half a dozen men drifted about with the cigar smoke and speculation on the prospect of a fight over Democratic Chairman John J. Raskob's desire for a prohibition referendum plank in the party platform.

But the banquet itself was concerned not with candidates. It was a party affair, with harmony as the commanding note.

Bowers Bristles

Claude G. Bowers of Indiana, perhaps the party's most effective spellbinder, was toastmaster. His speech was frankly denunciatory and bristled with "chickens in every pot," breadlines, and "Republican efficiency," and foreclosed farmsteads. He shed hypocritical tears over the sight of Republican Committee Chairman Simeon Fess urging Republicans to "sell" Hoover to the nation. It would be a bankruptcy sale, Bowers said.

Quoting Republican predictions of prosperity in the campaign in which Herbert Hoover defeated him, and drawing a contrast with present conditions, Mr. Smith said the leadership needed in this time of trial "can come only with a Democratic victory."

Mr. Davis and Mr. Cox joined the former New York governor in condemning administration policies. All called for repudiation of special privilege.

Urge Prohi Change

Attacking President Hoover's objection to federal relief of suffering, Smith called it "indefensible inasmuch as it already has been proven that the states, localities and private charities cannot cope with it."

The three advocated prohibition change, with Smith declaring the Wickersham commission report

REED OFFERS PLATFORM FOR DEMO PARTY

Fiery Senator's Plan Has Seven Major Points For Victory

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 8. (AP)—James A. Reed, former United States senator who said he would consider it a compliment to have the Missouri delegation support him for the Democratic presidential nomination, submitted tonight a seven-point "victory" platform for the party.

Simplification of government at home and a "hands off" foreign policy were the keynotes sounded at a Jackson day dinner here by the man who was Missouri's favorite son aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928.

"These beneficent objects will never be accomplished by the present Republican body," said Reed in a prepared address, holding the Hoover administration answerable for a government which "has its note in every kitchen and its finger in every enterprise."

Stresses Old Ideas

"The remedy fundamentally must be a return to the old ideas of government," Reed asserted.

"First: Decentralization should be the order of the day. We should begin that by withdrawing the United States from every European controversy in which we are not directly and immediately concerned. We should provide for our own protection, always remembering that while the largest and most powerful nation on earth, we are, nevertheless, unless prepared, and easy victim to the avarice and cupidity of greedy enemies.

"Second: We should repeal every federal statute which imposes upon

Shoe Executive Killed In Blast at Dallas

DALLAS, Jan. 8. (AP)—Charles M. Shepherd, 55, vice president of the Graham-Brown Shoe company, died today of burns received in a mysterious explosion at his residence last night.

Investigators had been unable to determine the cause of the blast. Shepherd had just returned home from a hunting trip. The explosion hurled him from his room into a hallway and ignited his clothing. There was a possibility that accumulated gas was responsible.

The explosion shook houses for blocks around and caused a fire which damaged three dwellings. Loss was about $15,000.

Snow Falls in Chicago And Points of Midwest

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. (US)—Light snow was falling tonight in Chicago. Snow, mostly light, was reported over most of the country east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio.

In the Northwest the temperature was lower. Devils Lake, N. D., reported eight below zero. At Tanana, Alaska, the thermometer registered 60 below.

No extremely cold weather was in prospect for the Middle West, however, in Chicago the thermometer registered 24, while it was warmer in the Rocky mountain regions, Denver reporting 40.

Passage of Relief Bill Thwarted As Tariff Measure Gains Momentum

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (US)—Another barrage from the Progressives thwarted administration plans to pass the $2,000,000,000 finance corporation bill in the senate today.

Though numerous amendments were offered to extend the bill to include assistance to millions of persons facing acute distress, Republican leaders predicted the measure's passage substantially without change either tomorrow or Monday.

Meanwhile, the new Democratic tariff bill gained momentum for its passage through congress.

By a vote of 214 to 174, with Democrats standing solidly, the house immediately took up the bill for consideration, with an agreement to dispose finally of it tomorrow. Today's test vote assures passage in the house. Six Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite swung over to vote with the Democrats.

The house banking committee moved to report the reconstruction finance corporation bill tomorrow. Democratic leaders plan to bring up the bill in the house Monday.

As drafted by a subcommittee, the bill provides for a board of seven directors, including the secretaries of the treasury and agriculture, the governor of the federal reserve board and two Democrats and two Republicans to be appoint-

Blunt-Spoken Chairman of Arms Conference Will End Work

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (US)—General Charles Gates Dawes soon will become an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination against Herbert Hoover.

Some of the closest personal and political friends of the Chicagoan tonight placed that interpretation upon Dawes' announcement that he intends to resign as ambassador to Great Britain and will not even remain throughout the Geneva arms conference, at which he will be chairman of the American delegation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—America's picturesque statesman, Charles Gates Dawes of the underslung pipe and vibrant language, is to retire as ambassador to Great Britain.

His resignation will take effect after completion of "general work" as chairman of the American delegation to the arms conference in Geneva. As he puts it, he does "not expect to remain for the technical work" there.

The conference is not expected to take very long in disposing of general discussion and getting onto its technical problems after it opens Feb. 2.

Charles Dawes

Just before leaving tonight for Chicago, his home, he announced his plans to return to private life after years of almost constant service in the government.

A former vice president and mentioned before the 1928 primaries as a possible candidate for president, General Dawes will retire on the eve of another national election.

The name of Dawes already has been mentioned in speculation over this year's Republican presidential nominee. He has put aside this speculation as "nonsense." However, the first reaction in political circles was to regard his resignation as significant politically.

Announcement Made

Dawes' announcement was given to newspaper men gathered at the National Press club by E. Ross Bartley, who was his secretary while he was vice president.

The typewritten statement was distributed without further comment as to Dawes' plans.

He was appointed ambassador to the court of St. James in 1929 by President Hoover after leaving the vice presidency the preceding year.

General Dawes early entered pub-

Houston Man Dies After Christmas Fight

HOUSTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—A "jungle land" fight on Christmas day and subsequent death of J. E. McCoy, about 55, was investigated by the police homicide squad today.

McCoy died in a hospital Monday. His body was sent to Beaumont for funeral services and burial there. Then McCoy's son, S. C. McCoy, of Beaumont, called at the police station today and asked for an investigation. He said he had heard of a fight which preceded his father's death.

Police held a 55-year-old man in connection with the fight. He signed a statement saying his recollection of the affair was vague but he remembered he and McCoy had quarreled and said he hit McCoy one time with a stick.

JOBLESS INJURED

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 8. (US)—Fourteen members of "Father Cox's jobless army," bringing up the rear on the return trip here from the nation's capitol, were injured late this afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the national pike, 18 miles west of Hagerstown, Pa.

NO. 3—BARWISE SCHOOL

The father and an older brother can find only part-time employment. The mother gets outside work whenever possible. There are four children attending school and two are too young to attend. This family never has asked for aid and it was through the solicitation of the school that the four children were placed on the free lunch list. The children made no complaint, although at times they obviously were hungry. This family has a cow and the mother sends a bottle of milk daily to supplement the school lunch.

NO. 4—SAN JACINTO

The father in this family is crippled and the mother does laundry work from 10 to 14 hours daily to feed the family of seven. Three children are attending school, two of which were placed on the free lunch list through private charity. The third child attempted to withdraw from school because he "was so hungry he couldn't study." He has been placed on the lunch list through the response of Wichitans to the P.-T. A. appeal.

Woman Fraud Suspect Hangs Self in Jail

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 8. (AP)—Mrs. Thelma Cullen, 37, on trial in federal court here on mail fraud charges in connection with stock investments, hanged herself in the county jail here some time last night.

Witnesses from many sections of the Pacific Northwest have testified they lost considerable money through dealing with her while she was head of the All Nations Investors, Incorporated, defunct since 1929. Mrs. Cullen disappeared then and was arrested last summer in Albuquerque, N. M.

SOCIETY WOMAN ARRESTED FOR HAWAII KILLING

Mrs. Granville Fortescue And Son-in-Law Face Death Charges

ATTACKER IS SLAIN

Honolulu Native Killed After Abduction on City Street

HONOLULU, Jan. 8. (AP)—A murder complaint naming Mrs. Granville Fortescue, New York and Washington society matron, and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., was sworn out here today by Chief of Detectives John H. McIntosh in connection with the kidnaping and slaying of a young Hawaiian accused of having participated with four other men last September in an attack on Mrs. Massie.

E. J. Lord, an enlisted man in the navy, also was named in the murder complaint issued against Lieutenant Massie and Mrs. Fortescue.

The Hawaiian, Joseph Kahahawai, one of five men who had been tried for criminally attacking Mrs. Massie last September, was lured from a courtroom into the street, seized and carried off in an automobile.

Body in Automobile

Officers later announced the discovery of his body in an automobile containing Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Massie and E. J. Lord, an enlisted man of the navy. Kahahawai had been shot through the heart. His body had been stripped of its clothing and wrapped in a sheet.

Police took Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and Lord into custody after chasing the automobile, which they said Mrs. Fortescue was driving, for more than 10 miles.

Several shots were fired by the officers before they forced the car to a halt, they said, and discovered Kahahawai's body.

Hawaiian Tricked

The Hawaiian, who was named in the evidence at the assault trial as the man who beat Mrs. Massie and broke her jaw after he and his companions had criminally attacked her, was said by Sheriff Gleason to have been tricked into leaving the court room alone and walking into the hands of the kidnapers.

Police said Kahahawai was seized by two men after a woman had pointed him out. The kidnapers' automobile got a six-mile start. It stopped only after Patrol Officer Harbottle fired three shots after overtaking it.

Kahahawai had been shot through the heart.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Massie and Lord were taken under protection of detectives and Commander Richard W. Bates of the naval

Rescues Effected From Snowbound Mono Basin

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8. (UP)—Rescued from snowbound cabins and lodges in the Mono basin, more than a score of people had reached civilization today, while the regular residents of the basin continued to go about their work on snowshoes and skis.

Deep snowdrifts which blocked roads leading into the basin made prisoners of people who had gone there for the holidays. Included among these were about 15 students who attend high school or college on the outside.

The rest of the children in the basin, numbering 35 of school age, attending grammar schools in the mountains, managed to reach their classes by using snowshoes and skis.

Decision Will Be Made Today on Truck Case

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 8. (INS)—Decision in the three-judge federal court hearing on the application of H. B. Sage for a permanent injunction restraining Texas authorities from enforcing the portion of the new Texas regulatory act which requires contract carriers to obtain permits from the state railroad commission before being allowed to do business in Texas will not be rendered until Saturday afternoon, the court announced late today.

The hearing, in which testimony and argument is being held here today, is an outgrowth of the arrest of Sage and several other interstate truck operators for alleged violation of the law.

Cotton Session Refused By Alabama Governor

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 8. (INS)—Overruling pleas of agricultural leaders, Gov. B. M. Miller today flatly refused to summon a special session of the Alabama legislature to consider cotton acreage reduction legislation.

Governor Miller made his decision at the conclusion of a series of conferences with leading agricultural authorities, including Commissioner of Agriculture Seth P. Storrs and State Representative R. J. Goode.

Goode told the governor a poll he had conducted revealed the state legislators overwhelmingly in favor of a special session.

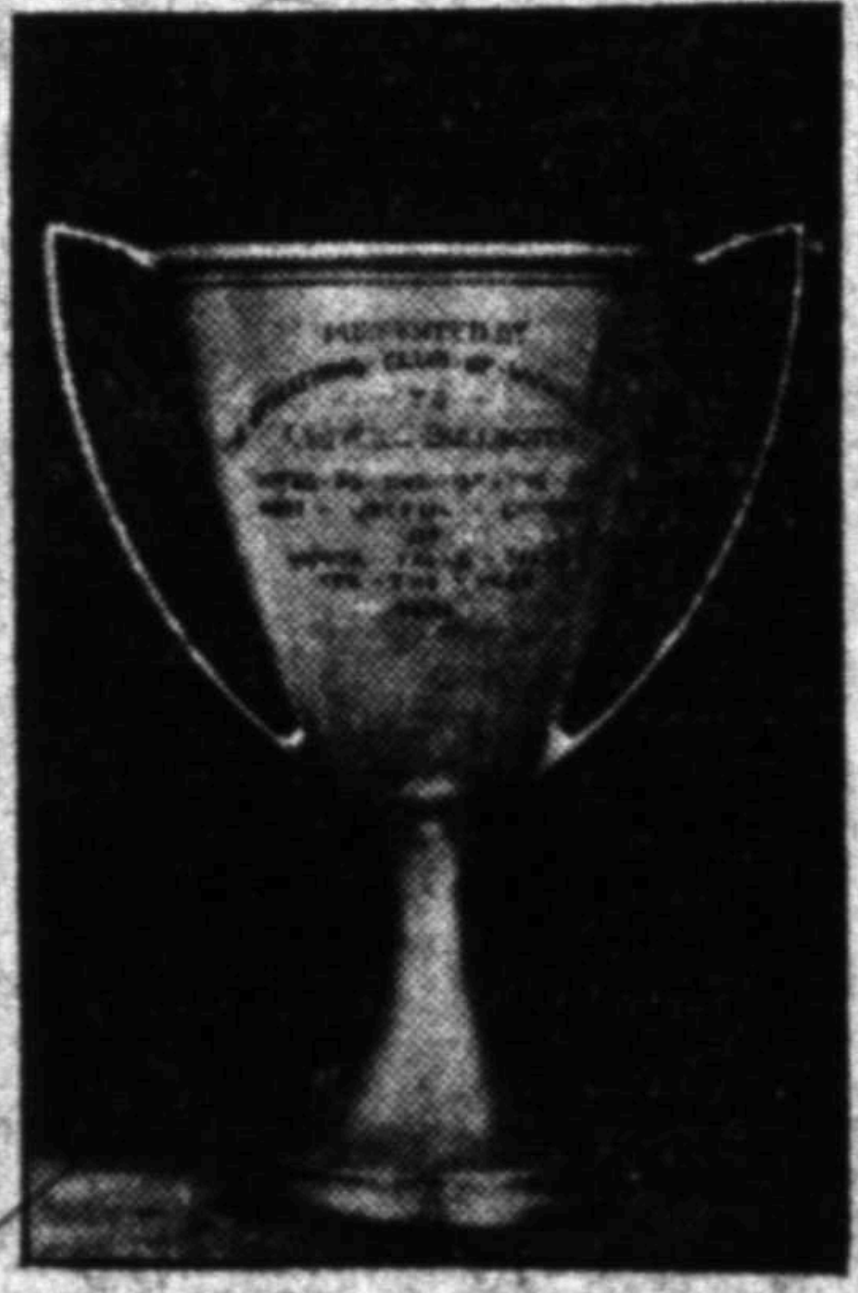
W. M. M'GREGOR

GROVER C. BULLINGTON



McGregor and Bullington Rose to Leadership Through Own Efforts

Nominations presented to the committee of judges tell in compact fashion the work of the two men who were declared Wichita Falls' most valuable citizens during 1931. While the cups were awarded for two types of service, the lives of W. M. McGregor and Grover C. Bullington follow similar channels. Each came to Wichita Falls with few friends here, and each has made his way to prominence in civic and business affairs through individual effort.

Mr. McGregor was cited for his wide efforts to relieve distress. In reciting his donations to needy families and his work to provide jobs to unemployed, his nominators added that he had "used every known method" to conceal his activities.

Many homes were kept intact and many families had the food and clothing they lacked because of the efforts of W. M. McGregor, nominating letters read.

In his effort to help jobless men, the banker sent many to his own farm, even when the labor was not needed. In providing meal tickets, buying clothing and working to help the lot of many men, Mr. McGregor worked under the motto: "One good turn a day will make you happy," nominators continued.

William Morrell McGregor, acclaimed one of the most useful citizens of Wichita Falls in 1931, came to the city a friendless 17-year-old boy almost half a century ago.

Runner for Bank

From his first job as runner for the old Panhandle National bank, later the First National, young McGregor worked steadily upward through every position, became cashier when he was 25 years old, and assumed control of the organization as president in 1921.

Born in Talledega, Tenn., in 1869

Primarily because of his work to complete arrangements for the erection of the new steel stadium and the improvement of the new school athletic field in Sunset addition, Mr. Bullington's name took first place as the most useful citizen in meritorious personal service and in ideas for the good of the community.

He has worked also in all civic enterprises, and taken a leading part in the work of organizations serving Wichita Falls. Among his recent achievements was winning the Older boys state conference for this city and he has been tireless in his efforts to make the conference a success.

To quote a nominating letter in connection with the 14.7 acre athletic field site:

Stadium Work

"It was mainly through his personal efforts that arrangements were completed. . . . He worked out all sorts of details which involved titles to the properties, and he made contacts between the city administration and the board of education which resulted in a satisfactory arrangement for the grading of the grounds and the erection of the stadium at a very nominal actual expense. This plant, when completed, will have a value of some $30,000 and will be a credit to the

W. T. C. C. Sets Worth In '31 at 23 Million

STAMFORD, Texas, Jan. 8. (UP)—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce values its work during 1931 at $23,224,784. It set the valuation today, in the first 1932 issue of its magazine West Texas Today.

A balance sheet published in the magazine lists four items on which the chamber saved money for West Texas:

Obtaining loans of $2,403,300 on 15,000 farms; obtaining exemptions of $1,125,000 on 150,000 bales of West Texas cotton; obtaining government collateralization of $1,125,000 on 75,000 bales, and obtaining Red Cross drouth relief aid of $104,422.

S. L. & S. F. Dividends Passed by Directors

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—Directors of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway company at their meeting here today took no action on the preferred dividend due at this time.

The amission of the payment was expected in Wall street in view of the serious inroads made by the depression in the system's earnings. The last payment, a quarterly disbursement of $1.50 was made in November. The common dividend was omitted in March of last year. Until the omission today, Frisco paid $6 a year uninterruptedly since 1928 on the preferred stock.

Japan Reiterates Two-Point Policy Regarding U. S. Right in Manchuria

TOKYO, Jan. 8. (UP)—The government received Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's note regarding American rights in Manchuria tonight and immediately made known two important factors in the Japanese policy in China:

1. Although ready to make a direct settlement with the Chinese regime at any time, the government believes the American policy of an "open door" for trade in Manchuria will be benefited by the Japanese desire for creation of new governments in the three eastern provinces of China.

2. Japan will not hesitate to take drastic action, such as the landing of marines or even the establishment of blockades and seizure of some customs stations, to combat the anti-Japanese boycott in China, where Japanese traders have suffered immense losses.

Those points were made known at the end of a day of rapid-fire developments, beginning with this morning's bomb attack on Emperor Hirorito and involving the formal resignation of the month-old cabinet of Premier Inukai. The cabinet resignation was a necessary gesture in connection with the theory that the ministers are responsible for the safety of the emperor.

It was considered certain that Inukai would be commissioned to continue in power, without important cabinet changes.

The Japanese reply to Secretary Stimson's note will be conciliatory, it was understood.

ANNUAL C-C RALLY DRAWS GREAT CROWD

Wichita Well Prepared For New Industrial Era, Says Dyer

DIRECTORS ELECTED

Stayton, Sherrill, Crump, Hargett, Featherston, Humphrey Named

Overflowing the capacity of the Memorial auditorium, more than 3,200 people attending the annual chamber of commerce meeting, Friday night heard W. M. McGregor and Grover Bullington proclaimed the most useful citizens in Wichita Falls during 1931.

Both men were presented silver loving cups offered by the Advertising club in accordance with a custom established several years ago.

Mr. McGregor, president of the First National bank, was adjudged the man whose financial and philanthropic service to the community had been most outstanding.

Mr. Bullington, of Lee, Bullington and Mason, insurance and bonds, won recognition as the Wichitan whose personal service and ideas for the good of the community had been greatest during the year.

New Directors

The names of six new directors, elected by the membership, were announced. They are Burton Stayton, J. N. Sherrill, E. M. Crump, J. S. Hargett, C. H. Featherston and Leslie Humphrey. With the nine holdover directors the six will meet next Tuesday night to elect officers and a director.

For 30 minutes before the formal program opened Friday night, 30 members of the Cowboy band of Simmons university, directed by D. O. Wiley, entertained with the stirring music which has spread fame of the organization across the United States and Europe.

Pungent harmonies of the Texas plains were varied with classical selections and with an effective medley of world war tunes, Frank Kell left his seat on the stage to ask Director Wiley for "Dixie." The band responded with enthusiasm and the 3,000 hearers cheered wildly.

The musical program reached a climax in an uproarious version of a 'possum hunt, hailed with such insistent applause that an encore was forced.

The band was picturesquely costumed in chaps, boots, 10-gallon hats and yellow shirts, and played before a colorful backdrop depicting a typical Texas cowboy camp.

Rev. S. S. McKenney of the First Methodist church, president of the Ministerial alliance, gave the invocation. President J. L. Jackson Jr. welcomed the members and guests and, after a final number from the band, gave his annual report of the achievements of the organization.

Dr. Gus W. Dyer, professor of political economy in Vanderbilt university and agricultural magazine editor, was the principal speaker. He prefaced his address on modern industrial conditions with a series of anecdotes and observations delivered in a decidedly Rogersque manner. He succeeded in throwing his hearers into recurrent gales of laughter on the subject of the depression before launching into his more serious discussion.

Dr. Dyer asserted that the ensuing 25 years will see the larger cities severely taxed to hold their own as population and industrial centers because, he declared, the economic advantage definitely has swung to the smaller cities and rural communities.

"There is going to be the greatest competition in industry that this country ever has seen. It is coming to the South. The next two years will witness a tremendous increase in this movement. Locations for new factories are now being sought, because their owners find it prohibitive longer to maintain such plants in large cities. Industries want above all else protection of their constitutional rights to freedom of contract, and a brand of genuine Americanism to guarantee such protection," the speaker said.

Industry Moves to Country

Decentralization of society and industry, as a result of the gasoline-electricity revolution, means that people are going to be reestablished in suburban and rural sections, Dr. Dyer said.

"People are waking now to the fact that they can own 10 acres of choice land a few minutes' drive from the city square for the same money they have to pay for a small lot cramped up near the business section. If they think the latter is a better location, it is because they still are thinking of the horse-and-buggy age. Fifteen miles out is no further with our present conveniences than a mile out was in the past generation. The heads of great industries, such as Henry Ford, have seen what is coming, and already are urging their employes to live on small tracts of ground whose produce will make their earnings purely supplemental in the matter of making a living."

"Wichita Falls already has made splendid preparation for the new era which is upon us," the speaker continued. "This irrigated valley development is far more significant than you com-

BRIDGE TOURNEY ENDS WITH CULBERTSON WINNER BY 8,980

FIVE WEEKS OF BIDDING OVER

Forcing Systemers Add Little to Lead

By GERALDINE FITCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (US) — Three men and a woman rose tonight from a table that has, for 20 nights, known its sitters as north, south, west and east. They had just finished playing the most publicized bridge tournament in the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson won this famous marathon with a score of 8,980 points above that of their opponents, Sidney S. Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett Jr., at the end of the 150th rubber. The final session began in the 145th rubber, with the Culbertsons' score at 8,770. It was all over at 11:30—all but the excitement.

Players Shake Hands

In the modernistic bridge salon, blazing with lights, on the fifth floor of the Waldorf-Astoria, the four players shook hands. Lenz said:

"Well, you've won, Ely, but it doesn't prove anything."

That appeared to be the prevailing verdict on this much-ballyhooed battle of two rival bidding systems in the glorious game of contract bridge.

For five weeks the Culbertsons, reinforced by four men substitutes for Mrs. Culbertson, have been blazing away for the Culbertson approach forcing system of bidding. For the same five weeks Lenz, playing first with Oswald Jacoby and later with Commander Liggett, has been championing the so-called official, or one-two-three system of bidding.

Is Anything Proved?

Does the outcome prove which system is the better? That is the question still to be fought out as it bounces from bridge club to bridge table around the world.

As soon as the match ended, the referees, headed by Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, of West Point, announced that the $1,000 check Sidney Lenz wagered against Culbertson's $5,000 had been endorsed and turned over to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children.

Visitors at the final session became unruly in their efforts to get a peep at the players. The protecting screen swayed with the weight of bodies pressed against it.

Began Dec. 7

The bridge battle of the century, a phrase popular among the sloganmakers, began on Dec. 7, and continued for 20 sessions, at an average of four sessions a week. Of the 150 rubbers, the Culbertson team won 77 and the Lenz team 73.

The play was consistently enlivened by verbal battles among the players, displays of temperament, and accusations that neither team was playing strictly according to their own system.

Through it all, the only member who remained calm was Mrs. Culbertson. She played 88 rubbers with her husband, which fact has won many a bridge playing housewife to the Culbertson system, and acted as mediator when rows flared up.

The other rubbers were shared with Culbertson by Theodore Lightner, Waldemar von Zedwitz, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken. When play entered the 103rd rubber Lenz's partner, young Oswald Jacoby, resigned from the match, complaining he was being unjustly criticized by Lenz for his bidding. It was then that Commander Liggett entered the game and helped pile up score for Lenz.

For the entire match the total honor-tricks held were:
Culbertson, 3,649½; Lenz, 3,648.
The total by the "official system" no-trump count was:
Culbertson, 18,091; Lenz, 17,898.
The total aces held were:
Culbertson, 1,745; Lenz, 1,771.
The total kings held were:
Culbertson, 1,775; Lenz, 1,741.

Negro Held For Burglary

New Charges Filed Against Suspect Here

Burglary charges were filed Friday against Frank Allen, negro already under two misdemeanor complaints in connection with a series of clothesline robberies here.

The felony charge was brought after Lewis Krc, living on the Wichita-Archer county border, identified two automobile casings taken from his garage on Jan. 2. Mr. Krc said prowlers had broken into the structure.

The tires were among a quantity of loot found in the servant house occupied by Allen. Two Wichita Falls women Thursday identified part of the clothing recovered as garments stolen from their clotheslines. A large number of shirts, some linen and towels, and other articles had not been claimed late Friday.

Police were expecting a woman to identify a valuable pair of nickleplated spurs found in the negro's house. The owner called to inquire about them Friday morning but did not put in her appearance during the day.

Detectives Luke Hart and Noah Daves recovered still more goods at the same place Friday morning.

Man Faces Charge In Overcoat Theft

Apprehended by city officers shortly after the alleged theft of an overcoat from a local department store Friday afternoon, a man was charged with theft over $5 in a complaint received by County Attorney Louis V. Abernathy.

A clerk in the establishment was said to have seen the man take the overcoat, and followed him from the store. The defendant eluded his pursuer, it was reported, but was recognized. The coat was not recovered when officers took the man into custody.

Two persons entered pleas of guilty before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law to charges of swindling by check. One was fined $1 and costs, the other fined $1 and costs and was given one day in the county jail.

1932 Program of Work for Junior C-C Approved by Members

Membership of the Wichita Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce Friday endorsed the program of work for 1932 as outlined by a special program committee.

The year's activities, as outlined in the adopted schedule, will involve work for business and industrial development, help toward the expansion of retail trade and stabilization of the oil business; assistance in the progress of aviation; and cooperation in obtaining conventions and entertaining the delegates.

C. H. Featherston was the principal speaker at the luncheon, the first membership meeting of the year.

Plans for the membership drive, to be staged along with the senior campaign Jan. 13-16, were laid before the organization. H. R. Cramer will act as general chairman with Kendel Paulk, Anderson Kemp, P. R. Freeman, and W. R. Creamer leading the four main divisions.

The campaign for both the senior and the junior organizations will be launched with a breakfast to be served workers on the morning of Jan. 13, Wednesday of next week.

shore patrol to the office of city and County Attorney James F. Gilliland.

Neither Mrs. Fortescue, Massie nor Lord made any admission of guilt at the conference.

After attorneys had been obtained for the three Mrs. Fortescue told newspaper men she had been down town shopping and knew nothing of what had happened to Kahahawai. Massie and Lord refused to discuss the affair.

Sheriff Gleason announced efforts would be made to have Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and Lord indicted tomorrow.

The killing was the second case of violence attributed to the attack. A few days ago Horace Ida, a Japanese, was seized by 20 men, taken out of the city and given a benting. None of his assailants thus far have been identified.

A second attack on a white woman a week ago intensified public feeling and caused Gov. Lawrence M. Judd to instruct the Hawaii national guard to cooperate with police in cleaning up the city. Lui Kaikapui, a Hawaiian burglary convict who had escaped from prison, was identified by the second white woman as her attacker and was returned to prison.

Facing a threatened boycott by the navy when the Pacific fleet comes to mid-Pacific next month for its maneuvers, Honolulu civic organizations were cooperating with authorities in attempting to clean up the city when Kahahawai met his fate.

Governor Judd had been informed by Rear Admiral Ross C. Sterling, commandant of the 14th naval district, on behalf of the navy department that the fleet would not be allowed shore leave in Honolulu unless official word forthcoming it had been cleared of its undesirable elements.

DEMOS LAUNCH 1932 CAMPAIGN

Leaders Bid Farewell to Republican Rule

said the amendment was "not enforceable, largely because it lacked public approval and public support."

Cox urged the party to meet the issue "candidly and courageously," while Davis advocated return of state power whether it be on prohibition, education or anything else.

Warning that private relief funds can last but a short time and localities can carry the burden but a little longer, Smith said with respect to unemployment "we must absolutely forget politics and we must regard the United States to be in a state of war."

Advocates Bond Issue

He proposed a federal bond issue for necessary public improvements. He likewise called for quick reorganization of the government to cut expenses as a means of cutting the deficit now piling up.

Over 2,000 reservations were made for tonight's dinner. Tables were extended through doors into the corridors of the Mayflower hotel and loud speakers were installed for the benefit of those assigned to seats where the orators could neither be seen nor heard.

While Mr. Smith addressed himself principally to the unemployment situation, Mr. Cox and Dr. Davis directed their views mainly against the Smoot-Hawley tariff, the farm board and the condition of the treasury.

Tariff Assailed

"Under the sheltering pretence" of fulfilling campaign pledges for farm relief, Davis said, "we witnessed the passage of a tariff bill over well night universal protest, fixing rates that beggared the imagination of the most hide-bound protectionist. Every economic and political storm signal was set against this unrighteous measure and yet it was passed and signed."

Cox went even further and blamed the tariff act as one of the major causes of the depression in that it cut off the "vast economic frontier of foreign markets."

"The priviledged class, rich almost beyond estimation, asked for increased dispensations," he said. "Tariff walls went higher. We made it difficult for the world to trade with us, and now American factories are being built abroad."

The Farm Board

Cox said of the farm board:

"The governmental attempt at fixing prices by tariff subsidy proved just as futile and fallacious as the effort directed by the farm board. As a result, relief must now be devised for both the farmer and manufacturer."

On this subject Davis said:

"We witness the mad adventure of the farm board, which was given a pretty toy to play with in the shape of $500,000,000 of the taxpayers' money. With this glittering instrument it attempted in defiance of human experience, past and present, to sweep back the sea and thwart the inexorable play of the law of supply and demand. All its wasteful effort has come to naught. But it has succeeded in one thing. It has convinced the American farmer that once more he has been handed a gold brick of purest brass serene."

Deficit Flayed

On the treasury deficit Davis made this comment: "Let us remember that honest governments, like honest men, have no right to live beyond their means. To what desperate extreme has the disregard of that simple rule brought the country."

Cox, on the same subject, said:

"Nothing but a major operation, a balanced budget, will give us stable recovery in business. "The deficit was inevitable. For years everything has been centering in Washington."

Davis catalogued the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations as the eras of "betrayal, complacency, and dismay."

Davis Oratory

"Betrayal, complacency, and dismay—these words sum up the history," he said. "Behind such leaders the country has been trudging these wan and weary years. Is it any wonder that men are repeating to each other the words of old: 'Can the blind lead the blind? Shall they not both fall in the ditch?'"

Other outstanding Davis thrusts at the Republicans were:

"The Falls, the Forbses, the Millers and the rest had their day, and it was day enough.

"While time after time, as the jaded speculators seemed to waver, they were whipped up to a new frenzy by wholly unprecedented statements from the White House and treasury to the effect that prices were not too high; that brokers' loans were not excessive; that we were in a new economic era, that the promised land was just in sight and all was well.

"We had a rash of commissions, one treading upon another's heels, so fast they followed. Worthy gentlemen in numbers were assembled for this and that and the other purpose. They wagged their heads wisely, emitted or failed to emit learned reports and reached, or sometimes failed to reach, solemn conclusions. Then they disappeared, as commissions ordinarily do, into the dark and outer void from which they came. So far as I know the record, the efforts of no one of them to this date has resulted in a single executive or legislative act."

Speaking of prohibition former Governor Cox said "any institution that has cost our government twenty-five billion dollars and created a super-criminal state, presents a problem that cannot long be deferred. Its very constitutional nature precludes any hope of the Republican politicians giving it straightforward attention."

In an appeal to the South to consider the problem of northern Democrats in dealing with the prohibition issue he said:

"We forced the bloody shirt leaders in the North aside and let the truth go to our people. May we not, now, respectfully ask that you call political ecclesiastics back to their pulpits that the truth may go to your peoples."

He said the Republican party had but "two loyal allies left—privileged business and the Anti-Saloon league."

The Ohioan advocated cooperative devices "maintained by employer and employe" through which industry would support the unemployed workman in slack times.

"If we had done this ten years ago," he said, "the present depression would not have been one half so severe."

Bowers Cites Promises

Bowers in opening the dinner charged the Republicans in 1928 had made many promises which never had been fulfilled. The next campaign, he said, would not bring forth the 1928 Republican banner of "prosperity at home and prestige abroad."

"That has been hurried to the garret, along with the 'full dinner pail' and 'high wages' and 'handsome dividends' and 'a chicken in every pot' to keep lonely vigil with the 'bloody shirt'—that equally edifying and cultural argument of the 'best minds' that rendered such distinguished service to the American intelligence for a quarter of a century."

Turning his oratorical fire on Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, the 1928 keynoter said it was "an amazing spectacle in the closing hours of an administration to find Senator Fess urging upon his party the necessity of selling the head of the administration to the people. There is something humiliating to an American in the thought of selling an administration; it smacks too much of a bankruptcy sale."

William D. Cargill of Brady, Texas, who is here visiting his mother, Mrs. J. R. Cargill, and his sisters, Nora and Ann Cargill, at 1824 Collins street, Friday announced that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state railroad commissioner.

He said he would run on a platform to keep the trucks on the highways and in opposition to domination of the commission by the railroads.

He said that he expected to issue a formal statement within a few days and then start on his campaign.

ed by the president with the approval of the senate.

All loans made by the corporation would be eligible for rediscount by the federal reserve system and help would be given insolvent banks.

Three amendments to the bill were adopted by the senate. One, by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, provides bonds issued by the corporation shall be subject to federal inheritance, estate and gift taxes.

Two others authorize the corporation to render assistance to agriculture credit corporations of the joint stock land banks, and prohibit acceptance of foreign securities as collateral for loans.

GIFFORD SAYS STATES CAN CARE FOR OWN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Insisting each state can care for its own unemployed this winter, Walter S. Gifford, director of President Hoover's relief organization, said today he would favor federal help if it becomes necessary.

He made this statement before the senate manufacturers subcommittee, which also heard new appeals for direct government aid to the jobless from the railway brotherhoods and clothing workers.

Tonight, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reported unemployment was increasing. He said more than 8,000,000 workers now have no jobs and called the total the highest in the history of the nation.

"Winter Is Crisis"

"Thousands of men and women may go down under the hardship of this winter's crisis," he said. "Broken by under-nourishment, despair and defeat they may never again be able to lead normal, self-respecting lives or to earn a living."

Questioned closely by Senators LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Costigan, Democrat, Colorado, Gifford said he had no accurate data on the unemployment situation. He said his report was based on recent telephone communications to state directors.

He expressed a belief that the increase in unemployment had been checked in the fall and would not increase during the winter but he said: "I do not think the unemployment situation is improving."

HOOVER CRITICIZES SEEKERS OF RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Holding up a rigid curtailment of federal expenditures as the "real road to relief," President Hoover today renewed his criticism of sectional interests that seek federal appropriations.

He charged them with responsibility for introduction of bills into the present congress to spend $40,000,000,000 over the next five years in addition to current expenditures.

"We cannot squander ourselves into prosperity," he said.

Nevertheless, the chief executive sounded repeated notes of assurance.

Most of these money bills, he said, will never "see the light of day." Congress, he added, has shown a real desire to cut costs and attain a balanced budget.

Hundreds Flee From Flooded Plantations

GLENDORA, Miss., Jan. 8. (AP)—Driven out of their homes by one of the worst floods in the history of northwestern Mississippi, hundreds of plantation owners and tenent farmers sought refuge in higher communities tonight while rescue operations continued in the lowlands.

Thousands of acres of rich farm land lay under floodwater that has broken levee after levee in spreading over three counties.

Heavy losses of livestock and other farm property, and food and feed supplies were reported.

Statesman Will Leave Service

lic life and his colorful utterances upon public occasions are almost as well known abroad as in this country. He had hardly reached London before he startled staid diplomatic circles by his disregard for formalities.

"After I have completed the general work which our government has in mind for me at Geneva as chairman of the American delegation," Dawes said, "I do not expect to remain for technical work which will be taken up co-jointly with the disarmament experts.

To Resume Banking

"I shall then resign as ambassador to Great Britain and return to Chicago where I will take up my old work as a banker and become chairman of the board of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. After a long absence in official positions, I am looking forward to the renewal of by old associations and to life as a private citizen of Chicago."

Dawes said that after a few days in Chicago he would return to Washington to discuss with other members of the disarmament conference delegation their program at Geneva before sailing Jan. 20.

Prone to strong language at the most unexpected times, his public utterances have been a gift to the nation's headline writers.

Chuckles still are heard over the time recently when returning to Washington from London newspaper men inquired about his personal dress abroad and were told to "go plumb to hell."

Through his service as vice president in command of the senate, the same blunt language kept him continually in the public eye. He had hardly taken his gavel in hand before he told the senate he intended to do something about their wrangling and seek a change of rules. The affront which the senate took at this remark, however, was forgotten and he left the dias as one of the most popular vice presidents.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, tonight declared the Dawes resignation "a serious loss to the country."

President Hoover remained silent tonight upon Dawes' announcement of his intention.

It was understood unofficially, however, that White House officials had been informed of the ambassador's intended retirement, but had not been informed of the exact time he would announce it.

High ranking officials of the state department received news of the resignation with complete surprise. They said they had had no intimations of an impending immediate resignation and expressed regret it had been announced in advance of the Geneva conference.

Fourth Man in Bank Burglary to Be Tried

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Jan. 8. (AP)—Ike Wethered, fourth man indicted in connection with the burglary of the First State bank of Dundee, faces trial in Archer county in February.

Hunter Russell, Irvin Spicer and Kelly Hunt were tried at the November term of district court and given 10 years each in the penitentiary.

Arrest of Wethered in Fort Worth ended a great man hunt conducted by Sheriff Fred McDaniel of Archer county and other county officials for 12 months. It covered four states.

Wethered was turned over to the Abilene sheriff yesterday by Fort Worth officers.

Murder Suspected After Body Found on Road

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 8. (AP)—Investigation into the supposed murder last night of John T. Calhoun, 50-year-old cotton truck helper, continued here tonight with Coroner B. E. Gray withholding a verdict until tomorrow. He said he believed the man had been beaten to death with a heavy club. Some believed him the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

The body was found early today about two feet from the pavement of a country road just north of the city limits.

SAGINAW, Mich., Jan. 8. (AP)—Joseph Warren Fordney, 78, former congressman, joint author of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, died here today.

the federal government powers or duties that can as well be performed by the several states.

Should Wipe Out Bureaus

"Third: We should wipe out innumerable boards and bureaus and discharge an army of spies, snoopers and tax-eaters.

"Fourth: We should cease attempting to either promote, regulate or destroy the business of the United States. By that I do not mean we should repeal the laws against combinations in restraint of trade, for such laws are themselves protective of trade. Upon the contrary, those laws should be strengthened and every attempt at monopoly or unfair trade practices should be in the interests of fair trade, strictly prohibited and punished.

Criticizes Speculators

"Fifth: We should demand that the federal reserve banking system should no longer be made the agent and banker of the stock gambling hells of the nation; and the fraudulent practices of those institutions should be prohibited and punished.

"Sixth: We should immediately lower tariff exactions, and as rapidly as the revenue exigencies of our government will permit, wipe them out. This must be accomplished in order:

a. To relieve the present burdens of our people:

b. In order that our manufacturing industries may be able to compete in the markets of the world, thus furnishing employment for American labor.

Urges State Rule

"Seventh: The laws regulating the habits and lives of the people, insofar as such laws should ever be passed, should be left to the several states; such doctrine or state sovereignty in its high and proper sense should be restored."

Reed, known for frequent vitriolic verbal attacks on prohibition at no time in his address referred directly to the issue which may receive attention at this summer's convention.

Deploring that the government "is today sailing the uncharged seas of regulation and experimentation," Reed charged that unwise tariff legislation had made it possible for manufacturers to combine "amongst themselves so as to extort the last possible dollar from a helpless population."

He assailed entry of government into the cotton and wheat markets through the federal farm board, "Resulting in a general paralysis in the markets for farm products."

a single-handed crusade Thursday, brought in two additional contributions of $25 each, one from J. I. Staley and the other from J. R. Parkey.

Employes of the Railway Express agency sent in a joint contribution of $10 and the North Texas Geological society added $10. Saul's store answered the appeal with a gift of $15 for the fund, and there were many other substantial contributions.

The lunch fund is being expended under the direction of the P.-T. A. council and school officials for the benefit of nearly 200 children who are unable to bring lunch to school and who have no funds to buy lunch. Without the help of the lunch fund, these children, most of them under 10 years of age, would be compelled to go from eight to 12 hours without food.

A warm and nourishing little luncheon can be bought at school cafeterias for five cents, and 10 cents will provide a bottle of milk as well as the luncheon. In an effort to help P.-T. A. leaders raise the funds for these hungry children as speedily as possible, The Record News and Daily Times have opened their columns for public contributions. Generous Wichita Falls residents have given more than $800 to the fund in three days. Any sum from five cents on up will be accepted and acknowledged by these newspapers. Contributions may be sent to The Record News, using the coupon which appears in this paper, or handed to Lester Jones, treasurer of the fund, at the Wichita State bank.

Services Saturday For Hospital Trusty

Survivors include a widow at Willis and two daughters, Mrs. H. C. Goodman, Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. C. K. McClure, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. McDonald had gone fishing early Thursday and is believed to have slipped into the waters of the creek. The body was recovered after a search by the sheriff's department.

They clamored for second helpings of UNCLE WILLIAM'S BEANS

Uncle William was an obscure eating house owner in a mountain mining town, until one day he served a marvelous new dish.

Beans they were—but such beans! Great, plump, brown, mountain-grown beauties, rich and meaty, cooked to the most appetizing mellowness and smothered in a glorious sauce, whose secret only Uncle William knew.

Far and near, people begged Uncle William for Brown Beauty Beans. So he arranged to have them canned. Your grocer has them on his shelves today. Telephone him and ask him to send you a can and the recipe folder that comes with them.

SHELBY BONDS RULED VALID

Federal Circuit Court Reverses Verdict

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8. (AP)—Reversing a verdict of the federal district court for eastern Texas, the U. S. circuit court of appeals today held a $255,000 issue of Shelby county (Texas) road and bridge bonds to be only partially valid because the aggregate of such bonds issued by the county exceeded the constitutional limiting which could legally be secured by taxation.

Under the ruling, the bonds' interest coupons were held to be "invalid in the same proportion as the bonds."

Bank Brings Suit

The ruling resulted from the suit of the Provident Savings Bank and Trust company of Cincinnati against Shelby county and the county officers to recover $3,250 past due interest coupons on a large block of the bonds, issued in 1925.

The lower court, by directed verdict, held the bonds valid and rendered full judgment to the bank. The appeal to the circuit court was taken by Shelby officers who challenged validity of the coupons on grounds that the bonds were not voted by the taxpayers and that the issue exceeded the legal limit.

The bonds were issued under a 1925 act of the Texas legislature authorizing the funding of Shelby county road and bridge debts incurred prior to March 1, 1925, with the stipulations that the bonds should not exceed the legal limit and that it would not be necessary to submit the issue to the taxpayers for a vote.

Two Issues

The first issue of the authorized bonds was for $64,459, secured by a 5.6-cent tax per $100 property assessment for payment of interest and retirement of principal.

The second issue, out of which the litigation arose, was for $255,765 secured by a 23-cent tax per $100 property assessment.

The bank brought suit when payment of interest coupons on the latter issue was refused in October, 1928.

The circuit court cited a Texas constitutional provision forbidding a county from levying a tax exceeding 15 cents per $100 for road and bridge purposes, and asserted that since 5.6 cents had been used to secure the first issue, only 9.4 was available to secure the second.

"The bonds in question," the decision said, "were valid only to the extent that the authorized annual ad valorem tax of 9.4 cents on $100 was sufficient to provide the interest and prescribed sinking fund. The interest coupons sued on are invalid in the same proportion that the bonds from which they were detached were invalid. The aggregate amount of the bonds was greater than was authorized by the act under which they were issued.

"The amount recoverable on those coupons should be settled contradictory between the parties."

Maneuver Under Way to Place Garner on Ticket With Roosevelt

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (US)—A naive maneuver (obviously of Roosevelt inspiration) will undoubtedly prove of great interest to people of Texas and the South generally.

It is suggested that John Nance Garner would make a good running mate for Franklin D. Roosevelt on the Democratic presidential ticket.

The proposition is important. It reflects the deep concern of Mr. Roosevelt's supporters. Garner's growing popularity among Democratic leaders is unquestioned. Many of these leaders believe he would make a stronger and more appealing candidate for president than Mr. Roosevelt.

Roosevelt's move therefore is properly interpreted as a move to prevent the disintegration of their forces in the southern states. No greater compliment could have been paid the men who prefer Mr. Garner to Mr. Roosevelt than this evidence of perturbation among the supporters of the New York governor.

Until a week ago, it seemed absolutely certain that Mr. Roosevelt would win the support of the southern states without a struggle. His chances now are not so good.

The advent of Mr. Garner as a most attractive presidential candidate explains the reasons for the change.

Several "Garner for President" clubs already have been started in many sections of Texas. Admirers of the speaker in Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and a number of other southern states have set about creating organizations to advance his presidential interests.

It is not unlikely that during the next two or three months this wave of favoring sentiment will extend to other parts of the country.

Reports from the Northwest and other sections also clearly indicate a decided leaning toward the Texan.

In the western sections of the country the speaker has developed an impressive following. One reason is that the Westerners regard him as one of their own. Some of them refer to him as a "western-southerner" or, to put it the other way, "a south-westerner."

Cowboy Band and Simmons U. Prexy Visit at Mankins

Special to The Record News

MANKINS, Texas, Jan. 8.—Dr. J. D. Sandifer, president of Simmons university at Abilene, and the Simmons Cowboy band stopped briefly here this afternoon while en route to Wichita Falls.

Dr. Sandifer addressed school children and citizens of the town at the high school building. The Cowboy band gave a short concert in the presence of a crowded house.

The college president, in his talk, urged to his younger hearers the necessity of obtaining an education. Ultimate satisfaction and recompense of learning more than pay for the embarrassment of students whose years are in advance of grades they should be in at that age, he said.

Dr. Sandifer complimented Mankins upon its high school, which, he said, is among the best of its size in the state.

Rain at Chillicothe Is 55 Feet in 26 Years

Special to The Record News

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Jan. 8.—Fifty-five feet of water has fallen in Chillicothe during the past 26 years, or 661.58 inches, declared observer C. W. Underwood, who furnished the information.

The average rainfall per year over a period of 26 years amounts to 25.44 inches and a fraction, while for the last 10 years the average is slightly lower, being 24.76 inches.

The year 1931, figures reveal, Chillicothe received only 19.97 inches, and most of that fell during the last few months of the year.

HOOVER NAMES NEW JUDGES

Crime Commission Member Wins Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Kenneth Mackintosh of Seattle, Wash., a former member of the Wickersham commission, was named today by President Hoover as United States circuit judge for the ninth circuit.

The ninth circuit embraces California, Oregon, Nevada, Montana, Washington, Idaho, Arizona, Alaska and Hawaii.

Charles G. Briggle, Springfield, Ill., was appointed United States district judge for the southern district of Illinois.

Charles C. Simmons, Detroit, Mich., was appointed United States circuit judge for the sixth circuit. This circuit includes Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The president also reappointed Theodore W. Hukride as United States marshal for the eastern district of Missouri.

In the long list of those who endorsed Mackintosh were three members of the Wickersham commission, Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school, and Frank J. Loesch of Chicago.

Mackintosh's name had been mentioned prominently for the post but there was a mixup, only the straightening out of which resulted in his appointment.

He is 56 years of age and graduated from Leland Stanford university at about the same time as President Hoover. He was chief justice of the Washington state supreme court from 1927 to 1929.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Among bills that showered into the house hopper by the thousand when the 72nd congress convened was one, H. R. 4593, that sought to revive a project dated back beyond the first congress.

It was introduced by Representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania "To establish the University of the United States."

The original suggestion dates back to Washington's camp at Cambridge in 1775. It is attributed to Samuel Blodgett and was put forward to make amends for the damage done New England colleges by colonial militiamen quartered therein during the revolutionary war.

Hailing a Prophet

Washington hailed Blodgett as "a prophet, inspired to speak" and never forgot the project.

He urged it upon the first congress, selected a site bordering on the Potomac for the university when he planned Washington as the national capital.

And, failing to obtain congressional action, the first president left a bequest of $25,000 in shares of "The Potomac company" to carry out his dream.

One hundred and fifty-six years after that first suggestion, the national university project is no further advanced, save for Representative Kelly's bill.

That bill is a memorial to John Wesley Hoyt, who devoted his life to forwarding the national university project, a memorial for which Kelper Hoyt of this city, his son, is largely responsible.

Many other bills have sought establishment of the university. Piles of dust-covered hearings and committee reports lies on congressional shelves.

No adverse action has ever been taken. Yet nothing has been done. The Hoyt of today and Representative Kelly hope only to get the project again to the attention of congress, awakening it from the slumber in which it has lain since Dr. Hoyt's death in 1912.

Reviving an Inspiration

By terms of the Kelly bill, an appropriation of $25,000, "the amount of George Washington's bequest for a national university, plus interest thereon at 6 per centum compounded annually, from July 9, 1799, the date of his late will and testament," would be provided.

What actually became of the bequest Dr. Hoyt was unable to discover. The Kelly bill assumes that it has vanished due to neglect by the federal government.

Dr. Hoyt spent half of his more than 80 years of life fostering the national university movement. His son, now in advanced middle life, seeks to prevent entombment of that work in the dust of government files.

Price of the 'Fix'

THE sad plight of Chicago, which has been slipping nearer and nearer to the edge of downright bankruptcy, ought to be a final warning, a last object lesson for the American people, about the evils of municipal party politics.

When Judge Jarecki the other day threw out the tax assessment rolls of 1928 and 1929 with the remark that the evidence of fraud blew into his court "like a blizzard," he added the final bit of evidence to prove that partisan politics can be altogether too expensive a luxury for a modern city.

The present government of Chicago is doing all that it can do to remedy matters. It is acting wisely and with energy. But most of the damage has been done.

Chicago today is paying the price for years of acquiescence in rule by unscrupulous politicians. And what makes the affair of nation-wide interest is the fact that Chicago simply magnifies conditions that are present in nearly every American city. Chicago has done what most of the rest of us have done—only on a bigger scale.

Political rule is almost inseparable from the fix. The fix is in evidence in almost every department of most city governments. If you know the right man you can get a traffic ticket taken care of, you can get out of jury duty, you can get this, that or the other little favor; and if your friend is influential enough, you can get your real estate assessment arranged as you would like to have it arranged.

That is what happened in Chicago. Tax assessment rolls were fixed and fixed and fixed, year after year—until, finally, the courts threw them out and ordered the job done over again. Politics interfered with the new assessment, and now that has been thrown out likewise; and Chicago's finances are in a dire plight.

There isn't anything surprising in all of this. Politics played fast and loose with Chicago's city government, and Chicago today is paying the price. There is a tremendous lesson in the whole business for other cities.

$700,000,000 for Ships?

PATRIOTIC Americans who believe in seeing their country's defenses properly maintained, and who also have a due regard for the state of the federal treasury, will have to do some earnest and protracted thinking during the next month or so. The new naval bill recently introduced by Congressman Carl Vinson, embodying the plans of the navy's general board, is a case in point.

This bill seeks the expenditure of $700,000,000 on naval construction, involving 120 new ships. The program is not quite as stupendous as it sounds, as most of the proposed ships would simply replace obsolete tonnage; indeed, it would be easy to defend it as a moderate and sensible plan for maintaining the navy at its proper strength.

But the present is a very bad time for proposing $700,000,000 worth of naval construction. The federal deficit has got to be reduced. Is it to the best interests of the nation to put the navy's needs ahead of those of the treasury?

Our Living Standard

THE long awaited report on comparative living costs for American and European workmen, compiled by the international labor office at the request of Henry Ford, who wanted to know how much he should pay his European employes to put them on a par with his workers in Detroit, has at last been made public. It is a highly interesting document.

Living costs in Detroit are shown to be substantially higher than those abroad. Those of the Paris factory hand, for instance, are only about 80 per cent of those of the Detroiter; in Manchester, the figure is about 75 per cent; in Berlin, slightly below 90 per cent. Part of America's high wages are eaten up by higher living costs.

But not all. The report shows that the American enjoys a far higher standard of living. Autos, electric refrigerators and washing machines have a part in the American's life. The European workman never sees them.

Fewer Farms, More Forests

THE annual report of Robert B. Stuart, U. S. forester in the Pacific Northwest, contains an idea that is well worth consideration in a land where agriculture has been ailing for so long. For it is Mr. Stuart's idea that the nation needs fewer farms and more forests, and he says:

"More land has been brought under cultivation than can be farmed, if the farming is well done, without creating burdensome agricultural surpluses. Public policies now are taking shape to reclothe with forests lands on which agriculture no longer can be practiced successfully, and cut-over lands formerly thought to be destined for agricultural use."

In view of the plight of the farmer and the steady dwindling of our timber supply, here is a proposal that deserves a great deal of thought.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(And I'm sorry I learned)

That the U. S. Gov't is "doing everything" to aid the jobless—yet the nation's postoffices are shy 50,000 needed workers. What's more, the G. P. O. at 8th Ave., New York, has installed a machine. It sells stamps.

That the singing of "The Wearin' of the Green" was once a prison offense in Ireland.

That on the Bowery, New York, for a quarter, you can get a dormitory bed. For an extra dime—you can have a private room!

That the lone bench in Washington Square, especially "Reserved for Women and Babies Only," is always filled—with men.

That the local girlesk shows advertise in Chinese rags—because more Orientals patronize the shows sponsored by white flesh peddlers.

That the director of Yerkes Observatory is blind.

That James Otis, patriot, often expressed the desire that he be struck dead by lightning...He was!

That Brooklyn cops chopped through a brick wall to save a pussy-cat and got it freed safe and sound. Then they killed it!

That King George is barred from the house of commons sessions.

That Omar Khayyam's real name was Abu-Z-Fath Umar Ibn Al-Khayyami Ghivath Al-Din and that Omar's Rubaiyat—(the original Persian work, I mean), is a mediocre work!!! (Ask authorities, then!)

That granite is the hardest of rocks, diamonds the hardest of minerals. Thick Broadwayites have the hardest of heads—and Wall street brokers, as you know, have the hardest of hearts.

That because they thought he was a Christian, Max Reinhardt has been blessed by various men of the cloth. But Max—in case you didn't know, and you probably did—is really Moses Goldman!

That Bill Cody (Buffalo Bill) couldn't even shoot straight!

That a letter mailed from one rim of the Grand Canyon to the other—about 10 miles apart—must travel 1,505 miles, through four states, before it can be delivered.

That Arabic numerals are of Hindu origin.

That 16,000,000 tons of rain and snow fall upon the earth each second of the day! In other figures—1,382,400,000,000 tons a day! Proof? Yeah! See "The Realm of the Air" (Bobbs-Merrill).

That the Chinese code forbids red autos. (Religious reasons).

That the late Doc W. F. Carver (world's greatest rifle shot) was the rightful owner of all the land in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

That New York's new $562,000 fireboat, the Harvey, hailed as the best and most modern of all such craft in the world, hasn't a radio!

That when you're ice-skating you steer by turning—the head!

That the Lorentz-Fitzgerald theory means simply that a Pullman car is shorter when in motion than when standing still.

That Edgar ("On the Spot") Wallace, an orphan at 9 days, was adopted by a couple, who, wanting a girl, mistook Edgar for such.

That in France, once, it was indelicate to mention a lady's kerchief. (Haw! In France, yet! Where they go places to do things!)

That "niece" formerly referred to any relative—even male. That "bachelor" once applied to unmarried femmes, as well, and that a shirt—in other days—meant a petticoat. Whoops!

That once it was against the law in Massachusetts to celebrate Christmas. Punishable by prison and fine.

That the longest word without a vowel is rhythm.

That cats can't see better in the dark. They can, however, see better in the twilight—but so can I. (Meowwwwww!)

The Lucrezia Borgia was not a prisoner nor a murderess. Her contemporaries wrote very highly of her.

That if you laid all the paragraphers who can't think up an idea of their own from end to end, what a wonderful sight it would be.

That a good many of the collar ornaments worn by the U. S. marines have stamped on the opp. side "Made in England." Why?

That Hellinger has 11 namesakes—all of them being tailors, and florists, and all are listed in the East.

That if ever you are on a murder jury, never convict. I mean if the case concerns a man who isn't a gangster, of course, but one who, in a heat of temper, kills a tormentor. Because I saw a pest nearly killed that way last night. And I'm sorry he wasn't, too.

That Bermuda, which bars autos, has one of 'em.

That Greta Garbo certainly has more reason than you know to run from new photographers. (Tell it here later.)

And that the newest gag around is: "Have you heard the latest joke?" The victim says: "No. What?"

Then you say: "Happy New Year!"

Of All Answers!

Harry Hershfield told a gag in 1918. It made the rounds and still is amusing, but it is stale.

George Jessel now uses it and claims it as his own, and Hershfield was so advised. He put up a squawk.

Jessel's lawyer, however, alibied: "My client only claims the revival rights!"

Times are so tough, reminds Russ King, that many a Goodtime Cholly this year will hold his New Year's party at home on his lap.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE BOTTLE OF NOTHING—Scientists of the General Electric company were called upon a short time ago to provide a large bulb enclosing a vacuum for the christening of the new General Electric airplane. A "bottle of nothing" was found to be the most desirable substitute for the usual bottle of champagne, to be broken over the nose of the plane.

The scientists pumped the air from the 73-cubic-inch bulb, making the vacuum 99.999,999 per cent perfect. Although this vacuum would to the lay mind appear to be perfect, the General Electric scientists maintain that approximately 370 trillion gas molecules escaped when the bulb was broken.

CHAPTER LIV

"Jan" — sternly—"Jan, don't. I can't stand it. You're right. We won't talk about the past. Tell me you love me, Jan. Tell me. Say it. Oh, God, honey, make me believe it!"

The hands dropped and she turned her eyes up to him. "How can life do such a thing to people?" she said slowly. "I have never loved any one but you."

For a long time they sat silent, hands numb in each other's tight clasp, like people who meet in ecstasy after a long journey and have so much to say that silence falls between them.

"You know I will do anything for you," said Jan again, and she bent and kissed his hands, over and over, as often as he would let her.

"Then you will keep quiet," said Ace Wilfong. "You will not say anything to anybody. Understand that?"

She nodded. "Ace—can you—do you think you'll ever forgive me, ever love me again?"

"There is no talk of forgiving between you and me," said the gambler, "and I didn't love you just for better. I loved you when I thought you were a saint in heaven, and I would love you just the same in hell. But I will not let you go there. And I cannot speak my love like I want to. I have not got the words. But I could not stop loving you any more than a mother can stop loving her baby. And marriage is not—marriage like ours where there is love—is not just something you say is true. It is true. It is just as eternal as—fatherhood or motherhood. And I would protect you if I could, Jan, like a mother would protect her baby."

That much, that much only, he allowed himself to say. And it was very little, considering the task of silence ahead of him, the task to which he had set himself and meant to set her.

"I—I would take my heart out, Ace, and show it to you—I—"

But he would not let her go on. Old man Mullaly, hearing no more words from them, came in. They turned and faced him, and he thought he had never seen two faces so ashy white.

"Scotty's out here," he said, "and your sister says Miss Ashe maybe had better come home and try to get some sleep."

"I—won't go," said Jan quickly. Then, almost in wonder, "You must stay here, Ace. Here! Mr. Mullaly, where will he—sleep? Oh—." The cry was like a moan.

"Don't you fret, Miss Ashe," said the old jailer, "I expect we can fix him up fairly comfortable."

But the gray eyes would not be comforted. She might not take him home with her to comfort him, to hold him in her arms, his head pillowed upon her breast, pouring out her love, abasing herself and her pride, yearning, striving to express the great love and dawning penitence of her heart.

For where had her freedom led him? She must leave him—here.

And, somehow, she did.

When alone Ace said to Scotty, "Thank you for coming so quick. I had not meant for Bill to get you out of bed tonight."

"I was glad to come," said Scotty. "What can I do?"

"I thought this might change things," said Ace. "Even if he would not tell before, he might see it different now. There is a—need."

Scott nodded. "I will try again," he said.

The sleepless night marched to a fog-choked dawn. And in its half-light, Stephen Ashe's daughter and the king of the gamblers faced the army of thoughts that had marshaled against them in the darkness.

Ace, still sitting by the oak table since he had chosen to spend the night there, saying that he would have plenty of time, no doubt, to become acquainted with his cell, strengthened his resolve. But to Jan the disconsolate dawn brought so sharp a longing to have her father beside her in this hour that she could scarcely keep from crying it aloud.

The rallying of the clan to Ace Wilfong was a quick, but silent business. In fewer days than it took the grand jury to indict him, the underworld high and low stood in solid and impassive ranks behind the gambler, ready to battle to the death for him.

They did not make so much noise about it as did Ace's opponents of the church and state, who sent forth a very good imitation of the ancient hue and cry and loudly demanded Ace's life as forfeit and example. Ace's followers were used to moving inconspicuously. But if it was men Ace needed, or money, or any influence at their command, they were his to an unlimited degree. They were his without his asking.

Not many leaders could have shown the percentage of loyalty among their men that Ace showed among people he did not know and had never seen.

Word went down the line that Ace Wilfong was in trouble. They did not mention that he was in trouble over a woman, because that woman was his wife and it was not considered good form among them to speak ill of a man's wife. Besides, Ace had been known as a man who demanded rigid respect for good women always, and it was plain to see that he still gave it to and demanded it for his wife.

They still maintained the code of indifference proper to such surroundings and occasions, but strange things began to happen. Pressure was brought to bear in very high places. Friendship, which is like politics in one respect, that it makes strange bedfellows, friendship was used to the limit. Men of position, men who amounted to something found themselves confronted in this crisis by specters from their dead pasts, and these specters suggested coldly that they use their influence where they could for Ace Wilfong. Favors which were owed, had been owed and allowed to lie idle and collect interest, were suddenly called for collection.

Nor, it must be admitted, were threats absent, threats made in no mean fashion and very much to the point.

Under the strain a judge or two cracked and Sacramento itself was drawn into the fray and sent word down the line, first on one side and then on the other. Ace Wilfong in San Francisco and his cohorts in Los Angeles had selected legislators in their time, as well as city officials, and oddly enough, most of these men stood pat now and could be counted upon.

So that the juggernaut prepared by the Sutro papers and the reformers and the powerful women clubs met a menacing and lawless opposition which said briefly, "We intend to see that our man gets fair play."

If there were the Sutro papers, there were also opposition papers which had always detested the abrupt superiority and icy sarcasm and social dominance of Abbott Sutro. And it soon became plain that Ace Wilfong would fight this thing out in open court without fear or favor, and win or lose there on the merits of his case.

San Francisco is a town where there still exists a lively and thoroughly Californian class that swings to the under dog, especially if he be picturesque and a fighter—a remnant of the old days when life was freer and wilder and faster than it is now. And with this class the name and memory of Stephen Ashe counted.

It was surprising how the name of Stephen Ashe did count. There are no days so long as the days that follow a murder. A man may well look back over one of them to the time of his arising and feel that it has not been a day, but a little lifetime. In those days Jan Wilfong saw many strange, many wonderful, many sad things come to pass.

To the house on Pacific avenue came visitors. Some offering help, sympathy, Jan was surprised to see. They made her frozen heart warm in glowing spots. It was good to see a man who long ago Stephen Ashe had saved from disgrace coming now to make what payment he could to Stephen Ashe's daughter. Or to find on the doorstep some one to whom Ashe had done a kindness and who had not forgotten it.

But in the ranks of those who came to Jan Ashe in the hour of her trouble were gaps. These testified to a disloyalty and an ingratitude on the part of those whose very lives he had saved that filled her with rage and bitterness. For them he had spent his substance, wasted his genius—and they did not even remember.

Dorothea Joliffe came. Her mouth was an iron slit, but from it fell no words of recrimination. The family pride, the pride of race, which had been her guiding star, had fallen. What she endured Jan began faintly to guess, though she said nothing except, "We'll do what we can. Let people know I'm standing by you. It might help a little. We don't blame your poor husband. Where is your father?"

Jan shook her head. "I don't know," she said.

In Bill Wilfong's flat on California street—the big place was closed and dismantled now—Ace's own gang began plans for his defense. They gathered, Bill and Jerry Kress and the others, and talked in their unaccented parlance. But they were more worried than they would let anybody know.

Ace was worrying them.

The Sutro papers had made plain enough from the start their intention. They would spare Mrs. Wilfong no belittling indignity. But they were out to hang Ace Wilfong. That would be their prime revenge upon his wife. In order to do that, they were willing enough to spare her the final insult. Ace Wilfong, they indicated, had brooded over causeless suspicion. Being what he was, he had not understood the ways and manners of his betters. He had not understood the friendship of his wife and that young man of sterling quality and budding promise, Dwight Sutro. These two had been friends from childhood. No wrong had been done Ace Wilfong. His honor had not been lost. Dwelling upon fancied wrongs, this outlaw, this gunman and gambler, had finally brought himself to deliberate murder.

Q.—Why is it that a convex mirror shows a large area but the images are small and erect?—J. F.

A.—The reflected rays of light must be prolonged behind the mirror before they meet, hence, the image is a virtual one, also upright and smaller than the object.

Q.—Is the testimony of a sworn witness accepted in all courts when that witness admits to being an atheist or an agnostic?—W. R. H.

A.—Whether or not the testimony of an atheist or agnostic shall be accepted rests with the court and is based upon other factors than his religious or non-religious views.

A.—The white man can live there, according to a scientist who made a study of the question for the Smithsonian institution, but he needs intelligence and a rigid discipline in order to do so successfully. Life in the tropics will certainly become more comfortable as well as safer for the white race, says this authority, but acclimatization in its full and literal sense is and will remain impossible.

Q.—Was Mark Twain especially fond of Jews?—R. K. N.

A.—In "My Father Mark Twain" Clara Clemens says: "Arguments as to the virtues or non-virtues of the Jews were often the topic of discussion in our drawing-room, and father always grew eloquent in defense of Christ's race. Indeed, so often were his remarks on this subject quoted that it was rumored at one time father himself was a Jew. About this time he wrote his article 'Concerning the Jews,' in which he states he considers them 'the most marvelous race the world ever produced'."

Q.—How did the Chinese happen to enter the American laundry business?—G. E. D.

A.—In the days of the California gold rush everybody was so busy digging for gold that the homelier household chores were neglected. With gold beckoning, no one was willing to work at plain jobs. There was no land communication with the East but ships were constantly plying to China. The Forty-Niners acquired the habit of sending their washing to China, getting it back in two or three months. This showed the Chinese that there was a business opportunity in this country.

Q.—Who were the generals who were members of General Washington's staff?—H. A. P.

A.—General Washington had no staff in the usual sense of the word. General Ward and General Lee were elected as the second and third in command, respectively, of the American army. Major Mifflin was appointed as quartermaster general; Col. Nicholas Long, deputy quartermaster; Col. Joseph Reed of Philadelphia was chosen as Washington's private secretary; Dr. Benjamin Church was selected as director of hospitals and chief physician; Dr. James Warren and Jonathan Trumbull were appointed as paymasters general of the army near Boston and in the northern department, respectively.

Health and Diet Advice

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"
By DR. FRANK McCOY

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

(Copyright, 1931, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Toasted Foods

Dextrose is a carbohydrate found in varying amounts in sweet fruits, seeds, and roots. It is produced in the body through the digestion of starches and sugars. It may also be made by heating and toasting starchy foods.

Correspondents often write this to me: "You warn us against using bread with meat, yet you say that toast can be used with any kind of food. This does not seem consistent."

The difference between bread and toast is about as great as between water and steam. When the starch cells are subjected to enough heat, they change into dextrose; in which form they can be assimilated by the stomach and intestines. And even though this dextrose is unnecessary to the life of the cells, it is at least less harmful than the starch of bread.

The bread habit is one of the hardest habits for the health seeker to break, and it will be found that the substitution of well-browned toast will help to solve the problem of the starch-poisoned patient.

The ordinary soggy toast is, of course, little improvement over bread, for, if the browning is all on the outside, the starch and yeast cells in the center will be but slightly changed.

Melba toast is the name which has been given to toast which has been browned all the way through, and is the kind which should always be used. The bread from which this toast is made must be thoroughly dried for several days before using. The best plan is to stand the fresh loaf on end and carefully slice off the outer crust on each side and end; then cut it into slices not over one-fourth inch in thickness and put away to dry for at least a day. When it is "dry as a chip," it is ready for toasting.

Bake this dried bread in a moderate oven for from 15 to 20 minutes. If you attempt to toast it in less time, it will be only burned on the outside and not as completely dextrinized as it should be. When properly toasted, this melba toast has a delicious sweet taste quite unlike the ordinary toast.

Any kind of bread may be used, but you will find that the toast made from plain white bread, will be the most palatable. When real whole wheat bread is completely dextrinized, a bitter taste is developed, due to the burning of the bran and protein elements which are not present in the white bread.

When toast has been dextrinized as I have described, it can no longer create distressing gas from excessive fermentation, and, as there is no starch left in this toast, its use does not interfere in any way with the digestion and assimilation of other foods.

Melba toast, like all dextrose, is a highly concentrated food and consequently must be used in limited quantities. Its excessive use will encourage constipation and in this way much harm may result, if it is used at every meal, but owing to its chemical nature it combines readily with any other food and is a good substitute to hold in your left hand in place of bread, when you have not learned how to use your knife and fork.

When any food containing starch is subjected to slow toasting heat, the starch is at least partly changed to dextrose. Part of the starch in the root and tuber vegetables is thus changed by baking. Nuts always contain a considerable amount of starch and when changed by roasting are even more wholesome than when used raw.

Peanuts, which are really legumes and not nuts, are more desirable as a good food when they are roasted. Either the shelled roasted nuts or the peanut butter made from them combines well with other food and make a delicious addition to any meal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nearsightedness in Children

Question—Mrs. C. writes: "May I ask whether nearsightedness developing at the age of 11 or 12 years in a girl would be caused by faulty diet in childhood? When my daughters were born I hoped and prayed they might be spared the affliction I was taught to believe hereditary. As the young babies or children their eyes were normal for they would point out distant objects which I could only see with the aid of glasses. But, reaching maturer years, the nearsightedness developed. They never had sore eyes, styes, etc.—with the exception of the youngest girl, born during war time."

Answer—As far as is known, nearsightedness is not brought on from dietetic reasons. It is a tendency which often runs in families, or even in races, as those of Teutonic origin. It is often possible to improve the vision through the use of curative exercises during childhood. An optometrist should always be consulted when there is a tendency to nearsightedness. A diet may, however, have some effect on the abscesses or inflammation in the eyes. This trouble is sometimes aggravated by the lack of vitamin A in the diet.

Lime Water

Question—I. Van N. asks: "Is lime water wholesome to drink? Do those living in districts where this element is absent from water suffer from disease of the bone?"

Answer—The inorganic lime that is present in water is of no value to us as food. We must obtain our mineral elements from food. Distilled water, which is free from mineral elements, is, if anything, more wholesome than mineral-carrying waters.

COYOTES CLICK IN FIRST HALF TO BEAT RANDLETT 39-32

REEVES LEADS IN SCORING

Oklahoma Team Offers Good Battle Here

Scoring many goals in the first half, the Coyotes defeated the Randlett basketeers 39 to 32 on the Junior college court last night. Reeves ran wild, making a total of 18 points.

Next to Reeves was Brandon with eight points while Greenwood appeared in a new role by making a total of seven points. Halley, forward, was high point man for the losers with another 18 points while Oxley was only one point behind him with a total of 17 points.

The Coyotes used their passing ability to a good advantage during the opening periods and ran up a large score, so that the reserve squad was allowed to play most of the second quarter.

The Coyotes took the lead early in the contest and never relinquished it throughout the game. The passing of Janeway, Presley, and Brandon proved the most important factor of the victors while the shooting of Greenwood and Reeves accounted for most of the scores.

The Coyotes will continue their practice season Saturday night by playing the Bowie squad on the Junior college court at 7 p. m.

VERNON SWAMPS QUANAH TEAM

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 8.—Football glided from the Vernon sports picture here tonight as the final fete for gridsters was held between halves of a basket ball game in which Vernon court experts took the limelight with a 62 to 61 victory over Quanah basketeers.

As the local quintet rested after a fast round with the visiting Indians, Miss Lela Smith was crowned Vernon's football queen. She was elected a few days ago by the Lion eleven. She was presented by Coach W. C. (Heinie) Weir, after which a program was offered by the pep squad.

Miss Shirley Odom, pep leader during the past season, greeted her successor, Miss Ruth Kell Lutz and presented the new cheer captain with the official megaphone.

The pep squad entertained the 1931 football team with a theater party following the basket ball game.

In the court contest, Vernon got off to an early start.

"Too Tall" Jones, Lion center, was on his toes throughout the entire match and ran up high point score of 29. His teammate, Lockard, forward, ran second with 12 points. Both made many good shots, as did Galloway and Smith. Faircloth was high for the visitors with eight points.

'Biff' Jones to Coach at L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 8. (AP)—After a decade of "in and out" success on the gridiron, Louisiana State university today reached into the ranks of big time football and definitely landed Capt. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, former head coach at the Army, as chief mentor for the school's eleven.

Going out after a gridiron comeback in a big way, L. S. U. is still angling for Bert Ingwersen, head at the University of Iowa for seven years, to act as Jones' assistant.

Formal announcement was made by the war department in Washington today that Jones had been assigned to duty in the L. S. U. military department, thus clearing the way for him to accept the coaching job.

Ingwerson has not yet announced definitely whether he will accept the assistant's post.

Jones will succeed Russel M. Cohen, head coach since 1928, who resigned last month to accept an assistant's coaching positon at Vanderbilt.

Jack Coombs Writes Baseball Textbook

PALESTINE, Texas, Jan. 8. (UP)—John Coombs, "iron man of baseball" and head baseball coach at Duke university, Durham, N. C., has written what he believes is the world's first textbook of baseball coaching.

Coombs, a native of Palestine, made the announcement here. The book, he said, is now in the hands of proofreaders and will be issued shortly by the Duke university press. Duke baseball players posed for the illustrations.

Coombs said his idea in writing the book was to furnish a complete manuel on baseball for the use of college coaching teachers. He is teaching baseball coaching now and found there were no textbooks.

Coombs knows baseball. For 10 years he was a member of the Philadelphia Athletics, winning three games of the 1910 world series to set a record equalled only by Mathewson and Adams. He was coach of baseball at Williams college and Princeton university four years each before he became head baseball coach at Duke four years ago.

'Too Tall' Jones Sends Quanah to Defeat

QUANAH, Jan. 8.—The Quanah Indians quintet lost to the Vernon Lions in the last four minutes of play, the final count being 28 to 20, in the game played on the Quanah court Thursday night.

The second half was considerably enlivened by a spectacular 'runaway' staged by "Too Tall Jones." The Indians' defense failed to hold on the last quarter, the Lions running the score up from 20 to 28 in the last four minutes of play.

High point man for Vernon was Jones, with 12 points, and for Quanah, Price, with 9.

Nurmi Prepared For Olympic Come-Back

Finn Licks Youth In Great Race To Dispel Doubt As To His Age

Paavo Nurmi at 35 is preparing for one of the greatest come-backs in athletic history in the 1932 Olympics. Pictures above taken recently show that the "Phantom Finn" still has the "form" called the greatest of all time for a distance runner, despite trouble in recent years from rheumatism.. A few months ago, Paavo shattered the world's two-mile record with a mark of 8:59.5.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 8. (AP)—Paavo Nurmi, who scorns the physical laws set for ordinary mortals, has prepared himself for his greatest come-back in 1932.

Nearing his 35th birthday and approaching his fourth Olympic appearance, in the Los Angeles games, Nurmi's goal is the Olympic marathon as a crowning touch to the greatest foot-racing career of all time. Nevertheless he can still hold his own with Finland's sensational crop of younger runners, led by Lauri Lehtinen.

Paavo's greatest enemy has not been increasing age or competition but rheumatism. In this northern climate, changing from cold to heat, a runner is extremely subject to this illness. Nurmi was troubled with rheumatism in 1928. That was the reason why he lost to Ritola and Loukola in Amsterdam.

Took Baths Cure

On his return from America, Nurmi began in the spring of 1929 his fight against rheumatism. He went to East Finland to the "nature-sanatorium" of Kirvu. There he took a complete cure of sun and mud baths.

It is typical of Nurmi that he could not leave off his training in the senatorium even; on the contrary, he took long and sweating walks in the woods and on the roads. The whole summer he devoted to his health and never thought of taking part in any races.

Goes to Seashore

From Kirvu Nurmi then went for the summer to Terijoki on the shore of the Gulf of Finland, to carry on a merry and healthy bathing-life in the sea—a new and surprising sphere for the quiet and retiring Paavo.

By the summer of 1930, Nurmi had so far dropped from the spotlight that Finnish fans were talking of his successor and naming young Lauri Virtanen for the role. Paavo challenged the youth to a two-mile race and won easy in 9:07 4-5.

A year later the ballyhoo for youth was on again. Another match race was arranged in which Nurmi, on July 24, 1931, was to race three young Finns, Virtanen, Lauri Lehtinen and Iso-Hollo, in an attempt to break the world's two-mile record.

The favorite in this event was the 22-year-old Lauri Lehtinen, Finland's hope for the Olympic games, who had beaten the world's record for a mile and a half, and at 5,000 meters been timed in 14:31.7.

But the 34-year-old Nurmi now proved his glorious come back, which he—when he was called old in 1929—began to prepare.

On that never to be forgotten evening Paavo actually flew on the track. All Helsingfors was there to see the match.

Iso-Hollo and Lehtinen set most of the pace but could not shake off Nurmi. On the last lap, Lehtinen ran like a lion, but 100 meters from the goal Nurmi rushed past him irresistibly.

Nurmi's result was a new world's record, 8:59.5. Lehtinen (9:00.5) and Virtanen (9:01.1) also ran under the earlier record (9:01.4), which was held by Edvin Wide of Sweden. Iso-Hollo's time was 9:06.6.

Finland Drops Doubts

After this, there is no longer any doubt in Finland but that Nurmi will be able to win his gold medals at Los Angeles this year in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters events.

The least doubtful of all is Nurmi himself. But the great master has other ideas for the coming Olympic games. In 1920 he appeared in Amsterdam as a rising victorious star, in 1924 at the Paris games as the proud king of the games, in 1928 in Amsterdam as the retiring old master.

In 1932 he intends to bid farewell to Olympic honors in a unique manner, by opening and finishing these great games, so that he on the first day shall win the 10,000 meters, and on the last day the marathon.

Nurmi has never before run the marathon, but he does not doubt that he will win. He is fast and lasting at the same time. He is Nurmi.

HACK WILSON REFUSES CUT

$25,000 Slice in Pay Riles Former Slugger

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8. (AP)—"Hack" Wilson, leading home-run hitter of the National league in 1930 and batting failure of last season, acquired recently from Chicago by the world champion Cardinals, is this year's first big league holdout.

This was disclosed today by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in a story from a staff writer at Martinsburg, Va., Wilson's home, saying "Hack" had refused to sign a one-year contract for $7,500 or $25,500 less than the contract he had with the Cubs.

"I would not sign for $7,500 under any conditions," Wilson said. "I do not think it is fair to ask me to sign for that kind of money. When I had that good year in 1930 I was given an increase of $12,000 and my contract called for $33,000, and now, after building myself up with a flock of good years, I am asked to take a $25,500 cut just because I had one bad year."

The husky outfielder revealed Branch Rickey, business manager of the Cardinals, had written him, also saying that if he had a good season, on and off the field, he could expect a subtsantial sum in addition to the contract amount, but that nothing was said as to what the sum might be. Wilson said he had been prepared to take a 50 per cent cut and would like to play with the Cardinals. He said the Cardinals made the trade for him "with their eyes open and if they don't want to pay me what I consider a fair salary, I wish they would trade me to some other club."

Defending the contract offered Wilson, Business Manager Rickey said: "A man who expects a salary of $33,000 for his services, the value of which is chiefly based upon physical expertness or skill, and does not keep himself in condition to earn that salary, ought to expect a reclassification as a ball player."

Electra Quint Whips Fairview, 26 to 17

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 8.—The Electra Tiger basket ball team won a 26 to 17 victory over the Fairview dribblers in a conference game on the local court tonight.

In two contests of volley ball, the Electra girls team defeated the Fairview girls to the score of 15 to 2 and 15 to 11.

The basket ball match at the end of the half left an even chance of victory for either team, with the score tied 6-6. Parr of Electra played a remarkable game and counted up 20 points of his team's 26 points. Colson was high man for the visitors with five points.

HANDBALL TOURNEY

San Antonio, Jan. 8. (AP)—The state handball championship tournament which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. here tomorrow, will have in its field some recognized stars in their own right. A. Bates of Dallas, the national Y. M. C. A. handball champion for 1930, has entered his name as one of the contestants, and Dr. Eckstrom, Houston, state champion for the past six years, is another prominent player. The tournament starts at 7 o'clock Saturday night.

An English dictionary published in 1573 seems to be the first book of this kind.

Promising Grid Material Uncovered In First Ward School Contests

San Jacinto and Barwise were victorious in the first day of the ward school football conference in district 1. San Jacinto defeated Austin, 13 to 0, while Barwise defeated Travis, 7 to 0.

McAbee, fullback, was the outstanding man in the contest between the Austin and San Jacinto teams, while Blanchard, guard, was not far behind in the defeating of the Austin laddies. For the losers in this contest, Estes, fullback, and Cohantz, halfback, were outstanding.

In the game between Barwise and Travis, Decker, brother of Bob Decker, tackle on the Coyote team, was the outstanding player of the whole contest. All of the games in both districts were won by large scores with the exception of this one. This game was more evenly matched than any other game in Friday's play.

Bowie and Fannin, the other two teams in district 1, will play their game Monday afternoon. The game between these two teams was postponed until Monday because they were late in beginning their practice.

District 2

Ben Franklin, Sam Houston, and Carrigan were the victors in district 2 of the first day's play of the ward school football conference. Ben Franklin won over Alamo, 21 to 0; Sam Houston won over Crockett, 27 to 0, while Carrigan defeated Huey, 15 to 0.

In the contest between Alamo and Franklin, Young, fullback, and the Frazier brothers, guards of Ben Franklin, were the outstanding players. The Ben Franklin players pushed over three touchdowns and made three points after touchdown to amass a total of 21 points.

Sam Houston under the direction of Coach Bill Jenkins, star halfback of the Coyotes, displayed a lot of power to whip the Crockett boys. The outstanding players for the Sam Houston team were Ben and Bill Collins, guards, Swinford, fullback, and Rutledge, halfback. Byrne, halfback for the losers, was the outstanding man on that team.

In the Huey-Carrigan game, McGregor, fullback, Knight, halfback, and Hermig, halfback were the outstanding men. All teams in both districts will again play next Friday.

The Ambler's Corner

By BILL JENKINS

The Coyotes still hold the record of being defeated by only two teams so far this season, but they are yet to meet any of the stronger teams in this part of the country. They have beaten Nocona Indians, district champions last season, but so has nearly every other team. They have beaten the Cashion Cats which is probably their greatest achievement so far in their practice games. Cashion will probably win the championship of Wichita county, but it cannot be called one of the outstanding teams in district four. The Pack beat the Indians by one point, but many other teams in this district have defeated the Indians by much larger scores than did the Coyotes.

The Ambler received a letter from a friend in Estelline, correcting an error. The letter:

Dear Ambler:

I saw in the Wednesday edition of The Record News that you said Olney beat Estelline in the bi-district meet of 1930.

I take pleasure in correcting your little mistake and saying that Estelline whipped Olney easily in the final and deciding game. Estelline almost doubled Olney. Estelline then went to the state meet and were runner-up, being beaten by Denton High school.

Also, the year before, being 1929, Estelline beat Olney in the bi-district meet and advanced as far as the semifinals at the state meet. Thanking you for your consideration of this letter, I am

Yours truly,
CARROLL BERRYMAN.

Carroll, I thank you for setting me straight. I am glad you did this, because, when I found out my mistake, I was afraid that Olney would correct me before some faithful citizen of Estelline did the correcting.

Well, this is the Ambler signing off. The office staff has at least consented for the Rambler to return and take over the job of writing this column. The Ambler will again ascend to the lofty halls of knowledge at the Junior college and let the readers of this page live in peace.

Porkers Defeat Steers in Opener

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 8. (AP)—The University of Arkansas started its quest for the Southwest conference basket ball title by nosing out the University of Texas tonight, 24-21. The winning points were scored in the last two minutes.

Coach "Chuck" Bassett rushed "Doc" Sexton into the game in the final minutes and the Razorback center lead the contest with two free throws after Captain Gibson had put the Porkers in the lead with a field goal.

The second game of the series will be played tomorrow night.

Olney to Inaugurate 'Wagon Day' Contests

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 8.—All plans are complete for "Wagon Day," the first of a series of play events sponsored jointly by the Junior chamber of commerce and the Olney public schools. Activities will start at 9:30 a. m. Saturday, with a parade of contestants, city officials, and other civic leaders.

Events will consist of the 50, 100 and 150-yard dash in scooter or wagon, backward, and obstacle races, and many other variations. Children from 10 to 15 years old are eligible to participate. Prizes will be ribbons for the first three places in each event, and a gold plated medal for high point scorer. According to Miss Edith Hudson, teacher in the south ward school and director of the contests, interest is keen and a large number of contestants are expected to participate.

BAT BATTALINO LOSES CROWN

Feather Champ Weighs in 10 Pounds Overweight

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—The time came today for Christopher "Bat" Battalino to step down from his featherweight throne and he did it in a large way.

Not only did the busy youngster from Hartford, Conn., weigh in almost 10 pounds over the class limit of 126 pounds for a 15-round title defense against Lew Feldman tonight, thus automatically depriving him of his championship, but he forced cancellation of the entire card he was supposed to head in Madison Square garden.

It had been well known the Hartford Italian, growing fast, was having tremendous difficulty getting down again to the poundage of his class after weighing 135½ pounds for an over-weight match in which he knocked out Al Singer, a lightweight, in two rounds less than a month ago.

Today Battalino weighed in at 135¾, 9¾ pounds above the class limit, and exactly 10 pounds more than Feldman had weighed.

Gen. John J. Phelan, commissioner presiding at the scales, immediately declared Battalino's title forfeited. Feldman announced he would not fight any man and concede him that much weight, and Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square garden promoter, scurried around frantically looking for substitutes. He found none, and a few minutes later called off the entire show.

Although Feldman claimed the featherweight title as soon as Battalino defaulted, he was informed by Commissioner Phelan the claim would not be considered.

Hornets Beat Olney In Thrilling Game

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 8.—The Harrold Hornets made a whirlwind finish to tie Albert Acker's Olney Cubs in the regulation time, and then scored the necessary points in an overtime period to win a fast basket ball game here Thursday night.

With only four minutes to play, Olney led by a 34 to 21 score. With this comfortable lead, Olney's second team was sent in. Then the Hornets began to click and scored 16 points in four minutes, while Olney was counting only three. Acker pulled his scoring aces, Wright and Pratt, out of the shower bath for service during the five-minute overtime period, but the damage was done, and H. Nielson made a basket from far out and victory went with it.

H. Nielson led the victors with 17 points. Captain Nixon was next with 16. Doss counted for the other six points and played a good floor game. Pratt and Wright tied with 14 points each for the losers.

Grovo Defeats Bull Montana

Whitey Grovo reaped his revenge over the far famed movie badman, Bull Montana, at the weekly wrestling show at the Bob Connor arena last night by taking the first and third falls of their battle. The bout was made lively by several unofficial tilts between Bull and Jack Brown, the referee.

Grovo won the first fall in 10 minutes with a series of flying mares and a body pin. Montana's fall came after 6 minutes and 48 seconds after a series of punches. Grovo came back in the final fall with the goat hold to win in 3 minutes and 22 seconds.

The semifinal match, a 45-minute time limit affair between Doc Muller of Austin, and Cowboy Waters of Childress, ended in a no-fall draw.

Curly Pink of Electra substituted for Gorilla Tucker and won a one-fall prelim from Flash Disheroon of Wichita Falls.

EASTERN ROAD CUTS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 8. (US)—More than 4,500 men in the mechanical departments of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today accepted a voluntary wage cut of 10 per cent, effective Jan. 15.

Four Games Played On Crowell Court

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, Jan. 8.—In a full session on the basket ball court here tonight the following games were played by teams of this section:

Crowell defeated Paducah 62 to 0.

Thalia won from Kirkland, 24 to 17.

Thalia all-stars downed Kirkland all-stars, 24 to 19.

Margaret won from Medicine Mound, 21 to 17.

The Crowell High school quintet continued its wild stampede for championship honors in taking its ninth victory of the current season. In the first half Capt. Bill Middleton counted up 23 points alone. From that point he was removed from the game by Coach Graves, who then used his entire squad in the remainder of the contest.

Saturday night the Crowell dribblers will meet here the Nocona Indians, who last year won the bi-district championship from the locals.

In the Thalia-Kirkland school match, McMin led the scoring with 10 points. Wisdom, Randolph and Phillips also contributed excellent play for the victors.

Georgia shipped more fresh peaches under refrigeration in 1931 than any other state.

U. S. and Britain May Postpone Cup Play

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—Definite indication whether the Walker cup golf matches between the United States and Great Britain will be played in 1932, is expected to come from the annual meeting here tomorrow of the United States Golf association.

The association's executive committee meeting privately today, declined to comment on the situation, but it is understood President H. H. Ramsay will inform the meeting tomorrow whether Great Britain expects to send over a team.

Due to the economic situation abroad, it has been rumored the 1932 matches will be postponed at least a year. It takes something like $10,000 to finance such an expedition.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—After ruling quiet during the greater part of the day cotton became more active and firmer in the later trading on buying promoted by the strength of the stock market.

March contracts which had sold off to 6.35 at the start, advanced to 6.49 and closed at 6.48 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 10 points.

May sold up during the last hour to 6.66 and July to 6.84 making net advances of 10 to 13 points and closing quotations were within a point or two of the best on most positions.

The late strength of the late stock market was accompanied by reports of firmness in foreign bonds and securities, which evidently made a favorable impression on sentiment in the cotton trade.

Very little southern selling was reported here during the day and it was said that offerings were comparatively light with the basis steady.

Liverpool cables reported liquidation in that market owing to the improvement in sterling and said there were small sales of cloths for shipment to India and China. Houses with Liverpool connections were moderate sellers here during the morning but offerings from that source tapered off after the close of the English market. Exports today 39,594 making 4,726,583 so far this season. Port receipts 73,362. U. S. port stocks 4,749,160.

Futures closed steady, 8 to 10 points higher. Spot steady; middling 6.55.

'Cheerful Tone' Pervades Both American and Foreign Exchanges

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (US)—Buoyancy again prevailed in today's markets and it may be significant that the more cheerful tone which suddenly dominates the American exchanges is also evident in foreign markets, according to the cables.

Attempt was made to credit "foreign buying" with having achieved the present improvement in the local markets. It would be more reasonable to attribute this week's upturn to the "hope that springs eternal." Usually at this stage of the calendar there is a disposition to look forward to something cheerful over the ensuing months; this was the experience in recent years even during the bear market.

Yet there is no denying the impressiveness of the recovery which has taken place in bond quotations; today the tendency of bond prices was again decisively upward.

It is this performance in the bond list which probably encourages the constructive attempts in stocks. Certainly nothing concretely optimistic has suddenly developed to warrant belief that the deflation suddenly has ended.

At the same time, however, reservation must be made for that ever-elusive element "inflation" which, as this column has persistently forecast, has come in for increasing consideration.

There is no disputing the improved sentiment in responsible circles developing from the realization that a balanced national budget is the objective of the political parties. With this starting point, there would be genuine basis for revival of confidence, not alone within the nation but logically throughout the world. Certainly it would offset all alarmist talk concerning the American financial structure. It also would set a worthy precedent for municipalities who have been slow in setting their houses in order.

Throughout today's market in stocks it was evident that speculative sponsorship had suddenly reappeared for a great many stocks. No better proof of this need be advanced than the list of "most active" issues of the day, which included among others Kreuger & Toll, Paramount, Anaconda, Radio, etc. Attempt is being made to capitalize the hoped-for improvement in sentiment.

It is known, for example, that some of the powerful individuals formerly committed to an active bear attitude have of late been accumulating stocks in the hope of inaugurating an advancing trend which would afford profit-taking opportunities.

To date this profit opportunities have been exceedingly limited except for those lucky speculators who bought at the bottom, a difficult achievement. Tips, the almost sure sign of speculative activities, began to invade market circles, and some of the leading speculators for many months inactive or swamped by the deflation were again miraculously leaders of the bull contingent.

Sharp advances in bonds, which were confined mainly to the most speculative issues, attracted a great deal of attention. It will be remembered that some of the most powerful speculative interests bought heavily of the speculative bonds, especially rails, in mid-December. Their buying was revealed here at the time. Profits on those purchases in many instances range up to 50 per cent.

The large potential profits in fortunately-selected bonds necessarily preclude great enthusiasm for stocks until the prior obligations reflect lasting betterment of investment sentiment.

The hope of inflation now dominates the markets as the major element is revival. Ordinarily, bonds might be injured by inflationary prospects, but many bonds have declined so low that any inflation would at its commencement favor them similarly with stocks.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. (AP)—Bowled down by huge shipments of wheat from below the equator, North American wheat export business today dwindled almost to zero, and prices flattened out.

Australian wheat shipments to Europe this week, 3,462,000 bushels, were nearly triple last week's total, and Argentina's contribution was 1,489,000 bushels. Authoritative trade estimates of southern hemisphere surplus stocks of wheat were 274,000,000 bushels, compared to recent estimates of 250,000,000.

After an all-around drop of about a cent a bushel, wheat closed unsettled, ⅜@⅝c lower than yesterday's finish. Corn also ⅜@⅝c down, oats ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Corn and oats felt the effects of larger rural offerings of corn both from Indiana and Illinois. Besides, shipping demand here for corn continued slack.

Provisions sagged owing chiefly to dearth of any aggressive demand.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May 56⅜@⅝, 58⅜; July 55⅞@56, 58@58¼; Sept. 57⅝, bids. Corn, May, 41¼, 41⅜@⅝; July 42⅝@43⅜.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. (US)—The strong close in securities and the support which held wheat at 57c for the May caused rather bullish sentiment toward the market for tomorrow.

Active shipping demand for wheat from millers is proving a supporting feature in the local wheat market. Sales for two days totaled more than 300,000 bushels, the largest in months, and it was understood that more was working at the close.

Cash houses were of the opinion that some hedging sales made their appearance in corn, but the market encountered fair support at the level of 41c for the May.

Broomhall reports that No. 1 hard wheat is being offered in Liverpool at about 1½c over Chicago May.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 8. (AP)—(USDA)—Reports from eastern dressed beef markets show a fairly liberal supply on hand with prices working at weak to unevenly lower basis under a slow demand. This situation was directly reflected to the live trade in the form of weak to 25c lower fed heifers. General bulk of steers and yearlings cleared at $5.00@7.25. Short fed heifers cashed mostly at $5.00@6.25.

Several northern markets reported extremely heavy receipts of hogs for this time of the week which brought a total of around 107,000 more than a week ago. Lambs were mostly 25c lower with spots 50c off which more than erased all advances effected on earlier days. Most better grade fed wooled lambs cleared at $5.50@6.25 with a few closely sorted kinds at $6.40@6.50. Fat ewes were noted up to $3.00.

Only a few called for the mail. Opened, the letters were found to contain tickets on Mexican lotteries. Hence, the sheepish looks!

AIR SERVICE MAKES STRIDES

1,900 Ports Developed in Five-Year Period

The commencement of the new year marks the end of the first five-year period of the operation of the air mail system of the United States by private contractors, and presents a startling development with 140 air mail lines at present, against 14 in 1926, a great growth in airplanes in commercial service, as well as tremendous increase in the number of airports.

After three years of experimental flying, the government realized in 1925 that air mail was an essential of business and social life of the country, and in typical American manner turned the enterprise over to private initiative, to which source is ascribed the development that has lifted American aviation far above that of Europe.

The first mail contract granted to a private company was between New York and Boston, the company being Colonial Airways, and now a division of American Airways. The second, between St. Louis and Chicago, was granted to Universal Airways, which is also now a division of American Airways. In 1926 the government was still operating the transcontinental route, but had advertised it for contract, and today three great systems, American Airways, United Airlines, and Transcontinental and Western Air are flying from coast to coast. American Airways also flies from Canada to Mexico, and Pan American flies from the United States to South America.

There were few fields in 1926, most of them corn or cotton, but today there are 1,960 airports, of which 1,260 are commercial and municipal, and which represent the latest development. From the few planes on scheduled routes in 1926, the total has developed to 625 ships and 725 pilots on regular runs. The daily mileage flown has reached a total of 150,000 miles over 32,000 miles of established airways in this country, and 19,000 miles of foreign lines. According to statistics, it is 31 times as safe to fly as a passenger on these established routes now as it was in 1926. In 1929 there were 1,000,000 miles flown per each fatality; in 1930 there were 4,000,000 miles flown per fatality, and preliminary figures not yet completed indicate a much longer mileage for 1931. The average speed in the last five years has increased from 80 and 90 miles per hour to between 120 and 150, and while few, if any, passengers were carried in air mail ships in the beginning, commodious and well heated passenger ships now transport passengers as well as mail.

Five Indicted For Kidnaping

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 8. (AP)—The Jackson county grand jury today returned four indictments in connection with the recent kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly and her negro chauffeur.

Two of the indictments were returned against Mrs. Ethel Depew, wife of the man sought as leader of the kidnapers, and William Lacy Browning, Paul Scheidt, Charles Mele "and others."

Marshall Depew, the husband, was named in two separate indictments.

All of those indicted except Depew are held in the county jail.

Mele has been identified as one of the men who guarded Mrs. Donnelly in a cottage where she was confined by the kidnapers. Browning and Scheidt, police said, admitted arranging for use of the cottage where Scheidt lived.

WORK OF C-C STANDS OUT IN YEAR OF NUMEROUS DIFFICULTIES

J. L. JACKSON GIVES REPORT

Many Services Performed For Community

By GREGORY EWING
The Record News Staff

High points in the achievements of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce during 1931 were outlined in the annual address and report of President J. L. Jackson Jr. at the yearly meeting at the Memorial auditorium Friday night.

The president told of the organization's work for the Wichita Valley Development association; described its efforts to retain the city's baseball franchise and to support the new athletic stadium; detailed its success in obtaining the designation of highway 66 through the city; explained its work to bring air mail service here.

The annual number of the chamber of commerce bulletin took up each project in detail under the heads of oil, agriculture, retail trade, wholesale trade, civic activities, traffic, highways, aviation, industrial development and conventions.

"Although Wichita Falls attempted to force better business conditions, 1931 brought an unusual period of deflation of values and unrest on the part of our people.

"The adopted program of activity was definite and most practical. Only projects having a chance of successful completion . . . had been included. Joining with other agencies . . . we centered our attention, and believe that real constructive work has been accomplished."

Agricultural Work

Leading in the project of agriculture was the endorsement of the organization of the Wichita Valley Development association. To assist in solving colonization in the irrigated valley, a task of magnitude that requires undivided attention by a strong organization, assistance to the association was offered.

Concerning cash expenditures in the line of agricultural advancement more than $600 was paid the Wichitia county fair and the combined rabbit and poultry show, while nearly $400 was given in prizes to members of the farm boys and girls clubs.

A horticulturist for the state experiment farm at Iowa Park, an expert in his line, was employed following diligent work by the chamber. The legislature appropriated for the work.

Among activities the agricultural committee helped plan and finance the annual farmers short course at Iowa Park, the live and feed at home contest, trips to the short course at A. & M. college, trips by club members to the state fair, trips by county agents to important meetings, tours, and meetings.

A secretary was employed by the chamber to assist the county agricultral and home demonstration agents.

To aid local oil men and oil men's organization in efforts to stabilize the industry, the oil and gas committee offered assistance on legislative activities, and later employed a publicity agent to advertise the city as an oil center. The latter activity came particularly when new pools were discovered.

The traffic department of the chamber represented local oil interests in rail and pipe line rate hearings.

Merchants Active

An active organization since its formation, the Retail Merchants division waged an active campaign to stimulate increased retail trade, sponsoring special buying occasions designed to make the city a shopping center.

Special inducements were offered all conventions, attractions and holidays. In several instances financial aid was given.

Worthwhile work was done during the year by a reorganized manufactures and jobbers division. Successful good will trips were sponsored and conducted by the division which cooperated in conducting others. Outstanding was the special train which took 200 city business men to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Lubbock.

Retention of the Texas league baseball franchise in the city was the major civic accomplishment of the year. Actual work on construction of a new federal building was a second outstanding achievement.

The taxation committee took a leading part in the state-wide effort to have laws passed permitting tax payments in installments.

In sports and recreations, an active year was also had with a campaign waged to stimulate ball game attendance and to secure an athletic stadium.

Efforts to prevent abolishment of a local district court helped convince the legislature of the need of the court. Help was given every civic undertaking — Community Chest, Family Relief association, Emergency Employment bureau, President's Emergency Relief committee and the U. S. Employment service.

A military affairs committee was appointed, prompted by realization of the value of local national guard units and the soldiers of Fort Sill.

An efficient traffic department was maintained to take advantage of every opportunity to give shippers here lower rates and better service. A weekly bulletin, giving information on rate changes and regulations on commodities, was published.

Among definite accomplishments were adjustment of grain rates, opposition to general increase of 15 per cent in freight rates on petroleum and petroleum products; opposition to application of carriers for increased rates in crude oil and certain refinery products; opposition to numerous efforts to get minimum weights reduced on commodities, which would have destroyed the manufacturing and jobbing interests of the city; and intervention to protect local groups of shippers from unfair discrimination. Several other matters of similar activities are yet pending.

The traffic department worked closely with officials and traffic men of local refineries. Construction is now in progress on the new branch of the Fort Worth and Denver from Childress to Pampa by way of Wellington and Shamrock. Completion will open a new trade territory.

Road to Border

The highway committee took a leading part in work that resulted in designation of a new state highway into Wichita Falls. The new road, No. 66, extends from the city almost due south to Hidalgo on the Mexican border. If petitions are accepted it will become a part of the new U. S. highway from Canada to Mexico.

Assurance has been given that U. S. highway 277 from Red river to Lawton will be improved during 1932. Plans to have Texas highway 5 from Henrietta to Gainesville paved is underway. Final gaps on No. 277 in Jones and Haskell counties were surfaced to complete the paving to Abilene. Pavement on U. S. highway 70 has been extended almost to the Plains.

Inauguration of air mail by the American Airways was the crowning aviation achievement of the year. The service for the route between Denver and Dallas was started in August.

There are two passenger lines, the American Airways and the Reed Air Line.

With conditions unfavorable for industrial expansion, the chamber devoted its efforts towards serving industries already located here. One important plant was saved for the city, and assistance was given in the reorganization plans of a second.

The industrial committee determined that good results could be obtained by creating conditions favorable for industrial success and by offering helpful cooperation.

Twelve conventions were entertained by the conventions committee during 1931, while assistance was given in the entertainment of delegates of smaller meetings. Nearly 3,000 attended the conventions.

Already six major conventions have been secured for 1932 with promises indicating that more will convene in Wichita Falls. It is thought likely that the 1933 American Legion convention will be held here.

Cooperation was given several local organizations in their activities which brought visitors to the city.

President Jackson concluded the report by indicating that it failed to include many services rendered the community by the chamber during 1931.

Leader

In one of the most difficult years in Wichita Falls' history, the task of leading the city's chamber of commerce fell to J. L. Jackson Jr. How well he succeeded is shown by the many worthwhile accomplishments of the chamber during 1931; and by the esteem with which Mr. Jackson is held in both business and civic circles and by all classes of loyal Wichitans.

city and an inspiration to its youth throughout the future years.

"Incidentally, this project provides employment for scores of men during the winter months. This is an important matter within itself. The contribution which Mr. Bullington has made through his personal efforts has provided an opportunity for the unemployed men of the city to work for the groceries they receive."

Grover C. Bullington came to Wichita Falls 29 years ago. The early years of his life were spent near Weatherford, Texas, and in New Mexico. He was born the year Grover Cleveland was made president of the United States and so received his name.

Worked Way Through School

As a boy in Wichita Falls, Grover found a job and worked his way through high school here. The school discovered his musical talent and he was in demand as a singer in the school glee clubs and quartets long before graduation.

After he won his diploma in 1916, young Bullington worked for the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway until the United States entered the world war. He volunteered at once and was one of the first to enter the Leon Springs officers training camp.

With a second lieutenant's commission, he went to France with the A. E. F. and came back as First Lieutenant Bullington with a citation for bravery.

Back in Wichita Falls, he went into business for himself, later entered the oil business and after a few years became a member of the Lee, Bullington, and Mason firm, dealers in insurance and bonds.

During all the years spent here, Mr. Bullington lent his musical talent to the city, his career reaching a peak when he was one of the Maskat Temple Chanters, traveling all over the United States as a member of that organization.

A leader in school, he immediately took his place in the life of the city and had been one of the leaders in civic activities since the war.

Foul Play Feared When Body Found on Road

DENTON, Texas, Jan. 8, (AP)—The body of an unidentified man was found tonight at the side of the Gainesville highway three miles northwest of Denton. A preliminary examination indicated the man might have been beaten to death with a blunt instrument.

W. A. Mathews, justice of the peace, immediately began an inquest. Officers expressed the opinion the man was slain and probably thrown from an automobile. His skull was fractured.

prehend. You have a marvelous opportunity; you already have prepared beforehand for the accommodation of employes of industrial institutions in your city."

The isolation in which millions of Americans lived 30 years ago, and which it was thought never would be overcome, has been dissipated entirely by gasoline and electricity, Dr. Dyer pointed out.

"We now are in the greatest industrial revolution of the world's history," the speaker said, "and it seems that few of us realize it. The thing which impresses me most with the human mind is its gross stupidity. I have gotten most of that from observation of myself, of course. But seriously, the human mind is very slow to take on anything new.

"The first great industrial revolution was known by just that name, and it was due to the discovery of the power of steam. The world had made little change industrially up to that point. It had waited for steam. Applied to transportation and machinery, it transformed the world. It revolutioned business, religious life, social organization and education—everything. But its ultimate effect was to centralize everything. Trains carried people easily to great cities, which were made bigger by the establishment of great industries. The economic advantage always was in centralization. The rural communities seemed hopelessly out of the picture.

"Then came electricity and gasoline. They have erased distance, and have brought to the farm home every convenience and luxury available to the urban dweller. The farmer, by electric power, may freeze his own ice cream, clean his rugs, cook his meals, and hear the best music in the world—all by turning a switch."

Business Ethics Improve

Radio will inevitably exert a tremendous influence upon religious thought and upon education, the speaker asserted. No medium for the development of religious tolerance has ever before been known that would equal the radio, he said. Dr. Dyer also pictured the country's leading educators lecturing to a few disinterested college students in a class room.

Dr. Dyer also asserted that American business methods are coming constantly nearer to a Christian standard of ethics.

"Back in 1914, and up to 1929, we were on a big economic apree, but we thought we were sober. We thought that was a normal condition. We got to the point where we could start a rumor, and believe later in our own rumor. We thought we could keep on spending without producing. We mistook credit for wealth. Then came 1921, and then 1929—a time for settling up. Now we know that a depression is not a bad thing. It is decidedly constructive. It works to our best interest. When business gets into such conditions as it was before this depression, there is nothing else to cure it but a depression.

"American business is not fundamentally unsound. We simply failed to understand things which we thought we understood. But there never was a time in the world's history when business was on so high an ethical plane as it is in this country today. We have made great progress in Christian ethics in our business practices. Jesus himself taught that "he that is greatest among you must be the servant of all." Business men are learning that genuine, bona fide service is the only real path to success."

Cups Presented

After Dr. Dyer's address, J. S. Bridwell presented the citizenship cup to Mr. McGregor. R. E. Shepherd made the presentation address to Grover Bullington.

"There probably is not a man nor a woman in this house tonight," said Mr. Bridwell in presenting the cup to Mr. McGregor, "who does not know the man who is to receive this award. He is a man who does not mount the houstops and cry aloud his purpose to aid some person or family less fortunate than himself. He goes quietly around by a side way and performs his ministration of love with a sincere humility."

"To say that this is a surprise is putting it too mildly," Mr. McGregor responded. "I am convinced that I can name four, yes, five men who are far more deserving than I of this cup. The committee must have made a mistake, but nevertheless, I appreciate deeply this honor."

Mr. Bullington's life was sketched briefly by R. E. Shepherd, president of the Advertising club, prior to the presentation of the second cup.

"This man came to Wichita Falls as a big, green country boy, fresh from the wilds of Jack county," Mr. Shepherd said. "He was looking for an opportunity to work his way through school, and he found it here."

Missed Party!

Mr. Bullington's military service during the world war, and his subsequent business activities here were mentioned. Mr. Shepherd stressed the part played by Mr. Bullington in providing Wichita Falls with the new athletic stadium upon which construction is to begin next Monday. At the conclusion of Mr. Shepherd's speech of presentation, it developed that Mr. Bullington had departed for home despite the persuasive efforts of four men coached to prevent his departure. Plans were made to have the award sent to the Bullington home.

The meeting closed with the announcement of the directors.

Dinner Honors Visitors

Preceding the meeting, 150 officials of neighboring chambers of commerce were entertained in an informal dinner at the Wichita club. President Jackson presided and Dr. Dyer entertained with a group of pointed yarns.

At the same time members of the Cowboy band, which earlier in the day had staged a musical parade on downtown streets and given a brief radio broadcast, were entertained with a banquet at the First Baptist church. Members of the Ex-Students association of Simmons were hosts. Dr. J. D. Sandifer, president of the university, was one of the honored guests at the meeting.

The entertainment drew hundreds of guests from Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma. The president read greetings from former Gov. Pat M. Neff, from the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, from Nathan B. Adams in Dallas, E. H. Eddleman and the chambers of commerce at Fort Worth and Oklahoma City.

City officials, chamber of commerce heads, business and professional men and farmers were among the visitors welcomed to the meeting.

No part of the audience was more appreciative, especially during the band program, than a large group of youngsters who occupied prominent seats on the first floor.

The auditorium had been effectively decorated with flowers and shrubs.

STADIUM WORK OPENS MONDAY

Heads of Families to Trade Labor for Food

Men who are to begin work next Monday for the city on the new athletic stadium near Sunset Heights will be heads of families already being cared for by the Family Relief association, it was announced Friday afternoon after directors of the community chest had reviewed the situation in their meeting Friday morning.

Grading of the ground, building of forms, pouring of concrete foundations, and other preparatory labor will be done at the stadium site during the next few days, it was said. The steel grandstand at Fair park also will be dismantled, removed to the athletic field, and reassembled.

The policy announced Friday to be followed in selecting workmen for the project is in keeping with statements made when the community chest budget was being raised. It was pointed out then that the Family Relief association would provide living supplies in exchange for work to be done for the city, except in the case of widows and children and aged people.

Workmen to be assembled on the stadium job Monday will be representatives of families already dependent upon the Family Relief association. The work which they do will be given in exchange for the aid which they have received, and are to receive, it was announced.

Veteran Rail Worker Dies at Age of 62

John Boyd, 62, an employe of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad and a resident of Wichita Falls for many years, died in a local hospital late Friday night after a prolonged illness.

Death followed a major operation.

Mr. Boyd made his home at 1908 Eighth street. Funeral services had not been made Friday night.

of a distinguished southern family, William Morrell was brought to Austin, Texas, by his parents when he was only 2 years old. When the parents moved to Cameron, the boy was left behind for a time to make his own way as a newsboy and collector for the Electric Light company. Later he rejoined his family and entered school.

With little money and no friends, the 17-year-old W. M. McGregor came alone to Wichita Falls in 1886. After holding several positions he made his first banking connection with the Panhandle National in 1887.

It was the beginning of a brilliant financial career. McGregor advanced with the bank and was already one of its most important officials when the Panhandle became the First National in 1903.

Many Activities

In addition to his banking activities he has served as director of the National Security Life Insurance company, the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway, and the Wichita Falls and Wellington line. In 1924-1925 he was a member of the advisory council of the federal reserve board at Washington, an honor much coveted among bankers.

Guarding his charitable activities jealously and keeping quiet about the part he took in work for civic good, Mr. McGregor from the first took a significant place in the life of Wichita Falls. With a reputation for integrity and sagacity in business, he has won, against his will, another one for generous interest in the unfortunate, and concern for the development of his city.

JURY RETURNS 19 TRUE BILLS

Electra Man Indicted in Girl's Death

Nineteen indictments were returned Friday by the January grand jury in its first report to Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court, two of the bills being for murder.

Highway Collision

R. H. Page was the first defendant named in a murder charge, the indictment being returned in connection with the death of Miss Evelyn Mae Patton on a highway near Electra on the night of Nov. 13. Page is charged in the indictment with having been intoxicated when driving the car which struck Miss Patton and killed her. The girl and her companion had stopped beside the road to repair a tire when the accident occurred, according to investigating officers. Page's car was said to have collided with the rear end of the parked machine.

Harrison Derouen, negro, was the second to be charged with murder. He is charged with having killed his mother-in-law, Martha Simmons, with an iron bar on the night of Sunday, Dec. 27. Two fractures of the skull were found upon the woman when she was discovered unconscious on Bonner street near the house in which her daughter and Derouen lived.

Two Plead Guilty

L. E. Brown and R. H. Duncan, indicted for burglary of a filling station at Burkburnett, waived jury trial and entered pleas of guilty before Judge Martin Friday afternoon. Each was given a two-year suspended sentence.

The other indictments include the following: Grover Johnson, negro, disposal of mortgaged property; W. C. Holbrook, burglary of a private residence; Darrold Lee Keeling, robbery by assault and violence; Ernest Wininger, arson and accomplice to arson; Pete Bryan, arson; Verle Franklin Ritter, robbery by assault and violence; Charles Bembry and Robert Porter, burglary; and three child desertion cases. One indictment charged misdemeanor swindling by check.

Indictments in which the defendants were not under arrest or under bond were for the following offenses: Burglary, forgery and passing, forgery and attempting to pass, accomplice to arson and swindling by check over $50.

Heavy Ticket Sale For 'Apple Cart'

Citizens of Wichita Falls and surrounding communities continued Friday to make numerous reservations for seats at the Memorial auditorium next Monday night, Jan. 11, when George Bernard Shaw's "The Apple Cart" is to be played by a big-time cast.

The engagement for Wichita Falls was secured about three weeks ago by H. C. Cheshire, local booking agent, when an open date occurred in the "Apple Cart" company's tour of the West. Swinging through the larger cities, the company had a one-day gap between Dallas and Tulsa performances. Because of the presence here of the Memorial auditorium, with its large seating capacity and excellent stage, the brilliant Shaw comedy was obtained for a one-day stand.

Tickets are on sale at the Renfro Drug store, at the corner of Eighth and Scott. The ticket booth may be reached by dialing telephone 2-0015. Reduced prices on all seats were granted for the showing of "The Apple Cart" here.

Beer Urged In Session

Bingham Recommends "Good Wholesome Brew"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8, (AP)—Witnesses before the senate manufactures subcommittee testified today during its study of bills to legalize beer that sale of brew would decrease use of "hard liquor" and halt "the triumphal march of bootleggers."

In a hearing room crowded with prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists, these views from two educators, a physician, and Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, strongly supporting beer, were presented.

Dr. F. Scott, McBride general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, were among the prohibitionists present. They are expected to be heard before the group completes its work.

Crusaders Present

The crusaders, an organization opposing prohibition, also were represented.

Senator Bingham, the first witness, strongly recommended "good, wholesome beer," as a beverage and said his intent was to show four per cent beer was not intoxicating. He explained beer, under his bill, could be sold in public only at restaurants and hotels with meals, as assurance against fears of those who thought saloons might be reopened.

Bingham read a letter from Dean Clarence Mendell of Yale college. In it, Mendell said "boys here at Yale" had tried to get beer rather than "hard liquor," but the bootleggers provided the latter, which was easier to handle and "more profitable."

"I am convinced that if four per cent beer were made legal," Mendell's letter added, "that before long the hard liquor tradition would be eliminated."

Calls Beer Good Drink

Professor Yandell Henderson, of Yale, said it would take "two or three quarts" of four per cent beer to equal the alcoholic content of five or six cocktails in the afternoon before dinner. He figured it would take "eight or 10 quarts" of four per cent beer to produce intoxication.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner of New York, held beer would promote temperance and health and would mean "the turn to prosperity."

"In my opinion it would mean that a large percentage of the male population now drinking hard liquor would resort to beer," he said. He called beer "a good drink and not intoxicating," adding:

"It would halt the triumphal march of bootleggers."
