FOUR JAILED AS MASKED FLOGGERS

PRISON BOARD PICKS WICHITAN AS OFFICIAL

A. H. Carrigan Is Named Vice Chairman Of Committee

TO NAME MANAGER

$8000 Salary to Be Paid For Supervisor Of State Prison

AUSTIN, June 16. (AP)—The new Texas state prison board, authorized by act of the 40th legislature, which so far has failed to define the board's power, began to function today after a conference of seven of the nine members with Gov. Dan Moody, and selection of Col. R. H. Baker of Houston as chairman and A. H. Carrigan of Wichita Falls as vice-chairman.

Col. Walker Sayles, chairman of the present prison commission of three, was designated temporary member of the prison system pending final selection of an $8000 a year manager authorized under the reorganization act.

To Name Manager.

Col. Baker said it may be several weeks before a permanent manager is selected, and that there will be no changes in the present personnel of the system until the new board looks things over. A dozen or so applications for the position of manager are on file.

Governor Moody has named only seven of the board of nine. Of these, six were present today. Besides Baker and Carrigan, they were: Rabbi Henry Cohen, Galveston; Frank L. Tiller, Rosenberg; Lee Simmons, Sherman, and Joe Wearden, Goliad. The seventh member, W. M. O'Dell of Fort Worth, was absent.

The board endorsed a tentative proposal to make a week's inspection of the prison system.

Disagreement in the special session repeated the history of the regular session and no legislative expression was made concerning the board's power to rehabilitate or concentrate the prison system, sought through years of agitation.

To Submit Plan Again.

Governor Moody and his supporters in both instances wanted to give the new board plenary power to dispose of prison property to relocate the system, while supporters of Representative Lee Satterwhite held out for a requirement of legislative approval of all major transactions, except for possible sales of the Shaw, Ferguson and two Walker county farms.

Governor Moody has intimated that he again will submit his plan of relocation to the special session in the fall.

So He Takes Count In Court From His Countess

By Universal Service.

The count, who has become a hosiery salesman in Chicago was alleged to have forgotten his noble lineage now and then only to choke and beat her.

Furthermore, she added, he was too prone to despise her humble American birth, and to emphasize his social superiority.

BERLIN SENDS WARNING NOTE

Reds Warned to Reduce Their Propaganda

By Universal Service.

GENEVA, June 16.—A hint, which may or may not be followed by a kick, was given to Soviet Russia in a sort of a left-handed way by the League of Nations today.

The "Big Six" of the league—England, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Japan—decided that no immediate concerted action should be taken against the soviets but at a conference of the delegates of those nations it was decided to notify Moscow that its propaganda abroad is distasteful and should be withdrawn.

To Dr. Gustav Stresemann, foreign minister of Germany, was assigned the delicate task of passing the word to George Tchitcherin, the Russian foreign secretary. It was "suggested" that Dr. Stresemann inform M. Tchitcherin "that it is the unanimous view of the foreign governments that the propaganda of the third internationale, which is being widely disseminated, is harming Russia, "and that unless it is checked "individual governments will be forced to combat it."

In a tactful note handed to Tchitcherin in Berlin today by Count Van Bernstorff, German ambassador to Russia, in the presence of Chancellor Marx, the German government told the Russian foreign minister that Germany was acting in the "capacity of a friend" in suggesting the curtailment of red propaganda.

M. Tchitcherin reserved all comment, it is said, regarding the communication until he talks with his colleagues at Moscow. He is leaving for Russia tonight, Berlin dispatches state.

Flares Seen in Canada Woods Spur Hunt For Fliers

By Universal Service.

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 16. The crew of the steamship Swiftwater, the first ship to navigate the Belle Isle straits this season, arrived Lere today convinced that the "White Bird" with Nungesser and Coli aboard hit an iceberg at sea.

It was reported today that while off Newfoundland the sailors on deck saw what appeared marks of something having hit a large berg. A survey with glasses revealed wreckage and also what seemed to be footprints.

"One side of the berg," Seaman Alfred Curbal declared today, "was scarred as though something had dropped from a great height and slid down the side."

Curbal, together with three more sailors and the third engineer saw the wreckage.

"The ship was in too dangerous a position to investigate," the seaman added, "but most of us are positive that the berg we sighted will solve the mystery of the disappearance of the airmen."

Treasured Relic Graces Hotel Bedroom At Fredericksburg

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, June 16.—Governor Dan Moody will pay homage to "General Robert E. Lee's bed" Saturday when he opens the new Nimitz hotel at Fredericksburg with an address.

During the Civil war, General Lee visited Fredericksburg and slept in the old Nimitz hotel. The bed he occupied that night has been carefully preserved and a few days ago was taken to the new hotel.

The governor will be only a few feet from the historic bed when he delivers the address that will formally open the hotel.

"And of course, I've got to say something about that bed," the governor said today.

HUGE SAVING ON NEW RATES

Chatham Completes Survey Of Freight Charges

A list of exhibits showing present freight rates and rates to become effective under the new southwestern scale as rendered in a decision of the interstate commerce commission has been compiled by J. W. Chatham, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and is being sent to all members of the organization.

The effect the decision will have on Wichita Falls is shown in the bulletin through comparison of the present rates and the new ones which will be published by carriers by Dec. 5, 1927. Several weeks have been required to work up the necessary exhibits and get them in tabulated form.

"The amount of money to be saved in freight charges after these rates are effective will be enormous, and there is no way of figuring just what this saving will be for the merchants and jobbers of Wichita Falls," Mr. Chatham said.

Wichita Fals is on a parity with the principal cities of Texas, and in most cases has better rates than any other city in West Texas, it was noted in the bulletin being sent out.

$25,000 PAID TO LINDBERGH FOR PARIS HOP

Orteig Prize For First Non-Stop Hop Is Presented

ENDS BUSY DAY

Medal Also Given Ace As Memento Of Occasion

NEW YORK, June 16. (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh tonight received a check from the hand of Raymond Orteig, representing the $25,000 prize which he won by making the first non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

The colonel, nearing the end of a busy day which followed a night in the air and a morning on wheels in a Brooklyn parade, settled down at 6:20 o'clock for a few moments in the dining room of the Hotel Brevoort, owned by Raymond Orteig. After a few short speeches the check was handed the aviator.

The check was highly distinctive—aside from its figures. It carried Mr. Orteig's signature, the American flag, the Spirit of St. Louis, and all its wording and numerals were embossed and illuminated on fine vellum.

200 Guests Present.

Flanking the aviator and the donor were two hundred invited guests, the press and trustees of the prize.

In presenting the check which was offered in 1919 to anyone who could win it, Mr. Orteig said:

"I had two thoughts in making this offer. One was to stimulate aviation, the other to strengthen friendly relations between the United States and France. Through you, Colonel Lindbergh, my aspirations have materialized beyond words."

Colonel Lindbergh with his usual blush accepted the check described by a young woman in the audience impulsively as "too beautiful to cash" and stepping forward from among the several trustees of the fund, said:

"I have often been asked by press men what first directed my attention to a possible flight to Paris. I believe Mr. Orteig first directed the attention of most aviators that way. His offer of $25,000 for the first New York to Paris flight was a challenge to the pilots of the world to see if they could build and operate a sufficiently capable plane. I don't think any such challenge within reason will ever pass unanswered."

Shift in Plans.

The presentation of the check was to have been at a breakfast at the same place tomorrow morning, but shift in the colonel's plans changed the donor's plans and tea was substituted for the morning coffee.

The ceremonies were opened by Colonel George W. Burleigh, vice chairman of the officers and trustees of the prize, who read the resolution of the trustees formally making the award and Colonel Walter Scott then presented the trustees' medal to Colonel Lindbergh. From this medal eleven impressions had been struck, one going to each of the trustees, one to Mr. Orteig and one to the Metropolitan museum.

LINDBERGH HOPS FOR ST. LOUIS TODAY

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Young Charlie Lindbergh expects to shake the dust of New York off his feet and hop off for St. Louis about 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

He will sail aloft in his "Spirit of St. Louis." It is locked up safe and sound in its hangar at Mitchell field tonight after having been flown from Washington.

Two sentries are standing guard over the mechanical half of the aerial "We" and will continue at their posts until the last minute. It is not thieves they fear but the ubiuitous souvenir hunters who might cart the gallant "spirit" off piece by piece.

If Lindy hops off at the scheduled time, he will sail over Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, at 10:40 in the morning and ought to reach St. Louis at 2 or 3 in the afternoon.

The young hero brought his silver bird to New York while the millions who had cheered him three days ago were peacefully sleeping.

He dropped out of the sky with the "Spirit" at 7:57 this morning, after a round trip to Washington that had been made in something less than five hours. He simply couldn't bear the separation from his "other half" any longer.

C-C Directors Unanimously Approve Road Bond

Imperative Need of Better Highways Stressed In Campaign to Voters

Directors of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce voted 100 per cent in support of the $1,110,000 road bond issue for Wichita county at the regular meeting of the board held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, and are formulating an active campaign to wield the election in favor of the bonds.

A steering committee of 11 members was appointed Thursday and another general committee of 50 members is being selected by officials for announcement Friday. The steering committee will work with chamber of commerce officials in carrying out the proposed campaign, while the larger group will function on creating favorable sentiment on the question.

Ask Petitioners to Aid

The 575 persons petitioning the commissioners court to call an election will be asked to secure 10 names each on a pledge to vote in favor of the issue on June 25, the date of the election. Literature will be sent each of these, explaining in detail the necessity for the proposed roads and arguments conductive to holding the election at this time.

"If one-fifth of these whose names were on the original petition comply with this request, the election will be carried," Hubert M. Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, pointed out. There are 10,000 voters in Wichita Falls, Iowa Park road district No. 2 with power to kill or pass the issue.

The concensus among the directors and visitors at the meeting that the election would be defeated only through failure of many voters to attend the polls on election day. It is due to this fact that every effort will be made to personally interest each man and woman in the roads and to carry the election successfully, it was affirmed.

General Business Topic

Several attending the meeting asserted that this is the most auspicious time to hold such an election and to start on the actual road building program. Business generally is in a state of semi-suspension, there is much unemployed labor to be obtained more cheaply than in busier seasons, and the passing of a road bond issue of this size would become an important factor in accelerating industrial and commercial activity, it was declared.

That opposition to the issue centered mainly around the contention that concrete and not ahphalt roads should be built was explained at the meeting. On this question the directors all agreed that since concrete roads could not be constructed at this time, they should form no barrier to the program as originally drafted. A definite and almost imperative need for better roads would make it inconsistent to halt any improvement in favor of waiting several years, those present said.

Election Valid

As the program now stands, three concrete projects are included, one extending the Seymour road north towards Holliday and the county line; one and one half miles to the county poor farm from Wichita Falls, and another joining the Country Club Estates and the fair grounds.

Chas. I. Francis reported on the action of the attorney general in reversing the ruling which validated the election, assuring the directors that every legal phase of the question was favorable settled.

Those appointed on the steering committee are J. B. Marlow, J. C. Mytinger, Walter Curlee, A. C. Rayzor, L. V. Thomas, Henry C. Fulcher, Charles Nolen, P. B. Roberts, Ed. Howard, E. C. Knox of Iowa Park, C. C. Hudson, Iowa Park and Mrs. B. G. Oneal, who will organize a similar committee among the women voters of the district. This committee will hold its first meeting Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the chamber of commerce.

BYRD MAY HOP OFF THIS A. M.

But Weather in Atlantic Still Adverse

ROOSEVELT FIELD, NEW YORK, June 16. (AP)—Instructions to Thomas H. Kinkade, Wright motor engineer, to make a thorough examination of the motors of the Fokkeir monoplane America gave rise to a report tonight that Commander Richard E. Byrd planned to hop off for Paris early tomorrow.

Kinkade who had been at Mitchell field checking up the motor of Colonel Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis preparatory to his departure for the West, refused to comment on his instructions.

The possibility of Commander Byrd starting his Paris flight at 7 a. m. the hour set for Colonel Lindbergh's hop-off, was discussed about the Roosevelt hangars.

Reports from the weather bureau, however, were adverse to an early departure for a trans-Atlantic flight. Conditions were said to be unchanged since this afternoon when the weather bureau gave no great hope that there would be sufficient clearing even by tomorrow noon.

Four Men Arrested At Marshall Held In County Jail

BOND IS REFUSED

Men Are Suspects After Flogging of Four East Texans

MARSHALL, June 16. (AP)—Four men were arrested here tonight by state rangers in connection with the flogging on the night of June 8 of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Straps. They are Cain Anderson, well to do farmer, Otto Bruhn, his son-in-law, Tom Weems, employe on the Anderson farm, and D. Osborn, tenant farmer renting from Anderson. Charges were filed against the four.

Charges of committing a crime of assault while in disguise and of approaching a private residence while in disguise were filed against Anderson, Weems and Bruhn. Osborn, who was released under bond earlier this week on five charges, was placed under additional charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Bond Is Refused.

Sheriff John C. Sanders, who, with Deputy Sheriff John Henderson assisted the rangers, said that the men would not be allowed bond tonight.

The rangers, who made the arrests were Ezell, Osaba and Purvis.

Anderson was the first man arrested, being placed in jail about 4:20 p. m. Subsequently Bruhn, about 20, and Weems, about 24, were arrested in their fields west of Marshall and jailed and Osborne also was at work when the authorities found him, they said.

County Attorney John E. Taylor, who filed the charges, said that under the anti-mask law the maximum penalty for committing a crime while in disguise is five years imprisonment and the maximum for entering a private residence in disguise is 10 years.

Officers Investigate.

Sheriff Sanders and the three rangers worked on the case most of the day, leaving Marshall about 11 a. m. They returned about 2 p. m., and asked County Attorney Taylor to file charges. Armed with warrants issued by Justice of the Peace J. W. Pace, the officers set out again and by sundown the four men were in jail.

Family of 6, Typhoid Victims, Fight For Lives in One-Room Shack

When one woman takes care of five cases of typhoid fever and one case of smallpox in a one-room house, with no help and in the complete isolation of smallpox quarantine, it looks like a stiff fight for everybody concerned. And when her husband has been out of work for several weeks before taking typhoid, there is naturally no money to help things along.

Another Case

Not even a neighbor can help—and yet this mother protested against letting the children be taken to the hospital—their care must come from only the loving hands of their mother.

That is one of the cases now to be found in Wichita Falls. The family lives in a section of town where there is little chance for proper sanitation and destitute is too futile a word to express their condition. Not one cent of money did they have when the case was brought to the attention of Miss Myrle Neely, chairman of the Welfare board, and one by one the children have all been stricken with the fever, taking every moment of the mother's time.

Six Quarts a Day

It takes six quarts of milk to give these sick babies the nourishment they need each day to pull through the long weakening strain of typhoid. Three of them are now well enough that they need food, cool water and much milk. This must come from the milk and ice fund, and these weak little hearts can keep beating only if the wholehearted generosity of the people of Wichita Falls holds out to them the help that is so essential just now.

Farmer Presents 20 Chicken Heads As Theft Evidence Against Trio

Heads of about 20 chickens, brought to Wichita Falls Thursday by O. B. Leath, are expected to play an important part in the prosecution of three persons arrested Thursday by Constable Frank Morgan for stealing chickens.

The three persons, a white man and woman, and a negro man, were arrested in a local wagon yard by Constable Morgan after Mr. Leath, who lives on the Thornberry road northeast of Wichita Falls and in Clay county, had searched for them several days.

Mr. Leath had missed chickens periodically. After the trio moved away he found 20 chicken heads under an outbuilding. Mr. Leath was of the opinion that the people had lived off of his flocks.

The woman and men were taken to Henrietta Thursday by an officer from that place, as the alleged thefts were committed in Clay county.

In the meanwhile Mrs. Burch's husband divorced her in New York state and Capt. Marson's wife divorced him, the decrees becoming final yesterday. The marriage here followed immediately.

Plane May Have Struck Iceberg

spanned the Atlantic, before it vanished into the unknown.

The wilds of northern Quebec are believed to hold the secret of the fate of the two daring French aces. The thin ray of hope—the signal flares—may mean that they will be found alive. And, though developments today discredit the theory that the flares were set off by the missing fliers, the combing of the mountainous and thickly wooded sections went forward with renewed vigor.

Mysterious Flares

An official report received by Avila Bedard, assistant chief of the provincial forestry service, late this afternoon, from Eudora Racine, a forestry engineer at Roberval, states that light again were seen last night between the Shipshat and Peribonka rivers. This would indicate that the mysterious flares are getting nearer Chicoutimi.

The message reads:

"Ferland township tower observer saw last evening at midnight, under form of flare, which appeared to be between Shipshat and Peribonka."

Following close on the heels of the trapper's story which was flashed from the shores of Lake St. John late yesterday, that he had heard the sound of an airplane motor—either running short of gas or in trouble—the evening of May 9, came word from the Indians today of the plane.

A party of Indians that has just reached Peribonka told of seeing a "white bird" early in May flying in a westerly direction several hundred miles east of the point where the distress signals have been reported.

Indians Saw Plane

"Ugh! big white bird!" they declared today, as they swept the sky with bronze hands indicating the direction it was flying.

The Indians are credited with meaning an airplane in their typical language. The report, which came from Roberval, is being investigated.

From the Outarde river where a few trappers pushed their way in from the wilds today came the report that some time about the eighth or ninth of May they heard the motor of an airplane. At that time little importance was attached to the noise due to the fact that machines often fly over that territory for lumber inventory reasons.

Inquiries made later, however, proved that at that time neither the Ontario Paper company nor the Anglo-Canadian company, which own vast areas in that section, nor the government, had any machines in that section.

A report from the provincial weather service here indicated that on May 9, the date on which Nungesser and Coli were due on this side of the Atlantic, a strong southwest wind was blowing on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river. The wind was said to have been very strong from Belle Isle to the Lake St. John district, according to the observers reports, which might have had an effect on the the route followed by the French airmen.

Wind Changed Course

If this strong wind did change their course—and they followed the wind—they would have roared over the area where the sound of a motor has been reported.

As for the flares—which were first sighted last Sunday, again Tuesday and still again Wednesday night—M. R. Kane, manager of Price Brothers in Kenogami wired early this morning.

"Last night's observations from the Ha! Ha! river tower definitely locates lights reported on previous nights at Chute Aux Galets on the Shipshat river, where Price Brothers electric power house is located. High power lights are in operation on the dam there. In checking bearing of lights originally reported seen by fishermen from Lac St. Germain, it is obvious these were upon the dam."

However, according to information received from a Mr. Lavole, who with a Mr. Wells, was the first to report the signal flares in the northern wilds, the color of the flares would indicate a call for help.

They were said to be in the form of red balls, which in the air signalling code means a demand for assistance.

Seek Verification

If this should be confirmed by other persons alleged to have seen the flares, the government hydroplane, which is awaiting orders to start north, will proceed without delay to the point where the signals were last reported.

Coupled with this report and last night's report that some skyrockets and signalling devices had been stolen from the Roberval air station a month ago, it was learned today that a party of young men passed through Notre Dame De Grace the latter part of May. They were headed toward the Peribonka river on a fishing trip.

"The theory that the signal youths is also being investigated.

"Courtesy Mail Box" Latest Device For Convenience of Automobilists

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—A "courtesy mail box" for the convenience of motorists as provided by Postmaster Roy B. Nichols of Houston, Texas, has so highly commended itself to Postoffice department officials that First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett has recommended it to Postmasters of other cities where it is practicable and there is a real necessity for such a convenience.

The Houston box, installed because of the inability of patrons to find parking space during the congested hours, is placed at the street curb and by arrangement with traffic authorities is in a 40-foot "no parking" zone. The opening of the box faces the street and metal handle 16-inches long with a chain extend from the opening of the drop. A motorist may easily open the box with one hand and deposit a letter without leaving the car.

A short time after the capture Chief of Detectives George Smith of Winnipeg, declared he was certain that the prisoner was the man who strangled to death Mrs. Emily Patterson, 27, and Loal Gowan, 14-year-old school girl, here several days ago.

HE DOES!—Because you expect him to weight your orders of bulk goods. If he didn't you would assuredly change your trading place.

The same thing is true with circulation. During the last few years Advertisers have not been satisfied to suppose they were getting a certain circulation for their money; they don't want to be merely told, they want to know.

They want the circulation measured by a standardized and unquestionable measurement.

The Audit Bureau of Circulation is the recognized authority for proving circulation. It is maintained as a co-operative organization by the advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers who realize the necessity for businesslike methods in advertising.

A. B. C. reports place in the hands of advertisers essential facts that have been secured and verified by a searching examination of the publisher's records.

You don't need to buy Space by Guess.

You can get the full circulation facts by referring to the last A. B. C. reports which will be gladly furnished on request.

PEASE RIVER BRIDGE BONDS

Wilbarger County to Vote On $50,000 Issue

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 16.—At an election on Aug. 1, Wilbarger county voters will decide whether the county shall issue bonds in the sum of $50,000 for the construction of a new bridge across Pease river west of Vernon and for the paving of the gaps of Highway 5 on either side of the bridge, according to an order of election adopted by the commissioners court.

The order specifies that the bond issue shall not exceed the sum of $50,000 and that this money shall be used for no other purpose than to pay the one-fourth of the total cost of the project which must be contributed by Wilbarger county. The bridge is estimated to cost $125,000 and the total cost of bridge and paving to be $200,000.

The federal authorities have agreed to meet half of the total expense, the state highway commission one-fourth and Wilbarger county one-fourth. Approximately one mile of paving will be necessary on both approaches to the bridge.

The new bridge will be constructed of concrete piling and will be located in about the same place as the old bridge. The latter collapsed early this year and the river has been forded at this crossing since that time.

Wilkins Case Goes To Grand Jury July 1

Probability that Joe Wilkins, accused of slaying Everett Horn, will be brought to trial the latter part of July, if he is indicted by the grand jury, loomed Thursday with the statements of both state and defense attorneys that they favored an early trial.

Although bail of $5000 for Wilkins' release from the county jail where he was lodged Sunday following the slaying of Horn, was set Wednesday no bond was presented Thursday to Sheriff W. G. Bralley for approval. As a result Wilkins still remains in jail.

The next grand jury will convene July 1 and if Wilkins is indicted he will be arraigned in the 30th district court, before Judge E. G. Thornton.

Majestic: "Resurrection," with Rod LaRocque and Dolores Del Rio; comedy, Topics of the Day and Pathe News.

Olympic: "Broadway Nights," with Lois Wilson, comedy and Fox News.

Gem: Roy Stewart in "The Bond of Fear," and comedy.

Garden: "Twin Six O'Brien," with Kit Carson; No. 9 "Melting Millions," and comedy.

"Broadway Nights," Robert Kane's fast moving and colorful film of theater and night club life in the city where the "dawn comes up like thunder," is the attraction at the Olympic Friday and Saturday, with Lois Wilson heading a cast of Broadway celebrities through the peppy piece.

How an ambitious amateur served an apprenticeship in vaudeville, blossomed on Broadway in the gayest night club of the street, and finally became the toast of the town as the star of a big musical revue, serves as the strong plot against which are set colorful back-grounds of Manhattan atmosphere.

Backstage shots peepd into the underworld and a strong theme of "mother love" are among the highlights of the film.

Lois Wilson, presenting a brand new characterization, as a jazz singing chorus girl, is the star of the hit with Philip Strange, Louis John Bartels and Sam Hardy heading the supporting cast.

Two beauties, Barbara Stanwick, and June Collyer, now under contract to Kane, make their film debuts in the picture which boasts of a score of Broadway celebrities including "Bunny" Weldon, Tammany Young and Lillian Lorraine. Joseph Boyle directed. Ernest Haller did the photograph. Forrest Halsey was supervisor and Leland Hayward production manager for Kane.

Cowpuncher, civil engineer, cavalryman, soldier, circus performer, trick rider and moving picture star. All these and more have been the occupation of Ken Maynard, star of "Somewhere in Sonora," the Charles R. Rogers production for First National, coming to the Mission theater today. A more colorful career than the famous First National Western star has rarely been gone through by any individual.

A Texan by birth Ken took to horses as the well known duck to water. He was sent to school in Ohio where he received his degree in civil engineering. He never used this knowledge for his career except to aid the government during the war.

Ken was born to ride a horse. Hence when he secured a opportunity to join a circus as trick rider he grabbed it. In a few years he had become star rider for the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus.

"Somewhere in Sonora," is a new phase of Western productions. It goes further than the average in story interest, enhanced by beautiful photography and an exceptionall good supporting cast.

American Girl Advised To Ponder Ere She Weds Handsome Foreigner

Will a Cultured American Girl Be Happy Married To a Foreigner Who Is Exactly Her Opposite? The 18-Year-Old Bride Who Wants to Exchange Her Husband for Her Old Beaux—Shall She Marry the Man Who Makes Her Wear Ample-Length Skirts?

Dear Miss Dix—I am 19 and have been engaged for almost a year to a foreigner. I have a good education; he never had the opportunity to go to school. I am a great bookworm! I don't believe he ever raed a book in his life. I am quick-witted; his mental processes are very slow. I am a good conversationalist; he seldom speaks. Even our taste in clothes differs.

However, despite our differences, I love him, or think I do. Sometimes I feel that I cannot do without him. Other times, because he lacks the things that I possess, I feel that I never want to see him again. Do you think that I could be happy with him if I married him? L.

Answer:

No, I do not think you will have a chance of being happy with this man if you marry him. He has a certain physical infatuation for you now, but this would not last, and when it was over you would be utterly miserable, bound by an uncongenial marriage whose fetters would chafe more and more as the years went by.

Analyze the situation and you will see why it is risky for you to marry this man. In the first place, it is always dangerous for an American girl to marry a foreign man, because the American woman has been brought up with different traditions and different ideals from those which foreign men are accustomed to accord to their women kind. Also the American wife demands a freedom which no foreign husband is willing to grant.

The marriage of an American woman to a foreign man is only successful when the man is of exceptional intelligence and strength of character and when he has known much of the world.

When the man is undereducated, unread, he will be unable to get any viewpoint but the narrow one to which he has been bred, and if you marry him, you will have to submit yourself to him or else be in continual conflict with him. The more stupid a person is, the more tenaciously he clings to his prejudices.

And what congeniality can there be between you who love to read and a man who has never read a book in his life? Believe me, if you marry him, you will be a very lonely woman, because you will have to live in a world in which your husband cannot enter. You will speak a language he does not understand. You will have interests in which he does not share. Furthermore, the chances are he will bitterly resent your being more intelligent than he is, for men do not like to have to look up to their wives.

"Like to like" is the best slogan for matrimony, and the happiest marriages are those in which men and women marry in their own class.

The people we enjoy being with are those with whom we have most in common, the people who move in the same circles that we do, who read the same books, who go to see the same plays, who like the same kind of cooking and worship the same God and vote the same ticket that we do. The people with whom we can chat forever without being bored are those to whom we can say: "Don't you remember?" or "What do you think of so and so?"

So pick out for a husband a man with whom you have everything in common instead of one with whom you have nothing in common. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Two months ago I married and I am sorry for it and want my freedom. The fault isn't with my husband, because he couldn't be more wonderful to me. He is everything a man should be and is getting along well in his profession. But, while I love my husband, I love good times better and when I see how much fun my girl friends are having running around I can't stand it.

My husband will give me freedom, but he says I am forfeiting my reputation and breaking not only his heart but my mother's. What shall I do. 18-YEAR-OLD BRIDE.

Answer: Of course, the right thing to do is to be a good sport and live up to the obligations that you have undertaken. If you had made any other sort of bargain, you would have to abide by it, and it wouldn't make any difference whether you changed your mind about liking it or not.

If you had bought an automobile and driven it for a couple of months and then decided that you were tired of it and would rather have something else, you wouldn't expect the man who sold you the car to take it back. If you had purchased a house and later on concluded that you didn't like its color or location, you'd still have to keep it.

So why not live up to your matrimonial contract as honestly as you would to a business one? Why be a welcher in marriage?

Of course, as a married woman, you can't run around as your flapper friends do, because you have taken responsibilities upon yourself, while they have not. You are bound and they are free.

But remember that you voluntarily assumed these obligations. None of them was thrust upon you. And it may comfort you to reflect that all of your girl friends' dates and running around merely lead up to what you have achieved. They are in pursuit of a good husband, while you have already caught one.

Furthermore, reflect on this: That if you know your own mind so little that you don't know what you want, if you are so fickle that you can fall in love and out of love in two months' time, you will regret it if you divorce your husband for no other reason than that you desire to be free to have a good time.

As soon as you lose your husband you will want him back again. You will find that the good times are not so very good, after all, and that you miss having somebody to love you and take care of you. You will find out that you have sold your birthright for a mess of pottage and that you made a poor trade in exchanging a tender husband for a few dances and dates.

But all of your trouble comes from marrying too young. If you had waited until after you had had your playtime, you would have been glad enough to settle down and be a good wife. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a young man. I have given up dancing and a lot of other things that I like to do but of which he does not approve in order to please him. Now he demands that I wear long skirts down to my ankles. I simply detest them and think the skirt just below the knee is quite long enough. Besides, I don't want to look like a frump. Would you lengthen the skirts or break off the engagement? NAOMI.

Answer—Well, Naomi, a man who undertakes to regulate the length of a girl's skirts before they are married doesn't look like a good matrimonial bet to me.

He has the makings of a domestic tyrant in him, and he will boss his wife so that she won't be able to call her soul her own. The only man who is entitled to tell a woman how to dress is a dressmaker or one who runs a dress shop.

Whether a woman bobs her hair or lets it grow long, whether she uses rouge lipstick or has as bad a complexion as nature gave her, the length of her skirt and the wideness thereof, are her own affairs, in which no mere man has a right to meddle. DOROTHY DIX.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Equal and Uniform Research

AND now the state tax survey commission is grinding. There are experts on the commission. They may grind all the summer. They may grind far into the winter. That is, the men who are informed on taxation economics will do the heavy work and hope to be able to submit a report to a special session of the 40th or the regular session of the 41st. Texas is said to spend more money for educational purposes than any American state. There are men who have held high office who unhesitatingly declare that there is a large waste. They are members of the survey commission. If they have their way about it they are going to strike at the very roots of so-called evils in the taxation system of Texas.

For Lawyer and Layman

IN a recent decision handed down by the court of criminal appeals, presiding Judge W. C. Morrow called attention to the following declaration made in a recent case, which is held to be well established and is deemed sound by the court.

"The established rule appears to be that to secure a reversal by reason of an erroneous failure of the trial judge to sustain the challenge of the veniremen for cause, the bill of exception must show injury and where the bill fails to show that the error resulted in forcing upon the jury, against the appellant's will, an objectionable juror, it is insufficient to comply with the rule."

This rule, according to the presiding judge of the court of criminal appeals, is in accord with the uniform practice of the court of refusing to reverse the case because of an error which could not and did not harm the accused. Fair enough. There should be one law for all. It is well for lawyers and laymen to be well informed.

Where Prosperity Abides

GILLESPIE county farmers are not toying with the blue devils. They say prospects are good for bumper crops of cotton and corn. Harvest of oats and wheat were above the average. Feedstuffs of all kinds promise very large crops. Potatoes are "better than they have been for years." And all kinds of berries and fruits are in abundance. Farmers of Gillespie county live at home. They make money crops. They make their investments pay dividends.

Passing of Peter Volkoff

PETER VOLKOFF was the Robespierre of the Russion revolutionists. He was the head of the secret council that ordered the Romanoffs and thousands of their followers to bloody graves. He was assassinated in Poland by a young Russion refugee. Peter in the days of the reign of terror in Russia, was as harsh in his decrees as the most bloodthirsty of the directors of the French revolution. He met a violent death. Now why should the Poles be punished, or why should Poland again be made the bloody cockpit of Europe?

Coolidge Luck Outlined

SECRETARY JARDINE of the department of agriculture predicts that the wheat crop of the United States will be 23,000,000 bushels below that of 1926, and may go much lower than this estimate. Canadian guessers say the wheat crop of Canada will be far below that of last year. Low priced wheat brings discontent in the Republican wheat belt; high priced wheat keeps the Republican farmers on the reservation.

Is it An Omen of Evil?

WASHINGTON advises that President Coolidge will be the first chief executive ever to stay for a protracted period in South Dakota, and the first president to come within its boundary since William Howard Taft went there in 1912. William Howard Taft went there campaigning for re-election. All the world knows what happened to him. Woodrow Wilson became president of the United States and the portly chief justice ran third in the balloting. Will history repeat itself?

Texas, Home of the Turkey

AN exchange says shipments of turkeys out of Texas in 1926 amounted to about 900 carloads and turkeys produced in Texas in the samt year and shipped to the centers of population are estimated to have had a value of $10,000,000. Now what was the value of the turkeys consumed in Texas. This would be a real item of news.

For Lovers of Swiss Cheese

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has ordered an increase of 50 per cent in the duty of Swiss cheese. An increase in the rate, which is now 5c a pound, was decided on after an investigation by the tariff commission. This will protect the cheese makers of the north and the east. There are many Texas farmers who are growers of onions. They are asking for a tariff to protect their industry against the inroad of onion growers in far away Egypt. If it is a good thing for cheese makers why not a good thing for onion growers?

A Warning From Taft

CHIEF JUSTICE William Howard Taft before going to his summer home on Murray Bay in Quebec served notice on state prosecuting officers that the supreme court will not tolerate any delay from them in its disposition of criminal appeals. A kick in the ribs appears to be better than a hint. Now it is for derelict state prosecuting officers to get down to real work. If they are overworked they should present an alibi to the distinguished chief justice.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 16. (EFS)—A few years ago, the patrons of the New York art galleries were almost exclusively women. Rich men bought paintings, but rarely by visiting the art dealers. The art dealers would notify their rich customers when they had discovered that an old master was about to be offered for sale in Europe. Usually the rich customer knew little about painting and left it up to a dealer in whom he had confidence to buy a Rembrandt, a Rubens, a Titan, a Raphael, a Corot or an Inness.

Now, however, there are a great many rich New Yorkers who are connoisseurs of art. And they do not buy old masters; they buy the work of modern artists. They have discovered that art sometimes yields a much better return over a period of years than stocks and bonds. If you have a feeling for art and are able to recognize an artist whose fame will grow with the years and to recognize his work early enough, you can buy his paintings for a low price and five or ten years later sell them at as high as 1000 per cent profit.

Whenever a new exhibition of a modern artist opens up, the galleries are filled with New York business men who are also connoisseurs of art. They examine each picture with a critical eye and discuss its color and design in highly technical language. If they discover a "comer," they will compete against each other in buying the best examples of that painter's work.

There have been instances in which canvasses bought for as low as $50 being sold five years later for as much as $5000. Good prints of an etching bought for as low as $2 have sold later for $200. Water colors bought from an artist when that artist was unknown for as little as $25 have later sold for $1500. Few bank or motor stocks have shown such a rapid increase in value.

The late John Quinn, New York lawyer, was fortunate enough to recognize the value of painters like Gauguin, Cezanne, Van Gogh, Matisse, Derain and Vlaminck at the time when those artists were laughed at by the European and American art critics. He bought canvases by them for as low as $25 and $50. When his collection of modern painters was sold after his death, it brought a fortune.

• • •

A mystery is being made in New York as to the identity of the man who writes detective stories under the name of S. S. Van Dine. In his novel, "The Benson Murder Case," he invented a new sort of detective, Philo Vance, who is a scholar and an aristocrat, a man who uses recondite words and unusual phrases, who slips into French, Latin and other languages to convey a meaning more precise than he could in English.

Philo Vance has already taken rank among the New York lovers of mystery yarns and detective stories along with Sherlock Holmes, Arsene Lupin and Father Brown.

S. S. Van Dine is admittedly a pseudonym. Two varying accounts of the man have been sent out by the publishers. One of them was that he is a Harvard graduate who has studied law and medicine and is an expert in criminal psychology and in continental methods of crime detection. The other was that he is a New York journalist who knows the city intimately and yet has lived many years abroad. This sounds like a deliberate piece of deception, because still another account is that he is a writer in another field who does not wish his serious writing to be mixed up with his detective fiction.

Harry Hansen, the literary critic of the World, has done an excellent piece of detective work in running down the identity of "S. S. Van Dine." He will not give out the name, but he says that the author is not a Harvard but a Princeton graduate and that he has written two excellent works on French history.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED—

The entrance of America into the World War, finds Phillip Wynne Travy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natlee Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracy's milkman, had had a childish engagement which was objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Phillip becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phil are the first to enlist. Natlee goes to the depot to see them off and in her anxiety to see Phil she ignores Rod entirely. This nearly breaks his heart.

Phillip finds he must leave for the southern training camp before seeing his mother again. Here he has a most unusual experience with a nameless girl. He gets detailed to kitchen police and his passes revoked.

On an impulse of pity, Phil proposes marriage to the nameless girl.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXXII.

Phil Bids Goodbye to Gladys.

All the next day Phil was as nervous as a cat.

It seemed to him as though he had never seen so many telegrams delivered to other men in the outfit since he had been at Fort Bliss. Marta and her mother came up for parade, but Lieutenant Andrews arranged matters in such a way that he did not get a chance to speak to them.

Marta, however, managed to convey to him that the liteutenant was not making a hit with her, even while he was escorting them to their car.

It was then that Phil received two telegrams and smiled for the first time that day. He realized that Andrews was doing him a favor by taking Marta and her mother away just at that moment. It was not punishment to give him a chance to read his anxiously awaited messages from his mother.

One, of course, was the request that he call at the office and receive a sum of money from some one that he should name. The other was a day letter which almost made him decide not to call for it. His mother had wired:

"What is the matter, son? Are you in great trouble? I can not understand why you should want such a large sum of money as your allowance has been sent you every week. I requested the Trust company to send it weekly instead of monthly, the day after you went away. Do you want me to come down? I am greatly worried. I have also wired Rod asking him if you were all right. At first I had determined to get on the train and go to you, but Major Aukland said he thought it would be much better to let you work it out for yourself. He advised me to send you the money and say nothing, but I can not refrain from telling you that if you need me I will start on the next train. Your loving and much worried Mother."

The moment he read this wire, he hurried out to find Rod.

"I was hunting for your Wynne" he said. "I have just had a wire from your mother. She seems to have gotten into her head that you are in trouble. What have you been doing, writing for money?"

"I wired yesterday evening for $1,000."

Rod gave a prolonged whistle. "Been gambling?"

"Yes."

"That is a pretty big sum, Wynne, even for you to lose."

"Oh, hell! Stop your preaching, Rod. Neither you nor mother seem to realize that it really is my own money. Besides, I am not sure that I have lost it."

Rod looked mystified, but as usual after the one outburst he said nothing more except to volunteer to identify him.

"I think the telegram I received from mother this morning will do that," returned Phil, loftily.

"They say that all the red-light district is to be broken up tonight," continued Rod. "I expect every tough guy in the regiment will be there to sees the fun. For my part, I think it will be rather a good place to stay away from."

Phil knew exactly what Rod meant by this speech, but he made no comment except, "I feel rather sorry for those poor women."

Rod gave him a searching glance under which Phil felt himself color as he turned away with the information that he was going down to get his money.

Rod acted as though he wanted to say something more, but Phil hurried out of hearing.

When he had received the money in ten $100 bills, he did feel a little nervous for himself and for Gladys.

He wanted to get it to her as soon as possible and close the incident, but he was afraid for her after she had gotten it in her possession.

He was glad there happened to be no one in the telegraph office at that time.

When he arrived at the "narrow street" he knew the reason why.

It looked as though every man in and out of the army was in that drunken, jostling, swearing crowd.

When he had succeeded in reaching the place that he knew had belonged to Gladys, he found the door shut and the curtain down.

Contemptuously he was turning away when the door was opened just enough for a hand to be thrust out and grasp his sleeve.

"Come in," said Gladys, in a low voice.

She fairly pulled him in and quickly slammed and locked the door.

"I was running no chance of missing you," she said. "It is a terrible lot of animals that are growling out there. Sometimes I thought they would break in the door."

Phil looked at her. She had clothed herself in a street dress of dark blue. Her hat and coat lay across the bed while on the floor beside it was a pitifully small bag.

"Do you think it will be safe for you to go away tonight?" he asked.

"Not very," she answered. "I would have gone this afternoon, but—but—you said you were coming."

"I'm sorry, Gladys, that I have kept you, but I could not get here before. I did not get the wire until about two hours ago."

She looked her question, but did not speak.

Phil unbuttoned a pocket in his tunic, took out the bills and thrust them into her hand.

She drew away so quickly that they fell to the floor, and she could see that they were all yellow backs.

"You should not have come into the street tonight with all that money, Wynne, your life would have been in great danger if it had become known that you had it."

"I expect so, Gladys. How can you hide it so that you will be safe with it? You see, I did not know how to get it to you any other way. I knew you could not use a check."

The girl slowly bent down, and picked up the money. Rising, she held it out to Phillip.

He held his hands to his sides and shook his head.

"You must take it, Wynne. Don't you see I can not keep it?"

Again he shook his head.

"But—but I can not take your money," she said again, rather wildly.

"Have you enough of your own to take you somewhere—where you ca nat least rest for a while?"

"I have just $50. I have not been able to earn much lately, but I have saved all the money you left the two times you have been here."

"Well, that roll of bills is what I'm going to leave on my third and last visit."

The girl looked at him dumbly.

"Take it, Gladys. It really means nothing to me. I want you to have it for two reasons—first, because you need it probably more than I shall ever need money, and secondly, because you have shown me that there are sincere, honest women in the world."

"Honest—me?" faltered Gladys. "Sure. You have been honest with me as a man is honest. A man does not need to be continent to be honest, but he must not lie or steal. My dear, I think you have all the virtues but one.

"When I am gone, you had better keep your door locked until tomorrow morning, and then get out of town as soon as possible."

"Wynne, I will take this money, for as you said last night, 'it is a way out,' and if you ever think of me after tonight, will you remember that I am proud of what you just said to me?"

"Some day you will know that men and women are all alike—good, bad and indifferent. The things that make men honest are the things that make women virtuous, for virtue does not mean one thing in a man and another thing in a woman. Very soon the world is going to acknowledge that. Will you remember that you first heard it from a woman like me?"

She thrust the money into her bosom and made as if to hold out her hand. Phillip started to grasp it, but instead of letting him clasp hers, she quickly unlocked the door and took hold of his arm and thrust him forth.

He heard the lock click. Then he walked swiftly down the street.

After he left Gladys' doorway, he walked quickly to the telegraph office and wired a night letter to his mother.

"Thanks for sending me the money. I know that my income must have accumulated all these years to such an extent that a check for a thousand would not mean anything, but it was nice of you to have made it so easy for me to get it promptly.

"I am not in any trouble and am feeling splendidly. Have met your friend, Mrs. Tennis(and her daughter. She—the daughter and not the mother—is a very pretty girl and she is making my stay at Fort Bliss quite pleasant.

"Dear mother, will you not come to the realization that I am grown up? Surely if I am old enough to fight for my country, I am old enough to decide my way of living for myself.

"You are very far away from Fort Bliss, and, if you will forgive me, I think you are still further away from my newly discovered self.

"Some day when I become better acquainted with this son of yours than I am now, I will introduce him to you—not as you have idealized him, but as he really is.

"Phillip Wynne Tracy IV."

Three days later when Phillip strolled back toward the "narrow street" he found the "high walls pierced by a window and a door—a window and a door" razed to the ground and not a woman to be seen.

(To Be Continued.)

Phil has been saved from cynicism by a nameless girl. In the next chapter he finds Natlee is still a factor.

MODISH MITZI — Packing For Home — By JAY V. JAY

It was a last minute thought—this lingerie. Mitzi is pointing out to Polly how practical it is. There's an apron front and back to this combination so that it serves the purpose of slip or petticoat. It's just long enough to wear under summer dresses—just thick enough to be shadow proof—and just scanty enough to fit under the snuggest hip line without a wrinkle. The newer version of step-ins is made of printed georgette with ruffles around the edge.

Of course, something had to be left out. The last lock locked and Mitzi discovers that she has left out her lingerie. Terrible! But Polly advises her to tuck it into her suitcase for it will take no room at all. Polly's right. What space do half a dozen scanties made of georgette require? Not as much room as the charming negligee Mitzi wears with lace yoke and edging. It comes down in a cape efect. These left-overs of Mitzi's require less space than it takes to tel it! Maybe they can go in her handbag. Maybe!

New York Prepares To Give Welcome To All-Texas Special There June 28

NEW YORK, June 15. (AP)—Thousands of New Yorkers, to whom the arrival of foreign monarchs, diplomats and heroes of the hour is considered all in the day's work, but who have never seen an ordinary milch cow and still think of Texas as a state of Indians and six-guns, are eagerly awaiting arrival of the "All-Texas Special" which is due to arrive in this metropolis on June 28.

With the greatest reception in the history of New York, its greeting to Lindbergh, over, city officials and civic organizations are now turning their attention to preparing a real welcome for the Texans, according to W. Roy Christian, advance envoy of the Texas party.

The special will be welcomed by Mayor James Walker, at city hall. They will be escorted by a corps of "New York's finest" through the traffic maze and a series of entertainments have been arranaged by Grover Wheelan, chairman of the mayor's committee on receptions.

Every effort will be made in the two days visit to conserve the time that they may see as much of this financial capital of America and meet as many executive heads of concerns which interlink with Texas financial and industrial affairs as possible.

KID DUGAN — By Dick Dorgan

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 17th.

Dear Al,

Sampson, the Kid's manager, wants me to get a job in Paolino's camp as sparring partner so I can work with him and find out what he's got, but it would be a big laugh if I should get sore at him which I might do if he stings me and knock him kicking. If that happened, it would spoil the fight, and I'm supposed to cut in on Dugan's share for working with him. I told Sampson I had better dress up like a bum so they wouldn't know me, and he said, "No, just put on a clean shirt and collar and they'll think you're Gene Tunney." He's a great kidder. So I said, "I guess they'll think I'm the Champ all right if I throw a punch." And then he didn't say nothing so he knows he can't fool with me and get away with it.

Your friend,

JACK KEEFE.

Equal and Uniform Research

AND now the state tax survey commission is grinding. There are experts on the commission. They may grind all the summer. They may grind far into the winter. That is, the men who are informed on taxation economics will do the heavy work and hope to be able to submit a report to a special session of the 40th or the regular session of the 41st. Texas is said to spend more money for educational purposes than any American state. There are men who have held high office who unhesitatingly declare that there is a large waste. They are members of the survey commission. If they have their way about it they are going to strike at the very roots of so-called evils in the taxation system of Texas.

For Lawyer and Layman

IN a recent decision handed down by the court of criminal appeals, presiding Judge W. C. Morrow called attention to the following declaration made in a recent case, which is held to be well established and is deemed sound by the court.

"The established rule appears to be that to secure a reversal by reason of an erronious failure of the trial judge to sustain the challenge of the veniremen for cause, the bill of exception must show injury and where the bill fails to show that the error resulted in forcing upon the jury, against the appellant's will, an objectionable juror, it is insufficient to comply with the rule."

This rule, according to the presiding judge of the court of criminal appeals, is in accord with the uniform practice of the court of refusing to reverse the case because of an error which could not and did not harm the accused. Fair enough. There should be one law for all. It is well for lawyers and laymen to be well informed.

Where Prosperity Abides

GILLESPIE county farmers are not toying with the blue devils. They say prospects are good for bumper crops of cotton and corn. Harvest of oats and wheat were above the average. Feedstuffs of all kinds promise very large crops. Potatoes are "better than they have been for years." And all kinds of berries and fruits are in abundance. Farmers of Gillespie county live at home. They make money crops. They make their investments pay dividends.

Passing of Peter Volkoff

PETER VOLKOFF was the Robespierre of the Russion revolutionists. He was the head of the secret council that ordered the Romanoffs and thousands of their followers to bloody graves. He was assassinated in Poland by a young Russion refugee. Peter in the days of the reign of terror in Russia, was as harsh in his decrees as the most bloodthirsty of the directors of the French revolution. He met a violent death. Now why should the Poles be punished, or why should Poland again be made the bloody cockpit of Europe?

Coolidge Luck Outlined

SECRETARY JARDINE of the department of agriculture predicts that the wheat crop of the United States will be 32,000,000 bushels below that of 1926, and may go much lower than this estimate. Canadian guessers say the wheat crop of Canada will be far below that of last year. Low priced wheat brings discontent in the Republican wheat belt; high priced wheat keeps the Republican farmers on the reservation.

Is it An Omen of Evil?

WASHINGTON advises that President Coolidge will be the first chief executive ever to stay for a protracted period in South Dakota, and the first president to come within its boundary since William Howard Taft went there in 1912. William Howard Taft went there campaigning for re-election. All the world knows what happened to him. Woodrow Wilson became president of the United States and the portly chief justice ran third in the balloting. Will history repeat itself?

Texas, Home of the Turkey

AN exchange says shipments of turkeys out of Texas in 1926 amounted to about 900 carloads and turkeys produced in Texas in the same year and shipped to the centers of population are estimated to have had a value of $10,000,000. Now what was the value of the turkeys consumed in Texas. This would be a real item of news.

For Lovers of Swiss Cheese

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has ordered an increase of 50 per cent in the duty of Swiss cheese. An increase in the rate, which is now 5c a pound, was decided on after an investigation by the tariff commission. This will protect the cheese makers of the north and the east. There are many Texas farmers who are growers of onions. They are asking for a tariff to protect their industry against the inroad of onion growers in far away Egypt. If it is a good thing for cheese makers why not a good thing for onion growers?

A Warning From Taft

CHIEF JUSTICE William Howard Taft before going to his summer home on Murray Bay in Quebec served notice on state prosecuting officers that the supreme court will not tolerate any delay from them in its disposition of criminal appeals. A kick in the ribs appears to be better than a hint. Now it is for derelict state prosecuting officers to get down to real work. If they are overworked they should present an alibi to the distinguished chief justice.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 16. (EFS)—A few years ago, the patrons of the New York art galleries were almost exclusively women. Rich men bought paintings, but rarely by visiting the art dealers. The art dealers would notify their rich customers when they had discovered that an old master was about to be offered for sale in Europe. Usually the rich customer knew little about painting and left it up to a dealer in whom he had confidence to buy a Rembrandt, a Rubens, a Titan, a Raphael, a Corot or an Inness.

Now, however, there are a great many rich New Yorkers who are connoisseurs of art. And they do not buy old masters; they buy the work of modern artists. They have discovered that art sometimes yields a much better return over a period of years than stocks and bonds. If you have a feeling for art and are able to recognize an artist whose fame will grow with the years and to recognize his work early enough, you can buy his paintings for a low price and five or ten years later sell them at as high as 1000 per cent profit.

Whenever a new exhibition of a modern artist opens up, the galleries are filled with New York business men who are also connoisseurs of art. They examine each picture with a critical eye and discuss its color and design in highly technical language. If they discover a "comer," they will compete against each other in buying the best examples of that painter's work.

There have been instances in which canvasses bought for as low as $50 being sold five years later for as much as $5000. Good prints of an etching bought for as low as $2 have sold later for $200. Water colors bought from an artist when that artist was unknown for as little as $25 have later sold for $1500. Few bank or motor stocks have shown such a rapid increase in value.

The late John Quinn, New York lawyer, was fortunate enough to recognize the value of painters like Gauguin, Cezanne, Van Gogh, Matisse, Derain and Vlaminck at the time when those artists were laughed at by the European and American art critics. He bought canvases by them for as low as $25 and $50. When his collection of modern painters was sold after his death, it brought a fortune.

* * *

A mystery is being made in New York as to the identity of the man who writes detective stories under the name of S. S. Van Dine. In his novel, "The Benson Murder Case," he invented a new sort of detective, Philo Vance, who is a scholar and an aristocrat, a man who uses recondite words and unusual phrases, who slips into French, Latin and other languages to convey a meaning more precise than he could in English.

Philo Vance has already taken rank among the New York lovers of mystery yarns and detective stories along with Sherlock Holmes, Arsene Lupin and Father Brown.

S. S. Van Dine is admittedly a pseudonym. Two varying accounts of the man have been sent out by the publishers. One of them was that he is a Harvard graduate who has studied law and medicine and is an expert in criminal psychology and in continental methods of crime detection. The other was that he is a New York journalist who knows the city intimately and yet has lived many years abroad. This sounds like a deliberate piece of deception, because still another account is that he is a writer in another field who does not wish his serious writing to be mixed up with his detective fiction.

Harry Hansen, the literary critic of the World, has done an excellent piece of detective work in running down the identity of "S. S. Van Dine." He will not give out the name, but he says that the author is not a Harvard but a Princeton graduate and that he has written two excellent works on French history.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED—

The entrance of America into the World War, finds Phillip Wynne Travy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natlee Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracy's milkman, had had a childish engagement which was objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Phillip becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phil are the first to enlist. Natlee goes to the depot to see them off and in her anxiety to see Phil she ignores Rod entirely. This nearly breaks his heart.

Phillip finds he must leave for the southern training camp before seeing his mother again. Here he has a most unusual experience with a nameless girl. He gets detailed to kitchen police and his passes revoked.

On an impulse of pity, Phil proposes marriage to the nameless girl.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXXII.

Phil Bids Goodbye to Gladys.

All the next day Phil was as nervous as a cat.

It seemed to him as though he had never seen so many telegrams delivered to other men in the outfit since he had been at Fort Bliss. Marta and her mother came up for parade, but Lieutenant Andrews arranged matters in such a way that he did not get a chance to speak to them.

Marta, however, managed to convey to him that the liteutenant was not making a hit with her, even while he was escorting them to their car.

It was then that Phil received two telegrams and smiled for the first time that day. He realized that Andrews was doing him a favor by taking Marta and her mother away just at that moment. It was not punishment to give him a chance to read his anxiously awaited messages from his mother.

One, of course, was the request that he call at the office and receive a sum of money from some one that he should name. The other was a day letter which almost made him decide not to call for it. His mother had wired:

"What is the matter, son? Are you in great trouble? I can not understand why you should want such a large sum of money as your allowance has been sent you every week. I requested the Trust company to send it weekly instead of monthly, the day after you went away. Do you want me to come down? I am greatly worried. I have also wired Rod asking him if you were all right. At first I had determined to get on the train and go to you, but Major Aukland said he thought it would be much better to let you work it out for yourself. He advised me to send you the money and say nothing, but I can not refrain from telling you that if you need me I will start on the next train. Your loving and much worried Mother."

The moment he read this wire, he hurried out to find Rod.

"I was hunting for you Wynne" he said. "I have just had a wire from your mother. She seems to have gotten into her head that you are in trouble. What have you been doing, writing for money?"

"I wired yesterday evening for $1,000."

Rod gave a prolonged whistle. "Been gambling?"

"Yes."

"That is a pretty big sum, Wynne, even for you to lose."

"Oh, hell! Stop your preaching, Rod. Neither you nor mother seem to realize that it really is my own money. Besides, I am not sure that I have lost it."

Rod looked mystified, but as usual after the one outburst he said nothing more except to volunteer to identify him.

"I think the telegram I received from mother this morning will do that," returned Phil, loftily.

"They say that all the red-light district is to be broken up tonight," continued Rod. "I expect every tough guy in the regiment will be there to sees the fun. For my part, I think it will be rather a good place to stay away from."

Phil knew exactly what Rod meant by this speech, but he made no comment except, "I feel rather sorry for those poor women."

Rod gave him a searching glance under which Phil felt himself color as he turned away with the information that he was going down to get his money.

Rod acted as though he wanted to say something more, but Phil hurried out of hearing.

When he had received the money in ten $100 bills, he did feel a little nervous for himself and for Gladys.

He wanted to get it to her as soon as possible and close the incident, but he was afraid for her after she had gotten it in her possession.

He was glad there happened to be no one in the telegraph office at that time.

When he arrived at the "narrow street" he knew the reason why.

It looked as though every man in and out of the army was in that drunken, jostling, swearing crowd.

When he had succeeded in reaching the place that he knew had belonged to Gladys, he found the door shut and the curtain down.

Contemptuously he was turning away when the door was opened just enough for a hand to be thrust out and grasp his sleeve.

"Come in," said Gladys, in a low voice.

She fairly pulled him in and quickly slammed and locked the door.

"I was running no chance of missing you," she said. "It is a terrible lot of animals that are growling out there. Sometimes I thought they would break in the door."

Phil looked at her. She had clothed herself in a street dress of dark blue. Her hat and coat lay across the bed while on the floor beside it was a pitifully small bag.

"Do you think it will be safe for you to go away tonight?" he asked.

"Not very," she answered. "I would have gone this afternoon, but—but—you said you were coming."

"I'm sorry, Gladys, that I have kept you, but I could not get here before. I did not get the wire until about two hours ago."

She looked her question, but did not speak.

Phil unbuttoned a pocket in his tunic, took out the bills and thrust them into her hand.

She drew away so quickly that they fell to the floor, and she could see that they were all yellow backs.

"You should not have come into the street tonight with all that money, Wynne, your life would have been in great danger if it had become known that you had it."

"I expect so, Gladys. How can you hide it so that you will be safe with it? You see, I did not know how to get it to you any other way. I knew you could not use a check."

The girl slowly bent down, and picked up the money. Rising, she held it out to Phillip.

He held his hands to his sides and shook his head.

"You must take it, Wynne. Don't you see I can not keep it?"

Again he shook his head.

"But—but I can not take your money," she said again, rather wildly.

"Have you enough of your own to take you somewhere—where you ca nat least rest for a while?"

"I have just $50. I have not been able to earn much lately, but I have saved all the money you left the two times you have been here."

"Well, that roll of bills is what I'm going to leave on my third and last visit."

The girl looked at him dumbly.

"Take it, Gladys. It really means nothing to me. I want you to have it for two reasons—first, because you need it probably more than I shall ever need money, and secondly, because you have shown me that there are sincere, honest women in the world."

"Honest—me?" faltered Gladys. "Sure. You have been honest with me as a man is honest. A man does not need to be continent to be honest, but he must not lie or steal. My dear, I think you have all the virtues but one.

"When I am gone, you had better keep your door locked until tomorrow morning, and then get out of town as soon as possible."

"Wynne, I will take this money, for as you said last night, 'it is a way out,' and if you ever think of me after tonight, will you remember that I am proud of what you just said to me?"

"Some day you will know that men and women are all alike—good, bad and indifferent. The things that make men honest are the things that make women virtuous, for virtue does not mean one thing in a man and another thing in a woman. Very soon the world is going to acknowledge that. Will you remember that you first heard it from a woman like me?"

She thrust the money into her bosom and made as if to hold out her hand. Phillip started to grasp it, but instead of letting him clasp hers, she quickly unlocked the door and took hold of his arm and thrust him forth.

He heard the lock click. Then he walked swiftly down the street.

After he left Gladys' doorway, he walked quickly to the telegraph office and wired a night letter to his mother.

"Thanks for sending me the money. I know that my income must have accumulated all these years to such an extent that a check for a thousand would not mean anything, but it was nice of you to have made it so easy for me to get it promptly.

"I am not in any trouble and am feeling splendidly. Have met your friend, Mrs. Tennis(and her daughter. She—the daughter and not the mother—is a very pretty girl and she is making my stay at Fort Bliss quite pleasant.

"Dear mother, will you not come to the realization that I am grown up? Surely if I am old enough to fight for my country, I am old enough to decide my way of living for myself.

"You are very far away from Fort Bliss, and, if you will forgive me, I think you are still further away from my newly discovered self.

"Some day when I become better acquainted with this son of yours than I am now, I will introduce him to you—not as you have idealized him, but as he really is.

"Phillip Wynne Tracy IV."

Three days later when Phillip strolled back toward the "narrow street" he found the "high walls pierced by a window and a door—a window and a door" razed to the ground and not a woman to be seen.

(To Be Continued.)

Phil has been saved from cynicism by a nameless girl. In the next chapter he finds Natlee is still a factor.

MODISH MITZI — Packing For Home — By JAY V. JAY

It was a last minute thought—this lingerie. Mitzi is pointing out to Polly how practical it is. There's an apron front and back to this combination so that it serves the purpose of slip or petticoat. It's just long enough to wear under summer dresses—just thick enough to be shadow proof—and just scanty enough to fit under the snuggest hip line without a wrinkle. The newer version of step-ins is made of printed georgette with ruffles around the edge.

Of course, something had to be left out. The last lock locked and Mitzi discovers that she has left out her lingerie. Terrible! But Polly advises her to tuck it into her suitcase for it will take no room at all. Polly's right. What space do half a dozen scanties made of georgette require? Not as much room as the charming negligee Mitzi wears with lace yoke and edging. It comes down in a cape efect. These left-overs of Mitzi's require less space than it takes to tel it! Maybe they can go in her handbag. Maybe!

New York Prepares To Give Welcome To All-Texas Special There June 28

NEW YORK, June 15. (AP)—Thousands of New Yorkers, to whom the arrival of foreign monarchs, diplomats and heroes of the hour is considered all in the day's work, but who have never seen an ordinary milch cow and still think of Texas as a state of Indians and six-guns, are eagerly awaiting arrival of the "All-Texas Special" which is due to arrive in this metropolis on June 28.

With the greatest reception in the history of New York, its greeting to Lindbergh, over, city officials and civic organizations are now turning their attention to preparing a real welcome for the Texans, according to W. Roy Christian, advance envoy of the Texas party.

The special will be welcomed by Mayor James Walker, at city hall. They will be escorted by a corps of "New York's finest" through the traffic maze and a series of entertainments have been arranaged by Grover Wheelan, chairman of the mayor's committee on receptions.

Every effort will be made in the two days visit to conserve the time that they may see as much of this financial capital of America and meet as many executive heads of concerns which interlink with Texas financial and industrial affairs as possible.

KID DUGAN — By Dick Dorgan

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 17th.

Dear Al,

Sampson, the Kid's manager, wants me to get a job in Paolino's camp as sparring partner so I can work with him and find out what he's got, but it would be a big laugh if I should get sore at him which I might do if he stings me and knock him kicking. If that happened, it would spoil the fight, and I'm supposed to cut in on Dugan's share for working with him. I told Sampson I had better dress up like a bum so they wouldn't know me, and he said, "No, just put on a clean shirt and collar and they'll think you're Gene Tunney." He's a great kidder. So I said, "I guess they'll think I'm the Champ all right if I throw a punch." And then he didn't say nothing so he knows he can't fool with me and get away with it.

Your friend,
JACK KEEFE.

The motion is made and seconded (let us hope) that G. Wash Payne assume the Spud hurling chores this afternoon.

• • •

San Antonio and the Spudders close out the series today. Mr. Mathes' mauling Buffs blow in Saturday for a two-afternoon visit.

• • •

It wouldn't be surprising if Mitz sent Dana Fillingim back into the affray this p .m. Fillingim when right is a pretty tough pecan.

• • •

So if those respective managers decide to throw Payne and Fillingim you may look forward to a banner battle.

• • •

Zero in sports: The feeling felt by a conscientious, if any, baseball player after having kicked in the winning run and struck out in a clinch. You might say that registers quite some degrees below zero.

• • •

HULL LOSES (?)

Clyde Hull came up on the short end of a decision the other night in Buffalo, but made such a noble fight of it, according to a newspaper clipping, that the setback will mean little toward slowing him down in his quest for the welter championship. Willie Lavin of Buffalo was awarded a shade verdict in a slambang ten-rounder that one sports writer declares surpassed all Buffalo fights for sheer action and speed. Hull, in a note to Barney Morgan, declares he deserves at least a draw. The former Wichita Falls ring favorite said the fans are yelping for a return match with Lavin and he expects to take another cut at the Buffalo boy soon. Hull expects to box Joe Simonich June 27 and Latzo in Scranton July 4. He says his manager is trying to get a shot at Joe Dundee for next month.

• • •

CHIN ON HIS CHEST.

The unusual in sports: A pitcher who can throw as many innings with his mouth wide open as did Andrew Carnegie Messenger yesterday and not swallow a couple. If you witnessed that combat, you know what we mean.

• • •

MIGHTY MAN.

Fans who patronize the milk and ice fund bouts carded at the Ross stadium Thursday next unwittingly may see in action the next middleweight sock champ. For they're touting Frankie Wine, the Montana mauler, to the ceiling all over the country since that three-round knockout of Al Webster last week. Webster, it will be recalled, fought the light heavyweight Mike McTigue to a draw. Wine is booked with Speedy Sparks in a 12-rounder here. Sparks, judging by press notices at hand about Wine, will have to display more than his well-known speed and agility to avoid a sharp lacing.

• • •

Wine, known as the Blonde Blacksmith, through Montana and Wyoming where he has done the bulk of his biffing, has scored 28 knockouts in his last 37 starts.

SHREVEPORT, June 16.(AP)—Tom Connolly's two-bagger in the twelfth inning after Dorman had walked, drove in a run to give Beaumont a 4 to 3 victory over the Sports and decide a pitchers' battle between Joe Brown and Phillips in favor of the latter. Beaumont retired the Sports with the bases full in the second half of the twelfth.

TOUGH BREAK FOR FUSSELL

Fred Drops 1-0 Game, But Milt Wins Nightcap

The great Fred Fussell pitched himself another great ball game Thursday at Spudder park.

Ordinarily one would yurp, "Good, so we win again!"

But this time she's not so good, for the eminent wronghander hurled his usual noble brand of ball but just couldn't find any luck anywhere. He put in a punch himself and tried to knock in a run but didn't quite make it. And Andrew Messenger, Bear righthander, tagged it on Fred's team mates at a mean gait, scattering seven safeties widely and giving up absolutely no runs over a nine-inning span. A hit, a sacrifice, an infield out and a boot with two away gave Mitze's maceman a run, so San Antonio copped the first game of a double header, 1 to 0, from Wichita Falls.

The mighty Fussell allowed two hits and a couple of scratches, but his mates saved their money punches for the nightcap. Thereby hinges the story of how our nine split a double header yesterday, for, coming back with gusto after losing the first, the Spudders smashed Dana Fillingim, the spitballer, from the knob and took a healthy cut at Sep Good, lengthly lefthander. Carl Williams' warriors won the second game by a 6 to 3 score behind the hurling of Milt Steengrafe, giant righthander.

Turge Hits Two Bases.

Most of the swatting in the added attraction was done by wee Pete Turgeon, midget Spud keystoner. The obstreperous urchin pelted Fillingham for a brace of homers, drew a base on balls off Good on his next appearance and on his last time up slapped the portsider for an infield safety.

The swarthy Tom Jenkins, Spudder port pasturer, contributed a homer combed from Good's delivery in the second melee.

The Spudders were imbued with a double play spirit behind Steengrafe, knocking off two twin killings, Benton to Turgeon to LaFayette, and one, Swenson to Turgeon to LaFayette. Fussell tagged up with Turgeon and LaFayette for a two-ply erasure in the opener.

The lone tally of the first game was scored in the fifth inning. Najo led away with a single to left. He advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt laid between first and the box by Olle. Olle was thrown out, LaFayette to Turgeon on first base. Wirts bobbed a bounder before the plate and was heaved out by Tobin, but Najo hoofed it to third. The Mexican sped home a moment later when Benton slipped on Messenger's roller to short and muffed. The ball did some funny things on a wet terrain just as Rabbit went down after it. Just a tough break. They're due now and then, you know.

Both teams scored in the first inning of the second game. Flaskamper singled over short. Philbin attempted to sacrifice and popped to Lapan. Flaskamper stole second and continued on to third base when Benton failed to cover up the base. Phipps fanned. Leslie doubled past third scoring Flaskamper. Leslie went to third on a passed ball, but Benton tossed out Brown.

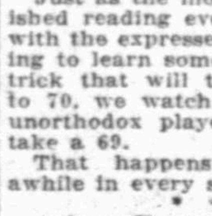

Turgeon knotted the count in the last half of the inning when he lifted one over the left field wall for his ninth home run of the season.

Too Much Turgeon

Benton opened the second inning attack with a walk. Swenson laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt sending Benton to second. Lapan lofted to Brown without any advance. Steengrafe poked a single past second scoring Benton. LaFayette walked. Turgeon hit his tenth home run over the left field wall scoring Steengrafe and LaFayette ahead of him. Fillingim then sought relief in the showers and Lefty went to the hill. Fitzgerald struck out.

Jenkins hit his eighth home run of the season over the left field barrier to give Wichita Falls another in the third inning.

The Bears scored twice in the sixth inning. Klein batted for Good and singled to right. Lamb made a nice catch of Flaskamper's drive to right. Philbin singled past second sending Klein to second. Phipps poked a single over second, filling the bases. Leslie forced Phipps at second, Benton to Turgeon and Klein scored. Brown ripped a single to left and Philbin scored. Najo looked over the third strike.

SPORT a la CARTE
by ROY GROVE

Just as the most of us have finished reading everything in golf with the expressed purpose of hoping to learn some new and hidden trick that will turn us from 100 to 70, we watch one of the most unorthodox players in the game take a 69.

That happens every once in awhile in every sport.

• • •

Aubrey Boomer is the lad in mind, and he can come back faster on his back swing than he can come down, which is 10 times as fast as the best book and the greatest professional will teach golf.

Aubrey, in taking his back swing, makes it very short, indeed, never a full driving form. The same holds true with his irons shots.

The theory to Boomer's game is that in taking his speedy back swing he never has time to lose the rhythm of his stroke. He takes plenty of time in addressing the ball and after that every play is nothing more than an explosion.

There is another trait possessive of Boomer which you will find in few good players, and that is his high irons shots. Every poke holds a terrific backspin, and a mile high iron shot is the method of play that made Boomer one of the favorites to win the open at Oakmont. He could pitch dead to the green from those lofty heights and it is that kind of golf that wins at Oakmont, or any other heavily trapped course.

• • •

The British Ryder golf team, in the States, possesses another of the Boomer model in unorthodox golf with George Duncan. George, reputed as the fastest player in golf, hurries his game from addressing the ball until it is off. His game will never catch up with Boomer's after the stance which gives you some idea of the Frenchman's poke, providing you have seen the famous Duncan in action.

Unorthodox golf is nothing more than naturalness. If you can perfect that style of the game, then it is to your advantage.

ARMOUR FINISHES IN DEADLOCK WITH COOPER FOR OPEN CROWN

OAKMONT, Pa., June 16. (AP)—Tommy Armour, former Scottish amateur, now a "pro" at the Congressional club of Rockville, Md., flashed a spectacular finish today to tie Harry Cooper, "pro" of the El Sereno club, Los Angeles, for the American open golf championship. Both scored 301 for the 72 holes and will play off tomorrow at 18 holes for the crown worn since last year by Bobby Jones, Atlanta amateur.

The play-off will start at 2 p. m. eastern daylight savings time tomorrow.

Bobby Jones, never able to strike his real stride, scored a 77 for his final round, and finished with a total of 309.

Gene Sarazen, swarthy little Italian, failed by a stroke to catch the flying Cooper, finishing with 302 for third place.

Armour, among the last finishers, sank a sensational 12-foot putt for a birdie three on the home hole. He had rallied from the brink of disaster to shoot par golf from thirteenth to the seventeenth, then came to the final tee with the knowledge he needd to btter par to tie the leader.

Armour's drive split the middle of the fairway and he banged his iron straight to the pin, 12 feet short but on a good line to the cup. He looked the putt over from all angles while a gallery of several thousand held its breath, then sent it confidently to the hole. As it clicked in the cup a mighty roar went up from the big crowd.

Just back of Armour, the last remaining contender, "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, dissipated his once bright prospects with a dismal finish, taking 41 for the last nine and a final round card of 73 after he had negotiated the outgoing nine holes in the sensational figures of 32; five under par.

Bobby Jones took a 38 coming home, three over par. His 72-hole card showed a total of 309.

Trailing Cooper, Armour and Sarazen were the following:

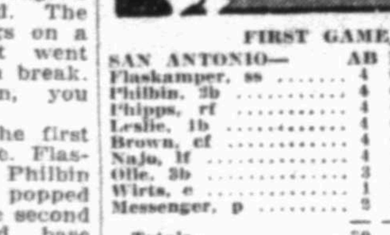

Emmet French of Southern Pines, N. C., 304; Bill Mehlhorn, New York, 305; Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla., 307; Archie Compston, Great Britain; John Golden, Patterson, N. J.; Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Harry Hampton, Memphis, 308, each; Leo Diegel, White Plains, N. Y.; Eddie Loos, Glencoe, Ill.; Robert T. Jones Jr., Atlanta, and Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., each with 309.

Armour, in spite of his 637 start on the final nine holes, three over par, settled down to clip one stroke from perfect figures on the last six holes. His card.

FROM TEE TO GREEN

By JACK SMITH.
Highland Country Club.

Pivoting is the art of the perfected golfer. After all your troubles are ironed out then turn to the pivot.

That department is one of the hardest and most difficult of golfing tendencies to master.

• • •

If the learning golfer would remember that the pivot is the windup and release on that point from the head to the feet he would have little trouble getting into the swing of the well timed shot.

The theory is as if he were winding up a huge spring and then letting it uncoil with a snap.

The tendency of a golfer is to move his head away from that top pivot point which throws him completely off center, causing him to either top the shot or dig in.

In taking the backward swing be sure the right leg is rigid. This completes the line and helps to hold the swing well in rhythm.

In completing the swing be sure not to lift the head until you have gone on through with the shot.

The hands should be well extended on the outward flight before looking after ball.

The back swing means everything is getting the ball off the tee. This may be made too hurriedly or taken too slow. The swing must be in smooth co-ordination with the meeting of the ball.

Practice this pivot a thousand times before trying to hit a ball. It will become second nature for you to swing with ease and when the time comes for driving your tee shot there will be a surprise in store for you.

Jill Demands Her Fifty Dollars to Return Them

By Ann Lisle,

FOLLY DUANE had known a great many lean years since the Summer evening when she left a quiet middle-western town and set out to capitalize the only things she had—beauty and a way with the men folks. Folly had been in her early twenties then. She had a bit of money and a grave responsibility. That "responsibility" was the girl later known as Jill Hathaway.

ANN LISLE

Folly Duane was called by another name in the early days when her exquisite prettiness and her cheap notoriety brought her engagements in vaudeville houses of a low grade. Publicity wasn't a fine art then, and a woman whose name had been linked with a famous criminal case didn't get five thousand a week and forty weeks' booking in the big time. She got fifty a week and a chance to appear in "the sticks."

Nurseries and boarding schools began to reject Jill. Her guardian was notorious. Nice people wouldn't have their children in the same school with Felicity Heath's child.

When Jill was ten Folly took her to the school where the girl stayed until she was seventeen. And by that time Jill was known as Jill Hathaway and Folly had settled on the name Folly Duane. . . . the past was safely behind her.

Folly had been reared in luxury, trained to tender care and permitted to indulge her selfish, sensuous nature to the fullest until she was past twenty. She had loved outside the law; she had spent her emotions with both careless hands. And at forty she knew that she was on the verge of looking old, feeling old and being old.

And then Sam Kerby came along.

The evening Folly met the theatrical manager he meant nothing but an opportunity. The next night Folly discovered that the big, hulking man was a brute who needed a lot of handling. And suddenly he became the mid-Summer madness of her foolish, reckless life. She stopped being a kitten who wanted a saucer of cream and a soft place to lie and bask in the sun. She became a woman fighting for happiness.

For years Folly had been trying to look young because she needed her looks in order to earn a living. Now she bent every energy to make herself irresistibly alluring because she wanted a man's love as well as his protection and the job he could give her. And when Sam Kerby asked Folly Duane how she'd like to go down to Asbury to see a show he was interested in and maybe to hang around for the week-end, she took his curt, coarse invitation as a key to the garden of romance.

Jill brought her back to earth with a thud when the girl came in at noon after a long, hot, sticky morning of tramping the streets looking for work in a city which was stretching lazily and getting ready for Summer vacations.

"I'm still waiting for my fifty dollars," she said ominously standing at the foot of the bed where Folly was cuddled in a determined effort to get a lot of beauty sleep.

Folly bounced around and said irritably: "Can't you let me get a little rest? Must you wake me up in the middle of the night?"

"It's almost half-past twelve. I've been to every millinery shop in the neighborhood, begging to be taken on in some workroom. But they all say they're laying off help now, not taking it on. And I need my money—"

"To return?" Folly demanded curtly.

"Maybe. It's mine to do what I like with. You promised——"

"Don't be a fool. Men who give fifty-dollar tips can spare 'em. He's forgotten all about it and you. He hasn't even inquired for you at Beppo's."

"How do you know?" the girl flamed.

"I left word that if he came around they should let me know," Folly said, yawning with the careless self-absorption of a woman whose affairs are going nicely.

"What right had you to spy?" Jill protested.

"I've got to take care of you the best I can even if you don't thank me for my devotion."

"I want my money!" Jill cried in helpless rage. "You had no right to take it. Years of devotion don't give you the right to rob me. You ought to give it to me. It means so much to me to have it. I —I've got to have it. You keep saying that you're going to get a job with the theatrical producer you see so much of. Why can't you ask him for an advance on your salary like you always used to do?"

"I don't want to rush Sam Kerby," Folly pleaded.

Jill was implacable. "You have to rush something. It's three days now since you stole my money from me. I want it."

Folly laughed oddly and with sudden strange grimness: "All right. I'll get your money for you, Miss Shylock. But some day when you're judging me, remember today and see how you judge yourself!"

Our Rhyming Optimist

—By Aline Michaelis—

THE clouds are very white today (how fast, how far they race!), brave sail-boats venturing away across the deeps of space. Their whiteness makes the azure hue of heaven's sea more fair, and lends a beauty to that blue no cloudless sky could wear. And where their fleeting shadow flecks the green of fields and woods a deeper loveliness bedecks the earth for these swift moods. Ah, sweet, may all the clouds you know be only such as these that fleetly come and fleetly go on tranquil turquoise seas! May they, like these, be white and swift and, passing, leave no trace to mar the light of joys a-drift across your eager face. Not like grim storms whose forces swerve the currents of delight, may all your troubles only serve to make life's bliss more bright.

Paris Designs Three Robes de Style

Republished by Special Arrangement with Harper's Bazar.

THE rope de style is always in Fashion's favor for those chosen souls who can wear it well. And if you are so fortunate as to be one of those, you would be wise to stick to this style in all your evening frocks.

The first gown derives its originality from a gold spangled jacket which is worn over the flame colored chiffon frock.

The second is a tan tulle frock very simply banded in gold.

The third of the frocks illustrated here is of black taffeta with a new pannier. It is relieved by some gold embroidery.

Recreation and Culture for the Working Girl

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IT has been truly said that human character is a bundle of habits. But it is equally true that habits are determined chiefly by emotions. It follows, therefore, that the emotions constitute the key to our habits and therefore to our characters. In no instance is this natural law more manifest than in the evolution of the adolescent factory girl. Employers know this and try to act upon it in all instances in which they have either humane impulses or the intelligence to appreciate their own interests.

It is possible to feel much sympathy with the employers' difficulty in appreciating why they should go out of their way to provide an emotional outlet for their adolescent working girls, but one feels still more for the child who finds regular attendance at an evening school during her first year an intolerable strain after an eight-hour day. Unfortunately the more she breaks the continuity the less is she likely to renew it. She will tend to lose interest in book-learning and to find other and less profitable amusements. Besides which, evening classes have very little emotional appeal about them. What the girl wants is rhythm, color, laughter, movement and inspiration toward service; and these are what she so seldom finds. True, there are girl scouts and girls' clubs, but the proportion of those who make use of them to the whole is very small. The remainder try to find their fun in the cinema, the cheap novel and premature "walking-out" with a youthful "best beau," all of which is poor, disappointing food for the emotions.

The emotional force which is denied a proper outlet, says Bevington, goes bad, and is the cause of every kind of evil. A very common symptom of the disappointed craving for color, life and affection is a burst of temper in the workroom. If this happens, it is imperative for the health of the girl's soul that she should be taken in hand by a firm, wise and sympathetic forewoman. Even the ablest foreman is generally helpless, and can only report to the manager, who, feeling that the thing is not really his business anyway, will probably be harder on her than is necessary. The girl is bound to feel hurt and misunderstood and if the trouble happens a second time or she gets fired over it, there is a grave danger that her feelings toward authority will become permanently embittered.

With the passage of time the adolescent becomes adult and her stormy feelings calm down. Unfortunately, her mental alertness is likely to disappear as well and she will tend to dig herself into the groove of one type of work, sulking and complaining alternately if she is moved out of it. This is most likely to happen in factories where the tasks are most highly specialized.

At this time, however, the important factor of economic independence enters into her psychology. Stuart and Rowntree (The Responsibility of Women Wage-Earners for Dependents), have shown that only 12 per cent of working women share responsibility for dependents. Of women over twenty-four only 5 per cent have this obligation to carry. Most of them live at home, pay two or three dollars a week into the family exchequer and keep about the same amount to clothe and amuse themselves. The opportunity to dress attractively (which the majority use with great effect) is of tremendous assistance to those who wish to find husbands.

Household Hints

Mahogany should be washed with vinegar or cold tea.

A bilious headache can often be relieved by taking a teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Mildew which often often forms on cheese can be avoided if a lump of sugar is kept in the cheese dish.

A shiny coat collar can be cleaned by sponging with a cloth moistened with ammonia or vinegar.

Tailors always give a button a "stem" when sewing it on a coat, so that the buttonhole may slip easily over it.

Ipecacuanha wine is useful in cases of croup.

Teach Children Value of Money

By L. Lamar Matthews.

MRS. BLAKE with her infant daughter was spending the afternoon with her sister, Mrs. Drennen. In the midst of their conversation in rushed the youngest of the Drennen children shouting:

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

"I want to spend money! I want to spend money!"

"What do you want to buy?" asked the child's mother.

"I don't care what I buy," was the answer, "I want to go to the store and spend money."

"She wants to spend money," echoed Mrs. Blake. "Every time I see your children they are begging for money."

"Yes, I know it," laughed Mrs. Drennen, "All I hear from morning until night is, "Mother, gimme a dime." "Mother, gimme a nickel." "Mother, may I have fifteen cents?"

Then she gave the child a small coin, telling her to go and spend it and let her alone.

It was then that Mrs. Blake made up her mind that her little daughter should be trained differently.

So up until the time that Nanette was ten years old she had never had any money to spend. Her mother had a mistaken idea that children should have no interest in pennies, nickels and dimes, and she imagined that she could keep her young daughter's mind entirely off the subject by a system of silent treatment.

Nanette's father was a prosperous young business man and his family lived in comfort. The child had all of the small luxuries that money can buy, but she never handled the coins herself.

When she grew old enough to go about with her young friends unaccompanied by her mother or father, it became necessary for her to carry her own little purse. Her father, being a generous one, found real joy in giving her three times as much as she needed for her simple pleasures; and Nanette, having no idea of the value of money, spent it foolishly.

There is really no reason why very small children should not have their own pennies to spend, and there is every reason why they should be taught to spend them wisely.

Money is an important factor in the lives of children as well as of grown-ups. It is a bad thing to talk about, but a good thing to have. And the sooner your children find out that they can't spend their money and keep it, too, the better off they will be.

Children who can always get more when their small amounts are gone are starting early on the road to shiftlessness, and perhaps want.

In families that can arrange it, each child should have a definite weekly allowance—no more, no less. He should feel that this allowance comes to him just as his clothes and food and shelter and books come—because he is a member of the family for which his parents naturally provide.

Sometimes a child will spend his money foolishly; then he should find out that he must do without other more desirable things as a consequence of his silly spending—which is exactly the lesson that most children need to learn.

It is highly important that children should be trained in the judicious handling of money and the training should begin early.

Entertaining in the Hot Weather

By Hannah Wing.

THE thermometer should not determine the general character of the diet. However, it is well to take it into consideration and to regulate our appetites accordingly.

No matter how hot the weather may be we will be in danger of committing a faddism if we suddenly become fruiterians or vegetarians or ice-creamarians or any other unbalanced dietists. A mixed type of diet is the proper diet for the average individual. In Summer we may indeed lean more heavily on mother nature's bounty, and get the greater part of our dietetic sustenance from the abundance of fruits and vegetables of the warm season. This will assure us of the desirable minerals for a healthy blood stream offsets infection of the acids that will keep down a condition of putrefaction in the intestines and vitamins to ward off fatigue, to keep up appetite and ease up the nervous strain of work during the hot weather.

In addition to these fruits and vegetables we must still have milk daily and in amounts approximating one pint, and some meat, principally lean and in minimum amount. Eggs, cereals, whole grain bread and ice-cream or ices will serve to round out the rest of the diet. A discreet use of pies, cakes and puddings and pastry is advised during hot weather. When the thermometer soars outside the body we do not need to eat so much fat for the purpose of keeping warm as the Eskimo does. Most important of all is that we do not overeat and that particularly when fatigued or overheated.

One should keep in mind that recent discoveries indicate a decided aid to the nourishment of the body in the properties of the ultra violet rays of direct sunlight. One should then take advantage of the Summer season to radiate as much of the body as possible. Sun-baths, bathing, open air exercise with bare arms and chest are to be recommended as of actual dietary value.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Introduction.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When introducing Miss A. to Mr. B., who should be presented first?

2. Should an older person be presented first, irrespective of sex?

3. When a gentleman calls on a friend and gives her a box of chocolates should the lady thank him and just set to one side to open later, or is it best to open it immediately? Or is it a matter of choice?

4. Is this stationery all right for ordinary use? R.

MAY I correct the wording of your question first? Miss A is not introduced to Mr. B, dear friend. Mr. B is introduced to Miss A, since a gentleman is presented to a lady.

So when Mr. B is introduced to Miss A. we say, "Miss A, may I present Mr. B?" or, more informally, "Miss A, Mr. B." The first form is the general formula, and a very good one it is to use always. If you wish, you may change the word "present" to "introduce." "Miss A, ma I introduce Mr. B?"

The latter form, too, just mention of names, is always correct, but it lacks that air of important graciousness, almost impressiveness, that should, to my mind, accompany an introduction. For really an introduction is a very important and significant occasion, usually, and should be given an appropriate touch of ceremony.

2. No. A gentleman is presented to a lady, irrespective of age. That is, we introduce an old gentleman to a young girl. But, if we are introducing two gentlemen to each other, we introduce the younger to the older. And if we are introducing two ladies to each other, we introduce the younger one to the older, although, if one is married and the other is not, we introduce the unmarried woman to the married woman.

3. It seems to me that it is unnecessarily awkward and "cold" not to open a present when one is presented. It certainly gives me a queer and uncomfortable feeling, when I bring a box of candy or flowers to a friend, not to have that friend open the package and offer me some of the candy or admire the flowers. By all means generously open the and say something enthusiastic and appreciative about the kind thought of your friend. And open the flowers and look at them and smell of them—and in general register your thanks! Such signs of appreciation will repay your friend for the thought that he or she has had.

4. Yes, your letter-paper shows good taste, although it is, I think, a bit small for your handwriting. Don't you think that, with a more generous-sized sheet, you would make better margins and so give your letter a more artistic appearance?

A Shower.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have never been to a shower, and, as I am to be given one this month, I should like to know how to acknowledge the presents. Should the acknowledgment be written, or not?

2. How and when should your friend be thanked for giving the shower? UNCERTAIN.

AT the shower, as the presents are given you, you should thank every giver, enthusiastically and most graciously. Use your prettiest manner, for you are the guest of honor and every one will be watching you! And don't mind making your expression of thanks very expressive.

But thanking the guests at the party is not enough—you are apparently an appreciative person, and so you should the next day, or within a few days, write every guest a note thanking her for her thought of you and for her gift.

2. As you are leaving that day, thank your friend for her kindness and for her hospitality. Then, too, write her a special note of thanks the next day, and perhaps enclose the note in a box of flowers to send to her or with a present commemorative of the occasion.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

PICTURING Favorite Sports of their wearers, suede belts are seen with stenciled designs. These sports themes are finely traced, giving rather an etching effect. Ranging in width from one to three inches, these belts are worn with the smartest sweaters and with sports and tailored frocks. Other models are plain, while still others are in mottled effects.

Mounting to Heights of Style—the latest summer handbags of woven grass are mounted upon frames covered in leather to match the shade of the bag. Of moderate size, these purses are considered the most correct type to carry when sports clothes are worn.

Broader and Broader is spreading the vogue for broadcloth coats, many of which are appliqued in matching or harmonizing velveteen motifs. Huge and modernistic are the appliques used to trim these wraps that are designed in Paris and copied by American stylists. In light summer shades these sports coats are replacing the ever-popular ones of French flannel.

Replacing Lace for yokes in black crepe dinner dresses, the latest French fad is white pearl trimming, worked so as to suggest lace. These yokes are very large and are often rounded at back and pointed in front. White pearls applied in braided effects are also being used on distinctive black crepe frocks for summer.

Hiding Its Light under the proverbial bushel, crepe satin, the favorite midsummer daytime fabric of Paris, modestly prefers to turn its dull side to the public gaze. In both coat and dress models this lovely material is worked on the crepe surface, with parts of the gleaming satin incrusted, geometric inserts being favored.

Posing Posies on the right side of either felt or straw, large or small hats is the most recent millinery note, although many of the flower-trimmed hats place the blossoms oddly at the back, often having the brim cut away to make a free space. Simple, natural-looking flowers, that match those worn on dress shoulder or coat lapel, are very popular on midsummer hats, many of which are large milan or leghorn shapes.

True to Nature are the flowers painted in oil upon the stunning shawls of chiffon velvet or of crepe de chine. Large naturalistic designs depict poppies, tulips or wild roses in allover patterns done in shades that follow the real colorings. These shawls are fringed either all around or on three sides, those with three-side fringing being oblong in shape, and the others square.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

He Should Apologize.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years of age. I go about with a college student who is nearly two years my senior.

A few evenings ago, when I called him up to ask him for a favor, he became very rude and began shouting at me over the phone. I hung up.

I am beginning to love him. But, after that experience, would you advise me to keep up the acquaintance? SYD.

IF he was rude to you, he owes you an apology, my dear. Unless he explains or excuses himself, I would treat him as a casual acquaintance. Just a hint, Syd, dear: Girls who do not call up men, except on urgent business, run less risk of being treated rudely over the phone.

Is He a Drunkard?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am hopelessly in love with a young man who also loves me. He works steadily and has a good home. But once in a while he drinks.

Shall I give him up? It would break my heart to do so, but I cannot stand it to see him drink. I will appreciate your advice regarding my problem.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

DO you mean that your sweetheart drinks to excess, my dear? Does he become intoxicated?

The habit of drinking is not desirable in a husband. But many a man who merely takes a drink now and then is a good husband, devoted to his home.

If, however, the man you love is habitually a heavy drinker, your marriage would not have a chance of success. I am sorry to discourage you, but I agree with you that you could not stand it to see him that way. Do not marry him until he has permanently reformed—and proves it by going straight for at least two years. Otherwise, you are likely to join the ranks of the broken-hearted wives of drunkards.

GULF TESTS OUT PIPELINE

Ranger-Midland Project Is Completed

FORT WORTH, June 16. (AP)—The 10-inch pipe line of the Gulf Pipe Line company, which runs from the Ranger district to the Gulf's Midland tank farm, has been completed, and is being tested with water preparatory to being put into active use, announcement was made here today.

The 205-mile line, begun on April 26, was built in what is believed to have been record time for a project of the size in the territory. The extraordinary speed was possible, officials said here, because of the large organization built up and the laying of advance plans by company engineers.

Completion of the line, which is the second trunk line into the Edwards plateau and the trans-Pecos section of the state, will enable the Gulf to handle about twice its present production and will lead to much development in the Crane, Ector and Winkler counties fields, it was said here.

Transportation facilities heretofore have consisted chiefly in short field lines to loading racks on railroads.

Police Hold Man As "Short Change" Expert

Police Thursday arrested a man in the vicinity of Scotland park who is believed to have been operating in local suburban stores for several weeks as a short changer. The man was arrested after officers had chased him some distance in the Wichita river bottoms and after two business establishments reported that he had swindled them.

The man answers descriptions given by merchants in the Junior college district where a store lost $20 Tuesday to a change "juggler."

Deepest Test Is Showing Oil

Panhandle Promised Oil At 5000 Feet

AMARILLO, June 16. — The deepest drilling well in the Panhandle oil district is reported showing oil.

It is the Big Bend Oil company No. 1 Lederick, in section 7, block 5-A, in E. L. survey, due north of Miami, and due west of Canadian, but in Central Roberts county, that is now approximately at 5000 feet, and still going.

Reports received by local officials of the company indicate that from 4985 to 4995 feet, the drill found a tight sand, that under the microscope showed it was highly impregnated with oil. Some gas also appeared from the same horizon. The oil and gas showed through 4,000 feet of water, being carried to keep the hole in good condition.

While a recommendation has been made that drilling be continued in the 5 3-16-inch hole, it is reported that the contractor has ordered 4 1-2-inch casing run before testing.

Should an oil well be found in the Big Bend test it will be one of the most important events that has occurred so far in the Panhandle field. First of all it will prove to be the first production north of the granite ridge and also the first oil south of the Ochiltree high. The oil is apparently coming from the Pennsylvania formation.

SEMINOLE GAINS

An increase of 7072 barrels is noted in Seminole's production in the 24 hours ended Wednesday morning, when the total was 378,650 barrels from 515 wells. The Bowlegs pool made a further increase of 2048 barrels, its total for the period being 156,663 barrels. The Earlsboro field made 63,678 barrels; Seminole city pool, 117,688 barrels, and the Searight, 40,621 barrels. The total production for the previous 24 hours, was 371,578 barrels.

Tankwagon Reductions Weaken North Texas Gasoline Market

North Texas and the Panhandle refined oil market has been weakened slightly by some tankwagon reductions in central, north and southwest Texas. Despite these incidents the local refineries report a steady demand for all of the gasoline they can produce.

The changes mentioned were by the Magnolia company, which cut gasoline one cent a gallon at Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, making the tankwagon price 12 cents and the service station 15 cents, which with the state tax of three cents, makes the rate 18 cents a gallon. In Amarillo the retail price is 19 cents a gallon.

In Arkansas the legislature adopted an act, increasing the gasoline tax to 5 cents a gallon, and both the Magnolia and Standard Oil company of Louisiana increased gasoline prices another cent to absorb the new tax.

In tank car lots of 8000 and 10,000 gallons, f. o. b. the refinery, the spot North Texas refined, oil prices appeared to be as follows:

News Of The Field

SOUTHEAST ARCHER.

Sun Oil company has an estimated 15-barrel pumper in its No. 1 Andrews, the second well drilled in the pool opened by the Roxana Petroleum corporation and Gwynn in the R. R. Rainey survey. The Sun well topped the pay at 910 feet. It is about 1000 feet east of the initial well.

SOUTH OF MYRA.

Cooke county's next oil pool may now be in the making eight miles south of Myra where the Petroleum Investment company is cementing pipe on an oil sand at 1432 feet in No. 1 Hire and Seagraves, located in the Harriet Nail survey.

SHOT HELPS OUT.

Ed Ruwaldt shot his No. 1 Johnson, a north extension to the Muenster pool of Cooke county, and the well is reported flowing at the rate of 400 barrels per day after the jolt. The test swabbed 350 barrels initial from sand at 1758-76 feet. It is in the Thos. Scott survey and just south of the Katy railroad.

NORTH OF ARCHER CITY.

W. C. Young, Archer county wildcatter with many successes to his credit, was in Wichita Falls Thursday and announced that he had made location for his next wildcat well. It is to be about midway between the Oil Investment and Hutchinson pools and 150 feet out of the northwest corner of block 127, Harris subdivision, Young and Langford lands. The location is north of two dry holes drilled by the Gulf on the same land in fee.

ANCELL POOL.

Consolidated Oil company of Texas has made location to drill its No. 6 Waggoner, 300 feet north of No. 5, eastern Wilbarger county. Consolidated has a dry hole at its No 4 G. B. Ancell in section 11, block 7, H. and T. C. survey, Wichita county.

WOODRUM RANCH.

Eight miles southeast of Dundee and in some of Archer county's most genuinely wildcat territory, Bridwell and Heydrick Oil company has made a location for a test which will be one of the most important in North Texas. It will be No. 1 J. J. Perkins, located 660 feet west and 150 feet north of the southeast corner of block 57, Woodrum Ranch subdivision of the Hooper and Wade survey. The nearest production to this test is the Waite Phillips pool, five miles northeast.

SAND TESTS DRY.

Jim Ferguson and Lee Wilson failed to get production in testing out the sand at 1506 feet in their No. 1 Farmer, located in the North Anderson ranch subdivision of southwest Archer county. The sand showed considerable oil but on drilling in a strong flow of salt water was encountered.

Important River Bed Test Is Spudded In

ELECTRA, June 6.—A wildcat of importance to Electra was spudded in last week on the Woodard-Haynes, east of Frederick-Electra bridge and across Red river from the John O'Neil No. 1, Woodard-Haynes, subdivision No. 209, Waggoner colony lands. The well, which is to be a deep test, is now drilling around 700 feet with rotary tools.

A number of leases have recently been blocked in the river area and other new wildcats will probably be started in the near future, in the district north and northeast of Electra.

Oil Operations In Mid-Continent Are at Lowest Mark Since Slump

Oil operations in the Oklahoma, North Texas, Kansas and New Mexico areas of the Mid-Continent field dropped to the new low figure of 3235 during the week just ended, the Oil Weekly will say Friday. This figure is 173 less than reported for the previous seven-day period.

In Texas all districts contributed to the state's decrease in field work to a degree. Following is the table prepared by the Oil Weekly:

Strong Gas Flow Met In Wheeler County Test

The Dobbs Petroleum corporation in No. 1 Pakan, in the southeast quarter of section 109, block 23, of H. and G. N. survey, and in southwestern Wheeler county, encountered a strong gas flow at 1900 feet. The 10 1-4-inch casing is set in the line and both 8 1-2 and 6 5-8-inch casing are on the ground, the outside pipe is being pulled. Drilling will be resumed at once and an effort made to go through the big gas to the oil sand. This territory is said to develop a rich gas, thought to be coming off of oil. There has been no other test in southwestern Wheeler county to date that has found oil.

In the Shamrock area, the Continental Oil company was pulling the big pipe at 2177 feet to test No. 3-A Jackson, in section 11, block 27 of H. and G. N. survey. It had the lime at 1612 feet.

Watchorn Oil and Refining company No. 1 Sheldon, in section 19, block 24, that had an estimated flow of 210,000,000 feet of gas, and being one of the Panhandle's largest gassers, was killed, but the gas broke in again. The first gas in this well was at 1893 feet, and at 1952 feet it had increased to 50,000,000 feet, and the big production at 2007 feet.

Woodley Oil company in No. 1 Fee, in section 65, block 13, of H. and G. N. survey, and in the southeastern area of Wheeler county, was shut down at 2382 feet, supposedly in solid granite. Elevation there was 2166 feet.

Increased Interest in Railroad Stocks Brings Main Attention To Southwestern Rail Issues

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 16.—Increase in the New York Central dividend brought about activity in railroad stocks today, particularly the southwest issues. Short covering developed in a number of issues with General Motors and Yellow Cab coming into prominence. Oils acted better following the warning issued by the attorney general of Indiana to the oil companies to cease the gasoline price war and to restore prices to normal at an early date.

Money loaned at 4 per cent. Foreign exchange was irregular. Cotton closed lower; wheat higher. Bulls in wheat are calling attention to the shortage in the winter wheat crop of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Production of these states is estimated by the government at 162,000,000 bushels against 265,000,000 last year. This section furnishes the first winter wheat in North America and should growers show a disposition to hold their wheat and a foreign demand develops, a tight situation is likely to arise in the Chicago delivery as contract stocks of wheat in that market are almost nil. One of Chicago's most successful operators in grain is now on the bull side of wheat.

St. Louis Southwestern was in steady demand at rising prices. Southwestern oil interests have been the principal buyers of this stock, Rock Island, "Katy" and Kansas City Southern and Chicago and St. Louis bankers have been competing wth the oil men in the purchase of stocks. It is believed in the southwest that these stocks will be carrying much higher dividends in the next few years. Improvements are being worked out in this section 09;3 country, it is said, which should prove beneficial to the carriers operating there. Rock Island reached a new high.

The next group of stocks expected to be brought in line are the northwestern issues because of the higher prices being obtained by the farmers. Chicago and Northwestern has been under quiet accumulation for several weeks.

Heavy selling developed in American Linseed preferred on news that the quarterly dividend had been omitted. Passing of the dividend was necessitated by a clause in the company's by-laws which calls for payment of preferred dividends out of the previous year's earnings. American Linseed had a poor year in 1926 but earnings this year are said to show considerable improvement.

American Smelting was influenced by the special payment on Federal Smelting common. Earnings of both roads are holding satisfactorily when compared with last year's income.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 16. (AP)—Rallies from an early decline in the cotton market today were not fully maintained. After selling up from 16.93 to 17.21, October closed at 17.01, the general market closing steady at a net decline of 4 to 8 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points with the nearer months relatively steady on covering.

Failure of Liverpool to meet fully the local advance of the previous day seemed to bring in some selling, however, and prices soon weakened under liquidation, while some selling for a reaction was also reported after the advance of the previous day.

July declined to 16.58 and December to 17.16, net losses of about 12 to 13 points, but there seemed to be a renewal of trade buying just below the 17 cent level for October, and the market firmed up during the midday.

The prospect for further showers in the south seemed to increase apprehensions of boll weevil damage and private reports received during the day said the infestation of insects was increasing is some sections. The situation in this respect, combined with the re-appearance of trade buying on the early decline, appeared to promote covering, and for a time the market showed considerable firmness, July selling up to 16.85 and December to 17.43 or 14 to 16 points net higher. A good part of the buying on this advance, however, was attributed to shorts and when the demand tapered off there was a renewal of liquidation with locals selling which caused reactions of 19 to 20 points from the best. The volume of business was smaller today than recently and part of it was attributed to evening up of accounts pending further crop and weather developments.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 16. (AP)—An early decline of 9 to 10 points was followed by trade and general buying in the cotton market today and as a result prices rose to levels 18 to 19 points above the previous close. The market eased off during the afternoon on realizing and near the end selling by ring traders to force a reaction carried prices down 22 to 23 points from the highs. The close was steady at net losses for the day of four points on all active months.

Cables were better than due at the opening here and first trades showed gains of 1 to 5 points. The market turned easier in the early trading on realizing and by the end of the first hour October traded to 16.89 and December 17.10.

Near mid-session numerous reports of weevil activity in the central and eastern portions of the belt coupled with pessimistic advices regarding the new floods, in the Mississipi valley carried prices up to 17.17 for October and 17.37 for December, 27 to 28 points above the highs.

Fresh Apricots, Blackberries And Plums Placed On Wichita Markets

Rain Halts Potato Digging; Local Vegetables Quickly Consumed in Small Lots From Farmers

Three additions were made to the lists of fresh fruits offered by Wichita Falls produce dealers, fresh California apricots, fresh plums and blackberries having entered the ranks of obtainable fruits. The wholesale prices are: Apricots, $4 per crate; plums, $4 per crate and blackberries, $2 per crate.

The selection of fresh vegetables was broadened somewhat by the receipts of new shipments of cauliflower, rhubarb, hot pepper and squash, all of which are coming from distant points. While each of the articles is raised near Wichita Falls, the production has not reached the wholesale stage yet and growers are selling in small lots what they do not use themselves.

The rains of Tuesday and Wednesday halted the potato harvest and cut down local receipts considerably. No potato shipments have been made from here, the local demand caring for the crop so far. At the same time, produce men say, the incoming shipments have been cut down considerably by the local production.

Home grown peaches are getting more plentiful each day, produce dealers advise.

Green beans descended a little from their lofty pearch and are now quoted to retailers at 20 cents per pound whereas last week they were 25 cents.

The usual summer prices of apples has set in and both delicious and winesaps are wholesaled at $3.75 per box.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 16. (AP)—Big trading and sharply higher prices in the corn market today accompanied persistent cool wet weather that put an additional serious handicap on the corn crop. Closing quotations for corn were strong, 2¼ to 2⅝c net higher, with wheat firm at ⅝ to 1⅛c gain, oats ½ to ⅝c up, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Oats prices were governed by the action of corn.

Wheat values bulged after an early dip. The late upturn was based both on corn strength and on fears of a wet harvest for wheat in the southwest.

Provisions rallied with grain, despite a sag in hog values.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 16. (AP)—Although several weak spots again developed in today's stock market, the general list moved forward under the impetus of aggressive bullish demonstrations in a selected list of motors, rails and high priced industrial specialties. A sleeping "short interest" in several issues, particularly Yellow Truck which was bid up nearly four points in the last hour of trading, was driven to cover, while a return of speculative confidence on the long side was indicated by the apparent increase in commission house buying. Total sales ran over two and one-quarter million shares.

The huge supply of funds available on call, resulting in another lowering of the call money rate from 4¼ to 4 per cent, and the prospect of a good July reinvestment demand helped to create bullish sentiment.

General Motors again assumed the leadership of the market by climbing more than five points to 204⅝, or within ¾ of the record high for all time, as Wall Street began speculating on the possibility of an extra cash or stock dividend at the next meeting of the directors. The heavy accumulation of Yellow Truck was accompanied by unconfirmed reports that General Motors was adding to its holdings of that stock. DuPont also advanced more than five points and Chrysler was heavily bought between 48 and 49.

St. Louis-Southwestern was the individual feature among the rails, soaring more than ten points to a record peak at 88⅝, and closing near the top. Rock Island touched a new top at 115 and New York, Ontario, and Western at 37. Substantial gains also were recorded by Chicago and Eastern Illinois, "Katy" common, New Haven, Norfolk and Southern, Norfolk and Western, Louisville and Nashville, and Texas and Pacific.

After the close of the market, the New York federal reserve rediscount rate was announced as unchanged at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

With the exception of a 10 point jump in Japanese yen to just above 46½ cents, there were few changes of interest in the foreign exchange list. Demand sterling was slightly lower around $4.85-5-16 and French francs were just above 3.91½ cents.

DEATH CLOSES STORY OF LOVE

Girl Who Spurned Society For Love Is Dead

SALIDA, Colo., June 16. (AP)—Death has ended the romance of Elinor Quincy, 35, of Boston, niece of Henry Adams of that city and great grand daughter of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, who a year ago abandoned eastern society circles to marry Claude Simpson, a Rocky mountain states guide.

On her arrival at the dude ranch in Wyoming she told her new found friends that she had tired of the social affairs in Boston. She met Simpson, then employed as a guide at the ranch, and they were married after a brief courtship.

The couple made their home in a mountain cabin in the Cebello district near Gunnison, Colo.

She recently was removed to a hospital here where she gave birth to a child Tuesday. Both the mother and child died.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, June 16.—Watermelons and tomatoes both of which were shipped by the hundred and over from Texas yesterday headed the list of rollings from the state. Of the 812 cars of watermelons rolled by the nation, 167 were Texas, 459 Florida and 128 Georgia, 57 California and one Alabama, while of the 336 cars of tomatoes shipped 120 were Texas, 193 Mississippi, the remainder being from scattered states. Other Texas shipments of the day were five cars potatoes, one cabbage and eight onions.

The tendency in shipping point markets is lower on watermelons with the 30 pounds average basis about $1.25@5 cents per pound different up and down being paid for other sizes. A good many cars are rolling unsold and very few cash track sales are listed. Tomatoes at Jacksonville continue to advance. Cash buyers yesterday paid 60 cents for four basket crates of unwrapped turnings and $1.10 for wrapped greens. Lugs of this latter pack brought $1.75 and six basket crates $2.50 cash track.

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, June 16. (AP)—Demand for fine domestic wools of this season's clip is failing rather heavily on long staple clothing cloth. The 12-months Texas line sell quite freely, as these wools can be readily substituted for Australian 64-70's super-warp which are held at prices considerably above the parity of Texas wools. Fair inquiry is being received for Ohio fine Delaines.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 16. (AP)—The cotton seed oil market was moderately active today, but price changes were irregular, operations consisting largely of exchanging from July to the later months. The trade was inclined to follow cotton to some extent, and after a moderate early upturn prices eased and closed at 2 to 4 points net decline on active positions. Total sales 16,600 barrels. Prime crude nominal; prime summer yellow spot 9.25; July closed 9.36; September 9.79; October 9.93; December 10.00; January 10.05.

Rains and Cool Weather Relieve Load On City Water Department

Due to the cool weather prevailing the past few days citizens of Wichita Falls have not demanded a large supply of water and as a result the city pumping plant register showed a decline of 1,500,000 gallons a day, from Saturday until Wednesday, Dr. A. H. Douglass, superintendent of the water department, said Thursday.

The water supply pumped last Saturday was the largest for any day in 1927, Dr. Douglass said. The register showed that 6,100,000 gallons were used during the day by the citizens of the city. During Saturday morning the city plant for two hours was pumping at the rate of 12,800,000 gallons a day. Approximately 40 per cent of this water Dr. Douglass said, was raw and did not pass through the filter but was treated with chlorine.

The recent rains, Dr. Douglass asserted, will tend to soften the water used in the city.

As a result of the cool weather the plant has been pumping on an average of 4,500,000 gallons of water a day for the past several days. This was practically all filtered water, Dr. Douglass said.

ITALIAN FLIER REACHES ROME

De Pinedo Completes Long Aerial Journey

ROME, June 16. (AP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian aviator, arrived at Ostia, on the coast near Rome, at 5 o'clock this afternoon, completing his sensational four-continent flight.

He was greeted by immense cheering crowds and officially welcomed by Premier Mussolini and other dignataries.

BUILDING TO BE 110-STORY

New York Tower Will Be Tallest Structure

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Designing a 110-story building, a structure that will be the world's tallest, nearly doubling the height of the Woolworth building and topping the Eiffel tower by over 200 feet—This amazing piece of business is "all in the day's work" to John A. Larkin.

Just as you regard fixing an automobile, if you're a mechanic or washing the dishes, if you're a housewife, or as young Charlie Lindbergh thought of his oceanic hop—merely as the thing in hand to do at the time—

That's how this extraordinary man, this architect, looks on the plans for Larkin tower.

Larkin tower will be a marvel of construction. Located at Ninth avenue between Forty-first and Forty-second streets, it will rear its gigantic head into the skies, carrying a beacon to light the way of sea craft for miles around.

Cost Is Enormous.

It will have 75 elevators, innumerable office suites, and will cost, together with the land, $25,000,000. Ground has already been broken and the last dab of paint is expected to be put on a year from now.

The man who is making this possible and whose name the tower will bear sat in his office a block from the site today and unconsciously exhibited something of his personality.

He was very busy, surrounded by clerks and draftsmen and office boys and answering telephone calls. He is a gaunt, big-framed man of about 60, slightly stooped perhaps with sparse gray hair, keen gray eyes, and a large nose.

Looking up from a mass of paper on his roll-topped desk, he was polite and soft-spoken but direct.

"A masterpiece? Do I consider this a masterpiece? No, it's just a piece of work. A big piece of work of course, but work nevertheless," he said. "A piece of work I am sincerely glad is completed.

"I do not look on it as an artist might regard his best brain-child, as a masterpiece. An artist can finish a painting in six months—and he hasn't worked very hard at that. But this, it has taken us four years to perfect these plans. Larkin tower is no plaything."

Record for While.

Mr. Larkin is essentially the business man; and like other successful business men equipped with common sense and a realization of the startling progress the world is making, he knows that what is big today may be little tomorrow.

"I believe Larkin tower will hold 'em for a while," he declared. "But air records are being broken every day and there's no telling when a more lofty building may go up."

GOLDEN RULE ROTARY IDEAL

Mytinger Gives Final Talk On Work

"The whole theme of Rotarian service was told 1900 years ago in the Golden Rule, and the six objects of Rotary are simply modern day restatements of that short sentence," J. C. Mytinger told the Rotarians attending the weekly luncheon Thursday. Mr. Mytinger was selected to offer the final talk of the year as recommended by Rotary International on "A Rotarian's Service to Society Through His Business."

"We have already learned that we have to render that service in our business, or we will not stay in business," the speaker affirmed, emphasizing that it is how far above and beyond the strict line of duty a man is willing to go that really counts for service.

Raps Lewis, Mencken.

"We should have such respect for the reputation of ourselves, our firm and our merchandise that we stand behind every trade with more than the measure of obligation requires. Business methods have improved a lot, even in my time, and the man who refuses to give fair play in this day is soon put out by his competitors."

Mr. Mytinger asserted that many mistakes were made in defining what Rotary stands for, which give such "dealers in high thought" as Sinclair Lewis and H. L. Mencken food for their opposition.

"Rotary is not intended to be a universal church or a League of Nations, for the friendship and understanding established is the greatest thing about it all.

"It is the understanding of our fellow man which we acquire through these meetings that helps us to render this service to society which is so necessary," he declared.

Following Mr. Mytinger's talk, the president, A. E. Myles, stressed the point that Rotary is non-political and non-sectarian.

"To us it makes no difference if a man be a Catholic priest, a Protestant minister or a Jewish rabbi; if he is worthy of the cloth he is the servant of society and is seeking to better humanity and help his fellow man.

Miller Gives Songs.

"And if there be one classification that stands preeminently above all others in this sort of service, it is that of the Christian ministry," he added, paying tribute to the ministers present in the room.

Rev. Leslie Miller delighted the club with two song selections, accompanied on the piano by J. S. Pitman. The first song was a negro spiritual and the second "Mother O' Mine," from Kipling's poem.

The last council meeting of the present club administration will be held Monday evening in the City National bank, and all committee chairmen and vice chairman are requested to attend, according to announcement of the president.

Visitors of the club were introduced Thursday by W. B. Hamilton, as follows: Out of town, G. W. Cotes, Beaumont; Bill Sommerville, Dallas; Sam R. Hurd, Fort Worth; Clarence Penman, Dallas; Bill Salome, Wichita, Kan., John F. Wright, Waco; Hi Stern, Muskogee, and Wallace Martin, Burkburnett. Local guests were J. H. Barnard, Jerry Moffatt, H. M. Evans, Rev. Leslie Miller, C. M. McMurry, C. M. McFarland, Miss Marietta Hunt, Dr. O. B. Kiel, Dr. Everett Jones.

FOR DAD

By Jacqueline

IT IS HARD to find a greeting card for Dad. Most of them are saccharine sentimentalities, but Montgomery's offers comradely verses which will really mean something to him. Here your gift (perhaps a beautiful foulard or faille tie) will be enclosed in a Dad's Day gift box. This man's store knows its men!

WHAT is your Father's greatest diversion in the evening? Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the answer is either bridge or reading. Now the very nicest gift for him this Sunday, the one which will be most appreciated for its constant use and the added comfort and enjoyment it gives, will be a bridge or reading lamp. John L. Jones Furniture Store shows lamps which will be an ornament to any home and stand at just the proper angle to cast a soft glow over Father's evening. Metal stands in the newest lines of slender elegance and silk shades in various colors and designs characterize these lamps. A chain of stores makes it possible for John L. Jones to offer exceptionally low prices on everything—bridge and floor lamps, for instance, are priced from $5 up. This will be a real gift for Dad!

FATHER is reaching a stage in the game of life when he stays close to home and appreciates reading lamps. But how about his own "lamps," is he seeing as well as he should? An optical examination, by an expert, will determine whether his glasses need changing. That is my specialty—come on down. Geo. William L. Spencer, O. D., 705 Ohio avenue. Phone 3645.

FROM the leading shirt makers of the world come English broadcloths and light weight madras in time for Dad's day. You'll find this something Dad is sure to like at P. B. M. Company in summer patterns. The checks, either light or dark, make good-looking shirts.

Oh, yes, the prices—these fine shirts range from $2.50 to $10 and the neckties from $1.50 to $5.

BOY WOUNDED BY OFFICER

Shooting Acidental, Says Police Chief

Police Chief Frank Burns stated Thursday that his investigation of the shooting of Daniel Lujon, 13-year-old Mexican boy, by Motorcycle Officer O. A. Roberson, indicates that the officer had no intention of hitting the boy. No charges will be filed against Roberson, said Chief Burns.

The Lujon boy was shot in the flesh of his forearm Wednesday afternoon while running from the officer, who had been detailed to duty near the baseball park where many reports of theft of automobile accessories have originated, Chief Burns stated.

The boy was said to have had in his hads several pies. He fled when accosted by the officer who fired several shots to scare the boy. A bullet struck the boy as he stuck out his arm in running, police reports said.

Chief Burns visited the boy at the General hospital Thursday morning after having released two other Mexican boys who were arrested at the same time the Lujon boy was shot. Hospital attendants stated Thursday night that his condition was not serious and that he was resting well.
