Record Deficit Projected...

Congress Passes Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The five-month struggle in Congress to adopt a 1983 budget is over, but it is considered only a prelude to election-year fights over the tax increases and reductions in social programs called for in the red-ink outline.

"We've got a political document here that can't stand the light of implementation," Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said on the Senate floor Wednesday in remarks directed at Republican leaders.

The Senate gave the GOP-drafted plan final congressional approval Wednesday on a 54-45 vote following a last-minute telephone lobbying blitz by President Reagan.

The plan calls for spending $769.8 billion and contains a record projected deficit of $103.9 billion.

The budget plan includes a mandate for committees in the House and Senate to produce legislation later this summer with specific social program budget cuts totaling $6.7 billion next year and $27.2 billion over three years in such areas as Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps and welfare.

In addition, the tax-writing committees are required to produce legislation raising taxes by $20.9 billion for the next fiscal year and $98.3 billion over three years.

After the vote, Reagan hailed the measure, saying, "The first important hurdle blocking our path to lower interest rates has been cleared."

The Democratic-controlled House approved the compromise Tuesday on a narrow 210-208 roll call. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Wednesday the blueprint showed "no care, no concern, hardheartedness all along the line."

The plan projects deficits of $103.9 billion next year, $83.9 billion in 1984 and $60 billion in 1985.

But the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office — citing overestimated revenues and underestimated spending — calculates the deficits in the plan at $116.4 billion in 1983, $104.6 billion in 1984 and $92.7 billion in 1985.

In other developments Wednesday on Capitol Hill:

— Congress has sent to President Reagan an $8.9 billion catch-all bill to keep more than 50 agencies and programs operating until Oct. 1. The bill includes a controversial housing subsidy to low- and middle-income homebuyers and repeals a $75-a-day tax break the lawmakers gave themselves last year. President Reagan was expected to veto the measure because he opposes the housing provision. — Reacting to the verdict in the trial of presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr., the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal law took the highly unusual step of summoning three members of the jury.

"They want to find out exactly what led members of the jury to accept the insanity plea," said a spokesman for Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the acting chairman of the subcommittee. The three have been asked to testify before the panel today.

— In the House, the 25-year extension of criticial enforcement sections of the 1965 Voting Rights Act was adopted and sent to Reagan.

Reagan has said he will sign the bill, which keeps under federal scrutiny the voting practices of parts of 22 states, bans discriminatory practices such as literacy tests and poll taxes in all 50 states and is designed to make it easier for minorities to prove racial discrimination in voting practices.

— The Democratic-controlled House Foreign Relations Committee — rejecting Republican arguments that it was trying to embarrass the Reagan administration — approved and sent to the floor a resolution calling for a U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms freeze.

— The Senate Agriculture Committee voted to force the states to make major reductions in their food stamp error rates or start paying for some of those losses.

SENATOR'S STAFFER VISITS—Elvin Carraway, director of U. S. Sen. John Tower's office in Lubbock, stopped off for a brief visit in Snyder this morning. While here he conferred with local Republican Party, county and city officials, discussing legislation and federal policy. Carraway, who grew up at Spur, was assigned to Sen. Tower's Lubbock office about a month ago. The office, which serves some 100 counties for the Senator, is located at 730 Court Place, 1001 Main St., in Lubbock, and the telephone number is 806-762-7533. Carraway said his office would be glad to hear from constituents at any time. Pictured from left are Roy Baze, Scurry County Republican Chairman; Carraway; and B. J. Bartels, Scurry County Commissioner, who is the only local Republican official. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Shuttle Countdown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The steady tick of the countdown clock today carried astronaut Ken Mattingly nearer his dream of flying that "elegant ... almost magic machine," the space shuttle Columbia.

The count was on the button for Sunday's planned start of the spacecraft's final test flight and the first in which American astronauts will conduct military experiments in orbit. Liftoff is set for 11 a.m. EDT.

Mattingly, a 46-year-old Navy captain and a veteran astronaut who piloted an Apollo spacecraft on a lunar mission, will command the flight. At his side will be rookie astronaut Henry Hartsfield, 48.

They are to thoroughly test Columbia's systems during seven days in space to qualify it for operational, satellite-hauling missions starting with the fifth flight in November. The shuttle is scheduled to land on Independence Day at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Cosmonauts Blast Off

MOSCOW (AP) — French test pilot Jean-Loup Chretien and two cosmonauts blasted off atop a Soviet rocket Thursday, on a space mission that would make Chretien the first non-American Westerner to orbit the earth.

Korean Shakeup

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan today removed Prime Minister Yoo Chang-soon and three other ministers, the latest prominent victims of South Korea's financial scandal.

Chun, trying to staunch his political losses from the scandal, replaced Yoo and the finance minister, justice minister and minister of energy and resources.

It was the third Cabinet shuffle in the last month.

Chun reached outside his embattled government for a new prime minister, naming Kim Sang-hyup, 62, the president of Korea University. Kim served as education minister in 1962.

The financial scandal has led to the arrest or indictment so far of 28 prominient Koreans. The central figures in the scandal are related to President Chun's wife, and are accused of operating a $250 million fraud on Korea's "curb market," where private loans are made.

Jurors Summoned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel, hoping to get quick congressional action changing federal law on insanity pleas, is summoning three members of the jury which found presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. innocent by reason of insanity.

"They want to find out exactly what led members of the jury to accept the insanity plea," said a spokesman for Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the acting chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal law.

In a highly unusual step, the subcommittee announced Wednesday that jurors Maryland Copelin, 50, Nathalia Brown, 30, and Lawrence Coffey, 22, all of Washington had been asked to testify today.

Testimony was also expected from legal specialists on the issue.

Reagan Vetoes Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today vetoed an emergency spending bill offering housing subsidies to low- and middle-income home buyers and repealing a $75-per-day tax deduction that members of Congress gave themselves last year.

'Absolute Immunity'...

Court Rules In Nixon's Favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today said former President Nixon could not be held accountable for allegedly firing a civilian Pentagon worker, ruling for the first time ever that a president enjoys "absolute immunity" from lawsuits which seek monetary damages for misconduct in office.

The suit stemmed from the alleged illegal firing of Air Force worker A. Ernest Fitzgerald, who already has received $142,000 in return for his promise not to take Nixon to trial no matter how the court ruled.

Thus, the 5-4 decision upholding the president's immunity dealt only with the historic legal issues that will govern future suits.

The Supreme Court today came down on the side of the president as long as the alleged illegal conduct is within the "outer permiter" of his official duties.

"We hold that (Nixon), as a former president of the United States is entitled to absolute immunity from damages liability predicated on his official acts," Justice Lewis F. Powell wrote for the court.

"We consider this immunity a functionally mandated incident of the president's unique office, rooted in the constitutional tradition of the separation of powers and supported by our history," Powell added.

Fitzgerald claimed Nixon had him fired for disclosing to Congress in 1968 that the C-5A military transport plane could cost $2 billion over estimates. He was rehired with back pay in 1973, and only last week was reinstated to his original duties in a settlement with the government.

Fitzgerald, who sued Nixon and two former aides for $3.5 million, claimed that his constitutional right to free speech and his rights to make his views known to Congress were violated.

Fitzgerald received the $142,000 from Nixon in return for promising not to take the former president to what Nixon's lawyers said would be a "months-long trial."

Nevertheless, the Supreme Court, despite expressing annoyance over the settlement during oral arguments in the case, went ahead and decided the immunity issue for both Nixon and the two aides.

In a companion decision, the Supreme Court ruled 8-1 today that former Nixon aides Bryce N. Harlow and Alexander P. Butterfield enjoy only "qualified immunity" from Fitzgerald's suit.

Two Climb Jail Fence

Local law enforcement officers were attempting to track down one of two Scurry County Jail inmates who climbed over the exercise yard fence shortly after 11 a.m. this morning.

The escapees were Ricky Cox, serving time for a probation revokation on a forgery charge, and Wiley Hearn. Hearn had recently been transferred back to Snyder from the Texas Department of Corrections for a further hearing in his case.

Both men, wearing jailhouse whites, ran north from the jail on foot. Sheriff's deputies recaptured Hearn in the vicinity of Patterson's Used Car lot around 11:30.

Cox was reportedly still at large at 11:50 a.m. and had last been seen on foot, still wearing his county whites, in the north part of town.

Stenholm To Hold Forum Here Monday

Congressman Charles Stenholm will be in Snyder for a "Chat with Charlie" session Monday.

He will be at the Snyder Savings and Loan, 2619 College Ave., at 9:30 a. m., and anyone who would like to talk with him personally is urged to be on hand.

Congressman Stenholm will present an update on events in Washington and cover all subjects mentioned by those in attendance.

The appearance here will be one of a series of open forum meetings. Stenholm said he believes it is fundamental to the American form of government for all citizens to have the chance to visit with elected officials.

"I take the title 'representative' very seriously and I pledge all my abilities toward filling this role," Stenholm said. "I ask your help to serve our area."

Israeli Jets Dive Bomb Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets divebombed guerrilla strongholds in residential areas of west Beirut today and the state radio said Israeli gunboats joined in the bombardment. The jets also downed two Syrian MiGs in central Lebanon and Americans prepared to evacuate the war-torn country.

The Tel Aviv command said the MiGs were downed when they tried to intercept Israeli jets attacking Syrian targets during a tank and artillery battle along the Beirut-Damascus highway. Syria acknowledged two MiGs "hit" and said its forces were engaged in "violent clashes" with the Israelis.

The Israeli armored forces in the mountains appeared to be trying to consolidate their grip on a 20-mile stretch of the highway linking the Lebanese and Syrian capitals in an effort to bar the Syrians from bringing up supplies and reinforcements for a possible battle for Beirut.

The Christian Phalangist-run Voice of Lebanon radio station said the artillery battle resumed soon after dawn along the Bhamdoun-Mdeirej sector of the highway east of Beirut.

The Syrians fired Katyusha rockets into Israeli lines and the Israelis replied with an air strike, destroying the rocket launchers, the radio said.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command gave a similar account, saying its forces were replying to a Syrian rocket and artillery bombardment begun just after dawn.

A Palestinian communique said an "intense battle" was raging between Mansouriyeh and Bhamdoun, east of the capital. It claimed the Israelis lost 80 soldiers killed and 17 tanks and one armored personnel carrier destroyed in the past 24 hours. There were no accounts of Palestinian or Syrian casualties.

Rainfall Near Year's Average

June weather continued to act like May last night as thunderstorms boomed again over the Snyder area.

The official gauge at the city water plant measured .47 inch of rain, running the total for the month to 5.48 inches, some three inches above normal for the month. The total for the year has now reached 18.45, about an inch shy of the normal for an entire year. A total of 15.95 inches of rain has fallen in Snyder in May and June.

A flood warning was in effect in Wichita County early today after very heavy thunderstorms dumped flood producing rainfall on the Wichita Falls area during the night.

Several streets, including Midwestern Parkway, were closed by high water and travel in southern portions of Wichita Falls was being discouraged, authorities said.

A line of heavy thunderstorms moved through the Dallas-Fort Worth area early today, dumping heavy rainfall as it moved slowly southeastward. Forecasters warned of possible flooding of streets and low lying areas.

The thunderstorms were triggered by the combination of a low pressure trough and several minor upper level disturbances.

At least two tornadoes were sighted in Lynn County in Northwest Texas late Wednesday, but there were no reports of injuries.

One was reported about two miles northeast of Tahoka and another was reported near McCoy.

Lynn County sheriff's officers said some power poles, barns and silos were damaged near McCoy. They said they had no reports of substantial damage from the tornado near Tahoka.

While the thunderstorms moved across northwestern and northern sections of the state, the rest of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies early today.

The SDN Column

The Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders unexpectedly found themselves involved in politics the other day, and they didn't like it. In fact, there were hints that legal action might be considered, although it appears now that everyone knows that they were the victims of some low-level Yankee operatives who are trying to inject themselves into Texas politics.

Actually, it was not the Cowboys cheerleaders who were shown in some controversial television commercials. It was another group of girls who were attired to try to delude the public into thinking they were the Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders.

The whole thing was arranged by a group which calls itself the National Conservative Political Action Committtee, more generally referred to as "NCPAC," but labeled by some Texas editorialists as "Nick Pack," or "Nit Pick." Tricks such as they played on the Cowboys cheerleaders are their stock in trade. The chairman, a fellow named John T. Dolan, was quoted once as boasting that "a group like ours could lie through its teeth and the candidate it helps could stay clean." Thus, it appears that NCPAC's mission is something like that of the late Joe McCarthy.

Why have they come south into Texas? Vice President George Bush and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen are on their "hit list." Also, they have been shunned by candidates that they ostensibly were trying to "help" in other states.

The old theory that repetition can make anything be accepted as truth has been in widespread use for years, and many people unknowingly accept it and pass it along.

For example, here are some statements you probably have heard many times, and obviously many people believe them:

1. The Republican Party caused the "Great Depression." Not so. Rapid expansion of business and industry and wild speculation following World War I overheated the economy, and in those days, the government was powerless to apply the brakes.

2. President Herbert Hoover refused to do anything to get the federal government behind efforts to cope with the Great Depression. False. President Hoover proposed several programs that were all but identical to those later offered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, but they were rejected by Congress.

3. A Democratic regime "gave away" the Panama Canal. False. The first steps toward eventually turning the canal over to Panama (which owned it all along) began during the Eisenhower administration, and all but the actual "signing over" were completed during the Nixon-Ford regimes.

4. Democrats have dominated the White House for the past quarter century. False. There has been a Republican in the White house for 10 of the last 14 years, and for 20 of the last 30 years.

This was mentioned in a coffee session recently, and someone said, "Well, it just seems longer when they (the Democrats) are in there." Which is further proof that things are not always what they seem."

Rare Offspring Survives...

Tex The Whooping Crane Killed

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Tex, the rare 4-foot-tall whooping crane who performed a mating dance with a human, was killed in her pen by a marauding raccoon only a few weeks after she made scientific history as a mother.

George Archibald, director of the International Crane Foundation center, had spent years performing mating dances with the whooper to induce Tex to lay an egg after being artifically inseminated. The newborn chick, the first whooping crane born in captivity, hatched just 3½ weeks ago and is named Gee Whiz.

Although saddened by Tex's death, Archibald said Wednesday "there'll be whoopers to dance with in the future" because the genetic line is continued in Gee Whiz. "We feel that our work has been successful," he said.

Tex, 15 years old, was killed Tuesday night in her pen, where Crane center spokesman Scott Freeman said a raccoon was found early Wednesday with her remains.

The raccoon, which was shot to death, had broken through an eight-foot nylon mesh ceiling designed to protect the cranes from such hazards, he said.

Freeman said Gee Whiz, born on June 1, is healthy and growing.

Tex had been raised by humans in the San Antonio Zoo in Texas and never became interested in male cranes.

The bird was transferred to the crane foundation — which is seeking to build up the endangered species — and Archibald began joining Tex in the mating dances. Cranes need to perform the dance to become receptive to breeding.

Archibald appeared Wednesday on "The Tonight Show" with Johnny Carson after he learned by telephone of the bird's death.

"Last night while I was on my way to California, Tex was killed by a predator, and so it's sort of surrealistic." Archibald said on the program. "... We have many cranes, we have more than 140 (cranes of various species) at the Crane Foundation but the one bird — it's the first time we've ever had this sort of problem, and it was her."

Carson quipped: "And she has film to pass on to her young. When they're old enough to understand it they can say, 'Hey, there's Mom!'"

In a previous interview, Archibald said he realized in 1975 that Tex went into her spring mating dance only when humans passed her pen.

"It is the same with children," he said. "If they have an abnormal childhood, they are raised with all sorts of abnormalities."

The bird became infatuated with Archibald during the dances and would attack people who came into the territory that the two had staked out. Archibald even moved a cot and a typewriter into her shed during weeks of getting acquainted.

The courting that began in 1976 led to several failures because eggs were infertile, soft-shelled or diseased. But Gee Whiz — named for Dr. George Gee at the center, who helped obtain semen used to inseminate Tex — weathered a week of illness and is "in real good shape and about a foot tall," Freeman said.

Elephant Being Sent Away Soon

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A zoo elephant who sank into loneliness after the death of her companion is being sent away for a cure because now she does nothing but pace in her cage, perhaps troubled by elephantine memories.

Wally, the Toledo Zoo's only female elephant, "has got some real problems," zoo Director William Dennler said Wednesday. "I'd say it will take a good elephant trainer a couple of months to bring her around."

Zoo officials hope that sending her to an animal farm in Texas will soothe her psyche and end the lonely blues that set in after the 1980 death of her companion, Amber.

Wally, an 11-year-old Asian elephant, probably was traumatized when she watched 31-year-old Amber die two years ago, Dennler said. Wally hasn't been the same since.

"I know it sounds strange, but she really has become neurotic," Dennler said. "All she does is pace back and forth in her cage. Elephants are very social animals, and two females will develop closer bonds than a male and a female.

"When Amber died, Wally was in the next cage area, and stuck her trunk through the bars to sniff, trying to find out what was going on," Dennler said. "She has never been without another elephant. Who knows what ran through her mind?"

The zoo checked initially to find out whether there were any Asian elephants available in the United States. There weren't, and having one shipped from overseas could cost $40,000 or more.

So in a two-for-one deal, Wally is being traded for two female African elephants, each about 3 years old, Dennler said.

The deal is a good one for the Toledo Zoo and for the International Animal Exchange of Ferndale, Mich., Dennler said.

Wally will be relocated first to the animal exchange's African Lion Safari near Port Clinton, Ohio. Eventually, Dennler said, the elephant will be transferred to the animal exchange's operations in Texas for breeding.

Wally is an untrained elephant, making her care more difficult, Dennler said, and animal trainers will begin working with her at the Safari.

Periodic lack of blood flow

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the last five or six years I've been having sudden "weak spells" during which I am partially conscious and my legs and arms are paralyzed, with a sensation of blood rushing to my extremities. I have recovered fairly well between spells.

My doctor has prescribed Norpace, Persantine and other medicines but has failed to tell me what these attacks are. However, from hospital records I've learned that I have transient cerebral ischemic attacks. All my symptoms correspond exactly to one of your columns about such attacks.

In small towns doctors are very busy and don't have time to inform me on just what I should avoid or do. I'm 71 years old and do my own work and walk for one hour daily. Would you send me any information about this trouble and what I can expect?

DEAR READER — Remember that ischemia means lack of blood flow and according to your records you are having transient periods (attacks) of ischemia to part of your brain. These behave exactly like a stroke, in that you can have temporary loss of function of an arm, leg, loss of speech or other symptoms we associate with a stroke. The cardinal difference is the short duration and the fact that once the attack is over there is no residual damage. Suddenly a paralyzed leg or arm will function again.

The transient nature means the cause of blockage of an artery to part of the brain must be temporary. Some may be caused from disease in the internal carotid artery in the neck. Cholesterol crystals or even clumps of platelets formed over a fatty-cholesterol deposit or even a small portion of a clot may pass through the arteries to the brain. Another possible cause is an irregularity of the heart that momentarily affects blood flow to the brain.

Anyone who has had a transitory ischemic attack should have a careful neurological examination. That includes examination of the arteries to the brain with arteriograms. Some patients need treatment to prevent a future stroke. To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 16-6, What You Need to Know About Strokes. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman, 53 years old, and have had very few sick days in my life. I do not drink intoxicating beverages but I am a heavy smoker. I have only had heartburn about twice in my life until about a month ago. For the past month I have had heartburn quite often. Someone told me that heartburn often precedes a heart attack. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Heartburn is commonly caused by irritation of the lower esophagus just above where it joins the stomach. Usually it is from a backward leakage of acid contents from the stomach. No, it does not precede heart attacks, although some problems such as esophageal spasm that may occur with it may be hard to separate from heart pain.

You may have less heartburn if you stop smoking and give up coffee (including the decaffeinated brands), tea and colas. Have your doctor check you for a hiatal hernia on your next examination or sooner. It may be associated with a leakage from your stomach.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

There is probably no TV show that has captured the imagination of romantics more than "The Love Boat."

It has certainly brought new meaning to the word "cruise," which now translates to "(noun) Floating bedroom for thin people and old movie stars with an Ark wish to exit two by two."

A friend of mine confided to me that she and her husband were going on a cruise this summer to put excitement back into their marriage. She said it worked for June Allyson and Van Johnson and it should work for them. If a cruise didn't do it, then they were going to hang it up.

"Don't be a fool," I told her. "You can't have your entire future hinging on a cruise."

Her enthusiasm made me wish I had spoken out before. My husband and I have been on a cruise...several of them...and believe me, they're no love boats.

To begin with, forget wispy little bottoms in bikinis. We're talking 18 meals a day aboard a cruise ship. At the end of the first week, I'd outgrown my life preserver; by the end of the second week, they were having a practice drill on how to launch me in the event of a disaster, and by week three, Julie, the recreation director, was showing the movie "Nicholas and Alexandra" on my backside.

There are other discrepancies worth mentioning. On real cruises, they paint the boat every minute of the day and night, so scratch the love scenes at the ship's railings. The winds that whip around the deck may not do anything to Ann Miller's hair, but one day mine blew right off. When my husband said, "Don't carry on, it's only a wig," I informed him I wasn't wearing one.

No matter what you said to our captain, he answered, "I am Norwegian" and "There is no immediate danger."

I'd like to have been able to tell my friends that lovemaking burns 125 calories and that by the end of the trip we were both anorexic. But the truth is my husband and I only went to bed in the afternoon once. It was on a Tuesday, in open seas, and both of us were so motion sick we prayed to die.

Personally, we loved the cruises, but if you really want romance, stay at home and paint the kitchen.

Unbranded Cows Easy Prey

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Unbranded animals are easy prey for urban cow and horse rustlers in Texas, and livestock stealing is one enterprise not suffering from economic recession, a cattleman's association says.

Thieves have been taking increasing numbers of horses and cattle, especially around big cities, said Cullen Ribonson, special assistant for the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raiser's Association in Forth Worth.

Rustlers prey particularly on unbranded animals because "a brand is a cow's return address," Robinson said in a telephone interview.

"Livestock producers in the metroplex areas such as Dallas-Fort Worth and even San Antonio are losing more to rustlers than those in the wide-open spaces," he said.

Robinson said one reason for increased urban livestock thievery is that the animals are more concentrated and often are not branded. Many owners consider it too time-consuming or expensive to get a few hands together to brand the animals, he said.

In rural areas, residents become suspicious if they see strange people and vehicles moving across the rangeland, and ranchers are more apt to heed the axiom: "Trust everybody but brand your cows," Robinson said.

"But in a metroplex area they can pull right up and load them up and nobody pays any attention."

The TSCRA has 32 field inspectors and 87 brand inspectors that attend every livestock auction in Texas. They have been investigating a series of 11 cattle thefts along IH-35 between Austin and Oklahoma City.

$1,000 In Tools Taken

Scurry County Sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft of nearly $1000 worth of tools from a shop on West 30th St. sometime Tuesday night.

The burglar or burglars apparently gained entry to the building, owned by Horace Bostick, by prying the lock off the shop's south door.

Reported taken in the incident were an electric welder, a cutting torch, some motor oil and numerous small hand tools.

Investigation into this incident is continuing but deputies report no leads in the case.

Theft Case Cleared Up

Snyder police officers reported clearing a misdemeanor theft reported Tuesday with the arrest of a male juvenile suspect Wednesday afternoon.

The suspect is accused of taking a 100 foot extension cord and a hedge trimmer from the A. B. Linville residence at 218 36th St.

BIRTHS

Dennis and Earlyn Loiselle are parents of a baby girl born June 11 at Huguley Hospital in Fort Worth. She weighed eight pounds, 1 ounce and has been named Mary Elizabeth.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Perser of Snyder.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with this guy I work with. We have a lot in common. His marriage stinks and so does mine. We've done a lot of talking, but that's all.

I can't get this guy out of my mind, Abby. We've made plans to spend a weekend together, but something always comes up and he can't make it. I even rented a motel room for a Sunday afternoon, but he never showed up. When I saw him at work on Monday, he said he had the feeling he was being followed and didn't want to take a chance.

This guy really appeals to me like no man I have ever known. He keeps saying he would like to get to know me better, but that's as far as it goes.

What I need to know is this: Why can't I get him to meet me away from work?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Because he's either chicken or henpecked. In any case, you're both married to other people, so forget him. He's doing what he does best — talking.

DEAR ABBY: The physical attraction I once felt for my husband is waning fast. The reason? He's fat and doesn't seem to care.

He knows how I feel. Should I find someone else, or pretend he's someone else?

COOLED OFF IN COOS BAY

DEAR COOLED: What else does he have going for him? If he's worth keeping, pretend he's Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Paul Newman rolled into one. If that doesn't work, pretend he's Orson Welles and love him to pieces.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one who never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I'm too embarrassed about my problem to ask anyone else.

I'll start from the beginning: Dick and I got married when we were both 17, mainly because I was pregnant, but we also loved each other deeply. We've had our problems like most young marrieds, especially getting ourselves into deep financial trouble.

This weekend Dick gave me a real shocker. Because of his job as a construction worker, he works 200 miles away and can come home only on weekends. Anyway, he came home with hickeys all over his neck and admitted he had committed adultery on several occasions because of his strong sexual desires, which I can attest to. He says these girls mean nothing to him and he loves me, but he gets so lonely and there is nothing to do but go to bars. That's where he meets these easy girls. He says if I want to divorce him he will understand and won't fight it.

The fact is, I still love Dick. Besides, I have two preschool children and I'm four months' pregnant.

What should I do? I am a good Christian, but sometimes I feel like killing myself.

UPSET AND DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Both you and Dick were married before you were mature enough to handle that kind of commitment. If your marriage is to survive — and you qwe it to your children to give it your best effort — you will need family counseling. If your church doesn't provide it, try your local mental health association. Don't back off because of the money. You will be charged only what you can afford. And please remind Dick that bed-hopping with girls he picks up in bars is the way men get VD — and bring it home to their wives.

Holt Gave Jury Instructions

AUSTIN—District Judge Wayland G. Holt of Snyder gave a jury proper instructions on punishment in the trial of Arthur Lee Harding, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled yesterday.

Harding had received a mandatory life sentence in a forgery case trial heard in Holt's 132nd District Court after a jury determined that he had previously been convicted of two other felonies. His lawyers had argued that Judge Holt failed to tell the jury that a life sentence was possible. The appellate court ruled the the jury was given the required instructions and the sentence was upheld.

To Steal Computer Secrets...

FBI Exposes Plot Against IBM

TOKYO (AP) — A Mitsubishi Electric Corp. official admitted today that one of the firm's employees in California paid an undercover FBI agent $20,000 for "sample information" about IBM computers.

The acknowledgement came a day after Hitachi Ltd., another major Japanese electronics company, admitted paying a total of $548,000 for computer information to a consulting firm that turned out to be an FBI front.

The FBI claims Hitachi paid $622,000 and Mitsubishi paid $26,000 for stolen IBM computer design secrets.

Mitsubishi on Wednesday denied any attempt to steal computer secrets from IBM or make any illicit payments. But Mitsubishi spokesman Hideo Ohta said today he had just learned of a $20,000 transaction in long distance telephone conversations with Takaya Ishida, who was arrested by the FBI in San Francisco and later released on bail.

Hitachi denied any wrongdoing, but confirmed authorizing payments of $548,000 in May and June to secure information on "technology trends" in computer-memory subsystems.

FBI agents have arrested six Japanese and an American in California in connection with the case. The agency has issued warrants for 12 other Japanese here, but the United States has not yet asked for their extradition, as permitted by a U.S.-Japanese treaty, Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said.

One man charged, 30-year-old Tomizoh Kimura of Mitsubishi, was arrested in San Francisco after boarding a flight to Tokyo on which he checked a suitcase containing stolen IBM information, U.S. authorities said.

The case has ballooned into the most sensational U.S.-Japan business scandal since the Lockheed payoffs case of the mid-1970s.

An editorial today in the nationally-circulated Yomiuri Shimbun linked the FBI charges to growing anti-Japanese sentiment in the United States, and questioned "the real intentions of U.S. authorities."

The daily Mainichi Shimbun also implied the U.S. investigation was politically motivated.

"We hope this incident will not accelerate the protectionist move in the United States and damage U.S.-Japan relations," it said.

"Japan's technology has been based on improvement of 'inventions' in the United States and Europe. For this reason, Western countries have latent frustrations about Japanese getting for nothing the fruits of their efforts," the paper said.

Congress has been discussing possible trade restrictions against Japan to help counter a massive imbalance in Tokyo's favor in trade with the United States.

Reneee Floyd CF Chairman

The Lone Star Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation has announced the appointment of Renee Floyd as chairman of its 1982 campaign in Snyder.

The campaign will be held to provide the community with information about cystic fibrosis and to raise funds to support research, education and care programs for CF patients.

The No. 1 genetic killer of children, cystic fibrosis is inherited and incurable, claiming three lives each day. An estimted one in 20 Americans is a symptomless carrier of the recessive CF gene. Currently, half of all children born with CF will die before reaching their 20th birthday.

Israeli Invasion Embarasses Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Israel's incursion into Lebanon has deeply embarrassed the Egyptian government, delayed its attempted reconciliation with the Arab world and forced it into agonizing choices between old and new friends.

But despite dismay at the fighting and the apparent U.S. inability to curb the Israelis, the government of President Hosni Mubarak has been holding steady on its course of peace with Israel and close ties with the United States.

Government anger over the Israeli invasion did not prevent Egypt and the United States from signing a major trade agreement this week, nor did it keep Mubarak from a widely publicized meeting with U.S. trade representative William Brock and Ambassador Alfred Atherton.

But Mubarak himself warned the United States this week that continued Israeli occupation of Lebanon or a bloodletting in the streets of West Beirut could change all that.

In order to underscore Egypt's opposition to the Israeli move, the government-controlled press is filled with reports of Egyptian diplomatic efforts to end the fighting.

Mubarak's widely publicized offer of asylum for embattled Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat was seen in part as a move to affirm Egyptian support of the ideals of Palestinian self-determination.

It would be an odd homecoming for the PLO, which was founded at an Arab summit here in 1964 but joined much of the Arab world in breaking ties with Egypt after it signed a peace treaty with Israel in 1979.

Egypt's support for the Palestinians has its limits.

Prime Minister Fuad Mohieddin told members of his National Democratic Party that Egypt would not permit volunteers to go to Lebanon to fight alongside the PLO, as demanded by opposition parties.

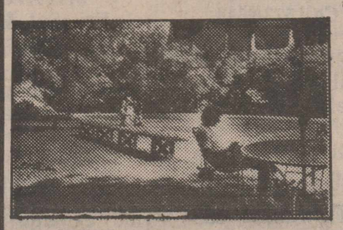

Nor would the government bow to opposition demands to suspend relations with Israel over the invasion and abandon the Camp David peace process.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Beans of one variety or another will grow anywhere in the United States, from Maine to Florida, from Alaska to Hawaii. They are easy to grow, tasty, and next to tomatoes, they rank tops among North American garden vegetables.

These are some of the reasons they were selected as the 1982 Vegetable of the Year by the National Garden Bureau, the educational service of the home-garden industry.

Varieties of beans range widely, including the flat-podded Romano, tender and stringless; modern early lima; pole types city dwellers can grow on sunny porches and patios; wax and green bush beans, easy to harvest, and southern or cow peas that are more like beans and are harvested for shelling when the pods turn color.

Beans are apparently of South American origin. Climbing or runner beans appear to have been the original form. Bush varieties are of fairly recent origin, probably springing from mutations from runner types.

American Indians showed colonists how to grow beans among corn — an example of "companion crops," the Garden Bureau says. The corn supports bean runners and the nitrogen-fixing bacteria around bean roots enriches soil for both crops.

Early southeastern Indian lore, probably referring to lima or butter beans, described how an early start was obtained by sprouting and transplanting bean seeds. Shallow clay pots were filled with moist soil, planted with bean seeds and buried in cooling ashes of a campfire which supplied gentle, sustained warmth.

So-called minor beans include scarlet runner, widely grown for ornamental blossoms; "Dutch Caseknife," a white-seeded runner with cream-colored blossoms; Southern Catjang, bush Blackeye, Purple Hull, Crowder and Cream of Ladypea; fava or broad-beans; tepary, grown mostly for dried beans; garbanzo, grown commercially as a dryland crop in California; mung, much used in the dry seed stage to produce sprouts; and adzuki, a vegetable popular in Asia.

Dry beans of most species may be eaten after cooking. Usually they are planted by gardeners with lots of space because they occupy considerable room for a long time. In the tropics they are referred to as "the poor man's meat," providing protein where animal protein is scarce and expensive.

Dry beans contain sugars difficult for humans to digest but pods of green and wax snap beans are easily digested.

Plant beans when spring frost danger is past. A pre-planting soak for 30 minutes in tepid water speeds seed emergence. Planting in cold, wet weather can rot seeds. Soil near neutral pH, moist enough to hold shape when squeezed and fertilized with a balanced mix of major and minor nutrients, is good.

Plant bean seeds one inch deep in rows 2 to 3 feet apart, with plants 4 to 8 per foot for most bush types and 2 to 3 feet apart for pole types.

Don't overwater. Beans like light, frequent irrigation.

West's play in today's hand is not a normal case of an automatic false-card. It is a matter of simple defensive play. When a play cannot deceive your partner you must always play a card that you are known to hold, rather than one that is unknown to declarer.

South is in three no-trump. The 26 high card points that are usually enough for game are there, but 10 are in the diamond suit and can only account for three tricks.

There are just seven sure winners. Dummy's fourth spade might be the eighth, but the best chance is to try to get four club tricks. The chance isn't a good one, but it is still the best.

Therefore, at trick two South leads a club toward dummy and finesses the jack. It works and things are looking up. South continues by playing dummy's ace. If West just follows with the 10, South will lead to his king, drop the queen and score his game.

But West drops the queen. Now South has a problem. Is West false-carding or was he dealt just queen-small of clubs?

South may try to get some sort of count by cashing two more diamonds. East will chuck a spade or heart on the last diamond and it will seem rather likely that he was dealt four clubs. South will lead dummy's last club, finesse his nine and be down.

"I JUST CAN'T SEEM TO GET WAITED ON."

Wilfong Aids Angels In Topping Texas 5-3

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Seldom-used infielder Rob Wilfong, coming off his best game of the season, knows he won't be in California's starting lineup tonight when the Angels open an important four-game series with the Kansas City Royals. But that doesn't bother him.

Despite a hero's role Wednesday night, Wilfong will be happy just keeping his seat in the Angels' dugout.

"I hope they saw something they didn't like," said Wilfong, regarding reports that Oakland A's scouts were watching him closely for possible trade discussions during a 5-3 victory by the Angels over the Texas Rangers. "I want to stay here."

Wilfong had batted only eight times with the Angels prior to Wednesday night, when he collected three hits. The start was his first since May 20. He had been a regular for five years at Minnesota before California acquired him from the Twins on May 11.

Wilfong scored California's first two runs after a single in the second inning and a triple in the sixth. But the difference in the game was Reggie Jackson's 14th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the seventh off loser Doc Medich, 5-6.

Texas, which got a game-tying solo home run from rookie first baseman Dave Hostetler in the fourth, chased winner Ken Forsch, 6-6, in the eighth when Buddy Bell hit his seventh homer.

Hostetler accounted for the Rangers' final run later in the eighth with his second homer of the game and ninth of the year, which chased Andy Hassler and brought on Doug Corbett, who got his eighth save of the season.

Hostetler has played in only 22 games since being called up from the minor leagues on May 30. Fourteen of his 20 hits for the Rangers have been for extra bases. He is hitting .263 for Texas.

The first-place Angels lead Kansas City by one-half game in the American League West and are meeting the Royals for the first time this season.

"We've got to play well, we've got to play our game and we'll win," said Jackson, whose homer was his fourth in the last six games and his seventh in the last 14 outings. "I'm looking forward to it."

Connors To Highlight Wimbledon Card Today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -- Jimmy Connors, who long ago tempered somewhat the demons that continue to haunt John McEnroe, highlighted today's card when he put his No:2 seeding on the line against Australian John Alexander.

In other men's matches, third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis took on New Zealander Bruce Derlin, No.4 Sandy Mayer met Colin Dowdeswell of Britain and No.11 Brian Teacher of the United Stwtes got his tournament bid underway against Israeli Shlomo Glickstein.

The ranked women, all of whom received byes in the opening round, also made their debut today as top-seeded Martina Navratilova, No.3 Tracy Austin, No.4 Andrea Jaeger and fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia took the court.

Second-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, in keeping with Wimbledon tradition of having the defending champion open play, defeated Barbara Sue Gerken on Tuesday.

McEnroe, who opened on Center Court Monday in an impressive victory, moments after wiping out Eddie Edwards of South Africa 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 in a second-round match Wednesday showed that the feathers of the reigning champion still ruffle.

A reporter asked the New Yorker if he "is purposely backing off the throttle a bit?"

"You might put it that way," McEnroe said. "I hope to enjoy my tennis career. This way, as time goes on, it will be easier."

Yet, it didn't go that way Tuesday. With his strokes erratic from the outset, his temperament joined in.

After cruising through the first two sets with nothing more than minor disruptions, McEnroe missed an easy volley in the third game of the final set. He lifted the ball with his racquet and then slammed it into the net. An umpire issued him a warning.

For the third straight day, rain curtailed the card Wednesday and left tournament officials facing a backlog of dozens of matches.

Two other seeded men players reached the second round as No.12 Mark Edmondson of Australia outlasted American Marty Davis 7-6, 7-5, 7-5 and 15th-seeded Buster Mottram of Britain overcame a tiebreaker loss to overtake 20-year-old Anders Jarryd of Sweden 6-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Net Tourney Deadline 30th

Deadline to enter the Snyder Fourth of July Tennis Tournament is June 30, reminds Mike Boles, tournament director.

The tournament is scheduled for July 3 and 4 and will be headquartered at the high school courts, though most of the city courts will be used.

Events include 12, 14, 16 and 18 boys and girls singles and doubles, men's and women's singles and doubles open division; 35-year old and over men's singles; 35-year-old and over women's singles; and mixed doubles.

Entry fee for all singles is $6 per event; doubles $10 per team.

Entries may be obtained by contacting the chamber, Snyder Athletic Center, or by calling (915) 573-3344 or 573-3940.

Rose, Teammates Top All-Star Vote Getters

NEW YORK (AP) - Pete Rose, who moved up to second place on major league baseball's all-time hit list this week, is one of three Philadelphia Phillies who lead in the voting for starting positions on the National League All-Star team.

Rose, in the race for the first base job, had an edge of some 33,000 votes over Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the latest tabulations announced Thursday by the baseball commissioner's office. His Phillies teammates Manny Trillo and Mike Schmidt are the top vote-getters at second base and third, with Schmidt in total command at his position, collecting more votes than any NL player - 766,756.

Trillo, a two-time All-Star, leads Dodgers rookie Steve Sax by 152,201 votes. Schmidt, with a 460,243-vote margin on Ron Cey of the Dodgers, is expected to make his sixth All-Star appearance. Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, a 13-time All-Star catcher, is third.

Gary Carter, a four-time All-Star catcher, is one of three Montreal Expos who lead at their positions for the all-star game at Olympic Stadium in Montreal July 13.

Carter has a lead of 369,730 votes over the St.Louis Cardinals' Darrell Porter, his closest rival.

Andre Dawson and Tim Raines of the Expos are 1-2 in the tight race for starting outfield berths. Dusty Baker of Los Angeles is third. George Foster of the New York Mets, Lonnie Smith of the Cardinals and Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves were bunched behind the top three.

The closest race among infielders involved shortstops Dave Concepcion of the Cincinnati Reds and Ozzie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals. Concepcion led by just 30,170 votes.

Fans select the teams through ballots available at major and minor league ballparks through July 4.

Stampede Set For July 3

Runners are urged to sign up now for the White Buffalo Stampede, running events which will take the annual Fourth of July Celebration out of the blocks and underway here July 3.

Start time will has been moved to 7 a.m. All runners are urged to meet in the swimming pool parking lot.

Races will include a One Mile Fun Run, a run of five kilometers and a run of 15 kilometers (9.4 miles). There is no charge to enter the Fun Run unless the contestant wants a T-shirt. The other races are $7 apiece and include T-shirts and winner's trophies.

Men's divisions include 18 and under, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59 and 60 and up. Women's divisions are 25 and under, 26-3, 36-45 and 45 and up.

Race co-organizer Jerry Vestal was expecting a number of competitive runners, but urges others who are in good physical condition to participate in the "fun and exercise".

T-shirts will be available the day of the race for all entries that pre-register by June 29. All who register after that day will receive shirts via mail.

Entry blanks are available at Snyder National Bank, First National Bank, West Texas State Bank, Snyder Athletic Center, Thompson's Shoes and Dryden's Shoes.

For further information, contact Jerry Vestal at (915) 573-2156 or Rex Robinson at (915) 573-2681.

The Stampede, expected to be an annual event, is being sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Astro 'Pen' Still Slumping As SF Pulls Out 9-8 Win

HOUSTON (AP) - A clutch hit from a pinch-hitter got the San Francisco Giants out of a bind and underscored the problems the faltering Houston Astros are having with their battered bullpen.

The Giants overcame a six-run, sixth-inning outburst by the Astros to take a 9-8 victory in the Astrodome Wednesday night.

Max Venable's eighth inning pinch hit single drove home Johnnie LeMaster, who reached base on a bunt single and moved to third on a bloop double by Tom O'Malley.

"It would have hurt a lot if we had lost tonight," said the Giants' Joe Morgan, making his first start at third base in his career.

The Giants grabbed a 6-1 lead midway through the game, but Houston caught fire and the Astros took an 8-6 lead in the sixth.

But Morgan, the 18-year veteran, quickly got the Giants moving again with a run in the seventh, scoring on Jack Clark's sacrifice fly.

Four Astros pitchers charged out of the bullpen, but they couldn't stop the San Francisco hitting. Frank LaCorte, the fourth of five Astros hurlers, was saddled with the loss.

"The only time we've really missed (reliever Joe) Sambito is the last few days," said Astro manager Bill Virdon.

Darrell Evans' two-run homer, his eighth of the year, gave San Francisco a 2-0 lead in the second, but the Astros came back with an Alan Ashby run-scoring double in the bottom of the second.

The Giants got two more in the fourth on Clark's RBI triple and a run-scoring single by Milt May. May knocked in two more runs in the fifth to make it 6-1.

Houston scored a run in the fifth before exploding for six more in the sixth. Danny Heep, Ashby and Phil Garner knocked in four of the runs with doubles, and Dickie Thon and Ray Knight had RBI singles.

Fred Breining, 4-1, was the winning pitcher. Greg Minton earned his 12th save in relief.

Player Demands Vague Says Chief Negotiator

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Football League Players Association's demands are too vague for consideration in contract negotiations, Jack Donlan, the club owners' chief negotiator has told a National Labor Relations Board hearing.

The players union has charged the NFL Management Council, the owners' labor relations arm, with unfair bargaining practices in their current negotiations. The players group has requested that the club owners turn over data on wages and non-monetary aspects of television contracts - information it says it needs to negotiate effectively.

Donlan, executive director of the management council, as a hearing witness Wednesday, the final day of the three-day hearing, lashed out at the players' contract proposal, which includes the controversial demand that 55 percent of gross receipts go for pay and benefits.

"No where do they mention specifics," he said during his hour of testimony. "They don't talk about minimums, only percentages."

Donlan also said that the union's demands regarding network television contracts "have no relevance to collective bargaining."

Administrative law judge Julius Cohn said both sides have until July 23 to file briefs. He said his ruling to determine if the club owners must turn over the material could take two months.

Contract negotiations are scheduled to resume July 7 in Washington. The current pact expires July 15.

Both sides have indicated they will conduct business as usual - including training camps and the exhibition season - right up until the regular season begins Sept. 12 if they are still in negotiations.

In Texas Prisons...

Health Care Is Not Up To Par

HOUSTON (AP) — A progress report filed with a federal judge says the Texas prison system still has a long way to go before it measures up to standards it pledged to meet on health care for prisoners.

"The lack of licensed personnel was the single most important deficiency systemwide," said American Health Care Consultants Inc. said in a report filed with a federal court in Houston.

The group said it found that virtually every prison unit has an insufficient medical staff and too little treatment space.

The Texas Department of Corrections agreed to meet American Medical Association standards to settle a portion of the suit brought by inmates before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued a ruling on the state's appeal of Justice's 1980 reform order Wednesday, but it did not affect the health care section.

The report was filed in Justice's court to assess the TDC's compliance with the health care portions of the judge's sweeping reform order.

"A number of improvements are needed before the TDC system can be said to meet the AMA's definition of adequate health care services," the report said.

State and prison officials said that many of the deficiencies will be eliminated later this year when a new prison hospital is scheduled to be completed. The facility is being built in conjunction with the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

Attorney General Mark White said in Austin Tuesday that the new hospital would provide inmates with "care equal to the care received in the free world."

The report sharply criticized conditions at Huntsville Hospital, the system's main medical facility. It also urged prison officials to stop using inmates to treat other prisoners.

"It is recognized that the TDC institutions are understaffed and that this accounts for the heavy utilization of inmate workers," the report said. "However, this practice is unacceptable."

The report also charged the prison system's doctors do not supervise treatment provided by medical assistants closely enough; said many correctional officers were not adequately trained in first aid; and said the system does not have sufficient medical support services.

Most medical assistants are "unlicensed individuals whose medical experience was gained either as military corpsmen or through on-the-job training."

Dr. Ralph Gray, assistant TDC director for medical services, said that beginning in September, most medical assistants will be sent to the Allied School of Health in Galveston for training as institutional health technicians.

The graduates of the program will be classified on three levels as health technicians, with the lowest grade the equivalent of a licensed vocational nurse and the highest equal to a registered nurse, Gray said.

The AMA team said "nurses are direly needed."

For Falklands Negotiation...

U.S. Wavering In Its Backing Of Resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a fresh signal of support for Britain in the Falklands dispute, the Reagan administration is wavering for the first time in its backing for a U.N. resolution that calls for British-Argentine negotiations to settle the conflict.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., briefing reporters on a meeting between President Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, indicated Wednesday night the United States has no quarrel, for the time being, with her opposition to a negotiated settlement.

"The prime minister made it clear we wouldn't expect anyone to tell us how to deal with our property and we are not going to presume to tell her how to deal with hers," Haig said.

By suggesting that the islands belong to Britain, Haig also appeared to depart from the longstanding U.S. policy of not taking sides in the conflicting claims of Britain and Argentina to the islands.

Since the start of the crisis, the United States repeatedly has expressed support for a settlement of the conflict based on U.N. Security Council resolution 502, approved on April 3, the day after Argentina seized the islands. Britain regained control over the islands by force earlier this month.

Haig's remarks suggested a shift from the policy stated earlier but he left open the possibility that his position could change once the post-war political turmoil ends in Argentina and that country agrees to a formal cessation of hostilities.

Although there is a de facto cease-fire, Argentina has said a state of war with Britain will continue to exist until British "occupation forces" are withdrawn from the islands.

Civilians Meet With Leader

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Civilian political leaders agreed to sit down and talk today with the army's president-designate, Reynaldo Bignone, but warned that Argentines are fed up with military governments.

"The people have again been mere spectators at the designation of the president of the nation," said a statement issued Wednesday by a coalition of the nation's five largest political parties.

It said Argentina's six-year-old military regime had "severely degraded (the country's) standard of living and put Argentina in the worst crisis of its history" — the disastrous Falkland Islands war.

The statement called on the military to set a date for a return to civilian rule and said, "The promises of future consultations with the political forces can't hide these frustrating and recurring developments.

"The people have reached the limit of their tolerance," the statement said, hinting of possible street violence if civilian rule is not restored.

Just a few days before Argentina invaded the Falklands on April 2, police used force against thousands of demonstrators protesting the worsening state of the economy.

Class Sets 20 Year Reunion Sat.

The Snyder High School graduating class of 1962 will hold its 20-year reunion this weekend.

Early arrivals will attend an informal reception Friday evening in the home of Monette Sentell.

A coffee has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Snyder Country Club. Teachers, administrators and others who were associated with the Class of '62 are invited to attend the Saturday morning event.

A dinner-dance for class members and their spouses will be held Saturday night at the Country Club.

Snyderite Gets National Award

Ross Bawcum of Snyder High School has been added to those whose names will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook.

Bawcum was nominated for the national award by Robert Crawford, SHS track coach.

The academy selects ward winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other school sponsors and upon the standards for selection set forth by the academy. The criteria for selection include academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Bawcum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. May. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond May of Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ross of Garland.

CRMWD Figures Under Estimates

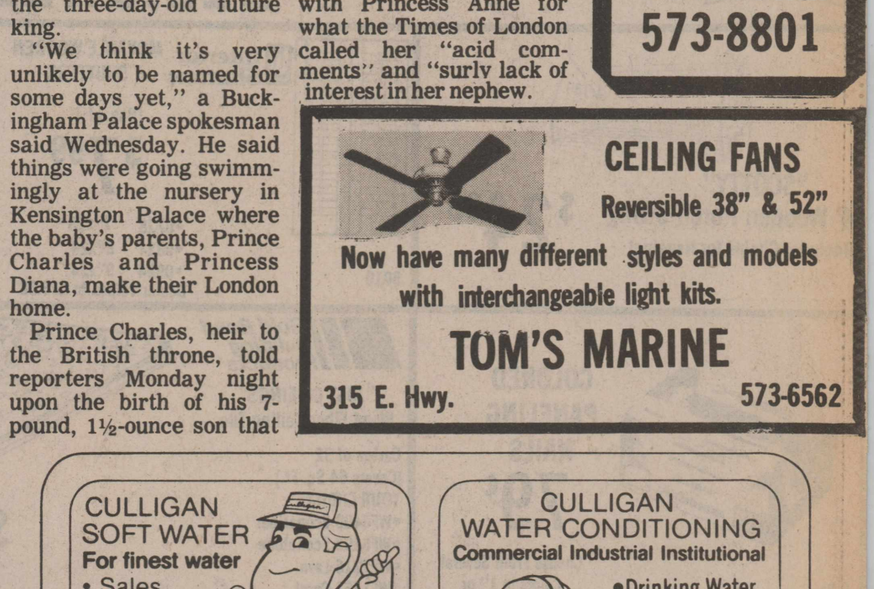

Operating revenue ran slightly under budget projections through May for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, but expenses showed a still greater under-run.

May revenue of $893,037 made $4,191.495 for the first five months of the year, or $255,495 under the projected budget for the period. Budget projections by the month, however, are somewhat distorted because they represent one-twelfth of the total, whereas the big demand months occur in the mid-year period.

Expense of operation in May amounted to $511,407, making $2,353,710 for the first five months, or $524,000 less than budgeted.

The big item in operations was electric energy, which amounted to $350,701 for May, making $1,551,610 for the year. In 1981, comparable figures were $341,605 and $1,145,947. The only reason power costs have not gone higher this year is that CRMWD had so far managed to pump greater volumes nearer the points of delivery.

Of the 6,737,844,087 gallons of water delivered through May, 5,547,000,000 gallons came from the two lakes, J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence, or 82 percent of the total.

JUDGES IN SEMINAR—These three justices of the peace were among 59 who attended a 20-hour seminar recently at the Texas Justice of the Peace Training Center at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. Baby Nameless

LONDON (AP) — Britain's littlest prince remained without a name today while the press accused his aunt, Princess Anne, of being jealous of the three-day-old future king.

"We think it's very unlikely to be named for some days yet," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said Wednesday. He said things were going swimmingly at the nursery in Kensington Palace where the baby's parents, Prince Charles and Princess Diana, make their London home.

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, told reporters Monday night upon the birth of his 7-pound, 1½-ounce son that there was a "a bit of an argument" going on about names.

But it was nothing compared to the fight British newspapers picked today with Princess Anne for what the Times of London called her "acid comments" and "surly lack of interest in her nephew.
